

A man with brown hair, wearing a white dress shirt and a dark tie, is leaning in and kissing a woman on the cheek. The woman has long, dark, wavy hair and is wearing a black, strapless, lace-trimmed dress. She is looking directly at the camera with a slight smile. The background is a warm, golden-brown color with some faint, abstract patterns.

I sat at the bar in the pricy restaurant and sipped at my martini. One shiny black pump was hooked on the chrome ring around the bottom of my stool, while the other bounced nervously. I had been sitting at the bar for over twenty minutes and had been approached twice, but rebuffed both men—even though the second one was pretty cute. For once, I was not sitting at the bar waiting to be picked up. No, this time I was waiting for a date, and he was late. I was only willing to give him another ten minutes—maybe a little longer, for my husband's sake—before I called it a night and got out of there. I knew Dave would be very disappointed if I came home early and told him there was no date.

It was strange to look over my shoulder and not see my husband lurking on the other side of the bar. We had always worked my hot dates that way. I would sit at some unfamiliar bar—the farther away from home the better—and wait for a handsome man to try and pick me up. If I thought he was interesting, or if he was hot enough for that not to matter, I would let him get past the first drink and flirt shamelessly with him. The men never knew I was married, and that my husband was right there, getting off watching the whole thing. Sometimes, the guy really had me going and I would just go out to the parking lot and fool around with him. Dave would try and sneak close enough to watch. I got such a dirty thrill knowing my husband was right there, watching. It wasn't the same thing as coming home and telling him about it later—or giving him the video I'd secretly recorded. If it was to be a more civilized encounter, I would go home with my new friend—that had only happened three times—and Dave would head home, waiting for his wife to return from her one night stand to share all the dirty details.

Tonight was different. Dave was at home with the kids and I was on my own. A thrill from playing without a safety net tickled my tummy. Dave being there was like a safety blanket. I'd had to use that safety blanket once when we'd let things get out of hand. We were inexperienced and hadn't considered all the variables. At the time, I had different limits and we hadn't really considered what would happen when some guy I'd been teasing all night didn't want to stop where I did. We'd gotten smarter since then, and the limits had changed. I didn't know if I would say we're an experienced "hot wife" couple—we learned from the internet that "hot wife" was the accepted term for what we did—but we had been playing in this world for close to a year now and we had definitely learned from our experiences. But tonight there was no net. Tonight, we were trying something new.

Dave was the one who first suggested that maybe I try to go out on a date, instead of going to a bar and waiting to be picked up by some horny stranger. The subject arose because of a mistake—I crossed my own line and fucked another man for the first time. It had been all heavy petting and blow jobs before that night, but Zach and his friend were cute and having a cute, younger guy want me pushed all the right buttons. I went home with the roommates. At some point that night Zach got a hold of my phone and put his number in it and I made the mistake of telling my husband. Dave thought Dani should text Zach and tell him what a great time she had. Rule #1 of our hot dates was to use a fake name and make up a persona for the evening. I was not Dana—long married mother of two crazy rug rats from the suburbs—on hot date night. When I met Zach I was Dani, just divorced and easing back into having a life of my own.

I didn't know how I felt about communicating with Zach. It was outside of what we'd done, and I didn't know if it was a good idea. I had always thought of our hot dates as one night stands. We were looking to play around a little—and then move on. I had only really started doing it because it was such a strong fantasy for my husband, not because I felt any need for other men. I certainly didn't want a relationship with another man. Just managing Dave drives me nuts sometimes! But Dave thought it would be fun to keep playing around with Zach. He knew the younger guy really got me going. I couldn't deny that after he watched the video of Zach fucking me silly that night. My husband encouraged me to just try texting with Zach to see where it went and I agreed, although I still had no intention of ever seeing him again. The texts were flirty and I even sent him a couple pictures—never with my face. Zach kept asking to see me in the flesh again, and I kept putting him off. But then Dave started saying I should see him, and the pressure from both guys was too much. I asked Dave exactly what he wanted.

"Do you really want me dating some other guy?" I was exasperated.

“I don’t want you to have a real relationship or fall in love, but I think it would be hot if you met up with Zach again,” Dave said.

“But that would be like a real date, wouldn’t it? If we planned to meet and then did something like dinner?”

“Maybe if it was more like a booty call,” he suggested.

“You want me to be a booty call to some younger guy? Nice.” I don’t know why I was angry. Being Zach’s booty call was actually pretty hot. Texting with him over several weeks had me thinking about that night with him and how good it would feel to fuck him again. I was just afraid of what it might mean. And here was my husband telling me to go ahead and do it.

“Don’t even pretend it doesn’t turn you on as much as it does me.”

I smiled. “Okay, it turns me on a little. But I don’t want it to be anything more. I don’t want to have a boyfriend.”

“I don’t want that either.”

I think part of my problem was that I didn’t really know what my husband wanted. He’d tried to explain his wife sharing fantasy to me, but I still don’t think I really understand it. I’ve accepted it, and I enjoy playing along, but I don’t know if I’ll ever fully understand what drives him to want his wife to fuck other men. I get the voyeuristic thrill, I understand it’s hot to know other men want his wife, but I just don’t understand the deep satisfaction Dave gets from having this fantasy fulfilled. How can he want his wife, the mother of his children, to fuck other men? Even if I’ve made my peace with it, I can’t say I really get it. But that didn’t stop me from indulging him—and enjoying it.

So one night, after the kids were in bed, I texted Zach and asked what he was doing. Dave stayed home with the kids and I drove across the city in my practical family car to meet my lover. My husband was so turned on while I was getting ready that he couldn’t keep his hands off of me. And when I came home a few hours later, I didn’t make it past the foyer. Dave fucked me right there on the steps while I told him about my night with Zach. I’ve seen Zach three or four times since then, always late at night, after the kids are tucked in. And when I come home I dutifully give my husband the little hidden camera device we use to record my encounters. We usually watch the videos together, and we get so turned on we end up fucking, but I know Dave watches the videos when I’m not around. I think he watches them a lot. I can’t lie, I do find that a little odd.

My booty calls with Zach led to Dave suggesting that maybe I try to go on proper dates. He stressed that he didn't want me to have a boyfriend anymore than I wanted it, but he thought it might be a safer way for me to meet men because I'd be getting to know them a little bit at least before I met up with them. But I also know that part of it was that he wanted me to go on hot dates more often than our schedule allows. Arranging overnight babysitting for a night on the town isn't always so easy. The grandparents are accommodating, but we don't want to abuse them. That means we don't even get out to play once a month. If I went out and Dave stayed home with the kids, we could do it more often. I was not thrilled at first.

"Dave, I like that we do this together. I'm not sure I want to go out and meet men without you there," I argued.

"You have fun meeting up with Zach."

"That's different. I go over to his place late at night for sex and then I come home. I already know Zach, there's not a getting to know you phase. I don't know, I just think it would be weird to go on real dates with men."

"You've done a lot of stuff you never thought you would—or could, and you've loved all of it. Why don't you give it a chance? If you hate it, you never have to do it again. But I think it would be hot for you to flirt and text with a guy for a little while before you meet him. I think the anticipation would be sexy."

I could see Dave really wanted me to try it, but I wasn't so sure I was up for it. I've always been a people pleaser, and there was that part of me that didn't want to let him down, no matter what my reservations were. Would going on one date really kill me? "I guess we could try it. But how are we going to do it? I'm not putting an ad on Craigslist. I don't want to get decapitated."

"There are dating websites for this sort of thing. Have you heard of AshleyMadison.com?" Dave's answer was a little too quick. He'd obviously been thinking about this and done some planning

"Okay. Show me."

And that was how I ended up sitting at a bar waiting to meet a man I'd been chatting with online. His name was Terrance—Terry for short—and he was a thirty-five year old divorced marketing executive, or so he said. I'm skeptical of anything men tell me online.

Dave and I had created my AshleyMadison.com profile, and it was a mix of truth and fantasy. Yes, I am a married thirty-six year old mother of two and I do live in a nice house in the suburbs. I am 5'3", with a curvy, 110-pound figure, 34C boobs and long, highlighted brown hair. And I do love to fuck men outside of my marriage with no strings attached. But the rest is a lie. My name is not Diana and I am not trying to meet men behind my husband's back. I do not live in the suburb listed in my profile. I have some lingerie photos in my profile that Dave had great fun taking, but nothing with my face, so Terry doesn't really know what I look like—even though I have seen pictures of him. I told him what I would be wearing—a tight black dress with a red color panel in the front—and that my hair would be down. There weren't any other women in the restaurant bar resembling me, so he should be able to pick me out easily.

I checked the time on my phone again and then shot my husband a text.

-No show so far. He's got a couple more minutes and I'm out of here

Dave's response was a frowny face.

As I was putting the phone back on the bar, there was a light tap on my shoulder.

"Diana?"

I turned and tried to mask my disappointment. Plastering on a smile, I said, "Yes. Terry?"

"I thought it was you, but I wasn't sure."

I turned on the stool and hopped to my feet. In my stiletto heels he was barely taller than me. Online he was six feet tall. He was also about ten years older and thirty pounds heavier than the photos in his online profile. I knew within seconds that this date was not going to end the way he—or my husband—wanted. Terry asked if I wanted to have a drink at the bar before dinner, but I'd already had two, and really, there was no point in dragging this out.

Dinner seemed to pass excruciatingly slowly. I tried to streamline it as best I could, skipping appetizers, but it dragged on as if Terry had bribed the waitress to serve us slowly. I listened to him drone on about work and his boat, about how his marriage ended despite his trying his hardest to keep it alive. After that, he buried himself in his work, and that's when he decided he just didn't have time to date and looked for alternatives. He asked what brought me to Ashley Madison.

"You know, the typical," I lied. We'd already discussed this in our online messages, but I guess he wanted to hear it again. "We've been together a long time and after all those years I guess we got complacent. My husband is always busy with work and I got tired of being home alone.”

“I’d never leave a woman like you alone.” Terry’s gaze flicked down to my breasts as he spoke, and then back to my eyes. I pretended not to notice. My dress was not low cut—I didn’t want to be too obvious—but it clung to my curves. I have to admit, I did look pretty hot in it.

“I guess he’s just started to take me for granted. I try to get his attention, and he still doesn’t notice.”

I was borrowing liberally from things girlfriends had told me about how their marriages had turned stale. Dave and I had never gone through a phase like that—thank God—we had always been hot for each other. But we were on fire since we’d started these hot dates. It was like we were teenagers again. Sometimes I wished I could be honest with my friends about what was going on in my personal life. I might have even suggested taking a lover to a friend or two, but I didn’t have any girlfriends who were close enough to confess that my husband liked me to fuck other men. I don’t even know how I would bring something like that up in a conversation. Over martinis at happy hour?

“Just the other night, after the kids were in bed, I came into the bedroom and closed the door. I never do that with two little ones. I took my time undressing and sort of lingered in front of him. I even made sure I was wearing sexy underwear. But he never looked up from his phone.” I looked across the table at Terry and I could see he was trying to picture me in my underwear. He had some idea from the pictures in my profile, but I’d like to think seeing the real thing would have blown his mind. The lacy black balconette bra I wore under that dress really did make my tits look phenomenal, and the tiny thong was all I could wear without showing a pantyline. I know this was probably torturing him a little bit, but he deserved it after leading me on. “I even sat on the bed next to him and got flirty, but he still didn’t pay attention. I guess that’s just what happens after fifteen years of marriage.”

“He must be blind, Diana,” Terry breathed. Only one of his hands was on the table, and I shuddered to think what he was doing with the other.

“Thanks.” I smiled. “I’ll be honest. If he’d taken notice and given me what I needed I might not have gone through with this.”

Terry chuckled. “I guess his ignorance is my gain.”

You wish, I thought.

The small talk continued through the main course and Terry looked disappointed when I asked for a Diet Coke instead of more wine. He probably thought I'd be more pliable if I was drunk. He was probably right, and that's why I stayed sober. The waitress asked if we wanted dessert and the words were hardly out of her mouth when I blurted out, "No."

Our goodnight was awkward. I could tell Terry wanted to know if I would come back to his place for a nightcap. I will not lie—my online flirting with him implied I'd be willing to go and have a one night stand with him, but that was before I met him. That was when I thought he was someone else. Before he could say anything, I told Terry that I really should be getting home. He looked crestfallen. I kissed his cheek, lied and said I'd be in touch, and turned on my stiletto heel and got out of there. I walked quickly and forced myself to keep my eyes forward, afraid that Terry might follow me to my car.

Once I was in the Prius, with the doors locked, I was hit with disappointment. The weeks of flirting online and texting with Terry had been a lot of fun, and while I was nervous to meet him, I was also excited about what the evening might hold. I felt kind of like a loser that I had to go home and tell Dave nothing happened. It wasn't like I always met someone when we went out for our hot dates, but this seemed like more of a sure thing. I could go to a bar and drop my line in the water, but I didn't fancy doing that without my husband there. I was all dressed up with no place to go. A smile quirked the corners of my mouth when I realized that was not quite true. I pulled out my phone, but I was not texting Dave to tell him the evening was a bust.

-Are you around? Looking for some fun

I'd texted Zach. My phone chimed in less than a minute.

-Funny, I was just thinking about you.

-Happy thoughts?

-Horny thoughts. Get over here, babe.

-On my way!

“Wow, you look amazing, Dani. To what do I owe the honor?” Zach said when I walked through his door.

“Honestly, I had a date. It was a bad date,” I confessed. I was pleased someone got to appreciate my efforts.

“Why don’t we ever have dates? I’d love to see you all dressed up like this.”

“You’re seeing me now, aren’t you?” I leaned up and kissed his cheek. He is over six feet. “And because that’s not what we do. We’re just a casual thing. Right?”

“Yeah, but we don’t have to be.”

I sighed and pressed myself against him. I did not want Zach to start pushing for us to be anything more than we were, because I didn’t want to have to stop seeing him. I have a lot of fun with my boytoy. He is close to ten years younger than me and lives with a roommate in a rowhome in a gentrifying neighborhood downtown. One of the things I like about my younger hipster lover is that he’s so far outside of my everyday experience. But even if I really were single—like he thinks—I could never be with a guy like him. We’re just at completely different points in our lives. I tilted up his black, thick-framed glasses and mashed my lips to his, playfully flicking my tongue at his. There was that now-familiar shiver of excitement I always felt when kissing a man I shouldn’t be—a man who was not my husband. It didn’t matter that Dave not only gave me permission, but actively encouraged me. A little part of me would always feel like being with someone else was wrong, and that feeling of mischief was part of the thrill for me. I like playing the bad girl.

“This isn’t enough for you, baby?” I cooed. “I’m just looking to have fun.”

“Me too.” His hand found my butt and gave it a hearty squeeze. His lips brushed my neck and I swooned. His teeth pulled ever-so-slightly on my dangling earring and my hunger for him grew.

“Then take me upstairs.”

It wasn’t like we didn’t fuck in the living room. The first time Zach fucked me was right there. But there was always the chance that his roommate, Josh, could come home, and things were still a little awkward with him. Zach was out with Josh that first night when we met and I went home with both of them. I wasn’t looking for it, but that night we ended up in a threesome. I only blew Josh that night. Does it make me less of a slut because I only screwed one of them? But I was crazed with lust and stoned and drunk at the time. If I was thinking clearly I wouldn't have turned my first night fucking another man into a threesome, and I was not looking for a repeat, while Josh clearly was, so things were a little awkward around him.

We walked into his bedroom and I flicked on the light mounted to the ceiling fan over the bed before closing the door. Zach had the larger bedroom of the two, at the front of the house, and an orange glow from streetlights dimly lit the room, but that wouldn't be enough light for my little secret camera. I wonder if Zach thought I was freaky because I always wanted the room well-lit. The vintage dresser along the wall to the side of the bed didn't leave much room to walk, but it was a perfect vantage point for my husband. I dropped my clutch purse and decoy keys on the dresser, careful to position the keys correctly. I'd become something of a pro with making sure the hidden pinhole camera in the key fob was pointed properly. It only took a quick press of the Unlock button to get the high-definition digital camera going.

"Some help, please," I said, turning my back to Zach so he could get my zipper. He pulled my hair aside, moving it over my right shoulder and tugged down the exposed zipper.

"I like the highlights, Dani."

"I needed a change." Earlier in the week I'd added subtle, cherry highlights to my long chestnut hair. It was nice of Zach to notice. It had taken my husband a couple days.

"It's sexy."

Zach kissed the back of my neck while he drew the zipper down, because he knows how crazy that makes me. He's been very good at learning what I like. The zipper followed the curve of my back to just above my butt and his calloused fingertips tickled my newly-exposed flesh.. I pulled the dress from my shoulders, but it was too tight to just drop off of my body, so Zach peeled it down, leaving me in lingerie and heels. His arms went around me and his cupped hands almost pushed my breasts out of the balconette bra that struggled to contain them. I gasped when his thumbs brushed my nipples, which poked just over the lacy edge of the cups. He was pressed behind me, but I reached between us, seeking his cock, while he lightly pinched my nipples. I sighed his name and grabbed him, pleased he was already hard for me.

“Mmm, you are pleased to see me,” I whispered.

“Always. I love it when you come over.”

One of his hands dipped into the front of my panties. Fingers glided over my warm, smooth mound. I used to keep a little landing strip down there, only shaving on special occasions, but now that I was out playing I kept it nice and smooth. Did Dave wonder why I never kept my pussy that way just for him, but now I did for my hot dates? How did that make him feel? I had to wonder since my husband was not free with his feelings.

My lips were puffed with arousal and I was damp between them when Zach’s finger nudged past. Warmth flooded me as he toyed with my slit, but I moaned and went weak in the knees when he teased my clit. It was time to move this onto the bed. For one thing, Dave would only be able to hear what we were doing, not see it—we were out of camera range. I always tried to get most of my playing on camera for him, but it wasn’t always easy. Zach teasing my clit was wonderful and hard to break away from, but I pulled forward and then crawled onto the bed, leaving my heels on. Guys love that. I’ll admit it, I think it’s pretty hot too.

Zach followed, shedding his clothes. He placed his glasses on the dresser, right next to my hidden camera. His cock pointed ahead of him when he reached me. It was beautiful, long and thick—bigger than my husband’s, but it’s not a competition. I reached for it, but was only able to stroke it for a moment before he pushed me onto my back and pulled me so my legs hung over the side of the bed. Zach flung my thong away like it offended him. All his fingers knotted in my hair, pulling it just enough to thrill me, when he leaned down and kissed me hard and full. My heart pounded and I ached for him. My long, red-painted nails dragged down his sparsely-haired chest and I gripped him again, milking a droplet of precum.

He grunted into our kiss and slowly moved down onto his knees, pulling my bra straps from my shoulders. My tits spilled from the bra, so he didn’t even have to remove it to ravish them. I threw my head back as he enjoyed me. He nibbled and sucked and licked and my nipples were throbbing. I thought I was going to overload from all the pleasure he gave me. I raked my nails through his short, neat brown hair, unsure if I wanted to mash him into me or yank him away because it was too much. But then Zach slipped lower of his own accord and pulled my legs over his shoulders.

I hooked my heels onto the lip at the top of the dresser behind him. The camera was conveniently between them. I estimated Dave would be able to see from just below my boobs and up. I stared right into the camera, imagining I was staring into my husband's eyes, when Zach began licking me. My tits heaved when I arched my back and I cried Zach's name, but I kept my eyes right on Dave.

"God Zach, that's so fucking good," I whimpered. "Lick my pussy, baby." Dave would like that.

I was soaked and wondered if the tiny mic in the camera would pick that up. I kept moaning encouragement to my lover and felt my climax rising like a tidal wave in my body. You like that, Dave? You like watching another man make me come? He's so fucking good at it! He's going to fuck me next and I'm going to love every second of it! The filthy thoughts came fast and furious while I thought about my husband sitting there, watching this video—watching me be every bit the slut he'd turned me into. I'd gone willingly, of course, but I was the slut that Dave had created. Soon I'm screaming as I come—I've become more and more vocal as we've explored this lifestyle—and squeezed my thighs around Zach's head. I know he's going to make me come more than once before he stops—he always does. I hope my husband enjoys the show just as much as I do putting it on.

Lethal Weapon was on the big television in our family room, but I just couldn't get into it. I've loved that movie since I saw it as a teenager, but my mind is on other things and even Mel Gibson chasing a car like a dog can't entertain me. The last text Dana sent me was hours ago and it said that her date hadn't shown up yet. He must have finally arrived, and they must have been having a good time, because it was past midnight and my wife wasn't home yet.

The strange brew of anticipation, arousal and jealousy left me uneasy as it always did. If I really tried to picture what Dana might be doing at that moment I was hard as steel in seconds. And it was difficult to not think about it, knowing my wife was on a date with another man. Dana was probably at this guy Terry's house at that moment, on her back while he rode her tight little body. Damn, I love my wife's body. I thought she was hot the moment I saw her, so long ago in that college class, and she's only gotten hotter over the years. She always had great tits, and they've stayed firm, but I love the way her ass has filled out as she's matured. Yeah, should have been thinking about something else. I was hard.

I really wished Dana had sent me an update or two. He's hot! We're going back to his place. I don't think that's too much to ask, and I would suggest it, but she has to do this her way. The buzz of anticipation was stronger sitting home and waiting for my wife than it had been when we went out together. It was such a different feeling, having to wait instead of being able to watch—I was much more nervous waiting than I had been sitting in a bar with Dana while she flirted. I loved the videos Dana had started making for me, but there was definitely a stronger thrill watching her fool around in the flesh. I still hadn't been there to see her fuck. We hadn't worked out a way to make that happen. But I'm not complaining. Her videos are amazing.

The temptation was too great. I couldn't just sit there and wait and do nothing. I reached for the iPad and brought up the folder with Dana's videos in it. I watched her videos a lot when she wasn't around. We usually watched them together—fucking wildly—when she came back from a hot date, but she showed little interest in watching them again after that. I can't get enough. I'm probably obsessed.

I chose a video from the last time we'd gone out together. It was about three months ago, which was too long for me to wait to get a fix. That's one of the reasons I suggested Dana start going on dates while I stayed home with the kids. I wanted her to play more often. She took a lot of convincing, but she agreed to try it, like she always does. I love that Dana will try anything. The video was recorded in a hotel room at an Indian casino a couple hours from our home.

The casino was the site of our first hot date. That night my wife met a man named Charles and ended up blowing him in the men's room while I listened from the next stall. Jesus, that was hot! I watched them flirt at the bar and then he made his move on her. I couldn't tell everything he was doing, but his hands were busy under the table, and Dana liked it enough to get up and go with him. The blood in my veins was on fire as I listened. I could tell exactly what my sweet wife, the mother of my children, was doing on her knees in that men's room. My cock was so hard I was almost afraid to touch it, and when I did I came in about two seconds. Dana had drawn a line back then—she said she would not fuck other guys, only fool around with them, so that's as far as it went. But it was a line I knew she'd cross one day. I knew she would not be able to resist the temptation forever. Dana is a highly sexual woman. When she gets started, she can't just be stopped.

Our second visit to the casino was much more successful. Dana's confidence in her role playing showed and it did not take long before she was getting hit on at a poker table. The guy was tall and built—that seems to be her preference—in his mid-40s and casually dressed in a nice shirt and jeans. His name was Jeff, I found out later. I don't know what story Dana gave him, but she likes to make up little stories for the men she meets and pretend she's someone else. I'm focused in on who she really is—my wife. I was far enough away to watch them from a perch at a slot machine, but not close enough to hear them, so I could only tell they hit it off from their body language. They moved to the bar and I went with them, watched as he began touching her, establishing that he wanted her. I was disappointed that he didn't kiss her at the bar. I love seeing that stuff. But then I watched them get up and followed as far as the elevators. After that, I had to go to our room and wait.

The video started on my iPad and I made the flicking motion to send it to the television. I wanted to watch my wife in full HD on the 62-inch screen. The kids had long been in bed and I didn't expect them to walk in. The scene picked up a few minutes after they'd made it to Jeff's room. She'd already gone into the bathroom and texted me the room number, in case something went wrong. The room was identical to ours, and the little round table in the corner made for a perfect place to set up the hidden camera. Buying that thing was one of Dana's most brilliant ideas ever. I always wondered how exactly I was going to be able to watch my wife actually fuck another man, without exposing myself, and this solved the problem. I would rather have been there myself, but I wasn't comfortable being there in the room while another man took my wife. I was afraid of being judged.. It would have been ideal to be in the room, but I just couldn't make myself do it. Besides, finding men to fuck Dana was not hard—she's hot—but I can't imagine it would be easy finding men willing to do it while her husband watched.

In the video, Dana walked away from the camera and I saw the whole king-sized bed at an angle. She and Jeff were just off-camera. I heard them murmuring to each other and then it sounded like they were kissing. These moments in the videos are incredibly frustrating to me. Yes, I want to see it all! I know Dana does her best to keep everything in front of the camera, but it's not all up to her. They finally moved into view, still kissing, headed for the bed. The silk blouse she'd been wearing was already gone, leaving my wife in a sexy black bra. I love seeing her in lingerie. She pulled at Jeff's shirt. They fell onto the bed and it looked like they were wrestling each other as they pulled at their clothes in between groping each other and kissing. I was already hard.

Their clothes were finally dispensed with, except that Dana's short black skirt ended up pushed around her waist. Jeff was on his back and Dana moved down the bed. The angle wasn't great to watch her blow him, but her sweet, round ass was pointed right at me. Beyond it, I see the back of her head rising and falling. Jeff sits back with a grin on his face and his hands clasped behind his head. Dana gives incredible head. I know just how pleased Jeff is. He wasn't pushy. He just let her do what she wanted. She didn't just pleasure him, though. A hand crept back and she started rubbing her pussy. I can see she's already wet as she rubs her clit. What a perfect view!

"Feels so good, Diana," he moaned. Diana is what she's been calling herself lately on hot dates.

Dana finished and moved up and Jeff played with her hanging tits while they made out. It drives me crazy to see how into it my wife is when she's kissing another man. She totally gives herself to the moment and I can tell that part is not for me, not really. Dana may say she had no desire to be with another man and that she only got into this for me, but I can't fully believe it. She just slips into the role too easily. From the first time she kissed another man, even going all the way back to when I watched her have a threesome with our friends years ago—before any of this started—she went right for it. Jeff pushed a hand between her legs and took over fingering her. His fingers pumped in and out of her and she started riding them. I heard her moaning. I know my wife, and I know she was ready for more.

My sweatpants were pushed down and I'd started touching myself without even thinking about it. I was totally sucked into the video. Dana asked if he had a condom and he said no. She jumped off the bed and was smiling as she walked toward the camera. She even blew me a kiss. Her purse was right beside the camera and she retrieved a condom from it and then slipped it onto him. Jeff tried to wrestle with her a bit, but Dana wanted to be on top, and she got her way. She slipped down onto his cock like a pro.

A lightning bolt shot through me, rocking me to the core. It was like that every time I watched my wife fuck another man. It didn't seem to matter whether Dana was seemingly seduced into it or she took charge, like she did in this video. There's just something visceral, gut-churning about watching your wife fuck someone else. It is supposed to be the ultimate act of betrayal. That's ingrained in us on an evolutionary level, which is probably why no matter how much watching it—or even thinking about it turns me on—it always causes that gut-wrenching action. My body is screaming, This is wrong! But my twisted, mis-wired brain craves it.

Dana's moans filled the room. Those sounds were so familiar, her pleading for more, urging her lover on, but they were mingled with the moans of another man. It was incredible to see my wife—the sexiest woman on the planet—as my own personal porn star. I was well on my way to getting myself off when I heard the front door open and close. I quickly closed the video and set the iPad aside. I still feel self conscious about Dana catching me like that.

“I thought I heard you in here,” Dana said. It was my wife, in the flesh. Just one look at her and I could tell she’d just been in bed with someone else, getting fucked. Both her hair and make-up were in disarray. It made my still-hard cock throb. And I could smell the sex on her. Sometimes she showers before she comes home, sometimes not. I like it when she showers at their place, so I can grab her and fuck her immediately. I was so horny I considered grabbing her anyway, but we never had sex until she was cleaned up. That’s just what we did.

“Just waiting up to hear how your date went.”

Dana bent down and kissed my cheek, then pressed the camera into my hand. “My night took an unexpected turn. See for yourself. I’m going to grab a shower.”

I stared at her ass as she left the room. It looked great in that dress. I remembered the first time she wore it, to a Christmas party I threw for my employees. I own a mid-sized construction firm. Even before we started down this road, Dana knew how much I loved to show her off and she never disappointed when we went out. A lot of other men would have been pissed to see the burly construction guys who work for him lusting after their wives, but I loved it. That night I was so charged up we didn’t even make it home. We made love in the front seat of my quad-cab Ram.

I went to the family computer in the corner of the room and slipped the camera into the USB port. A folder popped up, listing a single video file named for the time and date it was recorded. When I double clicked I was surprised to see Zach’s bedroom. I’d seen it often enough now to recognize it right off. I was confused. How did Dana end up there? I guess something really did go wrong with her date, but she never gave me the heads up that she’d made other plans. I was disappointed that she hadn’t sent me a message first, but what was I expecting? Did I want her to ask permission? I think we may have moved past that. The few times she’s gone over to see him, she’s never actually asked if I was okay with it—Dana just asked if I minded watching the kids while she went out. She just seemed to assume I wanted her to fuck Zach any chance she got. Was she wrong? I don’t know. There was a new jab of jealousy, too. I felt like I’d been left out, somehow.

None of that changed how I felt when I watched the video. Dana could not have been more than a couple feet from the camera and she was sitting up, staring at me and moaning as her young lover went down on her. Her tits looked perfect as her chest heaved. Watching my wife come like that, it really felt like I was there. I had to force myself not to rub my cock. I didn't want to jerk off when I had the real thing right upstairs.

The following footage was disappointing, but I've long since accepted the limitations of relying on the video. Zach stood, blocking my view completely. I gather he must have turned Dana and bent her over the bed, because he sure moved like he was doing her from behind, and I could hear her screaming like she was receiving a thorough fucking. My wife was never a quiet lover, but it doesn't escape me that she really seems to lose control when she's with these other lovers, especially Zach, in a way she generally doesn't with me. Oddly, that turns me on even more.

It sounded like Dana came again, and then they switched to the more traditional position, her legs wrapped around him while he rhythmically slid in and out of her. It was hot seeing her spiked heels locked together like that. They kissed some, but mostly stared at each other, and it gave me the chills. Their coupling looked way more like love making than fucking. Zach had acquired an intimacy with my wife that I hadn't seen her share with another lover. I shut the video off, but there was no time to analyze my feelings. I couldn't wait a second longer to have my wife.

I heard the water shut off in the master bath as I came into the bedroom. I ripped off my clothes in a frenzy and charged into the bathroom. Dana smiled at me and I grabbed her roughly. The kiss was savage and I think she resisted at first out of shock. I growled as I touched her body. Her soft tits were seized by my rough hands, her ass kneaded. She was breathless when I spun and bent her over the sink. I was going to take her just the way Zach had—the first time. She was wet and open—I slid right in.

“Oh fuck, Dave,” Dana gasped. She shook her wet hair out of her eyes and stared back at me in the fog-rimmed mirror.

I just grunted as I thrust deep inside her. My thoughts were a jumble. I planted a hand on the back of her head and forced it down. I didn't want her looking at me. I wanted to picture the look on her face when Zach was eating her cunt.

“Yeah...fuck your slut wife. You can’t wait to take me back, can you?” she groaned, pushing back so that we slammed together. Dana knew exactly what to say to make me boil when we screwed like that.

“Uhn...no Terry...”

“No. He wasn’t good enough for your wife. He didn’t make me hot.” She gripped the vanity and it felt like we were going to rip it out of the wall, but I wasn’t stopping. I could replace it later.

“But Zach always makes you hot, doesn’t he?”

“Yes, baby. He fucks me so good. That’s what you want to hear...”

“Yes...”

“You want to hear how Zach makes me come like his little slut.”

“Yes...you love being his slut...”

“I do, baby. I do love it. God, when he licked my pussy tonight all I could think about was how much I wanted you there to see him make me come...ohhh...”

“Fuck...honey...”

“Whore...”

“I wanted to be his whore all night...but I had to come home...had to show you what a whore I am...”

“Oh sweet fuck, Dana...”

I came right then, bent over behind her, with my prick embedded in her. Dana shuddered with me, but I don’t know if she came too. I didn’t last very long. I dragged myself off of her and fell back against the slate-tiled wall. The cool condensation from her shower felt good on my hot skin. I came so hard I was dizzy. Dana pushed off the vanity with a soft moan and pressed her nudity to mine. We kissed, lovingly this time. The way a man and wife should kiss. For a split second, I flashed on Dana and Zach kissing while they fucked.

“Wow, something got into you tonight,” she said.

“I always want you when you come home,” I said.

“But it’s not usually like that, babe. That was hardcore.”

“I watched a little of your video. That was hardcore.”

“I thought you might like it. I really was pretending you were there when I was looking into the camera. It made me come so much harder.”

We went into the bedroom and I threw on a pair of boxers, while Dana put on a cute little pair of pajamas she got from Victoria’s Secret.

That's the great thing about my wife—she looks just as hot in her everyday clothes as she does when she's all dolled up for a date. She snuggled into me on the bed. I could tell she was going to pass out any second. Her night had left her exhausted. I didn't know how many times Zach had her since I hadn't watched the whole video yet, but he was always good for at least twice.

“So really, how did you end up at Zach's?” I asked.

Dana must have caught something in my tone. “You don't mind?” she asked.

“No, of course not.” I was not about to admit that maybe I did, not when this was all my idea. “I'd just like to know where you are in case I need to send out a search party.” I tried to sound light.

“Yeah, that makes sense. Next time I'll shoot you a text.” She kissed my chest. “Anyway, when Terry showed up he most definitely was not what he represented.”

“Really?”

“Shorter, older, heavier. It just was not happening.”

“That sucks, but I guess it's a risk with the online thing. I'm glad I don't have to worry about dating these days.”

“You'd be beating them off with a stick, babe.”

“Ha. Maybe.”

“I didn't want the night to be a waste just because Terry was a washout. I mean, I had gone to a lot of effort.”

“You did,” I agreed. “And I'm sure he was kicking himself when he realized you weren't going home with him.”

Dana laughed. “Yeah, he didn't look too happy to be getting a kiss on the cheek. He's lucky he got that. I was going to just come home and let you enjoy all my efforts, but then I thought of Zach and how he would appreciate it.”

“I saw how much he did.”

“Yes. He appreciated it several times. You really aren't mad I just went, are you? I figured it was what you'd want me to do anyway. I'm sorry I didn't give you a heads-up.”

“Really, it's cool, honey. I was just a little surprised to see Zach's place when I pulled up the video.”

“Well, I promise next time I'll make sure you know who I'm fucking beforehand.”

Even I had to laugh at that. “I love you, honey.”
“I love you, babe.”

Dana's bad date seemed to sap her enthusiasm for finding a date online. I told her she couldn't let one bad experience taint the whole idea, but she seemed convinced that all the guys on there were liars. She went through the profiles of guys we'd communicated with and found where she thought they were lying. I knew enough to give her space and just hope she would come around. It wasn't like that was our only avenue to continue our hot dates, but I was excited about the prospect of trying something new. In the meantime, I had my videos to enjoy.

I have to admit, having other men lust after my wife has become a bit of an obsession for me. It's always on my mind. We took the kids to a local fall festival and as we wandered through the crowd, I wondered which of the men who passed by lusted after my wife. Dana wore a snug pair of jeans that made her ass look absolutely perfect and a snug sweater that hugged her tits. There was nothing overtly sexy about it—she was never dressed like a slut around the kids—but Dana is a beautiful woman, the kind of woman men notice.

When she bent over to wipe our daughter's face clean after a candy apple, I caught another husband staring at her ass. Seeing his wife, I couldn't blame him. He wasn't a bad looking guy, and I wondered if Dana would go for him under different circumstances. For an insane moment I pictured my wife slipping behind some haystacks with the guy and making out while I watched the kids in the playground. I had to shake the image out of my mind because I felt myself getting hard. Dana looked at me quizzically, wondering about the odd expression on my face, and I just smiled and kissed her.

In the weeks after her date with Terry, she mostly stayed away from the websites, but she did go over to see Zach again. It would be the fifth time she was with him and I couldn't help fearing it was becoming too much of a regular thing. Dana seldom initiated it. She and Zach shared a few texts every day and he always asked her to come over, but she mostly told him she was busy. She only gave in if he sent a particularly dirty, pleading text, then she would ask if I was okay watching the kids while she went out. Either that, or I would suggest she go over because it had been a while. But since that night when she went to him without telling me first, I hadn't suggested it. I was still trying to sort my feelings about Zach.

"How would you feel if I went out for a while?" she asked. She had trouble hiding her excitement.

I didn't have to ask where she wanted to go. "I guess not. He really wants you, doesn't he?" just thinking about the younger man dying to fuck my wife made my cock twitch.

"He always wants it," Dana giggled. "He's just being really cute about it tonight." She turned her phone to me and showed me his text.

-Ur killing me! U can't send that and then deny me.

I scrolled up and saw that Dana had stripped down and sent him a selfie taken in the full-length mirror in our bedroom. Her lavender bra and panty set was sexy. I could imagine Zach sitting there with blue balls as he thought about screwing Dana. Would he feel any differently if he knew she was still married, I wondered. There was so little I knew about him. Dana told me that he dated around, but wasn't serious with anyone. Did that have anything to do with her?

"You are torturing the poor kid," I said.

"He deserved it for this." She showed me above that, where he'd graphically described going down on her. I was as hard as I hoped Zach was, which made my decision too easy.

"Sure, go ahead," I told her. "Just try not to be out too late." It was a Wednesday night after nine and both kids were in bed. We didn't have any plans, except maybe to have sex ourselves, but I knew if she spent the whole night out screwing she'd be a mess in the morning. Plus I had to be at a job site early and I knew I would stay up until she got home.

