Becoming a Shared Wife

Prologue

I push my way into the bathroom and lock myself in the stall. I'm glad I'm so high because otherwise, I think I'd be a nervous wreck. No, this is not the first time I've played this little game, but it is the first time I know it's going to lead to my sleeping with another man. My husband of over ten years, Dave, watched eagerly from across the bar as I flirted with two guys who are close to a decade younger than I am. Yes, it's flattering that a couple of guys in their mid-twenties want to take me home, but I could not help feeling like I'm robbing the cradle. I probably wouldn't be considering it if Zach weren't so damn hot.

Dave and I have been playing this game for a few months now. We call these nights our hot dates, but not for any reason you'd probably expect. They are hot dates because I dress up and go out to pick up other men while my husband watches. If he's really lucky, he gets to watch me hook up with them too—or at least hear it. My husband is very into seeing me with other men and it's an idea I've only become accustomed to over the last few months as we've explored this new lifestyle. But we've always had limits, drawn boundaries. Tonight I'm going to cross the final line. I've played with other guys before tonight, but I haven't fucked any of them. I have not done that with anyone but my husband in almost fifteen years. I am going there tonight. I'm going home with these guys and before the night is over I am going to be in Zach's bed, I know it. If my husband has any second thoughts about my doing this, it is his last chance to call it off. I took out my phone and shot him a text.

DANA

they want me to leave with them

DAVE

that's hot. Do you want to go?

DANA

yes. I'm having a good time

DAVE

going home with TWO guys. You're getting pretty wild babe

DANA

you think I'm going to be with both of them?

Somehow I just knew his mind would go there.

DAVE

who knows what will happen at their place

His utter lack of jealousy irked me. I guess the woman in me wanted him to be somewhat possessive in that moment. He seemed completely okay with me fucking two guys. Was Dave willing to just pass me around at a gangbang, too? I still didn't know how I felt about having a threesome with Zach and Josh, but now I was tempted to do it just to provoke a reaction from my husband.

DANA

I guess we're going to find out

DAVE

I can't wait to hear all about it! I love you

DANA

I love you too

And just like that, my husband was sending me off to have sex with another man. Maybe two. He would love to hear about that, too. I push out of the stall and check my hair and reapply my makeup in the mirror. I can't help rubbing my thumb over the crease left in the space usually occupied by my wedding ring. It is safely at home in my jewelry box. These boys have no idea I'm married. They think I'm a divorcee named Dani who is looking to have a little fun while the kids are off with the ex. Not for the first time, I consider they probably think I'm an easy mark. I guess they're right. I am, tonight. Satisfied with the touch-up to my look, I square my shoulders, pushing out my boobs, and head out to see what the night has in store. Both Zach and Josh look happy to see me return—maybe they thought I snuck out the back—and as I approach them I can't help but think about how I ended up here...

CHAPTER 1

First Date: The Library

Dave kept this darkest of fantasies a secret for most of our marriage. I never had any indication that he wanted me to be with other men. But it's not like we had a boring, conventional sex life. I'm sure most of our friends would be shocked to know just how crazy we can get when we're alone. To them, we're Dave & Dana, the 'Double-Ds', the perfect couple with the perfect family and perfect house and perfect life. We're the ones with the rocking weekend barbeques in our backyard that welcome everyone. I can admit we seem nauseatingly ideal. It's not that keeping up appearances is important to us, but we have a great life together and we've been very fortunate.

I met Dave when we were both attending the local college. I was working toward an associate degree, and he was taking classes in hopes of advancing his career. Dave's always been a hard worker and started doing construction in high school. He knew going to university was not for him and started working full-time right after high school. But by the time he was in his mid-twenties—Dave is several years older than me—he realized he didn't want to be breaking his back in the hot sun forever, so he returned to school to take management classes. Eventually, he would earn his degree.

I have to admit, the second I saw Dave I knew I wanted him. He is a strong, mountain of a man. Please don't think that the fact my husband's fantasies involve me being with other men means he is some kind of weak cuckold. That could not be further from the truth. He is tall, more than six feet, and broad, with a body hardened by years of physical work. He still wears his hair down past his collar, but while it was jet black when we first met, now it's shot with gray, as is the neatly trimmed beard he's always worn. The best way to put it is that Dave was the manliest man I had ever met. He certainly was not someone I expected to meet in an accounting class.

I know he caught me checking him out during those first few classes, but he did not approach me until our first quiz was coming up. He approached me after class one day and asked if I'd be interested in studying together.

"All these numbers make my head spin," Dave said, flashing that heartbreaker smile of his. I've heard stories since and I know that smile alone ensnared more than one girl. "I could really use your help with this—if you have the time." I'm not sure I even really heard him. All I saw was that smile and those jade eyes and I just nodded. I would have agreed to just about anything. We met in the library a couple of days later, and after that, I never ever thought of another man.

We did actually study for an hour or so, sitting out in the open, main part of the library, but my mind was on his tight, worn jeans and the gray t-shirt stretched over his chest. I could hardly concentrate on my notes. Dave said he wanted to get up and stretch his legs, and of course, I joined him for a walk around the library. It was just a pretense to get me alone, and I knew it and was happy to go along. I was only nineteen, but I was no innocent little thing—not that I'd been with anyone like Dave before. He followed me up the stairs, I could feel his eyes on my butt, so I put a little extra swish in my hips. I was a tiny thing back then, I was always active and had even done dance squad in high school. My size-2 days are long gone, but Dave swears he likes my curvier body now and says I'm sexier than ever. And I tell him he's my husband and he has to say that. But then, the guys who flirt with me now seem to agree.

As soon as we were alone in the stacks, he made his move. Dave backed me up against the shelves in a quiet corner and kissed me. Most of the guys I'd been with at that point were tentative, trying to work up their courage—one even asked for permission to kiss me, always a mood killer—Dave was not like that, he just eased me back and kissed me. He was surprisingly gentle for such a big man. He's almost a foot taller than me and I felt cocooned in his arms. My hands were flat on his hard chest and he grabbed my tight little butt through the short babydoll dress that was my uniform back then. I'd worn knee-high stockings with it in an attempt to look more alluring. That kiss made my head spin and I just wanted more and more of him. I was not the shy type back then either. I pulled at his t-shirt as if I thought I could just tear it off. He only let me go when we heard someone coming and I used the respite to catch my breath, but it was brief.

I pulled Dave to the back of the row, where the high bookshelves met the wall, hoping we were far enough back that if anyone walked by they wouldn't notice us, or maybe they wouldn't see me behind him. I kissed him the second time and he took that as a green light to push it, not that he needed to push. When his big fingers had trouble with the tiny buttons running down the front of my dress I helped out, opening it to the waist. Does it make me a slut that I'd worn my sexiest lacy black underwear hoping he would see it?

"Christ, you're sexy," he murmured when he pulled my dress open. Not to sound immodest, but I've always had great breasts. They're big for my petite frame and they're still nice and firm—even after two kids—but back then they stood out high and proud on my tight young body. Dave had been trying to steal glances at them every time I leaned forward back at the table.

"Thanks. You're not so bad either." I giggled.

"Not so bad? Is that why you've been staring at me for the last few weeks?"

"Have not!" I feigned outrage.

"It's okay. I like it. I like a bold woman."

"Really?" He palmed my breast, and the gossamer lace of my bra hid nothing from his touch. I gasped as his circling thumb brought my nipple to instant hardness. My breasts are so sensitive and have always been a hotline directly to my pussy. The quivering I felt down below at our first kiss turned to a full-fledged buzz and I felt my panties dampen. I wanted Dave to take me right there in the library. I'd never been so intoxicated with a man in my short life.

"Really," he insisted, idly stroking my breast as if he was unaware of the effect of his touch. He swept my chestnut hair to the side—I wore it halfway down my back then—and nibbled on my neck. My earlier gasp turned to a moan and my panties went from damp to drenched. I loved the way his prickly beard felt on my skin when he kissed my neck. God, he was such a man! I knew then that I'd only been with boys to that point.

"Good," I said.

I went right for it. I squeezed a hand between us and grabbed him through his jeans. He felt big, and I could tell he was as excited as I was.

His cock twitched when I rubbed it and he lightly pinched my nipple. I moaned and turned my head, bringing his lips back to mine. As I massaged his shaft through those tight jeans, I felt empty down below. Even though I'd never had him inside me, I missed having him there. His jeans were unbuttoned and unzipped before I realized it. My hands moved of their own accord. For a moment, I was afraid. I was out of control. If Dave decided to spin me around and bend me forward, I would have happily held onto the shelves in front of me and let him fuck me right there. I'd had a one-night stand by then after a party, but I had never let a man who barely knew me just take me like that. I knew it was wrong—I shouldn't do it—but I would not have stopped him. I reached into his snug boxer briefs and his warm girth filled my hand. God, he was thick. I needed him. But I could not let that happen. I didn't want to be the girl who fucked him in the library on our first date, so using nineteen-year-old logic, I split the difference and decided I would make him very happy but leave him wanting more. Of course, while this drama played out inside my head, I had no idea what Dave was actually thinking and if he was planning to bend me over and fuck me on the spot. I only found out later that while he wanted me just as much, he was not going to do that, not there, not that fast, because he already knew then he wanted something long-term and didn't think that was the way to start it. Dave was also happily surprised by what I did next.

I held my breath for a moment, trying to make sure I did not hear anyone nearby. All I could hear was my pulse pounding in my ears. I smiled up at Dave and slowly went to my knees on the rough, industrial carpet, knowing it would ruin my knee-highs, and dragged his jeans down with me.

"Dana, what..." He told me later he was petrified we would be caught. He said he'd never been with a girl quite like me. He was with the same girl all through high school and for a couple of years afterward, and something like that would never have occurred to her.

"You're not going to try and talk me out of this, are you? I can always stop," I teased, stroking my hand up and down his long shaft. When a fat drop of clear fluid formed on the tip, I scooped it up with my tongue.

"Please don't stop!"

I licked him up and down, soaking his cock and enjoying his musky taste before I took him in my mouth. I would have loved to play with my new toy longer, but that was not the place, and anyway, I hoped I would have the chance to get to know him at my leisure later. And back then, I didn't know what I was doing. I just put it in my mouth and bobbed up and down. It took years of experimenting with Dave to discover how much I love dragging it out and making him really go crazy before he gets off. But as a pretty nineteen-year-old, I had never needed much technique. I knew enough. I brushed my hair out of my eyes so I could look up at him as I sucked more and more of him into my mouth. I also didn't know how to relax my throat back then, so I only ended up sucking about half of him and stroking the rest with my hand.

Dave gripped the shelves on either side of him and stared down at me with a fearful intensity. I could see he was fighting to control himself—fighting to keep quiet and keep from cumming too quickly. But he only lasted a couple of minutes. I think we were both too fired up for any kind of control. "Dana," he grunted, trying to give me some warning. But I had no intention of letting him out of my mouth. I kept right on stroking and sucking him and he exploded into my mouth. And wow, did he explode! It seemed like he hadn't cum in a week because he kept blasting down my throat until I thought I was going to choke. I finally had to release his cock as I coughed and wiped my lips on the back of my hand. I was embarrassed by how I drooled for his cock. I was trying to be sexy and daring, not red-faced and coughing. I got a hold of myself and held onto the shelves to pull myself to my feet.

"Dana, that was incredible. Wow." Dave looked blown away, and it was good to know I had attained my goal.

"You'd better put this thing away before I decide I want more," I said, taking his cock and tucking it back into his boxers.

"You can have it anytime you want. It's all yours."

"You'd better be careful what you offer. I'll hold you to that."

"Please do."

I turned away from Dave and began re-buttoning my dress, but he pulled my hands away. "What do you think you're doing?"

"We need to get out of here before someone catches us," I replied.

"Not until I take care of you."

"You don't need to worry about that right now. We have plenty of time later."

"No, I don't want you to think I'm selfish. Come here."

Dave grabbed my wrist, something that would have seemed pushy from anyone else, and pulled me close to him. His confidence and strength made my heart flutter in my chest. A strong man was what I'd always wanted, I was just too young to know it at that point. Instead of pulling me into a kiss, he turned me away from him, so I was facing the corridor that went down the middle of the stacks.

"Dave, we're really pushing our luck," I warned again.

"No one's found us yet," he replied, unheeded.

My babydoll dress buttoned up the front, and he took advantage by releasing several buttons just below my waist and he slipped his hand inside my dress. That was slightly less obvious than just hiking it up from the bottom. His questing fingers glanced over my soaked, silky black panties and I shivered, but when he added pressure, I quaked to the core. I was already primed for him, so it did not take much to get my whole body humming. He rubbed in little circles, and I closed my eyes and tried to hold my breath because I didn't want to lose control so quickly. I didn't want Dave to know already that I was helpless in his arms, and I certainly did not want to make too much noise in the still library. I'm not ordinarily a screamer—I can be persuaded—but I wouldn't call myself quiet either. If Dave made me cum in that library, and I knew he would, anyone nearby would know it. I kept it to soft whimpers when he started, but as he teased me it grew harder to contain myself.

"Don't get us caught," Dave whispered mirthfully, his lips brushing my ear. Well, that wasn't going to help me keep quiet. He was enjoying my struggle.

Control went out the window when Dave moved his hand inside my panties. He stroked the downy hair covering my mound, waiting for me to push at him before he continued, and then fingers pushed between my folds and lit me up like a Christmas tree. No guy I'd been with to that point could find my clit without help, but he zeroed right in on the little nub and petted it like he was born for it. The guys I'd been with the thought that if they were lucky enough to get into a girl's panties they needed to ram their fingers as hard and fast as they could. Dave knew it was all about subtlety and a firm, not bruising touch. The fight to keep quiet was hopeless. My moans became too obvious and he covered my mouth with his hand. I bit his fingers and he still didn't pull away. And thank god he didn't. Another student—a boy hardly older than me—casually walked down the corridor and never glanced over, unaware that a girl was just about the climax a mere twelve feet away from him. I came hard and Dave squeezed me tightly in his arms, the only thing keeping me from melting to the floor. The hand muffled my cries effectively enough that no one came running, but I'm sure someone got a good laugh overhearing us. I finally pulled his hand away from my mouth. I had to breathe. I turned in his arms and buried my face in his chest. With little effort, Dave gave me the most intense orgasm I'd had up until then. And just like that, I belonged to him.

Seeds of Sharing: The Lake

Dave and I were a couple from that day on. I found out later that he had been seeing a couple of other girls too, but he dropped them for me. He says he was serious about me from the moment we met. I don't know if you could call our relationship love at first sight—it was mostly lust, but we were made for each other. I finished my Associate's degree and became a legal secretary. Dave kept going to school at night and eventually earned his Bachelor's. We were married within a year and a half of meeting and eventually had two daughters. Six years ago, Dave started his own contracting firm, which can mean long hours sometimes, and he is doing very well for our family.

One of the things that made us so compatible in bed from the start was that neither of us was thrilled by vanilla, missionary-in-the-dark sex. I'm not claiming it's the most important thing, but let's be honest, chemistry in the bedroom—or wherever you choose to get it on—is important to happiness in a long-term relationship. Yes, it matters that he picks up his socks off the floor and still holds doors, but those are the things that make me happy and appreciative. It's the heat in our sex life that keeps me excited. Without that, I could be content, but I would get a little bored and I might even start looking at other men more than I should. I would not say that we were crazy kinky—at least not before we started playing these games—we were just a fun, open couple. I enjoy giving Dave road head on a long trip, we like to sneak away to a quiet corner or a changing room for a quickie if we think we can get away with it. We even opened the door to playing with other people before—just a crack. I never thought we would kick it open all the way! But that experience should have given me an inkling that Dave had hidden, kinky depths we'd never explored.

We had only been married for a few years and our first daughter had not come yet, so we were a happy, carefree young couple having our fun before life got serious. And that meant a lot of partying with our friends. Dave and I rented a cabin in the mountains with our close friends Lisa and Shane. It was pushed back into the woods, which meant we had the privacy to get as crazy as we wanted, but it was also just a short walk from the crystal blue lake. The cabin was perfect for a four-day weekend away from the world.

Friday night was mostly about unpacking and then kicking back and drinking. We did not even have the energy to light a fire. I think Shane had taken half a day from work to pack, but Dave and I both worked all day and then packed and took the three-hour drive to the cabin. Dave stuck to beer, but the rest of us gave the blender a hard workout, and the tequila flowed. Things started getting raunchy that night—as they did when we got together and drank too much, but they didn't go too far before we retired to the bedrooms. Not that night.

The next morning we were up early, despite the prior night's drinking, and after a light breakfast, the boys loaded up a cooler with beer and took the canoe out on the lake to do some fishing. Lisa and I were slower to get started, but we made our way to the lake and laid our towels out on the beach to get a little sun. I've never been a sun worshipper, but Lisa loved to lay there and tan. My pale skin just freckles and burns instead of tanning. Lisa was tall and dark and turned a rich teak color when she spent time in the sun. We were young and enjoying ourselves, not thinking about what all that sun might do to us in twenty years. I stripped out of my baggy t-shirt and cutoffs and caught Lisa staring.

"What?" I asked.

"I hate you. I know you're not one of those salad only girls, but you never gain an ounce," Lisa replied in mock anger.

"Please, guys are always staring at you. My husband stares at you!"

"Not nearly as much as Shane stares at your ass."

Lisa wasn't tiny like me, she was five-nine, and I guess she was on the thick side, but her curves were in all the right places. Her butt was nice and round, and her boobs were insane. She had to be a double-d. It looked like her bikini top could fail at any moment. I thought she looked great in her black bikini and wished I filled out mine better. I had this red and blue striped string bikini that was my go-to swimsuit back then, something much skimpier than I would ever wear now. I still wear a two-piece, with much encouragement from my husband, but it's usually a tankini or at least something with a halter-style top. I'm still in great shape, but things just aren't as tight as they were back then, and I don't need to be parading around half-naked. As it is, I get the occasional stare from some other jealous mom at the swim club.

"If he likes a juicy ass like mine, what's he doing with you?"

"I don't know, but maybe it's something he needs to get out of his system." I laughed.

"Send him on over tonight."

"I would, but I don't know if Shane would be down with that."

"If he got to come over to your bedroom, I'm sure he'd be fine with it," Lisa said. She finished putting on her tanning lotion and asked if I could get her back.

Lisa pulled her thick, raven hair aside and knelt on the big queen-sized blanket as I rubbed the lotion into her back. It was a shame the guys weren't around for that. They would have gone crazy. But I guess getting to the fish early was more important.

"That could be fun, but I don't know if we have enough alcohol in that cabin for that to go down."

"You're right," Lisa agreed. "We've been pretty drunk a lot, but things have never gone that far. Here let me do you."

"Behave!"

I closed my eyes as she rubbed the lotion into my back. It always felt good to get a massage, and Lisa had very nice hands. I wondered if we ever got drunk enough if something crazy could happen. Neither Dave nor I were jealous in the least, but I didn't know that I would be okay if I saw him with another woman. I knew he loved it when I dressed sexy and other men checked me out, but that didn't mean he wanted things to go any further than that—or so I thought at the time. I didn't think he wanted to see Shane's hands all over me. Shane was a good-looking guy. If I hadn't been married, I don't think I would have minded one bit. He was tall like Dave, but thin and had much longer hair than my husband. He was like the slacker stoner to Dave's athlete. The four of us had a flirty relationship and there was plenty of ass-grabbing when we were having fun, but before that weekend things had never gone further than us making out with our spouses in front of one another. When things got hot and heavy, we always separated. I think our guest room had seen as much action from Lisa and Shane as their own bedroom had.

“Okay, I’m done,” she said, tugging my coppery ponytail. “The red in my strawberry blonde hair really comes out in the sun. Where did you go just now?”

I smiled and turned to lie on the blanket and arrange myself. “Oh, nowhere. Just thinking about things.”

“Like what?”

I kept smiling and stayed silent.

“You were thinking about Shane coming to your bedroom!”

“Maybe.”

“You dirty slut!” Lisa feigned shock.

“You’re the one who put the idea in my head.”

“Only if I get to take Dave out for a spin. Is he big everywhere?”

My eyes popped open. She knew everything about our sex life—and I theirs—but we didn’t usually discuss anything that specific. I couldn’t imagine asking her if Shane had a big dick. “What kind of a question is that?”

“If I’m going to think about Dave that way I want to have a complete picture.”

“I didn’t ask you that.”

“I guess you have a better imagination than I do.” When I still didn’t answer, she pressed. “So?”

“I’ll just say that I am a very satisfied wife.”

Lisa smacked my arm. “You lucky bitch!”

“If only you knew how lucky.”

We both fell into laughter and then got down to the business of tanning. Lisa mostly stayed on the beach, but I couldn’t take the heat and kept wading into the lake for relief. The wading turned into swimming and eventually I think I spent more time in the water than I did on the blanket. I lured Lisa into the lake with me several times, but she was more interested in laying there and reading her trashy novel while she baked. By the time we returned to the cabin I was ready for a nap. The guys weren’t back yet, so that’s exactly what I did. I slipped out of my clothes and swimsuit and into one of Dave’s t-shirts and fell asleep on top of the sheets with the ceiling fan spinning lazily above me.

I was deep in a pleasant dream when reality began to press into my brain. I knew it was a dream because both Dave and Shane were on the small, gravelly beach by the lake, naked. I lay back on the blanket, propped up on my elbows, wearing my bikini. Lisa was nowhere to be found. The guys were posing for me, seeming to have no problem with being so close to each other nude. My eyes flitted back and forth as I evaluated them. As a woman, I was well used to having the evaluating eyes of men on me, and it was fun to turn to the tables.

Both of the guys were in good shape, but my Dave had the edge. He was rock hard back then, not ripped like he got his muscles in a gym, but hard and tight, like a man who worked with his hands. The dusting of dark hair on his chest trailed down to a thick cock that only seemed to grow larger the more he looked at me. Shane was fit, but not built like Dave. And he had a great, devilish smile, but I was not paying much attention to that. No, my eyes kept drifting back to the root between his legs, just like with Dave. I knew my husband's cock intimately, of course. It was thick enough that I could just barely close my hand around it, and he was a nice eight inches. He pleased me like no other. I'd seen most of Shane, on the beach here and there, but I wasn't familiar with his privates, so my dream filled them in for me. I imagined his prick to be long and slender, just like the rest of him. The perfect size to please me.

"So, which of us would you like?" Dave asked. He showed no jealousy that he was competing with another man for my attention, but this was all just a dream. Maybe my subconscious knew something I didn't.

"Yeah," Shane said, hefting his cock in his hand. "You can't expect us to stand here like this all day."

"I don't know, guys. I feel like a kid in a candy store. I want to try everything I see."

They walked closer until they were standing at the edge of the blanket. I sat up and their cocks were right in my face. My arousal was palatable in my dream. I wanted them. Both of them. They were so close that I could reach out and touch them, and I desperately wanted to, but fear and propriety held me back. I loved my husband and touching another man's penis is just something that's not done.

"What if you don't have to choose?" Dave asked.

"No one said you can't have us both," Shane added.

“Go ahead, honey. It’s only us here. It will be our little secret,” Dave encouraged.

I reached for both of them, and as I grabbed their shafts a rush of pleasure flooded me and I gasped...

...and my eyes fluttered open. I was twisted on the bed, half on my side, half on my back, and the t-shirt had ridden up around my waist. I guess I was lucky Dave was the one who came into the bedroom because my neatly-trimmed little mound was out there for everyone to see. Dave was doing more than looking. He massaged my pussy, and he must have been doing it for a while because I woke up soaked. He parted my lips and flicked at my clit.

“Dave, baby...” I breathed, still half-asleep. The memory of having two cocks in front of me was still vivid, as was the fact that I was ready to play with both of them. I could not be sure which made me more excited, the dream or Dave touching me. I cursed Lisa for putting evil thoughts into my head.

“That must have been some dream. You were moaning in your sleep,” he said. He was wearing nothing but a towel around his waist, and seeing him damp and half-naked only made me need it more. I pushed my hand inside the fold of his towel. He was already growing hard before I touched him. As I stroked him, he pushed two thick fingers inside me, and I cried out. His thumb kept teasing my clit.

“We were on the beach and you were there...” I moaned. It was not so easy to speak. My brain wanted to do things other than form words. Hot things.

“And I was there? Who else was with us?”

Did I dare tell him Shane was there and gloriously nude? I did not think my husband would want to hear about that. So instead of answering, I twisted on the bed and pulled the towel apart so that his prick sprang into the air. Dave moved with me as sucked him into my warm, wet mouth. He nuzzled my pussy and spread my dewy lips. My moans vibrated through his cock as his tongue worked its magic. Dave was the first guy I was with who really seemed to enjoy going down—and it showed. When he sucked and licked my clit it got harder and harder to focus on pleasing him.

“Hey, are you guys coming out anytime soon? We’d love to get dinner started,” Shane called out from the hallway. It sounded like he was right outside our door

I tore my mouth from Dave's cock and licked my lips so I wouldn't slurp when I called out, "We'll be right there—ohhh!" Of course, Dave picked that moment to suck my clit hard. He loved doing things like that.

"Come on, guys, we're starving. You can do that later. Don't make me come in there."

Shane did not understand that I really needed it right then. I was half-afraid he really would come in—I doubted Dave locked the door—so I reluctantly pushed my husband away with a frustrated groan.

"Christ, Dana, I was almost there," he complained.

"I think we're about to have an audience." I pulled my t-shirt down.

"That wouldn't usually stop us."

"But those are strangers. You don't mind if Shane watches us do it?"

His eyes twinkled devilishly. "That could be fun."

"Maybe I should just invite him in then." I was barely whispering. I didn't want Shane to hear if he was lingering outside our bedroom door—not that he wouldn't have heard my moans before.

Dave did not answer but gave me one of those challenging looks. He loves to see just how far he can push me. I knew it was going to get him—us—in trouble someday. I was not about to invite Shane in to watch us, but that did not mean I could not push my husband just a little. "Maybe next time," I said, hopping off the bed. I strolled to the door with my ass mostly hanging out from under the t-shirt and pulled the door wide open. I'm not sure if I really hoped Shane was there or not, but he was, and his eyes went wide when he saw what I was—or really was not—wearing.

"Excuse me." I smiled up at him sweetly. "I need to use the shower if you don't mind. Tell Lisa I'll be in to help her in a few minutes."

"I don't mind at all," he stammered.

I didn't look back, but I could feel his eyes on my bare ass as I walked down the short hallway. I could only imagine the look on my husband's face.

I WAS TEMPTED to get some quick relief in the shower, but my trusty shower massage was at home and hot water was at a premium at the cabin, so I refrained, knowing I was going to jump my husband at the first opportunity. The boys had prepped the fish, and I cut up veggies while Lisa worked on a salad. The boys would get the grill going, but they did not do any of the cooking up there. I think they liked having their women prepare the food they brought back. It was all very primal, but I never minded. I like it when a man is a man. Lisa had a bottle of wine open and I happily helped myself.

We ate dinner outside at the picnic table and then sat on the big Adirondack chairs on the front porch, Lisa and I in our husbands' laps as we chatted. I'd changed into a cute little printed sundress and went braless. I didn't think anyone would complain about that. I jiggled as I walked, and both boys noticed. But Lisa had no reason to be jealous. Her black tank top and cut-offs hugged those gorgeous curves of hers. Even I was looking! Dave kept trying to work his hand up my dress, but I thwarted his progress every time. He was just as frustrated as I was. It seemed we would be calling it an early night to get some much needed alone time. The night became buggy and when we moved inside I thought Dave and I would excuse ourselves, but he surprised me by agreeing with Lisa that we should move things into the living room. It was too warm for a fire, but we all sat on the floor around the big hearth anyway. It was a convenient place to put my wine glass. I knew when we stood up that I needed to slow down on the vino, so I just took little sips from the full glass. Dave was just as drunk as I was, but he kept drinking like there was no tomorrow. I was going to be very unhappy if he fell onto the bed and passed out.

"Do you guys plan on abandoning us again tomorrow to sit on the lake with your rods in your hands?" Lisa asked. She sat beside Shane, with a hand resting on his thigh.

"Like baking in the sun beside the lake is any more interesting?" Dave replied. I sat between his legs, resting back against his chest, and his arms wrapped around me. It felt good to be in his arms, but it reminded me that what I really wanted was to be in his arms naked.

"No, I guess not, but I'd think you'd enjoy the scenery hanging out with us more than you would staring at trees. But to each his own." Lisa feigned disappointment.

"You make a good, point, but we're seeing you now," Shane said, kissing his wife's cheek.

"It's not the same, though," I chimed in. I could not let Lisa do all the teasing. "We were wearing a lot less by the lake."

Dave chuckled. "You're not wearing much now, babe."

"I can always put more on," I started to get up, but he pulled me back down between his legs. I wondered if he was just referring to my little sundress or my lack of bra. Either way, I knew he did not really mind. He liked that Shane kept flickering his gaze over to me when Shane thought no one was looking.

"Don't go and do anything silly like that," Shane said hurriedly.

"We weren't just in our bikinis, we were also rubbing suntan lotion all over each other. I know how much you love to watch that," Lisa said. Her hand landed on Shane's thigh, awfully close to his crotch. He wore loose cut-off jeans, so I could not tell which side he favored that night—not that I would do such a thing.

"It sounds like we did miss out. That sucks. There's always tomorrow. I'll make sure I give both of you girls plenty of attention tomorrow," Shane said.

"We might just have to cover up then. I'm pretty sure I packed a one-piece I can wear," I said.

"You don't even own a one-piece," Dave said.

"That's because you don't want me that covered up," I teased.

"Really?" Lisa asked, eyebrows shooting up.

I silently cursed. That was not something I usually would have said in front of others, but all the wine had loosened up my tongue. The fact that my husband liked to show me off was not something we typically discussed with other people.

"I know I have a hot wife. I don't mind if people know it. I'm proud of it," Dave said confidently. "You can't tell me Shane doesn't like it when you dress up hot when you two go out."

"It's okay with me if guys want to look. Lisa's a piece of ass. A body like hers shouldn't be covered up," Shane said. He raised his glass and Dave matched him, even though they were too far apart to touch.

"Amen, brother."

"Nothing I like more than being talked about like I'm a piece of meat," Lisa said. The smile teasing the corners of her mouth said that she was not actually upset.

"It's better than the alternative, isn't it?" Dave asked.

"I should probably just change into my bikini now and parade around for you guys then. Dana can join me."

“I’m not going to complain about that. You can even show us how you rubbed suntan lotion on each other,” Shane said. He thought it was a great idea.

“I am not going to change into a bikini at this time of night. You’ll just have to ogle what you can see,” I said.

“You don’t need bikinis. Underwear is just like a bikini, isn’t it?” Dave suggested. I could tell he thought he’d come up with a brilliant idea.

“Why not? If I’m going to be objectified I might as well go all the way,” Lisa said. “Any other requests?”

“How about a pillow fight?” Shane asked.

“I think there are some bananas in there we could slowly eat for you,” I helpfully added. The boys seemed to be getting into the idea of Lisa and me putting on a little show for them. That I thought it sounded fun showed just how drunk I really was.

We were all laughing with the joke when Dave said, “Come on ladies, let’s go.”

“Yeah, I’m all excited now. I want to see a show,” Shane added excitedly.

“And what do we get if we do this for you?” Lisa asked. I could not believe it. She sounded like she was seriously considering it. It sounded fun in abstract, but I didn’t know if I was ready to just get up there and pose for the guys. I’d done little fashion shows for Dave, but those were for his eyes only.

“I can’t speak for Shane, but I promise a lot of fun afterward,” Dave said, giving me a squeeze.

I laughed. “I’m going to get that anyway. I can feel how horny just talking about this is making you.” His shaft was pressed hard against my back through his running shorts, and I encouraged it by discreetly grinding back against him.

“She’s right,” Lisa agreed.

“Is your loving husband asking too much? Have I ever asked you for anything like this before?” Shane said.

“What about that one time...”

“Okay, so this is only the second time. Come on, baby.”

“I guess so. But only because it will be fun to tease the hell out of you guys,” Lisa finally agreed.

Lisa stood up and without any preamble, she shed her tank top, revealing a lace-trimmed black bra. Her tanned cleavage was pushed up and plentiful. She was unbuttoning her shorts when she paused and asked me, “What are you waiting for?”

I had never agreed to anything. Lisa did not speak for me. But since she had agreed, I was pressured to go along. I’ll confess, I was a lot more receptive to the idea after all the wine I’d been drinking, but that still didn’t mean I was just ready to get up and put on a show for our husbands. And there was one other complication...

“I’m not wearing quite as much as you,” I told Lisa, as if she didn’t know I was braless. “I’m not really bikini ready, so to speak.”

“That’s even better!” Shane announced.

I turned and looked to Dave, but he offered no help—only a smile. So was he okay with me stripping down and showing Shane my tits? It sure seemed like it. If my husband did not mind, why did I? I decided that if I was going to put on a show, it was going to be a show to remember. I let Lisa pull me to my feet.

Okay, so now we were standing there, and I realized I had no idea what to do next. No, I’m not shy—obviously—but that didn’t mean I was prepared to get up and show off for the boys. Luckily, Lisa had some ideas. After she wriggled out of her shorts, she began to move around me, swaying to music that was only in her head. It would have helped if there was music playing, but that did not occur to anyone at the time. I jumped when she first touched me, her fingers grazing my shoulders and then moving down my arms. She held my hips and got them swaying in time to hers.

“Shane, go into my bag in the bedroom and get my lotion,” Lisa instructed, crushing her breasts against my back. I felt a little silly being still dressed while she was in her underwear, but I was in no hurry to lose my dress.

“Should I grab your toy, too?” he teased.

“Hush! Don’t give away my secrets!”

Shane returned with the lotion and Lisa told him to take a seat on the couch with Dave, saying, “We need some room over here.” The boys leaned forward, sitting on the edge of the couch as they anticipated what we were going to do. I was as curious as they were. Lisa must have decided my dress was not coming off if she left it to me, so she set the lotion down and pulled the straps from my shoulders. My loose sundress flowed to the floor and I fought the urge to turn my back to the boys.

"There, that's much better," Lisa said. She stood close behind me and whispered, "Relax, this is going to be fun. The guys are going to go crazy."

"I think you're enjoying this too much," I replied, sotto voce. I didn't want the boys to overhear.

"What's not to enjoy?"

Lisa squirted lotion into her hand and I started when she touched me. It was cold and goosebumps covered my skin. The way my body was turned presented the boys with a perfect profile to see my nipples pucker up, and I risked a glance over to see that's where Shane's attention was focused. My husband, on the other hand, stared at where Lisa touched me. She did not just rub the lotion into my skin, like on the beach. This was more of a massage, and it felt really good. Too good. I could feel the tingle building in those familiar, yearning parts of my body and I told myself it was just because I was horny and drunk and because our husbands were watching. It couldn't possibly have been because Lisa was touching me.

I was not one of those women with fantasies about being with another girl. It's become a stereotype that every woman has some secret longing to be with another woman and does some experimenting when she's younger, but that wasn't me. Not before that night. I could appreciate when another woman was attractive, and when Dave and I were out we had a little game where I would point out the women I thought he would go for, and he'd always teased that he would love a threesome for his birthday, but I did not take it seriously, and it wasn't something I'd ever thought about for myself. I'd never so much as considered kissing another girl. But when Lisa pressed her sexy curves against me and started to massage the lotion into my sensitive flesh, I felt something I'd never anticipated. I didn't know what to do with those feelings and if we were alone I might have pulled away, but I was drunk and we were doing this to tease the boys, so I just tried to relax and go with it.

Lisa rubbed lotion into my sides and her hands kept creeping around, first tickling my stomach, but then moving higher. I squirmed under her touch, and when her fingertips flickered at the undersides of my breasts my nipples yearned for her touch. I didn't react that way when she rubbed the suntan lotion into me by the lake, but her touch was different this time. She was purposely teasing me—not just the boys. I saw Lisa in a whole new light. I never even suspected this side of her. She gave my butt a hearty squeeze and I jumped, then she told me to, “Turn around.”

We were well past any pretense of showing the guys what they missed at the beach. Our husbands watched eagerly as Lisa grasped both my breasts in her slippery hands. I gasped and closed my eyes. I couldn’t help it. There was no hiding the way I reacted to her touch. It felt like she had some experience doing this—beyond with herself—she massaged my breasts perfectly and the way she pinched and tugged my nipples made me weak in the knees. I held onto her shoulders and swayed to the rhythm of my pounding heart. My entire body heated up and the sparks shooting from my nipples to my pussy set it blazing. It was unfair. I couldn’t be expected to resist Lisa’s touch after being so cruelly teased earlier. But then, no one expected me to resist, did they? I think everyone in that cabin would have been disappointed if the touching had just been a quick, silly show. Lisa’s teasing was exquisite, and the burning pleasure in my nipples became more than I could bear. I had to push Lisa’s hands away. The room was dead silent, except for my pulse pounding in my ears. Everyone was dying to know what was going to happen next.

“I guess you should do me now.” Lisa’s smile was devilish. A quick flick of her fingers unclasped her bra, and her breasts came tumbling free. I should have said tits because that’s what they were. Big, beautiful, round tits, the kind every guy drools over and every girl wishes she had. Seeing them there, so close and naked was not the same as seeing them in a bikini top, or even in her bra. I only ever looked at her body in the casual way one woman looks at another, deciding how I measured up in comparison—not in the sexual way I did now. Lisa’s tits were so full and pretty. For the first time, I could see what attracted guys. I find men hot, and I’ll never be more attracted to a woman than a man, but there is something beautiful in the curves of a woman’s body that the male body lacks. I was fascinated by how different her nipples were than mine. Mine are puffy, and more of a pale pink that darkens when I get excited, but Lisa had wider areolas, and her thick nipples stood out plainly from them like ripe fruit waiting to be plucked. They left no doubt she was as excited as I was. Staring at Lisa’s tits, I didn’t know where to begin.

chest. Her tits crushed against mine when she pulled me close, and it felt odd to have those impediments between us.

Lisa's lips were warm, and her tongue tasted like wine. Her cheek was smooth against mine, very different from kissing a man. She was not soft or delicate, the way I thought it might be to kiss a woman. Lisa went after it just as greedily as any man would. Her teeth pulled at my bottom lip before she thrust her tongue into my mouth. The kiss was so powerful, it didn't leave me any time to think, all I could do was react. And it was the kind of kiss you had to react to. It was so hot that I forgot whom I was kissing for a while and just kissed her back. She was playful, and I responded in kind, wrapping my arms around her while our lips and tongues battled.

We moved on from kissing, and I followed her lead. A big, soft area rug covered the floor in front of the fireplace, and Lisa pulled me down onto it. Her hands pushed inside my panties and squeezed my butt, I ran my fingers through her impossibly thick hair. I liked having all that hair to play with while we kissed. Her lips found their way to my neck and I purred when she nibbled on my delicate flesh. When I tightened my fingers in her hair, Lisa moaned—so she liked to have her hair pulled. That was good to know. Our tongues tangled again briefly when she moved to kiss the other side of my neck, and then that sweet warm pleasure flowed through my body once more.

I was so lost in Lisa that I hadn't given our husbands a thought since we started kissing. I opened my eyes to see Shane staring at us in disbelief. I guess he didn't think I would go this far. That made two of us. I was more concerned about what my husband might think, but Dave only looked pleased and excited. He looked like a longtime fantasy was coming true. The guys were talking to each other in low voices, so I only found out what they were talking about when Dave told me later.

"Holy shit," Shane said. "I can't fucking believe this!"

"It's hot." Dave was more interested in watching than talking, he later told me.

"I'll be honest, Lisa's kinda into girls, and I'm totally cool with it, as long as I benefit. But I had no idea Dana was into it."

"Me neither. This is a new one."

"Do you guys do stuff like this, like, a lot?" Shane asked. Dave said he got the impression that this was not the first time Shane and Lisa opened up their relationship. We would find out later that was true.

“No, never before.” Dave still wasn’t paying much attention to Shane.

“But you’re cool with it?”

“Oh yeah. Who wouldn’t be?” Dave showed enthusiasm for the first time.

“I don’t know how much longer I can just hang back here and watch. The girls are too hot. What about you?”

Dave understood what he was asking. Shane would not be asking if he was okay to play with his own wife, Lisa. No, Shane wanted to play with me, too. And Dave’s answer really should have been my first concrete clue to his secret fantasies.

“Go for it. Have fun, buddy,” Dave said, giving his friend a gentle punch in the arm.

I jumped when Shane joined us. I don’t know how much time passed after Dave gave him the go-ahead, but I know he did not just rush right over. I was on my back on the floor and Lisa was on her side, teasing my nipples with her amazing mouth. She knew how to drive me crazy—even better than my husband, who was the best I’d ever been with. She would suck and use her tongue until I thought I was going to scream, and then back off, leaving me gasping when I got a handle on my crazy moaning. I knew I was putting on quite a show for the boys. I was touching Lisa too, kneading her big tits, but I couldn’t focus well enough to return the pleasure she gave me.

Lisa said, “Hey, babe,” and I opened my eyes to see Shane kneeling beside her. His shirt and shorts were gone, and the wide head of his cock poked freely from the fly in his plaid boxers. He stroked his wife’s back and moved her hair aside to kiss her neck. He was close enough to touch me and a shiver ran through my body. Was this going to turn into some kind of orgy? And where was Dave?

Dave still sat on the couch, watching with this intense look on his face. He did not seem bothered that Shane was getting in on the action. If anything, he looked even more excited. Didn’t he want to be in on whatever freaky sex thing was about to happen? It looked like he really just wanted to sit back and watch us. I had a fleeting thought that Dave could hold this against me later if I went through with it, but that worry was easily drowned by all the wine I’d had and the throbbing in my pussy.

Lisa resumed feasting on my breasts and Shane leaned down and kissed me. Not knowing at the time that Dave had given his permission I was pretty shocked and didn't know how to react at first, but I'll be honest, I couldn't resist. I was horny and I wanted all the attention I could get. I always knew I could lose control and get crazy when I was drinking and fooling around—that explained a lot of the things Dave and I got up to—but that night was the first time I realized that in the right situation all of my limits melted away. If Dave was just going to sit there and watch us, I could not worry about how he would react to me kissing his friend. One arm held Lisa's face to my chest and I wrapped the other around Shane to pull him harder into the kiss.

Shane started touching my breasts as his wife moved further down my body, pulling my last remaining garment down my legs. Just like that, I was naked in front of our closest friends, and my husband continued to just sit back and watch it all unfold. Shane wasn't quite the kisser Lisa was, but I was so hot I couldn't help enjoying it. And his kissing was the last thing I thought of when he roughly pinched my nipples and gave them a pull. The sharp pain made me gasp, but I liked it—it was the salty to the sweet of Lisa stroking my pussy. I was soaked down there, letting her know just how much I was enjoying her touch. She slipped between my legs, put one of them up over her shoulder while she parted them.

“Oh God!” I cried. It seemed loud enough to blow the windows out of the cabin, and I swear I came the second Lisa's tongue touched my clit. She was done teasing and licked and sucked on my clit like making me cum was her life's goal. Two fingers pushed inside me and I could hear how drenched I was as they mercilessly fucked me. Shane and Lisa were the perfect tag team, and I don't know how long they kept me screaming and writhing in that cozy cabin.

Only when the couple allowed me a moment to breathe did I finally remember Dave was there watching us. I was too out of it to think about anything except how amazing it all felt before that. The look on my husband's face gave me chills and almost made me climax again. He had never looked at me with that mix of hunger and pure lust before. He looked like he wanted to throw me down and ravish me until I begged for mercy—which I never would. Seeing Dave like that made me want to perform for him—to keep everything going—so when Lisa kissed me again I pulled her hair and attacked.

I have tasted myself before, but tasting the sweet tang of my own pussy on Lisa's lips was a wonderful aphrodisiac. Shane was there, touching us both, and kissing Lisa's neck. He pulled her lips from mine and they kissed. It was hot knowing he tasted me on her. It quickly turned into a jumble of smoldering kisses—Lisa and I kissing, Shane kissing me and her. I could not believe Dave was just sitting there and watching. Surely, he wanted in on the fun!

It was Lisa's turn to lay back and be ravaged, and Shane and I enjoyed her to the fullest. I had a lot of fun playing with her tits; the rougher I was, the more she seemed to like it. Her pussy was even wetter than mine when I touched it. She was shaved bare, back before it was so fashionable, and it was a little strange to feel her smooth mound. My fingers slipped right over her sex as I found her clit. Lisa cried out encouragement, exclaiming, "Fuck, Dana! Do it! Do it!"

Shane's hand joined mine, and while I rubbed her clit, he fingered her and Lisa climaxed, pounding her fist on the floor as she twisted beneath us. I had a lot of fun playing with Lisa and Shane, though I wished it was my husband there beside me making our friend cum. I snuck glances back at him whenever I could, and he just kept watching with that intense look, while rubbing himself through his shorts. I was waiting to see the stain that would show he'd cum too.

Lisa had her arms around both of us while we sucked on her tits side-by-side, and I felt the slight downward pressure indicating that she wanted our kisses down below. As much fun as I was having, I didn't know if I was ready for that. Lisa had done it for me, so I felt like I should, but luckily Shane took the decision out of my hands and moved down. Maybe he sensed my hesitancy? Shane started licking her, and Lisa really lost it. I kept playing with Lisa's tits and kissing her, and together we made her cum again before she pushed us both away, begging for a break.

I was pulled into Shane's arms while Lisa recovered beside us. Her pussy tasted strong on his mouth and I liked it. Maybe I was ready to go down after all. I was really into kissing Shane, but warning bells went off in my head. Playing with both Shane and Lisa was one thing, but this was really just me and Shane. Dave liked other men drooling over me, but I didn't think he would be too keen on seeing me with another man, one-on-one. I looked past Shane while we kissed and the surprises just kept coming. Not only did my husband look as into it as ever, but when our eyes met he gave me an encouraging smile. This really was something he wanted. I was so shocked, I almost stopped kissing Shane. Almost. Instead, Shane demanded my full attention by putting my hand on his cock. Where did his boxers go?

My fist tried to close over his shaft, but he was thicker than he had been in my dream. He was rock hard and dripping pre-cum, so I used it to make my hand move more easily. He grunted into our kiss, so I knew he liked what I was doing. Shane went back to kissing my neck, right in that spot that always gets me into so much trouble, and I wondered where this was going. I knew I was not going to fuck Shane. I couldn't even think of doing that with anyone but my husband. I didn't even know if I was prepared to go down on him. It wasn't the same kind of hesitation as with Lisa—I love giving head—I just thought that was too intimate to do with another man. Kissing and touching—foreplay—was fine, but I was not going any further without having a serious talk with Dave. Lisa was on the job, anyway. She leaned over and swallowed Shane's thick prick like it was nothing. I ran my fingers through her thick hair as she bobbed back and forth on him.

“Oh fuck...oh fuck...that's it baby...suck it good...” Shane moaned while Lisa pleased him. I played with his balls and even flicked my tongue across his nipples. He encouraged me with, “Fuck, Dana, yeah!”

Shane did not last long. How could he with both of us all over him? Lisa pulled him out of her mouth and we both jerked him off until his thick cum spurted all over my belly and onto my breasts. Lisa didn't even pause before licking her husband's cum off of my body. That was pretty hot. I watched Dave while she did it and I could see we'd blown his mind. Lisa and I made a show of kissing, so the boys could see me tasting Shane.

“If you guys are done with my wife, I'd like her to myself for a few minutes, please,” Dave said, finally interrupting.

“The boss has spoken,” I said with a laugh.

“How about I take care of you, sweetie?” Lisa cooed, staring pointedly at his crotch.

“Maybe next time,” Dave said.

Dave took my hand and pulled me to my feet. I left my panties and dress there and he dragged me to our room naked. He literally threw me onto the bed and was nude in record time. He rammed his steely shaft inside me a second later.

“Guess you liked what you saw,” I panted. I may have cum a couple of times already, but I needed Dave to make love to me. I wanted to be enveloped by him.

“It was goddam hot, baby. Jesus, Dana,” he grunted.

“You like watching, do you?”

“Yes...”

“You didn’t mind their hands were all over me?” I teased. He thrust harder. I was onto something.

“Damn it, Dana, you were so fucking hot. It was so dirty.”

“Yeah, you like it when I’m dirty? You like watching me be bad?”

Dave took me faster. Harder. “Yes...”

I got closer to his ear, half-whispered, half-moaned, “You like me being a dirty little whore?”

“Fuck yes! Oh God!”

Dave rammed it inside me one more time and I felt him unload. His hunger and intensity gave me the chills, and I came right along with him. I didn’t need much by then. I clung tightly to him while he pulsed inside me, and even when he began to shrivel, I tried to keep him there.

“I love you so much, Dana.”

“I love you, baby. Did you have a good time tonight?”

“It was amazing. Did you?”

“Couldn’t you tell?” I giggled.

“Yeah, you looked like you were enjoying yourself.”

“Why didn’t you join us?”

“I was having fun watching. It was like you were putting on a show just for me.”

“I was. Well, it wasn’t just for you. I had a blast, but seeing how much you liked it made it so hot. You’re not mad or anything?”

“No. Why would I be?” He sounded like that was the silliest question ever. I thought it was perfectly logical.

“I don’t know. I get that you liked me and Lisa together, but you didn’t mind when Shane touched me—or when I touched him?” If this was going to be a problem, I wanted to confront it head-on.

“No, honey. It was so hot to see you just go for it. You know, you could have gone further if you wanted...”

Was my husband really saying that I should have blown Shane—or fucked him? I couldn’t believe my ears. Well, even if Dave was okay with that, I was not, but I kept my strong feelings to myself because I didn't want to sour the moment. If we were going to talk about Dave being okay with me going there, that was something we had to talk about with clear heads, not with our brains scrambled by lust and booze.

"I just didn't want to," I said firmly.

He heard the edge in my voice, and replied, "Okay."

We fell asleep in each other's arms that night. I woke up alone, hungover, and worried about how I was going to face Shane and Lisa. In the bright sunlight of morning, that night of debauchery seemed insane. I could hear activity in the kitchen when I snuck into the shower, and when I emerged, scrubbed clean and in a fresh tank top and shorts, the others had breakfast on the table, and everyone acted like nothing had happened the night before. Once I got over my shock, I fell right in with them and relaxed. But it stayed in the back of my mind, and I couldn't help but bring it up to Lisa later at the lake. We girls were in our bikinis on the shore, while the boys were in the water.

"So, last night..." I began.

"Yeah, that was hot, wasn't it?" Lisa's smile showed she had no regrets.

"It was, but..."

"Don't worry, honey. It doesn't change anything. We're your friends and always will be, unless you have a problem..."

"No, no I don't. It's just we've—I've—never done anything like that before."

"I kind of thought so, but you jumped right in, didn't you?"

We both laughed, and I said, "You're such a good kisser, I couldn't help myself."

"That's what I want to hear! No, we're good. And Dave seemed happier than ever when he came out this morning."

"That's because we had the hottest sex ever last night. I think he was ready to explode the second he touched me!"

"Yeah, I could tell he was enjoying the show. But why didn't he come over? I'm jealous I didn't get a turn with him," Lisa pouted.

"I think he was just too into watching. You'll have to catch him next time."

"You can count on it."

But there was not a next time. Dave was still so horny he kept me in our room most of that night, and then it was time to head home and back to our real lives. We still saw Shane and Lisa, but somehow things just never went there again. Within a couple of years, Lisa and Shane broke up, and after that we saw less and less of Shane.

The Game: Betting on the Casino

The first time Dave brought up his long-held fantasy, we were covered in a fine sheen of sweat and recovering from making love. He had been all over me as soon as the babysitter's car pulled away from the curb. We did not even make it to the bedroom. My dress was pulled up and my panties ripped down my legs as he bent me over the couch. Even in my heels, it had been a challenge because he is so tall, and he ended up hunched over me—whispering dirty things in my ear as he thrust into me. It did not matter that the position was so awkward because we didn't last long. The moment I locked around his shaft in orgasm, he came too, holding me tightly as we finished together.

I kicked off my heels and removed my now ruined stockings—Dave did not allow me to wear pantyhose or tights when we went out for a date night—before pulling my dress back down over my hips and going into the kitchen for a glass of water. I drank half and handed it to Dave before dropping onto the couch beside him.

"Mmm, you were an animal tonight. I love you, babe," I told Dave, snuggling up beside him. I knew we should go up to bed, but I hadn't yet marshaled the energy to mount the stairs.

"I wanted to do that all night. You looked so hot."

"You're just saying that because I'm your wife."

"Every guy in that bar thought so, too. They were watching you all night, Dana."

"And you loved every second of that," I teased.

"You know I did. I love knowing that every guy out there wants to fuck my girl." Excitement crept into his voice.

“When you were in the bathroom, some guy came to the bar to get a beer and hit on me. Even though I told him I was waiting for my husband, he didn’t seem to care.” It was fun to tease Dave with how much he loved showing me off, even if I did not quite understand it. I get being proud your mate is attractive, but Dave was really into it, to the point it turned him on. That was why I always dressed up for him when we went out. Lucky for him, I liked the attention, too.

“Oh yeah?”

“He didn’t seem to care that you’d be back any minute. He used the crowd as an excuse to keep rubbing up against me,” I said. The excitement wasn’t just in his voice any longer. I saw his cock twitching back to life. I brushed it with my fingertips, and felt he was still sticky from being inside me. I decided to push it. “I could feel him getting hard while he did it.”

“What man wouldn’t? You know he just wanted to get you out of there and have you to himself.”

“He was pretty cute. Maybe I should have let him.” I squeezed his cock. He was instantly hard.

“Christ, Dana,” he croaked. Dave closed his eyes, and I thought he was imagining it happening.

“Feels like you might have liked that.”

“Maybe. Did he feel big?”

“His cock?” I had to force the words out. Even with all of our fantasizing, we’d never gone here before. Was my husband trying to visualize another man’s cock? I didn’t know how to feel about that.

“Yes, did it feel big?”

“It did, but it’s hard to tell through jeans. There’s only one way to really know.”

“You wanted to know, didn’t you, Dana?”

I was suddenly all excited again, and I told myself it was because Dave was so turned on, not because I was thinking about doing naughty things with the guy from the bar. This was scary territory to go into, but I pressed on. For Dave, I insisted to myself.

“I did. It was hot that I made him hard and I wanted to see it. Should I have gone with him, baby?”

His answer was barely a whisper: “Yes.”

I climbed into his lap, hiking up my dress around my waist. His granite shaft rubbed my swollen lips, driving me crazy. “I could have gone to his car with him. He could have shown me there.” I could almost see it now, too. Letting that guy—I couldn’t remember his name—take me out to his car, him holding the door as I got inside. I leaned in and kissed Dave’s neck as I asked, “Do you want me to take it out for him?”

“Yeah, grab it, hon.”

“Mmm, it’s even bigger than I thought. What should I do with it, Dave?”

“You know what you want to do.”

“What?” I had to see where he wanted to go with this.

“Suck it, Dana. Suck his goddam dick,” my husband growled. I couldn’t believe my ears. He was clearly imagining me sucking another man’s cock, and he was rock hard.

“I can’t believe I’m doing this. It’s so wrong.”

“God, Dana, do it. You know you want to.”

Standing there in the bar, it never even occurred to me to do any of that. I did not want to suck anyone’s cock but my husband’s, but now it was all I could think about. I did want to suck this nameless stranger’s prick. Dave’s excitement was infectious, and I was swept up in it. He reached between us, took his cock, and jammed it into me. Oh my God, that was what I needed. I had climaxed just a few minutes before, but I needed him to do me again.

“I’m doing it, baby. I’m sucking him. It’s so good. Mmm, I don’t want to stop,” I cooed.

“Don’t stop. Suck him. You’re so fucking hot right now, Dana. Suck it until he comes.”

Dave held my slim waist and effortlessly bounced me up and down on his cock. His eyes were closed and I know he was in that car, watching me blow some stranger. Why did that make him so hot? I did not understand, but I was in the grip of the fantasy, too. I felt myself rapidly building to a powerful orgasm.

“Mmm, I think he’s close. He’s holding my hair, forcing me down on it.”

“Suck it! Suck it! Christ, Dana, don’t stop!”

I couldn’t stop. Dave was slamming me onto him, using me like his own personal fucktoy. I did not want to stop. I was going to cum—hard. It rattled toward me like a runaway train, and then it slammed me. I cried out his name, and seconds later I felt Dave cumming too, jamming me down onto his cock and holding me there until he was finished. I fell into his chest, and he held me in a crushing embrace.

When my powers of speech returned, I asked, “What just happened?”

“We had incredible sex, hon.”

“I know that. I mean the other part. That really excited you?”

Dave tensed up immediately. He felt I was judging him. “What if it did? Do you think that’s weird?”

It was definitely strange, but I did not want him to feel attacked. Besides, it did not seem to bother me, not really. I tried telling myself it was all because of his excitement but didn’t that fantasy turn me on as much as it did him? I fumbled for the right words. “It’s different, but I don’t think you’re weird, baby. Is this something you’ve fantasized about before?”

I could feel the effort it required for him to open up about this as he pressed on. “I have. Probably more than I should. You know I think it’s hot when other men look at you.”

“That’s why I dress up for you, baby. High heels are not comfortable.”

“I like knowing all the guys out there want you, and sometimes I think about taking it further. I think about what would happen if we went further.”

“How?” Was he saying what I thought?

“I think about what it would be like if sometimes guys didn’t just look, but they approached you and flirted with you.”

“You would like that?” It was not quite ordinary behavior for a husband and wife, but it sounded pretty harmless. I don’t want to brag, but I’ve held up pretty well and I’m used to being approached by guys when I’m out on my own. As long as no one is pushy about it, I’m flattered.

“Yeah, it would be hot to see your sexiness through another guy.”

Dave began to relax, and I think he was relieved to be telling me all of this. He must have been bottling that up for a long time. I immediately thought back to that night with Lisa and Shane and how Dave just sat back instead of joining us. Dave was not just content to sit back and watch—it was like he preferred to watch. We relived that night a lot in our lovemaking over the years, and sometimes it seemed that Dave was just as turned on by Shane touching me as Lisa doing it. Maybe more. I never analyzed it because I was just as deep in reliving those memories as Dave. He had seen me with another man and liked it. A lot. I couldn’t help but wonder...

“What if it didn’t stop with flirting?”

“You mean...”

“Some guys can be pretty aggressive. They go for the body contact thing. Sometimes they’ll even try to kiss you if they’ve had enough to drink.”

“That would be okay, I guess.”

I thought he was only trying to sound reluctant. I could not see his face, so I pulled off his lap and sat beside him on the couch and took his hand in mine. “It would really turn you on to see me kiss another man?”

“It would.”

“It did, didn’t it? That night with Shane and Lisa.”

Dave could hardly meet my eyes. “It did.”

“Did that night start you thinking about this?” That had been over five years before. Had he been harboring this all those years?

“Not really. Dana, I’ve always had some version of this fantasy. Back in high school, when I was on the baseball team, we were partying one night and I was hooking up with Maggie, and I noticed one of the other guys watching us. He saw that I knew he was there and didn’t stop, so he kept getting closer and closer until he sat on the floor beside us and started touching her. We both hooked up with her that night and seeing her with him blew my mind. I don’t think I’ve been the same since.”

Maggie was a girl he’d dated for a couple of years, but he did not talk about her much. We had never really discussed our past relationships. The past was the past. But now I wondered if we should have. What other kinky secrets were in my husband’s past? I had to ask: “Did you both fuck her?”

“Oh no. She did jerk him off, though.”

“So you’ve thought about me—other girlfriends—being with other men?”

Dave nodded.

“Why didn’t you ever say anything? You know I’m not a prude. You can tell me anything.”

“I was afraid you’d think less of me. Maybe it makes me less of a man that I am turned on by the idea of you with another guy. And I don’t want you to think it means I don’t cherish you or love you. It’s not about that. I think it’s because I’m so into you that I want to see you like that. I know it sounds totally nuts. I know this isn’t normal.”

“Stop it. I won’t have you beating yourself up. I know you love me. And nothing could make you less of a man. It is different though...”

I kept using that word—different—because I didn't want to use anything more judgmental. But I did not know how I really felt about it. I was not offended. I'm just not the kind of girl who is offended by that sort of thing. And I didn't question if Dave loved me. I took him at his word. But I could not fully understand it either. I would have been okay if he joined us that night and played with Lisa, but I had no desire to see him with another woman, and I know I would be jealous if I saw him hooking up with some woman who picked him up at a bar. But I didn't have to understand it to love him. I just needed to accept it. And I could do that. I even got my own thrill out of it, if I'm being honest. There's always been a part of me that's turned on by being naughty. The fantasy of acting out like that, a married woman who flirts with strange men, was exciting. I could not see myself going out and picking up a man, but if some handsome guy wanted to buy me a drink, who was I to say no?

"Different as in ick?" Dave did look me in the eye now. He had to be sure I was not just humoring him.

"No. Different as in, everyone has their fantasies, and who has the right to judge anyone else's? And when I thought about it, it turned me on too."

"I could tell." Finally, a smile.

"You know I like to be bad."

"That's one of the many reasons I love you. And I love it when you're bad."

"I guess it's a shame you weren't there to see that guy flirt with me. You missed your chance."

"I'm sure I'll get another. Guys are always checking you out."

"Then next time I might have to play it up and give you a good story." It sounded fun to go out there and flirt. I had not done so in such a long time. I was not sure I remembered how. It was not a skill I needed any longer.

"Maybe I'll just hang back and watch you in action for a while." That glint of excitement was back in his eyes.

"That would be fun."

"We could even go out to do that." Dave looked eager.

I was dense. "What do you mean?"

"Some couples—at least in stories I've read—play this game where the husband hangs back and watches while the wife gets picked up."

"No one really does that!"

"I bet they do. The stories had to come from somewhere."

“You’re serious, aren’t you? You would like to go out and do this?”

“If you were up for it. I don’t want you to do anything you’re not comfortable with.”

My head was still mostly in fantasyland. I had not been talking about doing anything for real, except maybe me stringing some guy along at the bar. Going out with the intent to flirt with strange men was a whole different thing. It would be naughty. And a little dangerous. And sexy. The fantasy made me hot, but I didn’t know if I could really do it. Dave looked so excited I felt like I had to at least think about it.

“I don’t know, baby. Maybe you should give me some of those stories you read so I can think about it,” I suggested. Dave looked so excited I thought he was going to jump up from the couch right then and grab some. He must have had them on hand. I asked, “How many of these stories have you read?”

Dave looked chagrined. “More than a few.”

DAVE WAS as good as his word. First, he sent me links to a couple of stories on a website full of free dirty stories. He knew I liked to read stories on that website, so it made the introduction easier, but I did not read that subject matter on my own. When I realized their “Loving Wives” section was really about cheating wives, I moved on and mostly read things in the “Romance” and “Group Sex” sections. That night with Lisa and Shane had left an impression on me and reading stories about other couples doing those things turned me on.

We had never done anything like that after our night with Lisa and Shane, but it was not like we made a conscious decision not to. We would have if it came up, I suppose, but one night had not converted us into swingers. It was not something we were going to seek out for ourselves. Our friends later in life just weren’t as adventurous as Lisa and Shane. And it was not something I felt I needed to do. It was just fun to think about.

The stories I read weren’t bad, but they got hotter when I imagined Dave and me in the characters’ places. When I told my husband that I’d enjoyed the stories he recommended, he sent me some ebooks for my Kindle. Dave sent me something called Rediscovering Danielle, and its sequel, Just Watch Me, which he said were a perfect example of how he felt about his fantasies. I've always thought of erotica as a women's medium, but both of these books were written by a man and told from a man's perspective. My eyes were opened. I finally had some insight into why Dave was excited by the idea of me and another man. I asked him if he felt like Dean, the husband in the book, and he said mostly.

"That guy is pretty conflicted about seeing his wife with other guys and I didn't feel any of that seeing Maggie, or when I watched you and Shane," he explained.

"You might feel differently if we really did this. Both of those nights just sort of happened to you. If we went out and did this, it would be planned, it would be intentional. There would be no excuses afterward."

"I didn't need any excuses. I was perfectly fine with everything that happened—both times."

"Okay. The other thing is that both times this happened to you the other guy was a friend of yours, someone you trusted not to push it. If we go out and I just meet someone, he'll be a stranger. He's not going to care about being too aggressive. The situation won't totally be in our control."

"I think that could make it even more exciting than before."

"And scarier."

"I don't want to put you in a situation where something bad could happen, or you do something you don't want to," Dave stressed. He had been clear about that all along. He didn't want me to ever do anything just for him. I had to want it too.

"I'm confident I can handle myself. I'm just saying, this isn't going to be like that night in the cabin. It's going to be a totally different animal."

Dave bought my confident front, and I was glad because in reality I was frightened. Not frightened enough not to try it—and the fear was a turn-on if I'm honest. But what I said was true. We would not be in complete control of what happened. Another person would be involved—someone we didn't know and who would not know about our game. He would have his own agenda, which would probably be to get laid. If I met a guy I liked and ended up in a compromising position I was going to have to stop things at some point. It had been a long time since I had been on a date and had to tell some overly amorous guy to back off. And those were mostly fumbling, teenage boys. A horny, grown man was going to be harder to control.

“So you really liked those books? The stories turned you on?” Dave asked.

“You know I did,” I said, putting my hand over his where it rested on my thigh. It was late and the kids were in bed. He liked quizzing me about my favorite parts of the stories when he fooled around. He loved having me fantasize it was another man fucking me while I came—something that made him cum even harder than I did.

“I loved reading about how Dani totally gave herself over to their game. The part where Dean got to watch her with her lover was the best.”

“It was, but we’re not talking about going there. We’re just talking about going out and seeing what happens. Maybe a little flirting, but I don’t know what else is going to happen. I know I’m not ready to just go all the way.”

“I understand.” Dave’s hand moved higher on my thigh, pushing under the oversized t-shirt that I used as a nightgown. I was not wearing panties, so he was about to feel how excited talking about playing made me.

“And I want you close. I want you there. I didn’t understand what Dean got from it when he didn’t get to see it.” I rubbed the bulge in his boxer briefs.

“I can and I can’t. I mean, I want to see everything I can, but I know that’s going to be difficult. Someone might want to get you a little more private.”

“You’re going to be okay with that?”

“I think so, as long as I get all the details.”

“We’ll worry about that when the time comes, I guess.”

“So we’re really doing this?” he asked eagerly.

“We’ll give it a try.” There it was. I agreed to go out and do this. Dave touched my pussy and I was finished talking. I pulled him over on top of me.

ALL THAT WAS LEFT WAS to make it happen. Agreeing that we would go out and try this game was one thing, but making the plans for it to happen was another. We had to find a babysitter, probably an overnight one, we had to pick a place, and finally, I had to decide what I was going to wear. We usually go with grandparents or my sister when we need an overnight sitter, and it was over a month before we could arrange a night out. That gave me a lot of time to think about what we were going to do, but I tried not to dwell on it. I was afraid that if I thought about it too much I was going to be too scared to do it.

With babysitting arranged, we had to pick a place, and we both decided that any of our usual haunts were out. While we were not regulars at any of the local clubs or bars, there was too great a chance of running into someone we knew if we did this close to home. How could we explain what I was doing talking to some strange man while Dave sat on the other side of the bar? We used our adventure night as an excuse to investigate a new casino and entertainment complex that was a little over an hour away. We had been meaning to get over there, but with busy schedules and the kids, there was just never the time. Dave gave me one more chance to back out before he booked a room, and I just shook my head.

Dave's mom asked where we were headed when we dropped the kids off and we told her about the casino, just not what we planned on doing once we got there. I had to force my cheerful smile. Beneath that smile, I was a buzz of nerves and insecurity. I'm not a flirty twentysomething on the make anymore. When I look in the mirror I see a mom—okay, a cute one, but a mom nonetheless. Was it presumptuous to think I was just going to sit down at a bar and men were going to flock to me? I could not count on every man who sees me being as into me as Dave.

The casino-hotel did not exactly bring Vegas to mind, but it was very nice. The lobby was full of marble and rich colors and expensive-looking touches. I stood fidgeting off to the side with our luggage while Dave checked us in. We had more bags than you'd expect us to carry for an overnighter, but I could not decide on what to wear before we left. Upstairs, the room was not quite as nice as the website made it appear, but it had a nice fluffy king-sized bed and a big bathroom counter to spread my beauty aids out on, and that was all we needed. Dave tried to pull me onto that bed as soon as the door was closed. He was already rock hard and nothing had happened yet. I decided to tease him and pushed him away. He was more than frustrated but returned my smile when I told him I was someone else's pick-up tonight—not his. To rub salt in the wound, I stripped down to my bra and panties in front of him before closing the bathroom door.

I found Dave was ready when I came out of the bathroom. I wasn't close. He sat in the chair in the corner staring at his phone, but not really looking at it. I could tell his mind was somewhere far, far away. He was handsome in a dark blue shirt and black slacks. If I was a single girl, I would have picked him up. And I was going to be a single girl for the night, but I wouldn't be picking up my husband. Not until the end of the night.

Dave looked up from his phone and grinned. "You look ready for some fun." His eyes lingered on my pert breasts and my freshly-shaved pussy. I usually kept a little landing strip down there, but I shaved for Dave on special occasions. And this more than qualified.

"Do you think I should just go down to the casino like this?"

"You wouldn't have to wait long for a hot guy to find you."

"I should at least do my hair and put some make-up on." I laughed. "It's time to help me pick out a dress."

Before I could begin modeling for my husband there was a knock at the door and he told me he'd ordered something from room service. I hadn't even thought about dinner and with so much on my mind I didn't know if I could eat anything anyway. There was another knock and Dave told me I should get the door.

"I'm a little underdressed."

"I don't think so," he said. He took a discarded shirt from the bed—he was not sure what to wear either—and held it out for me to slip into. I humored him. It would be a nice warm-up for what was to come. I buttoned the front, but Dave stopped me and released some of the buttons. I shot him a look that said, Really? He just grinned and gestured toward the door. Only three buttons held the shirt closed and it only fell just low enough to cover my ass. It gaped open when I moved so I was very careful when I answered the door.

"Room service," said the twentysomething Latino who waited with the cart. The second word caught in his throat and he barely choked it out.

"Please, come in." I smiled and stepped aside.

The boy had to step past me to get into the room and couldn't help brushing against me. He was short but built. Not unattractive, but not really my type either—though he looked handsome in his smart uniform. He froze when he saw Dave sitting back in that chair and I nearly ran into him.

"Where, uh, do you want it?"

I stepped around him and sat on the foot of the big, king-sized bed, crossing my legs. I know I flashed him and he seemed to sway on his feet. This was a lot of fun! “You can put it on the dresser right there,” I told him, leaning forward when I pointed. He just couldn’t help himself and stared down at my tits for a good five seconds before turning to move the tray from the cart to the dresser. He looked over at Dave apologetically. He was probably worried that my big husband was going to kick his ass.

“Uhm, you need to sign for this,” he croaked.

“Of course.”

I brushed against him again as I took the pen and receipt from him. His cock pressed through those polyester uniform pants into my bare leg and his gaze was locked down my open shirt. I made sure to add a generous tip, though I felt he’d had one already. He just managed to look up when I handed the receipt back to him. He kept staring at me and it seemed like he was not going to leave, so I finally told him, “Thanks.” He snapped out of it and hastily excused himself.

“Did you enjoy that?” I asked, sauntering over to Dave.

“God, I wish I had a picture. I think all the blood rushed to his face.”

“Not all of it, honey.”

“Really?”

I knelt in front of my husband and pulled his belt open. His pants and black boxerboxer briefs to his ankles and his hot cock filled my hands. “I would have been insulted if embarrassment was his only reaction.” I placed feather-light kisses all over his head and Dave groaned. “You liked my little show, I take it?”

“Yes.” He tilted his head back and closed his eyes. I think he was trying to picture it.

I sucked on his red, flared head, swirling my tongue and stroking his shaft. I took more and more of him into my mouth, sucking more than halfway down before reaching my limit. When I came up for air, I asked, “You liked the way he looked at me. You know he wanted to fuck me.”

“Yes...”

“This shirt might as well have been unbuttoned all the way. He saw everything.”

“God...”

“I could feel how hard he was when I brushed against him. It would have been so easy to just pull him down on the bed...”

“Fuck...Dana...”

I was stroking his cock even harder, getting very turned on myself. But I did not want to fuck him until later. I wanted to make him wait until we were done playing. I did not anticipate that being so hard on me.

“Would that have been hot, baby? Did you want to see me play with him?”

“Fuck yes, Dana!”

The time for teasing was over. I’m not that cruel. I took him back into my mouth. My cheeks sunk in as I sucked him hard. After all those years of marriage, I still loved blowing my husband. I sucked his prick and massaged his balls, knowing this was going to be quick. Dave was so worked up. Soon I was rewarded with a mouthful of cum, which I eagerly swallowed, draining him dry.

“Now let’s see what you ordered,” I said, jumping to my feet.

Dave needed some time to pull himself together, so I investigated the tray. He’d ordered an assortment of light snacks, which was perfect. A little fruit salad and a cheese plate were about all I could manage in that state. Besides, none of the dresses I’d packed were the type you wanted to wear after a big meal. We had a quick nosh, mostly keeping our thoughts to ourselves, and then it was time to finish getting ready. Dave’s job was to help me decide what I would wear.

I stepped into the most delicate panties I had ever worn and he sat up like an eager pupil. I had three choices for him. Two of them were variations on the classic LBD—one of which was brand new—and the third was a little red number that had been hanging toward the back of my closet for years. I don’t have much use for cocktail dresses these days as dinner for us is usually Applebee’s with the kids. I liked the ritual of letting Dave choose my dress. It was like he was gifting me to another man tonight, so it was only appropriate that he chose the wrapping.

The first choice was a strapless black sheath that hugged my figure nicely, but I feared it might be a bit long for our purposes. I liked it, but I thought Dave would want something more obviously sexy and I could tell I was right when I did a turn for him. “It’s not really short enough, or low-cut enough,” he commented.

“You really do just want me to go down there naked!”

“Not completely naked. There needs to be some mystery.”

“Thanks.”

I modeled the red dress next, and although I could tell right away that Dave loved it, I just wasn't comfortable with it. It certainly met his requirements of short and low-cut, but I felt it was a little much for me. Maybe if I was ten years younger, but I just felt like it would seem that I was trying too hard in the red dress. Dave gave the thumbs up, but I shook my head.

"Are you sure?" he asked.

"Maybe next time. I'm afraid if I hang out at the bar long enough in this dress they're going to think I'm a professional."

"I'd pay you."

I just shook my head and stripped one last time. The other LBD turned out to be the one. It was snug in all the right places, the deep V—with the aid of a diamond pendant Dave gave me for our anniversary—drew the eyes to the cleavage created by my lacy black Victoria's Secret bra, and it fell a couple of inches above my knees to show off my legs—just long enough to cover the lacy tops of the black stockings I'd be wearing—though probably not when I was sitting. I felt Dave's hot breath on the back of my neck when he stood to zip me. He trailed his fingers down my bare arm to rest on my hip, a quick, intimate touch that made me want to stay in that room with him and lose the dress. I pulled away and disappeared into the bathroom to finish my hair and make-up. My slutty red lipstick nicely offset the russet highlights I'd just had added to my brunette hair—which I wear in a bob that just reaches my shoulders. My last preparation for the night was to take off my wedding and engagement rings and zip them into my make-up bag.

Dave walked me to the door and I asked, "Are you sure about this?" He didn't really need to answer. He looked eager to get to it. I don't think I'd seen him so excited since that night with Shane and Lisa. He took both my hands and stared down at me like he was trying to memorize this moment.

"Do you really want to do this?" he asked.

I nodded but didn't feel as confident as I tried to appear. It wasn't that I wanted to back out; I just felt so weird about what we were doing. It was something like how I felt before the first day of high school—scared and excited at the same time, unsure of what was going to happen. I knew this could be a disaster if Dave did not respond the way he thought he would. What if I enjoyed it too much? It wasn't like a man I met in a bar was going to get me to leave my husband, but I know extreme thrills can become addictive. I pushed all of my fears down.

“I love you,” I said.

“Love you too, babe.”

We kissed.

“See you downstairs,” I said.

The plan was for me to go down and get comfortable at the bar and Dave would follow in about twenty minutes. We didn’t even want anyone to see us walk in there together, afraid that someone may put two and two together. That may sound paranoid, but we didn’t want to take any chances. If some bartender started smirking at me because he figured out what we were up to I would never be able to go through with it.

There were several bars throughout the casino complex, and we’d scouted them all online before coming up there. We decided to avoid the club because it would be too crowded and too loud. There was another bar that overlooked the casino floor and would have a cover band later, but it looked like it would be a good fit for our little game.

I had started to think of what we were doing as a game, albeit a dangerous one. At first, I wasn’t sure how to think about what we were doing. Did it make us swingers? That felt like a label I didn’t want; it felt so 70s and called to mind key parties and fondue. Besides, if we were swingers didn’t that mean that Dave would be fucking another woman? I didn’t think either of us was interested in that. But thinking of it as a game made it seem light and fun and sexy. We weren’t really doing anything wrong—we were just playing a game.

The bar was half-empty when I took a stool and ordered a white wine. I sat so anyone coming in the door would be able to see me with my legs crossed and my five-inch heel hooked on the footrest bar. Two other couples sat around the bar with me and there were two groups sitting out at the tables: several guys in their twenties in one, and the other looked like a bachelorette party. I pretended not to notice the younger guys checking me out and a secret smile formed on my lips.

My second glass of wine came and Dave had not come down yet. I did not think he would be so far behind me, but I guess he wanted to give me plenty of time to be approached before he came onto the scene. That seemed to be taking forever. I checked my phone, which sat out on the glass top of the bar, and only forty minutes had passed. It felt like I’d been sitting there all night. No men had tried to pick me up yet, but no single men had come into the bar either. A trio of businessmen had come in, but they just had one quick drink and left. None of them were appealing anyway. The group of younger guys was probably my best bet, but while some of them continued to look over at me, they did not make a move. As they talked amongst themselves I wondered if it was about me. Did they think I was some desperate divorcee out looking for a night of fun? If so, they also probably thought I was an easy lay. Sorry to disappoint, boys. Maybe they thought I was waiting for some kind of internet date who stood me up. That was embarrassing—not the vibe I wanted to put out at all. But then, I did not know how to put out any kind of vibe. I felt like I was being dangled on a line, sitting on that stool waiting to be picked up. We may have been overconfident in just assuming if I sat there some hot guy would come along to sweep me off my feet. I had not even been there an hour, but a sudden crisis of confidence made me move. I left a tip on the bar and moved on out to the casino floor with my drink.

The casino was hopping, and the energy of the crowd calmed my nerves. The slots were busy, but mostly with senior citizens—I was not going to find any fun there. I drifted past the poker and blackjack tables, but those players were focused on their games and the couple of cute guys I saw didn't look like they would notice me. A raucous group was gathered at a roulette table on the end and I joined them.

The tiny white ball whizzed around the wheel and then clicked as it slowed and finally settled on 22 black. All I knew about roulette was that you put your chips on the table and hope the ball landed on your number, or color, or both. I had no idea about strategy. Dave is the gambler in our family. He loves his poker and craps, while I usually busy myself sitting in front of a slot machine or maybe with a little blackjack. But the energy of the group around the roulette table was infectious and soon I was cheering along with the others when the ball landed—even though I hadn't placed a bet.

“You don't want to play?” The voice was smooth and confident. I turned to my right to see a tall, well-dressed man in his late forties. His hair was black and swept back from a widow's peak, the goatee on his handsome face was shot with gray. His sensuous lips were curled into a playful smile.

“I’m not a huge gambler,” I replied. An anticipatory buzz filled my brain. I could tell by the way his gaze casually swept down to my cleavage and back to my face that he was interested and didn’t feel the need to hide that.

“This is an odd place for you to be hanging around.”

“I didn’t say I never gamble. I just don’t do it often.”

“You don’t like to take risks?”

“I never said that.”

“Life without taking risks is boring, isn’t it?”

“It is. And I’d never want to be boring.” It was all in my head, but it felt like this handsome stranger was speaking directly to my situation. He was probably not a mind reader, though.

“Then you should try your luck...” He paused, waiting for my name.

“Dana.”

“Try your luck, Dana. I’m Charles. Here, let me get you started.”

Charles took my hand like it was his and pressed a stack of chips into my grasp. This was just the type of forward man I needed. His strong hand on my waist turned me back toward the table. Our bodies brushed together and the rush made that buzz in my brain fill my body. “What should I do?” I asked.

I leaned forward and laid down chips on 7 red and 14 black, my anniversary, which I thought was oddly fitting. Charles also leaned forward, and his arm went around my waist. My new gentleman friend was not shy at all, and that confidence was exciting. “Now, you don’t just have to bet on single numbers. You can also put down chips over two or four numbers.” He ran his hand down my bare arm, raising goosebumps, and placed it over mine. He guided my hand and I dropped a couple of chips at the corner of four numbers. It reminded me of how Dave was when we first met—how he just took possession of me like I was already his.

The wheel spun and the ball took flight and I won on one of the numbers on my multiple bet. It wasn’t much, but it was exciting to win and I whooped and jumped up and down. The bouncing of my breasts was not missed by Charles who grinned as he took in my charms. I tried to hand the chips back to him, but he insisted I use them to keep playing. He also flagged down a passing cocktail waitress and ordered dirty martinis for both of us.

“You look like a martini kind of woman,” he commented.

“But how did you know I like it dirty?” I placed my hand over his on my hip. Once he’d put his arm around my waist he’d never removed it.

He chuckled. “It’s just a lucky guess.”

“I’d better keep you around if you’re so lucky.”

I stayed with roulette for another half hour or so and my winning streak held. As I moved to place my bets, Charles’s hand strayed to my butt more than once, and I didn’t move it. His casual touches had me going. I couldn’t help wondering what it would be like if he had free reign with my body. Charles suggested we try another game, but I told him I needed a break. I wondered where the hell my husband was. He never replied to my text about leaving the bar. I collected my winnings and tried giving the chips to Charles, but he flatly refused. “I can’t keep all of this,” I insisted. There had to be almost five hundred dollars in chips in my hands.

“You won it all. I just stood here,” he said.

Charles stood firm and used his hand on my hip to steer me away from the table. His use of the endearment hon wasn’t lost on me, nor that he told me I earned the money. I wondered if what he really meant was that I would be earning it. That this man might think he could buy me so easily—that maybe I was some kind of slut—made my panties damp. It went right to the heart of why doing this excited me. It wasn’t all for Dave. Breaking the mold of the good little suburban wife and mother appealed to me.

We moved through the casino floor and my question of Dave’s whereabouts was answered. I saw my husband sitting in front of a slot machine but paying no attention to it. He was fully focused on me and Charles. His eyes tracked us as we walked toward one of the lounges, looking every inch like a couple on a date. How long had Dave been watching us? And was he enjoying what he had seen? I couldn’t stare at him to read his face, but Dave winked and that was just what I needed to know it was okay to keep going.

I had begun to relax with Charles, but now knowing my husband was watching us those nerves flooded me once more. It didn’t help that Dave refused to be specific about what I should do tonight. I tried to recall that night with Shane and Lisa and how everything just flowed. But that had been easy because it just happened.

Dave trailed as Charles led me into the trendiest bar the in the casino, which centered on a large, glowing oval bar with chrome accents. High-top tables were scattered throughout, and padded benches lined the walls with tables placed in front of them, too. A DJ played muted ambient music and lighting was dim—mostly provided by recessed fixtures that glowed in soft pastels like the bar. Charles took my hand as we threaded through the crowd, and we found a spot on the bench toward the back.

The couch was barstool height, and it was tricky to maneuver in my short dress without flashing Charles, not that he would have minded, I'm sure. I tugged at the hem of my dress as I settled in, but I just could not get it to hide my lacy stocking tops. Charles smiled as he took note, but was polite enough not to comment. I spied my husband taking a seat at the bar. The view was imperfect, but when there was a gap in the crowd, he would be able to see us. Our eyes met just briefly, before a cocktail waitress moved to our table.

"I'm Tricia. What can I get you guys?" Tricia was a petite, curvy redhead. The white satin bustier which comprised the top of her outfit offered up her breasts for anyone who cared to look, but Charles only glanced at them for a moment.

"We'll have two dirty martinis," he said, ordering for us both.

"I think you're trying to get me drunk, sir," I said, after Tricia departed.

"Do I need to?"

I tried awfully hard not to blush but did not fully succeed. It was the most overt statement of his plans that he'd made. "That all depends on what your intentions are, doesn't it?"

"Yours too."

"What do you mean?"

"I may have intentions, and trust me I do, but on their own they don't mean anything unless you're out to play tonight."

"Out to play?" I laughed. "You make it sound like I'm some teenager who snuck out."

"Maybe you didn't sneak, but I don't think this is an average night for you. I think you came out looking for a good time."

"Sounds like you have me all figured out. Tell me more, please." The banter was to hide the shiver of fear that shot through me. For a second I thought Charles had figured out what I was up to somehow. Had he noticed the dent on my finger where my rings would normally be? I could not do much about that.

“I’m guessing recently divorced, or maybe just separated. Either way, you don’t look like you’re used to being out on the prowl. You seem a little nervous, like you haven’t done this for a while.”

“There could be some truth to that,” I acknowledged. I was not going to confirm or deny anything. If he wanted to think I was some divorcee out looking for a good time that was probably for the best. But I had thought I was doing a good job at covering my nerves. Did Charles come over because he thought I was out of practice, and I would be an easy mark? If he thought I was just going to fall into bed with him, he had another thing coming.

Charles slipped his arm around me and moved closer. His other hand came to rest on my knee, his thumb lazily tracing upward toward my stocking top and the edge of my dress. “But none of that really answers my basic question. What are your intentions, Dana?”

“I really don’t have any. I am just out to have fun tonight.” I was glad I could answer honestly.

“Just what I like to hear.”

Tricia came back with our drinks, and we toasted to having fun. His hand went back to my knee when he set his drink down. I clutched mine and nerves led me to drink it too quickly. I was already buzzed by the drinks I’d had before, and that last martini pushed me over the edge to goofy and more than a little flirty. I leaned my head on his shoulder and his hand dropped down behind me so he could cup my ass, which only scooted me closer to him. My stocking tops were left exposed by my shifting and Charles traced the lace with his fingertips. His touch gave me the chills, especially when I glanced over and saw my husband peeking when he could.

Dave watched us together like he was trying to memorize every moment. I wanted to know how he felt watching me sitting so closely with another man—a stranger—and letting him touch me so freely. I knew he had to be rock hard, but I wished I could fully understand his desire to see me like that. The way Dave looked at us I could feel him willing me to go further, but I’d been waiting for Charles to make a move and he seemed happy to move slowly so far. He probably thought that since I was so out of practice on the dating scene I’d spook if he moved too fast.

I took a deep breath and went for it. I tipped my head back and brushed my lips over Charles's neck. He stiffened for a moment and then smiled and said, "I guess I got you drunk enough."

"I guess you have," I replied and smiled, lightly kissing his neck with a quick flick of my tongue.

Charles smelled good—strong and masculine. I did not recognize the cologne, but it smelled expensive. I did not think there was anything cheap about this man. His fingers brushed through my hair and caressed the back of my neck, urging me on. More chills. I turned my body and placed a shaking hand on his chest. The adrenaline rush was incredible. I would have felt it coming on to a man like this in a public place anyway, even when I was single, but doing it now as a married woman, with my husband watching, it turned my whole body into a live wire, vibrating with energy.

I closed my eyes and even though I could hear the music and the crowd around us, everything seemed to melt away. I focused on misbehaving. Charles guided my lips from his neck to his lips. Many of my first kisses with men have been shy and restrained, but not this one. I hungrily mashed my lips to his. I honestly had not been thinking about kissing other men before any of this came up—I was satisfied with Dave—but I kissed Charles like it was all I wanted. The rush of kissing another man for the first time in years was so intense. His hand on my butt pulled me even tighter against him and it felt like I was practically in his lap. In my mind's eye, I could see Dave watching us and going out of his mind. He was certainly getting what he insisted he wanted. Charles slipped me his tongue and I pulled back just enough so that there was a chance Dave could see it if he was watching closely enough.

The hand sliding up my thigh got my attention. I wish I could say that I hesitated and had to consider if I wanted to cross that line. I wish I could say I considered my husband's feelings in that moment, but I was drunk and I was hot and when Charles pushed his hand up past the top of my stocking, I relaxed my crossed legs and felt his firm fingers on the hot tender flesh of my inner thigh. I knew he had to feel the damp heat emanating from my sex. I could not hide my arousal from Charles.

"Charles..." I gasped when his fingers brushed my lacy panties.

"You're soaked, Dana. Looks like you did come out to play tonight." He sounded amused.

He added pressure, plastering my panties to my lips, soaking them. My nails dug into his arm and I whimpered. This was why playing like this might not be a good idea. It's a terrible confession, but I was not sure I could control myself. When I was sober and getting ready I was sure of where my boundaries were, but with several martinis in me and my passion inflamed I didn't know where I would stop Charles. I hadn't seen myself sitting in a bar with a virtual stranger's hand under my skirt, but here I was. His fingers expertly explored my cleft, finding my clit and teasing it. I buried my face in his shoulder in hopes it would muffle my moan.

Charles brought me back for another scorching kiss and pushed my thighs even further apart—far enough that he could peel my panties away and move them to the side. His tongue explored my mouth while his fingers explored my pussy. He touched my smoothly-shaven lips, smearing my wetness across them, and then plucked at my clit. I squirmed in the seat, squeezing my thighs around his hand. It wasn't that I wanted him to stop; it was just so intense that I couldn't sit still. Charles's experience showed in how he touched me. He did not just finger-bang me the second my panties were out of his way, but he teased me and worked me up to a frenzy before slowly sliding his fingers inside me. He massaged those fingers in and out of me and my hips moved on their own, urging him on.

"Oh, Charles..."

"Come back to my room," he said.

"I...I don't know..." I knew the answer—it was no—but a big part of me was screaming a different answer.

"I know you want to. Don't try to deny it, Dana."

I looked out for the first time and amazingly, no one was paying attention to us. It felt like we were putting on quite the show, but the bar was busy and luckily the table provided some cover. Anyone who cared to look would know exactly what we were doing, what Charles was doing was damned certain to make me cum, but at least the table left me with a modicum of modesty. But we did have an audience. An audience of one.

Dave could not bring himself to pretend he wasn't watching us. People passed in between, but every time the view opened again, I saw my husband sitting there, watching while I was being fingered by a stranger in public. He did not look jealous. Or angry. Those were the reactions you'd expect. Dave looked like he was watching the greatest concert in the world, like The Beatles had gotten back together and were playing just for him, in his living room. His hand rested on his thigh and I'm sure the temptation to touch himself was incredible. If we were not in public, I'm sure he wouldn't have resisted.

I kept my eyes on my husband as Charles teased my clit and brought me right to the edge. I bit my lower lip hard—adding a stab of pain to my intense pleasure—but my moans were still too loud. Finally, some guys to the side noticed what was going on and I had an audience of six as Charles made me cum. The orgasm rocked through me, and I stiffened, digging my nails deep into Charles's arm. I know Dave recognized that moment of climax and he actually licked his lips as he watched me cum. The fingers on my pussy were unrelenting; Charles seemed determined to make me cum again, but I pushed his hand away. I needed a break. Shivering, I sagged against his side.

“Now try to tell me you don't want to go back to my room, Dana,” he insisted.

I drained the remainder of my drink, but it hardly helped my dry mouth. “I just don't think I'm ready for that. I'm sorry.” I slid my hand over his crotch and the hard-on I found there made me even sorrier. I knew it wasn't fair to leave him like that, but I was not going to fuck this man. It didn't matter how much I needed it—that was strictly for my husband.

“Then I guess we'll have to settle for somewhere else a bit less private.”

The edge in his voice left no room for argument and I meekly followed as Charles led me away by the hand. Dave watched us from his spot at the bar but did not follow. A narrow, dimly-lit hallway led back to the bathrooms. I realized his plan and pulled back against his hand, but he did not release me. I'd been so pliant thus far that Charles probably thought it was only token resistance. It wasn't like I actually told him no. Thankfully, the men's room was mostly empty. A young guy stood by the sinks, but he was too busy primping in the mirror to notice us passing behind him. I thought for sure that the bathroom attendant—a handsome Middle Eastern gentleman in a nice suit—would stop us, but he just returned Charles's wink and turned the other way.

