HOME LATE

“You're home awfully late,” Josh said.

He was seated, theatrically, in a chair in the living room. A glass of whiskey on the side table. He had hoped to cross his legs but with the bursting erection he had, it was impossible. It was clichéd, and he knew it: a man waiting for a cheating wife, seated in the solitary light of a single lamp.

Rachel surveyed the scene, and her guilt was evident immediately: her face was flushed as though she had run home. Josh could almost see her pulse quicken beneath her skin. He knew his theatrics had set her blood to rushing through her, dumping adrenaline into her system.

So much the better.

“Tell me about it then,” he said.

This was their arrangement: she could have sex with her ebony-skinned cameraman, but she had to tell him what she had done. And there was an implicit arrangement, built on their first time: she would do this while he did something – physical – to her.

The thought seemed to turn to a liquid fuel, dumped into his system: his cock throbbed and his arteries itched with pressure. The air became tinny, hummed. Flashes erupted in his mind, of all the dirty things he could do to his wife, all the ways that he could pry her open and view the aftermath of her terrible deeds while he forced her to confess them. He could feel the precum boiling from his cock.

He swirled his finger around the rim of the glass instead of moving. He let Rachel squirm.

He had his own secret. He could feel how it empowered him. It was raging inside of him, like nothing he had ever felt before.

“What did you do, Rachel?” he said.

He hoped his voice did not somehow betray him, or the things he had done. To his own ears, it sounded commanding, exactly as he wanted it to.

He watched Rachel's face.

His wife, though, was not a rabbit or a deer, who would prick up her ears at a sign of danger or oddity. It wasn't as if Rachel could possibly sniff out the truths that Josh was hiding: that he had snuck in to her office to watch her fuck another man; that he had filmed it; that he had done so with a wild and terrible plan in mind.

She could not know that Josh did not need what she was about to tell him. He had already seen with his own two eyes the lewd and filthy things she had let Xavier do to her. He was waiting here in the living room only for something he wanted.

She bit her lip. She was hesitant.

As she should be, Josh thought. He shivered with excitement. How would Rachel, the darling of KRTV, revered for her innocently blond hair and her doe-like brown eyes, and her cutesy-cutesiness – how would Rachel Elliot tell her husband that she had just let a man fuck her throat against the wall of her place of work?

Josh's entire body jerked a little as the memory what he had seen snapped through his mind: the robust bulge of Xavier's cock, pressing against the flesh of his wife's throat, moving up and down her neck like an animal trapped beneath her skin.

Rachel opened her mouth, but seemed unable to make a sound.

"I know you were with him, Rachel. I can tell."

"I was," she said.

Good girl, Josh thought. Now how good would she be? How true to their arrangement? How detailed would her recounting of her adventures be?

Josh had already jerked off in the car, watching the video alone in an empty park. Unlike the first time his wife had slept with Xavier and told him about it as he swept his tongue over her creaming pussy, he was determined to get to the end of the story. Determined to make Rachel tell every last sordid detail of her time with Xavier. He intended to make her tell him how his cock tasted, what it felt like to have a man's cock rutting deep into her throat, nearly to her collarbone, how his fingers had felt in her ass, and if they had crushed the tender wall between her ass and her cunt and his cock and fingers had rubbed hard together...

He stood up and moved toward her. She dropped the small purse in her hand and her mouth opened further. Her dark eyes seemed to be wet, but it was only the excitement or fear that swam within them. Josh slid his hand along her neck and rubbed his thumb over her lower lip. Not more than two hours ago he had seen her same mouth wrapped around Xavier's black meat, stretched to bloodless white by the girth of him. When Xavier had pulled his cock from her throat her lips has turned cherry-red with the sudden pulse of circulation, and glistened with her sticky, mucous-thickened saliva.

Josh moved his hand down her throat, to the soft dent above her ribcage. Her heartbeat fluttered beneath his fingertips.

Overcome by his fevered lust, Josh jerked his hand down, and the button of her blouse popped away. He heard Rachel's breath as she sucked it in. He pulled again, popping away the next button, and then the next, until the fabric burst apart and her ivory skin, cupped by delicate lace, was exposed to him.

Josh returned his fingertips to her chest. "Where did you go this time?" he asked, as though the question were casual and one he did not know the answer to.

"We...the station," she said. Her voice was hoarse.

Josh raised his eyebrows. "That's very naughty, Rachel," he said. Privately he was unsure if he was pleased or dismayed that she had told him the truth.

He pulled on the material of her bra with both hands, one on each breast. Her full tits popped over the fabric, and he left them there, exposed and protruding. He squeezed her nipples, pleased to find them already hard as rocks. Rachel's throat warbled with a half-moan.

"And how did it start?"

He savored the blush that crept across her already flushed face, staining her cheeks crimson-red. And no wonder, since she had barely made Xavier work at all before she slid down the wall and opened her mouth for his cock.

"Rachel?" Josh said to her silence. He slid the blouse from her shoulders. It was a silken material that slid easily along her skin, and then hung about her arms. She didn't remove it. Her body, like her mouth, seemed to be frozen by her reluctance.

These were strange waters, he knew. For both of them.

"You promised to tell me everything," he said.