"I won't. Promise. I'll change really quick, shoot over there, take care of Zach, and come right home." She made it sound like she was running an errand.

Dana disappeared upstairs and I shook my head, realizing that I'd just given up a night of being with my wife so she could go out and fuck another man. If that wasn't a sign of being in deep, I don't know what was. She'd been wearing jeans and a cute knit top and I didn't know why she had to change. She didn't usually bother to dress up for Zach. The primping did not take long, but it had a wow effect. Dana returned in a little black skirt and heeled riding boots. Her clingy white top didn't skimp on the cleavage and I could just make out her colored bra beneath it. Her hair was down from its earlier ponytail and her lips were red.

"I'll try not to be too late," she said. She also carried the hidden camera down from where it had been charging in the bedroom and put it in her purse, while grabbing her real keys.

I pulled her into my arms and when we kissed I could tell she was trying to avoid smearing her lipstick. I didn't care. She could fix it. I hiked up her skirt as I kneaded her ass and bent to press my hand lower, between her thighs.

"Hmm, baby, what are you doing?" she sighed.

"Making sure you remember who you really belong to." I nibbled along her neck that way that drives her wild and she shivered. I love it when she does that. I felt moist heat from her panties. Dana was already damp, and I wondered if it was because of me or from anticipation of seeing her lover.

Dana rubbed my cock through my jeans. I was already hard—I didn't need the teasing. "I know exactly who my husband is. You don't need to worry about that." She kept rubbing my bulge and I pressed my fingers to her cunt firmly enough to leave a wet spot on her panties. "Maybe I should stay home," she moaned.

"You can't go disappointing Zach, now can you?" I was so torn. I really did want to throw her down right there in the hallway and take her, but a heady urgency surged through me thinking about Zach having her.

"I guess you're going to have to wait until I come home to be taken care of then." She sounded disappointed.

"Go on, get out of here before I change my mind."

We kissed once more and she was gone. I'm not sure Dana was even out of the driveway before the tingling, uneasy feeling of anticipation began.

I dragged my ruggedized laptop out of my work bag and settled down in the family room with it on my lap. After a quick check of email, I went to a message board for men like me. In this kinky community there are two types of men who like to share their wives. I'm not talking about swingers—those guys want to fuck other women too, and that's not me. Dana is the only woman I need. Guys who share their wives are either cuckolds or hot wifers. I know anyone on the outside would think we're all cuckolds, but cucks get off on being humiliated while their wives sleep with other men and that is definitely not me. I'd like to see one of these guys—they call themselves Bulls—try to humiliate me. If you're into sharing your wife with other men, but not into being cuckolded, then the proper term is hot wifing, as in Dana is a hot wife. A wife other men want to fuck. I do not want to be confused for a cuckold, which is why I don't know if I could bring myself to be there while Dana does it.

I scanned the message boards, but didn't find too much of interest. The vast majority of guys who post on these sites seem to be either wannabes or liars. Lots of men are looking for tips on tricking their wives into doing this, or convincing them into it. I can't imagine ever doing either to Dana. For one thing, she'd whip my ass. For another, I love and respect her too much. If she's going to be with another man it has to be her choice. It has to be something she wants too—I don't want her doing it just for me.

It took a long time for me to tell Dana about my fantasy—how deep it really went. I didn't just want to see other men lust after her. I wanted to actually see them with her. I wanted to be a voyeur while my wife fucked other guys. It was a fantasy I became keenly aware of many years ago.

I was on the baseball team in high school and we typically partied after games at one of the guys' houses. Jim's parents were the "cool" type who would let us all come over and drink and have a good time, reasoning it was safer than us being out somewhere. That night, Jim's parents were away, which meant the party got really crazy. Maggie had been my girlfriend all through high school, a pretty, busty blonde all-American kind of girl. Everyone thought we made the perfect couple and I think there was an assumption that we'd keep going together after school and eventually we'd marry. I loved her, but I knew I wasn't spending the rest of my life with her. Teenage boys just don't think that way.

Maggie and I went upstairs and slipped into a guest bedroom. One of my teammates was already in there, but he was out cold. Too much tequila. Maggie felt a little weird fooling around with him just a few feet away—passed out or not—but I started kissing and touching her, and she yielded like she always did. We were on the floor since he took up the bed. I had her top off and her jeans pulled down when I noticed him hanging over the side of the bed, looking down at us. Our eyes met and he froze. I know he thought I would be pissed, but instead I went right on hooking up and left him to watch. He must have taken it as a green light because next thing I know he's off the bed and moving closer. I don't know if Maggie realized he was there before he touched her, but she was as wasted as I was and she didn't stop him. Together, we played with my girlfriend and she ended up sucking my dick while he played with her pussy.

I finished on the floor. Maggie never let me come in her mouth. I fell back, satisfied, and he realized he had her all to himself. Again, Maggie didn't resist and soon I was watching her hook up with my friend. At first, I was nauseous and jealous, but then I realized how turned on I was. I'd just come, but I was hard again. I started playing with myself. Those two paid no attention to me. He was drunk enough that he didn't care my cock had just been in her mouth and they made out like longtime lovers. Watching her like that made Maggie a goddess in my eyes. Hearing her moan while he fingered her made my body strum like a guitar string. I was frozen to the spot because I had no way to process what I felt. He tried to push Maggie's face toward his cock, and I think I would have come again right there if she'd gone down on him, but that was too far for her. Instead, she jerked him off and he came all over her tits. I only just managed to stop short of coming myself.

It was very awkward and he just pulled up his pants and got out of there. Maggie couldn't look me in the eyes, and I didn't know what to say to her. I took her straight home afterward and we never spoke of that night. Maggie wanted to pretend it never happened, and I followed her lead. I knew she was ashamed of what she'd done, and that shame burned into me. I felt like a freak for getting off while another guy got it on with my girlfriend. But ashamed as I was, every time I thought about that night—and I recalled every second vividly—my cock sprang to life. I knew I would have to milk that memory forever because I couldn't think of any way to make it happen again. I met Dana in college a few years later and never even considered bringing my fantasy up—even though images of her with other men occasionally flashed across my brain.

Dana and I married and I mostly pushed the fantasy to the back burner. I got enough stimulation from seeing guys salivate over her when we went out to bars or on the beach. And we were always busy having fun in those years before the kids came. I loved Dana with all my heart and it didn't matter that my twisted fantasy wasn't going to happen. But then I got another taste.

We were spending the weekend with another couple up in the mountains and one night things just happened. I realize now that our friends, Shane and Lisa, were looking for some kind of hook up, but Dana and I could not have been more clueless. We were all sitting around and drinking when things turned flirty and dirty, like they often did. I think I caught on sooner than my wife and I started playing along. I didn't know exactly what was going to happen, but my brain was buzzing and I knew it was going to be hot. Somehow Dana and Lisa ended up massaging each other—I don't remember those details—and one thing led to another. Watching the girls hook up together was hot. I was as hard as I'd been years before when I watched Maggie. But it didn't carry the same sense of danger. I think that danger—imagined or not—is key to the excitement for me. Shane was not content to watch—as I was—and he slid right in there with our girls. Now things were getting interesting.

I know they all expected me to join in like Shane, but I was perfectly content where I was. I wanted to watch my own personal sex show. When Shane started touching Dana there it was, that old sick/jealous/aroused feeling. It was just different than seeing my wife with Lisa. I thought I'd never really feel it again, but there it was and I welcomed it back like an old friend. Shane and Lisa pleased my wife like she was their own sex toy. Dana went down on Lisa, and then the couple shared her. Shane ate her pussy and she screamed as she came. I thought I was going to pass out from the rush. And then the girls took turns going down on Shane. Seeing Dana suck another man's cock—even if she was sharing it—blew my mind. None of my fantasies had prepared me for how hot it was. There she was, sucking his cock like it was all she ever wanted. Dana was handing me my hottest fantasy and didn't even know it!

Shane came all over my wife and Lisa licked it off of her. I knew I had to be in a dream. I dragged Dana from that room and fucked her like a madman. It was fucking, not making love. Dana—sharp as ever—realized how much watching had turned me on and fed into that while we screwed. She is the best. Nothing throws her. I came quickly, but she didn't mind.

Dana was not Maggie and she did want to talk about it. She totally got that I was into watching her and Lisa, but I could tell she was surprised I didn't mind seeing her with Shane. I don't think she understood that was what really turned me on. I could see Dana couldn't wrap her head around that and I retreated from a full confession. I felt like a coward, but I didn't want her to think I was some kind of freak.

We never had a repeat of that night with Shane and Lisa and it would be years before I fully confessed to my wife. I tried to accept it would never happen again, like I had before, but it was harder this time. I'd seen Dana sucking another guy's cock. I'd seen another man make her come. I couldn't forget that. It was a memory I could recall in vivid detail anytime I wanted—and I did it often.

The kids came and we became parents as much as man and wife, but the desire never left me. We didn't go out as often, of course, but when we did I made sure Dana was as sexy as possible and I reveled in the looks she'd get from other men. She told me she would dress up for me, because she knew how much I liked it, but I saw a spark in her. I knew she liked the attention as much as I like seeing her get it. If only there was a way to take it to the next level. Sometimes I'd excuse myself to the bathroom and take my time coming back, knowing that if I left Dana alone at a bar she would be hit on. We always fucked like rabbits when we came home from one of those date nights. And one of those nights, it all came out.

Dana and I went out to dinner and then to see a cover band at a local bar. She wore a tight little tank dress that made her curves stand out. I pulled my old trick of leaving her alone at the bar, but this time I waited in the crowd longer than usual. I saw a big guy flirting with her and Dana seemed to be really into it. Something in her eyes made me hang back to see what would happen. He touched my wife, casually of course, and she touched back the way a woman does when she's interested. But it didn't go beyond that. Dana is not a cheater. I returned and she acted like nothing had happened. But when we got home that night we ended up fucking in the living room, as soon as the babysitter was out the door.

She teased me with how men had been looking at her, the way she always did. Dana knew exactly what I liked. At least the tame version of it. But then she carried things further and told me about the guy in the bar and how she felt him getting hard when he pressed against her. It struck a chord. I couldn't help myself. I asked if he was big, if she wanted to see it. She hesitated, then told me he felt big, but it was hard to tell through jeans. Was she trying to save my ego? She needn't have bothered. I asked if she wanted to know how big it was. There was something in her voice that told me she'd crossed a personal line, but she kept going. Dana told me yes, she wanted to know. And then she asked that fateful question, Should I have gone with him? I couldn't help answering truthfully. My mind had already raced ahead to what would happen next. I told her, yes!

What followed was the most intense sex we'd ever had until then. It surpassed that night after her threesome with Shane and Lisa by a mile. While we fucked there in the living room, Dana teased me without holding back, like she was reading my mind.

"Do you want me to take it out for him?" she asked excitedly.

"Yeah, grab it, hon," I moaned.

"Mmm, it's even bigger than I thought. What should I do with it, Dave?"

"You know what you want to do."

"What?" She was making me tell her.

"Suck it, Dana. Suck his goddam dick," I growled. There it was. I said it. It was out there. And amazingly, it didn't stop my wife. She kept right on going.

"I can't believe I'm doing this. It's so wrong."

"God, Dana, do it. You know you want to," I ordered. I could see it. I could see my sweet Dana in the front seat of some car, sucking off some strange man.

"I can't believe I'm doing this. It's so wrong," she moaned.

"God, Dana, do it. You know you want to."

I saw her excitement. I saw it wasn't just for me. Dana was just as excited by this fantasy as I was. In that moment, she wanted to suck that guy's cock. I held her and bounced her up and down on my cock.

"I'm doing it, baby. I'm sucking him. It's so good. Mmm, I don't want to stop," I cooed.

"Don't stop. Suck him. You're so fucking hot right now, Dana. Suck it until he comes," I demanded.

"Mmm, I think he's close. He's holding my hair, forcing me down on it."

"Suck it! Suck it! Christ, Dana, don't stop!"

It was too much for me. Dana came a fraction of a second before I did. I came and it felt like I emptied out my entire being into her. I was a husk. I had been laid bare and all I could do was wait and see how she would react. It was one thing to go with it in the heat of the moment. How would my wife feel when she really thought about the implications of what we'd just fantasized together?

Once we had both calmed down, Dana insisted on having a real conversation about my fantasies. I was initially defensive, and she had to drag it out of me, but finally, after nearly a decade and a half of marriage I confessed my deepest, darkest sexual fantasy to my wife. Dana did her best to temper her reaction, but I could tell she was shocked. She was in for another shock when she asked if it was something I actually wanted to do.

Most of what I knew of this hot wife thing at the time was what I'd read in stories on the internet, and I told her that. I confessed it would be hot for me if she went out to a bar and let a guy pick her up and then they fooled around. I could see the wheels turning in her head. I knew with a little effort I would have Dana hooked. Over the next few weeks I sent her stories and played out the fantasy in the bedroom. Finally, Dana agreed she would give it a try, but made no promises anything would happen. She didn't know if she could go through with it. That was the hottest thing I'd ever heard, and I told her so. Our next stop was the casino.

I'd shared that whole story on the message board before, to many pats on the back and guys wishing they were me. I even shared a non-identifiable picture of Dana in lingerie and the guys went wild. It made me feel proud and juiced. The guys on the board were right. I did have the sexiest, coolest wife on the planet. Occasionally, I'd post an update about our adventures, but mostly I lurked on the board. I considered creating a new post about Dana having just gone out to meet her FB—that's hot wife slang for fuck buddy, or the guy who's screwing your wife on a regular basis—but I didn't like sharing things like that in the moment. It brought me back to being just a little ashamed that I was sitting home while my wife was out fucking another guy. Instead, I shot a private message to a guy I'd exchanged a few prior messages with. I'd found him to be a good sounding board. He seemed realistic, not one of these guys who thinks you should make it happen at any cost.

I set the laptop aside and scrolled through my ever-growing collection of Dana videos. I could have sat there and tried imagining what she might be up to with Zach, but why do that when I could just watch it? Instead of watching their last session, I jumped back to the one before. That was a particular favorite of mine because Zach had particularly rocked her world that night. They had been texting back and forth that night and I suggested she should go see him. Dana complained she was tired, but between Zach begging her by text and my nudging her, she finally relented and jumped in the shower. She didn't dress up then, but looked hot in tight jeans and a snug t-shirt that hugged her tits.

When the camera clicked on, it was obvious they'd gotten started before Dana could click record. They were in his living room and she walked away from the camera already missing her jeans and panties. I had a great view of her round, tight ass as she walked toward Zach, who sat on the couch. She went onto her knees in front of him and went right to work sucking his cock. My view wasn't great for that, but I could see her still-damp ponytail bounce as her head bobbed up and down, and Zach stared down at my wife like he was in heaven. He tried to hold her ponytail, but she pushed his hand away. Dana was going at her own pace.

"Oh my God, Dana," he moaned. "I can't believe you can take the whole thing." I beamed with pride. That was my expert, cock sucking wife.

Dana replied, but her words were muffled. I figured she was licking or kissing him down there, maybe even sucking his balls, because her face was still buried there. She started sucking again and this time she moved with purpose. Her head bobbed rapidly, like she was riding a piston. Zach tried to warn her, but Dana wanted his cum because she did not stop until he was shaking and thrusting up at her mouth.

I could tell Zach came because his body went slack, but my wife stayed down there, sucking. She wanted him hard for another round. Watching Dana craving his cock like that, watching her seducing that younger man filled me with lust and I reached for the tissue box because I knew what came next. And I knew that watching Dana screaming on all-fours on his floor, begging to be fucked, was going to make me come—just like it did every time. Was that the moment when Zach formed his hold on her? Was that when she decided she needed his cock? I couldn't help feeling that I was watching my wife form a bond with another man—something more than sex—and I was ashamed that I didn't want to put a stop to it.

I had been on my feet all day and was glad the party was winding down. Not that I mind having the neighbors over—I love that we're the neighborhood house for barbeques—but don't love all the work that goes along with it. Jana, my best friend from up the street, is a godsend and a huge help, but I still feel all the pressure to make sure everyone has fun and is well fed. The thirty people or so that had been enjoying our house that hot summer day were a mix of neighbors and guys who work for Dave.

Dave loves entertaining and showing off all his hard work. Over the years we've been in our house, he's completely transformed it. The masterpiece is our backyard. It's all centered around our pool, which is almost more of a winding, lazy river than a traditional pool. It's fed at one end by a slate waterfall and flows past a swim-up bar. There's a hot tub just beside the waterfall. Slate tiles flow out from the pool to several seating areas, a built-in grill and second wet bar, and a cozy fire pit. It's the kind of backyard you see on television shows and it's taken Dave ten years to perfect. And there is no way we could have afforded it if Dave hadn't done all the work himself.

My dear husband spent most of the afternoon manning the grill, serving up burgers, chicken, sausages and ribs. A couple times he got someone to spell him so he could enjoy a beer and chat, but I don't think either of us so much as dipped a toe in the pool all day. I'd worn a swimsuit beneath my little floral sundress, but that was wishful thinking. I wasn't going to feel the water until most of the guests were on their way.

It was good to have a normal day with my family. I was beginning to feel like too much of our lives were revolving around our hot dates and their planning. I hadn't done anything with any of that since I went over to Zach's a few weeks ago. Zach and I still exchanged texts every day, and that was fun, but we hadn't made any plans to get together. I sensed something strange from Dave when I came home the last time. I asked him about it, but he swore it was nothing. He had me thinking it was all in my head, which was possible.

I really did like Zach—maybe a little too much. I tried telling myself it was crazy, but I thought I might be developing a crush on my boytoy. I looked forward to his first text of the day and I would start the shameless flirting if he didn't do it first. But a lot of the time we just talked about our lives—at least as much of my life as I could share. I tried to keep Dani's life as close to mine as possible, but a lot of the details were still made up. It probably wasn't a good idea to become so attached to one other man, but it wasn't causing any problems so I just rolled with it. Pursuing the online dating would have helped with that, but my enthusiasm just wasn't there.

So it was nice to have a day where none of that existed, although it was never completely gone. Our secret life lurked there, just out of sight, like the phantom image on the periphery of your vision you're not sure was there. In the past, it was innocent fun knowing the pleasure Dave took in it when I looked good. I hope it's not too conceited to admit, but I know guys check me out. All women do, whether they admit it or not. It's not like guys are exactly subtle. They think they are. When I lean forward I can tell your eyes immediately flick down to see if you can peek down my blouse. When I walk past you on the street or in the supermarket, I can just sense your head swiveling to check out my butt. I don't mind it as long as you're respectful and keep your rude comments to yourself. And I don't think you do nice things for me just because I'm a nice person. I've always known my husband appreciates that extra attention I receive. He's never been subtle about it either. He's always encouraged short skirts that showed off my legs and tight, low cut tops. I could always see the way other men's attention affected him. And if I brushed up against him, I could feel it too. I knew if we were out for an evening and I was looking particularly good I was in for an intense night of lovemaking when we got home. But then Dave told me of his forbidden fantasy. Don't get me wrong, I'm not just going along to make my husband happy. I get as much of a thrill out of it as he does, but now it colors all of those interactions that seemed harmless before.

When I caught a couple of Dave's workers checking out my tanned legs, I glanced over and saw my husband watching them watching me. Tension crackled through me and I couldn't believe none of our friends noticed. I couldn't help wondering, Is Dave picturing them ravaging me? When Jana's husband, Neil, followed me into the kitchen to help me carry out more ice did my husband think we stopped in the pantry for a quickie? Jana is a beautiful, athletic blonde, but I know Neil checks me out—and Dave knows it too. I'm sure Jana's even aware of it, but she doesn't care. Jana is the least insecure woman I know. In the past I always considered Neil checking me out a silly thing, and thought it was cute that Dave got a charge out of it, but now when he spies Neil checking out my tits, is he thinking, I wish she'd pull Neil upstairs for a quick blowjob? Even if I was tempted, there are a myriad of reasons I would never do that.

"You look like you could really use this," Jana said, handing me a large glass of homemade sangria.

"Jana, you have no idea." I greedily drank down almost half the large glass. I didn't care how hard it hit me. The party was almost over.

"You guys did great. Today was another hit."

"I would have never done it this weekend if I knew how hot it was going to be. I'm dying."

"Why didn't you jump in the pool? It's right there, silly." Jana had been in and out all day and her top clung to her bikini top in two wet triangles.

"Because I've been in and out of the house all day and I didn't want to do it wet," I said. "But as soon as this is over and the kids are in bed, I am diving right in."

"You don't need to worry about them. They're all in the family room watching a movie. All of the sun and swimming wore them out."

"Thank god."

Most of the remaining stragglers left over the next hour and the sun began its descent. Jana offered to help with the clean up, but I told her I was only worried about the things that absolutely needed taking care of—the rest could wait until morning. I saw a couple of Dave's workers to the gate. I'm a physically affectionate person and hugged my guests as they left. It felt like the men held onto that hug just a beat too long, that their hands strayed closer to my ass than was proper. But their wives were right there. It had to all be in my head. They couldn't sense that I was somehow up for grabs, could they? I needed more wine.

Jana and I cleaned up the immediate worries and by then she and her husband were the only ones left—or so I thought. I found Dave sitting in the corner of the yard talking to one of the guys from his crew. I thought his name was something like Jeff, or Jim. All that was left was to put the kids to bed and we could finally relax.

“I think we’re about done for the night,” I said, walking over to Dave. “Once the kids are put down we can finally relax.”

“Why don’t I take care of that? You’ve been running yourself ragged all day.”

“Are you sure?” I was only surprised because he appeared to be mid-conversation. Dave is a great dad and puts the kids to bed just as often as I do, if we’re not doing it together.

“Yeah.” Dave turned to his friend. “I’ll be right back.”

“No worries,” Jeff or Jim said.

I wasn’t quite sure why this stranger was lingering. Jana and Neil often stayed to hang out after our barbeques. We would kick back in the hot tub and chat into wee hours of the night. I asked our guest, “Can I get you something else?” My brow furrowed as I tried to recall his name. I didn’t want him to be insulted. “Jeff?”

“Close. It’s Jay. And a beer would be great.”

“Sorry. It’s been crazy today.”

“It’s fine, really. I saw how you were running around. I’m not even sure we were ever properly introduced.”

Jay unwound from the chair and he dwarfed me, like a mountain had formed before me. I’m only a few inches over five feet, and my husband is nearly a foot taller than me, but Jay was even bigger than Dave. My eyes met his mid-chest. And he was broad, too. Not all the men who work for my husband are in great shape, despite working construction, but Jay looked like whatever time wasn’t spent on a construction site was spent in a gym. His jaw was covered in a couple day’s brown stubble and his smile was crooked. Jay was hot. There was no other word for it.

“I’ll be right back,” I finally managed, once I was finished taking him in.

I turned, but instead of waiting for me to bring him a beer, Jay followed. I crouched down and slipped into the wet bar by the pool. Jana was already in there collecting empty red Solo cups, even though I’d told her she didn’t need to clean up. Jay stood over by the side of the pool and introduced himself to Neil, who’d just come out of the house. No doubt he’d just tucked his kids in upstairs in our house. When our families had late nights together it was easier to just let the kids have a sleepover rather than have Jana and Neil drag their half-asleep kids back down the street. I took a fresh cup from the depleted stack beneath the bar and drew Jay a fresh beer from the tap.

“Who the hell is that?” Jana asked. She was staring at the guys, and I knew it wasn’t her husband who had her attention.

“His name’s Jay. He works for Dave.” I pretended not to be as impressed as she was.

“I can’t believe any husband would leave him alone with his wife.”

And just like that it popped into my mind that maybe Dave left me alone with Jay on purpose. Was there a reason the big, handsome construction worker was still here after just about all our other guests were gone? That was a crazy idea. We had agreed early on that we would never, ever play with anyone we knew—or even anywhere near our home. Whenever we went on our hot dates they were always far enough away from our neighborhood that there was little chance we could run into someone we knew. I could not see myself explaining that lifestyle to anyone we knew. But despite knowing all that, the thought still entered my mind. Watching me with another man excited my husband more than anything else I’d seen in our years of marriage. Dave couldn’t get enough of it. And Jay really was right up my alley. He was exactly the kind of guy that made me weak in the knees, except for the little ponytail I noticed at the back of his light brown hair, but I could probably overlook that. Jay looked like he could just consume me and I couldn’t help reacting to that, even though there was no way I would allow that to happen. I told myself I was being paranoid, that Dave had not become so depraved he was inviting guys home from the construction site to fuck his wife.

“Are you there, Dana?” Jana asked, giving me a nudge.

“Yeah, sorry.” I didn’t realize I’d zoned out.

Jana took another long appraisal of Jay. “I get it, girl. I could get lost thinking about that hunk, too.”

“Get out of here.” Did I protest too much?

“I’m getting out of these clothes. Time to enjoy the pool. Are you with me?”

Jana ascended the steps out of the sunken poolside bar and pulled off her little baby-t then wiggled out of her shorts. Her black and green string bikini did not cover much, but Jana had the body to pull it off. She hits the gym five mornings a week, leaving Neil to get the kids ready for school. She is tall and lean, with big C-cups Neil bought her for her 40th birthday. Jana is the textbook definition of a suburban MILF. If she was hoping Jay would notice, she was in luck, because he risked a quick glance over at Jana while he talked to her husband. As far as I know, Neil doesn't harbor the same kind of fantasies Dave does, but how do I really know? I didn't know about my husband's until he finally confessed them to me. She walked to the deep end and dove into the pool, slicing through the water.

I followed Jana out of the bar and caught Jay tracking my movement. Jay thanked me when I walked the fresh beer over to him. Neil asked where his was, and I told him to get it himself. I felt like adding, I only get beer for guy like that. I was ready to jump in the pool and grabbed the hem of my sundress, but there was still that nagging suspicion Dave could be trying to set something up and I worried about encouraging it.

"Are you coming in or not?" Jana called from the water.

I reminded myself my worries were insane and pulled the little sundress over my head. My two-piece was more modest than Jana's—black with a halter top that had little ruffles along the neckline, and bottom that covered more. I still showed plenty of cleavage, but that was pretty tough to avoid with my breasts. I won't lie, I was pleased to see Jay watching me after he'd seen Jana in her bikini. I work out, but I'm not drum-tight like my friend. There's still a jiggle to my butt. Rather than dive like Jana, I crouched by the side and slipped into the warm water. It was just as refreshing as I'd hoped and I floated out into it on my back, my breasts pushed up out of the water. Jay kept talking to Neil, but he also kept stealing glances at us. It was nice to be checked out by a guy like Jay. I'm sure he has his pick of the hot cocktail waitresses and girls at the gym. I was flattered he was checking out a suburban mom of two like me.

That was the thrill I got from our hot dates. After being with the same man for so long and spending all your waking hours either being a mom or at work, you start to wonder if you're the woman you were before. It's easy to lose touch with the girl who wore a skirt and left her panties at home. And you wonder if anyone would care if you did. When I go on these hot dates I recall that sexy side of myself, the bad girl who would act out when the mood struck her. Most importantly, since I'm playing a role on our hot dates, I never worry about being judged. I can be as slutty as I want because not only won't my husband judge me, he'll encourage me to go further.

Having a man like Jay check me out gave me that same thrill. I just wouldn't try to act on it at home.

Dave came out of the house and looked pleased to find us in the water. He tossed his tank top on a chair and jumped in the pool, directing a huge splash in my direction. I tried in vain to keep my hair dry. "Come on in, guys. This is the part of the night where we finally just chill out."

"Sounds good to me," Neil said. He shed his shirt and joined us in the water. He wasn't quite as buff as my husband or Jay, but he held his own.

"I'll just hang up here. I didn't bring a bathing suit," Jay said.

"Man, I told you this was a pool party. I have some board shorts you can change into. We're about the same size," Dave said.

"You don't have to do that."

"You can't just hang up there while we're all in the water. It'll just take a second. I'll be right back."

Dave hopped out of the pool and ran, dripping inside the house, which he knows annoys me. Jay stood up there looking sheepish, and I said, "It's nothing really. You don't want to be left out. It's really nice in here."

"Yeah, we've got plenty of room for you," Jana added. She sat on one of the submerged concrete stools at the bar and I'm sure she meant for him to sit right beside her. Neil just rolled his eyes. He knew his wife was an incorrigible flirt. He saw it as harmless.

Dave returned with a pair of blue and gray board shorts and tossed them to Jay. Dave slipped back into the water and Jay stood by a chair and stripped down. Jay was not shy. He looked like one of the guys from Magic Mike with his shirt off. Jana and I both stared. I couldn't help it. Jay was that incredible. It's not that I don't appreciate my husband—that had nothing to do with my going on hot dates. Dave is a handsome guy in great shape, and I'm not the only one who thinks so. I see the other wives in the neighborhood—including Jana—lusting after him and I know that's the reason he's the first one they call when they need something fixed. They'd love to know how good he really is with his hands. But Jay was in a league of his own. His six pack was like granite, his arms like sculpted pillars. He was the stuff of romance novel covers. When he dropped his cargo shorts, Jay turned to the side in a show of modesty, but we could still see the substantial bulge in the front of his clingy boxer briefs. He pulled on the board shorts and I quickly looked away when he turned back toward the pool.

“You girls can stop staring now,” Dave chuckled.

I didn’t answer, but my cheeks flushed in response. Jana was defiant. “Looking is harmless,” she insisted.

“Not the way you were staring,” Dave pressed.

Jay slipped over the side of the pool and came over to join us, holding his beer high, out of the water. We were lounging in the shallow end, near the bar. Besides the stools, there was a low ledge on the sides making sitting in the pool easier. The water came to just below my shoulders when sitting. Now that we were all just relaxing, I realized Jay was the only one with a drink handy.

Forever the perfect hostess, I hopped up onto the bar and swung my legs around to get behind it. I drew beers for Dave and Neil, and poured fresh sangrias for Jana and myself. I climbed over the bar again and I caught Jay looking at me while I was out in the warm night air. I hoped he liked what he saw, but not too much.

“So where’s your girlfriend tonight?” Jana asked Jay. I love my friend, but there is nothing subtle about her. While I moved in close to my husband, she had left distance between her and Neil.

“Don’t have one. Am I supposed to?” Jay flashed a charming smile.

“And why do you care?” Neil asked. He was just a little drunk, so it was hard to tell if he was teasing his wife or annoyed by her flirting. He usually took that kind of thing in stride, but Jana seemed genuinely enthralled by our handsome guest.

“Maybe she wants a date. Look at the upside, buddy, you get the house to yourself for a night,” Dave teased. I sat between his legs, pressed back against him, and I twisted my neck to stare at him.

“You have a point,” Neil agreed. I tried not to read anything into his answer. I did not believe that all men were like my husband.

“Can’t a girl be curious?” Jana feigned offense, but not very well.

If Jay was embarrassed by the attention, he hid it well. He did not seem like the type who was flustered easily. “I’m not sure I want to settle down. I tried it once already and it didn’t exactly work out.”

“What a stupid girl. Help me out here, Dana. Would you let a guy like Jay get away?”

I didn’t like being put on the spot and I stammered before answering. “Maybe he’s incredibly messy.”

“I think I could deal,” Jana said.

Jay flashed another aw shucks smile. “A roll in the hay is one thing. Living with someone is tough, you guys all know that for sure.”

“You’re telling me,” Neil agreed.

He was a wise young man. Dave and I have a good marriage, but living with someone can indeed be tough. A roll in the hay, as Jay put it, was all about fun, not love and commitment. And it was very easy to picture a roll in the hay with Jay. He stood in the low water, so most of his chiseled chest was on view. The night had grown dark, but we had more than enough lights outside to give a nice view of him.

For an insane second, I thought maybe it wouldn’t be such a bad thing if my husband had brought Jay around to fuck me. Dave’s taste was excellent. I could just imagine Jay pinning my ankles back by my ears and giving me the ride of my life. I shook that image from my mind. No way Dave would risk word getting around his company that he liked sharing his wife.

“So is that what you’re looking for these days?” I couldn’t believe I asked it. It wasn’t like I was interested.

“Hmm?” Jay looked at me—or I should say he looked at my tits floating just above the water before he found my eyes.

“A roll in the hay? A little bit of fun?” I asked.

“I’m always up for a good time. Who isn’t?” Jay asked. I swear there was a challenge in his eyes. It excited me and frightened me. I kept telling myself Dave was not trying to set me up.

“I know I am,” Jana interjected. I don’t think she liked that the attention had turned from her.

“I love a good time,” I agreed. Dave wrapped his arms tighter around me and I felt his cock surge against my butt.

“You should hear Jay’s stories. He’s got married women hitting on him all the time,” Dave said. Was that for my benefit?

“Really?” Neil asked.

“I don’t know if I would say all the time,” Jay demurred. Modesty didn’t really work for him.

“He’s just trying to be nice for the girls,” Dave insisted.

“So just how many married women have you fucked?” Jana asked. I finally noticed that she’d been moving closer to Jay the entire time and now she practically shoved her tits in his face. And oddly, I was jealous. I expect men to be staring at Jana when she’s around, but I had a new attitude since we’d started our hot dates and I wanted my share of attention. Even though I would never fuck Jay, I needed to know that I could.

“A few, but not a lot,” he stated. He could not avoid looking at Jana’s tits now, and he didn’t try to hide it from her husband. He must have figured that if Neil wasn’t stopping her he didn’t mind. I didn’t know about that, but he did let Jana do her thing. “Listen, there’s a certain type of woman, I think, who goes out on the prowl. A lot of them are divorced, but not all of them. I guess maybe the others should be.”

“What type of woman is that?” I asked. I wondered if he would describe me when I was out on my hot dates. Is this who Zach thought I was?

Jay finally seemed uncomfortable with our attention, but it didn’t stop him. You have to admire a man who can be frank. “I think that when women get older, they come into their own sexually. You know, late thirties, early forties.” Jana was in her early forties, but I was thirty-six. I did not consider that late anything. Jay was not that much younger. I pegged him at around thirty. “I think a lot of women get divorced around then and figure out that maybe they settled for the wrong guy and they want to experience what’s out there. Guys aren’t any different. If you go to the right bars you can see them hanging out, looking.”

“And you go to these bars?” Neil asked. If I didn’t know better, I would have thought he wanted to head to one of them himself.

“Sometimes,” Jay answered. There was that smile again. “When I’m looking to hook up.”

“Looking for a sure thing,” Dave interjected. It seemed like he really had heard some stories. Did that convince my husband Jay was the perfect man to take me to bed?

“Maybe. But these women, I hate to say cougars, really are just looking for a good time. They want to go out to a bar, meet a guy, have some fun, and move on. They aren’t looking for entanglements, and they are looking to get their freak on. All those things they were self conscious about when they were someone's wife are on the table now. They want to feel dirty."

Jana was staring at him like he was a god. I know she was imagining him making her feel dirty. I know it because I was imagining much the same thing. She touched his arm, and asked, "But they aren't all divorced?"

"No, they aren't. I think the married ones are crazier because they don't really have that freedom. They've been with the same guy, doing the same thing, for years and there's no end in sight. They probably have a couple divorced friends telling them how they're getting laid every night. These women have kept themselves in shape, but maybe their husbands haven't, and they just don't feel appreciated. They're looking for someone to make them feel hot. They want to feel dirty too, in a way they could never feel with their husbands."

"Do you think their husbands have any idea what they're up to?" Dave asked. Of course he asked that.

"I can't imagine," Jay answered. "Or if they do, they've just decided to let it go. They're probably cheating too."

"And these women don't feel guilty?" Jana asked. She was hanging on his every word. I love my friend, but I could see her out at some bar, all dressed up and hoping to meet a guy like Jay. It didn't mean she didn't love Neil, but she loves attention. Not that I had any room to talk.

"We don't talk about that sort of thing. We don't usually talk about much, especially afterward. They just grab their things and go."

I couldn't help but feel Jay was describing me on a hot date—all dressed up to meet a guy, small talk and flirting, then going somewhere private if we hit it off. We fool around, and I take off right afterward. Knowing what Jay liked only made me more paranoid that my husband had brought him home for me.

"Don't you feel guilty?" Neil asked, judgment in his tone. "You could be ruining families. You're fucking other men's wives."

"It's not like I would fuck a buddy's wife behind his back or anything like that. There's a line. And it's not like I'm going out intending to bang a married woman, but if she's throwing it out there, and she's hot, I'm not going to say no. If it isn't me, it's going to be somebody else, right? I don't have affairs with these chicks, and probably, their husbands are never going to find out."

The tension in the pool was palpable. Neil did not look satisfied with Jay's answer, but that made sense given the way his wife was cozying up to the hot construction worker. Jana was floating on her back in the middle of all of us, but right in front of Jay, so her entire body was laid out for him. Jay looked at her, of course, but I was pleased that his eyes kept flicking over at me, too. Unlike Neil, my husband didn't mind that attention at all.

Dave changed the subject to ease the tension. Perhaps he felt he'd accomplished his goal, whatever that was. He asked what the guys thought of the Patriots' chances in the fall and the subject of horny, untamed cougars was dropped. Except, I know it was still on my mind, and probably Dave's too. Jana didn't push it any further and soon it was time for everyone to go home.

Our neighbors would come over early to get their kids, so we didn't want to make it too late of a night. Neil and Jana gathered their stuff and I saw them to the gate to say goodnight. Dave waved his goodbyes and took Jay inside to dry off and change back into his clothes. Neil gave me a hearty hug at the gate, and came dangerously close to grabbing my ass. I let it go because I knew it was due to Jana's flirting, and I was pretty horny anyway, and it felt good. I may have even rubbed my wet, bikini-clad body against him just to tease. I could almost picture the charged, angry sex they would be having when they got home.

I patted myself dry with a towel and walked into the house to find Jay walking out of our downstairs bathroom and Dave nowhere in sight. Jay carried the board shorts and his wet underwear.

