Previously...

Cori Lynch returns to the workforce after spending over a decade raising her children. A desire to help people and a familiarity with Eastern medicine leads Cori to a career as a massage therapist. Everything is on track until Cori learns about her coworkers' side gigs. It turns out that the other masseuses at Elemental Bodyworks routinely provide happy endings to select clients for extra money. Cori goes from shocked to curious and rushes home to tell her husband, Dylan, all about what's going on at work.

Dylan has been enduring happy ending digs from his best friend, Baines, since Cori trained for her new job, so he already has Cori giving out handjobs on his mind. The fantasy is weirdly erotic, but he knows Cori would never do it—and he'd never want her to. But her confession that it's on the table at work changes everything. Dylan is torn. He thinks Cori should quit but can't stop fantasizing about his sweet wife jerking off her clients. He sees the idea turns her on just as much. Soon the couple is obsessed with Cori giving happy endings.

Cori peppers her sexy coworker, Mayde, with questions, all the while swearing she has no interest in crossing that line. But is it the truth? Cori is forced to face the reality when she tags along with Mayde on an appointment. Cori gets truly hands-on with another man for the first time and it tips the scales.

Dylan is stunned when Cori confesses that she touched another man's cock. It makes him sick, but dizzy with lust. In the end, Cori and Dylan admit their truths to each other. Dylan wants Cori to jerk off other men, and Cori wants to do it. She just needs to find the right client...

Chapter One

Cori was as prepared as she could be, but she was still nervous as hell. She was tempted to put it off again, but she thought waiting any longer might actually cause Dylan to stroke out and kill him. Cori hated the wait too. If she hadn't needed to be so absolutely sure she really wanted to try it, she would have jumped in and gone for it at least a week ago. Being an overthinker sucked. She almost did an edible to calm her nerves but didn't think it was professional to do a treatment high. She laughed at the irony of it, but she was still providing a real therapeutic treatment before she—hopefully—got to the unprofessional part.

The Lynches were not strangers to getting high, although they rarely smoked anymore. Dylan still had a vape pen, but he hardly used it. Edibles were just too easy, and they provided a great high. Their total pot usage had dropped off in recent years. When they did want to get high nowadays, they had a medical marijuana hookup. They would clear their schedules and choose a strain that went with their mood.

A sweater covered her upper half, but Cori caught her client checking out her ass. It looked good in her skintight black leggings. He should be looking, she thought. Cori didn't have one of those curvy butts like Mayde, but if a guy liked a tight ass sculpted through lots of running and crunches, she was his girl. One of the reasons she'd selected this client for her first try was because he always checked out her butt, no matter what she wore for his treatments. She suspected he might be interested in more than just a treatment. He thought he was slick, like most guys, but she knew he was looking. It was fortunate for him that she wasn't the type of woman to be offended by that. She liked being admired if the man remembered his manners.

Steve Weisberg was her guinea pig. Steve was one of the first clients she'd been assigned when she started with Elemental Bodyworks and sought treatment for back and neck problems associated with an old car accident. Cori felt the knots and tension in his musculature but suspected that had more to do with sitting behind a desk all day than a five-year-old car crash. She also thought he just wanted someone to come over and touch him. Steve wasn't married but had a long-term girlfriend he talked about. Cori had qualms about doing it with a committed man, but that went with the territory, according to Mayde. All but one of her special clients were either married or in committed relationships. Single guys just didn't seem to need the relief, which was counterintuitive to Cori. She comforted her moral discomfort with the lame qualifier that Steve was just dating and not married.

Cori set up in the finished basement of his townhouse, which had been converted to a combo screening room and man cave for watching movies and sports. An enormous TV hung on the wall and speakers were placed around the room, with cushy, black leather recliners facing the TV. A small bar was squeezed into a corner of the room. The room dimmed nicely, which was conducive to a relaxing treatment, but he always started with the lights up—the better to check out her ass. Cori set up in the middle of the room, between the recliners and the screen.

Steve sat in one of the recliners, watching her prepare her table. She was acutely aware of his eyes on her body in a way she'd never been before. It was one thing to realize a guy was checking out your ass in passing, but another to be consciously aware of him watching the way you moved and letting it affect how you moved your body. As a massage therapist, Cori was especially attuned to others' movement and energies, but she didn't concentrate on her own unless she was working out or meditating. Steve's gaze brought that focus onto herself. Cori pushed her butt out further than required when she bent over to stretch the linens over her massage table, posing for him. She met his eyes when she turned, smiling shyly as she pushed her hair back behind her ear, hoping he sensed that today could be different if he wanted that. And finally, she made a show of it when she unzipped her sweater.

Cori felt ridiculous stripping for Steve the client. She did not have moves. Flaunting her body didn't come naturally. She'd felt silly the handful of times she'd stripped for Dylan, and those times she was in something silky and slinky and really trying to be sexy. Cori wasn't doing any of that, but just removing a sweater for Steve, trying to be sexy without acting like a stripper. She wanted to give the impression that something was on offer without shouting it. The massage table separating them gave Cori a sliver of security as she smiled and slowly drew down her zipper. She shrugged the garment off her shoulders, pushing her chest out at him by pulling her shoulders back. Her boobs didn't shake with the motion because her push-up bra was rock solid.

The bra was why she had boobs to shove at Steve, that and the much-too-small top she wore. Cori was not going to wear some sexy top to work. She couldn't bring herself to do that—not yet. But she did take one of her five provided sea-green Elemental Bodyworks polos and washed it three times in hot water, shrinking it to a pre-teen's size. If Cori had tits worth speaking of, it would never have fit. The polo looked painted on her tight, toned body. Her every breath was obvious through the stretched cotton blend, and it molded to the smooth, round cups of her bra like a second skin. Cori had to admit her body looked fantastic in the top. Her boobs had never looked better. When Dylan saw her in the top on her way out the door, his jaw dropped, and he lasted about two minutes when she jerked him off for a trial run. She'd been jerking her husband off a lot over the last couple of weeks. Cori was horny as hell and demanded sex too, but Dylan wanted her to practice her hand skills on him almost every day. She didn't know how the poor man had any fluids left in his body.

Steve's wide eyes and slowly dawning, eager smile was just the reaction Cori had hoped for. His openly sexual gaze sent a shiver down her spine that terminated in a tightening of her sex. Few of the teachings of her Irish Catholic upbringing stuck with her, but the lesson that men were animals with no self-control, and therefore girls had to be modest and chaste, had made an impression because it seemed mostly true in her experience. Good girls weren't supposed to like it when men gave them that kind of attention. Cori was too modern to buy into that horseshit about how women should behave—on the surface anyway—but it did seep into her subconscious. She'd never consciously sought that kind of attention from men. Of course, she'd never had to. Male friends just flocked to her. But the strange paradox was that while Cori didn't want men to focus on her body or her clear blue eyes or soft lips, she liked it when they did. Illicit attention always tickled something in the darker recesses of her brain explicitly because she wasn't supposed to like it. Cori felt that tickle—that thrill—now as Steve mentally undressed her. Being alone with him in his man cave suddenly felt dangerous and she liked it. The room was charged, and she knew she'd taken the first step down a dark road.

Cori paused to let Steve get a good look. It was obvious and her cheeks reddened as she did it. Finally, she told him, "Hop on up."

As she didn't generally use oils for a shiatzu treatment—and because she was trying to discourage bad behavior—Cori preferred her clients wore loose, comfortable clothing for their treatments. It was right there in the first email she sent to prospective clients, to set a tone. She'd only had one client strip nude for a treatment. Cori treated him and he tried all the obvious tricks they teach women in classes—he was clearly hard, kept trying to nudge the towel aside, and found ways to accidentally brush his hands against Cori as she moved around him. She pretended not to notice and finished the treatment, but never saw him again. Steve was dressed in a t-shirt and workout shorts. She wondered if she should tell him to get more comfortable but couldn't be that brazen.

"Are you synced?" he asked, using a remote control to dim the lights before climbing onto her table. Steve loved showing off his tech and made a flourish of dimming the lights with his oversized, complicated remote control. He'd insisted Cori sync her phone to his sound system to play her background music at their first session.

"I should be," she replied. "Let's get started."

Cori selected her treatment playlist on her phone and set it aside. Mellow, soothing woodwind tones filtered from the expensive speaker system, filling the room. She took a deep breath and shook out her hands, psyching herself up for what came next. The butterflies in her chest were so intense that she shook and tried to center herself. She hadn't been so nervous for her first regular treatment, and that had been nerve-racking. It was hard to center her energy the way she needed to give a proper treatment and closed her eyes. Cori controlled and focused her breathing. In out. In out. She put the plan out of her mind and locked in on what was right in front of her, giving a proper treatment to a client. That's all it was for now.

"Is everything okay?" Steve asked, twisting his face out of the padded head cradle.

"Yep, I'm ready. Just needed a second. Let's get started."

Cori pushed his face back into the pads, roughing his curly graying hair and teasing her short nails over his scalp. Men liked that sort of thing. Steve relaxed and his energy shifted at her touch. Cori smiled, thinking, I can do this.

Once she allowed herself to relax, Cori got into a groove and began her treatment. The work wasn't just about digging her fingers in and beating knots out of muscles for her. It was about that on the surface. Shiatzu in particular focused on using thumb and finger pressure, sometimes sharp elbows, to work acupressure points in the body to relieve tension and increase blood flow. But it was also as much spiritual as it was physical, reading and treating the body's energy through meridians. When done right, it was more about the mind-body connection than a traditional deep tissue Swedish massage. Cori moved around the table, getting a feeling for where his tension lay and where his energies may be pent up. She worked his acupressure points and pushed knots out of his muscles with almost brutal efficiency, but also soothingly ran her hands along his body, sometimes pausing with her palm flat on him to feel his energy.

Steve was alternately chatty during the treatment and then, at times, he settled down and just enjoyed the treatment. It was clear from their chats that he didn't entirely buy into the spiritual side of shiatzu, but he liked her hands on his body. His breathing slowed and he relaxed under her expert touch. He sighed contentedly when she stretched his limbs. Cori loved feeling the effect her work had on a client's body. One of the reasons she'd chosen her field was because she wanted to impact people's lives, and she truly believed she could help people. When he did perk up and chat, Steve spoke of the stresses of his job and how much responsibility he bore. It was as much intended to impress as it was a complaint.

It was similar when Steve spoke of his girlfriend. He didn't quite complain about her but was looking for more excitement from her. He had lots of examples of what a great boyfriend he was, offering that he wished April, his girlfriend, tried as hard. Steve danced around the edges of discussing his sex life. Cori could tell he was probing, seeing how far he could go before Cori would shut him down. He'd never gone anywhere that made her uncomfortable and she'd never shut him down, but Steve had tip-toed along the line a few times. But he stayed respectful, and Cori rolled with it. Lucky for him, she was used to guys and talk didn't bother her. Baines was the prime example of that.

“April and I finally had that weekend away we’ve been talking about,” he offered.

“That sounds fun. What did you guys do up there?” Cori replied. She only vaguely remembered him mentioning it before. She was focused on his lower back.

“We stayed at one of those casino resorts. It was really nice. I played a little poker. April likes the slots, but she’s not much of a gambler. We hiked to do some leaf peeping.”

“We hit a couple nice restaurants up there. And I thought getting her up there would get her more in the mood. You know how hotel sex is always hot, right?”

“I haven’t stayed in a hotel without kids in years, so I’ll have to take your word for it.”

“You guys should get away. Aren’t your kids older now? It would be fun.”

“We talk about it, but you know how it is. Or maybe you don’t. You don’t have kids. The logistics are just a hassle. It’s just one more thing I’d have to plan.”

“Dylan should plan it. He should be chomping at the bit to get you away for some alone time.”

“You would think. But get back to me when you’ve been married for about twenty years.”

“I don’t believe it has to be that way. I can tell you’re not uptight, not like a lot of wives. It can’t be that bad.”

Cori laughed and moved higher again, working her thumbs into his shoulders. He tightened, and she knew it had to hurt. “Keep breathing and relax,” she reminded him. “And that’s sweet of you to say. You’re right. Honestly, we don’t have that problem.” She chuckled. “We’re kind of on a hot streak these days.”

“Is that so? You give me hope then. I’ve only been with April six years and things have cooled.”

“You have to work at it. You must know that, Steve.”

“I get it. That was the point of going away. I thought it would inspire April. I don’t know, maybe get her to dress up. She’s got great lingerie I’ve bought her. I mean, if Dylan took you away for a romantic weekend you’d take it up a notch, wouldn’t you?”

“Sure. I have some fun things, although he’s not much of a lingerie guy. He’s always been more into whatever comes off the fastest.”

“That must be frustrating.”

“Sometimes. It depends on my mood.” Cori smiled, even though he couldn’t see it.

She realized she was going further in discussing her personal life than she ever had before—further than was appropriate. But Steve took her there. She was just responding. They had a nice rapport and it set her at ease for a moment, until she wondered if her outfit and flaunting had given Steve the green light to push the flirting. Normally, Cori would reel it in, but the vibe they were sharing would only help with what she had planned. All her focus returned to her end game and icy fingers gripped her stomach. It was almost time. She began to doubt she could do it. It was an insane idea. Cori was a regular woman, not the type that sold hand jobs. What was she thinking?

A pause and a deep breath, and Cori decided she had to try. She always told the kids not to let fear get in the way. That was a wildly different context, but it still applied. Cori didn’t know which would make her angrier later, if she chickened out after torturing herself over this for two weeks, or if she went ahead and did it and regretted what it made her. But she would not back down. That wasn’t who Cori was. She always followed through, even when it was a terrible idea.

“It’s time to flip over,” she told Steve.

Cori scanned the front of his shorts looking for a sign that Steve was affected by their flirting and her outfit. She tried to be subtle, feeling shameful to be checking out a client’s package, but the furtive move made her heart pulse. It had been a curse that misbehaving excited her when she was younger. Cori thought she left that behind when she matured, but apparently, she’d just buried it. She didn’t see anything obvious in his shorts, but she swept her gaze up his body to see if she’d been caught looking and found Steve was much too busy staring at her tits in that tight shirt to notice where her eyes were. She smiled, his attention making her heartbeat quicken even more.

The work on a client’s front was never as involved as on the back of his body. Cori did work on the acupressure points around the abdomen to help with digestion and release specific tensions and work on the chest to open up breathing, but the rest of it was mostly stretching the client’s body. She also did her best head and neck work while a client was on their back. Steve fell quiet again as she resumed her work, but where he usually closed his eyes while she treated him, they remained open, watching her body move as she worked.

Steve's gaze impacted her body movement. It was part of playing the game, she rationalized, but it wasn't just about getting him in the mood. Cori liked his eyes on her and encouraging him was fun. She wasn't being a tease because she had every intention of taking care of him—if he was willing to pay for it. As she worked on his chest, Cori bent deep at the waist, drawing his attention to the tight valley of freckled cleavage created by her bra. Take a good, long look. Get nice and worked up, she thought. The prospect of Steve growing in his shorts made her own sex tighten.

Cori moved up to work on his head and neck and commented, "It doesn't feel like the time away relaxed you at all."

"I like being outdoors, but I don't know that I find hiking relaxing. I'm more of a hang out around the lodge or take in a show kind of guy. I like to spend time in the pool. They had a nice hot tub."

"Oh? Did you and April have fun in the hot tub?"

"It wasn't one of those in-room deals, it was in an alcove in the pool area. There weren't a ton of people around, but it was public."

"That mattered?"

"It didn't to me, but it did to April. It wouldn't matter to you?"

Cori leaned forward and pressed her boobs into the top of his head. He was subtle, but Steve moved, snuggling into her chest. Things were moving along nicely. Her nerves diminished as her excitement grew. She smiled and answered, "My husband is a little shy about that sort of thing, but it's never bothered me. If I'm having fun, I just go with it."

"I love that attitude, Cori. Sounds like you maybe even like the risk a little bit."

"Maybe... A little bit. Risk is sexy, isn't it?"

"Hey, I think so. I need to get April to come around to your way of thinking. Or, maybe I could get Dylan to swap you for a day. I think he and April would get along."

"You make it sound like it's up to him. I'm a grown woman, Steve. I make my own decisions."

Cori slid her hands down his chest, bending farther forward and pressing her tits into his face. Steve gasped and she saw that twitch in his shorts she'd been looking for. She kept her boobs there as she worked her thumbs over his abdomen and the lump in his shorts grew. Steve might still turn her down on general principle—he might be a guy who just wouldn't pay for it—but she knew he wanted her, and that made Cori hot. She pulled back and let him breathe, moving around to the side of the table.

“I think you're good, Steve.”

“You did an amazing job, as usual, Cori. I really do love our sessions.”

“That's sweet.” She touched his chest and caressed through his t-shirt. It wasn't out of place in a normal session—she was a warm person—but the thoughts in her head made it seem like a come-on. Cori trailed her fingers down toward his waist as she added, “I think I got your tension out. Do you feel relaxed?”

“Mmm, very,” he replied, keenly watching her hand. She read his mind, sure he was wondering how low she'd go and what exactly she was up to.

“Really? All of you?”

Her fingers slid down his shorts, going around his crotch to touch his bare leg. Cori smiled, projecting a confidence she didn't feel. The butterflies were thick in her chest, and she felt lightheaded like she'd just done a massive whip-it. She'd loved that feeling back in high school, but now it was surreal. Confident Cori was gone, replaced by a girl who felt out of her depth.

“Yeah,” he said quickly, confused.

Steve watched her hand and then looked at her. Cori forced herself to meet his eyes. She saw the question there, but couldn't answer it, not until he actually asked it.

“Well, mostly. I, uh, sorry about that. It doesn't usually happen during a session,” he apologized.

Cori was torn between being the fun, flirty girl she needed to be and the married mom-of-two who wanted to flee the room. She squeezed her thighs together to staunch her excitement. Getting horny was not helping—not at that stage. She needed to be her flirty self. Having a couple drinks to get there wasn't an option, so she did the next best thing. She pretended it was Baines there with her. Flirty banter with him just came naturally. Thoughts of Baines flowed back to her husband. Dylan had a fantasy of this in his head, but if he were there sitting in the corner like Cori had with Mayde, how would he truly feel? Would Dylan be rock hard, excited to see his wife come on to another man? Or would he be horrified to see it? Cori hoped it was the former. The fantasy was so intense for Dylan. She decided he would be in the corner, pulling out his cock.

“You don’t have to apologize, Steve, unless the fact that it doesn’t usually happen is an insult.” The line sounded so cheesy as it came out of her mouth. She fought rolling her eyes.

“No, no. Definitely not an insult. You’re hot, Cori. Uh, I mean, really pretty. Of course, you would, uh, make me... It’s just I know that’s not what our time is about.”

“Relax, it’s okay,” she replied, squeezing his thigh. “I know that’s not what we’ve been doing, and I appreciate that you’re respectful, Steve. I really do. That’s why I think I can trust you.”

“You can, Cori. You definitely can.”

“It’s good to know you think I’m hot...” she began, thinking, Here we go. “Because you’ve been so respectful, and because I trust you, I wanted to let you know that there’s more I can do for you if you’re interested.”

“Uh, what... Are you saying...” Steve was stunned.

Chapter Two

Cori felt like she'd made a terrible mistake. In her mind, this was a simple transaction. She'd offer herself—her hand anyway—and Steve would be so excited he'd just yank his shorts down. Steve did not yank his shorts down. He stared at Cori like he'd just passed through the looking glass and didn't understand what she was getting at. Cori thought she was explicit enough. She followed the script Mayde gave her—more or less. Mayde said she should not just come right out and ask the client if they wanted a handy. There should be a vague offer. If the client was interested, she was to make it clear that this was a private arrangement between Cori and the client. Elemental Bodyworks was not involved, and this was just two consenting adults spending time together. The tip was not directly related to that. It was not a transaction. Cori found it amusing that there was so much dancing around to make it seem like it was anything other than what it actually was. She was a much more direct person than that. But Mayde assured her that any guy—any client—would understand what she was getting at.

Steve had to know what she meant. His reaction had to be shock or disinterest. What if he was scandalized or horrified? Would he call Janine, or worse, the police? Cori had spent many a sleepless night tossing this around in her head. She knew the limb she was putting herself out on, and that risk was one of the scariest parts. Mayde told her that she would not be turned down if she chose the right client. Cori should be able to read him and know if he wanted it. She thought she'd read Steve right, but as he stammered, she thought she'd made a terrible mistake. Her lips moved, but no words came out. She had to say something. This was far more awkward than a boy trying to kiss her when she wasn't interested. In those situations, Cori always kissed the boy just to make him feel better. A kiss wasn't so bad, and the boy might surprise her. Her upside here wasn't so obvious.

"Oh my god. I'm so sorry, Steve. If I misread something, if you're not interested, I'm so sorry. I know this is strange. If you just let me pack up, I can go. Please don't call the business," Cori blathered.

The words came out in a rush, tumbling over each other. Her insides turned to ice, the only heat remaining in her body the heat of shame on her cheeks. Cori snatched her hand away from his thigh and began to turn, but Steve caught her wrist. It wasn't coercive. His shock was gone, replaced with a smile. A hungry smile. Time suspended for a moment as it all fell into place. Cori was in this man's dark man cave, flirting with him, offering herself for money, and he was buying. She didn't misread anything. Steve wanted it. She returned his smile, flooded with relief. She wasn't going to jail. Just as it all went from sexy to disaster in a flash moments ago, it all flipped again, and she felt a new erotic charge. The heat seeped down from her cheeks, thawing her body, and reigniting her core. Cori glanced to an empty recliner, imagining her husband sitting there watching them. It would make her too nervous to really have him there, but it was hot to pretend he was watching her.

"It's good, Cori. I'm interested. If you're offering what I think you are, I'm very interested."

"Only if you're sure," she offered, trying to sound seductive and feeling silly for it. Cori was dizzied by the wild emotional whiplash of the last few minutes.

"Is it creepy to admit I've played this all out in my head?"

"No, Steve. It's hot that you've thought of me that way."

"What, uh, how does this work? I've never done this before. I'm not that kind of guy," he said defensively.