It was not necessarily true, he realized. He had asked her to, and she had done it, but they had not hashed out their arrangement much at all. They seemed to both be taking this "rule" as gospel, though. He felt Rachel stiffen beneath his fingers, as though steeling herself for what she was going to say.

Would she tell him the truth? Or would she lie? Would she omit something, some filthy thing she had done? The anticipation of her mental loyalty was almost as beautiful as waiting for her physical betrayal.

Then watching it. The images he had seen, and then re-watched on his video (not a very good video, he had to admit) were seared into his mind.

He made more circles over her skin, spiraling inward on her breasts to her nipples. He longed to take them into his mouth, but he wanted her to start her talking first.

Her eyes were strange. Distant. Her lips moved but she made no sound.

“What did you do first?” Josh coaxed. “Did he kiss you here?” Josh lowered his head, and kissed her collarbone. Rachel responded with a wave of bumpy skin and a quick, almost frantic shake of the head.

She began to fall to her knees. Josh let her, still hoping he could get her to talk, but relinquishing himself to the idea that perhaps she would just show him. He followed her as she moved down his body, and then looked up at him.

“It started like this,” she said. Enthusiasm seemed to have clicked inside of her, because now that she was on her knees, pantomiming the beginnings of her wild romp with Xavier, her eyes lit up and her mouth turned at the corners with a smile of seduction.

“He took his cock out,” she said.

Josh unbuckled his belt, and unzipped his pants. At the station, he had been crouching next to a stairway door, perched precariously and uncomfortably, straining to see the details of this interaction in the hallway. He had watched for a few minutes before he had the sense to zoom in the camera. So this part he really hadn't seen in detail.

“I want details,” he said, his voice hoarse. “Remember that.” He pushed his boxers down and his cock sprang loose, hard and dripping.

Rachel opened her mouth, and contorted her body to be beneath him. His cock hovered over her waiting mouth. But she didn't take him inside of her. She came close, her breath hot on the underside of his shaft. His cock bobbed lightly with his excitement. Her eyes fluttered open and met hers.

Filled, he noted, with a very particular brand of mischief. Sexy, sexy as hell, but foreign. The strangeness of it might have disturbed him, if he hadn't been oozing precum from the tip of his cock and aching with the desire to feel her lips on his shaft.

“First I licked him,” she breathed, and moved her lips and her hot breath along his shaft, closer to his glans. He felt his cock pulse, straining against his own flesh. A bead of precum squeezed from his head. Rachel dropped her gaze to look at it.

“And then I went in for more,” she said, and extended her tongue to sweep up the pearly drop. Just the very tip of her tongue swept over his hole, tantalizing and nothing more. She retracted her tongue and drew his cum inside her mouth before she continued: “But he wouldn't let me. He took his cock,” and she moved her own hand, which she had held to floor until now, sitting like a cat, and placed it on Josh's shaft, “and slapped it against my tongue.”

This was a detail Josh had been able only to guess at, not to see clearly. His memory of the scene he had strained to see mingled now with her description, and his mind filled with the image as though he had actually watched it from where he was now: Xavier's meaty slab, slapping against Rachel's extended and willing tongue. Xavier's precum splattering into her open mouth with each smack.

He shuddered.

But Rachel did not demonstrate what Xavier had done, she only continued to tease him, her mouth lingering close to his shaft and never quite touching as she continued:

“And...then...he..filled...me...up.” Her mouth had traveled back down to the base of his shaft. Her breath was on his balls, and her chin touched his sack as she closed her mouth to make the final “p” in “up.”

Her tongue was hot and wet when he felt it, right at the base on the underside of his cock. A place rarely touched this way. The sensation made him squirm. She drew her tongue along his shaft, going back toward his head. Slowly. So slowly it was painful.

Josh watched more precum gush from his own cock.

“Was it...” he lost his train of thought temporarily as Rachel neared his glans and paid special attention to the ridge of his head. “Was it...did it fill your mouth?”

Rachel looked up at him. “His cock was so big,” she said. “It stretched my whole mouth open.”

He had seen this. By this time he had had the sense to zoom in, to get a good view of her mouth being pushed open by unrealistically thick meat of Xavier's cock.

Josh had a sudden compulsion to know if his wife was as wet as he was hard, if this story-telling was turning her on as much as it was him. His fingers itched to feel inside of her, to sink in to her pussy and feel for himself the sloshiness he wanted.

Of course, it could be what was leftover inside of her. A man like Xavier, with a cock and such huge balls, surely had filled her full.

He sucked in his breath and willed his thoughts to something else. He didn't want to come right now, right on her face - this thought, also, threatened to toss him over the edge -

-before he heard from her own filthy mouth the details of Xavier's cock filling her throat.

She placed her lips around the head of his cock, and he had to groan and look at the ceiling to submerge the wave that threatened to spill over.

He reached down, and grasped her hair. He felt her head tip forward, to move down his shaft, and he was tempted to follow her momentum. Get her heat all around him and then feel his own liquid burst in her mouth.

But no. He forced his hand to pull her away from him, and lifted her up.

When she was in front of him and standing, she gave him a cocky smile. Adrenaline surged through him, and he ripped at the buttons of her skirt, pushing it down until she could step out of it. He didn't wait for her to do so, though, before spinning her around violently and pushing her over the armrest of the couch.

She let herself fall, and turned her cheek against the cushion. She had a smile on her lips.