"Oh, hey, what do you want me to do with these?" he asked, holding out Dave's shorts.

"Here, I'll take them."

I took the shorts and almost grabbed his underwear too. He followed me through to the laundry room, where I threw the shorts into a basket, and when I turned around I ran right into him. He instinctively held my arms and for an electrifying second we were pressed together. He felt like solid granite under those clothes and it made my heart pound to know he felt as good as he looked. I'd always been able to appreciate a good looking guy, but it was different now that I had permission to play with them as I wished.

It just wasn't innocent admiration anymore, because when dirty thoughts crept into my mind it wasn't just abstract anymore. If I was out and I saw a hot guy, my husband actually wanted me to slip them my number. That didn't apply with Jay—maybe—but that didn't stop those thoughts and feelings from coming.

"Sorry. I didn't realize you were right there," I said.

"Just wanted to thank you for having me today. Your house is awesome and the food was great," Jay said. Neither of us had moved. The towel was draped over my shoulders, but I felt almost nude so close to this man in my bikini.

"You're welcome. I'm glad you came. We love to have people over. The more the merrier."

"Well, you're a great hostess."

"You have to say that. I'm your boss's wife."

I don't know why I needed to remind him of that, it just felt important in that moment. I realized I was trembling slightly. Where was Dave? It was insane, but now I was sure he was setting me up with Jay. Did Jay know about our arrangement, or did Dave expect me to seduce him? It pissed me off to think he would do something like this without talking to me first. I didn't want all the guys on his crew to think I was some kind of a whore. But in my anger, I thought I should really make Dave pay. If I was going to sleep with his employee, I should make it memorable. Jay still held my shoulders and I put my hands on his arms.

"I didn't say it because I had to. I said it because I appreciate all your hard work today. You can be my boss's wife and a great hostess."

I stared up into his dark eyes and didn't know what to say. I didn't want to say anything. I really just wanted to kiss him.

"Hey, where are you guys?" Dave called out. He came down the hallway from the kitchen to the laundry room and I jerked away from Jay like he'd shocked me. Jay turned toward my husband.

"Dana was just getting rid of the wet things," Jay said.

"She hates a mess," Dave said.

"I should probably get going and let you two get to bed."

"What are you saying? I'm old?" Dave joked. "Or do you have some honey waiting on you?"

Jay laughed. "I'm not calling you old, man."

We walked Jay to the front door and as we said our goodbyes I gave Jay a hug. He had to practically bend in half and he still nearly lifted me off of my feet. I kissed his cheek—close to what I really wanted to do. Dave closed the door behind our guest and when he turned I was staring at him.

“Jay seemed like a nice guy,” I said.

“He is. I always have to keep that line between being boss and friend, but he’s definitely a guy I’d hang out with.”

“Yeah, I can see that. And I guess you trust him.”

“What do you mean? I trust all my guys. They wouldn’t be working for me if I didn’t.”

Dave grinned. “I guess I must. I know how hard you are to resist. Maybe I trust you and that’s why I left him alone with you.”

“I think you know better than that. You know what a little slut you wife can be.” I unhooked my bikini top behind my neck and let the halter straps hang forward, peeling the top down to just above my nipples, which were hard from the cool air inside. “Or maybe you were counting on that.”

Dave looked confused, like he couldn’t quite tell if I was kidding or not. “You know I wouldn’t mess around with a guy from work.” And now I couldn’t tell if he was sincere.

“I don’t know. You’re really into watching me fuck other guys, and you know how much I like guys like Jay. Maybe you couldn’t resist the temptation.” I took another step closer to him. I cupped both breasts and shivered as my thumbs stroked my nipples.

“It doesn’t sound like I’m the one who had trouble resisting temptation. I think Jay really made your panties wet.”

“Could be,” I teased.

Dave pressed a hand between my thighs. I gasped. He traced my lips through the bikini bottom, leaving a little dark spot. I looked up at him, the desire naked on my face. He grinned. Dave knew what I needed and he loved it when I was weak like this. I was his to play with.

“Someone’s pretty damned horny,” he said.

“I thought you left me alone with Jay for a reason,” I murmured. My hands smoothed his t-shirt over his chest. My husband was just about as muscular as Jay, but he just didn’t do as much of the daily labor since he was stuck running the business. But I knew my sexy husband would never let himself go.

“You really wanted it, didn’t you?” Dave kept rubbing my pussy and pulled the ponytail out of my hair before caressing my neck. His fingers, laced in my hair, tugged just enough to excite me. “I don’t know who wanted him more, you or Jana. Jay could have had a crazy threesome with two suburban MILFs.”

“Probably,” I breathed. I recalled my last threesome, with our friends in the cabin, and thinking about sharing a hot guy like Jay was exciting. I knew it would become a competition between Jana and I to see who could get crazier. I suspected Jana didn’t have many limits. “But I don’t think Neil likes to share the way you do.”

“Oh, I think we’d be cool with it if he got to watch. He’d finally get to see you naked. He’d be so focused on that he’d probably forget his wife was there.”

“You want Neil to fuck me too, don’t you?”

“That would be fun to watch.”

My pussy throbbed when I thought about our forbidden lifestyle being exposed to our neighbors. Dave was right, Neil would love a chance to fuck me—if all those looks were any indication. God, what would they think if they knew my husband wanted me to have sex with other men? They would think he was crazy and I was a slut.

We moved farther into the house—me walking backwards while Dave guided me with gentle tugs on my hair. He spun me when we reached the stairs and pushed me forward. My knees landed on the carpeted runner in the center, but my shins still banged painfully into the edge. He yanked the bottom of my bikini down and I kicked it away, wanting to spread my legs for my husband. I rested my elbows on a higher step. It was an awkward position, but I loved that he had to have me right there, right then. His cock slipped over my wet lips, splitting them when I pushed back.

“Fuck me,” I begged.

“That’s what you wanted to tell Jay, isn’t it?”

“Yes. I thought he was going to take me in the laundry room.”

Dave buried himself in me with a single thrust. I bit my lip—our kids and the neighbor’s were upstairs—but I still cried out. He held my hips and took me with quick, brutal thrusts. I know my husband was thinking about the same thing as me—Jay bending me over the washing machine and fucking me. My hair fell down around my face and my tits bounced with each powerful thrust. His balls slapped the backs of my thighs.

“I can’t leave you alone for a second, can I?” he growled.

“No! You know I’m a slut. I’m your slut, hon!”

His fingers dug into my thighs and he moved faster. I know he wanted to take me slowly, to draw it out, but he couldn't help himself. I was glad, because I couldn't take the teasing. I needed it, and I needed it badly. There was a sure way to get him to just pound me.

"I know you wanted me to fuck Jay. I don't care if you admit it. You wanted to see those big hands all over me..."

"Fuck, Dana..." Dave thrust faster.

"What if they laid me on the bar by the pool and Jana played with my tits while Jay fucked me?"

"Christ..."

"Neil could put it in my mouth..."

"Ohhh..."

"Fuck me, babe, please..." I begged.

Dave pounded me hard for another few seconds and with a long, low grunt he came inside me. I was whimpering, desperately trying to stay quiet by biting my hand and I came right after feeling his cum spurting inside me. He released my hips and I sagged to the steps. I couldn't support myself. Dave leaned against the wall, gasping. I was warm and satisfied all over. I loved the way my husband made me feel. My adventures with other men hadn't changed my desire for Dave at all—except maybe I wanted him more. I wanted him for seeing me as the sexy little nymph.

Dave sat on the steps beside me and stroked my hair. "You are an incredible woman. I don't know what I did to deserve the hottest woman on the planet, but I thank god every day."

"You just have to be you. I love you so much." I took his hand and kissed it. "Let's get up to bed."

After another week or so of thought—and much encouragement from my husband—I decided to go online and give it another shot. This time I extracted a promise from Dave that he would be there, at least in the beginning, when I met my date. I logged back into the website and found that my mailbox was jammed. A few guys sent multiple emails asking where I went and I dismissed them out of hand. They just came off as too desperate. I was also greeted by several new potential dates. I read through their profiles, but no one excited me too much. The men who were married and cheating on their wives were an immediate turn off. I was fine with a married man in an open relationship, but I didn't like the idea of a man who deceived his wife—even if I was putting myself out there as a cheating wife in my profile.

It took a few days, but I found someone who interested me. Most of the guys who sent me messages were business types, guys who sat behind a desk all day. Some of them were good looking, but my close encounter with Jay left me craving someone a little—I hate to say it—rougher. Carlos seemed to fit that bill. He didn't claim to be over six feet, which right away made me think he was more honest than a lot of the men on there. He was a cop, which seemed very manly to me. I could just imagine him slapping the cuffs on and frisking me. Would my husband like to see something like that?

Carlos was forty-two and his black hair was buzzed down and looked to be graying at the temples. His eyes were intense. He had the requisite shirtless picture and I liked what I saw. He was more gym muscular than from physical labor, but his six-pack was tight. That would be fun to play with. He had a tribal tattoo around one bicep, which was okay, but I didn't love the replica of his badge on the other. I liked that his profile was right to the point.

A divorce had left Carlos with no desire to get into another relationship, but he still wanted sex and he thought married women would be good because there were no strings there—no attachments. He wanted a regular thing with someone, if possible, but no relationship. I could respect that. In his message he said it sounded like we were looking for the same thing, which was true. “Diana” claimed to be in a boring marriage she didn’t want to leave and was looking for excitement. I almost asked Carlos if he went to bars where married women hung out, like Jay, but I didn’t. They were similar, but not the same. I liked him and showed his profile to Dave. Carlos passed that all-important test and we were off to the races.

As soon as he knew I was interested, Carlos became flirty. He also asked for another picture, a special request. I told him that was crazy, that I didn’t even know him, but he said that if I sent a picture he specifically asked for he would know my other pictures weren’t fake. I countered with a request of my own, but that did not deter him. The next day I received a selfie of Carlos wearing nothing but his tactical belt. It was such a silly request I didn’t think he’d ever do it. Now it was my turn.

I didn’t ask my husband first, I just fulfilled Carlos’s request. It was a Sunday afternoon and Dave was in the yard with the kids. I was supposed to be folding laundry, but took a break. I unhooked my bra and slipped it off without removing my t-shirt and then wiggled out of my shorts and panties. Carlos didn’t ask for a completely nude shot, which surprised me. He just wanted to know if I was shaved. I knelt on the bed and faced the mirror over the dresser. He wanted to see me in bed, too. I rolled up my blue vintage t-shirt, so about half my breasts showed—he strangely did not specify topless—and held up my phone. My dark hair was down, framing my face, the play of afternoon light from the windows made me look good. But I chickened out at the last minute and covered my pussy with three fingers. He couldn’t quite see everything, but I thought he could see enough to make a healthy guess. Taking the dirty picture made my pussy tingle. I texted an unedited version to Dave, but cropped out my head for Carlos’s version. No identifying naughty pictures for strangers! My husband replied right away, and it made me smile:

-You naughty girl! Wait til I get my hands on you later!

Carlos must have had the AshleyMadison app open, because he also replied quickly. He seemed pleased:

-Can’t be positive if you’re shaved, but damn you’ve got a bangin’ body. I can’t wait to get my hands on you. Your husband is insane if he doesn’t know what he’s got.

My husband knew exactly what he had, which was why he was such a happy man. I shot back a response:

-Don't get ahead of yourself. We haven't even met yet. We might not hit it off.

-We need to do something about that. Are you free this weekend?

-I'll see what I can do.

Dave thought meeting Carlos was a great idea and called the babysitter straight away. I'm not sure why, but I was surprised that Dave never commented on the fact that Carlos was Hispanic. Neither of us are racist, but I've never been with a guy who wasn't white. That wasn't planned. I'd just never thought about it. I know the interracial angle adds to the kink for a lot of guys, but I guess that wasn't part of it for my husband—or if it was he kept it to himself. Carlos was going to a fellow officer's wedding that Saturday and staying downtown. He suggested we meet at the hotel bar after the reception. That was awfully convenient. I agreed to meet him, but said he shouldn't expect to sweep me right up to his room. He replied to that with a simple, we'll see.

While Dave went to drop the kids at his parents', I got ready for my date. He would come to the hotel bar on his own. I always like to be sexy for my dates, but since Carlos would be in a suit, I thought I should be more dressed up than usual. I pulled a dress from the closet I'd worn for a client dinner before and posed in front of the mirror. The dress hadn't been worn in a couple years, but it still fit perfectly. It was a short-sleeved aqua number with a V-neck that fell a few inches above the knee. It was classy, but still sexy. I wouldn't look like a hooker trawling for johns in the hotel bar. I'd bought the dress when Dave was trying to land a contract with a big developer that I knew I had to impress. The V-neck was not skimpy on the cleavage, the dress clingy, and let's just say Dave got the contract. I added a thin belt, ivory thigh highs and matching pumps and the outfit was complete. I decided it was a good night to wear my hair down with a wave in it and then did my make-up.

I knew Carlos was not the only person from the wedding staying at that hotel as soon as I walked into the bar. Knowing his friends were going to be around made me nervous and I almost walked right back out the door. There were maybe a dozen guys and their dates at the bar. The guys all had the swagger of cops and looked like they'd been drinking for a while. I wondered if Carlos was drunk too.

I looked around the bar and did not see my husband. I was getting a bad feeling and would have left right then if I hadn't caught Carlos's eye. He was in the middle of the group and was the only one still wearing his entire suit. He didn't know my face, or what I would be wearing, but I guess he knew my body well enough that he seemed to pick me out right away. He was even hotter in person and I felt my nerves melt just a little. I gave him a shy little wave and he broke away from his friends to cross over and envelop me in a huge hug.

"You look a thousand times sexier in person, Diana," he whispered in my ear.

I knew then I wasn't leaving.

Dana was with a large group in the corner when I arrived at the bar. There was more than a dozen of them and they'd taken over a side of the bar and a couple tables. I scanned the group for my wife and found her there in the back, chatting with a guy I recognized as Carlos and another couple. She sat on a stool and his arm was around her like they'd been dating forever. She was wearing a sexy blue-green dress that she'd worn to impress a client at dinner a few years back. She certainly impressed that night. Her tits hung out of the low-cut neck and my client hadn't been able to look away. Carlos seemed just as impressed as that guy had been. Picking that dress meant Dana really wanted his attention. She had it. My cock grew in my pants and I stepped to the bar to hide it, while doing my best not to stare.

I watched out of the corner of my eye and was so distracted I missed the bartender asking what I wanted. I ordered a beer.

"Are you looking for someone?" he asked.

"No, not really."

"It's just that you look local, that's all. Not a guest at the hotel, so I thought you might be looking for someone—or something."

He kept staring at me oddly until I realized his meaning. He thought I was there looking for a call girl. I immediately looked away from him. I don't know why I was embarrassed that he thought I was there for a hooker.

I mean, wasn't the real reason I was there way worse? Should I tell him, No, I'm not looking to get laid. I want my wife to get laid. See that hot brunette over there? That's her, and I'm hoping she's going to fuck that muscular guy who's hanging all over her. No, I was not going to say that, although it was tempting. If I was going to confess, why not a bartender? He was a perfect stranger. It would be fun to see his reaction. But I didn't have the balls. He filled the silence.

"See that cool blonde over there?"

The bartender pointed to the other side of the room, where a cool blonde sat on the end of the black leather padded bench that ran the length of the bar, a little round table in front of her. She wore a tight black dress that looked like lace laid over a shorter dress, which meant the lace over her arms and cleavage was see-through. I guessed she was probably around my age, but she had one of those faces where she could be younger. Platinum blonde hair fell in waves around her face. She was stunningly, classically beautiful. It was hard to believe she was a call girl. If she was, she was one of the expensive ones.

"Her name's Amelia. She's in here two or three nights a week. I hear she's pricy, but the word is she's worth every penny. One guy told me it's like you're on a real date," the bartender said.

I looked her over again. I could imagine she was worth a lot of money, but that just wasn't my thing. "Sorry, that's not why I came in, but thanks. I just had a date and I wanted to blow off some steam before I go home," I said. I don't know why I felt the urge to explain myself to the bartender. It was a bar and I wanted a drink. Wasn't that enough?

He noted my wedding ring. "I know how it is. Sometimes you need to unwind before you go home to the wife. Hey, I don't judge."

"Uh, thanks."

Over in the corner, Carlos was very close, whispering something in Dana's ear. She smiled and nodded. Had he just suggested they go up to his room? She'd probably been here at the bar for over an hour. I didn't know if Dana thought that was enough getting to know you time before going upstairs with him. I did know—from seeing their emails—that she was very into Carlos. I would be surprised if this evening ended with my wife fully dressed. I know I hoped it wouldn't. The anticipation of Dana going off to be thoroughly fucked by this stud was an uncomfortable high. I liked the feeling, but it left me wanting more. The bartender noticed me staring at Dana.

“I don’t think she’s a pro. She’s hot, she could be, but she doesn’t throw off the vibe,” the bartender said.

“You’re right, she’s hot enough. I bet she’d make some money,” I replied.

I had many fantasies of Dana with other men, but my wife as a call girl was not one I’d considered—until then. I glanced back at the cool blonde and tried to picture Dana sitting there, waiting for a john to pay to take her upstairs. How did it work? Would Dana already have a room there, or would the john have one? I knew my wife would make her johns happy. She would make them feel like they were on a date, just like the blonde.

Dana wouldn’t follow a no kissing rule. I thought about a man finding my wife so hot that he would pay to fuck her and my cock rocked to full hardness. I’d only been at half mast before that, but there it was in my mind; Dana going up to a hotel room with some stranger and her being completely his for the next hour, doing whatever he wanted, doing whatever he demanded. She would be the ultimate sex object. My wife would be more than my personal porn star—she’d truly be my whore. It was so exciting I had to push it out of my head before I lost all focus. Besides, I suspect that might be too far for Dana. I didn’t know how I would even ask something like that.

“I’ve got her pegged for an internet date. She walked in here looking unsure, like she was looking for someone she’d never met before,” the bartender continued.

“Yeah? So I guess that dude is the lucky guy.”

“Looks like it. He came in with all those people from a wedding, so I’m a little surprised he had a blind date meet him here, but maybe he wanted his friends’ opinions on her.”

“I’d give her a thumbs up,” I said enthusiastically.

The bartender nodded. “Yeah, she’s a piece of ass. I bet there’s a decent chance he’ll get her upstairs.”

“Really? I don’t know if she looks like the type to sleep with a guy on the first date.”

“That’s hard to say, but from people watching it seems to me that older women—not that she’s old—seem more confident in their bodies and freer with them. You know, that whole sexual peak thing. I think that's why so many guys chase cougars."

"How about you? Do you like the cougars?" I asked. He looked to be somewhere in his mid-20s.

"When they look like her, hell yeah."

The picture of Dana and this bartender together sprang into my mind. I saw him leading her through the door behind the bar, back into the storeroom, and pushing her up against cases of beer and liquor while they kissed. She might try to go to her knees in that dirty storeroom, but the bartender would probably need it to be a quickie so he would just bend her over some boxes and hike up her skirt. And then I pictured my wife doing the walk of shame out of that backroom, her dress barely straightened. Yeah, that would be hot.

"So you think he's going to get lucky tonight?"

"There's a good chance," the bartender said. "The way they've been drinking over there, it doesn't seem like she's holding back to keep her wits about her. It's almost like she's made the decision and she needs some liquid courage to follow through on it."

"I think I'll hang around a bit and see what happens."

A bit turned out to be a couple more hours. I was drinking water by that point because I didn't want to have to drive home drunk, and it looked like Dana had slowed her drinking too. She was obviously having a good time and I wondered what the holdup was. It was well after midnight and if she wasn't going to go up to his room I would have thought she'd have left by then. When Carlos's friends started to drift away I figured out my wife's game. She didn't want his crowd to see her go to his room, so she was trying to wait them out. It made sense, but it would have been hot to see Dana led away while Carlos's friends made snide comments about his fucking her.

Dana put all that time to good use teasing me. That woman knows what gets me going. After she realized I was there, I noticed her snuggling closer to Carlos and playing up her attraction. His hands were all over her and she seemed to encourage it with her body language. It was after the group shared a shot that Carlos leaned in and kissed her. I loved that Dana didn't hesitate, but closed her eyes, tilted her head just so, and accepted his kiss like she'd been waiting all night for it. She placed her hand on the side of his face in that affectionate way she always did with me when we kissed.

That caused the jealousy to spike in me, which only made me harder. I'd been hard off and on for so long by then that I was getting a serious case of blue balls. I don't think they kissed for more than a few seconds, but it was enough to prime my pump. I wanted my wife to leave with him.

Once the ice was broken they kissed here and there, really behaving like they were dating. And by the end of the night, they were making out beside the bar. Only a couple of Carlos's friends were left, another couple and a single woman. Those three were talking amongst themselves while Dana and Carlos were back in the corner, making out like teenagers. She sat on a stool and he stood in front of her.

Their deep kisses seemed to last forever and Carlos's hands caressed her here and there, only just stopping short of groping her there in public. I was a little surprised the bartender didn't say anything, but he seemed as interested in their little display as I was. They finally came up for air and Carlos whispered something to Dana, which she answered with just a little nod. He called the bartender over and settled his tab.

Dana looked over at me and smiled while Carlos was distracted. It was the first time she'd looked toward me in a while. It was like she'd been so involved with Carlos that she'd forgotten I was even there. That burned a bit. She didn't look very drunk, but her eyes were full of lust. I could see how much she wanted her new friend. That look gripped my heart for just a moment, threatening to seize it. Just that one little look was as much of a thrill as seeing her with a mouthful of another man's cock. Carlos finished with the bartender, said his goodbyes, and took Dana's hand. I watched him lead my wife up to his hotel room to fuck her.

The bartender came over to me and said, "Now that was an interesting twist."

"What's that?"

"I noticed that chick was wearing a wedding ring."

I pretended to be surprised. "Really? So I guess it wasn't a date after all."

"No, I think it was a date. I told you she had that look. I'm sure those two never met before tonight. And he wasn't wearing a ring. I think she was just stepping out on her old man."

"Hmm."

The bartender regarded me for a long moment. "I wonder if he has any idea what his wife is up to. Her husband I mean."

“You think he might? Poor bastard.” I hoped I sounded suitably shocked.

“I don’t know. Some guys don’t care. They’re just happy to have the wife out of their hair, you know? And some guys even like it. They get off on that sort of thing.” He stared at me.

“That sounds...weird.”

“You ready for your check?” he asked.

“Yes, please.”

I didn’t like what the bartender seemed to have decided about me and I just wanted to get the hell out of there. I was ready to rush home and wait for my well-used wife and her juicy video.

My stomach was full of butterflies as Carlos led me through the lobby toward the bank of elevators. I caught my reflection in the shiny elevator doors and I looked flushed and a little disheveled. I could see how my hair was mussed from Carlos running his fingers through it while we kissed at the bar. His hand was on my ass now and I was glad the lobby was almost empty. He pulled my lips to his and we kissed out there in the open. He was such a good kisser and I couldn't get enough of him. I wanted Carlos so badly.

I'd had a lot of experience kissing men by then and while I thought Zach was very good, Carlos's kiss was hotter. There was a possessiveness to Carlos's kiss that made my toes curl. The elevator dinged and we reluctantly broke our kiss to board it. Just as the door slid closed, I saw Dave on the other side of the lobby watching us. His expression concerned and inflamed me. His eyes were narrowed like he was worried, but he also looked desperately turned on, like he wanted to follow us and watch more than anything.

Carlos pinned me against the back of the elevator and nuzzled me. I moaned when he sucked on my ear, but pushed at his hand when he tried pulling my dress up. "You know they have cameras in these things," I warned.

"Of course I know. I'm a cop, remember?" He sounded amused. "These poor security guards deserve a show. They don't make that much money."

He pulled at the hem of my dress and I forced myself to let him. These shows were supposed to be for my husband, not some anonymous security guard, but performing for Dave had fanned that exhibitionist spark in me to full flame. Knowing that someone might be watching—and getting hard—while Carlos mauled me in the elevator was exciting. I knew Dave would love knowing that other guys were watching me like that. Carlos rubbed me, plastering my silky panties to my damp mound, and I moaned deeply.

The doors popped open and I pushed Carlos backward into the hallway. I eagerly started one way down the hallway, but he pulled me back the other way. I didn't know where his room was. He was so excited that he fumbled with the card in the reader on the door.

Together, we pushed the door open and stumbled down the little hall to where the room opened up. There was nothing impressive about the room—it was a king bed, dresser, a little table in the corner with chairs. I could imagine my husband sitting in that corner, watching from the shadows as Carlos ravished me. It reminded me to start the camera and I pushed Carlos off long enough to put my little clutch purse down in the table, with the hidden camera just beside it. It was pointed perfectly at the bed.

Carlos held my face in both hands and kissed me deeply. It was a way to show I was his, and I loved it. His power gave me the chills. I pushed his jacket off and pulled at his tie. He turned me to find my zipper, but that dress unzipped at the side. I guided his hand down. He pulled my hair aside and nibble on my neck while slowing working the zipper. We faced the camera, giving my husband a perfect view. I still pretended he was sitting there and could almost see the intense look on his face, urging me on.

The dress dropped to the floor and Carlos's hands swept over my body. My lingerie was black, silky and skimpy. The bra pressed my tits up, creating the wonderful cleavage for the dress, and the thong panties only covered the bare minimum, so as to leave no lines. Carlos was not shy. He shoved a hand right down my panties and cupped my smooth pussy. I gasped and melted back against him. Fingers curled up inside me and I closed my eyes, overwhelmed by the suddenness of it all.

Guys in a car kind of went right for it, or if we were making out in some other odd place, like an alley behind a bar, but in a situation like this they seemed to take more time. Carlos did not dawdle. He slowly worked those fingers in and out of me, pressing onto my clit, and already I was moaning out of control and shaking as I felt an orgasm coming on. I rubbed my body back against his like an aggressive cat. And this was all facing the camera, almost like Carlos knew my husband was there watching us.

“You're hot for it, aren't you Diana?” he hissed in my ear.

I nodded.

“You need to come already.”

I nodded again, but he demanded I speak.

“Say it.”

“I need to come, baby. Please make me come.” I loved the way he made me say it.

“I’m gonna make you come now, and then I’ll really make you scream.”

“Ohhh...god...”

Carlos’s one arm wrapped around me, pinning me tightly to him, and his other hand kept busy on my pussy. It only took a couple more moments before he fulfilled his promise and I was coming. I cried out and bucked in his tight grasp, but he held me fast. I could tell I would not be free until he was ready to release me, and that only made me hotter. I soaked his fingers and my thong and I could hear his fingers moving inside me. Carlos didn’t let go until I began to breathe normally.

I sagged forward and braced myself on the table, right in front of the camera. Dave would be staring right at my soaked panties. I took a deep breath and turned to face Carlos. He looked thrilled with his handiwork and was eagerly anticipating what I would do next. I smiled and dropped my bra to the floor. Next I wiggled out of my panties and struck a pose. It was the first time he saw me fully nude, and he liked it.

“Damn, babe, you look fucking amazing. You’re husband is a fool.”

Hearing him trash my husband like that irritated me, but then I remembered he wasn’t talking about Dave, but Diana’s fictional hubby, who left her so bored she was looking for hook ups on the internet.

I confidently walked toward Carlos, grabbed him by the shirt and shoved my tongue in his mouth. I wanted to show him how much I appreciated the orgasm he’d just given me. The buttons on his shirt yielded to my insistent fingers and then I was crouched in front of him, opening his pants. He strained against tight, stretchy boxer briefs and I traced the outline of his length with my fingers. I was almost able to grip him through the stretch fabric and I tugged on him until he grunted impatiently. I don’t think Carlos was used to being teased.

His cock sprang out, smearing sticky, clear juice on my cheek when I freed it from his boxer-briefs. The nearly-nude photo he’d sent me didn’t truly do him justice. Appropriately for a cop, his penis was like a blunt weapon—too thick for me to wrap my hand around and at least seven inches long. I didn’t know how I would take something that big, but it would be fun finding out. I held him with both hands and sucked the tip between my lips, swabbing the head with my tongue to clean up all that dripping precum. I stood and pushed him back onto the bed.

“I like a woman who goes for what she wants,” he chuckled.

“I know what it’s like to do without,” I said, playing up my role as Diana. “When I see something I want, I know to grab it.”

I crawled onto the bed between his spread legs and leaned over him, my hair tickling his chest. There was a quick kiss, then I focused on his neck, using my tongue, lips and teeth to find all his tender spots. Carlos laced his fingers in my hair and held me there when I nibbled on his neck where he liked it. My hand smoothed over his sculpted abs and grasped his shaft tightly. His body jerked and he grunted. Carlos was ready to fuck me, but I wasn’t ready to let him. Not yet. He was a hot guy and I wanted time to play.

His chest really did seem to be carved from stone, and his abs were a work of art. I traced the tribal tattoo on his bicep with my tongue and then returned to tease his nipples, but he did not seem to like that, and he pulled me away from there. I ran my fingers over his abs like I just couldn’t believe they were real. Carlos sat back and watched me worship his body, pleased that I wanted him so badly. I wonder if he thought of moments like this when he was in the gym. I know when I’m out running, or doing yoga, I’m thinking about that fact some strange man is going to be seeing me naked soon, and I want him to like what he sees. But he could only take so much of that, I guess, because again he urged me lower.

I like a guy to be in control, but it can be annoying when they push your face toward their cock. It’s like they are just assuming you’re down to give them head. But Carlos was so strong and self-assured that it only felt natural to follow his lead. He was completely smooth down there—he didn’t even have stubble. I like it when a man does some manscaping, but I hadn’t encountered anyone like that before. Charles in the casino at least had some stubble. It was a little weird to be kissing him down there and have it be as smooth as my pussy. But when I started kissing his thick, hot shaft I forgot all about that. Only one thing dominated my thoughts.

Carlos stared at me hungrily while I kissed and licked his prick. He tasted masculine and musky, but clean. I lapped at him like he was a delicious candy cane. The way he stared at me made me tingle at my core. This guy is going to fuck me silly, I thought. I held his baton in both hands and began working my way down it. My lips were stretched wide and my mouth was full, but I relaxed and sucked down more. Carlos encouraged me with his eyes to swallow more and more.

“That’s so sweet, Diana. Suck that dick good.”

It was a shame the camera was behind me. Dave would have a beautiful view of my ass, but I know he’d love to see my mouth stretched around that huge cock. I imagined him coming around my side to watch. He wouldn’t be able to stay in the chair. Would Dave be amazed at how much cock I could fit in my mouth? Would he be intimidated to see how eagerly I sucked that monster? Look at your slut wife, Dave. Watch me sucking this big dick. I want it so bad, honey. I want this big bastard to feed me his cock. Pretending my husband was there just made me suck Carlos harder, cheeks hollowed as I amazingly made over half his cock disappear into my mouth.

“Damn, Diana. You want it, don’t you? You need it bad,” Carlos moaned.

I murmured, “Mmhm,” through my mouthful.

“Does your husband know what a great cocksucker you are? Jesus, I’d never let you out of bed, babe.”

Bobbing on that big cock made my jaw sore, so I switched to stroking it while licking the head and then kissing his hairless balls. My engagement ring caught the light from the bedside lamp and I realized it was the first time I was seeing my hand, with wedding rings on, wrapped around a cock that was not my husband’s. It was just so wrong, and it gave me chills of excitement. His balls were big too. I loved how sucking them made him moan. It always seems to impress a guy when I suck his balls. I actually liked it when they were as clean as Carlos’s. It was fun playing with them with my tongue.

“Yeah, Di, that’s hot. Suck those balls,” Carlos encouraged while I slurped around his balls.

With all his fingers in my hair, he gently pulled me back up to take his shaft into my mouth. It seemed that he could only cede control for so long. I liked him taking charge again. Carlos guided my mouth up and down on his fat prick while I held it by the base. My free hand pinched and rolled my tingling nipples, but then moved down to rub my soaked mound. That climax he’d given me was like a distant memory. I needed more! I struggled to relax as Carlos forced more and more cock into my mouth. He kept me bobbing faster and faster. I’d gone from giving him head to him fucking my mouth. I looked up at him, considered asking him to slow down, but the intense look on his face stopped me. Carlos stared at me like I was the center of his universe, and that look made me want to do anything to please him.

“That mouth is fucking hot, Di. You’re so fucking good,” he praised, driving himself into my mouth. I almost gagged, but I was determined to keep going.

Hear that Dave? I thought. Hear what a good cocksucker your wife is? Carlos is owning my mouth right now, just like you wanted. I could see my husband there—right beside us—jerking off as Carlos used my mouth. Dave would love to hear this stranger praising me.

Carlos did not ask if I was ready, or if I even wanted to swallow, but just held my head tightly with his cock buried in my throat. The first spurt shot right down my throat, but then he eased back and the second and third thick wads blasted right into my mouth. A couple smaller detonations followed and he pulled it out, leaving strings of come stretching back to my lips. I licked it away and made a show of swallowing what he’d deposited in my mouth. I don’t mind at all when a guy comes in my mouth, and I liked the opportunity to play the slut for him. I also took my drenched fingers from my pussy and licked them clean, too. Something about Carlos just made me want to be his dirty whore. I knew my husband would approve.

“Your husband must be gay,” Carlos said. He stared at me like he’d hit the jackpot.

“No, he’s not.” I reminded myself he was speaking of Diana’s husband, not Dave. “He’s just very busy with work. And besides, I think he might be cheating.” Adding that to the narrative felt like it gave Diana more reason to be out with other men.

“Thanks. I aim to please.” I smiled.

“Let me take care of the pleasing for a while.”

Carlos pulled me toward him and turned me so I was stretched out on my back beside him on the bed. He just laid on his side for a bit and watched me, running his hand over my smooth, pale skin—tracing my curves, driving me crazy with anticipation.

“You really do have a beautiful body, Diana. I see other girls in the gym all the time, busting their asses, but they will never be as hot as you are. They just don’t have the natural gifts you do.” He cupped one of my breasts, my breathing becoming heavy, and tweaked my nipple, drawing a whimper from my throat. His words had me glowing. Carlos really took the time to look at me, and it made me want him even more.

“I meet married women like you and I can’t believe their husbands don’t appreciate the amazing women waiting in their beds. It’s like they’re asking me to fuck their wives.”

He was half right. My husband did want him to fuck his wife, but not for the reasons Carlos suspected. I wondered how he would feel if he knew about my relationship with Dave. A man like Carlos could probably never understand. “I don’t need to hear about all the married women you bed,” I told him.

“I just want you to know that I chose you. I want you to know that even though it’s just sex, it’s still special to me in its own way. It’s an honor to make a woman like you come.”

Under any other circumstances, his words would have made me laugh, but when he was playing with my nipples like that I would eat up every word. He traced his fingertips around them, making me shiver, then he’d lightly pinch them, increasing the pressure until it was right on that delicious pleasure/pain line. Carlos was definitely experienced in pleasuring a woman. All that time bedding married women had served him well. If he could make me feel that good, I didn’t mind being another notch on his bedpost.

“You’re definitely making me feel something,” I moaned.

“Something good, I hope.” A hand glided down over my tummy, cupping my mound so two fingers could curve up and push deep inside me. I arched my back and cried out.

“Oh, yes!”

Carlos slowly fingered me and just laid to the side and watched me. It was a little weird at first, but when I touched his cock and I felt he was hard again, it became really hot. Much like the way my husband like to watch me, so did Carlos, only he wanted to be the one getting me off. I looked up at him, feeling helpless as he controlled my body with just a couple fingers.

I was so drenched that my juices soaked my thighs and the sheets beneath me. His thumb teased my clit and he brought me right to the edge of orgasm, but stopped short, leaving me moaning and gasping, making little pleading sounds, hoping he’d get the message. He also kept caressing my tits and playing with my nipples and I was out of my mind with lust.

“Carlos...please...” I moaned.

“Please what?” He was a smug bastard, which only turned me on more.

“Please...”

He leaned in, growled in my ear, “Say it, Diana. Tell me.”

“Ohhh...Carlos...”

I humped my pussy at his hand, but he knew just when to back off so I couldn't force him to make me come. My whole body was on fire. I grabbed his thick cock and stroked it, hoping to make him want to slide it in me. I stared at his cock because the avid expression on his face was too scary and exciting. But looking at his cock only made me think about how much I wanted it.

“Does your husband do this to you, Diana?” he whispered.

“No.”

“He doesn't make you need it like this?”

“No...he doesn't...” I had to be honest with him.

“I bet you're the one that does the teasing, aren't you? You get off on it, right?”

“God yes! Please Carlos!”

“The little tease isn't used to being teased. I know what you're all about, Diana. And I know what you need.”

“Please...please give me what I need.” I begged him. I wasn't proud any longer. He knew exactly what I was.

Carlos chuckled and finally delivered. His fingers in my cunt, his thumb on my clit—they combined to drive me over the edge and I was screaming in that hotel room, coming like I had never come before. He made my head spin and I swear I slipped out of my body for a second and watched it thrashing on the bed. But I could not thrash out of his control. His hands were too strong. Carlos held me down on the bed and climbed on top of me. That beautiful cock of his bounced between my legs and he ordered me to take it and put it in. I tried with my right hand.

“No, your other hand,” he demanded.

I knew what he wanted. I looked down and watched as my hand wrapped around his shaft. My wedding rings seemed to glow against his skin, a beacon of my infidelity. I used that unfaithful hand to stuff his prick into my pussy. With one deep thrust he drove it home and I was screaming again—coming again. I didn't even care that it hurt a little, because it felt even better. He pulled my left leg up, threw it over his shoulder, and then laid into me.

I couldn't believe how deep he was. I'd never felt anything like it. I've been with bigger guys and I've honestly never really thought it made that much of a difference—sometimes it even hurt too much—but Carlos knew what to do with it. He knew how to make me his. He stared down and his eyes pinned me to the bed with just as much power as his cock.

