

My Boss Offered Us Dinner... And Ended Up Having My Wife As Dessert (Part 1)

A powerful CEO invites a young couple to his luxury home for dinner. But as intimate secrets emerge and desires awaken, Jeff watches...

Part 1 of a brand new 2-part cuckold story.

Part 1

The house came into view as we turned the corner, its sleek modern lines glowing softly in the evening light. It wasn't a mansion — not quite — but it was the kind of home you'd only see on magazine covers or TV shows about people who had 'made it.' Large glass panels reflected the landscaped garden out front, and the understated luxury of the stone facade hinted at the wealth of the man inside.

I parked near the curved driveway, where a valet stood waiting. Beside me, Leigh shifted in her seat, smoothing the pale silver dress she'd chosen for the evening. The fabric hugged her in all the right places, her toned legs visible through the subtle slit in the skirt, the seatbelt dividing her full, heavy breasts. She turned to me, her platinum blonde hair brushing against her shoulders.

"You nervous?" she asked, her green eyes sparkling in the soft light.

"A little," I admitted, cutting the engine. "It's not every day your boss invites you to his house."

She smiled, her hand resting on mine briefly. "Just be yourself. He obviously thinks highly of you."

I wasn't sure about that. Ethan wasn't the kind of man who made his intentions obvious. When he'd invited us to dinner, I couldn't help but wonder if there was some hidden motive, some test I wasn't aware of. The valet opened Leigh's door, and I stepped out quickly to meet her. She was radiant tonight, her heels tapping softly on the polished stone of the driveway. For a moment, I regretted bringing her here — regretted how stunning she looked — because I knew Ethan had an eye for the ladies, especially the pretty ones.

The front door opened as we approached, and a butler in a tailored suit greeted us. "Mr. and Mrs. Warner," he said with a polite nod.

"Welcome. Please come in."

We stepped into the entryway, and my stomach twisted. The interior was as impressive as the exterior — minimalist but impossibly expensive, with clean lines, high ceilings, and carefully chosen decor that spoke of quiet sophistication. Everything about it screamed money, even though it wasn't loud about it.

And then he appeared.

Tall and broad, his tailored shirt open at the collar, Ethan looked like the very definition of confidence. His silver hair was neatly combed, and his piercing eyes locked onto us immediately.

"Jeff," he said, his deep voice smooth and welcoming. "I'm glad you could make it."

I extended my hand, his grip firm and commanding. "Thank you for inviting us, sir."

"Ethan," he corrected with a small smile before his gaze shifted to Leigh.

"And you must be Leigh," he said, his voice softening slightly as he took her hand. "You're even more beautiful than the photo I've seen." Leigh blinked, a flicker of confusion crossing her face. "Photos?"

Ethan's smile widened. "Your husband has a lovely family photo on his desk. Hard not to notice you in it."

My stomach tightened as Leigh's polite smile returned, but her eyes flicked to mine briefly. "Oh," she said softly. "Thank you."

"Come," Ethan said, gesturing toward the open living area. "Let's get you both comfortable. The others have arrived, but there's plenty of time for us to get to know each other before dinner."

Ethan led us through the house, his presence dominating the space as effortlessly as the decor. The living area opened into a wide, airy space lined with glass walls that overlooked a perfectly landscaped garden. Subtle lighting illuminated a small group of people mingling near a sleek bar setup on the far side of the room.

Leigh's hand brushed mine as we followed Ethan. She hadn't said much since his comment about her photo, but I could feel her unease — or maybe it was just me projecting mine.

The guests turned as we approached, a mix of faces that ranged from polished professionals to effortlessly glamorous. Ethan moved between them, exchanging brief words and smiles before steering us toward the bar.

"Please, make yourselves at home," he said, gesturing to the bar and the seating area nearby. "There's champagne, cocktails, anything you'd like."

"I'll take a white wine," Leigh said, her voice polite but a touch nervous.

Ethan nodded to the bartender, who set to work immediately. "And for you, Jeff?"

"Whiskey," I replied, hoping it might steady my nerves.

Ethan smiled knowingly as if he could sense exactly how I felt. "Good choice."

As our drinks arrived, Ethan leaned casually against the bar, his eyes never straying far from Leigh. "I have to admit, I've been curious about meeting you ever since Jeff joined the company," he said, his tone conversational but with a hint of something deeper.

"Me?" Leigh asked, blinking in surprise.

"Yes," Ethan replied, swirling his drink. "As I mentioned, I noticed your photo on Jeff's desk almost immediately. It's a beautiful picture. You look stunning in it."

Leigh glanced at me, a small smile tugging at her lips. "That's very kind of you to say."

Ethan tilted his head, his gaze unwavering. "It's just the truth."

The air felt charged, and I could feel the heat creeping up the back of my neck. Leigh, to her credit, handled it with grace, sipping her wine and offering polite responses. Ethan, on the other hand, was relentless in his charm, steering the conversation with precision, always circling back to her.

Dinner in the main dining room was incredible. A beautiful seafood platter was brought out to start, which was so delicious that I wondered how the main course could top it. But it did. Beef Wellington with all the trimmings left me full and satisfied. As the evening progressed, the group of guests began to thin out, retreating to other parts of the house for what Ethan vaguely described as 'discussions.' It wasn't long before the three of us were alone in the living area.

"It's nice to see a couple so close," Ethan said, leaning forward slightly. "I mean, Jeff speaks so highly of you, Leigh."

Leigh smiled, her cheeks flushing. "That's sweet of him."

"Sweet, yes," Ethan said, a faint smirk tugging at his lips. "Though I can't help but wonder if he's holding back a little. Sometimes, you have to see something to really appreciate it."

I felt my stomach tighten again, his words laced with suggestion. Leigh laughed softly, shifting in her seat. "I'm not sure what you mean."

Ethan took a long sip of his drink, his eyes glinting with something predatory. "Let's just say I've been fortunate enough to see more of you than most."

Leigh's brow furrowed, confusion flashing across her face. "More of me?"

I gave Ethan an urgent look. What was he about to tell her? And why? He ignored me and set his glass down carefully, leaning back in his chair like a man completely in control. "The photos. The ones Jeff showed me."

Leigh turned to me, her expression a mix of shock and confusion. "Photos?"

I opened my mouth, but no words came out. I tried to signal for him to stop but he kept his eyes trained on my wife.