Josh tore her panties down to her knees. He fell to his own knees and pushed her asscheeks apart.

His eyes fell on her asshole first. Though Xavier had plunged his fingers into her, it had returned to a tiny, puckered pink hole. As though nothing had been there.

What would it look like if he plunged that oversized cock inside of her?

Josh doubled over to keep himself from erupting there on the floor behind his wife as he imagined the size of the gaping hole Xavier would leave if he pummeled himself into her.

There was no thinking about what was wrong with him. About why he would want to see something so obscene. Not anymore. He could actually feel the liberation his obsession was giving him, as strange as it may sound.

His eyes moved on to the place where he knew Rachel would not look pristine and virgin. Sure enough, her pussy was red and engorged.

And wet. The fat outer lips glistened, and the abused inner petals protruded, shining with her excitement, or Xavier's cum, or a sweet mixture of both. Josh thought he could smell her usual nectary scent, and something muskier. Perhaps it was his imagination. Hours had gone by. Surely whatever he had dumped inside of her had drained into her panties, or down her leg...

He slipped a finger inside of her, and she barely responded to the touch. She was so wet, and so stretched out, that she probably barely knew he was there. He was tempted, sorely tempted, to slide her sticky wetness, her filthy sloshing cunt juice, up to her asshole and make a circle there with his finger. Watch her squirm. But he resisted the urge.

Instead, he flicked at her clit with his finger, and was pleased when her body hardened and more of her sweet liquid oozed from inside of her. "Tell me about sucking his cock" he said, stroking her lightly with his finger.

She was breathing rapidly now, and he knew that she was rising, like him, toward an incredible orgasm. Josh knew it was not the touch of his fingers that was dragging her there, but the thought of Xavier. Telling him about what she had done.

"I let him push his cock inside my mouth," she panted. Josh slid two fingers inside of her, to feel her pulsing cunt. Unsatisfied, he added another, then another. Her cunt was so wet that he slid inside of her easily. Almost in disbelief at himself, he went for it: he added his thumb. He watched his hand slide inside of her, and spread her open. Her legs parted for him, and she pushed back against his hand.

Did he dare to ball his hand into a fist?

He dismissed the thought. "Keep talking," he said. Letting her writhe, skewered on his hand. "How big was it?"

"I had to stretch my mouth open. It was the biggest cock I've ever had in my mouth." She began to talk rapidly now, and push her body against his hand, rocking as though he were fucking her. Josh watched her pussy squelch around his wrist, and felt it squeezing him tighter and tighter. His cock flopped in his lap, yearning to be encased in her silky cunt. "I let him put it all the way inside of me, all the way down my throat, until I couldn't breathe, I've never...done....anything like that..." she was confessing.

"Was it good?" Josh said, watching her pussy with fascination.

"Oh god," she said. Josh knew she was about to come, and he slid his hand from inside of her. She mewled and bucked. "Josh please....no, okay...yes...it was good."

"I want to hear you say you like getting fucked in your throat by a big, black cock," Josh whispered. He let his fingers make a circle around the outermost lips of her cunt, and she wailed and then gave him what he wanted:

"I like getting throatfucked by Xavier's big, black cock. I like to take it all, I love him to fill me up until I can't breathe. I loved swallowing all of his cock!"

Josh stood up, driven wild by her admission and the relish she gave to it. He was no longer seeing straight or commanding anything. He jerked her hips up and plunged his cock inside of her. "And then did he fuck you?" he practically shouted. He was skipping to the end because he could feel the snake inside of him uncoiling, the tide inside him rushing out. He was going to blow and he wanted to make it to the end. He slammed his cock inside of her and he felt her tighten around him, going over the edge herself.

"He fucked me just like you're fucking me now!" she screamed, and then her voice disappeared into the sofa cushion as she came. She screamed, a strangled, crazed scream.

"And did he stretch you out?" Josh said, fiercely. He pulled on her hips and thrust his own, slamming himself into her more roughly than he ever had before. He knew her pussy was wet with her cum for Xavier, Xavier's cum, and her own current rush of excitement. To all of this he added his own load, gripping her ass so fiercely he left dents in her skin.

His orgasm came from inside of him in waves. He doubled over as the final pulse drained him completely. His fingers found the sweaty hair at the nape of Rachel's neck, and he tangled them in it. He kissed her back, and he felt her shudder and her pussy spasm around him. His cock was sensitive with that just-fucked tenderness, and he shuddered as well.

Her skin was salty with sweat. She was lying with her cheek against the cushions, a small pool of spit beneath her lips. Her eyes were open, but she was otherwise as limp as a doll. Her hand fell open next to her face. They were both still panting.

Josh inhaled the scent of her sweaty skin, and kissed her back again as he pushed himself up and slid from inside of her. He allowed himself a dirty glance at the gush of cum trickling from her pussy and down her thighs.

The concern for his mental health, which he had submerged – or perhaps better put, his cock had drowned out – was returning. What in the fuck kind of man was he, that he wanted to watch cum snake down his wife's thighs and think long and hard about how it was the cum of another man?

He lifted his boxers with one hand and shimmied them up and over his cock.

Rachel lay there a few moments more. When she peeled herself from the couch, her sweat made a sticky scraping sound against the leather. She pulled her own panties up with her back to him, and then seemed to decide they were too wet, and dropped them to the floor. She stepped out of them.