It felt like Carlos fucked me endlessly. I don't know how many times I came. He leaned back and lifted my ass into the air and drove himself down into me like a pile driver, but then he leaned in, covering my body with his, and whispered how beautiful I was while he took me with long, slow strokes. I clawed for his granite arms, but he took my wrists and pinned them to the bed. Being restrained was so incredibly hot.

He sat upright on the bed and held me so we were face to face while he effortlessly bounced me on his cock. I screamed myself hoarse while he used my body. It was only when he finally asked me if I was on the pill that I realized he'd been fucking me bareback all that time.

I was horrified. That was one of our ironclad rules, as much mine as Dave's. I was on the pill, but getting pregnant wasn't even my primary concern. My husband would be furious when he saw that I let Carlos have me like that. I was sure of it. I was furious with myself. And yet, I did not make Carlos stop. I couldn't.

"Please don't come inside me," I pleaded.

"It's hotter when I don't," he growled in my ear, biting my earlobe.

Carlos tossed me back onto the bed and I bounced. He crawled over me, jerking his cock. I took over, sure to use my left hand. I watched the gleam of my rings as my hand glided over his shaft. He cried my name and thick, pearly liquid shot all over my tits. The ropery cum seemed to blast out like a hose and a strand even blasted across my face. I stroked him until I was sure he was done, until the last of his load ran down over my wedding rings, and then I leaned up and sucked him, licking his wonderful cock clean. He knelt beside me, looking down at my sweat and cum covered, worn out body.

"You're an extraordinary woman, Diana. That was spectacular."

I smiled up at him, still stroking his cock. I couldn't seem to let go of it. "God, that was amazing, baby," I said.

"Let me get us some water."

That was only round one. By the time I left Carlos's hotel room, it was after four in the morning and I was so sore I could hardly walk. Despite taking a shower, I know I looked like exactly what I was—a well-used whore sneaking across the hotel lobby to steal home before the sun came up. I had never been so thoroughly used—or pleased—in my life. I hate to compare lovers, but he made Zach—who has his charms—look like a rank amateur. It was a little bit scary because Carlos made me forget all about my husband watching. Carlos was all I thought about while I was his. That wasn't really part of the plan. I didn't make him use a condom the second time either. I'd weakly protested, but he quickly won me over. I promised myself that next time I would absolutely, positively make Carlos use one. And I knew there would be a next time. Carlos made me promise before I left.

"You're going to see me again, aren't you?" he said while we laid in bed at the end. I was fresh out of the shower, having scrubbed both his loads off my body, and he insisted I come back to bed for a while.

"I'll have to see if I can sneak out again."

"Where does your husband think you were tonight?"

"I told him I was having drinks with a girlfriend," I lied. "He'll think I just had too much and had to sleep it off—if he even notices." I kept up the fable of an inattentive husband. My real husband might have been annoyed at the late hour.

"Then you can do the same thing again, Diana. This can't be a one night stand. I have to have you again." He kissed me.

"We'll see."

He kissed me again, this time long and deep. I was breathless and I promised him I would see him again.

I didn't know how Dave would feel about that. I thought he would love the video, but I worried I'd gone too far. Watching Carlos fully possess me would either be Dave's ultimate fantasy fulfillment or his worst nightmare. I wished I knew which it would be.

When I came home Dave was asleep on the couch. He'd tried waiting up for me, but the sun was just beginning to rise. I thought about leaving him be—God knew I needed to go to bed—but I knew he'd want me to wake him. I gently shook him and kissed his forehead.

"Dana? Jeez, what time is it?" he asked groggily.

Dave blinked and tried to stretch the stiffness out of his body. He'd fallen asleep in an awkward position. The iPad, which had been in his lap, slid to the floor. I knew that meant he'd been watching videos of me on my hot dates while he waited for me to come home from this one. He tried to hide from me how often he watched those videos, but I knew my husband couldn't get enough of my adventures. It disturbed me a little bit—I still wasn't entirely comfortable watching them, even if it did turn me on—but I accepted that it was just part of his fantasy.

"Sorry I'm so late, honey. Time just got away from us."

A couple emotions washed over his face, and then Dave smiled. "I guess you were having a good time then."

"It was a good night." I never knew quite how to reply to that question. I didn't want him to think I was rubbing it in.

"At least you made it home before morning." That was another of our rules. I did not spend the night with other men.

"Carlos had me quite distracted. I wasn't thinking about the time."

"I can't believe you just went right up to his room like that. You little slut." Dave waited for me to react, and then he laughed.

"You saw him. I couldn't help myself."

"Yeah, you two were like longtime lovers at the bar. He was all over you. It was fucking hot, babe."

"I'm glad you liked it, sweetheart." I kissed him sweetly.

"I didn't think the clean-cut, law and order guy was your type."

"I don't know. There was just something about him."

"So did you guys fall asleep..."

I shook my head and said, "All night long, baby."

Again, emotions warred on his face before he answered, "You really are so hot, Dana. I can't wait to see it."

I dug the hidden camera out of my bag and handed it to him. "You can check it out. I'm going to go upstairs and change into something comfy. I'm worn out."

Dave eagerly went over to the computer while I went upstairs and stripped out of the sexy dress and lingerie. I scrubbed off the little bit of makeup I'd re-applied after my shower in the hotel room, and pulled my hair back with a headband. In the mirror I just looked like a tired, thirtysomething suburban mom, not a horny sex pot who'd just spent the night in a near-stranger's hotel room. I flopped down on the bed, planning to rest my eyes for a second, when Dave came storming into the bedroom.

"What the hell, Dana?"

"What?"

"There's no video. The thing is blank." He was genuinely angry and the blood turned to ice in my veins.

"Are you sure? I turned it on. I know I did."

"I plugged it into the computer and there's nothing on the camera. You were there all night and there's nothing." He shook the fake car remote at me like an accusatory finger.

"Maybe it wasn't charged. I don't know what happened. I did what I always do." I sat up on the bed, angry now too. I didn't like what he was implying.

"You're out all night, I'm cool with that. I'm eagerly waiting to see what happened, but then I get nothing." I couldn't believe how angry he was.

"Hey, I'm out all night because you want me to be. Don't forget who's idea this all was."

"I'm sure you hated every second of it. It sure looked that way at the bar."

"I could end this right now and never look back." I was on my feet.

"Could you?" he spat.

We stood there, facing off, both red-faced and huffing. I couldn't believe how he was coming down on me. I made his fantasy happen. I threw off my wedding vows because he wants me to fuck other men, and now he had the nerve to act like I was some harlot. I thought I might smack him. But then his face softened, his body sagged, and he just looked deeply disappointed.

"I'm so sorry, Dana. I know it's not your fault. Technical failures happen."

Dave looked like he might cry and suddenly I felt bad, too. It felt like I could have been more understanding. I knew what this meant to him. He never would have asked me to do all those things if it didn't mean so much.

"It's okay, baby. I'm sorry I let you down. I swear I wanted you to see it. I couldn't wait for you to see how hot it was." I put my hands on his arms. I wanted to comfort him.

"I know. It's okay."

"If it's this intense, maybe we need to take a step back."

"No," he answered quickly. "No, we don't have to stop. I was just disappointed, that's all."

"Really? I'm a little concerned..."

"Come on, Dana. You don't want to stop either. I saw you with Carlos. You were so into it."

"I was," I answered tentatively. "He was a really good kisser, but..."

Dave started touching me. Massaging my breasts through my tank top until my nipples pressed into his palms. I sighed. His touch always felt so good, I couldn't help responding to it, no matter how worn out I was. He guided me back toward the bed.

"And then upstairs, you said it was hot?" Dave pulled at my tank top, lifted it over my head. He pushed the loose, little shorts I'd just pulled on to the floor.

"He was so good, baby. I couldn't believe it." We kissed and I reached for his prick. I knew I would find him hard. I pulled at his clothes.

"Yeah, he made you feel good, Dana? He made your pussy wet?"

We were on the bed now, touching each other and kissing between the words. I stroked his cock, used my left hand again on purpose, and couldn't help noticing how different my husband's cock was from Carlos's. Dave was a nice size, but I could wrap my fingers around it. It felt different to have my hand in that familiar place instead of where it should never be. I had been so bad and it turned me on so much. As tired as I was, I was still horny. I thought I wouldn't need sex again for a week, but I was wrong.

"I was so wet. He undressed me, baby, and then he made me come before he undressed. He fingered me the second we were in the room."

"Jesus, you were a whore."

"Yes, I couldn't help it. He made me come so easily."

Dave slid inside me so easily. It hurt a little because I was so sore, but it felt good to be filled again. He slowly rocked his cock in and out of me.

"And he didn't care that you're married?"

"He liked it. He likes fucking other men's wives," I moaned.

“And you were more than willing.”

“Yes, baby. I let him do everything he wanted. I pretended you were there. I wanted you to see what a good slut I was.”

“Fuck, Dana. I wish I was there. I wish I saw it.”

“I was screaming. He made me come all night...”

“Ohhh...Dana...”

“And when he was done, he just came all over my tits and my face. He covered me with his cum, Dave.”

“Ohhh...shit...Dana...”

Dave did not last very long at all. We made love for a few minutes and then he was coming inside me. I really didn't mind that I didn't climax with him. I was so sore and tired I don't know that I even could have. Just having my husband inside me, being close to him like that, was enough. Our bodies remained tangled together, even after we were done.

“Shit, Dana. I love you. I love you so much.”

“I love you too, baby.”

Dave turned serious. “I really mean it. I know you go out and do this stuff for me, and I love you so much for it. What other woman would do something like this for her husband?”

I wanted to lighten the mood. “It's my pleasure. Really.” I laughed.

“I'm sorry about tonight. I promise it won't happen again.”

“I'll be more careful next time. I'll find some way to make sure it's recording.”

“You're the best, Dana.”

More than a few worries bubbled up at the back of my mind, but I was truly exhausted and I just pushed them down and gave into the darkness.

I needed to chill things out after that night with Carlos. I tried to be understanding about Dave's outburst, but it really did bother me how he lost it just because the camera didn't record my hot date with Carlos. I know my husband wasn't really accusing me of turning off the camera on purpose—really, why would I? I wasn't sneaking around. He had already seen me with men, multiple times with Zach, so what would I be hiding? After all that, what wouldn't I want Dave to see?

But honestly, a tiny part of me was relieved—not that I could ever tell my husband that. The sex with Carlos was so intense, I gave myself to him so completely, that I was a little scared Dave wouldn't have reacted well to it. I knew he wanted to see me enjoy myself, but did he want to see it to that extreme? It also gave me a convenient excuse to keep it to myself that Carlos did not wear a condom. I told myself there was no point in confessing, since the damage was done. And I swore I would never let it happen again. But all of that would be tested when I saw Carlos again. I had promised him and—even if it was dangerous—it was a promise I wanted to keep. Just not yet.

Carlos wanted to see me as soon as possible. He messaged me the next day. Since he knew I was married, I had the useful excuse that he would have to wait until I could get out again. He told me the longer he had to wait the more I would have to make up to him. I promised him I would, and just typing that made me wet. My excitement at seeing Carlos again was part of the reason I put him off. I needed some time to collect myself.

Putting Zach off was not as easy. It wasn't like I saw him all that often anyway, but after I turned down three different invitations over a couple weeks I noticed his texts became fewer. If he didn't want to wait that was his choice. And if he did, I would make my absence up to him, too. I began to realize that having three lovers was a lot of work.

I tried to talk to Dave about what happened that night, but he just put me off, insisting everything was fine now. He promised nothing like that would happen again. That did nothing to assuage my fears that he was too deep into this fantasy, but he would not discuss it any deeper than that. When I tried to force the issue, he shut me down. Instead of wanting to stop and assess things, he wanted to charge right ahead.

"I'm just a little worried this is becoming too big a part of our lives," I told him. It was late one night after the kids were in bed, which was about the only time we had to talk about such things. Talking in code when they were around required too much effort.

"It's not like you go out every night. You haven't been out at all in the last few weeks." Dave had been down in the family room doing god knew what with the iPad and he seemed annoyed by the interruption.

"That's because I felt weird after that last night."

"Do you still feel weird?"

"Maybe a little. I don't know. I have worries."

"Are you worried about yourself? Is it too much for you?" He managed to sound concerned for my feelings. That was unfair. I knew he was concerned about my feelings, but he was also very interested in making sure we did not stop.

"No, I'm fine. I think."

"What does that mean? Is there something I should know about?" he asked.

"Really, I'm fine with what I'm doing. It's fun. I like the way it makes me feel when I go out. I don't have any problems with that. Although it's a little different now than when we started. It isn't just going out and meeting men and seeing what happens."

"Yeah, that bit's changed. Have you heard from Zach lately?"

"Not in a few days. Why do you ask?"

"Nothing. Just curious."

I could tell he wasn't just curious. "Does it bother you that I keep seeing him? That sort of thing is what I was talking about when I said things have changed. It feels different to go over there and be with him than it does having a one night stand. It's become like sleeping with someone I know."

"Are you saying you're getting attached?" Now Dave really did sound concerned.

"No, not in any meaningful way. I like the time I spend with Zach, and we do talk a little, but it's still all about the sex. He knows I'm not looking for a boyfriend." That was mostly the truth. It was mostly about sex.

Dave looked relieved, but a little suspicious. “Then what’s the problem.”

“I just want to be sure you’re okay with everything. I know you encouraged me to see Zach again, but I don’t know that you envisioned me seeing him again and again. Especially now that Carlos wants to see me again, too.”

That weird cloud passed over Dave’s face. The one where he seems to be feeling too many things at once. He’d been kind of obsessed with Carlos, making me give him the details over and over again while we made love. Dave never lasted long. It almost felt like not seeing what happened that night was hotter for him than the videos he got.

“I’m okay with whatever you want to do,” he said. Dave took my hand. “If going over to Zach’s house does it for you, then I’m all for it. If you want to see Carlos again, do it. As long as you come home to me and bring me hot stories, or better yet videos, I’m good. I have the sexiest wife on the planet and I want everyone to know it. I love that these guys can’t keep their hands off of you. If there comes a time that seeing Zach becomes a problem, I know you’ll tell me.”

“So you’re okay if I make another date with Carlos?” I was perhaps a little too focused on Carlos, I’ll admit.

“Sure. If your night with him was as hot as you said, why wouldn’t you want an encore. I just don’t want you to stop going on and meeting men. That first seduction is really hot to me.”

“Me too, babe. I’ve still been fielding emails on the website.”

“Good.”

“There’s one other thing. Carlos wants my phone number. We’ve been emailing on the site, but he wants more access to me.”

“He knows you’re married, right?”

“He does. He says I should get a burner phone. Apparently that’s a cop term for one of those pre-paid cell phones.

“That’s probably not a bad idea. And if he wants to see you, make a date.”

“Okay, if you’re sure.”

“Dana, I am sure. How many different ways do I have to say it?”

“I promise I’ll make sure the camera is on next time.”

“I’m working on a solution for that.”

That piqued my interest. “Do tell.”

“I will, when it’s ready. Just trust me.”

I told Dave I did, but I still felt he wasn’t being entirely candid with me. Nothing he said made me feel like my hot dates weren’t becoming too important for him. He actually left me with the opposite feeling. A smart woman might have put the brakes on there, but my husband swore he wanted me to keep going and everything was fine. I might have walked away if I wasn’t having so much fun, but just thinking about another date with Carlos made me wet.

The very next morning, I got the kids off to school, went for my run, and after a shower I ran out and bought a pre-paid smartphone. I had more errands to take care of, but I couldn’t help myself and drove straight home to activate it. I had Carlos’s number and the first thing I did with the phone was to send him a nude photo of myself lying on the bed—without my face, of course. I knew he must be working, but he answered me right back. I was impressed he knew it was me.

-I know what you look like now, Di. No reason to hide your face

-I have plenty of reasons not to send out naked pics with my face on them

-U can trust me. I’m the police

-Shouldn’t you be out protecting and serving?

-Give me inspiration. Let me see that sweet ass

I went to the full length mirror in my walk-in closet and took a photo of my butt for him. It felt awkward because I’ve never been a huge fan of my butt, despite the compliments I’ve received on it. Carlos replied to the photo:

-Perfect. Play with yourself now

-Don’t push your luck

I was not about to go that far. It felt naughty and hot sending him the pictures, but I wasn’t ready to send him anything more explicit. It didn’t surprise me that he asked, though. His emails about what he planned to do to me were very detailed.

-Does this mean I’m going to see u again soon?

-Working on it. Hubby has poker night soon

-Can't wait

I could have teased Carlos all morning, but I had things to do. I'd stopped working full time when Dave's business really took off, becoming a stay-at-home mom. I still helped with the paperwork for his business, and taking care of the house took time, but I'd been a little out of sorts since the kids started school a couple years ago. Since I'd gone online looking for hot dates, maintaining my hot wife lifestyle had become something of a hobby. What a strange hobby for a nice housewife and mom from the suburbs!

I paused while dressing and sent Carlos one more photo—posed in front of the mirror in bra and panties. It was a sexy, lacy sea-green Victoria's Secret set that my husband really loved. I threw on a top and short yoga pants and ran out the door.

The morning passed quickly and I barely arrived on time at the Applebee's near Jana's office to meet her for lunch. She was already in a booth with a martini in front of her when I dropped into the other side.

"Starting a little early, aren't we?" I asked.

"It's been one of those mornings. I'm ready to chuck it all and stay at home like you," she said.

"It's not all fun and games."

"I don't know. I picture us sitting around the pool everyday drinking a pitcher of margaritas."

"There's time for some of that," I admitted, though that wasn't much fun by myself. The waitress came and I ordered white wine. I could have a glass and still drive.

"At least you don't have to wear heels every day." Jana was dressed like a typical office warrior, dark skirt suit with a white shell underneath and heels—except that her suit was tailored to show off her curves and the heels were about two inches higher than was probably appropriate for the office. She said it helped the promotions come faster, and I didn't doubt it.

"I like heels," I replied, wiggling my toes in my flip-flops.

"That's because you hardly ever have to wear them."

"You have a point. I don't miss dressing for work every day."

"And look at you. You're just out running around, but you look adorable."

"Stop it."

“I’m just saying, I bet all the bag boys offer to carry your things at the supermarket.”

“Really, you’re starting to embarrass me.”

“You blush way too easily, hon,” Jana said. “You should enjoy the attention while you have it. Girls like us have what, another good ten years?”

“I’m not ready to be put out to pasture yet.” It was funny how Jana lumped us together, considering she was more than five years older than me. I loved my friend, but I hoped when I hit 40 I wasn’t as obsessed with holding onto my youth as she was. “And you don’t look like you’re ready for the glue factory either.”

“But it takes so much more work to hold onto now.”

I laughed. “Work you enjoy.”

“What are you implying?”

“We both know what I’m implying, you tramp. How’s AJ, anyway? Been working your glutes?”

Jana had the grace to look embarrassed, but only for a second. “I wouldn’t know. It’s been a while. I need to make an appointment.”

AJ was the personal trainer Jana had an on-and-off fling with. It wasn’t more than a few times a year, as far as I knew—mostly when Jana needed the ego boost. I guess AJ was a man like Carlos, who was happy to take advantage when the chance presented itself. When Jana had first told me about her trainer a couple years earlier I’d been scandalized. You never think one of your friends is the type to cheat—no matter how much of a shameless flirt they may be.

“Do you think Neil has any clue?” I asked.

“About AJ? Absolutely not. I’m very careful, and it’s not like I’m sneaking out to see someone a couples times a week. You know I just sort of indulge myself with AJ when I need a particular itch scratched. I wouldn’t even call it an affair.”

“But if he did, how do you think he would react?”

“I’m sure he wouldn’t be happy. How would any husband react to an affair?” Jana seemed baffled by my question. “Do you think Dave would be dancing in the street if you cheated?”

If only you knew, I thought. “I don’t know. Some guys are kind of happy to be relieved of the burden of dealing with their wives.”

“I guess, but Neil is not one of those men, and I doubt Dave is either. Are you trying to tell me something? Dana, you little slut, are you fucking someone?” Jana looked very amused by the prospect and drank nearly all of her martini. I was sorry to burst her bubble.

“No, I’m not trying to admit to an affair. The guilt would eat me up. I don’t think I could screw around behind Dave’s back.” My choice of words was deliberate. “I was just thinking that if AJ gives you a pressure release now and then and you’re not going to run away with him, should Neil mind?”

“That’s some progressive thinking; the kind of thinking I doubt many husbands are capable of. Even the cheating ones seem to think it’s okay for them to go out and chase tail, but god forbid if their wives sleep with another man. What’s up, Dana? You definitely sound like something’s on your mind.”

There was something very much on my mind, but I couldn’t just come out and admit to it. I was being a coward. Somehow I just didn’t think Jana would understand it if I tried to explain the hot wife lifestyle to her. Yes, she was sleeping with her personal trainer, but casual cheating was a world away from sleeping with other men to turn your husband on. I decided on another tact.

“Has Neil ever asked you to do something—does he have any fantasies—that you just don’t get? I mean, sexually.”

“I know what you mean, Dana. Is Dave asking for the butt? Is that what this is all about? If it is, just use a lot of lube and try to relax. It only really hurts at the beginning, and you might even like it—although it’s not really for me.”

“No, Dave did not ask for anal!” I blurted out. Realizing I might have said it too loudly, I slumped down into the booth, embarrassed.

“Well, you know I think he’s a hottie. If he wants it and you’re not into, tell Dave I’m good to go.” Jana laughed.

“I’ll make sure I let him know. But this isn’t about that. I’m just curious if Neil’s ever brought anything up in bed that just sort of threw you, made you think about him differently.”

Jana appeared to really think about it. Our food came and she asked for another martini. “I don’t think he’s ever asked for anything too freaky, but I might not be the best judge of that. I’m up for just about anything.

Threesomes are fine. I'm sure Neil would love one with you, if you're interested."

"Uh, no thanks," I answered quickly. Then I thought about how Dave would love to watch me with Jana and Neil and added, "Maybe someday. We'll see. You're going to need a lot of wine."

"You've done it, haven't you? You've had a threesome!" Jana deduced.

"Not so loud!" I was sure the guys in the booth behind us were having a great time eavesdropping. "Yes, there was this time years ago when we went away for the weekend with another couple and...things happened." It seemed like a good idea to pretend the threesome with Zach and his roommate never happened.

"I would have never guessed, but then you two are a little too perfect. The Double D's are a pair of freaks."

"Hey, don't you dare tell anyone," I insisted. "It was a very long time ago. We'd been drinking all day and it was late and like I said, things just happened."

"I'm not judging, hon. A threesome with the right people can be totally hot."

"You and Neil?"

"Only once. It was for his 30th birthday, so it was forever ago. But I had my share of fun back in college. A lot of crazy shit happened at those raves in the 90s." Jana brought us back on topic. "So does Dave want another threesome? Isn't his 40th birthday coming up? What did he ask you, hon?"

"Forget about it. It's nothing really. Dave just said something that really surprised me recently and I was wondering how to take it. You know, you've been with someone for a long time and they just say something that makes you look at everything in a different light."

"I'm not sure there's anything sexual Neil could ask for that would really throw me, unless he asked me to get a strap-on." Jana's eyes widened. "Oh my god, did Dave ask for gay stuff?"

"No! Absolutely not," I insisted. I could see I wasn't getting anywhere. There was really no way to talk to Jana about what was going on without just saying it, and I was not prepared to do that. I was too afraid of being judged. "Just forget I ever said anything. Really."

"Are you sure? It sounds like something's really on your mind."

“I don’t think it’s anything,” I lied. “Dave probably just said it at the wrong time and I wasn’t prepared for it.”

“Maybe. I just can’t see sweet Dave asking for anything so crazy. You’re probably being too hard on him.”

“Probably,” I agreed.

“What you need to do is go change into one of your cute little sundresses—you know, one of the short ones—leave a few buttons open, and bring your husband lunch. Let him know you’re still his little sexpot. He would love that.”

“And so would the other guys on the jobsite.”

“I’m sure they would.” Jana gave me a weird look, like she knew Dave liked other men seeing me that way.

I guess it was obvious to our friends that Dave liked me dressed up. They just didn’t understand the extent of it. Dave would love to see all those guys staring at me as I strutted into his office with a surprise lunch. Knowing all his guys wanted to fuck me would probably make him so hard I’d have to at least blow him in the trailer. I smiled thinking about it.

“If you’re really lucky you’ll run into Jay on your way in,” Jana said dreamily.

“You think? Why tease the poor boy? He can’t have the boss’s wife,” I giggled.

“But he sure wants her.”

“Stop it.”

“Please. I did my best that night, but studly Jay only had eyes for you, hon. I’m not sure your being the boss’s wife would have stopped him.”

I recalled that night in the laundry room when we were standing so close. The atmosphere between us was so charged. I could feel Jay’s attraction to me, and he didn’t seem particularly interested in fighting it. If Dave had left us alone maybe the younger man would have made a move. What would I have done if he’d kissed me? Instinct probably would have kicked in and I’d have given myself to him. And if Dave came upon us kissing, would he have withdrawn? Lingered and watched? I would have sworn before that my husband would draw the line at playing with someone from work, but I wasn’t so sure anymore. The doubts I had that night resurfaced.

“Judging by the look on your face, I don’t think you would have stopped him either.”

“Jana,” I protested.

“You wanted that boy toy as much as I did, didn’t you?”

“Wanting and having are two very different things,” I said, hoping to placate her.

Jana laughed. “I think you want to have him! Dana, you sly little thing.”

“I told you, I couldn’t live with the guilt of cheating.”

I just shook my head and buried my face in my hands.

“You should put on that little dress, shake your ass on down to the jobsite, and see who grabs you first.”

It was a hot fantasy—but no. “Okay, time to change the subject.”

“You really need to loosen up, hon,” Jana said, patting my hand.

Jana let me off the hook after that, much to my relief. She was pretty tipsy by the end of lunch and I asked if she should be driving back to the office, but she insisted she was okay. I only took her word for it because her office was right there. We parted with a hug and a promise to get together again soon. I would like that, but sending me on hot dates seemed more important to my husband than socializing with our friends.

Sitting in the Prius, I dug out my burner phone and saw a slew of texts from Carlos. He was suggesting I sneak out and meet him during his meal break, and then he tried to entice me by suggesting what he would do to me if I did. Handcuffs were mentioned, giving me a dangerous thrill. When I hadn’t responded to that, he asked for another picture. I could just imagine him sitting in his squad car with his partner showing off the nude selfies of the hot married woman he was sleeping with. And when I hadn’t replied to that text, he promised to punish me the next time he saw me. That could be fun, I thought. I fired off a reply:

-Punishment? What did you have in mind?

Carlos did not immediately respond. I knew he was probably busy, but I did wonder if he was torturing me back. I quickly glanced around, and seeing the coast was clear, I pulled up my shirt and sent him a shot of my sexy bra, despite knowing he could be sharing my pictures. Honestly, it was hot to think Carlos thought I was hot enough to show off. I gave him a couple minutes to respond and then got on with my day.

Dana looked surprised and suspicious when I told her I arranged for the babysitter so we could go to dinner. It had been a long time since we'd gone out together with no agenda other than having a nice night out. I insisted I was not planning on it being a hot date, but in the back of my mind that was a possibility. It was always a possibility for me now. I just couldn't help it. If we were out somewhere and some guy starting checking her out—which always happened—my mind immediately went there. If we could have a nice dinner and then have a little dirty fun afterward, I didn't see the harm in it. I knew Dana might not agree.

It was hard to find a balance, bringing this lifestyle into our normal lives. How much was too much? I wished I had an answer, but my brain has been all over the place. Back when we started, my fears ruled a lot of my decisions. I was super excited for my wife to go out and do this thing for me, but there was still the fear that it could all backfire. What if Dana decided she liked the excitement of going out and finding strange men more than she liked being with me? And when we started I took her at her word that she was not interested in having sex with anyone else—it would only be fooling around with other men. I may have been hoping she would change her mind, but I didn't think she would. But Dana did exactly that, which brought with it new dangers. At that point, I was sure I only wanted her to have one night stands. I didn't want to risk Dana forming an attachment to anyone else. But as soon as the opportunity presented itself I encouraged her to go and see Zach again. I was still uneasy with that arrangement, but every time I watched a video of Dana fucking that younger man it gave me such a thrill that I couldn't wait for her to go back and see him.

So who am I to answer the question of balance? How many nights a week should my wife be going out to meet other men? Ask me three times and I'll give three different answers, depending on my mood. I love Dana and want her home with me, but the desire to have her out there, being bad, is so strong. The best I could do is trust her to decide. Dana is probably the more rational one when it comes to our hot dates.

I ran upstairs to change for dinner and caught her in the midst of getting ready. I just had to stop and admire her. She caught me watching and smiled, then continued getting ready. She likes to reveal herself to me before she goes out on a date, but seeing her getting ready is hot, too. I used to help her pick outfits, but her confidence has grown to the point where she knows exactly what to choose.

Dana was beside the bed, in nothing more than a pair of see-thru lace black panties. The panties weren't a thong, but they did cling to her ass and climb into the crack like they'd been airbrushed onto her pale skin. The matching black bra was gauze-thin, completely see-thru, and didn't offer much in the way of support. Her firm, round tits would be jiggling for whoever cared to look all night. My hardening cock made it difficult to change into the pair of nice jeans I was wearing for the night.

"Is it supposed to be chilly tonight?" she asked. It was the end of September and the dregs of summer weather could be unpredictable. It was blue skies and beach weather one day and downright chilly the next day.

"I think you'll be cold in that no matter what it's like outside," I replied.

"Then I'll just have to find someone to warm me up. Are you up to the job?" After clasping and adjusting her bra, Dana came around the bed and reached up to put her arms around my neck.

"I don't know if I'll be quick enough to get there first." I chuckled, but the briefest frown flashed across her face. Dana was looking to a nice night with her husband, not an evening ending in a stranger's bed. I wanted to make love to my wife very badly, but more than that I wanted to see someone else doing it? It was crazy that I wasn't sure of my answer, but if she knew my surprise I'm sure she would have understood.

"If you're not, it'll be your loss." She gave me a peck and turned to go back to dressing.

"I'll have you if I want you," I said sternly.

I caught her wrist and turned her back to me. She needed me to assert myself and prove she was still truly mine. I forced her back against me and just about lifted her from the floor to roughly kiss her. Dana whimpered and went slack in my arms as she submitted to me. I usually take the lead in the bedroom, and I know she likes a strong man, but it was unusual for me to just seize her like that. Her hands moved to my chest, but not to push me away. She grabbed fistfuls of my shirt to hold onto me.

“You think so?” she breathed between kisses. “Prove it.”

With a quick turn, I dropped us both onto the bed. Dana chased my tongue back into my mouth and I pushed a hand inside her panties. My finger was barely between her lips and I felt she was damp already. I’d always loved that my wife was ready to go with little or no foreplay—she’s a guy’s dream—but I swear since she’s been playing with other men she is constantly horny. There isn’t a time when she isn’t already damp when I touch her. I teased the nubbin of her clit and her body jerked.

“Oh, Dave...”

“I may chose to share you, but you will always be mine first,” I whispered. I teased her clit until my fingers were soaked, then I pushed my jeans down and awkwardly kicked them off.

“Yes, I’ll always be yours baby.” She helped me push my boxer-briefs down and scrambled out of her panties.

Dana was incredibly hot when I pushed inside her. She felt so good that I thought I might come before I even got started, but I only just managed to hold out—not that it mattered. I’d hardly started moving when we heard a shriek from downstairs.

“Dammit, the door,” Dana sighed.

I’d left the door open just so I could hear what was going on downstairs. I was not expecting to get sidetracked. The babysitter was not there yet, so I was just going to run up and change and run back downstairs. I didn’t think the kids could destroy anything that quickly, but they constantly surprised me in that regard. I’d left them with a video playing and a mountain of blocks hoping that would keep them occupied while I was out of the room.

The door had to be closed, at the very least, so I pulled out of Dana with a grunt of frustration and crossed the bedroom. I thought there might still be time for a quickie, but I heard another shout from the family room, followed by a scream for, “Mommy!”

“Goddamit,” I swore, snatching my jeans from the floor.

“I guess I’ll just finish getting ready,” Dana said. She actually looked amused. I guess she could handle being interrupted better than I could. “Maybe you’ll get lucky later.”

“You think?” I smiled.

“If you’re quick enough.” She returned my smile.

Part of me hoped I could run downstairs and settle things with a stern word so I could get back to the bedroom for a quickie, but a major feud had broken out between brother and sister and I had to sort it out. By the time I got back to the bedroom, the bathroom door was closed, so I just grabbed a shirt and returned downstairs.

Dana made her grand entrance soon after. She was so hot, I just stared. There was nothing fancy about her outfit; it was a simple black tank dress, but it made the most of her sexy body and was low-cut in the front and stopped well above the knee. It was long enough to be decent, but only just. The way her black pumps shaped her legs made the dress seem even shorter. A diamond heart pendant I’d gotten her for an anniversary drew the eye right to her tits, which looked spectacular in that dress. Our daughter told Dana she looked pretty, which was the understatement of the year.

I jumped off the couch, leaving the screaming kids behind, and swept her into the hallway for a long, deep kiss. She reached between us and grabbed my cock. I shivered and felt weak for a moment.

“I guess you approve,” she said with a little laugh.

“Then you’d better stake your claim early.”

The doorbell rang and Dana twisted away to answer the front door. It was the sitter, who seemed to give my wife a quick, disapproving look. She was only in her early 20s, and maybe she didn’t think a mom should dress that way. I wondered what her perspective would be in ten or so years. We gave the kids a quick goodbye and were out the door.

It only took Dana about fifteen minutes to realize we weren’t headed to any of our regular haunts for dinner, and she became suspicious when we left our area. At first, she sat silently staring at the window and fidgeting, and then she moved onto playing the satellite radio in my truck, in search of a song she liked. She settled on the 90s on 9 channel, probably more to annoy me than anything else. My wife has always been a fan of pop music, while I am firmly a rock n roller. When she could not take it anymore, she finally asked where we were going.

“I have a surprise before we get to dinner,” I said.

“A surprise? What are we really doing tonight?”

“We’re having dinner, but there’s something I want to show you first.”

“And it’s all the way down here?”

We’d travelled around the city, rather than into it, and we were in one of the fringe suburbs on the opposite side of the city from where we lived. I wanted Dana to feel safe. I turned down a darker, quiet street and came to a stop in front of a nicely remodeled duplex. I shut off the truck.

“Okay, why are we here?” Dana asked.

I could tell she was waiting for a set up, and it bothered me that she did not trust me more. Ever since we started with the hot dates, I’d never been less than honest with her. Besides, what did she think I was up to? Did she really think I’d gone out and found a guy on my own for her to fuck and this was his house? If I wanted to do that I easily could have. I had tons of offers from guys who wanted to be her “bull” on the message board I belonged to, but I wasn’t interested in that, and I didn’t think she was either.

“This is the surprise. Come on and check it out.”

“Dave, what’s waiting for me?”

“I don’t like how suspicious you are.” I tried to make it sound like a joke.

“It’s just a little weird that you said we were going to dinner and now here we are on the other side of the city, sitting in front of some strange house. It feels like something is going on.”

“Just trust me. I think you’re going to like this.”

Dana followed me out of the truck and I couldn’t help admiring the way her dress rode up when she climbed out of the truck. I can never keep my eyes off of her sexy body. I took her hand and led her up the walkway to the left side of the duplex. Each side was divided into two apartments, and I led her to the downstairs one on that side. She gripped my hand tighter when I pulled a key out of my pocket and unlocked the door. I flicked on the lights to reveal...

...an ordinary apartment! I thought I’d done a pretty good job with the decorating and the furniture, at least for a guy. There was a large, soft beige leather couch in the living room, with a matching loveseat off to the side. They were both oriented around a large flat screen mounted on the wall. Dana looked around like she was expecting someone to jump out at her. She even ducked her head into the kitchen, which had nice marble countertops and brand new stainless steel appliances. I'd spared no expense in creating this home away from home.

"It's very nice, but why are we here? Whose place is this?" Dana asked.

"It's ours—yours. Or to be more specific, it belongs to whoever you choose to be that night."

"Mine? What are you talking about?"

"I set this place up for you, babe. This is one of those investment properties I bought and renovated. It's two apartments on each side."

"Right. You bought these to rent, right?"

"That was the plan, but then I came up with a better idea."

She still did not seem to follow. I didn't think my idea was that crazy, but I explained it anyway. "When you go out on a hot date, we have two problems. The first is that if you want to play, you're stuck either going to the guy's place, or to a hotel. We both know that's not exactly safe, but we've sort of accepted it."

"Right," she agreed. "And I never go off with anyone I get a bad vibe from. But you're saying you set this place up for me to bring my dates?"

I just stood there, grinning like an idiot, happy she'd finally gotten it. I was waiting for her to be as excited as I was. She walked around the living room, examining it with a different eye now that she knew what the apartment was for. She ran her hands over the couch and tested how well-padded it was. I hoped she found it as soft and nice as I had. I picked it with Dana being nude on it in mind. Her heels clicked on the hardwood floor as she walked down the short hallway that led to the rest of the apartment, and I let her wander by herself. There was a full bathroom off of the hallway, a second bedroom and the master suite. She came back in a couple minutes and still looked neutral.

"This isn't bad, I think I can work with it," Dana said.

"I figured you'd put your own stamp on it. It shouldn't look like a guy picked everything out."

"You did a good job, hon."

"So why don't you seem as excited as I am?"

Dana looked thoughtful. "I don't know. I feel like this cements everything for us. Setting up this place was a big, expensive step."

"We can afford it," I assured her.

“I know. It’s not that. I guess I just still thought of what we were doing as fooling around—like some experimental thing. Maybe even just a phase in our marriage. But this place makes it the thing we do know. We’re a hot wife couple.” It sounded like she had to force the words out. “We’re those people now.”