"What kind of guy is that? I think every guy wants to have a little fun, but they aren't all confident enough to go for it. And confidence is sexy if you haven't heard. You can tip me for the session we just had, and then we can spend some private time together. I'll give you a special, private massage."

Cori hoped her intent was clear enough. Private massage should clue Steve in that it was hands only. She didn't ask Mayde what to do if a client misinterpreted, but Cori was a big girl. She could handle herself.

"What kind of tip is customary?"

“It’s a tip, so I don’t know that I can tell you how much to tip. That would be rude. But have I ever mentioned that Benjamin Franklin is my favorite president?”

“I need to, uh, run upstairs for a second.”

“I’ll be here. I’m not going anywhere.”

It was funny to see Steve adjust himself when he sat up and tried to stand. Cori pretended to avert her eyes, but she had to watch. That hard-on was for her, and she loved it. She spent the couple of minutes pacing the man cave, psyching herself up for the task. She was ready and wanted to do it, but there was still that last bit of morality hanging on, reminding her she was about to officially become a whore. The nuns glared at her over the years through her memory. She imagined her mother—who wanted to pretend Cori was a virgin when she married Dylan—telling her she was punching her ticket to Hell. Cori shook it off. Fuck ‘em, she thought. It’s my life and I’ll sell hand jobs if I want to. The only person whose judgment mattered was Dylan, and he was all for it. Cori grabbed her phone and shot her husband a quick text: He said yes! About to do it. Wanted to say I love you before my hands are too sticky to text. She hoped for a quick reply but heard Steve bounding back down the steps like an eager puppy and she put her phone down.

“How do I... Where do you want it...” he said, shifting from foot to foot and shuffling the money in his hands.

Cori laughed. “You can just give it to me, Steve.” It was endearing that he was as nervous as she was. Cori took the bills from him—4 twenties, a ten, and 2 fives—and folded them, stuffing the money into her bra like a stripper, even though she had pockets. It felt appropriate and Steve’s pleased look showed it was the right call. She told him, “You can get back on the table.”

“Should I?” he asked, gesturing to his shorts. They were as tented as before.

Cori would have been fine with Steve disrobing himself, but she remembered that Mayde stripped Roger. She said, “Let me take care of that.”

Steve was nervously stiff when she stepped close—very close—and touched his waist. They were close enough to kiss and she didn’t know what she’d do if he tried that. Kissing had never even entered her mind. It wasn’t part of the equation. Standing so close to Steve was uncomfortably intimate. She preferred him on the table. Establishing client and therapist provided a comfortable remove. But he just stood there. He laughed when her touch tickled his sides and it relaxed Cori. She pulled down his shorts and briefs and he sprang right up, slapping against her leg. Cori's breath caught. It was real now. She resisted the natural urge to just grab him, wanting him on the table. Steve reached for his shirt. Cori didn't picture him nude for this, but she rolled with it.

"Let me take care of that for you," she said.

Cori took his worn gray t-shirt over his head and dropped it on the floor and there he was, standing completely naked in front of her. His hair stood up and he smoothed it down. It was a shock she hadn't prepared for. It had to have been over twenty years since a new man stood naked in front of her. The feeling was familiar, yet alien to her now. Instinct tried to take over. Her body knew what to do when a man stood naked in front of her. Steve was a handsome guy. He had a pleasant gleam to his green eyes, and she liked his easy smile. He wasn't a man who'd catch her eye in passing, but he was like the sweet boys she happily hooked up with back in the day. He was a few inches taller than her. The perfect kissing height. Cori had to stop thinking about kissing. Why was that the only thing she could think about? Kissing was not on the menu. Dylan would not be happy at all if she made out with a client. That wasn't the deal. Cori put her hands on Steve's chest and the temptation only grew stronger. She felt his hands on her waist. Steve was tugging at the hem of her shirt, and it brought Cori back to reality. She lightly pushed on his chest.

"You should probably get on the table, Steve," she gently said.

He smiled dumbly. "Okay."

Steve assumed the position and she fetched lotion from her bag. She turned back and there he was, laid out naked on her table. Cori pumped a generous dollop of lotion into her hand and then rubbed them together, thoroughly lubing her hands. She rubbed his chest, fingers playing through his mat of chest hair. She liked a guy with body hair—as long as he wasn't an ape.

"Still feeling good?" she asked.

"Yeah, great. Maybe a little nervous. As I said, I've never done this. I never had to."

Cori smiled and tickled his chest. "It's okay, I know you're an attractive guy. You don't have to pay for it, Steve. We're just doing this because it's fun, so why not?”

“Yeah, why not?”

“Can I admit something? This is my first time too. You know I’ve only been doing massage therapy for a couple of months now, but I’ve never done this. It’s as new for me as it is for you.”

“That’s pretty hot, Cori. It makes me super lucky.”

Cori ran a slick fingertip around his nipple, and he shivered. She flicked it with a nail, and he groaned. She kept teasing his nipple and danced her other fingers along the exposed underside of his cock, which lay up against his stomach. Steve moaned and trembled, his whole body stiffening.

“You need to relax, Steve. This is supposed to be relaxing. Doesn’t it feel good?”

“It...uh...feels...really good, Cori,” he stammered.

“So, I should keep going? As I said, this is my first time too.”

“Yeah...please keep going...”

He twitched under her fingers, and she pinched his girth like she was measuring it, lightly grasping him with her fingertips as she ran them up and down his shaft. She still teased his nipple too, enjoying his expression as she teased. Cori had the strongest urge to bend down and lick his nipple but resisted. It would have been fun, but she wasn’t there for that. She could do that to Dylan next time. Cori was surprised by how much she wanted to do more than just jerk off Steve. The flood of excitement took her breath away and she licked her lips, which Steve watched closely. She could see why Mayde went further than just giving clients hand jobs, but Cori just didn’t want to go there, as tempting as it was.

Her full attention turned to his cock. Steve had a nice, thick one. Cori hadn’t thought much about what she might encounter, but now that a strange cock was in her hands, she carefully considered it. She’d seen more than her fair share of dicks, but it had been a long time. She’d seen Roger’s, of course, and from her vantage point, that one had been very average. Dylan compared favorably to Roger. But now she had another one to evaluate. Steve was nice and thick. April had to enjoy that, she thought, immediately pushing that thought away. She did not want to think about Steve’s girlfriend while she played with him. Cori lifted him and he felt heavier, hotter than she expected. He filled her hand more than Dylan but wasn’t as long. Cori loved her husband’s cock and didn’t want or need another, but Steve did have a nice cock and she enjoyed handling it. A prominent vein ran along the underside, and she traced it with her thumb up to the ridge of his helmet. Steve moaned when she fingered him there. She covered the head completely with one hand, rubbing while stroking him with the other. Steve trembled and moaned her name. Cori hoped he wouldn't come too fast. She was having fun.

The heat built between her own thighs, surprising her with its intensity. Cori squeezed her thighs and the pressure surged pleasure through her. Her feet shifted as she squeezed her thighs tighter and she was so wet she felt her pussy squish. God, she was hot. That was unexpected. Not being aroused, she knew herself too well for that. But the intensity of it surprised her. Cori did not expect that playing with a stranger's cock would be so invigorating. Her skin felt tingly hot and her nipples thickened. It wasn't just that the sight of a cock made her lose control—like some porn movie floozy—but feeling Steve's desire for her, and her power over him, was enthralling. He was wholly hers in that moment. Cori was in full command with his dick in her hand. Steve's face was flushed, his eyes wide, his forehead sweaty. He moaned and panted through parted lips and watched her with fervid intensity. His eyes moved from where she touched him to rove over her body—the curve of her ass and her rising and falling breasts as her aroused breathing became deeper. Cori didn't want Steve to see how aroused she was but knew he had to. Being discovered was dangerous, which only fed her excitement. She needed to touch herself so badly but couldn't. Cori smiled, thinking Steve would love that, but she'd have to charge much more for that kind of show.

Steve's hand twitched, moving toward her leg. Cori recalled how Roger touched Mayde, and she wanted that too. Dylan would be okay with that, as long as the touch was limited. She softly told Steve, "It's okay. Go ahead and touch me, Steve."

He touched the back of her leg and then her hip, pausing like he didn't know what to do now that he had been given the go-ahead. The shyness of his touch was sweet. Cori liked to be manhandled, but she didn't want that from Steve. His light touch was nice, and it made her tingle in the right places. He went for her butt but didn't have the nerve to squeeze it, instead rubbing like he was trying to polish it. Cori would have liked a squeeze but felt slutty asking for it. This wasn't supposed to be about her. Steve went higher and he played with the hem of her shirt. He really wanted her topless! Cori was tempted to let him, but she wasn't going to jump to that on her first job—if she ever got there. She lightly shook her head.

“Uh-uhn. Over the clothes, babe,” she gently admonished.

“Middle school rules?” he joked.

Cori laughed. That sense of humor was why she liked Steve. “Yes, middle school rules. Over the sweater only.”

Steve ran his fingers up her back, tracing her bra strap.

“You’re not going to snap my bra, are you?”

“I had a pretty good one-handed technique back in the day,” he said, smiling.

“I bet you did. I bet you had lots of practice.”

“I did okay,” he replied, fingering her bra strap like he was contemplating doing it.

“Leave it hooked for today, babe.”

“Just for today?”

“We’ll see how it goes, okay?”

Steve smiled, liking that answer. Cori had always been a good tease.

Cori stroked Steve faster. Playing with him was fun, but it was too much fun. The quicker she ended it, the faster she would be out of the danger zone. She needed to get home to her husband and demand he fuck her. Yes, that was what she needed. Cori wanted Dylan to throw her down and take her the second she walked through the door. If he didn't, she'd throw him down. That might be even more fun. She rolled Steve's balls in one hand while the other tightened on his shaft as it slicked up and down his length. Steve's breathing grew labored and raspy. He pushed up, fucking her hand the way Dylan did when he got close.

“It's okay, babe. Just let it go, do it for me. Let it go for me,” she cooed.

“Uhn...uhn...uhn...”

Steve's grunts were husky. She swore he was trying to hold back and prolong it. He moved that hand to her chest, coyly tracing the underwires in her bra. He could touch her boobs all he wanted. Steve wasn't going to feel much, just the firm, padded cups of her push-up bra. She hoped he wouldn't be disappointed, but then would he be disappointed by how small she was if he'd really been feeling her? He didn't seem to be. Steve touched her tits and squeezed like he was feeling the real thing. Cori was disappointed. She didn't feel much through the bra and wished she could. She loved having her tits played with, but a lot of guys didn't give them the proper attention because they were small. She would skip the padded bra next time and let Steve feel the real thing. Funny how she'd already decided there would be a next time.

"Let it go...come for me, babe...do it, Steve...do it..."

"Uhn...uhn...Cori...god...uhn..."

It was sudden, like an overwhelmed dam bursting. The first shot came flying out, arcing so high that it almost hit Cori in the chin. She laughed and took a step back. That was unexpected. He blasted again while she was distracted, and that one stained her shirt, globbing on the underside of her tits. Cori wised up then and pointed Steve at his own chest, stroking hard as two more spurts popped out onto him. He groaned and shuddered and began to shrink in her hand. Steve was finished. Cori was impressed. His load was thick and plentiful. She had to admit it, that load put Dylan's to shame. But to be fair, they'd been screwing like hormonal teenagers and Dylan had little time to replenish. Cori kept stroking Steve, even as he shrank. She liked the feel of his slick, malleable meat in her hand. His body slowly deflated like his cock, and he grinned like an idiot. A very satisfied idiot.

"Now do you feel relaxed?" she asked.

"You have no idea, Cori. I don't believe that was your first time. You're a talented woman. Wow."

"My first time with a client. I may have done that once or twice before," she admitted.

Steve winked. "Yeah, just once or twice."

"I'll be right back. Just relax."

"I don't think I could move if I wanted to."

Cori fetched a washcloth from her bag and soaked it in warm water in the powder room off the man cave. She washed her hands and dabbed at the stain on her shirt. The wet spot couldn't be avoided. She'd been branded as the whore she was and decided to wear it as a badge of honor instead of a scarlet letter. She purposely avoided the mirror. She didn't want to see how flushed she was. The urge to shove a hand into her panties for a quick orgasm was overwhelming, but she could not do that with a client right on the other side of the door. She at least had to wait until she got to the car.

Steve was right where she left him, and Cori lovingly cleaned the lotion from his cock and then the jizz from his stomach. He sighed and moaned as she wiped him, enjoying her gentle touch. He was one satisfied customer.

“I’d let you lay there all day, but I do need to get going. Can you at least move over to one of those big, comfy chairs?”

“Sure, yeah,” he said.

Cori offered a hand and pulled him upright. He was wobbly when he climbed down from her massage table and almost toppled when he bent over to grab his shorts. Steve dressed while Cori packed up her gear in a rush. She was ready to go, unsure how to interact with a client after she jerked him off. Cori didn’t want to make it awkward. In her rush, she almost forgot the last bit of business. He still had to sign off on her work tablet. Cori smiled apologetically when she asked him. It felt like a mood killer. Steve was happy to do it. He would have done anything she wanted.

Steve walked her to the door, and she hugged him like she always did. Cori was a hugger. He hung onto her this time, holding her tight, their whole bodies pressed together. The contact made her heart race as if she needed another reminder of how horny she was. Steve promised to book another appointment soon through the app.

Cori didn’t masturbate at the curb in front of his house. She waited to touch herself until she was out of his neighborhood, rubbing through her leggings and feeling a warm, wet spot. Her pussy throbbed and she was panting before she even made it two blocks. Cori whipped the minivan into a strip mall and parked at the back, away from all the other cars. Her hand shoved into her tights, but didn’t make it into her panties—there wasn’t time. Cori bit her lip, but still shrieked when she came. It was a sharp, violent climax that ripped through her like a sudden summer storm. Cori was left breathless, the windows fogged around her. She began laughing and couldn’t stop.

Chapter Three

Dylan stared at the text from his wife: He said yes! About to do it. Wanted to say I love you before my hands are too sticky to text. He focused in on About to do it. His wife of nineteen years was about to jerk off another man. As if that weren't mind-boggling enough, she was doing it for money. Cori was going to come home a hundred bucks richer. Pretty good money for a few flicks of the wrist.

His cock was so hard it hurt, and Dylan shifted in his office chair. He was monitoring the work screen for fresh trouble tickets, but he wasn't going to get any of the routine maintenance work expected of him done. Those four little words drove him to distraction: About to do it. Time had stopped, so he read the time stamp on the text. It had been over ten minutes since Cori texted him. She was, in fact, doing it. His pretty, sweet, tomboyish wife had her hand on another man's dick as Dylan sat there. Cori could have been done by then, depending on the guy. She was very good. He had her hone her technique to perfection on his cock over the last couple of weeks. Dylan fervently wished Cori was there to take care of him now because his cock felt like it was going to burst. He was going to have to take care of it himself because his wife had her hands full with another man.

This was how Dylan knew he was sick in some irredeemable way. He should have been enraged, disgusted that his wife was out doing that, but instead, he hauled out his prick and tugged it. He did feel sick. The pain in his gut was so bad it almost doubled him over, but that didn't slow him down. His mind panicked that he'd let this go too far and he'd lost Cori forever—either because she was going to be stolen by some good looking, wealthy client, or because she was so repelled by his fetish for this that she'd never see him as a man again. Cori insisted she wouldn't, just as Dylan insisted he wouldn't see her differently after she'd jerked off a guy for money, but it hadn't happened yet when they said those things. Could they really know how they would feel once the deed was done? And still, none of that slowed him down. Dylan pumped lotion from the bottle he kept on his desk now and slickened his cock.

Dylan didn't need porn anymore. Much as he loved Jessie Deen's videos, picturing his wife at work was all the jerk-off material he needed. He closed his eyes and saw Cori standing beside a client on her table, his giant cock in both her hands. The image in his head was vivid because he'd seen her when she was leaving for work. That tight little top she'd shrunk was incredible. He loved seeing her flaunt her body like that. He'd always liked it when men noticed his wife, but he'd never given it real thought before. Now he knew she was going out to purposely tease another man, that her hot body would make that man hard as steel, and that she'd then take care of that man. It had caused a visceral urge in him—an urge to throw her down and claim her. Cori wore eye makeup and a light shade of lipstick—she didn't want to be obvious—that accentuated those full lips of hers. Cori was only supposed to be using her hand today, but as Dylan handled his meat, he imagined that lipstick smeared down some lucky stranger's cock. Dylan had no idea what this client looked like, but he had a huge cock in this scenario and Cori's lips barely stretched around it. He came with violent force, finishing into a tissue from the box that sat beside the lotion to the side of his keyboard. How embarrassing was it that he had a masturbation station set up on his desk at his age? Dylan had so many reasons to be ashamed, he couldn't pick just one.

Dylan tried to talk himself off the ledge as he sat back in his office chair and panted, slowly coming down from the high of his orgasm. Cori was not going to leave him for a client. They loved each other and had too much history together. They wouldn't do that to the kids. If nothing else, Cori was too practical for that. But the fears kept creeping in. Even if she didn't leave, things could never be the same again. His wife was jerking off guys for money. That wasn't the Cori he married. But he couldn't hold that against her because he wanted her to do it. Dylan loved it. Cori could turn on him, thinking he pimped her out for his own weird sexual gratification. But Cori insisted she liked it. Dylan sipped the Coke on his desk, soothed by the underlying taste of Jack Daniels. Drinking in the afternoon was never good, but that's where he was.

They had edibles from a friend upstairs in a drawer in the bedroom. Dylan knew if he took a Kush gummy it would chill him the fuck out but thought Cori might get angry if he did it on his own. It was something they did together these days when they did it at all. Sometimes he missed the old days, before the kids when they'd go on a hike, get high in the woods, fuck if the spot was secluded enough. Life was a lot simpler then.

He would go crazy if he just sat there. Dylan knew there was someone he could turn to. He'd never come out and confess what he and Cori were doing, but their friend Seth would understand if anyone would. He was more Cori's friend than Dylan's. Seth was part of her old high school crew, and yeah, she'd hooked up with Seth. It used to make Dylan uncomfortable that she spent so much time around someone she'd hooked up with, but he had to get used to it. Seth was only one of three or four friends she still had that she'd hooked up with back in high school. Cori was so casual about it that Dylan came around and realized he should be too. But since Seth was more Cori's friend, Dylan had to be careful what he said.

Seth was a stay-at-home dad, which meant he was usually available. Seth had begun doing some freelance writing as his kids got older, but Dylan counted on him being available. He texted Seth, who said to come on over. Dylan left a note for the kids, who'd wonder where he was when they got home from school and was out the door.

The Donovans lived twenty minutes away in a tonier development than the Lynches. Dylan mostly shared his wife's disdain for McMansions, but he did envy their friends for their house. The extra room would be nice. Dylan liked their great room for entertaining. And he would have killed for the hot tub out on the Donovans' deck. Seth and Andi didn't flaunt their lifestyle, but Dylan had heard enough stories over the years to know that hot tub had seen plenty of action. He and Cori had never been there for that. They'd attended plenty of the Donovans' parties, so he knew how they went, but he and Cori usually excused themselves when other couples began drunkenly pairing off. That wasn't their scene they'd always insisted. Dylan began to wonder about that.

Seth welcomed Dylan in and back through to the great room. It was too brisk to sit out on the deck. Mid-October in the Delaware Valley was fickle. It could be as low as forty-five one day but pushing eighty on another. This was one of the cooler days. Seth offered him a beverage and Dylan resisted the urge to ask for a beer, or something stiffer. Dylan was screaming on the inside. The storm in his gut would not calm, but he tried to keep a placid exterior and asked for a water. His hand shook when he twisted off the cap.

"It feels like forever since we saw you guys. We need to get together," Seth said, sipping from a glass of iced tea.

"I know you're as busy with kid stuff as we are, and things are still jumbled from Cori going back to work. We're still figuring out schedules."

"Cori's said how much she loves the job. I think it's great for her."

"She does," Dylan said, wondering how much she loved a handful of strange dick that afternoon. "It just makes everything different."

"I can imagine. I know it's not like working in an office, but it's still work. I know if I went back to working something with a regular schedule it would be crazy. I don't know if I could do it. I give Cori all the credit in the world."

"Me too. It's something she's wanted for a while. I'm glad she finally took the plunge and did it."

"What does it mean for you?"

"I make dinner most nights. I'm doing more of the stuff around the house, but I don't keep up with it the way Cori did. I know it annoys her, but I'm trying."

Seth laughed. "She can be tough, that's for sure. Cori doesn't put up with bullshit. As long as you're holding up okay, that's the important part."

"Yeah, I'm good. But there was something I wanted to ask you about."

"I thought something might be on your mind. No offense, Dylan, but it's not like you to call and ask to hang out on a weekday afternoon. Shoot."

Dylan didn't know where to start. He didn't know how much he wanted to admit. Telling Seth Cori was turning tricks—okay, that was unfair—was not an option. But as Seth had seen his wife have sex with other men, Dylan thought he could offer some perspective. He just had to figure out how to put it.

"This is a little hard to talk about. It's pretty personal. You can keep this between us, yeah?"

"Of course," Seth agreed.

“There is an issue I’ve been having when Cori started working. It’s not about her working in general, but more about the kind of work she’s doing. I didn’t think I’d have an issue with it, and I don’t know that issue is even the right word, but I’ve been having some feelings about it.”

Seth nodded. “I wondered how you felt about it. It isn’t an office job, and it’s not like waiting tables. Cori’s putting her hands on people, and sometimes it’s men. I mean, it’s not like she’s stripping or out there hooking, but not every guy would be comfortable with it. I get it.”

“I’m not a jealous guy, you know that. Cori’s always had plenty of guy friends—like you—and it’s not been an issue.”

“I know,” Seth replied, a hint of shade to his tone.