The stalls were large, with thick, floor-to-ceiling marble slabs as dividers. The doors ran floor-to-ceiling as well, providing some much-appreciated privacy. No one would know what we did in there—which was not necessarily a good thing.

My heart pounded, but now it was driven by fear as much as desire. This was exactly what I worried about beforehand—we'd lost control of the situation. Dave and I were playing a game to add excitement to our marriage, but Charles was an unknowing player and he was not going to play by rules he didn't know. I wondered if Dave followed us into the bathroom. Was he going to kick in the door and rescue his wife? For all I knew, this was exactly what he wanted. This was where my husband's refusal to be specific was so maddening.

Charles locked the door and pinned me to the wall. I was aroused despite my fear—the danger was a major turn-on. He pressed his fingers to my lips, and I sucked them tasting myself. He watched closely, pleased with my acquiescence. My fingers were pulled away and we were kissing again, hot and urgent, and I felt his rigid cock pressing into me. He did not seem like a rapist, but I knew he was not going to easily be put off. He tried to own me with that kiss, and I let him have me. It was only when he pulled up my dress and pulled down my panties that I found the willpower to push back.

"Charles, we can't. I'm not like that," I complained.

"What are you like, Dana?" It sounded like he found my protests amusing.

"I don't know. This is all so new to me." Maybe a little of the truth would help.

"I think you know what you want. You're just afraid to take it."

"Maybe," I admitted.

My panties were at my ankles and his fingers found my pussy again. If anything, I was even more soaked than before. I gasped when those fingers filled me. I thrust my tongue into his mouth to match his fingers. I could not hide that I wanted him. But I was not going to have him. Not tonight. Instinct kicked in and it was like I was a teenager again. I knew exactly what to do when I liked a boy enough that I wanted to make him happy, but I wasn't ready to go all the way.

Charles looked surprised when I sank down in front of him. He must have thought I was just a tease at that point. I did not want to touch the floor and thanked all those squats in the gym as I balanced on my heels. The expensive belt gave me a bit of trouble, but I know how to get a guy out of his pants. His cock popped free of soft silk boxers and I was surprised to find he was almost shaved bare. I thought that was exclusively the providence of younger guys. I wasn't sure I liked it. I prefer a manly man, and that was just too metrosexual for me. Dave grooms down there, but he still looks like a man. But the lack of hair did direct all attention to Charles's cock. It was long, but on the slender side, and tapered to an elegant tip. It was the perfect cock for a man like Charles.

My tight grip elicited a grunt from him, but that turned into a contented moan when I began working my tongue up and down the shaft. He tasted clean like he'd just washed, and I wondered if he took special care when he went out in search of a woman. A man like Charles probably would. My busy tongue reached the tip and swirled all around. Charles gasped my name and braced a hand against the wall behind him and tangled the other in my hair. His grip on my head tightened when I started softly sucking his head. I scooted my butt back against the wall to improve my balance, which helped me concentrate more on getting Charles off.

What a thrill it was to be sucking some stranger in a bathroom stall. It was so slutty—and I loved it. I imagined my husband in the stall next to us listening intently, and I tried to slurp loudly, despite my fear of discovery. Would Dave be leaning against the wall just on the other side of me—jerking off while he pictured his wife on her knees for some stranger? I could see Dave doing just that.

Firm pressure on the back of my head indicated what Charles wanted and I complied, sliding his prick into my mouth, taking it deeper and deeper with a series of bobbing motions until I'd swallowed most of his shaft. It was easy to take him after so many years of wrapping my lips around my husband's thicker cock, but he was pushing at the back of my throat and I had to relax to take him deeper. I couldn't quite deep throat him—he was just too long—but from his moans and the way he held my head I knew he enjoyed what I was doing. I knew he was getting close because he became more and more aggressive. His fingers twisted in my hair and he urged me faster. Soon he was more fucking my mouth than I was going down on him, but I didn't mind. It just added to my feeling slutty and that was hot.

I must still have it because I did not have to suck Charles very long before he was grunting my name, a warning he was going to cum. I don't know if it was really a warning, per se, because he kept his fingers knotted in my hair and forced me to keep his cock in my mouth. That was fine, I don't mind swallowing. What else was I going to do with his load? I did not want him cumming on me anywhere, and I've always thought spitting is rude. I stared up at him and kept sucking even as I felt the first jets hit the back of my throat. Charles came hard and I choked a bit, but he still held me in place. I liked being used like that. He came quick and hard, but there was not a lot of it, so I took it all without much fuss. Charles's gaze burned into me and he kept holding me there—squatting in front of him—until he was satisfied he was finished.

The shaft slipped from my mouth, leaving a wet string stretching back to my lips that I caught with a flick of my tongue. Charles smirked—he liked that. I took the proffered hand and he helped me back to my feet.

“Seems this isn’t your first time Dana,” Charles said. He tucked his cock away like nothing had happened. “You’re a natural.”

“I’m guessing that’s a compliment?” I wiped my mouth on the back of my hand.

“In my world it is.”

I pushed my dress back into place so that it covered everything it was supposed to, but realized my hair must be a mess and there was nothing I could really do about that. I was hardly going to stand in front of the mirror in the men’s room and try and fix it. “Then I’ll take it as one. It’s been a long time since I did something like this.”

“Give a blowjob at all, or do it in a men’s room?”

“I certainly haven’t done it in a place like this in a long time.”

“No, you don’t seem the type of woman who regularly does this sort of thing.”

“Not for a long time, anyway.” I didn’t want him thinking I was normally completely boring. “Don’t you think we should get out of here?”

I had been too busy to pay attention before, but now I strained to hear if anyone else was in the men’s room. I didn’t hear anyone, but that didn’t mean the coast was clear. There was still the attendant, at least. Charles opened the stall door and I tried to look as dignified as possible as we exited. The attendant deliberately ignored us and there wasn’t anyone else around. I checked and found the door to the stall beside ours was indeed closed. Had Dave been listening? Did he hear what a little slut his wife was?

Charles offered me another drink and I felt he still thought he could get me up to his room, but I declined, telling him it was time for me to return to my real life. He was disappointed but took it in stride, and even gave me his card, which simply had a telephone number on it. He told me to call next time I was looking for an adventure.

I looked all around the casino floor for my husband, but he wasn't anywhere. If he had been in the bathroom with us he should have exited. Finally, I texted him:

DANA

where r u?

come up to the room

The reply came in seconds and I was on my way. The security guard who made sure only guests boarded the elevators to the rooms gave me a knowing look. I'm sure he thought I was for hire. I even felt judged by the couple who I shared the elevator with and kept my eyes focused on the floor. My hands were shaking so much by the time I reached the room I could hardly fit the keycard into the slot. The room was dark, except for the lamps beside the bed, and that was where I found my husband. Dave was in the middle of the bed, fully nude. His thick cock stood straight up like a beacon guiding me to him. I stopped in my tracks a few feet from the bed.

Dave did not speak, or even react. He just stared at me. I didn't know what to do with myself and shifted from foot to foot. I put my hands on my hips and then removed them. The pose felt too arch. And Dave just kept looking at me. I don't know how much time passed, but I couldn't take the silence.

"Say something," I pleaded.

"Take off your dress."

Okay, that was not what I had in mind. His tone did not suggest it was a request. I don't normally like being bossed around, but I guess Charles had left me in a submissive mood. I reached back, unzipped my dress, and let it fall to the floor. I could see him examining me, perhaps looking for marks where Charles had touched me. My panties were definitely askew. Charles had stretched the elastic nicely when he was playing with me. Dave focused there, naturally.

"Take off your panties, too."

"Dave?" His voice was low, his tone even. It betrayed nothing. At least his cock told me he wasn't entirely unhappy.

"Do it, Dana."

I wiggled out of my panties, dropped them, and stepped clear of my discarded clothing. My pussy was drenched and swollen. It was clear someone had been playing down there, and we both knew it wasn't my husband. So why wouldn't he tell me how he felt about that? He stared at my pussy and his breathing got heavier. I was close to freaking out.

"Christ, Dana. Come here."

I took my time closing the distance and then crawled onto the bed between his open legs to kneel in front of him. Up close, I could feel him appraising me, looking at the wife who'd just let another man touch her.

At last, Dave allowed the hint of a smile. I knew everything was okay. "That was the hottest fucking thing I've ever seen." His voice was a rasp.

"You were in the men's room, too, weren't you?"

"Yes."

"Did you hear everything?"

"Yesss..." It was like he had to force out the admission.

"You liked watching me?"

He nodded and I took his hand and place it on my mound. I was soaked and swollen.

"He touched me out there in front of everyone."

"I saw. I couldn't believe you did that." Dave's voice was low, breathy.

"Did what? Had a drink with another man?"

"You know what I mean." I knew Dave loved it, but it seemed he couldn't quite bring himself to say what I'd done. That was odd, but it was okay. I learned it was fun to tease my husband.

"Oh, you mean you can't believe I let him put his hand up my dress?" I teased. He nodded. "His name was Charles, by the way. Charles knew what he wanted. He wanted to fuck your wife and when I told him no, he tried to convince me."

"Like this?" A finger pushed between my lips and found my clit. I gasped and swayed on my knees. I was past teasing. What I needed was to be fucked, but I didn't want to cut this part short. I wanted to give Dave his payoff. He did not touch me the same way Charles did. Dave knew exactly what made me tremble after so many years of marriage and he rubbed me in that way that always turns me to jelly. Charles was skilled, but he did not know my body like my husband did.

"He...fingered...me..." It was difficult to get the words out. Dave switched his attack, fingers filling me. "Oh God," I whimpered. "Like that...while everyone watched. While you watched.”

I leaned forward and grabbed his prick. He was full and heavy and more than ready for me. The head dripped in anticipation. I stroked his cock and his body stiffened. “You watched another man make me cum.”

“Ah fuck, Dana.”

Dave threw me onto my back and swiftly entered me. It was marvelous to be so full. I locked my legs around his waist, trapping him inside me. This was what I so desperately needed after my sexy night. I’d struggled to hold back with Charles, but now—here with my husband—I didn’t have to.

“This is what Charles wanted, baby. He wanted me to go back to his room with him.”

“But you didn’t want to?” Dave stared down at me and I wasn’t sure which answer he wanted to hear.

“I couldn’t. I told him no. He was frustrated. He wanted to fuck me so bad.”

“I’m sure he did. I think half the men in that casino wanted to.”

Dave found a slow, steady rhythm that stoked my passion, but let me keep teasing him.

“When he realized I wasn’t going to go upstairs with him—Oh Dave!—that’s when he dragged me into the bathroom.”

“It didn’t look like he had to drag you, Dana.”

I shook my head, dug my nails into his back. The headboard was bolted to the wall, but it still clicked as the bed hammered into it. Dave quickened as his excitement grew. “He didn’t. I didn’t want to be a tease. I knew I had to take care of him.” After a hearty moan, I added, “I wanted to.”

“I know you did. You’ve always loved sucking cock.”

“God, I do!” I was getting close. I felt it throbbing through my body. I couldn’t believe how turned on that night had made me.

“You couldn’t wait to get my cock in your mouth that day in the library.”

“Yess...”

“You love playing the little slut,” he spat through gritted teeth.

“Yes, baby. I was such a slut tonight. I got down and took him out and sucked him hard. I let him fuck my mouth...”

“Fuck, Dana. Ahhh...”

I don't know which of us lost it first. I climaxed so hard I was only vaguely aware of Dave cumming. Reality blurred for a few seconds as I melted away. When I finally came back to that room, I was lying in my husband's arms and he was kissing my forehead.

"I love you so much, babe," Dave said.

"Love you too, honey," I replied, squeezing him.

"Tonight was something, huh?"

It was good he wanted to talk about it. Like most men, Dave could be taciturn and given his reluctance to fully discuss it before we did anything I had been curious what he'd have to say afterward. This was not a time for him to retreat into himself. "Yeah, it was different. Was it good for you?" It was a serious question this time, not a tease.

Dave chuckled. "Do you really have to ask?"

"I'm concerned with your feelings, hon, not your hard-on."

"You should always be concerned with my hard-on, Dana." I lightly stroked him and his cock twitched; there was still some life in it even after that incredible sex, but he didn't spring back to a steel rod the way a twenty-year-old would have. "I feel fine," he continued. "I'll admit, when I first saw you by the roulette table and saw that guy's hands on you, I wasn't sure if I could go through with it. I was suddenly afraid we were making a huge mistake."

"But you got over it?"

"I did. All of the blood rushing down from my brain stopped my thinking. Was that weird for you too?"

"A little bit, but I think I'd already addressed most of my fears about doing it. I knew just meeting a man wouldn't put us in any danger. I knew the real danger would come later."

"What do you mean?"

"Uh-uh. We're talking about you right now. So, you got over your reservations?"

"Well, yeah. It was hot and I didn't see anything so bad happening—not out in the casino."

"But then we moved to the bar..."

"For a second there I was afraid you'd go somewhere I wouldn't be able to see you. I wasn't ready for that yet."

That gave me pause and I stopped stroking his cock. Did Dave foresee a circumstance where I would just go off on my own with another guy? Dave was my safety blanket. Even going into the men's room with Charles I was confident my husband would be right there. If I'd been alone with Charles—if I'd gone up to his room—anything really could have happened. I was not there yet and didn't know if I ever would be. I didn't want to get off on that tangent, though. I wanted to know how Dave felt about tonight, so I stayed on topic.

"Were you ready for what happened in the bar?"

"Christ, Dana, it was hot. My fantasies didn't prepare me for how it would really feel. First, any jealousy was gone quickly. I wasn't so shocked by that—I wasn't jealous at all when you were with Shane, but I always thought part of that was that he was my friend, and I knew he wasn't a threat."

"No one is a threat to you, honey," I said. I was back to touching him and his shaft slowly grew stronger.

"Anyway, we are playing with fire, aren't we? And I think that's part of the thrill. Even though we think we're totally okay with this and ready for it, we can't really know until it happens."

"Right."

"But I was okay with it. And no kidding this time, I was a little shocked you just let him do that right there."

I smiled. "You know I like the risk of getting caught."

"That was when we were a lot younger, and people sort of expect kids to behave badly. We're grown-ups, parents, with our own kids. We're supposed to be responsible. And besides, it wasn't a risk of getting caught. You were going to be noticed."

"That made it hotter," I admitted.

"I could see how much you liked it. I was a little torn then. I wanted to keep watching, wanted to see you misbehave, but god I was so hard. All I wanted to do was drag you out of there and fuck you in the first quiet space. I might have even dragged you into that bathroom."

"That would have been hot."

"But watching you was hotter."

"I'm glad you liked it." His cock was just about at full strength again, and I had plans for it.

"When you came, I thought that was it. I didn't think you were going to fuck him, so I didn't know what else was going to happen."

Dave didn't think I was going to fuck Charles. That meant he thought there was a possibility of it happening. And he didn't sound upset about it. Dave seemed ready to let these games go all the way, and I wasn't sure how I felt about that. Playing with other men was a huge deal, and I liked it a lot. But I didn't know if I wanted—or needed—to go all the way. I would deal with my questions later.

“Did I surprise you by going off with him to the men's room?”

“Yes and no. I was surprised that you seemed so into it. You weren't hesitating at all.”

“Are you calling me a slut?” I mock teased.

“Only in the best way possible.”

“Okay then.”

“It was so hot to see you let go like that. I never got to see you like that—from the outside. It was like watching a movie that was made just for me.”

“It was for you, honey.” And a little for me.

“So when I saw how into it you were, it did not surprise me when you went off with him. I watched you two go into the bathroom and then I waited a few minutes. I didn't want it to be too obvious that I was following you.”

“And you could tell what was going on by listening?”

“Pretty much. I closed my eyes and tried to picture it too. I knew what you were doing. I could tell he was in charge.”

“Did you like that—having another man in control of me?”

“Christ yeah, Dana. I almost jerked off in there, but for some reason, I thought that was weird.”

“That was weird!” I laughed. “Of all the things we did tonight, that was the bridge too far.”

“I didn't claim I make sense!”

“True.”

Dave went on. “When I knew you guys were finished I practically ran up here. I couldn't wait to get you naked and alone. Are you okay with all this? You don't feel like I don't love you, or that I pimped you out, do you?”

“Of course not. I liked it—loved it. A lot more than I thought I would. It was such a rush, honey! It was like I was someone else, so there were no rules, and I could be that slutty girl we were always told don't or we shouldn't be."

"Has there been a secret slut inside you all these years just waiting to get out?" Dave sounded amused.

"I don't think it's so secret, is it? And I've let her out to play here and there."

"You have. And I love you for it. I'm glad you don't regret anything from tonight."

"I have nothing to regret. I was that slut and I loved every second of it. So now I have one more question for you, my loving husband."

"Which is?"

"Now that you have you slut alone and naked, what do you plan to do with her?"

Dave rolled over onto me and entered me in one smooth motion. That was the answer I was hoping for!

A Close Call: Blurred Lines

Dave and I had crossed a line and there was no turning back. I wouldn't say we were ready to call ourselves swingers, or that we would be doing it every weekend, but we were hooked after that night at the casino. Our sex life was on fire. Before that night, Dave and I were good for two to three nights a week on average, but we made love every night for weeks after that, and it was fiery and consuming, leaving us sweaty and exhausted. During those nights we would relive our crazy adventure and I was to the point where I could vividly recall every little detail. It also kept that night constantly on my mind—and that kept me constantly horny.

I tried to ask Dave what it was about me being with another man that turned him on so much. He tried his best, but he could not explain it any further than he already had. Just seeing me as an insatiable sexual creature was his ultimate turn-on. I could tell Dave felt like I was grilling him after a while, and I backed off with the questions. He started to think he had a screw loose because this was his fantasy, and I didn't want him feeling that way.

My motivations were perhaps easier to understand. I think inside most women is a naughty girl dying to get out. We want to express ourselves with no judgments and what better way to do that than to break one of society's ultimate taboos? Knowing that it drove my husband out of his mind with lust just made it all the hotter.

We knew we wanted to continue, but it wasn't as easy as just going out every Friday night and letting some stranger pick me up in a bar. The simplest complication was that we do not shuffle our kids off to a babysitter every weekend. We enjoy our family time together and had no intention of shorting that to go play our kinky games. Then there was the problem of where to go. We were not going to trek up to the casino every time we wanted to go out and be naughty, but we still needed to go far enough away from home that we would not run into anyone, and all that driving extended the night. So it was over a month before Dave and I went out again with the intention of me meeting another man.

Sadly, our second hot date night did not go as well as the first. We were probably naïve to think we would just go out and I'd have some hot encounter every time. For our second hot date, we chose a popular bar and nightclub on the far side of the city—almost an hour away from home. It was a good mixed crowd, though we were on the high end of the crowd's age. I hung out at the bar in a short skirt and low-cut top—our tradition of Dave choosing my outfits for hot date night really took off then—but I did not like any of the guys who approached me. I feel like I'm cradle-robbing if the guy's too young, but that wasn't the only problem. A couple of the guys were just gross. I could not imagine letting them touch me. By midnight I was frustrated and ready to go home. I could tell Dave was disappointed I didn't hook up, but I blew him on the drive home as a consolation and we had a lot of fun at home imagining what might have been. Our next couple of attempts did not go much better. The stories we read on the internet definitely made this look easier than it was in reality. We kept mixing up the places we went. It would not do to become regulars anywhere.

It occurred to me after that second date that Dave and I should have some kind of signal in case some nasty guy kept hitting on me and wouldn't take no for an answer. Or what if a guy got too pushy and I needed a rescue? Dave readily agreed—he would have agreed to anything as long as we continued playing—and I decided that if I needed my husband to swoop in and save me from a bad date and couldn't just text him, I would tap my temple like I was trying to think of something. We both hoped it would not come into play.

Before we could become too discouraged, our luck changed for the better. I met a businessman in town for a convention at a downtown bar, and after a couple of drinks, he was all over me. Like Charles, he wanted me to go back to his hotel room, but he was too proper to press the issue in the same way Charles had. It could be because he was out of practice—the indent of a pocketed wedding ring was impossible to miss. I had a couple of these encounters, and we decided downtown bars near the convention center, especially hotel bars, were good places to find men looking for a quick, casual hook up. I had three such encounters over a couple of months, but none of them went past some making out and groping at the bar. There was the promise of more if I went to a hotel with these men, but that was not going to happen. At least, I wasn't ready for that. I think Dave had begun to grow restless.

Dave liked seeing me flirt with and kiss other men, but he wanted more, like an addict who needs to increase his fix. When we made love after my hot dates, he would propose fantasies where things had gone further. My husband liked to pretend my dates took me into the men's room like Charles had, or even that it would be hot if I did go back to their hotel rooms. It was hot in the moment, and I always came hard thinking about it, but when I was thinking rationally later I just thought it was crazy. I should have just asked Dave straight out if he wanted me to fuck someone else, but I think I was afraid to hear the answer.

My dates took a hotter turn when we decided to try some corner neighborhood bars—the kind where hard-working guys went for a beer after work and everyone knew your name. You might think that sounds like Cheers, but these places were a little more blue collar than that. They were the kinds of places Dave and I might go on a Friday night before we moved out to the suburbs and started going to places with craft brews. I asked Dave why the change. These weren't the kinds of places you went if you weren't a regular.

"I just think those guys might be more fun. They won't be as uptight," he answered.

"Probably not," I replied. I knew exactly what he meant by more fun. I remembered hanging out in those bars. Those guys were aggressive when they drank, and their happy hands roamed everywhere—they didn't care if a woman was wearing a ring or not. I would be easy bait if they thought I was at the bar alone.

Although we'd been out on a handful of hot dates over the four months, we'd been doing this, I still got nervous every time I walked into a bar by myself, and going to a corner bar was even worse. It was a little after ten on a Saturday night and Kelly's Pub was pretty crowded, but people still took notice when I came in the door—especially the older regulars who occupied the corner of the bar nearest the door. I felt their eyes follow me as I crossed the short distance to the far side of the bar, where I squeezed up the narrow aisle between the backs of the bar stools and the wall. Dave had taken great pride in choosing my outfit for that evening and had proactively picked it instead of waiting for me to model several options for him. He paired a tight rust-colored V-neck sweater with a short kilt I hadn't worn in ages. Black tights and knee-high boots completed the outfit. The outfit perfectly showcased my curves and was fun without being too dressy. I could tell by the way the regulars by the door looked at me that Dave had chosen well.

Kelly's Pub was long and narrow, with a small open space at the rear that made do as a dance floor for the DJ who was crammed into the corner. A bunch of girls were up and dancing, some holding their glasses over their heads as they moved. A quick glance around left me feeling like I was the only one in the bar by myself. I found a place to squeeze in on the backside of the bar and when the young buck bartender came around, I leaned forward and ordered a beer. Kelly's Pub was not a place to order wine. I had to shout to be heard over the DJ's oversized speakers and the din of loud conversations being shouted over that. I'd forgotten how loud those little bars could be on a Saturday night. I swear the bartender pretended not to hear the second time so he could keep me leaned forward, which gave him a perfect look down my sweater—though I'm sure he was just admiring the gold locket that hung there.

Dave warned me he would be waiting a long time to come into the bar. As neither of us were regulars—and thus stood out—Dave wanted to leave a nice long gap between our entrances so no one connected us. He had been there once, which was how we found the place. The company had a building project in the area last year and Dave bought the guys drinks for happy hour on the final afternoon of the project.

I paced myself, but I was down to the end of my first beer, and still no Dave. That was also all the time it took for someone to hit on me. Pat seemed to come out of nowhere, but there was just a wall of people around me. Pat was short and muscular, very Italian, and about my age. His thick black hair was carefully gelled and his goatee was meticulously trimmed. He wore an Italia soccer t-shirt and baggy jeans. He was not my type at all, but he had a charming smile and his obvious confidence was attractive.

"Hey beautiful, don't tell me you're here alone," he said.

I smiled and tried not to hold the hey beautiful opening against him. “That wasn’t the plan.”

“Oh? Who would be crazy enough to stand you up, honey?”

“My boyfriend can’t help it if he’s stuck at work, can he?”

I decided on a different tactic this time. It really wouldn’t be believable that I’d go to a place like Kelly’s Pub for a drink by myself, so I invented a boyfriend who didn’t show up to meet me, thinking a husband might be pushing it. I suspected a boyfriend wouldn’t slow a guy like Pat down. I rubbed my thumb on the back of my ring finger as we talked. I still was not used to being without my wedding and engagement rings.

“I’d quit my job to be with you. I’m Pat.”

“I’m Dani,” I lied. I’d decided that using a fake name completed my transformation into my tramp persona. We awkwardly shook hands in the cramped conditions. “So you’re the kind of guy who’d be looking to me to support him?”

A huge smile popped up on Pat’s face and he chuckled. “You got me all wrong, Dani. I’m just saying nothing would keep me from being with you.”

“Aww, that’s sweet, Pat.”

“Is he still coming, or are you stuck here by yourself?”

“He says he’s going to try.”

“Why don’t you come over and join us? You don’t want to sit here by yourself. Some of the guys in this place can be assholes.”

“My boyfriend might not like coming in to find me with another guy.”

“Then he shouldn’t leave a hot chick like you alone in a bar, should he?”

I smiled. As cheesy as Pat was, he had his charm. “You have a point, but I think I’ll wait here and give him a little longer.”

“If you change your mind, we’re back there.” Pat pointed to a spot in the back, against the wall, where three other guys and two women were hanging out.

“Okay, maybe I’ll come over if I really get stood up.”

The bartender came over and took Pat’s order, which included another drink for me. I tried to beg off, but Pat would have none of it. I thanked him before he returned to his friends. And the bait was dangled out again.

Dave came into the bar about twenty minutes later and I spotted him taking a seat at the far end while some skeezy older guy tried to chat me up. I don’t know why some man who seemed like he hadn’t bathed in a few days and was old enough to be my father thought he had any shot at picking me up, but he gave it a try. He was persistent, but I shook him off. It took a while after that for another guy to approach me and I could see Dave getting impatient on the other side of the bar. He really wanted to see me hook up, and I don't think he was as choosy as I am. I was hit on by a couple of other men I had zero interest in, and by then more than two hours had passed. I'd also had more than a couple of drinks. I certainly was not drunk the way I had been that night with Charles, but I was feeling good and flirty, which is probably why I decided to go see what Pat and his friends were doing.

"Hey you. Looks like Prince Charming came to rescue you," Pat shouted. The music was very loud. They were only feet from the DJ's blaring amp, and it was impossible to be heard without leaning close as you would to pass a whisper.

"Nope. He left me all on my own."

"Maybe another prince will ride to your rescue." Pat took my hand and pulled me closer to the group. "Guys, this is Dani." He introduced his friends, but I couldn't hear their names. Two of them were a married couple about my age, while another of the men was probably forty, but was with a girl who had to be in her early twenties. That always makes me smirk because I know exactly what's going on. The girl thinks she's so worldly because she's dating an older guy and that guys her own age just aren't mature enough. I know because I was that girl. What I know now that I'm older—that I couldn't understand as a twenty-year-old girl—is that the older guy doesn't think of you as worldly, or this incredibly mature woman. He may be fifteen, twenty years older than you, but he still wants to fuck a twenty-year old and he wants your tight, young body. He doesn't care that you can't truly have anything in common—you're at different stages in your lives—he just wants what he wants. I wished I could shake some sense into that girl, but she would have just thought I was pushy and might have even thought I wanted to steal her man. Besides, that was not the mission for the night.

Pat and his friends were pretty nice and made an effort to make me feel included, but there could not be much chit-chat with the music pounding right beside us. Pat was attentive and asked me all about myself, which caused me to invent a web of lies. I tried to keep it simple so I wouldn't trip up. My name was Dani, I'd just moved to the neighborhood, and I was divorced and single. I think the only reason I mentioned I'd been married was that it seemed like I should have been at my age—that and, although I know I have a nice body, I feel it's obvious I've had kids. If Pat should happen to be lucky enough to see me without any of my clothes he would notice. It's funny how we overthink things when we're lying.

I had to stay close to him while we talked, and when his lips brushed my ear or I felt his warm breath on my neck it gave me the chills and it mattered less and less that Pat was not my usual type. His hand began on my hip, but I didn't object when he moved it to my butt and he left it there. I liked how he was just groping me there in the bar without a second thought. Like Charles before him, Pat had begun treating me like I was already his. I turned so my body pressed along the length of his and ran my red-painted fingernails up and down his back. It was already obvious I'd be hooking up with Pat, the only question was how and where. I'd been to the bathroom in Kelly's, and it was tiny and filthy. I would not be fooling around in there.

Over the next hour, Pat's friends slowly drifted out of the bar, saying they had to get home. I snuck quick peeks back at my husband when I could see him through the crowd. Dave looked very pleased to see me with Pat. His eyes flicked down to Pat's hand on my ass and he smiled. I'm sure if I'd been close enough I would have seen a big hard-on in his pants. When Pat's friends were gone, we moved closer to the corner, where a pillar partially blocked Dave's view. I hoped he'd be able to see enough.

"Looks like it's just us now," I said. Pat had me in a tight corner where the wall met the corner, and I couldn't see my husband at all. It was after midnight, but the bar was still crowded enough that no one seemed to take notice of us there in our corner.

"That's what I was hoping for all night." His hand was on the wall right beside my head and he leaned in closer.

"Why is that? You know I have a boyfriend."

"Seems to me you're single tonight."

"Is that how it works?" I couldn't help smiling. Pat thought he had it all figured out.

"You're still here with me, not rushing home to see him. I think that says it all."

"And what do you think that means?"

Pat's answer was a kiss. It was surprisingly tentative. He did not want to push himself on me but wanted to be sure he was right about me. He was. I tickled the back of his neck with my nails as I pulled him into a deeper kiss, my tongue flicking out to draw in his. He pressed his weight against me and now I was pinned into the corner. He kneaded my butt and I sensuously pressed harder into him, turning it into a full-body kiss. The music still pounded in my ears, but I didn't care about any of the other people in the bar. Funny how quickly it had become normal to be making out with strangers in public.

I pulled my lips from his to catch my breath, but Pat's hands stayed busy. He casually cupped my breast, stroking his thumb across it and my tingling nipple rose to his touch, even through my bra and sweater. I don't think he was out to tease me—he was just enjoying my body. It really was a throwback to meeting a guy in a bar and hooking up, and I loved the simplicity of it. It felt right, as dirty as it was. I leaned my forehead on his shoulder, but Pat was still kissing me. His lips brushed my cheek, he nibbled on my ear, and then he was nibbling my neck. I cooed. I loved that.

"Careful," I warned him. "Don't leave a mark."

"Don't worry, honey. I don't want to jam you up."

"Good. I like a man who has some self-control."

"You make that hard, Dani. You look fucking hot tonight. I love those boots."

His fingers combed through my thick mane of chestnut hair, and he brought my lips back to his. Pat was more confident and forceful now. There was no doubt I wanted this, too. His leg pushed between mine, raising my kilt. I knew all anyone could see was his back and the fact that he was making out with some woman. I let him carry my kilt higher and ground into his strong thigh. I wondered if he could feel the damp heat through his jeans. I was so wet. Playing Dani, the happy slut hooking up in a bar was so hot.

"We should get out of here," he breathed in my ear between kisses.

"Okay." It was hard to stop kissing long enough to answer.

"I'm only about a fifteen-minute drive from here."

It was so tempting. I pictured a barebones bachelor pad, tripping over clothes on his bedroom floor as we stumbled toward his bed. I could just imagine Pat throwing me down on his unmade bed and then undressing me. I knew Pat would fuck me like a bull, given the chance, and I strongly suspected my husband would not mind if that happened. But I was not going to go back to Pat's place. I can't say I didn't want to, but I was not going to do it.

"Sorry, baby. I just don't know you well enough," I replied, followed by a deep, long kiss.

"We've got to get out of here, Dani."

"I know, baby."

I nudged Pat away from me and immediately saw Dave, leaning against the wall opposite us. It appeared he was watching a heated game of pool, but I knew better. He was watching his wife with another man. I felt a stone in the pit of my stomach—that feeling when you're caught with your hand in the cookie jar. It was a visceral reaction, it didn't matter that I was doing what my husband wanted. Would I ever get past that? I didn't think so, but it was not entirely a bad thing. That feeling gave me chills and made my heart pound. It made me want to be bad.

Dave had the strangest look on his face. It was like he couldn't believe what he was seeing. He wasn't seeing me as his wife. What could he be thinking?

I led Pat out of the bar and around the corner to where I'd parked my Prius. I hoped Dave would be close behind. If our plan worked out, he should have a front row seat. I was parked directly under a streetlight in a small lot and Dave had parked our big Expedition right beside it. If he was careful and quiet, he should be able to slip into the truck and watch through the tinted rear window.

"Where are we going, Dani?" Pat asked.

"When's the last time you fooled around in the backseat of a car?"

Pat laughed. "More recently than you'd think."

The lights flashed when I clicked the Prius to unlock, but Pat sat me up on the hood. I wrapped my arms and legs around him and thrust my tongue into his mouth. The street was deserted, but passersby would not have stopped us. I tried and failed to run my fingers through Pat's stiff, gelled hair. But I held him there, caught in my passionate kiss. His hands were everywhere, keeping me simmering, and I could barely stand the heat. He tried forcing his hands under my sweater and I slowed him down—momentarily.

"Not out here," I breathed.

"Doesn't seem like you care about that sort of thing."

“I might not be as wild as you think I am,” I warned.

I swung my legs around him and hopped off the hood. He stood there dumbly for a second while I stood with the rear driver’s side door open. “Coming?” I asked. Before I slid into the car I saw Dave lurking in the shadows up the block.

Pat jumped in the car and dragged me across to him. He didn’t seem to notice the indentations where the booster seats would usually be. He had other things on his mind. I’d spent over an hour scrubbing the back of that car to get it clean. There were Cheerios everywhere! I half-straddled his lap and his back was against the door. He whipped my sweater over my head and a nervous thrill shot through me. It had been a long time since I was undressed in front of anyone but my husband. I managed to keep my clothes on with Charles, but things were taking on a life of their own in the backseat with Pat. There was not much room between us, but Pat held me back a second to look me over. My chest heaved with my labored breathing and he watched the rise and fall of my breasts encased in their black lace-trimmed bra. It created nice cleavage and gave me a great silhouette in the sweater that was now crumpled on the floor. He palmed my tits and could just feel the rise of my nipples through the lightly padded cups. As great as I looked in the lingerie—that was one of my favorite bras—I think we both wanted it out of the way. I reached back and unhooked it.

I slapped my palm on the window when he pulled me forward and sucked my rigid nipple into his mouth. Pat wasn’t subtle. He sucked hard and even nibbled. It almost hurt, but it felt so good and my moans filled the car. I stared up at the opaque window of the Expedition beside us and wondered if my husband was already there in the truck, watching us. Would Dave jerk off as he watched us? I hoped he did. I wanted him to be so turned on watching me that he could not help himself. I wanted to be my husband’s perfect slut.

I fumbled with Pat’s pants with my free hand and was able to work them open. It was awkward at that angle, but I shoved my hand inside and wrapped my fingers around his hard shaft. I love feeling how hard I can make a man. It makes me feel sexy and fills me with confidence. When your life mostly consists of carting the kids around and taking care of the house it’s easy to forget you’re also a woman and that someone might see you as more than a mom and a maid—even with a husband like Dave. I squeezed Pat's cock, but I didn't just want to touch it. I wanted to see it and taste it.

Pat did not let me pull back and take out his prick. He instead pushed his hand up my skirt. He found it damp between my legs and the pressure on my mound made me gasp and press into him.

"I fucking hate pantyhose," he growled.

"Sorry, honey." I didn't correct him that they were tights and not pantyhose.

Rrrrip!

With a quick tear, Pat opened up a slit in my tights and pulled my panties aside. "That's much better," he said. His fingers mashed my lips, pressing down on my clit, and my head swam.

"Yesss," I grunted through gritted teeth.

Two thick fingers pushed inside me, but Pat didn't finger me so much as I rode his hand. I feel like a slut for admitting it, but I needed it. It was so hot to be fooling around in the back of the car and I could just imagine my husband rubbing himself while he watched us, and damn I needed to cum. Pat pinched and pulled my nipple and the rough handling made me hotter. I could hear my pussy wetly sucking his fingers in and I rode them harder.

"Fuck, Dani. That's it, baby," he encouraged.

"Fuck...fuck...yesss...yesss...yes!"

I came fast and hard, clamping down on those wonderful fingers. My cries were deafening in the confines of the Prius. I stared right out the window and hopefully into my husband's eyes.

I was so focused on Dave in the truck beside us that I wasn't paying attention to Pat. I didn't realize he'd worked his pants down or that his cock was out. I didn't realize we were ready to fuck until I felt the head of his cock against my swollen, wet lips. My first reaction was weakness. Yes, the carnal part of my brain wanted a cock inside me. It would feel so much better than just his fingers had. I even sank onto him, letting his head part my lips. And God, did it feel good! But then panic slapped me in the head and I abruptly shoved back from Pat.

"No, we can't!" I hoped it didn't sound as shrill to him as it did to me. Pat grabbed my wrists. He wasn't going to let me go that easily.

"Come on, Dani. Don't be a fucking tease." He didn't sound happy.

"I have a boyfriend," I almost said husband, "I can't fuck you. Fooling around is one thing, but..."

“Pat, sorry.”

Pat pushed me and pulled my legs out from under me. I banged my head on the ceiling and fell back against the opposite door. My kilt was around my waist, my legs wide open. Fear seized my heart. Was he going to try to rape me? This was the risk of playing with fire. But he did not get on top of me. Instead, he squeezed down and pulled my legs over his shoulders.

“What are you doing?” Panic still tinged my voice.

He did not speak but buried his face between my thighs. I pushed at his shoulders out of instinct—I wasn’t ready for that. I was ready for Dave to come pounding on the window at any moment. I tapped my temple—giving our emergency signal—but I didn’t know if my husband could see it. Surely he could see things had gone wrong anyway and would intervene. But then Pat’s tongue circled my clit and he sucked on my juicy lips and my protests were replaced by moans. What he may have lacked in technique he made up for with enthusiasm. The immediate threat of being fucked was gone and I reacted shamelessly, urging him on, pushing myself at him.

“Mmm, hon, that’s so good,” I cooed, trying to ruffle his stiff hair again. I did use it to pull his face closer and hold it there. I was soaking his face and as his lips and tongue tormented me I quickly rose back toward the heights of the orgasm only just experienced. I was at Pat’s mercy.

Pat moved on top of me and I kissed him back without thinking. Tasting myself on his kiss was enthralling. And then I felt his cock slipping into my pussy again and I pushed past the fuzz of lust clouding my brain.

“Pat, I said no! I can’t fuck you.”

“Yeah, you don’t seem like you don’t want it.”

He shoved forward and buried himself inside me. He was thick and long and God it felt amazing. I groaned and squeezed that invading shaft. I was too horny to not react, no matter what my brain was saying. My body had its own ideas.

“But I can’t...I shouldn’t...” I pushed against his shoulders, but it became weaker. “Come on, if you stop I’ll blow you,” I bargained.

He’d only just started moving when the car rocked violently. My eyes flew open and I saw Dave standing beside the car, slamming it with his fist. “Open the fuck up,” he was shouting.

I twisted my arm back and grabbed the door handle. I fell backward and Dave caught my shoulders, using them to haul me out from under Pat. My legs flailed until my boot heels gained purchase on the rough parking lot surface. Pat was out of the car right behind me and he looked fairly ridiculous standing there fuming with his pants around his ankles. He glowered at Dave, who stood a good head over my backseat lover. Pat looked like he wanted to advance on my husband, but Dave gave him a hard shove back against the car.

“That’s my fucking girlfriend,” my husband growled. “Get your pants on and get the fuck out of here.”

Dave really looked like he was going to hit Pat and I cried, “Dave, don’t!”

“Shut up, slut!” Dave glared at me.

“Hey man, back the fuck off. Your issue is with her, not me. I don’t know you from Adam,” Pat shouted.

“Just get the fuck out of here.”

Dave took a threatening step toward Pat, who finished fixing his pants and backed away. Dave tensely watched until Pat disappeared around the corner. He waited another minute until he finally turned back to me.

“Dave...”

My husband grabbed me by the arms and roughly shoved me face down into the back of the Prius, though he was careful not to bang my head. I trembled with fear. Had Dave lost control? How could he be angry? I was doing exactly what he wanted! He was the one who wanted me to go out and be with other guys. I would have never done this on my own.

I was jerked back by my hips and planted one boot on the ground outside for purchase, while my other knee was up on the seat. Dave rammed his cock into me from behind. It was sudden and violent, but I was soaked, and he sank right inside me. I cried out—half fear, half excitement. My palms braced against the leather seats, and I shoved back at him. Yes, the situation was messed up, but it did not change the fact I still needed to be fucked. I needed it so badly that I’d very nearly let a stranger do it. I think that scared me more than anything else.

“That’s what you wanted, isn’t it? You want to be fucked like some backseat whore?” Dave growled. He did not sound like my husband at all. I still could not tell how much was anger and what was lust.

“Yes! Fuck me!” I begged. Whatever else, he was right. That was exactly what I wanted.

“You were ready to let that little bastard fuck you...”

“Yes! Fuck I wanted it. Fuck your whore!”

Dave slapped my ass hard. It stung and I liked it. He seemed to enjoy the way I yelped because he did it again and shoved his cock into me harder.

“Oh fuck, you slut,” he cried, spanking my ass as he fucked me.

“Yes! Fuck your whore! Fuck me!” I repeated it over and over again. I probably should have been disturbed, but I begged my husband to fuck me, to punish me. My ass was hanging out in the night, who knows who could have seen or heard us, but I didn’t care. I just wanted to cum. And I wanted Dave to cum too. He did it first, flooding me with his thick seed. It was only moments later that I was howling as my climax slammed me. Dave let go and I slumped onto the seat.

I just wanted to lay there. The night had taken all I had to give. But of course, I couldn’t. My kilt was around my waist, my tights were torn and streaked with runners. I looked exactly the way I felt, and I had to pull it together. When I eased back out of the car I found Dave standing there, looking confused. I don’t think he understood what had happened any more than I did. He didn’t meet my eyes.

“Uh, we’d better get home,” he simply said.

“Yeah. I’ll see you there, I guess.”

DAVE and I didn’t say a word to each other that night. I got home before him, but when I came out of the bathroom, shrouded in a cloud of steam, he was already in bed and appeared to be asleep. That was okay. I don’t know that I was ready to talk about it either. I climbed into bed beside him, but I could not sleep.

I was back out of bed before dawn and sat in the kitchen, blankly sipping coffee. I didn’t know what to think. Things had gone too far with Pat, of that, I was sure. I had been scared in the moment, but the morning after, when I was sober, but still feeling the worse for wear, I didn’t really blame him. You take a drunk guy, wind him up all night and then start ripping clothes off you can’t just expect him to stop on a dime. I know I’m probably setting the cause of feminism back a hundred years, but I didn’t exactly blame Pat. I'd led him on terribly and wasn't quick enough in providing an alternative. Probably to him my no did not sound like a real no, but no must always mean no. Weirdly, I found I was pissed at my husband.

Dave had to see when I struggled with Pat the first time. Why didn't he intervene then? Couldn't he tell I was pushing Pat away? Didn't he see our signal? He wanted to see what would happen. I could only conclude that Dave wanted to see Pat fuck me, and that angered me too. I thought I was clear I didn't want to go there. Even if I was going to change my mind, that's not a decision you make in the heat of the moment when you've been drinking all night and you're horny as hell. I know I probably sound like a Pollyanna, but to me crossing that line is a big deal. Most people would think fooling around with other men is a big deal too, but I can see the shades of gray. Maybe I'm the crazy one. I think actual sex is something different, something special. I want Dave to think so too, but maybe that's unrealistic considering his obsession. I couldn't wait to hear what he had to say for himself.

Alyssa, our babysitter, had stayed the night in the guest room and she came down and interrupted my thoughts. I put on a happy face for her, but honestly, I was happy when she was paid and on her way. The kids were up shortly after that, and I got them fed and dressed for Sunday School myself while Dave remained in bed. I told them daddy didn't feel well and he wouldn't be coming to church with us.

Making small talk with the other ladies at Sunday School and then sitting and singing hymns was surreal. I looked at the people around me—my friends—and knew they would probably stone me if they knew the truth. If they knew what was in my heart. They would call me all those things I was called last night: Slut. Whore. But they would mean it very differently. So, was I a bad person for playing these little games with my husband? Nothing like sitting in church to make you judge yourself. But I was resolute. It didn't matter what other people might think. Dave and I weren't hurting anyone. This was only about us. But could we keep everyone from getting hurt?

Dave was up and about when we got home from church. It was cold and windy outside, which was the perfect excuse to park the kids in front of a movie, and hopefully Dave and I would finally have time to talk. I was going to burst if I didn't get some things off my chest. With the kids occupied in the family room, we sat at the kitchen table.

"I guess we need to talk about last night," Dave opened.

"You think?" I couldn't mask my feelings.

"Things got crazy." He still had trouble looking me in the face.

"You could say that. What were you doing?"

"You know what I was doing. I was in the truck next to you."

"Why did you wait so long to jump in? I gave the signal!"

"I didn't see that. It looked like you had it handled."

"I almost fucked another man."

Dave was silent and staring down like he was trying to memorize the wood grain in the tabletop.

"That's where all this is going isn't it?" I struggled to keep my voice down. The kids didn't need this conversation interrupting Cars. "You want to see me fuck another man."

Still, silence.

"Admit it. That's what you want."

"I think it would be hot."

"You think it would be hot for your wife to fuck another man?"

Dave finally looked at me. The fire was back in his eyes. "Yeah, I think it would be really fucking hot. You can't honestly tell me this comes as a shock to you."

"We've been fooling around and it's fun, but we've talked about this."

"You've told me how you feel and I've tried to respect that."

"But?"

"But yeah, I'd love for you to fuck another man. Maybe that makes me sick, or a pervert, but if you want honesty, that's how I feel."

I just stared. I didn't know what to say. In the background, I heard Mater racing Lightning McQueen.

"Watching you fool around these past months has been hot. It's been so unbelievable. You've never been hotter, Dana, but I just think going all the way would be the ultimate."

"Why?" I needed to know more. I needed to understand because at that moment I didn't know whether to scream or cry. I knew we were playing with fire, but I didn't know it was this fire.

"I love seeing you like that with other men. I told you before, it's like I'm seeing you for the first time all over again. You're just a hot woman and anything could happen and I have a front row seat. But anything can't happen, because you're holding back. I can see it. Just because you're not fucking these guys doesn't mean you don't want to. I saw it that night with Charles. You can't tell me you didn't really want to go back to his room with him."

"I..."

"And it happened again last night. Something in your brain was stopping you from doing what you really wanted to do. You told yourself you couldn't fuck that guy, but that wasn't what you wanted." Dave was flushed with excitement just talking about it. I could see this was the truth, what he wanted. He wanted it so badly that he wasn't thinking about the potential cost.

"But don't you think if I do that, I'm giving away something that should just be between us? Don't you think we should hold something back?" I asked.

"We've already gone so far. You've done so much, Dana. Is this really just too much? I know you had to think about it when I first brought it up because your morals told you all this was wrong, but you realized that was bullshit. The only right and wrong are what we decide. Isn't this the same thing? Do you really think it makes you a worse person if you fuck some guy instead of just blowing him?"

"No, I guess not. But that's not entirely the point." His logic made sense. But my argument was emotional, not logical. I had to ask myself, after all we'd done—I'd done—was it silly to be hanging onto such a sticking point? If I could be with other men, and like it, what was the point of holding back that last little bit? Clearly, my husband didn't want me to. "What about us? I'm just afraid that you seeing me do that, that ultimate intimate act, will change things between us."

Dave took my hands in his. "Dana, if I was going to have a problem, or I was going to freak out, don't you think it would have happened by now? I saw everything last night, and it was hot."

"And you're totally okay with this? There isn't any part of you that is scared of all this?"

"Scared, no. I know I love you and I always will. I know you'd never do anything to hurt me and that you're not going to go run off with some other guy because he fucked you good. Nothing you do physically is going to change how I feel about you. But yes, there is this weird, sick feeling I get when it's happening. I think it's the excitement of doing something so wrong, not fear that it will hurt us."

Dave was very convincing. I felt exactly the same thing when we were playing, and that's what made it so hot. But I couldn't just give up what I felt that easily. I couldn't just sit there and tell him I'd do that for him. I had to be sure. "I'll think about it, but I can't promise I'll give you what you want. I can't cross that line unless I'm sure."

"I understand, and if you can't, you can't."

We left it there, but I was still as unsettled as ever.

CHAPTER 5

A Shared Wife: Crossing the Line

The weather turned warmer and we held one of our famous backyard barbeques for the neighbors. It was nice to return to some degree of normalcy. We saw our friends and when I talked to men—the male halves of the couples we knew—there was no hidden agenda, though sometimes I caught Dave watching from across the yard and I couldn't help but wonder if he was trying to picture me fooling around with them. We had never even considered playing around with people we knew—that was well in the past—but that didn't mean it had never crossed my husband's mind. There had been many drunken nights over the years where something could have happened if someone had chosen to steer things that way. I don't know that any of our friends are kinky that way, but I'd be lying if I said I didn't think some of my friends' husbands were pretty attractive. None of that happened. We just had good times with good friends and then if we had the energy at the end of the night, Dave and I would have the kind of quick, drunken sex that we'd always enjoyed after a night of partying.

Dave knows me well after almost fifteen years of marriage. He gave me the space I asked for. It was the only chance of his getting what he wanted. If he pushed me and needled me I'd probably just tell him no out of spite. This was a big deal to me, and something I was not going to decide lightly. And I did think about it. It was probably on my mind more than I'd care to admit.

Fear was not the only thing on my mind when I thought about crossing that line. It was so dangerous and exciting. Dave had a point. My alter ego Dani was only really playing at being the slut. She never truly lost control. She always knew there was a line she would not cross. Maybe it was time to cross that line and give in to the complete carnal experience. Perhaps it was silly to be holding back that strange virginity like some Catholic girl on her prom night—which, by the way, I did not do. In my heart, I knew what I wanted to do. I just had to break that last string of a puritanical upbringing that was holding me back. I had to decide it was fine to do this if it was what my husband and I wanted, and everyone else be damned.

We were still making love regularly, but we'd stopped reliving our adventures and it felt a little off. Some of the excitement had been drained from our martial bed. I didn't think of it in terms that we needed that sexual game to make it hot, but it was just a spice we both liked, and I wanted it back. Now all I had to do was figure out how to tell Dave about my decision. I'd been so adamant he was crazy before that I felt silly coming and telling him he'd been right all along. Luckily, Dave made it easy.

"Hey, I was thinking about getting a sitter next Saturday night," I said, catching Dave as he grabbed a beer from the kitchen.

"Oh yeah?"

"I was thinking we could go on a hot date."

"That sounds cool, but are you sure?"

I looked right into the face of the man I loved, the man I'd been with for almost twenty years, all told, and told him I was prepared to resume being with other men, maybe even fucking them if the mood felt right. "I am. It's been mostly fun and I think I could make it even more fun."

The smile slowly spread across his face. I was hoping Dave could take the hint without me spelling it out. "If you're sure, that's great. We should definitely go out."

"I'll call Alyssa."

IT TURNED out that Alyssa was not available, and neither were the grandparents, so it was a few more weeks before Dave and I were able to go out again. That left me with a lot of time to think about the choice I'd made. I was okay with it, but that didn't mean I didn't get tingles of fear and excitement when I thought about what it would be like to fuck another man for the first time in well over fifteen years. And it gave us plenty of time to fantasize about it in the bedroom. No question my husband was excited about seeing me fuck another man. The heat that had been in our lovemaking when we went on hot dates before was back, but even more scorching. But it did leave us with something to consider.

“What if I go there, but you can’t be there to see it? It might not be possible to set it up that way.” I asked. We were covered in a sheen of sweat with the covers thrown off of us and the ceiling fan spinning lazily overhead. He’d just given me another toe-curling orgasm and I rested my head on his chest.

“I know what you mean. We kind of set up our cars last time, but not everyone wants to go screw in the back of a car,” Dave conceded.

“We can’t come back here. I think a guy is going to want to take me home.”

“And he’s probably not going to have a convenient bedroom window open.”

I laughed. “Probably not.”

“I think if the opportunity arises, and you’re feeling it, you should just go with it.” Dave ran his fingers through my sweat-dampened hair.

“Are you sure? But...”

“I think you coming home and just telling me about it will be hot. I want to be a fly on the wall, but if we can’t make that happen, I’m okay with it. I still want us to have the experience.”

“I love you.”

“I love you too, sweetheart.”

Dave said exactly the right things, as always. Even if I went off with some guy and Dave couldn’t be there to watch, we were still having this experience, not just me. We were doing this as a couple. I was not just going off to have an affair. But I still wanted Dave to have everything he wanted. There had to be a way. Inspiration struck while watching the news.

Our local news station was doing one of those reports testing local mechanics to see if they would treat women differently than men with identical car problems. Of course, they did, but that’s beside the point. The station sent a female intern into the garages armed with a camera hidden in a purse so they could capture the liars on video. It worked incredibly well, and I wondered how hard it was to find something like that for us. I know nanny cams are everywhere, so finding a hidden camera could not be that difficult. It only took one quick internet search, and I was offered all kinds of cameras, hidden in everything from watches to pens to car beepers. And best of all, they were all tiny and promised to be easy to use. I ordered one that looked like a car beeper right away but kept it from Dave. It wanted it to be a surprise if we got separated.

I was as prepared as I could be—mentally and technologically—now I just needed to make sure I didn't chicken out when the time came.

THE FAUX-GRUNGY BAR wasn't as crowded as we thought it would be. It was one of those hipster bars in a gentrifying neighborhood that was supposed to appear like it was still an old neighborhood dive, but really offered a large selection of craft beers, a digital jukebox, and free wifi. The huge, scarred wooden bar probably did date from when it was a real neighborhood joint, as did the ancient linoleum floor, but the posters for old local music shows had all obviously been chosen with care, and the LED mood lighting just did not fit. The crowd was probably only about half capacity, which was odd for ten o'clock on a Saturday night and was mostly people in their twenties—guys with shaggy beards and plaid shirts, girls wearing vintage clothing. I fit in surprisingly well in a snug vintage-looking Red Sox V-neck t-shirt and a ragged, short denim miniskirt with flip-flops. The t-shirt was worn enough that the shadow of my lacy black bra was just visible through it in the right light. I hoped the casual/sexy outfit made me look younger because most of that crowd was a good ten years younger than we were. I didn't even know if I'd be able to find a guy in there who didn't make me feel like I was robbing the cradle. At least this bar was the last place we would be likely to encounter anyone we knew.

Dave followed the usual plan and came into the bar about a half hour after I did. I was hanging and casually chatting with a small, mixed group that didn't have any good prospects in it. At least the people in the bar were friendly enough. I stuck with the Dani story and told them I was recently divorced and had just bought a rowhome I was rehabbing in the area. Luckily, I knew enough about the subject from my husband that I didn't sound like an idiot when they started asking questions. Dave took a seat on the far side, and I could see he was evaluating the guys in the group to see if they were suitable.

“I think you’re going to like it down here, Dani,” one of the girls was saying as I looked back from Dave. “It’s really becoming a walkable neighborhood. A lot of cute little restaurants are starting to open up.”

“Yeah, it’s a nice little community,” her boyfriend agreed. “I like the feel. It’s not that cookie-cutter suburban bullshit. Everything down here is just authentic.” How would these guys feel if they knew I bought my faux-vintage t-shirt at Target?

“That’s why I moved. I was just looking for something different, you know? After a while, you get tired of the same old thing,” I said. I took his comments in stride. I loved my suburban bullshit life. I loved that I had a big yard with room for a pool and a vegetable garden and that I felt good letting the kids play outside. Here, I would have had a tiny postage stamp of a backyard and the kids would have to walk four blocks to find any semblance of a park to play in. But as I said, these guys seemed nice enough, so I let their disdain for my real lifestyle go.

The group wanted to move to the back deck to smoke, but I told them I had better stay behind and wait for the date I knew would never arrive. Instead, I ordered a second beer and risked a wink at Dave. I leaned over the bar and was pleased when the bartender, a shaggy kid in his early twenties, was not shy about peeking down my V-neck.

Another hour passed and I was beginning to think the night was going to be a bust. A couple of people had talked to me, but no guys had made a serious effort to hit on me—not even any I had no interest in. It seemed that most of the people at the bar were in little groups and pretty much only interested in their friends. Back in my twenties, I was already with Dave, but I remember that when we’d go out with friends the single guys weren’t shy about going after a girl if they thought they had a shot at getting laid. Maybe the guys in the hipster bar just weren’t interested in an older broad like me.

“Are these seats taken?”

I turned to the voice and found a tall, handsome man with a mischievous smile. He was clean-shaven and his brown hair was neat and short, which meant he stood out among his peers. He was wearing dark, plastic frames, which fit the hipster vibe, but they made him look even cuter, not like a poser. The baggy rust-colored polo and cargo shorts made him look more pretty than a hipster, which instantly warmed me to him after being faced with a sea of plaid and raggy old t-shirts all night.

“No, it’s just me here,” I replied.

“Cool.”

The second voice was to my left. The new guy had a friend. He was shorter, maybe average height, and broader across the chest. Although he was only in his twenties, his hair had begun to recede and he wore a neatly-trimmed goatee but had a warm, kind face. He was dressed similarly to his friend, except that his clothes were rumpled like they’d been balled up on the bedroom floor before he’d put them on.

The open seats were on either side of me, and I offered, “I can move.” But the boys insisted I stay in place, and they sat on either side of me. Things were finally getting interesting. The guys both looked to be in their mid-twenties, about ten years or so younger than me and normally that would have been way too young for me to ever consider, but the first one, Zach, was hot enough to maybe make an exception. His friend, Josh, was cute too, but honestly, Zach had most of my attention. Glancing across the bar, I could see he had my husband’s approval. Dave was probably already picturing me with my legs thrown over Zach’s shoulders. It was an interesting picture!

I gave the guys my Dani story after they introduced themselves, adding that my perspective internet date had apparently stood me up and that I’d been planning on leaving when I finished my beer.

“You can’t leave so early,” Josh said, putting his hand on my arm.

“I can’t?”

“No. It’s way too early to go home. Besides, you can’t let that jerk ruin your night. What was his name?” Zach said. He sat just slightly closer than Josh, close enough that our bare legs touched and our arms brushed when we moved.

“Dave,” I replied, the trace of a smile playing over his lips.

“Dave sounds like an asshole,” Zach said.

“What’s his deal? What did he say he did?” Josh asked.

“He’s a cop,” I lied.

“That’s what he said he does. You can’t trust these dudes on the internet.”

“No, I’ve seen a picture of him in uniform. I know he’s a cop.” I was making it all up, of course, but I got a tingle below when I thought about Dave in a policeman’s uniform handcuffing me and patting me down. I would have to mention that to him later.

“He’s definitely an asshole then. Never met a cop I liked,” Zach said with conviction.

“Oh? Have you had a lot of run-ins with the police?” I asked.

“I wouldn’t say a lot. Not any more than normal,” he said.

“Is it normal to have any?”

“You’ve never been pulled over for a ticket?”

“Sure.”

“But you’ve never gotten one, have you?” Josh asked. He smiled, but he seemed a little annoyed by the idea. “You smiled, maybe leaned forward a little bit and you got off, right?”

I smiled exactly how I would for a cop and leaned toward him. I was offering, so Josh took a nice long look down my V-neck. I hope he enjoyed my lightly tanned and freckled cleavage. He could probably even see the lacy edge of my black bra. “Do you mean like this?”

“Uh, yeah.” Josh seemed to have trouble speaking.

Zach took my arm and turned me toward him. “What about Officer Zach?”

I beamed my smile even brighter for Zach. “What about it, Officer Zach? Should I get off?”

“That may have to be determined later,” he chuckled.

“Oh really?”

“I’ll have to review all of the evidence first.”

“We’ll see about that.”

Zach had a nice, easy nature and his smile was infectious. I liked that he showed his interest but was not pushy about it. I couldn’t help wondering why these young guys were so interested in me, though. Was it because I was the only single female at the bar? Did they think I was easy pickings? Maybe they had some kind of MILF fantasy they wanted to live out. I wasn’t sure how to feel about that, but as long as Dave and I got what we wanted, did it really matter what was going on with either of these guys? If I ended up with Zach tonight it would be to fulfill a fantasy that my husband and I shared.

Josh ordered another round of beers, and I thanked him, knowing I had to slow down. I was beginning to feel that tipsy, goofy feeling that’s the leading edge of getting drunk. I wanted to have fun, but I did not want to lose control—especially after what happened with Pat. If this was the night, I was going to fuck another guy, it was going to be a conscious decision.

The flirty banter continued as we sat and drank together, but I think Josh sensed he was losing the race to his friend because he was trying harder to keep my focus on him. I tried to give him the attention he sought—flirting with both boys was fun—but I also didn't want to give him the wrong idea. If I was going to be fooling around with either of them later, it was going to be Zach. I learned that Josh was a graphic designer and Zach worked for a small production company that produced stealth viral marketing videos for companies. I asked to see some of his work, and he said he really wasn't supposed to take credit for anything, but then relented and showed me a video clip of a teenager doing crazy, dangerous stunts. It was clever and funny, but I didn't see how it tied in with any product or company.

The longer we talked and the more we drank, both boys became more hands-on, but not in a creepy way. It was the way a guy sort of sneaks up on you to see if you're interested. If you're not, you'll usually stop the physical contact there. It's the same way we women will use innocent body contact to express that we're interested. I was certainly doing my share of that, but I had never tried to maintain it with two guys before—or experienced it from two guys at once. Josh kept touching my arm and back. The back touching turned into more of a massage when I didn't stop him. It felt good. I didn't want to stop him. Zach used the rings I wear on my right hand as an excuse to hold and caress it. I explained the meaning behind the Claddagh ring on my ring finger and the one beside it that looked like a leaf had been folded around my finger. He also complimented the pale green polish on my nails, a detail most men don't notice. His hands were big and strong, with rough calluses, which didn't jive with him sitting at a computer all day.

"I play guitar, too," Zach said, with false modesty. He knew exactly what playing the guitar did to most women. It was probably the reason he picked it up in the first place.

"Is he any good?" I asked Josh.

"He thinks he is," Josh replied. He'd crabbed his fingers slowly up my back and under the fall of my dark hair and now they danced along the nape of my neck, giving me the kind of chills that made me tingle in other, more intimate places.

"You'll have to come over and judge for yourself," Zach said.

"Does that usually work for you? Do the girls come over to listen to you play guitar and their panties just drop?" I smiled so he knew I was only playing with him.

“Only if I do it right.” His cocky smile had me thinking it probably worked more often than not. Just the smile was working on me, and I hadn’t even heard him play a note yet. Zach dropped his hand below the bar and rested it on my leg, just above my knee. The denim skirt was short enough that there was plenty of room for it while I was sitting. He gave a squeeze and my legs parted ever so slightly, as if of their own volition. Did Zach take that as an invitation?

“Hey, you guys want to go out onto the deck?” Josh asked meaningfully.

“Sounds like a plan,” Zach replied.

I thought about going out there with them, but I’ve gotten to the point where I just don’t even like to be around cigarette smoke. I would wait for them. Besides, it gave me a chance to confer with Dave. I was having so much fun with the boys that I’d nearly forgotten my husband was sitting across the bar watching us. It was a sign that I’d become very comfortable in my role as Dani. When Dave and I first started playing this game I was looking for him every five seconds—looking for reassurance, checking to make sure he was enjoying himself. Now I was confident that Dave would enjoy whatever I did with other men, as long as it ended with me in a compromising position. I chanced a look over to Dave and he looked to be hanging on our every word, even if he could not hear them. I’m sure he enjoyed how familiar the boys had become.

“I don’t smoke, guys. I’ll just wait here,” I told them.

“We vape, Dani. It’s way smoother,” Josh said.

“Vape?”

“You’ve got to try it,” Josh said. He seemed proud he had something to show off to me.

I didn’t want to seem uptight to these guys, so I said, “Sure, I’ll try it.” Would Dave follow us outside? He might think there was an exit out the back and that I was leaving with the guys. The thought of my husband wondering about that made me smile. He may have even been thinking I was headed for a threesome! Would that enter his mind? That didn’t enter my mind until that very moment. I had no idea if that was something the guys were angling for, but maybe that’s what they did—pick up vulnerable cougars and bring them home for a tag team. It was scary to think about—I’d only just accepted that I was ready to sleep with one man outside my marriage—but the image of being thoroughly used by two men flitted through my mind leaving a shiver of excitement in its wake.

A tight hallway, which also led back to the bathrooms, opened onto a surprisingly large deck at the back of the building. It probably only held about twenty people at full capacity but, considering how small the bar was, I didn't think there would be room for anything at all back there. The deck was clearly not part of the original bar and with its high wooden railings, it more resembled a deck on the back of a house than it did something attached to a business. There were only four others out there when we emerged into the cool night, but I still nearly gagged on the cloud of smoke that lingered from all the smokers who'd been coming out there all night. Josh led us to a corner opposite the others and as I settled back against the railing, Zach slipped his arm around me.

Josh retrieved a long cylinder from the side pocket of his baggy cargo shorts. It did not look like any of the e-cigarettes I'd ever seen before, which were mostly the size of a real cigarette. This was thicker and even a little large to be called a vape pen. "Here, I'll show you how to do it," he offered.

"Are these things even safe? I hear they blow up sometimes," I said.

"That's only e-cigarettes when they're charging. This isn't like that," Zach said.

Josh took a plastic cap from the end and stuck it to his lips. He depressed a button on the cylinder and a bright blue light lit the tip. It looked silly to me. I could not see vaping replacing cigarettes based on the cool factor. A rebel in a leather jacket was not going to whip one of these things out. But it was not noxious like a cigarette. When Josh exhaled, it was simply a pale vapor with a hint of sweetness to it. Now that was an improvement on real cigarettes.

I took the vaporizer from Josh and held it awkwardly until he corrected me. I found it easier to handle with two hands. I bet Josh and Zach enjoyed watching me press the long cylinder to my lips, and I tried to make a show of it. I depressed the button and inhaled deeply.

"Hold it," Josh directed.

It clicked in my brain that these guys were not vaping tobacco. The sweet vapor tasted familiar, but I didn't immediately place it because it was not quite the same as smoking pot, and besides, I hadn't smoked a joint in over a decade. I didn't even know you could smoke pot with these things. I immediately exhaled, but there was none of the coughing or burning sensation that I'd experienced smoking pot in the past.

“Smooth, isn’t it?” Josh said.

“That’s not tobacco, is it?” I felt stupid for not realizing it before. I was so out of touch.

“It is fine hash oil suspended in wax,” Josh said proudly.

Zach took the vape pen from my hands while I stared at Josh. It wasn’t even pot. Hash oil was something I’d only heard about and associated with hippies and Woodstock—all stuff before my time. I thought hash was like pot, but I really didn’t know. It looked like I was going to find out.

“Hash oil? What does that do?” I asked dumbly.

“Only stronger and smoother.” Josh took another hit and offered me the pen again.

I hesitated. I don’t know that I would have knowingly smoked pot, let alone hash oil. But I’ll admit I felt the peer pressure and after a few drinks, my judgment wasn’t exactly stellar. I took the vape pen again, but more tentatively than the first time.

“Only take a small hit this time. If you haven’t been stoned in a while this stuff is going to hit you hard,” Zach warned.

Josh’s brow creased. He wanted me high. Maybe he did think a threesome was going to happen. I had no plans for that, but I also had to admit it was more likely if I was high. I was never a big stoner when I was younger, but I did recall doing some pretty crazy things when I was feeling goofy. They seemed like a good idea at the time—when I was high. But I didn’t just have to consider myself here. What would Dave think if he knew I was getting high with these guys? That wasn’t part of the plan. If he knew how nutty it made me back in the day, he probably would not have been thrilled—or he would have thought it was exactly what I needed. I couldn’t be sure how far he wanted me to go anymore.

My second draw on the vape pen was much smaller and felt even smoother than the first. I handed it back to Josh, who held it out to cool off before putting it back in his pocket. I closed my eyes and took a deep breath, trying to figure out if I was feeling the effects already or if it was all in my head. I didn’t think it could get me high that fast, even given how out of practice I was.

“You guys want to head back in?” Josh asked.

“That’s probably a good idea,” I replied. I felt a bit unsteady on my feet.

On the way back inside, Josh had to stop at the men's room. I could see he did not want to leave me alone with Zach, but he didn't seem to have a choice. He told us he'd meet us at the bar. I continued inside, but as soon as Josh was out of sight Zach caught me by the entrance to the room. I gave him a quizzical look, but he just smiled and pulled me back toward the deck.

"It's a nice night out. I'm so glad the heat finally broke," Zach said.

A cool breeze wafted across the deck and a tingling spread down from my scalp as it caught my hair. I was sure the hash oil was hitting me now. I was suddenly more aware of everything, not just the breeze. The music coming from the bar seemed groovier, Zach's eyes were impossibly blue. And everything was more pleasant, especially Zach's hands lightly massaging my hips as I leaned against the railing and looked out on the alley behind the bar. It wasn't much of a view, but even the narrow, dim, trash-strewn space seemed nice. Living down here made a little more sense. I leaned back, enjoying the closeness of my new young friend.

Zach and I had the deck to ourselves for the moment and with the breeze clearing the last of the cigarette smoke from the others, I finally caught his clean, freshly-scrubbed scent. I thought it might be Irish Spring. It's the same soap my husband uses, and I've always thought it's quite manly. Zach was not manly in quite the same way my Dave was, but he certainly had his appeal—an appeal that was growing by the second. Did I mention that not only had getting high always lowered my inhibitions, but it also made me quite horny? I had some girlfriends who just zoned out and wanted to stare at the wall, but it never affected me that way. It always made me feel playful and wanting to find a playmate. And now not only did I have one, but I had permission from my husband to do anything I wished with him. Zach gave me chills when his hands slid down my bare arms so they covered mine. He nudged my hair aside and his stubbled cheek brushed my jawline.

"I've been waiting to get you alone all night," he said. His soft kisses on my jaw felt wonderful.

"Really? Why?"

"So, I could do this." He nibbled right behind my ear, and I trembled in his arms. God, that has always driven me crazy, and being high just seemed to make that tingling pleasure flow through my entire body.

“You couldn’t do this in the bar?” It was an effort to keep my voice steady. I didn’t want him to know just how I was feeling yet. I didn’t want to seem too easy.

“You don’t mind if people watch, Dani?” Zach lightly bit my earlobe. Swoon!

“It can be fun to be a spectacle, don’t you think?”

I spun in his arms and mashed my lips to his, flicking my tongue into his mouth. I couldn’t take it any longer. If I had let him keep kissing my neck like that, I would have melted into a puddle right there on the deck, though I thought that was going to happen anyway. Zach was a very good kisser. He teased back at my tongue with his and his fingers raked through the hair at the nape of my neck, tugging ever so slightly, keeping me in the kiss. I took it as a sign of control and my soft moan let Zach know I liked it. That moan teased him that maybe I like it a little rough. I’ll admit I was hazy, but I’m pretty sure that kiss lasted all night. His hands explored my body with intent—never pushing under my clothes but mapping my curves and memorizing my reactions to his touch. He gave me a taste of what his touch would be like with no clothes in the way and it had me wanting more.

We were both breathless when that kiss broke. Maybe it didn’t last all night, but long enough for my husband to have come out onto the deck and smoke a cigarette. Dave does not smoke, but I guess he needed an excuse to hang out there, other than being a voyeur. I caught his approving smile over Zach’s shoulder, and I pulled my young lover back into another hot kiss, teasing his lips with the tip of my tongue before they met mine. It was a tease meant for my husband, not Zach. When I pushed a hand between us and fondled Zach’s package through his shorts, that was for both of them. I felt Zach getting as hard as I’m sure Dave already was.

“What do you say we get out of here after this drink?” Zach breathlessly suggested.

My eyes flicked to Dave before I answered. Yes, this was what he wanted. “That’s a great idea.”

Zach held my hand, and it steadied me as we walked back inside the bar. I was further under the influence of the hash oil now and I swayed slightly in my sandals. I felt the music inside play over my skin and seep into my body, leaving me bright and happy. Josh sat at the bar waiting for us, and he clearly was not as happy as me.

“You guys have fun out there?” he asked.

“Yeah. Dani just wanted a little more fresh air,” Zach replied. He seemed not to notice his roommate’s annoyance.

The friends’ competitiveness seemed fun in my playful state, and I wanted to enjoy it. I put my arms around Josh’s neck and a quick turn proved how high I was, as I ended up giggling in his lap. “We missed you out there,” I said, leaning in to kiss his cheek. My tongue may have flickered over his earlobe before I pulled back. It had been so long since I’d been such a shameless tease.

“You’re here now and that’s good,” Josh replied, wrapping his arms around me. He hoped I was still in play.

“Life is good,” I declared and returned to my own barstool.

I slowly sipped my final beer while the boys raced through theirs. I did not need to be any more altered than I already was. Dave had come back into the bar and resumed his place across from us. I felt him watching us and sensed he was just as eager to move things along as the boys were. It was interesting to be surrounded by men who couldn’t wait to get my clothes off.

Zach made a show of draining his beer and asked if I was ready to get going. The good thing about being stoned was that it smoothed out any nerves I might have had about going home with two guys I barely knew. I smiled and nodded but told them I had to run to the restroom first. What I really needed to do was get a hold of my husband before I went through with anything. I texted Dave from the stall.

DANA

they want me to leave with them

DAVE

that’s hot. Do you want to go?

DANA

yes. I’m having a good time

DAVE

going home with TWO guys. You’re getting pretty wild babe

DANA

you think I’m going to be with both of them?

Somehow I just knew his mind would go there.

DAVE

who knows what will happen at their place

His utter lack of jealousy irked me. I guess the woman in me wanted him to be somewhat possessive in that moment. He seemed completely okay with me fucking two guys. Was Dave willing to just pass me around at a gangbang, too? I still didn't know how I felt about having a threesome with Zach and Josh, but now I was tempted to do it just to provoke a reaction from my husband.

DANA

I guess we're going to find out

DAVE

I can't wait to hear all about it! I love you

DANA

I love you too

And just like that, my husband sent me off to have sex with another man. Maybe two. He would love to hear about that, too. I pushed out of the stall and checked my hair and reapplied my makeup in the mirror. I couldn't help rubbing my thumb over the crease left in the space usually occupied by my wedding rings. It was safely at home in my jewelry box. Satisfied with the touch-up to my look, I squared my shoulders, pushed out my boobs, and headed out to see what the night had in store. Both Zach and Josh looked happy to see me return—maybe they thought I'd snuck out the back. And there was Dave, watching from his perch across the bar. If he had any anxiety that he was sending his wife off with two strange men it didn't show. No, my husband looked like a man who was ready to come any second.

I held out my arms and announced, "Let's go, guys."

CHAPTER 6

Coming Home: The Aftermath

The first light of dawn on the horizon is turning blackness into inky, deep blue when I pull into the driveway. Part of me wishes I was still stoned. I'm not sure I want to face this with a clear head. The high has left me sleepy and part of me wishes I could just crawl into bed and go to sleep. I hope none of our neighbors are awake so early on a Sunday morning to see me doing the walk of shame from the car to the front door. If they are watching, they may notice the extra bounce in my step. My bra is in my purse, along with the thong I'd been wearing when I left the house the night before. The house is dark when I close the door behind me, and silent but for the beep warning me the alarm had not been set the night before. The kids were with their grandparents. I'm glad we'd sent them there instead of having Alyssa babysit here. The plan had not been for Dave to come home alone, but he did, and she would have been curious about that. One word to her mother and tongues would be wagging all over the church. I'd sent Dave a text sometime around three telling him not to wait for me at the car, that I would meet him at home.

I make a quick stop in the office to grab my laptop and go upstairs to face the music. I am surprised to find Dave awake, although I know I shouldn't be. How could he really sleep under these circumstances? But it meant that he had been up for hours and hours. I didn't think he would stay up all night, but then I'm sure he expected me long before dawn. He looks at me expectantly. I know he's looking for signs of what I've been doing. They are there, but I don't know if he can see them by the illumination of the bedside lamp. He must see the way my nipples point like beacons through the thin material of my t-shirt. Suddenly, I don't know what to say.

“You must have been having fun. It’s almost morning,” he says. There’s an edge in his voice for sure.

“Sorry, I was exhausted. I couldn’t help falling asleep for a bit. I got out of there as quickly as I could.” It is the truth. I barely took the time to pull myself together and had hoped not to encounter anyone on the short walk from the guys’ place to my car.

“It’s not the whole point. I want you to have fun, too. This isn’t just about me going out and...”

I could not bring myself to finish that thought.

“And did you?” Dave works hard to keep his tone neutral, and it pisses me off. I need to know what he’s feeling. Is he excited that his wife went out and slutted it up all night or is he suffering from buyer’s remorse? I wish I could be sure of what to expect before I answer. But however he feels, I don’t regret anything I did last night. I am not ashamed.

A smile quirks my lips and I answer, “I did. I did a lot.”

Dave doesn’t react and I realize he’s just torturing me. Finally, he smiles and throws back the sheets. I see he is fully aroused, his cock pointing out like an accusing finger. He breaks into a smile to match mine and says, “Christ, Dana, you’re so fucking sexy. Tell me all about it.”

“I can do better than that.”

I place my purse on the dresser, taking out the fake car remote, and sit beside him on the bed. He notices the laptop for the first time and looks confused when I open it on my lap. “I have a little surprise,” I inform my husband. I hope he’s ready for the reality of seeing everything I did last night. The remote easily pulls apart and the end fits into a USB port. A window pops up, displaying two video files.

“What is this, babe?”

“I felt bad that you would be left out, so I thought it would be fun to bring you into the room with us. But only if you really want to see it.”

“Give me that thing!”

Dave takes the laptop from me, carefully avoiding his dick. He clicks open the first file and after a dark blur—me walking away from the camera—the boys’ living room comes into view. The tiny HD camera gives a clear view and the room is well-lit, by an overhead fixture and a stand lamp beside the couch. It’s a small space, with a well-worn L-shaped sectional covering the short front wall and the longer side. Opposite that are steps that lead up to two bedrooms and the bathroom, and that was where I placed my purse and fake set of keys. I had practiced pointing the camera before that night and I hoped I had the right angle down. It was perfect. As my back retreated from the camera, we could see Zach sitting on the long part of the L and part of Josh sitting on the short side. It's very strange watching myself and I don't know if I like it. I sit next to Zach, tucking my legs underneath me, and ask, "Weren't you going to play the guitar for me?"

"Really, he trotted that old chestnut out?" Dave asks with a chuckle. "And you fell for it?"

"You know a girl loves a guy who plays guitar. Besides, I needed some excuse to go back to their place," I answer.

Our attention is returned to the video, and I reach over to stroke Dave's cock.

"If that's what you want," Zach replies. I remember thinking that he didn't want to waste any time before getting my clothes off. But if playing for me was going to get my panties off, he was going to do it. He jumps up and returns with his guitar. Watching myself I recall that I only asked him about the guitar because I didn't want to seem like too much of a slut and just go upstairs with him. I can see the hunger on my face as Zach strums experimentally before breaking into a Dave Matthews Band tune. I can't stay removed while watching myself with the boys on screen. I am pulled right back there with them, just a few hours earlier...

I DIDN'T KNOW if Zach thought playing a song from my "youth" would impress me or if he was into DMB because he's a stoner, but either way, there's truth to the stereotype that a guy with a guitar turns women on. I walked into that rowhome wanting to screw Zach but watching him play guitar and sing only made it stronger. I was ready to rip his clothes off right there and probably would have if Josh weren't with us. What was the game plan here? I remember sitting there feeling very odd. The hash oil had fully kicked in by then, settling into a full body high that had me giggly and flirtier than I could ever remember being. I'd hung on both guys on the short walk back to their place. And sitting there, knowing what I was prepared to do, I could feel nerves trying to push through, but they could not penetrate the fog of my high. It was almost an out-of-body experience where my body was on autopilot, and I was just a spectator.

Zach finished the song and gave me a look that said: well?

“You’re good on those strings,” I complimented.

He wagged his fingers. “These hands are good at lots of things.”

“I’m sure they are,” I agreed.

The mood shifted in a heartbeat. The room was filled with tension, but maybe I was the only one who felt it. It was like we all knew what I was there for, but we were waiting for it to begin. Josh’s presence was heavy on my left. I felt he was the only thing holding me back. I wanted to be alone with Zach but didn’t want to be mean. Zach had to sense that, but he made no move to get his roommate out of there. And it couldn’t be that he was too shy to ask me up to his room. There was nothing shy about Zach. And that brought me back to the boy’s real intentions. Was I on the menu for both of them? I was so high and horny that I began to think that could be run.

I took Zach’s hands and fingered his calluses. “Did it hurt getting these?”

“Only in the beginning, but I’m willing to suffer for my art.”

“Poor baby.” I kissed each of his fingertips, flicking my tongue over them when I started on his left hand.

“You’ve got some talents, too.”

“You think so?” I giggled.

“I might need more of a demonstration.”

My tongue flashed out across the tip of his finger and then traced up and down it. My eyes never left his. Josh was gone from my mind. He might as well have left. Zach pressed two fingers to my lips, and I hungrily sucked them. He gasped, and I would have smiled if my mouth hadn’t been busy. He deftly slipped free of the guitar and dropped it to the floor with a twangy thump. His free hand gripped the back of my neck, drawing me in and we kissed. I turned in a fluid motion, straddling him. I raked my fingers through his short hair, holding him as I aggressively pressed the kiss down toward him. He pulled at my skirt until it was over my ass—a short journey in that position. I thought about that secret camera on the stairs and thought my husband would have a great view of my ass in its little thong. Zach palmed both my cheeks and pulled me into him while grinding up at me. It was like we were trying to climb inside each other.

We broke contact long enough for Zach to whip the t-shirt over my head and then my tongue was right back in his mouth. God, he was a hot kisser, and I could have done that all night—if I didn't need more. I kissed down his jawline and began feasting on his neck. Zach dropped his head back against the couch and gasped. I was probably living up to every cougar stereotype by climbing all over him, but I didn't care. His hands were everywhere, stroking my bare legs, running up my back, and holding my face. He tried to get at my boobs, but it was awkward in that position. When he couldn't wait any longer, he pushed me back and started kissing my chest above the low, lacy line of my black bra. I held onto the back of the couch with both hands and let him have his fun.

Zach pulled the straps from my shoulders and peeled the cups down until my nipples just peeked out. He lashed them with his tongue, and I whimpered. I don't know why, but the sensitivity in my breasts has only improved with age. When he brushed his lips across them, I moaned his name. The teasing was torture. I wanted to be bared to him completely and reached back and unhooked my bra, which was dropped to the couch.

My tits filled his hands and Zach went back and forth, sucking and licking my nipples. I writhed on his lap and moaned his name constantly. Being stoned seemed to take the pleasure coursing through my body to the next level and my pussy was aflame while my body pulsed with need. Zach could have ripped my panties aside and just thrust into me. I was more than ready. But he was enjoying my breasts. It was almost too intense, and I was a little relieved when he stopped and turned me around to lie back on the couch.

I saw Josh and remembered he was there. Dave was not the only voyeur in the room. It was really weird to have him just sit there and watch us, but nothing was going to stop me at that point. Josh looked like he was barely holding back. Why was he? What was the dynamic between these roommates?

Zach hovered over me, and I leaned to up kiss him, but then he was moving again, sliding down my body and pulling my thong off. The skirt is around my waist again and might as well not even be there as it's the only stitch of clothing still on my body. This is more exposed than I've been with any of the other men, and I thank god I'm high so I don't obsess about how

I look. Zach certainly likes what he sees. He takes a long look at my prone body and then dives in, pushing my legs wide apart and sliding the tip of his tongue up my dripping slit. That tongue presses deeper at the top, seeks my clit, and I arch my back off the couch as I cry out.

“Oh God! Zach!” I shout. I didn’t come instantly, but just about, and once again I’m feeling out of my body as the orgasm tosses my stoned brain. Coming while high on hash oil consumes me from head to toe. It’s not just an orgasm, it possesses me and tosses me around like a rag doll. My shattering climax is going to look great on video for my husband.

Zach is relentless. My orgasm doesn’t slow him down for a second and his tongue and lips are busy on my pussy—licking, flicking, sucking, exploring me. A second orgasm comes on the heels of the first and I’m screaming again. God, I am fully out of control. Maybe Zach is the best guy at oral on the planet, or maybe I’m just in the perfect moment. He’s slurping down between my legs and I’m thrashing like I need an exorcism. I’m not generally difficult to get off, but that was insane! I have to slow him down or I just might pass out. I weakly try to push him back, but he’s having none of it. I look to Josh, but he’s not going to help. He looks ready to pounce any second. Am I going to be his next? And then I look over to where the camera sits on the steps. I imagine I am looking straight into my husband’s eyes, and I think, IS this it? Is this what you wanted, Dave? Zach has made me his and he’s going to fuck me silly tonight. I hope you enjoy the show!

I finally push Zach back and plead, “Stop, Zach.” I can barely catch my breath to get the words out. “Just fuck me. Fuck me now.”

After digging in the pocket of his shorts, Zach drops them and his boxers. There’s a condom in his hand and he slips it on with practiced ease. Thank God he’s responsible because I was so far gone, I wasn’t even thinking about it. I had condoms in my purse, but that was out of reach. He puts my right leg over his shoulder, pushes the other to the side, and shoves himself inside me. I stare up at him like he’s the sexiest man I’ve ever seen. His cock is full and thick and fills me completely. It feels like he was designed to fit me perfectly. I’m sure being high and horny was the cause of those feelings, but in the moment, I didn’t feel that. I just felt that I needed Zach to fuck me. I think I begged him with those exact words and thrust myself at him. He has a firm grip on my raised leg, and it lets him easily drive that wonderful cock in and out of me.

This is it, Dave! He's fucking me! Zach is fucking me silly, and I love it! I'm being the little slut you wanted! Your wife is a horny little slut! My head is twisted, and I stare at the camera while I project those thoughts to my husband, knowing he'll soon be watching this. "Fuck me! Oh, fuck me, Zach!" I cried. I want this to be perfect for my husband.

Zach grabs both my legs and leans down, pinning them back against my chest. Good thing I'm flexible. My feet are up by his ears as his weight presses into me. His cock is drilling deep now, and my eyes just about roll back into my head. He's a big, strong young man and he's giving me his all.

"That what you want, Dani? You wanna be fucked hard?" There was fire in Zach's voice. He loved having this MILF submit to him.

"Yeah, fuck me!" I moaned. "Feels sooo good..."

"Come on and come for me again," he demanded.

"God, make me come, Zach!"

"You're gonna fucking come, Dani."

I'm such a slut! Look at me! I'm staring right at the camera when I come again, this time with Zach's big cock filling me. I cried, "I'm coming!"

Zach pulls out and I instantly miss him inside me. This boy has watched too much porn. Women don't want to switch positions every two minutes. I just want him on top of me, pinning me to that couch while he fucks me. But I let him turn me around and I'm on my hands and knees. He's right back inside me and his balls slap my thighs as he rams me fast and hard. My tits are swaying beneath me, and I know this will be great for Dave watching later. Will he like how easily I just let Zach use me?

I'm facing Josh now and there's no ignoring that he's there watching us. His cock is out now. I guess he couldn't take just watching any longer. And it's big. Really big. I can't stop my mind from going there: what would it feel like? I had no inhibitions left and I locked eyes with Josh.

"Come here," I moaned huskily.

Josh might have just sat there and jerked off if I never said anything, but he is off like a shot and his big cock was in my face while he held his shirt up out of the way. I tried to reach for him, but I couldn't keep my balance with the way Zach was slamming me from behind. Josh took the hint and pressed his prick to my lips. I'm all over the place and his sticky precum smeared across my lips and cheek before I opened my mouth, and he pushed the head in. I stretched my lips around his girth and my cheeks hollowed as I sucked him greedily. Tag teaming me must have exited Zach because he gripped my hips and slammed me even harder, which I didn't think was possible.

I was lost in a swirl of sensations and emotions. If I like playing these games with Dave because I liked letting go and feeling slutty, this was the ultimate experience, wasn't it? Being taken by two guys at once was so wrong—and so exciting! I loved that I was reduced to my basest need. But it was scary too because I felt the power shift when Josh joined us. This was not about me so much anymore as these two guys having their way with me. And I felt I couldn't do much but be used. I tried to give Josh a good blowjob, but there was no way to give that any thought when I was consumed with Zach fucking me. I came again and I think I would have just collapsed if the boys had not kept me in place. The whole world went sideways, and I know I screamed into Josh's cock, which was when he fully took over—knotting his fingers in my hair and fucking my mouth. I was in a stoned, horny haze after that, and it all blurred until the guys were finished.

Zach grunted and a few seconds later he pulled out. I know he filled that condom. I slumped to the side and Josh moved with me, kneeling on the couch. My lips were nice and tight around his shaft, but I must have looked a mess, my eyes glazed over, hair everywhere, and drool on my chin. I choked when Josh came a couple of minutes later and much of his cum came running out of my mouth and down my chin. It seemed like he had an impossibly large load. I didn't even care that his last shot caught me across the cheek. I was spent. I needed a break.

"Do you want some water?" Zach asked brightly like I was just any guest, not a woman he'd just double-teamed on the couch.

I nodded mutely and forced myself to sit up and tugged at my skirt, which seemed silly considering it did not cover much. I held my arm over my breasts. Josh had retreated to the other section of the couch and had pulled his pants back in place. He looked a little embarrassed and couldn't meet my eyes. He said, "That was pretty hot, Dani."

"Thanks," I murmured, and then I couldn't help smiling. It was pretty hot, wasn't it? I looked at the camera again and wondered what Dave would think, seeing his wife sitting there a sweaty, dirty used mess. It was more than he bargained for.

"Have you ever, uh, done anything like this before?"

“No, Josh. I’ve been married for the last thirteen years.” I realized my mistake and hoped he didn’t catch that I said I’ve been, not I was.

Zach returned with three bottles of water, looking fresh as the moment I’d met him. You have to love the stamina of youth. He looked like he was ready for round two. I took my bottle—exposing my breasts—and nearly drained it.

“Do you guys have somewhere I can clean up?”

“Sure, the bathroom’s upstairs, let me show you,” Zach said.

I grabbed my shirt and then my purse and the fake remote, switching off the camera. We were done in the living room, but it was not the end of the night...

DAVE GRUNTS when he sees Josh come in my mouth and on my face in the video. The camera had miraculously been placed perfectly to frame all of the action. I had rested my head on Dave’s chest while we watched the video and kept stroking his prick. I don’t know how my husband resisted coming, but he clearly wanted to see the whole video. Now that he’d seen the boys were done with me, he let go and I got my second facial of the night. I close my eyes and feel his thick load blasting all over my face. I only open my eyes when I think he’s done. I’m still pumping his cock and amazingly he isn’t even entirely soft. He lays the laptop aside and I sit up so I can see him. He’s staring at his cum on my face and I deliberately wipe it away and lick it off my fingers. I really do want to be the ultimate slutty wife for him.

“I can’t believe you, Dana.”

My face must fall because he’s quick to follow up.

“That was insane! I had no idea you had that in you.”

“You mean that in a good way, right?”

“God yes, babe. I mean, I knew you were the sexiest woman alive, but if I knew you had all that buried inside, I would have suggested this years ago.”

“Let’s not get crazy here. I wasn’t dying to sleep with other men, honey. I never even thought of anything like this until you brought it up. I was just...open to it.”

“You certainly were open tonight.”

I hit him in the arm. “Shut up!”

Dave glances back at the computer. “I see there’s another video file. Was that it for the night?”

He really is going to think I’m a total slut now, I think, looking down. I know my husband loves it, but that remnant of my conventional morality will always be there in the back of my mind. “No,” I admit.

“Tell me all about it, babe.”