“You still don’t ever have to do anything you don’t want to. I don’t want you to think that me setting up this place means you have to keep going if you don’t want to. I just thought you were enjoying yourself.” I circled around the couch and stood by her behind it. “Really, I just thought this would make things easier.”

“I do, and this place does. I mean, yes, I am having a good time and I wasn’t thinking about stopping. And having home turf to bring a guy to makes me feel better. I just feel like this brings everything to the next level, that’s all, and I wasn’t prepared.”

“So you like it?”

“I do, really. It was an awesome idea.” She smiled and gave my hand a reassuring squeeze. “You said this solves two problems. What was the other?”

Rather than tell her, I chose to show her. I took a rather complicated looking remote from the coffee table and turned on the flat screen. Once it warmed up, I switched to HDMI 3 and entered a security code. I thought it was important that some guy couldn’t just pick up the remote to check the baseball scores on ESPN and stumble across our private network. A view of the living room from above came up on the screen. The screen displayed my back and Dana in front of me.

“What?” Dana asked, momentarily confused. She began looking around the room, then checked back with the screen, then looked around again, until she located where the camera must be, in the corner of the room. “There’s a camera in here?”

I chuckled. “There’s more than one camera in here, babe. I have five cameras in here alone.”

“I don’t see them.”

Dana stared up at the crown molding, but she was not going to spot the tiny hole for the camera concealed up there. I flicked at buttons on the remote and scrolled through the cameras in the room—every angle was covered. Not every camera was concealed high, either. One was hidden in the frame of the flat screen itself, another in a statue on the bookshelf. I would be able to see virtually anything that happened in that living room.

“Wow, that’s...creepy,” she said slowly. “All of those cameras are completely hidden. There is no way to tell you’re being filmed.”

“That’s sort of the point. It’s like a high tech version of the camera you carry. They have sound too, I just have it turned down so there’s no feedback.”

“I’m guessing there’s cameras in the bedroom, too.”

“Every inch of this apartment is wired for pictures and sound, except for the hall bathroom—and you have to manually turn on the one in the master bath. Also, the master bath has a reinforced steel door, so if something goes wrong you can hide in there.”

“That’s a good idea. And where will you be watching from? I’m assuming you’ll see all this live.”

“I can watch from anywhere. I can be home with the kids while you’re on a date and watch from my iPad at home. I can control all the cameras remotely. But it does record, too.”

“You thought of everything.”

“I hope I did.”

“I guess I really am going to be your own personal porn star now.” Dana said it quietly, like she was testing the idea in her mind, trying it on for size.

“You shouldn’t think of it like that. I just finally have a way to be there without really being there. You are okay with that, aren’t you?”

If she wasn’t, I had to wonder why. Was she doing things with these men I wasn’t privy to? The thought both excited and frightened me. I liked to think I had some control over our situation, some hand in deciding what happened, but that was just an illusion, I realized. Dana could be out there doing anything when I was not there, or the camera was not on. I always knew that, but I didn’t think about it. That only took me to dark places.

“Oh, I’m okay with it. I like to make little movies for you. That’s the best part, knowing you’ll see how bad I am.” An evil smile crept over her red lips. “I like to think I’m your little porn star.”

“You do?”

“Oh, I do. And now you’ll be able to see the whole show. Do you think you’re ready for that? Do you want to see everything?”

“Yeah, uh, I think so,” I stammered. The way she looked up at me, with those dark rimmed eyes, made it difficult to think. It only became harder when she began rubbing me through my jeans.

“Your little slutty wife can be quite dirty you know,” she said.

“I know. I’ve seen it.”

“But sometimes I’m so hot that I can’t wait until we get to the bedroom and I can turn the camera on. Sometimes the guys want me so bad that they attack me the second we’re in the door, and I just can’t resist.” Her voice was low, seductive.

Dana pulled my jeans down and went to her knees with them. “But now you’ll see how I got that way. You’re going to see every dirty second.” She fisted my cock and licked the end. “There’s a lot of dick sucking you haven’t seen. Do you like to see me suck dick?”

“Yes,” I gasped. When she sucked my head in between those pretty red lips it was difficult to talk.

I fumbled for the remote, which was balanced on the back of the couch beside me. I switched to the view from the flat screen itself, which was the perfect angle to catch Dana sucking my cock. It was kind of surreal to be watching her blow me on the screen instead of looking down and watching her do it. I couldn’t help but feel I was watching her with some stranger, even though I felt my shaft sliding in and out of her mouth. It was the best of both worlds—not only was I watching my wife perform, but I was also receiving amazing oral.

Dana noticed I was watching the screen instead of her and she looked up to watch herself. Her eyes went wide and I thought she might stop—she’s not a huge fan of watching her videos with me—but instead she started sucking me harder as she stared at herself on the big flat screen. She seemed fascinated to see herself like that in real time. She took me deeper and deeper into her mouth, her tongue working its magic along my shaft.

With the touch of a button, I zoomed in tighter, so all we could really see was her sucking cock. Now it really did seem like she was blowing a stranger because my face was out of the frame. Normally, Dana would be looking up at me while she went down, but now she just kept watching the screen.

The wet pop when she took me out of her mouth sounded impossibly loud in the silent apartment. There was no other sound except for my moans. The flat screen was muted so there wouldn't be any feedback. Dana gave a long lick up the underside of my shaft and then sucked my balls, watching herself the whole time.

"You like watching me suck these dirty balls, don't you?" she teased.

"Yesss..."

"I bet you're pretending I'm doing this to someone else aren't you?" She knew me so well. When I didn't answer, she added, "You like it best when I'm down on my knees being a whore."

"Fuck, yes!"

"You know what I love? I love sucking on shaved balls. I love how they feel in my mouth."

Now she was driving me crazy, because I knew she was not talking about me. I groom down there, but I don't think I would ever take it to shaving. She'd mentioned Carlos had shaved balls. Was she thinking of him while she went down on me? It shouldn't have, but that made me shiver and moan and I braced myself against the couch. She stroked my shaft while she sucked on my balls and she had me at the edge way too quickly. I watched the screen and I was convinced she was with someone else—some stranger she'd picked up at a bar. I told myself Dana was sucking that stranger's cock because she needed it. And that was about all I could take.

Dana had barely popped me back into her mouth when I exploded. She choked on it at first, and a little cum ran from her lips. But my wife knew what she was doing, and she easily swallowed the rest of my load, moaning with pleasure as she did. She sucked me until I went soft in her mouth then wiped away the bit that escaped with her fingers, and licked those clean. She got to her feet and kissed my cheek.

"You really are too easy, honey," she said. As she walked back to the master bedroom, she added, "I think this set up could work."

I couldn't agree more. And I couldn't wait until she brought someone "home" so I could try my new toy.

Dave was proud of the little set-up he'd put together, and I have to admit, it was pretty ingenious. He really had thought of everything. It did scare me that he was so into this hot dates thing that he was willing to spend thousands of dollars to make a special place for me to play. I'd meant what I told him back in the apartment—this cemented us into being in this lifestyle in a way he hadn't been before and I wasn't entirely sure I was there yet. But I put all that out of my mind because I did have a good time teasing him, and it left me on a high. It was exhilarating to watch myself on that big television. Seeing it like that—while I was doing it—made me feel hot and dirty in a way that watching videos at home with my husband didn't.

We arrived at the restaurant in good spirits. It felt sexy as we walked into the little Mexican place and noticed a couple of the waiting men looking me over. The one got away with it without his wife noticing, but the other got a shot to the arm for his trouble. Coming from the apartment, I felt like I was sending out some signal that I was available, despite the fact I was there with my husband. It was not supposed to be a hot date night, but it didn't feel that way—especially when I caught Dave scanning the place, looking for men who could be potential lovers for me. I know that look he gets.

There was a fifteen minute wait for a table and we spent it at the bar. I had a margarita, Dave had a Dos Equis. The bartender was a busty Latina with her glossy black hair pulled back into a long ponytail and I was proud that my husband only had eyes for me. There were a handful of other couples in the bar area, and a group of guys who were sitting in the corner and looking up at the college football game on the television hung in the corner. Dave's gaze kept going back to them and I knew exactly what he was thinking.

“Are we on a date, or a date tonight?” I asked.

“What do you mean?” I could tell Dave knew exactly what I meant.

“I mean, are you out for a nice night with your wife, or are you looking to pimp me out tonight?”

Dave smiled and was about to answer when he was saved by our name being called. He quickly settled the tab and led me into the dining room. He held out my chair, like a proper gentleman, while I sat and then busied himself with the menu. Since he stopped scouting out prospective candidates for my bed, I let it drop.

As soon as our waiter came, I knew the game was back on. He was a tall, handsome young guy named Travis. His thick, black hair brushed his collar and although he was dark complected, he looked more Italian than Mexican. He was dapper in his crisp white shirt and black tie and I’ll admit I gave him more than a passing glance when he approached our table—even if I thought he was way too young to be my plaything. He didn’t even look to be twenty-five years old. It seemed the appreciation was mutual. Travis barely noticed my husband when he arrived at our table and focused entirely on me. I know he was looking at my legs as he walked up, and then he seemed to work his way from my cleavage to my face. He turned on a handsome smile that I’m sure had charmed more than one coed out of her panties. Did he think it would work on me?

“I’d offer to get you guys drinks, but it looks like you’re already taken care of,” Travis said.

“You can bring us another round,” Dave answered. He was enjoying Travis’s focus on me. No, Dave was not a typical husband at all.

“Are you trying to get me drunk?” I asked.

“Isn’t that what all men do with hot women?” Travis offered. He was a brazen one. I wondered again if I was throwing off some kind of vibe, despite my wedding ring.

“I already married him. He doesn’t have to get me drunk to get lucky,” I said, smiling at Travis’s surprised reaction.

“That’s true. Dana is usually ready. No alcohol required,” Dave added.

I couldn’t help but blush from that comment. It was a bit too far, I thought. When I looked up, Travis was smiling and looked like he was wondering just how ready I was.

“You’re a lucky guy, then, sir.”

“Oh, I know it,” Dave agreed. “If you’re very lucky, you’ll meet someone like my sweet wife.”

The waiter couldn't possibly know, but I caught the implication in my husband's words. I knew what he was suggesting. I blushed a deeper crimson. Yes, I can be brazen and flirty when I need to be, when I know I'm out on a hot date, but this was not how we did things. This guy—let's be honest, boy—not only knew I was married, but my husband was sitting right there. There was no cover story here. We just looked like a normal couple that was out for dinner together. I couldn't believe Dave!

"I have to agree, sir."

"You can call me Dave. And you never know when your lucky night is going to arrive."

Travis looked at me again and I could just manage to look him in the eye. "You just have to be ready to seize it when your moment comes along," he said. "Let me bring you guys those drinks."

As soon as Travis was gone, I locked in on Dave and hissed, "What the hell are you doing?"

"I'm being friendly to our waiter. Is that a crime?" He looked oh-so-pleased with himself.

"Friendly. Right. Let me tell you, whatever it is you're not trying to do isn't going to happen."

"What do you think I'm trying to do?"

"You want me to fuck our waiter!" I struggled to keep my voice low.

"I never said that. Besides, how could I make that happen? I'm not in control of Travis. And he knows you're a married woman. Why would he think he could?" His feigned innocence was wearing on me.

"Maybe because you're serving me up on a silver platter?" I had been leaning across the table and I noticed Dave couldn't keep his eyes out of my cleavage, so I leaned back.

"I was just pointing out what a great, hot wife you are and how Travis would be lucky to meet someone like you."

"Hot wife?"

"Hot as in sexy, Dana. Travis probably doesn't even know what a hot wife is."

"Just stop it, whatever it is you're doing or not doing."

"Here are your drinks," Travis announced upon his return. I don't think I've ever had such fast drink service in my life. Travis probably couldn't pick up on exactly what my husband was implying, but he was smart enough to sense something was up. He was paying even more attention to me than before. I bet he thought Dave was one of those guys who loves it when other men drool over his wife—which he is—but our waiter couldn't possibly guess there was more to it, could he?

"Thank you," I replied, taking my glass from him.

Travis went on to recite the specials and then gave us a couple minutes to decide on our order.

"See anything you like?" Dave asked as Travis departed. He had caught me checking out Travis's butt in those tight black pants. I couldn't help myself. All of these dirty thoughts were coming to mind unbidden. I'd bat one down and another would surface.

"Stop it!"

"I can make up an excuse to get out of here."

"I said stop it. Besides, what do you think is going to happen? Do you think he is just going to drag me into the storeroom and bend me over a stack of giant rice sacks?"

Dave looked dreamy and I knew he was picturing exactly that. It was a mistake to put ideas into his head. "It sounds to me like I'm not the only one having dirty thoughts."

"It's your fault. You started this." I cracked a tiny smile. "Don't you dare think I've changed my mind."

Travis returned to take our orders and I knew he was openly flirting with me. He looked over to check with my husband a couple times, but when he did and Dave was just smiling, he kept it up. I think Dave and I were both disappointed when someone else brought our entrees, but I was also relieved and tried to project that. What was really the endgame here? I knew what my husband wanted, and sure, part of me wanted it too, but I didn't see how to realistically turn our dinner into some kind of an encounter with our waiter. But I should never have discounted Dave's deviousness when he really wants to make something happen. He will find a way.

Dave chose his moment when Travis came over to see how we were making out. He ordered another round of drinks and struck up a conversation. Dave asked if Travis lived in the area, telling him how we'd just moved into the neighborhood.

"We just rented a furnished condo until our place is ready. We haven't even moved our stuff in there really. We're out trying to see what's around,"

Dave lied. It slipped so easily off his tongue, and I wondered what it meant that we'd both become such prolific storytellers.

"I think you'll like it over here. There isn't the same kind of nightlife as in the city—it's a lot of young families—but more bars and restaurants are popping up as the area's becoming more upscale, y'know?" Travis answered. His eyes kept wavering from my husband to my tits as he spoke.

I leaned forward to make it just a little easier for him. I was curious where Dave was going with all of this. I knew there was no way he was just going to invite the waiter home with us so he could fuck me while Dave watched, so there had to be some other plan.

"I think we'll be happy here once we make some new friends," Dave said. "Unfortunately, I work a lot and have to be on the road. I have to go in tonight, as-a-matter-of-fact."

"That sucks, man." Travis nodded in sympathy. "I'm used to working on Friday night, but I started early. It's not like I have to go in late."

"So you get off soon then?"

"In a couple hours."

I couldn't shake the feeling that Dave was making a date for me, while I sat there like I was his to barter away. Obviously, I wasn't opposed to dates, but I was used to handling these things myself. There was a sleazy quality to having my husband do it for me. I liked the independence of finding my own dates.

"And then you're off to see a girl?" I asked. We'd never actually established that Travis didn't have a girlfriend.

Travis smiled and it warmed me in all the wrong places. If the plan was to resist his charms, I was failing spectacularly. "No, not tonight. No plans yet."

"I find that hard to believe," I replied.

Travis was so close I could have reached out to touch his thigh, and I had to resist the urge to. It angered me that my self control was failing and I was falling into my husband's little trap. Of course I could say no—I hadn't become a nymphomaniac—but I realized I really didn't want to. If Dave could make something happen it could be fun to go along.

"It's fun to see where the night can take you. I can usually make plans with just a couple calls," Travis said.

"You're smart to leave yourself open," Dave agreed. "I remember those days."

“Not too fondly, I hope,” I teased.

“No, not too much.”

The charge in the air was palatable, like right before a heavy thunderstorm moves in, with everyone waiting to see what was going to happen next—who was going to be the first to run out into the storm. But Dave seemed to lose his nerve at the last second, and I didn’t know how to proceed. I felt a little awkward flirting with a live man while my husband sat right there. It was not the same as flirting by text. And Travis was just waiting to see what we would do next. Could he really be sure what he thought was happening was happening?

“Well,” Travis said, drawing out the word, “I need to check my other tables. Enjoy your meal.”

The waiter left and both Dave and I exhaled. I didn’t even realize I was holding my breath. Instead of reaching for my fresh drink, I drained my ice water. I needed a clear head. “You really are insane.”

“It seems like I’m only helping you along,” Dave teased. “I know that look you get. You want this guy.”

“Kid,” I reminded him.

“It does not seem you’re looking at him like a kid. It’s like the way you and Jana were drooling over Jay the night of the bbq.”

“This guy makes Jay look like a senior citizen.” I did not deny the drooling.

“Nothing’s actually happened yet. We could still easily leave with this all being a fun tease.”

“That’s probably for the best,” I said.

Dave nodded. “But is that what you want, hon?”

I looked down instead of answering. What did I want? That wasn’t the right question—I knew what I wanted. I just didn’t think it was a good idea. This wasn’t how we did it.

My non-answer made Dave smile. For him, it was an answer.

When Travis returned after the meal to see if we needed anything I could tell his hopes were still up. He asked if we wanted dessert, which could have prompted all kinds of responses, but neither Dave or I bit. I did think about real dessert, but I still wondered if I would be undressing for this man later and I declined.

“You never said, do you really live around here?” Dave asked, when Travis brought the check. If anything was going to happen, this had to be the time.

“Yeah. I moved back in with my parents when I finished college in the spring. I’m just crashing there until I figure out my next step.”

I cringed inwardly. I could not fuck a kid who was still living with his parents! If he just graduated college, he was probably twenty-two at the youngest, maybe twenty-four at the outside. Was I going to add cradle-robber to my increasingly shady sexual resume? And yet, I cannot deny that it was appealing knowing this younger man—that’s how I preferred to think of Travis, instead of kid—had the hots for me. It didn’t even matter that it was probably some kind of silly MILF thing. It still made me feel sexy.

“That’s a good plan. Don’t rush into anything,” Dave commented.

Travis waited for another moment, but when no obvious invitation was forthcoming he told us to have a good night and slinked off. He looked genuinely sad and I wanted to give him a hug at the least. Dave busied himself with signing the credit card slip and then closed the little holder.

“Are you ready to leave?” he asked.

“That’s it?” I was shocked he was ready to just run out of there after everything. Was he ashamed by our behavior?

We stood and Dave placed a hand on the small of my back, propelling me forward as we walked out of the dining room. I didn’t question him until we were back at the truck. He held my door and held out a hand as I stepped up into the big truck. There was no way to avoid giving him a show in that short, tight dress, which I usually didn’t mind, but I was a little annoyed then. Dave climbed in and started the engine.

“That’s it?” I repeated.

He couldn’t keep the poker face going any longer and broke into a huge grin. “What do you mean? You were on the fence. You wanted to be out of there, right?”

I narrowed my eyes at him. “You did something, didn’t you?”

“You were there with me the whole time. What could I have done? Let’s get going.”

“I know you did something,” I stressed.

“You’re just being paranoid.”

Of course Dave was up to something, because we were not driving home, but going to the new apartment. I pretended not to notice until we arrived. “Hmm, this looks familiar,” I said.

“I just thought we could have a nightcap here instead of going home and relieving the babysitter. Why waste the chance at some alone time?”

It was possible he was being on the up-and-up, but I knew better. He always tries to sound the post innocent when he is up to no good. I followed him up into the apartment and was not surprised to find wine in the refrigerator. It was also stocked with soda and several bottles of water—all goods that would not spoil between visits. Dave offered to pour us both a glass of wine, but I wanted to keep my clear head and instead took a bottle of water. He did not feel the same, and my suspicions only grew when he produced a fifth of Jack Daniels from the cupboard and poured himself a measure over ice. We sat together in the living room, close together on the loveseat. Dave rested his free hand on my bare knee.

“Are you ready to tell me what’s really going on now?” I asked.

Dave caressed my knee and his hand began its journey higher. “I’ll confess, I may have slipped him your special phone number when I paid the bill and told him to call tonight.”

“You did what?”

“He needs a way to get a hold of you when his shift is over.”

“I didn’t even bring it—not that that’s the real issue,” I complained.

Dave reached into his pocket and produced the prepaid phone I’d bought for hot dates. “I grabbed it on the way out.”

“You planned this to be a hot date night from the beginning, didn’t you?” I pushed his hand off my leg, even though it felt really good. I was way too horny from all the night’s possibilities for my own good.

“I didn’t have anything planned, except to bring you here, but I did think that maybe you would be as excited as I was and maybe when we went out things might happen.”

I could see Dave thinking that, but I was not in the mood to give him the benefit of the doubt. “You expect me to believe getting me back here with another man wasn’t your real plan all along? It just all conveniently worked out this way?”

“Well, yeah, as crazy as that sounds.”

“Dave, you’ve really got to check yourself. You’re so into this fantasy—lifestyle—whatever you want to call it, that you’re not thinking clearly. It is not okay for you to manipulate me or set me up. We need to be total partners in this.”

“I get it.”

“I’m serious this time. I don’t want things sprung on me. I don’t want you finding guys for me to fuck. If we’re going to do this, I need to be in charge, unless you have some serious objection about something I want to do.”

“You’ve been perfect so far, Dana.”

“Everything seems to be going okay so far, don’t start throwing monkey wrenches into it.”

“I understand.”

“I thought we were going out for dinner like a normal couple tonight. It feels like we don’t do that anymore.”

“I’m sorry.” He was beginning to look genuinely sorry. He realized he’d crossed a line.

“Aren’t you interested in spending quality time with me anymore, or would you rather just send me out on dates and watch me fuck other men? Is that more exciting than fucking me yourself?”

“Dana, that’s not it at all.” Now he really looked hurt. “This is all so new to me and when I get an idea I want to run with it. I’ve held this in for so long, and now that I’ve let it out it all seems to be exploding out of me at once. I don’t want you to think I don’t want to be with you anymore. You’re still the sexiest woman I’ve ever laid eyes on. That’s why I want to do this with you. I want to see you like that. And I want to touch you, too. I want to make love to you.”

Dave moved closer and replaced his hand on my thigh, but without subtlety this time. He slid it right up between my legs, which I happily opened for him. When he touched my panties they were already wet. He gave me a crooked smile and pressed into my mound. I sighed and closed my eyes. It felt so good to finally be touched.

“Be honest, this isn’t all for me, is it?” he teased.

“I never said I wasn’t having fun tonight. I just don’t want to be manipulated. Ohhh...”

“You also said you wanted a night with just your husband.” His fingers pushed past the edge of my pants, slipped inside me. God, I needed that. He brushed my hair aside and kissed my neck. “Is that still true?”

“I want you, baby,” I moaned.

“But not just me tonight, right? You’re thinking about Travis, the handsome waiter.”

I hadn't been—for a moment—but now that Dave brought him up, his dark, handsome good looks came to mind. "It wouldn't be so bad if he was here," I conceded with a sigh.

Dave pulled my lips to his and we shared a heated kiss. I sucked his tongue into my mouth. I needed him so badly. "We can leave your special phone off and it can just be the two of us, or..."

"Yes." My moan didn't really sound like an answer to his question.

"Or maybe Travis would like to come over and play while your hardworking husband is out."

I gave him the same moan: "Yes."

He pressed the phone into my hand, his fingers pushed deeper inside me. He curved them to hit my g-spot and I shivered. That man knew just how to touch me. He said, "If you want Travis tonight, turn on the phone, Dana."

"But it was just supposed to be us tonight," I whimpered.

"That's okay, baby. I know you want him, and I want to see you pleased. And when he's done I'm going to come back up here and remind you who you really belong to."

"God, Dave, please fuck me. I need it."

"Later, Dana. Turn on the phone."

All of the reasons for why I shouldn't were still running through my mind as I powered up the phone. Dave kept slowly fingering me, leading me to my orgasm, but keeping me short of it. The phone chirped with several new messages, but none of them were from our waiter—not yet. Instead, it was a series of texts from Carlos. Dave looked at the screen and seemed pleased.

"You're a popular girl," he teased.

"That tends to happen when you can't keep your clothes on," I giggled. His thumb grazed my clit and I cried his name. I knew this game. My husband was not going to let me come until he was ready. I hoped he didn't wait long.

"I love that these guys want to fuck my wife so bad. I love they all know how sexy you are."

"Stop teasing me, please."

"And you like it too. You love being a tease. You love that they want you."

"Yes..."

“You love the way they look at you.” His thumb on my clit was almost unbearable.

“I do. And you love them looking at me.” I grabbed his cock through his jeans and he was as hard as I suspected. I tried to pull him out, but I was too gripped by my own passions and settled for rubbing him through his jeans. Soon, Dave was moaning as much as I was.

“I love that you’re not just a tease anymore.”

“You love your slutty wife, don’t you, baby?”

“Yesss,” he hissed. “I love to see you fuck.”

“Should I wait for Travis? Carlos wants to fuck me right now. He could come over now.” I knew my cop lover would give me a proper fucking, and that was what I desperately needed. Travis was an unknown.

“What did he say?” I could see Dave was torn. His heart was set on the encounter he’d engineered, but now I was dangling immediate gratification.

“He’s off at nine tonight. He wants me to sneak out and meet up with him. He wants to make me come all night. God, I need that.”

“Do you want Carlos to fuck you?” he asked, his voice thick with lust and a little insecurity. Dave could never quite seem to shake that.

“Yes! He was so good the first time. I’d love it again. Look at his cock.”

Carlos had texted a new picture of himself hard. Seeing that smooth, shaved cock and balls again only made me want him more. Even if I didn’t fuck him then, it would be soon—I knew it. Dave fingered me harder and I tried to imagine it was the cop inside me, but it wasn’t the same.

“He wants to see me naked. He wants to know I’m still interested.”

“Then maybe we should...”

Dave was unable to finish his thought because the phone chimed again, and this time it was the hunky waiter.

-It’s Travis. Is this Dana?

“Answer him,” Dave demanded. It was difficult to text with one trembling hand, but I managed.

-It is. Nice to hear from you

-Did u think u were going 2?

-Wasn’t sure

-Glad you did?

-I am. I was surprised when Dave said he left my number

-Me too. Is he really cool?

I looked at Dave and smiled. I rubbed his cock harder. “Are you cool, baby?”

Dave laughed. “I think I’m the coolest.”

-He is. He just wants me to have fun. He’s not around a lot.

-That’s cool

-You’re okay with it?

I knew guys were horndogs, but I was still surprised that a young guy like Travis might be willing to walk into a situation like this and screw another man’s wife. I guess it was better with permission than without, but how did he know he wasn’t being set up? Travis answered:

-If you guys are, I guess. It’s a new one for me

-What time do you get off?

I was disappointed he didn’t play with that, but I was not inviting him over for his wit.

“You’re going to fuck him, Dana.”

“If he really shows.”

“He wants you. He’ll come over.”

Dave seemed to forget he was just teasing me and brought me over the edge. I cried out and dropped the phone as I briefly lost my mind. The climax throbbed through me and I didn’t think about anything else. My hand kept rubbing Dave—as if on autopilot—and after a gargled cry I felt a warm wet spot spread over his jeans. I hadn’t done that in ages! I laughed and rubbed my sticky fingers on another spot on his jeans.

The phone was on the floor and I retrieved it. I asked Dave for the apartment address and texted it to the young waiter, adding: Don’t get lost!

I tried to clean up after what Dana did to me, but there wasn't much I could do. I was a little embarrassed. It was years since I'd made a rookie mistake like coming in my pants. If I'd had any sense I would have whipped it out and put it in her mouth, but I was pretty focused on what we were already doing. All I could think of was that waiter stripping down my wife having his way with her.

In my darker mind I even imagined him bringing a buddy over to help take care of the horny MILF. Dana wasn't opposed to that sort of thing, obviously, but it had just sort of happened the first time. I didn't know how she would react to my suggesting it. I wasn't even sure how I would react to seeing it again. It was pretty surreal the first time.

When I came out of the bathroom, Dana was texting with Carlos. She hadn't even bothered to fix her dress. He was still the unknown to me. I hadn't seen his night with my wife, so I didn't truly know what went on between them. In some ways that was hotter, but it gave me different concerns I didn't have with other men.

I could tell Dana really had a good time with him and wanted a repeat. That was a good thing, right? I try not to stare at those things, but he did have an impressive cock. It looked threatening the way he had it shaved down and brandished it. I considered shaving my cock too, since Dana liked it so much, but just couldn't bring myself to do it. I'm just not that guy.

I topped off my Jack Daniels and joined Dana on the couch. Her thumbs were flying away on the screen. I've never been able to master texting like that and still have one of those old phones with a slide-out keyboard. "What's Carlos got to say?" I asked.

"He's just bitching that I'm not available enough."

"You must have really made an impression."

"I met him and fucked him in the same night. That'll generally do it, hon."

"Don't downplay how hot you are, Dana. If you weren't sexy I don't think he would have been all over you in that bar."

“That’s true.” She glanced over at me. “You really do love seeing that stuff, don’t you?”

I chuckled. “I don’t know how much clearer I could be. But it was kind of fun to mix it up with that waiter tonight, too. It made me really nervous, but it felt good to push through that. I loved seeing how he looked at you and seeing how you wanted it, but were unsure.”

“How is that hot? You like torturing me?”

“It’s not that. I just thought I saw a little shyness there that I haven’t seen in a while. Don’t get me wrong. I love to see you go for it, but it was nice to see you a little reserved, too.”

“So what are you telling Carlos?”

“How horny I am thinking about his cock and I promise I’ll see him soon. He wants proof.”

Dana laughed. “It’s so dirty to have my husband tell me to text a naughty picture to another man.” She spread her legs and held out the camera to snap a picture. Her black panties were still pushed aside and the dress was almost around her waist. She looked like someone had been playing with her. Carlos texted back right away.

-Nice. Is that for me?

-If you’re patient you might find out one night next week

-I can be patient, but you’re going to pay for making me wait

“What does that mean?” I asked.

Dana looked away and managed to blush a tiny bit. “He’s just a little dominant, that’s all. He liked to take charge.”

“And you liked that?”

“It was hot. It was different.”

How should I feel about another man dominating my wife? I didn’t really know how far that went, because the video never recorded. Did he tie her down? She didn’t mention anything like that. If she brought him back here, I would see everything next time. I was excited and worried.

“Tell him you’ll see him next week. Make up an excuse to get out,” I said.

“Are you sure? I can tell him I told my husband I’m going out with a girlfriend.”

“Do it, Dana. You can find an excuse to bring him back here, right?”

“I’m sure I’ll think of something. You’ll get your show, baby.”

They set a date for a night the following week and I was so excited I felt like I was going to crawl out of my skin. Not only was I about to see some young guy screw Dana, but she already had her next date lined up. I’d read about wives who went on multiple dates in a week, but I didn’t know if we could—or should—be one of those couples.

It was getting close to the time Travis would be getting off, so Dana told Carlos she had to go and then went into the bathroom to clean up. I was rock hard again and would loved to have taken Dana, but I had to leave that for Travis. I doubted he was into sloppy seconds. Dana came out of the bathroom and looked perfect again—except for one thing.

“I think these are ruined. I should probably leave them off.” She handed me her panties.

“That’s probably for the best,” I agreed.

I stayed with her until Travis texted he was done work. I was concerned he would get cold feet, but he said he would be over soon. I kissed my wife and then slipped out to park my truck around the corner. My laptop was in the truck. Of course I’d done a dry run with the equipment, so I was easily able to log into the camera system over the internet.

Dana sat on the couch and didn’t look nervous at all. Her phone was out again and I wondered if she was back to texting with Carlos. She did seem really into him. I was surely in for quite the show next week. Or maybe Travis was sending her a new message. I couldn’t really tell which phone she was using. Dana could just have easily been checking on the babysitter, or texting with Jana.

I’d considered before that Dana had said something to Jana about our activities. It would be natural that she needed someone else to talk to about it. I chatted with a couple guys on the hot wife message board, but as far as I knew Dana had no real outlet to deal with her feelings. It creeped me out to know that Jana might know about my fantasy and thought I was some kind of a pervert, but she’d never given any indication she knew anything. If she did, maybe she didn’t think it was so odd.

Dana had beaten around the bush, implied that Jana wasn’t always faithful, so maybe our friend wished she had a husband who was open to her going out. If I could talk Neil into seeing it my way we could share experiences, even our videos. I could lend them the apartment for Jana’s dates. Jana and Dana could go out looking for men together.

The possibilities were hot, but that's all they were—possibilities. Nothing I knew about Neil suggested he shared my bizarre fantasies. If Jana was fooling around, he either tolerated it—like the night she threw herself at Jay—or he had no idea. I was pretty sure he wouldn't mind a go with my wife, but that didn't mean he wanted Jana sleeping around—unless there was some kind of swapping situation and he was willing to let me fuck Jana for a night with Dana. I would be happy to let Neil fuck Dana, but I was not looking to screw Jana. She's hot, it's not that, but I'm really not looking to leverage Dana's dates into a way to sleep with other women. My sexy wife is all I really want. That was one of Dana's early concerns, understandably so, but I know I convinced her otherwise. I could fuck Jana, I just didn't think about it. The night Dana was with Shane and Lisa could have easily turned into partner swapping—I know Lisa wanted me—but I wasn't down with that. I get swinging, and I get why it's hot, but it's not the thing that really rocks my world. Watching Dana rocks my world.

Travis coming over right after work turned out to be almost 11:30 at night. I was sure he was going to bale at that point and was ready to text Dana and call it a night. She'd been busy with her phone the entire time, god bless her. She was still only drinking water and I was surprised she didn't want something stronger to calm her nerves. I remembered when she had to get tipsy to even get ready for a date.

I heard the doorbell and Dana blew me a kiss before going to answer. She must have just been assuming I was watching. It had felt weird to watch her sitting there all that time—voyeuristic in a different way than watching a sex video. It may sound crazy, but it felt more like spying. It was fascinating, but I probably should have turned the camera off and waited for Travis to show up.

I switched to the hallway cam just in time to see Dana open the door. She was tall enough to kiss his cheek in those heels as she showed him in. I was disappointed he didn't just grab her right there in the hallway, but he did seem nervous. Dana followed him into the living room and offered him a drink. He said a beer would be great. She got them two.

"This is a nice place," Travis said, looking around as he nervously paced. He had changed into a tight gray V-neck t-shirt and jeans.

I had a split screen of a couple of the living room cameras up. It was going to take some practice to work out the best way to watch everything. All of the cameras were also being recorded onto a hard drive, so I could go back and pull the video and edit together anything I chose. I really could make my own polished sex videos of Dana. It was tempting, and some of the guys on the message board had been begging for video clips, but so far I had only shared a couple blurred, non-identifying pictures. And Dana would have killed me if she knew about that, but I just couldn't help myself. I wanted everyone to know how sexy she was.

"Thanks. Like Dave said, we're not really moved in it. It's only temporary," Dana replied.

"You guys are doing another house here, right?"

"Yeah."

"Where? I know my way around here."

Dana fumbled for a moment. She had not really thought through a story for tonight. She made up an address, but it sounded false even to me.

"That must be in one of the new developments." Travis didn't sound convinced, but he probably didn't care either. Obviously, Dana and I were not really on the up-and-up.

"Yeah, it is," she agreed too quickly.

"Dave works nights?"

"Sometimes. It's not unusual for him to get called in."

"Is he going to be gone awhile?"

Dana circled around the couch and pressed against him. She fingered his dark hair for a moment and then softly kissed him. I zoomed in and wished it went on longer. My heart pounded. "You don't have to worry about my husband interrupting us, Travis."

"When he works late this is what you do?" He still sounded unsure. He didn't want to pass up the opportunity to sleep with my wife, but he also didn't want to be set up.

Dana smiled and kissed him again, a bit longer this time. It was sexy to see her seducing Travis. She'd complained he was too young, but now she seemed to be enjoying that.

"Sometimes. I'll be honest, I've never done anything like this before—just picking up a waiter. It makes me a little nervous," Dana confessed.

"You don't seem very nervous." Touché, Travis.

"I guess I'm hiding it well."

"Better than me, I guess."

"I understand. This is risky for both of us. You're afraid my husband is going to jump out of a closet, right?"

Travis chuckled. "Yeah, maybe."

"You can check the closets, babe." Dana was good at lightening the mood. It always stung a little to hear her use terms of endearment with other men. Stung in the way I like.

For a second it looked like he might, but then Travis said, "I'll take your word for it. And you don't have to be nervous. Your stone fucking hot, girl."

"Thanks. That's...sweet."

"You could probably get some guy to come home with you every night if you wanted to."

"I don't know about that. But even if I could, there's a risk to inviting strange men home to be alone with you. Bad things can happen."

"That's true. You have to be careful these days."

"You could be dangerous," she suggested.

"Don't worry. I'm only a little dangerous." Travis pulled her tight, his hand kneaded her sweet ass. "I'll try not to bite."

"It's okay if you bite a little."

They were kissing again, but this time they did not stop at one. My wife's eyes closed and her mouth opened and I could see how much she enjoyed kissing the young waiter. She started with her hands on his chest, but then wrapped her arms around Travis and ran her hands all over his strong back. He turned her—Dana was almost sitting on the back of the couch—and moved between her legs. The tight dress had to ride up to allow him to move closer. Her head tilted back and she moaned softly while he nibbled her neck. Going with hardwood floors was a wise choice. Every little sound was amplified and I could hear it all.

I was electrified. Watching my wife with a lover in real time and seeing it all clearly like that was incredible, but strange. It almost wasn't real, like I was watching a video of someone else on the internet. I'd spied on her in the backs of cars and listened while she blew someone in a men's room, but those were imperfect experiences. I was always limited, wanting more. And of course I was used to watching Dana on video, but that had always been some limited view with bad lighting. If they moved, I couldn't see anything. Now it was all in my control, and I'm not sure I really knew how to feel. What happens when you're getting everything you want?

The back of Dana's dress was unzipped and Travis was pulling it down when she suggested they go to the bedroom. He only hesitated a moment before agreeing. I bought up a cross section of the bedroom cameras and waited for them to come into view—glad she'd left all the lights on.