Seth surely remembered that Dylan had a problem with Cori and Seth spending time alone when Dylan first started seeing her. It was only natural, given their history. And of all the guy friends from her old crew, Cori was closest with Seth. They had the kind of easy rapport and chemistry that would give most husbands pause. Seth was not with Andi then. Dylan got over it, and there’d been no issue since. He didn’t know for a fact that Cori had said something to Seth about it back then, but he’d always suspected. Cori and Seth were thick as thieves and Dylan assumed he knew everything. There’d been a weekend where she was going away with a bunch of friends—mostly guys—to a music festival. Her crew was all sharing a room and Dylan was uncomfortable knowing Cori might be crammed onto a motel room bed next to Seth. Cori did not let Dylan dictate to her and went on the weekend trip anyway. She insisted nothing happened that weekend and Dylan believed her. Cori was not a liar.

“But yeah, Cori doing this has brought some things up for me and I thought I could ask you about the stuff you and Andi do. Y’know, the, uh, stuff with other people.”

“Oh,” Seth answered, surprise washing over his face. “Are you guys...”

“No. Oh, no. We haven’t talked about becoming swingers. It’s not like that, but I know Andi’s with other guys, you’ve seen it. How do you handle that? I guess it doesn’t bother you, but how does it feel?”

Seth smiled patiently like he was about to explain something to one of his twins. He did have a condescending side, which Dylan had never loved. It was part of why he’d never been as close to Seth as Cori was. If anything, he’d always had a better relationship with Andi, but he needed a guy’s perspective on this.

“We don’t like to label things. Like, we’ve never thought of ourselves as swingers, right? Andi and I just like to hang out with open-minded people and have fun, and if something happens, that’s awesome. I feel like swinging is more of an affirmative decision like we’re going out to fuck tonight, like to a swingers’ club or something.”

Dylan knew he and Cori weren’t swingers, but making an affirmative decision was exactly what they’d done. There was no ambiguity. Nothing was left to chance. They’d decided together that she was going to jerk off clients for money. He thought of it as something they’d decided together—and that was true—but really it had been Cori’s decision. Dylan supported it—liked it, but he’d never have asked her to do it. After their talks, and role play, Cori said she wanted to do it and Dylan agreed she should.

“And we don’t really do much playing together anymore,” Seth continued. “We haven’t in a long time. Sometimes parties get out of hand when we’re together, but Andi and I see other people on our own. It’s more of an open marriage situation if you had to label it.”

“Really? That’s interesting.” Dylan tried to sound surprised. Cori had told him all of this. They’d had some interesting conversations about open marriages because of it, but he didn’t know if Seth was aware Cori shared everything with him, so Dylan played dumb. “That more fits with what I’m feeling anyway, I think. Cori’s going out and working on people. I’m not there when she does it.”

“But that’s her work, man. She’s going out to take care of people, or massage them, whatever it’s called. She’s not going out to have sex with guys. And it’s not only guys she’s working on. Most of her clients are women, right?”

“Yeah, that’s true. The women clients don’t bother me. That’s kind of hot, if I think about it,” Dylan said, knowing Cori would roll her eyes if she heard him say that. He’d made a similar comment when she started, and Cori was annoyed that he wasn’t taking her new job seriously. They were in a very different place now.

Seth grinned stupidly, and Dylan knew he was picturing Cori working on some hot chick, just like he’d been. It was just that sort of thing that had made Dylan uneasy about his wife being alone with Seth in the beginning. The only reason he didn’t carry it still was his trust in Cori. If not for that, no way he would have trusted his wife hanging out with a guy in an open marriage—especially a guy he was sure would screw her in a heartbeat if given the chance. Seth and Andi supposedly had a “no friends” policy in their arrangement, but did those kinds of rules ever really hold? But he did agree that the picture of Cori massaging another woman was hot. That should have been his focus. Never did Dylan think his imagination would be consumed with his wife working on men and not sexy women. Another sign of how twisted he’d become.

“It is, man, but come on. You know Cori would slay you if she knew you were reducing her job to something sexual.”

Dylan almost laughed aloud at that. It was the heart of the problem, and he wasn’t the only one doing it. Cori was just as guilty. Well, maybe not just as guilty. She still focused on the therapeutic aspects of her job. She just had a new side gig.

“But do you see why it might be giving me weird thoughts?” Dylan asked.

“I guess so? Not really. I don’t know, man. It seems paranoid to me. It’s like you think she’s up to something.”

Dylan was annoyed that Seth couldn’t just be a bro and go with this. He was starting to think that trying to have a real moment with Seth was a mistake. “Can you just go with me on this? I’m not paranoid. I don’t think Cori would ever run around behind my back. I’m just trying to deal with these thoughts of Cori touching other guys and I thought you could relate. I guess I was wrong.”

“Okay, man. Don’t get all upset. I’ll roll with you. Cori working on guys is giving you strange ideas about her touching them. Are these guys getting stiffies from a hottie like Cori touching them? Probably. Who wouldn’t, right? And that’s got you feeling a certain way.”

“Yes, it’s like that. I know these are therapeutic massages, but there’s still something sexual about an attractive woman giving a guy a rubdown. And again, I trust Cori completely, but her being around all those hard dicks got me thinking down some dark roads. If the guy was good-looking, if he had a big dick, if she was tempted. Do you see where I’m going with this, Seth?”

“Exactly.”

“And you like it,” Seth said. It wasn’t a question.

Dylan couldn't look at him, but he had to confess the truth, or there was no point in coming to see Seth. "Yeah, and I don't know how to feel about that. I think about Cori doing these things and it turns me on. Andi really does it, and you're cool with it, so you must feel the same. Or am I crazy?"

Seth grinned and sipped his iced tea. "Guys should be able to talk about this stuff more, right? We're all so guarded with each other. We're afraid of looking like pussies or perverts, but we're all thinking the same things. I'm honored you opened up to me like this."

Dylan internally rolled his eyes. Typical Seth to make it about him. It felt like Seth was talking about everything but the thing.

"Yeah, I dig it when Andi's fucking someone else. I'm usually doing my own thing too, but when I look over and see the ecstasy on her face while some dude is giving it to her good, it's hot. I love that other guys find Andi sexy and want to do her. You feel the same about Cori?"

"I guess I do. I'd never thought about it until now, but I guess I do. Cori's sexy, and it's an ego boost knowing other guys want her."

"But it's more than that, man. Getting off seeing her get off is next level. People in the Lifestyle call it compersion."

"What's that?"

"It's the joy you get in your partner's pleasure, but in this specific case, it's about you getting off on your wife getting off. Can I ask exactly what you think Cori is doing?"

It was a personal question Dylan didn't want to answer, but he was asking Seth to reveal himself. "Your stereotypical massage stuff, giving happy endings, going further..."

"Fucking?" Seth eagerly asked, too earnestly for Dylan's taste. It was funny how he was fine with Baines perverting on Cori, but it bugged him when Seth did it.

"Not so much. It's more her doing things to the guys."

"That's interesting, man. It's like a Madonna-Whore thing like Cori's the good wife and mother at home and then she's going out for work and jerking guys off, maybe blowing them? Lady in the living room, whore in the bedroom kind of thing."

"That's where my mind goes," Dylan agreed, wishing Seth would stop saying whore regarding Cori. He didn't like the man thinking of her that way, but he really didn't like the surge it gave him when he thought of his wife being a whore. “I think part of why I like it is because it’s so dirty. Is that what you feel when Andi’s out with some guy?”

“Somewhat. It’s not quite the same with Andi. She’s always been free with her body, so it’s not like she’s going out and becoming someone else. She’s just always been like that.”

Seth chuckled. “You’re talking about that stuff back when we were teenagers? Yeah, man, everyone was hooking up with everyone else, but that’s not really the same. It was just kids getting stoned and drunk and horny and hooking up. Maybe it seems like more to you because you weren’t around back then, but it was just standard stuff, man. And it’s not who Cori is now anyway. That was like a thousand years ago.”

Dylan knew Seth was right, but at the root of all this for him was that he hadn’t been there back in Cori’s wild days with her crew. He’d never known that Cori, which made it easy to build things up in his mind. The idea of her getting drunk and going off into the woods with whoever wanted her every weekend wasn’t true, but it was always what he’d imagined, and he liked that slutty fantasy of Cori. They’d never had the talk about their numbers before they met. Dylan wanted to know, but he didn’t. Cori couldn’t care less about that stuff. He’d never wanted her to fuck other men, but it was hot knowing that deep down she was capable of it. And now he was confronting it happening in real life. Cori was very capable.

“Okay, I’m asking if you get the same feeling from it. The same thrill,” Dylan said.

“I did. When we first started seeing other people separately, we’d come home and tell each other all about it and fuck like animals. We both got off on hearing what the other was doing, especially Andi. You may think you have an idea about who Andi is, but trust me, man, you have no idea how wild she can be. She’s really got no limits. But it’s evolved over time. We’re just kind of doing our own things now. Andi goes out and sees her guys, and it’s cool, but she doesn’t run home to talk about it. She’s more of a see a couple guys at a time, going from hook up to hook up girl. I’m more into establishing a connection. I date one woman at a time.”

“Are you seeing someone now?”

“I’ve been seeing someone off and on for about a year and a half.”

“And Andi’s cool with that? The sex thing is hot but having relationships with people is totally different.”

“She is. We have an understanding that as long as our extracurricular stuff doesn’t get in the way of our home life, it’s good. I guess I’m in more of a poly place than she is now,” Seth said, sounding philosophical.

Dylan didn’t understand how he was so cool about it. He and Cori weren’t doing a tenth of what the Donovans were up to, and it was tearing him up inside. He didn’t know whether to admire or pity the man. Dylan never wanted to be at a point where he was blasé about Cori being with another man. “You’re cooler than me, Seth. These things in my head have me questioning everything I believe about marriage and being a man.”

“That’s silly, man. You’re into what you’re into. Nobody can judge you for that. If you’re okay with it and Cori’s okay with it, you’re good. And it sounds like you’d be good with her screwing around with other guys, but not dating them.”

Dylan snorted. “I didn’t say that. I don’t know that I’d be okay with any of this actually taking place,” he lied. But the truth was in there. Cori had jerked off a client today and while the dark, dirty side of him wanted, Dylan wasn’t sure he was okay with it. That was what he had to figure out. Was the problem Cori doing it, or was the real problem that he couldn’t accept that he wanted her to? Seth hadn’t been very helpful on that front so far.

“Does Cori know? I think the first step is telling her what you’ve been thinking.”

“She does. It doesn’t bother her,” Dylan admitted, thinking that was the understatement of the year.

Seth nodded. “That’s the Cori I know. Nothing phases her. She’s so open-minded. I love that about her, just like I’m sure you do. She just came out and asked me what was up with me and Andi. It wasn’t like I volunteered we’re in an open marriage. Cori just sensed something was different about us and came out and asked me. I think she thought I was cheating, but the point is that she wasn’t shy about confronting me. And when I explained it to her, she was so cool about it. She was curious about how it worked, kind of like you now, but I never got any judgment from her.”

“Yeah, that’s Cori. She didn’t judge me. I was afraid she might, but Cori embraced it.”

Seth had a disconcerting look. It was like he had some secret understanding about Cori that Dylan couldn’t. Ice daggers shot through his chest when he thought that Cori may have already confessed all this to Seth.

Dylan would die if Seth knew what they'd agreed to, and that Cori had given her first paid hand job today. It hadn't even occurred to Dylan that she might have told Seth, as close as they were. He didn't think that was something Cori was eager to share. But Seth was making some calculation, some evaluation of the Lynchs' marriage. Dylan could see it.

"Tell me if I'm wrong, but it sounds like the only real problem here is one you're having with yourself. Cori started this job, and the thought of her touching other men took your mind to some new places. You like it, but you don't. Cori doesn't have any problem with it. You need to make peace with liking what you like. Stop being trapped by society's programming. That's what's telling you to dislike this part of yourself, man. But no one's getting hurt. Let go of it, seriously. If you do that and explore it, you might find a whole lot out about yourself, Dylan. And Cori, too."

Dylan wanted to tell him it wasn't that easy, but he couldn't without making a full confession. He could deal if it was just thoughts. He and Cori had talked that through, and while he still found his own urges weird, he'd accepted them. Wanting Cori to actually do things was different.

"I know you're right. I should just roll with it. Let me ask you something else. Would you be okay if Andi was doing stuff and you weren't?"

"That's more of a hotwife scene. It's not my thing, but I don't judge it."

"What's that?"

"Sort of like swinging, but only the wife is with other people, usually because the husband gets off on it. Is that where your head is at? You haven't said where you are in any of this."

"I've only thought about her doing stuff with clients, so no, I'm not involved."

"Let me ask you this, then. If she did that, or if she was with a guy in another way, would you also want to be with another woman?"

"I told you, we're not talking about being swingers, Seth."

"I know. Chill out, man. You're in that general headspace, though. Do any of these thoughts you have involve you with someone else, or is it just her?"

"It's only been her," Dylan admitted.

Seth nodded thoughtfully and he felt he was being judged. Seth said that wasn't his scene. Did he think Dylan was less of a man because he was only thinking about Cori and other men, but not about getting his own dick wet? Dylan found it bizarre. Why shouldn't Seth?

"So, you wouldn't be okay with Andi going out with people if you weren't?"

"There have been times she's had someone else, and I didn't. That's not uncommon in open arrangements. I get jealous if she's going out and having fun and I'm left home to take care of the kids. I think it works best if there's balance—if we're both doing our thing. I wouldn't shut Andi down if I was between girls, but it would probably motivate me to get moving and get out there. But don't judge yourself against me, man. Your thing is your thing. You do you, man. If you can embrace it, you have no idea what you might be open to. You might just want to take it out of your head and into reality."

"I told you, Seth..."

"Right, you're not swingers. I got it. But once your mind starts going places, you never know where you're going to end up."

Dylan was trying to think of a witty response to shut Seth down when his phone vibrated in his pocket. He checked it and found a text from Cori: Get home now! I need you!

"That's Cori," he said. "Gotta go."

"When Cori calls, you'd better hop to, man. I know it," Seth agreed, grinning.

Dylan hated that grin. He hated all the things Seth knew about his wife.

Chapter Four

Dylan whipped his car into the driveway, parking behind Cori's minivan. Her text said to meet her in the garage. Neither of them parked their cars in the garage because it was used for storage, clogged with all manner of debris of suburban life: bicycles, lawn furniture, outdoor games, gardening tools, a lawnmower, their beach gear, and skis and snowboards. Cori did her best to keep it organized, but family chaos worked against her. Dylan went to the side door and slipped inside.

The last rays of daylight came in through the windows at the top of the garage door, but the overhead light was off, leaving the garage dim and moody. Dylan whispered Cori's name and squinted, trying to find her among all the junk stored there. She grabbed his arm, yanking him to the right. He was pulled into a kiss. Cori's tongue snaked into his mouth as he tried to speak. Dylan caught right on and wrapped his arms around her. Masturbating earlier had done nothing to slake his lust. He needed her. Her ass was nice and firm in his hands. Cori ground against him, pushing her taut stomach against his hard-on. He'd sprung to steel the moment she kissed him.

Cori walked backward, pulling him with her until she was backed up against their chest freezer. She pulled at the button holding his chinos closed. He swore he felt her heart pounding through her chest. Dylan was terribly excited and wanted her badly, but why were they doing it in the garage? He wanted to spread her out on their bed.

"Why here?" he asked.

"Kids are home," she panted, freeing his button, and pulling down his chinos. "If we both sprinted past them they'd know what we're doing, and you worry about that. We can do it here. They don't know we're home yet."

“Unless they look outside,” Dylan replied, pulling off her tight shirt and tossing it to the floor. He tried groping her breasts and when he couldn’t feel anything through her heavily padded bra, he unsnapped it and tossed that to the floor too.

Cori had started grabbing him through his boxers but stopped. She stared up at him, her blue eyes blazing, even in the dim light. “Do you want to stop?”

“Fuck no, Cor.”

“Good. Now do me.”

Dylan pushed his boxers and chinos to his ankles while Cori wriggled out of her black leggings and thong. A wicked idea flashed: was this the second time his wife had stripped today? She was only supposed to give a hand job, but what if she got turned on and things got out of control? Dylan knew better than anyone how Cori could be when she was super horny. Stripping in the garage with the kids right in the house was a perfect example. But her burning need to fuck now suggested she hadn’t crossed that line. She needed it because she was horny but hadn’t done anything. He believed she’d been good, but there was that part of him that wished she hadn’t been. Dylan pressed his fingers between her thighs and found she was soaked. He took her by the waist and boosted her up onto the edge of the chest freezer.

They kissed frantically and reached for each other. Cori’s hands were between them, down below, feeling for his cock, while Dylan wound her hair in his fingers and teased her tits with the other hand. He plucked at her nipples, and she moaned into their kiss. Cori held him and fitted his head to her slick folds. She pulled her lips from his with a gasp and pleaded, “Stop fucking around and put it in me. I don’t need...”

Cori’s sentence stalled with a gasp when he shoved inside her. She hissed a sibilant yesss when he buried to the hilt, his balls tapping the side of the chest freezer. She locked her legs around his waist and pinned him inside her. Dylan couldn’t move but didn’t need to. Cori worked her hips, pushing at him while using her core to massage his meat inside her. Dylan gritted his teeth and just held back from crying out. The kitchen was just beyond, and if either of their kids were in there he’d be heard. He gripped Cori’s face with both hands and forcefully kissed her. He’d never wanted to possess his wife so badly in his life. She’d been playing with another man’s cock and now he needed to replant his flag, which was at full staff.

“Fuck, Cori. You’re on fire,” he grunted.

“You know why,” she panted.

“You were bad...”

“Yeah...”

“Jerked off your client...”

“He paid me to. I had to do it. Mmm...”

“You wanted to, Cori.”

“Yesss... You wanted me to do it.”

“Yes,” he agreed.

Dylan pulled loose so he could fuck her. He slipped his arms under her knees, tilting Cori back and she held onto the sides of the chest freezer. He wasn’t so much taller than her, but he loomed over her in the semi-darkness. He felt power surging through him. Odd that Cori jerking off a stranger made him feel more powerful. He began pounding into her, grunting with every stab. Her little tits jiggled every time he thrust. Dylan thought of how she’d displayed them for her client. Next time she should go braless, he thought.

“Did he like your outfit?” he asked, thrusting.

“Yeah...couldn’t...stop...staring...”

“You loved that, Cori. Loved him staring at your tits—your ass.”

“Yeah, babe... I knew he...wanted me...”

“Staring at your body...hard before you touched him...”

“Yeah...babe...he wanted it...”

The chest freezer began to rock and scrape on the concrete floor. It was thunderously loud in the still garage, but Dylan only sped up. He was lost in the moment, worries about being discovered forgotten. He pictured this man ogling his wife, getting hard when she laid hands on him. How many times had this guy dreamed of Cori touching his dick, and now she was doing it? Dylan was weirdly jealous. He was the one fucking her now, but he wanted to be in that guy’s position, being teased and then rewarded.

“Bad enough to pay for it,” Dylan taunted, tightening his grip on the backs of her thighs.

“Yeah...couldn’t get the...money...fast...enough...ahh...babe...”

“Uhn...Cori...you’re so hot...love that...love that you...you’re...”

“Say it, babe...say it...”

Dylan didn’t know exactly what he meant. He wasn’t exactly thinking clearly. His mind was in two places. He was there in the garage, fucking his wife so hard sweat beaded on his forehead despite the chill in the air, but he was in the room, watching his wife jerk off a stranger. Dylan boosted up on his tiptoes to drive it down into her. His balls slapped her ass. He heard her wet heat sloshing around his piston as he took her. Cori's cries were getting loud—too loud. She was about to come. He was close.

"Tell me...tell me what I am..." she moaned.

"Cori..."

"Say it!" she demanded, fire in her eyes. Suddenly, he read her mind. It all clicked.

"You're a whore! Uhn...fuck...Cor...you're a whore..."

"Yes! He paid me...oh god, babe...he paid me...I jerked him off..."

"He touched you..." Dylan guessed, hoping.

"Yes...he paid me...he touched me...he wanted more..."

"Where Cor? Where did he touch you?" Dylan panted. He hated how desperate he sounded. His balls tightened. It was too much. His fantasies were all happening.

"Ahh...my ass...my tits...touched me everywhere babe..."

"He wanted more?"

"Yeah, babe...he was so hard..."

"Big dick?"

"Yeah...so big...thick..."

Dylan groaned. He loved and hated hearing it. His wife had a huge dick in her hands today—a dick that wasn't his.

"He wanted your mouth on him. Wanted you to blow him, didn't he Cori?"

"Yeah...yeah...I'm sure he did..."

"You wanted to..."

Something dark passed over her face. Cori almost answered instinctively but held back. Even in her ecstasy, he saw it. Dylan knew her too well, in a way no other man could. That's why she was his, no matter what she did with someone else.

"Babe...do you...like...having...a whore...wife..."

Cori was so close that she could hardly get the words out. Her moans were dangerously loud. At least the chest freezer stopped screeching on the floor. It was backed against a wall stud, but now it was rhythmically thumping the wall.

"Yeah...oh fuck yeah, Cori... I love you being a whore..."

“Ahh...yeah...babe...yeah...”

“My...fucking...whore...wife...”

Dylan punctuated each word with a power thrust, and on the last one he detonated, his balls pulling tight and delivering their load. His essence rushed through his shaft and filled her juicing, grasping pussy. Cori shrieked. He plastered his hand over her mouth, and she bit his palm. Dylan cursed but kept it there. She arched her back, locking her legs around him again, and lifted her butt off the chest freezer. Her body spasmed as she came like she was possessed and lost control of her body. Cori finally slackened and settled back onto the chest freezer, tearing his hand from her mouth.

“Can’t...fucking...breathe...” Cori gasped. She kept her legs locked around him and feeling the little tremors rocking her body gave him chills. God, she was a sexy woman. Cori licked her dry lips and laughed. She often laughed after an intense orgasm. She said, “Are you trying to kill me?”

“It would be easy to hide the body. The freezer’s right here,” he joked.

“You’d have to dump the industrial-sized bag of fries in there.”

“Hey, sex like that makes a guy hungry.”

“You’re not the only one.”

Cori kissed him hard. “I love you so much, you know that, right?”

“Of course, I know that. You’d never put up with me if you didn’t love me.”

“Good point. You still love me... After this...”