Josh waited with baited breath. Had they gone too far? They never had sex like this, not even remotely like this. It had been hot, hot as fuck, but now his mind was clouding over with doubt.

But Rachel turned to him, and smiled. “That was hot,” she said.

And then, and this was almost too incredible to believe, she kicked her panties up in a neat little move, and caught them in her hand, just before she gave him a quick kiss on the lips, and trounced off down the hall.

Josh was left, staring at the empty living room, too stunned to move.

THE OTHER PLAN

How did he get here?

Snapping out of a reverie suddenly, with no idea how long he had submerged himself in it, Josh asked himself this question.

He was a middle-aged man, with a good, albeit boring, career, and a stunning wife. He was not bad-looking, and not rich, but certainly not poor.

He was a man such as this, staring at the wood blinds in his tiny office, criss-crossed by the shadows of the backyard trees, at three in the morning. In the glow of the computer screen. Smashed into a corner of the room so that Rachel could not come into the room and look over his shoulder and see what he was staring at.

He was a middle-aged man with a stiff erection and a sludge of self-doubt oozing down the walls of his mind. Lurking around in the dark, alternating between masturbating and wondering if his wife loved him and what was wrong with him that had led him to encourage his wife to fuck another man.

After their incredibly – incredibly – hot sex, Rachel had taken a shower, and locked the door on the way in. An uncharacteristic thing to do. Josh had no idea why, but he had suspected that she had locked it before he even tried it. It was only a vague suspicion, but it made him turn the knob quietly until it stopped in his hand.

What did it mean, that his wife locked the bathroom door?

Probably nothing. It was probably for the best. It was best if he didn't go into the bathroom, and begin fondling her in the shower. It was for the best if he didn't sit on the toilet and start talking about their marriage and what was happening to it.

He had lain down on the bed.

Because this was a good thing, right? It was what he had wanted. He had wanted this, and that was something to remember.

And there was no denying that he liked this. No denying to himself that when his seed had exploded from his cock there in the living room, he hadn't felt it like it was being torn from his soul or something. It was mind-blowing, actually mind-blowing sex. Little, glittering pixels had flooded his vision as he stood over his wife, spurting the last ounces of cum into her overflowing pussy.

Even now, hours later in the office by himself, his cock was getting hard just thinking about it.

So what was it then that had troubled him as he lay in bed?

Rachel had come in, wrapped in a towel. Her voice was light-hearted and her mouth was turned up in a smile as she dropped the towel to the floor, held up a hand, and said: "No more though, not now, Josh. I'm beat." She had pulled a nightie over her head, did not put on underwear. She slapped playfully at his hand, which he could not resist crawling over her side as though he intended to worm his way under her nightshirt.

She had seemed happy.

Carefree.

And what was the problem with that?

Josh spooned her, as platonically as he could. Until she seemed to be asleep. She fell into her sleep like an untroubled woman. She said nothing more than "goodnight."

He had rolled onto his back and stared at the ceiling, but after fifteen minutes he knew why he was still awake. He tried to tell himself that there were loftier motives to his fitful mind, but deep down he knew what really motivated him to get out of bed.

He had crept into his office, and guiltily moved the furniture around so that the computer screen faced the wall. Then, like he was an adolescent sneaking porn from under his bed, his fingers trembled over the keyboard and he summoned the video to play.

He watched Rachel sliding down the wall, opening her mouth, swallowing Xavier's cock. Now he had the details of the act. Rachel had painted a picture for him of the things he couldn't see on the camera: the tongue-slapping, the licking.

He watched as they disappeared into Rachel's office, and then he watched the hallway and the floor blur across the screen as he had crept down the hall, the camera still on but Josh not holding it upright.

Then he watched as the picture steadied. As it zoomed through a glass partition in the office next to Rachel's. He was hiding under the desk, filming like a rat, his finger cleverly on the red light. Zoomed right up to where Xavier's cock was punching into his wife's pussy, and his fat fingers were stretching her ass open wider and wider.

Josh came long before the film ever reached that point, though.

Then he sat there, staring.

Were the details Rachel had given him the same? He clicked at the part of the video and watched with stony-eyed silence. He tried to remember Rachel's exact words. He sliced them apart and analyzed them again and again. Sometimes trying to find fault, sometimes trying to make them a perfect rendition of what had happened.

This was all okay, after all, if Rachel was just honest with him.

Right?

He pressed the pads of his fingers against his closed eyelids. Just hard enough to make the smooth appearance of his eyelid turn to a fizzing show of stars. Josh had a form of synesthesia, present only when he did this particular thing, and he heard the floaters and bright-colored stars bursting and popping in his mind. Like having his ear to a soda can. This was a fact about himself that he had never revealed to anyone, not even Rachel, though he could not say why.

He did it when he was thinking. Problem-solving.

The realization hit him: his mind was engaged in the act of problem-solving.

Why couldn't he just enjoy what he'd set up?

What was the problem?

He dug deeper inside of himself.

He knew what it was. He had known what it was for days. He had known what it was when he bought the camera, known what it was when he went to film them, and he knew now what it was.

He wanted to be “cool” with what he had set up. He wanted to enjoy his wife fucking Xavier.