Dana led Travis by the hand and turned to start kissing him again when they reached the foot of the bed. The big, king-sized mattress towered over the footboard and she pushed him against it. I'd chose a big bed that would be able to handle a lot of action. She pulled on his t-shirt and it was exciting to see how eager she was to undress her lover. The t-shirt flew to the floor and she went right to work on his belt. They were both laughing and having fun with it. I was glad the tension had drained from the apartment. He must have been confident I was not going to surprise him. She was thorough in undressing him, helping him out of his heavy black boots so she could pull his jeans completely off. While crouching down, Dana ran her hands up his legs and cupped his package through tight gray boxers.

"Shit that's good," Travis moaned. He stared down at my wife like he couldn't believe it was happening. I felt the same way.

"I haven't done anything yet." Dana laughed.

"I love when a chick just goes for it."

"Oh yeah? Don't they usually? You're a hot guy."

She still rubbed him through his underwear and even nuzzled his package and I wondered how much of her performance was for Travis and how much was for me. I could see her eyes darting around and she probably wondered which camera I was looking at. I was looking down from above the bed, which gave me a great view of Dana looking up at Travis.

"Girls..." Travis started. I know he was about to follow up with my age, but wisely thought better of it. "Girls aren't usually this forward unless they're kinda drunk, and then they aren't as much fun."

Dana pulled his underwear down and deftly grabbed his shaft when it popped up. She gave it a nice, long lick. "So what's fun for a guy like you?" she asked. She stroked his cock and gave his balls a lingering kiss. Her big diamond engagement ring gleamed in the light as she stroked him. It looked so wrong. Now I knew she was putting on a show. Dana's always great with her mouth, but going right for the balls is something new. She was trying to blow this kid's mind.

"That's pretty fucking fun," Travis groaned.

After giving his trimmed balls a thorough licking, Dana took him in her mouth and bobbed up and down, slowly drawing his shaft in and out of her mouth like she was savoring every inch. Her cheeks hollowed and she swallowed every inch. Travis was not huge in the pants, but it looked like he had enough to get the job done. I know some guys with my fantasy are obsessed with dick size, and I guess there is something cool about seeing Dana wrestling with a big cock, but mostly I don't care about it as long as my wife is having fun. I'm generally not too focused on the guy. I was only looking at Travis's cock then because Dana was so fully enjoying sucking it. I knew that was all for me. She knew I was glued to my screen and wanted to give the hottest blowjob possible.

Travis gripped the footboard behind him, pushing his prick forward into Dana's mouth and stared down at her as if he still didn't quite believe there wasn't a hitch. He moaned and gasped and when he began trembling he gently pushed Dana away from his cock.

"You'd better slow down there, girl," he warned.

"Really? Why is that?" Dana still held his cock and kept licking and kissing the head. She really enjoyed toying with this young man.

"I'm gonna bust my nut if you don't," he stammered. She swallowed him again and he added, "Oh, damn."

"And what if that's what I want?" she asked, before deep throating him once more.

I was right there with our young friend. I'd started rubbing myself without realizing it, and I felt that familiar rush that overcame me just before coming. I backed off, not wanting to make a second mess in my pants. I was tempted to just take it out and jerk off while I watched, but felt weird about sitting in the front seat of my truck and jerking off like that. And besides, I wanted to save it for my wife. I forced myself to stop rubbing my cock, which was difficult while Dana had Travis's cock in her mouth.

Dana took mercy on the waiter and released his prick. It was probably because she really needed to be fucked and couldn't be sure Travis would be good for twice in one night. Sure he was young, but that didn't always matter. He took her hands and pulled Dana to her feet. I switched camera angles so I could see her whole body.

Travis reached out for Dana and they crushed together, mouths frantically seeking each other. Her dress was already unzipped, so he peeled it down her body and she stepped out of it. They scrambled onto the bed—Travis pulling himself backwards with his elbows while Dana climbed on top of him. She rubbed her smooth, bare cunt over his shaft and he stopped and reached down. I could only imagine how wet she was by then. It doesn't take much to get my wife dripping wet.

"No panties?" he asked.

"I lost them sometime tonight. Ohhh..." It looked like he curled his fingers inside her. Even on the side view camera, I couldn't tell exactly what he was doing.

"That's fucking hot."

"Maybe I should have left them for you. Would that have been too forward?"

"Shit, I would have lost it right there."

"Next time," she moaned. By the way her cute butt moved I could tell she was humping his fingers.

Travis unhooked her bra and rolled Dana onto her back. Those beautiful tits spilled out and her nipples were dark and thick. He was all over her tits like he'd never seen a woman topless before and she tilted her head, moaning her encouragement while clutching him to her chest. She cooed, "Not too rough, baby. Soft feels good." I was surprised she didn't let him go longer before pulling him away from her tits.

"Fuck me, baby," she said—somewhere between a plea and a demand.

Dana flopped her arm out and groped in the nightstand drawer for a condom. I was glad Travis did not put up a fight about that. He pulled on the sheath and pinned her legs back to her chest, her calves hanging past his forearms.

"Oh yes, Travis," Dana encouraged, throwing her head back right as he penetrated her.

My gut twisted and the truck seemed to turn at an angle. I realized my hands were trembling, and I wasn't prepared for my extreme reaction. It was like the first time I watched one of her videos, all over again. Knowing that my wife was out screwing someone—and that I would get video when she came home—was a whole different kind of feeling. And watching a video of something that already happened felt different because there was a weird safeness to it, as crazy as that sounds. If she went to Zach's house, the night had an inevitability to it. The next time I saw my wife she was going to be freshly fucked and I would have my video—there's no real sense of danger to that. But watching Dana get screwed in real time almost felt like I was a participant. The risk that always accompanies doing something so crazy was right there in front of me—in vivid color. We hadn't come through the storm—we were in it! The immediacy of watching that intimate act was like a smack in the face.

Travis only took it slow for a moment. He had Dana's legs jacked back and he pounded his cock into her hard. She held onto the mattress with her arms spread wide and moaned her pleasure while she bounced underneath him. That young waiter was fucking my wife silly.

I never considered trying to stop things, even if my feelings were all over the map. The sick feeling faded into the background and that familiar, intense rush returned. Yes, that's why I wanted this. I never felt more alive. Watching my wife take that young cock, listening to her cries as she gave herself to a virtual stranger, that was my addiction, and the high was so much stronger in real time. I zoomed in on her face, twisted with passion, and questioned if I ever made her feel that. The crazy insecurity was all part of the rush. Without the risk, there was no reward. My entire body was like one giant erogenous zone and I knew if I so much as brushed my cock I would come instantly.

"Oh yes! Yes!" Dana cried, arching her feet in the air. I knew that meant she was coming. I loved watching another man make her come.

Travis released her legs and she wrapped them around his body. With her body wrapped around his, she screamed, begged, for him to fuck her. It almost seemed over the top, and for a second I didn't like thinking Dana was performing for the cameras. I wanted her natural reactions. Travis kept grunting along and after what seemed like way too short a time he stopped moving, slumping on top of my wife. She held him, stroked his hair, and finally they kissed. Travis rolled off of her and I couldn't believe it was over.

"Would you like something to drink?" Dana asked, ever the good hostess.

"Sure, water would be great."

Dana strode out of the bedroom fully nude. I kept one camera on the bed, to make sure Travis didn't get up to anything, and switched the other to the kitchen. He spread out on the bed, looking content. She fetched two bottles of water from the fridge and looked around at the cabinets, seeking a camera.

“Hope you enjoyed the show, baby,” she said, blowing me a kiss. “Do you think he’s up for round two?” She returned to the bedroom.

I had mixed feelings about round two. I did think their first tryst was too short, but I was also dying to run up there and make love to my wife. I needed to come so badly I think I was twitching.

Travis made room for her, and Dana snuggled in beside him. What was it like to snuggle up to someone she’d just met? If I was in her position, I’d probably want him gone as soon as possible. She peeled the spent condom from his shaft and tossed it into the bedside trash bin. His arm was around her and he lightly stroked her ass.

“So how was that on the fun meter?” she asked.

“You can’t tell? You’re fucking crazy, girl?”

“Thanks, I think.”

“No, that’s good. I hope I...”

“You were good, baby,” she cooed, kissing his cheek.

“I’ll accept that as a compliment.”

“Yeah, Dana, it’s definitely a compliment. Goddam!” Travis ran a hand down her flank like he was taking her in for the first time.

“Mmm, if you keep touching me like that you’d better be ready for more fun.”

Travis laughed. “How much time do we have?”

“Enough.”

They were kissing again, this time like old lovers, and my gut was stabbed by jealousy and lust. It seemed so slutty that Dana gave herself so easily—and I loved every second of it. How much of this was just for her, I wondered, and not for the first time. Dana had never really fought me on trying all this out, like maybe she’d always been curious about what else was out there.

“Are you sure you don’t do this a lot?” Travis asked. He pinched and rolled one of Dana’s nipples, making her quake and moan.

“No, not this specifically. Why?”

“You just seem really good at it. I don’t get how your husband is cool with it. Christ, I’d never get tired of you.”

Dana gave his cock a playful smack. “Oh, don’t think he’s tired of me. He had me all turned on earlier. He’s just happy to let me play.”

“And it seems like you really like to play.”

“I love to play, baby,” she cooed, kissing him.

His cock was right up again and Dana slipped the condom on his prick this time—just before slipping herself onto him. She had a lot of fun being in charge, slowing rocking on him at first, then leaning forward and driving down onto his cock. I kept switching cameras and watched from every possible angle. Her ass looking amazing when she pumped up and down on him, and I loved watching her hair cascade down her back when she arched backward. Travis held her tits and she cried out when he played with her nipples. Dana came easily—more than once, I think—riding the young waiter.

He turned her onto her hands and knees, and she buried her face in the pillows when he took her from behind. Her butt rippled as he plowed her and Dana screamed when she came again. She took his young cock as hard as he could give it, proving to him what a hot, married slut she was. Dana was fulfilling the MILF fantasy.

Travis was not quick the second time around, and even I was wondering when he would be done with my wife, when she begged off. Glistening with sweat and gasping for air, she begged, “Baby, I need a break. I can’t take anymore.” They were fucking for the better part of an hour. He had lost his earlier finesse and was mercilessly screwing her.

“Sorry, Dana. Sometimes with a condom, especially the second time...”

“If you’re done, it’s cool. Tonight was incredible.”

Dana shook her head, wild dark hair everywhere. “No, baby. You didn’t get off yet.”

“No, it’s not.”

Dana crawled closer and peeled the condom off, flinging it away. She took him right into her mouth and sucked hard, cheeks hollowed. She was sucking with a purpose. Travis stretched out, then leaned down and played with her tits again. I knew her nipples had to be sore, but she let him. His hips started working and he moved a hand to the back of her head. Dana relaxed and let him start fucking her mouth. After a few minutes of that, she tore her mouth away, still stroking his shaft furiously.

“Come on, baby. I want you to come for me,” she moaned.

“Oh shit, Dana, keep doing that...”

“Are you going to give me your cum, baby?”

“Yes...”

Hearing my wife begging the waiter for his cum was nearly too much and I was touching myself again. I don’t know how I didn’t come. She alternated between sucking him and stroking him while begging for him to finish.

“Do you want to come on my tits, baby? Come on my tits.” Dana sounded so fucking hot.

“Shit! You’re fucking hot, girl,” he moaned. It sounded like he was ready to go.

“Come on me! Come on, baby. I need your cum!”

How was this not the ultimate MILF fantasy for this kid? I would have died in his place. And Travis couldn’t wait either. He exploded all over her face. That was even hotter than seeing him come on her tits. She pumped that strong young cock and it shot string after string of hot cum into her face and hair. I was zoomed in tight and it was the hottest thing I’d ever seen. Every time I thought my wife couldn’t top herself, she did. She pumped his cock until she’d gotten every last drop, and finally let him go. She looked relieved. It think we both wanted Travis to get out!

“Oh my god,” I gasped, pulling away from my wife. Her beautiful ass and red, swollen pussy stared up at me. From the way my heart pounded you’d think we’d just gone at it for hours, but it was not one of my finer performances. I was even quicker than Travis had been the first time. We were on the same bed where he’d just screwed Dana. I dropped down to those sweaty, fouled sheets and she laid beside me.

“You were ready to go, weren’t you,” Dana said, kissing my cheek. She drank deeply from a bottle of water and handed it to me. I finished it.

“If you’d watched what I did tonight, you’d be coming that fast too.”

I knew better than to apologize for my performance. She was already well-fucked and probably glad I didn't want to go all night. The funny thing was, I wanted to go all night. Just looking over at her trim body covered in sweat, watching her tits rise and fall, I wanted to do filthy things to her until we both passed out, but I was so excited after watching her with Travis that I'd had a hair trigger. I could have gotten it up again with some coaxing, but it was better to give Dana a break. How much screwing could she take in one night?

"I'm glad you liked the show," she laughed. "I was hoping you approved while Travis was here."

"It didn't look like you were giving me that much thought," I teased.

"You were on my mind a lot of the time. Tonight was different for me, knowing that you were watching me the whole time."

"I've watched you before, in cars and stuff."

"But never anything like this. You've never really 'been there' when I went back to a guy's place, or went up to a hotel room. You really saw it all tonight, right as it was happening. I didn't think it would be so different from setting up the hidden camera, but it was."

"Yeah, I felt it too. Watching you fuck in real time was not the same as watching a video."

"Did you like it?" she asked.

"It blew my mind, honey. This was the closest to my fantasies we've come. It really was like being there. Did you like it?" I prayed her answer would be yes.

"Yes, but it was a little weird for me. It was so hot and dirty, knowing you were spying on us. Whatever I did, there was no taking it back. But at the same time, there was this little fear of being judged."

I wondered what she meant by taking it back. Did she mean things I might not ordinarily see? Were there some things she was purposely making sure I never saw? That was paranoid, and I didn't want to think about it. "I would never judge you, Dana."

"I know, babe. But even after all this time, sometimes I still wonder if this is what you really want, y'know? Are you going to see me do something that makes you see me differently?"

I pulled her in and clung to her, trying to avoid where Travis had come on her face. No, she had not cleaned it off yet. He'd awkwardly left right after the last time, Dana walking him to the door nude. She went right back to the bedroom, climbed onto the bed and said, “Get up here and fuck your wife.” I flew into that apartment.

“Nothing could make me not love you and want you. You are my perfect wife and nothing could ever change that for me. You’re everything I’ve ever wanted or ever could want.”

“Oh God, I love you so much,” Dana said, hugging me back. “How did I get so lucky?”

“Yeah, how did you? Not a lot of husbands let their wives fuck hot young waiters. Was Travis fun?”

“You saw it all. You don’t have to ask,” she chuckled. “He was young and sexy—god he was young. He’s going home to his parents’ house right now!” She shook her head. “He was fun to play with, but his skills are not honed yet.”

“Maybe he needs a sexy older woman to take him under her wing.”

“Watch it with the older. I don’t think I’ll be seeing Travis again. God, I thought he was never going to come that second time. I was ready for him to go by then.”

“But what a finish!”

“Oh, you liked seeing him come all over your wife’s face?”

“It was pretty fucking hot.”

“I guess it was. And now I’m going to go scrub it all off.”

Dana rolled out of bed and padded over to the bathroom. She paused in the doorway and asked, “Are you going to join me?”

She didn’t have to ask twice.

The cameras were all around me and I wished there was a way I could tell if I was being watched. Dave put the cameras in to see me fuck, but that didn't mean he couldn't turn them on while I was in the apartment doing other things. I got a creepy, uneasy feeling knowing he could be spying. Would Dave want to know what I did before a date? He could have wanted to see how excited I was—or see if I was nervous. I made a mental note to ask him later and hope my husband told me the truth.

I sat on the couch in the hot date apartment and fussed with the little gold zippers on the sides of my skirt as I waited for Carlos to pick me up. They were easy to reach, as the skirt barely hit mid-thigh while I was seated. I couldn't quite believe I was wearing that outfit outside of the house.

Earlier in the day, he'd texted and asked what I planned to wear on our date. I told him I had a couple things in mind, but hadn't decided yet. He demanded I try on the outfits and let him choose. I didn't even think about not complying. I quickly stripped out of the leggings, tank top and sweater I'd been wearing to do laundry and changed into a tight, electric and black color block dress that had a shiny zipper up the spine. I really liked the way it showed off my butt and boobs, and thought Carlos would like it too. I posed and snapped a selfie in the full-length mirror.

-sexy. Let's see my next choice

I threw that dress on the floor and changed into a sleek little red skater dress with a narrow black belt. I liked the way the loose, short skirt swished when I moved. I've got to say, I love that some of the sexy little things I liked back in the 90s have come back into style. If I'm going to be dating again, it was nice to dress a little bit like I did back when I was single. The red dress was short and tight in the body, but didn't show a ton of skin. I sent a picture of that one to Carlos.

-Hot. Any more?

It was annoying that he wasn't more effusive. I thought I looked good. My husband would have been tearing that second dress off of me—if he wasn't preserving me for someone else. I texted Dave a picture of the red dress, telling him Carlos was helping me pick my outfit. I knew that would put some lead into his pencil.

Dave texted me right back: It's got to be that one!

I did have a third choice, and I changed into it. It was amazing how many flirty, sexy little outfits I'd accumulated over the past months. A lot of my old mom clothes had to be pushed aside for my hot date dresses. I felt sexier than I had in years. I was not sure about the third outfit—I felt like I was about ten years too old for it—but I sent Carlos, and my husband, the picture anyway. Carlos texted me back immediately.

-That's the one, baby. Can't wait to see you in it tonight

Dave surprised me by saying he liked the red dress better. Did he think this outfit was over the line? The red dress was very sexy, but it was still me. The last outfit, a tiny black, quilted leather skirt with gold zippers down the sides and a tight, low-cut strappy black top, didn't leave much to the imagination. I wasn't wearing a bra for the picture, but I would have to wear something later. Being braless in that top was too obvious. Even though I think I'm in pretty good shape, I wasn't entirely comfortable wearing it. I texted Carlos back:

-You can't wait to see me out of it

-That too. But I like it when hot women dress up for me.

-Are you planning on showing me off?

-Maybe. I get the feeling you like that sort of thing

-Go arrest someone. I have things to do before tonight

And I did have things to do. I took a long, luxurious bath, enjoying a mid-afternoon glass of wine while I laid back in the steamy, frequent water. I shaved my legs and made sure my mound was nice and smooth. Swiping the razor over my pussy, and knowing I was doing it for Carlos—not my husband—was an aphrodisiac and I had to put the razor aside to spread my lips and stroke my clit. My eyes fluttered closed and I recalled Carlos's smooth, chiseled body, the way his cock stood out, strong and proud. I hadn't seen him in weeks, but suddenly it was like it was yesterday, and I couldn't wait to give myself to him again. Breathy little moans came quickly and in minutes my toes were curling as my climax washed over me.

As I laid back in the tub it struck me that I didn't masturbate often these days. Before we started our hot dates, I probably did it three times a week, on average. Dave and I had a great sex life, but there were times when I just wanted a quick release during the day. I think Dave and I have less sex now and I'm more oversexed than ever. If I want sex from my husband, I usually have to initiate it, which bothers me, at least a little. I have all these men dying to sleep with me, but I have to seek my husband's attention. It really does seem like he'd rather watch videos of me fucking than actually fuck me sometimes.

I don't understand why he wouldn't rather have the real thing. I could get as much sex as I want from other men—Dave really does seem fine with me going out whenever I want—but I want to make love to my husband. Which leaves me horny all the time, but instead of masturbating I turned that energy into thinking about my next date, which makes me as close to a sure thing for these guys as they're ever likely to see. I've tried to say something to Dave, but he just refuses to see it. He thinks everything in our sex life is perfect. So I just go with the flow and take my pleasures where I can, but I do feel like I'm missing something.

The bath was a lovely respite, but there was much to do afterward. The laundry never ends and I had some paperwork to tackle for Dave's business. Not long after that I was in the Prius to get the kids from school.

As I chatted with the other moms in line, I briefly wondered what they would think if I rolled up in that little outfit Carlos wanted me to wear, instead of the jeans, boots and yellow sweater set I wore—normal clothes. Words like skank, whore, slut would surely be muttered. They would think I lost my mind, and maybe someone would even work up the nerve to say something catty directly to me, but possibly not. My actual friends would pull me aside and ask if Dave and I were having trouble. And I think a lot of the reactions would be motivated by jealousy.

Not to sound catty myself, but most of the other moms my age at the kids' school just haven't kept themselves in great shape and I know they resent those of us who have. They hate the way their husbands look at us. And I sympathize. I'm as busy as any of them, but if you want to be in shape after a couple kids, after you hit your mid-thirties, you've got to make it a priority. I'd rather stay in bed than run in the morning, but I'd also rather still fit into my size six jeans.

After that, it was back home, where homework was done and I folded laundry while the kids played in the family room. Too soon it was time to start dinner—a lasagna. Dave came home and we ate dinner as a family, but I only picked at my salad. I was nervous about my date with Carlos, and I didn't know if he wanted to have dinner or not. I didn't want to eat twice. He was skimpy with the details. I grabbed a shower and then we put the kids to bed together. I didn't want to get ready for Carlos until they were safely in bed. Dave went to finish cleaning up the kitchen and I went off to prepare myself for another man.

My spiked heels clicked on the granite tile when I came into the kitchen. I'd gotten pretty good at walking normally in crazy high heels. Dave looked up and I knew he thought I was sexy, but he did not smile like he usually does when he sees me ready for a date. Did it bother him that I was wearing what Carlos chose, instead of the outfit he liked?

"Wow, that looks even hotter in person," Dave finally said. I could see the unasked question in his eyes, You don't think that's too much? Or too little?

"I don't look ridiculous, do I?"

"If you were going to a PTA meeting, yes. If you're going to a club, you'll fit right in."

"I don't know where we're going. Carlos just gave me a time to meet up."

Dave didn't seem to like that either. "Okay. But you're going to end up at the apartment later?"

I bristled. That was what he really cared about. Not that some rogue cop might disappear with me, but that we ended up at his precious fuck pad. "Yes, dear. We will be there," I said sweetly, pouring it on. "I told him my girlfriend was out of town and we could use her place. He wanted to go to his, but I told him I wasn't up for that."

"Cool." He came around the island and held me out to look at me, hands on my hips. "He is going to eat you up, hon. Jesus."

I softened and smiled. "I don't even feel like myself. I can't believe I'm wearing this in public."

"You look like you, Dana. Just the supercrazyhottest version of you. I don't care where you guys end up going. No one will be looking at anyone but you."

"Thanks, babe. I love you."

It was a normal day, except for the fashion show for my lover. Chores, laundry, kids—not the kind of day that led most women to sitting in a car waiting to be picked up for a hot date while their husband was home with the kids. I was staring down at my lap when the burner phone chirped with a text. Carlos was out front. I'd told him I'd come down when he got there because I was afraid if he came up we'd never leave the apartment. That wasn't necessarily a bad thing, but I looked forward to seeing what Carlos had planned. I slipped on a long, black trench coat and went down to meet him.

Carlos sat against the fender of a black Dodge Charger with his arms crossed. Despite the chill in the air, he didn't wear a coat. He was in all black—silk shirt, tailored slacks and boots. He looked good. Casual, but strong. A little shiver ran through me and I wanted him right there.

"Let me see," he said, gesturing with his fingers for me to open my coat.

It was chilly and I wasn't wearing much, but I did as he instructed. The coat was longer than the skirt. He smiled, and I crossed the distance and pressed against him, for warmth as much as anything else. "Do you like?"

"Even hotter in the flesh, babe. You like dressing up for me, don't you?"

I nodded and kissed him. He grabbed my ass when I pressed my tongue past his lips. The tingling had spread from my pussy through my whole body by the time I pulled back. I wiped my red lipstick from his lips with my thumb. "Is that a convincing yes?" I asked.

"You'll get your chance to show me your gratitude."

"Gratitude?" I chuckled.

He smiled cryptically. "It's going to be a good night. I promise."

Carlos held the door, and before I could slide into the passenger seat he slid the coat from my shoulders. I was cold, but I was more flattered that he wanted to be able to see me. He got a nice flash of my legs as I slid into the black leather passenger seat. He folded my coat and placed it in the back.

"Where are we going?" I asked when he got in beside me. The car started with a low growl and Carlos tapped a couple buttons on the touch screen in the middle of the dashboard.

"Somewhere I think you'll have fun. Have you eaten?"

"Just a snack. I could eat."

"We can stop and grab something."

"Only if it's not going to throw off your plan," I said.

“My plans aren’t that tight.” He smiled. “Did you walk out the door in front of your husband dressed like that?”

“No, I changed when I got upstairs. He might have had some questions if he saw me like this.”

“No shit, Diana. I would never let you out of the house like that, unless I was going with you.”

“So you wouldn’t mind me dressing like this, but you’d keep me on a short leash.”

“Mmm, I like the idea of you on a leash.”

I felt heat rise to my cheeks. That wasn’t the only heat I felt. The leather seats must have been heated, because I felt a nice, warm glow coming up from beneath me and it didn’t matter so much that I was wearing so little.

“But no, I wouldn’t mind. If you were with me, babe, you’d be dressed like that all the time,” Carlos said. He possessively dropped his hand on my bare leg.

“That could be inappropriate. You don’t want me to get the wrong kind of attention, do you,” I teased. His fingers almost tickled as they softly caressed my thigh and my legs parted a couple inches.

“Don’t worry, Diana. I’ll keep you out of trouble, unless that’s what we’re looking for.”

I couldn’t help but whimper when his fingers crept deeper between my thighs. “Are we looking for trouble tonight?”

“We’ll see.”

Carlos guided us into a part of the city I didn’t recognize, and I was relieved. It was highly unlikely we would be running into anyone Dave and I knew. Carlos’s hand smoothly moved higher and higher between my thighs, but he never looked away from the road. He had to feel the damp heat from my sex. I tried my best to act like nothing was happening while we talked, but it was not easy. The tight skirt restricted how widely I could open my legs, but that didn’t slow Carlos down. He slid his hand to the side and yanked up the little golden zipper. It opened the side of my skirt nearly to the waist. He pulled my legs apart now, no longer pretending nothing was happening.

“You’re fucking soaked, Di,” he hissed.

“Who’s fault is that?” I moaned. There was no way to control my reactions. Carlos rubbed little circles on my mound, pushing my black lace panties between my swollen lips. I put my hand over his, but not to stop him—to encourage him.

“I’ve got the feeling it doesn’t take much to get you wet. You were ready for it before we even got back to the hotel room last time, Diana.”

I slid down in the seat, pushing myself at him. “And you were driving me crazy then, too. Ohh, that feels so good, baby.”

“Take off your panties.”

It was not a request and I did not hesitate in complying with his order. Just that edge in his voice sent chills down my spine. I pulled my tiny panties past my heel and placed them in his outstretched hand. I was still reclined low in the seat, with my legs apart, and after he stowed my panties in the center console Carlos returned his hand to my pussy. He had free reign to explore me now and slid two thick fingers up inside me. I cried out and gripped the armrest tightly. My eyes fluttered closed and I focused on his touch, trying to forget where we were. Although I’d become accustomed to the risk of fooling around in public, I was thankful for his tinted windows to hide me from prying eyes. With my legs spread like that, anyone looking down from an SUV would be able to see me fully exposed.

Carlos fingered me slow and steady, enough to drive me crazy, but not get me off. I pushed myself at him, but he refused to take the hint. He enjoyed toying with me too much. I reached out and felt him through his slacks. That thick cock lay along his right thigh, rock hard and ready for me. I considered straddling him and fucking him while he drove. It was so dangerous, but I was so horny.

“You want to come, don’t you?” he asked. He seemed amused.

“Yes, baby. You have me so horny.”

“Does your husband do this? Does he make you dripping wet like this?”

“No,” I lied. Dave had just done the very same thing while we waited for Travis, but it was important for Carlos to be top dog. And it wasn’t entirely a lie. My husband didn’t have the kind of absolute control Carlos had. There was no doubt the cop could keep me like that all night, where Dave would lose focus and let me come because he was too turned on himself.

“I think you need a man to take charge, Diana.”

“Only if you’re going to take care of me. You can’t just torture me.” I rubbed his cock harder, but I knew I wouldn’t just get him off as I had Dave. Carlos would not lose control.

“Like this?”

Carlos slid his drenched fingers up my wet furrow and attacked my clit. The stiff little nub was so slick he had trouble staying there, but he knew what to do. He almost pinched it between two fingers as he furiously rubbed me there. He wasn't gentle, and I didn't want him to be. He seemed to instinctually know what I needed. It was overwhelming and my cries quickly turned to screams. I pitched forward in the seat, trying to curl into a ball as the intense climax hit me. It didn't just hit me—it slammed me, like a speeding train. I stayed tensed like that for I don't know how long, with his hand trapped between my thighs. I finally fell back in the seat and stared up at the lights passing in the moon roof while I caught my breath.

“See, Diana, I know how to take care of you. You just need to leave yourself in my hands,” Carlos said.

“Yes. Anytime,” I mumbled, still floating on my cloud. He pressed his soaked fingers to my lips and I greedily sucked them. I like to taste myself—it was a trick I used to do to drive Dave crazy—but I hadn't done it in a while. It was hot that Carlos did it without asking, like there was no chance I would deny him.

I was still slouched in my seat with my skirt around my waist when we pulled up in front of The Columbian Lounge and I barely had it tugged down when the valet opened my door. I turned bright red when he had to wait for me to fix the zipper on the side. Retrieving my panties was out of the question. I just hoped he didn't notice the big wet spot on the black leather seat. I felt extremely vulnerable in the tiny skirt with no panties, and I think Carlos liked that.

"You like to dance, don't you?" he asked.

"Sure, but I'm a little rusty."

"Oh, I'm quite sure you know how to move."

The club didn't look like much from the outside, just a low building with beige stucco walls and its name in cursive pink neon on the wall, but it was jumping on the inside. A bar lined the long back wall and there were some bar-height tables scattered around, but the bulk of the room was taken by a massive dance floor, with a DJ, perched high in the corner, spinning tunes with a strong, Latin beat. Booths were scalloped into the walls on both sides, with their own tables and upholstered in red leather. The club was packed with a clientele that looked to be largely Hispanic, with a few black people mixed in and maybe only handful of white people. It's something you rarely experience if you're white and live in the suburbs, the feeling of being a minority in a crowd. I honestly couldn't remember ever being in that position, and I hope it doesn't sound too racist to admit I was a little nervous. It just didn't feel like somewhere I belonged. If Carlos wasn't at my side I probably would have turned around and walked out, but he held my hand firmly and pulled me through the crowd. Multiple people greeted him, not a few of them women, so I had to assume he was a regular at the club. All of the women who knew him were very attractive and seemed to be wearing as little—or less—than I was, and I felt oddly jealous.

"Hey Livie, I'll take a Modelo," Carlos said when he caught the bartender's eye. "My friend will have a mojito."

“Haven’t seen you in a while, lindo,” she replied. Livie was a Spanish girl in her early 20s with long, jet black hair pulled back into a high ponytail. Her uniform was tight jeans and a vest that barely contained her tanned tits. Carlos didn’t give them more than a glance.

“Work’s been busy. You know how it is. This is Diana.”

“Nice to meet you,” Livie replied. Her smile didn’t quite reach her eyes and I got the feeling I wasn’t the first girl Carlos had introduced to her. Was this where he brought all the wives he fucked—and was Livie jealous? She served our drinks up quickly and Carlos handed her a twenty.

The mojito was strong, grabbing my attention on the first sip. I suddenly remembered I hadn’t had a real dinner and knew more than a couple of those would knock me on my ass. The strong white rum burned my throat going down, but in a good way. Carlos and I toasted and his arm slid around me, his hand coming to rest on my butt.

“I thought you might need a drink after the way you were screaming in the car,” he said.

“I did get a little overheated,” I agreed, though I did not appreciate his smugness. His confidence was one of those things that was both arousing and a little infuriating.

“So, blanca, I’m guessing you’ve never been to a club like this.” It was the first time I’d heard him break into Spanish slang and I chalked it up to our surroundings. I heard a blend of English and Spanish all around us.

“No, I have not. This isn’t the sort of place we usually go.”

“So what do you like to dance to, stuff like Lady Gaga?”

“Maybe, if I go out with my girlfriends. My husband hates that kind of music, though. If we go out, it’s usually rock music, or maybe country.”

Carlos laughed and nodded. “This is a different thing altogether. I think you’ll have fun tonight if you let yourself go.”

I leaned into him, my hand on his chest. I toyed with the buttons of his shirt and slipped my fingers between them so I could feel his smooth, hard chest. I was already thinking about ripping that shirt off of him. “I’m sure you’ll show me a good time,” I said.

“It’s a good thing you already know how to move your hips. Let’s see how the rest of you does.”

He drained his beer and set it down on the bar behind us. I was not going to down my mojito that quickly, so I carried it as he pulled me toward the dance floor. As massive as it was, the dance floor was still very crowded. I know nothing about Spanish music, so I had no idea who the DJ was playing or what style it was. All I knew was that it had a fast, complicated beat that took some concentration to catch. I glanced at the people around us for guidance and tried to mimic what the other women were doing, but it was hard to really move with my clutch in one hand and my drink in the other.

Carlos noticed and lifted the mojito to my lips, ordering me to drink it. He tipped it back so that I had no choice and as quickly as I could swallow, I still ended up with some spilling down my cleavage. We were still near the edge of the dance floor and he placed my glass on one of the high tables, then pulled me deeper into the crowd.

Drinking the mojito that fast went right to my head and I felt light and easy. Carlos found a space for us in the crowd and we both moved to the tricky driving beat. A lot of it was footwork, which wasn't the easiest in those heels, but I'd like to think I made up for my clumsy feet with my hip work—especially when Carlos and I were grinding together. He held my ass firmly, keeping me pressed to him. He slid his hand up my back, his touch hot on my skin. The strappy top left a lot of exposed skin and barely covered my black strapless bra. He fingered the clasp on my back and for a second I was afraid he was going to unhook it.

“You should have left this in the car too, Diana,” he said, leaning in close to be heard. His breath on my ear made me shiver.

“Not in this top, buddy. My tits would be bouncing all over the place.”

“That’s the point, chica.”

I felt awkward enough with no panties—no way I would have gone braless. I was already trying to be careful with how I moved, which the tight little skirt made difficult. It was not designed to let me move like that. The only thing that helped me relax—besides the mojito—was that the other women in club were wearing as little as I was.

Carlos guided my body with his expert hands and soon I was moving to the sexy music like a pro. There was just something inherently sexual about the Latin beat that made my body pulse and had me thinking about nothing but sex. A lot of that was probably due to the way Carlos moved to the beat. That man was sex personified. Just watching the way he twisted and turned his body had me melting into a little puddle, but then he was touching me and I thought I was going to pass out. His hands were everywhere on my body, but I didn't mind that he was touching me like that in public because it just seemed natural when we were moving to that music.

He could not have chosen a better preamble to taking me home and screwing the daylight out of me. I could feel his thick root pressing into me through those tight slacks and I knew he wanted me just as badly. I could not wait to drag him back to my husband's fuck pad.

"We need more drinks," Carlos announced. He pulled me close and gave me a long, hot kiss. I was ready to follow him when he announced he would be right back. I tried to tell him I just wanted water, but I didn't think he heard me.

I was ready to just stand there and wait for him to return. Those heels were starting to kill my feet. But the jostling crowd had a life of its own, and it was not ready to let me stop dancing. Carlos was soon replaced by a tall, sexy Latino man and without a thought I was moving against him the same way I'd been dancing with Carlos.

This stranger and I were touching and grinding like lost lovers. I was so overheated from Carlos that it just felt natural to keep moving and touching. The man cupped my ass and instead of slapping him, I just moved closer. His shirt was open and I put my hand on his sweaty chest. He was not built like Carlos, but he had a nice body. I let him turn me, and with hands on my hips, he grinded into me from behind. His cock felt impressive and I let him know it by backing right up into it. His hands were so close to my burning sex and I was all too aware of it. I felt like such a cliché—the white girl who goes crazy from the Latin beat, but I guess there is truth in clichés.

While my new friend held me from behind, a beautiful, dark-skinned woman slid in front of me, joining our dance. She was tall and lean, and her dress was so low-cut that it gaped open when she moved to the music, her breasts threatening to spill out. Her wavy hair went dark to light in an Ombre-dye job and framed both her pretty face and her perky tits. She caressed my bare arms, sliding her hands downward so she could take my hands. She placed my hands on her hips and moved closer so that our bodies were pressed together.

I smiled and gave myself to the music. I didn't want to think about how horny I was while pressed between those two sexy strangers. The man behind kept pressing his hard-on into my ass and the small of my back, making it hard to think of anything but sex. The girl in front of me held my hips as well as we ground together. We were so close and from the look in her deep brown eyes I was sure she was about to kiss me. I even closed my eyes as I could feel it coming. She grazed her lips over mine, and being the little slut I've become, I chased her lips until she shared a longer kiss.

Being with other women is not something I've ever pursued. Surprisingly, it doesn't seem to be a part of my husband's kink. Dave has never brought up seeing me with another woman instead of men. And while I can appreciate the sexiness of women, thoughts of being with one don't grab me like being with a man does. But that doesn't mean I'm not open. I had a good time being with our friend Lisa years ago, when I was with her and her boyfriend. She made me come hard, but I was probably just as focused on her boyfriend—and Dave watching the three of us. And now here I was, years later, kissing another woman, and really turned on by it.

The kiss did not last long, but she whispered, "You're lips are so soft," before pulling back. Her voice carried the soft lilt of a South American accent. She did not pull back far, but kept grinding me in front while the man did the same in the rear. Those two probably could have dragged me off to some corner of the club and had their way with me and I would have happily surrendered. The only thing that snapped me into reality was when the beautiful stranger began pulling up the zippers on the sides of my skirts. I put my hands over hers and she laughed musically.

"Give her a break, guys. Diana doesn't even know you yet," Carlos said, appearing out of nowhere.