“I’ve never loved you more, Cor. I know it sounds silly because we’ve been together for so long, but it’s like I’m seeing you for the first time again.” He thought about his conversation with Seth, about her days with her old crew before they met. “It’s like I’m seeing a side of you I’ve never seen before.”

Cori laughed. “The slutty side? The side that gives handys for money?”

“Yeah, that side.” Dylan laughed too. “I guess this means today was a success?”

“It was. It was exactly what I expected, but completely different. At first, I thought I’d really fucked up and Steve was going to report me, but he was totally into it. I think he just couldn’t believe what I was offering. Once he got it, he was all in. I mean, he was mentally undressing me the moment I walked in.”

“Of course, he was, Cor. I think most guys do that.”

“Stop it. That’s silly.”

“You said he’s always staring at your ass.”

“He does, but I could tell he also appreciated my extra effort today. I wondered if I should have gone sluttier when I was getting ready, but this was perfect.”

“Just the right amount of sluttiness,” Dylan agreed, although he would have liked Cori to go sluttier. “He actually did touch you?”

“A little, just over my clothes. Is that okay?”

“Yeah, it’s hot, Cor. It’s all hot. It would be mean to make him keep his hands to himself.”

“Just over the clothes, though.”

“I trust you, Cor. If you had let it go further, I’d be okay with it.”

“Really?” Cori replied, surprised.

“Yeah, I mean, I think so,” he hurriedly answered.

“Is that a blank check?” she asked.

“I don’t know, Cor. We can discuss this sometime when I’m not trapped between your legs and my dick is still inside you.”

“Barely, babe. I mean, it’s done.”

“Don’t worry, he’ll be back when you tell me all about it later.”

Cori grinned. “I thought I just did.”

“Oh, I need every detail. You’re going to have to reenact it with me upstairs.”

“Am I now? I thought I’d go to bed early. I’m pretty beat.”

“Come on, Cor. Daddy still has needs. I need my taste.”

Cori laughed and kissed him. “Don’t worry, babe. I’ll take care of you. And don’t ever call yourself Daddy when we’re having sex again.”

“Thought you might like that. We are trying new things.” Dylan laughed.

“Ah, no. But if you are pimping me out, I guess I need to give you your cut. You do need your taste.”

“Now you’re talking, Cori. It’s about time you got out there on the street and started earning.”

“Funny. We really should get inside.”

“Yeah, we should,” he replied, peeling away from her.

“So, we really are okay?” Cori asked.

“Yeah, we are. I am. I don’t know why, but I’m good with this. Are you?” Dylan rubbed his wet mouth on the back of her hand and rolled away from her.

“It’s complicated, but I think so. I’d be okay with anything after what you just did.”

Cori was on her back on their bed, smiling and sweating, twisting her body and rubbing her thighs together as the last of the post-climax tremors vibrated through her. The bedroom was chilly, and her nipples puckered in the cold air as the heat left her body. She should have tucked under the sheet, but Cori didn’t want to move. She wanted to lay there and bask in the lingering tingles of her orgasm.

The kids had known they were home when they had their tryst in the garage. Cori thought Jack had heard them, too. He couldn’t look his mother in the eye and mumbled as he fled for his room. Cori still had enough decency to be embarrassed. She also felt bad for Jack. No one wanted to hear their parents having sex, and Cori’s moans had been particularly spirited. But she wouldn’t have changed a thing. Dylan should have slapped his hand over her mouth sooner.

Grace made a few sarcastic comments when they sat together for dinner. Cori wondered if her brother told Grace he’d overheard their gross parents, as she didn’t think Grace could have overheard them from her room. Jack continued to be awkward through dinner and for once Cori was glad he inhaled his food and excused himself from the table early. Grace was in no such rush. She seemed to enjoy tormenting her parents. Cori didn’t rise to the bait, and Dylan ignored it. He was lost in his head. Cori was dying to know what her husband was thinking.

Dylan’s thoughts weren’t completely opaque. The erotic tension between them suggested what he was thinking about. He kept finding ways to brush against Cori when they cleared the table after dinner and finally pulled her into a kiss by the sink. Caressing followed and for a moment she thought they might get it on again right there. Cori was game, but Dylan pushed her away when she tried to get into his pants.

They turned in early, and Dylan was clear what he wanted the moment he closed and locked their bedroom door. Cori wanted them to just strip and pick up where they left off in the garage, but Dylan wanted a blow-by-blow re-enactment of what she’d done with Steve. She wanted sex, but agreed, knowing she owed it to him. After their tryst in the garage, she'd taken a shower and changed into comfy sweats, but Cori changed back into her pushup bra, shrunken work polo, and a new pair of black leggings.

Cori was not about to fetch her massage table from the car and took care of Dylan on the bed instead. But everything else was as close to her treatment of Steve as possible. Cori answered her husband's every breathless question as she narrated her first hand job for money. She tried reading Dylan's reaction to see if she'd shocked him, but he was too deep into her story to show anything but extreme lust. He was especially excited when Cori told him how Steve had touched her and put his hands where Steve's had been. Dylan didn't last as long as her client. He came fast, and he was spent. Cori was not going to be coaxing life back into his cock, which was disappointing. Recounting the treatment for her husband had Cori drenched by the time Dylan's jizz oozed out over her pumping fist. Cori didn't need to worry about getting her's though. Dylan pushed her right onto her back and brought her to a squirming, panting orgasm with his tongue and fingers. His renewed interest in going down on her was one of the favorite side effects of her new side gig.

Dylan's question didn't have a simple answer. Cori was good with what she'd done, but she wasn't entirely comfortable about being good with it, and deep down she still didn't understand why Dylan was so more-than-good with it. They were in weird, kinky territory, and she wished she understood it better.

"I'm good," she replied. "It's not such a big deal, right? It was just a hand job."

Dylan laughed and it sounded like stress relief. "I guess it's not a big deal that my wife gave another guy a hand job—for money."

"That doesn't sound like you're all good, babe."

"No, I really am. On a scale of flirting to fucking, a hand job is somewhere in the middle, closer to flirting than a blowjob would be, and it was work. It's not like you have a boyfriend. I couldn't handle that."

"I don't want a boyfriend, babe. But, I do need to know you're okay with this. If you think this was all a big mistake, please tell me now."

"No, I don't think it was a mistake at all," he answered, rushing out the words. "Sorry, you know I can run off at the mouth when I'm trying to process things. This is why I don't like it when you make me talk about my feelings. But you're right, we need to talk about this stuff. It wasn't a mistake. It's incredible, Cor. It's weird, but it's incredible, and I think the weird part just takes some processing. I have no context for this because it's not something I ever considered possible."

"But you like it. I know you like it," she said, reaching over to caress his spent prick. She touched it like a talisman.

Dylan grinned. "Yeah, Cor. I don't think I've been hiding that. It's hot. It turns me on like nothing else. If you want to keep doing this, I want you to do it. You don't need to worry about that."

"And you don't see me differently now?" Cori felt silly. It wasn't like her to be insecure.

"Of course I do, Cor." Dylan paused, making Cori hold her breath. He was playing with her and smiled before he continued. She wanted to slap his limp dick. "Cori, you are sexier, hotter than ever. I always knew this was inside of you, but I never really got to see it."

"The sex worker side of me?" It was her turn to laugh.

"No. This casually sexual, loose—I meant that in a good way—side of you. I have this image of how you were before we met, and it's like I'm seeing that girl now. And I like it. Seth told me you weren't like what's in my head, but to me this kind of confirms it."

"You say all that like it's a positive, but I don't know most women would take it that way. You're lucky I understand you so well, babe. I was pretty casual about hooking up in the past, but I never did it for money. Maybe I should have. I could have cleaned up."

"I know you could have," Dylan replied.

There was nothing but love and admiration in his eyes. Cori felt better but caught a detail that had slipped by her. "What do you mean, Seth told you..."

Dylan looked uncertain and guilty like a teen caught sneaking in after curfew. Cori tensed. What had he done? He said, "I talked to Seth this afternoon. That's where I was when you texted me."

Fear and anger flared inside her. Surely, Dylan did not go to one of her oldest friends and spill their secrets—her secrets. Dylan could not be that stupid. She loved Seth and trusted him, but she did not want him to know what she was doing. The chance that all her friends would know what she was doing was too great. And even if Cori did want Seth to know, she would be the one to tell him. She turned onto her side to face her husband.

Being naked did not match her sudden mood change and she grabbed at the comforter to cover herself.

“What did you say to him?” she asked evenly, trying to tamp down her anger.

“I didn’t tell him what you’re doing. I carefully avoided that,” he defensively replied. Cori kept staring at him and he continued. “I was going crazy while you were out. It all kept running through my mind—what you were doing, what you might be doing, where things could go...”

“You knew what I was doing, Dylan. We had a plan and I followed it. Nothing else was going to happen. Don’t you trust me?”

“I do. Of course, I do. It’s not about trust, really, it’s about the crazy places my brain goes. But you liked it, didn’t you? It wasn’t just a dispassionate transaction for you.”

“What do you mean?”

“You rushed home so horny that I had to fuck you in the garage. Obviously, jerking that guy off did it for you.”

“So sorry you had to fuck me. Don’t worry, you won’t have to fuck me again.”

“That’s not what I mean, and you know it, Cori. What I’m saying is it’s not just about the money or taking a crazy risk for you. This excites you the same way it excites me. And there’s temptation in that. It’s just human nature.”

Cori bit back her immediate response. Dylan was right, but she didn’t want to admit that, both because she was angry and because admitting that she liked acting like a whore felt so wrong. Dylan knew it, of course he did. Cori didn’t exactly hide it, but acting it out during sex and just saying the words during a serious conversation were different things. Everything was theoretical before, but now it was all very real. It wasn’t just role play. They were doing it, and even though her husband was her closest friend some things were difficult to say.

“Yes, it also excites me. I’m not doing this for the money. I wouldn’t give a hand job for the money unless we were going to be out on the street or something. But I can control myself. I’m not going to jump on top of some client because playing with his dick turns me on. Give me more credit than that.”

Dylan looked like he was about to say something but changed tack. “You’re right. I know you wouldn’t just do something crazy, Cori. But the danger that you could, even if it's only in my head, is part of it for me."

Cori tried to be reasonable about it and accept that his fantasy of this might not align with the reality. That would be okay, as long as it didn't complicate things. But Dylan was not off the hook for going to see Seth.

"You still haven't said what you were talking to Seth about."

"I knew I couldn't tell him what you're—what we're doing, really doing—but I also needed to pick the brain of someone who might understand. Who else do we know who fits that bill but Seth?"

"Because of him and Andi," she said. Cori hated to admit it, but it made sense. She still wished he hadn't done it.

"Right. I just told him I was having these thoughts about you...and men...because of your job. Your regular job. Nothing about hand jobs. But I thought I could get away with it because you do touch men in your day job."

"You told Seth that me giving professional massages is giving you perverted thoughts about me and other men?"

"Pretty much. I know it sounds weird, and a little creepy, but it's better than the truth, right?"

"I guess." She was not in the mood to concede anything but knew it had to be hard for Dylan to admit that to Seth. It did sound creepy if he was turned on by her doing her job, like he couldn't control himself. She asked, "What did Seth say?"

"Talked to me about swinging, and what they're doing. It doesn't quite line up with what I told him, but some of the feelings are the same. He asked if I'd told you what was in my head, I said I did, and you're cool with it. He told me to get out of my head and feel what I'm feeling. He said I'm my own worst enemy."

"Good advice for what you told him since I'm not a prude and I'm okay with your fantasies. Good advice for both of us, I think. I know I keep getting hung up on how I think I should feel," Cori admitted.

"Me, too. I wonder what he would have said if he knew the real story."

Cori dug her nails into his thigh. "He never will. No one from our real life can ever know anything."

"Hey! I know that. I don't want that any more than you do. Giving hand jobs for money may be bad, but I swear being the husband who gets off on you doing it is worse."

“I don’t know about that,” she said, but he may have been right. “And you’re sure you didn’t say anything that Seth could use to figure things out?”

“I was very careful, Cor. Sorry, I guess I shouldn’t have done it, but I was going out of my mind.”

“If this is too much for you, babe...”

“No, it’s not. I can handle it, Cor. What happened today, afterward, that was intense. I can’t wait until the next time.”

Cori laughed. “You’re so sure there’s going to be a next time?”

Dylan shot her a look. “I know you, woman. You had too much fun today.”

“Maybe,” Cori conceded. “And maybe, if you’re lucky, I really will go further someday. I could always tell Janine I changed my mind about that client, Hayes Caldwell. Sounds like he expects more than just a quick handy at the end.”

“Whatever you’re comfortable with, Cor.”

“I just don’t think I want to go there. Besides, I should fly under the radar with what I’m doing. I don’t think looping in Janine that I’m open to extras is a good idea. It feels like a deal with the devil.”

“If that’s what you want, Cor.”

“You’d really be okay with me becoming some rich guy’s plaything?” Cori was skeptical.

“Hey, it could be fun, right?”

“Famous last words,” she joked, realizing it wasn’t just a joke.

Chapter Five

Dylan adjusted to having a sex worker wife much better than he'd have expected. One of those adjustments was being frank about what they—Cori—was doing. It was still fun to use euphemisms for what Cori was doing. Extras. Special treatments. Rub and tug. Personal relief provider. But the truth was that when Cori crossed that line, she became a sex worker. Dylan should have been horrified. Any reasonable man would have been. A reasonable husband would have thrown his wife out at such news and called a divorce lawyer. He'd be plotting how to keep the kids away from his whore wife. No reasonable man would have encouraged his wife to become a sex worker. Dylan felt he was just as responsible for Cori's new side gig—another euphemism—as she was.

Claiming equal responsibility was taking too much credit. He knew that. It had ultimately been Cori's decision to do it, and he knew she wanted it at least as much as he did. Dylan liked to think Cori was doing it because she knew it got him off, but the truth was far more complicated than that. It was awesome that Dylan liked it, but that wasn't the reason Cori was doing it. He knew his wife better than that. She loved him and would do almost anything for him, but jerking off her clients was not on that list. Cori would never do it just for him. She did it because she wanted to. Something inside her wanted to push boundaries and play with other men's dicks. She likes the attention, Baines had told him. Baines had no idea how right he was, just as Dylan had never understood just how deep the love of attention ran in her. It frightened him.

The conversation Dylan shared with Seth was the closest he'd ever come to admitting to another human being what he thought of his wife's past. He didn't even really like admitting it to himself, because he loved her and felt like it made him a bad person. The naked truth was that Dylan thought Cori had been kind of a slut before they met. He didn't judge her for it in any way that mattered, but it was still an adjustment. It was one thing to accept your girlfriend had a bunch of guy friends, but quite another to live with knowing she'd hooked up with so many of those guy friends. Was it normal to hang out with guys who'd seen your girlfriend naked? Dylan used to wonder how many of those dicks had been in Cori's mouth.

The only way he'd survived it was by turning it into a positive. Cori may have taken a spin with those guys, but she didn't stop on any of them. The train kept rolling—until she met Dylan. He was the man she'd chosen to stay with. But his fascination with Cori's slutty past had never entirely gone away. It was what he'd admitted to Seth. Part of Dylan had always wished he'd known her back then and seen her in action. He wasn't a jealous man, but he was jealous that Seth and the others had known that side of his wife.

Dylan had no choice but to confront and understand all those old feelings now and admit their dark truth. He wanted to know the slutty version of his wife because imagining it was such a powerful aphrodisiac. When he allowed his mind to truly go there, Dylan became achingly hard. Baines may have jokingly planted the seeds that Cori's new job could be something more, but it was the dark, fertile soil of Dylan's old fascination that made them grow and encouraged Cori to sell herself. Dylan couldn't know if the fruit would stay sweet as it was now or turn rotten.

Cori swore she could control herself and that she wouldn't be tempted to go too dark, but Dylan knew the risk was real, no matter what she insisted. It wasn't a matter of trust to him but acknowledging reality. Things had a way of snowballing and getting away from people. Cori loved the buzz of handling this first client, Steve. How long before she craved a bigger thrill or faced a bigger temptation? He wouldn't blame her for being tempted. Truthfully, Dylan wouldn't even blame her for giving into temptation. He understood the lure of the forbidden fruit all too well. He was just as sucked in as she was. After all, Dylan's forbidden craving was to see Cori give into temptation. He wanted to see the version of his wife that threw caution to the wind and was utterly free with her body. Dylan knew that if that happened, he would encourage Cori to go for it, even though it scared the shit out of him. That was the crux of his dilemma: the thing Dylan wanted most both frightened and disgusted him.

Dylan looked at the time on his computer screen. Cori was probably finished with the legitimate part of her appointment with Steve. His balls ached as he thought about his wife moving on to the good part. It was her third time seeing her special client. Steve had rebooked Cori right away after that first rub and tug and now it was turning into a weekly appointment. Dylan expected Cori to think it was too much. She didn't want to just think of herself as a sex worker, but Cori was enthusiastic to see Steve again. Her second appointment with him had been much more relaxed than that first time. Cori glowed when she talked about how much fun it was to play with Steve. It fed Dylan's excited paranoia.

Cori hummed as she got ready that morning, not hiding her excitement to see Steve again. Dylan commented on it, and she flushed red, embarrassed. Dylan felt bad about that when she rushed to assure him that it was still just business. Cori enjoyed her side gig, that was all. He told her he was just as excited as she was, which was the truth. He just had an undercurrent of worry that he didn't see in his wife. The crazy thing was that Cori told him over and over that Steve wasn't even really her type. He was just an average guy, she insisted. Dylan had his doubts, but if that was true, how would she react to a client she was truly attracted to?

Steve was not her first appointment that day, something she planned to speak to him about. Cori wanted Steve to book on days he was her only client. He was third in line that day, and since she didn't have time to run home, she carried a change of clothes with her. She would change in the minivan between appointments. Dylan laughed and said it was like her old clubbing days when she would change in the back of her friend's car because she'd dressed for a night of studying when she left the house in front of her parents. Cori smiled at the reminder. It was yet another throwback to her naughty, slutty days.

The photo Cori snapped in the minivan had Dylan jealously thinking Steve was a lucky man. She'd upped her outfit game. After wearing the same outfit for her second appointment with Steve, Cori had wanted to do something new. She'd modeled the outfit for Dylan's approval the night before, and he loved it so much that he demanded a walkthrough of Steve's upcoming appointment. Cori happily obliged. She loved teasing her husband. But seeing a picture of Cori in the minivan in some parking lot somewhere was so much hotter than her modeling in their bedroom. Had anyone glimpsed her changing? Dylan loved the idea of some random stranger seeing his wife half-naked. And knowing she was all tarted up for another man, a paying customer, was like a shot of adrenaline to his dick and his brain. It was the thing that sent him into this current spiral of horny navel-gazing.

Cori had found a green polo dress that nearly matched the color of her Elemental Bodyworks polo shirt. She joked she'd have had the work logo embroidered on it if she'd had more time. It wasn't obviously slutty, like the top she'd shrunken, but it did alluringly hug her body, and it only came to about mid-thigh. Cori had great legs and it was smart to show them off. Steve wouldn't be able to keep his eyes off her legs and ass, no doubt wishing that dress was just a couple of inches shorter. It was the type of thing she could wear to a neighborhood summer barbeque, except Cori would certainly wear leggings under it around their friends. She wore sheer tights for her client and left all the neckline buttons undone. Tantalizing skin was exposed, even if she wasn't sporting the enhanced cleavage today. Cori skipped the pushup bra. Dylan preferred her perky little tits without it and bet Steve would too. In the photo she texted to Dylan after changing, she leaned forward, exposing a frilly pink and white bra, teasing him that Steve would have the same sight every time she leaned forward. Dylan had groaned, wishing he could be a fly on the wall for her appointment. He'd give anything to see one of her rub and tugs firsthand but knew that was impossible.

Dylan imagined Steve would be hard the whole time, watching Cori move around in that dress, trying to will it off of her. Steve was only getting a handy, but Dylan was sure he'd pay for more if it were offered. Once Cori got down to business, Steve would not last long. He'd know he could touch her ass because he had before. Dylan knew he would try to slip his hand up the back of her dress and grab her ass. Cori wouldn't stop him. She'd welcome the attention. Dylan was sure she wore a thong today, so Steve would essentially be feeling her bare ass through those sheer tights. Dylan couldn't help himself while he imagined the appointment and took out his cock.

Cori would push her butt out, encouraging Steve to touch her while she jerked him. In Dylan's vision, Steve was both quick but also lasted long enough to get his hands all over Cori. Steve would move onto grabbing her tits. It was unlikely, but Dylan saw Steve rolling onto his side so he could get both hands on her at once. Cori would have to lean forward to keep working his meat. Steve would pant with excitement as he massaged her little tits, her hard nipples popping through the dress. Cori would start moaning. Steve wouldn't be able to control himself with his hands all over Cori. He'd explode, and because he was on his side facing her, his load would explode all over her dress, painting her from the waist up. Cori would groan with disappointment because the treatment was over too soon, and she wanted Steve to keep groping her. She'd keep pumping him, hoping to bring him back to life. When that failed, she'd bend at the waist and suck him between those beautiful lips.

Dylan didn't get to fixate on what would happen next because he came. He blasted his load into a tissue with a satisfied grunt, and the vision of Cori with Steve evaporated as he settled back into his desk chair and his brain clouded with orgasmic bliss. He didn't feel the shame he'd used to. Dylan still knew he was weird, but he was moving past it—at least when he came. He didn't think about himself at all, but how lucky he was to have such an insanely sexy wife. Dylan couldn't wait for her to get home and tell him all about her appointment.

“Man, what are you doing here?” Dylan asked, opening the door to find Baines on the other side holding two six-packs. “Shouldn't you be working?”

“Short day. We only had finishing work on the house and then clean up. I sent the crew home early, and then realized I had nothing to do. I was going to call and ask if you wanted to meet at the strip club for lunch, but you always say no.”

“Strip clubs aren't my thing these days, besides, who actually eats off the menu there? Ew.”

“Whatever. The Hideout has pretty good burgers. You should come out sometime, dude. It's not like Cori cares.”

“Yeah, she'd be jealous she didn't get to come with us,” Dylan agreed, laughing.