But deep down inside?

He was afraid. And he wanted to put the brakes on everything.

He replayed the first moments of the video, if only reaffirm his fears.

The look between them. The look on Rachel's face.

He couldn't see it well but he could see it, nonetheless: she was, in that moment, not fucking Xavier for Josh. She was fucking Xavier because she was drawn to him, because he had her entranced.

Josh rubbed his face. “Fuck,” he said.

Options.

He could talk to Rachel. Tell her it was a mistake. Ask her to stop seeing Xavier.

Josh knew the feeling inside him now. It was the feeling of knowing what the “right” thing was, and just not wanting to do it. The same reluctance with which you'd hand over a walletful of money to a lost and found.

Maybe you could just take one twenty for yourself...

There was also the matter that, after seeing Rachel with Xavier, he wasn't so sure she would stop if he asked her to.

And that was a terrifying thought. It gave him a severe pain in his stomach.

There was also the fact that if he did that, asked her to stop, this was it. The last time he could watch Rachel's lips moving so close to his cock and forming the words of a story about how she fucked a hung black man.

Josh stared out the window again.

Or....there was the other plan. The one he'd come up with some nights ago.

He turned off the monitor. He sighed.

That plan was a crazy man's plan. A plan inspired by, of all things, a dream.

He even laughed at himself, out loud. A small laugh, though. A laugh with some room to be serious.

He remembered an important adage of his medical training: to not forget that there is always the option to do nothing. See if the body would cure itself.

Sometimes this worked.

His stomach twisted.

Sometimes, it did not.

FURTHER IN-DEPTH

Rachel sat in her chair and stared at the back of Melissa's head. The clock seemed to tick with a glacial slowness that defied physics and time.

Tick.

Tick.

It was otherwise silent.

Rachel swept her eyes over the table where she had let Xavier fuck her. She kept doing this, partly for her own titillation, and partly to make sure it bore no traces of her misdeeds.

What those traces would be, she had no idea. Streaks of cum? Fingernails clawed into the plastic top?

Back to Melissa's head. Jesus, she was taking along time to read through the leads.

Or was it that time had stopped? Leaving her here, in a limbo, to contemplate her own reckless fever? She looked at the clock again. It did not seem to have moved.

In one hour she would see Xavier again. Her stomach flopped and her blood went icy-hot at the thought. It was reminiscent of adolescence, this feeling. But it had a dark, liquid edge to it. When she was an adolescent, she felt butterflies in her stomach. Now she felt butterflies and a filthy ache inside of her.

"I like this one about the shoe guy, honestly," Melissa said. She spun in her chair and handed Rachel a stack of papers. "It has a bit of everything." Then she lowered her voice, and took on a conspiratorial tone. "You going with Xavier?"

Rachel had been expecting this question, because if there was something that could be said about Melissa, it was that she was a hopeless gossip. She wasn't a malicious gossip: she liked happy endings, the Royal Family, when good things happened to the Kardashians.

Rachel kept her eyes on her pile of papers, moving them over the letters as though she were reading. The mere mention of Xavier's name had dumped adrenaline into her bloodstream, and her heart pressed against her chest. She shrugged, as if the question had no meaning for her, and hoped that Melissa didn't see that the papers were trembling in her hands.

"It has pathos," Rachel said.

“You know you two are all over the internet?” Melissa plowed ahead. “There's even a picture of you at the hotel where you had lunch and everyone is like, 'OMG did they get together or what?'" Melissa spun around again and brought up her Twitter account and a feed of #HotRachel tweets faster than Rachel felt was normal. “See?” she said.

Rachel rolled her eyes and flipped through the papers as though she had better things to do. Sure enough, though, there was a picture of her and Xavier at the hotel restaurant circulating the internet.

“What does Josh think about all this?” Melissa was indefatigable. She spun back around. “Is he jealous? You're not actually doing anything with him, though, are you?”

Rachel let her talk. The nice thing about Melissa's love of gossip is that she enjoyed inventing it as much as she enjoyed sharing it. Rachel knew from experience that she could nudge Melissa in whatever direction she wanted without saying anything at all. Rachel rolled her eyes.

“That's what I said. It's obvious. Like you would do something in such an obvious way, right? If you were having an affair with him, you'd hide it better. That's what I said. And also, have you seen his wife? She looks like a supermodel. I'm mean, you're hot, obviously, but I just don't think Xavier's the type to cat around -”

“Cat around?' What year is this?” Rachel said. It was a deliberate move, intended to demonstrate how uninterested she was in Melissa's speculations. They were so fantastical, it was meant to say, that she wasn't even worried about defending them.

Rachel's eyes fluttered involuntarily to look at the picture of them. Her thoughts were dragged to Xavier, to how it felt to fuck him. She could feel her insides twisting. She was getting wet just thinking about him.

Melissa leaned closer to Rachel. “He is hot, though. I mean, I wouldn't turn him down. If he did, you know...” she arched her eyebrows suggestively. She was still trying to get something juicy out of Rachel. She was practically salivating like a dog in front of its dinner.

Rachel slapped the papers on her desk and spun around. She was ready for this line, too. “That's why you are considered the office slut,” she joked.