Ethan smiled, clearly enjoying the moment. "It's nothing to be upset about. You look great in them. The first ones were just casual pictures, and then... well, he showed me your more personal ones. Your husband was proud to share them. And I can't blame him for that."

"Jeff," Leigh said, her voice sharp now. "Is that true?"

I swallowed hard, my face burning. "It was — it wasn't like that, Leigh. He... he asked, and I..."

Ethan held up a hand, cutting me off. "It was harmless, Leigh. And I hope you know it was only curiosity... and admiration. You're stunning. We've talked about it since. Jeff knows how lucky he is."

Leigh looked between us, her cheeks flushed and her breathing quick. For a moment, I thought she might stand up, might demand we leave. But then her lips parted, her voice softening.

"By personal you mean... You saw my nudes?" she asked, almost to herself.

Ethan's smile deepened. "Yes. And they were breathtaking."

Leigh's hand tightened on her glass, her knuckles white. I couldn't tell if she was furious, flattered, or something else entirely.

"I've never shown anyone your photos before," I stammered, trying to salvage what I could. "But Ethan... he has a way of... asking."

"I hope I haven't upset you," Ethan said, his tone smooth, his expression unreadable. "That was never my intention. I only wanted to say how much I admire you, Leigh. Both of you."

Leigh's eyes flicked back to me, her lips pressing into a thin line. The room felt impossibly still, the weight of Ethan's presence almost suffocating.

And then, Leigh took a slow sip of her wine, setting the glass down deliberately. "I think I need some air," she said, standing.

"Of course," Ethan said, standing as well. "I'd be happy to show you the garden."

She glanced at me briefly, as if waiting for some kind of permission. But before I could respond, she nodded and followed Ethan toward the glass doors leading outside.

I stayed where I was, my heart pounding as I watched them disappear into the night. I sat there, memory flooding back to that afternoon in Ethan's office three weeks ago. He'd caught me looking at Leigh's photo on my desk, had commented on her beauty in that casual yet commanding way of his. I'd thanked him politely, but he'd pressed on, asking if I had more photos. Before I knew it, I was showing him pictures from my phone — innocent ones at first, vacation shots, family gatherings. But Ethan had a way of making each request seem natural, inevitable. "I'll show you some pictures of my wife," he'd said, his voice carrying that hint of challenge that made me want to prove myself. The next thing I knew, I was looking at Helen, his wife, a stunning brunette. But as he scrolled through the pictures on his phone, they turned from professional headshots and modelling photographs to more casual pictures, then to much more intimate pictures. Even as he showed me his naked wife, lying on their bed, fully exposed, her legs open, everything on show, he didn't flinch. "Don't you think she's beautiful?" he'd asked and I'd only nodded, unable to find my voice. He continued showing me more, until eventually, he stopped, considering me. "You must have nudes too, right? Of your lovely wife?"

I'd hesitated then, knowing I should stop, but something in me wanted to impress him, wanted his approval. And if I was honest with myself, which I rarely was, showing him those private photos of Leigh had given me a forbidden thrill I'd never expected. Now, watching him lead my wife through his garden, I felt a mixture of anger at his manipulation and dread at what Leigh must be thinking. He'd dropped me right in it, exposed my secret without a second thought, and yet... part of me was still caught in that same web of excitement and shame that had made me show him those photos in the first place. I took another long drink, wondering what words he was using on Leigh right now and if they were as effectively persuasive as the ones he'd used on me.

Through the glass doors, I watched them move deeper into the garden. My whiskey glass trembled slightly in my hand as Ethan guided Leigh toward a secluded seating area. His tall frame towered over her, and the landscape lighting cast dramatic shadows, making him appear even more imposing.

"Another drink, sir?" the bartender asked, startling me from my thoughts.

I nodded, unable to tear my eyes away from the scene outside. Ethan had leaned in close to Leigh, his hand resting casually on the small of her back. Even from here, I could see how his presence commanded the space around her. He spoke, and she laughed — that same nervous laugh she'd given earlier, but with something else in it now.

My mind raced with conflicting emotions. Part of me wanted to rush out there, to stop whatever was happening. But another part, a deeper, darker part I'd never acknowledged, felt an electric thrill watching this powerful man pursue my wife. The way his broad shoulders blocked my view of her, the confident way his hand moved to her waist — it all sent shivers down my spine.

My face burned as I remembered how easily he'd convinced me to share those images. How his subtle hints about my career had mixed with my own secret excitement until I found myself showing him everything. First, a simple photograph of her in the shower, smiling at me shyly, then a picture I'd stolen of her lying on our bed in just her panties. Then the more explicit pictures. Ones we'd taken before — and after — sex.

Helen, Ethan's wife, the woman I'd seen in his own explicit photos, appeared beside me suddenly. "Don't worry," she said, her voice knowing. "He always gets what he wants. And from the way your wife is looking at him..." She left the sentence hanging, a slight smirk playing on her lips.

I drained my whiskey, watching as Ethan led Leigh toward another of the house's wings. When she glanced back at me, her cheeks were flushed, her eyes bright with something I'd never seen before. Ethan's hand remained firmly on her waist, guiding her with the confidence of a man who knew exactly where this evening was heading.

My legs felt weak as I stood up to follow them but right then, Helen sat beside me, taking my hand and bidding me to sit down again. I sat for a moment, the memory of those intimate photos Ethan had shown me making my face burn. I couldn't help but picture her bare body — those full breasts, that neat dark triangle between her legs — so different from Leigh's smooth skin. I shifted uncomfortably, trying to focus on anything else. I needed to follow Ethan and my wife.

"First time at one of our gatherings?" Helen asked, her knowing smile making it clear she noticed my discomfort. Her hand touched mine. She knew I wanted to go to Leigh.

Before I could answer, a young woman approached us. She was stunning — blue eyes sparkling and auburn waves framing her face perfectly. She couldn't have been more than twenty-five.

"You must be Jeff," she said, extending her hand. "I'm Gemma. I hear you're taking over my position when I leave next week."

I blinked in surprise. This was my predecessor? Ethan hadn't mentioned her and I hadn't seen her around the office. She was very good-looking.

"Oh yes," Helen interjected, her tone carrying a subtle edge.

"Gemma's moving on to... bigger things, aren't you dear?"

"Yes." Gemma's smile tightened slightly. There was a clear tension between the two women. What was that about? She glanced toward the wing of the house where my wife had disappeared with her boss.