“I’ll watch it later. I want to hear about it.” Before I can start, he adds, “Take off your shirt. Leave the skirt on.”

He wants me just like the boys had me. I pull off the t-shirt and use it to wipe my face clean. I kneel on the bed between Dave’s legs and suck him hard and slow. He’s fully aroused again in about a minute, and I straddle him, taking him deep in my well-used pussy. I’m a little sore, but I’m so horny that I don’t care. It was weird watching myself, but as I relived the threesome I couldn’t help getting turned on. Dave cups my breasts and lightly thumbs my nipples as I slowly ride up and down on him. He must see all the red marks where Zach sucked and pinched me. He was more of an animal in bed the second time. Dave feels so good inside me, and while I loved Zach’s cock while I was stoned and horny and crazed, no man will ever replace my husband in bed.

“I went in the bathroom and cleaned up as best I could. I planned to leave after that so I could tell you how bad I’d been, but Zach grabbed me as soon as I came out of the bathroom and dragged me to his bedroom,” I started.

“I bet you didn’t fight him too much.”

I smile. “Maybe not.” I shift my angle and now his cock is rubbing my clit perfectly as I move. I moan and throw my head back.

“You little slut,” he says playfully.

“I am. I can’t deny it, baby. I wanted him again. He took me back to his room and undressed me again...”

“You sucked his dick, didn’t you?” It’s an accusation, but not angry.

“Yes, I wanted him in my mouth.”

“But he didn’t come, did he? He wanted to fuck you again.”

“Yesss, baby...”

“And you wanted it...”

“Yesss, I needed it. He put me on my back and just took me.”

“Fuck, Dana...” Dave grunts.

“After I came, I pushed him off and I got on top just like this. I wanted to fuck him for a change.”

“You slut...”

“Yes, I am. God, baby, I am!”

Dave clutches my hips and he’s pulling me up and down on him. I close my eyes and I’m in Zach’s bedroom again, clawing at his back and howling as he fucks me relentlessly. I could barely get him to stop after I climaxed, but I did want to be on top. Once he got my drift, he was happy to let me hop on it. Zach sat back and let me do my worst and I gave him the fuck of his young life. I will never forget the way he looked up at me as I moved on top of him. I open my eyes and it’s close to the way my husband looks at me now, but I know Dave appreciates me more because he knows all of me—not just the slut in bed, but the wife, the mother, the caretaker—and he loves me for all of it. I am his life, and he is mine. And that’s why we can go on our hot dates, because no young stud with a big dick can come between what we have.

I hit my last orgasm of the night pounding my fists on the headboard. It’s staggering, but my body also screams, Enough! Dave comes right after me and I fall into his warm, safe arms. He’s stroking my hair, and as the euphoria of my orgasm recedes exhaustion comes in. I have never been so bone tired.

“I love you, Dana. You are the most incredible woman,” Dave says. He’s trying to tell me that this doesn’t change anything for him, but he doesn’t have to. I already know.

“I love you, too.”

“How do we top this?”

I laugh softly. “I don’t think I’m capable. Maybe this was the end.”

Dave tenses, just ever so slightly. “You’re done? I mean, if you are...”

I don’t answer right away. It’s not because I really have to think about it, but because I want to torture him. “Don’t worry, you perv. Your wife’s slutting around days aren’t over yet.”

“As long as you’re into it.”

“Tonight was nuts, but it was awesome and fun. I don’t know if I see another threesome in my future, but as long as we’re both having fun there’s no reason to stop.”

“You’re so hot,” he enthuses.

“You don’t have to butter me up, Dave. I want to play, too.”

For a moment I consider another scenario—what if Dave wanted to stop but I wasn’t ready to? I could not say for sure that I was ready to end our hot dates. Being Dani made me feel alive in a way that I’d grown to love. I looked forward to going out and being her. That feeling of anticipation when I know another man wants me and that rush of a first kiss was something I craved. It’s entirely alien to what I get from my husband. I don’t know that I could let it go so easily. But Dave wants me to be that woman, so I don’t need to worry about giving it up.

“We’ll have to find someplace and pick a night for another hot date,” Dave says eagerly.

No, there’s no way he’s giving it up and I do have to worry he may be addicted. But as long as we’re both so into it, that’s not a problem. I look forward to our next adventure as much as Dave does. There is no denying it, I am now a shared wife.

Instead of worrying, I tease him one last time before going to sleep.

Living As A Shared Wife

One

I sat at the bar in the pricy restaurant and sipped at my martini. One shiny black pump was hooked on the chrome ring around the bottom of my stool, while the other bounced nervously. I had been sitting at the bar for over twenty minutes and had been approached twice but rebuffed both men—even though the second one was pretty cute. For once, I was not sitting at the bar waiting to be picked up. No, this time I was waiting for a date, and he was late. I was only willing to give him another ten minutes—maybe a little longer, for my husband’s sake—before I called it a night and got out of there. I knew Dave would be very disappointed if I came home early and told him there was no date.

It was strange to look over my shoulder and not see my husband lurking on the other side of the bar. We had always worked my hot dates that way. I would sit at some unfamiliar bar—the farther away from home the better—and wait for a handsome man to try and pick me up. If I thought he was interesting, or if he was hot enough for that not to matter, I would let him get past the first drink and flirt shamelessly with him. The men never knew I was married, and that my husband was right there, getting off watching the whole thing. Sometimes, the guy really had me going and I would just go out to the parking lot and fool around with him. Dave would try and sneak close enough to watch. I got such a dirty thrill knowing my husband was right there, watching. It wasn’t the same thing as coming home and telling him about it later—or giving him the video, I’d secretly recorded. If it was to be a more civilized encounter, I would go home with my new friend—that had only happened three times—and Dave would head home, waiting for his wife to return from her one-night stand to share all the dirty details.

Tonight, was different. Dave was at home with the kids, and I was on my own. A thrill from playing without a safety net tickled my tummy. Dave being there was like a safety blanket. I'd had to use that safety blanket once when we'd let things get out of hand. We were inexperienced and hadn't considered all the variables. At the time, I had different limits, and we hadn't really considered what would happen when some guy I'd been teasing all night didn't want to stop where I did. We'd gotten smarter since then, and the limits had changed. I didn't know if I would say we're an experienced "hotwife" couple—we learned from the internet that "hotwife" was the accepted term for what we did—but we had been playing in this world for close to a year now and we had definitely learned from our experiences. But tonight, there was no net. Tonight, we were trying something new.

Dave was the one who first suggested that maybe I try to go out on a date, instead of going to a bar and waiting to be picked up by some horny stranger. The subject arose because of a mistake—I crossed my own line and fucked another man for the first time. It had been all heavy petting and blow jobs before that night, but Zach and his friend were cute and having a cute, younger guy want me pushed all the right buttons. I went home with the roommates. At some point that night Zach got a hold of my phone and put his number in it, and I made the mistake of telling my husband. Dave thought Dani should text Zach and tell him what a great time she had. Rule #1 of our hot dates was to use a fake name and make up a persona for the evening. I was not Dana—long married mother of two crazy rug rats from the suburbs—on hot date night. When I met Zach, I was Dani, just divorced and easing back into having a life of my own.

I didn't know how I felt about communicating with Zach. It was outside of what we'd done, and I didn't know if it was a good idea. I had always thought of our hot dates as one-night stands. We were looking to play around a little—and then move on. I had only really started doing it because it was such a strong fantasy for my husband, not because I felt any need for other men. I certainly didn't want a relationship with another man. Just managing Dave drives me nuts sometimes! But Dave thought it would be fun to keep playing around with Zach. He knew the younger guy really got me going. I couldn't deny that after he watched the video of Zach fucking me silly that night. My husband encouraged me to just try texting with Zach to see where it went and I agreed, although I still had no intention of ever seeing him again. The texts were flirty, and I even sent him a couple of pictures—never with my face. Zach kept asking to see me in the flesh again, and I kept putting him off. But then Dave started saying I should see him, and the pressure from both guys was too much. I asked Dave exactly what he wanted.

“Do you really want me dating some other guy?” I was exasperated.

“I don’t want you to have a real relationship or fall in love, but I think it would be hot if you met up with Zach again,” Dave said.

“But that would be like a real date, wouldn’t it? If we planned to meet and then did something like dinner?”

“Maybe if it was more like a booty call,” he suggested.

“You want me to be a booty call to some younger guy? Nice.” I don’t know why I was angry. Being Zach’s booty call was actually pretty hot. Texting with him over several weeks had me thinking about that night with him and how good it would feel to fuck him again. I was just afraid of what it might mean. And here was my husband telling me to go ahead and do it.

“Don’t even pretend it doesn’t turn you on as much as it does me.”

I smiled. “Okay, it turns me on a little. But I don’t want it to be anything more. I don’t want to have a boyfriend.”

“I don’t want that either.”

I think part of my problem was that I didn’t really know what my husband wanted. He’d tried to explain his wife sharing fantasy to me, but I still don’t think I really understand it. I’ve accepted it, and I enjoy playing along, but I don’t know if I’ll ever fully understand what drives him to want his wife to fuck other men. I get the voyeuristic thrill, I understand it’s hot to know other men want his wife, but I just don’t understand the deep satisfaction Dave gets from having this fantasy fulfilled. How can he want his wife, the mother of his children, to fuck other men? Even if I’ve made my peace with it, I can’t say I really get it. But that didn’t stop me from indulging him—and enjoying it.

So, one night, after the kids were in bed, I texted Zach and asked what he was doing. Dave stayed home with the kids, and I drove across the city in my practical family car to meet my lover. My husband was so turned on while I was getting ready that he couldn’t keep his hands off of me. And when I came home a few hours later, I didn’t make it past the foyer. Dave fucked me right there on the steps while I told him about my night with Zach. I've seen Zach three or four times since then, always late at night, after the kids are tucked in. And when I come home, I dutifully give my husband the little hidden camera device we use to record my encounters. We usually watch the videos together, and we get so turned on we end up fucking, but I know Dave watches the videos when I'm not around. I think he watches them a lot. I can't lie, I do find that a little odd.

My booty calls with Zach led to Dave suggesting that maybe I try to go on proper dates. He stressed that he didn't want me to have a boyfriend any more than I wanted it, but he thought it might be a safer way for me to meet men because I'd be getting to know them a little bit at least before I met up with them. But I also know that part of it was that he wanted me to go on hot dates more often than our schedule allows. Arranging overnight babysitting for a night on the town isn't always so easy. The grandparents are accommodating, but we don't want to abuse them. That means we don't even get out to play once a month. If I went out and Dave stayed home with the kids, we could do it more often. I was not thrilled at first.

"Dave, I like that we do this together. I'm not sure I want to go out and meet men without you there," I argued.

"You have fun meeting up with Zach."

"That's different. I go over to his place late at night for sex and then I come home. I already know Zach, there's not a getting to know you phase. I don't know, I just think it would be weird to go on real dates with men."

"You've done a lot of stuff you never thought you would—or could, and you've loved all of it. Why don't you give it a chance? If you hate it, you never have to do it again. But I think it would be hot for you to flirt and text with a guy for a little while before you meet him. I think the anticipation would be sexy."

I could see Dave really wanted me to try it, but I wasn't so sure I was up for it. I've always been a people pleaser, and there was that part of me that didn't want to let him down, no matter what my reservations were. Would going on one date really kill me? "I guess we could try it. But how are we going to do it? I'm not putting an ad on Craigslist. I don't want to get decapitated."

"There are dating websites for this sort of thing. Have you heard of AshleyMadison.com?" Dave's answer was a little too quick. He'd obviously been thinking about this and done some planning

“Okay. Show me.”

And that was how I ended up sitting at a bar waiting to meet a man I’d been chatting with online. His name was Terrance—Terry for short—and he was a thirty-five-year-old divorced marketing executive, or so he said. I’m skeptical of anything men tell me online.

Dave and I had created my AshleyMadison.com profile, and it was a mix of truth and fantasy. Yes, I am a married thirty-six-year-old mother of two and I do live in a nice house in the suburbs. I am 5’3”, with a curvy, 110-pound figure, 34C boobs and long, highlighted brown hair. And I do love to fuck men outside of my marriage with no strings attached. But the rest is a lie. My name is not Diana, and I am not trying to meet men behind my husband’s back. I do not live in the suburb listed in my profile. I have some lingerie photos in my profile that Dave had great fun taking, but nothing with my face, so Terry doesn’t really know what I look like—even though I have seen pictures of him. I told him what I would be wearing—a tight black dress with a red color panel in the front—and that my hair would be down. There weren’t any other women in the restaurant bar resembling me, so he should be able to pick me out easily.

I checked the time on my phone again and then shot my husband a text.

DANA

No show so far. He’s got a couple more minutes and I’m out of here

Dave’s response was a frowny face.

As I was putting the phone back on the bar, there was a light tap on my shoulder.

“Diana?”

I turned and tried to mask my disappointment. Plastering on a smile, I said, “Yes. Terry?”

“I thought it was you, but I wasn’t sure.”

I turned on the stool and hopped to my feet. In my stiletto heels he was barely taller than me. Online he was six feet tall. He was also about ten years older and thirty pounds heavier than the photos in his online profile. I knew within seconds that this date was not going to end the way he—or my husband—wanted. Terry asked if I wanted to have a drink at the bar before dinner, but I’d already had two, and really, there was no point in dragging this out.

Dinner seemed to pass excruciatingly slowly. I tried to streamline it as best I could, skipping appetizers, but it dragged on as if Terry had bribed the waitress to serve us slowly. I listened to him drone on about work and his boat, about how his marriage ended despite his trying his hardest to keep it alive. After that, he buried himself in his work, and that's when he decided he just didn't have time to date and looked for alternatives. He asked what brought me to Ashley Madison.

"You know, the typical," I lied. We'd already discussed this in our online messages, but I guess he wanted to hear it again. "We've been together a long time and after all those years I guess we got complacent. My husband is always busy with work, and I got tired of being home alone."

"I'd never leave a woman like you alone." Terry's gaze flicked down to my breasts as he spoke, and then back to my eyes. I pretended not to notice. My dress was not low cut—I didn't want to be too obvious—but it clung to my curves. I have to admit, I did look pretty hot in it.

"I guess he's just started to take me for granted. I try to get his attention, and he still doesn't notice."

I was borrowing liberally from things girlfriends had told me about how their marriages had turned stale. Dave and I had never gone through a phase like that—thank God—we had always been hot for each other. But we were on fire since we'd started these hot dates. It was like we were teenagers again. Sometimes I wished I could be honest with my friends about what was going on in my personal life. I might have even suggested taking a lover to a friend or two, but I didn't have any girlfriends who were close enough to confess that my husband liked me to fuck other men. I don't even know how I would bring something like that up in a conversation. Over martinis at happy hour?

"Just the other night, after the kids were in bed, I came into the bedroom and closed the door. I never do that with two little ones. I took my time undressing and sort of lingered in front of him. I even made sure I was wearing sexy underwear. But he never looked up from his phone." I looked across the table at Terry and I could see he was trying to picture me in my underwear. He had some idea from the pictures in my profile, but I'd like to think seeing the real thing would have blown his mind. The lacy black balconette bra I wore under that dress really did make my tits look phenomenal, and the tiny thong was all I could wear without showing a pantyline. I know this was probably torturing him a little bit, but he deserved it after leading me on. “I even sat on the bed next to him and got flirty, but he still didn’t pay attention. I guess that’s just what happens after fifteen years of marriage.”

“He must be blind, Diana,” Terry breathed. Only one of his hands was on the table, and I shuddered to think what he was doing with the other.

“Thanks.” I smiled. “I’ll be honest. If he’d taken notice and given me what I needed I might not have gone through with this.”

Terry chuckled. “I guess his ignorance is my gain.”

You wish, I thought.

The small talk continued through the main course and Terry looked disappointed when I asked for a Diet Coke instead of more wine. He probably thought I’d be more pliable if I was drunk. He was probably right, and that’s why I stayed sober. The waitress asked if we wanted dessert and the words were hardly out of her mouth when I blurted out, “No.”

Our goodnight was awkward. I could tell Terry wanted to know if I would come back to his place for a nightcap. I will not lie—my online flirting with him implied I’d be willing to go and have a one-night stand with him, but that was before I met him. That was when I thought he was someone else. Before he could say anything, I told Terry that I really should be getting home. He looked crestfallen. I kissed his cheek, lied and said I’d be in touch, and turned on my stiletto heel and got out of there. I walked quickly and forced myself to keep my eyes forward, afraid that Terry might follow me to my car.

Once I was in the Prius, with the doors locked, I was hit with disappointment. The weeks of flirting online and texting with Terry had been a lot of fun, and while I was nervous to meet him, I was also excited about what the evening might hold. I felt kind of like a loser that I had to go home and tell Dave nothing happened. It wasn’t like I always met someone when we went out for our hot dates, but this seemed like more of a sure thing. I could go to a bar and drop my line in the water, but I didn’t fancy doing that without my husband there. I was all dressed up with no place to go. A smile quirked the corners of my mouth when I realized that was not quite true. I pulled out my phone, but I was not texting Dave to tell him the evening was a bust.

DANA

Are you around? Looking for some fun

I'd texted Zach. My phone chimed in less than a minute.

ZACH

Funny, I was just thinking about you.

DANA

Happy thoughts?

ZACH

Horny thoughts. Get over here, babe.

DANA

On my way!

"WOW, you look amazing, Dani. To what do I owe the honor?" Zach said when I walked through his door.

"Honestly, I had a date. It was a bad date," I confessed. I was pleased someone got to appreciate my efforts.

"Why don't we ever have dates? I'd love to see you all dressed up like this."

"You're seeing me now, aren't you?" I leaned up and kissed his cheek. He is over six feet. "And because that's not what we do. We're just a casual thing. Right?"

"Yeah, but we don't have to be."

I sighed and pressed myself against him. I did not want Zach to start pushing for us to be anything more than we were, because I didn't want to have to stop seeing him. I have a lot of fun with my boytoy. He is close to ten years younger than me and lives with a roommate in a rowhome in a gentrifying neighborhood downtown. One of the things I like about my younger hipster lover is that he's so far outside of my everyday experience. But even if I really were single—like he thinks—I could never be with a guy like him. We're just at completely different points in our lives. I tilted up his black, thick-framed glasses and mashed my lips to his, playfully flicking my tongue at his. There was that now-familiar shiver of excitement I always felt when kissing a man, I shouldn't be—a man who was not my husband. It didn't matter that Dave not only gave me permission, but actively encouraged me. A little part of me would always feel like being with someone else was wrong, and that feeling of mischief was part of the thrill for me. I like playing the bad girl.

“This isn’t enough for you, baby?” She cooed. “I’m just looking to have fun.”

“Me too.” His hand found my butt and gave it a hearty squeeze. His lips brushed my neck and I swooned. His teeth pulled ever-so-slightly on my dangling earring and my hunger for him grew.

“Then take me upstairs.”

It wasn’t like we didn’t fuck in the living room. The first time Zach fucked me was right there. But there was always the chance that his roommate, Josh, could come home, and things were still a little awkward with him. Zach was out with Josh that first night when we met, and I went home with both of them. I wasn’t looking for it, but that night we ended up in a threesome. I only blew Josh that night. Does it make me less of a slut because I only screwed one of them? But I was crazed with lust and stoned and drunk at the time. If I was thinking clearly, I wouldn’t have turned my first night fucking another man into a threesome, and I was not looking for a repeat, while Josh clearly was, so things were a little awkward around him.

We walked into his bedroom, and I flicked on the light mounted to the ceiling fan over the bed before closing the door. Zach had the larger bedroom of the two, at the front of the house, and an orange glow from streetlights dimly lit the room, but that wouldn’t be enough light for my little secret camera. I wonder if Zach thought I was freaky because I always wanted the room well-lit. The vintage dresser along the wall to the side of the bed didn’t leave much room to walk, but it was a perfect vantage point for my husband. I dropped my clutch purse and decoy keys on the dresser, careful to position the keys correctly. I’d become something of a pro with making sure the hidden pinhole camera in the key fob was pointed properly. It only took a quick press of the Unlock button to get the high-definition digital camera going.

“Some help, please,” I said, turning my back to Zach so he could get my zipper. He pulled my hair aside, moving it over my right shoulder and tugged down the exposed zipper.

“I like the highlights, Dani.”

“I needed a change.” Earlier in the week I’d added subtle, cherry highlights to my long chestnut hair. It was nice of Zach to notice. It had taken my husband a couple of days.

Zach kissed the back of my neck while he drew the zipper down, because he knows how crazy that makes me. He’s been very good at learning what I like. The zipper followed the curve of my back to just above my butt and his calloused fingertips tickled my newly exposed flesh. I pulled the dress from my shoulders, but it was too tight to just drop off of my body, so Zach peeled it down, leaving me in lingerie and heels. His arms went around me, and his cupped hands almost pushed my breasts out of the balconette bra that struggled to contain them. I gasped when his thumbs brushed my nipples, which poked just over the lacy edge of the cups. He was pressed behind me, but I reached between us, seeking his cock, while he lightly pinched my nipples. I sighed his name and grabbed him, pleased he was already hard for me.

“Mmm, you are pleased to see me,” I whispered.

“Always. I love it when you come over.”

One of his hands dipped into the front of my panties. Fingers glided over my warm, smooth mound. I used to keep a little landing strip down there, only shaving on special occasions, but now that I was out playing, I kept it nice and smooth. Did Dave wonder why I never kept my pussy that way just for him, but now I did for my hot dates? How did that make him feel? I had to wonder since my husband was not free with his feelings.

My lips were puffed with arousal, and I was damp between them when Zach’s finger nudged past. Warmth flooded me as he toyed with my slit, but I moaned and went weak in the knees when he teased my clit. It was time to move this onto the bed. For one thing, Dave would only be able to hear what we were doing, not see it—we were out of camera range. I always tried to get most of my playing on camera for him, but it wasn’t always easy. Zach teasing my clit was wonderful and hard to break away from, but I pulled forward and then crawled onto the bed, leaving my heels on. Guys love that. I’ll admit it, I think it’s pretty hot too.

Zach followed, shedding his clothes. He placed his glasses on the dresser, right next to my hidden camera. His cock pointed ahead of him when he reached me. It was beautiful, long and thick—bigger than my husband’s, but it’s not a competition. I reached for it but was only able to stroke it for a moment before he pushed me onto my back and pulled me, so my legs hung over the side of the bed. Zach flung my thong away like it offended him. All his fingers knotted in my hair, pulling it just enough to thrill me, when he leaned down and kissed me hard and full. My heart pounded and I ached for him. My long, red-painted nails dragged down his sparsely haired chest and I gripped him again, milking a droplet of precum.

He grunted into our kiss and slowly moved down onto his knees, pulling my bra straps from my shoulders. My tits spilled from the bra, so he didn't even have to remove it to ravish them. I threw my head back as he enjoyed me. He nibbled and sucked and licked and my nipples were throbbing. I thought I was going to overload from all the pleasure he gave me. I raked my nails through his short, neat brown hair, unsure if I wanted to mash him into me or yank him away because it was too much. But then Zach slipped lower of his own accord and pulled my legs over his shoulders.

I hooked my heels onto the lip at the top of the dresser behind him. The camera was conveniently between them. I estimated Dave would be able to see from just below my boobs and up. I stared right into the camera, imagining I was staring into my husband's eyes, when Zach began licking me. My tits heaved when I arched my back and I cried Zach's name, but I kept my eyes right on Dave.

"God Zach, that's so fucking good," I whimpered. "Lick my pussy, baby." Dave would like that.

I was soaked and wondered if the tiny mic in the camera would pick that up. I kept moaning encouragement to my lover and felt my climax rising like a tidal wave in my body. You like that, Dave? You like watching another man make me come? He's so fucking good at it! He's going to fuck me next and I'm going to love every second of it! The filthy thoughts came fast and furious while I thought about my husband sitting there, watching this video—watching me be every bit the slut he'd turned me into. I'd gone willingly, of course, but I was the slut that Dave had created. Soon I'm screaming as I come—I've become more and more vocal as we've explored this lifestyle—and squeezed my thighs around Zach's head. I know he's going to make me come more than once before he stops—he always does. I hope my husband enjoys the show just as much as I do putting it on.

CHAPTER

Two

L*ethal Weapon* was on the big television in our family room, but I just couldn't get into it. I've loved that movie since I saw it as a teenager, but my mind is on other things and even Mel Gibson chasing a car like a dog can't entertain me. The last text Dana sent me was hours ago and it said that her date hadn't shown up yet. He must have finally arrived, and they must have been having a good time, because it was past midnight, and my wife wasn't home yet.

The strange brew of anticipation, arousal and jealousy left me uneasy as it always did. If I really tried to picture what Dana might be doing at that moment I was hard as steel in seconds. And it was difficult to not think about it, knowing my wife was on a date with another man. Dana was probably at this guy Terry's house at that moment, on her back while he rode her tight little body. Damn, I love my wife's body. I thought she was hot the moment I saw her, so long ago in that college class, and she's only gotten hotter over the years. She always had great tits, and they've stayed firm, but I love the way her ass has filled out as she's matured. Yeah, should have been thinking about something else. I was hard.

I really wished Dana had sent me an update or two. He's hot! We're going back to his place. I don't think that's too much to ask, and I would suggest it, but she has to do this her way. The buzz of anticipation was stronger sitting home and waiting for my wife than it had been when we went out together. It was such a different feeling, having to wait instead of being able to watch—I was much more nervous waiting than I had been sitting in a bar with Dana while she flirted. I loved the videos Dana had started making for me, but there was definitely a stronger thrill watching her fool around in the flesh. I still hadn't been there to see her fuck. We hadn't worked out a way to make that happen. But I'm not complaining. Her videos are amazing.

The temptation was too great. I couldn't just sit there and wait and do nothing. I reached for the iPad and brought up the folder with Dana's videos in it. I watched her videos a lot when she wasn't around. We usually watched them together—fucking wildly—when she came back from a hot date, but she showed little interest in watching them again after that. I can't get enough. I'm probably obsessed.

I chose a video from the last time we'd gone out together. It was about three months ago, which was too long for me to wait to get a fix. That's one of the reasons I suggested Dana start going on dates while I stayed home with the kids. I wanted her to play more often. She took a lot of convincing, but she agreed to try it, like she always does. I love that Dana will try anything. The video was recorded in a hotel room at a casino a little over an hour from our home.

The casino was the site of our first hot date. That night my wife met a man named Charles and ended up blowing him in the men's room while I listened from the next stall. Jesus, that was hot! I watched them flirt at the bar and then he made his move on her. I couldn't tell everything he was doing, but his hands were busy under the table, and Dana liked it enough to get up and go with him. The blood in my veins was on fire as I listened. I could tell exactly what my sweet wife, the mother of my children, was doing in that men's room. My cock was so hard I was almost afraid to touch it, and when I did, I came in about two seconds. Dana had drawn a line back then—she said she would not fuck other guys, only fool around with them, so that's as far as it went. But it was a line I knew she'd cross one day. I knew she would not be able to resist the temptation forever. Dana is a highly sexual woman. When she gets started, she can't just be stopped.

Our second visit to the casino was much more successful. Dana's confidence in her role playing showed and it did not take long before she was getting hit on at a poker table. The guy was tall and built—that seems to be her preference—in his mid-40s and casually dressed in a nice shirt and jeans. His name was Jeff, I found out later. I don't know what story Dana gave him, but she likes to make up little stories for the men she meets and pretend she's someone else. I'm focused in on who she really is—my wife. I was far enough away to watch them from a perch at a slot machine, but not close enough to hear them, so I could only tell they hit it off from their body language. They moved to the bar, and I went with them, watched as he began touching her, establishing that he wanted her. I was disappointed that he didn't kiss her at the bar. I love seeing that stuff. But then I watched them get up and followed as far as the elevators. After that, I had to go to our room and wait.

The video started on my iPad, and I made the flicking motion to send it to the television. I wanted to watch my wife in full HD on the 62-inch screen. The kids had long been in bed, and I didn't expect them to walk in. The scene picked up a few minutes after they'd made it to Jeff's room. She'd already gone into the bathroom and texted me the room number, in case something went wrong. The room was identical to ours, and the little round table in the corner made for a perfect place to set up the hidden camera. Buying that thing was one of Dana's most brilliant ideas ever. I always wondered how exactly I was going to be able to watch my wife actually fuck another man, without exposing myself, and this solved the problem. I would rather have been there myself, but I wasn't comfortable being there in the room while another man took my wife. I was afraid of being judged. It would have been ideal to be in the room, but I just couldn't make myself do it. Besides, finding men to fuck Dana was not hard—she's hot—but I can't imagine it would be easy finding men willing to do it while her husband watched.

In the video, Dana walked away from the camera, and I saw the whole king-sized bed at an angle. She and Jeff were just off-camera. I heard them murmuring to each other and then it sounded like they were kissing. These moments in the videos are incredibly frustrating to me. Yes, I want to see it all! I know Dana does her best to keep everything in front of the camera, but it's not all up to her. They finally moved into view, still kissing, headed for the bed. The silk blouse she'd been wearing was already gone, leaving my wife in a sexy black bra. I love seeing her in lingerie. She pulled at Jeff's shirt. They fell onto the bed, and it looked like they were wrestling each other as they pulled at their clothes in between groping each other and kissing. I was already hard.

Their clothes were finally dispensed with, except that Dana's short black skirt ended up pushed around her waist. Jeff was on his back and Dana moved down the bed. The angle wasn't great to watch her blow him, but her sweet, round ass was pointed right at me. Beyond it, I see the back of her head rising and falling. Jeff sits back with a grin on his face and his hands clasped behind his head. Dana gives incredible head. I know just how pleased Jeff is. He wasn't pushy. He just let her do what she wanted. She didn't just pleasure him, though. A hand crept back, and she started rubbing her pussy. I can see she's already wet as she rubs her clit. What a perfect view!

"Feels so good, Diana," he moaned. Diana is what she's been calling herself lately on hot dates.

Dana finished and moved up and Jeff played with her hanging tits while they made out. It drives me crazy to see how into it my wife is when she's kissing another man. She totally gives herself to the moment and I can tell that part is not for me, not really. Dana may say she had no desire to be with another man and that she only got into this for me, but I can't fully believe it. She just slips into the role too easily. From the first time she kissed another man, even going all the way back to when I watched her have a threesome with our friends years ago—before any of this started—she went right for it. Jeff pushed a hand between her legs and took over fingering her. His fingers pumped in and out of her and she started riding them. I heard her moaning. I know my wife, and I know she was ready for more.

My sweatpants were pushed down, and I'd started touching myself without even thinking about it. I was totally sucked into the video. Dana asked if he had a condom and he said no. She jumped off the bed and was smiling as she walked toward the camera. She even blew me a kiss. Her purse was right beside the camera, and she retrieved a condom from it and then slipped it onto him. Jeff tried to wrestle with her a bit, but Dana wanted to be on top, and she got her way. She slipped down onto his cock like a pro.

A lightning bolt shot through me, rocking me to the core. It was like that every time I watched my wife fuck another man. It didn't seem to matter whether Dana was seemingly seduced into it, or she took charge, like she did in this video. There's just something visceral, gut-churning about watching your wife fuck someone else. It is supposed to be the ultimate act of betrayal. That's ingrained in us on an evolutionary level, which is probably why no matter how much watching it—or even thinking about it turns me on—it always causes that gut-wrenching reaction. My body is screaming, This is wrong! But my twisted, mis-wired brain craves it.

Dana's moans filled the room. Those sounds were so familiar, her pleading for more, urging her lover on, but they were mingled with the moans of another man. It was incredible to see my wife—the sexiest woman on the planet—as my own personal porn star. I was well on my way to getting myself off when I heard the front door open and close. I quickly closed the video and set the iPad aside. I still feel self-conscious about Dana catching me like that.

“I thought I heard you in here,” Dana said. It was my wife, in the flesh. Just one look at her and I could tell she'd just been in bed with someone else, getting fucked. Both her hair and make-up were in disarray. It made my still-hard cock throb. And I could smell the sex on her. Sometimes she showers before she comes home, sometimes not. I like it when she showers at their place, so I can grab her and fuck her immediately. I was so horny I considered grabbing her anyway, but we never had sex until she was cleaned up. That's just what we did.

“Just waiting up to hear how your date went.”

Dana bent down and kissed my cheek, then pressed the camera into my hand. “My night took an unexpected turn. See for yourself. I'm going to grab a shower.”

I stared at her ass as she left the room. It looked great in that dress. I remembered the first time she wore it, to a Christmas party I threw for my employees. I own a mid-sized construction firm. Even before we started down this road, Dana knew how much I loved to show her off and she never disappointed when we went out. A lot of other men would have been pissed to see the burly construction guys who work for him lusting after their wives, but I loved it. That night I was so charged up we didn't even make it home. We made love in the front seat of my quad-cab Ram.

I went to the family computer in the corner of the room and slipped the camera into the USB port. A folder popped up, listing a single video file named for the time and date it was recorded. When I double clicked, I was surprised to see Zach's bedroom. I'd seen it often enough now to recognize it right off. I was confused. How did Dana end up there? I guess something really did go wrong with her date, but she never gave me the heads up that she'd made other plans. I was disappointed that she hadn't sent me a message first, but what was I expecting? Did I want her to ask permission? I think we may have moved past that. The few times she's gone over to see him, she's never actually asked if I was okay with it—Dana just asked if I minded watching the kids while she went out. She just seemed to assume I wanted her to fuck Zach any chance she got. Was she wrong? I don't know. There was a new jab of jealousy, too. I felt like I'd been left out, somehow.

None of that changed how I felt when I watched the video. Dana could not have been more than a couple of feet from the camera, and she was sitting up, staring at me and moaning as her young lover went down on her. Her tits looked perfect as her chest heaved. Watching my wife come like that, it really felt like I was there. I had to force myself not to rub my cock. I didn't want to jerk off when I had the real thing right upstairs.

The following footage was disappointing, but I've long since accepted the limitations of relying on the video. Zach stood, blocking my view completely. I gather he must have turned Dana and bent her over the bed, because he sure moved like he was doing her from behind, and I could hear her screaming like she was receiving a thorough fucking. My wife was never quiet in bed, but it doesn't escape me that she really seems to lose control when she's with these other lovers, especially Zach, in a way she generally doesn't with me. Oddly, that turns me on even more.

It sounded like Dana came again, and then they switched to the more traditional position, her legs wrapped around him while he rhythmically slid in and out of her. It was hot seeing her spiked heels locked together like that. They kissed some, but mostly stared at each other, and it gave me the chills. Their coupling looked way more like love making than fucking. Zach had acquired an intimacy with my wife that I hadn't seen her share with another lover. I shut the video off, but there was no time to analyze my feelings. I couldn't wait a second longer to have my wife.

I heard the water shut off in the master bath as I came into the bedroom. I ripped off my clothes in a frenzy and charged into the bathroom. Dana smiled at me, and I grabbed her roughly. The kiss was savage, and I think she resisted at first out of shock. I growled as I touched her body. Her soft tits were seized by my rough hands, her ass kneaded. She was breathless when I spun and bent her over the sink. I was going to take her just the way Zach had—the first time. She was wet and open—I slid right in.

"Oh fuck, Dave," Dana gasped. She shook her wet hair out of her eyes and stared back at me in the fog-rimmed mirror.

I just grunted as I thrust deep inside her. My thoughts were a jumble. I planted a hand on the back of her head and forced it down. I didn't want her looking at me. I wanted to picture the look on her face when Zach was eating her cunt.

“Yeah...fuck your slut wife. You can’t wait to take me back, can you?” she groaned, pushing back so that we slammed together. Dana knew exactly what to say to make me boil when we screwed like that.

“Uhn...no Terry...”

“No. He wasn’t good enough for your wife. He didn’t make me hot.” She gripped the vanity and it felt like we were going to rip it out of the wall, but I wasn’t stopping. I could replace it later.

“But Zach always makes you hot, doesn’t he?”

“Yes, baby. He fucks me so good. That’s what you want to hear...”

“Yes...”

“You want to hear how Zach makes me come like his little slut.”

“Yes...you love being his slut...”

“I do, baby. I do love it. God, when he licked my pussy tonight all I could think about was how much I wanted you there to see him make me come...ohhh...”

“Fuck...honey...”

“Zach wanted me to stay...wanted to fuck me all night...”

“Whore...”

“I wanted to be his whore all night...but I had to come home...had to show you what a whore I am...”

“Oh, sweet fuck, Dana...”

I came right then, bent over behind her, with my prick embedded in her. Dana shuddered with me, but I don’t know if she came too. I didn’t last very long. I dragged myself off of her and fell back against the slate-tiled wall. The cool condensation from her shower felt good on my hot skin. I came so hard I was dizzy. Dana pushed off the vanity with a soft moan and pressed her nudity to mine. We kissed, lovingly this time. The way a man and wife should kiss. For a split second, I flashed on Dana and Zach kissing while they fucked.

“Wow, something got into you tonight,” she said.

“I always want you when you come home,” I said.

“But it’s not usually like that, babe. That was hardcore.”

“I watched a little of your video. That was hardcore.”

“I thought you might like it. I really was pretending you were there when I was looking into the camera. It made me come so much harder.”

We went into the bedroom, and I threw on a pair of boxers, while Dana put on a cute little pair of pajamas she got from Victoria's Secret. That's the great thing about my wife—she looks just as hot in her everyday clothes as she does when she's all dolled up for a date. She snuggled into me on the bed. I could tell she was going to pass out any second. Her night had left her exhausted. I didn't know how many times Zach had her since I hadn't watched the whole video yet, but he was always good for at least twice.

"So really, how did you end up at Zach's?" I asked.

Dana must have caught something in my tone. "You don't mind?" she asked.

"No, of course not." I was not about to admit that maybe I did, not when this was all my idea. "I'd just like to know where you are in case, I need to send out a search party." I tried to sound light.

"Yeah, that makes sense. Next time I'll shoot you a text." She kissed my chest. "Anyway, when Terry showed up, he most definitely was not what he represented."

"Really?"

"Shorter, older, heavier. It just was not happening."

"That sucks, but I guess it's a risk with the online thing. I'm glad I don't have to worry about dating these days."

"You'd be beating them off with a stick, babe."

"Ha. Maybe."

"I didn't want the night to be a waste just because Terry was a washout. I mean, I had gone to a lot of effort."

"You did," I agreed. "And I'm sure he was kicking himself when he realized you weren't going home with him."

Dana laughed. "Yeah, he didn't look too happy to be getting a kiss on the cheek. He's lucky he got that. I was going to just come home and let you enjoy all my efforts, but then I thought of Zach and how he would appreciate it."

"I saw how much he did."

"Yes. He appreciated it several times. You really aren't mad I just went, are you? I figured it was what you'd want me to do anyway. I'm sorry I didn't give you a heads-up."

"Really, it's cool, honey. I was just a little surprised to see Zach's place when I pulled up the video."

“Well, I promise next time I’ll make sure you know who I’m fucking beforehand.”

Even I had to laugh at that. “I love you, honey.”

“I love you, babe.”

CHAPTER

Three

Dana's bad date seemed to sap her enthusiasm for finding a date online. I told her she couldn't let one bad experience taint the whole idea, but she seemed convinced that all the guys on there were liars. She went through the profiles of guys we'd communicated with and found where she thought they were lying. I knew enough to give her space and just hope she would come around. It wasn't like that was our only avenue to continue our hot dates, but I was excited about the prospect of trying something new. In the meantime, I had my videos to enjoy.

I have to admit, having other men lust after my wife has become a bit of an obsession for me. It's always on my mind. We took the kids to a local fall festival and as we wandered through the crowd, I wondered which of the men who passed by lusted after my wife. Dana wore a snug pair of jeans that made her ass look absolutely perfect and a snug sweater that hugged her tits. There was nothing overtly sexy about it—she was never dressed like a slut around the kids—but Dana is a beautiful woman, the kind of woman men notice.

When she bent over to wipe our daughter's face clean after a candy apple, I caught another husband staring at her ass. Seeing his wife, I couldn't blame him. He wasn't a bad looking guy, and I wondered if Dana would go for him under different circumstances. For an insane moment I pictured my wife slipping behind some haystacks with the guy and making out while I watched the kids in the playground. I had to shake the image out of my mind because I felt myself getting hard. Dana looked at me quizzically, wondering about the odd expression on my face, and I just smiled and kissed her.

In the weeks after her date with Terry, she mostly stayed away from the websites, but she did go over to see Zach again. It would be the fifth time she was with him, and I couldn't help fearing it was becoming too much of a regular thing. Dana seldom initiated it. She and Zach shared a few texts every day and he always asked her to come over, but she mostly told him she was busy. She only gave in if he sent a particularly dirty, pleading text, then she would ask if I was okay watching the kids while she went out. Either that, or I would suggest she go over because it had been a while. But since that night when she went to him without telling me first, I hadn't suggested it. I was still trying to sort my feelings about Zach.

"How would you feel if I went out for a while?" she asked. She had trouble hiding her excitement.

I didn't have to ask where she wanted to go. "I guess not. He really wants you, doesn't he?" just thinking about the younger man dying to fuck my wife made my cock twitch.

"He always wants it," Dana giggled. "He's just being really cute about it tonight." She turned her phone to me and showed me his text.

-Zach

Ur killing me! U can't send that and then deny me.

I scrolled up and saw that Dana had stripped down and sent him a selfie taken in the full-length mirror in our bedroom. Her lavender bra and panty set was sexy. I could imagine Zach sitting there with blue balls as he thought about screwing Dana. Would he feel any differently if he knew she was still married, I wondered. There was so little I knew about him. Dana told me that he dated around but wasn't serious with anyone. Did that have anything to do with her?

"You are torturing the poor kid," I said.

"He deserved it for this." She showed me above that, where he'd graphically described going down on her. I was as hard as I hoped Zach was, which made my decision too easy.

"Sure, go ahead," I told her. "Just try not to be out too late." It was a Wednesday night after nine and both kids were in bed. We didn't have any plans, except maybe to have sex ourselves, but I knew if she spent the whole night out screwing, she'd be a mess in the morning. Plus, I had to be at a job site early and I knew I would stay up until she got home.

"I won't. Promise. I'll change really quick, shoot over there, take care of Zach, and come right home." She made it sound like she was running an errand.

Dana disappeared upstairs and I shook my head, realizing that I'd just given up a night of being with my wife so she could go out and fuck another man. If that wasn't a sign of being in deep, I don't know what was. She'd been wearing jeans and a cute knit top, and I didn't know why she had to change. She didn't usually bother to dress up for Zach. The primping did not take long, but it had a wow effect. Dana returned in a little black skirt and heeled riding boots. Her clingy white top didn't skimp on the cleavage, and I could just make out her colored bra beneath it. Her hair was down from its earlier ponytail and her lips were red.

"I'll try not to be too late," she said. She also carried the hidden camera down from where it had been charging in the bedroom and put it in her purse, while grabbing her real keys.

I pulled her into my arms and when we kissed, I could tell she was trying to avoid smearing her lipstick. I didn't care. She could fix it. I hiked up her skirt as I kneaded her ass and bent to press my hand lower, between her thighs.

"Hmm, baby, what are you doing?" she sighed.

"Making sure you remember who you really belong to." I nibbled along her neck that way that drives her wild and she shivered. I love it when she does that. I felt moist heat from her panties. Dana was already damp, and I wondered if it was because of me or from anticipation of seeing her lover.

Dana rubbed my cock through my jeans. I was already hard—I didn't need the teasing. "I know exactly who my husband is. You don't need to worry about that." She kept rubbing my bulge and I pressed my fingers to her cunt firmly enough to leave a wet spot on her panties. "Maybe I should stay home," she moaned.

"You can't go disappointing Zach, now can you?" I was so torn. I really did want to throw her down right there in the hallway and take her, but a heady urgency surged through me thinking about Zach having her.

"I guess you're going to have to wait until I come home to be taken care of then." She sounded disappointed.

"Go on, get out of here before I change my mind."

We kissed once more, and she was gone. I'm not sure Dana was even out of the driveway before the tingling, uneasy feeling of anticipation began.

I dragged my ruggedized laptop out of my work bag and settled down in the family room with it on my lap. After a quick check of email, I went to a message board for men like me. In this kinky community there are two types of men who like to share their wives. I'm not talking about swingers—those guys want to fuck other women too, and that's not me. Dana is the only woman I need. Guys who share their wives are either cuckolds or hotwifers. I know anyone on the outside would think we're all cuckolds but cucks get off on being humiliated while their wives sleep with other men and that is definitely not me. I'd like to see one of these guys—they call themselves Bulls—try to humiliate me. If you're into sharing your wife with other men, but not into being cuckolded, then the proper term is hotwifing, as in Dana is a hotwife. A wife other men want to fuck. I do not want to be confused for a cuckold, which is why I don't know if I could bring myself to be there while Dana does it.

I scanned the message boards but didn't find too much of interest. The vast majority of guys who post on these sites seem to be either wannabes or liars. Lots of men are looking for tips on tricking their wives into doing this or convincing them into it. I can't imagine ever doing either to Dana. For one thing, she'd whip my ass. For another, I love and respect her too much. If she's going to be with another man, it has to be her choice. It has to be something she wants too—I don't want her doing it just for me.

It took a long time for me to tell Dana about my fantasy—how deep it really went. I didn't just want to see other men lust after her. I wanted to actually see them with her. I wanted to be a voyeur while my wife fucked other guys. It was a fantasy I became keenly aware of many years ago.

I was on the baseball team in high school, and we typically partied after games at one of the guys' houses. Jim's parents were the "cool" type who would let us all come over and drink and have a good time, reasoning it was safer than us being out somewhere. That night, Jim's parents were away, which meant the party got really crazy. Maggie had been my girlfriend all through high school, a pretty, busty blonde all-American kind of girl. Everyone thought we made the perfect couple and I think there was an assumption that we'd keep going together after school and eventually we'd marry. I loved her, but I knew I wasn't spending the rest of my life with her. Teenage boys just don't think that way.

Maggie and I went upstairs and slipped into a guest bedroom. One of my teammates was already in there, but he was out cold. Too much tequila.

Maggie felt a little weird fooling around with him just a few feet away—passed out or not—but I started kissing and touching her, and she yielded like she always did. We were on the floor since he took up the bed. I had her top off and her jeans pulled down when I noticed him hanging over the side of the bed, looking down at us. Our eyes met and he froze. I know he thought I would be pissed, but instead I went right on hooking up and left him to watch. He must have taken it as a green light because next thing I know he's off the bed and moving closer. I don't know if Maggie realized he was there before he touched her, but she was as wasted as I was, and she didn't stop him. Together, we played with my girlfriend, and she ended up sucking my dick while he played with her pussy.

I finished on the floor. Maggie never let me come in her mouth. I fell back, satisfied, and he realized he had her all to himself. Again, Maggie didn't resist and soon I was watching her hook up with my friend. At first, I was nauseous and jealous, but then I realized how turned on I was. I'd just come, but I was hard again. I started playing with myself. Those two paid no attention to me. He was drunk enough that he didn't care my cock had just been in her mouth and they made out like longtime lovers. Watching her like that made Maggie a goddess in my eyes. Hearing her moan while he fingered her made my body strum like a guitar string. I was frozen to the spot because I had no way to process what I felt. He tried to push Maggie's face toward his cock, and I think I would have come again right there if she'd gone down on him, but that was too far for her. Instead, she jerked him off and he came all over her tits. I only just managed to stop short of coming myself.

It was very awkward, and he just pulled up his pants and got out of there. Maggie couldn't look me in the eyes, and I didn't know what to say to her. I took her straight home afterward and we never spoke of that night. Maggie wanted to pretend it never happened, and I followed her lead. I knew she was ashamed of what she'd done, and that shame burned into me. I felt like a freak for getting off while another guy got it on with my girlfriend. But ashamed as I was, every time I thought about that night—and I recalled every second vividly—my cock sprang to life. I knew I would have to milk that memory forever because I couldn't think of any way to make it happen again. I met Dana in college a few years later and never even considered bringing my fantasy up—even though images of her with other men occasionally flashed across my brain.

Dana and I married, and I mostly pushed the fantasy to the back burner. I got enough stimulation from seeing guys salivate over her when we went out to bars or on the beach. And we were always busy having fun in those years before the kids came. I loved Dana with all my heart, and it didn't matter that my twisted fantasy wasn't going to happen. But then I got another taste.

We were spending the weekend with another couple up in the mountains and one-night things just happened. I realize now that our friends, Shane and Lisa, were looking for some kind of hook up, but Dana and I could not have been more clueless. We were all sitting around and drinking when things turned flirty and dirty, like they often did. I think I caught on sooner than my wife and I started playing along. I didn't know exactly what was going to happen, but my brain was buzzing, and I knew it was going to be hot. Somehow Dana and Lisa ended up massaging each other—I don't remember those details—and one thing led to another. Watching the girls hook up together was hot. I was as hard as I'd been years before when I watched Maggie. But it didn't carry the same sense of danger. I think that danger—imagined or not—is key to the excitement for me. Shane was not content to watch—as I was—and he slid right in there with our girls. Now things were getting interesting.

I know they all expected me to join in like Shane, but I was perfectly content where I was. I wanted to watch my own personal sex show. When Shane started touching Dana there it was, that old sick/jealous/aroused feeling. It was just different than seeing my wife with Lisa. I thought I'd never really feel it again, but there it was, and I welcomed it back like an old friend. Shane and Lisa pleased my wife like she was their own sex toy. Dana went down on Lisa, and then the couple shared her. Shane ate her pussy, and she screamed as she came. I thought I was going to pass out from the rush. And then the girls took turns going down on Shane. Seeing Dana suck another man's cock—even if she was sharing it—blew my mind. None of my fantasies had prepared me for how hot it was. There she was, sucking his cock like it was all she ever wanted. Dana was handing me my hottest fantasy and didn't even know it!

Shane came all over my wife and Lisa licked it off of her. I knew I had to be in a dream. I dragged Dana from that room and fucked her like a madman. It was fucking, not making love. Dana—sharp as ever—realized how much watching had turned me on and fed into that while we screwed. She is the best. Nothing throws her. I came quickly, but she didn't mind.

Dana was not Maggie, and she did want to talk about it. She totally got that I was into watching her and Lisa, but I could tell she was surprised I didn't mind seeing her with Shane. I don't think she understood that was what really turned me on. I could see Dana couldn't wrap her head around that and I retreated from a full confession. I felt like a coward, but I didn't want her to think I was some kind of freak.

We never had a repeat of that night with Shane and Lisa, and it would be years before I fully confessed to my wife. I tried to accept it would never happen again, like I had before, but it was harder this time. I'd seen Dana sucking another guy's cock. I'd seen another man make her come. I couldn't forget that. It was a memory I could recall in vivid detail anytime I wanted—and I did it often.

The kids came and we became parents as much as man and wife, but the desire never left me. We didn't go out as often, of course, but when we did, I made sure Dana was as sexy as possible and I reveled in the looks she'd get from other men. She told me she would dress up for me, because she knew how much I liked it, but I saw a spark in her. I knew she liked the attention as much as I like seeing her get it. If only there was a way to take it to the next level. Sometimes I'd excuse myself to the bathroom and take my time coming back, knowing that if I left Dana alone at a bar she would be hit on. We always fucked like rabbits when we came home from one of those date nights. And one of those nights, it all came out.

Dana and I went out to dinner and then to see a cover band at a local bar. She wore a tight little tank dress that made her curves stand out. I pulled my old trick of leaving her alone at the bar, but this time I waited in the crowd longer than usual. I saw a big guy flirting with her and Dana seemed to be really into it. Something in her eyes made me hang back to see what would happen. He touched my wife, casually of course, and she touched back the way a woman does when she's interested. But it didn't go beyond that. Dana is not a cheater. I returned and she acted like nothing had happened. But when we got home that night, we ended up fucking in the living room, as soon as the babysitter was out the door.

She teased me with how men had been looking at her, the way she always did. Dana knew exactly what I liked. At least the tame version of it. But then she carried things further and told me about the guy in the bar and how she felt him getting hard when he pressed against her. It struck a chord. I couldn't help myself. I asked if he was big, if she wanted to see it. She hesitated, then told me he felt big, but it was hard to tell through jeans. Was she trying to save my ego? She needn't have bothered. I asked if she wanted to know how big it was. There was something in her voice that told me she'd crossed a personal line, but she kept going. Dana told me yes, she wanted to know. And then she asked that fateful question, Should I have gone with him? I couldn't help answering truthfully. My mind had already raced ahead to what would happen next. I told her, yes!

What followed was the most intense sex we'd ever had until then. It surpassed that night after her threesome with Shane and Lisa by a mile. While we fucked there in the living room, Dana teased me without holding back, like she was reading my mind.

"Do you want me to take it out for him?" she asked excitedly.

"Yeah, grab it, hon," I moaned.

"Mmm, it's even bigger than I thought. What should I do with it, Dave?"

"You know what you want to do."

"What?" She was making me tell her.

"Suck it, Dana. Suck his goddam dick," I growled. There it was. I said it. It was out there. And amazingly, it didn't stop my wife. She kept right on going.

"I can't believe I'm doing this. It's so wrong."

"God, Dana, do it. You know you want to," I ordered. I could see it. I could see my sweet Dana in the front seat of some car, sucking off some strange man.

"I can't believe I'm doing this. It's so wrong," she moaned.

"God, Dana, do it. You know you want to."

I saw her excitement. I saw it wasn't just for me. Dana was just as excited by this fantasy as I was. In that moment, she wanted to suck that guy's cock. I held her and bounced her up and down on my cock.

"I'm doing it, baby. I'm sucking him. It's so good. Mmm, I don't want to stop," I cooed.

"Don't stop. Suck him. You're so fucking hot right now, Dana. Suck it until he comes," I demanded.

"Mmm, I think he's close. He's holding my hair, forcing me down on it."

“Suck it! Suck it! Christ, Dana, don’t stop!”

It was too much for me. Dana came a fraction of a second before I did. I came and it felt like I emptied out my entire being into her. I was a husk. I had been laid bare and all I could do was wait and see how she would react. It was one thing to go with it in the heat of the moment. How would my wife feel when she really thought about the implications of what we’d just fantasized together?

Once we had both calmed down, Dana insisted on having a real conversation about my fantasies. I was initially defensive, and she had to drag it out of me, but finally, after nearly a decade and a half of marriage I confessed my deepest, darkest sexual fantasy to my wife. Dana did her best to temper her reaction, but I could tell she was shocked. She was in for another shock when she asked if it was something I actually wanted to do.

Most of what I knew of this hotwife thing at the time was what I’d read in stories on the internet, and I told her that. I confessed it would be hot for me if she went out to a bar and let a guy pick her up and then they fooled around. I could see the wheels turning in her head. I knew with a little effort I would have Dana hooked. Over the next few weeks, I sent her stories and played out the fantasy in the bedroom. Finally, Dana agreed she would give it a try, but made no promises anything would happen. She didn’t know if she could go through with it. That was the hottest thing I’d ever heard, and I told her so. Our next stop was the casino.

I’d shared that whole story on the message board before, to many pats on the back and guys wishing they were me. I even shared a non-identifiable picture of Dana in lingerie and the guys went wild. It made me feel proud and juiced. The guys on the board were right. I did have the sexiest, coolest wife on the planet. Occasionally, I’d post an update about our adventures, but mostly I lurked on the board. I considered creating a new post about Dana having just gone out to meet her FB—that’s hotwife slang for fuck buddy, or the guy who’s screwing your wife on a regular basis—but I didn’t like sharing things like that in the moment. It brought me back to being just a little ashamed that I was sitting home while my wife was out fucking another guy. Instead, I shot a private message to a guy I’d exchanged a few prior messages with. I’d found him to be a good sounding board. He seemed realistic, not one of these guys who thinks you should make it happen at any cost.

I set the laptop aside and scrolled through my ever-growing collection of Dana videos. I could have sat there and tried imagining what she might be up to with Zach, but why do that when I could just watch it? Instead of watching their last session, I jumped back to the one before. That was a particular favorite of mine because Zach had totally rocked her world that night. They had been texting back and forth and I suggested she should go see him. Dana complained she was tired, but between Zach begging her by text and my nudging her, she finally relented and jumped in the shower. She didn't dress up then but looked hot in tight jeans and a snug t-shirt that hugged her tits.

When the camera clicked on, it was obvious they'd gotten started before Dana could click record. They were in his living room, and she walked away from the camera already missing her jeans and panties. I had a great view of her round, tight ass as she walked toward Zach, who sat on the couch. She went onto her knees in front of him and went right to work sucking his cock. My view wasn't great for that, but I could see her still-damp ponytail bounce as her head bobbed up and down, and Zach stared down at my wife like he was in heaven. He tried to hold her ponytail, but she pushed his hand away. Dana was going at her own pace.

"Oh my God, Dani," he moaned. "I can't believe you can take the whole thing." I beamed with pride. That was my expert, cock sucking wife.

Dana replied, but her words were muffled. I figured she was licking or kissing him down there, maybe even sucking his balls, because her face was still buried there. She started sucking again and this time she moved with purpose. Her head bobbed rapidly, like she was riding a piston. Zach tried to warn her, but Dana wanted his cum because she did not stop until he was shaking and thrusting up at her mouth.

I could tell Zach came because his body went slack, but my wife stayed down there, sucking. She wanted him hard for another round. Watching Dana craving his cock like that, watching her seducing that younger man filled me with lust, and I reached for the tissue box because I knew what came next. And I knew that watching Dana screaming on all-fours on his floor, begging to be fucked, was going to make me come—just like it did every time. Was that the moment when Zach formed his hold on her? Was that when she decided she needed his cock? I couldn't help feeling that I was watching my wife form a bond with another man—something more than sex—and I was ashamed that I didn't want to put a stop to it.

CHAPTER

I had been on my feet all day and was glad the party was winding down. Not that I mind having the neighbors over—I love that we’re the neighborhood house for barbeques—but don’t love all the work that goes along with it. Jana, my best friend from up the street, is a godsend and a huge help, but I still feel all the pressure to make sure everyone has fun and is well fed. The thirty people or so that had been enjoying our house that hot summer day were a mix of neighbors and guys who work for Dave.

Dave loves entertaining and showing off all his hard work. Over the years we’ve been in our house, he’s completely transformed it. The masterpiece is our backyard. It’s all centered around our pool, which is almost more of a winding, lazy river than a traditional pool. It’s fed at one end by a slate waterfall and flows past a swim-up bar. There’s a hot tub just beside the waterfall. Slate tiles flow out from the pool to several seating areas, a built-in grill and second wet bar, and a cozy fire pit. It’s the kind of backyard you see on television shows, and it’s taken Dave ten years to perfect. And there is no way we could have afforded it if Dave hadn’t done all the work himself.

My dear husband spent most of the afternoon manning the grill, serving up burgers, chicken, sausages and ribs. A couple of times he got someone to spell him off so he could enjoy a beer and chat, but I don’t think either of us so much as dipped a toe in the pool all day. I’d worn a swimsuit beneath my little floral sundress, but that was wishful thinking. I wasn’t going to feel the water until most of the guests were on their way.

It was good to have a normal day with my family. I was beginning to feel like too much of our lives were revolving around our hot dates and their planning. I hadn't done anything with any of that since I went over to Zach's a few weeks ago. Zach and I still exchanged texts every day, and that was fun, but we hadn't made any plans to get together. I sensed something strange from Dave when I came home the last time. I asked him about it, but he swore it was nothing. He had me thinking it was all in my head, which was possible.

I really did like Zach—maybe a little too much. I tried telling myself it was crazy, but I thought I might be developing a crush on my boytoy. I looked forward to his first text of the day and I would start the shameless flirting if he didn't do it first. But a lot of the time we just talked about our lives—at least as much of my life as I could share. I tried to keep Dani's life as close to mine as possible, but a lot of the details were still made up. It probably wasn't a good idea to become so attached to one other man, but it wasn't causing any problems, so I just rolled with it. Pursuing the online dating would have helped with that, but my enthusiasm just wasn't there.

So, it was nice to have a day where none of that existed, although it was never completely gone. Our secret life lurked there, just out of sight, like the phantom image on the periphery of your vision you're not sure was there. In the past, it was innocent fun knowing the pleasure Dave took in it when I looked good. I hope it's not too conceited to admit, but I know guys check me out. All women do, whether they admit it or not. It's not like guys are exactly subtle. They think they are. When I lean forward, I can tell your eyes immediately flick down to see if you can peek down my blouse. When I walk past you on the street or in the supermarket, I can just sense your head swiveling to check out my butt. I don't mind it as long as you're respectful and keep your rude comments to yourself. And I don't think you do nice things for me just because I'm a nice person. I've always known my husband appreciates that extra attention I receive. He's never been subtle about it either. He's always encouraged short skirts that showed off my legs and tight, low-cut tops. I could always see the way other men's attention affected him. And if I brushed up against him, I could feel it too. I knew if we were out for an evening, and I was looking particularly good I was in for an intense night of lovemaking when we got home. But then Dave told me of his forbidden fantasy. Don't get me wrong, I'm not just going along to make my husband happy. I get as much of a thrill out of it as he does, but now it colors all of those interactions that seemed harmless before.

When I caught a couple of Dave's workers checking out my tanned legs, I glanced over and saw my husband watching them watching me. Tension crackled through me, and I couldn't believe none of our friends noticed. I couldn't help wondering, Is Dave picturing them ravaging me? When Jana's husband, Neil, followed me into the kitchen to help me carry out more ice did my husband think we stopped in the pantry for a quickie? Jana is a beautiful, athletic blonde, but I know Neil checks me out—and Dave knows it too. I'm sure Jana's even aware of it, but she doesn't care. Jana is the least insecure woman I know. In the past I always considered Neil checking me out a silly thing, and thought it was cute that Dave got a charge out of it, but now when he spies Neil checking out my tits, is he thinking, I wish she'd pull Neil upstairs for a quick blowjob? Even if I was tempted, there are a myriad of reasons I would never do that.

"You look like you could really use this," Jana said, handing me a large glass of homemade sangria.

"Jana, you have no idea." I greedily drank down almost half the large glass. I didn't care how hard it hit me. The party was almost over.

"You guys did great. Today was another hit."

"I would have never done it this weekend if I knew how hot it was going to be. I'm dying."

"Why didn't you jump in the pool? It's right there, silly." Jana had been in and out all day and her top clung to her bikini top in two wet triangles.

"Because I've been in and out of the house all day and I didn't want to do it wet," I said. "But as soon as this is over and the kids are in bed, I am diving right in."

"You don't need to worry about them. They're all in the family room watching a movie. All of the sun and swimming wore them out."

"Thank god."

Most of the remaining stragglers left over the next hour and the sun began its descent. Jana offered to help with the cleanup, but I told her I was only worried about the things that absolutely needed taking care of—the rest could wait until morning. I saw a couple of Dave's workers to the gate. I'm a physically affectionate person and hugged my guests as they left. It felt like the men held onto that hug just a beat too long, that their hands strayed closer to my ass than was proper. But their wives were right there. It had to all be in my head. They couldn't sense that I was somehow up for grabs, could they? I needed more wine.

Jana and I cleaned up the immediate worries and by then she and her husband were the only ones left—or so I thought. I found Dave sitting in the corner of the yard talking to one of the guys from his crew. I thought his name was something like Jeff, or Jim. All that was left was to put the kids to bed and we could finally relax.

“I think we’re about done for the night,” I said, walking over to Dave. “Once the kids are put down, we can finally relax.”

“Why don’t I take care of that? You’ve been running yourself ragged all day.”

“Are you sure?” I was only surprised because he appeared to be mid-conversation. Dave is a great dad and puts the kids to bed just as often as I do, if we’re not doing it together.

“No worries,” Jeff or Jim said.

I wasn’t quite sure why this stranger was lingering. Jana and Neil often stayed to hang out after our barbeques. We would kick back in the hot tub and chat into wee hours of the night. I asked our guest, “Can I get you something else?” My brow furrowed as I tried to recall his name. I didn’t want him to be insulted. “Jeff?”

“Close. It’s Jay. And a beer would be great.”

“Sorry. It’s been crazy today.”

“It’s fine, really. I saw how you were running around. I’m not even sure we were ever properly introduced.”

Jay unwound from the chair, and he dwarfed me, like a mountain had formed before me. I’m only a few inches over five feet, and my husband is nearly a foot taller than me, but Jay was even bigger than Dave. My eyes met him mid-chest. And he was broad, too. Not all the men who work for my husband are in great shape, despite working construction, but Jay looked like whatever time wasn’t spent on a construction site was spent in a gym. His jaw was covered in a couple of day’s brown stubble and his smile was crooked. Jay was hot. There was no other word for it.

“I’ll be right back,” I finally managed, once I was finished taking him in.

I turned, but instead of waiting for me to bring him a beer, Jay followed. I crouched down and slipped into the wet bar by the pool. Jana was already in there collecting empty red Solo cups, even though I’d told her she didn’t need to clean up. Jay stood over by the side of the pool and introduced himself to Neil, who'd just come out of the house. No doubt he'd just tucked his kids in upstairs in our house. When our families had late nights together it was easier to just let the kids have a sleepover rather than have Jana and Neil drag their half-asleep kids back down the street. I took a fresh cup from the depleted stack beneath the bar and drew Jay a fresh beer from the tap.

"Who the hell is that?" Jana asked. She was staring at the guys, and I knew it wasn't her husband who had her attention.

"His name's Jay. He works for Dave." I pretended not to be as impressed as she was.

"I can't believe Dave left you alone with him."

"Come on, Jana."

"I can't believe any husband would leave him alone with his wife."

And just like that it popped into my mind that maybe Dave left me alone with Jay on purpose. Was there a reason the big, handsome construction worker was still here after just about all our other guests were gone? That was a crazy idea. We had agreed early on that we would never, ever play with anyone we knew—or even anywhere near our home. Whenever we went on our hot dates, they were always far enough away from our neighborhood that there was little chance we could run into someone we knew. I could not see myself explaining our lifestyle to anyone we knew. But despite knowing all that, the thought still entered my mind. Watching me with another man excited my husband more than anything else I'd seen in our years of marriage. Dave couldn't get enough of it. And Jay really was right up my alley. He was exactly the kind of guy that made me weak in the knees, except for the little ponytail I noticed at the back of his light brown hair, but I could probably overlook that. Jay looked like he could just consume me, and I couldn't help reacting to that, even though there was no way I would allow that to happen. I told myself I was being paranoid, that Dave had not become so depraved he was inviting guys home from the construction site to fuck his wife.

"Are you there, Dana?" Jana asked, giving me a nudge.

"Yeah, sorry." I didn't realize I'd zoned out.

Jana took another long appraisal of Jay. "I get it, girl. I could get lost thinking about that hunk, too."

"Get out of here." Did I protest too much?

“I’m getting out of these clothes. Time to enjoy the pool. Are you with me?”

Jana ascended the steps out of the sunken poolside bar and pulled off her little baby-t then wiggled out of her shorts. Her black and green string bikini did not cover much, but Jana had the body to pull it off. She hits the gym five mornings a week, leaving Neil to get the kids ready for school. She is tall and lean, with big C-cups Neil bought her for her 40th birthday. Jana is the textbook definition of a suburban MILF. If she was hoping Jay would notice, she was in luck, because he risked a quick glance over at Jana while he talked to her husband. As far as I know, Neil doesn’t harbor the same kind of fantasies Dave does, but how do I really know? I didn’t know about my husband’s until he finally confessed them to me. She walked to the deep end and dove into the pool, slicing through the water.

I followed Jana out of the bar and caught Jay tracking my movement. Jay thanked me when I walked the fresh beer over to him. Neil asked where his was, and I told him to get it himself. I felt like adding, I only get beer for guys like that. I was ready to jump in the pool and grabbed the hem of my sundress, but there was still that nagging suspicion Dave could be trying to set something up and I worried about encouraging it.

“Are you coming in or not?” Jana called from the water.

I reminded myself my worries were insane and pulled the little sundress over my head. My two-piece was more modest than Jana’s—black with a halter top that had little ruffles along the neckline, and bottom that covered more. I still showed plenty of cleavage, but that was pretty tough to avoid with my breasts. I won’t lie, I was pleased to see Jay watching me after he’d seen Jana in her bikini. I work out, but I’m not drum-tight like my friend. There’s still a jiggle to my butt. Rather than dive like Jana, I crouched by the side and slipped into the warm water. It was just as refreshing as I’d hoped and I floated out into it on my back, my breasts pushed up out of the water. Jay kept talking to Neil, but he also kept stealing glances at us. It was nice to be checked out by a guy like Jay. I’m sure he has his pick of the hot cocktail waitresses and girls at the gym. I was flattered he was checking out a suburban mom of two like me.

That was the thrill I got from our hot dates. After being with the same man for so long and spending all your waking hours either being a mom or at work, you start to wonder if you’re the woman you were before. It’s easy to lose touch with the girl who wore a skirt and left her panties at home.

And you wonder if anyone would care if you did. When I go on these hot dates, I recall that sexy side of myself, the bad girl who would act out when the mood struck her. Most importantly, since I'm playing a role on our hot dates, I never worry about being judged. I can be as slutty as I want because not only won't my husband judge me, he'll encourage me to go further. Having a man like Jay check me out gave me that same thrill. I just wouldn't try to act on it at home.

DAVE CAME out of the house and looked pleased to find us in the water. He tossed his tank top on a chair and jumped in the pool, directing a huge splash in my direction. I tried in vain to keep my hair dry. "Come on in, guys. This is the part of the night where we finally just chill out."

"Sounds good to me," Neil said. He shed his shirt and joined us in the water. He wasn't quite as buff as my husband or Jay, but he held his own.

"I'll just hang up here. I didn't bring a bathing suit," Jay said.

"Man, I told you this was a pool party. I have some board shorts you can change into. We're about the same size," Dave said.

"You don't have to do that."

"You can't just hang up there while we're all in the water. It'll just take a second. I'll be right back."

Dave hopped out of the pool and ran, dripping inside the house, which he knows annoys me. Jay stood up there looking sheepish, and I said, "It's nothing really. You don't want to be left out. It's really nice in here."

"Yeah, we've got plenty of room for you," Jana added. She sat on one of the submerged concrete stools at the bar and I'm sure she meant for him to sit right beside her. Neil just rolled his eyes. He knew his wife was an incorrigible flirt. He saw it as harmless.

Dave returned with a pair of blue and gray board shorts and tossed them to Jay. Dave slipped back into the water and Jay stood by a chair and stripped down. Jay was not shy. He looked like one of the guys from Magic Mike with his shirt off. Jana and I both stared. I couldn't help it. Jay was that incredible. It's not that I don't appreciate my husband—that had nothing to do with my going on hot dates. Dave is a handsome guy in great shape, and I'm not the only one who thinks so. I see the other wives in the neighborhood—including Jana—lusting after him and I know that’s the reason he’s the first one they call when they need something fixed. They’d love to know how good he really is with his hands. But Jay was in a league of his own. His six pack was like granite, his arms like sculpted pillars. He was the stuff of romance novel covers. When he dropped his cargo shorts, Jay turned to the side in a show of modesty, but we could still see the substantial bulge in the front of his clingy boxer briefs. He pulled on the board shorts, and I quickly looked away when he turned back toward the pool.

“You girls can stop staring now,” Dave chuckled.

I didn’t answer, but my cheeks flushed in response. Jana was defiant. “Looking is harmless,” she insisted.

“Not the way you were staring,” Dave pressed.

Jay slipped over the side of the pool and came over to join us, holding his beer high, out of the water. We were lounging in the shallow end, near the bar. Besides the stools, there was a low ledge on the sides making sitting in the pool easier. The water came to just below my shoulders when sitting. Now that we were all just relaxing, I realized Jay was the only one with a drink handy.

Forever the perfect hostess, I hopped up onto the bar and swung my legs around to get behind it. I drew beers for Dave and Neil, and poured fresh sangrias for Jana and myself. I climbed over the bar again and I caught Jay looking at me while I was out in the warm night air. I hoped he liked what he saw, but not too much.

“So, where’s your girlfriend tonight?” Jana asked Jay. I love my friend, but there is nothing subtle about her. While I moved in close to my husband, she had left distance between her and Neil.

“Don’t have one. Am I supposed to?” Jay flashed a charming smile.

“And why do you care?” Neil asked. He was just a little drunk, so it was hard to tell if he was teasing his wife or annoyed by her flirting. He usually took that kind of thing in stride, but Jana seemed genuinely enthralled by our handsome guest.

“Maybe she wants a date. Look at the upside, buddy, you get the house to yourself for a night,” Dave teased. I sat between his legs, pressed back against him, and I twisted my neck to stare at him.

“You have a point,” Neil agreed. I tried not to read anything into his answer. I did not believe that all men were like my husband.

“Can’t a girl be curious?” Jana feigned offense, but not very well.

If Jay was embarrassed by the attention, he hid it well. He did not seem like the type who was flustered easily. “I’m not sure I want to settle down. I tried it once already and it didn’t exactly work out.”

“What a stupid girl. Help me out here, Dana. Would you let a guy like Jay get away?”

I didn’t like being put on the spot and I stammered before answering. “Maybe he’s incredibly messy.”

“I think I could deal,” Jana said.

Jay flashed another aw shucks smile. “A roll in the hay is one thing. Living with someone is tough, you guys all know that for sure.”

“You’re telling me,” Neil agreed.

He was a wise young man. Dave and I have a good marriage but living with someone can indeed be tough. A roll in the hay, as Jay put it, was all about fun, not love and commitment. And it was very easy to picture a roll in the hay with Jay. He stood in the low water, so most of his chiseled chest was on view. The night had grown dark, but we had more than enough lights outside to give a nice view of him.

For an insane second, I thought maybe it wouldn’t be such a bad thing if my husband had brought Jay around to fuck me. Dave’s taste was excellent. I could just imagine Jay pinning my ankles back by my ears and giving me the ride of my life. I shook that image from my mind. No way Dave would risk word getting around his company that he liked sharing his wife.

“So, is that what you’re looking for these days?” I couldn’t believe I asked it. It wasn’t like I was interested.

“Hmm?” Jay looked at me—or I should say he looked at my tits floating just above the water before he found my eyes.

“A roll in the hay? A little bit of fun?” I asked.

“I’m always up for a good time. Who isn’t?” Jay asked. I swear there was a challenge in his eyes. It excited me and frightened me. I kept telling myself Dave was not trying to set me up.

“I know I am,” Jana interjected. I don’t think she liked that the attention had turned from her.

“I love a good time,” I agreed. Dave wrapped his arms tighter around me and I felt his cock surge against my butt.

“You should hear Jay’s stories. He’s got married women hitting on him all the time,” Dave said. Was that for my benefit?

“Really?” Neil asked.

“I don’t know if I would say all the time,” Jay demurred. Modesty didn’t really work for him.

“He’s just trying to be nice for the girls,” Dave insisted.

“So just how many married women have you fucked?” Jana asked. I finally noticed that she’d been moving closer to Jay the entire time and now she practically shoved her tits in his face. And oddly, I was jealous. I expect men to be staring at Jana when she’s around, but I had a new attitude since we’d started our hot dates and I wanted my share of attention. Even though I would never fuck Jay, I needed to know that I could.

“A few, but not a lot,” he stated. He could not avoid looking at Jana’s tits now, and he didn’t try to hide it from her husband. He must have figured that if Neil wasn’t stopping her, he didn’t mind. I didn’t know about that, but he did let Jana do her thing. “Listen, there’s a certain type of woman, I think, who goes out on the prowl. A lot of them are divorced, but not all of them. I guess maybe the others should be.”

“What type of woman is that?” I asked. I wondered if he would describe me when I was out on my hot dates. Is this who Zach thought I was?

Jay finally seemed uncomfortable with our attention, but it didn’t stop him. You have to admire a man who can be frank. “I think that when women get older, they come into their own sexually. You know, late thirties, early forties.” Jana was in her early forties, but I was thirty-six. I did not consider that late anything. Jay was not that much younger. I pegged him at around thirty. “I think a lot of women get divorced around then and figure out that maybe they settled for the wrong guy, and they want to experience what’s out there. Guys aren’t any different. If you go to the right bars, you can see them hanging out, looking.”

“And you go to these bars?” Neil asked. If I didn’t know better, I would have thought he wanted to head to one of them himself.

“Sometimes,” Jay answered. There was that smile again. “When I’m looking to hook up.”

“Looking for a sure thing,” Dave interjected. It seemed like he really had heard some stories. Did that convince my husband Jay was the perfect man to take me to bed?

“Maybe. But these women, I hate to say cougars, really are just looking for a good time. They want to go out to a bar, meet a guy, have some fun, and move on. They aren’t looking for entanglements, and they are looking to get their freak on. All those things they were self-conscious about when they were someone's wife are on the table now. They want to feel dirty."

Jana was staring at him like he was a god. I know she was imagining him making her feel dirty. I know it because I was imagining much the same thing. She touched his arm, and asked, "But they aren't all divorced?"

"No, they aren't. I think the married ones are crazier because they don't really have that freedom. They've been with the same guy, doing the same thing, for years and there's no end in sight. They probably have a couple of divorced friends telling them how they're getting laid every night. These women have kept themselves in shape, but maybe their husbands haven't, and they just don't feel appreciated. They're looking for someone to make them feel hot. They want to feel dirty too, in a way they could never feel with their husbands."

"Do you think their husbands have any idea what they're up to?" Dave asked. Of course, he asked that.

"I can't imagine," Jay answered. "Or if they do, they've just decided to let it go. They're probably cheating too."

"And these women don't feel guilty?" Jana asked. She was hanging on his every word. I love my friend, but I could see her out at some bar, all dressed up and hoping to meet a guy like Jay. It didn't mean she didn't love Neil, but she loves attention. Not that I had any room to talk.

"We don't talk about that sort of thing. We don't usually talk about much, especially afterward. They just grab their things and go."

I couldn't help but feel Jay was describing me on a hot date—all dressed up to meet a guy, small talk and flirting, then going somewhere private if we hit it off. We fool around, and I take off right afterward. Knowing what Jay liked only made me more paranoid that my husband had brought him home for me.

"Don't you feel guilty?" Neil asked, judgment in his tone. "You could be ruining families. You're fucking other men's wives."

"It's not like I would fuck a buddy's wife behind his back or anything like that. There's a line. And it's not like I'm going out intending to bang a married woman, but if she's throwing it out there, and she's hot, I'm not going to say no. If it isn't me, it's going to be somebody else, right? I don't have affairs with these chicks, and probably, their husbands are never going to find out."

The tension in the pool was palpable. Neil did not look satisfied with Jay's answer, but that made sense given the way his wife was cozying up to the hot construction worker. Jana was floating on her back in the middle of all of us, but right in front of Jay, so her entire body was laid out for him. Jay looked at her, of course, but I was pleased that his eyes kept flicking over at me, too. Unlike Neil, my husband didn't mind that attention at all.

Dave changed the subject to ease the tension. Perhaps he felt he'd accomplished his goal, whatever that was. He asked what the guys thought of the Patriots' chances in the fall and the subject of horny, untamed cougars was dropped. Except, I know it was still on my mind, and probably Dave's too. Jana didn't push it any further and soon it was time for everyone to go home.

Our neighbors would come over early to get their kids, so we didn't want to make it too late of a night. Neil and Jana gathered their stuff and I saw them to the gate to say goodnight. Dave waved his goodbyes and took Jay inside to dry off and change back into his clothes. Neil gave me a hearty hug at the gate and came dangerously close to grabbing my ass. I let it go because I knew it was due to Jana's flirting, and I was pretty horny anyway, and it felt good. I may have even rubbed my wet, bikini-clad body against him just to tease. I could almost picture the charged, angry sex they would be having when they got home.

I patted myself dry with a towel and walked into the house to find Jay walking out of our downstairs bathroom and Dave nowhere in sight. Jay carried the board shorts and his wet underwear.

"Oh, hey, what do you want me to do with these?" he asked, holding out Dave's shorts.

"Here, I'll take them."

I took the shorts and almost grabbed his underwear too. He followed me through to the laundry room, where I threw the shorts into a basket, and when I turned around, I ran right into him. He instinctively held my arms and for an electrifying second, we were pressed together. He felt like solid granite under those clothes, and it made my heart pound to know he felt as good as he looked. I'd always been able to appreciate a good-looking guy, but it was different now that I had permission to play with them as I wished.

It just wasn't innocent admiration anymore, because when dirty thoughts crept into my mind it wasn't just abstract anymore. If I was out and I saw a hot guy, my husband actually wanted me to slip them my number. That didn't apply with Jay—maybe—but that didn't stop those thoughts and feelings from coming.

"Sorry. I didn't realize you were right there," I said.

"Just wanted to thank you for having me today. Your house is awesome, and the food was great," Jay said. Neither of us had moved. The towel was draped over my shoulders, but I felt almost nude so close to this man in my bikini.

"You're welcome. I'm glad you came. We love to have people over. The more the merrier."

"Well, you're a great hostess."

"You have to say that. I'm your boss's wife."

I don't know why I needed to remind him of that, it just felt important in that moment. I realized I was trembling slightly. Where was Dave? It was insane, but now I was sure he was setting me up with Jay. Did Jay know about our arrangement, or did Dave expect me to seduce him? It pissed me off to think he would do something like this without talking to me first. I didn't want all the guys on his crew to think I was some kind of a whore. But in my anger, I thought I should really make Dave pay. If I was going to sleep with his employee, I should make it memorable. Jay still held my shoulders and I put my hands on his arms.

"I didn't say it because I had to. I said it because I appreciate all your hard work today. You can be my boss's wife and a great hostess."

I stared up into his dark eyes and didn't know what to say. I didn't want to say anything. I really just wanted to kiss him.

"Hey, where are you guys?" Dave called out. He came down the hallway from the kitchen to the laundry room and I jerked away from Jay like he'd shocked me. Jay turned toward my husband.

"Dana was just getting rid of the wet things," Jay said.

"She hates a mess," Dave said.

"I should probably get going and let you two get to bed."

"What are you saying? I'm old?" Dave joked. "Or do you have some honey waiting on you?"

Jay laughed. "I'm not calling you old, man."

We walked Jay to the front door and as we said our goodbyes, I gave Jay a hug. He had to practically bend in half, and he still nearly lifted me off of my feet. I kissed his cheek—close to what I really wanted to do. Dave closed the door behind our guest and when he turned, I was staring at him.

“Jay seemed like a nice guy,” I said.

“He is. I always have to keep that line between being boss and friend, but he’s definitely a guy I’d hang out with.”

“Yeah, I can see that. And I guess you trust him.”

“What do you mean? I trust all my guys. They wouldn’t be working for me if I didn’t.”

Dave grinned. “I guess I must. I know how hard you are to resist. Maybe I trust you and that’s why I left him alone with you.”

“I think you know better than that. You know what a little slut your wife can be.” I unhooked my bikini top behind my neck and let the halter straps hang forward, peeling the top down to just above my nipples, which were hard from the cool air inside. “Or maybe you were counting on that.”

Dave looked confused, like he couldn’t quite tell if I was kidding or not. “You know I wouldn’t mess around with a guy from work.” And now I couldn’t tell if he was sincere.

“I don’t know. You’re really into watching me fuck other guys, and you know how much I like guys like Jay. Maybe you couldn’t resist the temptation.” I took another step closer to him. I cupped both breasts and shivered as my thumbs stroked my nipples.

“It doesn’t sound like I’m the one who had trouble resisting temptation. I think Jay really made your panties wet.”

“Could be,” I teased.

Dave pressed a hand between my thighs. I gasped. He traced my lips through the bikini bottom, leaving a little dark spot. I looked up at him, the desire naked on my face. He grinned. Dave knew what I needed, and he loved it when I was weak like this. I was his to play with.

“Someone’s pretty damned horny,” he said.

“I thought you left me alone with Jay for a reason,” I murmured. My hands smoothed his t-shirt over his chest. My husband was just about as muscular as Jay, but he just didn’t do as much of the daily labor since he was stuck running the business. But I knew my sexy husband would never let himself go.

“You really wanted it, didn’t you?” Dave kept rubbing my pussy and pulled the ponytail out of my hair before caressing my neck. His fingers, laced in my hair, tugged just enough to excite me. “I don’t know who wanted him more, you or Jana. Jay could have had a crazy threesome with two suburban MILFs.”

“Probably,” I breathed. I recalled my first threesome, with our friends in the cabin, and thinking about sharing a hot guy like Jay was exciting. I knew it would become a competition between Jana and I to see who could get crazier. I suspected Jana didn’t have many limits. “But I don’t think Neil likes to share the way you do.”

“Oh, I think he’d be cool with it if he got to watch. He’d finally get to see you naked. He’d be so focused on that he’d probably forget his wife was there.”

“You want Neil to fuck me too, don’t you?”

“That would be fun to watch.”

My pussy throbbed when I thought about our forbidden lifestyle being exposed to our neighbors. Dave was right, Neil would love a chance to fuck me—if all those looks were any indication. God, what would they think if they knew my husband wanted me to have sex with other men? They would think he was crazy, and I was a slut.

We moved farther into the house—me walking backwards while Dave guided me with gentle tugs on my hair. He spun me when we reached the stairs and pushed me forward. My knees landed on the carpeted runner in the center, but my shins still banged painfully into the edge. He yanked the bottom of my bikini down and I kicked it away, wanting to spread my legs for my husband. I rested my elbows on a higher step. It was an awkward position, but I loved that he had to have me right there, right then. His cock slipped over my wet lips, splitting them when I pushed back.

“Fuck me,” I begged.

“That’s what you wanted to tell Jay, isn’t it?”

“Yes. I thought he was going to take me in the laundry room.”

Dave buried himself in me with a single thrust. I bit my lip—our kids and the neighbors were upstairs—but I still cried out. He held my hips and took me with quick, brutal thrusts. I know my husband was thinking about the same thing as me—Jay bending me over the washing machine and fucking me. My hair fell down around my face and my tits bounced with each powerful thrust. His balls slapped the backs of my thighs.

“I can’t leave you alone for a second, can I?” he growled.

“No! You know I’m a slut. I’m your slut, hon!”

His fingers dug into my thighs, and he moved faster. I know he wanted to take me slowly, to draw it out, but he couldn't help himself. I was glad, because I couldn't take the teasing. I needed it, and I needed it badly. There was a sure way to get him to just pound me.

"I know you wanted me to fuck Jay. I don't care if you admit it. You wanted to see those big hands all over me..."

"Fuck, Dana..." Dave thrust faster.

"What if they laid me on the bar by the pool and Jana played with my tits while Jay fucked me?"

"Christ..."

"Neil could put it in my mouth..."

"Ohhh..."

"Fuck me, babe, please..." I begged.

Dave pounded me hard for another few seconds and with a long, low grunt he came inside me. I was whimpering, desperately trying to stay quiet by biting my hand and I came right after feeling his cum spurting inside me. He released my hips and I sagged to the steps. I couldn't support myself. Dave leaned against the wall, gasping. I was warm and satisfied all over. I loved the way my husband made me feel. My adventures with other men hadn't changed my desire for Dave at all—except maybe I wanted him more. I wanted him to see me as a sexy little nymph.

Dave sat on the steps beside me and stroked my hair. "You are an incredible woman. I don't know what I did to deserve the hottest woman on the planet, but I thank god every day."

"You just have to be you. I love you so much." I took his hand and kissed it. "Let's get up to bed."

CHAPTER

Five

After another week or so of thought—and much encouragement from my husband—I decided to go online and give it another shot. This time I extracted a promise from Dave that he would be there, at least in the beginning, when I met my date. I logged back into the website and found that my mailbox was jammed. A few guys sent multiple emails asking where I went, and I dismissed them out of hand. They just came off as too desperate. I was also greeted by several new potential dates. I read through their profiles, but no one excited me too much. The men who were married and cheating on their wives were an immediate turn off. I was fine with a married man in an open relationship, but I didn't like the idea of a man who deceived his wife—even if I was putting myself out there as a cheating wife in my profile.

It took a few days, but I found someone who interested me. Most of the guys who sent me messages were business types, guys who sat behind a desk all day. Some of them were good looking, but my close encounter with Jay left me craving someone a little—I hate to say it—rougher. Carlos seemed to fit that bill. He didn't claim to be over six feet, which right away made me think he was more honest than a lot of the men on there. He was a cop, which seemed very manly to me. I could just imagine him slapping the cuffs on and frisking me. Would my husband like to see something like that?

Carlos was forty-two and his black hair was buzzed down and looked to be graying at the temples. His eyes were intense. He had the requisite shirtless picture and I liked what I saw. He was more gym muscular than from physical labor, but his six-pack was tight. That would be fun to play with. He had a tribal tattoo around one bicep, which was okay, but I didn't love the replica of his badge on the other. I liked that his profile was right to the point.

A divorce had left Carlos with no desire to get into another relationship, but he still wanted sex and he thought married women would be good because there'd be no strings there—no attachments. He wanted a regular thing with someone, if possible, but no relationship. I could respect that. In his message he said it sounded like we were looking for the same thing, which was true. "Diana" claimed to be in a boring marriage she didn't want to leave and was looking for excitement. I almost asked Carlos if he went to bars where married women hung out, like Jay, but I didn't. They were similar, but not the same. I liked him and showed his profile to Dave. Carlos passed that all-important test and we were off to the races.

As soon as he knew I was interested, Carlos became flirty. He also asked for another picture, a special request. I told him that was crazy, that I didn't even know him, but he said that if I sent a picture, he specifically asked for he would know my other pictures weren't fake. I countered with a request of my own, but that did not deter him. The next day I received a selfie of Carlos wearing nothing but his tactical belt. It was such a silly request I didn't think he'd ever do it. Now it was my turn.

I didn't ask my husband first, I just fulfilled Carlos's request. It was a Sunday afternoon and Dave was in the yard with the kids. I was supposed to be folding laundry but took a break. I unhooked my bra and slipped it off without removing my t-shirt and then wiggled out of my shorts and panties. Carlos didn't ask for a completely nude shot, which surprised me. He just wanted to know if I was shaved. I knelt on the bed and faced the mirror over the dresser. He wanted to see me in bed, too. I rolled up my blue vintage t-shirt, so about half my breasts showed—he strangely did not specify topless—and held up my phone. My dark hair was down, framing my face, the play of afternoon light from the windows made me look good. But I chickened out at the last minute and covered my pussy with three fingers. He couldn't quite see everything, but I thought he could see enough to make a healthy guess. Taking the dirty picture made my pussy tingle. I texted an unedited version to Dave but cropped out my head for Carlos's version. No identifying naughty pictures for strangers! My husband replied right away, and it made me smile:

DAVE

You naughty girl! Wait til I get my hands on you later!

Carlos must have had the AshleyMadison app open, because he also replied quickly. He seemed pleased:

CARLOS

Can't be positive if you're shaved, but damn you've got a bangin' body. I can't wait to get my hands on you. Your husband is insane if he doesn't know what he's got.

My husband knew exactly what he had, which was why he was such a happy man. I shot back a response:

DANA

Don't get ahead of yourself. We haven't even met yet. We might not hit it off.

CARLOS

We need to do something about that. Are you free this weekend?

DANA

I'll see what I can do.

Dave thought meeting Carlos was a great idea and called his parents straight away. I'm not sure why, but I was surprised that Dave never commented on the fact that Carlos was Hispanic. Neither of us are racist, but I've never been with a guy who wasn't white. That wasn't planned. I'd just never thought about it. I know the interracial angle adds to the kink for a lot of guys, but I guess that wasn't part of it for my husband—or if it was, he kept it to himself. Carlos was going to a fellow officer's wedding that Saturday and staying downtown. He suggested we meet at the hotel bar after the reception. That was awfully convenient. I agreed to meet him but said he shouldn't expect to sweep me right up to his room. He replied to that with a simple, we'll see.

While Dave went to drop the kids at his parents', I got ready for my date. He would come to the hotel bar on his own. I always like to be sexy for my dates, but since Carlos would be in a suit, I thought I should be more dressed up than usual. I pulled a dress from the closet I'd worn for a client dinner before and posed in front of the mirror. The dress hadn't been worn in a couple of years, but it still fit perfectly. It was a short-sleeved aqua number with a V-neck that fell a few inches above the knee. It was classy, but still sexy. I wouldn't look like a hooker trawling for johns in the hotel bar. I'd bought the dress when Dave was trying to land a contract with a big developer that I knew I had to impress. The V-neck was not skimpy on the cleavage, the dress clingy, and let's just say Dave got the contract. I added a thin belt, ivory thigh highs and matching pumps and the outfit was complete. I decided it was a good night to wear my hair down with a wave in it and then did my make-up.