The joke worked because Melissa was moon-faced and almost as asexual-seeming as anyone could be, which was why she was behind a desk and not in front of a camera. It did not deflate her perkiness; it seemed to be a role she was born for. But there was no chance in hell that the cardigan-clad, mousy-haired Melissa was the office slut.

She giggled and returned to her computer. Rachel's constricted chest relaxed. "Shoe guy it is," she whispered, only to herself.

Her mind was on the time, on how to make it pass faster. Because in just over an hour, she would leave the office, and drive to a hotel, and get what she couldn't stop thinking about.

She was out of control. She knew she was out of control, and she had never felt this way before.

It seemed too easy, all of this. She was twenty-eight, which was young but old enough to know that if things seemed to easy, there was something wrong with them. An alarm flickered constantly in the back of her mind, but it was like a light in her peripheral vision: easy to ignore.

She could turn her thoughts to Josh for only moments at a time. She loved Josh. She really loved Josh. He was a smart man, a funny man, a good-looking man. She loved their marriage, and she knew she didn't want to fuck it up. She knew that at the end of this – whatever it was – she wanted things to be back more or less to where they were before it all began. And she had a sense that thinking something like that could happen was a pipe dream.

The problem was that she didn't feel like stopping. Not in her body. Maybe she felt that way theoretically, maybe she wanted to feel that way. But the reason she was driving in a half-daze, her stomach in knots, her panties soaked, sweat gathering on the surface of her skin, was because she wanted to fuck Xavier. She wanted the animal, fevered lust between them, and she wanted it in a way she had never wanted anything before.

She knew she should be thinking more about whether or not she would be doing this if she didn't have Josh's approval. Or if Josh were to change his mind about it. She knew she should be thinking about her own feelings, and whether or not they were walking too close to the edge of emotional connection with Xavier. Or what if she and Josh could never have the same run-of-the-mill intimacy they had before? Going home and letting him wring the details of what she had done with Xavier from her was such a delicious, naughty, frosting on the cake. But what if they became addicted? What if they needed to go further every time, to get their fix? Did she want to go down that path?

She was already envisioning things with Xavier that she had never, ever, given any serious thought. Dirty, filthy things. She was already doing things she almost couldn't believe. How far would she take it?

She also knew that even though, on the surface, everything seemed to be okay, and everyone was saying this was no big deal...well, there had to be a catch. There was always a catch.

But she wasn't thinking about things like that. Not much, anyway. Instead, the thoughts flickered through her mind and then she went back to imagining carnal things.

She pulled in to the motel parking lot and texted Xavier. Every letter she typed wound her insides up tighter.

I'm here.

And then a silence. A moment to think. She looked at the dismal parking lot. She tried to will herself into thinking about how this looked from the outside. To think with her mind, for one fucking moment. But she couldn't. Her breath was stopped in her chest until her phone rattled in her hand, the three digits of the room number on the screen, no more.

He opened the door and they looked at each other in silence. He was already undressed, except for his boxers. Her eyes moved over his dark skin, the taut curvature of his muscles, the shape of his cock inside the fabric of his underwear.

She stepped in to the room and he closed the door, brushing against her body. He had a smile on his lips. Then his mouth was near her neck, and her skin turned to prickled flesh from the nape of her neck to her inner thighs. "You kept me waiting," he said. Rachel felt a hot flush creep over her face. Xavier slid her shoulder bag from her arm, and it dropped to the floor with a thud.

"Get undressed," he said. "Just down to your underwear." He moved to the bed and sat on the edge of it, elbows on his knees. The light smile was gone, and now he was devouring her with his eyes.

Which she loved. She felt the heat of his commanding stare burn through her, and it seemed to wring her insides until she was gushing. She unbuttoned her blouse, feeling his hungry gaze as though he were physically touching her. She slid her blouse away from the new lingerie she had purchased: black. Naughty. The bra was transparent: a pointless bra. An incredibly unprofessional bra. Her pink nipples winked through it, and they turned hard at the thought of Xavier touching them. And then afterward, Josh.

Rachel was so worked up she felt like she could come with a single pulse to her clit. She slid her form-hugging black skirt off, and let it fall to the floor in a heap. The matching panties were also transparent, essentially useless. She watched Xavier's eyes as they burned into the small patch of black material, looking through it to see if she had done what he'd asked.

His approval registered with no more than flicker in his eyes. His mouth turned up a little.

Was it wrong, what went through her head at a moment like this? It was, but it was deliciously wrong. She liked the look on Xavier's face, now that he could see she had shaved her pussy bare at his request. And she liked to think of the look on Josh's face, when he found it for himself.

"Come here," Xavier said.

She started to step out of her shoes. They were also new. They were five inches high, nearly impossible to walk in. She had stood in front of the mirror with these heels on, and her transparent underwear, and she had been filled with an excitement of a completely new kind. She was stunning. She knew it. She enjoyed it. She enjoyed being sexual as opposed to cute.

"Leave those on," Xavier said. Why did just a sentence like that get her so wet? She could feel her underwear sticking to her. The useless fabric was soaked through and now her eager juices were smearing on her thighs.

She stepped toward him until he reached out and slid his hands along the back of her thighs. Her hips were right at his face, her pungent thighs and pussy staring at him through the fabric. His hands were hot against her skin. He barely touched her, traveling from the back of her knee to the lip of her buttocks, where he wedged his finger and slid it against the sensitive skin. She felt her entire body convulse with pleasure.