"Right. Well, good luck with everything, Jeff. Ethan can be... demanding. You might want to watch him with your wife."

She gave Helen another tight smile, then walked away, leaving us alone. Ethan's wife watched her leave, lips curling into a slight sneer.

"One of his little toys," she said dismissively, sipping her champagne.

"He's been sleeping with her for months. But she got clingy and started wanting more. Ethan doesn't do 'more.' Well, not with his playthings anyway."

My stomach churned at her casual revelation. Is that what this evening was about? Was Leigh just another potential 'toy' to him?

"I need to go to Leigh," I explained, extricating my hand from her grip finally. "What did Gemma mean by 'watch him with your wife'?"

"Oh, don't be so worried," Helen said, patting my knee. "At least your wife is old enough to know what she's getting into. She won't do anything she doesn't to, will she?"

I shifted uncomfortably in my seat, Helen's words hanging heavy in the air between us. "No. She knows her own mind. But..."

I trailed off, doubts lingering and Helen must have read my thoughts because she leaned closer, her expensive perfume filling my senses.

"You know," she said, her red lips curved in a knowing smile, "Ethan has always had a type. Strong, beautiful women who understand... discretion. Your Leigh fits that profile perfectly." She gave my knee a gentle squeeze that felt both maternal and predatory at the same time.

"And of course, understanding husbands tend to do very well here. Their career paths often take off." My mind spun with the implications of her words, thinking of my recent promotion, of the way Ethan had been grooming me these past couple of months.

"Career path?" I asked, my mouth dry. Helen's perfectly manicured hand still rested on my knee.

"Oh, darling," she laughed softly, taking another sip of champagne.

"You don't think all those executives got where they are just by working hard, do you? Ethan likes to surround himself with... understanding people. And their beautiful wives."

The implications made my head spin. "I don't..."

"Your Leigh," Helen continued, her dark eyes glinting, "She has that look. The same look some of his favourite playmates have. Did you know he had a centrefold last year? And there's a couple of adult film actresses who come to all our parties..." She waved her hand dismissively. "Your wife could fit right in. That's a compliment, by the way."

I shifted uncomfortably, unable to stop picturing Leigh in those situations. "Look, I should really..."

"The last VP's wife was a dancer," Helen mused, seemingly enjoying my discomfort. "Very flexible. They got a lovely vacation home in the Hamptons out of that arrangement." She leaned closer, her perfume expensive and intoxicating. "Just something to think about."

"And you don't mind?"

"I am getting a little tired of it, I admit, but he doesn't have full-on affairs. If he did... if he got too into one girl, then that might be a different conversation. But for now, well, it keeps him from pestering me for sex," she answered honestly. "Oh, I like sex as much as the next woman, but there are certain things I draw the line at. Being filmed is one of them."

My face burned as I stood up. "I need to find Leigh."

"Of course you do," Helen smiled knowingly. "Down that hall, third door on the right. That's where he always takes them." She raised her glass in a mock toast. "Good luck with your... career advancement."

I hurried away from her, my heart pounding. When I looked over my shoulder she was walking away, heading up a spiral staircase, retiring from the party. I shuddered. What a weird relationship they had.

The hallway seemed to stretch endlessly before me as I headed in the direction Helen had indicated, each step echoing my rising panic. What had I done? Showing Ethan those photos, letting him lead Leigh away... I had to stop this before it went too far.

The third door loomed ahead. I could hear muffled voices inside but before I could reach for the handle, the door opened and Emmie stepped out. I recognized her instantly from the office — those striking hazel eyes and wavy blonde hair were unmistakable. Unlike everyone else here, she wasn't dressed up. Instead, she was wearing her office attire, a grey pencil skirt and tight white blouse that fitted her perfectly.

"Jeff," she smiled, looking me up and down with curious eyes. "I wondered where you were."

"Emmie, hi." My throat felt dry. I'd seen her around the office plenty of times, always turning heads, always seemingly in Ethan's orbit. Now, knowing what Helen had just told me about his 'arrangements,' her presence here took on new meaning. "You wondered where I was?"

"I was just chatting with your wife," she said, smoothing her dress.

"She's lovely. Very... innocent." There was something in the way she said it that made my stomach twist. "I never usually come to Ethan's parties. This is my first time, so I was surprised when he introduced Leigh and told me she was your wife."

"My first time too," I smiled, eager to get past her and find Ethan and Leigh.

"Have you met Ethan's wife?" Emmie's hazel eyes looked worried as she scanned the corridor over my shoulder. "I've just brought Ethan some documents and I'm leaving now but I don't want to bump into her. I've never met her and from what he tells me about her, I want to."

"Black hair. Good looking," I nodded, then reassured her, "She was back in the living area but she was heading upstairs the last time I saw her."

"Great," Emmie smiled. "Hopefully I won't run into her then. I should be going, but I'll see you at work on Monday?"

I nodded, unable to form words as she brushed past me, her musky perfume lingering in the air. Taking a deep breath, I pushed open the door.

The room was dimly lit, and there they were — Ethan and Leigh, standing by the window. He towered over her, one hand resting on the wall beside her head as he leaned in close, speaking in low tones. Too close. My wife's cheeks were flushed, her chest rising and falling rapidly as she looked up at him.

They both turned at my entrance, but neither jumped apart guiltily. If anything, Ethan seemed pleased to see me.

"Just giving your lovely wife a tour," Ethan said, his deep voice filling the room. He held a stack of papers in his hand — the documents Emmie had brought. My mind wandered briefly, wondering if he'd seduced her too, if that explained her nervousness about Helen.

"It's incredible," Leigh breathed, her eyes bright with excitement.

"You should see his art collection. And he tells me the views from up there..." She gestured to the floor-to-ceiling windows behind them and a balcony that topped a wide staircase.

"Could I..." I cleared my throat, trying to steady my voice. "Could I speak with my wife for a moment? Privately?"

Ethan's smile didn't waver, but something flickered in his eyes. "Of course," he said, straightening to his full height. "Though I was just about to show her the east wing. The sunset view from the master suite is..." he paused meaningfully, his gaze lingering on Leigh, "... quite spectacular."

Leigh's cheeks flushed deeper, and she didn't quite meet my eyes.

"I've been enjoying your wife's company greatly," Ethan continued, setting the papers down on a sleek desk nearby. "She has such... interesting perspectives on things." The way he said it made my stomach twist, wondering what they'd been discussing before I arrived.