“The three of us should go then.”

“Yeah, I'll get Cori to put it on the calendar. And what's with the beer? It's like two in the afternoon.”

“The workday’s done. It’s time for a cold one.”

Dylan could really use a drink, but he wasn’t an overgrown adolescent. “I don’t think having the kids come home from school to find me drinking is the example I want to set.”

“Suit yourself,” Baines said, pushing past Dylan and into the house.

Dylan sighed and closed the front door, following Baines into the house. Baines went back through to the family room and deposited himself on the couch. He usually wanted to sit outside, but the weather had turned too cold in the late fall. He opened a bottle and offered it up to Dylan. It was a terrible idea, but he did need a drink and he took it, taking a seat in the recliner in the corner. Dylan wanted the beer, but he also hoped he could usher Baines out the door if he had a beer with him. Cori would be home soon and all he could think about was getting her upstairs.

“You’re a terrible influence,” Dylan said, savoring the first, cold sip. “I should be working right now.”

“I’m just the influence you need, dude. You’ve gotten too uptight in your old age. Besides, isn’t the advantage of working from home that you can do what you want?”

“That’s funny. I think I’m anything but uptight,” Dylan replied, thinking he could prove it if he’d been willing to confess his secrets.

Baines was his best friend. Dylan was closer to Baines than Seth, but he could never tell Baines the things he’d confided to Cori’s old friend. Seth got it, but Baines would never understand. He could just see Baines calling him a cuck and insisting Cori treat him if she was giving out handys. It would be like Christmas morning for Baines. Dylan knew his friend would never stab him in the back by going after his wife, but if Baines knew Cori was up for grabs, he would jump right on that.

“Maybe not uptight, but you’re not the fun, crazy guy you were when we were younger.”

“That’s called growing up. You should try it.”

Baines made a face. “Growing up is overrated. I’ve got a great life. My business is doing well, and thanks to technology I can get laid whenever I want. Life is good.”

“But don’t you wish you had something more stable? Tinder hookups aren’t going to take care of you when you’re old and decrepit.”

“I’m not sure Cori’s going to take care of you either, dude. She’ll probably dump your ass in a home and go out partying.”

“Yeah, I could see that,” Dylan admitted. He had a sudden vision of Cori out at a bar being picked up by a much younger guy. She was definitely MILF material now and Dylan had no doubt she would be in another twenty years too.

“Dude, I’ll take her out partying. I’ll still be rolling then.”

“When we’re all that age, Cori will run circles around both of us. You know that.”

“True,” Baines agreed, nodding. Dylan got the feeling he was trying to picture a sixty-five-year-old Cori partying down.

“How is Tinder treating you?” Dylan asked, hoping to shift the conversation off of his wife. The more they talked about Cori, the more he thought about how badly he wanted her home—just not with Baines still there.

“You know how it is. It’s kind of like pussy on tap if you play your cards right.”

“If you have no standards, you mean?”

“Don’t judge, dude. We don’t all have such a hot wife at home. Most wives are not keeping it as tight as Cori after twenty years. No, not all of my dates are tens, but as long as they’re a solid seven, I’m good. Meet up at the bar, have a couple drinks, if it seems like she’s a goer, it’s back to my place. We do the deed and I hustle them out of there.”

“Really? It sounds like you’re treating them like hookers. They don’t care about that?”

“I get a clinger sometimes, but there is no staying overnight. That is a hard and fast rule, dude. Never let them stay over. Don’t want them getting the wrong idea and nesting. But I’m not treating them like hookers. I don’t pay for it. Don’t need to.”

Dylan smiled knowingly; sure Baines would pay for it if he knew Cori was for hire. How crazy would it be if she took on Baines as a special client? It was just too insane to even think about, although somehow the idea sparked Dylan hotter than her playing with Steve or any other anonymous client.

“They can’t all be one-night stands,” Dylan said. “You’ve told me you’ve got a couple of regulars.”

“Yeah, there are a couple. This one girl, Patti, she’s a cool hang. She comes over, we get high in the backyard, go inside and hit it, then she rolls. She’s cool because she knows the deal.”

Dylan tried to imagine living that way and just couldn't. Sure, it would be great to get some strange, although he knew he'd never be lucky enough to hit the jackpot twice. He wasn't getting another woman as sexy as Cori. He'd take a lifetime with Cori over Baines' parade of sevens any day.

"It's cool because I'm left alone when I want to be. No one's nagging me to pick up my shit if I don't want to. I can just sit and watch the game in peace. I'm not running kids to activities every night and every weekend."

"I do envy your open schedule, but the upsides to having someone outweigh the negatives, believe me."

"You're going to tell me that as hot as she is, Cori isn't a pain in the ass?"

Dylan chuckled. He couldn't do that. Cori was great, but she was nonsense. She wasn't shy about telling Dylan what she wanted. But the good still outweighed that. Cori would be home soon to blow his mind with her sexy story and fuck him into a stupor. That reminded him that he had to get Baines out of there. Dylan drank faster.

"I'm telling you she's worth it. Now drink up. She's going to be home soon, and I want you out of here."

"A little afternoon delight? Maybe I am jealous," Baines said, grinning.

"You should be jealous," Cori said, appearing in the doorway. "And how exactly am I worth it? Sounds like I came in on an interesting conversation."

Chapter Six

“Dylan was telling me that while you’re a pain in the ass, you’re worth the hassle,” Baines said, eyes openly drinking in Cori.

“You dick,” Dylan said, too distracted by his wife’s sudden appearance to truly give Baines the shit he deserved.

“I can’t argue with that, on either count,” Cori agreed.

Cori stayed in the doorway like she was posing before coming into the room. Once the boys had had a good eyeful, she moved into the room. She spotted the beers and went to snag one, not deterred by the early hour as Dylan had been. He logged every detail of her appearance as she posed in the doorway and as she moved, his brain trying to make sense of what he saw. She’d left the house in tights he was sure of it. Her outfit for her legit clients had been a loose frock that came down to her knees. It was pretty, but it didn’t scream sexy. She’d worn the tights with the frock that she’d keep for her polo dress. But her legs were bare now. They looked incredible, shaped by the low-heeled booties she wore. Dylan was also positive she was braless. The next logical question was if she still wore panties. He watched her cute ass as she passed him but couldn’t tell. Cori took a beer from Baines and dropped onto the couch beside him. The jiggle of her tits when she did it and the slight indentations of her nipples convinced Dylan she was braless. He wasn’t the only one who noticed.

Baines watched Cori just as closely as Dylan. He smiled at the bounce of her tits and fixated on the points of her nipples. His gaze tracked down to where the polo dress had ridden up on her bare thighs when she dropped on the couch. Cori hadn’t bothered to pull it down the way she ordinarily would have. Baines quickly looked away when Cori turned to him, but it still wasn’t like him to so openly check her out. It was like he was picking up on Cori's energy like he sensed she wanted him to look. Dylan felt like she was intentionally teasing them, which was completely out of character. Cori may have liked attention, but she didn't go out of her way to get it. Cori's appearance and her new swagger screamed that something had happened with Steve, something beyond a hand job. Dylan felt a cold sweat pop out on his forehead and his heart pounded. He was glad he was sitting. Baines and Cori were talking, but the rush of blood in his ears drowned them out.

"I can't argue with it either," Baines agreed.

"Which part?" Cori asked.

"Either," he answered, laughing.

Cori gave him a pointed look. "You have no idea if I'm worth it or not."

"I have a feeling," he replied, checking out her body again, this time very obviously and for effect. She didn't punch his arm or make a snarky comment but let him do it. Dylan watched the exchange speechlessly like he was watching Mirror Universe versions of his friend and his wife.

"We were also talking about how we need to get out and visit a strip club," Baines said.

"Really? We haven't done that in ages. I don't know if we've done it since the kids were born. What brought that up?" Cori paused when she looked at Dylan. "Are you okay, babe?"

"Yeah, you look like you just ate some bad shrimp. You okay?" Baines echoed.

"I'm good. Yeah, I'm good. The beer is just hitting me wrong. I didn't eat lunch today." Dylan immediately put the lie to his words by drinking his beer. He didn't know what else to do.

"You're not that much of a lightweight. Suck it up, dude."

"I don't think that's just beer, babe. Maybe you should go lie down," she suggested.

Like I'm leaving you two alone, Dylan thought. He almost said it, which felt insane. In the twentysomething years they'd all known each other, he'd left his wife alone with Baines and never questioned it. Baines was a scoundrel, but not that kind of a scoundrel. But he felt like the Cori he was looking at wasn't his wife, but some strange replacement. He had to get a grip and he knew it. The last minute of the conversation slowly played back in his head as he tried to catch up and even out.

"Seriously guys, I'm good. I didn't bring up the strip club, Baines did."

“Of course he did,” Cori replied. “Are you really the guy who’s our age and still a regular at the strip club?”

“For one thing, I prefer going to gentleman’s clubs, and for another regular is a strong word. They aren’t calling out my name when I walk through the door.”

“Are you there often enough to have a favorite dancer?” Cori asked.

“I plead the fifth.”

“I’m not judging. It’s just that most guys our age wise up and realize it’s a waste of money. You always brag about how you can get laid anytime you want. Why would you go there?”

“Because it’s something different. The atmosphere is fun, in the right club. And besides, it’s really hot when I see someone like you go in there.”

“Someone like me?”

“Well, a woman in there is always hot. But also, like a suburban soccer mom type who’s cool enough to go to a strip club. That’s doubly hot.”

“Neither of our kids play soccer, dimwit. Grace plays field hockey and softball. Jack plays baseball. And I also like to think I’m much cooler than some stereotypical, sitcom suburban wife type.”

“Yeah, you are, Cori. Most suburban moms aren’t going to guy’s houses and handing out massages.”

“Most of her clients are women,” Dylan lamely interjected.

“And it’s my job. I’m not handing out massages. You’re lucky I’m not easily offended, the way you keep shitting on my job.”

“I’m not shitting on it at all. I think it’s awesome that you’re going to guys’ houses and giving rubdowns. I want one too.”

“You need to have something wrong with you, besides the obvious. Massage therapy won’t fix that,” Dylan said.

“It can be just for relaxing too, but that’s not the point. You keep implying I’m one step away from a hooker,” she said, fire in her normally calm blue eyes.

“You know I’m kidding, Cori. Come on,” Baines backpedaled.

Cori sipped her beer like she was considering her next words. Dylan went from concerned by what she’d done to freaking out over what she might say next. He knew that look in her eyes. Cori was getting frisky.

“What if...” she began. “What if you found out I was really doing that?”

“Doing what?” Baines looked confused.

“Doing what you said. Handing out rubdowns at guys’ houses. Full rubdowns. Don’t play stupid now.”

“You wouldn’t do that, Cor. I wouldn’t be messing with you guys if I thought...”

“Thought I’d actually do it? So, what if I was? It does happen. A lot of massage services are fronts. What would you think if you found out I was doing it, Baines?” Her full attention was locked in on him. Dylan watched him squirm and would have felt bad if he wasn’t already so uncomfortable himself.

She’s going to do it, Dylan thought. She’s about to confess. Something happened today, Cori’s feeling herself, and she’s going to confess to Baines just to make a point. Just to wipe the smirk off his face. Oh god, don’t let her do it! Shit, I have to stop her! Cori was not reckless, but she did not back down when she was challenged, and she was the type to go to great lengths to make a point. He could totally see Cori telling Baines what she was doing just to blow up his spot if she felt pushed hard enough. It was why the fire inside her that he loved so much terrified him sometimes.

“I...uh...shit, Cor, I don’t know. If I found out you were giving happy endings, really doing it, I guess I’d say that’s cool? I mean, do what you want. If that makes you happy...” Baines was on his back foot, uncharacteristically giving a serious answer. He slightly recovered, adding, “You’d be making a lot of guys happy.” He looked like smoke was going to come out of his ears as his brain worked out if Cori was truly capable of such a thing and how he’d think of her if she actually did it. Dylan would have enjoyed watching Baines squirm if he wasn’t already so freaked out.

Cori held up a hand and waggled her fingers. “I’d be making guys very happy. I have magic hands. Don’t you agree, babe?” She turned to Dylan with the wickedest smile. The fire in her eyes wasn’t anger, but mischievous. She was enjoying herself. Dylan got the feeling that Baines wasn’t the only one she was toying with. It kept flashing through his mind, What did she do with Steve?

“Yeah, Cor, sure you do, but you don’t have to play Baines like that. Can’t you see the poor guy is suffering?”

“I know you’d never do it because Dylan would never stand for it,” Baines said, recovering his equilibrium.

“You know I do what I want, don’t you? When have I asked permission for anything?”

“But not that, Cori. What guy is going to be okay with that?”

“You’d be surprised,” she cryptically answered.

Fuck, Dylan thought. She’s fucking doing it. She’s outing me. Outing us.

“I know you’re fucking with me, Cori.”

“Maybe you should book an appointment with me and find out for yourself.”

“I’d love to have your hands on me, even if you’re not giving happy endings. But if I thought you were doing that, you know I’d be all over it. Damn, Cori, any guy you know would be. But seriously, I know you’re not.”

“Do you?” Cori steadily held his gaze.

“Cori, come on. You’re not going to convince me.” Baines held firm, but Dylan could see the question in his eyes. Did he really think she was capable of it or was it wishful thinking?

Cori slowly and deliberately slid her hand up and down her beer bottle, still staring at Baines. Dylan was losing his mind. He was sure Cori had lost hers. She wanted Baines to know she was doing it. Dylan was sure of it. He didn’t know why. He needed to know what happened with Steve to push her off the deep end. Dylan had to rein her in, but as horrified as he was, he was equally fascinated. He was also rock hard. His cock throbbed distractingly. Dylan had never been hard like that with another man in the room. It was disconcerting. He sat there and did nothing, willing his prick to go down.

Baines stared at Cori’s hand working the bottle in disbelief. She gave as good as she got, but she’d never pushed things this far. He was breathing heavily, and Dylan thought Baines was just as stiff as he was. That thought made his balls ache and Dylan almost groaned. He wasn’t excited another man was hard, but that Cori had made another man hard. It was important to him that he made that distinction. Dylan was sweating. The room was filled with tension, and as improbable as it was, he thought Cori might actually pull out his meat and jerk Baines off right there. Dylan hated that so much of him wanted her to do it.

Cori broke the tension with a hearty laugh. “I’m just screwing with you, dude. Do you actually think I’m jerking men off for money? Is that what you think of me?”

Baines laughed too, but it was uneasy. “I told you I know you’d never do it.”

“I think I had you going there, at least for a minute.”

“I don’t think that’s something you’d do, Cori.”

“I guess it’s kind of flattering if you did,” she said, shrugging. “It’s flattering that you think I could do it and flattering if you think someone would pay me for it.”

“I know guys would pay you for it. And I damn well think you could, I just don’t think you would.”

“I don’t think people ever know what they’re capable of until they’re faced with a situation.” Cori drained her beer. “On that note, I’m going to go jump in the shower. It’s been a long day.”

“Need your back washed?” Baines asked.

She patted his leg. “Sorry, big guy, but I have a husband for that. See ya.”

Cori pushed off the couch and left the room, wagging her ass as she did. Both men stared at it, and when Baines looked away from her perky cheeks, he gave Dylan a strange look. “What’s up with her?”

“What do you mean?” Dylan answered, trying to keep his voice even. It was easier being a bystander in Cori’s exchange with Baines than actually having to engage him.

“Cori was...I don’t know...different, right? Like, she’s a fun girl, but she was deliberately pushing buttons. Don’t you think so?”

“She was probably just blowing off steam. You’d be surprised how much work takes out of her. She’s on her feet all day, she’s drawing other people’s energy to herself and trying to put out positive vibes. I don’t know how she does it.”

“And think how worn out she’d be if she was actually taking care of guys. Those hands would be cramping.” Baines formed claws with his hands.

“She uses her hands all day anyway, douchebag.”

“Not gonna lie, Cori had me going there for a second. I really thought she might be doing it.”

“That’s just not Cori,” Dylan lied.

“She’s the one who said you never know. Listen, if she ever changes her mind, and you’re good with it, get me on her client list.” Baines rotated his left shoulder and winced. “This shoulder has been killing me. Maybe Cori can help me, and I don’t mean jerking me off.”

“I’ll say something to her about it. And if she changes her mind on the other thing, I’ll let you know you want to be her first customer.”

“You’d better. I’ll be offended if I find out Cori’s giving happy endings and she left me out. I won’t even ask for the friends and family discount. I’ll pay full price.”

“Friends and family. That’s gross. Time for you to go, asshole. I don’t think I am feeling good. I’m going to go lay down.”

Baines chuckled. “Yeah, I get it. I’d be chasing Cori upstairs too. I’ll get out of your hair.”

Dylan saw Baines to the door and then rushed upstairs. They still had about an hour before Jack would be home and he had to know what happened at Steve’s. Cori’s back was to him when he came into the bedroom. He closed the door behind him and locked it. She pulled the polo dress over her head and tossed it on the floor. Her thong was still in place, but she was otherwise naked except for heeled sandals. She turned and stood with her hand on her cocked hip. It felt like she was presenting herself to him.

“I was wondering how long it would take you to get rid of Baines,” she said, smirking.

Dylan was too busy mapping her body with his eyes to reply. He scanned every detail of her for signs that Steve had had his way with her. If Cori crossed that line, he didn’t know how far she’d take it, but after her behavior with Baines, Dylan felt anything was on the table. He wasn’t angry and didn’t understand that. Dylan should be angry if his wife fucked someone else, but he was nothing but excited as he looked her over. Her nipples were diamond-tipped points, but he knew Cori was horny, so that told him nothing. No marks on her tits, though her pale chest was flushed with her arousal. Her lips were swollen, but again, she was horny. Her mound was puffed enough to reveal the glistening pink within. Dylan needed to sink himself into that inviting wetness, but he needed answers more. Looking at her body told him nothing.

“You seem to have lost a couple things you left with this morning,” he said, hoping he didn’t sound crazed.

“Oh, I didn’t lose them. My tights and my bra are in my purse.”

“It’s been a long time since you came home with your bra in your purse.”

“True. Although when that happened, my panties were usually there too.”

“Guess I should be happy you managed to keep those on.” Dylan was still across the bedroom from her, and he didn’t know why. It felt like he was waiting for permission to touch her.

“You did tell me I should do whatever I felt was right. You said you trusted me, remember that?”

“I do, but I didn’t expect you to flaunt it around our friends when I said that. Baines knew you weren’t wearing a bra. I know he appreciated you in that dress.”

“In my defense, I wasn’t expecting him to be here when I got home. I saw his truck out front and thought maybe I should run upstairs, but then I decided to have fun with him. I’m in a playful mood.”

“I can tell.”

“You’re not mad, are you? I don’t think I was too bad. That jerk deserved it for all the shit he’s been giving me about my job.”

“I agree, but I don’t know if this was getting him back or feeding into it. I swear, Cor, I thought for a second there you were going to tell him.”

Cori laughed. “No way. That’s crazy. I was just fucking with him. And I think you were enjoying it too, sitting there on the side.”

“I don’t know about that, Cor. I was too preoccupied with your missing bra and tights. I still am.”

“I promise, I’ll get to that. But I think you enjoyed me teasing Baines. You can admit it, babe. You liked it just a little, right?”

Cori came to him, trailed her fingers down his chest and over the front of his pants. His cock twitched and he hated that he reacted. He couldn’t hide the truth from her. Cori knew him too well. “What would you have done if I had told him? What do you think would have happened?”

“Cor... You wouldn’t. I know you wouldn’t trust him with that.”

“You would. He’s your best friend. You almost told my friend. Why can’t I show Baines the same trust?”

“I did not trust Seth with it. I didn’t tell him anything, not really.”

“That’s not exactly true, is it? I know Seth. He’s got to be wondering what’s up with us. Now I bet Baines is wondering too.”

“This is a dangerous game, Cor,” he warned, breathing as her fingers trailed over his crotch so lightly that he hardly felt it. “We don’t want people to know this.”

“Would you be ashamed of me if people knew?” she mock pouted.

“I’d never be ashamed of you, Cor. But you know people...”

“I know Baines. I think I know how he’d react. How do you think he’d have reacted if I told him down there? I think he would have expected something, don’t you?”

Cori gripped him through his pants and Dylan groaned. He had no control. She was teasing him, and he was powerless to stop her. He loved and hated the feeling. Dylan wanted to assert control, but he loved Cori playing the vixen. He finally gasped out, “You wouldn’t... He wouldn’t...”

“I guess we’ll never know. You’ll just have to keep guessing.” Cori kissed him hard, her tongue aggressive, and it took all he had to keep from coming in his pants. She peeled back, tugging his lower lip with her teeth. “You’ve been a good boy. It’s time to tell you what happened at Steve’s.”

Chapter Seven

Steve had become increasingly bold since Cori leveled up his treatments. He used to surreptitiously watch as she set up her gear for his appointments, but he only watched her now. An outfit change had been his suggestion. He'd asked if there were options to further upgrade his treatments. Cori replied that she was open to suggestions—within reason. She didn't want him to jump right to offering her something like five hundred bucks to fuck him.

Sex was not on the table, but in her idle moments, Cori had begun to wonder what her price point might be. She would never sell herself cheap, for a couple of hundred bucks, but guessed that something like a thousand was too high unless she was willing to pull out all the stops and do whatever a client wanted. Cori didn't think she could do that, even if she began selling sex. She tried to imagine herself having sex with Steve anyway and couldn't quite get there. That didn't mean she couldn't do it, but it wasn't a smoldering fantasy for her. The lines were becoming blurrier, though, since she'd broken the first taboo. She gave a lot of thought to blow jobs and went back and forth on whether she would do that. Selling her mouth was much more intimate than selling a hand job, but Cori had always loved doing it, and she was good at it. Mayde made it seem like no big deal, and it even looked fun when she took care of Roger.

Steve wasn't an asshole and didn't press for too much. She was glad she'd chosen him for her first. He didn't ask her to do more to him, but he wanted her to wear a dress. He offered to pay more, but Cori knew it would be fun to dress up for him and told him she didn't need more money for that. It was bad business and Mayde would have chided her, but Cori wasn't in it entirely for the money.