I knew Carlos was not the only person from the wedding staying at that hotel as soon as I walked into the bar. Knowing his friends were going to be around made me nervous and I almost walked right back out the door. There were maybe a dozen guys and their dates at the bar. The guys all had the swagger of cops and looked like they'd been drinking for a while. I wondered if Carlos was drunk too.

I looked around the bar and did not see my husband. I was getting a bad feeling and would have left right then if I hadn't caught Carlos's eye. He was in the middle of the group and was the only one still wearing his entire suit. He didn't know my face, or what I would be wearing, but I guess he knew my body well enough that he seemed to pick me out right away. He was even hotter in person, and I felt my nerves melt just a little. I gave him a shy little wave and he broke away from his friends to cross over and envelop me in a huge hug.

"You look a thousand times sexier in person, Diana," he whispered in my ear.

I knew then I wasn't leaving.

DANA WAS with a large group in the corner when I arrived at the bar. There was more than a dozen of them, and they'd taken over a side of the bar and a couple of tables. I scanned the group for my wife and found her there in the back, chatting with a guy I recognized as Carlos and another couple. She sat on a stool and his arm was around her like they'd been dating forever. She was wearing a sexy blue-green dress that she'd worn to impress a client at dinner a few years back. She certainly impressed that night. Her tits hung out of the low-cut neck and my client hadn't been able to look away. Carlos seemed just as impressed as that guy had been. Picking that dress meant Dana really wanted his attention. She had it. My cock grew in my pants, and I stepped to the bar to hide it, while doing my best not to stare.

I watched out of the corner of my eye and was so distracted I missed the bartender asking what I wanted. I ordered a beer.

“Are you looking for someone?” he asked.

“No, not really.”

“It’s just that you look local, that’s all. Not a guest at the hotel, so I thought you might be looking for someone—or something.”

He kept staring at me oddly until I realized his meaning. He thought I was there looking for a call girl. I immediately looked away from him. I don’t know why I was embarrassed that he thought I was there for a hooker. I mean, wasn’t the real reason I was there way worse? Should I tell him, No, I’m not looking to get laid. I want my wife to get laid. See that hot brunette over there? That’s her, and I’m hoping she’s going to fuck that muscular guy who’s hanging all over her. No, I was not going to say that, although it was tempting. If I was going to confess, why not a bartender? He was a perfect stranger. It would be fun to see his reaction. But I didn’t have the balls. He filled the silence.

“See that cool blonde over there?”

The bartender pointed to the other side of the room, where a cool blonde sat on the end of the black leather padded bench that ran the length of the bar, a little round table in front of her. She wore a tight black dress that looked like lace laid over a shorter dress, which meant the lace over her arms and cleavage was see-through. I guessed she was probably around my age, but she had one of those faces where she could be younger. Platinum blonde hair fell in waves around her face. She was stunningly, classically beautiful. It was hard to believe she was a call girl. If she was, she was one of the expensive ones.

“Her name’s Amelia. She’s in here two or three nights a week. I hear she’s pricy, but the word is she’s worth every penny. One guy told me it’s like you’re on a real date,” the bartender said.

I looked her over again. I could imagine she was worth a lot of money, but that just wasn’t my thing. “Sorry, that’s not why I came in, but thanks. I just had a date and I wanted to blow off some steam before I go home,” I said. I don't know why I felt the urge to explain myself to the bartender. It was a bar, and I wanted a drink. Wasn't that enough?

He noted my wedding ring. "I know how it is. Sometimes you need to unwind before you go home to the wife. Hey, I don't judge."

"Uh, thanks."

Over in the corner, Carlos was very close, whispering something in Dana's ear. She smiled and nodded. Had he just suggested they go up to his room? She'd probably been here at the bar for over an hour. I didn't know if Dana thought that was enough getting to know you time before going upstairs with him. I did know—from seeing their emails—that she was very into Carlos. I would be surprised if this evening ended with my wife fully dressed. I know I hoped it wouldn't. The anticipation of Dana going off to be thoroughly fucked by this stud was an uncomfortable high. I liked the feeling, but it left me wanting more. The bartender noticed me staring at Dana.

"I don't think she's a pro. She's hot, she could be, but she doesn't throw off the vibe," the bartender said.

"You're right, she's hot enough. I bet she'd make some money," I replied.

I had many fantasies of Dana with other men, but my wife as a call girl was not one, I'd considered—until then. I glanced back at the cool blonde and tried to picture Dana sitting there, waiting for a john to pay to take her upstairs. How did it work? Would Dana already have a room there, or would the john have one? I knew my wife would make her johns happy. She would make them feel like they were on a date, just like the blonde.

Dana wouldn't follow a no kissing rule. I thought about a man finding my wife so hot that he would pay to fuck her, and my cock rocked to full hardness. I'd only been at half-mast before that, but there it was in my mind; Dana going up to a hotel room with some stranger and her being completely his for the next hour, doing whatever he wanted, doing whatever he demanded. She would be the ultimate sex object. My wife would be more than my personal porn star—she'd truly be my whore. It was so exciting I had to push it out of my head before I lost all focus. Besides, I suspect that might be too far for Dana. I didn't know how I would even ask something like that.

"I've got her pegged for an internet date. She walked in here looking unsure, like she was looking for someone she'd never met before," the bartender continued.

“Yeah? So, I guess that dude is the lucky guy.”

“Looks like it. He came in with all those people from a wedding, so I’m a little surprised he had a blind date meet him here, but maybe he wanted his friends’ opinions on her.”

“I’d give her a thumbs up,” I said enthusiastically.

The bartender nodded. “Yeah, she’s a piece of ass. I bet there’s a decent chance he’ll get her upstairs.”

“Really? I don’t know if she looks like the type to sleep with a guy on the first date.”

“That’s hard to say, but from people watching it seems to me that older woman—not that she’s old—seem more confident in their bodies and freer with them. You know that whole sexual peak thing. I think that’s why so many guys chase cougars.”

“How about you? Do you like the cougars?” I asked. He looked to be somewhere in his mid-20s.

“When they look like her, hell yeah.”

The picture of Dana and this bartender together sprang into my mind. I saw him leading her through the door behind the bar, back into the storeroom, and pushing her up against cases of beer and liquor while they kissed. She might try to go to her knees in that dirty storeroom, but the bartender would probably need it to be a quickie so he would just bend her over some boxes and hike up her skirt. And then I pictured my wife doing the walk of shame out of that backroom, her dress barely straightened. Yeah, that would be hot.

“So, you think he’s going to get lucky tonight?”

“There’s a good chance,” the bartender said. “The way they’ve been drinking over there, it doesn’t seem like she’s holding back to keep her wits about her. It’s almost like she’s made the decision and she needs some liquid courage to follow through on it.”

“I think I’ll hang around a bit and see what happens.”

A bit turned out to be a couple more hours. I was drinking water by that point because I didn’t want to have to drive home drunk, and it looked like Dana had slowed her drinking too. She was obviously having a good time and I wondered what the holdup was. It was well after midnight and if she wasn’t going to go up to his room, I would have thought she’d have left by then. When Carlos’s friends started to drift away, I figured out my wife’s game. She didn't want his crowd to see her go to his room, so she was trying to wait them out. It made sense, but it would have been hot to see Dana led away while Carlos's friends made snide comments about his fucking her.

Dana put all that time to good use teasing me. That woman knows what gets me going. After she realized I was there, I noticed her snuggling closer to Carlos and playing up her attraction. His hands were all over her and she seemed to encourage it with her body language. It was after the group shared a shot that Carlos leaned in and kissed her. I loved that Dana didn't hesitate, but closed her eyes, tilted her head just so, and accepted his kiss like she'd been waiting all night for it. She placed her hand on the side of his face in that affectionate way she always did with me when we kissed. That caused the jealousy to spike in me, which only made me harder. I'd been hard off and on for so long by then that I was getting a serious case of blue balls. I don't think they kissed for more than a few seconds, but it was enough to prime my pump. I wanted my wife to leave with him.

Once the ice was broken, they kissed here and there, really behaving like they were dating. And by the end of the night, they were making out beside the bar. Only a couple of Carlos's friends were left, another couple and a single woman. Those three were talking amongst themselves while Dana and Carlos were back in the corner, making out like teenagers. She sat on a stool, and he stood in front of her.

Their deep kisses seemed to last forever, and Carlos's hands caressed her here and there, only just stopping short of groping her there in public. I was a little surprised the bartender didn't say anything, but he seemed as interested in their little display as I was. They finally came up for air and Carlos whispered something to Dana, which she answered with just a little nod. He called the bartender over and settled his tab.

Dana looked over at me and smiled while Carlos was distracted. It was the first time she'd looked toward me in a while. It was like she'd been so involved with Carlos that she'd forgotten I was even there. That burned a bit. She didn't look very drunk, but her eyes were full of lust. I could see how much she wanted her new friend. That look gripped my heart for just a moment, threatening to seize it. Just that one little look was as much of a thrill as seeing her with a mouthful of another man's cock. Carlos finished with the bartender, said his goodbyes, and took Dana's hand. I watched him lead my wife up to his hotel room to fuck her.

The bartender came over to me and said, “Now that was an interesting twist.”

“What’s that?”

“I noticed that chick was wearing a wedding ring.”

I pretended to be surprised. “Really? So, I guess it wasn’t a date after all.”

“No, I think it was a date. I told you she had that look. I’m sure those two never met before tonight. And he wasn’t wearing a ring. I think she was just stepping out on her old man.”

“Hmm.”

The bartender regarded me for a long moment. “I wonder if he has any idea what his wife is up to. Her husband I mean.”

“You think he might? Poor bastard.” I hoped I sounded suitably shocked.

“I don’t know. Some guys don’t care. They’re just happy to have the wife out of their hair, you know? And some guys even like it. They get off on that sort of thing.” He stared at me.

“That sounds...weird.”

“You ready for your check?” he asked.

“Yes, please.”

I didn’t like what the bartender seemed to have decided about me and I just wanted to get the hell out of there. I was ready to rush home and wait for my well-used wife and her juicy video.

CHAPTER

Six

My stomach was full of butterflies as Carlos led me through the lobby toward the bank of elevators. I caught my reflection in the shiny elevator doors, and I looked flushed and a little disheveled. I could see how my hair was mussed from Carlos running his fingers through it while we kissed at the bar. His hand was on my ass now and I was glad the lobby was almost empty. He pulled my lips to his and we kissed out there in the open. He was such a good kisser, and I couldn't get enough of him. I wanted Carlos so badly.

I'd had a lot of experience kissing men by then and while I thought Zach was very good, Carlos's kiss was hotter. There was a possessiveness to Carlos's kiss that made my toes curl. The elevator dinged and we reluctantly broke our kiss to board it. Just as the door slid closed, I saw Dave on the other side of the lobby watching us. His expression concerned and inflamed me. His eyes were narrowed like he was worried, but he also looked desperately turned on, like he wanted to follow us and watch more than anything.

Carlos pinned me against the back of the elevator and nuzzled me. I moaned when he sucked on my ear but pushed at his hand when he tried pulling my dress up. "You know they have cameras in these things," I warned.

"Of course, I know. I'm a cop, remember?" He sounded amused. "These poor security guards deserve a show. They don't make that much money."

He pulled at the hem of my dress, and I forced myself to let him. These shows were supposed to be for my husband, not some anonymous security guard, but performing for Dave had fanned that exhibitionist spark in me to full flame. Knowing that someone might be watching—and getting hard—while Carlos mauled me in the elevator was exciting. I knew Dave would love knowing that other guys were watching me like that. Carlos rubbed me, plastering my silky panties to my damp mound, and I moaned deeply.

The doors popped open, and I pushed Carlos backward into the hallway. I eagerly started one way down the hallway, but he pulled me back the other way. I didn't know where his room was. He was so excited that he fumbled with the card in the reader on the door.

Together, we pushed the door open and stumbled down the little hall to where the room opened up. There was nothing impressive about the room—it was a king bed, dresser, a little table in the corner with chairs. I could imagine my husband sitting in that corner, watching from the shadows as Carlos ravished me. It reminded me to start the camera and I pushed Carlos off long enough to put my little clutch purse down on the table, with the hidden camera just beside it. It was pointed perfectly at the bed.

Carlos held my face in both hands and kissed me deeply. It was a way to show I was his, and I loved it. His power gave me the chills. I pushed his jacket off and pulled at his tie. He turned me to find my zipper, but that dress unzipped at the side. I guided his hand down. He pulled my hair aside and nibble on my neck while slowing working the zipper. We faced the camera, giving my husband a perfect view. I still pretended he was sitting there and could almost see the intense look on his face, urging me on.

The dress dropped to the floor and Carlos's hands swept over my body. My lingerie was black, silky and skimpy. The bra pressed my tits up, creating the wonderful cleavage for the dress, and the thong panties only covered the bare minimum, so as to leave no lines. Carlos was not shy. He shoved a hand right down my panties and cupped my smooth pussy. I gasped and melted back against him. Fingers curled up inside me and I closed my eyes, overwhelmed by the suddenness of it all.

Guys in a car kind of went right for it, or if we were making out in some other odd place, like an alley behind a bar, but in a situation like this they seemed to take more time. Carlos did not dawdle. He slowly worked those fingers in and out of me, pressing onto my clit, and already I was moaning out of control and shaking as I felt an orgasm coming on. I rubbed my body back against his like an aggressive cat. And this was all facing the camera, almost like Carlos knew my husband was there watching us.

“You're hot for it, aren't you Diana?” he hissed in my ear.

I nodded.

“You need to come already.”

I nodded again, but he demanded I speak.

“Say it.”

“I need to come, baby. Please make me come.” I loved the way he made me say it.

“I’m gonna make you come now, and then I’ll really make you scream.”

“Ohhh...god...”

Carlos’s one arm wrapped around me, pinning me tightly to him, and his other hand kept busy on my pussy. It only took a couple more moments before he fulfilled his promise, and I was coming. I cried out and bucked in his tight grasp, but he held me fast. I could tell I would not be free until he was ready to release me, and that only made me hotter. I soaked his fingers and my thong, and I could hear his fingers moving inside me. Carlos didn’t let go until I began to breathe normally.

I sagged forward and braced myself on the table, right in front of the camera. Dave would be staring right at my soaked panties. I took a deep breath and turned to face Carlos. He looked thrilled with his handiwork and was eagerly anticipating what I would do next. I smiled and dropped my bra to the floor. Next, I wiggled out of my panties and struck a pose. It was the first time he saw me fully nude, and he liked it.

“Damn, babe, you look fucking amazing. Your husband is a fool.”

Hearing him trash my husband like that irritated me, but then I remembered he wasn’t talking about Dave, but Diana’s fictional hubby, who left her so bored she was looking for hook ups on the internet.

I confidently walked toward Carlos, grabbed him by the shirt and shoved my tongue in his mouth. I wanted to show him how much I appreciated the orgasm he’d just given me. The buttons on his shirt yielded to my insistent fingers and then I was crouched in front of him, opening his pants. He strained against tight, stretchy boxer briefs and I traced the outline of his length with my fingers. I was almost able to grip him through the stretch fabric and I tugged on him until he grunted impatiently. I don’t think Carlos was used to being teased.

His cock sprang out, smearing sticky, clear juice on my cheek when I freed it from his boxer-briefs. The nearly nude photo he’d sent me didn’t truly do him justice. Appropriately for a cop, his penis was like a blunt weapon—too thick for me to wrap my hand around and at least seven inches long. I didn't know how I would take something that big, but it would be fun finding out. I held him with both hands and sucked the tip between my lips, swabbing the head with my tongue to clean up all that dripping precum. I stood and pushed him back onto the bed.

"I like a woman who goes for what she wants," he chuckled.

"I know what it's like to do without," I said, playing up my role as Diana. "When I see something, I want, I know to grab it."

I crawled onto the bed between his spread legs and leaned over him, my hair tickling his chest. There was a quick kiss, then I focused on his neck, using my tongue, lips and teeth to find all his tender spots. Carlos laced his fingers in my hair and held me there when I nibbled on his neck where he liked it. My hand smoothed over his sculpted abs and grasped his shaft tightly. His body jerked and he grunted. Carlos was ready to fuck me, but I wasn't ready to let him. Not yet. He was a hot guy and I wanted time to play.

His chest really did seem to be carved from stone, and his abs were a work of art. I traced the tribal tattoo on his bicep with my tongue and then returned to tease his nipples, but he did not seem to like that, and he pulled me away from there. I ran my fingers over his abs like I just couldn't believe they were real. Carlos sat back and watched me worship his body, pleased that I wanted him so badly. I wonder if he thought of moments like this when he was in the gym. I know when I'm out running, or doing yoga, I'm thinking about the fact that some strange man is going to be seeing me naked soon, and I want him to like what he sees. But he could only take so much of that, I guess, because again he urged me lower.

I like a guy to be in control, but it can be annoying when they push your face toward their cock. It's like they are just assuming you're down to give them head. But Carlos was so strong and self-assured that it only felt natural to follow his lead. He was completely smooth down there—he didn't even have stubble. I like it when a man does some manscaping, but I hadn't encountered anyone like that before. Charles in the casino at least had some stubble. It was a little weird to be kissing him down there and have it be as smooth as my pussy. But when I started kissing his thick, hot shaft I forgot all about that. Only one thing dominated my thoughts.

Carlos stared at me hungrily while I kissed and licked his prick. He tasted masculine and musky, but clean. I lapped at him like he was a delicious candy cane. The way he stared at me made me tingle at my core.

This guy is going to fuck me silly, I thought. I held his baton in both hands and began working my way down it. My lips were stretched wide, and my mouth was full, but I relaxed and sucked down more. Carlos encouraged me with his eyes to swallow more and more.

“That’s so sweet, Diana. Suck that dick good.”

It was a shame the camera was behind me. Dave would have a beautiful view of my ass, but I know he’d love to see my mouth stretched around that huge cock. I imagined him coming around my side to watch. He wouldn’t be able to stay in the chair. Would Dave be amazed at how much cock I could fit in my mouth? Would he be intimidated to see how eagerly I sucked that monster? Look at your slut wife, Dave. Watch me sucking this big dick. I want it so bad, honey. I want this big bastard to feed me his cock. Pretending my husband was there just made me suck Carlos harder, cheeks hollowed as I amazingly made over half his cock disappear into my mouth.

“Damn, Diana. You want it, don’t you? You need it bad,” Carlos moaned.

I murmured, “Mmhm,” through my mouthful.

“Does your husband know what a great cocksucker you are? Jesus, I’d never let you out of bed, babe.”

Bobbing on that big cock made my jaw sore, so I switched to stroking it while licking the head and then kissing his hairless balls. My engagement ring caught the light from the bedside lamp, and I realized it was the first time I was seeing my hand, with wedding rings on, wrapped around a cock that was not my husband’s. It was just so wrong, and it gave me chills of excitement. His balls were big too. I loved how sucking them made him moan. It always seems to impress a guy when I suck his balls. I actually liked it when they were as clean as Carlos’s. It was fun playing with them with my tongue.

“Yeah, Di, that’s hot. Suck those balls,” Carlos encouraged while I slurped around them.

With all his fingers in my hair, he gently pulled me back up to take his shaft into my mouth. It seemed that he could only cede control for so long. I liked him taking charge again. Carlos guided my mouth up and down on his fat prick while I held it by the base. My free hand pinched and rolled my tingling nipples, but then moved down to rub my soaked mound. That climax he’d given me was like a distant memory. I needed more! I struggled to relax as Carlos forced more and more cock into my mouth. He kept me bobbing faster and faster. I'd gone from giving him head to him fucking my mouth. I looked up at him, considered asking him to slow down, but the intense look on his face stopped me. Carlos stared at me like I was the center of his universe, and that look made me want to do anything to please him.

"That mouth is fucking hot, Di. You're so fucking good," he praised, driving himself into my mouth. I almost gagged, but I was determined to keep going.

Hear that, Dave? I thought. Hear what a good cocksucker your wife is? Carlos is owning my mouth right now, just like you wanted. I could see my husband there—right beside us—jerking off as Carlos used my mouth. Dave would love to hear this stranger praising me.

Carlos did not ask if I was ready, or if I even wanted to swallow, but just held my head tightly with his cock buried in my throat. The first spurt shot right down my throat, but then he eased back and the second and third thick wads blasted right into my mouth. A couple of smaller detonations followed, and he pulled it out, leaving strings of come stretching back to my lips. I licked it away and made a show of swallowing what he'd deposited in my mouth. I don't mind at all when a guy comes in my mouth, and I liked the opportunity to play the slut for him. I also took my drenched fingers from my pussy and licked them clean, too. Something about Carlos just made me want to be his dirty whore. I knew my husband would approve.

"Your husband must be gay," Carlos said. He stared at me like he'd hit the jackpot.

"No, he's not." I reminded myself he was speaking of Diana's husband, not Dave. "He's just very busy with work. And besides, I think he might be cheating." Adding that to the narrative felt like it gave Diana more reason to be out with other men.

"There's no way he went out and found better than you, babe."

"Thanks. I aim to please." I smiled.

"Let me take care of the pleasing for a while."

Carlos pulled me toward him and turned me, so I was stretched out on my back beside him on the bed. He just laid on his side for a bit and watched me, running his hand over my smooth, pale skin—tracing my curves, driving me crazy with anticipation.

“You really do have a beautiful body, Diana. I see other girls in the gym all the time, busting their asses, but they will never be as hot as you are. They just don’t have the natural gifts you do.” He cupped one of my breasts, my breathing becoming heavy, and tweaked my nipple, drawing a whimper from my throat. His words had me glowing. Carlos really took the time to look at me, and it made me want him even more.

“I meet married women like you, and I can’t believe their husbands don’t appreciate the amazing women waiting in their beds. It’s like they’re asking me to fuck their wives.”

He was half right. My husband did want him to fuck his wife, but not for the reasons Carlos suspected. I wondered how he would feel if he knew about my relationship with Dave. A man like Carlos could probably never understand. “I don’t need to hear about all the married women you bed,” I told him.

“I just want you to know that I chose you. I want you to know that even though it’s just sex, it’s still special to me in its own way. It’s an honor to make a woman like you come.”

Under any other circumstances, his words would have made me laugh, but when he was playing with my nipples like that, I would eat up every word. He traced his fingertips around them, making me shiver, then he’d lightly pinch them, increasing the pressure until it was right on that delicious pleasure/pain line. Carlos was definitely experienced in pleasuring a woman. All that time bedding married women had served him well. If he could make me feel that good, I didn’t mind being another notch on his bedpost.

“You’re definitely making me feel something,” I moaned.

“Something good, I hope.” A hand glided down over my tummy, cupping my mound so two fingers could curve up and push deep inside me. I arched my back and cried out.

“Oh, yes!”

Carlos slowly fingered me and just laid to the side and watched me. It was a little weird at first, but when I touched his cock and I felt he was hard again, it became really hot. Much like the way my husband likes to watch me, so did Carlos, only he wanted to be the one getting me off. I looked up at him, feeling helpless as he controlled my body with just a couple of fingers.

I was so drenched that my juices soaked my thighs and the sheets beneath me. His thumb teased my clit, and he brought me right to the edge of orgasm, but stopped short, leaving me moaning and gasping, making little pleading sounds, hoping he'd get the message. He also kept caressing my tits and playing with my nipples and I was out of my mind with lust.

"Carlos...please..." I moaned.

"Please what?" He was a smug bastard, which only turned me on more.

"Please..."

He leaned in, growled in my ear, "Say it, Diana. Tell me."

"Ohhh...Carlos..."

I humped my pussy at his hand, but he knew just when to back off so I couldn't force him to make me come. My whole body was on fire. I grabbed his thick cock and stroked it, hoping to make him want to slide it in me. I stared at his cock because the avid expression on his face was too scary and exciting. But looking at his cock only made me think about how much I wanted it.

"Does your husband do this to you, Diana?" he whispered.

"No."

"He doesn't make you need it like this?"

"No...he doesn't..." I had to be honest with him.

"I bet you're the one that does the teasing, aren't you? You get off on it, right?"

"God yes! Please Carlos!"

"The little tease isn't used to being teased. I know what you're all about, Diana. And I know what you need."

"Please...please give me what I need." I begged him. I wasn't proud any longer. He knew exactly what I was.

Carlos chuckled and finally delivered. His fingers in my cunt, his thumb on my clit—they combined to drive me over the edge, and I was screaming in that hotel room, coming like I had never come before. He made my head spin and I swear I slipped out of my body for a second and watched it thrashing on the bed. But I could not thrash out of his control. His hands were too strong. Carlos held me down on the bed and climbed on top of me. That beautiful cock of his bounced between my legs and he ordered me to take it and put it in. I tried with my right hand.

"No, your other hand," he demanded.

I knew what he wanted. I looked down and watched as my hand wrapped around his shaft. My wedding rings seemed to glow against his skin, a beacon of my infidelity. I used that unfaithful hand to stuff his prick into my pussy. With one deep thrust he drove it home and I was screaming again—coming again. I didn't even care that it hurt a little, because it felt even better. He pulled my left leg up, threw it over his shoulder, and then laid into me.

I couldn't believe how deep he was. I'd never felt anything like it. I've been with bigger guys, and I've honestly never really thought it made that much of a difference—sometimes it even hurt too much—but Carlos knew what to do with it. He knew how to make me his. He stared down and his eyes pinned me to the bed with just as much power as his cock.

It felt like Carlos fucked me endlessly. I don't know how many times I came. He leaned back and lifted my ass into the air and drove himself down into me like a pile driver, but then he leaned in, covering my body with his, and whispered how beautiful I was while he took me with long, slow strokes. I clawed for his granite arms, but he took my wrists and pinned them to the bed. Being restrained was so incredibly hot.

He sat upright on the bed and held me, so we were face to face while he effortlessly bounced me on his cock. I screamed myself hoarse while he used my body. It was only when he finally asked me if I was on the pill that I realized he'd been fucking me bareback all that time.

I was horrified. That was one of our ironclad rules, as much mine as Dave's. I was on the pill but getting pregnant wasn't even my primary concern. My husband would be furious when he saw that I let Carlos have me like that. I was sure of it. I was furious with myself. And yet, I did not make Carlos stop. I couldn't.

"Please don't come inside me," I pleaded.

"It's hotter when I don't," he growled in my ear, biting my earlobe.

Carlos tossed me back onto the bed and I bounced. He crawled over me, jerking his cock. I took over, sure to use my left hand. I watched the gleam of my rings as my hand glided over his shaft. He cried my name and thick, pearly liquid shot all over my tits. The ropery cum seemed to blast out like a hose and a strand even blasted across my face. I stroked him until I was sure he was done, until the last of his load ran down over my wedding rings, and then I leaned up and sucked him, licking his wonderful cock clean. He knelt beside me, looking down at my sweat and cum covered, worn out body.

“You’re an extraordinary woman, Diana. That was spectacular.”

I smiled up at him, still stroking his cock. I couldn’t seem to let go of it. “God, which was amazing, baby,” I said.

“Let me get us some water.”

THAT WAS ONLY ROUND ONE. By the time I left Carlos’s hotel room, it was after four in the morning, and I was so sore I could hardly walk. Despite taking a shower, I know I looked like exactly what I was—a well-used whore sneaking across the hotel lobby to steal home before the sun came up. I had never been so thoroughly used—or pleased—in my life. I hate to compare lovers, but he made Zach—who has his charms—look like a rank amateur. It was a little bit scary because Carlos made me forget all about my husband watching. Carlos was all I thought about while I was his. That wasn’t really part of the plan. I didn’t make him use a condom the second time either. I’d weakly protested, but he quickly won me over. I promised myself that next time I would absolutely, positively make Carlos use one. And I knew there would be a next time. Carlos made me promise before I left.

“You’re going to see me again, aren’t you?” he said while we laid in bed at the end. I was fresh out of the shower, having scrubbed both his loads off my body, and he insisted I come back to bed for a while.

“I’ll have to see if I can sneak out again.”

“Where does your husband think you were tonight?”

“I told him I was having drinks with a girlfriend,” I lied. “He’ll think I just had too much and had to sleep it off—if he even notices.” I kept up the fable of an inattentive husband. My real husband might have been annoyed at the late hour.

“Then you can do the same thing again, Diana. This can’t be a one-night stand. I have to have you again.” He kissed me.

“We’ll see.”

He kissed me again, this time long and deep. I was breathless and I promised him I would see him again.

I didn't know how Dave would feel about that. I thought he would love the video, but I worried I'd gone too far. Watching Carlos fully possess me would either be Dave's ultimate fantasy fulfillment or his worst nightmare. I wished I knew which it would be.

When I came home Dave was asleep on the couch. He'd tried waiting up for me, but the sun was just beginning to rise. I thought about leaving him be—God knew I needed to go to bed—but I knew he'd want me to wake him. I gently shook him and kissed his forehead.

"Dana? Jeez, what time is it?" he asked groggily.

Dave blinked and tried to stretch the stiffness out of his body. He'd fallen asleep in an awkward position. The iPad, which had been in his lap, slid to the floor. I knew that meant he'd been watching videos of me on my hot dates while he waited for me to come home from this one. He tried to hide from me how often he watched those videos, but I knew my husband couldn't get enough of my adventures. It disturbed me a little bit—I still wasn't entirely comfortable watching them, even if it did turn me on—but I accepted that it was just part of his fantasy.

"Sorry I'm so late, honey. Time just got away from us."

A couple of emotions washed over his face, and then Dave smiled. "I guess you were having a good time then."

"It was a good night." I never knew quite how to reply to that question. I didn't want him to think I was rubbing it in.

"At least you made it home before morning." That was another of our rules. I did not spend the night with other men.

"Carlos had me quite distracted. I wasn't thinking about the time."

"I can't believe you just went right up to his room like that. You little slut." Dave waited for me to react, and then he laughed.

"You saw him. I couldn't help myself."

"Yeah, you two were like longtime lovers at the bar. He was all over you. It was fucking hot, babe."

"I'm glad you liked it, sweetheart." I kissed him sweetly.

"I didn't think the clean-cut, law and order guy was your type."

"I don't know. There was just something about him."

"So did you guys fall asleep..."

I shook my head and said, "All night long, baby."

Again, emotions warred on his face before he answered, "You really are so hot, Dana. I can't wait to see it."

I dug the hidden camera out of my bag and handed it to him. “You can check it out. I’m going to go upstairs and change into something comfy. I’m worn out.”

Dave eagerly went over to the computer while I went upstairs and stripped out of the sexy dress and lingerie. I scrubbed off the little bit of makeup I’d re-applied after my shower in the hotel room and pulled my hair back with a headband. In the mirror I just looked like a tired, thirtysomething suburban mom, not a horny sex pot who’d just spent the night in a near-stranger’s hotel room. I flopped down on the bed, planning to rest my eyes for a second, when Dave came storming into the bedroom.

“What the hell, Dana?”

“What?”

“There’s no video. The thing is blank.” He was genuinely angry, and the blood turned to ice in my veins.

“Are you sure? I turned it on. I know I did.”

“I plugged it into the computer and there’s nothing on the camera. You were there all night and there’s nothing.” He shook the fake car remote at me like an accusatory finger.

“Maybe it wasn’t charged. I don’t know what happened. I did what I always do.” I sat up on the bed, angry now too. I didn’t like what he was implying.

“You’re out all night, I’m cool with that. I’m eagerly waiting to see what happened, but then I get nothing.” I couldn’t believe how angry he was.

“Hey, I’m out all night because you want me to be. Don’t forget whose idea this all was.”

“I’m sure you hated every second of it. It sure looked that way at the bar.”

“I could end this right now and never look back.” I was on my feet.

“Could you?” he spat.

We stood there, facing off, both red-faced and huffing. I couldn’t believe how he was coming down on me. I made his fantasy happen. I threw off my wedding vows because he wants me to fuck other men, and now he had the nerve to act like I was some harlot. I thought I might smack him. But then his face softened, his body sagged, and he just looked deeply disappointed.

“I’m so sorry, Dana. I know it’s not your fault. Technical failures happen.”

Dave looked like he might cry and suddenly I felt bad, too. It felt like I could have been more understanding. I knew what this meant to him. He never would have asked me to do all those things if it didn’t mean so much.

“It’s okay, baby. I’m sorry I let you down. I swear I wanted you to see it. I couldn’t wait for you to see how hot it was.” I put my hands on his arms. I wanted to comfort him.

“I know. It’s okay.”

“If it’s this intense, maybe we need to take a step back.”

“No,” he answered quickly. “No, we don’t have to stop. I was just disappointed, that’s all.”

“Really? I’m a little concerned...”

“Come on, Dana. You don’t want to stop either. I saw you with Carlos. You were so into it.”

“I was,” I answered tentatively. “He was a really good kisser, but...”

Dave started touching me. Massaging my breasts through my tank top until my nipples pressed into his palms. I sighed. His touch always felt so good, I couldn’t help responding to it, no matter how worn out I was. He guided me back toward the bed.

“And then upstairs, you said it was hot?” Dave pulled at my tank top, lifted it over my head. He pushed the loose, little shorts I’d just pulled on to the floor.

“He was so good, baby. I couldn’t believe it.” We kissed and I reached for his prick. I knew I would find him hard. I pulled at his clothes.

“Yeah, he made you feel good, Dana? He made your pussy wet?”

We were on the bed now, touching each other and kissing between the words. I stroked his cock, used my left hand again on purpose, and couldn’t help noticing how different my husband’s cock was from Carlos’s. Dave was a nice size, but I could wrap my fingers around it. It felt different to have my hand in that familiar place instead of where it should never be. I had been so bad, and it turned me on so much. As tired as I was, I was still horny. I thought I wouldn’t need sex again for a week, but I was wrong.

“I was so wet. He undressed me, baby, and then he made me come before he undressed. He fingered me the second we were in the room.”

“Jesus, you were a whore.”

“Yes, I couldn’t help it. He made me come so easily.”

Dave slid inside me so easily. It hurt a little because I was so sore, but it felt good to be filled again. He slowly rocked his cock in and out of me.

“And he didn’t care that you’re married?”

“He liked it. He likes fucking other men’s wives,” I moaned.

“And you were more than willing.”

“Yes, baby. I let him do everything he wanted. I pretended you were there. I wanted you to see what a good slut I was.”

“Fuck, Dana. I wish I was there. I wish I saw it.”

“I was screaming. He made me come all night...”

“Ohhh...Dana...”

“And when he was done, he just came all over my tits and my face. He covered me with his cum, Dave.”

“Ohhh...shit...Dana...”

Dave did not last very long at all. We made love for a few minutes and then he was coming inside me. I really didn’t mind that I didn’t climax with him. I was so sore and tired I don’t know that I even could have. Just having my husband inside me, being close to him like that, was enough. Our bodies remained tangled together, even after we were done.

“Shit, Dana. I love you. I love you so much.”

“I love you too, baby.”

Dave turned serious. “I really mean it. I know you go out and do this stuff for me, and I love you so much for it. What other woman would do something like this for her husband?”

I wanted to lighten the mood. “It’s my pleasure. Really.” I laughed.

“I’m sorry about tonight. I promise it won’t happen again.”

“I’ll be more careful next time. I’ll find some way to make sure it’s recording.”

“You’re the best, Dana.”

More than a few worries bubbled up at the back of my mind, but I was truly exhausted, and I just pushed them down and gave into the darkness.

CHAPTER

Seven

I needed to chill things out after that night with Carlos. I tried to be understanding about Dave's outburst, but it really did bother me how he lost it just because the camera didn't record my hot date with Carlos. I know my husband wasn't really accusing me of turning off the camera on purpose—really, why would I? I wasn't sneaking around. He had already seen me with men, multiple times with Zach, so what would I be hiding? After all that, what wouldn't I want Dave to see?

But honestly, a tiny part of me was relieved—not that I could ever tell my husband that. The sex with Carlos was so intense, I gave myself to him so completely, that I was a little scared Dave wouldn't have reacted well to it. I knew he wanted to see me enjoy myself, but did he want to see it to that extreme? It also gave me a convenient excuse to keep it to myself that Carlos did not wear a condom. I told myself there was no point in confessing, since the damage was done. And I swore I would never let it happen again. But all of that would be tested when I saw Carlos again. I had promised him and—even if it was dangerous—it was a promise I wanted to keep. Just not yet.

Carlos wanted to see me as soon as possible. He messaged me the next day. Since he knew I was married, I had the useful excuse that he would have to wait until I could get out again. He told me the longer he had to wait the more I would have to make up to him. I promised him I would, and just typing that made me wet. My excitement at seeing Carlos again was part of the reason I put him off. I needed some time to collect myself.

Putting Zach off was not as easy. It wasn't like I saw him all that often anyway, but after I turned down three different invitations over a couple of weeks, I noticed his texts became fewer. If he didn't want to wait that was his choice. And if he did, I would make my absence up to him, too. I began to realize that having three lovers was a lot of work.

I tried to talk to Dave about what happened that night, but he just put me off, insisting everything was fine now. He promised nothing like that would happen again. That did nothing to assuage my fears that he was too deep into this fantasy, but he would not discuss it any deeper than that. When I tried to force the issue, he shut me down. Instead of wanting to stop and assess things, he wanted to charge right ahead.

"I'm just a little worried this is becoming too big a part of our lives," I told him. It was late one night after the kids were in bed, which was about the only time we had to talk about such things. Talking in code when they were around required too much effort.

"It's not like you go out every night. You haven't been out at all in the last few weeks." Dave had been down in the family room doing god knew what with the iPad and he seemed annoyed by the interruption.

"That's because I felt weird after that last night."

"Do you still feel weird?"

"Maybe a little. I don't know. I have worries."

"Are you worried about yourself? Is it too much for you?" He managed to sound concerned for my feelings. That was unfair. I knew he was concerned about my feelings, but he was also very interested in making sure we did not stop.

"No, I'm fine. I think."

"What does that mean? Is there something I should know about?" he asked.

"Really, I'm fine with what I'm doing. It's fun. I like the way it makes me feel when I go out. I don't have any problems with that. Although it's a little different now than when we started. It isn't just going out and meeting men and seeing what happens."

"Yeah, that bit's changed. Have you heard from Zach lately?"

"Not in a few days. Why do you ask?"

"Nothing. Just curious."

I could tell he wasn't just curious. "Does it bother you that I keep seeing him? That sort of thing is what I was talking about when I said things have changed. It feels different to go over there and be with him than it does having a one-night stand. It's become like sleeping with someone I know."

“Are you saying you’re getting attached?” Now Dave really did sound concerned.

“No, not in any meaningful way. I like the time I spend with Zach, and we do talk a little, but it’s still all about the sex. He knows I’m not looking for a boyfriend.” That was mostly the truth. It was mostly about sex.

Dave looked relieved, but a little suspicious. “Then what’s the problem.”

“I just want to be sure you’re okay with everything. I know you encouraged me to see Zach again, but I don’t know that you envisioned me seeing him again and again. Especially now that Carlos wants to see me again, too.”

That weird cloud passed over Dave’s face. The one where he seems to be feeling too many things at once. He’d been kind of obsessed with Carlos, making me give him the details over and over again while we made love. Dave never lasted long. It almost felt like not seeing what happened that night was hotter for him than the videos he got.

“I’m okay with whatever you want to do,” he said. Dave took my hand. “If going over to Zach’s house does it for you, then I’m all for it. If you want to see Carlos again, do it. As long as you come home to me and bring me hot stories, or better yet videos, I’m good. I have the sexiest wife on the planet, and I want everyone to know it. I love that these guys can’t keep their hands off of you. If there comes a time that seeing Zach becomes a problem, I know you’ll tell me.”

“So, you’re okay if I make another date with Carlos?” I was perhaps a little too focused on Carlos, I’ll admit.

“Sure. If your night with him was as hot as you said, why wouldn’t you want an encore. I just don’t want you to stop going on and meeting men. That first seduction is really hot to me.”

“Me too, babe. I’ve still been fielding emails on the website.”

“Good.”

“There’s one other thing. Carlos wants my phone number. We’ve been emailing on the site, but he wants more access to me.”

“He knows you’re married, right?”

“He does. He says I should get a burner phone. Apparently, that’s a cop term for one of those pre-paid cell phones.

“That’s probably not a bad idea. And if he wants to see you, make a date.”

“Okay, if you’re sure.”

“Dana, I am sure. How many different ways do I have to say it?”

“I promise I’ll make sure the camera is on next time.”

“I’m working on a solution for that.”

That piqued my interest. “Do tell.”

“I will, when it’s ready. Just trust me.”

I told Dave I did, but I still felt he wasn’t being entirely candid with me. Nothing he said made me feel like my hot dates weren’t becoming too important for him. He actually left me with the opposite feeling. A smart woman might have put the brakes on there, but my husband swore he wanted me to keep going and everything was fine. I might have walked away if I wasn’t having so much fun, but just thinking about another date with Carlos made me wet.

THE VERY NEXT MORNING, I got the kids off to school, went for my run, and after a shower I ran out and bought a pre-paid smartphone. I had more errands to take care of, but I couldn’t help myself and drove straight home to activate it. I had Carlos’s number and the first thing I did with the phone was to send him a nude photo of myself lying on the bed—without my face, of course. I knew he must be working, but he answered me right back. I was impressed he knew it was me.

CARLOS

I know what you look like now, Di. No reason to hide your face

DANA

I have plenty of reasons not to send out naked pics with my face on them

CARLOS

U can trust me. I’m the police

DANA

Shouldn’t you be out protecting and serving?

CARLOS

Give me inspiration. Let me see that sweet ass

I went to the full-length mirror in my walk-in closet and took a photo of my butt for him. It felt awkward because I've never been a huge fan of my butt, despite the compliments I've received on it. Carlos replied to the photo:

CARLOS

Perfect. Play with yourself now

DANA

Don't push your luck

I was not about to go that far. It felt naughty and hot sending him the pictures, but I wasn't ready to send him anything more explicit. It didn't surprise me that he asked, though. His emails about what he planned to do to me were very detailed.

CARLOS

Does this mean I'm going to see u again soon?

DANA

Working on it. Hubby has poker night soon

CARLOS

Can't wait

I could have teased Carlos all morning, but I had things to do. I'd stopped working full time when Dave's business really took off, becoming a stay-at-home mom. I still helped with the paperwork for his business, and taking care of the house took time, but I'd been a little out of sorts since the kids started school a couple of years ago. Since I'd gone online looking for hot dates, maintaining my hotwife lifestyle had become something of a hobby. What a strange hobby for a nice housewife and mom from the suburbs!

I paused while dressing and sent Carlos one more photo—posed in front of the mirror in bra and panties. It was a sexy, lacy sea-green Victoria's Secret set that my husband really loved. I threw on a top and short yoga pants and ran out the door.

The morning passed quickly, and I barely arrived on time at the Applebee's near Jana's office to meet her for lunch. She was already in a booth with a martini in front of her when I dropped into the other side.

"Starting a little early, aren't we?" I asked.

“It’s been one of those mornings. I’m ready to chuck it all and stay at home like you,” she said.

“I don’t know. I picture us sitting around the pool every day drinking a pitcher of margaritas.”

“There’s time for some of that,” I admitted, though that wasn’t much fun by myself. The waitress came and I ordered white wine. I could have a glass and still drive.

“At least you don’t have to wear heels every day.” Jana was dressed like a typical office warrior, dark skirt suit with a white shell underneath and heels—except that her suit was tailored to show off her curves and the heels were about two inches higher than was probably appropriate for the office. She said it helped the promotions come faster, and I didn’t doubt it.

“I like heels,” I replied, wiggling my toes in my flip-flops.

“That’s because you hardly ever have to wear them.”

“You have a point. I don’t miss dressing for work every day.”

“And look at you. You’re just out running around, but you look adorable.”

“Stop it.”

“I’m just saying, I bet all the bag boys offer to carry your things at the supermarket.”

“Really, you’re starting to embarrass me.”

“You blush way too easily, hon,” Jana said. “You should enjoy the attention while you have it. Girls like us have what, another good ten years?”

“I’m not ready to be put out to pasture yet.” It was funny how Jana lumped us together, considering she was more than five years older than me. I loved my friend, but I hoped that when I hit 40, I wouldn’t be as obsessed with holding onto my youth as she was. “And you don’t look like you’re ready for the glue factory either.”

“But it takes so much more work to hold onto now.”

I laughed. “Work you enjoy.”

“What are you implying?”

“We both know what I’m implying, you tramp. How’s AJ, anyway? Been working your glutes?”

Jana had the grace to look embarrassed, but only for a second. “I wouldn’t know. It’s been a while. I need to make an appointment.”

AJ was the personal trainer Jana had an on-and-off fling with. It wasn't more than a few times a year, as far as I knew—mostly when Jana needed the ego boost. I guess AJ was a man like Carlos, who was happy to take advantage when the chance presented itself. When Jana had first told me about her trainer a couple of years earlier, I'd been scandalized. You never think one of your friends is the type to cheat—no matter how much of a shameless flirt they may be.

"Do you think Neil has any clue?" I asked.

"About AJ? Absolutely not. I'm very careful, and it's not like I'm sneaking out to see someone a couple of times a week. You know I just sort of indulge myself with AJ when I need a particular itch scratched. I wouldn't even call it an affair."

"But if he did, how do you think he would react?"

"I'm sure he wouldn't be happy. How would any husband react to an affair?" Jana seemed baffled by my question. "Do you think Dave would be dancing in the street if you cheated?"

If only you knew, I thought. "I don't know. Some guys are kind of happy to be relieved of the burden of dealing with their wives."

"I guess, but Neil is not one of those men, and I doubt Dave is either. Are you trying to tell me something? Dana, you little slut, are you fucking someone?" Jana looked very amused by the prospect and drank nearly all of her martini. I was sorry to burst her bubble.

"No, I'm not trying to admit to an affair. The guilt would eat me up. I don't think I could screw around behind Dave's back." My choice of words was deliberate. "I was just thinking that if AJ gives you a pressure release now and then and you're not going to run away with him, should Neil mind?"

"That's some progressive thinking; the kind of thinking I doubt many husbands are capable of. Even the cheating ones seem to think it's okay for them to go out and chase tail, but god forbid if their wives sleep with another man. What's up, Dana? You definitely sound like something's on your mind."

There was something very much on my mind, but I couldn't just come out and admit to it. I was being a coward. Somehow, I just didn't think Jana would understand it if I tried to explain the hotwife lifestyle to her. Yes, she was sleeping with her personal trainer, but casual cheating was a world away from sleeping with other men to turn your husband on. I decided on another tact.

“Has Neil ever asked you to do something—does he have any fantasies—that you just don’t get? I mean, sexually.”

“I know what you mean, Dana. Is Dave asking for the butt? Is that what this is all about? If it is, just use a lot of lube and try to relax. It only really hurts at the beginning, and you might even like it—although it’s not really for me.”

“No, Dave did not ask for anal!” I blurted out. Realizing I might have said it too loudly, I slumped down into the booth, embarrassed.

“Well, you know I think he’s a hottie. If he wants it and you’re not into it, tell Dave I’m good to go.” Jana laughed.

“I’ll make sure I let him know. But this isn’t about that. I’m just curious if Neil’s ever brought anything up in bed that just sort of threw you, made you think about him differently.”

Jana appeared to really think about it. Our food came and she asked for another martini. “I don’t think he’s ever asked for anything too freaky, but I might not be the best judge of that. I’m up for just about anything. Threesomes are fine. I’m sure Neil would love one with you, if you’re interested.”

“Uh, no thanks,” I answered quickly. Then I thought about how Dave would love to watch me with Jana and Neil and added, “Maybe someday. We’ll see. You’re going to need a lot of wine.”

“You’ve done it, haven’t you? You’ve had a threesome!” Jana deduced.

“Not so loud!” I was sure the guys in the booth behind us were having a great time eavesdropping. “Yes, there was this time years ago when we went away for the weekend with another couple and...things happened.” It seemed like a good idea to pretend the threesome with Zach and his roommate never happened.

“I would have never guessed, but then you two are a little too perfect. The Double D’s are a pair of freaks.”

“Hey, don’t you dare tell anyone,” I insisted. “It was a very long time ago. We’d been drinking all day and it was late and like I said, things just happened.”

“I’m not judging, hon. A threesome with the right people can be totally hot.”

“You and Neil?”

“Only once. It was for his 30th birthday, so it was forever ago. But I had my share of fun back in college. A lot of crazy shit happened at those raves in the 90s.” Jana brought us back on topic. “So, does Dave want another threesome? Isn’t his 40th birthday coming up? What did he ask you, hon?”

“Forget about it. It’s nothing really. Dave just said something that really surprised me recently and I was wondering how to take it. You know, you’ve been with someone for a long time, and they just say something that makes you look at everything in a different light.”

“I’m not sure there’s anything sexual Neil could ask for that would really throw me, unless he asked me to get a strap-on.” Jana’s eyes widened. “Oh my god, did Dave ask for gay stuff?”

“No! Absolutely not,” I insisted. I could see I wasn’t getting anywhere. There was really no way to talk to Jana about what was going on without just saying it, and I was not prepared to do that. I was too afraid of being judged. “Just forget I ever said anything. Really.”

“Are you sure? It sounds like something’s really on your mind.”

“I don’t think it’s anything,” I lied. “Dave probably just said it at the wrong time, and I wasn’t prepared for it.”

“Maybe. I just can’t see sweet Dave asking for anything so crazy. You’re probably being too hard on him.”

“Probably,” I agreed.

“What you need to do is go change into one of your cute little sundresses—you know, one of the short ones—leave a few buttons open and bring your husband lunch. Let him know you’re still his little sexpot. He would love that.”

“And so would the other guys on the jobsite.”

“I’m sure they would.” Jana gave me a weird look, like she knew Dave liked other men seeing me that way.

I guess it was obvious to our friends that Dave liked me dressed up. They just didn’t understand the extent of it. Dave would love to see all those guys staring at me as I strutted into his office with a surprise lunch. Knowing all his guys wanted to fuck me would probably make him so hard I’d have to at least blow him in the trailer. I smiled thinking about it.

“If you’re really lucky you’ll run into Jay on your way in,” Jana said dreamily.

“You think? Why tease the poor boy? He can’t have the boss’s wife,” I giggled.

“But he sure wants her.”

“Stop it.”

“Please. I did my best that night, but studly Jay only had eyes for you, hon. I’m not sure your being the boss’s wife would have stopped him.”

I recalled that night in the laundry room when we were standing so close. The atmosphere between us was so charged. I could feel Jay’s attraction to me, and he didn’t seem particularly interested in fighting it. If Dave had left us alone maybe the younger man would have made a move. What would I have done if he’d kissed me? Instinct probably would have kicked in and I’d have given myself to him. And if Dave came upon us kissing, would he have withdrawn? Lingered and watched? I would have sworn before that my husband would draw the line at playing with someone from work, but I wasn’t so sure anymore. The doubts I had that night resurfaced.

“Judging by the look on your face, I don’t think you would have stopped him either.”

“Jana,” I protested.

“You wanted that boy toy as much as I did, didn’t you?”

“Wanting and having are two very different things,” I said, hoping to placate her.

Jana laughed. “I think you want to have him! Dana, you sly little thing.”

“I told you, I couldn’t live with the guilt of cheating.”

“It’s worth a try for a guy like Jay, if you ask me.”

I just shook my head and buried my face in my hands.

“You should put on that little dress, shake your ass on down to the jobsite, and see who grabs you first.”

It was a hot fantasy—but no. “Okay, time to change the subject.”

“You really need to loosen up, hon,” Jana said, patting my hand.

Jana let me off the hook after that, much to my relief. She was pretty tipsy by the end of lunch, and I asked if she should be driving back to the office, but she insisted she was okay. I only took her word for it because her office was right there. We parted with a hug and a promise to get together again soon. I would like that but sending me on hot dates seemed more important to my husband than socializing with our friends.

Sitting in the Prius, I dug out my burner phone and saw a slew of texts from Carlos. He was suggesting I sneak out and meet him during his meal break, and then he tried to entice me by suggesting what he would do to me if I did. Handcuffs were mentioned, giving me a dangerous thrill. When I hadn't responded to that, he asked for another picture. I could just imagine him sitting in his squad car with his partner showing off the nude selfies of the hot married woman he was sleeping with. And when I hadn't replied to that text, he promised to punish me the next time he saw me. That could be fun, I thought. I fired off a reply:

DANA

Punishment? What did you have in mind?

Carlos did not immediately respond. I knew he was probably busy, but I did wonder if he was torturing me back. I quickly glanced around, and seeing the coast was clear, I pulled up my shirt and sent him a shot of my sexy bra, despite knowing he could be sharing my pictures. Honestly, it was hot to think Carlos thought I was hot enough to show off. I gave him a couple minutes to respond and then got on with my day.

CHAPTER

Eight

Dana looked surprised and suspicious when I told her I arranged for the babysitter so we could go to dinner. It had been a long time since we'd gone out together with no agenda other than having a nice night out. I insisted I was not planning on it being a hot date, but in the back of my mind that was a possibility. It was always a possibility for me now. I just couldn't help it. If we were out somewhere and some guy started checking her out—which always happened—my mind immediately went there. If we could have a nice dinner and then have a little dirty fun afterward, I didn't see the harm in it. I knew Dana might not agree.

It was hard to find a balance, bringing this lifestyle into our normal lives. How much was too much? I wished I had an answer, but my brain has been all over the place. Back when we started, my fears ruled a lot of my decisions. I was super excited for my wife to go out and do this thing for me, but there was still the fear that it could all backfire. What if Dana decided she liked the excitement of going out and finding strange men more than she liked being with me? And when we started, I took her at her word that she was not interested in having sex with anyone else—it would only be fooling around with other men. I may have been hoping she would change her mind, but I didn't think she would. But Dana did exactly that, which brought with it new dangers. At that point, I was sure I only wanted her to have one-night stands. I didn't want to risk Dana forming an attachment to anyone else. But as soon as the opportunity presented itself, I encouraged her to go and see Zach again. I was still uneasy with that arrangement, but every time I watched a video of Dana fucking that younger man it gave me such a thrill that I couldn't wait for her to go back and see him.

So, who am I to answer the question of balance? How many nights a week should my wife be going out to meet other men? Ask me three times and I'll give three different answers, depending on my mood. I love Dana and want her home with me, but the desire to have her out there, being bad, is so strong. The best I could do is trust her to decide. Dana is probably the more rational one when it comes to our hot dates.

I ran upstairs to change for dinner and caught her in the midst of getting ready. I just had to stop and admire her. She caught me watching and smiled, then continued getting ready. She likes to reveal herself to me before she goes out on a date, but seeing her getting ready is hot, too. I used to help her pick outfits, but her confidence has grown to the point where she knows exactly what to choose.

Dana was beside the bed, in nothing more than a pair of see-thru lace black panties. The panties weren't a thong, but they did cling to her ass and climb into the crack like they'd been airbrushed onto her pale skin. The matching black bra was gauze-thin, completely see-thru, and didn't offer much in the way of support. Her firm, round tits would be jiggling for whoever cared to look all night. My hardening cock made it difficult to change into the pair of nice jeans I was wearing for the night.

"Is it supposed to be chilly tonight?" she asked. It was the end of September, and the dregs of summer weather could be unpredictable. It was blue skies and beach weather one day and downright chilly the next day.

"I think you'll be cold in that no matter what it's like outside," I replied.

"Then I'll just have to find someone to warm me up. Are you up to the job?" After clasping and adjusting her bra, Dana came around the bed and reached up to put her arms around my neck.

"I don't know if I'll be quick enough to get there first." I chuckled, but the briefest frown flashed across her face. Dana was looking to a nice night with her husband, not an evening ending in a stranger's bed. I wanted to make love to my wife very badly, but more than that I wanted to see someone else doing it. It was crazy that I wasn't sure of my answer, but if she knew my surprise, I'm sure she would have understood.

"If you're not, it'll be your loss." She gave me a peck and turned to go back to dressing.

"I'll have you if I want you," I said sternly.

I caught her wrist and turned her back to me. She needed me to assert myself and prove she was still truly mine. I forced her back against me and just about lifted her from the floor to roughly kiss her. Dana whimpered and went slack in my arms as she submitted to me. I usually take the lead in the bedroom, and I know she likes a strong man, but it was unusual for me to just seize her like that. Her hands moved to my chest, but not to push me away. She grabbed fistfuls of my shirt to hold onto me.

“You think so?” she breathed between kisses. “Prove it.”

With a quick turn, I dropped us both onto the bed. Dana chased my tongue back into my mouth and I pushed a hand inside her panties. My finger was barely between her lips, and I felt she was damp already. I’d always loved that my wife was ready to go with little or no foreplay—she’s a guy’s dream—but I swear since she’s been playing with other men, she is constantly horny. There isn’t a time when she isn’t already damp when I touch her. I teased the nubbin of her clit and her body jerked.

“Oh, Dave...”

“I may choose to share you, but you will always be mine first,” I whispered. I teased her clit until my fingers were soaked, then I pushed my jeans down and awkwardly kicked them off.

“Yes, I’ll always be yours baby.” She helped me push my boxer-briefs down and scrambled out of her panties.

Dana was incredibly hot when I pushed inside her. She felt so good that I thought I might come before I even got started, but I only just managed to hold out—not that it mattered. I’d hardly started moving when we heard a shriek from downstairs.

“Dammit, the door,” Dana sighed.

I’d left the door open just so I could hear what was going on downstairs. I was not expecting to get sidetracked. The babysitter was not there yet, so I was just going to run up and change and run back downstairs. I didn’t think the kids could destroy anything that quickly, but they constantly surprised me in that regard. I’d left them with a video playing and a mountain of blocks hoping that would keep them occupied while I was out of the room.

The door had to be closed, at the very least, so I pulled out of Dana with a grunt of frustration and crossed the bedroom. I thought there might still be time for a quickie, but I heard another shout from the family room, followed by a scream for, “Mommy!”

“Goddamit,” I swore, snatching my jeans from the floor.

“I guess I’ll just finish getting ready,” Dana said. She actually looked amused. I guess she could handle being interrupted better than I could. “Maybe you’ll get lucky later.”

“You think?” I smiled.

“If you’re quick enough.” She returned my smile.

Part of me hoped I could run downstairs and settle things with a stern word so I could get back to the bedroom for a quickie, but a major feud had broken out between brother and sister, and I had to sort it out. By the time I got back to the bedroom, the bathroom door was closed, so I just grabbed a shirt and returned downstairs.

Dana made her grand entrance soon after. She was so hot, I just stared. There was nothing fancy about her outfit; it was a simple black tank dress, but it made the most of her sexy body and was low-cut in the front and stopped well above the knee. It was long enough to be decent, but only just. The way her black pumps shaped her legs made the dress seem even shorter. A diamond heart pendant I’d gotten her for an anniversary drew the eye right to her tits, which looked spectacular in that dress. Our daughter told Dana she looked pretty, which was the understatement of the year.

I jumped off the couch, leaving the screaming kids behind, and swept her into the hallway for a long, deep kiss. She reached between us and grabbed my cock. I shivered and felt weak for a moment.

“I guess you approve,” she said with a little laugh.

“Then you’d better stake your claim early.”

The doorbell rang and Dana twisted away to answer the front door. It was the sitter, who seemed to give my wife a quick, disapproving look. She was only in her early 20s, and maybe she didn’t think a mom should dress that way. I wondered what her perspective would be in ten or so years. We gave the kids a quick goodbye and were out the door.

IT ONLY TOOK Dana about fifteen minutes to realize we weren’t headed to any of our regular haunts for dinner, and she became suspicious when we left our area. At first, she sat silently staring at the window and fidgeting, and then she moved onto playing the satellite radio in my truck, in search of a song she liked. She settled on the 90s on 9 channel, probably more to annoy me than anything else. My wife has always been a fan of pop music, while I am firmly a rock 'n roller. When she could not take it anymore, she finally asked where we were going.

"I have a surprise before we get to dinner," I said.

"A surprise? What are we really doing tonight?"

"We're having dinner, but there's something I want to show you first."

"And it's all the way down here?"

We'd travelled around the city, rather than into it, and we were in one of the fringe suburbs on the opposite side of the city from where we lived. I wanted Dana to feel safe. I turned down a darker, quiet street and came to a stop in front of a nicely remodeled duplex. I shut off the truck.

"Okay, why are we here?" Dana asked.

I could tell she was waiting for a set up, and it bothered me that she did not trust me more. Ever since we started with the hot dates, I'd never been less than honest with her. Besides, what did she think I was up to? Did she really think I'd gone out and found a guy on my own for her to fuck and this was his house? If I wanted to do that I easily could have. I had tons of offers from guys who wanted to be her "bull" on the message board I belonged to, but I wasn't interested in that, and I didn't think she was either.

"This is the surprise. Come on and check it out."

"Dave, what's waiting for me?"

"I don't like how suspicious you are." I tried to make it sound like a joke.

"It's just a little weird that you said we were going to dinner and now here we are on the other side of the city, sitting in front of some strange house. It feels like something is going on."

"Just trust me. I think you're going to like this."

Dana followed me out of the truck, and I couldn't help admiring the way her dress rode up when she climbed out of the truck. I can never keep my eyes off of her sexy body. I took her hand and led her up the walkway to the left side of the duplex. Each side was divided into two apartments, and I led her to the upstairs one on that side. She gripped my hand tighter when I pulled a key out of my pocket and unlocked the door. I flicked on the lights to reveal...

...an ordinary apartment! I thought I'd done a pretty good job with the decorating and the furniture, at least for a guy. There was a large, soft beige leather couch in the living room, with a matching loveseat off to the side. They were both oriented around a large flat screen mounted on the wall. Dana looked around like she was expecting someone to jump out at her. She even ducked her head into the kitchen, which had nice marble countertops and brand-new stainless-steel appliances. I'd spared no expense in creating this home away from home.

"It's very nice, but why are we here? Whose place is this?" Dana asked.

"It's ours—yours. Or to be more specific, it belongs to whoever you choose to be that night."

"Mine? What are you talking about?"

"I set this place up for you, babe. This is one of those investment properties I bought and renovated. It's two apartments on each side."

"Right. You bought these to rent, right?"

"That was the plan, but then I came up with a better idea."

She still did not seem to follow. I didn't think my idea was that crazy, but I explained it anyway. "When you go out on a hot date, we have two problems. The first is that if you want to play, you're stuck either going to the guy's place, or to a hotel. We both know that's not exactly safe, but we've sort of accepted it."

"Right," she agreed. "And I never go off with anyone I get a bad vibe from. But you're saying you set this place up for me to bring my dates?"

I just stood there, grinning like an idiot, happy she'd finally gotten it. I was waiting for her to be as excited as I was. She walked around the living room, examining it with a different eye now that she knew what the apartment was for. She ran her hands over the couch and tested how well-padded it was. I hoped she found it as soft and nice as I had. I picked it with Dana being nude on it in mind. Her heels clicked on the hardwood floor as she walked down the short hallway that led to the rest of the apartment, and I let her wander by herself. There was a full bathroom off of the hallway, a second bedroom and the master suite. She came back in a couple minutes and still looked neutral.

"This isn't bad, I think I can work with it," Dana said.

"I figured you'd put your own stamp on it. It shouldn't look like a guy picked everything out."

"You did a good job, hon."

"So why don't you seem as excited as I am?"

Dana looked thoughtful. “I don’t know. I feel like this cements everything for us. Setting up this place was a big, expensive step.”

“We can afford it,” I assured her.

“I know. It’s not that. I guess I just still thought of what we were doing as fooling around—like some experimental thing. Maybe even just a phase in our marriage. But this place makes it the thing we do now. We’re a hotwife couple.” It sounded like she had to force the words out. “We’re those people now.”

“You still don’t ever have to do anything you don’t want to. I don’t want you to think that me setting up this place means you have to keep going if you don’t want to. I just thought you were enjoying yourself.” I circled around the couch and stood by her behind it. “Really, I just thought this would make things easier.”

“I do, and this place does. I mean, yes, I am having a good time and I wasn’t thinking about stopping. And having home turf to bring a guy to makes me feel better. I just feel like this brings everything to the next level, that’s all, and I wasn’t prepared.”

“So, you like it?”

“I do, really. It was an awesome idea.” She smiled and gave my hand a reassuring squeeze. “You said this solves two problems. What was the other?”

Rather than tell her, I chose to show her. I took a rather complicated looking remote from the coffee table and turned on the flat screen. Once it warmed up, I switched to HDMI 3 and entered a security code. I thought it was important that some guy couldn’t just pick up the remote to check the baseball scores on ESPN and stumble across our private network. A view of the living room from above came up on the screen. The screen displayed my back and Dana in front of me.

“What?” Dana asked, momentarily confused. She began looking around the room, then checked back with the screen, then looked around again, until she located where the camera must be, in the corner of the room. “There’s a camera in here?”

I chuckled. “There’s more than one camera in here, babe. I have five cameras in here alone.”

“I don’t see them.”

Dana stared up at the crown molding, but she was not going to spot the tiny hole for the camera concealed up there. I flicked at buttons on the remote and scrolled through the cameras in the room—every angle was covered. Not every camera was concealed high, either. One was hidden in the frame of the flat screen itself, another in a statue on the bookshelf. I would be able to see virtually anything that happened in that living room.

“Wow, that’s...creepy,” she said slowly. “All of those cameras are completely hidden. There is no way to tell you’re being filmed.”

“That’s sort of the point. It’s like a high-tech version of the camera you carry. They have sound too, I just have it turned down so there’s no feedback.”

“I’m guessing there’s cameras in the bedroom, too.”

“Every inch of this apartment is wired for pictures and sound, except for the hall bathroom—and you have to manually turn on the one in the master bath. Also, the master bath has a reinforced steel door, so if something goes wrong you can hide in there.”

“That’s a good idea. And where will you be watching from? I’m assuming you’ll see all this live.”

“I can watch from anywhere. I can be home with the kids while you’re on a date and watch from my iPad at home. I can control all the cameras remotely. But it does record, too.”

“You thought of everything.”

“I hope I did.”

“I guess I really am going to be your own personal porn star now.” Dana said it quietly, like she was testing the idea in her mind, trying it on for size.

“You shouldn’t think of it like that. I just finally have a way to be there without really being there. You are okay with that, aren’t you?”

If she wasn’t, I had to wonder why. Was she doing things with these men I wasn’t privy to? The thought both excited and frightened me. I liked to think I had some control over our situation, some hand in deciding what happened, but that was just an illusion, I realized. Dana could be out there doing anything when I was not there, or the camera was not on. I always knew that, but I didn’t think about it. That only took me to dark places.

“Oh, I’m okay with it. I like to make little movies for you. That’s the best part, knowing you’ll see how bad I am.” An evil smile crept over her red lips. “I like to think I’m your little porn star.”

“You do?”

“Oh, I do. And now you’ll be able to see the whole show. Do you think you’re ready for that? Do you want to see everything?”

“Yeah, uh, I think so,” I stammered. The way she looked up at me, with those dark rimmed eyes, made it difficult to think. It only became harder when she began rubbing me through my jeans.

“Your little slutty wife can be quite dirty you know,” she said.

“I know. I’ve seen it.”

“But sometimes I’m so hot that I can’t wait until we get to the bedroom, and I can turn the camera on. Sometimes the guys want me so bad that they attack me the second we’re in the door, and I just can’t resist.” Her voice was low, seductive.

“I’ve seen you’re naked sometimes when you turn the camera on.”

Dana pulled my jeans down and went to her knees with them. “But now you’ll see how I got that way. You’re going to see every dirty second.” She fisted my cock and licked the end. “There’s a lot of dick sucking you haven’t seen. Do you like to see me suck dick?”

“Yes,” I gasped. When she sucked my head in between those pretty red lips it was difficult to talk.

I fumbled for the remote, which was balanced on the back of the couch beside me. I switched to the view from the flat screen itself, which was the perfect angle to catch Dana sucking my cock. It was kind of surreal to be watching her blow me on the screen instead of looking down and watching her do it. I couldn’t help but feel I was watching her with some stranger, even though I felt my shaft sliding in and out of her mouth. It was the best of both worlds—not only was I watching my wife perform, but I was also receiving amazing oral.

Dana noticed I was watching the screen instead of her and she looked up to watch herself. Her eyes went wide, and I thought she might stop—she’s not a huge fan of watching her videos with me—but instead she started sucking me harder as she stared at herself on the big flat screen. She seemed fascinated to see herself like that in real time. She took me deeper and deeper into her mouth, her tongue working its magic along my shaft.

With the touch of a button, I zoomed in tighter, so all we could really see was her sucking cock. Now it really did seem like she was blowing a stranger because my face was out of the frame. Normally, Dana would be looking up at me while she went down, but now she just kept watching the screen.

The wet pop when she took me out of her mouth sounded impossibly loud in the silent apartment. There was no other sound except for my moans. The flat screen was muted so there wouldn't be any feedback. Dana gave a long lick up the underside of my shaft and then sucked my balls, watching herself the whole time.

"You like watching me suck these dirty balls, don't you?" she teased.

"Yesss..."

"I bet you're pretending I'm doing this to someone else aren't you?" She knew me so well. When I didn't answer, she added, "You like it best when I'm down on my knees being a whore."

"Fuck, yes!"

"You know what I love? I love sucking on shaved balls. I love how they feel in my mouth."

Now she was driving me crazy, because I knew she was not talking about me. I groom down there, but I don't think I would ever take it to shaving. She'd mentioned Carlos had shaved balls. Was she thinking of him while she went down on me? It shouldn't have, but that made me shiver and moan and I braced myself against the couch. She stroked my shaft while she sucked on my balls, and she had me at the edge way too quickly. I watched the screen, and I was convinced she was with someone else—some stranger she'd picked up at a bar. I told myself Dana was sucking that stranger's cock because she needed it. And that was about all I could take.

Dana had barely popped me back into her mouth when I exploded. She choked on it at first, and a little cum ran from her lips. But my wife knew what she was doing, and she easily swallowed the rest of my load, moaning with pleasure as she did. She sucked me until I went soft in her mouth then wiped away the bit that escaped with her fingers and licked those clean. She got to her feet and kissed my cheek.

"You really are too easy, honey," she said. As she walked back to the master bedroom, she added, "I think this set up could work."

I couldn't agree more. And I couldn't wait until she brought someone "home" so I could try my new toy.

CHAPTER

Nine

Dave was proud of the little set-up he'd put together, and I have to admit, it was pretty ingenious. He really had thought of everything. It did scare me that he was so into this hot dates thing that he was willing to spend thousands of dollars to make a special place for me to play. I'd meant what I told him back in the apartment—this cemented us into being in this lifestyle in a way we hadn't been before, and I wasn't entirely sure I was there yet. But I put all that out of my mind because I did have a good time teasing him, and it left me on a high. It was exhilarating to watch myself on that big television. Seeing it like that—while I was doing it—made me feel hot and dirty in a way that watching videos at home with my husband didn't.

We arrived at the restaurant in good spirits. It felt sexy as we walked into the little Mexican place and noticed a couple of the waiting men looking me over. One got away with it without his wife noticing, but the other got a shot to the arm for his trouble. Coming from the apartment, I felt like I was sending out some signal that I was available, despite the fact I was there with my husband. It was not supposed to be a hot date night, but it didn't feel that way—especially when I caught Dave scanning the place, looking for men who could be potential lovers for me. I know that look he gets.

There was a fifteen-minute wait for a table, and we spent it at the bar. I had a margarita, Dave had a Dos Equis. The bartender was a busty Latina with her glossy black hair pulled back into a long ponytail and I was proud that my husband only had eyes for me. There were a handful of other couples in the bar area, and a group of guys who were sitting in the corner and looking up at the college football game on the television hung in the corner. Dave's gaze kept going back to them and I knew exactly what he was thinking.

"Are we on a date, or a date tonight?" I asked.

"What do you mean?" I could tell Dave knew exactly what I meant.

"I mean, are you out for a nice night with your wife, or are you looking to pimp me out tonight?"

Dave smiled and was about to answer when he was saved by our name being called. He quickly settled the tab and led me into the dining room. He held out my chair, like a proper gentleman, while I sat and then busied himself with the menu. Since he stopped scouting out prospective candidates for my bed, I let it drop.

As soon as our waiter came, I knew the game was back on. He was a tall, handsome young guy named Travis. His thick, black hair brushed his collar and although he was dark-complected, he looked more Italian than Mexican. He was dapper in his crisp white shirt and black tie, and I'll admit I gave him more than a passing glance when he approached our table—even if I thought he was way too young to be my plaything. He didn't even look to be twenty-five years old. It seemed the appreciation was mutual. Travis barely noticed my husband when he arrived at our table and focused entirely on me. I know he was looking at my legs as he walked up, and then he seemed to work his way from my cleavage to my face. He turned on a handsome smile that I'm sure had charmed more than one coed out of her panties. Did he think it would work on me?

"I'd offer to get you guys drinks, but it looks like you're already taken care of," Travis said.

"You can bring us another round," Dave answered. He was enjoying Travis's focus on me. No, Dave was not a typical husband at all.

"Are you trying to get me drunk?" I asked.

"Isn't that what all men do with hot women?" Travis offered. He was a brazen one. I wondered again if I was throwing off some kind of vibe, despite my wedding ring.

"I already married him. He doesn't have to get me drunk to get lucky," I said, smiling at Travis's surprised reaction.

"That's true. Dana is usually ready. No alcohol required," Dave added.

I couldn't help but blush from that comment. It was a bit too far, I thought. When I looked up, Travis was smiling and looked like he was wondering just how ready I was.

"You're a lucky guy, then, sir."

"Oh, I know it," Dave agreed. "If you're very lucky, you'll meet someone like my sweet wife."

The waiter couldn't possibly know, but I caught the implication in my husband's words. I knew what he was suggesting. I blushed a deeper crimson. Yes, I can be brazen and flirty when I need to be, when I know I'm out on a hot date, but this was not how we did things. This guy—let's be honest, boy—not only knew I was married, but my husband was sitting right there. There was no cover story here. We just looked like a normal couple that was out for dinner together. I couldn't believe Dave!

"I have to agree, sir."

"You can call me Dave. And you never know when your lucky night is going to arrive."

Travis looked at me again and I could just manage to look him in the eye. "You just have to be ready to seize it when your moment comes along," he said. "Let me bring you guys those drinks."

As soon as Travis was gone, I locked in on Dave and hissed, "What the hell are you doing?"

"I'm being friendly to our waiter. Is that a crime?" He looked oh-so-pleased with himself.

"Friendly. Right. Let me tell you, whatever it is you're not trying to do isn't going to happen."

"What do you think I'm trying to do?"

"You want me to fuck our waiter!" I struggled to keep my voice low.

"I never said that. Besides, how could I make that happen? I'm not in control of Travis. And he knows you're a married woman. Why would he think he could?" His feigned innocence was wearing on me.

"Maybe because you're serving me up on a silver platter?" I had been leaning across the table and I noticed Dave couldn't keep his eyes out of my cleavage, so I leaned back.

"I was just pointing out what a great, hotwife you are and how Travis would be lucky to meet someone like you."

"Hotwife?"

"Hot as in sexy, Dana. Travis probably doesn't even know what a hotwife is."

"Just stop it, whatever it is you're doing or not doing."

“Here are your drinks,” Travis announced upon his return. I don’t think I’ve ever had such fast drink service in my life. Travis probably couldn’t pick up on exactly what my husband was implying, but he was smart enough to sense something was up. He was paying even more attention to me than before. I bet he thought Dave was one of those guys who loves it when other men drool over his wife—which he is—but our waiter couldn’t possibly guess there was more to it, could he?

“Thank you,” I replied, taking my glass from him.

Travis went on to recite the specials and then gave us a couple minutes to decide on our order.

“See anything you like?” Dave asked as Travis departed. He had caught me checking out Travis’s butt in those tight black pants. I couldn’t help myself. All of these dirty thoughts were coming to mind unbidden. I’d bat one down and another would surface.

“Stop it!”

“I can make up an excuse to get out of here.”

“I said stop it. Besides, what do you think is going to happen? Do you think he is just going to drag me into the storeroom and bend me over a stack of giant rice sacks?”

Dave looked dreamy and I knew he was picturing exactly that. It was a mistake to put ideas into his head. “It sounds to me like I’m not the only one having dirty thoughts.”

“It’s your fault. You started this.” I cracked a tiny smile. “Don’t you dare think I’ve changed my mind.”

Travis returned to take our orders and I knew he was openly flirting with me. He looked over to check with my husband a couple times, but when he did and Dave was just smiling, he kept it up. I think Dave and I were both disappointed when someone else brought our entrees, but I was also relieved and tried to project that. What was really the endgame here? I knew what my husband wanted, and sure, part of me wanted it too, but I didn’t see how to realistically turn our dinner into some kind of an encounter with our waiter. But I should never have discounted Dave’s deviousness when he really wants to make something happen. He will find a way.

Dave chose his moment when Travis came over to see how we were making out. He ordered another round of drinks and struck up a conversation. Dave asked if Travis lived in the area, telling him how we'd just moved into the neighborhood.

"We just rented a furnished condo until our place is ready. We haven't even moved our stuff in there really. We're out trying to see what's around," Dave lied. It slipped so easily off his tongue, and I wondered what it meant that we'd both become such prolific storytellers.

"I think you'll like it over here. There isn't the same kind of nightlife as in the city—it's a lot of young families—but more bars and restaurants are popping up as the area's becoming more upscale, y'know?" Travis answered. His eyes kept wavering from my husband to my tits as he spoke.

I leaned forward to make it just a little easier for him. I was curious where Dave was going with all of this. I knew there was no way he was just going to invite the waiter home with us so he could fuck me while Dave watched, so there had to be some other plan.

"I think we'll be happy here once we make some new friends," Dave said. "Unfortunately, I work a lot and have to be on the road. I have to go in tonight, as-a-matter of fact."

"That sucks, man." Travis nodded in sympathy. "I'm used to working on Friday night, but I started early. It's not like I have to stay late."

"So, you get off soon then?"

"In a couple hours."

I couldn't shake the feeling that Dave was making a date for me, while I sat there like I was his to barter away. Obviously, I wasn't opposed to dates, but I was used to handling these things myself. There was a sleazy quality to having my husband do it for me. I liked the independence of finding my own dates.

"And then you're off to see a girl?" I asked. We'd never actually established that Travis didn't have a girlfriend.

Travis smiled and it warmed me in all the wrong places. If the plan was to resist his charms, I was failing spectacularly. "No, not tonight. No plans yet."

"I find that hard to believe," I replied.

Travis was so close I could have reached out to touch his thigh, and I had to resist the urge to. It angered me that my self-control was failing and I was falling into my husband's little trap. Of course, I could say no—I hadn't become a nymphomaniac yet—but I realized I really didn't want to. If Dave could make something happen it could be fun to go along.

“It’s fun to see where the night can take you. I can usually make plans with just a couple calls,” Travis said.

“You’re smart to leave yourself open,” Dave agreed. “I remember those days.”

“Not too fondly, I hope,” I teased.

“No, not too much.”

The charge in the air was palatable, like right before a heavy thunderstorm moves in, with everyone waiting to see what was going to happen next—who was going to be the first to run out into the storm. But Dave seemed to lose his nerve at the last second, and I didn’t know how to proceed. I felt a little awkward flirting with a live man while my husband sat right there. It was not the same as flirting by text. And Travis was just waiting to see what we would do next. Could he really be sure what he thought was happening was happening?

“Well,” Travis said, drawing out the word, “I need to check my other tables. Enjoy your meal.”

The waiter left and both Dave and I exhaled. I didn’t even realize I was holding my breath. Instead of reaching for my fresh drink, I drained my ice water. I needed a clear head. “You really are insane.”

“It seems like I’m only helping you along,” Dave teased. “I know that look you get. You want this guy.”

“Kid,” I reminded him.

“It does not seem you’re looking at him like a kid. It’s like the way you and Jana were drooling over Jay the night of the BBQ.”

“This guy makes Jay look like a senior citizen.” I did not deny the drooling.

“Nothing’s actually happened yet. We could still easily leave with this all being a fun tease.”

“That’s probably for the best,” I said.

Dave nodded. “But is that what you want, hon?”

I looked down instead of answering. What did I want? That wasn’t the right question—I knew what I wanted. I just didn’t think it was a good idea. This wasn’t how we did it.

My non-answer made Dave smile. For him, it was an answer.

When Travis returned after the meal to see if we needed anything I could tell his hopes were still up. He asked if we wanted dessert, which could have prompted all kinds of responses, but neither Dave nor I bit. I did think about real dessert, but I still wondered if I would be undressing for this man later and I declined.

“You never said, do you really live around here?” Dave asked, when Travis brought the check. If anything was going to happen, this had to be the time.

“Yeah. I moved back in with my parents when I finished college in the spring. I’m just crashing there until I figure out my next step.”

I cringed inwardly. I could not fuck a kid who was still living with his parents! If he just graduated college, he was probably twenty-two at the youngest, maybe twenty-four at the outside. Was I going to add cradle-robber to my increasingly shady sexual resume? And yet, I cannot deny that it was appealing knowing this younger man—that’s how I preferred to think of Travis, instead of kid—had the hots for me. It didn’t even matter that it was probably some kind of silly MILF thing. It still made me feel sexy.

“That’s a good plan. Don’t rush into anything,” Dave commented.

Travis waited for another moment, but when no obvious invitation was forthcoming, he told us to have a good night and slinked off. He looked genuinely sad, and I wanted to give him a hug at the least. Dave busied himself with signing the credit card slip and then closed the little holder.

“Are you ready to leave?” he asked.

“That’s it?” I was shocked he was ready to just run out of there after everything. Was he ashamed by our behavior?

We stood and Dave placed a hand on the small of my back, propelling me forward as we walked out of the dining room. I didn’t question him until we were back at the truck. He held my door and held out a hand as I stepped up into the big truck. There was no way to avoid giving him a show in that short, tight dress, which I usually didn’t mind, but I was a little annoyed then. Dave climbed in and started the engine.

“That’s it?” I repeated.

He couldn’t keep the poker face going any longer and broke into a huge grin. “What do you mean? You were on the fence. You wanted to be out of there, right?”

I narrowed my eyes at him. “You did something, didn’t you?”

“You were there with me the whole time. What could I have done? Let’s get going.”

“I know you did something,” I stressed.

“You’re just being paranoid.”

Of course, Dave was up to something, because we were not driving home, but going to the new apartment. I pretended not to notice until we arrived. “Hmm, this looks familiar,” I said.

“I just thought we could have a nightcap here instead of going home and relieving the babysitter. Why waste the chance at some alone time?”

It was possible he was being on the up-and-up, but I knew better. He always tries to sound the most innocent when he is up to no good. I followed him up into the apartment and was not surprised to find wine in the refrigerator. It was also stocked with soda and several bottles of water—all goods that would not spoil between visits. Dave offered to pour us both a glass of wine, but I wanted to keep my clear head and instead took a bottle of water. He did not feel the same, and my suspicions only grew when he produced a fifth of Jack Daniels from the cupboard and poured himself a measure over ice. We sat together in the living room, close together on the loveseat. Dave rested his free hand on my bare knee.

“Are you ready to tell me what’s really going on now?” I asked.

Dave caressed my knee, and his hand began its journey higher. “I’ll confess, I may have slipped him your special phone number when I paid the bill and told him to call tonight.”

“You did what?”

“He needs a way to get a hold of you when his shift is over.”

“I didn’t even bring it—not that that’s the real issue,” I complained.

Dave reached into his pocket and produced the prepaid phone I’d bought for hot dates. “I grabbed it on the way out.”

“You planned this to be a hot date night from the beginning, didn’t you?” I pushed his hand off my leg, even though it felt really good. I was way too horny from all the night’s possibilities for my own good.

“I didn’t have anything planned, except to bring you here, but I did think that maybe you would be as excited as I was and maybe when we went out things might happen.”

I could see Dave thinking that, but I was not in the mood to give him the benefit of the doubt. “You expect me to believe getting me back here with another man wasn’t your real plan all along? It just all conveniently worked out this way?”

“Well, yeah, as crazy as that sounds.”

“Dave, you’ve really got to check yourself. You’re so into this fantasy—lifestyle—whatever you want to call it, that you’re not thinking clearly. It is not okay for you to manipulate me or set me up. We need to be total partners in this.”

“I get it.”

“I’m serious this time. I don’t want things sprung on me. I don’t want you finding guys for me to fuck. If we’re going to do this, I need to be in charge, unless you have some serious objection about something I want to do.”

“You’ve been perfect so far, Dana.”

“Everything seems to be going okay so far, don’t start throwing monkey wrenches into it.”

“I understand.”

“I thought we were going out for dinner like a normal couple tonight. It feels like we don’t do that anymore.”

“I’m sorry.” He was beginning to look genuinely sorry. He realized he’d crossed a line.

“Aren’t you interested in spending quality time with me anymore, or would you rather just send me out on dates and watch me fuck other men? Is that more exciting than fucking me yourself?”

“Dana, that’s not it at all.” Now he really looked hurt. “This is all so new to me and when I get an idea, I want to run with it. I’ve held this in for so long, and now that I’ve let it out it all seems to be exploding out of me at once. I don’t want you to think I don’t want to be with you anymore. You’re still the sexiest woman I’ve ever laid eyes on. That’s why I want to do this with you. I want to see you like that. And I want to touch you, too. I want to make love to you.”

Dave moved closer and replaced his hand on my thigh, but without subtlety this time. He slid it right up between my legs, which I happily opened for him. When he touched my panties, they were already wet. He gave me a crooked smile and pressed into my mound. I sighed and closed my eyes. It felt so good to finally be touched.

“Be honest, this isn’t all for me, is it?” he teased.

“I never said I wasn’t having fun tonight. I just don’t want to be manipulated. Ohhh...”

“You also said you wanted a night with just your husband.” His fingers pushed past the edge of my panties, slipped inside me. God, I needed that.

He brushed my hair aside and kissed my neck. "Is that still true?"

"I want you, baby," I moaned.

"But not just me tonight, right? You're thinking about Travis, the handsome waiter."

I hadn't been—for a moment—but now that Dave brought him up, his dark, handsome good looks came to mind. "It wouldn't be so bad if he was here," I conceded with a sigh.

Dave pulled my lips to his and we shared a heated kiss. I sucked his tongue into my mouth. I needed him so badly. "We can leave your special phone off and it can just be the two of us, or..."

"Yes." My moan didn't really sound like an answer to his question.

"Or maybe Travis would like to come over and play while your hardworking husband is out."

I gave him the same moan: "Yes."

He pressed the phone into my hand, his fingers pushed deeper inside me. He curved them to hit my g-spot and I shivered. That man knew just how to touch me. He said, "If you want Travis tonight, turn on the phone, Dana."

"But it was just supposed to be us tonight," I whimpered.

"That's okay, baby. I know you want him, and I want to see you pleased. And when he's done, I'm going to come back up here and remind you who you really belong to."

"God, Dave, please fuck me. I need it."

"Later, Dana. Turn on the phone."

All of the reasons for why I shouldn't were still running through my mind as I powered up the phone. Dave kept slowly fingering me, leading me to my orgasm, but keeping me short of it. The phone chirped with several new messages, but none of them were from our waiter—not yet. Instead, it was a series of texts from Carlos. Dave looked at the screen and seemed pleased.

"You're a popular girl," he teased.

"That tends to happen when you can't keep your clothes on," I giggled. His thumb grazed my clit, and I cried his name. I knew this game. My husband was not going to let me come until he was ready. I hoped he didn't wait long.

"I love that these guys want to fuck my wife so bad. I love they all know how sexy you are."

“Stop teasing me, please.”

“And you like it too. You love being a tease. You love that they want you.”

“Yes...”

“You love the way they look at you.” His thumb on my clit was almost unbearable.

“I do. And you love them looking at me.” I grabbed his cock through his jeans, and he was as hard as I suspected. I tried to pull him out, but I was too gripped by my own passions and settled for rubbing him through his jeans. Soon, Dave was moaning as much as I was.

“I love that you’re not just a tease anymore.”

“You love your slutty wife, don’t you, baby?”

“Yesss,” he hissed. “I love to see you fuck.”

“Should I wait for Travis? Carlos wants to fuck me right now. He could come over now.” I knew my cop lover would give me a proper fucking, and that was what I desperately needed. Travis was an unknown.

“What did he say?” I could see Dave was torn. His heart was set on the encounter he’d engineered, but now I was dangling immediate gratification.

“He’s off at nine tonight. He wants me to sneak out and meet up with him. He wants to make me come all night. God, I need that.”

“Do you want Carlos to fuck you?” he asked, his voice thick with lust and a little insecurity. Dave could never quite seem to shake that.

“Yes! He was so good the first time. I’d love it again. Look at his cock.”

Carlos had texted a new picture of himself hard. Seeing that smooth, shaved cock and balls again only made me want him more. Even if I didn’t fuck him then, it would be soon—I knew it. Dave fingered me harder, and I tried to imagine it was the cop inside me, but it wasn’t the same.

“He wants to see me naked. He wants to know I’m still interested.”

“Then maybe we should...”

Dave was unable to finish his thought because the phone chimed again, and this time it was the hunky waiter.

TRAVIS

It’s Travis. Is this Dana?

“Answer him,” Dave demanded. It was difficult to text with one trembling hand, but I managed.

DANA

It is. Nice to hear from you

TRAVIS

Did u think u were going 2?

DANA

Wasn't sure

TRAVIS

Glad you did?

DANA

I am. I was surprised when Dave said he left my number

TRAVIS

Me too. Is he really cool?

I looked at Dave and smiled. I rubbed his cock harder. "Are you cool, baby?"

Dave laughed. "I think I'm the coolest."

DANA

He is. He just wants me to have fun. He's not around a lot.

TRAVIS

That's cool

DANA

You're okay with it?

I knew guys were horndogs, but I was still surprised that a young guy like Travis might be willing to walk into a situation like this and screw another man's wife. I guess it was better with permission than without, but how did he know he wasn't being set up? Travis answered:

TRAVIS

If you guys are, I guess. It's a new one for me

DANA

What time do you get off?

10

I was disappointed he didn't play with that, but I was not inviting him over for his wit.

"You're going to fuck him, Dana."

"If he really shows."

"He wants you. He'll come over."

Dave seemed to forget he was just teasing me and brought me over the edge. I cried out and dropped the phone as I briefly lost my mind. The climax throbbed through me, and I didn't think about anything else. My hand kept rubbing Dave—as if on autopilot—and after a gargled cry I felt a warm wet spot spread over his jeans. I hadn't done that in ages! I laughed and rubbed my sticky fingers on another spot on his jeans.

The phone was on the floor, and I retrieved it. I asked Dave for the apartment address and texted it to the young waiter, adding: Don't get lost!

CHAPTER

Ten

I tried to clean up after what Dana did to me, but there wasn't much I could do. I was a little embarrassed. It was years since I'd made a rookie mistake like coming in my pants. If I'd had any sense, I would have whipped it out and put it in her mouth, but I was pretty focused on what we were already doing. All I could think of was that waiter stripping down my wife having his way with her.

In my darker mind I even imagined him bringing a buddy over to help take care of the horny MILF. Dana wasn't opposed to that sort of thing, obviously, but it had just sort of happened the first time. I didn't know how she would react to my suggesting it. I wasn't even sure how I would react to seeing it again. It was pretty surreal the first time.

When I came out of the bathroom, Dana was texting with Carlos. She hadn't even bothered to fix her dress. He was still an unknown to me. I hadn't seen his night with my wife, so I didn't truly know what went on between them. In some ways that was hotter, but it gave me different concerns I didn't have with other men.

I could tell Dana really had a good time with him and wanted a repeat. That was a good thing, right? I try not to stare at those things, but he did have an impressive cock. It looked threatening the way he had it shaved down and brandished it. I considered shaving my cock too, since Dana liked it so much, but just couldn't bring myself to do it. I'm just not that guy.

I topped off my Jack Daniels and joined Dana on the couch. Her thumbs were flying away on the screen. I've never been able to master texting like that and still have one of those old phones with a slide-out keyboard. "What's Carlos got to say?" I asked.

“He’s just bitching that I’m not available enough.”

“You must have really made an impression.”

“I met him and fucked him in the same night. That’ll generally do it, hon.”