I thought he might be angry that I was letting some strange guy grope me like that—I somehow knew the woman wouldn't be a problem—but he was smiling. It was only upon his arrival that the two released me. Carlos handed me another mojito and I was so overheated that I sucked down half of it right away.

"She was having fun, papi," the girl said. She moved to Carlos's side and seemed to rub herself against him like a cat. In her heels—they were even higher than more own four inches—she easily had the height to kiss his cheek—leaving a dark red lipstick mark. She smiled at me, and added, "We were having fun, weren't we, chica?"

I took another sip and answered, "We were. I guess these are friends of yours, Carlos?" I realized the man was still beside me and had his arm draped casually over my shoulders.

“This is Gabriela—” he started.

“Please, it’s Gabi,” she interrupted.

“And Javier. We’re all friends. Guys, this is Diana,” Carlos finished. By the way Gabi was hanging on him they seemed like more than just friends. I had no right, but my jealousy flared again. I looked for a wedding ring on her hand, but did not see one. I had left mine on for a change, since Carlos knew I was married. Something about going on a hot date wearing my rings felt even dirtier.

Javier turned the arm over my shoulders into a hug and kissed my cheek. It seemed almost innocent after the way we’d just been dancing. “It’s a pleasure to meet you,” he said. Unlike Gabi, he was not accented. “Maybe we should take a little break. We have a table.”

“Excellent,” Carlos agreed.

They had one of those booths along the wall staked out, with Gabi’s coat stretched out along the seat and their drinks on the table. Carlos held out his arm, and I slid into the booth, doing my best to keep my skirt from riding up. It felt good to finally be off my feet. Gabi slid in from the other side and I ended up between her and Carlos. Although there was plenty of room, somehow I ended up snugly between their two hot bodies. When Carlos put his arm around me, he ended up caressing Gabi’s bare shoulder. Gabi had some colorful tropical looking cocktail and she drained it like it was nothing but fruit juice. Javier sipped his cocktail more judiciously.

“How do you two know each other?” Javier asked.

I didn’t quite know how to answer that, and thankfully Carlos jumped in. “I met Diana at McCauley’s wedding,” he said.

Javier nodded, but I could swear he was staring at my wedding ring. Did he know of his friend’s predilection for screwing married women?

“So you haven’t been seeing each other long?” Gabi asked. That seemed to please her.

“We’re just sort of hanging out,” I replied.

I didn’t want to give the impression Carlos and I were really dating. It felt odd to be sitting there, talking to other people while out on one of my hot dates. It was like that first time I met Carlos, and I wondered if part of the thrill of sleeping with other men’s wives was showing them off. Usually when I met a man it was an illicit affair where we tried not to be noticed before we snuck out to go be alone somewhere. There was still that fear in the back of my brain that I was going to run into someone I knew while out with another man—no matter how unlikely it was.

“Carlos is great to hang out with, Diana. You’re very lucky,” Gabi said. “We used to hang out a lot, but he hasn’t been around in a while.”

“You know how work can be. I was on a 3rd watch surveillance for a while,” Carlos said.

“You know you can call me anytime, papi.”

“I know Carlos is a cop. What do you guys do?” I asked, trying to interject myself between Gabi and my date. My hand dropped beneath the table and I rested it on his thigh, my fingertips just brushing where I knew his cock lay.

“I have my own detailing business. Bring your car by sweetheart. I’ll take care of you,” Javier said.

“Maybe I will. It’s filthy.” Flirting back with Javier was an antidote to my jealousy.

“I can definitely take care of that,” he said.

“I don’t know, hermano, you’d be surprised how filthy Diana can be,” Carlos chuckled. He pulled me just a little tighter and his hand moved over to toy with the strings on my shoulder that held my top in place.

“How about you, Gabi?” I turned and smiled, wanting to pull her focus away from my date. It didn’t help that sitting that close only made me realize how truly beautiful she really was. I flashed back to that brief kiss we shared and wondered if she liked it as much as I did.

“I work at Victoria’s Secret.” She touched my arm and I got goosebumps when she trailed her long, painted nails down it. “You should come by and see me sometime, too. I could hook you up, if you like that sort of thing.”

“I love your stuff—I mean their stuff,” I said. I’d quickly gone from being jealous of Gabi to being captivated by her.

“We’ve got some stuff I know you’d look great in,” she said. As she caressed me, she stopped just short of touching my breast.

“I could bring her by and then we could all have lunch,” Carlos said.

He shifted in the booth so my hand rested right on his cock, which twitched under my touch. I could well imagine that he was thinking of getting me and Gabi alone. It sounded like a great idea, and for the first time in a while that night I thought of my husband. What would he think of seeing me with both Carlos and Gabi? I had to think his head would explode.

“So are you two together?” I asked, trying to force all the dirty thoughts from my brain.

“We like to have fun together,” Gabi answered, turning and patting Javier’s thigh, much like I was touching Carlos.

“Just like you and Carlos,” Javier added in a way that told me he knew all about the type of women his friend liked to bed. He and Gabi shared a long, drawn out kiss that watching left me gasping.

I only looked away because Carlos demanded my attention for a kiss of his own. I reached up to hold his smooth, shaved head, and gripped his shaft tighter with my other hand. He casually dropped a hand in my lap and nudged it past my skirt. I tried squeezing my thighs closed—I was self conscious with the others right there—but he was insistent and I relaxed my thighs. The problem was that I wanted him to touch me there. I needed him to. I was so vulnerable without panties. He didn’t push those fingers inside me, but teased them between my slick lips, just stroking me to drive me crazy—until he brushed my clit. Carlos’s fingers on my clit made me jump and moan into his mouth. I wanted to fuck him so badly I trembled.

It took a moment to realize that Carlos was not the only one touching me. I was so focused on him, and so swept up in the pleasure that throbbed through my body, that it didn’t occur to me that there were three hands on me. Gabi was grabbing my breasts and she was pretty aggressive about it. As a woman, she probably knew I wouldn’t feel much through the heavy padding of my strapless bra, so she overcompensated. But I like it rough and knowing I was being groped by two people there in plain view in the club was so hot. Carlos worked my pussy like a pro, keeping me right on that edge, and I wanted to kill him for it. I didn’t care that the others would see me come—I just wanted it. When we stopped kissing, and everyone took their hands back, I felt dazed.

Gabi read my expression and smiled. “You need a little bump, Diana,” she said.

She found her purse underneath the table and dug through it until she retrieved a gorgeous antique silver cigarette case with a frilly, etched-in design. As soon as she clicked it open, I knew those slender, hand-rolled cigarettes were not tobacco. There was also a little brown glass vial. Gabi uncapped the vial first and shook a little white powder onto her long, painted pinkie nail and offered it to me. I shook my head.

“Are you sure? It will help keep the party going,” she said.

“That’s just really not my thing,” I replied. I’d smoked plenty of pot in my time—even fairly recently—but I’d always stayed away from coke. It scared me.

Gabi shrugged and offered it past me. To my surprise, Carlos eagerly took the bump and thanked her.

“Don’t you have to pass drug tests for work?” I asked.

Carlos laughed. “There are ‘random drug tests,’ but we always get plenty of warning. Besides, I was just working a drug case, and they can’t test you after you’ve handled a large volume of narcotics. You just naturally absorb some through the skin. Are you sure you don’t want some, Diana? It’ll fire you up, baby.”

“I’m good,” I insisted. I was already plenty fired up, that was the problem.

Gabi did a bump herself, but did not offer Javier a hit. She must have known he would refuse it. She took one of the joints from the case and passed it to Javier, who lit it with a gold lighter and took a long drag. He passed it back and when it came my way I took a heavy drag. I needed something to chill me out. I knew it might make me even hornier—which it sometimes did—but getting high seemed like a good idea at the time. Carlos took a hit and passed it right back and I indulged again. Between the four of us, the joint did not last long.

Her weed was strong and it hit me right away. Everything just seemed to slow down and it took me a few seconds to realize when someone was talking to me. A broad smile was on my lips and I was moving to the music without even thinking about it. Gabi decided that meant it was time to dance again and pulled me out of the booth—but we were halfway to the dance floor before I really realized it. The guys came too and we ended up dancing in our own little group.

My high muffled the beat of the Latin music so that I more felt it than heard it, and moving through that fog made the dancing feel more sensual than before. I didn’t need any guidance this time, as my body just started moving to the music on its own. Couples didn’t seem to matter anymore and the four of us just sort of moved with each other, splitting off as we felt like it. I enjoyed dancing with Javier just as much as Carlos, especially since he was taking the same liberties as my date. I loved the feel of his hands on my body and eagerly grinded with him to encourage more.

Gabi was also close by and I danced with her as much as anyone. When she pressed her back against me she took both my hands and put them on her perky tits. They felt nice and her nipples poked right through the thin material of her gossamer silvery halter dress. We kissed here and there, but the guys never seemed to leave us alone long enough to really get into it. And Carlos seemed to be enjoying it all. I could tell he was proud that his friends liked me, and it didn't bother him if they liked me a little too much.

I don't know how long we were out there on the dance floor, but I was exhausted and exhilarated when we returned to the booth. Once again, everyone did a bump of cocaine, but I declined. I wasn't that crazy. But I did take a drag of the second joint Gabi lit. It was only when Carlos commented that it was getting late that I learned it was after one. I panicked for a moment. Dave must have been thinking I was dead by the side of the road somewhere. I wanted to check my phone, but that would have to wait until I could sneak off to the bathroom. Hopefully Carlos was about ready to get me alone.

"Does the night really have to end?" Gabi pouted.

"I don't have to be in early," Javier said.

I couldn't believe these people could stay out all night and still function in the morning. I assumed they had to go to work at some point.

"We could all grab a nightcap," Carlos said. "What do you think, Diana?"

What I wanted was to get him alone and claw his clothes off, but the pot left me very pliable, and Gabi caressing my leg with her nails had me thinking that hanging out a little longer wouldn't be a bad thing. "Sure, why not. I can stay out a little later."

"We could all go to your place, if you don't mind," he replied. "I mean, it's nice and quiet."

I thought they were talking about going to a quieter bar to grab a drink, not go somewhere alone. My brain was a little foggy, but I could see where things might be going, and I didn't know if it was a good idea. I was feeling good and incredibly horny, meaning I was up for just about anything—but that was the problem. Things could easily get out of control if we were some place private. Everyone was staring at me and I couldn't think of a reason not to go back to the apartment—not one I could tell them, anyway.

“Sure, why not?” I finally answered. “But I need to go to the girl’s room first.” I picked up my little clutch.

“I could freshen up, too,” Gabi said. Carlos slid over to let us out and she took my hand and led me away.

As soon as I could slip into a stall I had my phone out. There were a dozen texts from my husband asking where I was. Six of them were from the last forty-five minutes. I texted him back.

-So sorry. He took me dancing and totally lost track of time

Dave must have been holding his phone, because the reply came right in.

-As long as you’re okay. Guess you’re having fun?

-He’s enjoyed the outfit

-I knew he would. Will you be back soon?

I knew Dave didn’t mean back home, but back at the apartment.

-Think so. We ran into some friends of his. He wants to bring them back

-Could be fun

-Are you sure?

I knew his mind had gone to the dirtiest place possible and he was imagining another night like my threesome with Zach and his roommate. Nothing I did bothered him, which bothered me. Was there anything too slutty? Did my husband want to see me get gangbanged? I wanted to think there were some limits—something Dave would hold precious—but it didn’t seem that way.

-The more the merrier right?

His reply got my back up. High, I wasn’t making the best decisions and it seemed like a really good idea to test him. I would give him the slutty wife he’d always wanted.

-Great. We’ll be there soon

When I came out of the stall, Gabi was at the mirror fluffing her hair. Amazingly, we were the only two women in the restroom. She dug through her bag and then applied a fresh coating of red lipstick. Something about that girl just oozed sex. I joined her to touch up my own makeup.

“Does your husband know?” Gabi asked, sliding her lip gloss applicator back into the tube.

The question was so out of nowhere I wasn't sure I heard her right. "Excuse me?"

Gabi took my left hand and fingered my wedding rings. "Is that too personal to ask? I'm just curious. I know the kind of woman Carlos prefers and I've always wondered about them. I know some men do not mind if their wife goes out with other men. Some of them even like it."

"Really?" Playing dumb seemed like a good idea.

"Men like all kinds of things, Diana, you know this—you have experience. Some men, they like to be spanked, some like their women to obey, and some get off on studs like Carlos fucking their wives. What type is your man?"

It was so tempting to tell Gabi the truth. She was a virtual stranger and she did not seem like she would judge us, but I had told Carlos a different story and I didn't think I should contradict that. "I think my husband suspects I see other men, but he's so busy with other women I don't think he cares as long as I am discrete."

"Lucky you." She smiled and still held my hand, playing with my rings. "And you do not mind his playing around?"

"He lives his life, I live mine. The arrangement seems to work for us."

"And women? Do you see women too?" She moved closer, her body brushing mine.

"Uh, no...not usually." She looked at me with that predatory gaze I was used to seeing in men's eyes. She released my hand and I instinctively put it on her hip. Those long nails trailing up my arm gave me goosebumps like before and made me tingle in all the right places. She softly caressed my cheek.

"That's too bad, but things can change," Gabi said.

"Sure," I murmured.

I couldn't wait any longer for Gabi to act so I kissed her. She was slender in my arms, so different from the heft of the muscular men I'm attracted to. Her back was mostly bare and felt warm under my fingertips. I heard someone come into the restroom, but they passed us by and we kept kissing. Gabi flicked her tongue at mine playfully. She was the one to end the kiss.

"We should get back, chica."

“Just one thing, about Carlos,” I said. “He told me why he likes—women like me—do you see him with a lot of them?”

“I don’t think he brings them all around, but I do know that he likes a lot of women. Carlos, I think, likes the challenge, but then he gets bored.” She almost looked sorry for me. She looked me up and down and then added, “But maybe not you. You’re much sexier.”

“Thanks,” I said, already thinking of ways to keep Carlos interested. I didn’t like to think that he may become bored with me.

We returned to the table and the guys were ready to go. Gabi picked up a long, black leather coat at the coat check and Carlos told the others to follow us. I slid into the passenger seat, well aware the valet could just about see my pussy when my skirt rode up. Carlos gave him a hearty clap on the shoulder when he tipped him.

“You don’t mind that Gabi and Javier are coming over, do you?” he asked.

“The more the merrier, right?” I answered, echoing my husband. “As long as I get you to myself at some point.” I laid my hand in his lap to make my point.

Carlos chuckled. He seemed to enjoy my forwardness. “We’re alone right now. You should make the most of it.”

I didn’t know exactly what he meant, but I could guess. I unclicked my seatbelt and leaned across the center console, reaching for his belt. He slid the power seat back and pulled on his tight pants and clingy Lycra boxer briefs, getting them down just enough. His cock sprang up and I was electrified as soon as I touched it. It was amazingly thick, just as I remembered it. My fingers didn’t quite encircle it and I really had to stretch my mouth to take him in.

Carlos grunted when I licked his head and I worked on sucking that first, getting myself ready to swallow that monster. His prick really was so big and beautiful—smooth and hairless—that I got excited just playing with it. I didn’t have to be a size queen to appreciate how amazing it was. He encouraged me with soft pressure on the back of my head. He tasted masculine and I happily took in more of his shaft.

“Diana, baby, you suck that cock so good,” he encouraged. “You suck it like you really want it.”

I would have told him how much I wanted it if my mouth hadn’t been so full. My cheeks hollowed and I sucked him hard. That strong desire to please him returned and for some weird reason I wanted to earn the good screwing I knew he would give me later.

“Suck it, Diana. Suck that goddam cock,” he groaned. His fingers tightened in my hair and he was forcing me farther down on him.

His head hit the back of my throat and I relaxed, just barely avoiding gagging on him—but it almost felt like he wanted me to, the way he was forcing me down. I went with it, but it was difficult. My jaw ached from his girth and saliva ran down his shaft as I bobbed up and down on it. He pumped his hips up at my mouth and I dug my nails into his thigh as I struggled to keep up with him.

“You’re so fucking good, Di. So good sucking that cock. Show me you want it, baby. You’re so fucking sexy.”

His words energized me and I worked even harder at sucking his cock. I loved the way he possessed me. God, I wanted to make him come. As much as I loved being my husband’s little slut, I yearned to be Carlos’s, too—and it scared me. He cried out my name and held his cock buried back to my throat and climaxed. His thick jism squirted into my throat and I coughed hard, trying to swallow in that impossible position. Carlos only released me when he was finished coming and some of his seed dribbled onto my lips before I licked it up.

I fell back into my seat and pushed my hair back. God, I couldn’t remember the last time I’d given road head like that. I did it for Dave all the time when we were younger. I always loved how delightfully dirty it felt. But we’d gotten away from that and now here I was—years later—doing it for my lover. I smiled, thinking that I wished my husband had been able to see it. He would have loved it. But Dave’s cameras couldn’t catch everything.

“Does your husband have any idea what a great cocksucker you are, Diana?”

It was like he was reading my mind. “He used to.”

“Talent like that should not be wasted. I know a lot of guys who’d love to fuck that sweet mouth.”

I turned a shade of red and murmured, “Thanks,” embarrassed that I took it as a real compliment. I flipped down the visor and in the lighted mirror I looked like what I was. My hair was a mess and my lipstick was smeared. I’d have to fix it the best I could before we got back to the apartment. I didn’t want to look like a whore when entering a potential orgy.

I awaited Dana's return with a mixture of anticipation and annoyance. It bothered me that she had been out with Carlos all night having fun. I wanted my wife to enjoy herself on these hot dates, but all that time she was out with another guy—having dinner, dancing, whatever—was time I spent waiting at home with my dick in my hand. Waiting to see some action. And the fact that she could go out with Carlos and spend hours with him not in bed implied they could have a real connection. I wasn't sure I liked that.

It was how I felt about her getting so excited about running over to see Zach. I was excited I was going to get another video, I was excited my wife was getting fucked, but I didn't like that they seemed like friends. I know it's not what Dana wants, but I'll admit it—in my perfect world these guys would appear, seduce and fuck my wife, and then disappear. I hadn't wanted any repeat dates at first, but then I realized they were a means to an end and I was just going to have to deal with it.

Dana and Carlos weren't the only ones coming back to the apartment. That was an interesting development. I took from her text that these other people weren't just coming back to hang out, and I hoped that was not just my wishful thinking. A lot of scenarios flew through my brain, most of them involving my wife taking on three, maybe four guys. I imagined Dana surrounded by cocks, reaching for them. It was a hot, potent fantasy and I almost had to jerk off while I waited, but I was able to hold out—just barely.

Was my sweet wife ready for something like that? I had no idea, and I was not even really sure I was ready to see that. Her threesome with Zach had been hot, but to really see her take on a bunch of guys would be new territory. Did I want Dana to want a gangbang? I couldn't really answer that one way or the other, and that was more frightening than anything else.

I had to wait nearly an hour to find out what I was in store for, and I was somewhat perplexed when they showed up with another couple. It was a tall, Hispanic male and a smokin' hot Hispanic female. He was handsome, but not a stud like Carlos. She was stunning.

It's funny, but unlike a lot of the guys I saw on hot wife message boards, I didn't much care about the race of the guy fucking my wife. I just wanted to see her lost in ecstasy. If black guys, or Hispanic guys, did that for her, that was cool, but it didn't add anything to it for me. Carlos being Hispanic was secondary to the fact that he seemed to be hung like a beer can.

I noticed right away that Dana looked like she'd been having some fun before they reached the apartment. Her lipstick wasn't quite right and her hair was kind of messy. It bothered me that she may have been blowing Carlos, or even fucking him, somewhere else and I couldn't see it. I really wanted to see everything.

The others complimented Dana on the apartment, and she told them it was a friend's, sticking to the cover story. She didn't seem to know what to do next and Carlos took charge, asking the others what they wanted to drink.

"Is there any tequila?" the girl asked.

"I think so," Dana replied.

I knew there was. I made sure that apartment was fully stocked with liquor.

"Javier?" Carlos asked the other guy.

"I'll have a beer."

"I'll be right back," Dana said. She looked relieved to have something to do. She went into the kitchen, but I kept the camera on the living room. Carlos sat on the couch and the girl came around behind him and rubbed his shoulders. What would Dana think about that? Javier milled around.

"This is a friend's place?" Javier asked.

"That's what she said," Carlos answered. "Who knows? She's married."

"I noticed," Javier said.

"She's fucking hot, papi," the girl said, leaning in close and kissing Carlos's head. She definitely wanted to fuck my wife's date.

"I thought you might like her, Gabi," he said. "This could just be some kind of fuck pad, who really knows. Maybe her husband knows she fucks around, maybe he doesn't. Who gives a fuck? If he's stupid enough to send a piece of ass like Diana out, I'm more than happy to fuck her all night and send her home bowlegged."

I cringed at Carlos's comments. I hated that he thought I was some kind of pussy who couldn't take care of my wife in bed. I was more than capable of that. I just enjoyed other kinds of thrills too. I couldn't expect someone like him to understand that. He looked kind of like a Neanderthal. I hoped he lived up to his bluster in bed. I wondered if Dana could hear them in the kitchen.

"Si, hermano," Javier said, flashing a big smile. He looked like he wanted a crack at my wife too, which made me wonder if he and Gabi were really a couple. Was this going to turn into some kind of swapping thing? Maybe Gabi and Javier were swingers. I never considered that we might encounter that. I was good with Javier fucking Dana, as long as I got to see Carlos do it too. He rocked her world last time and I wanted to see what all the fuss was about.

"I'm going to go help Diana," Gabi said. I split the screen, so I could see both rooms.

Dana was at the counter in the kitchen, opening a beer. She had the bottle of Cuervo that I'd bought out and several shot glasses. Gabi came in behind her and pressed close. My wife only stiffened for a moment before melting back against the sexy Latina, making me think that was not the first time they'd been so close. Gabi planted several kisses on Dana's bare shoulder. The kitchen camera was hidden in the overhead lighting, which meant my view wasn't great. I'd have killed to see my wife's expression. The girls spoke and I realized I still had the audio from the living room up, so I switched, but by then the girls were kissing.

It had been many years since I saw Dana kiss another woman. It was way hotter now that she was my wife and a proper MILF. She had turned to face Gabi and her eyes were closed, while her arms went around Gabi. Dana got a good handful of Gabi's tight little ass and Gabi pushed her back into the counter. It looked like Gabi had a knee up between Dana's legs and my mind went right to the dirtiest thoughts. Dana just had to be rubbing herself against Gabi's knee like she was in heat.

The kiss did not last nearly long enough and the girls carried the alcohol into the living room, where the guys waited. There was a shaker of salt, but no limes. I hadn't planned on my wife doing complex tequila shots with anyone.

"Sorry there's no limes," Dana apologized. "I don't think my friend keeps the fridge well stocked. She's away on business as often as not." Was that her way of signaling to Carlos that he could have her there whenever he wanted?

Carlos took my wife by the waist and kissed her while she held the tequila bottle high. He palmed her ass and she wiggled it for him. Jealous and arousal speared through me. It was funny how watching Dana kiss Gabi was nothing but hot, but her kissing Carlos still sparked that primal jealousy, even after seeing her with so many men.

“That’s okay, baby. Make sure your friend is better prepared next time,” he said. There was no missing how he referred her friend. So if he didn’t think it was a friend’s place, what did he really think was going on? It was apparent he didn’t care as long as he got to fuck my wife.

“I don’t need lime anyway, that’s only for if you’re a chocha,” Gabi said, taking the tequila from Dana, after handing Javier his beer.

Gabi broke the seal on the bottle and opened it. I was glad I got the good stuff, because she opened it and knocked it right back. Most guys I know wouldn’t even do that. Gabi was a party girl. She wiped her lips on the back of her hand and pressed the bottle to Carlos’s lips. He tilted his head back and took a long swallow. Carlos only coughed a little, maintaining his dignity. It was Dana’s turn, and I knew she was not going to take it as well.

Dana began to cough and gag the second Gabi poured it into her mouth. I don’t know how much made it down her throat, but a lot poured down her neck and soaked her dress. That didn’t bother Gabi, who began licking at the tequila on my wife’s neck. Carlos moved just enough so Gabi could get really close. Gabi even kissed her wet tits, but didn’t linger too long. Instead she brought the bottle to Javier, who easily took as much tequila as Gabi was willing to pour.

“Maybe it will be easier this way, Di,” Gabi said. She took a big slug of the amber fluid into her mouth and set the bottle aside.

Gabi kissed Dana hard and it looked like only a little of the tequila escaped. But the kiss did not end with the shared shot. The girls were standing in front of the couch and I had a perfect view of them from the camera mounted in the television. Their kiss was frenzied and they pawed each other’s bodies while their tongues dueled. I knew that at least part of the attraction for my wife was all the men watching her—not just the ones in the room, but me at home. She kissed Gabi like she wanted to devour her.

My cock strained at my gym shorts and I gave up resisting. I pulled the shorts down and grabbed my hot shaft. Was it pathetic that I sat home masturbating while my wife was out having all the fun? I had mostly convinced myself it wasn't, but there was always going to be that niggling doubt at the back of my mind that I was really just a weak fool. Dana was having an epic sex life and I was just in the shadows, masturbating. But those feelings of weakness were part of the heady cocktail that addicted me to watching my wife with other men. That sick-sweet feeling was my high. I could come in seconds from watching, but that peculiar feeling would be with me all night.

Gabi was pulling at the strings that held Dana's top in place. It was a pretty complicated garment and she figured out it was easier to just pull it over her head and off. In that brief moment the girls stopped kissing, I swear Dana looked right into the camera at me. She looked a little dazed, maybe unsure, but there was no way for me to give her a sign. And then Gabi was pulling her onto the couch and Dana went with her happily.

Carlos and Javier stood around the couch, admiring the show as much as I did. I hadn't shot my load yet, but that was only because I'd had so much practice watching my wife. I wanted to hold out for a really good image, something to burn into my mind.

Dana was reclined on the couch, but not lying down, and she pulled at Gabi's dress, trying to wrestle it from her body. It looked like Gabi wanted her dress gone too, but did not want to stop kissing and touching Dana. She massaged my wife's tits, letting the pink, stiff nipples peek out between her fingers. But Dana didn't have to take Gabi's dress off to get at her body. The front of that dress was so low cut, so open, that my wife could just pull it open to expose Gabi's small, brown tits. I couldn't see much from my angle, but Gabi moaned into their kiss, so Dana had done something right.

Gabi stood , grabbed her dress from the bottom, and whipped the whole thing over her head. A tiny g-string barely covered anything, and for a moment I thought she wasn't wearing anything at all under the dress. Dana reached up to touch her, fingers gliding over Gabi's flat stomach and then over her breasts. Dana teased her nipples with her fingertips, and Gabi threw her head back for a throaty moan. Gabi's two-tone hair spilled down her back.

Javier muttered something in Spanish—it sounded like he was telling Gabi something—and Gabi pounced on my wife. Dana welcomed her with open arms, and after a hot kiss Gabi worked her way down Dana's hot body. Gabi kissed and nibbled Dana's neck until she was shaking and moaning uncontrollably. She feasted on Dana's tits, using teeth, fingers, nails to bring my wife to a frenzy. Dana's eyes were squeezed closed and she moaned Gabi's name over and over. It was almost like she forgot anyone else was in the room. Gabi pushed up Dana's skirt, unzipping the sides, and my wife lifted her butt to help. I noticed immediately that Dana was not wearing panties. Where did she lose them, and how?

The men shared a look and Carlos gave Javier the nod. In retrospect, it was so weird that Carlos was giving his friend permission to touch my wife, but then I didn't matter there. Dana was Carlos's woman for the night in every way that mattered. And he seemed content to sit back and watch her be ravaged, at least for the moment.

Dana didn't notice Javier kneeling beside the couch. She was way too focused on Gabi, whose face was buried between her legs. Gabi's long hair was spread out so all I could really see was the motion of her head as she went down on my wife, but sweet Jesus that was enough. Dana bucked her hips up at the Latina and her cries grew louder and louder.

Javier moved in, playing with Dana's tits and pinching her nipples. Her eyes flew open and she looked surprised that it wasn't Carlos touching her, but she didn't stop him. No, my wife did the hottest thing ever. She grabbed the back of Javier's head and pulled him into a sexy kiss. Yeah, that was all I needed. With a grunt, I shot my load, making a mess of the shorts I'd pulled down. I kept tugging my cock while I watched and I never went completely soft.

It felt like I was watching a replay of years before, when Dana was with our friends in that cabin, but this was so much hotter. For one thing, these were virtual strangers enjoying my wife. And for another, I could clearly see the gleam of her wedding rings against Javier's thick black hair as she held him in for that kiss. Dana was the perfect slut!

Dana bucked on the couch, tearing her mouth away from the kiss so that she could scream her passion. Javier smoothly moved to sucking her nipples and playing with her tits. I could see that not only was Gabi going down on my wife, but she was fingering her pretty hard too, based on the way Gabi's arm moved. And Carlos wasn't just watching any longer. I'd been so focused on Dana that I didn't notice him drop his pants and move in behind Gabi. His thick cock bobbed between his shirttails as he moved. A hand was thrust between Gabi's thighs from behind and he was slowly teasing her cunt.

"Oh God! Oh God! Fuck...ohgodohgodohgod!" Dana cried.

Her words became an unintelligible cry and she was clearly coming—coming hard. Dana twisted and arched her back off the couch one last time, holding there until she lost her strength and collapsed, dropping like a spent shell.

Gabi lifted her face from Dana's pussy and licked her glazed lips. She flicked her hair and turned back to Carlos, saying, "Why don't we move this to the bedroom?"

"Nice idea," he agreed.

My wife seemed a little dazed when Javier helped her up from the couch and led her back to the master bedroom, with the others following. She looked extra slutty in just her heels and the skirt pushed around her waist. I'd bought a king-sized bed, but the foursome was still going to be a tight squeeze.

I switched to the master bedroom cameras, splitting the screen into quarters. Dana and Javier were on the far side of the bed, near the foot. She had one knee up on the bed and he held her face in both hands while they kissed. Carlos was pawing at Gabi's ass while she dug in her purse. Maybe she was the keeper of the condoms. They couldn't know both nightstands were loaded with them. But no, Gabi brought out a little cocaine. These really were party people.

To my knowledge, Dana had never done any hard drugs, but had she indulged earlier? Did that explain her reckless behavior? The thought of my sweet wife doing a line in a club sent shivers down my spine. I didn't know if I was more horrified or turned on by her abandon—if she had done it.

Gabi snorted some off her pinkie nail and then offered a bump to Carlos, who happily accepted. She walked around the bed and offered Javier some. He vigorously snorted his. Gabi placed one more hit on her nail and offered it to Dana, who looked unsure.

"Aren't we past holding back, Di?" Gabi asked. She applied gentle pressure to the back of my wife's head and Dana leaned forward and snorted the white powder. She looked startled when her head snapped back.

I couldn't believe it! Of everything I'd seen her do, this was the most shocking. My wife had gone to a new place and I wasn't even sure if I knew who she was. I didn't want to judge her—I knew that was unfair—but it still scared me. And excited me. My cock was steel as I watched Dana cross that line. Somehow I knew there were no more limits.

Gabi and Dana kissed, then Javier and Dana kissed, and then Javier and Gabi were making out while Dana touched them both. I felt a little guilty that my wife didn't have my full attention, but Gabi really was stunning naked. Tall, lean, with an amazing ass and cute little tits. She just looked like she was built for fun. The two Latinos kept kissing and Carlos came behind Dana to turn her attention to him.

Dana went right into kissing Carlos like she had been the others. It was like it didn't matter much to her who she was touching and kissing. But paying closer attention, that wasn't quite true. She clung to Carlos, thrust herself at him in a way she didn't present herself to the others. It looked like he provoked a feral response in her that the others didn't. Just watching, I could almost feel how badly she needed him. She wrapped both arms around his neck and held the back of his head while they intensely kissed.

Carlos pushed Dana onto the bed and confidently stood over her while slowly unbuttoning his shirt, which he tossed onto a chair in the corner of the room. I'd put that chair there in case there ever came a time I would want to be in the room. It was hard to imagine sitting in the corner and watching while an orgy went on in front of me. If I didn't take a turn with Dana and Gabi I really wouldn't be a man, would I?

Gabi turned her attention back to Carlos and took over removing his pants. My wife eagerly watched them, waiting for a fucking she'd been craving all night. Gabi freed his cock and stroked it up and down while smiling at Dana. It was like she was saying, I know what you want and I have it. Should I give it to you? My wife looked like she was ready to beg if Gabi asked.

Javier was in the corner by the nightstand and he was nearly nude. Did Gabi help him while I was paying attention to Dana? Javier was clad only in black briefs when he climbed onto the bed and began touching my wife. She responded immediately. She moaned and pushed at his hands when he playfully groped her tits, then moaned deeply when he pinched and pulled her nipples. Dana gasped when he went too hard, but he eased back to just how she likes it. He rubbed her smooth, slick mound and her legs just fell open, an invitation to a man she hardly knew.

Carlos kept his attention on my wife, even though Gabi was pleasuring him. He seemed to enjoy watching Javier play with her. Gabi was on her knees and sucking his thick cock like a champ. His girth didn't seem to slow her down at all.

Dana was moaning constantly, eyes flicking between the two men as Javier touched her. She looked like she didn't know what to do. He didn't finger her, but just rubbed her pussy and she cried out every time he grazed her clit. I bet she would have come in two seconds if he just concentrated there. She wasn't the only one close. I had to keep slowing down as I stroked myself or I would have blown my load already. I didn't want to come until I was seeing something truly magnificent, and the show just kept getting better and better.

My wife reached for Javier's package and when he moved closer on the bed she nearly tore his briefs off. He shed them while managing to only lose contact with her for an instant. He didn't have the monster cock Carlos did, but his shaft was quite long and a good handful when Dana fisted it. By the way she stared at that cock, she wanted more than to just touch it. She pulled him closer and he scooted over on the bed until he could feed her his shaft. Dana lovingly kissed the head and then stuffed it into her mouth.

Carlos pulled Gabi to her feet and turned her around. A firm hand on her back bent the girl forward until she rested on her elbows, just beside Dana. He slid in behind her, cock aimed at her sex, and pushed it inside her in one long, deliberate thrust.

"Mmm, harder, papi, harder," Gabi pled, pushing back against his languid thrusts.

He was fucking Gabi, but he was watching my wife. Dana had been focused on the cock in her mouth, but when Gabi spoke she twisted her head as best she could to see the other couple fucking right beside her. I swore I saw jealousy in her eyes. That twisted my stomach just a little tighter. Carlos grabbed Gabi's perfect ass and rammed her so hard the bed shook. She cried out, begging for more, and he gave it to her.

Javier held the back of Dana's head and fed her his cock, forcing her attention back to him. He wanted her best, not a distracted blowjob. He tilted her head up, forcing himself farther down her throat and she closed her eyes and took him, hollowing her cheeks as she sucked him. Did she want to get it over with so she could get back to the man she really wanted?

"Fuck me, papi! Fuck me!" Gabi cried, hanging her head as she shoved herself back at Carlos just as hard as he gave it to her.

Gabi reached out blindly, touched Dana, and then followed her curves to find my wife's cunt. Dana gasped into her mouthful of cock when Gabi began fingering her. First the Latina used two slender fingers, but then added a third and vigorously finger-fucked Dana. I could see Dana struggling to keep sucking Javier's prick as the feelings in her pussy took over, but he held her head and just kept steadily feeding her cock.

The scene on my screen had become a full-blown orgy. I had thought I would be treated to a night of my wife getting fucked by her cop lover—and was thrilled about it—but what I got was insane. I would have never thought I'd see anything like that—especially with my wife at the middle of it. My cock ached and I couldn't resist coming any longer. I barely had a tissue in place when I shot my load. But while I was coming, everyone on my screen was still going at it.

Gabi must have been primed and ready, because she came very quickly. She howled like a banshee and sagged to the bed, leaving her motionless fingers buried in my wife. Carlos kept fucking her for a moment longer, but then pulled out. That thick cock was even more impressive when thick with her juices. It suddenly struck me that he hadn't used a condom, and I was surprised. These people seemed to fuck around a lot, weren't they worried about catching something?

Carlos stepped away from Gabi—who rolled onto her side to watch—and moved right to Dana, pulling her legs farther apart. Dana opened her eyes and watched as he got into position, wielding his blunt instrument, and then rubbed her pussy with it. Her hips twitched. She wanted it. She didn't seem to care that he wasn't wearing a condom. I felt sick. He held her ass and lifted it off the bed, and it was Gabi who grabbed his cock and put it into my wife. They did it like they had done this many times before. Carlos pulled Dana onto him and buried his naked cock inside her.

Dana grunted into Javier's cock. He didn't seem to mind sharing her, as long as he kept getting to use her mouth. Dana reached for Carlos and it was unclear if she was trying to pull him closer or push him away, but when he started fucking her it was clear what she wanted. Her eyes seemed to roll back into her head and she gave herself to the two men completely.

I was dizzy and really did feel like I might throw up. This was not my wife's first threesome, but I still was not prepared for what I saw. That first time was not live, and that made a huge difference, though I'm not sure why. And Dana, Zach and his roommate were just three drunk, stoned people having fun.

I couldn't shake the feeling that this time my wife was being used like a piece of meat by these guys. Carlos and Javier were using her body with intent, like she was their whore for the night. And wasn't she? They really weren't wrong. Worst of all, I think I felt so sick because I was so turned on. I was harder than I'd ever been. Seeing my wife used like that fulfilled all my darkest fantasies. I guess it really was what I wanted. But I still didn't know that I could handle it.

"Turn her over," Carlos said.

"Damn, she can suck a cock," Javier commented.

"Yes she can," Carlos agreed.

Dana was pliant and let them roll her over, though she looked shaky on her hands and knees. Even at that break she didn't demand Carlos put on a condom. She was too busy reaching for Javier's cock.