She promised Steve she'd wear something nice for her next appointment but told him not to expect anything too crazy. Cori was just getting her feet wet and didn't know what she was willing to wear. She had to psych herself up for the shrunken top and push-up bra but was glad she'd done it. Steve also asked for pantyhose, which was just kinky enough to make her smile, but not freak out. Cori hated the way pantyhose squished her, but she had some very sheer tights that would do the trick. She found the sea-green polo dress that nearly matched her work shirt online and thought sticking close to the work uniform, but sexing it up, as a nice touch. She ordered two, one her regular size and one a size down. The size four was just too small, so she stuck to the six. It looked good on her but would have looked better if she'd had time to hem it and bring it up a few inches. Next time, she thought. A lot of thought went into her shoes. She had several pairs of pumps Steve would have loved, but Cori couldn't see getting through an appointment in four-inch heels. She rarely wore the heels at all anymore and was out of practice wearing them.

Cori didn't play coy when she got to Steve's house. She felt him watching her as he followed her down to his mancave. She dropped her gear and did a spin in the middle of the room, asking, "How did I do?"

"You're really hot, Cori. Can I say that?" Steve eagerly answered. He was in one of the big, comfy recliners, leaning forward to drink in Cori.

"I'd be insulted if you didn't." She placed her hands on her waist and cocked out a hip. Cori's hips were narrow, and it was her favorite pose to give herself curves. "I hope this is sexy enough. I wasn't sure. I didn't want to go too over the top and show up dressed like a stripper."

"Don't worry, you're perfect, Cori. Your legs are amazing."

He leered at her legs like he was picturing them wrapped around his head. Normally, such a thing might have made her uncomfortable, but today it made Cori tingle. She was there to sell a form of sexual gratification and being treated like a sex object fit with that. She could have stood there with Steve lustfully regarding her all day, but they did have an appointment to keep. She encouraged him to get onto the table.

The legit part of the session had changed. Steve asked if he could take his shirt off, and Cori agreed. She still tried not to use any oils or lotions on his skin, as it was hard to apply pressure in the right places when her hands were slippery. His skin was hot to the touch like he was burning inside for her—or that was all in her head. Cori's brain was going all sorts of interesting places during treatments now. His skin smelled fresh and clean like he was freshly showered for their appointment, which Cori appreciated—especially as she was touching his bare body. She found many excuses to use more than her hands while treating him, brushing her body against his as she moved around him.

Steve took his cue from her and turned his hands to brush Cori while she worked on him. His breathing deepened and he moaned under his breath as his fingertips played over her smooth, tights-encased legs. She stood still while she worked his lower back and let him enjoy himself touching her legs. It was an odd feeling, something Cori never thought she'd encounter, letting a virtual stranger caress her like that. A lot of guys tried moves like that during treatments and some massage therapists got very upset. Cori was the type to just take it in stride and politely move a client's hand. It would normally be meaningless to her. But Steve had paid for the privilege to touch her—within reason—and being paid for such an illicit touch made her core tighten. Cori squeezed her thighs and felt her pussy dampen. Knowing it was charging him up and making him hard thrilled her. The fingers wandered upward and took in the curve of her ass, just touching, not grabbing. She found it hard to concentrate on her work. Her energy had changed from healing to sexual. Cori had to get a grip. Her arousal at such a simple touch was ridiculous.

The treatment proceeded as usual—except that Cori was completely distracted—until she told Steve to turn over. Her work had proceeded as normal until she got to the good part on her other treatments with Steve, but this time he was touching her as soon as he settled onto his back. He touched the back of her thigh and slipped his hand back up her dress to feel her ass. She put her hand over his this time.

"I'm not going to be able to finish this treatment if you keep that up, Steve," she said, gently admonishing him.

"I feel pretty relaxed. I think we can just skip to the end this time, Cori."

"If that's what you'd like. You're the client."

Cori touched him through his loose cotton shorts, gripping and stroking him. Steve groaned and closed his eyes. His excitement surged through him. He wouldn't be lasting too long today, she knew. She went to pull his shorts down and he caught her wrist.

"I have another request if you don't mind," he said, hopefully.

“Mmm, I don’t know. This is just a massage, Steve.” She tightened her grip on him.

“I don’t want you to do more, Cori. It’s just... Could we do it over on the recliners?”

Cori bit back a laugh and smiled. She was relieved, sure he was going to ask her to blow him. Her heart trip-hammered as she wondered how she’d reply. This request was simple. A little weird, but simple. “Sure, Steve. You are paying, and I want it to be good for you.”

“It’s always good, Cori. Yeah, it’s really good. But I’ve never christened the chairs, and it would be awesome if you did it for me.”

“You and April haven’t?”

“No, she’s a do-it-in-bed gal.” His disappointment was evident. She felt bad for him that he was with someone who wouldn’t give him what he wanted. It made her feel better about the service she provided.

Cori put a hand behind his shoulder and helped him sit up from the table. She leaned in and kissed him on the cheek, saying, “I’d be honored to make your fantasy come true.”

The big, black leather recliners were a linked row of four, with wide armrests containing cup holders. Cori was not sure exactly what Steve had in mind and followed his lead. The armrests flipped up, like in the movie theater, creating two loveseats. Steve indicated for Cori to sit, and she dropped her lotion bottle into the cup holder beside her. He did a funny wiggle to get out of his shorts and sat beside her. She wondered if leather on his bare bottom was part of the thrill. Steve touched a remote and they both reclined back. She scooted up to avoid sinking into the seat. Her dress rode up and she let it go. Steve was paying for the show. He reached for her legs. Cori was unsure, but went with it, allowing him to drape her legs over his.

“You don’t mind, do you? I like the feel of the hose. I hope it’s not too weird.”

Cori smiled and touched his thigh. Steve may have been a paying client, but he was also a human being showing vulnerability, and she could see it was difficult for him. She suspected April was not accepting of his kinks. Cori was happy to do this for him. It felt like she was providing a needed service, more than just jerking him off. She was already horny, but now she was touched. It was something she never expected to feel.

Steve vibrated with excitement. She sat back and let him touch her, afraid the experience would end too quickly if she touched him back. She had to twist at an odd angle to reach him anyway. He almost had her sitting in his lap, her legs draped over his thighs. His cock pushed up along his tummy. He'd gotten soft while they moved from the massage table to the chairs, but he was back, his tip leaking his excitement. Cori was surprised by how badly she wanted to reach out and touch him. It wasn't just a job. She wanted to play with Steve's cock.

The touches were so feather-soft at first that Cori wasn't even sure he was actually touching her. Steve acted like a man afraid he was going to get slapped if he made contact with her. It was sweet that he was so respectful, but he was paying for this experience, and she wanted him to get the fullest out of it—within reason. There was still a line, even if it kept getting blurrier and blurrier. His fingers danced on her leg like he was playing the piano, sliding along the smooth fabric. Tights are not as slick as pantyhose, but his uncalled fingers played along her leg smoothly. Steve leaned forward and followed the sleek lines of her legs, tracing the gentle curve of her calf and along the inside of her knee. Cori snickered and squirmed when his touch was too ticklish, but she didn't stop him. Both hands caressed her leg, one low, one high. She was pleased that he was enjoying himself. His obvious pleasure in touching her was arousing. Cori squeezed her thighs together, knowing Steve could feel them flexing. Could he guess why?

Steve paused on the top of her right leg like he was working up his nerve before he dipped down to touch her inner thigh. The touch was firmer and massaging. He came to where her thighs were pressed together, and she kept them tight for a moment before relaxing to let him dip between them. Her thighs relaxed, but the rest of Cori tensed. Excitement surged through her, tightening her core. The distracting tingle there turned into a slow, deliberate throb. Her arousal was ramping up into the danger zone, where Cori might not make the best decisions. She didn't stop him. She didn't want him to stop.

Dylan had told her he trusted her, and she should do what she wanted. Cori doubted he wanted her to fuck a client—though she wasn't positive about that—but that left so much open. When she tried to press her husband on where his line was, he always obfuscated telling her to do what she wanted. It frustrated her, tempting Cori to do something crazy to test Dylan. How would he react if she told him she blew her client today? But she couldn't do that because she didn't want to hurt him. She might tweak Dylan, but that was all in good fun, not to hurt him.

Steve swept higher on her inner thigh, high enough that he had to feel the damp heat from her pussy. Rather than hide it, Cori thought the tights concentrated it. It was embarrassing for her client to feel her excitement. It was supposed to be all about him. She knew she should stop him. Cori put her hand over his. He ceased his ascent but kept massaging her thigh. Steve looked at her, and she knew she should say something. It felt weird for them both to be so quiet, but Cori just smiled. He took it as a sign of approval but didn't press his hand higher on her thigh.

The shuffle of his hands confused Cori. She thought he was done touching her and it was time to jerk him off, but he was just rearranging to enjoy more of her body. Steve slid his lower hand up to where Cori paused him on her thigh, freeing his other hand to feel the curve of her breast. His thumb sought—and found—the bud of her nipple. Cori gasped when he stroked it, feeling teased through her bra and dress. Sometimes she hated that her nipples were so sensitive. It was both a blessing and a curse.

“Would you remove your bra?” Steve asked, almost meekly. The sudden sound of his voice startled her, and Cori gasped. Her massage mix playing in the background had lulled her into a trance.

“I'm not taking my dress off, Steve,” she replied, smiling.

“I know. I wasn't asking that. Can't you do that thing? You don't have to.”

Cori knew what that thing was. It was funny that guys were always so amazed a woman could remove her bra without taking off their top. She considered the request. She knew she shouldn't, but knowing she shouldn't do something rarely slowed her down.

“Only because you asked so sweetly.”

It was done so simply. A reach back to unhook her bra, a tug here, a shimmy there. Steve never stopped massaging her heated, tingling thigh, encouraging Cori to strip for him. A couple of last moves, and she extracted her black bra through her left sleeve. It was a pretty one, with a spray of colorful, embroidered flowers on the cups. It was hardly padded at all but allowed her natural shape to show through the dress. Cori had skipped the heavily-padded push-up bra she'd been wearing because she wanted Steve to really feel her when he touched her. He was going to feel her now. Her stiff, excited nipples dented through the polo dress like they were begging to be teased.

Steve only hesitated a second to stare before touching her. Her small breasts mashed in his hands when he massaged them, and when rolled the nubs of her nipples, Cori couldn't fight her moans. She closed her eyes and settled back into the big, cushy recliner, enjoying Steve's touch more than she had any right to. Cori was well past just jerking off a client. It had turned into an encounter of mutual pleasure. She didn't know how far this would go, but she knew Dylan's limits would be tested.

Cori was so distracted by the pleasure radiating from her tender buds that she ignored his lower hand, which was creeping higher again. The encounter was so strange. Cori had never experienced anything like it. She was used to a boy groping her as they made out, hands frantically scrambling under clothing, looking for exposed flesh. But they weren't kissing. They weren't hooking up. It was very much like Cori was there on display for him, stretched out for Steve to play with her body at will. The point that she was being paid for this, that she was providing a service, was driven home. It didn't dampen her enjoyment. Her arousal was heightened. Cori felt like she was earning her stripes as a girl for hire, and it inflamed her sex. She would not fuck Steve, but damn did she need to be fucked. Cori badly wanted a man inside her.

Steve reached his goal and pressed his fingers to the sopping crotch of her tights. She thanked god she was wearing those tights. Otherwise, Steve could have slipped her little thong to the side and pushed his fingers right inside her. Cori was more than ready for that. She was molten and craving intrusion. He pressed and massaged her mound and Cori heard the soft squishing of her excitement. She felt she should be embarrassed to be so aroused by her client, but Cori was too horny for embarrassment. Her eyes stayed closed as she enjoyed the hands exploring her. They were so beyond a massage—which reminded Cori of something.

Cori blindly groped for his cock and wrapped her fingers around it. Her body twisted awkwardly, but he kept touching her. Her heat rose and she stroked his shaft rapidly, feeling like they were in a race. She should not let Steve make her come, but that ship had sailed. All she could do now was make him come with her so she could try and get out of there.

"Mmm...Steve..." she moaned. Her eyes stayed sealed shut. Cori didn't dare look at him.

“Uhn...Cori...oh...my...”

“Hon...come...for..me...come, hon...”

“Cori...you’re so hot...can’t believe this...”

Steve grunted and his body jerked. Cori wanted to plead with him to finish, but she was close too, and only soft cries escaped her lips. Steve’s fingers were slipping all over her ruined tights, but he found that perfect spot, giving her that sweet, sweet pressure. He pressed right on her throbbing little gem and Cori tensed, arching her back and giving a cry as a sharp, sudden climax powered through her, leaving her breathless. Cori kept her grip on his cock and was vaguely aware of his release flowing over her fingers as she rode to her own finish. Cori shoved his hand away from her pussy. She was too sensitive there. She was also afraid that if he kept rubbing her she would come again.

“Cori, wow, that was incredible. Wow, thank you. You’re...” His words came out in a tumble.

“I’m glad you had a good time,” she said, finally opening her eyes. Cori was afraid to look at him because she was embarrassed by her loss of control. She knew she let it go too far. But then she saw how he was glowing, and it swept her embarrassment away. She was there to make Steve feel good and she’d clearly done it. Her therapeutic massage helped, but it couldn’t make someone feel as good as Steve looked. Cori didn’t know if it was morally right, but she knew she’d done a good thing.

“Where have you been all my life? That was the best thing ever,” he enthused.

Cori laughed. “Let’s not get carried away. It was just a hand job, Steve.”

“It was more than that, Cori. I mean, you, uh, did too, right?”

Cori smiled and went to squeeze his arm, but remembered her fingers were sticky. Instead, she swung her legs off his lap and stood on those shaky legs. She stretched, arching her back to get the blood flowing. Steve stared, loving how it thrust out her tits.

“Let’s not talk about me. I’m here for you. I’m going to go wash up.”

The woman in the bathroom mirror, with the flushed cheeks and the wild look in her eyes, was unrecognizable. That was Cori the sex worker, not Cori the wife and mother. That was a Cori who not only jerked off a client but let him touch her intimate places and make her come. That Cori was out of control. She was also an echo of the Cori who she’d lost touch with long ago—a version of her who was open to anything that felt good. It was exciting to see her again.

Steve was cool when she came out of the bathroom, which was a huge relief. She didn't know what she'd have done if he was weird and creepy. His shorts were up, and he'd even found a shirt somewhere. He kept repeating how incredible she was and how it was the best treatment ever. Cori was flattered and thanked him as she folded her table. He asked if she had Venmo, and she shared her details.

Cori hugged Steve at the door as she always did. She expected it to feel awkward, but it was warm and sweet, just like always. Steve's coolness went a long way to relaxing her. Cori packed up her gear in the minivan and her phone dinged when she climbed in. Steve had given her an envelope earlier, but he added another two hundred dollars to her tip. Cori stared in disbelief. She'd just made an extra three hundred dollars and hadn't even really taken off her clothes. She even got an orgasm out of it. Cori got the appeal of going the extra mile.

Her body still tingled from her appointment with Steve as she drove away. The quick orgasm he'd given her was great, but she was still insanely horny. Seeing how much she earned had only heightened it. Cori stopped in a parking lot and got herself off. She couldn't wait to get home, as she'd done her last couple of appointments with Steve. She stripped out of her tights and tucked them into her purse. They were soaked and uncomfortable anyway. Cori wouldn't mention the parking lot self-love quickie to Dylan. Her quick post-appointment pit stops were just for her.

Chapter Eight

Dylan looked up at his wife riding him in the recliner. He'd kicked it back and she'd climbed right on top of him. Cori didn't even strip her dress but peeled her panties down and hiked up the polo dress while she straddled him. She sat up straight while she rode him, her firm little titties jiggling as she bounced on his shaft. Dylan did all he could to hold out. Cori had come once already—while she described her session with Steve—but he wanted her to come again. He'd been quick on the draw lately and he wanted to prove to her that he hadn't become a minuteman.

Holding out was difficult after the story Cori had shared. Today had been a major escalation. The session Cori described was right out of his fantasies. She went way beyond just jerking this guy Steve off, but she didn't blow him or anything. That was okay. Dylan might have been more turned on by the way Cori let Steve touch her than he would have been if he'd laid back and let her suck his dick. Another man made his wife come today. That was a major milestone.

The truth was that Dylan was shocked Cori went that far. He didn't tell her that. He had to be the dutiful, supportive husband. If he expressed his surprise, she might read it as disapproval. Dylan should have disapproved. He understood that. Any other husband would very much disapprove of their wife letting another man put his hand up her dress. Dylan loved it. Cori said she was disappointed that her tights were in the way and Steve couldn't feel her bare pussy. Dylan agreed. But he was still shocked she let it go so far. Cori had been clear that this was about her taking care of clients and earning money. It turned her on, but she wasn't looking to mess with her clients the same way Mayde did. Dylan suspected Cori had the capacity to do it, despite what she said. He thought that old, casual-hook-up Cori had always been lurking in the shadows, kept behind a locked door, and now that the door had been opened a crack, that Cori would come bursting out. Dylan knew that was probably just wishful thinking, but it had happened, and sooner than he thought it would. One question burned in his mind. Now that Cori had let a client rub her pussy, how much further would she go?

All he could think about as his cock thrust up into her hot, humid cunt was Steve's fingers inside that same pussy if her tights hadn't been in the way, feeling how juicy Cori was. But Steve knew. Cori said she'd stripped off her tights because they were so wet, they were ruined. Steve must have been going out of his mind when Cori let him keep going. The guy obviously had some kind of pantyhose fetish, and there was Cori to fulfill it. He was a lucky man. Cori had incredible legs. He'd suggest that Cori wear thigh highs to her next appointment with Steve. Steve tipped handsomely for this appointment. How much would he give her if she wore stockings for him?

"Ahh...babe...you love it...you love your naughty wife..." Cori cooed, riding him harder.

"I do...Cori...I do...such a good whore...my good whore..." he moaned, meaning every word.

Cori fell forward, her hands on his shoulders pinning him back in the recliner. She worked her hips, slamming her grasping sheath onto his pulsing meat. Dylan held her slender waist and brought her down harder, pounding up to meet his thrusts. He stared into her eyes, her beautiful face. It was alight with ecstasy. Steve had seen her that way just a couple hours earlier. For the first time in two decades, another man had seen his Cori come. Dylan's guts twisted, but his whole body sizzled and it felt like the heat would consume him. The only thing that would have been better would be if he'd fucked her. The wild thought popped right into his head, unbidden.

Dylan wanted to push it aside, didn't want to think about it, not when their coupling had them both so close, but once the thought was there, it was all he could think about. His Cori, bent over her massage table, that polo dress pushed up to her waist, Steve taking her from behind while she made the same moaning, crying sounds she was making now. Dylan's balls tightened and without warning, he was shooting his load up into his wife. There was no holding out until she came again. But she did climax. Cori shouted and held still, except for grinding her pussy down onto him. She worked her core like she wanted to milk every last drop out of him. Dylan imagined her riding another man like that, her pussy grasping his huge cock inside her. Another wild, unbidden thought: Cori grinding on Baines' cock while he blasted his load inside her. Dylan groaned and shuddered, his cock surging anew like his balls found more they hadn't given her.

"Mmm, what was that babe?" she moaned. "Picturing me being bad?"

"Something like that," Dylan gasped, huffing for breath. He closed his eyes. He couldn't look at Cori, not with those thoughts in his head. He felt like she'd be able to read his mind, and he didn't want to explain why he was thinking of her fucking Baines. He couldn't explain it.

Cori kissed him, sweet at first, then her tongue softly probing. She was trying to reignite him with her heat. Dylan kissed her back—god he loved those lips—but he'd given all he had for now. Baines could keep fucking her, his brain whispered. Stop it! Cori is not going to fuck Baines! He's not even a client!

"You are the best husband," she said, breathless after their kiss and lovemaking. "I know you're into this, too, but I really am lucky that you're so open-minded. Always remember I know how lucky I am."

Dylan chuckled. "Thanks, but I'm the lucky one. There's no way a guy like me should have a hot wife like you. You embracing, indulging these twisted fantasies is incredible. I don't know that I'm as open-minded as I'm perverted."

"I guess I'm perverted too then. It's lucky we're perverted in the same way."

"We're a match made in heaven," Dylan agreed. "I love you."

"I love you more."

Cori laid on him, snuggling into his chest. His spent prick was still nestled in her gooey sex. If she kept squirming like that, she just might revive him. Dylan wondered how much time they had before the kids were home from school.

"I'm glad you're good with what I did today. I know you said you trust me to do whatever I want, but I know it was a big escalation. I swear I didn't plan it, babe. Steve wanted to touch my legs, and it just went from there. It felt really good, and I was already so turned on. When he kept going, I just didn't want to stop him. I had to hope you'd be okay with it."

"I'm glad you did it. Really, Cor. It's so hot. I don't know how to explain it without sounding weird, but knowing it was unplanned, that you just wanted it, so you let it happen, that's just so hot to me. I can't wait for your next appointment with Steve. Who knows where it could go?"

"Don't get your hopes up. I enjoyed today, but I don't know if it's wise to make it a regular thing with Steve. If I get into this thing where it escalated every week, pretty soon he's going to want..."

"If you're okay with that..."

"You don't have to keep giving me blanket permission, babe. We both know the ultimate destination if I just let things go, and I don't think that's a good idea. That might sound hollow with what I've already done, but I like to think there's still a line. I don't know how I'd feel if I actually fucked a man for money."

"Seems like it's all just incremental to me."

Cori laughed. "You would say that. You're a man. I don't know how to explain it. I just don't think I want to actually fuck men for money. Hand jobs, fine. What Steve did today—it was a little weird—but okay. I feel like I got as much benefit as he did."

"I disagree. He's the big winner today," Dylan replied, smiling.

"I don't know about that. It was a good orgasm. It was like he was worshipping me, and I liked that a lot."

"Makes sense. Who doesn't want to be worshipped So, hand jobs good? Letting them touch you, good?"

"Only if I'm into it. That matters a lot."

"Okay, if you're into it. Blowjobs?"