“Don’t downplay how hot you are, Dana. If you weren’t sexy, I don’t think he would have been all over you in that bar.”

“That’s true.” She glanced over at me. “You really do love seeing that stuff, don’t you?”

I chuckled. “I don’t know how much clearer I could be. But it was kind of fun to mix it up with that waiter tonight, too. It made me really nervous, but it felt good to push through that. I loved seeing how he looked at you and seeing how you wanted it but were unsure.”

“How is that hot? You like torturing me?”

“It’s not that. I just thought I saw a little shyness there that I haven’t seen in a while. Don’t get me wrong. I love to see you go for it, but it was nice to see you a little reserved, too.”

“It’s my pleasure to serve.”

“So, what are you telling Carlos?”

“How horny I am thinking about his cock, and I promise I’ll see him soon. He wants proof.”

Dana laughed. “It’s so dirty to have my husband tell me to text a naughty picture to another man.” She spread her legs and held out the camera to snap a picture. Her black panties were still pushed aside, and the dress was almost around her waist. She looked like someone had been playing with her. Carlos texted back right away.

CARLOS

Nice. Is that for me?

DANA

If you’re patient you might find out one-night next week

CARLOS

I can be patient, but you’re going to pay for making me wait

“What does that mean?” I asked.

Dana looked away and managed to blush a tiny bit. “He’s just a little dominant, that’s all. He liked to take charge.”

“And you liked that?”

“It was hot. It was different.”

How should I feel about another man dominating my wife? I didn’t really know how far that went, because the video never recorded. Did he tie her down? She didn’t mention anything like that. If she brought him back here, I would see everything next time. I was excited and worried.

“Tell him you’ll see him next week. Make up an excuse to get out,” I said.

“Are you sure? I can tell him I told my husband I’m going out with a girlfriend.”

“Do it, Dana. You can find an excuse to bring him back here, right?”

“I’m sure I’ll think of something. You’ll get your show, baby.”

They set a date for a night the following week and I was so excited I felt like I was going to crawl out of my skin. Not only was I about to see some young guy screw Dana, but she already had her next date lined up. I’d read about wives who went on multiple dates in a week, but I didn’t know if we could—or should—be one of those couples.

It was getting close to the time Travis would be getting off, so Dana told Carlos she had to go and then went into the bathroom to clean up. I was rock hard again and would loved to have taken Dana, but I had to leave that for Travis. I doubted he was into sloppy seconds. Dana came out of the bathroom and looked perfect again—except for one thing.

“I think these are ruined. I should probably leave them off.” She handed me her panties.

“That’s probably for the best,” I agreed.

I stayed with her until Travis texted, he was done work. I was concerned he would get cold feet, but he said he would be over soon. I kissed my wife and then slipped out to park my truck around the corner. My laptop was in the truck. Of course, I’d done a dry run with the equipment, so I was easily able to log into the camera system over the internet.

Dana sat on the couch and didn’t look nervous at all. Her phone was out again, and I wondered if she was back to texting with Carlos. She did seem really into him. I was surely in for quite the show next week. Or maybe Travis was sending her a new message. I couldn’t really tell which phone she was using. Dana could just have easily been checking on the babysitter, or texting with Jana.

I'd considered before that Dana had said something to Jana about our activities. It would be natural that she needed someone else to talk to about it. I chatted with a couple guys on the hotwife message board, but as far as I knew Dana had no real outlet to deal with her feelings. It creeped me out to know that Jana might know about my fantasy and thought I was some kind of a pervert, but she'd never given any indication she knew anything. If she did, maybe she didn't think it was so odd.

Dana had beaten around the bush, implied that Jana wasn't always faithful, so maybe our friend wished she had a husband who was open to her going out. If I could talk Neil into seeing it my way we could share experiences, even our videos. I could lend them the apartment for Jana's dates. Jana and Dana could go out looking for men together.

The possibilities were hot, but that's all they were—possibilities. Nothing I knew about Neil suggested he shared my bizarre fantasies. If Jana was fooling around, he either tolerated it—like the night she threw herself at Jay—or he had no idea. I was pretty sure he wouldn't mind a go with my wife, but that didn't mean he wanted Jana sleeping around—unless there was some kind of swapping situation, and he was willing to let me fuck Jana for a night with Dana. I would be happy to let Neil fuck Dana, but I was not looking to screw Jana. She's hot, it's not that, but I'm really not looking to leverage Dana's dates into a way to sleep with other women. My sexy wife is all I really want. That was one of Dana's early concerns, understandably so, but I know I convinced her otherwise. I could fuck Jana, I just didn't think about it. The night Dana was with Shane and Lisa could have easily turned into partner swapping—I know Lisa wanted me—but I wasn't down with that. I get swinging, and I get why it's hot, but it's not the thing that really rocks my world. Watching Dana rocks my world.

Travis coming over right after work turned out to be almost 11:30 at night. I was sure he was going to bale at that point and was ready to text Dana and call it a night. She'd been busy with her phone the entire time, god bless her. She was still only drinking water and I was surprised she didn't want something stronger to calm her nerves. I remembered when she had to get tipsy to even get ready for a date.

I heard the doorbell and Dana blew me a kiss before going to answer. She must have just been assuming I was watching. It had felt weird to watch her sitting there all that time—voyeuristic in a different way than watching a sex video. It may sound crazy, but it felt more like spying. It was fascinating, but I probably should have turned the camera off and waited for Travis to show up.

I switched to the hallway cam just in time to see Dana open the door. She was tall enough to kiss his cheek in those heels as she showed him in. I was disappointed he didn't just grab her right there in the hallway, but he did seem nervous. Dana followed him into the living room and offered him a drink. He said a beer would be great. She got them two.

"This is a nice place," Travis said, looking around as he nervously paced. He had changed into a tight gray V-neck t-shirt and jeans.

I had a split screen of a couple of the living room cameras up. It was going to take some practice to work out the best way to watch everything. All of the cameras were also being recorded onto a hard drive, so I could go back and pull the video and edit together anything I chose. I really could make my own polished sex videos of Dana. It was tempting, and some of the guys on the message board had been begging for video clips, but so far, I had only shared a couple blurred, non-identifying pictures. And Dana would have killed me if she knew about that, but I just couldn't help myself. I wanted everyone to know how sexy she was.

"Thanks. Like Dave said, we're not really moved in it. It's only temporary," Dana replied.

"You guys are doing another house here, right?"

"Yeah."

"Where? I know my way around here."

Dana fumbled for a moment. She had not really thought through a story for tonight. She made up an address, but it sounded false even to me.

"That must be in one of the new developments." Travis didn't sound convinced, but he probably didn't care either. Obviously, Dana and I were not really on the up-and-up.

"Yeah, it is," she agreed too quickly.

"Dave works nights?"

"Sometimes. It's not unusual for him to get called in."

"Is he going to be gone awhile?"

Dana circled around the couch and pressed against him. She fingered his dark hair for a moment and then softly kissed him. I zoomed in and wished it went on longer. My heart pounded. "You don't have to worry about my husband interrupting us, Travis."

“When he works late this is what you do?” He still sounded unsure. He didn’t want to pass up the opportunity to sleep with my wife, but he also didn’t want to be set up.

Dana smiled and kissed him again, a bit longer this time. It was sexy to see her seducing Travis. She’d complained he was too young, but now she seemed to be enjoying that.

“Sometimes. I’ll be honest, I’ve never done anything like this before—just picking up a waiter. It makes me a little nervous,” Dana confessed.

“You don’t seem very nervous.” Touché, Travis.

“I guess I’m hiding it well.”

“Better than me, I guess.”

“I understand. This is risky for both of us. You’re afraid my husband is going to jump out of a closet, right?”

Travis chuckled. “Yeah, maybe.”

“You can check the closets, babe.” Dana was good at lightening the mood. It always stung a little to hear her use terms of endearment with other men. Stung in the way I like.

For a second it looked like he might, but then Travis said, “I’ll take your word for it. And you don’t have to be nervous. Your stone fucking hot, girl.”

“Thanks. That’s...sweet.”

“You could probably get some guy to come home with you every night if you wanted to.”

“I don’t know about that. But even if I could, there’s a risk to inviting strange men home to be alone with you. Bad things can happen.”

“That’s true. You have to be careful these days.”

“You could be dangerous,” she suggested.

“Don’t worry. I’m only a little dangerous.” Travis pulled her tight, his hand kneaded her sweet ass. “I’ll try not to bite.”

They were kissing again, but this time they did not stop at one. My wife’s eyes closed, and her mouth opened, and I could see how much she enjoyed kissing the young waiter. She started with her hands on his chest, but then wrapped her arms around Travis and ran her hands all over his strong back. He turned her—Dana was almost sitting on the back of the couch—and moved between her legs. The tight dress had to ride up to allow him to move closer. Her head tilted back, and she moaned softly while he nibbled her neck. Going with hardwood floors was a wise choice. Every little sound was amplified, and I could hear it all.

I was electrified. Watching my wife with a lover in real time and seeing it all clearly like that was incredible, but strange. It almost wasn't real, like I was watching a video of someone else on the internet. I'd spied on her in the back of a car and listened while she blew someone in a men's room, but those were imperfect experiences. I was always limited, wanting more. And of course, I was used to watching Dana on video, but that had always been some limited view with bad lighting. If they moved, I couldn't see anything. Now it was all in my control, and I'm not sure I really knew how to feel. What happens when you're getting everything you want?

The back of Dana's dress was unzipped, and Travis was pulling it down when she suggested they go to the bedroom. He only hesitated a moment before agreeing. I bought up a cross section of the bedroom cameras and waited for them to come into view—glad she'd left all the lights on.

Dana led Travis by the hand and turned to start kissing him again when they reached the foot of the bed. The big, king-sized mattress towered over the footboard, and she pushed him against it. I'd chose a big bed that would be able to handle a lot of action. She pulled on his t-shirt, and it was exciting to see how eager she was to undress her lover. The t-shirt flew to the floor, and she went right to work on his belt. They were both laughing and having fun with it. I was glad the tension had drained from the apartment. He must have been confident I was not going to surprise him. She was thorough in undressing him, helping him out of his heavy black boots so she could pull his jeans completely off. While crouching down, Dana ran her hands up his legs and cupped his package through tight gray boxers.

"Shit that's good," Travis moaned. He stared down at my wife like he couldn't believe it was happening. I felt the same way.

"I haven't done anything yet." Dana laughed.

"I love when a chick just goes for it."

"Oh yeah? Don't they usually? You're a hot guy."

She still rubbed him through his underwear and even nuzzled his package and I wondered how much of her performance was for Travis and how much was for me. I could see her eyes darting around and she probably wondered which camera I was looking at. I was looking down from above the bed, which gave me a great view of Dana looking up at Travis.

“Girls...” Travis started. I know he was about to follow up with my age, but wisely thought better of it. “Girls aren’t usually this forward unless they’re kinda drunk, and then they aren’t as much fun.”

Dana pulled his underwear down and deftly grabbed his shaft when it popped up. She gave it a nice, long lick. “So, what’s fun for a guy like you?” she asked. She stroked his cock and gave his balls a lingering kiss. Her big diamond engagement ring gleamed in the light as she stroked him. It looked so wrong. Now I knew she was putting on a show. Dana’s always great with her mouth but going right for the balls is something new. She was trying to blow this kid’s mind.

“That’s pretty fucking fun,” Travis groaned.

After giving his trimmed balls a thorough licking, Dana took him in her mouth and bobbed up and down, slowly drawing his shaft in and out of her mouth like she was savoring every inch. Her cheeks hollowed and she swallowed every inch. Travis was not huge in the pants, but it looked like he had enough to get the job done. I know some guys with my fantasy are obsessed with dick size, and I guess there is something cool about seeing Dana wrestling with a big cock, but mostly I don’t care about it as long as my wife is having fun. I’m generally not too focused on the guy. I was only looking at Travis’s cock then because Dana was so fully enjoying sucking it. I knew that was all for me. She knew I was glued to my screen and wanted to give the hottest blowjob possible.

Travis gripped the footboard behind him, pushing his prick forward into Dana’s mouth and stared down at her as if he still didn’t quite believe there wasn’t a hitch. He moaned and gasped and when he began trembling, he gently pushed Dana away from his cock.

“You’d better slow down there, girl,” he warned.

“Really? Why is that?” Dana still held his cock and kept licking and kissing the head. She really enjoyed toying with this young man.

“I’m gonna bust my nut if you don’t,” he stammered. She swallowed him again and he added, “Oh, damn.”

“And what if that’s what I want?” she asked, before deep throating him once more.

I was right there with our young friend. I’d started rubbing myself without realizing it, and I felt that familiar rush that overcame me just before coming. I backed off, not wanting to make a second mess in my pants. I was tempted to just take it out and jerk off while I watched but felt weird about sitting in the front seat of my truck and jerking off like that. And besides, I wanted to save it for my wife. I forced myself to stop rubbing my cock, which was difficult while Dana had Travis's cock in her mouth.

Dana took mercy on the waiter and released his prick. It was probably because she really needed to be fucked and couldn't be sure Travis would be good for twice in one night. Sure, he was young, but that didn't always matter. He took her hands and pulled Dana to her feet. I switched camera angles so I could see her whole body.

Travis reached out for Dana, and they crushed together, mouths frantically seeking each other. Her dress was already unzipped, so he peeled it down her body and she stepped out of it. They scrambled onto the bed—Travis pulling himself backwards with his elbows while Dana climbed on top of him. She rubbed her smooth, bare cunt over his shaft, and he stopped and reached down. I could only imagine how wet she was by then. It doesn't take much to get my wife dripping wet.

"No panties?" he asked.

"I lost them sometime tonight. Ohhh..." It looked like he curled his fingers inside her. Even on the side view camera, I couldn't tell exactly what he was doing.

"That's fucking hot."

"Maybe I should have left them for you. Would that have been too forward?"

"Shit, I would have lost it right there."

"Next time," she moaned. By the way her cute butt moved I could tell she was humping his fingers.

Travis unhooked her bra and rolled Dana onto her back. Those beautiful tits spilled out and her nipples were dark and thick. He was all over her tits like he'd never seen a woman topless before and she tilted her head, moaning her encouragement while clutching him to her chest. She cooed, "Not too rough, baby. Soft feels good." I was surprised she didn't let him go longer before pulling him away from her tits.

"Fuck me, baby," she said—somewhere between a plea and a demand.

Dana flopped her arm out and groped in the nightstand drawer for a condom. I was glad Travis did not put up a fight about that. He pulled on the sheath and pinned her legs back to her chest, her calves hanging past his forearms.

“Oh yes, Travis,” Dana encouraged, throwing her head back right as he penetrated her.

My gut twisted and the truck seemed to turn at an angle. I realized my hands were trembling, and I wasn't prepared for my extreme reaction. It was like the first time I watched one of her videos, all over again. Knowing that my wife was out screwing someone—and that I would get video when she came home—was a whole different kind of feeling. And watching a video of something that already happened felt different because there was a weird safeness to it, as crazy as that sounds. If she went to Zach's house, the night had an inevitability to it. The next time I saw my wife she was going to be freshly fucked and I would have my video—there's no real sense of danger to that. But watching Dana get screwed in real time almost felt like I was a participant. The risk that always accompanies doing something so crazy was right there in front of me—in vivid color. We hadn't come through the storm—we were in it! The immediacy of watching that intimate act was like a smack in the face.

Travis only took it slow for a moment. He had Dana's legs jacked back and he pounded his cock into her hard. She held onto the mattress with her arms spread wide and moaned her pleasure while she bounced underneath him. That young waiter was fucking my wife silly.

I never considered trying to stop things, even if my feelings were all over the map. The sick feeling faded into the background and that familiar, intense rush returned. Yes, that's why I wanted this. I never felt more alive. Watching my wife take that young cock, listening to her cries as she gave herself to a virtual stranger, that was my addiction, and the high was so much stronger in real time. I zoomed in on her face, twisted with passion, and questioned if I ever made her feel that. The crazy insecurity was all part of the rush. Without the risk, there was no reward. My entire body was like one giant erogenous zone, and I knew if I so much as brushed my cock I would come instantly.

“Oh yes! Yes!” Dana cried, arching her feet in the air. I knew that meant she was coming. I loved watching another man make her come.

Travis released her legs, and she wrapped them around his body. With her body wrapped around his, she screamed, begged, for him to fuck her. It almost seemed over the top, and for a second I didn't like thinking Dana was performing for the cameras. I wanted her natural reactions. Travis kept grunting along and after what seemed like way too short a time he stopped moving, slumping on top of my wife. She held him, stroked his hair, and finally they kissed. Travis rolled off of her and I couldn't believe it was over.

"Would you like something to drink?" Dana asked, ever the good hostess.

"Sure, water would be great."

Dana strode out of the bedroom fully nude. I kept one camera on the bed, to make sure Travis didn't get up to anything, and switched the other to the kitchen. He spread out on the bed, looking content. She fetched two bottles of water from the fridge and looked around at the cabinets, seeking a camera.

"Hope you enjoyed the show, baby," she said, blowing me a kiss. "Do you think he's up for round two?" She returned to the bedroom.

I had mixed feelings about round two. I did think their first tryst was too short, but I was also dying to run up there and make love to my wife. I needed to come so badly I think I was twitching.

Travis made room for her, and Dana snuggled in beside him. What was it like to snuggle up to someone she'd just met? If I was in her position, I'd probably want him gone as soon as possible. She peeled the spent condom from his shaft and tossed it into the bedside trash bin. His arm was around her and he lightly stroked her ass.

"So how was that on the fun meter?" she asked.

"You can't tell? You're fucking crazy, girl?"

"Thanks, I think."

"No, that's good. I hope I..."

"You were good, baby," she cooed, kissing his cheek.

"It's just that usually I take a little longer."

"I'll accept that as a compliment."

"Yeah, Dana, it's definitely a compliment. Goddam!" Travis ran a hand down her flank like he was taking her in for the first time.

"Mmm, if you keep touching me like that, you'd better be ready for more fun."

Travis laughed. "How much time do we have?"

"Enough."

They were kissing again, this time like old lovers, and my gut was stabbed by jealousy and lust. It seemed so slutty that Dana gave herself so easily—and I loved every second of it. How much of this was just for her, I wondered, and not for the first time. Dana had never really fought me on trying all this out, like maybe she'd always been curious about what else was out there.

"Are you sure you don't do this a lot?" Travis asked. He pinched and rolled one of Dana's nipples, making her quake and moan.

"No, not this specifically. Why?"

"You just seem really good at it. I don't get how your husband is cool with it. Christ, I'd never get tired of you."

Dana gave his cock a playful smack. "Oh, don't think he's tired of me. He had me all turned on earlier. He's just happy to let me play."

"And it seems like you really like to play."

"I love to play, baby," she cooed, kissing him.

His cock was right up again, and Dana slipped the condom on his prick this time—just before slipping herself onto him. She had a lot of fun being in charge, slowing rocking on him at first, then leaning forward and driving down onto his cock. I kept switching cameras and watched from every possible angle. Her ass looking amazing when she pumped up and down on him, and I loved watching her hair cascade down her back when she arched backward. Travis held her tits and she cried out when he played with her nipples. Dana came easily—more than once, I think—riding the young waiter.

He turned her onto her hands and knees, and she buried her face in the pillows when he took her from behind. Her butt rippled as he plowed her, and Dana screamed when she came again. She took his young cock as hard as he could give it, proving to him what a hot, married slut she was. Dana was fulfilling the MILF fantasy.

Travis was not quick the second time around, and even I was wondering when he would be done with my wife, when she begged off. Glistening with sweat and gasping for air, she begged, "Baby, I need a break. I can't take anymore." They were fucking for the better part of an hour. He had lost his earlier finesse and was mercilessly screwing her.

"Sorry, Dana. Sometimes with a condom, especially the second time..."

"It's okay, baby."

"If you're done, it's cool. Tonight, was incredible."

Dana shook her head, wild dark hair everywhere. "No, baby. You didn't get off yet."

"It's cool, really."

“No, it’s not.”

Dana crawled closer and peeled the condom off, flinging it away. She took him right into her mouth and sucked hard, cheeks hollowed. She was sucking with a purpose. Travis stretched out, then leaned down and played with her tits again. I knew her nipples had to be sore, but she let him. His hips started working and he moved a hand to the back of her head. Dana relaxed and let him start fucking her mouth. After a few minutes of that, she tore her mouth away, still stroking his shaft furiously.

“Come on, baby. I want you to come for me,” she moaned.

“Oh shit, Dana, keep doing that...”

“Are you going to give me your cum, baby?”

“Yes...”

Hearing my wife begging the waiter for his cum was nearly too much and I was touching myself again. I don’t know how I didn’t come. She alternated between sucking him and stroking him while begging for him to finish.

“Do you want to come on my tits, baby? Come on my tits.” Dana sounded so fucking hot.

“Shit! You’re fucking hot, girl,” he moaned. It sounded like he was ready to go.

“Come on me! Come on, baby. I need your cum!”

How was this not the ultimate MILF fantasy for this kid? I would have died in his place. And Travis couldn’t wait either. He exploded all over her face. That was even hotter than seeing him come on her tits. She pumped that strong young cock, and it shot string after string of hot cum into her face and hair. I was zoomed in tight, and it was the hottest thing I’d ever seen. Every time I thought my wife couldn’t top herself, she did. She pumped his cock until she’d gotten every last drop, and finally let him go. She looked relieved. I think we both wanted Travis to get out!

“OH MY GOD,” I gasped, pulling away from my wife. Her beautiful ass and red, swollen pussy stared up at me. From the way my heart pounded you’d think we’d just gone at it for hours, but it was not one of my finer performances. I was even quicker than Travis had been the first time. We were on the same bed where he'd just screwed Dana. I dropped down to those sweaty, fouled sheets and she laid beside me.

"You were ready to go, weren't you," Dana said, kissing my cheek. She drank deeply from a bottle of water and handed it to me. I finished it.

"If you'd watched what I did tonight, you'd be coming that fast too."

I knew better than to apologize for my performance. She was already well-fucked and probably glad I didn't want to go all night. The funny thing was, I wanted to go all night. Just looking over at her trim body covered in sweat, watching her tits rise and fall, I wanted to do filthy things to her until we both passed out, but I was so excited after watching her with Travis that I'd had a hair trigger. I could have gotten it up again with some coaxing, but it was better to give Dana a break. How much screwing could she take in one night?

"I'm glad you liked the show," she laughed. "I was hoping you approved while Travis was here."

"It didn't look like you were giving me that much thought," I teased.

"You were on my mind a lot of the time. Tonight was different for me, knowing that you were watching me the whole time."

"I've watched you before, in cars and stuff."

"But never anything like this. You've never really 'been there' when I went back to a guy's place, or went up to a hotel room. You really saw it all tonight, right as it was happening. I didn't think it would be so different from setting up the hidden camera, but it was."

"Yeah, I felt it too. Watching you fuck in real time was not the same as watching a video."

"Did you like it?" she asked.

"It blew my mind, honey. This was the closest to my fantasies we've come. It really was like being there. Did you like it?" I prayed her answer would be yes.

"Yes, but it was a little weird for me. It was so hot and dirty, knowing you were spying on us. Whatever I did, there was no taking it back. But at the same time, there was this little fear of being judged."

I wondered what she meant by taking it back. Did she mean things I might not ordinarily see? Were there some things she was purposely making sure I never saw? That was paranoid, and I didn't want to think about it. "I would never judge you, Dana."

“I know, babe. But even after all this time, sometimes I still wonder if this is what you really want, y’know? Are you going to see me do something that makes you see me differently?”

I pulled her in and clung to her, trying to avoid where Travis had come on her face. No, she had not cleaned it off yet. He’d awkwardly left right after the last time, Dana walking him to the door nude. She went right back to the bedroom, climbed onto the bed and said, “Get up here and fuck your wife.” I flew into that apartment.

“Nothing could make me not love you and want you. You are my perfect wife, and nothing could ever change that for me. You’re everything I’ve ever wanted or ever could want.”

“Oh God, I love you so much,” Dana said, hugging me back. “How did I get so lucky?”

“Yeah, how did you? Not a lot of husbands let their wives fuck hot young waiters. Was Travis fun?”

“You saw it all. You don’t have to ask,” she chuckled. “He was young and sexy—god he was young. He’s going home to his parents’ house right now!” She shook her head. “He was fun to play with, but his skills aren’t honed yet.”

“Maybe he needs a sexy older woman to take him under her wing.”

“Watch it with the older. I don’t think I’ll be seeing Travis again. God, I thought he was never going to come that second time. I was ready for him to go by then.”

“But what a finish!”

“Oh, you liked seeing him come all over your wife’s face?”

“It was pretty fucking hot.”

“I guess it was. And now I’m going to go scrub it all off.”

Dana rolled out of bed and padded over to the bathroom. She paused in the doorway and asked, “Are you going to join me?”

She didn’t have to ask twice.

CHAPTER

Eleven

The cameras were all around me and I wished there was a way I could tell if I was being watched. Dave put the cameras in to see me fuck, but that didn't mean he couldn't turn them on while I was in the apartment doing other things. I got a creepy, uneasy feeling knowing he could be spying. Would Dave want to know what I did before a date? He could have wanted to see how excited I was—or see if I was nervous. I made a mental note to ask him later and hope my husband told me the truth.

I sat on the couch in the hot date apartment and fussed with the little gold zippers on the sides of my skirt as I waited for Carlos to pick me up. They were easy to reach, as the skirt barely hit mid-thigh while I was seated. I couldn't quite believe I was wearing this outfit outside of the house.

Earlier in the day, he'd texted and asked what I planned to wear on our date. I told him I had a couple things in mind but hadn't decided yet. He demanded I try on the outfits and let him choose. I didn't even think about not complying. I quickly stripped out of the leggings, tank top and sweater I'd been wearing to do laundry and changed into a tight, electric and black color block dress that had a shiny zipper up the spine. I really liked the way it showed off my butt and boobs and thought Carlos would like it too. I posed and snapped a selfie in the full-length mirror.

CARLOS

sexy. Let's see my next choice

I threw that dress on the floor and changed into a sleek little red skater dress with a narrow black belt. I liked the way the loose, short skirt swished when I moved. I've got to say, I love that some of the sexy little things I liked back in the 90s have come back into style. If I'm going to be dating again, it was nice to dress a little bit like I did back when I was single. The red dress was short and tight in the body but didn't show a ton of skin. I sent a picture of that one to Carlos.

CARLOS

Hot. Any more?

It was annoying that he wasn't more effusive. I thought I looked good. My husband would have been tearing that second dress off of me—if he wasn't preserving me for someone else. I texted Dave a picture of the red dress, telling him Carlos was helping me pick my outfit. I knew that would put some lead into his pencil.

Dave texted me right back: It's got to be that one!

I did have a third choice, and I changed into it. It was amazing how many flirty, sexy little outfits I'd accumulated over the past months. A lot of my old mom clothes had to be pushed aside for my hot date dresses. I felt sexier than I had in years. I was not sure about the third outfit—I felt like I was about ten years too old for it—but I sent Carlos, and my husband, the picture anyway. Carlos texted me back immediately.

CARLOS

That's the one, baby. Can't wait to see you in it tonight

Dave surprised me by saying he liked the red dress better. Did he think this outfit was over the line? The red dress was very sexy, but it was still me. The last outfit, a tiny black, quilted leather skirt with gold zippers down the sides and a tight, low-cut strappy black top, didn't leave much to the imagination. I wasn't wearing a bra for the picture, but I would have to wear something later. Being braless in that top was too obvious. Even though I think I'm in pretty good shape, I wasn't entirely comfortable wearing it. I texted Carlos back:

DANA

You can't wait to see me out of it

CARLOS

That too. But I like it when hot women dress up for me.

DANA

Are you planning on showing me off?

CARLOS

Maybe. I get the feeling you like that sort of thing

DANA

Go arrest someone. I have things to do before tonight

And I did have things to do. I took a long, luxurious bath, enjoying a mid-afternoon glass of wine while I laid back in the steamy, fragrant water. I shaved my legs and made sure my mound was nice and smooth. Swiping the razor over my pussy, and knowing I was doing it for Carlos—not my husband—was an aphrodisiac and I had to put the razor aside to spread my lips and stroke my clit. My eyes fluttered closed, and I recalled Carlos's smooth, chiseled body, the way his cock stood out, strong and proud. I hadn't seen him in weeks, but suddenly it was like it was yesterday, and I couldn't wait to give myself to him again. Breathy little moans came quickly and in minutes my toes were curling as my climax washed over me.

As I laid back in the tub it struck me that I didn't masturbate often these days. Before we started our hot dates, I probably did it three times a week, on average. Dave and I had a great sex life, but there were times when I just wanted a quick release during the day. I think Dave and I have less sex now and I'm more oversexed than ever. If I want sex from my husband, I usually have to initiate it, which bothers me, at least a little. I have all these men dying to sleep with me, but I have to seek my husband's attention. It really does seem like he'd rather watch videos of me fucking than actually fuck me sometimes.

I don't understand why he wouldn't rather have the real thing. I could get as much sex as I want from other men—Dave really does seem fine with me going out whenever I want—but I want to make love to my husband. Which leaves me horny all the time, but instead of masturbating I turned that energy into thinking about my next date, which makes me as close to a sure thing for these guys as they're ever likely to see. I've tried to say something to Dave, but he just refuses to see it. He thinks everything in our sex life is perfect. So, I just go with the flow and take my pleasures where I can, but I do feel like I'm missing something.

The bath was a lovely respite, but there was much to do afterward. The laundry never ends, and I had some paperwork to tackle for Dave's business. Not long after that I was in the Prius to get the kids from school.

As I chatted with the other moms in line, I briefly wondered what they would think if I rolled up in that little outfit Carlos wanted me to wear, instead of the jeans, boots and yellow sweater set I wore—normal clothes. Words like skank, whore, slut would surely be muttered. They would think I lost my mind, and maybe someone would even work up the nerve to say something catty directly to me, but possibly not. My actual friends would pull me aside and ask if Dave and I were having trouble. And I think a lot of the reactions would be motivated by jealousy.

Not to sound catty myself, but most of the other moms my age at the kids' school just haven't kept themselves in great shape and I know they resent those of us who have. They hate the way their husbands look at us. And I sympathize. I'm as busy as any of them, but if you want to be in shape after a couple kids, after you hit your mid-thirties, you've got to make it a priority. I'd rather stay in bed than run in the morning, but I'd also rather still fit into my size six jeans.

After that, it was back home, where homework was done, and I folded laundry while the kids played in the family room. Too soon it was time to start dinner—a lasagna. Dave came home and we ate dinner as a family, but I only picked at my salad. I was nervous about my date with Carlos, and I didn't know if he wanted to have dinner or not. I didn't want to eat twice. He was skimpy with the details. I grabbed a shower and then we put the kids to bed together. I didn't want to get ready for Carlos until they were safely in bed. Dave went to finish cleaning up the kitchen and I went off to prepare myself for another man.

My spiked heels clicked on the granite tile when I came into the kitchen. I'd gotten pretty good at walking normally in crazy high heels. Dave looked up and I knew he thought I was sexy, but he did not smile like he usually does when he sees me ready for a date. Did it bother him that I was wearing what Carlos chose, instead of the outfit he liked?

"Wow, that looks even hotter in person," Dave finally said. I could see the unasked question in his eyes, You don't think that's too much? Or too little?

"I don't look ridiculous, do I?"

"If you were going to a PTA meeting, yes. If you're going to a club, you'll fit right in."

“I don’t know where we’re going. Carlos just gave me a time to meet up.”

Dave didn’t seem to like that either. “Okay. But you’re going to end up at the apartment later?”

I bristled. That was what he really cared about. Not that some rogue cop might disappear with me, but that we ended up at his precious fuck pad. “Yes, dear. We will be there,” I said sweetly, pouring it on. “I told him my girlfriend was out of town and we could use her place. He wanted to go to his, but I told him I wasn’t up for that.”

“Cool.” He came around the island and held me out to look at me, hands on my hips. “He is going to eat you up, hon. Jesus.”

I softened and smiled. “I don’t even feel like myself. I can’t believe I’m wearing this in public.”

“You look like you, Dana. Just the supercrazyhottest version of you. I don’t care where you guys end up going. No one will be looking at anyone but you.”

“Thanks, babe. I love you.”

It was a normal day, except for the fashion show for my lover. Chores, laundry, kids—not the kind of day that led most women to sitting in a car waiting to be picked up for a hot date while their husband was home with the kids. I was staring down at my lap when the burner phone chirped with a text. Carlos was out front. I’d told him I’d come down when he got there because I was afraid if he came up, we’d never leave the apartment. That wasn’t necessarily a bad thing, but I looked forward to seeing what Carlos had planned. I slipped on a long, black trench coat and went down to meet him.

Carlos sat against the fender of a black Dodge Charger with his arms crossed. Despite the chill in the air, he didn’t wear a coat. He was in all black—silk shirt, tailored slacks and boots. He looked good. Casual, but strong. A little shiver ran through me, and I wanted him right there.

“Let me see,” he said, gesturing with his fingers for me to open my coat.

It was chilly and I wasn’t wearing much, but I did as he instructed. The coat was longer than the skirt. He smiled, and I crossed the distance and pressed against him, for warmth as much as anything else. “Do you like?”

“Even hotter in the flesh, babe. You like dressing up for me, don’t you?”

I nodded and kissed him. He grabbed my ass when I pressed my tongue past his lips. The tingling had spread from my pussy through my whole body by the time I pulled back. I wiped my red lipstick from his lips with my thumb. "Is that a convincing yes?" I asked.

"You'll get your chance to show me your gratitude."

"Gratitude?" I chuckled.

He smiled cryptically. "It's going to be a good night. I promise."

Carlos held the door, and before I could slide into the passenger seat, he slid the coat from my shoulders. I was cold, but I was more flattered that he wanted to be able to see me. He got a nice flash of my legs as I slid into the black leather passenger seat. He folded my coat and placed it in the back.

"Where are we going?" I asked when he got in beside me. The car started with a low growl and Carlos tapped a couple buttons on the touch screen in the middle of the dashboard.

"Somewhere I think you'll have fun. Have you eaten?"

"Just a snack. I could eat."

"We can stop and grab something."

"Only if it's not going to throw off your plan," I said.

"My plans aren't that tight." He smiled. "Did you walk out the door in front of your husband dressed like that?"

"No, I changed when I got upstairs. He might have had some questions if he saw me like this."

"No shit, Diana. I would never let you out of the house like that, unless I was going with you."

"So, you wouldn't mind me dressing like this, but you'd keep me on a short leash."

"Mmm, I like the idea of you on a leash."

I felt heat rise to my cheeks. That wasn't the only heat I felt. The leather seats must have been heated, because I felt a nice, warm glow coming up from beneath me and it didn't matter so much that I was wearing so little.

"But no, I wouldn't mind. If you were with me, babe, you'd be dressed like that all the time," Carlos said. He possessively dropped his hand on my bare leg.

"That could be inappropriate. You don't want me to get the wrong kind of attention, do you," I teased. His fingers almost tickled as they softly caressed my thigh, and my legs parted a couple inches.

"Don't worry, Diana. I'll keep you out of trouble, unless that's what we're looking for."

I couldn't help but whimper when his fingers crept deeper between my thighs. "Are we looking for trouble tonight?"

"We'll see."

Carlos guided us into a part of the city I didn't recognize, and I was relieved. It was highly unlikely we would be running into anyone Dave and I knew. Carlos's hand smoothly moved higher and higher between my thighs, but he never looked away from the road. He had to feel the damp heat from my sex. I tried my best to act like nothing was happening while we talked, but it was not easy. The tight skirt restricted how widely I could open my legs, but that didn't slow Carlos down. He slid his hand to the side and yanked up the little golden zipper. It opened the side of my skirt nearly to the waist. He pulled my legs apart now, no longer pretending nothing was happening.

"You're fucking soaked, Di," he hissed.

"Whose fault is that?" I moaned. There was no way to control my reactions. Carlos rubbed little circles on my mound, pushing my black lace panties between my swollen lips. I put my hand over his, but not to stop him—to encourage him.

"I've got the feeling it doesn't take much to get you wet. You were ready for it before we even got back to the hotel room last time, Diana."

I slid down in the seat, pushing myself at him. "And you were driving me crazy then, too. Ohh, that feels so good, baby."

"Take off your panties."

It was not a request, and I did not hesitate in complying with his order. Just that edge in his voice sent chills down my spine. I pulled my tiny panties past my heel and placed them in his outstretched hand. I was still reclined low in the seat, with my legs apart, and after he stowed my panties in the center console Carlos returned his hand to my pussy. He had free reign to explore me now and slid two thick fingers up inside me. I cried out and gripped the armrest tightly. My eyes fluttered closed, and I focused on his touch, trying to forget where we were. Although I'd become accustomed to the risk of fooling around in public, I was thankful for his tinted windows to hide me from prying eyes. With my legs spread like that, anyone looking down from an SUV would be able to see me fully exposed.

Carlos fingered me slow and steady, enough to drive me crazy, but not get me off. I pushed myself at him, but he refused to take the hint. He enjoyed toying with me too much. I reached out and felt him through his slacks. That thick cock lay along his right thigh, rock hard and ready for me. I considered straddling him and fucking him while he drove. It was so dangerous, but I was so horny.

“You want to come, don’t you?” he asked. He seemed amused.

“Yes, baby. You have me so horny.”

“Does your husband do this? Does he make you dripping wet like this?”

“No,” I lied. Dave had just done the very same thing while we waited for Travis, but it was important for Carlos to be top dog. And it wasn’t entirely a lie. My husband didn’t have the kind of absolute control Carlos had. There was no doubt the cop could keep me like that all night, where Dave would lose focus and let me come because he was too turned on himself.

“I think you need a man to take charge, Diana.”

“Only if you’re going to take care of me. You can’t just torture me.” I rubbed his cock harder, but I knew I wouldn’t just get him off as I had Dave. Carlos would not lose control.

“Like this?”

Carlos slid his drenched fingers up my wet furrow and attacked my clit. The stiff little nub was so slick he had trouble staying there, but he knew what to do. He almost pinched it between two fingers as he furiously rubbed me there. He wasn’t gentle, and I didn’t want him to be. He seemed to instinctually know what I needed. It was overwhelming and my cries quickly turned to screams. I pitched forward in the seat, trying to curl into a ball as the intense climax hit me. It didn’t just hit me—it slammed me, like a speeding train. I stayed tensed like that for I don’t know how long, with his hand trapped between my thighs. I finally fell back in the seat and stared up at the lights passing in the moon roof while I caught my breath.

“See, Diana, I know how to take care of you. You just need to leave yourself in my hands,” Carlos said.

“Yes. Anytime,” I mumbled, still floating on my cloud. He pressed his soaked fingers to my lips, and I greedily sucked them. I like to taste myself—it was a trick I used to do to drive Dave crazy—but I hadn’t done it in a while. It was hot that Carlos did it without asking, like there was no chance I would deny him.

CHAPTER

Twelve

I was still slouched in my seat with my skirt around my waist when we pulled up in front of The Columbiana Lounge and I barely had it tugged down when the valet opened my door. I turned bright red when he had to wait for me to fix the zipper on the side. Retrieving my panties was out of the question. I just hoped he didn't notice the big wet spot on the black leather seat. I felt extremely vulnerable in the tiny skirt with no panties, and I think Carlos liked that.

"You like to dance, don't you?" he asked.

"Sure, but I'm a little rusty."

"Oh, I'm quite sure you know how to move."

The club didn't look like much from the outside, just a low building with beige stucco walls and its name in cursive pink neon on the wall, but it was jumping on the inside. A bar lined the long back wall and there were some bar-height tables scattered around, but the bulk of the room was taken by a massive dance floor, with a DJ, perched high in the corner, spinning tunes with a strong, Latin beat. Booths were scalloped into the walls on both sides, with their own tables and upholstered in red leather. The club was packed with a clientele that looked to be largely Hispanic, with a few black people mixed in and maybe only a handful of white people. It's something you rarely experience if you're white and live in the suburbs, the feeling of being a minority in a crowd. I honestly couldn't remember ever being in that position, and I hope it doesn't sound too racist to admit I was a little nervous. It just didn't feel like somewhere I belonged. If Carlos wasn't at my side I probably would have turned around and walked out, but he held my hand firmly and pulled me through the crowd. Multiple people greeted him, not a few of them women, so I had to assume he was a regular at the club. All of the women who knew him were very attractive and seemed to be wearing as little—or less—than I was, and I felt oddly jealous.

“Hey Livie, I’ll take a Modelo,” Carlos said when he caught the bartender’s eye. “My friend will have a mojito.”

“Haven’t seen you in a while, Livie,” she replied. Livie was a Spanish girl in her early 20s with long, jet black hair pulled back into a high ponytail. Her uniform was tight jeans and a vest that barely contained her tanned tits. Carlos didn’t give them more than a glance.

“Work’s been busy. You know how it is. This is Diana.”

“Nice to meet you,” Livie replied. Her smile didn’t quite reach her eyes and I got the feeling I wasn’t the first girl Carlos had introduced to her. Was this where he brought all the wives he fucked—and was Livie jealous? She served our drinks up quickly and Carlos handed her a twenty.

The mojito was strong, grabbing my attention on the first sip. I suddenly remembered I hadn’t had a real dinner and knew more than a couple of those would knock me on my ass. The strong white rum burned my throat going down, but in a good way. Carlos and I toasted, and his arm slid around me, his hand coming to rest on my butt.

“I thought you might need a drink after the way you were screaming in the car,” he said.

“I did get a little overheated,” I agreed, though I did not appreciate his smugness. His confidence was one of those things that was both arousing and a little infuriating.

“So, blanca, I’m guessing you’ve never been to a club like this.” It was the first time I’d heard him break into Spanish slang and I chalked it up to our surroundings. I heard a blend of English and Spanish all around us.

“No, I haven’t. This isn’t the sort of place we usually go.”

“So, what do you like to dance to, stuff like Lady Gaga?”

“Maybe, if I go out with my girlfriends. My husband hates that kind of music, though. If we go out, it’s usually rock music, or maybe country.”

Carlos laughed and nodded. “This is a different thing altogether. I think you’ll have fun tonight if you let yourself go.”

I leaned into him, my hand on his chest. I toyed with the buttons of his shirt and slipped my fingers between them so I could feel his smooth, hard chest. I was already thinking about ripping that shirt off of him. “I’m sure you’ll show me a good time,” I said.

“It’s a good thing you already know how to move your hips. Let’s see how the rest of you does.”

He drained his beer and set it down on the bar behind us. I was not going to down my mojito that quickly, so I carried it as he pulled me toward the dance floor. As massive as it was, the dance floor was still very crowded. I know nothing about Spanish music, so I had no idea who the DJ was playing or what style it was. All I knew was that it had a fast, complicated beat that took some concentration to catch. I glanced at the people around us for guidance and tried to mimic what the other women were doing, but it was hard to really move with my clutch in one hand and my drink in the other.

Carlos noticed and lifted the mojito to my lips, ordering me to drink it. He tipped it back so that I had no choice and as quickly as I could swallow, I still ended up with some spilling down my cleavage. We were still near the edge of the dance floor, and he placed my glass on one of the high tables, then pulled me deeper into the crowd.

Drinking the mojito that fast went right to my head and I felt light and easy. Carlos found a space for us in the crowd and we both moved to the tricky driving beat. A lot of it was footwork, which wasn’t the easiest in those heels, but I’d like to think I made up for my clumsy feet with my hip work—especially when Carlos and I were grinding together. He held my ass firmly, keeping me pressed to him. He slid his hand up my back, his touch hot on my skin. The strappy top left a lot of exposed skin and barely covered my black strapless bra. He fingered the clasp on my back and for a second I was afraid he was going to unhook it.

“You should have left this in the car too, Diana,” he said, leaning in close to be heard. His breath on my ear made me shiver.

“Not in this top, buddy. My tits would be bouncing all over the place.”

“That’s the point, chica.”

I felt awkward enough with no panties—no way I would have gone braless. I was already trying to be careful with how I moved, which the tight little skirt made difficult. It was not designed to let me move like that. The only thing that helped me relax—besides the mojito—was that the other women in club were wearing as little as I was.

Carlos guided my body with his expert hands and soon I was moving to the sexy music like a pro. There was just something inherently sexual about the Latin beat that made my body pulse and had me thinking about nothing but sex. A lot of that was probably due to the way Carlos moved to the beat. That man was sex personified. Just watching the way, he twisted and turned his body had me melting into a little puddle, but then he was touching me, and I thought I was going to pass out. His hands were everywhere on my body, but I didn't mind that he was touching me like that in public because it just seemed natural when we were moving to that music.

He could not have chosen a better preamble to taking me home and screwing the daylight out of me. I could feel his thick root pressing into me through those tight slacks and I knew he wanted me just as badly. I could not wait to drag him back to my husband's fuck pad.

"We need more drinks," Carlos announced. He pulled me close and gave me a long, hot kiss. I was ready to follow him when he announced he would be right back. I tried to tell him I just wanted water, but I didn't think he heard me.

I was ready to just stand there and wait for him to return. Those heels were starting to kill my feet. But the jostling crowd had a life of its own, and it was not ready to let me stop dancing. Carlos was soon replaced by a tall, sexy Latino man and without a thought I was moving against him the same way I'd been dancing with Carlos.

This stranger and I were touching and grinding like lost lovers. I was so overheated from Carlos that it just felt natural to keep moving and touching. The man cupped my ass and instead of slapping him, I just moved closer. His shirt was open, and I put my hand on his sweaty chest. He was not built like Carlos, but he had a nice body. I let him turn me, and with hands on my hips, he grinded into me from behind. His cock felt impressive, and I let him know it by backing right up into it. His hands were so close to my burning sex, and I was all too aware of it. I felt like such a cliché—the white girl who goes crazy from the Latin beat, but I guess there is truth in clichés.

While my new friend held me from behind, a beautiful, dark-skinned woman slid in front of me, joining our dance. She was tall and lean, and her dress was so low-cut that it gaped open when she moved to the music, her breasts threatening to spill out. Her wavy hair went dark to light in an Ombre-dye job and framed both her pretty face and her perky tits. She caressed my bare arms, sliding her hands downward so she could take my hands. She placed my hands on her hips and moved closer so that our bodies were pressed together.

I smiled and gave myself to the music. I didn't want to think about how horny I was while pressed between those two sexy strangers. The man behind kept pressing his hard-on into my ass and the small of my back, making it hard to think of anything but sex. The girl in front of me held my hips as well as we ground together. We were so close and from the look in her deep brown eyes I was sure she was about to kiss me. I even closed my eyes as I could feel it coming. She grazed her lips over mine, and being the little slut I've become, I chased her lips until she shared a longer kiss.

Being with other women is not something I've ever pursued. Surprisingly, it doesn't seem to be a part of my husband's kink. Dave has never brought up seeing me with another woman instead of men. And while I can appreciate the sexiness of women, thoughts of being with one don't grab me like being with a man does. But that doesn't mean I'm not open. I had a good time being with our friend Lisa years ago, when I was with her and her boyfriend. She made me come hard, but I was probably just as focused on her boyfriend—and Dave watching the three of us. And now here I was, years later, kissing another woman, and really turned on by it.

The kiss did not last long, but she whispered, "Your lips are so soft," before pulling back. Her voice carried the soft lilt of a South American accent. She did not pull back far but kept grinding me in front while the man did the same in the rear. Those two probably could have dragged me off to some corner of the club and had their way with me and I would have happily surrendered. The only thing that snapped me into reality was when the beautiful stranger began pulling up the zippers on the sides of my skirts. I put my hands over hers and she laughed musically.

"Give her a break, guys. Diana doesn't even know you yet," Carlos said, appearing out of nowhere.

I thought he might be angry that I was letting some strange guy grope me like that—I somehow knew the woman wouldn't be a problem—but he was smiling. It was only upon his arrival that the two released me. Carlos handed me another mojito and I was so overheated that I sucked down half of it right away.

"She was having fun, papi," the girl said. She moved to Carlos's side and seemed to rub herself against him like a cat. In her heels—they were even higher than my own four inches—she easily had the height to kiss his cheek—leaving a dark red lipstick mark. She smiled at me, and added, "We were having fun, weren't we, chica?"

I took another sip and answered, “We were. I guess these are friends of yours, Carlos?” I realized the man was still beside me and had his arm draped casually over my shoulders.

“This is Gabriela—” he started.

“Please, it’s Gabi,” she interrupted.

“And Javier. We’re all friends. Guys, this is Diana,” Carlos finished. By the way Gabi was hanging on him they seemed like more than just friends. I had no right, but my jealousy flared again. I looked for a wedding ring on her hand but did not see one. I had left mine on for a change, since Carlos knew I was married. Something about going on a hot date wearing my rings felt even dirtier.

Javier turned the arm over my shoulders into a hug and kissed my cheek. It seemed almost innocent after the way we’d just been dancing. “It’s a pleasure to meet you,” he said. Unlike Gabi, he was not accented. “Maybe we should take a little break. We have a table.”

“Excellent,” Carlos agreed.

They had one of those booths along the wall staked out, with Gabi’s coat stretched out along the seat and their drinks on the table. Carlos held out his arm, and I slid into the booth, doing my best to keep my skirt from riding up. It felt good to finally be off my feet. Gabi slid in from the other side and I ended up between her and Carlos. Although there was plenty of room, somehow, I ended up snugly between their two hot bodies. When Carlos put his arm around me, he ended up caressing Gabi’s bare shoulder. Gabi had some colorful tropical looking cocktail, and she drained it like it was nothing but fruit juice. Javier sipped his cocktail more judiciously.

“How do you two know each other?” Javier asked.

I didn’t quite know how to answer that, and thankfully Carlos jumped in. “I met Diana at McCauley’s wedding,” he said.

Javier nodded, but I could swear he was staring at my wedding ring. Did he know of his friend’s predilection for screwing married women?

“So, you haven’t been seeing each other long?” Gabi asked. That seemed to please her.

“We’re just sort of hanging out,” I replied.

I didn’t want to give the impression Carlos and I were really dating. It felt odd to be sitting there, talking to other people while out on one of my hot dates. It was like that first time I met Carlos, and I wondered if part of the thrill of sleeping with other men’s wives was showing them off. Usually when I met a man it was an illicit affair where we tried not to be noticed before we snuck out to go be alone somewhere. There was still that fear in the back of my brain that I was going to run into someone I knew while out with another man—no matter how unlikely it was.

“Carlos is great to hang out with, Diana. You’re very lucky,” Gabi said. “We used to hang out a lot, but he hasn’t been around in a while.”

“You know how work can be. I was on a 3rd watch surveillance for a while,” Carlos said.

“You know you can call me anytime, papi.”

“I know Carlos is a cop. What do you guys do?” I asked, trying to interject myself between Gabi and my date. My hand dropped beneath the table, and I rested it on his thigh, my fingertips just brushing where I knew his cock lay.

“I have my own detailing business. Bring your car by sweetheart. I’ll take care of you,” Javier said.

“Maybe I will. It’s filthy.” Flirting back with Javier was an antidote to my jealousy.

“I can definitely take care of that,” he said.

“I don’t know, hermano, you’d be surprised how filthy Diana can be,” Carlos chuckled. He pulled me just a little tighter and his hand moved over to toy with the strings on my shoulder that held my top in place.

“How about you, Gabi?” I turned and smiled, wanting to pull her focus away from my date. It didn’t help that sitting that close only made me realize how truly beautiful she really was. I flashed back to that brief kiss we shared and wondered if she liked it as much as I did.

“I work at Victoria’s Secret.” She touched my arm, and I got goosebumps when she trailed her long, painted nails down it. “You should come by and see me sometime, too. I could hook you up, if you like that sort of thing.”

“I love your stuff—I mean their stuff,” I said. I’d quickly gone from being jealous of Gabi to being captivated by her.

“We’ve got some stuff I know you’d look great in,” she said. As she caressed me, she stopped just short of touching my breast.

“I could bring her by and then we could all have lunch,” Carlos said.

He shifted in the booth, so my hand rested right on his cock, which twitched under my touch. I could well imagine that he was thinking of getting me and Gabi alone. It sounded like a great idea, and for the first time in a while that night I thought of my husband. What would he think of seeing me with both Carlos and Gabi? I had to think his head would explode.

“So, are you two together?” I asked, trying to force all the dirty thoughts from my brain.

“We like to have fun together,” Gabi answered, turning and patting Javier’s thigh, much like I was touching Carlos.

“Just like you and Carlos,” Javier added in a way that told me he knew all about the type of women his friend liked to bed. He and Gabi shared a long, drawn-out kiss that watching left me gasping.

I only looked away because Carlos demanded my attention for a kiss of his own. I reached up to hold his smooth, shaved head, and gripped his shaft tighter with my other hand. He casually dropped a hand in my lap and nudged it past my skirt. I tried squeezing my thighs closed—I was self-conscious with the others right there—but he was insistent, and I relaxed my thighs. The problem was that I wanted him to touch me there. I needed him to. I was so vulnerable without panties. He didn’t push those fingers inside me, but teased them between my slick lips, just stroking me to drive me crazy—until he brushed my clit. Carlos’s fingers on my clit made me jump and moan into his mouth. I wanted to fuck him so badly I trembled.

It took a moment to realize that Carlos was not the only one touching me. I was so focused on him, and so swept up in the pleasure that throbbed through my body, that it didn’t occur to me that there were three hands on me. Gabi was grabbing my breasts and she was pretty aggressive about it. As a woman, she probably knew I wouldn’t feel much through the heavy padding of my strapless bra, so she overcompensated. But I like it rough and knowing I was being groped by two people there in plain view in the club was so hot. Carlos worked my pussy like a pro, keeping me right on that edge, and I wanted to kill him for it. I didn’t care that the others would see me come—I just wanted it. When we stopped kissing, and everyone took their hands back, I felt dazed.

Gabi read my expression and smiled. “You need a little bump, Diana,” she said.

She found her purse underneath the table and dug through it until she retrieved a gorgeous antique silver cigarette case with a frilly, etched-in design. As soon as she clicked it open, I knew those slender, hand-rolled cigarettes were not tobacco. There was also a little brown glass vial. Gabi uncapped the vial first and shook a little white powder onto her long, painted pinkie nail and offered it to me. I shook my head.

“Are you sure? It will help keep the party going,” she said.

“That’s just really not my thing,” I replied. I’d smoked plenty of pot in my time—even fairly recently—but I’d always stayed away from coke. It scared me.

Gabi shrugged and offered it past me. To my surprise, Carlos eagerly took the bump and thanked her.

“Don’t you have to pass drug tests for work?” I asked.

Carlos laughed. “There are ‘random drug tests,’ but we always get plenty of warning. Besides, I was just working a drug case, and they can’t test you after you’ve handled a large volume of narcotics. You just naturally absorb some through the skin. Are you sure you don’t want some, Diana? It’ll fire you up, baby.”

“I’m good,” I insisted. I was already plenty fired up, that was the problem.

Gabi did a bump herself but did not offer Javier a hit. She must have known he would refuse it. She took one of the joints from the case and passed it to Javier, who lit it with a gold lighter and took a long drag. He passed it back and when it came my way, I took a heavy drag. I needed something to chill me out. I knew it might make me even hornier—which it sometimes did—but getting high seemed like a good idea at the time. Carlos took a hit and passed it right back and I indulged again. Between the four of us, the joint did not last long.

Her weed was strong, and it hit me right away. Everything just seemed to slow down, and it took me a few seconds to realize when someone was talking to me. A broad smile was on my lips, and I was moving to the music without even thinking about it. Gabi decided that meant it was time to dance again and pulled me out of the booth—but we were halfway to the dance floor before I really realized it. The guys came too, and we ended up dancing in our own little group.

My high muffled the beat of the Latin music so that I more felt it than heard it and moving through that fog made the dancing feel more sensual than before. I didn’t need any guidance this time, as my body just started moving to the music on its own. Couples didn’t seem to matter anymore and the four of us just sort of moved with each other, splitting off as we felt like it. I enjoyed dancing with Javier just as much as Carlos, especially since he was taking the same liberties as my date. I loved the feel of his hands on my body and eagerly grinded with him to encourage more.

Gabi was also close by and I danced with her as much as anyone. When she pressed her back against me, she took both my hands and put them on her perky tits. They felt nice and her nipples poked right through the thin material of her gossamer silvery halter dress. We kissed here and there, but the guys never seemed to leave us alone long enough to really get into it. And Carlos seemed to be enjoying it all. I could tell he was proud that his friends liked me, and it didn't bother him if they liked me a little too much.

I don't know how long we were out there on the dance floor, but I was exhausted and exhilarated when we returned to the booth. Once again, everyone did a bump of cocaine, but I declined. I wasn't that crazy. But I did take a drag of the second joint Gabi lit. It was only when Carlos commented that it was getting late that I learned it was after one. I panicked for a moment. Dave must have been thinking I was dead by the side of the road somewhere. I wanted to check my phone, but that would have to wait until I could sneak off to the bathroom. Hopefully Carlos was about ready to get me alone.

"Does the night really have to end?" Gabi pouted.

"I don't have to be in early," Javier said.

I couldn't believe these people could stay out all night and still function in the morning. I assumed they had to go to work at some point.

"We could all grab a nightcap," Carlos said. "What do you think, Diana?"

What I wanted was to get him alone and claw his clothes off, but the pot left me very pliable, and Gabi caressing my leg with her nails had me thinking that hanging out a little longer wouldn't be a bad thing. "Sure, why not. I can stay out a little later."

"We could all go to your place, if you don't mind," he replied. "I mean, it's nice and quiet."

I thought they were talking about going to a quieter bar to grab a drink, not go somewhere alone. My brain was a little foggy, but I could see where things might be going, and I didn't know if it was a good idea. I was feeling good and incredibly horny, meaning I was up for just about anything—but that was the problem. Things could easily get out of control if we were some place private. Everyone was staring at me, and I couldn't think of a reason not to go back to the apartment—not one I could tell them, anyway.

“Sure, why not?” I finally answered. “But I need to go to the girl’s room first.” I picked up my little clutch.

“I could freshen up, too,” Gabi said. Carlos slid over to let us out and she took my hand and led me away.

As soon as I could slip into a stall, I had my phone out. There were a dozen texts from my husband asking where I was. Six of them were from the last forty-five minutes. I texted him back.

DANA

So sorry. He took me dancing and totally lost track of time

Dave must have been holding his phone, because the reply came right in.

DAVE

As long as you’re okay. Guess you’re having fun?

DANA

He’s enjoyed the outfit

DAVE

I knew he would. Will you be back soon?

I knew Dave didn’t mean back home, but back at the apartment.

DANA

Think so. We ran into some friends of his. He wants to bring them back

DAVE

Could be fun

DANA

Are you sure?

I knew his mind had gone to the dirtiest place possible and he was imagining another night like my threesome with Zach and his roommate. Nothing I did bothered him, which bothered me. Was there anything too slutty? Did my husband want to see me get gangbanged? I wanted to think there were some limits—something Dave would hold precious—but it didn’t seem that way.

DAVE

The more the merrier right?

His reply got my back up. High, I wasn't making the best decisions and it seemed like a really good idea to test him. I would give him the slutty wife he'd always wanted.

DANA

Great. We'll be there soon

When I came out of the stall, Gabi was at the mirror fluffing her hair. Amazingly, we were the only two women in the restroom. She dug through her bag and then applied a fresh coating of red lipstick. Something about that girl just oozed sex. I joined her to touch up my own makeup.

"Does your husband know?" Gabi asked, sliding her lip gloss applicator back into the tube.

The question was so out of nowhere I wasn't sure I heard her right. "Excuse me?"

Gabi took my left hand and fingered my wedding rings. "Is that too personal to ask? I'm just curious. I know the kind of woman Carlos prefers and I've always wondered about them. I know some men do not mind if their wife goes out with other men. Some of them even like it."

"Really?" Playing dumb seemed like a good idea.

"Men like all kinds of things, Diana, you know this—you have experience. Some men, they like to be spanked, some like their women to obey, and some get off on studs like Carlos fucking their wives. What type is your man?"

It was so tempting to tell Gabi the truth. She was a virtual stranger, and she did not seem like she would judge us, but I had told Carlos a different story and I didn't think I should contradict that. "I think my husband suspects I see other men, but he's so busy with other women I don't think he cares as long as I am discrete."

"Lucky you." She smiled and still held my hand, playing with my rings. "And you do not mind his playing around?"

"He lives his life, I live mine. The arrangement seems to work for us."

"And women? Do you see women too?" She moved closer, her body brushing mine.

“Uh, no...not usually.” She looked at me with that predatory gaze I was used to seeing in men’s eyes. She released my hand and I instinctively put it on her hip. Those long nails trailing up my arm gave me goosebumps like before and made me tingle in all the right places. She softly caressed my cheek.

“That’s too bad, but things can change,” Gabi said.

“Sure,” I murmured.

I couldn’t wait any longer for Gabi to act so I kissed her. She was slender in my arms, so different from the heft of the muscular men I’m attracted to. Her back was mostly bare and felt warm under my fingertips. I heard someone come into the restroom, but they passed us by, and we kept kissing. Gabi flicked her tongue at mine playfully. She was the one to end the kiss.

“We should get back, chica.”

“Just one thing, about Carlos,” I said. “He told me why he likes—women like me—do you see him with a lot of them?”

“I don’t think he brings them all around, but I do know that he likes a lot of women. Carlos, I think, likes the challenge, but then he gets bored.” She almost looked sorry for me. She looked me up and down and then added, “But maybe not you. You’re much sexier.”

“Thanks,” I said, already thinking of ways to keep Carlos interested. I didn’t like to think that he may become bored with me.

We returned to the table and the guys were ready to go. Gabi picked up a long, black leather coat at the coat check and Carlos told the others to follow us. I slid into the passenger seat, well aware the valet could just about see my pussy when my skirt rode up. Carlos gave him a hearty clap on the shoulder when he tipped him.

“You don’t mind that Gabi and Javier are coming over, do you?” he asked.

“The more the merrier, right?” I answered, echoing my husband. “As long as I get you to myself at some point.” I laid my hand in his lap to make my point.

Carlos chuckled. He seemed to enjoy my forwardness. “We’re alone right now. You should make the most of it.”

I didn’t know exactly what he meant, but I could guess. I unclicked my seatbelt and leaned across the center console, reaching for his belt. He slid the power seat back and pulled on his tight pants and clingy Lycra boxer briefs, getting them down just enough. His cock sprang up and I was electrified as soon as I touched it. It was amazingly thick, just as I remembered it. My fingers didn't quite encircle it and I really had to stretch my mouth to take him in.

Carlos grunted when I licked the head and I worked on sucking that first, getting myself ready to swallow that monster. His prick really was so big and beautiful—smooth and hairless—that I got excited just playing with it. I didn't have to be a size queen to appreciate how amazing it was. He encouraged me with soft pressure on the back of my head. He tasted masculine and I happily took in more of his shaft.

"Diana, baby, you suck that cock so good," he encouraged. "You suck it like you really want it."

I would have told him how much I wanted it if my mouth hadn't been so full. My cheeks hollowed and I sucked him hard. That strong desire to please him returned and for some weird reason I wanted to earn the good screwing I knew he would give me later.

"Suck it, Diana. Suck that goddam cock," he groaned. His fingers tightened in my hair, and he was forcing me farther down on him.

The head hit the back of my throat and I relaxed, just barely avoiding gagging on him—but it almost felt like he wanted me to, the way he was forcing me down. I went with it, but it was difficult. My jaw ached from his girth and saliva ran down his shaft as I bobbed up and down on it. He pumped his hips up at my mouth and I dug my nails into his thigh as I struggled to keep up with him.

"You're so fucking good, Di. So good sucking that cock. Show me you want it, baby. You're so fucking sexy."

His words energized me, and I worked even harder at sucking his cock. I loved the way he possessed me. God, I wanted to make him come. As much as I loved being my husband's little slut, I yearned to be Carlos's, too—and it scared me. He cried out my name and held his cock buried at the back of my throat and climaxed. His thick jism squirted into my throat and I coughed hard, trying to swallow in that impossible position. Carlos only released me when he was finished coming and some of his seed dribbled onto my lips before I licked it up.

I fell back into my seat and pushed my hair back. God, I couldn't remember the last time I'd given road head like that. I did it for Dave all the time when we were younger. I always loved how delightfully dirty it felt.

But we'd gotten away from that and now here I was—years later—doing it for my lover. I smiled, thinking that I wished my husband had been able to see it. He would have loved it. But Dave's cameras couldn't catch everything.

“Does your husband have any idea what a great cocksucker you are, Diana?”

It was like he was reading my mind. “He used to.”

“Talent like that should not be wasted. I know a lot of guys who'd love to fuck that sweet mouth.”

I turned a shade of red and murmured, “Thanks,” embarrassed that I took it as a real compliment. I flipped down the visor and in the lighted mirror I looked like what I was. My hair was a mess, and my lipstick was smeared. I'd have to fix it the best I could before we got back to the apartment. I didn't want to look like a whore when entering a potential orgy.

CHAPTER

Thirteen

I awaited Dana's return with a mixture of anticipation and annoyance. It bothered me that she had been out with Carlos all night having fun. I wanted my wife to enjoy herself on these hot dates, but all that time she was out with another guy—having dinner, dancing, whatever—was time I spent waiting at home with my dick in my hand. Waiting to see some action. And the fact that she could go out with Carlos and spend hours with him not in bed implied they could have a real connection. I wasn't sure I liked that.

It was how I felt about her getting so excited about running over to see Zach. I was excited I was going to get another video, I was excited my wife was getting fucked, but I didn't like that they seemed like friends. I know it's not what Dana wants, but I'll admit it—in my perfect world these guys would appear, seduce and fuck my wife, and then disappear. I hadn't wanted any repeat dates at first, but then I realized they were a means to an end, and I was just going to have to deal with it.

Dana and Carlos weren't the only ones coming back to the apartment. That was an interesting development. I took from her text that these other people weren't just coming back to hang out, and I hoped that was not just my wishful thinking. A lot of scenarios flew through my brain, most of them involving my wife taking on three, maybe four guys. I imagined Dana surrounded by cocks, reaching for them. It was a hot, potent fantasy and I almost had to jerk off while I waited, but I was able to hold out—just barely.

Was my sweet wife ready for something like that? I had no idea, and I was not even really sure I was ready to see that. Her threesome with Zach had been hot, but to really see her take on a bunch of guys would be new territory. Did I want Dana to want a gangbang? I couldn't really answer that one way or the other, and that was more frightening than anything else.

I had to wait nearly an hour to find out what I was in store for, and I was somewhat perplexed when they showed up with another couple. It was a tall, Hispanic male and a smokin' hot Hispanic female. He was handsome, but not a stud like Carlos. She was stunning.

It's funny, but unlike a lot of the guys I saw on hotwife message boards, I didn't much care about the race of the guy fucking my wife. I just wanted to see her lost in ecstasy. If black guys, or Hispanic guys, did that for her, that was cool, but it didn't add anything to it for me. Carlos being Hispanic was secondary to the fact that he seemed to be hung like a tall beer can.

I noticed right away that Dana looked like she'd been having some fun before they reached the apartment. Her lipstick wasn't quite right, and her hair was kind of messy. It bothered me that she may have been blowing Carlos, or even fucking him, somewhere else and I couldn't see it. I really wanted to see everything.

The others complimented Dana on the apartment, and she told them it was a friend's, sticking to the cover story. She didn't seem to know what to do next and Carlos took charge, asking the others what they wanted to drink.

"Is there any tequila?" the girl asked.

"I think so," Dana replied.

I knew there was. I made sure that apartment was fully stocked with liquor.

"Javier?" Carlos asked the other guy.

"I'll have a beer."

"I'll be right back," Dana said. She looked relieved to have something to do. She went into the kitchen, but I kept the camera on the living room. Carlos sat on the couch and the girl came around behind him and rubbed his shoulders. What would Dana think about that? Javier milled around.

"This is a friend's place?" Javier asked.

"That's what she said," Carlos answered. "Who knows? She's married."

"I noticed," Javier said.

"She's fucking hot, papi," the girl said, leaning in close and kissing Carlos's head. She definitely wanted to fuck my wife's date.

“I thought you might like her, Gabi,” he said. “This could just be some kind of fuck pad, who really knows. Maybe her husband knows she fucks around, maybe he doesn’t. Who gives a fuck? If he’s stupid enough to send a piece of ass like Diana out, I’m more than happy to fuck her all night and send her home bowlegged.”

I cringed at Carlos’s comments. I hated that he thought I was some kind of pussy who couldn’t take care of my wife in bed. I was more than capable of that. I just enjoyed other kinds of thrills too. I couldn’t expect someone like him to understand that. He looked kind of like a Neanderthal. I hoped he lived up to his bluster in bed. I wondered if Dana could hear them in the kitchen.

“Si, hermano,” Javier said, flashing a big smile. He looked like he wanted a crack at my wife too, which made me wonder if he and Gabi were really a couple. Was this going to turn into some kind of swapping thing? Maybe Gabi and Javier were swingers. I never considered that we might encounter that. I was good with Javier fucking Dana, as long as I got to see Carlos do it too. He rocked her world last time and I wanted to see what all the fuss was about.

“I’m going to go help Diana,” Gabi said. I split the screen, so I could see both rooms.

Dana was at the counter in the kitchen, opening a beer. She had the bottle of Cuervo that I’d bought out and several shot glasses. Gabi came in behind her and pressed close. My wife only stiffened for a moment before melting back against the sexy Latina, making me think that was not the first time they’d been so close. Gabi planted several kisses on Dana’s bare shoulder. The kitchen camera was hidden in the overhead lighting, which meant my view wasn’t great. I’d have killed to see my wife’s expression. The girls spoke and I realized I still had the audio from the living room up, so I switched, but by then the girls were kissing.

It had been many years since I saw Dana kiss another woman. It was way hotter now that she was my wife and a proper MILF. She had turned to face Gabi and her eyes were closed, while her arms went around the other woman. Dana got a good handful of Gabi’s tight little ass and Gabi pushed her back into the counter. It looked like Gabi had a knee up between Dana’s legs and my mind went right to the dirtiest thoughts. Dana just had to be rubbing herself against Gabi’s knee like she was in heat.

The kiss did not last nearly long enough, and the girls carried the alcohol into the living room, where the guys waited. There was a shaker of salt, but no limes. I hadn't planned on my wife doing complex tequila shots with anyone.

"Sorry, there's no limes," Dana apologized. "I don't think my friend keeps the fridge well stocked. She's away on business as often as not." Was that her way of signaling to Carlos that he could have her there whenever he wanted?

Carlos took my wife by the waist and kissed her while she held the tequila bottle high. He palmed her ass, and she wiggled it for him. Jealousy and arousal speared through me. It was funny how watching Dana kiss Gabi was nothing but hot, but her kissing Carlos still sparked that primal jealousy, even after seeing her with so many men.

"That's okay, baby. Make sure your friend is better prepared next time," he said. There was no missing how he referred to her friend. So, if he didn't think it was a friend's place, what did he really think was going on? It was apparent he didn't care as long as he got to fuck my wife.

"I don't need lime anyway, that's only for if you're a chocha," Gabi said, taking the tequila from Dana, after handing Javier his beer.

Gabi broke the seal on the bottle and opened it. I was glad I got the good stuff, because she opened it and knocked it right back. Most guys I know wouldn't even do that. Gabi was a party girl. She wiped her lips on the back of her hand and pressed the bottle to Carlos's lips. He tilted his head back and took a long swallow. Carlos only coughed a little, maintaining his dignity. It was Dana's turn, and I knew she was not going to take it as well.

Dana began to cough and gag the second Gabi poured it into her mouth. I don't know how much made it down her throat, but a lot poured down her neck and soaked her dress. That didn't bother Gabi, who began licking at the tequila on my wife's neck. Carlos moved just enough so Gabi could get really close. Gabi even kissed the tops of her wet tits but didn't linger too long. Instead, she brought the bottle to Javier, who easily took as much tequila as Gabi was willing to pour.

"Maybe it will be easier this way, Di," Gabi said. She took a big slug of the amber fluid into her mouth and set the bottle aside.

Gabi kissed Dana hard, and it looked like only a little of the tequila escaped. But the kiss did not end with the shared shot. The girls were standing in front of the couch, and I had a perfect view of them from the camera mounted in the television. Their kiss was frenzied, and they pawed each other's bodies while their tongues dueled. I knew that at least part of the attraction for my wife was all the men watching her—not just the ones in the room, but me at home. She kissed Gabi like she wanted to devour her.

My cock strained at my gym shorts, and I gave up resisting. I pulled the shorts down and grabbed my hot shaft. Was it pathetic that I sat home masturbating while my wife was out having all the fun? I had mostly convinced myself it wasn't, but there was always going to be that niggling doubt at the back of my mind that I was really just a weak fool. Dana was having an epic sex life and I was just in the shadows, masturbating. But those feelings of weakness were part of the heady cocktail that addicted me to watching my wife with other men. That sick-sweet feeling was my high. I could come in seconds from watching, but that peculiar feeling would be with me all night.

Gabi was pulling at the strings that held Dana's top in place. It was a pretty complicated garment and she figured out it was easier to just pull it over her head and off. With a quick twist, the clasp was released, and her strapless bra popped right off. In those brief moments the girls stopped kissing, I swear Dana looked right into the camera at me. She looked a little dazed, maybe unsure, but there was no way for me to give her a sign. And then Gabi was pulling her onto the couch and Dana went with her happily.

Carlos and Javier stood around the couch, admiring the show as much as I did. I hadn't shot my load yet, but that was only because I'd had so much practice watching my wife. I wanted to hold out for a really good image, something to burn into my mind.

Dana was reclined on the couch, but not lying down, and she pulled at Gabi's dress, trying to wrestle it from her body. It looked like Gabi wanted her dress gone too but did not want to stop kissing and touching Dana. She massaged my wife's tits, letting the pink, stiff nipples peek out between her fingers. But Dana didn't have to take Gabi's dress off to get at her body. The front of that dress was so low cut, so open, that my wife could just pull it open to expose Gabi's small, brown tits. I couldn't see much from my angle, but Gabi moaned into their kiss, so Dana had done something right.

Gabi stood, grabbed her dress from the bottom, and whipped the whole thing over her head. A tiny g-string barely covered anything, and for a moment I thought she wasn't wearing anything at all under the dress. Dana reached up to touch her, fingers gliding over Gabi's flat stomach and then over her breasts. Dana teased her nipples with her fingertips, and Gabi threw her head back for a throaty moan. Gabi's two-tone hair spilled down her back.

Javier muttered something in Spanish—it sounded like he was telling Gabi something—and Gabi pounced on my wife. Dana welcomed her with open arms, and after a hot kiss Gabi worked her way down Dana's hot body. Gabi kissed and nibbled Dana's neck until she was shaking and moaning uncontrollably. She feasted on Dana's tits, using teeth, fingers, and ails to bring my wife to a frenzy. Dana's eyes were squeezed closed, and she moaned Gabi's name over and over. It was almost like she forgot anyone else was in the room. Gabi pushed up Dana's skirt, unzipping the sides, and my wife lifted her butt to help. I noticed immediately that Dana was not wearing panties. Where did she lose them, and how?

The men shared a look and Carlos gave Javier the nod. In retrospect, it was so weird that Carlos was giving his friend permission to touch my wife, but then I didn't matter. Dana was Carlos's woman for the night in every way that mattered. And he seemed content to sit back and watch her be ravaged, at least for the moment.

Dana didn't notice Javier kneeling beside the couch. She was way too focused on Gabi, whose face was buried between her legs. Gabi's long hair was spread out so all I could really see was the motion of her head as she went down on my wife, but sweet Jesus that was enough. Dana bucked her hips up at the Latina and her cries grew louder and louder.

Javier moved in, playing with Dana's tits and pinching her nipples. Her eyes flew open, and she looked surprised that it wasn't Carlos touching her, but she didn't stop him. No, my wife did the hottest thing ever. She grabbed the back of Javier's head and pulled him into a sexy kiss. Yeah, that was all I needed. With a grunt, I shot my load, making a mess of the shorts I'd pulled down. I kept tugging my cock while I watched, and I never went completely soft.

It felt like I was watching a replay of years before, when Dana was with our friends in that cabin, but this was so much hotter. For one thing, these were virtual strangers enjoying my wife. And for another, I could clearly see the gleam of her wedding rings against Javier's thick black hair as she held him in for that kiss. Dana was the perfect slut!

Dana bucked on the couch, tearing her mouth away from the kiss so that she could scream her passion. Javier smoothly moved to sucking her nipples and playing with her tits. I could see that not only was Gabi going down on my wife, but she was fingering her pretty hard too, based on the way Gabi's arm moved. And Carlos wasn't just watching any longer. I'd been so focused on Dana that I didn't notice him drop his pants and move in behind Gabi. His thick cock bobbed between his shirttails as he moved. A hand was thrust between Gabi's thighs from behind and he was slowly teasing her cunt.

"Oh God! Oh God! Fuck...ohgodohgodohgod!" Dana cried.

Her words became an unintelligible cry, and she was clearly coming—coming hard. Dana twisted and arched her back off the couch one last time, holding there until she lost her strength and collapsed, dropping like a spent shell.

Gabi lifted her face from Dana's pussy and licked her glazed lips. She flicked her hair and turned back to Carlos, saying, "Why don't we move this to the bedroom?"

"Nice idea," he agreed.

My wife seemed a little dazed when Javier helped her up from the couch and led her back to the master bedroom, with the others following. She looked extra slutty in just her heels and the skirt pushed around her waist. I'd bought a king-sized bed, but the foursome was still going to be a tight squeeze.

I switched to the master bedroom cameras, splitting the screen into quarters. Dana and Javier were on the far side of the bed, near the foot. She had one knee up on the bed and he held her face in both hands while they kissed. Carlos was pawing at Gabi's ass while she dug in her purse. Maybe she was the keeper of the condoms. They couldn't know both nightstands were loaded with them. But no, Gabi brought out a little cocaine. These really were party people.

To my knowledge, Dana had never done any hard drugs, but had she indulged earlier? Did that explain her reckless behavior? The thought of my sweet wife doing a line in a club sent shivers down my spine. I didn't know if I was more horrified or turned on by her abandon—if she had done it.

Gabi snorted some off her pinkie nail and then offered a bump to Carlos, who happily accepted. She walked around the bed and offered Javier some. He vigorously snorted his. Gabi placed one more hit on her nail and offered it to Dana, who looked unsure.

“Aren’t we past holding back, Di?” Gabi asked. She applied gentle pressure to the back of my wife’s head and Dana leaned forward and snorted the white powder. She looked startled when her head snapped back.

I couldn’t believe it! Of everything I’d seen her do, this was the most shocking. My wife had gone to a new place, and I wasn’t even sure if I knew who she was. I didn’t want to judge her—I knew that was unfair—but it still scared me. And excited me. My cock was steel as I watched Dana cross that line. Somehow, I knew there were no more limits.

Gabi and Dana kissed, then Javier and Dana kissed, and then Javier and Gabi were making out while Dana touched them both. I felt a little guilty that my wife didn’t have my full attention, but Gabi really was stunning naked. Tall, lean, with an amazing ass and cute little tits. She just looked like she was built for fun. The two Latinos kept kissing and Carlos came behind Dana to turn her attention to him.

Dana went right into kissing Carlos like she had been the others. It was like it didn’t matter much to her who she was touching and kissing. But paying closer attention, that wasn’t quite true. She clung to Carlos, thrust herself at him in a way she didn’t present herself to the others. It looked like he provoked a feral response in her that the others didn’t. Just watching, I could almost feel how badly she needed him. She wrapped both arms around his neck and held the back of his head while they intensely kissed.

Carlos pushed Dana onto the bed and confidently stood over her while slowly unbuttoning his shirt, which he tossed onto a chair in the corner of the room. I’d put that chair there in case there ever came a time I would want to be in the room. It was hard to imagine sitting in the corner and watching while an orgy went on in front of me. If I didn’t take a turn with Dana and Gabi, I really wouldn’t be a man, would I?

Gabi turned her attention back to Carlos and took over removing his pants. My wife eagerly watched them, waiting for a fucking she’d been craving all night. Gabi freed his cock and stroked it up and down while smiling at Dana. It was like she was saying, I know what you want, and I have it. Should I give it to you? My wife looked like she was ready to beg if Gabi asked.

Javier was in the corner by the nightstand, and he was nearly nude. Did Gabi help him while I was paying attention to Dana? Javier was clad only in black briefs when he climbed onto the bed and began touching my wife. She responded immediately. She moaned and pushed at his hands when he playfully groped her tits, then moaned deeply when he pinched and pulled her nipples. Dana gasped when he went too hard, but he eased back to just how she likes it. He rubbed her smooth, slick mound and her legs just fell open, an invitation to a man she hardly knew.

Carlos kept his attention on my wife, even though Gabi was pleasuring him. He seemed to enjoy watching Javier play with her. Gabi was on her knees and sucking his thick cock like a champ. His girth didn't seem to slow her down at all.

Dana was moaning constantly, eyes flicking between the two men as Javier touched her. She looked like she didn't know what to do. He didn't finger her, but just rubbed her pussy and she cried out every time he grazed her clit. I bet she would have come in two seconds if he just concentrated there. She wasn't the only one close. I had to keep slowing down as I stroked myself or I would have blown my load already. I didn't want to come until I was seeing something truly magnificent, and the show just kept getting better and better.

My wife reached for Javier's package and when he moved closer on the bed, she nearly tore his briefs off. He shed them while managing to only lose contact with her for an instant. He didn't have the monster cock Carlos did, but his shaft was quite long and a good handful when Dana fisted it. By the way she stared at that cock, she wanted more than to just touch it. She pulled him closer, and he scooted over on the bed until he could feed her his shaft. Dana lovingly kissed the head and then stuffed it into her mouth.

Carlos pulled Gabi to her feet and turned her around. A firm hand on her back bent the girl forward until she rested on her elbows, just beside Dana. He slid in behind her, cock aimed at her sex, and pushed it inside her in one long, deliberate thrust.

"Mmm, harder, papi, harder," Gabi pled, pushing back against his languid thrusts.

He was fucking Gabi, but he was watching my wife. Dana had been focused on the cock in her mouth, but when Gabi spoke, she twisted her head as best she could to see the other couple fucking right beside her. I swore I saw jealousy in her eyes. That twisted my stomach just a little tighter. Carlos grabbed Gabi's perfect ass and rammed her so hard the bed shook. She cried out, begging for more, and he gave it to her.

Javier held the back of Dana's head and fed her his cock, forcing her attention back to him. He wanted her best, not a distracted blowjob. He tilted her head up, forcing himself farther down her throat and she closed her eyes and took him, hollowing her cheeks as she sucked him. Did she want to get it over with so she could get back to the man she really wanted?

"Fuck me, papi! Fuck me!" Gabi cried, hanging her head as she shoved herself back at Carlos just as hard as he gave it to her.

Gabi reached out blindly, touched Dana, and then followed her curves to find my wife's cunt. Dana gasped into her mouthful of cock when Gabi began fingering her. First the Latina used two slender fingers, but then added a third and vigorously finger-fucked Dana. I could see Dana struggling to keep sucking Javier's prick as the feelings in her pussy took over, but he held her head and just kept steadily feeding her cock.

The scene on my screen had become a full-blown orgy. I had thought I would be treated to a night of my wife getting fucked by her cop lover—and was thrilled about it—but what I got was insane. I would have never thought I'd see anything like that—especially with my wife at the middle of it. My cock ached and I couldn't resist coming any longer. I barely had a tissue in place when I shot my load. But while I was coming, everyone on my screen was still going at it.

Gabi must have been primed and ready, because she came very quickly. She howled like a banshee and sagged to the bed, leaving her motionless fingers buried in my wife. Carlos kept fucking her for a moment longer, but then pulled out. That thick cock was even more impressive when slick with her juices. It suddenly struck me that he hadn't used a condom, and I was surprised. These people seemed to fuck around a lot, weren't they worried about catching something?

Carlos stepped away from Gabi—who rolled onto her side to watch—and moved right to Dana, pulling her legs farther apart. Dana opened her eyes and watched as he got into position, wielding his blunt instrument, and then rubbed her pussy with it. Her hips twitched. She wanted it. She didn't seem to care that he wasn't wearing a condom. I felt sick. He held her ass and lifted it off the bed, and it was Gabi who grabbed his cock and put it into my wife. They did it like they had done this many times before. Carlos pulled Dana onto him and buried his naked cock inside her.

Dana grunted into Javier's cock. He didn't seem to mind sharing her, as long as he kept getting to use her mouth. Dana reached for Carlos, and it was unclear if she was trying to pull him closer or push him away, but when he started fucking her it was clear what she wanted. Her eyes seemed to roll back into her head, and she gave herself to the two men completely.

I was dizzy and really did feel like I might throw up. This was not my wife's first threesome, but I still was not prepared for what I saw. That first time was not live, and that made a huge difference, though I'm not sure why. And Dana, Zach and his roommate were just three drunk, stoned people having fun.

I couldn't shake the feeling that this time my wife was being used like a piece of meat by these guys. Carlos and Javier were using her body with intent, like she was their whore for the night. And wasn't she? They really weren't wrong. Worst of all, I think I felt so sick because I was so turned on. I was harder than I'd ever been. Seeing my wife used like that fulfilled all my darkest fantasies. I guess it really was what I wanted. But I still didn't know that I could handle it.

"Turn her over," Carlos said.

"Damn, she can suck a cock," Javier commented.

"Yes, she can," Carlos agreed.

Dana was pliant and let them roll her over, though she looked shaky on her hands and knees. Even at that break she didn't demand Carlos put on a condom. She was too busy reaching for Javier's cock.

"Fuck me, you two. Oh God, fuck me," she moaned. She didn't even sound like herself. Was that the coke talking? I know it makes you feel invincible and euphoric. Did that make the sex too good to resist? I wanted to blame her abandon on drugs.

Javier fed her his cock once again and Carlos took her from behind. Now he could really fuck her hard, and he rammed that thick piece of meat into her. Javier had her hair balled in his fist and essentially fucked her mouth. Dana bounced between those two pricks in a frenzy. It was impossible to separate her moans from the sloppy sucking sounds coming from her throat. The guys used her roughly and it looked like she just wanted more. Gabi laid to the side and played with herself. In my deviant mind, I wondered how she would jump back in. I couldn't imagine Gabi was done for the night.

CHAPTER

Fourteen

It was almost like it was all happening to someone else. Don't get me wrong, I felt every wonderful second of it, but after I did that bump of coke it was like a demon took over my body and I was shoved to the side—along for the ride, but not in control. The demon was invincible. The demon wanted to fuck every way possible and do it all night. The demon wanted to prove she was the hottest piece of ass these guys—and Gabi—would ever meet.

The guys double-teamed me, and I wiggled my ass for more while sucking Javier like a madwoman. I only fleetingly noticed Carlos was not wearing a condom. The demon didn't care. There was no time to slow down for condoms. They used my body and it felt like I was impaled by one long, incredible dick. If it had just been Carlos fucking me, I would have come multiple times, but I was a little distracted by the cock being pushed down my throat. When they changed positions, and my mouth was finally free, the demon begged them to keep fucking me.

They really had leverage to fuck me when I was on my hands and knees. Carlos rammed my pussy ruthlessly, and he pounded an orgasm out of me immediately. I screamed into Javier's cock and nearly choked on him. He was relentless shoving that thing into my mouth. I tried to keep up, but it didn't matter. Javier was in charge of my mouth, he pulled my hair to screw it—which was hot—and I eagerly waited for him to finish. I wanted him to come in my mouth, but I knew it would be a better show for my husband if he came all over my face.

Yes, my husband. What must Dave be thinking watching his wife descend into the depths of slutdom? No matter what he would say to me later, I knew this was what he wanted. Dave wanted me depraved and out of control. He wanted me ready to fuck anyone, anytime. And now that he finally had it, where would we go?

The guys wanted to reposition me again, and I happily went along with them. They both pulled out and Carlos's wet cock slapped my butt. I was sort of half on my side and Javier had my legs pulled far apart—one was in the air, I think. He was on his knees, and he started screwing me like that. Carlos held my head near his crotch—I was sideways—and he fed me his cock. He was gentle at first, not like Javier had been. I tasted pussy on his shaft, and I hungrily sucked it, knowing it was from both me and Gabi. I sucked him lovingly, hoping to show him I was still his girl. Crazy, since I have a husband. Carlos looked down at me sucking him and it wasn't quite love in his face, but possibly admiration. Knowing I'd impressed him made me so happy and I sucked him even more passionately.

Gabi came back into the picture. She started by touching me. Javier fucked me with long, steady strokes and she rubbed my clit. God, that made me see stars. It only got more intense when she leaned in and started sucking my breasts. I cried into Carlos's prick that I was coming, and I seemed to just have one orgasm after another.

It struck me like a lightning bolt in that moment. I really love being used. Yes, I knew I liked going out there and getting attention and having some hot guy climb all over me. That was a thrill I'd become almost addicted to. But just being stripped and thrown around by a bunch of strangers like this—being their piece of meat—was intoxicating. They took me as they pleased, and I just kept coming and coming. It was animalistic and primal, and it was a stronger high than the coke I'd done.

Gabi was still rubbing my pussy while Javier fucked me, but now she was playing with Carlos's smooth balls while I sucked him. She stroked my hair and kissed my cheek, cooing encouragement.

"Suck his beautiful cock, Di. It's so wonderful. You love that cock as much as I do. Show him," she cooed.

I would have agreed, if I'd been able to speak.

"Is she a good cocksucker, papi?" she asked.

"Di's fucking mouth is wonderful. She sucks the cock so good. She's a perfect little slut. Aren't you, Diana?" Carlos grinned down at me.

I nodded as best I could, and Gabi used that as an opportunity to steal that prick from me. She pulled it away and stuffed it in her mouth. I pouted, but it wasn't like I was left alone. Gabi still rubbed my pussy while Javier fucked me.

"God, that's good. Fuck me," I begged. "Gonna come again..."

Gabi passed the cock back to me and pushed it to suck Carlos's balls while I worked his shaft.

"You fucking girls. Holy shit," Carlos grunted.

Two girls working on him was too much for Carlos. He began coming in my mouth but jerked my head back by my hair. Gabi and I played our roles perfectly. Our mouths hung open and Carlos painted our faces with his hot jizz. I climaxed too and for some reason Javier pulled out of me while I was in the middle of it.

Gabi pushed me onto my back and kissed me. She was all tongue, licking the cum from my face. I helped clean her too, and together we shared Carlos's load. It was so hot and slutty. Dave's mind had to be blown.

Javier turned Gabi onto her back and started fucking her, holding her legs in the air. I could only guess that the coke was making him take forever to come. Gabi seemed happy about that. She screeched and demanded he fuck her harder. Carlos and I rolled to the other side of the rocking bed. It was the closest thing to privacy to be had at the moment.

"Are you okay, Diana?" he asked, kissing my forehead, about the only place he hadn't sprayed his cum.

"Yes, baby," I sighed. I could feel my eyes were as big as saucers. I must have looked like quite the coked-out whore.

"This wasn't quite the night you planned, is it?"

I shook my head. "It feels like a dream."

"You'll come down, Diana. And then you'll find out who you really are."

"I'm yours, Carlos. I'm yours to use."

"I know that. I know that."

I had so much to say to him, but it was hard to concentrate when he kept touching me like that. His hands were all over my body, teasing me—keeping me horny. I'd climaxed so many times, and yet I wanted more. I was jealous of the couple besides me because they were still screwing—at least for the moment. Javier growled and he finally came, buried inside Gabi.

Carlos whispered in my ear. He ordered me, "Lick Gabi's pussy."

I crawled over and pulled the prone girl around so I could get between her legs. She looked mildly surprised. I tried to give my best seductive smile. I didn't really know what to do, so I just dove in and started kissing her swollen, used lips. She tasted like sex, there's really no other way to put it. She was musky and sweet and tangy. My tongue dipped inside her, and I tasted Javier, too. His taste was distinct from her, but then blended nicely. I don't know that I really cared about all that. I was mostly performing, both for my lovers in the room and for my husband at home. I'd avoided this intimate act with my friend years ago, but now I was eagerly diving in and licking a virtual stranger.