"It'll just take a minute," I managed.

"Take all the time you need," Ethan replied smoothly, though his tone suggested he knew exactly how this would play out. "I'll be right outside." He moved past me toward the door, his presence overwhelming in the confined space. At the threshold, he turned back, his silver hair catching the dim light. "Though Leigh, don't let me forget to show you that particular view I mentioned. It would be..." his lips curved into a knowing smile, "...a shame to miss it."

The door closed behind him with a soft click, leaving me alone with my wife and a thousand unspoken words hanging in the air between us.

Leigh stood by the window, arms crossed, her face a mix of emotions in the dim light.

"I can't believe you showed him our pictures," she said, her voice tight. "Though I have to admit... it's quite flattering that a man like him enjoyed seeing them."

"What? Look, Leigh, I'm so sorry. I never showed anyone else, I swear." I moved closer, but she held up a hand. "Maybe we should leave, or at least go back to the other guests."

"And why would we do that?" Her green eyes fixed on me. "Are you feeling threatened by Ethan or something?"

"It's not like that. Look, you should know, he has a reputation. Helen, his wife, she told me about his... arrangements. He has lovers. Playthings, I think she called them."

Leigh's lips curved into a slight smile. "Playthings? Is that what I could be?" She stepped closer, her blackcurrant perfume filling my senses. "Maybe I should be flattered. Having a sugar daddy like Ethan... well, it certainly wouldn't hurt your career, would it?"

"You're joking, right?"

"Am I?" Her eyes flashed. "Jeff, you showed him my most intimate photos without asking. He tells me he's seen everything. The ones you took after you'd fucked me and finished on my breasts. He's seen my pussy, me sucking your dick. Clearly, you wanted him to see me naked. To desire me." She straightened her dress, a gesture that seemed somehow defiant. "So here's what's going to happen — I'm going to continue my tour with Ethan. And if you don't like that... well, maybe you shouldn't show off your wife's sex pictures in future." She moved toward the door, pausing with her hand on the handle.

"Ethan's waiting to show me the rest of the house. Don't follow us. Go talk to his wife again or something."

"Are you kidding me?" I hissed, growing more and more annoyed by the second. Yes, I'd fucked up by showing him her nudes but the way she was treating me was outrageous.

"No, I'm not kidding." Leigh folded her arms beneath her curvy breasts, shoving them up so they threatened to spill out of the front of her silvery dress. Her platinum hair shimmered in the light from the chandelier above us and her green eyes flashed threateningly for a second, before softening as I stared at her.

"Okay, yes. I'm sorry. I'm just angry, Jeff." She tossed her hair over her shoulder and straightened again. "You need to let me have some time on my own. You say Ethan's got a reputation but don't you trust me? Let me get to know him a little. Let him think he's getting somewhere with me, it won't hurt your job."

"But — "

"No buts," she interrupted me. "I need some time away from you, Jeff. I don't think you appreciate how upset I am with you. Let Ethan show me around. It'll give me time to think, to calm down. Then maybe I'll forgive you when I come back."

With that, she left. The door clicked shut behind her, leaving me alone with my churning thoughts and the faint scent of that blackcurrant perfume.

My Boss Offered Us Dinner... And Ended Up Having My Wife As Dessert (Part 2)

After their intense encounter with wealthy CEO Ethan, Jeff and Leigh's marriage has shifted into new territory. As hidden truths emerge...

Part 2

For several long moments, I just stood there, my mind racing between anger at her dismissal and guilt over showing those photos to Ethan. My eyes fell on the papers Emmie had left — the ones Ethan had barely glanced at before setting them aside.

Something about their placement seemed deliberate. Too casual, like they'd been meant for me to find. My hands trembled slightly as I reached for them, the expensive paper cool against my fingers. The first page was straightforward enough — my new contract, detailing the promotion I'd been so proud of just days ago. But paperclipped to it was a manila envelope, unmarked except for today's date written in Ethan's bold hand. Inside was a photograph that made my heart lurch.

The image showed a dimly lit room — all dark wood and red velvet. And there, caught in what looked like a candid moment, was Leigh. She looked younger, much younger — maybe in her late teens — wearing what appeared to be a uniform, a skintight black playsuit that left little to the imagination. She was leaning over a table, and there, looking up at her with that same predatory smile I'd seen tonight, was Ethan.

Behind the photo was a single sheet of paper covered in familiar handwriting. My vision blurred as I tried to make sense of what I'd just seen.

"What the hell?" I muttered, shoving everything back into the envelope, the paper unread. The house suddenly felt different — more threatening, like every shadow held secrets I wasn't meant to discover. I'd been played, set up.

I found Gemma near the bar, collecting her things. She looked up as I approached, a knowing smile playing on her perfectly painted lips.

"Have you seen Ethan?" I asked, trying to keep my voice steady despite the envelope burning in my hand. "And my wife?"

"Oh, them?" Gemma's smile widened slightly. "They went upstairs a few minutes ago. He was carrying fresh drinks." She gestured toward an elegant staircase at the far end of the corridor — a different one to the stairs that Helen had disappeared up — then added with deliberate casualness, "Though if I were you..." she paused, studying my face, "I'd leave them to it. Unless you're into that kind of thing?" The suggestion in her voice made my face burn, but I was already moving past her. The staircase curved elegantly upward as I bounded upwards, two steps at a time where I could manage it. The manila envelope was still clutched in my hand, the photograph burned into the inside of my eyelids. Upstairs, the house opened into a series of hallways, all decorated with the same understated wealth as below; abstract art on the walls, and plush carpeting that muffled my footsteps.

The first bedroom I found was empty, though clearly lived in, probably a guest room, with its perfectly made king-size bed and designer furnishings. The second was similar but with double doors leading to a private sitting area. My footsteps quickened as I moved through the space, each empty room increasing my anxiety.

Finally, I found the balcony Ethan had mentioned, the one with the spectacular view. The city stretched out below, a tapestry of twinkling lights under the night sky. But they weren't here either. The two champagne glasses on the small table suggested they had been, though.

I pulled out my phone, fingers trembling slightly as I called Leigh. Straight to voicemail. Of course.

That's when I heard it, the soft clink of glass, followed by a low laugh that I recognized as Ethan's. It came from behind a door at the end of the hallway, left slightly ajar. The sound of ice cubes rattling in a glass. Another laugh, softer this time. Leigh's.