He leaned in toward her underwear and inhaled her. Then she felt one hand curled under the fabric at the back and pull it down. The panties peeled away from her, and he tugged at them with impatience once her pussy was bared, until they tore and fell tangled at her feet.

He pressed his face against her bare skin, and the bristled hair of his neatly-trimmed beard grazed her virgin bare skin. She felt another involuntary convulsion in her body. The sensation was almost too pleasurable to bear. His lips were on the very top of her gash, right where her skin parted to ripe fruit, when he murmured: "That's very nice, Rachel.

Very naughty.” His baritone voice vibrated through her skin, into her folds, humming against her aching clit. She felt her pussy pulse and more of her excitement ooze from inside of her. She placed her hands on his head to steady herself.

“What other naughty things will Rachel Elliot do for me today?” he said, his lips still against her in the same place. But at the end, at the very end of his sentence, his tongue slid into her pussy and along the spine of her hard clit.

Almost to the bundle of screaming nerves that were protruding from its tip. Almost. But not quite.

Rachel felt her breath leave her body as though someone had punched it out of her.

Anything. Anything naughty, she would do. Whatever occurred to him. She could only think the words but not say them. She clutched his head as his tongue took another dive, slowly, along her clit. She held her breath as he moved down, closer to where she wanted him to go, and then finally, finally, rubbed the tip of his tongue against the slick center of her clit.

Her body shuddered.

He did it again, and she made a sound that she had no way of describing. Not a moan, not a squeal, not a gasp. A sort of desperate mewl.

Do it again, she willed him.

Instead he brought his lips back to where he had begun. “Hmm?” he purred. “What will you do for me, Rachel?”

He parted his lips, and his lower lip dipped down below her clit. He could take the whole nub inside his hot mouth, but he didn't. Rachel felt her breath turn ragged and almost panicked. “Anything,” she managed to say.

He sucked her clit into his mouth. Then he grasped her ass and pushed her against his mouth. She felt herself turning, spinning, then pushed onto the bed. Xavier was smiling, she could feel the shape of his smile against her bare pussy lips. “First let me play with this bare pussy,” he said.

He pushed her legs apart. He was on the floor now, kneeling at the edge of the bed. She knew he was admiring her bare skin, her pretty and petite lips, her tiny clit that had hardened to an engorged button, swimming in a pool of her juices.

He teased her with his tongue. His beard scraped at her inner thighs, and he had to hold her open when her legs flailed. He squeezed her to hold her still as he made a wide circle over her outer lips. Her clit throbbed to be touched. She was so close now that she would come in a few seconds if only he would just suck her into his mouth again.

Instead, he trailed his tongue down, down...oh, Jesus. Down to her asshole. For a second she felt a shiver of embarrassment – this was new territory to her, a rare, rare thing between her and any of her lovers. And secretly, she had been craving it. She had been imagining it. She had masturbated in the shower thinking about what it would be like to take him inside her ass.

He didn't spend much time there, though: he made a quick circle, then took a tiny plunge into her flesh, and returned to her cunt. He flicked his tongue at her clit until she made a sound similar to sobbing. She lifted her head to see what he was doing, and then he dove in, and she sank into his mouth. In only a second her stomach hardened and her whole body was seized by an orgasm that made her scream. Actually scream. Most times she faked that, or at least hammed it up. This time she actually had to scream.

Xavier did not release her from his mouth. He kept going, until she raised herself up on her elbows and tried to twist away from him. It was too intense. "I can't take it," she panted to him. But he did not relent. She fell back on the bed, and closed her eyes, moaning.

Soon enough, though, the intensity turned again to an ache of need. Almost as if it was plan just to torture her, he stopped. As he rose to the bed, he turned her over, and she went willingly to all fours. She felt his hands on her body as he adjusted her to what he wanted, the view he wanted. He unhooked her bra and slid the straps from her arms. He pressed on her lower back so her ass was in the air for him. He nudged her legs together at the knee and apart at the ankles. He pushed her head down.

She could feel his cock against her legs as he arranged her. He had freed it from the boxers. It was smooth against her skin, and heavy when it slapped against her. She tried to turn and get a glimpse of it. She liked to look at it, and this too was an unusual and new thing for her.

"Put your hands on your knees," he said. He helped her as she reached back with hesitation, unsure of what he wanted, and he placed her hands against the back of her knees. His fingers returned to her pussy next, pulling it apart, rubbing her clit, admiring what she had done for him.

He pressed the fat tip of his cock against her pussy, and rubbed her clit with his head. She felt herself pulsing with desire to feel the size of him inside of her. Even as wet as she was, even as much as she wanted him, she knew that as always, it was going to burn when he filled her up. Just for a moment, as her pussy was pushed to its limit – and it felt like the absolute limit – by his cock.

He entered her slowly, letting her enjoy every sweet second of pain as he pushed her open. Every second that it took was immeasurably desperate for her, until she was filled. Every inch was a wait for the satisfaction of feeling him all the way inside of her, all the way until his hard balls pressed against her pussy. Her skin was stretched out as though someone were pulling it from both sides, and so the tiny bundle of hypersensitive nerves of her clit was exposed. He slid a finger down to it, and rubbed the skin there.