Gabi was going crazy, so I was doing something right. She pulled my hair and closed her thighs around my head. I could hardly hear when she screamed for me to lick her clit. I not only licked, but I sucked that little button, just the way I like it. It's a sure way to make me come, and it worked like a charm. Gabi flooded my mouth, and I lapped her juices until she stopped writhing. I slithered up her body and kissed her, wanting her to taste herself. I was only there for a moment before Carlos pulled me off and started fucking me again.

The night became something of a blur after that. I know I took another bump of coke from Gabi, and that made it harder to climax. Not impossible, but more difficult. But it also made me just fuck and fuck and fuck. I was with Carlos and Javier separately. I think they took turns on Gabi and me. Then I was with Javier and Gabi. Somehow, I ended up in bed alone with Carlos and he was just holding me while I was shaking and trying to calm my body. I passed out that way, like someone just threw a switch.

I AWOKE WITH A START, and I was alone, clutching at a sheet. The bad dream slipped right from my mind, and it felt like I'd only passed out a second ago. But Carlos was gone, and his side of the bed was cold. He'd been gone a while. I wearily looked up at one of the cameras and wondered if Dave was still watching. Did he watch my lover slip out of bed and sneak out on me?

The bed was torn apart. My sheet wasn't even tucked in any longer and was twisted around me. The room reeked of sex, what I imagined a whorehouse smelled like in the morning. I peeled myself from the bed and nudged the curtain aside. The sky was deep blue satin. Dawn was right around the corner.

God, it hurt to move. Everything hurt, especially between my thighs. I thought the first time with Carlos had been rough. I finally understood what it meant to be fucked so much you walk funny. I had this weird, spread-legged gait. The muscles in my legs were incredibly sore, like I'd done an entire day of yoga. My breasts were so sore from so much rough handling. My nipples screamed when I brushed them. This was the price to pay for being an all-night whore.

The door to the second bedroom hung open and the bed was torn apart, but vacant. Javier and Gabi had retreated there together at some point, but I wasn't sure when. The night was a blur. It only took another moment to realize the entire apartment was empty. My new friends had scampered without saying goodbye. I'm not shy about being nude, but it did feel weird to be walking around a strange apartment with no clothes on. I took a water bottle from the fridge, drained it, and gingerly walked back to the shower. A dull headache had been hanging in the back of my head, but now it was pounding its way to the forefront.

A long hot shower will revitalize me under ordinary circumstances, but this time it wasn't enough to bounce me back from the all-night orgy. Come was matted in my hair and I felt it dried on my body and it felt good to get clean. I washed my hair three times and scrubbed and scrubbed until I was pink, but in the end, I still felt like a slutty wife who'd been fucked all night. I wiped the fog off the mirror with a fluffy towel and I still looked like I'd been partying all night. The fresh-faced suburban mom was nowhere to be found.

After my shower, I realized a detail that had been missed in the planning for the apartment. I really should have clothes there for afterward. I was forced to redress in my party clothes from the night before. The skirt was on the floor beside the bed and wasn't too bad, but my top was crumpled and thrown into the corner of the living room, and it looked like it when I pulled it on. Even with a shower, I would be doing a walk of shame. At least it was unlikely anyone would see me creeping home at that hour.

THE SUN HAD BEEN UP for about twenty minutes when I pulled the Prius into the driveway beside Dave's truck. The brightening light was painful, despite my big sunglasses. I quietly closed the car door and began the shaky walk to the front door—much more difficult in heels—when Jana's voice froze me in my tracks.

"Wow, honey. What have you been up to?" she said.

I looked back over my shoulder and there she was in neon running shoes, black yoga pants, and a fleece. She was running in place, and I hoped she would just keep moving, but no, she came up the lawn to meet me.

"Hey," I grunted. I was not in any shape for chit-chat, and I had to assume Dave was inside waiting for me. Thinking of that, I thought maybe stalling wasn't so bad.

"You look like you've been ridden hard and put up wet. Where were you all night?" Jana asked, looking me over. "By the way, hot outfit. I had no idea you even owned anything like that. I may need to raid your closet."

We could not stand in front of the house discussing why I was out all night, not with me dressed this way. I hustled Jana past the garage, through the gate, and into the backyard. I dropped onto one of the chaise lounges by the pool. It felt awesome to be off my feet.

"Don't worry. I don't think anyone else caught your walk of shame. I didn't see anyone else out this early, but you never know who's looking out of their window," Jana said, taking a seat across from me.

I thought about how before I'd been proud to wear one of my date outfits, but they typically weren't as revealing as that. I had to sit carefully to avoid flashing my friend. "Good God, I hope no one saw. I was trying to get home sooner."

"Home from where? It looks like you were out on your own last night, unless Dave is still passed out somewhere."

"He's home," I grudgingly admitted.

"And he didn't mind you going out last night dressed like that? I mean, I know he loves to show off his hot little wife, but not many guys would be cool with that."

"He knows."

"And he knows you were out all night?"

Now Jana was prying, because I was only giving basic answers. I didn't know the answer to the last question. Dave could have fallen asleep at any point. And I didn't know if he would be up yet, though the kids would take the choice away from him soon.

"Dave knows I was out," I answered simply.

Jana could tell I was hiding something and was not ready to let go. "Girls' night out?"

"Something like that. I was hanging out with friends."

"Listen honey. If you really don't want to talk, I'm not going to make you, but something's obviously going on. That's a booty call outfit, not a hangout with friends outfit. Maybe Dave's a little too into showing you off to realize that, but you're not fooling me. I know you're up to something."

I raked my fingers through my hair. Maybe it was because I was so exhausted and easily worn down, or maybe it was because of how crazy it got the night before, but the truth was on the tip of my tongue. There wasn't a lie Jana was going to believe, and I didn't want to lie to her. I wanted to tell her the truth and ask if she was ever conflicted when she was screwing her personal trainer.

"You're right," I admitted, my voice barely above a whisper.

Jana just looked at me, wordlessly asking, About?

"This is a booty call dress. I wasn't just out with friends."

"You little slut!" Jana covered her mouth in shock. "I never would have guessed that you..."

"It's not what you think. I'm not sneaking around."

"Not very well anyway."

"Dave knew where I was going. I didn't lie to him." It was important to me that she didn't think I was running around on Dave—even if the truth was going to sound bizarre.

"So, Dave knew you were going out last night to meet another guy and spend the night with him?"

"I didn't plan on being out all night."

Jana laughed. "You must have had a good time, because you look terrible—in a good way, like you earned it."

I allowed a little grin. "It was an...interesting night."

"I'm jealous! How did you get this arrangement? How do I get Neil to let me go out and fuck all night?"

"It's complicated." I didn't know where to begin. I was sensitive to my husband's feelings about being exposed, but it wasn't only his secret to keep.

“Do you guys have an open marriage? I can’t believe I told you to loosen up.”

“It’s not an open marriage, like I said, it’s more complicated than that. I don’t think there’s time to explain it now. I really need to get inside before the kids get up.”

“I would say so. This isn’t the mommy they’re used to.”

“Haha. Listen, we’ll have lunch and I promise I will explain everything. It’ll be a relief to get it off my chest, really. Just for now, know I’m not sneaking around. Dave knows, but we’re not in an open marriage. And for Christ sakes, keep it to yourself. You can’t even tell Neil. Promise me!”

“I wouldn’t know what to tell him. Don’t worry, your secrets are safe with me. God knows, you’ve kept enough of mine. Just be careful, Dana. You get into this stuff and things can go wrong really fast.”

“I know,” I replied. How wrong had things gone the night before? “I will.”

We hugged and Jana went out through the gate, while I unlocked the back door to the garage and then went into the house. I was relieved by the silence. The kids were not up yet. I didn’t smell that Dave had started coffee, so he was probably still asleep. That was not the case. As I turned the corner to go up the steps, he called out from the den.

“I WAS WONDERING when you were going to come home?”

I took a deep breath and turned to face him. Dave was on the couch, and it was obvious he’d spent the night there. His laptop was on the floor beside the couch, plugged into a charger. He looked almost as bad as I did. I chose not to mention running into Jana. He did not look like he was in a place to learn we may be exposed.

“I’m sorry. I don’t even remember falling asleep. I just sort of woke up, and there I was.”

“That’s understandable, considering the night you had. By the way, it was around four. You and Carlos were alone, fucking again—though honestly it was more intimate than fucking—and after you finished, you two just sort of fell asleep holding each other.”

“Dave...” I didn’t know what to say.

“I guess things got a little out of hand last night,” he said. He didn’t sound angry, but he didn’t sound happy either. He was frighteningly neutral.

“I know. I don’t even know how. We were out, at the club, drinking and dancing, and we met up with his friends, and things just started rolling from there. No one made me do anything, but I didn’t really feel like I was in control either.”

“Who was then? Carlos?”

“I don’t know.”

“It looked like he was in control. It looked like you were all his last night.”

“Not all his.” I tried for a little joke, but Dave did not laugh.

“You were pretty high. That makes it hard to stay in control.”

“Dave, that was the first time. I swear. I don’t even know why I did it. It just seemed right in the moment.”

“A lot of things seemed right in the moment.”

“I guess they did.” I felt on the defensive and I didn’t like it. Yes, I’d gone way further than anything we’d ever discussed, but there were also no real boundaries either. It was like Dave had purposely avoided them. I sat beside him on the couch, but he stayed stiff. I asked, “Are you angry?”

“I don’t know what I am, Dana.”

“Start with what you’re feeling. What are you thinking?”

Dave turned to me, fire in his eyes. “Why don’t you tell me what you were thinking? Was last night your chance to be the whore you always wanted to be?”

“That’s not fair. I’ve never done anything you didn’t encourage me to do.”

“I never told you to fuck two Puerto Rican guys. Christ Dana, “You let him both of those guys fuck you without a condom!”

I looked away. He had me there. What would Dave say if he knew Carlos fucked me without a condom the first time too? My anger was accelerating, but that slowed me down.

“I know, I’m sorry. I told you, I wasn’t in control. I wasn’t thinking clearly. I learned my lesson. It won’t happen again.”

“I want you to have fun, but you’ve got to stay in control of the situation. You just let those guys do whatever they wanted.”

“The way the last two guys did?” My anger was back. I didn’t like what Dave was implying. It wasn’t like he was angry that I wasn’t in control, but that he wasn't in control. "You were pretty happy the last time I let two guys I barely knew manhandle me. Is it bad because they were Spanish?" I tried to keep my voice down, but it was not easy.

"Of course not. I don't give a shit about that. I just never... I didn't think..."

"Didn't think what, Dave?" Now I was on a roll, the shame washed away by anger. Who the hell was Dave to question how I behaved? He couldn't push me to fuck other men and then be angry that I didn't stay in the little box he'd set up for me. I wasn't just his doll to play with."

"I didn't even recognize you last night, Dana. You were different from the second you stepped into that apartment. You were..."

"A whore? You can say it, Dave. That's what I was last night. I got drunk and high and fucked three strangers all night. That's pretty much the definition of a whore, isn't it?"

"Well, yeah, you were a whore. Wait, don't hit me! That's not it—it's not what I'm thinking about. Not really. It's just, seeing you like that, I don't know what to think. I thought you were wild—all sex and excitement before—but nothing I've seen you do compares to last night. I didn't see the woman I married."

I couldn't look him in the face, and I struggled to remain defiant. I couldn't deny anything he said. I didn't even understand what had been unleashed in me the night before. I didn't feel it was all my fault, but I wondered if I should have stopped myself.

"And you don't want me now?"

"God, it's nothing like that! I love you. I'll always love you. But knowing you have that in you, it makes me wonder if you'll ever be really satisfied by our life again."

"Dave..."

"I mean, what's a barbeque with neighbors, or a family game night, compared to a drug fueled orgy?"

I took his hand. "One thing has nothing to do with the other."

"How are you going to be pleased with me in bed when you really want men jackhammering you all night?"

"Nothing will ever be like making love to you, baby," I said. He gave me a look. "I can't lie. I don't think you want me to. Last night was... incredible. Insane. But I would never want to live my life that way. I couldn't live my life that way. I'd be dead inside a week. It was fun as a once in a lifetime experience, but I don't want to live my life that way."

Dave still gave me that look. "Once in a lifetime? You never want that again?"

How could I answer him? Deep down, I knew the truth, but I didn't really want to admit it to myself, let alone my husband. But I owed him the truth. I owed it to us both.

"Maybe sometime. I don't know. I felt so alive. It felt so good. It was frightening, but it was amazing. If I had another chance...maybe." I gave him the soft version. I was actually afraid that if I had another chance, I couldn't say no.

"You were incredible last night. Yeah, it tore me up a little, but I couldn't look away. You were just so free."

"That's what you've wanted, isn't it? You wanted to just see me lose it, didn't you?"

"I don't know, Dana."

"That's a cop out. You owe me honesty," I pushed.

"Have I thought about it? Yes, I wondered how far you could go, what it would be like to watch you just give it all up like that. But I didn't know if I could handle it."

"And now?"

"I still don't know. I mean, yeah, I loved it, but it freaked me out. For the first time, I'm really afraid."

"You have nothing to be afraid of. I love you. No one will ever replace you."

"I love you too, Dana. I know that logically, but these are all crazy feelings inside me. I really need to sort them."

"Can I prove to you how much I still need you?" I asked.

I slid my hand over his shorts and Dave was rock hard. I believed his head was conflicted, but the rest of him knew exactly what it liked.

"Dana, you don't have to," he said when I pulled at his shorts, but he didn't stop me.

"I know. That's not why I'm doing it." I smiled and blew him a kiss before turning to his cock.

I brushed my hair back and sucked the smooth, red head of my husband's cock. It was strangely comforting to be handling a familiar dick after a night of endless fucking by two virtual strangers. It probably sounds insane, but handling Dave like that grounded me in my normal life. I would have made love to him, but I was way too sore for that. He could have me like that when I felt better. By the way he was moaning, I could tell Dave was happy with his blow job.

“Mmm, baby,” Dave moaned, stroking my hair back from my face and sagging into the couch to push his shaft deeper into my mouth.

I circled him with my fingers at the base and took him deep to the back of my throat. I cupped his balls with my fingers and tickled them. The difference between Carlos’s shaved privates and my husband’s was obvious and I wondered if I could convince Dave to shave down there. I just liked the smooth feeling. It was easy to take all of Dave’s dick after having my mouth fucked all night. He didn’t stretch my lips open, and I could suck him harder.

Dave gasped my name—it was really like a gurgled moan—and he came in my mouth. I was so surprised that he came so fast that I choked at first, but there was not much to choke on. His load was so small it made me think that he must have been jerking off a lot while watching me the night before. Was he tortured having to sit back and jerk off while watching me used like that? I would never fully understand what my husband felt while watching me.

“That was great, baby,” Dave sighed.

“I’m always going to be yours, first and last.”

“I know.” Did he sound convinced?

“So where does that leave us?” I asked.

Dave pulled up his shorts. “We’re good.” Again, he didn’t sound so sure.

“I think we should take a break for a little while and regroup.”

“Do you think so?” Dave was surprised.

“We should take the time and decide if this lifestyle is really for us. We’re not where we started, when we went out together and it was exciting and dangerous. We’ve gone to a place we never discussed, and we need to be sure it’s where we want to be.”

“Maybe you’re right. Is that what you want?”

“Mommy! Daddy!” It was our daughter, at the top of the stairs.

I was saved from having to answer, and I was relieved. Was it what I wanted? In my head, I knew it was the smart thing. Maybe we would think on it and come back refreshed—or maybe we were done, and we would be okay with that. But in my heart, and in my bones, I didn't know if I wanted to stop—or even take a break. I loved the way Carlos made me feel. I loved going out and knowing men wanted me. It used to just be fun, but now I craved it, and I didn't know if I wanted to give it up.

I jumped up when our daughter came into the room and straightened my outfit to make sure it covered everything. “Are you playing dress up, Mommy?” she asked.

“Something like that.” I turned to Dave. “I’m going to change.”

“Go. Get some rest. You probably need it.”

CHAPTER

Fifteen

I flipped through the series of screen captures I'd taken from Dana's last video. Most of the images I chose hid her face, and in the couple that didn't I'd blurred it, so my wife was unrecognizable. But the image I was fixated on was one where Carlos had just come all over Dana's face, adding his load to one Javier had already put there. And her eyes were begging for it: Please, come all over my face! She had been a great wife, as dirty as I wanted in bed, but I don't think I've ever seen that look on her face when she was in bed with me. Or I was being paranoid. I'd been questioning my paranoia a lot over the last few weeks.

Dana was probably right that we needed a break, but it was hard to go cold turkey. In the past she had gone a couple weeks between dates—though not if Zach had anything to say about it—but her nights out had become more frequent toward the end, and she'd never officially taken a break before. Toward the end. Was it the end? That might be for the best, but I didn't want that. And I didn't think Dana did either.

We hadn't talked about it since that morning she crept home. We agreed that we both needed time to really think before we tried to talk about it again. I didn't know that I needed so much time, but I was not going to push Dana into talking before she was ready. That could only backfire. I realized we were at some sort of turning point.

I opened the hotwife website on the browser and navigated into the picture forum. I'd told the story of Dana's orgy a few days after it happened, and the other guys begged for pictures. I dismissed the idea at first, but without Dana dating I wasn't getting that buzz of risk and I needed it, so I gave in to my worst impulses. I knew Dana would kill me if she ever found out I'd posted pictures of her, but there was no way she'd ever find out. I started a new topic and uploaded the images.

Most of the guys on the message board were encouraging and thrilled after I posted the story of Dana's night with her friends. I did express my doubts about what it meant, but most of them batted those away. That was how things went on the message board. The men there were always encouraging, always pushing for wives to do more. I knew to take it with a grain of salt, since most of them were lurkers who'd never done anything with their wives—if they even had them—but I was proud that they all thought my wife was so incredible. I had to agree. They would lose their minds when they saw the pictures.

I had a new private message waiting for me from my confidant on the message board. His wife also went out and played and he was honest about the tough times they'd had, so I trusted him more than the others. As I shared my situation with Dana, he'd offered me good advice in the past. It was good to have someone to talk to about this stuff, even if it was through a keyboard. His message read:

Been thinking about your deal with D. Sounds like she's super hot & she can't get enough sex & she loves you. It's all perfect. Now. Be careful, man. Sounds like D is starting down the road A went down, and you don't want to end up there, believe me. A never wanted to leave me, but she became more her FB's than mine when it came to sex. I was taking a backseat to him until I put my foot down. Sounds like this Carlos guy does it the same way for your D. She'll do anything for him, doesn't even think about how you'll feel about it. You should probably step in but remain on guard. If she fell for Carlos like this, she'll probably fall for another guy too. D just loves the hotwifing too much like my A. You need to make sure you manage it when your break is over.

D was Dana. A was his wife, obviously. We tried to avoid sharing any identifying information. I knew all about how his wife had fallen for more than one FB—fuck buddy in hotwife code—and it caused them problems. It wasn't that she fell in love with them, she was just so into their attention that it became her priority over her marriage. And that was my fear with Dana.

I'd been afraid she was too into Zach early on, from the way she jumped when he called. I'd have preferred a series of one-night stands for my wife, but that meant less videos for me, so I accepted it. And then Zach faded into the background, so my fears subsided. But I saw how Dana was with Carlos. She was putty in his hands. I knew she could become more his than mine, and it scared the hell out of me—even while it turned me on. What was it about the risk of losing my wife that made me so crazy? So, was I paranoid, or was there real danger?

Dana's mood during our break did not quell the paranoia. We made love a couple times a day—every day—and I tried to be rough like the other men were, but she was always still insatiable. I hadn't seen her burner phone since the break started, and I wondered if she was telling Carlos they had to break for a little while, but I knew she couldn't wait to get back into his bed. I didn't want to be a creep and demand to see the phone.

Dana had to know I trusted her. And I did—except, and I didn't know if my perception was being skewed by my paranoia, I started to worry every time she took too long at the grocery store, or if she said she was meeting Jana for drinks. I knew Jana would lie for her in a heartbeat. I didn't want to believe my loving wife was fucking someone behind my back, even after everything that had happened. So, I forced myself to think of other things when the doubts crept in and watched her old videos to feed my addiction.

But still, when Dana went out, I had to wonder...

Consequences of Being a Shared Wife

CHAPTER

One

Jana stared at me, and I could see she was trying to grasp everything I'd told her. I know it sounded impossible, especially coming from someone like me. She drained her Cosmo and set it back on the table.

I'd just told her everything. Well, not everything. I gave her the basic outline of what Dave and I had been doing for the past months—almost a year. I couldn't believe it had been that long when I looked back. It had flown by. I had explained to her just what a hotwife was and I told her about some of my exploits—the first times we went out, some of the sad failed dates, and of course I told her about Zach. Zach was the man who changed the game. I did tell her about Carlos, but that was highly edited. The coke and the orgy were left out.

"I'm just not sure I understand what Dave gets out of this," Jana said. "I get why it's awesome for you, but why is he content for you to go out and screw whoever you please?"

"He's not just content, he wants me to. I told you, this was all his idea. I reacted like you at first. It didn't make sense to me."

"And he likes you doing it? He gets off on it?"

"Yes. He loves watching me with other men."

"This is really a thing? He didn't make this up? I know there are voyeurs out there, but this is a little weird, right?"

"I can see where you would think that. It is a thing, but I don't think it's a common thing. You can look it up on the internet. Some guys don't even watch. They just send their wives out to get laid and then get off on hearing about it and having sex with her when she comes back."

Jana held up a hand. “Okay, that’s enough.” She signaled for the waitress to bring her another drink. I was still working on my first glass of wine. I didn’t want to get drunk on a Saturday afternoon. We were in a little bistro downtown, in a booth in a back corner for some privacy. Jana was meeting her mother-in-law to go to a show afterward, and I was going to do a little shopping and drive home.

“I guess I can see watching, if that’s really your thing, but I really don’t get a guy just sending his wife out.”

“I don’t really either, but hey, whatever floats your boat. I did a bunch of reading on the internet when we first started, but most of it was guided by Dave. I know there are other guys who want to be humiliated by it, they’re called cuckolds.”

“That sounds like those CEOs who go see BDSM mistresses.”

We fell into silence again. It was going better than I thought it would. There was no judgment coming from Jana—she didn’t even seem to be judging Dave. She was just trying to understand it.

“So, Dave likes to watch you fuck,” Jana summarized.

“And I like doing it for him.”

She shot me a look. “Yeah, you’re going out to fuck some hot guy in his 20s just to make your husband happy. You poor, suffering girl!”

“Okay, it’s not just for him anymore. At first, it really was. I mean, sure, it was flattering to have guys hit on me, but I really didn’t feel any desire at all to be with other men. But then we started doing it, and it was fun, and some of the guys—like Zach—were really good. I’m not saying better than Dave...”

“Mmhm...”

“But it had been so long since I was with anyone else, I’d forgotten how hot that first flush of seduction is.”

“I get it. I didn’t fuck AJ because I don’t love Neil. It’s just that AJ is just so...wow...that when he showed interest, I couldn’t say no. Maybe I should introduce you, since you’re in the market for a good fuck.”

I shook my head. “We’re on a break, but thanks for offering to share.” I didn’t know if I’d be willing to share my Zach. Carlos maybe, because I know it would turn him on.

“Why is that? You weren’t so clear.”

It was hard to explain to Jana why we were on a break without telling her about the night I lost control with Carlos, but I still didn’t want to cop to

it. "It was just getting a little too intense for both of us, so we thought it would be a good idea to step back for a while."

"Dave finally started to get jealous, didn't he? It had to happen."

"Not really. We just ran into complications."

"You started to get feelings for one of these guys!"

"No, I have not fallen for any of these guys. I mean, I like them, they're fun to hang out with. Unless I do a one-night stand, which is rare anyway, I need to like to spend time with a guy. It's not like I just walk in the door, and we strip and fuck."

I would be happy to just strip for Carlos, wouldn't I? I was careful with my words, because I didn't want to lie. I hadn't fallen for Carlos, but I couldn't honestly say I didn't have feelings. They were feelings of unbridled lust, though, not anything touchy-feely like I wanted him to be my boyfriend. I just wanted to be a good little slut for him, and that scared me, because I should only be feeling that for my husband.

"Okay, so how do you get past these complications?" Jana asked.

"I don't know. I'm hoping things will cool off with this time off."

"They could. What will you do if they don't?"

"Then I guess we stop."

Jana laughed. "You don't sound too sure of that. Don't get me wrong, I'm on your side. Dave opened Pandora's Box. He can't think it's something you can just close again so easily."

"I guess so. Honestly, Dave's so into it that I haven't seriously considered we would just stop it altogether."

"So, you don't want to?"

"No," I said, looking down. If Dave made me I would, and I'd find a way to be okay with it, but I was not ready to give it up. I felt like a terrible wife for admitting the truth. I wasn't ready to give up the attention or the thrill of illicit sex.

"Hey, I'm still not judging. If I was in your position, I wouldn't give up my boy toys either. I'd tell Neil he's got to live with it now. I wish I could find a way to get into your position!"

It was my turn to laugh. "It's not as easy as it sounds. I took a long time to work up my nerve in the beginning. And then you've got to be ready to kiss a lot of frogs. It's like real dating, that way."

"I think I could adapt."

"No way Neil would ever go for it?"

Jana shook her head. "I can't really see it. He's usually pretty mellow, but he can be jealous. He was pretty pissed that night when we were hanging out in the pool with Jay."

"You gave him plenty of reason to be!"

"Speaking of Jay, you should definitely be fucking him."

"No, too close to home. Who knows if he could keep his mouth shut?" I knew he was off limits, but the mention of him got me thinking about how much fun he would be.

"I think I could probably convince Neil to swap with another couple, if I could set things up. It would have to be in the moment, though. If it was preplanned and he had time to think about it, he would back out."

"Yeah, it's easy to psych yourself out," I agreed.

"Maybe if one of your pool parties got out of hand..."

"Jana! We're not doing any of that stuff at home!"

"I'm just saying we both know Neil would love to fuck you..."

"But Dave doesn't want to fuck you—no offense. He doesn't want to fuck any other women."

"That's a shame. I would rock his world. Anyway, if Neil fucked you then he would have to give me the pass to go out, right?"

"You haven't exactly waited for a pass before."

"Don't be mean."

"Sorry," I said.

"This way it would be in the open. Maybe he would get off sharing experiences."

"Don't start forming some plan," I warned. "This is a huge secret. Dave doesn't know I'm confiding in you, and I don't know if I'm going to tell him. He's really freaked about anyone finding out."

Jana smiled. "I like that he's kinky. It makes him more interesting."

"Hey! Hands off my husband."

"It's only fair he should get some."

Jana had a point, but I didn't see it happening. Dave swore he wasn't interested in other women, and I'd seen firsthand that he didn't take advantage when he had the chance. But I did wonder if he would resist if Jana really put on the pressure. I doubted I'd ever find out.

"I'm only kidding, hon," Jana said. "I'm not going to embarrass the poor guy. If he wants this to be his dirty little secret, I can respect that."

"Thank you."

“But you have to promise that you’ll share the gory details if you get back out there. I haven’t had a session with AJ in ages. I need to live vicariously through you.”

“I not promising.”

Time got away from us, so we finished lunch and split the check. Jana had a nice walk to the theater and had to get a move on. We hugged outside the bistro and as we said goodbye, I could tell something had changed between us. It wasn’t that Jana thought I was some awful person, rather I felt like she had a newfound respect for me, and I sensed a little jealousy there, too. I was sure she would keep my confidence in the neighborhood, but I was not as sure she wouldn’t try to find some way to turn all of this into some adventure for herself. I would have to be vigilant.

I wasn’t sure she had reason to be jealous. Yes, I’d had some great adventures, but things were all confused and twisted now. I needed to know where Dave and I stood, and I was not prepared to give him much more time. I’d been a very good girl during our break, but it was harder than I thought it would be. I did not recharge the burner phone, because I knew I’d be too tempted to turn it on if it was charged. And then I would see a flurry of messages from Carlos, and I was honestly afraid of what I might do in response. It was easier to be good when temptation was taken away.

I’d also gotten a few casual texts from Zach—he was still trying to stay in the game—but I blew those off too. Zach would be the perfect place to run if I wanted to be bad. He was all fun and comfortable. Closer to a boyfriend, if I would ever allow such a thing.

I’ve never been a superstitious person, but sometimes things just happen that make you question if something larger is at work. For example, can you summon something—or someone—just by thinking of it? Does the universe throw tests in your path to see how you’ll respond? My test was right around the corner.

“Hey, Dani,” he called as I turned the corner. I didn’t react at first. I was not expecting anyone to call out for Dani. “Dani, hey, wait up!”

I turned, and there was Zach, as if I’d summoned him. His hair was a little shorter than the last time I’d seen him, and I think it was the first time I’d ever seen him dressed fully like an adult. He wore baggy, distressed cargo pants and a loose, plaid shirt. It could have just been me, but he looked particularly handsome. I let him pull me into an embrace and failed the first test by letting him kiss my lips instead of offering the cheek.

“It’s been a while.” I was smiling. I was genuinely happy to see him.

I quickly slipped back into my Dani persona and replied, “Custody isn’t working out like it’s supposed to, so I don’t have a lot of free nights.”

“I thought maybe you were seeing someone else.”

“There’s been a date or two.” I didn’t want to hurt his feelings, but I did always feel it was important to let him know where we stood.

He grinned. “It’s not like I’ve been home waiting by the phone.”

“Oh really?”

“Don’t worry, Dani. No one’s as sexy as you.”

I could just imagine the eager young things he was meeting at the bar. “Yeah, right.”

“You look hot, babe.” He stepped back to look me over and a blush crept into my cheeks.

I was not dressed for a date but dressing sexier had just crept into my normal wardrobe, even when I was out for a casual afternoon, apparently. I wore a light jacket over a figure-hugging ribbed mock turtleneck and a short, pleated black kilt with patterned stockings and high boots. Suburban mom chic. They were thigh highs. I hadn’t worn pantyhose in months—a change that my husband heartily approved of.

“You’re just trying to get me back into bed,” I said.

“Is it working?”

“Maybe just a little,” I said, barely holding my fingers apart.

“I hope this helps.”

Zach kissed me, right there on the sidewalk, in the middle of the afternoon, in the middle of the city. It wasn’t likely anyone I knew would see us, but it wasn’t impossible. That thrill of danger raced through my veins, and I reacted like any other addict getting a hit. I sighed and sagged into his broad chest. He held me tightly and I sensually pressed my curves to him while pressing my tongue to his.

I’d been starving for that attention more than I knew. Dave and I had been having sex at least a couple times a day, but it didn’t slow me down. I was still always horny. The message I sent Zach was loud and clear, and I only barely managed to pull away from him. I was breathless. He was all smiles.

“So, what are you doing down here?” he asked.

“Shopping,” I said, wrestling back control of my tongue.

“You know, there’s a great lingerie shop just a couple blocks away.”

“What a coincidence,” I replied playfully. My conscience was screaming in the background: Get out of here! Do not flirt with this boy!

“I’d love to help you pick out some stuff.”

“I’m sure you would.” Images of me pulling Zach into a changing room flooded my mind. That was not good.

“And then you could come back to my place and model them for me.”

“I’d hate to take over your afternoon. I’m sure you had plans. I bet you were meeting one of those other girls, weren’t you?” I teased.

“There’s nothing I can’t drop. There’s no other way I’d rather spend my day, babe.”

My head screamed, Don’t do it! Don’t do it!, but “Let’s start with shopping and see where we end up,” came out of my mouth. As soon as I said it, I knew I was going to end up in Zach’s bed. I’d been good for so long, but I just couldn’t resist the temptation. What was I going to tell Dave? Oddly enough, I still had that key chain camera in the bottom of my purse. I suspected that if I dropped a hot video in Dave’s lap all would be forgiven. I knew I was going to find out.

CHAPTER

Two

I bit my lip and closed my eyes as I rocked back and forth on Zach. My hands were on his arms and my cheek was pressed to his. The clean scent of Irish Spring filled my nostrils. That, and the sharp smell of sex. His hands rested on my naked butt—my lacy gray panties were crumpled on his desk beside his chunky black glasses—and his calloused fingers tapped on my flesh matching our sexual rhythm. My boots were planted on the floor, and I controlled our motion by rocking my hips.

“Oh, Zach,” I whimpered, as he pressed even deeper inside me. I kissed his neck, and my fingers roughed his unruly dark-brown hair. I heard the wet sounds of our coupling as I became completely drenched.

We were supposed to be meeting for lunch. It was one of the three days of the week Zach was in his office, so I met him there. Yes, it was just supposed to be lunch, but I knew there was the possibility we would just end up at his place, and I dressed to entice. The short, black and gray sweater dress did not quite meet my knees, but my shiny black riding boots did. The dress hugged my curves in the most flattering way possible, though at that moment it was pushed up around my waist.

Zach pushed his office door closed the second he saw me. He had to have me, which I supposed was the effect I was going for. It’s a rush at thirty-six to know that a hot guy a decade younger than me can’t keep his hands off of me. My husband still feels the same way too, but it’s just not the same. My auburn hair was down—it’s just an inch past my shoulders—and Zach swept his fingers underneath it to tingle my neck when he pulled me in for a kiss at the door. He’s tall, and I had to lean up a little, even with the heels on my boots.

“Why are you always so goddam hot?” he’d asked, pulling me into the small office. It was only a couple of feet wider than his desk, and not much longer. Frosted glass walls separated him from his office mates, while a brick wall kept the outside world at bay. The offices were in a converted loft space.

“Because I always want you to fuck me,” I whispered between kisses.

I loved playing the naughty MILF role. It was one of the things that most excited me about these games Dave and I played. It had all been my husband’s idea at first, but I found I took to it easily. Instead of being a cute, but boring, suburban mom, the good wife, I was a sultry, sexual being out on the prowl when I went out to meet other men. I had never felt my life with Dave was lacking anything, but when I started going out it was like I was rediscovering a part of myself. Being so desired, knowing I could have who I wanted, was intoxicating.

Zach had steered me behind his desk and sat me on the edge. His hand went under my dress, and I naturally spread my legs. I reached for his jeans and found he was already growing hard. Zach has a nice long, thick cock. I love how it feels when he fills me. It’s not better than my husband, just different. Zach rubbed me through my lacy panties, quickly forming a damp spot. He does not have to touch me much to get me wet. I was excited just getting ready to see him. I wrestled with his belt and then pushed down his jeans. I don’t think I was in his office for five minutes before he was pulling down my panties and pulling me onto his lap on his chair.

We kissed frantically and then I pulled off his lap. It ached to be empty, but I knew he was about to fill me again. I turned, presenting him my round, firm butt, and gripped the edge of his desk. Zach scooted the chair forward and pulled me back onto his lap. He speared my swollen lips, and a throaty moan escaped my lips, despite my attempts to be quiet. I’m not great at being silent during sex, especially when it’s so good.

My thighs were pressed together, and he held my hips to pull me back onto him. I was biting my lip, but that was not going to cut it. I was squeezed so tight that he felt impossibly large, and every time he thrust into me his head dragged along my g-spot. I wanted to scream with every thrust. The jingle of my Pandora bracelet caught my attention, and I looked down at my left hand to see the spot where my wedding rings should have been. I suffered a pang of guilt, but it was quickly washed away by a wave of pleasure.

Zach thought I was called “Dani” and that I was single. Early on, Dave and I decided I would take on a persona when I went out on my Hot Dates. I had come up with several of them, but I had been Dani—freshly divorced and new to the area—when I met Zach. It was important to keep this away from our normal lives. We did not want any of the men I met following me home.

It was a good thing the office beyond us was bustling, because the sounds of our sex were growing. My moans were getting intense, and I heard Zach’s little grunts from behind me. His chair was squeaking with our motion. I was surprised it did not roll out from under him.

I rushed toward my climax and within a couple of minutes I was coming, biting the side of my hand to keep quiet, but the muffled cries were still pretty loud. My head was spinning, and I got dizzy for a moment, the way I always do when I come that hard—I just notice more when I’m not on my back. I felt my juices staining my thighs.

“Oh god,” I finally sighed, taking my fist from my mouth. I’d left a nice set of teeth marks.

Zach kept fucking me through my orgasm, still hard. I usually come more easily than he does. But I knew he had to be getting close, so I reluctantly pulled off of him again and went to my knees behind his desk, like the good little whore I’d become. I was not prepared with condoms—they were at his place—and I would not let him come inside me bareback. I am on the Pill, but it’s better to be safe than sorry. He smiled down at me as I held his wet cock and stuffed it into my mouth. Tasting myself on him just turned me on more, and I reached down to rub my clit. I still felt the vibrations of the last orgasm and I knew I could make myself come again.

“Fuck, Dani. Shit!” Zach groaned. A hairband held back my hair and he looked right down at me as my rust-colored lipstick smeared on his shaft.

I did that thing I do with my tongue, and he started shooting right into my mouth. The thick wad covered my tongue, and I hungrily swallowed it all. I was never one of those dainty girls who doesn’t swallow, but I’d really learned to love it since I’d become a hotwife. I came again right after he did and was glad, I had his dick in my mouth to muffle my cries. After my tremors finished, I sat back on my heels and made a show of licking my wet fingers clean.

“What moron divorced you?” he chuckled.

“You just know the fun side of me, babe. You have no idea what I’m like to live with. I could be a nightmare,” I said.

“That’s only because you won’t let me know more, Dani.” He reached past me and took his glasses off the desk.

I stood and smoothed the sweater dress down over my thighs. My panties went into my purse. The dress was short, but not too short if I was careful. I took the travel-size mouthwash out of my purse and did a quick swish and had no choice but to swallow it.

“You know the deal. I love what we have, but I’m not ready for anything more.” I bent over and kissed him sweetly.

“I can always hold out hope.”

Zach had always been hard to hold at arm’s length. He did want more, and he was sweet and smart, the kind of guy I’d love to meet if I really was single. But I am a married woman. I love my husband and have no interest in leaving him. I’d been a sporadic part of Zach’s life over the past year, disappearing for months at a time before responding to his texts again. I knew my feelings for him could turn into something real and I did not want that complication, so when things got too close, I shut him down and went on other dates. But since I was supposed to be on a break, I’d been seeing Zach more often. This was the second time in the same week—unheard of!

The break from dating had been my idea. I was out with another man, Carlos, and it had gotten so crazy and intense that it scared me. I was afraid being a hotwife was turning me into someone I did not want to be. And I knew Dave had concerns, but he was too addicted to my activities to stop me. I was not going to start dating again until we had a serious talk, but that did not come easy to Dave, so we had not had the talk and we were still supposed to be on the break. Dave thought it had been two months.

I fully intended to stick with the break, but I was out one day and ran into Zach and I could not resist going back to his place. I missed the other men as much as Dave did, but in a different way. I missed being that other woman—the MILF on the prowl. I insisted it would be a one-time slip and that I would tell Dave, but I didn’t. I saw Zach again and I began recording our sessions again, knowing Dave would forgive me when I gave him his precious videos. I didn’t get to record this encounter—Zach snatched me up too quickly to get the camera set. But it had been six times now and I still did not tell Dave. Every time I fucked Zach in secret made it worse and I was unprepared for the fight. I kept telling myself, This time I’ll tell Dave.

“Where do you want to get lunch?” Zach asked, pulling me back into the present.

I grabbed my handbag from his desk and smiled at him. “You already fed me, so you get to pick.”

I CHECKED my phone as I walked back to the garage after Zach dropped me off and he went back to work. I noted the admiring glances of the men who passed me on the city street and that gave me a special glow. I’ve always liked attention, something that I think Dave instilled in me early on in our marriage. Long before he confessed his hotwife fantasy to me, he’d always made it known that he liked when I drew the attention of other men. So, when we went out, I always made sure to dress up specially for him, and whoever else might want to look. It made me feel sexy and encouraged me to stay fit, even through two pregnancies. Men looking at me had always given me a charge, but it meant something more now that I knew I could do something about it if I chose. That is, if we weren’t on a break.

There were several texts on my phone from Dave. I’d left it on vibrate because I had to know if the school was calling, but otherwise I did not want to be disturbed while I was with Zach. I’d noticed Dave had taken to texting me more often during the day, using lame excuses, and I couldn’t help feeling that he was testing me. My husband is not a stupid man. He may have begun to suspect something. I could not stall him much longer. When I got to the car, I texted him back.

DANA

Sorry, phone was in my purse while running errands. Yes, dance class is tonight

DAVE

ok. I'll try to make it home for an early dinner

DANA

love you too

Dave knew very well Wednesday was Ava's dance class. We ate an early dinner, and if Dave was not home from work yet, I took Mason along and hoped the tablet would keep him occupied while we sat on the side. If Dave did make it home before six, I'd leave Mason with him. He was just looking for an excuse to text me that would require an answer. Maybe it was finally time to come clean about Zach. The problem was that I knew he would want that to be an end to our break—which I guess never really happened—but I was not sure I was ready to resume full scale dating without having a serious talk first, and I didn't know if that was going to happen. I hated having to force the issue.

I arrived home and dropped my purse on the kitchen table before heading upstairs. I had just enough time for a shower before it was time to pick the kids up from school. I stripped out of the sweater dress in the bedroom and caught a glimpse of myself from the side in one of the full-length mirrors in my walk-in closet. It looked strange to not be wearing panties when I'd just been out. The gray Calvin Klein bra, which did wonders for the girls, was missing the other half of its set, which reminded me of what a naughty tramp I was. Rather than feel guilty, I smiled.

My side view showed off all the work I put into my body. As I've said, I've always taken care of myself, partially because I knew Dave wanted a hot wife to show around, but when I became a true hotwife, I'd redoubled my efforts. If I was going to be undressing in front of strangers, I wanted to look as good as possible.

I unhooked the bra and threw it onto the hamper. Standing extra straight made my boobs stand out and I cupped them, feeling their weight. They spilled over from my small hands. My tits have always been big—they got huge when I was pregnant—though they've gotten slightly smaller since I've been working out so hard. No, they were not as perky as when I was twenty—they hung just a bit—but they had held up well through two kids, and my dark pink nipples were still nice and round. I ran my hands down over my smooth belly, proud that I had no mommy pooch. That had taken a ton of effort and a personal trainer. I felt the softness of the faint stretch marks there, faded by many applications of cocoa butter. But those were a badge of honor, not something I was ashamed of. If a guy could not handle that, they couldn't handle me. And finally, my fingers glanced over my smooth, shaved mound. That was something I'd started doing when I became a hotwife. It was always a little V or a landing strip before. My lips down below were still a bit red and swollen from fucking Zach in his office, and just touching them made me shiver. I could have easily gotten worked up again, but there was not time. I had to convert back into suburban mommy mode.

CHAPTER

Three

I walked in from work to find the house buzzing. I smelled the spaghetti sauce simmering on the stove and the garlic bread in the oven. Pasta was always Dana's go-to meal when she had to rush out the door. I give her all the credit in the world. I own a mid-sized construction firm, but I do not understand how my wife keeps on top of the logistics of keeping our household running. Between the kids' conflicting schedules and my often working late, she has to manage things by herself a lot of the time. And on top of making sure everyone ends up where they need to be, Dana keeps the house clean and stays ahead of the laundry. I'd told her more than once that we could afford a housekeeper, but she did not want a stranger poking around our house. It made me feel guilty to think she might be sleeping with someone behind my back. I don't know where she would find the time. Back when she was dating, I had to contribute more around the house. I was with the kids more often at the very least.

Dana was in the kitchen, stirring the pot. She wore a loose shirt over a sports bra and her ass looked delectable in black yoga pants. Yoga pants had almost become a uniform for her, and sometimes I thought it was just because she knows how amazing she looks in them.

"Hey, babe," I said, hugging her from behind, and kissing her cheek.

"You made it home. Nice. Can you watch this for a second? I need to run and grab Ava's dance stuff from the dryer."

"Sure."

"Daddy!" Mason cried, running into the kitchen. I was surprised my return from work was enough to pull him from Thomas the Tank Engine on Netflix.

Mason rounded the kitchen table, typically not careful at all, and knocked a chair into his mom's big handbag, which was poised on the edge of the table. The handbag tumbled to the floor and half its contents spilled onto the floor. He froze, waiting to get reprimanded. I cursed under my breath and turned down the sauce on the stove.

"It's okay, buddy. It's just an accident. We'll just get it cleaned up," I said, roughing his dark hair.

"Sorry, Dad."

"Really, it's okay."

I knelt down and began collecting the debris that filled Dana's handbag. There was her big wallet, make-up bag, and loose pens, mints, and a little bottle of hand sanitizer. Even the tiny bottle of mouthwash didn't give me pause—I figured it was a relic of her dating days. But then two items paralyzed me. Halfway out of her bag was a gray pair of panties, so lacy they were virtually see-through. And then I saw the little key fob and knew it was not for either of our cars. I recognized the hidden camera as soon as I saw it.

Time stopped. The implication of those two items smacked me like a bat to the head. Even if I could reason away the hidden camera still being in Dana's bag—maybe she'd just never taken it out—there was only one possible explanation for her panties being there. As I held those panties, I felt like I was going to fall over. My brain short circuited from the conflicting thoughts: relief that I wasn't paranoid, anger that Dana was stepping out, a dash of elation at knowing she was not done dating, and a rush of blood to my genitals as an image of Dana screwing another man popped into my head. Gradually, my son's voice pierced through the fog, and I returned to the moment. I stuffed the panties back into the handbag, but I pocketed the camera.

I just had the handbag back up on the table when Dana came back into the kitchen. She gave me a strange look and asked, "Are you okay?"

"Uh, yeah. I just remembered something I forgot to do before I left work."

"You've got a minute or two before dinner is ready."

"Okay, I'll be right back."

I gave Mason a hug and retreated to my home office. My laptop came to life the moment I flipped it open. I didn't have time to check out the contents of the camera, but I could copy them. The camera slid into a USB port and popped up as a removable drive. I created a folder on my desktop and dragged the contents of the camera into it. I noted the video files had several dates, but there was not one for today. My disappointment shamed me.

The copy was quickly completed, I slid the camera from the computer and closed the laptop. I returned to the kitchen and as casually as I could, I dropped the camera back into Dana's handbag while her back was turned.

"Ready to eat?" she asked.

GETTING through dinner normally was an effort. Every time I looked at my wife I pictured her underneath some sweaty stranger, her legs wrapped around his waist as she begged him for more. Was she back on the dating site, or was she still seeing one of her lovers? Dana slipping off to meet Zach was likely. I felt she always had a special spot in her heart for her young lover, and he'd been persistent in pursuing her. Perhaps Dana turned on her burner phone one day to see if there were messages and she couldn't help herself.

Once dinner was cleaned up, I played games with Mason, while Dana and Ava were at the dance studio, but I was so distracted that even keeping track of Chutes and Ladders was a challenge. Mason thought I was just being silly when I lost my place and laughed at me. It was good he was there to lighten my mood, but my mind kept drifting back to Dana's extracurricular activities.

If Dana was not sleeping with Zach, she was probably doing Carlos. I knew that guy was bad news. He had a strange hold on my wife. When they were together, Dana did things I never thought she was capable of—she became someone else. In their last encounter, she'd become the ultimate whore. And as much as it had disturbed me, I had never been more turned on in my life. Did Carlos have my Dana out fucking his friends again? Did she come running to be his whore the second he called?

Or Dana could have been sneaking off to have sex with someone else completely. I'd created this side of her. I'd told her I wanted her to go out and meet other men. And she'd grown to love it. So how could I expect her to just stop? When she said she needed a break, it seemed Dana just needed a break from my involvement.

It was bedtime when Dana and Ava returned, which gave me about a half hour to myself while they all snuggled into bed. As the kids got older, bedtime became a mommy activity. They prefer the way she does voices and acts out the books at story time over my reading. No one seems to mind the arrangement very much, and the kids try not to complain when mommy is out, and daddy has to handle bedtime.

As Dana took care of the kids, I slipped into my office and opened the laptop. I plugged in a set of earbuds, but I kept one out to listen for possible interruptions. There were four video files, from the month before our break. I thought about Dana's panties in her handbag and was angry all over again that there was not a video from that afternoon. But there was one from three days earlier. I clicked on it.

I recognized Zach's bedroom immediately. I'd seen it in enough videos to know it by heart. Zach lived in a remodeled rowhome in the city, so the bedrooms were on the small side, and the bed was right in front of the camera. I think Dana put it on his dresser. There were windows on the far side, and it was clearly daytime, but Dana had angled the camera so that the outside light did not wash out the camera's lens. No one was in the frame, but I heard movement in the room, followed by my wife's voice.

"I don't have very long," she said. "I need to be back to get my kids."

Zach laughed. I knew his voice. "I still have trouble thinking of you being the nice little mommy who makes cookies and helps with the homework."

"Why is that?" Dana sounded amused.

"Because I never see that side of you. I only see...this."

I wished I knew what he was seeing.

"Would you like me to come over in mom jeans and a nice, loose polo?"

"That might be kinda hot if we played it right."

"Pervert. I am not feeding your mommy fetish."

"Oh, mommy, I love the way you touch my dick," he laughed.

"Stop it. I mean it."

Zach fell back onto the bed, already nude. His long, thick cock lay up along his belly. I'd long since gotten over any insecurity that he was bigger than I am. It was actually hot to see big guys fuck Dana. She followed him onto the bed, also naked. I wished I knew what she'd worn to meet her lover. That was half the fun, but of course, this encounter had nothing to do with me, or my fantasies. Dana crawled over him, her beautiful, C-cup tits hanging down—before Zach grabbed them and kneaded them. He pulled gently on her nipples, and she moaned. They kissed. It was a long, deep, passionate kiss, the kind that made the pit of my stomach burn every time I saw it. Seeing my wife kiss another man like that was so disturbing, and such a powerful aphrodisiac. My prick strained in my pants.

Dana slowly stroked his cock while they kissed, and he continued playing with her tits, making her shake and moan while they kissed. Her tongue flicked out when the kiss ended, and she shimmied back down so she was laying on her stomach between his legs and his tall shaft was right in her face. She had that hungry look in her eyes, and I knew what was coming.

I skipped ahead in the video. It was not that I didn't want to see it all, but my time was limited, and I wanted to at least peek at all of the videos. Zach was holding her head and slowly pumping his cock into and out of my wife's eager mouth. Her cheeks hollowed from sucking him and the camera picked up the wet sounds of her sucking as he pushed deeper and deeper into her mouth, Dana is a talented cocksucker, so she had little trouble taking every inch. She only struggled when he pushed to the back of her throat, but she knew how to relax and take that.

Further in the video, Dana was on her back, with her legs over Zach's forearms. The young stud was steadily giving it to my wife and her moans signaled that she loved every second of it. Their eyes were locked together, and I could see this was not just a fuck for her. No, she looked at him like he was her boyfriend. I'd seen it before between them, and that's why her seeing Zach always worried me, even if I did trust she would never leave me. I was not sure I could have that confidence anymore.

I'd seen enough of that video. I jumped back to the first one in the list, from about a month earlier. Was this the first time she'd seen Zach during our break? Possibly not, as she clearly was not recording every encounter. This time she was in Zach's living room, and it was nighttime. I double checked the date and tried to recall where she told me she was that evening. I thought perhaps she said she was having dinner with Jana, but I was not sure. If she had used Jana as an alibi, did that mean Jana knew she was out with other men? I didn't want to think about Jana being involved. I saw Dana's sweet ass as she walked away from the camera and out of view. She was wearing a little black, leather-looking skirt and fishnet tights, with spike-heeled boots. Her top looked like a green tank top from behind, and it only just met the skirt, leaving a swath of exposed skin every time she moved. I couldn't remember her going out dressed like that, but she may have changed after she left, like a teenage girl sneaking out to meet her friends.

The screen remained empty, but for the couch and a wall. Zach's living room was long and narrow, with a couch along the longer wall, which faced the stairs to the second floor. I seemed to recall a loveseat on the wall by the front windows, but it was not in view. The room was decorated much like you'd expect from a twentysomething hipster: alt-country concert posters on the wall, a beaten-up, reclaimed coffee table, a battered guitar in the corner. Zach used that guitar to get into my wife's panties on the night they met. It was the first night Dana had slept with another man. That would have been mind-blowing enough, but she had taken Zach and his roommate that night. Dana took those two young guys like she was born for it. Maybe she was. The hungry, sexual beast might have always been inside her and I just unleashed it, instead of creating it, as I feared.

I heard voices from another room but could not make out the words. I fast-forwarded. After fifteen minutes or so, Dana and Zach returned to the living room and sat side-by-side on the couch. I saw her top had some kind of complicated straps in the front, and it was low-cut. Not just a simple tank top. He took a long pull on a vape pen and passed it to her. Dana sucked on it too. I knew they were getting high. Dana had developed an appetite for getting high since she'd started dating. She was becoming quite the party girl. They giggled and began to chat, and once again I fast-forwarded. I only slowed when they started making out.

Zach eased Dana onto her back on the couch. Her skirt rode up and I saw those were not fishnet stockings, but thigh highs. My cock throbbed. I was lightly rubbing myself through my pants. God, my wife was hot. She was so sexy, so perfect. She was everything I wanted. I could not lose her. But those melancholy thoughts did not slow down my sexual need.

A little further into the video and Dana's skirt was around her waist, while one leg was over the back of the couch and her other foot was on the floor. Zach was on his knees beside the couch licking her pussy and she was howling.

"Ohhh god! Yes! Yes, baby! Ohhh god, just like that!" she begged.

I pushed further into the video and Dana ended up on her knees on the couch, gripping the back and facing the wall, while Zach fucked her from behind. Mostly I just saw him thrusting, not the best view. I closed the video. I had seen what I needed to see of it. A quick check of the other two videos showed they were both shot in Zach's house during the daytime.

So many feelings plagued me. My indecision paralyzed me. The natural thing would be to confront Dana, of course, and see what she had to say for herself. I should find out what her sneaking around meant for our marriage. But then, part of me wanted to wait and see if she would come clean to me. Even if I already knew, wouldn't it be better if Dana confessed of her own free will? That was assuming that she would confess, given time. I still thought I knew my wife well enough that I knew she would come to me. There were also the videos to consider. If Dana planned to keep her affair with Zach a secret forever, why was she shooting the videos? I did not believe it was just because she needed to be watched, although I knew that was part of her excitement. No, the only conclusion was that she planned to tell me and then give me the videos, perhaps as a peace offering.

Wanting Dana to do the right thing was not the only reason I thought to delay. I had darker motivations, I realized. Seeing Dana cheat like that gave me a different, sicker, thrill than watching her when she knew she was putting on a show for me. She did not do anything different, not that I could tell, but my reaction to seeing it was more visceral. Watching Dana with other men had always been like a gut punch, but over time that sick, twisted feeling had lessened, to a degree—except for the last time, when she'd had an orgy with a group of strangers. I think the sense of danger had gradually dissipated. Dana was having fun, maybe she was losing herself, but I knew she was coming back to me. It sounds terrible, but I just got used to it without realizing it. But seeing Dana sneaking around brought all that back. Maybe I didn't truly believe she was going to leave me, but the guttural sense of danger was back. And maybe I wanted to experience it a bit longer.

I closed the laptop having made a decision. I was ready to let Dana's behavior go a little longer to feed my need for more thrills. If I was playing with fire, I didn't want to admit it. In the meantime, I was going upstairs to make love to Dana because I was hornier than ever.

CHAPTER

Four

Dana was in the bathroom scrubbing the make-up from her face when I entered the bedroom. I closed and locked the door. I did not want to be disturbed. I waited, trying to think about anything but the throbbing hard-on in my pants. I stripped off those pants, and my shirt, lying back on the bed in boxer-briefs and a t-shirt. The door to the master bath was open I kept catching glimpses of Dana moving around in there. She'd shed the shirt and was just in yoga pants and a black and white sports bra when she came out of the bathroom.

"It's kind of early for you to turn in, isn't it?" she asked.

I crawled across the bed hopped off, grabbing her. She didn't struggle, but she did not melt into my arms either. I nuzzled her and kissed her neck. I felt the slightest shiver and she began to melt, but she fought it.

"You're certainly in the mood tonight," Dana commented.

"Aren't I always in the mood?"

"You are, but can you pounce on me in a little bit? I've got a couple of things to do downstairs before bedtime."

Dana slipped from my arms and headed for the door, but I caught her arm. I was not in the mood to be put off. If she could give herself so freely to Zach, she could damn well fuck me when I wanted her. She was still my wife. I yanked her back to me and this time I kissed her hard while holding her head. She struggled harder this time but melted into me by the time I pressed my tongue into her mouth. It was predictable. I'd learned from watching her with other men that Dana liked being manhandled. Ordinarily, I couldn't do it the way a guy like Carlos did, but I was in a special mood.

“Dave, what are you doing?” she asked breathlessly. I was nibbling her neck and pulling at her sports bra.

“I thought it was pretty obvious I wanted to fuck my wife.”

“I know, but I told you...”

“I’m not asking. I want to fuck you now.” There was an edge in my voice she probably didn’t expect. I didn’t even expect it, but I was not going to be put off.

I got the sports bra over her tits and then yanked it over her head and threw it on the floor. Dana gasped. I knew that whatever she felt she needed to do she was getting turned on. It was possible that Zach had given her enough for the day, but I didn’t think so. She was always ready for more.

We thunked back against the wall, my hand cushioning the back of Dana’s head. I was lightly pulling her hair. I pulled her head back so I could freely nibble on her neck and shoulder. It drives her crazy. I also grabbed between her thighs and pressed my fingers into her mound. It was easy to feel her sex through the yoga pants and her thong. I kneaded her pussy and began to feel the moisture seep through.

“God, Dave...” she moaned.

“You’re such a little fucking whore,” I growled.

“Yes, I’m your whore, baby.”

“You’re everyone’s whore, aren’t you, Dana?”

Dana hesitated and I pressed her cunt more firmly. She was soaking through the yoga pants now.

“Yes...yes, baby...I’m everyone’s whore...” she gasped. There was something to her voice—was it worry?

“I love teasing my little whore,” I said. I was bent lower now, licking and sucking her full nipples, which had gone dark and stiff, throbbing out from her tits and begging for attention.

“God, tease me, baby. Please tease me, Dave,” she whimpered.

We had been playing these games ever since we started going on our Hot Dates, but generally the teasing went the other way. Dana would tease me about what a whore she was and how much she loved going out and fucking other men. We had not done it as much since we’d been on the break, even though we were making love more than ever. Dana wanted it all the time, whenever we were alone. That was why I didn’t take her desire to get downstairs seriously. Usually, she was crawling into my lap while I was trying to update my fantasy football team.

Dana rubbed me through my boxer-briefs, but I kept swatting her hand away. I was afraid I had too much of a hair trigger at the moment. It didn't take much to make me come under ordinary circumstances when I watched her videos. I knew I would be a mess this time. But my hand was inside her yoga pants and thong, and I teased my finger up and down her slippery lips. When I grazed her clit, her body jerked, and she pushed at me. We were both ready.

I dragged Dana to our bed and bent her over the side. We have one of those king-size beds that's so high it takes some effort for Dana to climb into it at 5'3". When I bent her over the side, her feet barely touched the ground. She clawed for the comforter to keep from being pulled off when I jerked her yoga pants and thong off—I discovered the thong was a red lacy thing. Dana obediently pushed her ass into the air for me, and I kicked off my boxer-briefs. I sank into that smooth, wet cunt and I just about lost it. I nearly came the second I entered her.

She was nice and snug around me, but I still couldn't help thinking about her being pounded by a larger cock just a few hours earlier. I imagined I felt a difference, even though that was crazy. And even though she was always supposed to be wearing condoms, I knew she sometimes slipped. Had Zach shot his load inside her? It pissed me off to think about it, but it also turned me on.

"God, fuck me, baby! Fuck your little whore!" Dana begged breathlessly. It was loud enough for me to hear, but not carry beyond the room. Luckily, our house is large, and the kids' rooms are far, far down the hallway.

"Feel...so...good," I grunted, timing every word with a deeper thrust inside her.

"Your whore needs it! I need it so bad, baby!"

I had to bite my tongue. I almost told her, Didn't you get enough this afternoon, tramp? But I kept my cool and just thrust into her faster. She tried to raise up on her elbows and look back at me, but I planted a hand in the middle of her back to keep her down. She was pressed firmly into the mattress and turned her head to the side to breathe. I had an amazing view of her perfect ass as I took her and wondered if Zach enjoyed the view. Did he pull out and come all over her ass? I knew he liked coming in her mouth and on her face. I loved seeing my sweet wife get a facial.

“Come for me, baby. I need to feel you come,” I demanded. I was going to be quick, and I wanted Dana to come too, so I ordered her too, like that would make it happen. “Rub your clit, tramp!”

Dana pushed a hand underneath her and did as she was ordered. I felt her pussy constrict around me as she rubbed her clit, and I knew it was helping to push her toward a climax. I held her petite waist and drilled her harder and harder. The scenes of Zach fucking her flashed through my mind—individual images like a slideshow, not a video. I saw her eagerly sucking his cock. I saw Dana staring up at him and then kissing him while he slowly rocked his cock into her. And just like that, I was done. I grunted loudly and pulled out, jacking my load all over her sweet ass. I thought maybe I heard a whimper of disappointment, but Dana kept rubbing her clit and then she was moaning in that way that always signals her orgasm. She kept thrusting her hips, like I was still inside her, and then her body tightened up as she rode that orgasm all the way through.

I stepped away and stared down at my wet, flaccid dick. There was a flash of shame. I always felt it after focusing on Dana with other men. I am a man and I know what my fetish would mean to other men. I did not deceive myself into thinking that it was socially acceptable. But the shame was only momentary because I also understood that it only mattered what Dana and I thought. It was our marriage. She accepted me for who I am—or so I thought. Did her stepping out mean something different? I chose not to think about it.

“That was...intense,” Dana breathed. I felt like she was going to say quick but thought better of it.

“You know how hot you look in yoga pants,” I lied. It wasn’t really a lie—she did look hot—but I was not telling her the whole truth.

“Yeah, but they don’t always do that to you.”

Dana pushed off the bed, careful not to roll and smear my cum onto the comforter. Just looking at her curvy, beautiful nude body made my cock start twitching to life again. I think one of the roots of my hotwife fantasy is how hot I find my wife, and I want other men to find her that hot too. And only when I get to see her use that hot body from a distance can I truly appreciate it. It’s like watching a thoroughbred rather than just riding it.

A cloud crossed her face, and she looked down, avoiding my eyes as she went to the bathroom and closed the door behind her. I heard the shower start and I wondered if I had done something wrong. She loved it when other men took the lead—didn't she want that from me? It made me angry, and I pulled on sweatpants and left the room.

I WAS DOWNSTAIRS FLIPPING through channels when Dana found me. She was ready for bed, but still sexy—always sexy. A tight Spandex cami clung to her, hugging her tits, and little satin shorts left her shapely legs exposed. She was carrying her new Surface tablet, which she hugged against her chest. And then came those four words all men dread.

“We need to talk.”

“Didn't you like that upstairs?” I asked defensively.

“It's not about you, honey. It's me. I have to tell you something.” She was deadly serious.

“What is it?”

I turned off the television and faced her. I knew what was coming, but I tried to keep a blank expression. It was not just that I didn't want her to see that I knew. I also didn't want to show my disappointment. I had gotten excited about the possibility of more illicit videos. The sad truth was that I really did like my wife being a true whore—one who sneaks out on her own, not just for her husband's pleasure. Every time I thought there was a limit to my depravity, I found there was a new line.

Dana looked everywhere but at me. It hurt to see her struggle, but I had to let her do this her way. “I don't know how to tell you this. I don't want you to hate me.”

“I will never, ever hate you, Dana. I love you. You are my life. Don't ever think games like we played upstairs—or like we were playing before—could change how I feel about you. I told you before we started any of this that nothing will change what we have.” I took her hand.

“But this is different. I betrayed you. I betrayed us.”

I was quiet, letting her get it out.

“Dave, I've been with another man.” She looked at me, unshed tears in her eyes.

I grinned to relieve her tension. “I know that, babe. I know all the intimate details.”

I tried to feign surprise. I showed a little anger, which was genuine. “What do you mean? You’ve been screwing someone else?”

“Yes.” She looked down again. A single tear rolled down her cheek. It was killing me. In a tiny voice she admitted, “It was Zach.”

We were both quiet. I was surprised by my surge of emotion. Although I knew, I still felt a swirl of anger like I was hearing it for the first time. It was kind of what I wanted, but it was also not what we were supposed to be about. Dana had broken the rules, and I was not happy about it. But that anger was tinged by desire. It was lessened by my need. There were no words to explain that, and I didn’t try to.

“So, you told me we needed to take a break—”

“I meant it.”

“And then you went right out and fucked Zach behind my back?” I tried to keep my voice in check.

“I didn’t go right out and do it. I didn’t mean to.” More tears were coming.

“You just fell into his bed?” My anger was a relief, but I didn’t understand why.

“I was out in the city, and I just happened to run into him. He asked me to coffee. I knew I shouldn’t see him, but I told myself it would be innocent.”

“But?”

“He wanted me to come back to his place and I said yes. I knew it was wrong, but I...I don’t know. I...”

“You wanted to fuck him.” My teeth were gritted.

“Yes. Does it make you feel better to hear it like that? He asked me back to his place and I said yes because I wanted to fuck him. He wanted me and I couldn’t help myself. That is what you want to hear, isn’t it?”

Dana had been trying to soft peddle it, but I pushed it out of her, and now her own anger flared.

“I never said I wanted you to screw guys behind my back.”

“But you wanted me to be like this. Your ultimate fantasy is for me to be some little slut who can’t say no, isn’t I?”

“Dana...” I didn’t know what to say, because I didn’t want to admit the truth. But I also did not want her sneaking around. I wanted to be involved.

I wanted some control over the situation. I wanted my wife to be my slut. That was an important difference.

"I guess that's what I am now. A guy gives me the right look and I fall into bed with him."

"You know this is not what I wanted. We've always been honest with each other, and we had an agreement. I didn't push you into Zach's bed."

Dana's rally of defiance began to deflate. She looked at me again with teary eyes. "I know. I'm sorry. I don't know what's wrong with me."

"You're the one who wanted the break!" I pressed. "I never asked for it."

"I know! I was scared after Carlos, and I didn't know what you really wanted, and I thought we should stop and think and then talk about it. But Zach doesn't scare me like that, so it was too easy."

"Why is Zach so different?" This was what I wanted to know, and what I feared.

Dana tried to smile and touched my cheek. "It's not what you think. God, Dave, I don't love him. It's nothing like with you. Zach is comfortable. I know what to expect with him. I know he's not going to press me too much."

"But what if he does? What if he wants more? I know I would. And you have feelings—I can see it." I held her hand and squeezed.

"Yes, I have feelings for him, but they aren't like my feelings for you. You are my husband. Nothing competes with that. Zach is more like a good friend, almost like a brother." She laughed at that. "Okay, not a brother, that's crazy. But I can kick back with him. He's like a safe place if I need a fix."

I nodded, trying to understand.

"Don't forget, it's not like he's really my friend, baby. He's Dani's friend. He doesn't even really know me. He knows almost nothing about my real life, but he's perfect for Dani. She's just trying to feel her way in the world. If he knew the real me, he'd probably run."

"Don't say that. You're perfect."

"Ha! Far from it."

I pulled her close and held her tight. The tablet dropped to the floor. In that moment, I didn't care about the videos I knew were on it. I didn't care about anything but the bond I felt for my wife.

"So, you don't hate me?"

“I will never, ever hate you. But I am not happy you were sneaking around. You should have just come to me and told me you didn’t want to be on a break anymore.”

She bit her lip. “I don’t know that. Sleeping with Zach isn’t the same as going out with other men. I still think we need to talk about it, and we haven’t done it.”

I was annoyed. I was forgiving her and that wasn’t enough. “What do we need to talk about?”

Dana sighed. “We haven’t talked about that night. I did things...”

“Yeah, you lost control.”

“And that scared me.”

“Did it feel good?”

Dana hesitated. She didn’t want to admit the truth any more than I did. “Yes. But it’s just not about that.”

“I thought it was all about that.”

“You know it’s not. I’ve asked you what you want from this, what you really want. And you won’t tell me.”

“What more do you need to know?” I asked.

“Do you have any boundaries? Was it okay that I fucked two men that night? Was it okay that I was with another woman?”

“I didn’t know you were into that,” I chuckled.

“It’s not funny. And neither did I. I was so high I think I was into everything that night.”

“The getting high does bother me. I mean, I know it’s not the end of the world, but I don’t want you to become an addict. Then we’ll have a real problem.”

“Don’t worry. I’m not itching for a fix—of that.” Dana allowed a tiny smile. “So, you’re okay with anything I do? I could take a whole football team?”

I tried not to show my excitement at the idea of a bunch of men taking my wife. I wondered, could I handle that? “I’m okay with whatever you’re okay with. This isn’t really about me.”

“That’s bullshit, and you know it. We wouldn’t be doing this without your fantasies.”

“Okay, that’s true. But I really do want you to feel free to do whatever you like, as long as you keep me in the loop, and I get what I need.”

“I know you want—need to see it. Then why did you seem as freaked out as I was?”

“It was a shock to see you like that, I’ll admit it. I had to sort through my feelings. But it was insanely hot. Like, unreal. I’m so proud of you for totally cutting loose.”

“So that’s it?”

“Okay, I’ll confess, I was disturbed by Carlos. I don’t want you to stop dating, but it was hard to see another man control you like that. Sure, I’ve seen other men take you, but it was different with him. It felt like you were more his than mine, and it scared me. I didn’t like it.”

“It scared me too, baby. It did feel like I would have done anything Carlos told me to do, and I can’t just blame it on the drugs. He just has a way of pushing my buttons. Even if we go back to the Hot Dates, I don’t think I should see him.”

“I agree.”

I mostly meant it. It did scare and anger me the way Carlos controlled my wife, but it also thrilled me to see what he made her do. If Carlos wanted her to lay back and take all his friends, she might do it. And I might hate myself for it in the morning, but I would love to see it. It was like Carlos was my id run wild. But he was not just an extension of me, and he could not be controlled, so he was dangerous. I wanted Dana to lose herself in the moment, but not lose herself completely.

“So, are we off break?” I asked.

“Is that really what you want? This thing with Zach didn’t change your mind?” Dana looked worried.

“It was just Zach? No one else?”

“Just Zach, I swear.”

“Then I think we’re fine as long as you keep me fully in the loop. I want to know everything.”

“Agreed. But I do think we should start back in slowly. I don’t think I’m ready to start going at it hard again.”

I kissed her. “Okay, but I don’t want you just seeing Zach, at least not for too long. I believe everything you told me, but if you’re with just one guy it just feels too much like you have a boyfriend to me, and I don’t feel good about that.”

Dana looked disappointed, but she agreed. “If it helps, I was thinking of you, Dave. I made sure to record my dates with Zach whenever I could.”

She picked up the tablet and handed it to me. "I downloaded them for you."

"That's awesome," I said.

"You really had no idea? You weren't suspicious at all?" Dana sounded suspicious herself. Did I not sound surprised enough? I took the tablet and hoped to gloss it over.

"I had some suspicions when you got harder to get a hold of, but I didn't really believe you were up to anything," I lied. "I didn't think you'd do anything like that."

"Sorry." She sounded unconvinced but didn't press it further.

"We're good really."

I sat back and pulled up the videos. I had to be as eager as I would be to see them for the first time. I pulled up the video of Dana and Zach in the living room. "Jesus, you're hot, Dana. I missed this."

"I knew you must be jonesing." She let me watch the video for a couple of minutes and then said, "There's one more thing you should know." My eyes shot back to her, and she quickly added, "It's not about another guy."

Now I was perplexed. What else could she have to confess?

"Do you remember the morning I came home after that last night with Carlos?" she asked.

"It's hard to forget."

"Well, when I was doing my walk of shame, Jana spotted me."

That froze me. We were very careful to keep the hotwife stuff away from our normal life. I had my own reasons, besides the obvious ones. "What did you tell her?"

"I put her off that morning, but eventually I had to tell her the truth." Dana braced for my fury, and it was coming.

"You did what? How could you do that without talking to me first?"

"I had to tell her something. She thought the worst already. I figured the truth was better."

I ran my fingers through my short brown hair. "Jesus Christ. I don't know what to say."

"Would you rather she thought I was having an affair?"

"Maybe."

"Well, I wouldn't. And this isn't just about you."

"It's not like she's in a position to judge you, is she?"

Sadly, for my friend Neil, his wife was not faithful. I did not know the extent of Jana's cheating, but I knew she slept with her personal trainer. I'll admit, when Dana first told me about our friend's dirty little secret it turned me on. Jana is a hot, surgically enhanced blonde. She's a little bit older—in her early 40s—but she is the definition of a cougar. I got turned on thinking about Jana with her trainer and was even jealous of Neil. He had what I wanted—a wife who stepped out—he just didn't know it. But I doubted he wanted that. I had no indication Neil was like me. Fantasizing about Jana fucking her trainer easily morphed into picturing Dana in the same position. This was in our pre-hotwife days, and I almost suggested to my wife that she see the personal trainer too, not that Dana needs it.

"I don't know. I don't want anyone thinking I'm cheating on you," Dana said, ignoring the obvious irony.

"But it wasn't just your decision."

"You share everything with those guys on that message board, don't you?"

"But that's anonymous. Those guys have no idea who we are. It's not the same."

"But you've never asked me how I felt about it, have you? And have you ever shared anything I wouldn't like?"

Dana stopped me in my tracks. I swallowed hard, because I was guilty. My essential argument was true. The hotwife message board I went to was anonymous, but I had taken stills, and even audio, from Dana's videos and posted them on the board. Anything identifying was blurred out, but I knew she would still freak out if she knew I'd done that. I was just so proud of her. I wanted to show the others how amazing my hotwife is. I probably would have posted video, too, if I knew how to blur that. Despite our newfound honesty, I had no plans of confessing my sins, so instead I changed the subject.

"What did Jana think? Does she think I'm some weird pervert now?"

Dana smiled, trying to soften me. "I had to explain it—a lot. She couldn't really wrap her head around the idea that you like me being with other men, but you're not looking to be with women. When she finally got it, I think she was jealous, really."

I chuckled. "That makes sense. It would make her life less complicated, wouldn't it?"

"And I think she was disappointed we're not full-blown swingers."

"Why?"

“Because she would love to fuck you. You know that.” Dana didn’t say it like it bothered her. I made it clear early on that I had no interest in being with other women, and she accepted that. But I got the impression she wouldn’t mind if I changed my mind.

“She’s just flirty.”

“And you wouldn’t mind?”

Dana cocked an eyebrow. “Are you asking for permission?”

“No, I haven’t changed my mind. I was just curious.”

“With Jana it would be okay. I know you’re not going to run off with her.”

I leaned over and kissed her. “I’m not running off with anyone.”

“I know that.”

“Do you think she told Neil?”

“I swore her to secrecy, but I can’t say for sure. I don’t think so, though. How do you feel?”

I didn’t know how I was ever going to face Jana again. Yes, I loved that Dana was willing to indulge my fantasies, but I still had very mixed feelings what even having the fantasy said about me. If Dana explained it all properly—and I was sure she did—she told Jana it wasn’t about me not being able to please her or me being into seeing guys, but did Jana accept that? I was so afraid she was going to look at me like some kind of creep now. I just had to hope that Jana being Jana, she got it and would keep it to herself.

“I’m not happy she knows, but I guess I can live with it, if it stops there. Does she know everything?”

“Actually, it’s been a relief to have someone to talk to about all this. It can be overwhelming sometimes, and it’s not like I’m going to run to my moms’ group to discuss it. You have your message board. I’m glad I have someone to bounce things off of.”

I took that to mean, yes, Dana had told Jana everything. That burning feeling was back in the pit of my stomach, and I tried to think of ways to avoid her. But I couldn’t do that forever. I just had to let it go.

“And that’s it? There is nothing else you need to confess?”

“Nothing else. You know everything now.”

“Come here.”

I pulled Dana into my arms and held her tight. She snuggled into me and felt absolutely perfect. It seemed that everything was back to normal—at least our version of it. I couldn't wait to see what was going to happen next.

CHAPTER

Five

We were off of our break, but I still didn't feel I had gotten everything from Dave I was looking for. Dave saying that he was fine with anything I was comfortable doing seemed like a cop out. So, if I wanted to set up a gangbang my husband would be perfectly fine with that? I was afraid he would be. I know it defies logic, given everything I've done, but I wanted Dave to put limits on me. I wanted him to say, "No, that's too far." How did he really feel about me if he was willing to let me do anything with anyone—anyone but Carlos, of course. He told me nothing had changed. He told me he still saw me as his loving wife, but I was not sure I believed it. I knew he loved me, but I guess I just could not fully understand how he could let me go my own way with other men.

Jana thought I should be thrilled, of course. We were out for drinks when I told her about my mental struggle.

"I keep telling you, I bet more women would be happy with your arrangement than would admit to it. How many middle-aged guys have let themselves go, or can't get it up anymore? I bet a lot of those women would love to get out and find some young stud," she said.

"You don't think I should feel devalued?"

"Dave is a good man. If he says he still loves you, he still wants you, I'd believe it. I don't buy the bullshit that this is all about your pleasure, but if he needs to tell himself that, it's fine."

Jana and I had had versions of the same conversation several times since I'd confessed my secret life to her. She was endlessly fascinated. She was also thrilled that my break was finally over.

“Not that it was a real break,” she said before draining her martini. “You were right about Dave, though. He really didn’t care. He just wants you to get back out there.”

“I still think I should ease back into it,” I insisted.

We were out for a girls’ night, which was Jana’s idea of my easing back into dating. I told her I didn’t know if I was ready for this level of engagement yet, but she worked on me until she wore me down. Dave enthusiastically embraced the idea, even if he was worried about Jana’s involvement. I could tell he was not comfortable with her knowing our secret. I made sure to pick Jana up at her house to keep her away from my husband until he got used to the idea. I didn’t think she would really do anything to embarrass him, but you never know.

Neil’s eyes just about popped out of his head when he answered the door. He had seen me dressed up in the past, but not quite like that. My dress was a snug little faux leather thing that ended well above my knees. It was long sleeved and not really low-cut, but it had mesh panels that left my belly exposed and much of my chest, essentially making it a very low-cut dress. The back was mesh down to my waist, with a shiny zipper that went all the way down my spine. My fishnet thigh highs were the kind to stand on their own, as a garter belt under the dress would have been too obvious. My spiked black heels made it easy to lean in and kiss Neil on the cheek, after I let him drink me in.

“Where are you two going dressed like that?” Neil asked, after hugging me for a moment longer than usual.

“I don’t know. Jana picked the place and pretty much told me what to wear. This isn’t my typical Saturday night out,” I stressed.

“I see.” I could feel his eyes on my butt as I walked past him into the house. Neil was a good guy, which made me feel bad about Jana’s extracurricular activities. I’d caught Neil looking at me in bikinis by the pool before, but that was normal behavior, and I didn’t hold it against him. I didn’t hold this against him, either. It was a shock.

“I just hope she doesn’t try to get me in trouble tonight,” I said with a wink.

“Just make sure to call a cab or Uber if you have too much to drink.”

Jana made her entrance then. Her tight red sheath was off-the-shoulder and predictably low-cut, showing off those boobs Neil had paid so much for on her 40th birthday a couple of years ago. It showed off all the work she put into her amazing body, but it was a little longer than mine, coming closer to her knees. Jana is already tall, so her platform heels made her tower over Neil. No stockings for Jana. She loved to show off her year-round tan. Her blonde hair was down past her shoulders and her make-up was applied more heavily than I ever wore mine. Jana was definitely a woman looking for fun. No one would be mistaking her for a mom from the suburbs. I had to wonder what Neil thought seeing her going out dressed like that. I know he is not as into showing off his wife as my husband.

“Don’t worry, dear,” Jana said. Her kiss left a smear of lipstick on Neil’s lips. “I’m sure we’ll find someone willing to help us find our way home.”

“Haha, very funny. You two be careful out there. You’re asking for trouble going out like that,” Neil said.

I pouted and leaned against him. I swear I saw sweat bead on his upper lip. “You know I’m a good girl, Neil. I never find trouble.”

“Then keep that one in check,” he replied.

“Honey, you know I just like to have fun. I always come home. You’re the only man for me,” Jana said. I tried not to roll my eyes.

And that was how we ended up in Callahan’s, a nice Irish pub-type bar downtown. It had the subdued lighting and dark wood you would expect, but I liked that it had an authentic feel, instead of feeling like a cheap knock-off. It seemed a little slow for a Saturday night after nine, and I felt we were overdressed for the place, but Jana insisted on coming here first. She said we could hit somewhere else if we didn’t like it.

We were seated at the bar, but a bit turned to the side to face each other. It made it easier for passing men to check us out, and I’d noticed a few had, though no one interesting. Jana looked at me and said, “What’s to ease into? Isn’t this sort of like riding a bike?”

“What do you think? I would just go to some bar, pick a guy, and go somewhere with him?”

“Basically, yes. You’re a hot woman. It’s not like you would have trouble picking up men. Especially not if you dressed like this.”

I laughed. “First of all, I was usually subtler than this.” But not always, I reminded myself. “And second of all, it’s more complicated than that. Yes, I could probably drag someone from a bar and screw them, but I’m never looking to sleep with just anyone. I need to find a guy I’m interested in, and I have to have a good feeling about him. A few guys have turned out to be creeps.”

“So, it’s just like regular dating.” It was Jana’s turn to laugh.

“Something like that.”

Jana flagged down our bartender, who was a pretty, slender brunette in her early 20s, and ordered us another round. I noticed that Jana was looking around the bar, like she was looking for something—or someone—specific.

“What are you looking for tonight?” I asked. As far as I knew, Jana was not a serial cheater. She just met up with her hunky personal trainer, AJ, when she had an itch that needed to be scratched.

“Just looking for fun.”

“I don’t want to be indelicate, but you’re not...” I tried to think of a diplomatic way to put it, “...in my position. I thought you just limited your playtime to every once in a while, and one playmate.”

Jana did not say anything but kept looking toward the doors that led into the back of the bar. The girl brought our drinks, and I sipped mine. The gin and tonic was much stronger than the first one had been. Jana paid the girl, including a very healthy tip.

“Is AJ not on tonight?” Jana asked.

The bartender gave Jana a knowing smile. “No, he’s off tonight. He hasn’t been picking up as many shifts lately. He’s very busy. But I could say you were looking for him when I see him.”

“No, that’s okay.” Jana barely hid her disappointment.

I shook my head and smiled softly. “So, what was your plan? I meet some guy and go off, and you drag AJ out of here?”

“Who said I was going to drag him out of here?” Jana smiled slyly. “He could have taken me into the storeroom and bend me over a stack of boxes. I’m not picky. I even skipped the panties to make it easier.”

I stared at her. “You’re not wearing panties?”

“You are? I didn’t think it was possible under that dress.”

“It’s a very light thong. What kind of girl do you think I am?”

“I thought we’d established that.”

“I’ve been out without underwear, but it generally isn’t my idea.”

“And how often do you cone home without it?”

I wasn’t too far gone to blush. “I plead the fifth.”

“I think your panties will stay on if we hang around here. Since AJ is not in, how about we go somewhere more happening?”

“I never said I was trying to get out of my panties,” I protested.

“Whatever. Finish your drink so we can get out of here.”

Finishing the second, stronger gin and tonic so quickly left me feeling giggly and a bit wobbly on my feet, so Jana drove my Prius to the next bar. She always made fun of me for driving it, but she couldn't help complimenting me on it while behind the wheel.

The second place we hit was called the Starlight Lounge. It was a different kind of place than Callahan's, even though they were owned by the same people, Jana told me. The furnishings were modern, with a lot of shiny metal, and the lighting was multi-colored and subdued. The Lucite bar top was colorfully lit from beneath, with the colors slowly fading from one into another. There was a DJ in the corner, but not a real dance floor, and the music was not so loud as to prevent conversation. That was probably intentional, because I got the strong feeling that the Starlight Lounge was a pick-up joint. It seemed like a good place to meet men, but I was nervous. When I went to bars to meet men, I tried to keep to out-of-the-way places, though I did not think it was very likely we would run into anyone we knew here. Most of the well-dressed people seemed to be a few years younger than I was. And Jana was very much a cougar in that crowd.

We found a couple of empty stools at the bar. They were high and I hooked my heel in the footrest when I crossed my legs. Tugging at the pleather dress protected my dignity, but still left my stocking tops exposed. Tall Jana was all legs on that stool. A pretty Eastern Asian girl was behind the bar and introduced herself as Nadia. I asked for another gin and tonic. The ride over had allowed me to sober up a little.

"This place is more like it," Jana said. "The t-shirt and baseball cap crowd isn't quite my scene."

"Don't sell them short," I corrected her. Some of the hottest guys I'd met, including Zach, I met in more downscale places.

I had to admit, it was a good-looking crowd. Just looking around the room I spied several guys I wouldn't have minded coming over to buy me a drink. They were mostly younger, though, more Zach's age—young professionals—and that made me feel out of place. I began working on a story in my head to try and seem more interesting than just being a mom from the suburbs. I had not taken off my wedding rings, as I usually do when out on a Hot Date, Jana seemed perfectly happy wearing hers.

"I just like a nicely put together man," Jana said. "So do you just hang out at the bar and wait to get hit on, or do you get aggressive?"

“Hanging out at the bar usually works.” It felt like a brag, but it was true. I did not think we would have trouble drawing attention, especially dressed as we were. All of the women in the bar were dressed up, but Jana wore one of the sexier dresses I saw. I shrugged and added, “And if it doesn’t, I just try somewhere else, or I go home.”

“That must be disappointing.”

“Probably more for Dave. I never feel like I have to get a guy. If I really need to get laid, I have other options.”

“Like young Zach. You’ll have to introduce me sometime.”

I laughed, “Not a chance!”

We were on our second round when another bartender, this one handsome and around our age, came over and informed us, “Those gentlemen would like to buy your next round.” He started to place two upside-down shot glasses on the bar in front of us when he noticed our wedding rings. “If you’d rather I tell them you’re not interested...”

Jana looked across to where he gestured and said, “No, we’ll take them. Please tell them thank you.”

He gave us a knowing smile. I’m sure he thought we were just taking advantage for the free drinks. He couldn’t have known it could be about more. “I’m Max. If you ladies need anything—anything at all—please just let me know.”

I followed Jana’s eyeline and was surprised to see it was a group of three men who’d sent the drinks over. They were also rather handsome. The tallest was well over six feet tall and had a head of thick rich brown hair he wore slicked back so that it fell just past the collar of his expensive-looking blue chambray shirt and hounds tooth jacket. His goatee was neatly trimmed down, and he smiled when he caught me looking over. His friend to the right was only slightly shorter and wore all black. His head was shaved, and he looked to be mixed-race, with a mocha complexion and a handsome, crooked smile. The third man was shorter than the other two, but broad. I could tell he worked out by the way his white dress shirt stretched over his muscles. His hair was buzzed short, and he had dark, Mediterranean good looks. The three of them looked to be about thirty, about as young as I generally like to go—Zach being the exception to that rule.

“The one on the left is mine,” Jana said hungrily. I could have guessed that. He was the muscular one.

“You can have all three of them.” I tried to sound casual, even though I had that excited buzz I felt when I was about to have a new adventure. It felt weird to even be considering doing anything with my friend there.

“Mmm, now there’s a thought.”

Jana raised her martini glass to the gentlemen and drained it. They rightly took it as a signal to come over and join us. I couldn’t believe the butterflies in my stomach. It felt like forever since I’d done something like this. My last few dates had come off of the internet. It had been months since I picked up a guy in a bar. I reflexively looked across the room for Dave, but of course he wasn’t there. I liked having my husband there when I met men in bars. Dave was a great security blanket, and I always got an extra thrill from flirting in front of him, knowing how much he was getting off on it.

“Ladies,” the tall one said. “I’m Rick. This is Tony and Marcus.” Tony was Mr. Muscles, Marcus was the tasty, dark one.

“Jana,” she said, and before I could jump in, she said, “This is my friend Dana.”

“Hi,” I said sheepishly. I felt naked without an alias.

“Jana,” Rick said, drawing out the first short a in her name. Our names were spelled similarly but pronounced completely differently. “That’s an unusual name.”

“I’m an unusual woman. Conventional is boring, isn’t it?”

“Yes, it is,” Rick agreed. If Jana had been standing, she would have been taller than him in her heels, but neither of them seemed to care.

Marcus took note of our wedding rings, but I could not judge his reaction. Was he disappointed, or did he see a challenge? “Are you gals alone tonight?”

“Yes, we got our free pass for the night. We need to be let off the leash occasionally. I know I’d get stir crazy if I wasn’t,” Jana said.

“Leashes, huh? Now that sounds like it could be fun,” Rick said, piercing me with deep green eyes. His confidence gave me the chills, leaving little doubt he had ideas about what to do with a woman on a leash. Carlos was a dominant lover, but he’d never restrained me. The thought of it was hot and I subtly squeezed my thighs tighter together.

“A girl deserves a night out on her own occasionally, doesn’t she?” I asked, changing the subject from leashes.

“Absolutely.” Marcus agreed. “I’d take you out every night if you wanted.”

“Life gets in the way of that,” I replied, showing off my rings as I finished my drink.

“But you’re out for fun tonight, right?” Tony asked, his eyes trailing up from Jana’s legs.

“We are always out for fun, Tony,” Jana said. “You might not guess it, but Dana here is more fun than most can handle.”

I blushed while Marcus took in the cleavage that was barely obscured by the smoky mesh of my dress. “Jana likes to exaggerate. I’m really just a normal woman.”

“I would not say that, girl,” Marcus said, openly appraising me.

I realized my heart was beating faster as I fell into that flirty groove. Marcus’s interest was fuel to my fire, and I was glad when he moved closer to my chair. Tony already had his hand on Jana’s bare back above her dress. I wondered how these guys were doing the math. Three of them—two of us. Tony’s interest in Jana was apparent, and Marcus seemed to be making his claim on me. Was Rick going to be the odd man out?

Max the bartender chose that moment to make his return. “Are you ladies okay?” he asked.

Jana smiled and said, “Oh, we’re good.”

“I could use a refill, please,” I added. I was approaching tipsy again and was ready to let some inhibitions go.

Max paused for a second, looking from Jana to me. He probably came over to see if the married women needed to be rescued from the horny guys, but now he was realizing we did not need rescuing. I thought he would be judging us, but that was not the impression I got from his expression. Max had a sly smile, like he approved—maybe more than that. Maybe this was the kind of place that married women came to looking for action. I noticed he was wearing a wedding ring himself and wondered how he would feel if his wife was off somewhere flirting with handsome men.

“You guys need anything?” Max finally asked.

“I’ll take a fresh Glenlivet,” Rick said. “Guys?” The other two also wanted fresh drinks.

When Max had assembled our drinks on the bar in front of us, Rick said to put them on his tab and suggested that we move over to one of the tables. That made sense as the guys were forced to stand behind us. I hopped down from the stool as ladylike as possible, and Marcus looked disappointed my stocking tops were out of view. Jana was not as careful, and I think Tony may have got a flash of snatch.

A long, high padded bench lined one wall, with tables spaced along it, and high chairs on the opposite side of the tables. The bar was crowded, but we were able to find a space to accommodate us all. The height of the bench required me to step up onto a narrow platform to sit. After a handful of drinks, it was a challenge in my heels, but Rick offered a hand, and then sat beside me. Marcus sat to my right. Rather than sit across from us, Jana and Tony sat on the other side of Rick. I felt cut off and suddenly vulnerable. Jana was my wingman, but she was out of reach on the other side of Rick.

“Where are you two from?” Rick asked.

“Not around here,” I answered vaguely.

“We’re in the ‘burbs north of the city,” Jana added. That didn’t exactly narrow it down, but I didn’t like her making it any more specific. “You guys?”

“I’ve got a condo here downtown, not too far away,” Rick said, the implications obvious.

“I’m not that far away, either” Marcus added.

“I’m on the other side of the city,” Tony said. I had trouble hearing him now that he was so far away. The music was louder in this part of the bar, forcing us closer to talk.

“Is it your own place?” Jana asked.

“I have a housemate,” Tony replied. “But he’s hardly ever there. He’s mostly at his girlfriend’s.”

“That must be nice for you,” she said.