My heart hammered against my ribs as I approached. I pushed the door open slowly, and the scene before me made my blood turn to ice in my veins.

Ethan sat on the edge of a massive bed, his jacket discarded, shirt sleeves rolled up his forearms. And there was Leigh, but not in her pale silver dress anymore. She wore what looked exactly like the outfit from the photograph, a black playsuit that hugged every curve, the uniform from her past that I'd never known about. She wasn't as slim as she was in the picture, but the costume only served to show off the extra curves that she's gained over the years. She was pouring him a drink from a crystal decanter, her movements graceful and natural, as if she'd done this a thousand times before.

They both turned to look at me, neither appearing surprised by my entrance. Ethan's predatory smile widened as he raised his glass in my direction.

"Ah, Jeff," he said smoothly. "I see you found those documents Emmie left."

The manila envelope trembled in my grip as I stared at the scene before me. Leigh's dress lay discarded on a chair near the door, a shimmer of fabric that seemed to mock me. The sight of it — presumably she'd undressed in front of him — sent an unexpected thrill through my body even as my mind raced with questions.

"You knew each other?" I managed finally, my voice barely steady.

"From before?"

Ethan took another sip of his drink, ice cubes clinking against crystal.

"The Velvet Room," he said smoothly. "Your wife was quite popular there."

"I only worked there for three months," Leigh added quickly, her eyes meeting mine. In that costume, she looked exactly like she had in the photograph — young, alluring, confident. "It was a long time ago, way back before we met, Jeff. Just a job during a rough patch."

Something clicked into my head as things fell into place.

"So... when you saw her photo on my desk..." I started.

"I recognised her immediately," Ethan confirmed, his predatory smile widening. "Even after all these years — although she's even more beautiful now." His hand reached out, fingers trailing along Leigh's hip. She didn't pull away.

"The promotion," I said slowly, pieces falling into place. "Gemma leaving... Is it all a set-up?"

"Look, I've wanted Leigh since that first night at The Velvet Room," Ethan said, his fingers still tracing patterns on my wife's hip. "But she was never available back then. It was just a job. That's what you always said, wasn't it, Leigh? You weren't for sale."

"That's right," she nodded. "I'd be lying if I said I didn't enjoy the attention of the men but — "

"Slow down," I told them, my mind reeling from all this new information. "The job... at this... Velvet Room. What was it, exactly? Were you a waitress?"

"The waitresses at the Velvet Room were — are, the place is still there, if you're a member and know its location — more than just waitresses," Ethan explained slowly, a wry smile on his face as he watched me for my reaction.

"The most I ever did was serve the tables... topless," Leigh stammered. "Some girls did pole dancing, some did strip shows, podium dancing — "

"Some girls do a lot more," Ethan chuckled.

"But not me," my wife explained hastily. "When the management pressured me to do more, to go further with the clients... that's when I quit."

"And I thought I'd lost you forever," Ethan nodded, then turned to me. "When you brought your photo to work, I could hardly believe my luck. And now..." His smile deepened, predatory and confident. "Now the opportunity that I missed back then, has quite literally walked into my bedroom."

I glared at him. "And you talked me into showing you her nudes and now you've invited us here just so you can — "

"I was furious about that," she interrupted me mid-flow, said, her voice low and breathy. "Ethan called me at home, introduced himself, told me who he was and where he remembered me from. I remembered him too. Then he told me about the photos."

"And we got talking," Ethan continued. "I told her what you'd shown me and how eager I was to meet her, perhaps to pick up where we left off."

"And here we are," Leigh sighed. "After a little negotiating. A pay rise and promotion for you was part of the deal."

"A deal?" I asked, barely able to speak. "What's the rest of the deal?"

"Knowing you've seen me like that... it's exciting," Leigh turned to face Ethan, ignoring my question for now. "Even if I'm angry at Jeff for letting you talk him into showing them, the thought that you've seen my breasts again, after all these years...."

"And much more than that," Ethan added. "I've seen your pussy. I've seen everything."

Her green eyes met mine, challenging. "I know Ethan showed you pictures too. Of Helen." She turned back to Ethan. "Did you enjoy that, showing off your wife to my husband?"

I clutched the envelope tighter, remembering how easily I'd fallen into Ethan's manipulations, how readily I'd looked at those intimate photos of Helen when he'd offered them.

"Just as I suspect Jeff secretly enjoyed showing me his wife, I enjoyed showing him mine. I enjoy many things," Ethan replied smoothly, his hand sliding up Leigh's back. "And I think we're about to enjoy quite a few more."

Leigh giggled. "After Ethan called me, we started talking. Texting."

Her cheeks flushed. "I was angry about those photos you showed him, but... I found myself sending more."

"More?" My voice cracked.

"Why not? He'd already seen everything. I was having fun and he sent some of his own photos too because I was curious as to what he looked like." She bit her lip, glancing at him. "And I have to say, I've never seen anyone so well-endowed."

Ethan's smile widened. "Your wife was quite enthusiastic in her responses."

"The uniform," I managed to say, gesturing at her outfit, trying to change the subject. For some reason, my cock was hard, aching in my pants.

"I had it made specially," Ethan confirmed. "For tonight. For this moment." His hand moved to Leigh's waist. "Does it excite you, Jeff, seeing your wife like this? Knowing I just watched her slip into it?" My face burned, but I couldn't lie. Not now. But I wasn't going to admit to the truth either, so I kept my mouth closed.

"And how serious are you about your career with us, Jeff?" Ethan's voice was silk over steel.

"Very serious," I nodded, knowing what was coming.

"Serious enough to let me enjoy your beautiful wife? Right here, right now?" His fingers traced patterns on Leigh's bare skin. "Just once. To finish what we started all those years ago at The Velvet Room."

"I..." The words wouldn't come as I tried to speak.

"The agreement's all there," Ethan said, nodding toward the envelope still clutched in my hands. "Handwritten, behind that rather nostalgic photograph."

My trembling fingers found the document behind the photo again. The handwriting was unmistakably Ethan's — bold and confident strokes outlining not just a promotion to replace Gemma, but a full department head position. And all it required was my signature... and my wife.

"It's a good deal, Jeff," Leigh said softly, still standing close to Ethan.

"What's done is done — you showed him my private photos without asking and that made me angry. But we can turn this into something positive." She bit her lip, glancing up at Ethan. "And I'd be lying if I said I hadn't thought about him, sometimes... wondering what might have happened if I'd stayed at The Velvet Room just one more night."