"Fuck me, you two. Oh God, fuck me," she moaned. She didn't even sound like herself. Was that the coke talking? I know it makes you feel invincible and euphoric. Did that make the sex too good to resist? I wanted to blame her abandon on drugs.

Javier fed her his cock once again and Carlos took her from behind. Now he could really fuck her hard, and he rammed that thick piece of meat into her. Javier had her hair balled in his fist and essentially fucked her mouth. Dana bounced between those two pricks in a frenzy. It was impossible to separate her moans from the sloppy sucking sounds coming from her throat. The guys used her roughly and it looked like she just wanted more. Gabi laid to the side and played with herself. In my deviant mind, I wondered how she would jump back in. I couldn't imagine Gabi was done for the night.

It was almost like it was all happening to someone else. Don't get me wrong, I felt every wonderful second of it, but after I did that bump of coke it was like a demon took over my body and I was shoved to the side—along for the ride, but not in control. The demon was invincible. The demon wanted to fuck every way possible, and do it all night. The demon wanted to prove she was the hottest piece of ass these guys—and Gabi—would ever meet.

The guys double-teamed me and I wiggled my ass for more, while sucking Javier like a madwoman. I only fleetingly noticed Carlos was not wearing a condom. The demon didn't care. There was no time to slow down for condoms. They used my body and it felt like I was impaled by one long, incredible dick. If it had just been Carlos fucking me I would have come multiple times, but I was a little distracted by the cock being pushed down my throat. When they changed positions, and my mouth was finally free, the demon begged them to keep fucking me.

They really had leverage to fuck me when I was on my hands and knees. Carlos rammed my pussy ruthlessly, and he pounded an orgasm out of me immediately. I screamed into Javier's cock and nearly choked on him. He was relentless shoving that thing into my mouth. I tried to keep up, but it didn't matter. Javier was in charge of my mouth, he pulled my hair to screw it—which was hot—and I eagerly waited for him to finish. I wanted him to come in my mouth, but I knew it would be a better show for my husband if he came all over my face.

Yes, my husband. What must Dave be thinking watching his wife descend into the depths of slutdom? No matter what he would say to me later, I knew this was what he wanted. Dave wanted me depraved and out of control. He wanted me ready to fuck anyone, anytime. And now that he finally had it, where would we go?

The guys wanted to reposition me again, and I happily went along with them. They both pulled out and Carlos's wet cock slapped my butt. I was sort of half on my side and Javier had my legs pulled far apart—one was in the air, I think. He was on his knees and he started screwing me like that. Carlos held my head near his crotch—I was sideways—and he fed me his cock. He was gentle at first, not like Javier had been. I tasted pussy on his shaft and I hungrily sucked it, knowing it was from both me and Gabi. I sucked him lovingly, hoping to show him I was still his girl. Crazy, since I have a husband. Carlos looked down at me sucking him and it wasn't quite love in his face, but possibly admiration. Knowing I'd impressed him made me so happy and I sucked him even more passionately.

Gabi came back into the picture. She started by touching me. Javier fucked me with long, steady strokes and she rubbed my clit. God, that made me see stars. It only got more intense when she leaned in and started sucking my breasts. I cried into Carlos's prick that I was coming, and I seemed to just have one orgasm after another.

It struck me like a lightning bolt in that moment. I really love being used. Yes, I knew I liked going out there and getting attention and having some hot guy climb all over me. That was a thrill I'd become almost addicted to. But just being stripped and thrown around by a bunch of strangers like this—being their piece of meat—was intoxicating. They took me as they pleased, and I just kept coming and coming. It was animalistic and primal and it was a stronger high than the coke I'd done.

Gabi was still rubbing my pussy while Javier fucked me, but now she was playing with Carlos's smooth balls while I sucked him. She stroked my hair and kissed my cheek, cooing encouragement.

"Suck his beautiful cock, Di. It's so wonderful. You love that cock as much as I do. Show him," she cooed.

I would have agreed, if I'd been able to speak.

"Is she a good cocksucker, papi?" she asked.

"Di's fucking mouth is wonderful. She sucks the cock so good. She's a perfect little slut. Aren't you, Diana?" Carlos grinned down at me.

I nodded as best I could, and Gabi used that as an opportunity to steal that prick from me. She pulled it away and stuffed it in her mouth. I pouted, but it wasn't like I was left alone. Gabi still rubbed my pussy while Javier fucked me.

"God, that's good. Fuck me," I begged. "Gonna come again..."

Gabi passed the cock back to me and pushed it to suck Carlos's balls while I worked his shaft.

"You fucking girls. Holy shit," Carlos grunted.

Two girls working on him was too much for Carlos. He began coming in my mouth, but jerked my head back by my hair. Gabi and I played our roles perfectly. Our mouths hung open and Carlos painted our faces with his hot jizz. I climaxed too and for some reason Javier pulled out of me while I was in the middle of it.

Gabi pushed me onto my back and kissed me. She was all tongue, licking the cum from my face. I helped clean her too, and together we shared Carlos's load. It was so hot and slutty. Dave's mind had to be blown.

Javier turned Gabi onto her back and started fucking her, holding her legs in the air. I could only guess that the coke was making him take forever to come. Gabi seemed happy about that. She screeched and demanded he fuck her harder. Carlos and I rolled to the other side of the rocking bed. It was the closest thing to privacy to be had at the moment.

"Are you okay, Diana?" he asked, kissing my forehead, about the only place he hadn't sprayed his cum.

"Yes, baby," I sighed. I could feel my eyes were as big as saucers. I must have looked like quite the coked out whore.

"This wasn't quite the night you planned, is it?"

I shook my head. "It feels like a dream."

"You'll come down, Diana. And then you'll find out who you really are."

"I'm yours, Carlos. I'm yours to use."

"I know that. I know that."

I had so much to say to him, but it was hard to concentrate when he kept touching me like that. His hands were all over my body, teasing me—keeping me horny. I'd climaxed so many times, and yet I wanted more. I was jealous of the couple besides me because they were still screwing—at least for the moment. Javier growled and he finally came, buried inside Gabi.

Carlos whispered in my ear. He ordered me, "Lick Gabi's pussy."

I crawled over and pulled the prone girl around so I could get between her legs. She looked mildly surprised. I tried to give my best seductive smile. I didn't really know what to do, so I just dove in and started kissing her swollen, used lips. She tasted like sex, there's really no other way to put it. She was musky and sweet and tangy. My tongue dipped inside her and I tasted Javier, too. His taste was distinct from her, but then blended nicely. I don't know that I really cared about all that. I was mostly performing, both for my lovers in the room and for my husband at home. I'd avoided this intimate act with my friend years ago, but now I was eagerly diving in and licking a virtual stranger.

Gabi was going crazy, so I was doing something right. She pulled my hair and closed her thighs around my head. I could hardly hear when she screamed for me to lick her clit. I not only licked, but I sucked that little button, just the way I like it. It's a sure way to make me come, and it worked like a charm. Gabi flooded my mouth and I lapped her juices until she stopped writhing. I slithered up her body and kissed her, wanting her to taste herself. I was only there for a moment before Carlos pulled me off and started fucking me again.

The night became something of a blur after that. I know I took another bump of coke from Gabi, and that made it harder to climax. Not impossible, but more difficult. But it also made me just fuck and fuck and fuck. I was with Carlos and Javier separately. I think they took turns on Gabi and I. Then I was with Javier and Gabi. Somehow, I ended up in bed alone with Carlos and he was just holding me while I was shaking and trying to calm my body. I passed out that way, like someone just threw a switch.

I awoke with a start and I was alone, clutching at a sheet. The bad dream slipped right from my mind and it felt like I'd only passed out a second ago. But Carlos was gone and his side of the bed was cold. He'd been gone a while. I wearily looked up at one of the cameras and wondered if Dave was still watching. Did he watch my lover slip out of bed and sneak out on me?

The bed was torn apart. My sheet wasn't even tucked in any longer and was twisted around me. The room reeked of sex, what I imagined a whorehouse smelled like in the morning. I peeled myself from the bed and nudged the curtain aside. The sky was deep blue satin. Dawn was right around the corner.

God, it hurt to move. Everything hurt, especially between my thighs. I thought the first time with Carlos had been rough. I finally understood what it meant to be fucked so much you walk funny. I had this weird, spread-legged gait. The muscles in my legs were incredibly sore, like I'd done an entire day of yoga. My breasts were so sore from so much rough handling. My nipples screamed when I brushed them. This was the price to pay for being an all-night whore.

The door to the second bedroom hung open and the bed was torn apart, but vacant. Javier and Gabi had retreated there together at some point, but I wasn't sure when. The night was a blur. It only took another moment to realize the entire apartment was empty. My new friends had scampered without saying goodbye. I'm not shy about being nude, but it did feel weird to be walking around a strange apartment with no clothes on. I took a water bottle from the fridge, drained it, and gingerly walked back to the shower. A dull headache had been hanging in the back of my head, but now it was pounding its way to the forefront.

A long hot shower will revitalize me under ordinary circumstances, but this time it wasn't enough to bounce me back from the all night orgy. Come was matted in my hair and I felt it dried on my body and it felt good to get clean. I washed my hair three times and scrubbed and scrubbed until I was pink, but in the end I still felt like a slutty wife who'd been fucked all night. I wiped the fog off the mirror with a fluffy towel and I still looked like I'd been partying all night. The fresh-faced suburban mom was nowhere to be found.

After my shower, I realized a detail that had been missed in the planning for the apartment. I really should have clothes there for afterward. I was forced to redress in my party clothes from the night before. The skirt was on the floor beside the bed and wasn't too bad, but my top was crumpled and thrown into the corner of the living room, and it looked like it when I pulled it on. Even with a shower, I would be doing a walk of shame. At least it was unlikely anyone would see me creeping home at that hour.

The sun had been up for about twenty minutes when I pulled the Prius into the driveway beside Dave's truck. The brightening light was painful, despite my big sunglasses. I quietly closed the car door and began the shaky walk to the front door—much more difficult in heels—when Jana’s voice froze me in my tracks.

“Wow, honey. What have you been up to?” she said.

I looked back over my shoulder and there she was in neon running shoes, black yoga pants, and a fleece. She was running in place and I hoped she would just keep moving, but no, she came up the lawn to meet me.

“Hey,” I grunted. I was not in any shape for chit-chat, and I had to assume Dave was inside waiting for me. Thinking of that, I thought maybe stalling wasn’t so bad.

“You look like you’ve been ridden hard and put up wet. Where were you all night?” Jana asked, looking me over. “By the way, hot outfit. I had no idea you even owned anything like that. I may need to raid your closet.”

We could not stand in front of the house discussing why I was out all night, not with me dressed this way. I hustled Jana past the garage, through the gate, and into the backyard. I dropped onto one of the chaise lounges by the pool. It felt awesome to be off my feet.

“Don’t worry. I don’t think anyone else caught your walk of shame. I didn’t see anyone else out this early, but you never know who’s looking out of their window,” Jana said, taking a seat across from me.

I thought about how before I’d been proud to wear one of my date outfits, but they typically weren’t as revealing as that. I had to sit carefully to avoid flashing my friend. “Good God, I hope no one saw. I was trying to get home sooner.”

“Home from where? It looks like you were out on your own last night, unless Dave is still passed out somewhere.”

“He’s home,” I grudgingly admitted.

“And he didn’t mind you going out last night dressed like that? I mean, I know he loves to show off his hot little wife, but not many guys would be cool with that.”

“He knows.”

“And he knows you were out all night?”

Now Jana was prying, because I was only giving basic answers. I didn’t know the answer to the last question. Dave could have fallen asleep at any point. And I didn’t know if he would be up yet, though the kids would take the choice away from him soon.

“Dave knows I was out,” I answered simply.

Jana could tell I was hiding something and was not ready to let go. “Girls night out?”

“Something like that. I was hanging out with friends.”

“Listen honey. If you really don’t want to talk, I’m not going to make you, but something’s obviously going on. That’s a booty call outfit, not a hangout with friends outfit. Maybe Dave’s a little too into showing you off to realize that, but you’re not fooling me. I know you’re up to something.”

I raked my fingers through my hair. Maybe it was because I was so exhausted and easily worn down, or maybe it was because of how crazy it got the night before, but the truth was on the tip of my tongue. There wasn’t a lie Jana was going to believe, and I didn’t want to lie to her. I wanted to tell her the truth and ask if she was ever conflicted when she was screwing her personal trainer.

“You’re right,” I admitted, my voice barely above a whisper.

“Not very well anyway.”

“Dave knew where I was going. I didn’t lie to him.” It was important to me that she didn’t think I was running around on Dave—even if the truth was going to sound bizarre.

“So Dave knew you were going out last night to meet another guy and spend the night with him?”

“I didn’t plan on being out all night.”

Jana laughed. “You must have had a good time, because you look terrible—in a good way, like you earned it.”

I allowed a little grin. “It was an...interesting night.”

“I’m jealous! How did you get this arrangement? How do I get Neil to let me go out and fuck all night?”

“It’s complicated.” I didn’t know where to begin. I was sensitive to my husband’s feelings about being exposed, but it wasn’t only his secret to keep.

“Do you guys have an open marriage I can’t believe I told you to loosen up.”

“It’s not an open marriage, like I said, it’s more complicated than that. I don’t think there’s time to explain it now. I really need to get inside before the kids get up.”

“I would say so. This isn’t the mommy they’re used to.”

“Haha. Listen, we’ll have lunch and I promise I will explain everything. It’ll be a relief to get it off my chest, really. Just for now, know I’m not sneaking around, Dave knows, but we’re not in an open marriage. And for chrissakes, keep it to yourself. You can’t even tell Neil. Promise me!”

“I wouldn’t know what to tell him. Don’t worry, you’re secrets are safe with me. God knows, you’ve kept enough of mine. Just be careful, Dana. You get into this stuff and things can go wrong really fast.”

“I know,” I replied. How wrong had things gone the night before? “I will.”

We hugged and Jana went out through the gate, while I unlocked the back door to the garage and then went into the house. I was relieved by the silence. The kids were not up yet. I didn’t smell that Dave had started coffee, so he was probably still asleep. That was not the case. As I turned the corner to go up the steps, he called out from the den.

“I was wondering when you were going to come home.”

I took a deep breath and turned to face him. Dave was on the couch, and it was obvious he’d spent the night there. His laptop was on the floor beside the couch, plugged into a charger. He looked almost as bad as I did. I chose not to mention running into Jana. He did not look like he was in a place to learn we may be exposed.

“I’m sorry. I don’t even remember falling asleep. I just sort of woke up, and there I was.”

“That’s understandable, considering the night you had. By the way, it was around four. You and Carlos were alone, fucking again—though honestly it was more intimate than fucking—and after you finished, you two just sort of fell asleep holding each other.”

“Dave...” I didn’t know what to say.

“I guess things got a little out of hand last night,” he said. He didn’t sound angry, but he didn’t sound happy either. He was frighteningly neutral.

“I know. I don’t even know how. We were out, at the club, drinking and dancing, and we met up with his friends, and things just started rolling from there. No one made me do anything, but I didn't really feel like I was in control either."

"Who was then? Carlos?"

"I don't know."

"It looked like he was in control. It looked like you were all his last night."

"Not all his." I tried for a little joke, but Dave did not laugh.

"You were pretty high. That makes it hard to stay in control."

"Dave, that was the first time. I swear. I don't even know why I did it. It just seemed right in the moment."

"A lot of things seemed right in the moment."

"I guess they did." I felt on the defensive and I didn't like it. Yes, I'd gone way further than anything we'd ever discussed, but there were also no real boundaries either. It was like Dave had purposely avoided them. I sat beside him on the couch, but he stayed stiff. I asked, "Are you angry?"

"I don't know what I am, Dana."

"Start with what you're feeling. What are you thinking?"

Dave turned to me, fire in his eyes. "Why don't you tell me what you were thinking? Was last night your chance to be the whore you always wanted to be?"

"That's not fair. I've never done anything you didn't encourage me to do."

"I never told you to fuck two Puerto Rican guys."

"No, but the last time two guys took me home you were pretty happy about it. Is it bad because they were Spanish?" I tried to keep my voice down, but it was not easy.

"Of course not. I don't give a shit about that. I just never... I didn't think..."

"Didn't think what, Dave?" Now I was on a roll, the shame washed away by anger. Who the hell was Dave to question how I behaved? He couldn't push me to fuck other men and then be angry that I didn't stay in the little box he'd set up for me. I wasn't just his doll to play with.

"I didn't even recognize you last night, Dana. You were different from the second you stepped into that apartment. You were..."

"A whore? You can say it, Dave. That's what I was last night. I got drunk and high and fucked three strangers all night. That's pretty much the definition of a whore, isn't it?"

“Well, yeah, you were a whore. Wait, don’t hit me! That’s not it—it’s not what I’m thinking about. Not really. It’s just, seeing you like that, I don’t know what to think. I thought you were wild—all sex and excitement before—but nothing I’ve seen you do compares to last night. I didn’t see the woman I married.”

I couldn’t look him in the face and I struggled to remain defiant. I couldn’t deny anything he said. I didn’t even understand what had been unleashed in me the night before. I didn’t feel it was all my fault, but I wondered if I should have stopped myself.

“God, it’s nothing like that! I love you. I’ll always love you. But knowing you have that in you, it makes me wonder if you’ll ever be really satisfied by our life again.”

“Dave...”

“I mean, what’s a barbeque with neighbors, or a family game night, compared to a drug fueled orgy?”

I took his hand. “One thing has nothing to do with the other.”

“How are you going to be pleased with me in bed when you really want men jackhammering you all night?”

“Nothing will ever be like making love to you, baby,” I said. He gave me a look. “I can’t lie. I don’t think you want me to. Last night was... incredible. Insane. But I would never want to live my life that way. I couldn’t live my life that way. I’d be dead inside a week. It was fun as a once in a lifetime experience, but I don’t want to live my life that way.”

Dave still gave me that look. “Once in a lifetime? You never want that again?”

How could I answer him? Deep down, I knew the truth, but I didn’t really want to admit it to myself, let alone my husband. But I owed him the truth. I owed it to us both.

“Maybe sometime. I don’t know. I felt so alive. It felt so good. It was frightening, but it was amazing. If I had another chance...maybe.” I gave him the soft version. I was actually afraid that if I had another chance I couldn’t say no.

“You were incredible last night. Yeah, it tore me up a little, but I couldn’t look away. You were just so free.”

“That’s what you’ve wanted, isn’t it? You wanted to just see me lose it, didn’t you?”

“I don’t know, Dana.”

“That’s a cop out. You owe me honesty,” I pushed.

“Have I thought about it? Yes, I wondered how far you could go, what it would be like to watch you just give it all up like that. But I didn’t know if I could handle it.”

“And now?”

“I still don’t know. I mean, yeah, I loved it, but it freaked me out. For the first time, I’m really afraid.”

“You have nothing to be afraid of. I love you. No one will ever replace you.”

“I love you too, Dana. I know that logically, but these are all crazy feelings inside me. I really need to sort them.”

“Can I prove to you how much I still need you?” I asked.

I slid my hand over his shorts and Dave was rock hard. I believed his head was conflicted, but the rest of him knew exactly what it liked.

“Dana, you don’t have to,” he said when I pulled at his shorts, but he didn’t stop me.

“I know. That’s not why I’m doing it.” I smiled and blew him a kiss before turning to his cock.

I brushed my hair back and sucked the smooth, red head of my husband’s cock. It was strangely comforting to be handling a familiar dick after a night of endless fucking by two virtual strangers. It probably sounds insane, but handling Dave like that grounded me in my normal life. I would have made love to him, but I was way too sore for that. He could have me like that when I felt better. By the way he was moaning, I could tell Dave was happy with his blow job.

“Mmm, baby,” Dave moaned, stroking my hair back from my face and sagging into the couch to push his shaft deeper into my mouth.

I circled him with my fingers at the base and took him deep to the back of my throat. I cupped his balls with my fingers and tickled them. The difference between Carlos’s shaved privates and my husband’s was obvious and I wondered if I could convince Dave to shave down there. I just liked the smooth feeling. It was easy to take all of Dave’s dick after having my mouth fucked all night. He didn’t stretch my lips open and I could suck him harder.

Dave gasped my name—it was really like a gurgled moan—and he came in my mouth. I was so surprised that he came so fast that I choked at first, but there was not much to choke on. His load was so small it made me think that he must have been jerking off a lot while watching me the night before. Was he tortured having to sit back and jerk off while watching me used like that? I would never fully understand what my husband felt while watching me.

“That was great, baby,” Dave sighed.

“I’m always going to be yours, first and last.”

“I know.” Did he sound convinced?

“So where does that leave us?” I asked.

Dave pulled up his shorts. “We’re good.” Again, he didn’t sound so sure.

“I think we should take a break for a little while and regroup.”

“Do you think so?” Dave was surprised.

“We should take the time and decide if this lifestyle is really for us. We’re not where we started, when we went out together and it was exciting and dangerous. We’ve gone to a place we never discussed and we need to be sure it’s where we want to be.”

“Maybe you’re right. Is that what you want?”

“Mommy! Daddy!” It was our daughter, at the top of the stairs.

I was saved from having to answer, and I was relieved. Was it what I wanted? In my head, I knew it was the smart thing. Maybe we would think on it and come back refreshed—or maybe we were done, and we would be okay with that. But in heart, in my bones, I didn’t know if I wanted to stop—or even take a break. I loved the way Carlos made me feel. I loved going out and knowing men wanted me. It used to just be fun, but now I craved it, and I didn’t know if I wanted to give it up.

I jumped up when our daughter came into the room and straightened my outfit to make sure it covered everything. “Are you playing dress up, Mommy?” she asked.

“Something like that.” I turned to Dave. “I’m going to change.”

“Go. Get some rest. You probably need it.”

I flipped through the series of screen captures I'd taken from Dana's last video. Most of the images I chose hid her face, and in the couple that didn't I'd blurred it so my wife was unrecognizable. But the image I was fixated on was one where Carlos had just come all over Dana's face, adding his load to one Javier had already put there. And her eyes were begging for it: Please, come all over my face! She had been a great wife, as dirty as I wanted in bed, but I don't think I've ever seen that look on her face when she was in bed with me. Or I was being paranoid. I'd been questioning my paranoia a lot over the last few weeks.

Dana was probably right that we needed a break, but it was hard to go cold turkey. In the past she had gone a couple weeks between dates—though not if Zach had anything to say about it—but her nights out had become more frequent toward the end, and she'd never officially taken a break before. Toward the end. Was it the end? That might be for the best, but I didn't want that. And I didn't think Dana did either.

We hadn't talked about it since that morning she crept home. We agreed that we both needed time to really think before we tried to talk about it again. I didn't know that I needed so much time, but I was not going to push Dana into talking before she was ready. That could only backfire. I realized we were at some sort of turning point.

I opened the hot wife website on the browser and navigated into the picture forum. I'd told the story of Dana's orgy a few days after it happened and the other guys begged for pictures. I dismissed the idea at first, but without Dana dating I wasn't getting that buzz of risk and I needed it, so I gave in to my worst impulses. I knew Dana would kill me if she ever found out I'd posted pictures of her, but there was no way she'd ever find out. I started a new topic and uploaded the images.

Most of the guys on the message board were encouraging and thrilled after I posted the story of Dana's night with her friends. I did express my doubts about what it meant, but most of them batted those away. That was how things went on the message board. The men there were always encouraging, always pushing for wives to do more. I knew to take it with a grain of salt, since most of them were lurkers who'd never done anything with their wives—if they even had them—but I was proud that they all thought my wife was so incredible. I had to agree. They would lose their minds when they saw the pictures.

I had a new private message waiting for me from my confidant on the message board. His wife also went out and played and he was honest about the tough times they'd had, so I trusted him more than the others. As I shared my situation with Dana he'd offered me good advice in the past. It was good to have someone to talk to about this stuff, even if it was through a keyboard. His message read:

Been thinking about your deal with D. Sounds like she's super hot & she can't get enough sex & she loves you. It's all perfect. Now. Be careful, man. Sounds like D is starting down the road A went down and you don't want to end up there, believe me. A never wanted to leave me, but she became more her FB's than mine when it came to sex. I was taking a backseat to him until I put my foot down. Sounds like this Carlos guy does it the same way for your D. She'll do anything for him, doesn't even think about how you'll feel about it. You should probably step in, but remain on guard. If she fell for Carlos like this she'll probably fall for another guy too. D just loves the hotwifing too much like my A. You need to make sure you manage it when your break is over.

D was Dana. A was his wife, obviously. We tried to avoid sharing any identifying information. I knew all about how his wife had fallen for more than one FB—fuck buddy in hot wife code—and it caused them problems. It wasn't that she fell in love with them, she was just so into their attention that it became her priority over her marriage. And that was my fear with Dana.

I'd been afraid she was too into Zach early on, from the way she jumped when he called. I'd have preferred a series of one night stands for my wife, but that meant less videos for me, so I accepted it. And then Zach faded into the background, so my fears subsided. But I saw how Dana was with Carlos. She was putty in his hands. I knew she could become more his than mine, and it scared the hell out of me—even while it turned me on. What was it about the risk of losing my wife that made me so crazy? So was I paranoid, or was there real danger?

Dana's mood during our break did not quell the paranoia. We made love a couple times a day—every day—and I tried to be rough like the other men were, but she was always still insatiable. I hadn't seen her burner phone since the break started, and I wondered if she was telling Carlos they had to break for a little while, but she couldn't wait to get back into his bed. I didn't want to be a creep and demand to see the phone.

Dana had to know I trusted her. And I did—except I started to worry every time she took too long at the grocery store, or if she said she was meeting Jana for drinks. I knew Jana would lie for her in a heartbeat. I didn't want to believe my loving wife was fucking someone behind my back, even after everything that had happened. So I forced myself to think of other things when the doubts crept in, and watched her old videos to feed my addiction.

But still, when Dana went out, I had to wonder...

Jana stared at me and I could see she was trying to grasp everything I'd told her. I know it sounded impossible, especially coming from someone like me. She drained her Cosmo and set it back on the table.

I'd just told her everything. Well, not everything. I gave her the basic outline of what Dave and I had been doing for the past months—almost a year. I couldn't believe it had been that long when I looked back. It had flown by. I had explained to her just what a hot wife was and I told her about some of my exploits—the first times we went out, some of the sad failed dates, and of course I told her about Zach. Zach was the man who changed the game. I did tell her about Carlos, but that was highly edited. The coke and the orgy were left out.

"I'm just not sure I understand what Dave gets out of this," Jana said. "I get why it's awesome for you, but why is he content for you to go out and screw whoever you please?"

"He's not just content, he wants me to. I told you, this was all his idea. I reacted like you at first. It didn't make sense to me."

"And he likes you doing it? He gets off on it?"

"Yes. He loves watching me with other men."

"This is really a thing? He didn't make this up? I know there are voyeurs out there, but this is a little weird, right?"

"I can see where you would think that. It is a thing, but I don't think it's a common thing. You can look it up on the internet. Some guys don't even watch. They just send their wives out to get laid and then get off on hearing about it and having sex with her when she comes back."

Jana held up a hand. "Okay, that's enough." She signaled for the waitress to bring her another drink. I was still working on my first glass of wine. I didn't want to get drunk on a Saturday afternoon. We were in a little bistro downtown, in a booth in a back corner for some privacy. Jana was meeting her mother-in-law to go to a show afterward, and I was going to do a little shopping and drive home.

“I guess I can see watching, if that’s really your thing, but I really don’t get a guy just sending his wife out.”

“I don’t really either, but hey, whatever floats your boat. I did a bunch of reading on the internet when we first started, but most of it was guided by Dave. I know there are other guys who want to be humiliated by it, they’re called cuckolds.”

“That sounds like those CEOs who go see BDSM mistresses.”

We fell into silence again. It was going better than I thought it would. There was no judgment coming from Jana—she didn’t even seem to be judging Dave. She was just trying to understand it.

“So Dave likes to watch you fuck,” Jana summarized.

“And I like doing it for him.”

She shot me a look. “Yeah, you’re going out to fuck some hot guy in his 20s just to make your husband happy. You poor, suffering girl!”

“Okay, it’s not just for him anymore. At first, it really was. I mean, sure, it was flattering to have guys hit on me, but I really didn’t feel any desire at all to be with other men. But then we started doing it, and it was fun, and some of the guys—like Zach—were really good. I’m not saying better than Dave...”

“Mmhm...”

“But it had been so long since I was with anyone else I’d forgotten how hot that first flush of seduction is.”

“I get it. I didn’t fuck AJ because I don’t love Neil. It’s just that AJ is just so...wow...that when he showed interest I couldn’t say no. Maybe I should introduce you, since you’re in the market for a good fuck.”

I shook my head. “We’re on a break, but thanks for offering to share.” I didn’t know if I’d be willing to share my Zach. Carlos maybe, because I know it would turn him on.

“Why is that? You weren’t so clear.”

It was hard to explain to Jana why we were on a break without telling her about the night I lost control with Carlos, but I still didn’t want to cop to it. “It was just getting a little too intense for both of us, so we thought it would be a good idea to step back for a while.”

“Dave finally started to get jealous, didn’t he? It had to happen.”

“Not really. We just ran into complications.”

“You started to get feelings for one of these guys!”

“No, I have not fallen for any of these guys. I mean, I like them, they’re fun to hang out with. Unless I do a one night stand, which is rare anyway, I need to like to spend time with a guy. It’s not like I just walk in the door and we strip and fuck.”

I would be happy to just strip for Carlos, wouldn’t I? I was careful with my words, because I didn’t want to lie. I hadn’t fallen for Carlos, but I couldn’t honestly say I didn’t have feelings. They were feelings of unbridled lust, though, not anything touchy-feely like I wanted him to be my boyfriend. I just wanted to be a good little slut for him, and that scared me, because I should only be feeling that for my husband.

“Okay, so how do you get past these complications?” Jana asked.

“I don’t know. I’m hoping things will cool off with this time off.”

“They could. What will you do if they don’t?”

“Then I guess we stop.”

Jana laughed. “You don’t sound too sure of that. Don’t get me wrong, I’m on your side. Dave opened Pandora’s Box. He can’t think it’s something you can just close again so easily.”

“I guess so. Honestly, Dave’s so into it that I haven’t seriously considered we would just stop it altogether.”

“So you don’t want to?”

“No,” I said, looking down. If Dave made me I would, and I’d find a way to be okay with it, but I was not ready to give it up. I felt like a terrible wife for admitting the truth. I wasn’t ready to give up the attention or the thrill of illicit sex.

“Hey, I’m still not judging. If I was in your position, I wouldn’t give up my boy toys either. I’d tell Neil he’s got to live with it now. I wish I could find a way to get into your position!”

It was my turn to laugh. “It’s not as easy as it sounds. I took a long time to work up my nerve in the beginning. And then you’ve got be ready to kiss a lot of frogs. It’s like real dating, that way.”

“I think I could adapt.”

“No way Neil would ever go for it?”

Jana shook her head. “I can’t really see it. He’s usually pretty mellow, but he can be jealous. He was pretty pissed that night when we were hanging out in the pool with Jay.”

“You gave him plenty of reason to be!”

“No, too close to home. Who knows if he could keep his mouth shut?” I knew he was off limits, but the mention of him got me thinking about how much fun he would be.

“I think I could probably convince Neil to swap with another couple, if I could set things up. It would have to be in the moment, though. If it was preplanned and he had time to think about it he would back out.”

“Yeah, it’s easy to psych yourself out,” I agreed.

“Maybe if one of your pool parties got out of hand...”

“Jana! We’re not doing any of that stuff at home!”

“I’m just saying we both know Neil would love to fuck you...”

“But Dave doesn’t want to fuck you—no offense. He doesn’t want to fuck any other women.”

“That’s a shame. I would rock his world. Anyway, if Neil fucked you then he would have to give me the pass to go out, right?”

“You haven’t exactly waited for a pass before.”

“Don’t be mean.”

“Sorry,” I said.

“This way it would be in the open. Maybe he would get off sharing experiences.”

“Don’t start forming some plan,” I warned. This is a huge secret. Dave doesn’t know I’m confiding in you, and I don’t know if I’m going to tell him. He’s really freaked about anyone finding out.”

Jana smiled. “I like that he’s kinky. It makes him more interesting.”

“Hey! Hands off my husband.”

Jana had a point, but I didn’t see it happening. Dave swore he wasn’t interested in other women, and I’d seen firsthand that he didn’t take advantage when he had the chance. But I did wonder if he would resist if Jana really put on the pressure. I doubted I’d ever find out.

“I’m only kidding, hon,” Jana said. “I’m not going to embarrass the poor guy. If he wants this to be his dirty little secret I can respect that.”

“Thank you.”

“But you have to promise that you’ll share the gory details if you get back out there. I haven’t had a session with AJ in ages. I need to live vicariously through you.”

“I promise.”

Time got away from us, so we finished lunch and split the check. Jana had a nice walk to the theater and had to get a move on. We hugged outside the bistro and as we said goodbye I could tell something had changed between us. It wasn't that Jana thought I was some awful person, rather I felt like she had a newfound respect for me, and I sensed a little jealousy there, too. I was sure she would keep my confidence in the neighborhood, but I was not as sure she wouldn't try to find some way to turn all of this into some adventure for herself. I would have to be vigilant.

I wasn't sure she had reason to be jealous. Yes, I'd had some great adventures, but things were all confused and twisted now. I needed to know where Dave and I stood, and I was not prepared to give him much more time. I'd been a very good girl during our break, but it was harder than I thought it would be. I did not recharge the burner phone, because I knew I'd be too tempted to turn it on if it was charged. And then I would see a flurry of messages from Carlos, and I was honestly afraid of what I might do in response. It was easier to be good when temptation was taken away.

I'd also gotten a few casual texts from Zach—he was still trying to stay in the game—but I blew those off too. Zach would be the perfect place to run if I wanted to be bad. He was all fun and comfortable. Closer to a boyfriend, if I would ever allow such a thing.

I've never been a superstitious person, but sometimes things just happen that make you question if something larger is at work. For example, can you summon something—or someone—just by thinking of it? Does the universe throw tests in your path to see how you'll respond? My test was right around the corner.

"Hey, Dani," he called as I turned the corner. I didn't react at first. I was not expecting anyone to call out for Dani. "Dani, hey, wait up!"

I turned, and there was Zach, as if I'd summoned him. His hair was a little shorter than the last time I'd seen him, and I think it was the first time I'd ever seen him dressed fully like an adult. He wore baggy, distressed cargo pants and a loose, plaid shirt. It could have just been me, but he looked particularly handsome. I let him pull me into an embrace and failed the first test by letting him kiss my lips instead of offering the cheek.

"It's been a while." I was smiling. I was genuinely happy to see him.

"It's been too long. You're always so damned busy."

I quickly slipped back into my Dani persona and replied, "Custody isn't working out like it's supposed to, so I don't have a lot of free nights."

“I thought maybe you were seeing someone else.”

“There’s been a date or two.” I didn’t want to hurt his feelings, but I did always feel it was important to let him know where we stood.

He grinned. “It’s not like I’ve been home waiting by the phone.”

“Don’t worry, Dani. No one’s as sexy as you.”

I could just imagine the eager young things he was meeting at the bar. “Yeah, right.”

“You look hot, babe.” He stepped back to look me over and a blush crept into my cheeks.

I was not dressed for a date, but dressing sexier had just crept into my normal wardrobe, even when I was out for a casual afternoon, apparently. I wore a light jacket over a figure-hugging ribbed mock turtleneck and a short, pleated black kilt with patterned stockings and high boots. Suburban mom chic. They were thigh highs. I hadn’t worn pantyhose in months—a change that my husband heartily approved of.

“Is it working?”

“Maybe just a little,” I said, barely holding my fingers apart.

“I hope this helps.”

Zach kissed me, right there on the sidewalk, in the middle of the afternoon, in the middle of the city. It wasn’t likely anyone I knew would see us, but it wasn’t impossible. That thrill of danger raced through my veins and I reacted like any other addict getting a hit. I sighed and sagged into his broad chest. He held me tightly and I sensually pressed my curves to him while pressing my tongue to his.

I’d been starving for that attention more than I knew. Dave and I had been having sex at least a couple times a day, but it didn’t slow me down. I was still always horny. The message I sent Zach was loud and clear, and I only barely managed to pull away from him. I was breathless. He was all smiles.

“So what are you doing down here?” he asked.

“Shopping,” I said, wrestling back control of my tongue.

“You know, there’s a great lingerie shop just a couple blocks away.”

“What a coincidence,” I replied playfully. My conscience was screaming in the background: Get out of here! Do not flirt with this boy!

“I’d love to help you pick out some stuff.”

“I’m sure you would.” Images of me pulling Zach into a changing room flooded my mind. That was not good.

“And then you could come back to my place and model them for me.”

“I’d hate to take over your afternoon. I’m sure you had plans. I bet you were meeting one of those other girls, weren’t you?” I teased.

My head screamed, Don’t do it! Don’t do it!, but “Let’s start with shopping and see where we end up,” came out of my mouth. As soon as I said it, I knew I was going to end up in Zach’s bed. I’d been good for so long, but I just couldn’t resist the temptation. What was I going to tell Dave? Oddly enough, I still had that key chain camera in the bottom of my purse. I suspected that if I dropped a hot video in Dave’s lap all would be forgiven. I knew I was going to find out.

Although I sit alone when I am writing, I cannot take all the credit for this book. I have to thank Kenny Wright for another great cover and a beta read. This book would be much poorer in quality if not for the help of beta reader and editor Greg. If there are still any errors, they are mine, not his. I also need to thank all of the members of the Our Hot Wives message board, who post their stories and their fantasies and gave me great insight into what it's like living in the Hot Wife lifestyle. And finally, as always, I thank my understanding husband for inspiring my fantasies and giving me the time to write them out for all of you.