“What do you guys do?” I asked.

“We’re financial planners. We work together,” Marcus said. “Our offices are just a few blocks from here in the Caldwell Building.”

I knew that building, Dave’s guys had done some rehab work in it. It was a beautiful art deco building from the 1920s. “I’ve heard the views are gorgeous,” I said.

“We’re on the 27th floor. It looks amazing at night. You can see the whole city sparkling. You should see it,” Rick said.

“I have to admit, his office has the best view,” Marcus conceded, adding, “but it’s also in the middle of the office. I liked being tucked away on the side. It gives me more privacy.”

“How about you?” Jana asked Tony. “Do you have a corner office? Something nice and big?”

“I’ve never had any complaints,” he replied.

I leaned forward to hear him and saw that Tony had his arm on the back of the bench and he was rubbing Jana’s bare shoulder. Her hand rested on his thigh, well above his knee. Subtle, she was not. Tony seemed like the kind of guy who appreciated that. And then I noticed her other hand brushed Rick’s leg. Was she hedging her bets, or did she really want both? I felt like I should pull her aside and warn her. She was used to a nice, tidy arrangement with her trainer. Going out and teasing men in a bar was something different. Jana could be biting off more than she could chew.

While I was leaning forward, I reached for my drink and it was cool going down my throat, relaxing me as it passed. I felt Marcus’s hand on my back, lightly touching me through the mesh. It felt good, but then I really got goosebumps when Rick touched me higher, teasing the back of my neck beneath my hair. I bit my lip and tried not to react.

Were these guys competing for me? That was a fun game, but I didn’t know how to choose. Last time I had been in this position, it was the night I met Zach and his roommate at the bar. I went home with them, but I thought it was clear my preference was Zach. Somehow, I’d ended up being with both of them that night. Threesomes were hot, but that would be jumping back into the deep end. It was not in the plans for the night. I didn’t know if anything was in my plans. I let the guys continue touching me, playing with the same fire I wanted to warn Jana about.

I sat back and Rick took his hand back. But Marcus twisted so he could look at me, with his arm on the back of the bench. He played with my hair. It was sweet and sexy.

“Is this your usual haunt? Do you guys always hang out here together?” I asked.

“I’d say we come here a lot. It’s a good place for...” Marcus said. He cut himself off, but I knew what he was going to say.

“Yeah, lots of single women here? I get it,” I said.

“Something like that,” Marcus said. “Sexy women here, not all single, though.”

I smiled. “You’re not looking for a girlfriend? Maybe you have one?”

Rick chimed in. “We’re pretty much single. We just come here to hang out. We just see where the night takes us.”

“It must be nice to have that kind of freedom,” I said.

While we talked, Jana fell off into her own little conversation with Tony, cut off from us. They were very close, and when I looked over, I saw that her hand had moved higher on his thigh. By the way it was massaging, I wondered if she was feeling more than thigh. I felt a pang of sorrow for Neil. I never approved of Jana’s shenanigans with her trainer, but I’d somehow always given her a pass on it. It seemed so clean. If she really went home with Tony, it would be different, and I felt guilty. Jana and Neil did not have an arrangement like Dave and me. I couldn’t help feeling that she would not be doing this if it weren’t for me.

Our flirty banter continued, and it really felt like Marcus and Rick were competing for me. It was flattering and I had difficulty choosing between them. On any other night, I would have been happy to meet either of them. It was an embarrassment of riches to have them both hitting on me. Marcus may have had the edge. He was better looking, and because of the way we were positioned, he kept touching my hair or my shoulder, and my hand kept coming to rest on his knee. But Rick was serious competition. While not as naturally handsome, he just exuded a confidence that he was going to have me, and that if he did it was going to be quite a ride. It’s funny but combined the two guys reminded me very much of Carlos, except I sensed Rick was not as reckless.

While we were talking, I noticed the bartender, Max, was keeping an eye on us. I didn’t get the feeling he was looking to potentially save us anymore, but rather he was interested to see what would happen. And his interest seemed more than casual. It felt like he was eagerly watching, like Max liked the idea that Jana and I might end up going home with these guys. I was embarrassed because it felt like I’d been unmasked, but it was also exciting, like he was watching in the way my husband would if he were there. I caught his eye and gave him a wink. His smile said it all, and again I couldn’t help wondering what his own wife might be up to.

The boys kept the drinks flowing, but I purposely slowed down as to keep my head about me. That is not to say I was sober. I was just cheerily buzzed. I realized I was leaning heavily against Rick as I was turned more toward Marcus, and the heat of his body filled my brain with naughty ideas. I sensed the evening was moving to that tipping point where something is going to happen, or it is not. If we were one-on-one, I would expect to be asked to leave with the man, but what was going to happen here? It did not seem that either Marcus or Rick was ready to bow out.

“This place is getting kind of dead,” Rick said, taking the lead.

“It must be late,” I replied. I had lost all sense of time.

“It is,” Marcus said. “We should get out of here.”

Did we mean me and him?

“Why don’t we go to the office, and you can see that view? I know someone who has a bottle of rye in their desk,” Rick suggested.

“I don’t know. It’s pretty late,” I stalled. I felt like this was when I had to make my choice.

“That sounds like a great idea,” Marcus agreed. “Unless you’re expected at home.”

I did not take the bait. I didn’t want to. “Eventually,” was my reply. “But won’t you guys get in trouble?”

“We all have key cards. We’re encouraged to work late,” Rick said.

I twisted to look past Rick to see what Jana thought, but she hadn’t heard a word of it. She was too busy putting her tongue down Tony’s throat. His hand was up her skirt, and her thighs were open for him. I reached over Rick—his breath on my neck felt good—and grabbed at my friend. I had to shake her to get her attention.

“Let’s go to the ladies’ room,” I said.

Jana looked a little dazed but nodded.

“Excuse us, boys,” I said. Rick offered a hand to help me down from the bench.

Once we were alone, Jana was grinning like the Cheshire cat. I wanted to ask if she was ready to go, but I didn’t have to. I could see leaving Tony was the last thing on her mind.

“Looks like you were having fun,” I said.

“Tony’s a nice guy,” she said. “Have you picked one yet?”

“They are both very nice,” I admitted with a smile.

“Maybe you don’t have to pick. I’m jealous.”

“Very funny. Listen, Rick and Marcus want to get out of here.”

“All of us?”

“I think so. They said something about going to their office to see the view of the city.”

Jana laughed. “I’m sure that’s all they want to show you.”

“That’s not the point. What do you want to do? Should we play this out, or just go home?”

“You don’t really want to go home, do you?” Jana sounded amazed by the very idea.

I had to admit the truth, “Not really. But going somewhere private with them—things could get out of control very quickly.”

“That’s what I’m hoping for!”

“I’m serious. It can get ugly if this doesn’t go where they think it should.”

“Are you asking if I want to fuck Tony? Do you want to fuck those guys?”

“It’s been a while. I don’t know what I really want. I just know I don’t want to go home yet. But I just wanted to make sure you really want this.”

Jana answered me by snapping open her clutch and extracting a couple of condoms. “Does that answer your question?”

“You really are bad.”

“You should talk!”

“Okay. Let me freshen up.”

I splashed some water on my face and took a moment to think about what I really wanted. Flirting with the guys had me crazy horny, but I was still on the fence about sleeping with either of them. After having taken the break from dating, it felt like I was back at square one. It had taken several months of dating in the beginning before I was ready to fuck another man. All I had promised my husband was that we would go out and see what happened. I didn’t have much trouble getting picked up and was easily carried away by the excitement. I was blowing men in rest rooms before I knew it, but I still had a mental hurdle to get over to have sex with them. And even though I was just in bed with Zach a couple of weeks ago, I was still scared of taking a new lover. Going down this road led to some dark places before. How could I know that wouldn’t happen again? Did I have the self-control? Maybe tonight was about testing that. I shot Dave a text.

-Some guys want to show us their view

While I waited for a reply, I freshened my make-up. Jana was impatiently standing in the corner. She just wanted to get back to Tony. Dave must have been waiting by his phone, because he rapidly replied.

-Guys? Sounds like fun. Be careful and enjoy yourself

Dave had no doubts. He knew exactly what he wanted. Everyone seemed to but me. I felt silly. I texted him the location of the guys' office, just to be safe, and asked Jana if she was ready.

It was funny, but the guys looked surprised when we came back. They probably thought we were two married women out looking for a little fun, but not too much fun and I dragged Jana away to get out of there when I got cold feet. It probably would not be the first time they had encountered that. I have found that it is a certain type of man who goes after married women, and that type is a repeat offender.

CHAPTER

Six

“Are you boys ready to get out of here?” I asked.
“Funny you should ask. I just settled the check,” Rick said.
“Lead the way,” I replied.

Rick and Marcus alternated guiding me out of the bar, each with a hand on my back or shoulder as I moved. Jana huddled close to Tony. I saw Max one more time as we left, and I definitely knew that look in his eyes. I bet bringing Dave to the Starlight Lounge one night would be very interesting.

The night had turned cold, and my coat was in the car. My nipples jutted through both my strapless bra and the thin faux leather, drawing approving glances from the guys. We told the boys we would follow them, but they thought at least one should ride with us in case we got separated. The plan was complicated by the presence of booster seats in the back of my Prius, but Jana enthusiastically agreed to ride with Tony, while Rick rode with me. Marcus did not look happy to be the odd man out but took it with a grace that only made me want him more.

I settled into the car with Rick and as soon as he started giving me directions, I knew he was taking me the long way. I was glad I had slowed down with the drinking since I was driving. I followed Rick’s directions, even though I had a good idea where their building was.

“So, is this something you and Jana do often?” he asked. Rick’s hand rested on the console between us, and I could see he was moving it closer to me. When I did not take the bait, he added, “Go out for drinks, I mean. Do the girls’ night?”

I turned and gave him a crooked smile, but then my eyes were back on the road.

“Are you asking if we go out all the time without our husbands?”

“I suppose I am.”

“Only when we get in the mood. Like I said earlier, a night away is nice. It’s good to have time to remember what it’s like being your own person.”

“Not someone’s wife? Mother?”

“Exactly. I think you’ve done this before,” I teased.

“What is that, Dana?”

“Bought drinks for married women.”

“Perhaps. Not all married women are created equal. They need to have something special to be worth it. There, take that left up there.”

I followed the directions. “So, I’m something special?”

“Come on, now. Let’s not pretend you don’t know exactly how hot you look in that dress. A woman only wears a dress like that for one reason.”

I gave a little giggle. “And what is that, Rick.”

“Well, if she’s married, it’s because she’s looking for trouble. Are you looking for trouble, Dana?”

“I don’t know that I’m looking for anything. I like to just see what the night brings me.”

“Did your husband see you leave like that? He must be very understanding. I think I may be too jealous to let you leave like that. I might have to rip the dress right off of you.”

The visual made me shiver. “My husband is very laid back. He knows I’m coming home. He has nothing to worry about.”

Rick led me around to the side of the building and then passed me a keycard to trigger a garage door. I drove down the ramp and he directed me into a parking space. I unbuckled my seatbelt and turned to grab my little purse when Rick kissed me. I melted right into it, flicking my tongue back at his. He was not the best kisser I’d tasted, but what he lacked in finesse he made up for in power. His goatee was surprisingly soft against my cheek. It was not a toe-curling kiss, but I was pretty horny by then, so it didn’t matter. I leaned across the console and let the kiss linger for a minute or two before withdrawing.

“The others are going to think we got lost,” I said, licking my lips.

Rick pulled me close to him on the elevator and rested his hand on my ass, but he didn’t try to kiss me again. It was not a long ride anyway. The elevator doors opened onto his offices, which took up the entire floor. The firm’s name was on the wall in large, but tasteful, gold letters. He used a second keycard and the glass doors clicked. He held one and I entered. The middle of the office was divided into cubicles, but with expensive-looking dark wood dividers, not that cheap cloth and steel stuff. It really did make them look like little offices. The bigwigs had the offices that lined the outside walls, and there was a big conference room behind the huge reception desk. Floor to ceiling frosted glass walls separated it from the rest of the office. Rick led me right to the conference room, and I wondered how many times he'd pulled this move.

I was not surprised to find Marcus waiting for us in the conference room, but Jana and Tony were nowhere to be found. Marcus explained Tony was giving her the grand tour. Rick said he was going to find that bottle he'd mentioned and that he'd be right back. I walked around the large table that dominated the center of the room. It was so shiny I could see my reflection. Marcus had not turned on the lights but left the city to illuminate the room for us. I wondered if that would be enough light as I set my purse down on the big table and took out my secret video camera. I switched it on and set it down, pointed roughly in the direction of the window. That was likely where someone would make a move.

The view was amazing. The outer wall of the conference room was mostly a giant semicircle, taller than I am, that looked out onto the city. With all of the nighttime lights on it was beautiful. As I stood by the glass admiring that amazing view, I sensed Marcus moving close to me. When I turned, he pulled me into his arms and kissed me.

It would be nice to say that being kissed by two different men in less than ten minutes was new to me, but of course it was not. Still, it's not something I had gotten used to. It made me feel like a slut, and it was so exciting it made me swoon. It helped that Marcus was an amazing kisser. He knew how to start soft and teasing, using his full lips to his advantage and draw me in before turning it on full-blast and giving me goosebumps everywhere. It was the kind of kiss that had me moaning into it. My body molded to his and his hand on my butt felt like the most natural thing in the world. Marcus could have undressed me with that kiss, but alas, we were not alone. I heard the click of the glass door opening and pulled away from Marcus, unexpectedly embarrassed. It was not that I owed Rick anything, but I still felt like I was being caught.

"Don't get started without me," Rick said, all smiles.

Why didn't it bother him to see me kissing Marcus? Did these guys share women regularly? My mind went right back to that last night with Carlos, when I was passed between him and his friend, Javier. The way they moved me and used me, I knew they were experienced at sharing women. I shivered—half fright, half excitement—thinking of the night. This night would not go like that one, I promised myself.

"Dana was just enjoying the view," Marcus said, winking.

Rick placed three crystal glasses on the table and poured a measure of amber liquid into each. We held the glasses aloft and clinked them together.

"To getting off the leash," Marcus said.

"To nights of freedom and new friends," Rick added.

"I'll drink to all of that," I said.

The liquor warmed my chest going down, but it burned my stomach. It must have been strong, because it immediately left a heady feeling in its wake. I was giddy from being buzzed so fast and gave the boys a silly smile.

"So how many women have you shared this view with?" I asked.

"Together? None. And I live very close, so I don't generally bring women here. My bed is much more comfortable than anything in this office," Rick said. He poured out another measure of booze for the three of us. Against my better judgment, I downed it. I could feel the heat in my face and hoped I was not too red.

I looked to Marcus.

"Honestly? My office has seen some action, but you don't seem like the kind of woman who would be offended by that. I've always wanted to christen this big table, though, and that hasn't happened."

Tension crept into the moment. We were all waiting to see what would happen next.

"You guys are refreshingly honest. So, what do you think is going to happen here tonight?"

The guys looked at each other and it was obvious they had not thought that through. Neither of them expected the other to still be around at this point. They both turned and looked at me.

"I guess it all depends on what you want to happen here," Rick said. "It's not really up to us, is it?"

"It's not fair for you boys to make me choose."

"Then what do you want, Dana?"

“I’ll tell you what—I am not going to let both of you fuck me. But that doesn’t mean we can’t have some fun.”

I was standing between the men, and I turned to Rick and pulled his lips to mine with a hand behind his neck. He was so tall and had to crane low to kiss me. He cupped my face with one hand and the other rested on my hip. His kiss was hungry and demanding, like in the car, and I closed my eyes and gave into the power of it.

Marcus moved in behind me and swept my hair to the side so he could nibble on the side of my neck. I gasped into Rick’s kiss and shivered. That was an easy trigger for me, especially when I was so horny. Alone, Marcus would have been on his way to taking me to bed, but we weren’t alone, and I had decided I was not having a full-blown threesome tonight—just some fun, like I promised the guys.

I reached back and found Marcus had a nice, tight butt. I pulled at it, and he pressed fully into my back. It was hot to be pressed between the two men. Being trapped between their two strong bodies had my heart pounding. It was tough to admit, but I really am a girl who loves a good threesome. There’s just something about all those hands touching you, two mouths kissing you, all that attention, that just drives me wild. It feels so wrong, but it feels so good. If these guys really wanted to fuck me, I didn’t know if I would be able to resist. It was my first date since our break, and I was already out of control.

Marcus pushed his hands around my body and Rick moved back, like he’d get burned if Marcus touched him. Marcus mashed my big breasts in both hands. I rubbed my ass back into him to show my appreciation. He was only briefly satisfied with touching me through my dress. He grabbed the zipper at the back of my neck and drew it down. Rick pulled the dress from my shoulders and peeled it from my chest. My black strapless bra created wonderful cleavage and Rick took a moment to admire it before he thumbed open the front clasp of my bra. Untethered, my bra dropped to the floor.

Rick took over my tits now that they were exposed. He dropped to one knee and lifted them in his hands. I shuddered and moaned when his thumbs flicked across my hard, throbbing nipples. He liked that and gave them a little pinch. My moan that time was louder, and I pressed my breasts into his hands. Rick closed in and his mouth felt wonderful on my firm, fleshy mounds. I held his head, and when his tongue attacked my nipples, I dug my nails into his scalp. The pulses of pleasure shot right to my pussy.

Marcus had moved slightly to the side, and he twisted my head to kiss me. It was an awkward angle, but that didn't matter. I kissed him like I hadn't had a lover in years. I was so eager for him. My pussy hadn't been touched yet, but it was drenched. Marcus would take care of that, but first he took my hand and put it on his dick, which he had taken out. I had gotten familiar with the male anatomy over the past year, so I can say with authority that Marcus had an impressive cock. As I stroked it, I guessed it jutted out over eight inches and its girth comfortably filled my hand. Feeling his impressive cock, I knew my vow not to fuck both of them had just become weaker.

My dress was hiked up by Marcus and he pushed a hand between my legs from behind. He felt my soaked thong was plastered to my smooth, shaved mound. He pulled it aside and caressed my swollen lips.

"Oh god," I whimpered, between nearly constant moans.

"You're loving every second of this," Marcus whispered to me.

"Yes," I gasped, right as his fingers found my clit.

"You sure you don't want to fuck both of us?"

"God don't tempt me," I moaned. I think Rick was too distracted by my tits to hear us.

As I expected, they sat me on the edge of that giant conference room table, and I had a moment to catch my breath as Rick shed his jacket and dropped his pants and boxers. His cock was not quite in Marcus's league—maybe a couple of inches smaller—but it had a pleasant upward curve that I knew would feel perfect inside me. I forced myself to stop thinking like that.

I threw a quick look over my shoulder and moved just enough to give the camera a better view. The guys were just looking at me and their expressions of lust made me melt. The dress was gathered around my tummy, leaving me exposed to them. I could tell that Marcus really loved my tits, while Rick stared between my legs. They both looked like they wanted to devour me.

"Come here, boys," I told them.

When they came closer, I took a cock in each hand and stroked them. Jerking off two guys at once really gives you an appreciation of how different men can be. Guys would probably assume I was taken by Marcus because of his size—and it was an impressive cock—but I loved the smoothness of Rick’s shaft, and the helmet had a perfect flare. But one thing I never did was compare other men to my husband. He will always be in a class all his own, and no man can compete with him.

I sensed tension between the guys. They probably were not used to being so close to another man while nude like that—certainly not while turned on. I looked back and forth at them as I played with their pricks. However weird they felt about the situation, it didn’t affect either of their hard-ons. Both were solid in my hands and ready for more.

The guys relaxed and started touching me. They each took one of my breasts and massaged it. Marcus was just a bit rougher, drawing my nipple out until there was a sharp rush of pain, but I liked it. Rick surprised me by caressing me more like a lover, watching my face to see my reactions as he touched me. My soft moans told him how much I liked the attention.

I bent deep at the waist and turned to my right to take Rick in my mouth. I licked and kissed the head to tease him before taking him deeper. He shook and then moaned as I took more and more of him. I continued to stroke his base while my cheeks hollowed from my powerful suction. I would have loved to have seen his expression, but I was bent too low to look up, so I just closed my eyes and focused on the cock in my mouth. My other hand wanked Marcus like it was on autopilot. I’ve become very good at managing two cocks at once.

“That’s so fucking good, Dana,” Rick gasped, as I took him deeper. His head was pressed to the back of my throat, and I’d swallowed nearly all of him. A dirty thrill shot through me when I heard him moan my name. It was a new experience for me, since I usually used an alias. I don’t know why, but it made me feel like such a slut. I loved it!

I moaned and licked my lips as I let him slide out of my mouth with a wet sound. It was Marcus’s turn. My saliva left Rick’s shaft nice and easy to play with when I turned away.

“Yeah, baby, that’s it,” Marcus groaned.

His fat, dark head stretched my lips, and my tongue found a heavy droplet of precum. Marcus played with my hair, but there was also a subtle pressure on the back of my head to go deeper. I opened my mouth wide and took more and more. His delicious girth stretched my lips wide, and I was near the breaking point. He seemed even thicker in my mouth than he had in my hand. And he was not subtle about getting what he wanted. The pressure on the back of my head kept up, forcing me to take more and more of him. Marcus pushed that fat head into my throat, and I forced myself to relax and take all of him, but I was afraid I wasn't going to be able to breathe.

"Damn that's good, girl. Suck it all, Dana," Marcus cooed as he fed me his cock.

I did not suck it all, but I did get most of him in my mouth before I used my hand as a natural stopgap. He was shaved smooth, something I've learned to like from another lover, but I think my nose would have been in his pubes if he wasn't. Marcus finally eased up, and as he pulled back, I took a huge breath through my nose—right before he was pushing in again. Marcus seemed to really get off on feeding me his cock and I took it like the good little slut I am, but I was surprised. I would have expected that from Rick. Rick, who's prick seemed to get hotter as I stroked it.

Marcus finally allowed me to let his cock go, and strings of saliva stretched back to my lips as I turned and sucked Rick again. I went back and forth, switching between the guys as much as I could, but insistent Marcus monopolized more of the time, fucking my mouth. The boys let me go back and forth and have my fun for a while, but then they took over again.

Rick pushed me back, so that I was laying on the table. I was about to reiterate that I was not going to fuck the two of them when he sat in one of the chairs and wheeled in between my open thighs. He tugged at my thong, and I lifted my legs in the air so he could pull it up past my heels. I felt pretty sexy laying back on the conference room table with my heels in the air and mostly undressed. Rick didn't wait to lean in and kiss my pussy. I gasped and rested my legs over his shoulders.

I leaned back onto my elbows so I could look down and watch Rick as he went down on me. Usually, you can tell how good a guy will be at going down based on the way he kisses, but that was not the case with Rick. He was only an okay kisser, but when his tongue started dancing on my clit, I wanted to scream. He knew exactly how to lick me and touch me there. His fingers kept me spread open, and his other hand was under my squirming ass, trying to hold me in place.

"Oh god! Ohgodohgodohgod!" I cried, hanging my head back to moan at the ceiling.

Rick doubled down, sucking on my juicy clit as he licked. We could all hear how wet I was as he worked me over. I had been horny ever since the men approached us, so it was easy for Rick to get me off quickly. The first ripples of my orgasm raced through me, followed by a tidal wave of pleasure and I locked my thighs around Rick's head as he kept licking me. He sucked up all of my sweet juice and just kept going.

"Yes! Yes! Yes! God yes!" I wailed.

Marcus watched me coming in wonder, but a strong man like that doesn't just want to watch. He wanted his own a piece of me and he was ready to take it. Even as my climax subsided, he grabbed me and twisted me around. Rick looked annoyed at having to stop what he was doing, but he was understanding of his friend's need and went along.

"You said you weren't going to fuck both of us, right? I'm cool with that, Dana. I just want to come all over that pretty face of yours. Is that okay?" Marcus leaned in close to my face.

Having just climaxed, I was not thinking clearly. I nodded.

"And then Rick can fuck you. You definitely look like you need to be fucked, Dana.

Again, I did not think. Rick was rubbing my pussy and I just wanted to come again. I just reacted. I nodded.

"You sure, man?" Rick asked.

"You earned it, buddy," Marcus said.

I found my voice. "There are condoms in my purse."

Marcus half-carried, half-slid me to the other side of the table and rolled me onto my side. I obediently opened my mouth so he could feed me his cock. He pushed my hair aside to see my face and held my head as he pushed deeper and deeper. It was only when he pushed to my throat and my eyes widened that he relented. He slowly, steadily fucked my mouth, trying to push deeper each time. Marcus was determined to make me take it all.

Rick rejoined us and I was rolled onto my back. My heels were high in the air once again and Rick rubbed his head up and down my slit. I pushed at him, but he still teased me until I started whimpering. He slowly slid it in, and it felt like the greatest thing ever.

Marcus went back to action with my head hanging back over the edge of the table. In this position, he could really use my mouth as he wanted. I took a deep breath and prepared for him with my mouth wide open. He stretched my lips as he pushed into my mouth. My throat was open at that angle, and as long as I breathed right and relaxed, he was able to fuck right past the back of my throat. He fed me inch after inch until—amazingly—I felt his balls on my forehead. I couldn't believe I swallowed the whole thing. My husband was going to go crazy when he saw this video.

Rick held my thighs and really started hammering into me. I was right. His cock felt perfect inside me, and it seemed to set off little explosions with each thrust—building to the big one. The room filled with the sounds of the boys using me—my cunt squishing around Rick's cock, the wet sound of Marcus thrusting into my throat. It was hard to stay relaxed when you're being used like that, and the harder Rick fucked me the more I loved it. And when I tried to moan, I gagged around the prick in my throat. Drool ran down my cheeks, but Marcus did not care. As long as I was not passing out, he was going to keep fucking my mouth.

"Holy shit!" Jana exclaimed.

I was just able to look over and see my friend and Tony standing by the door, watching the two men take me. I felt a sudden urge to push the men away and flee, but they were in control. They weren't going to stop until we all came, and god was I going to come. It kept expanding inside me and all I could think of was how badly I needed this. God, how I'd missed it.

"Damn, you dirty little slut. I love it!" Jana added.

"Yeah, she's taking that dick like she was born for it," Marcus grunted.

"You boys better be taking care of her," Jana said.

"Oh, Dana's having fun, believe me," Marcus said.

The state of Jana's dress suggested it had been pulled back on in a hurry. Tony must have taken her back to his office and fucked her. And now he was ready for round two. It excited me that seeing me being a whore got him hard again. Tony pushed Jana forward and she leaned on her elbows, bent over the other side of the table. Her dress was hiked up and she cried out when Tony shoved it into her from behind. They both kept watching me as they screwed. God, that was hot.

"Fuck me! Fuck me!" Jana cried. "Harder!"

I was glad I couldn't really see the two guys using my body. If I saw them looking over at Jana, I would have been jealous. I wanted all the attention for myself. Even when there had been another woman in the room before, with Carlos, it still felt like it was all about me. I think the three of them enjoyed corrupting me.

"Suck it, suck it," Marcus demanded. "Oh shit, Dana. Oh shit."

With no other warning, Marcus pulled out of my mouth and pumped his cock right above my face. It was so soaked with my spit that it dripped. I sucked in air, happy to finally be able to really breathe, when he blasted all over my face. Marcus shot across my cheeks and my nose, left a string over my lips, just missed my eyes, and even got a thick gob of cum in my hair. He kept pumping his shaft until he was sure it was drained. His load was huge, and it felt like it completely coated my face.

Rick pulled me closer to his edge of the table and pushed my legs back so he could lean over me. He pushed deeper, and I felt his balls slapping my thighs. He got so close, ignoring the cum on my face.

“You’re so fucking hot. I want you to come for me, baby. Can you come for me?”

“Yes...yes...make me come, baby,” I begged.

“I can’t believe how hot you are. Goddam. Too fucking hot,” Rick cooed.

“Oh god! Oh god!” His words just stoked the fire inside me.

On the other side of the table, Jana cried, “Fuck me! Gimme that big prick!” She sounded like she was just out of a porn movie, but that made sense as she was built like a porn goddess with her tight body and big, fake tits.

“I’m gonna come,” I moaned, in response to Rick’s words. I always thought it was silly to announce you were coming, but I knew he’d love it.

“Come on, baby. Come on my cock, Dana,” he encouraged. His face was red and sweat dripped from his forehead, but he didn’t miss a stroke.

“I want you to come. I want to feel it, baby. Please,” I begged. “Oh god! Yes! Yes!”

The climax thundered through me, and Rick kept thrusting. He seemed to push it higher, stronger with each thrust. It felt like an unending orgasm, but then he pulled out and I levelled out into bliss. He pulled off the condom and jerked his cock, finishing on my stomach. He must have thought that was what I meant by feeling it, but that was okay. It was the perfect ending to a perfectly slutty night. He did not have the load his friend did, but I still felt it splattering on my flat stomach.

I was finally able to really watch Jana and Tony. He had a fistful of her hair and jerked her head back as he slammed into her. Her body jerked with every thrust. There was a dreamy look in her eyes, and she smiled at me.

“Shit,” Tony grunted, drawing out the word.

He held his cock inside Jana, and I swear his eyes rolled up in his head. He was shooting his cum inside my friend. She kept her hips moving, wanting every last second of the experience, but had to stop when he went soft. She straightened up and pulled her dress down.

“That was great, baby,” she said, turning and kissing Tony’s cheek.

With the sex over, the room felt very awkward. I was still on my back on the table, a complete mess, and everyone else just stood around. No one knew what was supposed to happen next. As the only one with experience in this, I had to take charge. I pushed off the table and eased down to my feet. God, I was sore. Lying on that table had not been comfortable. I was going to cover myself, but then realized what a mess I was. I asked for directions to the ladies’ room. I looked around for my thong but could not find it in the dim light. I’ve lost more pairs of panties on these dates than I can count. It sucks, because I do not wear cheap lingerie. Half-naked, I took Jana’s hand and pulled her out of the room. It felt weird to be walking through that office with no clothes on, but I didn’t have any choice.

Cleaning up in the bathroom was not an easy task—and I was especially dirty. I had to work with soft soap and paper towels. Usually, I can retreat to a real bathroom to get cleaned up afterward. I did the best I could, running the water hot and wiping myself down.

“I can’t believe it. You really are a wild chick,” Jana marveled. She had less work to do. She just fixed her dress and then tried to get her hair back into place and re-do her makeup.

My face went crimson. I tried to imagine how I must have looked when Jana walked in with Tony—flat on my back with two men screwing me on a conference room table. It was quite the picture. I must have looked like something right out of a dirty movie. I couldn’t help feeling some shame. No one was meant to see me like that except for my husband, and my lovers, of course. I hoped my best friend would understand, but could anyone really understand that? Even Jana, with her little indiscretions, was not in my league.

“It’s not usually like that, I swear,” I said defensively.

“You don’t have to explain yourself to me, hon. I thought it was a blast. Crazy, but a blast.”

“Really, these nights don’t go like this. I might meet a guy I click with, and then we figure out someplace to go. It’s not being tag teamed in some office.”

Jana held both my arms. It felt strange for her to be so close when I was essentially nude. “Honey, I think you’re incredible. How many women—or men, for that matter—can just cut loose like that and enjoy themselves? It’s like, you get in the moment, and you just don’t give a fuck—you’re going to enjoy it. That’s incredible.”

“Thanks. I just don’t want you getting the impression that I’m looking to go out and get gangbanged every weekend. It’s not about that. I mean, that was really fun and everything, but it’s also overwhelming. It feels good, but I also feel like I’m just getting pushed and pulled around.”

“I could see that.” Jana laughed.

“But I need it to mean more than that. I want to play with the seduction. I want to give as good as I get, not just be used. Does that make sense?”

“I guess so. But I have to admit, that looked like a lot of fun. I’m jealous.”

I decided I was as clean as I was going to get and pulled my dress back into place. Jana zipped me. I fixed my makeup, and tried to brush my hair, but it was sticky with cum on one side. I was not going to be able to make myself completely presentable again. I finished with the little bottle of mouthwash from my purse.

“It looked like you were having plenty of fun,” I said.

“Tony was fun. He’s no AJ, but he was fun.”

“That’s no surprise. You make AJ sound like Superman. I may have to meet him one of these days.”

“If you do, hands off.”

“Scouts honor,” I swore.

We returned to the conference room to find Marcus wasn’t there. Rick and Tony were sharing a hushed conversation, which ended abruptly when we came into the room. At least they looked happy to see us.

“Marcus said to give you his regrets, but he had to take off,” Rick said.

“That’s too bad,” I replied. I understood what guys like Marcus were about. He’d gotten what he needed. It was okay, because so had I. “We really should call it a night, anyway.”

“Yes, we need to get home,” Jana said.

“Let us lock up. We’ll walk you out,” Tony said.

Rick came around the table and gave me a little hug. I went for a kiss, but I got his cheek. I guess he didn’t want to kiss me after seeing his friend's giant cock shoved down my throat. Guys are funny that way. But he did whisper in my ear.

"Maybe we can meet up again sometime. I can put my number in your phone."

I kissed his cheek again and said, "That's not a good idea. I'm sorry, but I'm sure you understand."

The guys walked us to the elevator, and we parted there. I think they were sad to see us go, for obvious reasons, but they both looked relieved. They had no idea what to do with us next. Jana exhaled a giant breath and laughed in the elevator.

"That was wickedly awesome! What a night!" Jana exclaimed.

"I guess you liked it."

"You are one lucky little wife."

"Dave is one of a kind, that's for sure. It's an interesting wrinkle in our marriage."

"I need to figure out how to get Neil on board."

I shook my head. "Do you think that's even possible? I mean, I think guys are either into this sort of thing or they're not. I don't know that you can convince Neil to get turned on by you being with other guys."

The elevator opened and we walked to my car.

"I'll think of something. I'm highly motivated. I want to do this again."

"I don't want to be mean, but you didn't mind sneaking around before."

"But that's so much more complicated. And besides, wouldn't it be better if Neil got something out of it? I'd rather be a sanctioned slut than a cheating wife."

"You have a point, but I don't know how you'll do it."

"I'll make it happen. We have to do this again soon!"

CHAPTER

Seven

It was past two in the morning when Dana came home, after dropping off Jana, and I knew right away from her appearance that she'd found some fun while they were out. Her hair was hastily brushed into place and her lipstick was worn away—even her eye makeup was smeared. There were fading red marks on her neck where some stranger had had his fun, and her fishnet stockings were wrecked. My wife had the look of a woman who had been very, very bad.

I could not have been more excited. I was wide awake after her teasing text. The anticipation of how Dana would look when she came home had me wired. As exciting as it was to see her outfit for the night, or watch her getting ready, it was far more exciting to see my wife stumble into the house after a night of sexual debauchery. She looked exhausted even as she smiled. I hoped this was not going to be one of those nights she was too tired or sore for me to reclaim her, because I was aching hard, and I had to have her.

Dana set her purse down on the end of the bed and reached back to find her zipper as she walked toward the bathroom. She was already barefoot. I set the laptop aside and hopped off the bed. I caught her before she reached the bathroom.

"Let me have a minute to pull myself together," she complained, trying to pull away from me.

"No. I want you right now. Just like this."

I usually do let Dana shower and relax before I pounce. And when she tells me she's too spent, I leave it to the next morning, but it had been so long since I'd seen her like that, I couldn't help myself. I had to have her.

Dana's resistance felt token. I suspect she was just as turned on as I was. I've learned through all this that my wife is like the Energizer Bunny of sex. It seems like the more she gets, the more she needs, and if she can she'd just keep going and going. Her sexual appetite had always been strong throughout our marriage, but I had no idea how far she could go until we began our hot dates. I kissed her hard and felt her weak resistance melt. The kiss was hot, made more so by the faint minty taste of mouthwash. I knew that meant she'd had her mouth full earlier.

I pulled her back to the bed and pushed her over the side. We have one of those high beds you need to literally climb into, so it caught my petite wife at just the right height to bend her over for fun. When I hiked up her tight little dress, I was pleased to find her panties missing. That told me everything I needed to know. Her lips were red and swollen. I knew the look of a freshly fucked pussy by now. She shook when I touched her and made little mewling sounds when I pushed my fingers inside her. Her thighs parted wider.

"You're really not done for the night, are you Dana?"

She quietly moaned my name, her hips already pushing back at my fingers.

My pajama pants dropped to the floor, and she really started moaning when I rubbed my head over her lips. Dana began moaning in earnest. I imagined her like this earlier, urging some other man to fuck her. I almost came before I was inside her. I eased it in, in case she was sore from earlier.

"How many men did you fuck, honey?"

"One," she moaned. Dana gasped when I pulled out and thrust back in forcefully. "It could have been two."

I knew too well what it looked like when two men took my wife, and I pictured it. God, she was sexy. I tried to hold back from coming. I did not want to finish in two seconds after another man had probably made her come multiple times tonight.

"But?"

"I didn't want to be such a slut...oh god! You feel so good, baby," Dana cooed. "So, I only let one of them fuck me. I sucked off the other one. Ohh..."

"Oh fuck! You are such a whore, Dana," I moaned, clutching her hips and driving faster. It was so hard to hold back.

"I know! I'm your whore, baby. I'm the whore you want me to be!"

“Fuck, Dana! Rub your clit!” I demanded. I knew I would be too quick, and I wanted her to come too.

Dana shifted just enough to squeeze her hand underneath. I knew when she found her clit because she bucked back into me harder, trying to stuff my cock as deep as she could get it.

“Fuck me, baby! Fuck your whore! Oh god! Oh god! Yes!” Dana cried.

Those words were all I needed. Feeling her freshly fucked cunt and looking down at her perfect ass finished me like a horny rabbit. I groaned and pumped my seed inside her, hoping it was the only load in there. Unfortunately, Dana was not always careful with the condoms when she got crazy. It sounded like she’d had a crazy night. I’d decided not to ask about protection anymore and trust her. Dana was on the Pill, and she was tested regularly. That would be good enough for me.

I collapsed forward onto her and felt the motion of her hand busy at her pussy. Dana came just a couple of minutes after me with a soft cry, and then she was still.

“Thank you,” I told my wife, kissing her cheek, before I climbed off of her.

Dana rolled onto her back and looked up at me—flushed and just a little sweaty. She was glowing, and it was a particular glow that she only has after a hot date—the kind of glow that says I know I’m the hottest thing going. She never lacked confidence before, but it’s amazing what these dates have done for her. Dana was still my loving wife, but at the same time she was so...different.

“I should be thanking you. You made tonight possible,” she said.

“Maybe you should be thanking me,” I said, with a laugh. “How did it go with Jana as your wing-woman?”

Dana smiled and said, “I think I may have created a monster. Obviously, Jana was not going to judge or get in the way, but the way she enthusiastically jumped in has me a little worried.”

“So, she hooked up too?”

“She was actually the one to bring over the guys we met.”

“And I thought it would be you showing her the ropes.”

“Nope. She took to it like a duck to water. She was making out with a guy before we even left the bar.”

I was surprised by Dana’s tone. She was hardly one to be casting a stone. But their situations were different. “And did she?”

“What do you think? I’m sure you’ll hear some of it on the video, but I don’t think the angle was right to get her in the frame.”

“You guys were in the same room?”

Dana laughed at my excitement and said, “Down boy. I think she went off and did her thing, but she came into the room while I was...uh, busy... and I don’t think her boy toy could help himself. He just bent her over the conference table.”

“Conference table? This is sounding better and better.”

“I hope you are pleased.”

“I am always pleased by my sexy wife. There’s no one better than you, Dana.”

“Aww, you’re too sweet.”

“I can’t help but feel bad for Neil, though. He’s the only one in the dark. It’s not fair. And I hate to think how he’d react if he found out. It’s like we’re pulling Jana into our kinky games,” I said.

“I don’t think we’re pulling Jana anywhere, babe. She’s rushing right in. And I don’t know that Neil will be in the dark forever. If she was serious, Jana is determined to turn Neil into a hotwife husband. We’ll see how she feels in the sober light of the morning.”

“Doesn’t she understand that you don’t just turn someone onto this. As far as I can guess, you’re either it or you’re not.”

“I know,” Dana agreed.

“Neil’s always been kind of jealous, right? I just don’t see it.”

“Maybe you can talk some sense into her.”

“Whoa! I don’t want to talk to Jana about any of this. I was hoping she would just pretend that nothing was going on next time I saw her. Seriously honey, I don’t know that I can talk about this with her.” Just the thought of seeing the judgment in Jana’s eyes made me queasy. Maybe I was just being paranoid—Jana is pretty understanding—but I didn’t want to find out.

Dana climbed off of the bed and offered me her back so I could get her zipper. Feeling the hot skin of her back as I undressed her, quickened my pulse again. I was already getting excited thinking about my wife and Jana fucking in the same room, and now feeling Dana so close, catching the scent of sex coming off her, I was getting hard all over again. I pulled the dress from her shoulders and nuzzled her hair, kissing her neck. I forgot all about having to see Jana.

“Back off, tiger. I really am exhausted. I am going to shower and go to bed. Why don’t you go down and see what you caught on video? I think you’ll like it, baby.” Dana turned and kissed me.

I did as my wife suggested and fetched the camera from her purse. It plugged straight into my laptop, and I transferred the video files over to a new folder with the date. My heart pounded as I opened the video.

It was as Dana described. She was in a conference room, standing with some guy by a window. They were just barely in the frame and the lighting wasn’t great. I fast-forwarded. I did not need to watch small talk. Another man joined them, and I returned to normal speed when the action started. The lighting was not great, but it had been so long since I’d seen a new video of my wife with a new stranger that I didn’t care. My brain easily filled in the details the camera didn’t capture.

Truly, the video was subpar in quality, but I was touching myself just the same. I heard my wife’s moans clearly, and when the dark guy was fucking her mouth, it was so hot—even if the angle was terrible. Still, I heard her wet sucking sounds and imagined the first-class blowjob she was giving him. He was a lucky bastard. And then the two guys turned Dana around and spit-roasted her and I almost lost it. The slutty image of my sweet wife being used by two men is unlike anything else. It is so insanely hot I almost lose it every time I watch it. Dana is such a perfect whore. She seems to love being taken by two men. It makes me wonder if she’d like multiple men even more. Would Dana give herself over to a gangbang? I did—and didn’t—want to know the answer. It scared me that she would love it, and that I would love watching it. I didn’t like what that said about me.

I held out and didn’t come before Jana came into the room. Dana was right, you couldn’t see the blonde on the video at all, but I could clearly hear her being fucked. I tried to place myself in that room, watching my wife and Jana being fucked together. I came so fast I nearly ruined the laptop. I was left dazed and a little confused.

My fantasy had honestly never included anything more than my sexy wife fucking other men while I watched. I was not ready to be in the room, but we had solved that problem. But now, something new had happened, and it supercharged the fantasy for me. It was not the same as when Dana and that Hispanic girl had been fucked side-by-side. I knew Jana—she was not just some anonymous body to me. Seeing Jana as a little slut wife like my own Dana turned me on way more than I could have anticipated. Was my fantasy evolving? I didn't know how I felt about that. I didn't know how Dana would react if I confessed it to her. I did not want her thinking she was not enough. She was—this was just some extra spice.

So, was it right to encourage my wife to keep Jana as her wing-woman? Neil was a good friend and doing this to him wasn't right. Maybe Jana was onto something. Maybe there was a way to bring him into the fold. I wondered if he could ever be like me.

CHAPTER

Eight

Dave and I had a normal night planned—like a normal couple—and I was excited. One of the things I regretted about our new dynamic was that we rarely went out like just two married people anymore. It's tough enough to find date night time when you have kids, but it's even rougher when those chances are used for Hot Dates. I had become used to going out on my own to meet men, while Dave stayed at home with the kids, that was not hard to arrange. I would try to wait to go out until the kids were in bed and Dave would happily take on all the responsibilities knowing what I would be doing while I was out. But when we had the chance to go out together, he still wanted to play our little games. He wanted to go out to a bar where he could hang back and watch me flirt with men—maybe more. I wanted to go out with my husband. I wanted to be on his arm and be his wife for the night. I missed the pride he had in showing me off. It was still there, of course, but it was from afar.

When we were invited for an evening out to celebrate Lucas's and Erin's birthday, I jumped at the chance. They are not a couple, they just happen to share a birthday, and because of that it had become the tradition to celebrate it with one big party. It was several couples from my Mom's Group, which meant that it wasn't always the most exciting evening, but this year Lucas Hughes and his wife, Haley, had planned the evening, and they'd gone all out for the night. We were told to dress to the nines, because we were having dinner at one of the trendier downtown restaurants, Trellis, and then headed off to a club for some drinking and dancing. I knew what that would mean to Dave. I hoped I would not have to temper his expectations. He wouldn't really expect me to get crazy in front of our friends, would he?

Picking an outfit was difficult. I had plenty of perfect little numbers for the evening in my Hot Dates collection, but were they too risqué for an evening with our friends? I didn't ask Dave. I knew what he would say. Even before I was a hotwife he loved to show me off—it should have been a clue that he harbored these fantasies—but back then I still dressed like a normal, but sexy, suburban mom. I also had to pick Dave's outfit, because he is hopeless when it comes to dressing up. Dave is a rugged man's man. He's not the type who gives too much thought to dressing fancy.

On the day of the party, Dave dropped the kids at his parents', while I went out for a manicure and did some last minute shopping. My nails were painted silver, with a faint pattern of black lines. I thought it would go nicely with my dress. I needed to pick up new thigh highs. Wearing them was becoming an expensive habit. I rarely got to wear a pair more than once. Dave was showered, shaved and ready when I got home. He looked so sexy in his black sports coat that I nearly jumped him right in the kitchen. Sadly, we didn't have time to have any real fun.

When I descended the steps and saw my husband's reaction, I knew I had chosen wisely. Although this was not a Hot Date, it had become our ritual for me to reveal myself to Dave when I dressed for a night out. The way he always looked at me sent chills down my spine, like he was seeing me for the first time all over again and deciding he had to have me. Dave gave a low, long whistle and grinned when he saw me.

"You're going to put those other mommies to shame, Dana."

"I don't know, honey. There are some pretty sexy women in my group."

After trying on a dozen dresses, I circled back to the old standby, the LBD. And it actually was a dress I'd bought for our Hot Dates, back when we'd first started. It was essentially a body-hugging, sleeveless back sheath that fell above the knee—without being obscenely short—with a silver chain for a halter. It really showed off my body without flashing too much cleavage or leg. And the low back was just right for me to wear one of my sexy black lace bustiers underneath—something Dave would find out if he played his cards right. Who was I kidding? Dave was going to have my dress off about ten minutes after we left the club. Like the other couples, we'd taken a hotel room downtown, so we didn't have to worry about drinking and driving. It would feel weird to be in a hotel room with my husband, not a lover.

“No one touches you, Dana. There’s not a sexier woman out there.”

“Thanks, sweetie.”

Trellis was much fancier than any restaurant Dave and I would have picked on our own. I could tell my husband didn’t feel quite like he fit in. He loves a good steak, but he’d rather have it in a casual steakhouse with a beer than a fancy place with subdued lighting and a wine list where the numbers looked like mortgage payments.

The group gathered at the bar as we arrived, which gave me an opportunity to check out the competition. Okay, so my friends were not really competition, but everyone was dressed to the nines and trying to outdo each other. It’s just the nature of a group of women. It was strange to see everyone in cocktail dresses and not sweater sets and khakis. Marcie chose a white dress that draped her in the most flattering way possible, but Kelly’s blue dress was unadvisedly snug in the wrong places. I hate to sound catty, but a lot of times when we women have a chance to dress up, we can go overboard. Haley Hughes’s dress was not overboard, but it made the most of her slender, model-like body. Her strapless black dress looked like it was painted on and made me think I could have gotten away with one of my more risqué dresses. Haley was tall and toned, with long blonde hair—the kind of woman who turns heads when she enters a room—even when she’s not dressed like that. It’s why shorter, curvier women like me tend to dislike women like her, but my confidence has increased exponentially since I became a hotwife, so I didn’t give her much of a thought. I noticed Dave’s eyes glide over her, and I’m sure he appreciated her, but he did not gape.

Dave did, however, pay a bit more attention to Erin, possibly because we have a similar look. We both have dark hair—Erin wears hers longer, and it was up—and big tits. Speaking of breasts, I was pretty sure Erin was braless. I didn’t see how she could possibly be wearing one, given the cut of her dress, which left little to the imagination. She looked amazing. All of that training she’d been doing had paid off. Based on where Dave’s eyes were focused, he seemed to be trying to solve the bra mystery for himself.

“Don’t get caught staring,” I warned him with an elbow nudge. “Not all husbands appreciate other men staring at their wives.”

Dave shrugged it off and drank from his bourbon. “She just looks really different, that’s all, even more than the other wives. Erin’s sort of reminding me of...”

“Me?” I laughed softly. “That dress does look like it could have come out of my dating closet, but I don’t think I could wear it as well.”

“You’re being ridiculous.”

“Anyway, she really does seem to have changed a bit over the last few months, and it’s not just from doing a triathlon.”

“Are you saying she’s...”

“I have no idea, but I would never jump to that conclusion. It’s not common, is it? But I do know that her trainer is none other than Jana’s AJ.”

Dave’s eyes widened. “Really? Tom had better watch out, unless that dress is proof, he’s already made his mark.”

“I can see what you’re thinking and forget it. AJ does not sound like my type. I need to be able to have at least five minutes of conversation before jumping into bed.”

“So, do you really think Erin is sleeping with him? I wouldn’t have thought she was the type,” Dave said. We both found her husband Tom in the crowd and looked him over. I don’t know what we were looking for. It’s not like men with cheating wives have cuckold stamped on their forehead.

“I agree. I would have never thought she was the type, but who knows? Do you think any of our friends would suspect what we’re up to? I’d like to think that we keep it well hidden. I guess it’s possible AJ has gotten into Erin’s pants. Something has certainly put a spring into her step.”

Dinner was raucous. We were all seated at a big table and the free-flowing wine meant that we kept getting louder by the glassful. Lucas, with his crazy stories and his wit, was the center of attention, and it wasn’t just because he was the birthday boy. He is just one of those people who knows how to be the center of attention. He has a way of drawing people to him. Lucas and Erin—the birthday boy and girl—were seated beside each other, with their spouses on either side, but the way they were flirting with each other suggested they were the actual couple. It didn’t seem to bother his wife, Haley, but given the rumors about those two I was not surprised. Tom, on the other hand, didn’t look entirely comfortable with it—or did he? Erin’s husband looked like he was lost in his own thoughts for much of the celebratory dinner.

Once dinner concluded, the party moved down the street to some little club that I'd never heard of. Lucas swore it was all the rage. I was just happy it was not one of the places where Dave and I had been out for one of our dates. I could only imagine the awkwardness of running into someone I'd played with in the past.

"What do you think about Tom?" Dave asked during the short walk.

"You're not suggesting..."

"No, not that."

"Okay. I can never be sure anymore."

I laughed and gave his arm a squeeze. It felt so nice to be out as a couple with my husband for a change. Like the rest of the party, I'd already had too much to drink, and it was helpful to have Dave to cling to while I tried to walk in my silly heels.

I regarded Tom, since Dave had brought him up. He and Erin were up walking with Lucas and Haley, but that was not quite accurate. Tom was a couple steps behind, and Erin was really walking with Lucas. They were so close, she almost hung on his arm the way I did Dave's. Tom looked annoyed, but it wasn't just that. There was something else to the way he was watching his wife and Lucas. Anyone could see Tom was jealous, but there was also interest there. I thought I had to be reading into it, because it seemed to me, he was showing the same kind of interest that Dave shows when I'm flirting with another man. That was crazy, right?

"You see it, don't you?" Dave said, noting me watching Tom.

"I don't know what I see honey. Yes, maybe something is going on there, but maybe we're just reading into it because we're predisposed."

I meant what I said to Dave, but when we arrived at the club, I couldn't help keeping an eye on Tom and Lucas and Erin. And Haley, too, but she seemed perfectly happy to let her husband flirt away. It made me think the rumors about them were true. And I wasn't the only one who noticed.

"Do you see Lucas with Erin?" Marcie gossiped, leaning in close to my ear. We were at the bar getting our martinis refreshed. "Do you think she's one of their play partners?"

"What would Tom get out of that?" I asked, knowing very well what, if he was like my Dave.

"Maybe he doesn't know. Or he didn't before tonight. Those two are shameless, and he doesn't look too happy." Marcie accepted her fresh drink and sipped it while staring at Lucas and Erin on the small dance floor.

Lucas and Erin were dancing close together, with his hand on her hip. Erin's hands rested on his chest. Even with her heels, Lucas towered over her, and he had to lean down to whisper in her ear. She laughed and seemed to press closer. I had been on enough hot dates to recognize what was going on. Maybe Dave was right. I looked around and found him talking to Kelly's husband. Dave kept an eye on Erin and Lucas, though, and he looked jealous. I could read my husband's mind. He wished it was me out there with Lucas, or maybe one of the other handsome men in the club.

"You don't even know that Haley and Lucas are doing anything. And even if they are, don't you think they'd be more discrete than to do it in front of all their neighbors?" It made me think of my own walks of shame and wonder who might have noticed. I really needed to be more careful.

Marcie was not deterred. "Kelly lives right up the street, and her husband has seen women coming in and out of there, late at night, when the kids are not there. What do you think could be going on?"

"But Haley is there too, right?"

"I think they are doing threesomes." Marcie giggled the last word, like it was the most scandalous thing she could think of. I also noted how the color rose to her cheeks. I bet Marcie wished she and Jeff were sneaking someone into their bedroom.

"So, you think Erin is sneaking over to the Hughes's to screw them while Tom stays home and watches the kids?"

"Look at Haley with Tom. Maybe they're all doing it."

Haley and Tom were huddled closely together, watching their spouses dancing. Tom looked skeptical and Haley looked excited. I didn't want to spread gossip like Marcie, but I no longer doubted her. I didn't know exactly what it was, but something was going on between those two couples.

"Maybe," I finally agreed with Marcie. "You never know what's going on in other peoples' bedrooms, Marcie. I don't know what kind of kinky stuff you guys are up to."

Marcie stared at me with her mouth agape.

"And for all you know, I fuck other guys while Dave watches me." Marcie's jaw hit the floor. "My point is that people need to chill out and let people do what makes them happy. I won't judge you or them, you shouldn't judge anyone else."

Marcie looked properly chastened, which made me think there was something going on in their bedroom. A quick image flashed through my brain of pretty Marcie in a dog collar, being led around the bedroom by a leash. I laughed into my drink.

As the night wound down, people started heading out, and Dave and I ended up in our own corner, watching the show. The more the liquor flowed, the closer not only Lucas and Erin got, but also Haley and Tom. And they all seemed drunk enough that they didn't care what people might be whispering, but then they may have forgotten that Dave and I were even there.

"Lucas is going to fuck Erin tonight. I know it," Dave said. His hand was on my thigh, creeping higher.

I moved my hand to his crotch and felt how aroused he was. "Do you think Tom and Haley are going to fuck? I think they could all be swingers."

"I don't know. I think Haley is game, but I'm not getting the vibe from Tom. He's way more interested in what's going on between their spouses than Haley next to him."

"You should go over and strike up a conversation."

"No, I don't want to interrupt the show."

I rubbed his growing hard-on. "You really like the idea that Erin is going to fuck Lucas, don't you?"

"I think AJ got to her, and now she's ready to party."

"And Tom?"

"I dunno. Maybe he's only reluctantly going along with it. Some guys do that."

"You didn't answer me, hon." I grasped his shaft down the thigh of his pants and he started. I had his attention.

"Yeah, it's hot. Erin's sexy and she never seemed the type before. That's makes it extra hot. And look at the way she's dressed now—the way she's acting. Something's up."

"So, she's just like me."

"I don't think she's as hot as you, babe. No one's as crazy as you, Dana."

"Oh really? You don't think Erin could be like me?"

I don't know why that piqued me, but it did. Maybe it was all the drinks. It felt sort of like Dave was calling me a slut, but not in the fun way he usually did. We had gone out excited to have a fun night as a couple, for a change, but suddenly I wanted to show my husband just how crazy I could be. If he thought I was some crazy whore, why not live up—or down—to expectations. I had been looking forward to some hot hotel sex with my husband, but now I decided that his was not the only cock I would be enjoying that evening.

“She could be. I don’t know,” Dave said.

“I think you need a reminder of how bad I can be, honey.” I turned him to face me and gave him a deep, sensual kiss, flickering my tongue into his mouth.

“Dana...”

“Why don’t you go back to our room? I’ll text you with news.”

Dave looked completely confused, but he knew better than to question his good fortune. He kissed me back and told me to have fun before getting out of the club.

CHAPTER

Nine

As I headed back to our hotel, I wondered what Dana had in mind. It was strange that her attitude seemed to have just turned on a dime. I knew she had been excited by the prospect of us being a normal husband and wife. It was great that we were getting some couple time, but I'd be lying if I said the possibility of Dana playing wasn't always in the back of my mind. I wonder if it's the same feeling an alcoholic gets when they know their next drink is waiting for them right after work. I wouldn't say I need Dana to fuck other men—I couldn't admit that—but I'm always open to the possibility of it happening.

It was heavily on my mind because of Erin Smith and Lucas Hughes. Dana thought I was paranoid at first, but by the end of the night even she could see something was going on there. I wondered if that spurred my wife to action. Was she jealous of the attention Erin was getting?

I'd never liked Lucas. Always thought he was an asshole. He was a superior, smug son-of-a-bitch. Dana felt the same way, thank god. He was not someone I'd ever want her playing with. Lucas did not seem like the kind of guy you could trust to play the game. If he was going to fuck Erin, it would be because he wanted her for his own, not as a bit of fun. I'd seen the way Lucas looked at her in the past when the group was together. He had always wanted her. I understood it. Erin was a piece of ass, especially since she'd been training hard. If I was interested in such things, Erin would be a target for sure. And now it looked like he was finally going to get his wish, unless something went wrong after I left the club. I was certain of it. The only thing I couldn't figure out was how Tom and Haley worked into it. Based on the way he was acting, I could definitely see Tom in the reluctant cuckold role, but Dana was probably right. They were probably just swingers.

The thought of a sweet, proper woman like Erin Smith in the arms of a strange man made my cock throb in much the same way it did when thinking about my wife. They were similar in a lot of ways. It was that corruption that made the hotwife fantasy so potent for me. And the second I'd seen Erin in that dress my mind had been filled with thoughts of her sweaty, between the sheets. I wished Tom luck and hoped he had a good time tonight, whatever his kink was.

Back in the hotel room, I couldn't sit still. I packed up any signs that Dana was sharing the room with a man. I wanted to text and ask what she was up to, but I knew enough by now to let her alone. She needs to do things her way, and if I let her, she will bring home the goods. I feel like we're finally on the same page and there's nothing to worry about. But having that newfound security did not change the heady mix of anticipation and lust and worry that churned my gut. My head knew I had nothing to worry about, but the inherent wrongness of my wife fucking other men would still always be part of the mix. I forced myself to sit on the end of the bed, but my foot kept tapping. I wished I had brought some of Dana's videos to keep me occupied.

I spent the next hour or so trying to imagine what Dana was doing—and who she was doing it with. It looked like there were a lot of single guys in that club, but I didn't think she would play while people she knew were there. I had a wild idea that she asked the Hugheses and Smiths if she could come along and play. The possibilities of that blew my mind. I was close to snapping when Dana finally texted me.

Dana

On our way back. Hide in the closet, leave the door open a crack

Dana had lost her mind. I quickly texted her back.

Dave

Are you crazy? Can't do that

Dana

No different than peeking in the car window. Just be very quiet and we'll be fine. Don't worry, I won't let him go all night.

Now I really was seized with fear. We had never done anything as risky as this. I was petrified of being caught and mocked. I could just imagine whatever stud Dana brought back catching me and mocking me. What kind of man hides in the closet while his wife fucks someone else? You're a pussy! I never wanted to be outed, and I'd gone to great lengths and great expense to make sure I could observe my wife's activities without being caught. We did not improvise these things. It was always planned out.

The more I thought about it, the more my pulse pounded. It was something I hadn't felt since we'd first started our Hot Dates. It was the thrill of genuine risk. I felt real danger. Dana was right. In those early days, she would lure some lucky guy out to her car, and they would have some fun. I would be parked right beside her in my big truck, and I'd look down through the windows and watch her. There was always the chance of being caught then too, even with tinted windows. Things could always go wrong, and one memorable time they did. A lot had happened since then, and I began to wonder if I had become too removed. Before I could talk myself out of it, I jumped up and opened the closet door.

I left the door open a crack and stepped back. It was dark in that closet, no one would see me with the lights in the room dimmed. My view would not be perfect, but it would work. I grabbed the spare bedding from the top of the closet to make myself a comfortable nest and settled in.

Time stood still inside that closet. It truly felt like I was sitting in there all night. I wanted to get out and stretch my legs, but I was afraid I wouldn't be able to hustle back into place quickly enough. I had my phone with me in there and I planned to text Dana again when I heard the keycard in the door. My chest seized at the little beep, which was followed by the click of the lock.

Murmured voices and the wet sounds of kissing were the first indication that my wife was not alone. The room was large enough that I could not see the door. I wouldn't see them until they moved close to the bed. I hoped Dana would realize that and guide her friend over to where I could see them.

I saw my wife first, stumbling toward the bed. She was followed by a very large, silver haired man. He was even taller than I am, over six-five, and he had the broad-chest, strong frame of a man who'd been athletic most of his life. The little bit of heft on him implied he was not working out as much these days. He wore a smart, dark suit, and his gray hair was an expensive razor cut, which made him look about ten years Dana's senior. He was every inch the out-of-town businessman. I noted he wore a wedding ring too, but I doubted it took much effort for Dana to convince him to come back to her hotel room.

Dana turned and kissed him beside the bed, pulling him down to her lips. Her back was to me. While they kissed, she pushed his jacket from his shoulders, and he let it slip to the floor. She pulled on his powder-blue tie to keep him in the kiss, and he was kneading her ass so hard it looked like he was about to lift her by it. She looked tiny beside him. He pulled his tie from her hands, tore it off, and tossed it onto the bed. Together, they worked on his shirt buttons.

He didn't even have his shirt off before Dana racked her nails through his sparse, dark chest hair. She licked his nipples, and he cursed quietly while holding the back of her head and tossing her hair. I bet that bastard couldn't believe his luck. He may have been the type who looked to get laid while out of town on business, but his usual scores were probably not as hot as my wife. Dana got to work on his belt while she kissed his chest.

Dana stepped back and let him kick off his shoes and pants. She gently swayed on her high heels, like she was moving to music only she could hear. He moved forward to lay hands on her again, but she turned her back and asked, "Could you help me with my dress, baby?" She swept her chestnut hair aside.

He fiddled at the back of her neck, but then figured out how to unclasp the chain that held up her dress. It dropped from her tits, and she wiggled her hips to pull it off completely. Dana stared right at me while she stripped, and it felt like my dick was going to explode in my pants.

"Holy shit," he said, when my wife turned to face him.

I had the view of her perfectly shaped ass in tiny t-backed panties, he was looking at her tits presented in an incredible bustier. I hadn't seen that thing in ages. I know she'd worn it for me tonight, but it was so hot to have another man see her in it. He must have been thinking that Dana went out looking for sex tonight. He was right. He reached for her breasts, but she turned him and pushed him down onto the bed.

"Lay down," she commanded.

The stranger was only wearing black boxers and Dana relieved him of those the second she climbed onto the bed. His prick lay along his thigh—semi-hard—and she grabbed it, stroking her hand up and down the length. It was impressive, definitely larger than average, but not porn sized. I was offended that he wasn't fully hard for my wife, but she took it in stride. She lay alongside him, and they kissed while she stroked him. Her legs looked perfect encased in her thigh-highs. He explored her body, too, massaging her tits through that sexy bustier, but spending more time on her hot ass, and moving between her thighs. Dana parted her legs and gasped when he rubbed her pussy through her panties. He pulled on her panties, and she thoughtfully pulled them off-flinging them in my direction.

I desperately wanted to reach out and grab those discarded panties, but I was too afraid of being seen—not that anyone was looking in my direction. It felt like he had to know I was there anyway. The fear he would realize I was hiding in the closet was crippling, like a fist squeezing my heart. And it was incredible. The adrenaline heightened everything. The colors were vivid, Dana's sighs and moans crisper. It felt like I was right there on the bed with them. It was like I was a part of it. As much as I loved my videos, they didn't make me feel like this. It was so immediate. I heard every creak of the bed, every rustle of the sheets. My breathing also sounded incredibly loud. I had no idea how they didn't hear it, but when I tried to hold my breath, I got dizzy.

Dana swung a leg and straddled him, grinding her cunt down over the length of his shaft. That bastard was hard now. If I were the insecure type, I would have been threatened by his girthy cock, but Dana has never said she's a size queen. She leaned forward over him, her tits practically spilling out of her bustier. The view must have been enticing, because he pulled down on the lingerie until her tits popped free. Dana leaned in more, so they hung free in his face, and he feasted.

"That feels good, baby. Suck on my titties," Dana cooed. Titties sounded odd coming out of her mouth, but I knew the dirty talk was for me.

He held her big breasts in his huge hands and devoured them. Again, I could only see her back, but by the way my wife was moaning and moving her pussy on him, he was doing a good job.

"Your tits are fucking perfect," he moaned, when he came up for air. He sounded surprised, and I wondered if he thought they were fake before he bared them. Dana's breasts only got plumper from the kids and still stood out well. She had been very lucky, in my opinion. I could understand why he'd think they were fake on such a petite woman.

"Thank you, baby. How about my pussy?"

Dana scooted up his chest until her shaved cunt was perfectly placed above his face. He grabbed her ripe ass and dove right in. She threw her head back and cried, “Oh fuck!”

I rubbed my cock through my pants. I had not thought it through and there was no way I could wrestle my pants off in that closet—not without making a racket. It was frustrating, but I made do. The only thing on my mind was the action on that bed. Dana’s ass clenched as she worked her hips, rubbing her juicy pussy all over his face. Her moans were climbing higher and higher in pitch.

“Oh god! Oh god! Do it, baby!” Dana cried.

I was so focused on the movements of her body that it took a moment for me to realize she was looking back over her shoulder. Looking right at me. Dana’s face was a mask of ecstasy. She bit her lip before crying out again and her jade eyes were locked right onto me. The stranger reached up and was mauling her tits while he ate her pussy. Her entire body tensed, and she slapped the wall in front of her as she experienced a screaming orgasm.

He lifted Dana as easily as a ragdoll and spun her around, so she was laid on top of him. He pulled her gushing cunt right back to his mouth, but now his towering cock stared her in the face. My wife knew just what to do with that.

Dana stared at me and smiled as she extended her tongue and flicked it all over the thick, enflamed helmet of the stranger’s meat. She did not look down at the cock she was working on, but instead kept her eyes on me the entire time. Her lips stretched around that thing, and she kept taking in more and more, until I was sure her mouth was stuffed, but Dana kept swallowing more. I could hear her struggling to suck him and her eyes were wide. It didn’t look like she could even breathe, but she kept him in her mouth, sucking until her cheeks hollowed from the effort. My wife took almost all of him, and then she started bobbing up and down. She never let him slip entirely from her lips, but she aggressively pumped her mouth up and down on that fat cock.

Of course, I lost it. I was only rubbing myself through my pants but seeing Dana sucking that cock only feet away—hearing her slurping sounds and watching her mouth move—was way too intense for me. Watching videos of her was nothing compared to this. It felt like I was going to faint as I ruined my pants. I know I groaned loudly, but the two of them were way too deep into their own sex to hear me.

Her friend must have been very good with his mouth, because Dana had trouble keeping up her sucking. Having been on the receiving end of a “69” from my wife, I know how single-minded she is with a cock in her mouth. She started with little moans, muffled by her mouthful, but then Dana ended up pulling her mouth off that thick shaft and hanging her head while she experienced another powerful climax. The shiny wet cock rested alongside her face and her hair stuck to the side.

“Oh god! Oh god! Ohhh fuck!” Dana cried. I could hear him slurping away at her from behind, and she kept pressing her pussy back to his mouth.

Dana was still trembling when she pulled away from him. She turned and reached for her purse on the nightstand, dangling her tits in his face. He played with her nipples and Dana had to pause while she composed herself. Once she did, she produced a condom from her purse. Funny how she had that with her, even though we were not planning for this tonight.

“You’re a hot little piece, aren’t you?” he said, chuckling.

“I know what I need, and I know how to get it. I hope that’s not a problem.” Her tone was challenging.

“Fuck no. I wish all women were like you. You’re fucking amazing.”

On that, I had to agree with him.

Dana rolled the condom down his shaft like a pro. He was content to sit back and let her do all the work. It was dark, and my angle wasn’t great, but I stared hard where their bodies came together, and I could just about make it out when my wife slid down onto the stranger’s cock. It’s funny that Dana makes the same sexy little sound when she’s first impaled, no matter who’s dick it is. It’s a soft, sensuous little moan that almost makes it sound like she’s surprised someone just entered her.

He held her ripe ass in his big hands as she ground down onto him and leaned in for a long, hot kiss. I had a perfect view from behind, but I wished I could see them kissing. Dana’s hair fell forward to veil them from view. She worked her hips in little circles and slowly started riding him. Her head still hung forward, but I knew they’d stopped kissing because I heard Dana whimpering as she moved on him. His heavy breathing turned to grunts, and he moved his hands to her slender waist so he could manipulate her lithe body.

“Oh god! Oh yes!” Dana cooed.

“You like that, don’t you, baby?”

“Yes,” she whimpered.

“You like that strange cock, don’t you?”

“God yes, I love it. Oh god!”

He sounded like a bad porn actor, but I’m not ashamed to admit it was hot. My cock was hard again inside my sticky pants. Dana pushed off his chest and sat straight up, riding his cock hard. His hands slid to her bouncing tits, and he mauled them. She cried out when he got too rough with her nipples, but I knew deep down she really liked it. Since she’s been with other men, my wife has learned that she likes a lot of things she never suspected.

“Oh god! Fuck!” Dana cried.

Dana leaned forward and planted both hands on the padded leather headboard over the bed, madly churning her hips. Her cries turned to shouts and then she became very still. He kept pushing his cock up inside her, but I knew Dana was coming. The stranger didn’t get the cue, though, and used her stillness to take control.

The big stranger easily flipped my wife onto her back. I don’t think his prick ever slipped out of her. He pulled her legs back over his arms and started pumping. The bed bounced violently as he pounded Dana. She was right back to shouting and she dug her nails into his forearms. It was so hot to see her stocking-clad legs in the air and her high heels bouncing as she got fucked. I had to stop rubbing myself because I was going to make an even bigger mess in my pants.

“Fuck me! Fuck me!” Dana wailed.

“Aww fuck baby, fuck yeah!”

“Yes...yes...yes...yes...YES!”

All of a sudden it just stopped. The man groaned loudly and planted his cock deep inside my wife. He dropped her legs, and she wrapped him tightly around his waist, trapping him inside her. She was still working her hips, and I imagined she was using her muscles to milk every last drop of his load. Jesus, Dana was so sexy!

He rolled off of her and his spent cock flopped between his legs. Dana’s chest rose and fell as she sucked in air, and she looked over at the closet and winked at me.

CHAPTER

Ten

Dana didn't even have time to step away from the door. The second that stranger was out of our hotel room I was on her. She was wearing the little, thin white robe that came with the room, along with her heels and thigh highs. She didn't want to see her lover to the door so naked. I pulled the robe off of her and swept her hair aside so I could nibble on her neck from behind.

"That was the goddam hottest thing I've ever seen," I growled, trying to remember not to leave marks in her tender flesh.

"Better than all those videos?" She sounded amused but gasped when I dipped my hand down between her legs. It was so soaked down there my fingers were slipping all around.

"God, yes. This is what I always wanted. I wanted to really be there when you got fucked."

"We should have made it happen then. You know I'll do whatever you want, baby."

"You little whore," I groaned, rubbing my erection into her back, I clumsily fumbled with my pants.

"I'm your whore. You made me this whore. You wanted a little wife-whore..."

Her teasing was interrupted when I pulled back on her hips and jacked her butt into the air. Dana obediently bent forward and placed her hands on the door. Even with her in those high heels, I had to bend down, but I shoved my cock up inside her. I slid into her well-used pussy so easily. It made me want to come right then.

"Fuck me, baby," she cooed. "Take back your whore."

I hammered into her like that for a few minutes, but honestly it was a little awkward because she's so petite. Standing sex has never worked well for us. I spun her around and lifted her like a doll. Dana grabbed my slick dick and fed it back into her pussy, while I held her up by her ass. With her back to the door, I easily bounced her up and down on my cock.

"Yes! I feel you so deep. Oh god yes!" she cried.

"You love a big cock..."

"Yes! He was so big. I wanted to ride that thing all night. I wanted to come on that thing all night while you watched!"

"Fucking tease," I moaned.

"You've turned me into such a slut, baby. You know I can't get enough. I had to go pick up a stranger tonight."

"Yes... Ohhh, Dana..."

"It was so hot knowing you were there. Oh yes!"

The sounds of her wet cunt on my shaft filled the dim hotel room. Anyone in the hallway would have heard us fucking against that door. It was sexy that someone else might hear what a slut my wife was. She was right—I loved that she was a whore now. It was everything I wanted.

Neither of us was going to last very long. Dana came first. She comes so easily once she gets started. Feeling her orgasm around my cock was enough to push me over the edge too. She clutched me tight and locked her whole body around me while I unloaded inside her. It was so intense that I was suddenly weak in the knees. I staggered over to the bed and set her down, before flopping beside her. I couldn't stop shaking.

"Are you okay, honey?" Dana asked, rubbing my back.

"Yeah, I'm perfect. Tonight was just so..."

"I felt it too, Dave. Going out with other men is hot, but having you right there was just so much better. I can't believe it felt so different, but it did."

I turned over and looked up at her. It amazed me how she could look at me with such love after all that had happened tonight. It told me that she wasn't doing this because she wanted another man in her life. My wife did it because I asked her to, and because she learned she really liked fucking other men. They could fill her bed, but never her heart.

"The videos have been so incredible—like everything I could ever ask for—it never occurred to me that it could be so much more intense. I guess

I felt a little of it in the beginning, when we were going out together, but watching you fool around in a car was not like this.”

“Maybe we can figure out how to do this again. There’s always the closet, but...”

“Yeah,” I replied. “I don’t know if the closet is a real solution. The whole time I was thinking I was going to get caught.” That feeling may have added to everything, but I seriously did not really want to be caught.

“We’ll think of something. We don’t have to solve any problems tonight. Right now, I just want to crawl into bed with you and snuggle up together. I am going to grab a shower first.”

While Dana was gone, I didn’t think of a downside. I would have loved to have watched her fucking the stranger over again while I waited. A big part of it for me was having those videos I could watch over and over again. Every time I re-watched a video, I found something new to excite me, some new nuance of how my wife fucks. Being there was much more visceral, more immediate, but it was a moment in time and then it was over. I was greedy. I wanted to be there and record it.

I closed my eyes and pictured the layout of the fuck-pad I’d made for Dana’s dates. Was there a way I could reconfigure it that I could actually be there when Dana brought men back. I could probably build a secret compartment off of the closet where I could sit and install a two-way mirror. It would have to be tight to avoid intruding too far into the room. And I still wouldn’t see anything if they got busy in the living room. With the hidden cameras, I could see everything that happened in that apartment, but it would not be so if I was waiting in some hidden part of the bedroom.

Dana emerged from the bathroom while I was still deep in thought. She was nude and toweling her hair. Her sexy body was pink from the scrubbing and the hot water, and she looked incredible. My cock stirred again just from watching her.

“You look deep in thought,” she said.

“Just trying to make plans,” I said.

“Should I be worried? Every time you make plans, I end up doing something crazy.”

She sat beside me on the bed and noticed my twitching shaft. She lazily stroked her warm little hand up and down its length, making it grow harder. Only Dana could get me hard so many times in one night.

“Is that for me?” she innocently asked.

“You know there’s no resisting you when you’re naked. I always want you.”

“It’s a shame you have to wait in line then.”

The implication of her words made me groan and I closed my eyes. Images of her riding that stranger popped right back into my head. She leaned forward and softly, sensually kissed me. “I guess it’s a good thing you don’t mind waiting in line.”

“Christ, Dana. You’re making me crazy.” My cock was back to aching hardness. Having a hotwife had made me horny as a teenager again.

“Was it hard tonight, waiting your turn, when I was so close? You could see how badly I needed to be fucked, but it wasn’t you taking care of me.”

“Yes,” I stammered. It was almost too much.

“While I was sucking his cock, all I could think about was how you were right there. I was thinking about you jerking off in that closet.” She stroked my cock faster, then took me in her mouth. I jacked my hips upward, pressing into her throat.

“Fuck, Dana...”

My wife pulled back, smacking her lips on my head. “You should have come out and fucked me, baby. You know how much I love two cocks at once.”

“Yes...”

“Next time I bring two guys back I could take on all three of you.”

“Shit, Dana...”

“Mmm, three guys. It could be fun.”

“Yesss...”

“You want to see three guys fuck your slut, don’t you, Dave?”

“Yes!”

“How about four?”

“Dana...” I stuttered her name.

“Maybe I should just keep going until I can’t take anymore.”

“Fuck!”

I screamed the word and exploded. I was surprised I had enough left to splatter her face, but a shot landed right across the bridge of her nose. Dana had just showered and didn’t want to be a mess again, so she locked her mouth down on me and sucked until I went soft again. When she came up, she was giggling.

“You’re too easy,” she said.

“It is easy with a wife as hot as you.”

“An easy wife?”

I had to laugh to. “Something like that.”

“Well, this easy wife is exhausted. I need to get some sleep if I’m going to be able to manage the kids tomorrow.”

“Then climb in here with me, woman. You’ve earned your rest.”

“Why thank you, honey. Love you.”

“Love you.”

Dana fell right asleep, but I couldn’t get an image out of my mind. It was an image of guys lined up, waiting to fuck my wife. But they would have to wait, because Dana was already surrounded. Someone fucked her mouth, while another one fucked her pussy. She was reaching for other men with her hands. It seemed like she was going to fuck forever. The guys in line high-fived me as they moved in to enjoy my wife. They all told me how lucky I was. And I felt lucky, but it also scared the hell out of me. Seeing Dana taking all those men made it feel like she was never going to be mine again. She couldn’t be. And yet, I wanted it more than anything. Confusing, conflicting thoughts filled my brain as I, too, finally gave into sleep.

CHAPTER

Eleven

It had been a few days since I checked my burner phone, so I turned it on to clear the messages. The moment it connected to the network, it was flooded with messages. There were also some messages from other guys I'd met up with, but none of them had impressed me enough to want to see them again. I know not all hotwives feel as I do, but part of the thrill for me is meeting and seducing someone new. I don't know if always wanting new lovers makes me more of a slut than the others, but I don't care either. I like what I like. A few guys, like Zach, have made an impression to where I've wanted to continue on with them, but that wasn't the norm. And I also understood that my husband was not looking for me to have a boyfriend on the side. For both of us, this was about the sex.

And there was message after message from Carlos. I had not communicated with him at all since that crazy night with his friends, but he did not want to take my disappearance for an answer. His various texts were by turns seductive, funny, cajoling, and even vaguely threatening. He understood he had a hold on me, and he was not above leveraging that.

I would be lying if I said I wasn't tempted. Carlos did have a hold on me, and my time with him was intoxicating. From the moment we met, he had a control over me that no man ever had before, not even Dave. Carlos got me to do things that I never thought I would do, and I did them almost without hesitation. That was why he was as frightening as he was exciting. I was not some twentysomething kid with nothing to lose. I could not just give into my desires with abandon. So, because of the risks he represented, Carlos had to remain a no-fly zone. I deleted all of his messages and switched off the phone. I was going to be late to lunch with Jana.

We met at the chain restaurant near her office and as soon as we ordered drinks, she wanted to know all the details of my night in the city with Dave. I'd teased her with some texts but refused to give her the whole story.

"I thought it was supposed to be a date night for you guys," Jana said, as she sipped a lunchtime martini.

"It was. I'm not sure what happened, but the mood took me while we were hanging out with the others, and I decided I wanted to pick someone up."

"That's pretty crazy. Not just the fact that you're out with your husband and you can decide you're going to bring a stranger back—you're so lucky with that—but also because a night out with your mom's group could bring out the slut in you."

I did not imbibe in the middle of the day, as Jana did, but instead ordered a raspberry iced tea. "I think it started because we were speculating about the other couples there."

"Is this one of those things where you guys think because you're into kinky sex everyone around you is too?"

"Maybe. I don't think it's so out there, though. Have you heard from AJ lately?"

"No." She was clearly disappointed by that. "He's been extremely busy lately. He was preparing for that triathlon, and now I think he's trying to woo some big client. I think maybe he's moved on, but that's okay. It's not like he's the only built trainer hanging out at the gym."

"Thinking of moving on, do you think he may have moved on with another one of his clients?"

"It's possible. I don't think AJ really treated his training business as an escort service for horny housewives, but you never know. He's not the type of guy who'd turn away a willing wife if she was hot, that's for sure. I thought you weren't interested."

I shook my head. "Oh no, I'm not. One of the girls from my group has been training with him, and I swear there's something different about her. I would have never thought she would do something like that, but you should have seen the way she was dressed Saturday night. It was more than just showing off her work in the gym."

"Is she pretty?" I thought I detected a note of jealousy in Jana's voice.

"Erin's pretty, sure. She's not like va-voom—at least she wasn't before."

“It could be. Listen, I don’t know that AJ has a type, you know? I think it’s probably toned and willing. And I don’t think husbands coming after him scares him. He can take care of himself.”

I tried to picture mild mannered Tom going after a guy like AJ, and I just couldn’t see it. On the other hand, he looked like he wanted to lay out Lucas. “It wasn’t just her clothes. She was really flirting with another husband there.”

“Is that a bad thing?” Jana smiled.

“It can be if your husband isn’t as understanding as Dave. Erin’s husband looked like he wanted to kill someone. But there was something else, he also looked kind of excited by it. I know that look from Dave.”

“So, you think this Erin is fucking AJ, maybe even other guys, and her husband is into it?”

“Maybe.”

“And that’s what got you all riled up?”

“I could see it was getting Dave excited, and I wanted his attention back on me.”

“It sounds like a good night was had by all, except for maybe Erin’s poor husband.”

“I wonder if there’s a subtle way to ask Erin about it, without outing myself. Probably not. Anyway, speaking of kinky couples, how is your quest going?”

Jana had to drain her martini before answering. “I don’t think it’s happening. I’ve been dropping hints in bed, trying to get Neil into the fantasy, but he’s just not biting.”

“Sorry, hon. I’m not sure this is something you can put into someone. Either someone’s going to be into it, or they’re not.”

“You didn’t know you would like it until you tried it.”

“Not this specifically, but I’ve always been open, and Dave knew that. No, I never went out and picked up strangers before, but I’ve always been willing to try anything. And there was that threesome I had all those years ago—the one where Dave just sat back and watched. So, it wasn’t like Dave was asking some prudish schoolmarm to put on sex shows for him. Neil didn’t show any interest at all?”

Jana smirked. “The only time he perked up was when I teased him about you joining us in bed. That really got him going.”

It was nice to know I could still blush. “That’s...interesting.”

“Are you still going to try to pretend that Neil doesn’t have a thing for you?”

Of course, I knew he did. I just didn’t think about it—not in any serious way. “That’s not the direction you’re trying to go, though.”

“It could help.”

“How?” I shook my head. “It’s crazy.”

“Is it?” Jana waited to watch my reaction.

“Yes! How does that even help you?”

The waitress brought our salads, so we had to pause the insanity. It was sinking in that Jana could be serious. She was really proposing that I have a threesome with her and Neil. Even after all the stuff I’d done, it seemed ridiculous. They were just our friends, and we had a hard line keeping those aspects of our lives apart. Dave had some nutty fantasies, but I don’t know if he’d go for something like that. Would I? Would Neil? He did not seem like a guy who would know what to do with two women in bed. The waitress left and we continued.

“I was thinking that if I give Neil what he wants then he might be open to giving me what I want.” I could see it on her face. Jana was totally serious.

“Let me get this straight. If you let Neil have a threesome with me—”

“Honestly, it doesn’t have to be a threesome. You could just seduce him.”

Was she serious? “Okay, I fuck Neil some way, and that means he’ll be cool with you screwing other men?”

“That’s about it. It’s the only plan I can think of at the moment.”

“You need to go back to the drawing board. First of all, if I just came over and tried to seduce Neil, I bet he’d freak out.” In that moment, I tried to imagine it. Neil was not a bad looking guy. It wasn’t about that at all. I’d just never really thought about him and sex. Now that I did think about it, though, seducing a clueless Neil could be a lot of fun. I did enjoy playing the seductress. But no. Even if Dave was okay with it, it might wreck our friendship.

“Second of all,” I continued. “Even if the me-sleeping-with-Neil part goes off without a hitch, who’s to say he’ll be cool with you sleeping with another man. It could just make everything worse.”

Jana’s eyes gleamed. “The risk might be worth it.”

“I would ask Dave if I didn’t think it was so crazy.”

“Maybe I’ll ask him next time we have one of our Saturday nights. I bet I could convince him.”

“I don’t think that conversation would go too well.”

Unfortunately, Jana’s expression did not change. I knew her mind was not going to stop working on this until she figured out a way to make her plan happen, damn the consequences.

“THAT’S the craziest thing I’ve ever heard,” Dave said, when I explained Jana’s plan to him. “You cannot force the hotwife fantasy onto someone.”

“I’ve tried to tell her that, but she doesn’t want to listen. She’s heard too many of my stories. She wants to have her cake and eat it too.”

Dave chuckled. “And she wants you to be the icing.”

“Very funny.”

“Listen, Jana’s really hot. If you guys ever want to...”

“Don’t you start. Am I the only one who hasn’t lost her mind?”

“I am not endorsing her plan. I’m just saying, seeing the two of you on that video...”

“We did not do anything together.”

“But it could have easily gone that way. I bet those guys would have liked it to.”

“I’m sure they would have,” I conceded.

“I’m not pressuring you, Dana. I’m just saying that if anything ever happens between you two, I’m cool with it. Just please get video!”

I pressed up against him and put my hand on his crotch. We were in the kitchen and the kids were occupied in the family room. A quickie wasn’t possible, but Dave was up for one. I rubbed his bulge and felt him grow harder. “I could always invite her over, if that’s what you really want.”

Dave gulped. “You little tease.”

“I know you’d love a front row seat to Jana and I undressing each other. But then, you might like it better if we got Neil involved. Then you get the best of both worlds—you get to see me with Jana and Neil fucking me.”

“Shit...”

He grabbed the counter behind him, and I felt him shaking while I softly kissed his neck. Seducing my husband had become painfully easy. I might have liked more of a challenge, but it was good to know that he was still so hot for me after so many years. Not a lot of wives get that.

“You want to see Neil fuck me, don’t you, baby?”

“Dana, we can’t go there...”

“But you’d love to see it, wouldn’t you?”

“Yes...”

Now that I was really thinking about it, the fantasy of fucking Neil was getting me horny too. It was so wrong—to fuck one of our friends, to take that risk—that it was really very hot. I thought about all the speculation I’d been engaging in around Erin and Tom. If we’d noticed something about them, did that mean our neighbors had suspicions about us? I tried to be discrete, but you never knew what people saw, or what they said behind closed doors. If I did something as crazy as have a threesome with Jana and Neil, was there any way to keep that quiet? I was horrified at the prospect of being outed, but at the same time the danger was intoxicating.

Before we could go any further, we heard a wail from the family room, followed by a cry for parental assistance. I peeled away from Dave and let him go handle it while I finished up dinner. But my mind was not on meatloaf. No, my thoughts were much more forbidden.

CHAPTER

Twelve

Steve picked me up right on time. I invited him after he told me how pretty I looked. It was nice to have my effort appreciated. I was dressed for dinner at a nice restaurant. We both knew what this date was about, but I didn't want to look like a total slut. I was going to make him buy me dinner first. Besides, just because he was handsome it did not mean he was going to get into my panties. He still had to impress me first.

I was glad Steve looked like his profile pictures. Too many men did not, in my experience. He was in his 40s and tall, with short, graying dark hair. He might not have been as fit as his photos suggested, but he looked handsome and distinguished in his expensive dark suit. I felt him watching me as I moved around the condo to pick up my purse and a jacket. My red shirt dress from Express moved with my body in the most flattering way and fell to about mid-thigh. It tied with a sash in the middle and the row of buttons only reached the deep V that exposed my cleavage. I matched it with a chunky necklace and knee-high leather boots for a fun, sexy look that said I was a nice, normal suburban MILF who knows how to have fun.

We did not spend a lot of time in the condo. I only invited Steve in so my husband could see him on the camera. It was the same reason I greeted him with a kiss on the cheek, because I knew it would get Dave going. Steve held the door of his BMW for me, which earned him points, and we chatted on the drive to the restaurant—mostly about him. I did not mind that. Now that I'm used to dating again, I've found that most accomplished men really like to talk about themselves. And since almost everything I had to say was a lie, it made it easier on me anyway.

The restaurant was upscale, but not too fancy, so I fit right in, though I may have been just a tad sexier than the other women. Their companions noticed, and I enjoyed the eyes that followed me on the short walk to our table. I could tell the attention puffed up Steve's chest too, which was a bonus. He was the type of man who liked an attractive woman on his arm, and he wanted people to notice. We were close to the corner, and I sat with my back to the room. I didn't think I would be recognized there, but it was better not to take chances.

Over a couple of shared bottles of wine and a lovely tilapia dish, I learned more about Steve than I needed to know. I'd known he was divorced, but now I knew it was because he had been unfaithful and got caught. He cheated with a nurse. How stereotypical. He probably decided I was not in a position to judge him. He explained he was far too busy for regular dating, and that he'd figured out he just wasn't cut out for marriage. But he still had his needs, and he preferred seeing married women because he did not expect them to want more than an occasional good time. He was right on all those counts. When he finally got around to asking about "Diana," my alias for the night, I began laying out my cover story.

"You know how it is after being married a long time," I said, as he refilled my wine glass. "It starts to get stale. You're more going through the motions than anything else. I don't want to be bored." I tried to think about what I would say if I really was Diana, because I didn't feel any of those things. It made me think about Erin and Tom again. If Erin was sleeping around, was that the reason—boredom? Jana never really explained why she did it. It was just something she needed, apparently.

"I know what you're describing, but I don't know that I would say I was bored. I was just at work more than I was home. I spent more time with her than I did with my wife." Steve tastefully did not use his mistress's name.

"I have that problem, too. My husband is not around very much." I engineered a naughty smile. "And there's only so much fun my favorite toy can give me. It's no replacement for the real thing."

Steve was very reserved, but I saw a flicker of excitement in his eyes. He was probably picturing me on my back, working some big vibrator over my clit. "So, is this something you do often?"

"Often enough." A cryptic smile this time.

I was enjoying being Diana. Steve's body language told me that he was more than ready to jump into bed with me. He stole a look down at my cleavage every time he thought he could get away with it. His glaze also fell to my wedding rings more than once. Did he need a reminder I was someone else's wife? It was still strange to be on a date and wearing my rings, but it worked for being Diana. Diana was not afraid to take what she wanted—something she and I had in common. It worked with my growing confidence. I didn't feel the need to sit back and wait to be seduced like I did at the start of all this. I had decided that Steve was going to get lucky tonight, but he didn't need to know quite yet.

"I guess it's easy to sneak away if your husband is always away."

"I don't do it every time he takes a trip. I need to be in the mood, and I tend to be picky. I'm not going to go out and just screw the first guy I meet."

"I should consider myself lucky then."

"If you play your cards right," I teased. "Do you meet up with married women all the time?"

"Only when the mood strikes me. Like you, I'm pretty picky."

"Is it my turn to be flattered?"

"I'm sure men are flattering you all the time, Diana. How often do you have to hold your own door? I bet guys do things for you all the time, just to be nice."

Steve was right. I was not one of those women who tries to deny her looks play a part in how she's treated. But I do not dwell on it, either. I knew enough to enjoy it when it happened, but not live off of it. If I tried to get by just on my looks, I would be in for a rude awakening in a few years. How many of us find that we're suddenly just not as interesting, or as funny, when we get into our forties? It's not fair, but it is the way the world works.