"Your position with the company would be secured long-term," Ethan added, his hand sliding to Leigh's waist, then upwards, sliding over the curve of her breast. "And of course, complete discretion is guaranteed. What happens in this room stays between us."

"Think about our future," Leigh whispered. Her outfit — that replica of her old uniform — seemed to shimmer in the dim light. "Besides..." A knowing smile played on her lips. "From the way you're looking at us right now, I think you might enjoy this more than you're willing to admit."

I stared at the contract, my mouth dry. If the salary written on the paperwork was true, the promotion would change everything for us. And the way my body was responding to seeing Leigh in Ethan's grip... His hand on her tit...

"What exactly happens if I sign this?" I asked, my voice hoarse. The contract felt heavy in my hands. "Spell it out to me."

Ethan's smile deepened as he pulled Leigh closer. "Let me be very clear," he said, his voice low and deliberate. "Your wife and I are going to make up for lost time. Right here on this bed. I'm going to undress her slowly, appreciate every inch of her body that I've only seen in photographs until now. And then..." He paused, his eyes locked on mine. "I'm going to take her, thoroughly and completely, in ways she'll never forget."

Leigh's breath caught audibly, her cheeks flushing deeper.

"You can watch, if you'd like," Ethan continued smoothly. "Or wait outside. The choice is yours. But either way..." His hand slid down Leigh's back. "Your wife and I have some unfinished business from The Velvet Room to attend to."

The room felt impossibly warm as I stared at the signature line on the contract.

"This doesn't change anything between us," Leigh said softly, her eyes meeting mine. "I love you, Jeff. This is just... one time. Something different." She bit her lip. "We've both said lately that we'd like to shake things up in the bedroom, try new things. We just didn't know what."

I watched as both of Ethan's hands now cupped her breasts through the thin material of the uniform. She gasped softly, arching into his touch.

"I'm going to make your wife cum harder than she ever has before," Ethan said, his voice deep and confident. His eyes never left mine as his fingers traced the curves beneath the fabric, finding her nipples, stiff, poling through.

"And I'm going to make you cum too," Leigh breathed, looking up at him.

Ethan pulled a pen from his pocket, tossing it to me. My hand trembled as I caught it, staring at the signature line on the contract. After what felt like an eternity, I signed.

"How many men saw you like this?" I asked, looking at the photo again. "At the club?"

Leigh shrugged, still pressed against Ethan. "A lot saw my breasts. But that's all they ever got to see." She smiled slightly. "And none of them ever came back into my life. Except Ethan."

With the contract signed, Ethan's hands moved to the clasps of Leigh's uniform. "Now," he said, "Let's see if reality matches the photos."

Ethan's expert hands moved over the delicate clasps of the uniform, undoing it, letting it fall from her, revealing Leigh's body inch by inch. She trembled slightly under his touch as he slipped the garment from her shoulders.

I stood frozen, watching my wife being undressed by my powerful boss. Leigh's eyes met mine briefly as she stepped out of the uniform, now wearing only a delicate black thong. She wasn't wearing a bra, so her breasts were fully exposed, large and heavy, her dark pink nipples sticking out stiffly.

"Your turn," Leigh breathed, her fingers moving to Ethan's shirt buttons. She worked methodically down his chest, revealing tanned skin beneath the expensive fabric. Her hands trembled slightly as she pushed the shirt from his broad shoulders, exposing a physique that belied his age. The shirt joined her uniform on the floor.

When her fingers reached for his belt buckle, Ethan's hand covered hers, guiding her movements. The leather slid free with a soft hiss. Leigh sank to her knees as she lowered his zipper, her platinum hair stark against his dark trousers. Her sharp intake of breath as she freed him told me everything I needed to know before I even saw it. His cock was large, long and thick. Bigger than mine, even though it was only semi-hard.

"Go on," Ethan encouraged, his hand tangling in her platinum hair as she leaned forward to take him in her mouth. My wife's lips parted, and I watched as she began pleasuring my boss, her cheeks hollowing as she took him deeper.

Ethan's low groan of approval echoed in the quiet room as Leigh took him deeper. His fingers tightened in her platinum hair, guiding her movements with gentle but firm control. The wet sounds of her mouth working him were incredibly intimate in the stillness.

I watched, transfixed, as my wife pleased my boss. Her hands rested on his thighs for balance, her engagement and wedding rings catching the dim light. Each time she pulled back, her lipstick left faint traces on his impressive length before she took him in again, her throat working to accommodate him.

"That's it," Ethan encouraged, his voice rough with desire. His broad chest rose and fell with quickening breaths, the muscles in his stomach tensing. "You're even better at this than I imagined."

Leigh hummed in response, the vibration making him grip her hair tighter. Her eyes fluttered open to look up at him, that same expression I'd seen countless times before, but now directed at another man. The soft wet sounds of her mouth grew more urgent as Ethan's breathing became heavier. I couldn't believe what I was witnessing — my wife sucking another man's cock, and a long, girthy cock at that.

"Stand up," he commanded suddenly, pulling her away from him. His cock stuck out in front of him, curving upwards slightly, fully erect. Leigh rose gracefully, her cheeks flushed with arousal and from the knowledge of what she'd just been doing. Without hesitation, Ethan turned her to face me, his large hands cupping her breasts from behind. "Watch your husband while I touch you," he murmured in her ear.

Leigh's eyes locked with mine as Ethan's fingers traced patterns across her skin, teasing her nipples into hard peaks. Her breath came in short gasps now, her chest flushing as pink as her cheeks. Standing behind her, Ethan's large fingers explored her curves while we stared at each other. I wondered if she was as amazed that this was actually happening as I was. Every touch drew soft gasps and whimpers from her lips, sounds that echoed in the quiet room and sent waves of conflicting emotions through me.

His right hand slid down her stomach, teasing between her legs while his left hand cupped her breast, fingers rolling her hardened nipple. Leigh's breathing grew ragged, her breaths quickening. Her legs trembled as Ethan's skilled fingers slipped inside her, and found her most sensitive spot, making her gasp and arch back against his broad chest.

"Watch your wife," he commanded as I shifted forward instinctively.

"Let's see if I can make her cum."

Leigh's eyes never left mine, even as Ethan's fingers worked faster, rougher. Her lips parted in silent pleasure, her platinum hair wild around her shoulders. When he suddenly dropped to his knees behind her, pushing her legs further apart and bending her over, so his tongue could replace his fingers, eating her from behind, she cried out — a sound I'd heard countless times before, but never caused by another man.