"You really want me to blow someone, don't you?" she said, giggling and kissing his neck as she nuzzled him.

"If you want to, Cor. Not my decision."

"Right," she replied, skeptically drawing the word out. "Not saying it won't happen, but again, I'd have to be really into it."

"You like Steve a lot."

"Maybe him, I don't know. The temptation hasn't been that strong yet. And I don't know if he wants that. He might just be good rubbing my legs in tights."

"Wear stockings next time," he suggested.

"Mmm, I bet he'd love that. Good idea."

"What about this other guy, the next client you want to approach?"

"Brett? Hmm, he's handsome. I'll have to see how that goes, see what his cock is like, but maybe."

Dylan thought about his wife evaluating cocks and it made his twitch inside her. He didn't think it was possible, but he was finding his second wind. The thought of Cori evaluating cocks and deciding which ones she'd suck was intoxicating. The wild thoughts returned: Would she love Baines' cock? Cori would probably love to suck him! Dylan pulsed harder inside her, but he hated the reason why. Cori screwing a client for money was out there, but her screwing his best friend was truly insane. They'd be out of their minds to go there. Dylan didn't really want that. It was only on his mind because of the heavy flirting he'd just witnessed. But the way they flirt, it's possible... Dylan groaned and grew inside her.

"Mmm, what's that I feel? Something's got you going again," she cooed, moving her sex against him.

"Thinking about you taking more clients is hot. I imagine you having a stable."

"A different man every day? That could be fun. I don't know if I could keep up, but it would be fun trying." Cori began sliding on him. He was hard enough for it.

"I know you could handle it, Cor. You're made for it," he moaned.

Dylan maneuvered her and Cori sat up on him again, slowly, sensually riding him. He grasped her breasts, teasing her nipples through the dress. Cori paused long enough to pull the dress over her head exposing herself to him. Dylan pulled her forward and sucked on her nipples. She grasped him inside her.

"Think of all the money, babe," she moaned. "Oh god, we could do so much... ahh...mmm..."

Dylan wasn't thinking about the money. He thought of his wife having a different dick for every day of the week. Baines would be Fridays. That way he could take his time with her. "Ahh, fuck..." he groaned.

"I'll be a good earner, babe. I'll use this body to make all the money..."

"Damn...Cor...do it..."

"You want me to suck Brett's dick?" she teased.

"Yes...suck it...suck them Cori...Brett...Steve..." Dylan almost added Baines to the list, but still had enough control to stop it.

"Ahh...god babe...I'll do it...I'll do it for you...I'll be such a good whore..."

Dylan fucked his wife like a wildcat, doing everything he could to keep his best friend out of his mind...

Chapter Nine

Cori was more confident going into her first special appointment with the next lucky client. She'd felt like she was fumbling when she first asked Steve if he'd be interested in more than a massage treatment. Cori had her approach down now—she hoped. It helped that Brett was much more of a sure thing than Steve had been going into it.

Brett was one of those clients Cori had considered dropping. He was a single sales exec who tweaked his back playing in a weekend softball league when he took an ill-advised slide into home plate. He twisted wrong to avoid the tag and got up from the dirt wincing. A friend who'd had good results recommended Elemental Bodyworks and he'd scheduled an appointment.

Cori was in her second week when Brett Corbin had appeared on her schedule. He lived in a new luxury apartment complex built near a toney section of the suburbs with convenient access to regional rail. It was the kind of place young professionals who want access to the city—without the hassle of living in it—flock to. It was also the kind of place where rents probably doubled Cori's mortgage payment. The buildings were surrounded by large, beautifully landscaped courtyards, which meant she had a distance to lug her equipment to his fifth-floor apartment.

Brett Corbin was exactly what she expected when they first met, based on where he lived and the questionnaire he'd filled out. He was in his thirties, tall and athletic, with a mess of thick black hair and the kind of confident swagger that was required to be successful in sales. He reminded Cori of the frat guys she loved to party with in college but never hung around with when she was sober. Hot and fun, but not the kind of guy to spend quality time with. Brett liked her. Cori could tell straight off.

It started when he'd stood at the doorway, moving aside just enough that Cori could come in, but she would have to brush against him as she passed by him. She was sure he'd been disappointed her big equipment bag blocked his view of her ass from behind. Cori dressed in her work polo and snug khaki pants that day. He's going to be one of those clients, she'd thought. Brett stood by a bookcase with his arms crossed and watched her as she set up in his living room. His glass-topped coffee table had been pushed aside to give her space to set up. The balcony door had been left open a crack, despite the cool fall day, chilling Cori. Her nipples had perked right up, and she'd suspected that was the point. He'd watched her move as she set up, and Cori had been looked at that way enough times to know what was on Brett's mind. She'd really hoped he'd behave.

Brett wasn't the only one whose interest was piqued at that first appointment. He was an attractive man and Cori wasn't immune to his charm. He was the kind of frat boy she would have partied with in college—and drunkenly hooked up with, only to stumble home with a vague sense of regret. Brett had dressed in a tight, expensive t-shirt and a pair of loose basketball shorts—but not that loose. He'd asked if he should take his shirt off, and Cori had told him to just lie on the table.

Cori knew she'd have to work on focusing as soon as she started touching him. Brett was fit, hard in all the right places. It was like his confident energy conducted into her when she touched him, and Cori felt it in her core. Cori had trained for that reaction. It was unrealistic to think she'd never be attracted to a client, and she was a sexual woman. She'd always felt her urges strongly. But Cori was also centered and controlled. She understood she had to tamp down that energy, or the client could react to it. And Brett Corbin was definitely the kind of client who would act if he thought there was an opening.

Brett had tried all the usual guy tricks during that first appointment. He'd brush her leg when she stood beside him. When he moved it higher, Cori politely placed it back on the table, it was pleasant but inappropriate. He'd spread his thighs wider when she worked on the backs of his thighs as if she would take it as an invitation. That one made Cori snicker to herself. Brett's shorts were tented out when she'd directed him to flip over, and he was proud of it. He'd looked down at his crotch purposefully like he could direct Cori's eyes there. She'd ignored him, of course. Cori snuck a peak on her own, and it was impressive—but no. Back then, going there wasn't even a glimmer of a consideration.

Cori was more pointed when he'd touched her again. She'd moved his hand once more and said, "Excuse me." She swore he was working his hips as she treated his front, trying to subtly thrust his crotch at her. If he'd been one of her guy friends, Cori would have just dick slapped him. He didn't push it any harder than that, but she was still put off. Cori was just building her client list then, but she didn't need the hassle. When Brett booked her again, Cori reluctantly took the appointment but made herself clear when she arrived. She wasn't putting up with more bullshit.

"You're going to have to behave yourself today, or this is our last treatment," she'd told him.

"What do you mean?" he'd asked, trying for an innocent smile, and failing.

"I'm only here because I know your back is really screwed up, and I can help you if you let me. But you need to keep your hands to yourself and cut the bullshit."

"Yes, ma'am," he'd replied, still smiling.

"Do we understand each other?"

"We do. But uh, you're an attractive woman, Cori. I don't know that I can control how I react..." Brett glanced downward.

Cori had resisted the urge to make a smart quip—or dick slap him. She had to remain professional, even if he wasn't. "I understand that, but that's a problem you need to handle—after I leave."

"Understood." He'd made the Boy Scout sign with his fingers.

Cori didn't have a problem with Brett after that, but she knew he wanted it, which made him the perfect mark for her sexy side gig. He would have been her first client, but she trusted Steve more to behave. Cori felt ready for Brett now. This would be a fun one. She couldn't wait to blow his mind after so firmly putting Brett in his place.

Brett stammered when he answered his door to find Cori there in her new work uniform. It was the tight green polo dress she'd bought for Steve but found the time to take the hem up a couple of inches, and the right bra made it even tighter across her bust. The dress was paired with lacy patterned tights, implying thigh highs. A pair of ankle strap wedges boosted her butt and shaped her legs. Her hair was braided, and her lips were ruby red. Mascara accentuated her long lashes and made her blue eyes pop. Cori had gone all out to make sure she had Brett's full attention.

Brett stared at her like she was a mirage. He didn't quite believe what he saw, and Cori loved it. She could get used to men looking at her like that again. It gave her little tickles of current down in her core.

"Excuse me," she sweetly said, brushing past Brett. She wasn't going to comment on her outfit if he wasn't. This time, Cori was the one who made sure they brushed against each other as she passed.

"Uh, hey. Hi, Cori."

"Is everything okay?" she asked, grinning like a lunatic as she bent extra low setting her gear down on the floor. If Brett hadn't been staring before, he had to be now. The shortened dress must be showing cheek in that position.

"Yeah, uh, everything's fine. You just, uh, look nice today. Are you going somewhere afterward?"

Cori unfolded the table and laid out her gear. Brett's attentive gaze intensified those tickles in her core, distracting her. Cori worked hard to maintain the illusion that everything was normal.

"I'm meeting a coworker for drinks after this, but I'm not doing anything special. Why do you ask?"

"You just, uh, look very nice today."

"I hope you're not suggesting I don't normally look nice."

Brett smiled like he was catching on it was all an act. "You know I don't think that, Cori."

"I've just changed up the work uniform, that's all. I guess you approve?"

"Oh, very much so. I think your tips are about to skyrocket."

"Remember you said that at the end of our session. Hop up on the table," she said, unlocking her phone to put on her treatment playlist.

Cori worked through the legitimate treatment first, but it was not her best work. She'd been a bundle of nerves that first time with Steve and was able to have more fun with treating Brett, enjoying the subtle teasing. She was amused when she brushed against his hand, and he moved it away. She'd trained him well. It was funny to think she'd now have to undo all her hard work. Cori felt like the worst cocktease. But Cori was distracted throughout the treatment. It was difficult to keep her attraction to Brett in check knowing what was coming. She'd been able to keep her therapeutic mindset and ignore that Brett was a hot guy because there was no possibility of the treatment going in the wrong direction. That was the plan now, and her body reacted accordingly. She knew Brett wanted her, and this time she was there for it.

"That feels so good, Cori," Brett sighed. "You need to break this move out during every treatment."

Cori realized that she was caressing his back as much as massaging it. Her fingertips traced over his solid delts and latissimus dorsi and she appreciated the effort he put into his body. She'd always enjoyed getting her hands on a solid, fit guy, but it felt weird having that reaction to a client. Cori tried to rein it in. She wasn't ready to show her cards yet.

"You haven't been hitting the gym too hard, have you? I don't think you're quite ready yet," she admonished.

"Yes, Mom," he replied, chuckling.

"Don't call me that. It feels weird."

"You can call me daddy if you like."

"Oh, can I now? You're one of those guys, are you? Maybe that's why you're single."

"I just follow the girl's lead. You be surprised how many of them want to call you daddy. And I'm only single because I want to be. I could settle down tomorrow if I met the right girl."

"I could see that," Cori allowed. "I know some women who'd kill for a good-looking, successful guy like you. I don't know if they would call you daddy, though."

"You never know, Cori. Hell, you might even like it. You should try it sometime."

"Why don't you turn over before this gets any weirder," she instructed. Things had taken a weird turn, despite her best intentions. At least she was confident that Brett would be interested in her extra services.

Brett turned over and slowly positioned himself on his back on the table, watching Cori as he moved. His shorts were strained out, failing to hide his excitement. Cori stared before forcing her eyes away, thinking, That's going to be fun to play with. His whole demeanor was different than when he laid down. He'd caught on that this treatment was different. Brett had taken to adjusting himself when he turned onto his back, but this time he proudly let his shorts stretch out, smiling as she shrugged into position. Cori decided it was time to stop playing games.

“I’ve seen you, what, like four or five times now, Brett? Is this always going to happen, or are you going to get used to receiving treatments?”

Cori swept a hand up his leg and gently cupped his balls and his cock. Brett gasped as he tensed. She was pleased he looked surprised. He’d been hopeful something had changed but didn’t quite believe it was true. Toying with a confident man like Brett was more fun than with a sweetheart like Steve. Servicing Brett could become dangerous if she couldn’t keep herself in check.

“It’s like I told you, Cori. It’s a natural reaction to having a beautiful woman so close and touching me. And damn, you have magical hands.”

“And I believe I told you this was your problem to take care of,” she said, squeezing his shaft through the slippery, silky material. He felt thick.

“Yeah, I remember that.” Brett groaned.

“Well, I’ve expanded my services for select clients. I’m available to take care of all your needs during a session now. I thought you might be interested.”

Cori was unexpectedly nervous as she waited for his reaction. She knew Brett wanted her, but it was still a risk to throw it out there. He might just be pissed because he thought she was playing games. Cori very definitely put him in his place and made him behave and now she was saying she was good to go. Not every guy could roll with that. If Brett called her a cocktease, she wouldn’t blame him.

She need not have worried. Brett smiled like a kid unwrapping an Xbox on Christmas morning.

Chapter Ten

“Christ, Cori. I thought you’d never ask.”

Brett rushed to push down his shorts, but Cori stopped him with a light laugh.

“Slow your roll, cowboy. We need to talk business first. I want to make sure we’ve agreed to terms before I can provide any services.” Cori continued to caress his package as she opened negotiations.

“I think you’re enjoying this part a little too much,” he said, chuckling.

“I do feel like I’m holding all the power right now.”

Brett glanced down to where she touched him. “You certainly are holding my power. What are you offering and what are your rates?”

“Sounds like you’ve done this before.”

“Once or twice on vacation, on a boys’ trip out to Vegas.”

“You’re just as dirty as I thought.”

“You’re gonna find out if you quit being so coy.”

“If you’re experienced, then you understand this is just two consenting adults having fun. What happens has nothing to do with my job or my employer. But my tip should reflect how much you enjoy my company.”

“Of course, Cori. I know I won’t be disappointed. Keep in mind, I can be very generous when I’m properly motivated. Your tip will depend on just how happy you want to make me.”

Cori was pleasantly surprised by how open and playful this negotiation was. She imagined this was the fun Mayde suggested she could be having. Steve was still sweet and shy about their activities, even after a few appointments now. Roger hadn’t been shy about what he wanted, but he was still stiff. Roger was appreciative but still treated them like employees.

Brett was loose and enjoying himself. He seemed proud to be paying for sex—not that Cori was offering that, which she had to make clear.

“Don’t get carried away, cowboy. I’m not going to make you that happy.”

Brett pouted. “I guess that may be too much to ask. You are still pretty new at this, aren’t you, Cori?”

“Don’t worry. I’m a fast learner.”

“Does that dress come off? I hope that’s on the menu. I’m dying to see what’s doing under there.”

Cori hesitated, but not as long as she thought she would. She’d moved on from just jerking off clients rather quickly, like she was trying to speed level in a video game. Steve was so sweet that when he urged her along, she’d just gone with it. Cori had always had a sweet spot for nice guys like Steve, even if they didn’t get her motor revving the way guys like Brett did. She wanted to please Brett for entirely different reasons. Cori explicitly told Steve she wouldn’t take her dress off, but when Brett asked, she reached for the hem and slowly pulled it up over her slender body. She was tempted to dance, or at least sway her hips like she was doing a striptease, but Cori would have felt silly doing that. The tight dress snagged on her pushup bra and her breasts gave a little bounce when she pulled it free—a nice extra for Brett. Cori reached out and dropped the dress onto her gear bag, posing with a hand on her hip. A black thong barely hid her sex under the lace-patterned tights. It was awkward standing there half-naked in front of a virtual stranger. Cori didn’t quite know what to do with herself.

“Damn, Cori, you’re even hotter than I imagined,” Brett said, eyes pouring over her. He sat up, leaning back on his elbow, for a closer look. He softly touched her stomach and whistled. “You’re in incredible shape. You don’t miss workouts.”

Cori allowed him to touch her tummy but put her hand over his when it began to stray, pausing him just below her bra. She was happy he seemed to appreciate her artificial cleavage. It made the uncomfortable bra worth it. It was a trashy number she’d bought just for work, white with an animal print and pink lace on the edges. His hand was warm against her body. The touch was nice, but she couldn’t be distracted by it.

“This is just a preview,” she said. “I need to know how generous you are before I show how nice I can be.” Just saying the words made her core tighten. Cori enjoyed playing the whore way too much. “Have I mentioned that my favorite president is Benjamin Franklin?”

“How nice will you be if his twin brother comes to the party?”

“I think we’ll all have a great time together,” Cori cooed, feeling silly.

Cori liked her Ben Franklin line but going deeper with it just felt like she was trying too hard like she was modeling off a hooker in a movie. Cori liked to think she was classier than that. Brett offering two hundred upfront raised the stakes, and she didn’t know if she was ready to deliver what he expected. Steve tipped her an extra two hundred after their last appointment, but that was only after she let things get out of hand—or put herself into his hands. Things had only gone so far with Steve because it was their third appointment, and she had a comfort level with him. Cori was not starting there with Brett. She had expected to just use her hand on him today, but she wasn’t going to turn down the extra money. She would earn it, she decided. Cori had already stripped for Brett, something she hadn’t done for Steve.

“Do you take Venmo?” Brett asked. “I don’t keep that kind of cash on me.”

“Sure, babe. Where’s your phone?”

Brett hopped off the table and she shared her details when he was ready. She tried to formulate a plan while he completed their transaction. Cori knew she should go into these things better prepared, but that took some of the fun out of it. A casual hookup after a night of partying was more thrilling on a pure animal level than making love after a romantic dinner, and it was that primal thrill she was after in her work. Handling clients would be boring if every appointment was the same and she jerked them off like they were on an assembly line. At the same time, Cori knew she couldn’t keep allowing her appointments to escalate so easily.

“We’re good to go,” he said, laying his phone aside and coming to Cori with his hands on her hips.

He pulled her close, a good six inches taller, even with her wedges on. His erection pressed into her stomach and her body reacted with a quiver. Cori instinctively rubbed against it, but the embrace was too intimate. It was the start of fooling around, and that wasn’t what she was there for. Cori was there to take care of him, not hook up. She stepped back from him.

“Let’s go and get you back on the table.”

“I think we’d be more comfortable over there,” he replied, nodding toward the couch. “I’ve also got a very comfortable king-sized bed.”

Cori smiled. “Sorry, babe, but Ben and his twin are not enough to get me back to your bedroom.”

Brett returned her smile, seeing an opening. He reached for her again and cupped her ass through her tights. “Money’s not a problem if that’s the issue.”

“I’m not that kind of girl, babe. You’re not going to get carried away, are you? I can trust you right?”

“Isn’t everything a negotiation?” he asked, pouring on his salesman charm.

“This isn’t, so be a good boy and do as I say.”

Cori was concerned Brett was going to be a problem, but when she pulled down his shorts and grasped his cock, he fell in line. He didn’t wear underwear. She wondered if he’d been commando for all their appointments, waiting for this day to come. His cock and balls were shaved smooth. She led him by the dick, getting him back to the table, where he laid down again. She retrieved the lotion from her gear bag.

“You don’t need that yet, Cori. I just want you to touch me.”

“Yes, sir,” she replied. “How’s this?”

Brett was gym fit, with the kind of sharply defined muscles men who earned their fitness honestly, through hard work, usually didn’t sport. She suspected he shaved his chest too, as he was smoothly hairless. A tribal tattoo wrapped around his bicep, high enough that a short-sleeved shirt would hide it. A black sun was outlined in heavy ink on his left pec. Cori liked ink on a guy when it wasn’t tacky. Brett’s tats made him hotter like there was an edge to the Millennial. Cori hadn’t thought about his age until then. Brett had to be ten years younger than her. She was flattered he found her so hot, which he clearly did. His cock was dripping as he stared at her. Cori ignored it for now. Her fingertips followed the outlines of his tattoos, and she raked her fingers lightly down his chest. All guys loved that. Brett moaned softly.

“I like your ink,” she complimented.

“What about the rest of me?” he asked.

“That’s nice too. I’m sure you do very well for yourself. I’m surprised you’ve ever had to pay for it.”

Brett smirked. "I didn't have to. It's fun sometimes. It feels seedy, and I like that."

Cori understood the feeling. She watched his cock twitch as she massaged his chest. She would get back down there, but she was having too much fun enjoying his body.

"Besides, I bet it's the only way I'd get this from a woman like you."

"A woman like me?"

Brett opened his mouth to speak but thought better of it. If you were about to call me a MILF or an older lady, that was the right call. Think before you speak when your balls are so easily accessible. She would have said it aloud to Dylan or someone like Baines, but not to a client. She didn't have that relationship with Brett.

"A sexy, married lady like you," he finally said.

"That makes a difference?"

"Getting this from someone sexy like you would be hot either way. But yeah, knowing you're a married woman makes it hotter. It's dirtier, right?"

"I guess," she admitted.

Cori trailed her fingernails around his nipples, and he hissed. She made a show of sucking her index finger between her lips to wet it and used it to play with a nipple. Her confidence was growing the deeper she went into their session. The power Cori felt from toying with Brett fed on itself and her inner vixen was emerging.

"Mmm, yeah Cori. Your husband is fucking lucky. You're a great tease, baby."

"I'll let him know about your glowing review," she replied, returning a hand to his cock while she played with his nipples.

"He's cool with this? He doesn't mind? I don't think I could handle it," Brett sighed, finding it harder to speak when she stroked his cock.

"Do you really want to spend our time discussing my husband, babe, or is this about us?" she asked, leaning down to make Brett think they were about to kiss. But she just blew him a sweet kiss instead and straightened back out.

"Fuck, you're good, Cori. Yeah, this is my time, not his. This is about us, baby."

Brett touched her back, and Cori moved closer to give him better access. His two hundred bought him the right to some light petting, she thought. She enjoyed his hands on her body anyway. She'd learned from Steve that she liked being touched by a client, and she wasn't going to feel bad about it. She just wasn't ready to let Brett touch her the way Steve had—not yet. He had to earn that. Brett took his time following the curves and contours of her butt. Cori found it amusing that all these guys were so into her ass. She worked hard to keep it toned, but media led her to believe guys were into big round ones, and Cori had a tight little ass. Maybe they just appreciated how tight she kept it for a woman in her mid-forties. His hand then traced up her spine, giving her goosebumps and then making her squirm when it got too ticklish. Brett stopped at her bra strap, his fingers exploring. She knew where he was going.