"How about we get out of here and I see what you can do for me?"

I JUST COULDN'T GET SETTLED. Dana was out on a date, and I was waiting for her to show up in the condo. She had texted me that things were going well, so I was anticipating a show. I'd watched Steve pick Dana up on the video feed, and when I saw he matched his profile I suspected he would end up in my wife's bed.

Dana met Steve on a dating site called OkCupid. She was nervous about turning to a more conventional dating site, but after the Ashley Madison hack we were done with that site. We took precautions, of course. Dana was on there as Diana, and her face was never clearly visible in the handful of photos she posted. The pictures were from a distance, or the side, with her hair hanging in a way to obscure her face. “Diana” came right out and admitted she was looking for someone to entertain her while her husband was away on business. We both thought it was hotter if her lovers thought she was cheating, for some reason. My wife had no shortage of perspective paramours.

I had felt unsettled in the past when Dana went on dates, but this felt different. Before, it was all anticipation. She was on those dates on her own and she would try to record whatever happened on a little hidden video recorder she carried. Setting up the love nest took some of that away, and it had been incredible watching my wife with her lovers in real time video. I had it set up so that I didn’t miss a thing. It was the perfect solution—or so I thought.

Things had changed for me since that night in the hotel room. Now I was fidgety because I felt like I was missing out on something. In the pit of my stomach, I knew that just watching Dana on video would not be enough. I was at war with myself. I desperately wanted to be there—in the room—while my wife was getting fucked, but I was still terrified of being called a cuckold.

To men like me, there is a difference between what we do, which we call hotwife, and being a cuckold. The cuckold seeks humiliation. We just want to see our wives pleased. My wife having sex with other men does not make me less of a man. But I just knew that if I sat there openly in the room while Dana had sex, the other man would be thinking what a pussy I am. What kind of man wants someone else to fuck his wife? You must have a tiny cock! No. I would not expose myself to humiliation. I had plans to alter the condo so I could be there, but I hadn’t been able to do the renovations yet.

Movement on the screen of the tablet caught my eye. Dana came into the condo, with Steve close behind. They moved through the narrow entryway, which had a coat closet and a powder room off of it, into the living room. Dana barely had time to put her purse down when Steve was reaching for her. I got the feeling that something had gone on before they entered the condo. Dana would tell me later if it had. He pulled my wife into a deep kiss, and she only feigned minor resistance.

The sensitive mics in the condo picked up everything—the click of Dana’s boot heels on the parquet floor, the rustling of their clothing, the wet sounds of their kissing, and the little gasp my wife made when she pulled away from him.

“Why don’t I get us some drinks?” Dana suggested, turning and moving toward the kitchen.

Steve caught her arm and pulled her back to him. Her back was pressed to him, and he held her there, while running a hand down the front of her dress. I knew the look on my wife’s face. She was excited by his aggression.

My heart began pounding. It had taken some getting used to, seeing other men being so aggressive with my wife. Despite my twisted fantasies, I still had a protective urge and part of me wanted to intervene. Once, I’d fought that urge too much while watching—too excited to see what might happen—and a guy Dana picked up at a bar crossed the line. I was barely there in time to drag him off of her. I’d been in the car right next to them that time. Now I was miles away, so I had to trust Dana could take care of herself. There were little stun guns secreted around the condo, and the door to the bathroom was reinforced, if things ever got really out of hand.

“Is that really what you want, Diana?” Steve said in a low voice.

His lips were right by her ear. I watched them on a split-screen. One camera was mounted about the television, and I mostly saw them from behind on that one. The other camera was on the other side of the room and provided a perfect, head-on view of them. His hand pressed even lower, touching her pussy through the dress. Dana was very still in his arms and closed her eyes.

“Maybe I need another drink,” she said softly.

Steve gathered up the front of her dress and touched her see-through red panties directly. He must have felt her wetness, because he said, “I don’t think so. You’re not the shy, reluctant type.”

“No,” she breathed.

Dana laid her head back on his broad shoulder and reached back to hold his head, while he kissed her neck. His hand moved back up her sexy red dress, undoing the buttons as he went. The belt thing came open with just a tug, and he kept going until my wife’s dress hung open. Steve pushed a hand inside it and got a handful of her tit. She moaned and he pressed into her harder. My own breathing was ragged, and the intense tingling spread from my balls throughout my entire body. The rising excitement was just like the needle sliding in for this junkie. I knew my fix was coming.

He pushed into her panties and grabbed her mound. Dana cried out and bit her trembling lip. He must have found her clit because she was suddenly shaking and rubbing back against him like a contented cat. Listening closely, I could hear how wet she was while he touched her. It's amazing how little foreplay Dana needs before she's ready to go.

"Yes," she hissed. "Oh yes."

"You're ready to go, aren't you?" Steve looked pleased by how malleable Dana was.

"Are you just going to bend me over this couch or take me to the bedroom?" she moaned.

I flashed back to Dana on that couch, when she was flat on her back and being taken by two virtual strangers, Javier and Gabi. Gabi went down on her, and she blew Javier. Dana came explosively, but it was just one of many incredible orgasms that night. She was not in for an orgy tonight, but it would still be exciting. My wife was also excited to take on a new cock.

"Lead the way," Steve said.

I switched my view to the bedroom cameras and caught them walking in. Dana paused at the foot of the big king-sized bed and let her dress fall away. The red bra she wore underneath really offered up her breasts, and the sheer little panties featured her round ass perfectly. Seeing my sexy wife in her lingerie made my cock throb, the way it always does. It was so hot knowing there was another man there enjoying the sight. Steve took off his jacket and laid it on the chair, and then unbuttoned his shirt, keeping his eyes on my wife the entire time. She seemed to be posing for him. Dana turned and bent over to unzip her boots, giving him a full-on view of that perfect butt.

"I can't believe your husband lets you out of his sight," he commented. How many times have we heard variations on that comment? Whether they think she's cheating or divorced, every man feels the need to say that if Dana was their woman, they would never let her go. It bothered me in the beginning. Now I just chuckle at it.

"We're not here to talk about him," Dana said curtly.

Steve finished undressing and stood there proudly. I'm not a huge judge of naked men, but I wasn't impressed. His physique was fairly average, and his cock was too. I couldn't read Dana's reaction, but she must have liked what she saw because she walked forward and grabbed him by his cock. She pulled him low into a kiss as she stroked his shaft, while moving him toward the bed.

Dana huffed in surprise when he pushed her backward onto the bed. He stood over her, between her spread legs, and reached down to toy with her pussy. She moaned and wriggled around on her back when his fingers slipped inside of her.

"You've got a great pussy. So nice and wet," he said.

Dana only moaned in response.

Steve joined her on the bed, kneeling down between her legs. He did not throw them over his shoulders but pushed them wide apart when he buried his face in her cunt. My wife gasped loudly when he made contact. I switched to the camera in the ceiling fan over the bed. It was the perfect head-on view of them. Dana was staring right at the camera—right at me—while Steve went down on her. Her mouth hung open and she licked her lips. Her eyes were clouded with lust. The need was written all over her face. It was incredible to watch.

I had my cock out and was stroking it. Seeing my wife on her back like that was perfect—but not quite. I felt like something was missing. The sound coming through my headphones was not the same as hearing it live. Although my view was better than the one from the closet had been, it was not the same as seeing Dana and her lover in the flesh. There was an electricity in the air when I was in the room. Watching Dana on the tablet was hot—don't get me wrong—but now that I had been there it just was not the same thrill.

Dana planted her feet on the bed and was humping her pussy up at Steve's face. I could only really see the back of his head, but by the way his arm was moving, it looked like he was vigorously fingering my wife. He was doing a good job, based on her reactions.

"Oh yes! Yes! Yesyesyes!" Dana cried, holding his head with one hand and grabbing at the sheets with the other. She gave a final cry and locked her thighs around his head—her entire body going stiff as she cried out. I knew the signs that my wife was coming very well, and this looked like a good one.

Steve moved up and kissed her. Tasting herself, Dana probably gave him the hottest kiss of the night. She reached down and held his cock while groping for the nightstand. The drawer was full of condoms.

“Is that necessary?” Steve asked.

“What do you think?”

To his credit, Steve didn’t put up a fight. But he did not just fall on top of her and slip it in. Instead, he turned her around and—with her face buried in the pillows—he shoved it in from behind. He held onto her curvy hips and went right to town.

“Fuck that’s good! You’re fucking hot, Diana!”

Dana tried to reply, but her moans were muffled by the pillows. It was only when she turned her head to the side that she begged, “Yes! Yes! Fuck me!”

The dirty talk had an effect. Steve started pounding her even harder. I loved the way Dana’s ass jiggled when he thrust into her. I loved how her whole body shook. That was all I needed to see, and I lost my load into a handy tissue.

Steve did not last all that long. I’m not even sure Dana came again. He pulled out at the very end and whipped the condom off. Her jerked his cock a few times and then shot his load onto her beautiful, upturned ass. Dana settled down onto the bed, making satisfied cooing sounds. Steve sat back on his heels looking as if he didn’t know what to do next.

I think he was relieved when Dana made no move to ask him to stick around. Steve dressed hastily, and Dana walked him to the door, still nude. I think she did that because she knew it teased me. Once he was gone, she turned to the camera in the living room and blew me a kiss.

“I hope you enjoyed the show, baby. I love you, and I’ll be home soon,” she said.

I took that as my cue to shut off the cameras. Dana likes to perform for me. She loves it that I watch, but I don’t think she likes the idea that I could just be on the other end, watching her as she moves around the condo doing normal things, or even cleaning up after she’s been with another man. There is a camera in the bathroom, but she can shut it off on her end.

I sat back on the bed and decided that I needed to carve out my little voyeur cubby sooner than later.

CHAPTER

Thirteen

I zipped the gym bag closed and turned out the lights in the condo. One of the advantages of having a separate place to go for my dates was that I could go there ahead of time and change into my—usually slutty—dating outfits instead of having to leave home in them. More than once one of the kids had asked why I was so dressed up when I was going out without daddy. And while I could cover myself with a coat this time of year, it also meant that I did not have to worry about the neighbors seeing me coming and going in those outfits. I was much more comfortable in black yoga pants, a warm fleece and trainers, with my damp hair pulled back into a ponytail, than I would have been slipping back into my lingerie and that dress.

The warm, glowing feeling I usually had after a date was not quite as rosy this time. Steve had been okay, but that was the problem. I think I had come to expect fireworks every time. Zach always knew how to rock my world. And being taken by two guys always made my head spin. The last time was more exciting because my husband was in the room. But a regular date with decent sex just didn't thrill me the way it used to. Was I becoming such a slut that I needed crazier and crazier experiences just to get the same high? It made me think of Dave and how he always seemed to be pushing me further.

I walked up the block to where I'd left the car and just as I clicked the remote, a familiar voice froze me in my tracks.

"Hey, Dana. Miss me?"

Ice water shot through my veins, and I tried to force a mask of composure. "Oh, Carlos. Hi."

Carlos walked out of the shadows from across the street, where he'd been leaning against his car. "I can't seem to get a hold of you, so I thought I would come out and see what you're up to. And it looks like you're up to the same old thing, Dana. I have to be honest, though. That guy didn't look like as much fun as I am."

I was so shocked when I first heard his voice that I didn't realize he had not called me Diana. Carlos was using my real name. I was speechless, but he must have seen the realization dawn on me.

"Yes, baby. I know your real name is Dana Richardson. You're married to David Richardson, and his company owns this condo."

"How?" I stammered.

"Do you think it was difficult for me to hang out and see you get into your car and then run your tag? I was running tags of attractive women back when I was a rookie."

Carlos paused for a moment, but I still could not form words to ask all the questions swirling in my brain.

"I never really thought Diana was your real name. Why would you use your real name if you were running around behind your husband's back? If you're running around behind his back."

"Carlos..." God, what should I say? I had to say something.

"I mean, I could see you using an unoccupied rental to fuck behind his back, but why is it furnished? Why the effort to make it look lived in?"

"I can explain..."

I really couldn't, but I could not just let him keep talking. He was also moving closer. My back was up against the Prius. I realized I was trembling, but it was not all fear. Carlos had always had a special effect on me. The way my body reacted to him was almost chemical. I couldn't control it any more than I could control sweating in the heat. His scent filled my nostrils and all I could think about was how he smelled after sex—strong and masculine.

"Unless your husband knows you're sleeping around. Maybe he's even one of those guys who encourages it. Does your husband send you out to fuck other men, Dana?"

I used every shred of willpower to keep my face blank. I did not want to confirm anything he said. If he knew my identity, that was one thing. But it was better for him to believe I was a cheating than to know about my husband's fetish. I did not want to expose Dave that way.

“Carlos, we should talk.”

“Let’s go inside.”

“We can’t, not tonight. I need to get home. Dave is expecting me.” I said it so fast my words all ran together.

“So, is it that he just doesn’t care anymore, or is he one of those freaks who gets off on his wife fucking other guys?”

I stared up at him with wide eyes, hoping to project as much sincerity as possible. “He doesn’t know. We use this as an Airbnb property. He never even comes here. I manage it.”

Carlos stared at me, and I know he was trying to assess my honesty. He had to buy it. He just had to. I didn’t want to think what would happen if our real lifestyle was outed to someone like him.

“I guess I can believe that. It makes sense. There aren’t a lot of those cuckold bastards.”

I had to bite my tongue. I wanted to insist that Dave was not a cuckold, but it was better to act like I had no idea what he was talking about. Carlos helped me stay silent by shooting his hand out and grabbing me between the legs. It was so quick there was no time to react. He pressed his fingers to my mound, and it was like my yoga pants weren’t even there. I whimpered and went weak in the knees, leaning back against the car for support. I put my hand on his wrist, but my efforts to stop him were weak at best. The moment he touched me my body reacted. He had to feel the damp heat of my pussy through the yoga pants.

“Please, Carlos,” I gasped. “I have to get home. Dave thinks I was at the gym. He’s going to get suspicious.”

He pressed into my pussy harder. I gasped and my head swam with desire. He massaged me in little circles and my clit felt like it was going to explode.

“I can always confirm his suspicions.”

“No, Carlos! Please! I think he already suspects something. That’s why I had to stop taking your calls. I couldn’t risk it.”

“But you could risk whoever that asshole was tonight? You’re full of shit, Dana.”

Carlos kissed me hard. My tongue flicked back at his and I melted into him. I could not help myself. I wanted him. Badly. Every cell in my body was screaming for me to drag him upstairs. As much as I feared who I became with Carlos, I still wanted him.

“I think you’re afraid of me, chica. You’re afraid of what you feel around me.”

“Yes,” I gasped. It was too easy to admit that truth.

“If you want me to keep your secret you need to do something for me. Will you do that, Dana?”

“Yes. Okay.” I agreed without even thinking. I really didn’t have a choice.

“Call me tomorrow morning and we’ll work something out. You’re the hottest piece of ass I’ve ever had. I’m not just letting you go like that.”

“Okay. Just please let me go now.”

Carlos chuckled. “Sure, if that’s what you really want.”

I realized that I was working my hips, grinding my pussy against his hand. The front of my yoga pants was soaked. He took his damp fingers and pressed them to my mouth, forcing me to taste myself. It was late, but not so late that no one would see us. Still, I did what he wanted, licking his fingers when he pressed them to my lips.

“You’d better call tomorrow, unless you want me showing up at your house,” he warned.

“I promise. I will.”

Carlos let me go and I sagged against the Prius. He seemed very amused by the way he left me. He just smiled, turned, and walked into the darkness.

DAVE WANTED to pounce on me the second I walked in the door, and it took a lot of effort to push him away. He’d sprung off of our bed and started groping me. It felt good and my encounter with Carlos had left me so turned on I felt dizzy. I did not want to resist my husband, but I had to. When I forcefully pushed him away, he knew something was wrong. I didn’t know a good way to deliver the news, so I just gave it to him straight. Dave was not happy. He paced the room while he tried to think.

“That motherfucker. Who does he think he is?” Dave growled. “I should find him and kick his ass.”

“You need to calm down, honey. He is a bastard, but we need to be careful here. Carlos is a cop. He has the ability to do things to screw with us that we probably can't even imagine. We need to make him go away without antagonizing him."

"How? He's basically blackmailing you. And when you give into it once he's going to know for sure he has leverage."

"I agree, but I also think there's some decency in him. There has to be. Guys like him take their honor very seriously. If I can get him to make a deal with me, I believe he will honor it."

"There's a lot riding on that hunch, Dana."

"You're right, but I know him better than you do. If I can make him feel like he's going out on top—that he has the power—I think I can make this work." The truth was, I didn't have to make him think anything. Carlos had the power, and he knew it.

"So, what are you going to have to do?" The look on Dave's face told me he already knew the answer.

"I don't know for sure, but I think we can guess."

Dave looked like he wanted to punch something. I could understand his frustration. I wanted to say something to make it easier, but what could I say?

"I'm so sorry I put you in this situation. I should never have started all this."

I held Dave by the arms and forced him to stop moving. I looked up at him intensely and made him look at me. "This is not your fault. We made the decision to go into this world together. And we always knew there were risks. I didn't see this coming but doing something dangerous like this has to have downsides. It just has to. I'm just glad he didn't figure everything out. I'm glad he thinks I'm just cheating."

"Oh God." Dave put his face in his hands.

"Honey, we can get out of this. I will get us out of this. It's going to be okay."

The way Dave looked at me broke my heart. He knew I was right that we didn't have a choice. And the thought of what I might have to do for Carlos was killing him. He hated that another man had such power over me. Dave liked to play games, but I was still his wife. I was not for some other man to toy with.

"Dana..."

"I know. I love you. We will get through this, and we will be much more careful in the future," I insisted. It's funny how it was not even in my mind to quit our games.

“I love you, too.”

CHAPTER

Fourteen

It was torture to be so powerless. The living room of the condo was up on the screen—lighting up the darkness—and Dana moved in and out of the room as she got ready for Carlos. It killed me that she looked so incredible for him.

Every time I thought my wife couldn't get hotter, she did it, but this might be the topper. The red sleeveless dress looked painted onto her curves, and it was borderline indecent. I don't know how her tits were going to stay in it, or how her ass was going to stay covered. She'd been pulling down the back of that dress ever since she put it on. Dana teetered in ridiculously high heels. Her hair was pulled up dramatically and her lips were a slash of red that matched her dress. It ate me up inside that all this effort was for Carlos but watching her in that dress and knowing how he would react had me painfully hard.

The doorbell rang and my breath caught in my lungs. My fist clenched. Like the audience of a horror movie, I wanted to scream at the screen, Don't open that door! But my heart was also pounding, because I knew that this was the start of the craziest night of our lives. Carlos was going to possess my wife completely, and as much as my brain hated it, my fetish had never been more enflamed.

Carlos seemed to fill the doorway when Dana answered the door. He was all in black and the outside light gleamed off of his shaved head. He stood there for a moment, taking my wife in, and said, "You look hot, baby."

"Thank you," Dana sweetly replied, kissing him on the cheek. I clenched my fist tighter.

He followed Dana up the entryway, past the powder room, and into the living room. She stopped and posed for him.

“I picked this especially for you. I thought you would like it.”

“I do, chica. But you’re going to wear this tonight instead.”

I’d been so distracted that I didn’t notice he was carrying a little plastic bag, which he tossed onto the couch. The bag did not look large enough to hold an entire dress. Dana hesitated and stared at the bag. I could see she was weighing defying him, but she must have thought better of it. It killed me that she even had to make that decision.

“If that’s what you want, baby. This is your night,” Dana said. She lifted a puddle of black from the bag.

I hated seeing another man controlling my wife like that. Yes, I liked seeing her with other men, and it was hot when she just let go, but this was on a different level. Dana was going to be totally his for the night. But she was still my wife! It was not supposed to be this way. I was turned on, but I was not proud of it. I hesitated to think what Carlos might make her do tonight, because I didn’t want to face the feelings inside me.

Dana held up the garment and at first, I thought it was just a shirt. That could not possibly be a whole dress. I couldn’t even really tell how it was supposed to go on, but I’m no expert in women’s wear.

“I’ll be right back,” Dana told him.

“No, you can change here. I want to watch.”

She took a deep breath, then nodded. “Some help, please.”

Carlos stepped up and swept her hair aside so he could find the zipper tab at the back of her neck. He slowly drew it all the way down her back, to the crack of her ass. He put one hand inside the dress and pushed it off her left shoulder, and then her right. Dana pulled it down past her breasts and he pushed it over her hips. I watched her tits heaving out of that red bra and my hand was on my cock, rubbing it through my boxers. Carlos held her arms from behind, looking down over her shoulder at her deep cleavage. He nuzzled her neck and Dana shuddered. I could see that in spite of all he’d done, Dana wanted him. She wanted that bastard to fuck her right then, right there. It made me want to scream. Seeing my wife in thrall to another man like that was such sweet torture. I hated it but wasn’t it exactly what I wanted. Didn’t I want to see my wife reduced to her basest need?

“I didn’t think you’d have me out of my clothes this fast,” Dana breathed.

Carlos gave a shark's smile. "I can have you out of your clothes anytime I want, and we both know it, Dana."

Amazingly, he stepped away, sitting on the loveseat. Whatever his plans for the night were, he didn't feel the need to fuck my wife yet. Dana looked surprised too—and maybe a little disappointed. Dana looked at the dress laid out on the couch and seemed to make a decision, unhooking her bra and dropping it.

"The panties too, baby. You don't need underwear tonight."

Dana didn't hesitate this time. She shimmied right out of those panties. Before dressing, she turned to face Carlos so he could see her in all her glory. Standing there, nude but for her heels, she looked spectacular. Her tits were full and perfect. Her hips were a beautiful swell, and her ass was round and firm. Her mound was shaved smooth, and already looked puffed with excitement. That last detail made my cock twitch. Carlos stared, and I hope it was hard for him to resist.

It took some effort for Dana to get that dress on her body. It was virtually backless, so she ended up stepping into the tight skirt, which pulled up over her ass when she tried to get the halter over her head without unclasping it. With her head ducked in, Dana pulled the black dress down in place, but it didn't really help. The thing barely covered her.

"Really?" she asked.

"It looks perfect to me, baby," Carlos was very pleased. I bet his mouth was watering.

"But..."

"Dana, baby, where we're going, you'll fit right in."

I could see why Dana was fuming. I loved the dress as much as Carlos, but it was barely decent to wear in public. It had one of those draping necklines, and it draped all the way down to her navel, leaving her tits nearly bare. I could see them swaying when she moved, and if she moved the wrong way—like if she tried to dance—I could imagine her breasts coming right out. And I could see the swells on the sides of her breasts too. She really was hardly covered. It was entirely backless, ending in a V at her ass and a tight little skirt part was only a couple of inches from being indecent. My wife would be flashing everyone who passed by her in that dress. And her black heels with the silver spikes were perfect. My cock was throbbing. I couldn't wait to see it.

Dana and I had a plan. We'd installed a GPS tracker on her phone so I would know exactly where they were going. I was sitting in my truck, about a block away. I'd be able to follow them at a safe distance and then go into whatever club or restaurant they were going to. I wanted to have eyes on them as much as possible. Dana would do her best to maneuver Carlos back to the condo later, but I had to accept that might not be possible, so I would take what I could get.

"So, you approve?" she asked, modelling the new dress for him. She stood directly in front of him.

"You're perfect, baby."

Carlos slid a hand up her smooth inner thigh and then the short distance under the dress. Dana gasped and bit her lip. I knew his fingers were in her cunt. She swayed on her heels as he slowly moved his fingers in and out of her. Thanks to the dress, we both saw the heaving of her tits as her breathing became heavier. His fingers were glistening when he withdrew them. Dana looked like she was going to fall over. He licked his soaked fingers.

"Mmm, just as sweet as I remember. Time to go, Dana."

I STAYED a couple of blocks back, following the little blip on my tablet. I was dying to know what was going on in his black Charger. Was Dana blowing him? Or was he just playing with her pussy to keep her wet, so she was ready when he decided it was time to fuck her—not that I think he needed to do that. I knew my wife was damp just being around that sonofabitch.

Carlos led me all the way through the city and to an industrial area down by the docks. There was not much farther he could go, so I hung back by the entrance to the industrial park until I saw the blip stopped moving. And then I waited another ten minutes because I didn't want to run into them getting out of the car. It was weird that after the car stopped moving, Dana's phone didn't move again.

When I finally crept up on the location, I found an open lot full of cars. Carlos's black Charger was there, and with its tinted windows I could not tell if they were still in there. My cock went hard again when I thought that he could be fucking Dana in there, but the Charger was perfectly still. I parked and looked around.

There were large industrial buildings all around and they were all dark. I couldn't see any indication where they might have gone. Why would Carlos take her to some warehouse? I was suddenly afraid. Maybe Carlos had arranged some kind of gangbang in an out of the way place where no one could hear Dana crying out for help.

Not that I was at all sure that's what my wife would be doing. She had asked me many times where all this could be leading, even asking if I wanted her to be gangbanged. I never gave her a firm answer, because sadly, I didn't have one. My brain said, of course not, why would I want that? But then my fetish crept in and whispered, Why not? What could be hotter than seeing Dana be the ultimate slut? Just because I had those dark thoughts didn't mean I had to give into them, but what would my wife give into? I could not answer that with any certainty, and that both excited me and scared the hell out of me.

Another car turned into the parking lot, and I ducked down in the front seat to avoid being seen. I poked my head when I heard them get out of their car. The man was very nicely dressed and the woman, who was cute but not as sexy as Dana, was wearing a little party dress like the one Carlos had given my wife. He was right, Dana would fit right in with her dress. They walked across the dark street to a nondescript heavy steel door in one of the large, dark buildings. Dim red light spilled out when the man held the door for his companion. The door slowly closed behind them.

Okay, so there was something in that unmarked building. I knew that back in the day raves would pop up in old warehouses, but the women were not dressed for a rave. Luckily, I was dressed up too, so I should fit in. I jumped out of the truck and crossed the street.

I winced when I pulled the door open. I don't know what I was expecting. I was greeted by a blast of warm air and a long hallway with subdued red lighting. I heard the faint bump of base coming from the doorway at the other end. There was a desk with a man and a woman beside that door and they stared at me, waiting.

The woman was a sexy blonde, with hair down to her waist and clad in black lingerie. Her big, obviously fake, tits were very distracting. The large man beside her glowered at me. They waited for me to say something, and then the blonde finally spoke.

“Are you a member?” she asked pleasantly.

“I, uh, wanted to join. I’m excited about the club.” I tried to sound confident.

“Is your companion still coming? We’re not allowing single gentleman this evening.”

“Oh. I wasn’t aware of that.”

The side of beef looked like he was quickly growing weary of my act. He gave me a move along look.

“I’m sorry, sir. Perhaps you could try again on one of the nights we allow single men in.”

“My, uh, companion is coming,” I improvised, knowing how lame it sounded after essentially admitting I was alone. “I just thought I could sign up before she got here.”

“Are you a couple?” Even the blonde sounded tried now. I stared at her tits to avoid her skeptical look. When I looked up, she was staring at my wedding ring.

“Of course. I, uh, guess I’ll wait outside until she gets here.”

“That would be great.”

I kept my head held high as I left, but I felt humiliated. I had just been turned away from some club that Carlos marched my wife right into. He had my companion. I wanted to go back inside and yell at the blonde, I’m looking for my companion! My wife is inside there! I suspected that unmarried couples were not rare there. I desperately grasped for a solution—and then it hit me.

I jogged back to the truck and snatched my phone out of my pocket. There was one person I could call. One person who would understand and would not be shocked by what was going on inside what I was guessing was some kind of sex club. Hopefully she was not busy and could make up a good excuse to get out.

I dialed Jana, knowing she was my salvation.

CHAPTER

Fifteen

Carlos taunted me for most of the car ride, telling me how much fun I was going to have tonight, and how it was the perfect place, but when I asked him where we were going, he was purposely vague. He just responded, “The club.” I thought it might be the club he took me to before, that we would be hooking up with Javier and Gabi again. I’m ashamed to admit the prospect was exciting. I still thought about the night with them, in my darker moments, especially the way Gabi had made me come so easily. Was it just the circumstance, or had I discovered something new about myself?

I stopped trying to pull the dress down over my hips about halfway through the ride. I knew Carlos was enjoying the view of my legs anyway. My lap was barely covered. I had no idea how I was going to walk in the thing without flashing my ass all night, especially with the shoes I had chosen for the night. And the dress riding up was complicated by Carlos making me leave my panties at home. I like attracting attention, but this little black dress was ridiculous. My breasts were just one wrong move from being exposed by the sweeping neckline, and when I sat, I was virtually exposed. I could not imagine where—outside of a strip club—this dress would be appropriate. That was exactly why Carlos chose it. He was going to wring every last drop of submission out of me tonight.

I played with my wedding band and engagement ring, both of which hung on a gold chain around my neck. Wearing them that way was Dave’s idea. Perhaps he did not want to see them on my hand when I was playing with Carlos’s dick. I wondered what he thought about my dress. I knew he had been watching on the cameras. He was probably pissed that Carlos forced me to wear it, and then hard as a rock when he saw it on me. Dave would be out of his mind when he saw me wearing it in public.

I was scared when he drove us into a seedy section of town by the docks. The only thing that kept me calm was knowing Dave was not far behind. I could not think of any good that could come from us being there. Only bad things happen in dark, deserted parts of town. I calmed a little bit when Carlos turned in to a lot with a lot of other cars. At least there were other people around—somewhere.

Once we were parked, Carlos took a little brown vial from his pocket and did a bump of white powder off his pinky. He added a little more and offered it to me. I shook my head.

“It’ll help you tonight, Dana. I bet you’ve never been to a place like this,” he said. I shook my head. He added, “I’m not asking.”

I took a deep breath and did as I was told. I snorted the coke hard, and it hit me like a smack in the face. Carlos laughed, watching me shake my head to fight the burning sensation. As the burning faded, the other effects came on. I was smiling without even realizing it, and suddenly I couldn’t wait to get out of the car. I knew I could handle anything Carlos threw at me. He grabbed me and I returned his kiss like he was a long-lost lover I was dying to see. I practically swallowed his tongue, and the euphoria went right down to my pussy.

“You’re going to have fun tonight, chica,” he said.

I grabbed my little clutch before getting out of the car. It had my phone, lipstick and condoms in it.

“Leave it. Phones are not allowed.”

“It has other things,” I protested.

“You won’t need anything else. Let’s go.”

I wanted to protest further, but I saw he was not having it. My phone was how Dave was tracking us. I hoped he was close enough to see where we were going.

I teetered on the heels when we crossed the street, but I was getting better walking on them. It was way too cold outside for that tiny dress, so I hoped we were not going far. I was confused because it appeared Carlos was leading me to some closed factory or warehouse. It was a big, two-story building without windows and a single steel door, which he pulled open and held for me.

The open door revealed it was some kind of club. A man and a woman stood as attendants at the end of a long, dim hallway. The blonde's lace-trimmed bustier and boyshorts—paired with knee-high boots and fishnets—warned me that this was not a normal dance club. Carlos handed over a membership card and she buzzed open the inner door. The big bouncer just stood there silently.

The hallway beyond was even darker and cut into a right angle before opening on a massive, open floor club. It was very crowded, and it looked like there were different stations around the open area. A large, circular bar dominated the center of the space, and there was a caged platform in the middle of that. My eyes darted around, trying to make sense of all the vignettes I saw, but I couldn't focus on any one. That was probably the coke, which also had me so excited to explore. One thing was clear. We were in a sex club. Fear and desire warred inside me. I knew I could get into a lot of trouble here.

A DJ, high up in a booth, blared some kind of techno, and people everywhere seemed to be moving to the beat, either with purpose or almost as an afterthought. Colored lights in the ceiling alternated, making it even more difficult to focus. Carlos took my hand and led me through the crowd. The men were all well-dressed, and a lot of the women were wearing club wear similar to mine, but a lot of the people were also dressed in all kinds of fetish wear. I saw a lot of leather, rubber and vinyl. I was so fascinated that Carlos had to drag me forward.

"Don't worry. There will be plenty of time to look around," he told me.

At the bar, a tall, skinny shirtless bartender covered in tattoos took care of Carlos. He didn't even pretend he wasn't staring at my chest, but I guess that was welcome here. He returned with a clear drink and a red one, which Carlos passed to me. I knew it was crazy to drink on top of the coke, but I was so thirsty. It turned out to be vodka and cranberry juice. Carlos wanted me as altered as possible. Not a good idea. I was going to have to keep some kind of control. I did not want Dave to see me drunk and drugged out. My husband hated it when I did drugs on my dates, but he loved the results.

It was the first time I thought of Dave since we'd come into the club. If this was a members' only club, how was he going to get in? And even if he did, how would he find us? Looking back, I couldn't even see the door through the crowd.

“I’m guessing you’ve never been to a place like this, have you, Dana?” Carlos leaned an elbow on the bar and possessively caressed my bare arm.

“I didn’t even know there were places like this.” I’d heard of swingers’ clubs, but this felt like something more.

“Finish your drink and I’ll give you the grand tour.”

It felt like he’d just handed me the drink, but I downed it anyway. Before we left the bar, he made sure I had another. We circled around the bar, and I saw there was a low stage on the far wall. On the stage was a simple iron-frame bed, captured in a spotlight. Large video screens on either side of the bed offered views of it. The bed was empty and all I could do was think about who would be occupying it. I had been watched having sex a lot, but I had never been the voyeur. It was hot to think I might see a live sex show.

Now that my eyes were adjusted to the lighting, I observed there were alcoves along the wall, some obscured by filmy, gossamer curtains, while others had the curtains tied back. I saw shapes moving in some of them and I wanted a closer look, but Carlos kept me close by his side. If Carlos took me into one of those, Dave would never find us. I’d have to make sure that didn’t happen until my husband showed up. I tried looking around the crowd, but I did not see him.

One of the corners held a big, black wooden X, which had a heavy, middle-aged man strapped to it. He was hairy, and he was nude but for his tighty-whites. His tormentor was a tall blonde in a pleather teddy that zipped up the front. She wore knee-high boots, and a black leather mask. She wielded her cat-of-nine-tails with a well-practiced hand, extracting groveling promises from the man on the X. A small crowd had gathered to watch them. I found the spectacle interesting, but it didn’t do anything for me sexually. I like a strong man, not a humiliated one.

Carlos led me into a tight, windy stairwell. Navigating the stairs in my heels wasn’t easy, but I don’t think Carlos walked behind me to ensure my safety. I felt the tiny dress was creeping up over the curve of my butt.

The first thing I saw on the second floor was a large, sunken area, with nicely padded couches all around its sides. The middle was one big, cushioned pit. It looked like the perfect place for an orgy. It appeared that people could sit on the sides and do their own thing by watching, or just jump in. There were several couples—and a threesome or two—seated on the couches, but no one had taken advantage of the pit—yet. One corner looked to be set up like some kind of little lounge, with cushy loveseats facing a small stage with a stripper pole on it. An athletic Latina was working the pole for a small group of watchers. I wondered if she was a pro—hired by the club—or just another visitor like me. I love attention, but I don't know if I could get up on a stripper pole. Dave would probably love it if I went to some strip club's amateur night. I filed the idea away for another day—if I ever thought I could work up the nerve. And I'd have to change my workout program to develop the upper body strength for that.

The rest of the upstairs was comprised of small rooms. More than a dozen doors lined the walls, many of them open. Each door had a big window in it, but the windows could be covered. Peering into one, I saw it was little more than a king-sized mattress on a platform and a little table. The table held a basket of condoms. Carlos saw me looking in and pressed behind me, arms around my waist, lips brushing my ear.

"I bet you'd like me to pull you into one of these rooms, wouldn't you, Dana?" he suggested.

"It could be fun," I gamely replied.

His body pressed to mine made my heart beat faster. It was maddening that I could not control my reaction to him. The second I saw him in the doorway at the condo I wanted him. It didn't matter how angry I was at being manipulated. He looked so hot in the tight black shirt and slacks, with his head freshly shaved. His cologne was different, but just as manly as before. I wanted him to tear my clothes off, as wrong as that was.

"The only question is, would we leave the curtain open so others could watch, or would we leave the door open to invite them in."

I did not verbally reply, but my involuntary gasp and shiver told him how I felt about his suggestions. I love being surreptitiously played with in public, so how exciting would it be to have strangers looking in through a window while Carlos gave me the fucking I so desperately needed? Would it excite me in the same way as having my husband watch did? I had a feeling I was going to find out before the evening was done.

Carlos inched up the front of the dress and pressed his fingers to my already-swollen mound. I was wet before he even touched me, and I felt like a slut for being so easy. The problem was—I liked feeling like a slut, especially for Carlos. His finger split my lips and brushed my clit. My knees nearly buckled, and I leaned into him harder for the support. Half my drink spilled. I felt that big bulge in his pants pressing into my back. I could feel how much he wanted me. I wished he wasn't so good at holding back.

"You're always so ready, aren't you, Dana?" he hissed into my ear.

I nodded.

"You need a nice, fat cock, don't you?"

"Yes...please..."

"I'll make sure you get one, but not yet. There's still so much to see."

Carlos took his fingers from me, and I was bereft. I turned and rubbed against him, my arms snaking around his neck to pull him into a kiss. He held me with surprising gentleness and that kiss sent tingles all the way down to my toes.

"Don't you want to have some fun first, baby? We will have plenty of time to explore."

Carlos chuckled. "Don't worry. You're going to get plenty, and it will be all the sweeter for waiting for it."

I pouted.

"If you'd really like something, you can get down and suck my dick."

I'm ashamed that I didn't even hesitate. Maybe I should have waited for Dave to catch up with us—he had to be in the club by then—but I wasn't thinking too clearly. Between the excitement of the club and the coke working on my brain, I was not exactly thinking clearly. No, I did not think. I just slithered to my knees like a good little whore, setting my drink on the floor, and took out his cock.

He was just as full and long as I remembered. I could not help thinking about how amazing that cock felt inside me whenever I touched it. My fingers barely wrapped around the shaft as I held it up and licked it up and down. When I reached his smooth balls, I sucked on them like I wanted nothing more in the world.

Carlos was the first man I'd seen in the flesh who shaved everything down there. At first it was shocking, but it made giving head so much more fun. I could really lick and kiss and suck everywhere without encountering those pesky hairs. I spent much more time sucking his heavy balls because they were nice and smooth. I'd thought about encouraging my husband to groom himself that way too, but I knew he would never go for it.

I was guided back to the tip, and I fed that thing into my mouth. I took him deeper and deeper, and he seemed never ending. I relaxed and he pushed to the back of my throat. My lips stretched wider and wider, and he kept forcing it deeper. Carlos enjoyed fucking my throat. I think he liked the sense of power. And I liked giving it to him. It didn't matter that I could barely breathe. I wanted him to fuck my mouth. He held the back of my head and kept his prick embedded until I was red-faced. When he finally released me, I was coughing and tearing, drooling all over his cock. Carlos looked very pleased.

The area was not crowded enough that I would have missed Dave if he was there. I wanted him to see Carlos using my mouth like that. My husband would have enjoyed it as much as I did. I glanced around as best I could, but did not see him, so I returned my focus to that wonderful cock.

A small crowd gathered around to watch me blow Carlos. There was an attractive middle-aged couple, a single woman, and three single men. The men watched me hungrily. My eyes darted from side to side and having an audience gave me chills. One hand held that cock filling my mouth, and the other dipped between my thighs and I stroked my pussy. If Carlos was not going to make me come, I would do it myself.

Carlos was more eager with an audience. He wound his fingers in my hair and pulled until I felt a sharp, slight, exciting pain. He used my hair to guide me, forcing me to suck him even faster. My cheeks hollowed as I concentrated on pleasing him and the wet sounds of my sucking were punctuated by gagging when he pushed too far. I stroked his shaft when it wasn't in my mouth, and soon he was fucking my mouth so hard I became dizzy.

Usually, I like to look up at the man I am blowing, to see the control I have over him, but I could not help looking at our audience. Still no Dave, but one of the men watching was playing with himself, and the couple were also touching each other. Seeing that was enough to push me over the edge, and I screamed into Carlos's prick as my orgasm swept through my body. I flooded my fingers and stained my thighs.

I was still fully engaged in my climax when Carlos came. First, he shot down my throat, but then he pulled out and strings of his thick load blasted across my face. I tilted my head back and took it all on my face. I did not want that mess in my hair—not this early in the evening. Carlos pumped his cock until I had the last of it, and then he tucked his cock back into his pants. He offered me a hand and I shakily rose to my feet.

"You give a fucking great blowjob, Dana. Your husband is very lucky," he said, giving my ass a quick squeeze.

“Thanks. He appreciates it.”

The crowd fell away to look for something else lurid to watch and I was acutely aware of the cum drying on my face. I wanted to get cleaned up, and I was sure there was a ladies’ room, but I did not know where. Carlos took my hand and led me back downstairs. It seemed that leaving his load on my face was a way of humiliating me—and it did. But I was also strangely excited that people would see me that way. The rules were all different in the sex club. The only saving grace was that it would be hard to see the mess on my face from a distance in the club’s subdued lighting.

We stopped at the bar downstairs, so I could replace my lost drink and I knocked it back, not caring if it was mostly vodka, with just a dash of cranberry for color. I felt the bartender, a male this time, staring at the cum on my face. He only allowed the tiniest smirk.

I was disappointed to find the stage was still empty as Carlos led me around to the side of the club we had not passed. We paused in one corner, where a plump, middle-aged blonde woman was riding something that resembled a barrel that had been cut in half. It was very good, based on her crazy moans. She was still in her red dress. She’d just hiked it up so she could ride the machine. The contraption was on a stand, which was on a platform to make it easier for bystanders to watch. A long cord stretched from the machine to a control box, which a man—who looked to be her husband—was working. The machine was so loud that I could hear it working over her cries and the thumping music.

“Oh God! Oh fuck! Oh fuck! Ohmygod!!!” the blonde screamed, bucking against the machine.

The small crowd around the woman cheered, and her husband was very pleased.

“If you’re lucky I’ll put you on there before we leave,” Carlos commented.

“What is it?” I didn’t know about riding some sex toy out in the open like that, but I was intrigued.

“It’s called a Sybian. It’s the ultimate fuck machine.”

“So it vibrates?”

“Yes, but there’s a piece up inside her, moving round. I’m told getting on that is like having one endless orgasm.”

“Fuck! Fuck! Fuck!” the blonde screamed. She slumped forward and held onto the front of the machine, but she made no move to get off of it.

“We’ll have to come back.” Carlos chuckled. “It looks like she’s going to be a while. Besides, there’s something over here you’ll think is just as fun.”

“I’ll be the judge of that,” I told him, frightened by what he might think I’d consider fun.

“No, I will be, Dana.”

More of the curtained cubbyholes were occupied than earlier. I could see shapes moving through the curtains if I really stared. But then we came across a cubby with the curtain pulled aside and there were two women locked in a passionate ‘69’. Three men stood just outside cheering them on. My slut mind immediately put me into that cubby with Gabi. I recalled how wonderful her pussy tasted.

In another corner of the big room there were several weird apparatuses. I recognized the hanging straps as a sex swing, and then to the side of that was what looked like a gymnastics pommel horse—except this one had rings set into it and cuffs down near the bottom. I shivered as I pictured being bent over and strapped into that thing. It was strange that bondage was the one place Dave and I had never gone. I was finding I had quite the submissive streak.

Carlos stopped in front of a third object. It was a padded bench, except it was waist-high—impractical for sitting. Two padded boards coming off the end were obvious leg rests, and then there were handles on the sides. The opposite end held a headrest, like on a massage table. The only things the piece of sex furniture lacked were restraints. There was a stand beside the device containing dispensers for antibacterial gel and baby wipes.

“That looks interesting,” I nervously remarked.

I turned and rubbed against him, trying to appeal to whatever better nature he had. I knew he planned to put me on that thing, but I was afraid of what would happen next. “Let’s go back into one of those little alcoves. I need you, baby.”

“You’re going to get what you need. Take off that dress, Dana.”

“Carlos...”

Without warning, he gave my butt a hard swat, jolting me against him. “Remember our deal. You’re going to do whatever I want tonight. You are my bitch, and you’ll act like it.”

I nodded meekly. I did not like being called bitch, but it thrilled me in a way I can't explain.

"Tell me, Dana."

I shook my head. "I belong to my husband."

Carlos spanked me even harder. My ass was stinging. Was Dave watching us? I could not imagine him allowing this.

"Of course, you do. After tonight you go back to him. I am only borrowing you for the evening. I can write him a thank you note, if you like."

I shook my head. He palmed my butt, rubbing it soothingly.

"Then tell me. You belong to your husband, but for tonight you're my bitch, Dana."

I looked up at him and bit my lip before softly uttering, "I'm your bitch."

He grinned. "I didn't quite hear you."

I smirked. I did not want to show him fear. He had to know this was a game for me too—because I told the truth. Carlos may have been borrowing me, but I belonged to my husband.

"Tonight, I am your bitch, Carlos."

"Good girl. Now let me help you with that dress."

Carlos pulled the knot at the back of my neck and the dress fell to my hips, where I pushed it off. It puddled at my feet. Several men were gathering, anticipating what was to come, and there I was, naked but for my spiked heels.

Where was my husband?

CHAPTER

Sixteen

I had to wait over an hour for Jana to meet me. Her makeup was done, but she carried her outfit in her oversized purse. Luckily, the dress was tiny enough that it easily fit in the handbag. She climbed into the backseat of my king-cab truck and began undressing. She pulled off her black mock turtleneck and then laid down to unsnap her tight jeans. I fought the temptation, but I could not help myself and watched her in the rearview mirror.

“What did you tell Neil?” I asked. I felt bad about causing her to lie to my friend, but it couldn’t be helped.

“I told him Dana had an emergency and needed my help. I implied she was out and had too much to drink and didn’t want to call you for a ride.”

Jana rolled the jeans down her hips and pulled them off with the socks she’d been wearing under her tall riding boots.

“He bought that?” I didn’t like Neil believing Dana was the type of wife who’d go out without me and get drunk. Did he have his suspicions about my wife? Or had Jana shared our secret?

“Neil doesn’t question me very much.” Reading my mind, she added, “Don’t worry, your secret is safe for now.”

I did not like the for now part. Jana’s enhanced tits looked incredible in a black lacy bra. I had seen her in bikinis many times, but somehow seeing her in her underwear—in the backseat of my truck—was different. I felt myself getting hard again as I watched her and felt a little guilty. It felt like I’d been hard for most of the night. I spent the time waiting for Jana speculating what my wife might be doing inside that club, which kept me aroused.

Jana caught me looking in the mirror, and I looked away. “It’s okay, Dave. I like it when you look at me. And I know you like to watch.”

“This is about Dana.”

“I know. I’m just saying, I don’t mind you taking a peek.”

Feeling guilty did not stop me from looking back to the mirror. Jana had a scrap of electric blue fabric in her hands, and only as she stretched it over her curves did it begin to resemble a dress. Dana’s dress for the evening showed more, but Jana’s was just as hot. It looked painted on, and she had trouble tugging it into place in the backseat. When she’d done her best, she turned her back to me and asked me to zip her. My hands trembled when I touched her.

Throughout all of this, I had never had any intention to be with any other woman. I truly did not want anyone but my wife—that wasn’t what this hotwife thing was about. But being around someone as sexy as Jana when I was so horny was dangerous.

“So, what’s the plan?” she asked, producing platform heels from her bag.

I gave her a brief recap of how we ended up here and the trouble I had getting into the club. Jana took the idea of going inside a sex club in stride. She even seemed excited.

“This is going to be a fun night,” Jana said, smiling.

“Just remember this is about Dana. We need to keep an eye on her with this Carlos.”

I didn’t like the way she smiled. “I’ve heard about him. That’s probably a good idea.” I was dying to ask what Dana had told her. “You’ll blend better with me. It’s better to be part of a couple than just some creepy single guy.”

“Are you ready?”

Jana fluffed her hair and looked in the mirror. “I guess so. Let’s do it.”

When she hopped out of the truck, Jana still had to adjust the dress. It looked even more amazing when she was standing. It just barely came to mid-thigh and the scoop neck favored her tits. Her body was crazy tight. Between that and the big, fake tits, Jana really did look like a porn star. I tried to ignore the tingling in my crotch. She linked her arm in mine and we crossed the street.

Getting into the club was still a hassle. They seemed skeptical that Jana and I were really a couple, but when I didn’t blink over the steep membership fee the girl dropped her suspicion. I did not like the long form we had to fill out. I found the section where we attested that we were not law enforcement was particularly amusing. Carlos must have lied through that section. Jana added her information without hesitation. It didn't bother her that somewhere there would be a record that she belonged to a sex club. With all of the formalities taken care of, we were finally allowed into the club, but our introduction was not over yet.

"I'm Kyra. I'm just going to show you around the club and explain how we do things here."

Kyra was a petite woman with cherub cheeks and white-blond hair worn in a bob that just barely brushed her shoulders. She was very cute and could have been anywhere from thirty to forty. Her skin was flawless, right down to the enormous, pale tits that spilled out of her white bra top. It was hard not to stare at those. She was as big as Jana, but they looked real. Her body reminded me of my wife—which only made me more eager to find Dana. Kyra was in good shape, but she was not gym-sculpted the way Jana was. A filmy sash was tied across her hips, forming something like a see-through skirt over little white boyshorts. I did not feel bad for checking out her body. She obviously welcomed the attention.

"The first thing you guys need to know is that there is no pressure at all to do anything you do not wish to. Everyone here is very friendly and respectful. A lot of couples come here and just watch, before going off to one of the rooms." Kyra gave us a devilish grin. "Of course, it's more fun to participate."

Jana held onto my arm like she really was my wife. "Oh, I'm not one for sitting on the sidelines. I'm looking to have some fun tonight." She noticed Kyra looking for me to say something, but I didn't, so Jana answered for me. "Don't mind Dave. He usually just hangs back and takes it all in."

"Mmm, that can be a lot of fun, too," Kyra replied.

Kyra showed us to the bar, which was BYOB. We had not planned ahead, so we didn't have any booze. I didn't think being sober would slow Jana down. She looked like a kid in a candy store as she took in the club. I already knew I was going to have trouble reining her in.

We found a stage on the other side of the bar, and I was relieved—maybe disappointed—that Dana wasn't on it. Kyra read my expression and must have thought I was picturing Jana up there.

“We have planned shows most nights. There are certain couples, and others, who enjoy taking the stage.” Kyra regarded Jana. “We also welcome anyone who wishes to come up and join the show.”

“How many people can take the stage?” Jana asked.

Kyra brushed Jana’s hand with her own. The little blonde was flirting with her! “As many as you’d like.”

Our guide pointed out little alcoves along the wall, which were obscured by curtains. Kyra said those were for couples—or others—who wanted to go off and have a little fun off to the side. She said if the curtain was left open it was an invitation to watch—if not more. The only rule was to ask before just jumping in, and respect others’ boundaries. I squinted at the dark little holes in the wall and wondered if Carlos had my wife in one of them. He could be fucking her right now. I was beginning to lose faith we would be able to find her in the busy club.

The tour took us upstairs, where there was an orgy pit, a stripper pole, and more private rooms for people to play in. She also pointed out locker rooms with showers, which made sense. Most people probably needed to clean up before leaving the club. The more Kyra showed us, the more tightly Jana clung to me. I could feel the horniness radiating off of her. She appeared to be sizing up every guy we passed, whether they were accompanied or not. I concluded that a lot of couples must go their separate ways in the club, because there seemed to be a lot of single men wandering around for a club that was not admitting them that night.

“Is your husband here tonight?” I asked.

“Ethan’s around somewhere. A lot of couples in the Lifestyle prefer to play together, and we do too, but as we’ve gotten more experienced, we’ve found it can be a lot of fun to play on our own too. I’m sure Ethan is off having fun somewhere,” Kyra answered.

“Jealousy doesn’t really work here, I guess. You need to be willing to let each other go off and have fun,” Jana commented.

Was Jana thinking of me and Dana, or wondering what the future could hold for her and Neil? Despite her hopes, I just could not see her husband going for any of this. Neil’s a good guy, but he comes across as a straight arrow.

“That’s probably one of the biggest issues—jealousy,” Kyra confirmed. “Ethan and I eased into it, just to see if we would have any issues. We had a lot of fun, but we also learned where our limits were. It took a lot of long talks to get to where we are now.”

“How long have you been, uh, doing this?” I asked.

“We’ve been in the Lifestyle about four years. We’ve been members of the club for a couple of years. The club is a fun, safe environment. I don’t know what kinds of experiences you two have had, but we found it can get really weird out there when you’re trying to meet people on the internet, or through other means.”

Jana kissed my cheek and hugged my arm. “Dave here is all about the internet. And there have been some crazy times. But I think the crazier the better, right honey?”

I tried to appear enthusiastic. “Yeah, it can be a lot of effort, but it’s worth it.”

Kyra smiled at me, and I could tell I was being evaluated. She must have liked what she saw, because she came close, pressing those beautiful tits against me. She had one hand on my arm, and one on Jana’s. “I’m sure it was. I bet you guys are a lot of fun.”

“You have no idea,” Jana said, kissing my cheek again.

The tour brought us back downstairs to see the features we’d missed. The corners of the club were dedicated to different themes—or activities. One corner held some kind of fuck machine. The crowd that had been gathered around it was dissipating, and there was a very pleased-looking blonde standing beside it on wobbly knees. Another corner contained several pieces of bondage equipment, with some poor bastard strapped to a big broken cross.

We came to another station with a nice little crowd gathered around it. Beyond the observers, there were six or seven people gathered around something—or someone. Even with my height, I couldn’t see over them without pushing through the crowd, but as I got closer, I heard lusty moaning.

“This is a nice place for guys who like to watch, and wives who love a lot of attention,” Kyra said. “I’ve been on there a couple of times, but it’s pretty overwhelming. I couldn’t take it after a while.

“Sounds like it’s right up our alley,” Jana said.

We moved around until we found a close spot. There were two women and five men touching whoever was there. I caught flashes of skin between the bodies—a leg here, a pale stomach there—but I couldn’t see the whole picture. The woman looked to be laying on some kind of table or bench, and it looked like maybe she was strapped in. If she was restrained, it wasn't involuntary, not based on the cries of pleasure I heard. The people gathered around were obviously touching her, and they looked to be enjoying getting her off.

"This one's a goer," a man said.

"She's so fucking wet, honey. Jesus, she's got all my fingers in her." That was the woman beside him, probably his wife.

"Ahh, fuck. Stroke it, baby," said another man.

The woman on the bench must have been jerking him off. I assumed that meant she was jerking off the man on the opposite side as well. Jana was right, this sort of thing was right up my alley. I really wanted to find Dana, but I wanted to get a better look at the woman in the middle of the action first. I edged closer, but my brain exploded before I reached a place to get a good view.

"Yes! Yesyesyesyes! Fuck!"

I knew that voice. I knew who was on that table. I didn't want to believe it. I didn't want to believe it was my wife on that table. Would she really let herself be groped by all those strangers? I instantly recalled all those times she spat at me: Do you want to see me gangbanged? Is that what you really want? I could never answer her because I didn't really know the truth, but now I was thinking that in her heart of hearts Dana always wanted it to go here. She was trying to ask for permission. But was it what I wanted? Now that I was confronted by something close to it, I had to face the truth. I moved closer. I had to see it for myself.

A spotlight was cleverly placed right above the device—was it a table? Or a bench?—allowing me to see my wife with perfect clarity. Dana was on her back, with her legs strapped down and spread open wide. The woman—who'd I'd only seen from the back—was fingering her, and she hadn't been exaggerating. Her four slender fingers were sliding in and out of my wife's slick cunt. The other woman was stroking my wife's clit. She also played with the other woman's pussy, pushing her skirt up. Dana squirmed to push her mound back at the women's hands. Dana was indeed stroking off the men standing on either side of her, and they were both touching her. They rubbed her tits and played with her nipples, but they were also caressing her all over. Two men stood at Dana's head, and they both had their cocks out. Her head hung back at an angle, and the one man gently held her face and guided his prick into her mouth. My wife opened wide and swallowed him. At that angle, he was more fucking her mouth than she was sucking. I could still hear her muffled cries through the mouthful of cock. He sawed his shaft in and out of her mouth until his balls were resting on her cheek. The man standing beside him just watched, looking amused. That man was Carlos.

I was staggered and I leaned against Jana for support. I had not been so struck since the first time I'd seen Dana play with another man. My stomach twisted, and for the briefest moment I thought I was going to be sick. I think I felt lightheaded because all of my blood rocketed to my cock. Every time Dana had done something new, I'd had the same thought: This is the hottest thing I've ever seen. Foolishly, I'd always thought each new moment couldn't be topped. How wrong I'd been! Nothing had been hotter than seeing this. And I didn't see how it could get any hotter unless the people gathered around began fucking my wife—and it seemed like that was on the table.

But the excitement did not chase away the darker thoughts. Is this what she really needs? Is this what she wants? She's such a filthy little slut! Look at her, loving every minute of this! God, my wife is such a little whore! She needs to be gangbanged! She needs it now! And after something like this, how could coming home to my bed ever satisfy her again? I looked at Carlos smugly watching her. Dana was doing this for him. Had she even resisted? She truly was his, wasn't she? He knew it from the second he laid eyes on her, and I should have seen it coming.

The panic receded and it dawned on me that this was exactly what I wanted. It really had all been leading up to this. And this wasn't about Carlos at all. My wife was only here—only on that table—because of me. She was only with Carlos because of me. This was all because she wanted to make my fantasies come true. And she'd grown to love it. Dana loved playing the slut. But she was my slut. Dana was my little whore, and she always would be. I didn't need to feel insecure. I just needed to enjoy it. This was the ultimate gift Dana could give me.

"She's pretty fucking incredible, isn't she? I thought that night with those guys was crazy. I had no idea..." Jana whispered in my ear.

I nodded dumbly.

"This must be awesome for you. Isn't it?" I thought I heard a note of envy in Jana's voice. Did she wish she could be the center of attention the way Dana was?

Kyra was so impressed, she seemed to have abandoned our tour. She moved down between Dana's splayed legs and winked at the guy at her head getting the blowjob. Was that her husband, Ethan? If it was, Kyra had no problem with him fucking my wife's throat. The women playing with Dana's cunt gave way so Kyra could take her turn. But she was not going to finger Dana. Kyra knelt down and locked her mouth onto Dana's mound, licking her sopping pussy.

Dana bucked on the table the second Kyra began licking her, and I knew my wife was coming. She was choking on the cock in her throat when she tried to scream, and he pulled out, stroking his own spit-covered prick.

"Oh fuck! Oh fuck! It's too much! Oh fuck!" Dana cried.

Ethan kept cranking his shaft, and with a grunt he let it fly. Thick ropes of cum landed on Dana's face and shot into her mouth, which was still hanging open. She looked to be trying to get more of it into her mouth. She was playing the good little whore to perfection.

The man on Dana's right seemed aggravated that in her bliss, my wife was just holding his cock and had stopped jerking him off. He pushed her hand away and took care of himself. Within a minute, he shivered and shot his load all over my wife's tits. The guy on the other side jerked his hand away just in time and looked annoyed. Another bystander stepped up and put Dana's hand on his prick. She started stroking him by instinct.

I was so engrossed by my wife's spectacle that it took me a minute to realize that Jana was rubbing me through my pants. It felt so good, but I tried to stop her. "Jana, don't," I weakly said.

"Come on, Dave," she cooed in my ear, giving it a flick of her tongue while she was there. I shook and tried to ignore how good it felt. "I can feel you need some relief, and I know Dana wouldn't mind. Look at her, how could she?"

Jana made sense, but it still felt wrong for her to be touching me like that. No other woman had touched me intimately since I met my wife, and this was not about me getting laid. But when Jana reached for my belt, I didn't stop her. It all felt like a weird dream and reason had left me.

The man who'd been to Dana's left said something to Carlos, who just nodded at my wife. He then leaned down and said something to her. I was not close enough to hear over the loud music, but Dana agreed to it with an eager nod. When the man moved around and replaced Kyra between my wife's legs, I knew what Dana had agreed to.

“She’s going to let that guy fuck her. Does Dana even know him?” Jana whispered.

I shook my head. The man only briefly paused for a condom, and then lined up between Dana’s legs. He grabbed her thighs and drove into her with one powerful thrust.

“Oh god! Yes! Dana cried, looking down along her body to watch the stranger impale her.

“This is what you wanted, isn’t it? You wanted to turn Dana into a whore,” Jana taunted.

“I...I...”

“It’s okay to admit it, hon. I think it’s fucking hot. I wish I was lucky enough to have a husband like you. I’d love to be your whore.”

She was stroking my cock and I couldn’t lie to her. I was so sex-crazed—just like my wife—that I couldn’t think to lie. “Yes, dammit. I want to see Dana used. I fucking love it.”

“I know you need to come, don’t you, hon.” Jana was playing with my balls. My head was swimming.

“Fuck, yes.”

Jana went down to her knees in front of me, and instead of stopping her, I held the back of her head and jammed my cock into her mouth. If Jana wanted to be a whore too, I would make her one.

My eyes moved between Dana and Carlos. She was staring up at him while she was being ravished, and it looked like she sought his approval. But he was not watching her like I did. He saw her as a toy. A thing to be played with. There was no connection for him. When he was done with Dana he would just move on to the next woman. Carlos was not a threat at all. Whatever hold he had on my wife, I knew there was nothing permanent between them. It was a relief, and it made me angry. It made me angry that this asshole did not properly appreciate my wife.

I was so consumed in my thoughts that I almost missed it. Dana was staring right back at me.

CHAPTER

Seventeen

I had trouble focusing. That second bump of coke Carlos made me snort before I climbed onto the bench scrambled my brain. Every nerve ending felt raw and alive, which made every orgasm excruciatingly beautiful. It also made me feel all powerful, like I could fuck every guy in that club. And now that a complete stranger was pumping his cock into me, I began to think that was going to happen. God, it felt so good to be touched. It felt so good to be fucked. I wanted to keep going all night long. But through all that sex haze I did focus. I had to, because the man standing to the side looked so familiar. I thought it was my husband, but it couldn't be, because some blonde slut was on her knees blowing him. I squinted, and sure enough that was Dave, getting a blowjob while he watched me being molested by a small group of strangers.

If I hadn't been so high the shock might have stopped me. All this time, Dave insisted he didn't want any other women, that this was all about me, and only me. If Dave was bullshitting me, he was certainly playing the long game. I didn't know how to feel about what I saw, and I couldn't think about it because I was too overcome by the orgasms wracking my body. And after a moment, I couldn't see my husband getting his blowjob any longer because my head was turned to the side, and another cock was pressed to my lips. I opened wide and it slid into my mouth.

I didn't think it was possible, but my excitement level rose even higher. It was because my husband was watching me being ravished. And apparently Dave approved! Knowing Dave was so turned on by me tempered whatever confused feelings I had about his blowjob. It was good he was enjoying himself—and who was I to judge him when stranger after stranger was enjoying my body?

The guy between my legs felt good, but he was not particularly big. I enjoyed him, but it only made me long to have Carlos inside me. I was frustrated that Carlos would not fuck me. It didn't matter that he was a blackmailing asshole. He was still an incredible lover, and when I was close to him, I couldn't help wanting him. I feared Carlos wasn't going to fuck me at all but stand by and watch all night.

Balls bounced against my cheek, and I struggled to breathe. The man using my mouth didn't care whether I could breathe or not—he just wanted what he wanted. I had gotten very good at deep throating, but I still need to breathe. And breathing is also harder when you're uncontrollably moaning. I was so possessed by all of that wonderful stimulation that I could not control anything. I was just a pure sex organ in that moment.

As I lay there, allowing myself to be pleased, the disembodied comments fueled my fire:

“She is fucking hot!”

“Look at her, baby, she's swallowing that dick whole. She can't get enough.”

“Suck it, baby. You're gonna make me come!”

“Fuck! Jerk it, baby! Jerk that cock!”

“You feel so good. Oh Christ, that's it.”

That last was from the guy fucking me. I worked my muscles and used every trick I had to try and make him come, hoping that Carlos would be the one to step in. I felt his balls slapping against my ass as he moved faster and faster. He gripped my flesh harder as he pulled me into him, and I knew he had to be getting close. He groaned and then slipped out of me. I knew he filled that condom. God, it was hot! I really had broken all the barriers. I was happily letting complete strangers fuck me. I was letting my husband's ultimate fantasy come true. I hoped he appreciated it.

Another man moved between my legs. The last one had at least asked, and I wanted to push this one away. I was just about to release the cock I was stroking when the man pushed inside me. The prick felt so good that it took a moment to realize he was bareback. I twisted my head away, and the man fucking my mouth reluctantly released me. The only thing that stopped me short was looking down to see it was my husband inside me. There was my Dave, hammering his cock inside me, and it was perfect.

“Fuck me, baby! Give me that fucking cock!” I cried, to cheers from those around me.

Of course, only he and I knew the truth. Dave, and I—and Jana, I found out, when she stepped beside me, replacing one of the others. I knew in that instant that she had been the one on her knees in front of Dave. She’d finally gotten what she wanted, hadn’t she? My anger was short-lived.

Jana leaned over and kissed me. Her tongue swirled into my mouth, and I tasted my husband’s cum. I hungrily returned that kiss. It was so sexy. I wanted to kiss Jana all night. Her hand slid down my belly, and she rubbed my clit while Dave fucked me. Oh, God! It was insane. I came so hard that I screamed into that kiss.

“Can I fuck your husband tonight?” she whispered in my ear.

I nodded. “Yes, fuck yes!”

That was all I could say, because Jana took that strange cock and put it back into my mouth. He fucked my throat double time, and I got that incredible high I always get when I am taking it from both ends. Knowing one of those men was my husband made it so sweet. It was like everything I’d done since we’d started was building up to this.

Cum started shooting down my throat, and then into my mouth, and then across my face. I was a true slut with all of the loads I’d taken on my face. Did Dave love seeing that up close? Did he love his slut wife?

I pulled myself up on that bench, sitting face-to-face with my husband as he fucked me in front of that crowd. He looked at my cum-splattered face and all I saw was awe. Dave looked at me like a goddess. It’s insane, but I had never felt more loved.

“Fuck me! Fuck my used pussy!” I cried, forgetting all about the people around us. I heard the noise, I heard the DJ announcing something about the stage, but in that moment, it was just Dave and me.

Dave leaned close. We could have kissed, but we didn’t. He didn’t want any part of the cum all over my face, and I understood. We were just inches apart, but together.

“You are amazing, babe. You are so perfect,” Dave whispered to me.

“This is what you wanted, isn’t it? You wanted to see your little wife used like a filthy whore, didn’t you?” I teased.

“Fuck, yes. You’re the perfect whore I always dreamed of. God, Dana, I love you so much.”

“I love you too, baby. I love what you’ve taught me about myself. I never knew I needed this until you taught me, baby.”

“Did Carlos fuck you?”

“Not yet. I need it so bad, though. I need his big cock inside me.”

“You fucking slut.”

“Yes, I am! Now fuck this slut!”

I leaned back on my elbows so Dave could look down on me. I wanted my husband to see the cum on my face and on my tits while he fucked me. I wanted this moment to be as perfect for him as it was for me.

To my side, I saw Jana touching another man, while he touched her. The top of her dress was pulled down and he fondled her big, fake tits while she stroked his cock. They were both watching me.

Dave cried out and pulled out, splashing his cum all over my belly. It was not a huge load, but I knew he’d just come in Jana’s mouth, so it was okay. Dave stepped back, and Carlos moved in protectively. It was so weird to have my lover take me from my husband. Dave looked conflicted as Carlos unbuckled my legs from the bench and swept me into his arms. Dave stood by and watched as Carlos carried me away.

“You really can’t get enough,” Carlos said as he carried me through the crowd. I was still nude, except for my heels, and I realized that now I had no idea where my dress was.

“It felt like it was never going to stop,” I sighed. It was good to have a moment to catch my breath, but I was still tingling all over—high from all my climaxes and the coke.

“Yeah, you could have gone all night, chica. Maybe I should have let you.”

“I just want you to fuck me, Carlos.”

“Oh, I’m going to fuck you, Dana.”

Carlos carried me toward the stage and when I realized what he was doing I began to panic. Being a spectacle off in some dim corner of the club was one thing. I was not a porn star. I was not prepared to put on a sex show in front of hundreds of people. I was not that person. Was I?

“Carlos, we can’t do this,” I said, looking back over his shoulder at all the people looking up at the stage.

“Why not? You seem to love an audience, and you said you want me to fuck you.” His tone was cold.

“But not like this. Please, don’t make me, Carlos.”

“Do you want my cock, chica?”

“Yes, you know I do.”

Carlos carried me onto the stage. We stood to the side of the bed, just outside of the spotlight. I was shaking in his arms.

“You need my cock, don’t you, Dana?”

“You know I do, baby. I told you. But not up here, please. I’ll do anything you want, just not up here.” The words rushed from my lips.

“You’re a little fucking slut who cheats on her husband, Dana. You need cock, and everyone is going to see that.”

“But Carlos...”

“I’m not going to force you, Dana. I don’t have to force myself on women. But you gave your word to do whatever I wanted.”

“I never dreamed...”

“If you want me to fuck you, you’re going to climb onto that bed like a good little slut, and I am going to give you what you need. If not, you can walk off this stage and you’ll never see me again.”

Carlos put me down and I was weak in the knees. I could barely stand on those heels. I stared at him, consciously ignoring the people watching us. He was so cold. He was ready to let me walk away. I could see that. He wanted to fuck me, but he was so strong, so confident, that he was prepared to let me go. Carlos knew he could easily fuck any other women in that club tonight.

So, if I could just walk away, why didn’t I? Why was I still standing on that stage? I could not let Carlos fuck me in front of all those people, but I was not leaving. I was not some kind of sex star, but then why was I crawling onto the bed, kneeling on it facing Carlos?

“I knew you would make the right decision, Dana,” Carlos said with a broad smile. He walked closer, unbuttoning his shirt.

When he was close enough, I reached out and unbuckled his belt. I lowered his pants and his cock sprung out. I held him in both hands. That cock was so beautiful. I wanted him so badly. I looked out while I handled his cock and saw my husband and Jana standing near the front of the stage. Jana was hanging on him, whispering to Dave. He looked confused. Did he want this? If Dave wanted me to leave, I would have mustered the strength, but he just stood there and watched. It made me think this was what my husband wanted. He wanted my last submission to Carlos.

CHAPTER

Eighteen

“I bet you didn’t know you’d married a porn star, did you?” Jana whispered.

“She’s not. She’s...” I tried defending Dana, but how could I? If she was going to fuck up on that stage, wasn’t that exactly what she was?

“She’s everything you ever wanted, isn’t she?”

“She is. She is my perfect woman,” I agreed.

My beautiful wife Dana was up on a stage in front of a club full of people on her knees, sucking off another man. Carlos’s big cock stood straight up when she took it out. He didn’t need any help, but Dana still gave him a world class blowjob. I had come twice in the last hour, but I could feel my staff growing again.

“Did you always want this? Did you always want Dana to be a slut?”

“It’s a little more complicated, but yes. I always fantasized about her with other men. I’ve had that fantasy since before her, even. It’s always been in me.”

“Why?”

I glanced over at Jana, and I could see she really wanted to know. It was an oddly serious moment in the middle of the sexiest night of my life, but I think I knew why she asked. I thought back to watching my teenaged girlfriend with my friend, and the first time I felt these stirrings. The night didn’t cause this, it only awakened it. It had to just be something that was hardwired in me. I just wanted it.

“It’s just who I am, Jana. I don’t think I could stop wanting it any more than I could have forced myself to like it in the first place. Do you really think Neil could watch something like this, let alone be turned on by it?”

Her face gave me her answer. “I just thought...if he fucked Dana...”

“Of course, he wants to fuck Dana—look at her. And if he could keep quiet, I’d happily let it happen, but that’s not going to make him want you to fuck other people.”

I looked back at the stage. Even after everything she’d done, after the strangers and the weird fuck-table, I could not quite believe that my wife was doing this. Dana gets off on being watched, but this was taking it to a pro level. I really did wonder if she could come back from this, or if some switch had been flipped that could never be turned off.

Dana rolled onto her back and Carlos mounted her. I knew they were talking, and I wished they were miced. As it was, I had to glance at the monitors to get a really good look. Carlos drove his dick into my wife and her cry echoed through the club. I hated Carlos, but I loved that he was fucking my wife. It was a weird paradox, but I could separate her pleasure—the spectacle of Dana being fucked like this—from the man doing the fucking. Carlos was going to give my wife ecstasy, and that was enough for me. I felt Jana watching my face, reading my reaction.

“Neil is never going to go for it,” Jana said. “It’s not him.”

“You’re right. But you wish you could be Dana, and that’s a problem. I’m not judging you, but it’s not fair to Neil. I like him. You both deserve to be happy.”

“I want everyone to be happy.” She was reaching for my cock. She was as insatiable as my wife. “You feel very happy.”

“You’re really fucking good at that.”

“And you don’t mind me doing it?”

I laughed. “That would make me crazy. I can enjoy you—you’re fucking hot, Jana, but I don’t need it, not like I need this,” I said, nodding toward the stage.

“So, you’re using me to get off while you watch Dana?”

I nodded.

“I’m good with that. I asked her if I can fuck you.”

Oddly, I was still capable of surprise. “And?”

“She said yes. Now come over here and give me your cock.”

Jana led me away by the cock, but not too far. She knew I needed to watch Dana. She sat in a chair at a table and peeled her dress off. For a moment, I was distracted from my wife. Jana really did have a spectacular body, and I’d never really seen it like this, dangling in front of me. My cock surged. She turned, bent forward and pushed herself back onto my cock. Fucking the first other woman of my marriage felt fantastic. It made me wonder if perhaps swingers were onto something.

I tried watching them live, on the stage, but honestly the view was disappointing. I saw Carlos riding Dana, and that her arms and legs were wrapped around him. The view on the screens was much better. One screen showed a view from directly above them. My wife's heels were locked behind the small of his back and it looked like she was clawing at his shoulders as he athletically threw himself into her. The other screen showed a side view, and I could see Carlos holding himself just above Dana as he screwed her. Her tits jiggled with every thrust and her face was turned to the camera side. Her face was a mask of ecstasy. It looked like she had forgotten we were all out there. Dana's entire world was Carlos in that moment.

"They're so hot, aren't they?" Jana cooed, working her hips and churning her pussy into me. "I love watching Dana fuck. She's just so fucking into it."

"She loves to get fucked," I moaned.

"I hope he invites other men on stage. I want to see her fucked all night. And I know you do too."

I reached around and grabbed her big tits. They weren't as fun to play with as real ones, but they filled my hands, and she cried out when I pulled her nipples. Jana was right. I did want to see Dana fuck all night. Just thinking about it almost made me come that second. I looked past Jana's shoulder and just kept staring at my wife on stage. She and Carlos were speaking, and I was desperate to hear them.

"OHH YES! Fuck me, Carlos! I need that cock!" I cried, holding on for dear life. It felt like he was splitting me open. Carlos was never a gentle lover, but it seemed that performing on stage inspired him to try and fuck me to death.

"I love that pussy, Dana. I'm going to miss this sweet cunt."

"Oh god, fuck it. Fuck my pussy."

“That’s not all I’m going to fuck tonight, Dana. I’m going to enjoy all of you. You’re giving it all up.”

“Yes, I’m all yours, baby. Please give it all to me,” I begged. I’d come as soon as he’d thrust it inside me, and I felt another powerful climax building.

Carlos pulled his dripping cock from me, and I whimpered at the loss. I was so close. I tried to pull him back to me, but he was pulling on me instead. I felt like a rag doll in his strong hands. He got me up on my hands and knees, and I wriggled my butt, hoping to entice him to put it back in me. I was facing the crowd, and even though I was blinded by the spotlight on us, I could feel all those eyes on us. Their gaze crawled over my flesh like crackling electricity, and I wanted to please that audience just as much as I wanted to please Carlos. He had fucked the shame out of me. If I was going to be a total slut tonight, I wanted to be the best slut possible. I knew my husband was out there in that crowd, and I knew he was loving every second of this.

The music still thumped through the club, so I didn’t know if anyone could hear us, but I played to the crowd anyway. “Fuck me, baby! I need your big cock back inside me!”

Carlos rubbed his fingers all over my slippery lips, but then he rammed his shaft back inside me. I grunted with pleasure and hung my head while he slowly and steadily took me. I felt my breasts swaying beneath me and bouncing with every thrust. He gave my ass a stinging slap and I cried out.

I thought he would keep spanking me, but instead he pried my cheeks apart and I felt his finger pressing into my ass. I clenched up, but he was insistent. He rubbed his finger—slippery from my pussy—against my tight rosebud and he pressed it inside. I cried out from the sharp pain, but I did not dare tell him to stop. His cock inside me felt too good.

The strange thing was that for all the incredibly slutty things I had done since becoming a hotwife, my ass had never been taken. Dave had never expressed any real interest in fucking my ass, and none of the men I’d slept with had tried anything. Maybe a casual sex partner thinks asking for anal is going too far, but Zach had never gone there either. And now it was going to happen, up on a stage, in front of a crowd of strangers. Carlos pushed his finger deeper into my ass and slowly moved it in and out. I knew he was prepping me.

I was scared, but it was hard to stay that way when his cock felt so wonderful. It kept scrambling my brain and destroying my resistance. All I knew about anal was that it was supposed to hurt and that most women didn't like it. Carlos added a second finger to my ass, and it felt like he was tearing me open. I didn't know how he was going to fit his cock back there. I didn't know if I could even take it. I knew I should stop him, but I didn't.

Confusion reigned. The fingers in my ass hurt, but my pussy was in rapture. It was slowly all melding together, and I started moving against those fingers without thinking about it. As the pain dulled, all of those nerve endings came alive with pleasure. I relaxed my ass, and it felt wonderful.

"I knew you'd take it up the ass, Dana."

"God, Carlos..." I moaned, leaning down on my forearms, pressing my face to the mattress. My ass was high in the air, offered up for the taking.

"Tell me you want it. Beg for it, Dana."

"Ohh...ohh...please, baby...please...fuck...my...ass. Oh god, please..."

Again, he left my pussy, but this time I immediately felt his blunt head press into my asshole. He pushed, and god it hurt! His fingers were nothing compared to his fat cock. I know the audience heard my high-pitched whine over the music. I was practically screaming from the rending pain. His head popped inside me, and I saw stars. I thought I was going to pass out. I was going to beg him to stop, but then he reached around and pinched my clit. I screamed again, and this time the stars I saw were in a different firmament. They blinded me with pleasure.

I don't even know how to describe how it felt. I didn't know I could feel such sharp pain and such exquisite pleasure at the same time. My brain was being torn in two different directions. Time seemed to stop—and then he bottomed out in my bottom. His fingers brought me right to the edge of orgasm, but he denied me. I knew what he wanted.

"Fuck my ass! Please fuck my ass!" I cried.

"Now it's time to really fuck you, Dana," Carlos growled.

I PAUSED in screwing Jana when I heard my wife cry out from the stage. She was begging that bastard to fuck her ass! I couldn't believe it. She really would do anything for him, wouldn't she? It did not bother me that I was not the first man to fuck my wife's ass, but I wished it wasn't Carlos. As hot as his power over her was, I was relieved he would be out of our lives after tonight. Yes, she would always be mine, but their chemistry was a little frightening. Carlos may not be a threat now, but that did not mean things could not change in the future.

Jana hopped off me and turned around to straddle my lap. She sank right back down on my cock and started riding hard. I felt her muscles gripping me, and I knew she was driving home to her orgasm. She pressed her face very close to mine, but she did not try to kiss me. I'm not sure why, but I was relieved.

"This is so hot, Dave. I'm going to come," she moaned. "I want to feel you come, too. Come for me, baby."

I suddenly realized we were fucking without a condom. Probably not a great idea, but it was too late to worry about it, because watching my wife get fucked in the ass in front of a bunch of strangers was too hot for me. I grabbed Jana's ass and started bouncing her hard on my prick.

"Fuck, Dave! Fuck you feel good. Give it to me, baby. Make me your slut. I wanna be your slut!"

I knew she was mimicking Dana, but Jana would never be mine. There was only room for one woman in my life. I was glad we could pleasure each other tonight, but Jana could not be my anything.

"He's drilling her fucking ass, Dave. He's taking that ass and she's begging for more. Do you love your slut, Dave?"

"Yes," I grunted.

"You love Dana getting ass-fucked..."

"Yes..."

"She's so good...so perfect..."

"Yes...she's so..."

I couldn't get any more words out, because Dana was screaming that she was coming, and I was coming, too.

"Fuck my ass!" Dana screamed. "Oh yes!"

"Ohhh, Dana..." I moaned, clutching Jana tightly while my cock pulsed its sweet load inside her.

"Dave...Dave..." Jana shuddered in my arms. She was coming with the rest of us. It was the perfect moment.

Up on stage, Carlos pulled out of Dana's ass and his load blasted all over it, and up onto the small of her back. My wife collapsed to the bed and didn't move. It looked like she may have passed out. Carlos sat back on his heels, and she still lay there. Jana was still wrapped around me, but I felt I should rush the stage and save Dana.

Finally, she stirred. Carlos whispered to her, and then swept her up and carried her away. The audience cheered. People were fucking all around us, in every combination. They loved Dana's show! Carlos carried Dana out of sight, and I wanted to follow, but Jana kept me in place.

"Give them a minute, Dave. I'm sure she needs to get a hold of herself," Jana insisted.

I knew she was right, but I still wanted to follow. This did not seem like the moment to let another man carry my wife away.

CHAPTER

Nineteen

“Baby, you have to stop that,” I moaned.
“It doesn’t sound like you really want me to stop,” Zach countered.

“I told you, I have work early in the morning. I have to go.”

“You have time for once more, don’t you Dani?”

Zach was right. Even though he’d spent the last two hours making me come in every way imaginable, his fingers slowly sliding in and out—teasing me—were arousing my desires all over again. I was sore after all of that, but I knew that if I had him inside of me again, I would easily climax again. My entire body twitched every time his thumb brushed my clit. After all this time together, my young lover seemed to know my body almost as well as my husband did.

“Oh Zach...” I sighed, closing my eyes and enjoying the feel of his hands on my body. I was not going to make him stop.

I did need to get out of there, Dave was eagerly waiting for me at home. No, Zach and I were not in the revamped play condo Dave had completed. My cover story as Dani did not allow for that, but keep Zach was part of the understanding we had come to. All of my other Hot Dates would take place—or end—at the condo, but I got to keep Zach. I just had to make sure I provided videos.

Zach pulled my legs up over his arms and he slid right into me. His stamina really was incredible. As fit as I am, I had some trouble keeping up with him and darkly wished I had some of Carlos’s nose candy, but that was not a good idea. Dave did not like me doing harder drugs, and the way they made me lose control was bad. I also did not need drugs to enjoy my time with Zach. God, he felt so good inside me. I ran my fingers through his hair and pulled him down into a deep kiss.

It was over a month since that last night with Carlos, and the first time I had been out on a Hot Date. We both needed a break after that insane night but, when I was ready to go back to it, I knew Zach would be a good way to ease into things. Carlos had been as good as his word. I had not heard from him again. I could tell from his chilly demeanor—when he'd taken me home nude—that he was done with me. He'd made his point. As exhausted as I was, I'd sprinted up into the condo that night.

Dave and I were left questioning everything in the wake of that crazy night. We were both shaken by the things we found we were capable of, given the right situation. A lot of couples would have turned away from the Lifestyle after a night like that, but the one thing that night did confirm for us was that we both wanted to do this. It had become an essential part of our relationship. We just needed to make sure we controlled the cravings—not the other way around.

And as Zach drove me to yet another orgasm—I promised myself it was the final one of the nights—I knew in my heart we'd made the right call.

I DROPPED my keys in the big ceramic bowl on the console table by the front door and heard noises coming from Dave's home office. It was well after two a.m., so I knew the kids were long in bed. I was surprised that Dave was still awake, despite his excitement over it being my first night out again. He did have to work in the morning. But based on those noises, I knew why my husband was still awake before I even went into the room.

I didn't knock but eased open the door. There was an old, black leather loveseat beside the door, and Dave and Jana were on it. He sat on the loveseat, still wearing his shirt, with his pants around his ankles. Jana was nude, riding my husband's cock. They didn't even notice I'd come into the room.

The tightening in my tummy was a jealousy I had not conquered yet. It was still startling to see my husband having sex with another woman. Was this part of what Dave felt when he watched me? He'd tried several times to describe how it felt, but I never truly understood it until I saw him with Jana. While I didn't have his enthusiasm, it was arousing to see the two of them together. It was not something I craved—the way Dave did—but I could enjoy it.

“Do you think she's still fucking him? Dana's probably riding him right now, just like this,” Jana cooed, moving slowly on top of him.

“Yeah...she can't fucking get enough...” Dave grunted.

“You love what a slut she is.”

“Ohh...she's so fucking good...”

The motion caught their eyes when I moved past, but they didn't stop. I closed the door and locked it. I know how amazing my husband's cock is, so I know why she wouldn't quit, and from the way Jana was moving her hips I knew he was having a good time.

I thought I was done for the night—how many orgasms can one woman have—but watching them brought that familiar tingle back to my pussy. I took off my short leather jacket and dropped it on the floor. Dave's eyes followed me as I moved around behind Jana. I wore a ribbed black mock turtleneck that clung to my chest, and I peeled it off. I opened the front clasp, and my black bra followed. My nipples instantly crinkled in the cool air. Dave's eyes widened. It made me glow that after all these years—even while he's screwing another woman—my husband still reacts to my naked body that way. I unsnapped the front of my jeans and eased them down over my hips with my panties. I couldn't take them off completely, due to the high black riding boots I wore.

“I love when Dana watches us, baby. It's so much hotter,” Jana moaned, still focused on my husband.

“She's touching herself. She's so fucking sexy,” Dave gasped.

A finger slowly moved up and down my slick slit, and I cupped one of my breasts, shiny red fingernails playing with my throbbing nipple. It was so hot that even while they were fucking, they were focused on me. Maybe that's why I liked it. I knew even when I wasn't there, Jana was teasing Dave about me, pumping up his fantasy. She was the only woman I would let fuck my husband. Not only did she get our lifestyle, and understand the way it worked, but she was also my best friend, and I knew she had no designs on stealing my husband, even though she and Neil were separated. She was even staying in our guest room while she found a new place.

Dave held Jana's hips and started slamming her onto his cock. He was not going to hold out while watching me touch myself. I flicked my clit and gasped while biting my bottom lip. I was still totally overstimulated from Zach. I would come easily.

“Baby...your cock feels so good...so fucking big...jesus you love watching her...”

“Fuck yes...”

“Let’s make her come from watching us. I want Dana to see us come.”

“Yes,” Dave grunted. “Yes!”

“That’s it, baby! That’s it!” she cried.

I rubbed my clit faster, pinched my nipple harder. Watching them screw was so erotic. I had fully become a pervert. I didn’t think there was anything that didn’t get me off anymore. And I was at peace with that. I was fully a sexual being. I knew this had always been inside of me, I just never had the confidence to let it out fully until Dave gave me license to explore myself. How lucky was I that I had a husband who wanted this for me!

“Fuck! Fuck!” she cried.

Jana came to a stop, jamming her pussy down onto him. His fingers dug into her toned ass, and she squeezed her eyes shut. My husband and his lover were coming. I knew she used protection, so I did not insist on condoms. It was only fair, since I didn’t use them with Zach anymore.

In the beginning, I wondered what Jana got out of this, since they were always so focused on me, but she just enjoyed fucking Dave, and she had fun playing with his fantasy, she said. And I think it helped her in getting over the end of her marriage.

Jana went home from the sex club that night and told Neil their marriage couldn’t go on—not like it was. She didn’t tell him everything. She kept us out of it, but she did confess to her indiscretions with AJ, and she told him she just could not be faithful to one man. It was not a question of love. She just needed more excitement than one man could give. Jana left the option of an open marriage on the table, but Neil was too conventional a guy for that. He was not totally shocked that she’d cheated, but he was still furious. The marriage was over, and he asked her to pack her things.

Jana moved into our guest room that night, but she would be moving to her own place soon. She was taking the downstairs condo at our duplex. I wondered what that meant for the little arrangement we had going on with her. It was convenient for her to entertain Dave while I was out, but would she still come over when she didn’t live here? Of course, that could only be the nights when she was not out with me meeting men.

I was close to coming too, and I watched as they huddled together. Even as he recovered from his orgasm, my husband watched me over her shoulder. Jana climbed off of his now spent cock and turned to me. Watching her nude, sweat-sheened body made my pulse quicken. My bisexual side was something I definitely intended on exploring, and Jana had gotten me off to a great start.

Jana fell to her knees in front of me and pushed my hand away from my pussy. She locked her lips to my smooth, swollen mound, and when her tongue slithered inside me, I sagged back against Dave's desk and cried out. I gripped the edge of the desk with both hands and urged my hips at her hungry mouth. She sucked my clit and attacked it with her tongue. My head swam and I was coming in seconds. Her mouth felt so wonderful on my sore, well-fucked pussy. I gushed in her mouth, and Jana kept licking and sucking until I finally pushed her away. I was too sensitive to take it any longer.

"You're so delicious. I wish I'd known sooner," Jana said, smiling.

"I wish I knew I liked this sooner," I added.

When she stood up, she held the back of my head and we kissed passionately. I loved tasting myself on her kiss. Our breasts pressed together when I wrapped my arms around her.

"I'll leave you two lovebirds alone now. Goodnight, hon," she said.

Jana gathered her robe from the floor, slipped into it, and left us. I pulled up my jeans and panties but left my top off when I sat beside my husband. I melted into his arms.

"Did you have fun tonight?" Dave asked.

"It was good. Zach was wonderful. I had to pry myself out of his bed."

"I almost feel bad for that kid. I'd hate to have to see you go every time. It's hell to let you out of bed."

"Aw, you're sweet."

"He's got to know he'll never do better than you."

"Ha! You think that now. I'm sure it's hot for him fucking a MILF in her 30s. Do you think he'll feel the same way when I am in my 40s?" It was weird to think of any kind of future with Zach. Surely, he'd find a woman of his own by then.

"I bet you'll be even sexier then."

We kissed and he hugged me tightly.

"How was it, going out again?" Dave asked.

“Honestly, Zach made it easy. Seeing him is not like going out and meeting some new guy. Some stranger. That’s going to be a little daunting when I do it again.”

“You’ll do fine. And you’ll probably have Jana by your side for support.”

“I know, but there’s always going to be the fear of it all getting out of control again.”

“That’s part of the excitement, too.”

I smiled. “I know it is. Just remember that next time I end up in the middle of a bunch of men again.” I said it like I knew it would happen.

“I look forward to it, as long as I can look out for you.”

“I love you so much, Dave.”

“Not as much as I love you.”

“Let’s go up to bed.”

We walked hand-in-hand up to our bedroom. Both of us were wondering what the future would bring. There would be more crazy adventures, I knew there would be more nights that made me question my sanity, but I knew that as long as Dave was at my side, that I always had him to come home to, I could do anything. I could indulge any fantasy. We came through the test of that last night with Carlos even stronger than before. We knew nothing could break us now. Let the adventures begin!

Afterword

Coming to the end of a trilogy like this is daunting. So many people have come along for the ride that I'm always going to second guess myself. Did I stick the landing? Did I tie up all the loose ends the readers wanted to see? Of course, the answers to those questions are myriad and unknowable. All I can say is that I told the story I wanted to tell, and I hope you all enjoyed reading it as much as I enjoyed writing it. Dana and Dave will live on in my imagination—and will probably pop up again sometime, somewhere—and I hope they will live on in yours.

With a project as long as this, there are always a lot of people to thank. Kenny Wright is always a reliable sounding board, plus he provides me with great covers. Gary was come to be a good friend and an excellent editor. Whatever flaws and mistakes that may have slipped through are my responsibility, not his. @DaPope is always there to provide interesting perspectives on writing, and the topic of hotwifing specifically. And of course, I have to thank my family, who give me the time and space to write, and my husband, who is always there with a thought, an idea, or just the right criticism to get me over the hump and writing again.