Her knees buckled as the orgasm hit her, legs giving way. I moved to catch her, but Ethan was faster, his strong arms supporting her trembling body. "Stay where you are," he ordered, his voice thick with desire as he lifted my wife effortlessly. "Leigh wants you to watch, not join in."

He carried her to the bed, laying her back against the expensive sheets. Her chest heaved with each breath, skin glistening with a fine sheen of sweat. Her hair spread across the dark bedding like spilled moonlight, and her eyes — still fixed on mine — were heavy with need and something else... perhaps apology, perhaps defiance.

"Don't look away," Ethan commanded as he positioned himself between her legs. "Watch me fuck her."

The sight of my powerful boss poised over my wife, her legs spread wide for him, her body still trembling from the orgasm he'd given her with just his mouth and fingers, sent waves of jealousy and arousal through me. But I couldn't look away. I wouldn't. This was what I'd signed up for, what we'd all agreed to.

Leigh's soft moans filled the room as Ethan's hands resumed their exploration of her body, this time with even more purpose. Her back arched off the bed as his fingers found their mark again, making her writhe beneath him. Through it all, her eyes remained locked with mine, telling me everything and nothing at the same time.

Ethan moved confidently between my wife's legs, his large frame casting a shadow over her pale skin in the dim light. The room filled with Leigh's sharp gasp as he entered her slowly, deliberately. From where I was, I could see the engorged head of his cock as it pushed against her soft, pink slit, easing inside her, making her gasp as it invaded her. Once she'd relaxed, accustomed to his size, Ethan's muscles flexed as he established a steady rhythm, his silver hair catching the light with each controlled thrust as Leigh.

"Watch," he commanded again, though there was no need — I couldn't have looked away if I tried. My wife's legs wrapped around his waist as he drove deeper, each movement drawing soft moans from her lips. The wet sounds of their coupling filled the quiet room, punctuated by Leigh's increasingly desperate whimpers.

Ethan's large hands gripped her hips, pulling her closer as he increased his pace. Leigh's breasts bounced with each thrust, her nipples hard peaks in the cool air. Her eyes never left mine, even as pleasure overtook her features — her lips parted, cheeks flushed pink, platinum hair wild against the dark bedding.

"Tell your husband how it feels," Ethan growled, his voice rough with exertion.

"So... so good," Leigh gasped, her words broken by his rhythmic thrusts. "Oh god... so deep... It's stretching my pussy."

The headboard began to tap against the wall as Ethan's movements grew more forceful. Leigh's moans increased in pitch, her body trembling beneath his powerful frame. Her fingers dug into his shoulders, leaving red marks on his tanned skin.

"Get on top," he commanded suddenly, withdrawing and rolling onto his back. "Show Jeff how much you want this."

Leigh didn't hesitate, moving and straddling Ethan's powerful frame. Her platinum hair cascaded over her shoulders as she positioned herself above him, her hands bracing against his broad chest. Their eyes met for a moment before his moved down, watching her pussy take his cock as she slowly sank down, a deep moan escaping her lips.

"Now show Jeff how much you want this," Ethan commanded, his large hands gripping her hips. "Let him hear how good it feels."

Leigh began to move, finding her rhythm as she rode him. Her large, heavy breasts bounced with each movement, her upper chest flushed with arousal. She looked at me again as she worked her hips, her breathing growing more ragged as she took his cock fully inside her.

"Tell him," Ethan growled, guiding her movements with his strong hands.

"It's so deep," Leigh gasped, her voice thick with pleasure. "So much bigger than I expected..." She threw her head back, platinum hair wild around her shoulders. "Oh god, I can feel every inch... It's hitting my cervix."

The wet sounds of their fucking filled the room, punctuated by Leigh's increasingly desperate moans and the soft slap of her skin against his. Ethan's fingers dug into her hips, controlling her pace as she rode him.

"Touch your clit," he commanded, and Leigh's hand slipped between her legs. "Now tell Jeff to wank off."

She looked at me through heavy-lidded eyes, her chest heaving with each breath. "Do it, baby," she panted, "I want to see you play with your cock while you watch us..."

"You heard your wife," Ethan added, his voice rough with exertion. His silver hair was damp with sweat as he thrust up to meet her movements. "Show her how much this turns you on."

Leigh's moans grew louder as she worked herself closer to another climax. "Please, Jeff," she begged. "Show me that you're enjoying this."

I did as I was asked, unzipping myself and drawing out my erection. I was embarrassed at first when Ethan looked over. I wasn't as well-endowed as him and it felt shameful that I was so excited at seeing my wife being taken by another man. But if he did think I was small, or if he enjoyed cuckolding me, he didn't say anything.

He gave me a satisfied smile, then guided Leigh onto her hands and knees, her platinum hair falling forward as she positioned herself for him to fuck her from behind. He gripped her hips possessively, drawing a soft gasp from her lips as he entered her, thrusting his hard cock inside her roughly.

"Look at him," he commanded, and Leigh's eyes found mine through the curtain of her hair. The sight of my powerful boss taking my wife like this sent waves of jealousy through me, even as my own arousal grew impossible to ignore, my fist furiously working my cock faster and faster as I watched them fuck.

Ethan's muscled frame cast shadows in the dim light as he established a punishing rhythm. Each thrust drew increasingly desperate sounds from Leigh's lips, her fingers clutching at the dark sheets beneath her. She sounded almost as if she were in pain — like he was hurting her, but the way she bit her lip in ecstasy said otherwise.

As he continued ploughing her hard, her moans grew higher in pitch, her body trembling visibly. "I'm close," she whimpered, her eyes still locked with mine. "Oh god, I'm so close..."

Ethan's hold on her hips tightened, leaving red marks on her pale skin as he drove into her harder. His powerful thrusts made the headboard slam against the wall, the steady rhythm matching the pounding of my heart.

"Cum for us," he commanded, his voice rough with exertion. Show us how you're a slut for older men."

Leigh's back arched sharply as she cried out, her entire body shaking with the force of her orgasm. The sight of her coming undone at another man's hands was almost too much to bear and I had to let go of my cock before I came.

Ethan's movements became more erratic, his breathing heavy. With a final, powerful thrust, he groaned deeply, holding Leigh's hips firmly against him as he finished inside her.