“What do you think you're doing?” she asked, pausing her tugging of his meat.

“C'mon, your bra doesn't have to stay on, does it?”

Cori cupped his balls and lightly massaged them, knowing she could quickly make him very uncomfortable. She grasped his cock with her other hand. Rock hard now, he was very thick, with a slight curve she found interesting. Cori knew it would feel amazing inside her, but she wasn't going there. Handling a smooth, hairless cock and balls was interesting. It let her really feel him and admire what he had. Brett wasn't particularly long—about average—but he had the kind of girth a girl looks for. Cori had to consciously stop thinking about how he'd feel inside her, which she didn't experience with Steve. Treating a sexy client like Brett was much more dangerous. Her attraction colored her decisions. It was certainly the reason her dress was on the floor.

“It doesn't have to, but I don't know if I should encourage bad behavior,” she said.

“Isn't bad behavior the best kind?”

Cori pretended to think about it, even though the decision had been made. “I guess you can go ahead. I always have a way to slow you down if I need to.” She gave his balls a meaningful squeeze.

“Ugh, careful,” he groaned.

“Be a good boy and you get the carrot, not the stick.”

Brett flicked her bra open with practiced fingers and she worked his sac, rolling his balls in her hand, while she caressed his tip. Cori pressed fingers down toward his taint and massaged a tight circle. Brett grunted and jerked in appreciation, his manhood surging in her hand. Cori tightened her fingers at his base, not ready for him to come yet. It was counterintuitive from a business standpoint, but she was having too much fun playing with his thick cock.

Cori enjoyed his confident hands. Her bra was pulled out of his way, and she dropped it to join her dress on the floor. They both laughed as their arms tangled and they maneuvered so he could touch her. His hands were warm, and her pale nipples popped and darkened at his touch. Cori swore her tits had been played with more in the last couple of weeks than they had been in the last couple of years. It made her reflect on the drop-off in foreplay with Dylan. She credited it to the rushed life of being parents, but she realized now that she missed it. It was nice to be touched, especially by a guy with big, strong hands like Brett. All the attention to her breasts improved her confidence immensely. Cori appreciated that they were still perky, but she'd always been self-conscious about her small tits. She used to joke with Dylan that she wanted a boob job for her fortieth birthday. It didn't help that he'd always seemed to be on board. Brett seemed to love them just the way they were. He sculpted her petite globes and swept his fingers over their tips so lightly she could barely feel it. The combination was so good that Cori almost couldn't take it. Intense thrills shot straight down to her core, tightening it, and making her juicy, while she swayed and trembled on her feet.

"Mmm babe, that feels so good," she cooed.

"I could make you feel really good if you'd let me, Cori," he said, giving her tingling nipple a tweak.

"Ahh...yeah...that's not going to happen," she moaned, rising on her tiptoes, and twisting away from his hand. She needed a moment of relief to gather herself.

"I think you want it to," Brett replied, still reaching for her.

Cori smiled and reminded him, "This isn't a date, babe. It's about me taking care of you."

Brett's fingers slithered down her tummy and over her thighs. Cori squeezed her thighs together, but he still wormed his fingers in there, pressing at her center, encouraged by the humidity he found there. Pleasure pulsed from his touch and her thighs instinctively relaxed for a moment, long enough for him to press deeper. Cori bit her lip, but still moaned, closing her eyes. She squeezed him tighter, wishing her hand was lubed with lotion so she could get him off quickly. It would be smart to end it now. She'd more been massaging his meat than jerking him off because her hand was dry. His leaking excitement wasn't quite enough lubrication to work up speed. Brett had gained the upper hand in their transaction and it thrilled Cori, even though it shouldn't. She had to keep in control. Her session with Steve got way out of hand when she didn't. This couldn't be her pattern, or she'd be on her back in a client's bed within a week. It would be so easy—and so good—to just let Brett between her legs.

"I'm a giving guy, Cori. I want to take care of you. Feels like you need it, baby."

Brett reached up to work his hand inside her tights and thong, which gave Cori the moment she needed to catch her breath. She moved without thinking, reverting to old patterns. Cori had a move for when she didn't want a hook up to end with fucking but didn't want to leave the boy unhappy. She pushed his hand away from her body and bent forward, taking him in her mouth.

Cori stretched her lips around his girth. Brett was much thicker in her mouth than he'd seemed in her hand. She'd forgotten what a challenge it could be to get a really thick cock into her mouth. She briefly withdrew to lick and wet him and went down again. The deeper she took him, the more her pillowy lips stretched, but Cori was good. She'd always been up to the challenge when giving head, no matter how big the guy was. She just needed to tap back into those skills. Cori held him by the base and slowly began bobbing, picking up speed as her jaw loosened and she could take more. He tasted musky and masculine. Thankfully clean. Sucking a shaved cock was wonderful. She was spared those annoying little hairs.

"Oh shit, Cori. Goddam... I didn't expect that. Yeah... Shit yeah, baby..."

Brett reached beneath her. He couldn't reach her pussy, but he did play with her tits, which hung beneath her. He teased her pink nubs and Cori moaned into her mouthful. The pleasure shot right to her core, and it was the last thing she needed. Her head filled with dirty thoughts, all the things she wanted to do with such a wonderful cock. Cori sucked him harder, and her slurping filled her ears. She needed him to finish. She palmed his balls and stretched her fingers down to tease his taint.

"Aww, shit...aww yeah...yeah baby...shit yeah...Cori..."

Cori didn't even have him in her mouth for two minutes when Brett bucked up off the table and blasted his seed into the back of her throat. She kept sucking, cheeks hollowed, sucking until his balls were drained. Brett twisted and grunted, his body jerking as he spurted into her throat. She thought she might be killing him. Cori finally let him slip from her lips when he began to shrink. Her mouth was filled with his taste, similar to her husband's, but different. It wasn't her favorite, but she'd never minded the taste of a man the way some girls did. It gave her a sense of accomplishment. Cori looked down at Brett as she wiped her lips on the back of her hand. He looked like a spent husk.

"You look like a satisfied customer," she said, smiling down at Brett and roughing his hair.

"Damn, Cori, you are a fucking pro. That was above and beyond, baby. Maybe the best I ever had."

"Just maybe?" she asked, fake-pouting.

"I'll need a larger sample size."

"That could be arranged. Right now, I want to use your bathroom."

"Yeah, yeah. Right down the hall, baby."

Cori retrieved her bra and dress and scampered out of the room. She did not use the powder room in the hallway, but went back to the master bath, noting that Brett was the kind of guy who made his bed and didn't throw his clothes on the floor. It wasn't surprising. Brett was the kind of guy who always wanted his place to be ready in case he brought a girl home. She looked at his big bed and thought about the fun they could have had there. She found what she was looking for under the sink. Mouthwash. Cori didn't hate the taste of cum, but that didn't mean she wanted to leave Brett's place with it in her mouth. If she was going to add this to her menu, she would have to carry her own.

Cori tried to rationalize as she gargled and spit. She barely sucked his cock for two minutes. It barely counted, right? She just used her mouth to finish him off, and time was money. She barely considered that a blowjob. She grinned, proud of herself. I've still got it, she thought. Would Dylan be as proud of her? Her husband's resolve was going to be tested sooner than Cori expected. He would be excited, of course, but it was another chip out of the façade of the woman he thought he knew. Cori dressed, hoping Dylan was ready for what he'd asked for.

Chapter Eleven

“Look at you,” Mayde said. “You’re a hot momma. And you’re positively glowing. Someone is enjoying their job.”

Cori was fresh from an appointment with Brett and wearing her sea-green polo dress. She still wore the lacy-patterned tights underneath the dress. The outfit was a hit with Brett, although he probably liked it better on his floor. Cori was still processing the new lines she’d crossed in that appointment. As she tried to decide how she felt about it, she also worried about how Dylan would react when she told him. She’d teased him with a text after the appointment. He was probably spinning out right about then.

Ordinarily, she would have rushed home and told Dylan all about it while they fucked, but Mayde insisted they meet for drinks. Dylan would have to wait, which gave her time to think. The women hadn’t caught up in person since Cori began offering extra services. Dylan had to pick Jack up from baseball practice anyway. Sometimes being parents got in the way of their new, kinky lifestyle.

“I can’t complain.”

“Oh? Good appointment?” Mayde asked.

“I’ll just say that this was one of those appointments you talked about, where you really look forward to the good part.” Cori couldn’t help smiling as she thought of it, despite her conflicting feelings. She still couldn’t believe how far she went with Brett, especially because she went into it resolved that the appointment would not get out of hand.

“That sounds fun. It also sounds like you did more than provide manual release. Is my little girl growing up?”

“Stop it. But yes, I did go a bit further. Just a little bit. I don’t know if it even counts.”

“Spill it, girl. I’ll tell you if it counts.”

“It was mostly my hands, but at the end, I sucked it a little,” Cori confessed, both pleased with herself and shocked she was sharing it so casually.

Mayde laughed. “You good Catholic girls and your technicalities. Thank God, I gave that shit up years ago. Listen, girl. If his dick was in your mouth, you blew him. Did you swallow?”

Cori turned red at that. “I plead the fifth.”

“Mmmhmm.”

A pitcher of Modelo waited on the table and Mayde poured her a glass. Cori knew she looked good, but Mayde was a flare to her candle. A tight green wrap dress showed off a deep valley of cleavage and hugged her dangerous curves. She thought about snapping a picture for Dylan. Mayde was also fresh off a premium appointment.

“I think the work suits you, and I don’t mean shiatzu. I knew it would.”

“You couldn’t possibly have known that,” Cori replied, laughing. “I didn’t know it. I would never have guessed I could do this in a thousand years. How could you have known?”

“Just something about you, girl. Maybe I didn’t see it at first. I’ll admit it, you seemed like just another well-meaning skinny White girl looking for something to do when we met.”

“Skinny? Ouch.”

“You know what I mean. You’re tight, but you don’t have this going on.” Mayde gestured at her own body. “Anyway, after that first time you came out with us, I saw it in you. You didn’t go running away like I thought you might or try to report us all to Janine.”

“You must be psychic then.”

“My grandmother saw spirits, so maybe.”

“Where are you coming from?” Cori asked.

“His name is Emmet. He’s a day trader with a nice place in Old City. He’s not a frequent flier, but he expects to get on my schedule with short notice. I always make the time because he takes very good care of me.”

“I’m not the only one glowing,” Cori replied, noting the sparkle in Mayde’s brown eyes. “I guess you’re not just talking about the money.”

“Oh girl, the kind of money he gives me makes me glow.” They both laughed. Mayde leaned in and confided, “He also goes downtown for days.

I have to make him stop or my heart will explode. He's got a nice dick too, but I need to be on top to really enjoy it."

"Oh my god. You're too much."

"You'll get what I mean eventually."

"I don't know if I'm ever going full service. Dylan and I were talking about it the other day."

"And he's not down with it? Sounds to me like that man is down with everything."

Cori sipped her beer and wondered if she should be confiding in Mayde as much as she did. She just didn't have anyone else to talk with about this stuff. "He'd be fine with it, I'm pretty sure. Or he thinks he'd be fine with it, but can you ever know something like that? I'm afraid if I crossed that line, he'd never look at me again. It's something you can't take back. I just gave my first BJ today, and I'm a little afraid to tell him—not because I think he's going to judge me, but because I know he's going to see me just a little differently. Dylan's going to go crazy, which is good, but I don't want to entirely lose the old us. It's like we're just preoccupied with sex now. It's always lurking there in the background. Dylan doesn't judge me, but he definitely doesn't see me the same."

"How do you feel about yourself? That's the most important thing."

"I feel good. Really good. The only thing that bothers me is that it doesn't bother me. I feel like there's something wrong with me because I'm so good with it. But I love the way it makes me feel. The money is great too, don't get me wrong, but I don't know if I would do it just for the money if I didn't like it. Steve's excitement when he sees me is like a jolt of adrenaline. Having another man want me like that is intoxicating."

"We're supposed to be all about ourselves and find our own value, but there's just something about a man wanting you like that. I get it, girl. I love it too. Makes me feel like a goddess."

"Exactly. You get it. And then when I put my hands on them, really put my hands on them, it awakens this secret part of me. I know it's all tied up in Catholic guilt bullshit, but I'll be damned if I don't like being bad. And I'm not going to apologize for it."

"Amen, girl," Mayde agreed, raising her glass for a toast. The girls clinked glasses and drank. "Your appointment with the new client must have gone well today."

“Old client, new service, but yes, Brett was very eager to order off the secret menu. I was much smoother bringing it up this time, too, if I do say so myself. It went really well. Brett’s more aggressive than Steve, but still mostly behaved himself. His hands were all over me from the get-go.”

“Too aggressive?”

“No, I liked it. He has strong hands, and I liked his confidence when he touched me. I only stopped him when he tried to put his hand between my legs. I’m not going there the first time.”

“Because you might like it too much?”

“Maybe.” Cori smiled. “It’s all about managing expectations like you told me. Brett wanted more than just the hand and he was persistent, but I told him that wasn’t on the menu. Not yet.”

“You’re gonna be sucking dick in a week, girl.” Mayde laughed.

“We’ll see. I’ve got two special clients now. I need to pace myself. I’m still just a beginner.”

“Speaking of clients, I have an offer. Feel free to tell me no.”

“Oh god, what is this, Mayde?”

“Nothing too crazy, not to me anyway. I’ve done this a couple times before with Lexi and it worked out well.”

“Spill it.”

“Roger liked having you at his appointment that day. He keeps bringing you up and would love to have you back.”

Cori laughed. “He wants me to come and sit in the corner? And I’ll get paid for that?”

“I told him it’ll cost him, but it’s not you just sitting in the corner. Roger wants a two-girl massage. It can be really hot with the right partner. I think you’ll have fun.”

“We’d both work on him? And we’d both...”

“I can do the mouth stuff if you’re not ready for that. You can just use your magic hands on him.”

“And that’s all?”

“I like to keep it loose and see where it goes. We’re going to need to put on a show, too. Nothing you’re uncomfortable with, Cori, just a little playacting to make it special. It’s worth it, trust me. I told Roger it would be very expensive. I told him we want five hundred each.”

Cori was skeptical. Five hundred dollars seemed like a lot of money for rubbing Roger and playing with his dick—even if she and Mayde were also going to make eyes at each other. Cori didn't object to flirting with Mayde. She was sexy and Cori could appreciate a sexy girl. Boys weren't her only casual hookups back in the day, but it had been ages. Considering the job gave Cori those dangerous tingles that got her in trouble. A situation like this could easily get out of hand, and Cori couldn't count on Mayde to keep things in check. Agreeing to this was probably a bad idea.

"Can I think about it?" Cori asked.

"Not too long. I've been putting Roger off for a couple of weeks now. I didn't know if you'd be up for it, but after that last appointment you had with Steve..."

"God, I should have never told you about that."

"I think it's awesome, you know that girl. This work isn't worth doing if you're not enjoying it. I see you're open to other stuff now and I just thought I'd throw it out there, but if you don't want to do it, I'll just tell Roger no. He'll pout, but I know how to keep him in line."

"As I said, let me think about it and talk to Dylan. I promise, I'll get right back to you."

"See, girl. I knew you were fun," Mayde said, smiling and squeezing Cori's hand.

Dylan sensed something was different about Cori when she got home that evening, and he knew it wasn't from having drinks with her coworker. She carried herself just a little differently like she was proud of herself. He knew she'd had fun with her new client earlier, but her text had been cryptic. Cori said it had gone well, but he had to wait for the details. Dylan felt that now-familiar stab in his gut as he thought about how well it could have gone. He didn't think Cori would be on cloud nine if she'd just jerked off this guy. What was his name? Brian...Brad...no, Brett. She'd been like this when she came back from that appointment where she let Steve get her off. Had another man gotten his wife off? His cock surged thinking about it, but his chest was icy.

Cori wore a coat over her new work clothes, which was a relief. Grace was sitting in the kitchen when Cori came in, though she barely looked up from her phone. Cori smiled and beckoned Dylan to follow her with a crooked finger. She'd definitely done more than give a hand job.

Dylan locked the bedroom door behind him and watched Cori drop her coat on the floor. Damn, she looked incredible in that little polo dress. Her ass was perfection. They'd been together twenty years, but he would never get tired of staring at that ass. He understood why men wanted to pay his wife for sex. Dylan would pay her, and he didn't have to. He almost kicked himself for not putting that ass to work earlier. If only he knew how wild Cori could be—or how much he'd want that wild Cori.

Cori pulled the dress over her head with her back toward him, wiggling her ass. She unhooked her bra and let that drop too. Dylan was torn on whether he wanted to be behind or in front of her. Both views were spectacular. When she bent forward and lowered her tights and thong, she was glad to be behind her. At least she came home wearing her bra and tights this time, he thought. It was a good sign that her appointment didn't get too out of hand. Dylan was disappointed by that. He watched his wife's lithe body and thought about all the things she could have done with this client Brett. He imagined Cori on her knees, Brett standing over her and feeding her his dick, Cori staring up at him with begging eyes. Her hair was in a ponytail today and he imagined Brett using it as a handle to fuck her mouth. Dylan's own cock surged picturing it. He visualized Brett blowing his load all over Cori's pretty face and he almost came in his pants without touching himself. Would I really be okay with that? Should I be? His cock had its answer. He almost came in his sweatpants.

"Come here, babe. I have a story for you," she said, slipping out of her shoes and kneeling on the bed.

"You had a good day, didn't you?" Dylan pulled off his shirt as he came to the bed.

"I think so. I hope you'll agree. I may have been a little too dirty."

Dylan reached for her, smiling. He gripped her ass and kissed her. She tasted of beer, with a hint of mint. Did she pop a mint to disguise her drinking? That wasn't like Cori. Of course, there was another reason she might need to clean her mouth. Dylan thrust his tongue deep into her mouth, thinking another man's cock might have been there just hours ago. It made him sick that he loved the idea, but that didn't slow him down. Cori batted at his tongue with hers and shoved a hand into his sweatpants. He was proud that he didn't come the moment she gripped him. His was the second cock she'd held that day. Dylan could be sure of that.

"I think you like me getting dirty," she teased, between kisses.

"Are you going to tell me what you did or make me guess all night?" he groaned.

"Come on the bed and I'll give you a clue."

Dylan jumped for the bed so quickly that he tripped on his sweatpants and faceplanted on the bed. Once he was arranged on his back, Cori popped him right into her mouth. Fuck! She did it! Fucking Cori sucked some guy's dick! Jesus! Her eyes sparkled as she stared up at him, seeing the realization dawn on his face. She sucked him so tightly, so quickly, so easily that Dylan wondered how big this guy was. Cori was always good at sucking dick, but she was handling him like he was nothing. Did this guy have a monster cock? Is this easy because I'm nothing compared to him? He groaned and would have come if Cori didn't pinch off his base and stop him. She'd gotten very good at edging him. Dylan was thankful she kept him from coming too quickly, even if it was painful sometimes. The pain made him feel powerless, and part of him liked that too.

"No, you can't come, babe. You have to fuck me. I really need you to fuck me," she moaned. Cori knelt in front of him, her other hand between her own legs, stroking her sex. She didn't touch herself much in front of him. She was fired up!

Cori crawled over him and pulled him right into her. She was molten and tightened around him with a deep, satisfied moan like she'd been waiting for it all day. It made Dylan proud that she still needed him, even after taking this apparently huge client. She rode him slowly like she knew he'd just come right away if she fucked him too hard too fast.

"Tell me, Cor. Tell me what you did," he moaned, holding her ass as she moved on him.

"He paid me...paid me two hundred..." she gasped, closing her eyes to feel him.

Cori took his hands and moved them to her tits. Dylan happily massaged the little jiggling mounds. He rolled her nipples and she cried out. "Ahh...yeah...he played with me like that...Brett loved my tits..."

"They're loveable, Cor. Of course he did. You liked it, didn't you?"

"Yeah...it felt sooo good, babe. His hands were so big and strong..."

“Where else did he touch you, Cori. How did he have you? Dylan moaned, his mind racing. His balls tightened and he willed himself to calm down.

“Wanted to rub my pussy...touched it...but I stopped him...”

“Why, Cor? You wanted it...”

“Didn’t want him to think...to think I’m a slut...ahh...”

Dylan grinned, pinched her nipples, and was pleased with her gasp. “You kind of are, to be fair. You’re a whore now, Cori.”

“Yeah...you love it, babe...”

“I do, and you do too. What did my whore do?”

Cori rode him faster. Her face and chest flushed. She was close. He knew she was remembering, reliving what she did, and it was going to make her come. Dylan couldn’t take all the credit for that. He wasn’t the only man in her head in that moment.

“I had to finish him, babe...had to slow him down...”

“Tell me, Cori. Tell me!” Dylan growled. He knew, but he had to hear her say it.

“I sucked his dick, babe...oh god...I sucked it and he came down my throat...ahh god...ahh...”

“Uhn, Cori, you’re such a whore...”

“Yes...yes...oh fuck YES!”

Cori collapsed on him, trembling, while her pussy rippled around him in orgasm. Hearing her say the words was all Dylan needed. I sucked his dick! He came down my throat! Dylan’s balls emptied into his wife, and he groaned in pleasure/pain thinking he was the second man to come inside her that day. His sweet wife had taken two loads today. The old Cori he’d always fantasized about was there, she was reborn. How many times did she take loads from different men back in the day?

Dylan shuddered as he thought about what they may have unleashed. He thought he wanted this. He’d told Cori he did. He came every time he thought about it, but was Dylan really ready to live this way, his wife coming home from servicing other men and then finishing off the day with his dick? The benefits were obvious, but would he lose the Cori he’d loved all these years? And if he loved this Cori even more, what did it say about him?

“Seems like you’re okay with what I did. Are you okay, babe?” she asked, hugging him.

“Yeah, I’m great, Cor,” he replied, hoping he sounded more confident than he felt.

“You still love me?” she asked.

“Cori, I’ve never loved you more.”

Dylan wasn’t sure about much these days but it was the stone-cold truth. She was dangerous, but this version of Cori was truly incandescent, and he had never loved her more.