Fuck. He'd cum inside her, inside my wife. She was on birth control but that wasn't the issue. She was mine. She hadn't had another man since we'd got married and now... now someone else had fucked her, filled her with his cum.

The room fell quiet except for their heavy breathing and the sound of my own racing heart. Ethan withdrew slowly, sticky white cum oozing from my wife's puffy slit, trailing down her ass crack and pooling on the bed sheets. Her chest still heaved with each breath, her pale hair wild and damp against her flushed skin. Her eyes found mine again, heavy-lidded but intent.

"Come here," she whispered, reaching for me. "It's your turn. I need you now."

My legs carried me to the bed before I could think. Leigh pulled me down to her, her skin hot against mine. The scent of sex and Ethan's rich cologne filled my senses as she guided me between her legs.

"Fuck me," she breathed against my ear, her body still trembling from her encounter with Ethan. "Reclaim me."

I entered her slowly, Ethan's cool, sticky cum making her pussy impossibly slick. Her legs wrapped around my waist, pulling me deeper as her nails dug into my shoulders. It felt weird, fucking her right after someone else had been inside her; having another man's cum on my cock. But it also felt good.

"That's it," she moaned, her back arching off the bed. "Show me who I belong to."

The wet sounds of her pussy and the thud, thud of my body against hers filled the room once more as I established my own rhythm. Her breasts bounced with each thrust, not as hard or fast as they had with my boss, but I didn't care.

Leigh's moans grew more desperate as I moved faster, harder. Her eyes never left mine, conveying everything words couldn't — love, need, reassurance.

"Fill me up," she begged, her body tensing beneath me. "Please, baby... I need to feel you cum in me..."

My release built quickly, spurred on by the evening's events and the feeling of my wife orgasming beneath me once more as she groaned, her legs quivering. With a final thrust, I finished deep inside her, adding my hot cum to Ethan's.

Leigh pulled me down for a deep kiss, her body trembling with aftershocks. In the background, I heard Ethan moving around the room, but my world had narrowed to just my wife and this moment of reclaiming what was mine.

As we caught our breath, I noticed my boss moving to a shelf near the bed. He reached for what looked like an ornamental vase, but his hands emerged with a small camera I hadn't noticed before. My stomach lurched as he removed the memory card and showed it to me.

"Insurance," he explained smoothly, catching my expression. "Proof that everything tonight was completely consensual. Plus..." His predatory smile returned. "I thought you might enjoy watching it at home with Leigh. Reliving the moment."

"You knew?" I asked Leigh, who was still lying beside me, smiling at him.

"Of course," she murmured, her green eyes heavy-lidded. "Ethan mentioned it when we were in the garden. I thought it might be... exciting. Having something to remember tonight by."

Ethan's silver hair caught the light as he moved back to the bed. "Your wife is as good a fuck as I hoped she'd be," he said, his voice thick with satisfaction. "She's got a nice, tight pussy, those huge tits, the way she moans. The camera caught everything. I can't wait to watch it back later."

Leigh blushed but smiled. "You weren't so bad yourself. I love your big, hard cock."

"The way you took all of me," Ethan continued, his eyes locked on mine. "Some women can't handle my size, but you... well, you couldn't get enough."

My wife's flush deepened as she pressed herself against me. "Jeff enjoyed watching too, didn't you, baby?"

"Which makes me hope," Ethan added, placing the memory card on the bedside table, "That this won't be our only fuck. After all, now that we know how... compatible we all are..." He let the suggestion hang in the air.

I looked at Leigh, saw the sparkle in her eyes, the way her body responded to Ethan's words. The evening had changed everything.

"I guess maybe we could try this again," I said, after a long moment.

"Music to my ears... Also, your wife has a pornstar's body," Ethan said, reaching for his clothes. "I know some people in the industry if you're interested, Leigh."

"No thank you," she laughed softly, still pressed against me. "I think I'll stick to my day job."

"Your loss. Though speaking of the industry..." Ethan's predatory smile returned. "I've been seeing this girl, Natasha. She's quite the special woman. Does things that even make a man like me blush." He paused, his silver hair catching the light as he turned to me. "But... did you see Emmie earlier? Emmie from the office. You know her, right? The blonde young woman who brought those documents?" I nodded, remembering her nervous energy in the hallway.

"She's the next woman I want to fuck," he continued, his voice thick with suggestion. "I've been trying to arrange something for months, but she's married and unless that changes, I can't see me getting to fuck her. Unlike Gemma." His eyes gleamed. "Speaking of which, Jeff, if you're interested, you should make your move before she leaves. She's quite... accommodating."

My face burned as I remembered Gemma's knowing smile in the hallway.

What do you think about that, Leigh?" Ethan asked, his tone casual but his eyes sharp. "Would you mind if your husband had a little fun of his own?"

Leigh stretched languidly beside me, her skin still flushed. "Well, after tonight..." She smiled up at me. "Perhaps it's only fair that Jeff gets to explore too. Especially if it helps his career."

"That's what I love about you two," Ethan said, fully dressed now. "You're so understanding." He picked up the memory card from the bedside table. "I'll send a copy of this sent to you later. A little souvenir of tonight."

As I cleaned myself up and Leigh slid her body back into her dress, I couldn't help but wonder what other surprises lay ahead in our new arrangement with Ethan, watching my boss as he straightened his hair, fixing his tie as if nothing out of the ordinary had happened. Leigh pressed herself against me as we walked to the car, her body warm and familiar despite everything that had happened. She might have another man inside her but she was still mine. The valet brought our car around, and I couldn't help but notice how different everything felt from when we'd first arrived.

"You know," Ethan said as we prepared to leave, "I'm hosting another dinner party next month. Just a few select couples." His eyes lingered on Leigh. "And Natasha might be there. I think you'd like her, Leigh."

"We'll think about it," Leigh replied, squeezing my hand and then leaning in to kiss him on the cheek before we got into the car. As we drove home through the quiet streets, Leigh rested her head on my shoulder. "Are you okay?" she asked softly.
"Yeah," I said, surprised to find I meant it. "Are you?"
She smiled, that same smile that had first captured my heart years ago. "More than okay." She paused, then added, "Though I think we should talk about Gemma before she leaves."
In my pocket, I felt my phone vibrate and looked at it to see an incoming email from Ethan — maybe he'd already sent the video file he'd promised. Behind us, his house disappeared into the night, but somehow I knew we'd be seeing it again soon.