Rachel jerked at the sensation: this was a place, a part of her body that was never exposed, never felt anything rubbing it. The pleasure was so intense it burned. He did it again and she screamed into the sheets. Her hands whipped up next to her face and she fisted the fabric into tight balls as he continued his assault until she felt herself screaming toward another climax.

But he stopped, just as she was almost at the edge. He didn't move, just let her squirm on the bed in desperation, his cock inside of her. She tried to rut against him, and push herself over the edge, but he held her with one large hand on the small of her back, and she couldn't move.

When she calmed down, she felt his hands pulling her asscheeks apart.

She opened her eyes and gasped.

She craved this, and now more than ever. Her pussy was gushing and she was deliciously close to coming, and she felt already as though she were fucked-out. Too exhausted to resist. Too hotted up to feel pain.

His fingers swept over her anus, and she let herself give in to the sensation. Her pussy clenched around his cock, and he made a sound of approval at the encouragement.

When he had put his thumbs inside of her and held her open, the last time they had fucked, at the station, Rachel had been surprised at what she could take. As he slid a finger inside of her now, she winced, but the pain went away quickly as she relaxed.

“That's good,” Xavier purred. She felt him slide another finger inside of her, and then he began to fuck her gently.

His fingers pressed against his cock through her body. He began to move his hips, and she started to moan into the sheets with the intensity of her pleasure. It was a foreign, strange pleasure, and she knew it was going to be an acquired taste, but she wanted it like she had never wanted anything before.

“You want more?” Xavier asked her, after he had ground into her for a while. Her body was pulsing around him, she knew, and so he knew the answer to her question. He just wanted to hear it.

“I want to try it,” Rachel panted. She tried to meet his eye from where she was crumpled on the bed.

She let out a low moan as he added a third finger to his finger-fucking of her ass. She now felt stretched out as she had never been, filled up as she had never been. Her ass was aching and she could feel that she wanted something more. In spite of the pain.

“What do you want? I want to hear you say it, naughty girl.” He pushed his hand into her, and she felt a stab of pleasurable pain deep inside of her.

“I want to try..” she panted, overcome for a moment as he twisted his fingers inside of her. His knuckles rolled to a new place and ground through her membrane against his cock, and she bit the sheets. “I want to... I want to try to...take it the ass.”

“It,” he said plainly. She could feel the smile on his face.

“Your cock,” she said.

“Mmm,” he said. He withdrew his hand slowly, and she screamed into the sheets. “I don't think you're ready for that yet, Rachel Elliot.” She sobbed as her ass was suddenly empty, and she felt her hole spasming closed. Xavier swept a finger around the rim, and she bucked against him. “I want to try,” she panted.

He didn't answer, only fucked her pussy slowly, his hands on her ass, pulling her cheeks apart so he could see her gaping hole close up. For a moment, she didn't know what would happen.

Suddenly, though, he was in motion. He withdrew his cock from inside of her pussy, and she deflated with the disappointment before she realized that he was going to comply with her request.

A sudden fear seized her as she felt the blunt end of his cock against her puckered asshole. Was this really what she wanted?

She pushed herself up on her hands, and he allowed her to do it. She tossed her hair over her shoulder and looked back at him. She could see the enormous, fat black column of his cock. He leaned over her ass, and let a glob of spit fall from his mouth. It fell, hot and sticky, directly into the center of her ass. Her hole was still stretched by his fingers, and so it dripped inside of her. She turned to face the wall, and she felt another drop inside of her.

He lined his cock up against her again, and she felt him push against her. His cock was hot, sticky-wet from her pussy, but it wouldn't budge. She felt her asshole constrict involuntarily, and she hung her head to concentrate on relaxing.

She felt herself open for him, and then a sharp pain as the first inch of him pushed into her. She collapsed onto the bed and yelled into the sheets. He stopped, and she felt herself throbbing around his glans. "Want me to stop?"

She shook her head. She didn't. She wanted more of him. Even though it was painful, she could almost feel what it would be like to have her entire ass filled up by him, and the sensation was calling to her. She wanted it.

He pushed inside of her, and kept going, without a pause. Slowly, inch by inch filling her. Every second was painful. She felt the rim of her asshole opening, but almost felt as though it were being ripped apart. She couldn't make sense of why she liked the sensation, except that perhaps the delicious sensation of his cock filled her up with a dull, incomprehensible ache, and acted as a counterbalance.

And then the shredding sensation stopped. The ring of her ass was a presence of sharp, insistent pain, but it was slowly throbbing away. Inside of her, though, his enormous cock was making her feel...filled. Like she had never been filled before.

She was panting, writhing on the sheets.

He nudged her legs apart, and then she felt his fingers against her clit. He stroked her, but it was not the same as before, when her skin was pulled apart taut as a canvas. She shot her hands between her legs and pulled the lips of her pussy apart, tightly stretching them, so that he could get at that untouched, hypersensitive part of her clit.

When he rubbed against it, it sent a shot of electricity through her. She jolted and screamed. Again, and her ass clenched around his cock. She cried out, but she could not identify for herself what she was crying from – pain or pleasure. There was nothing else in the world in that moment except the poker-hot pleasure of her clit, and the fullness inside her ass.

Because the sensation of his fingers on her clit was so intense, it was a while before she came. He rubbed and she screamed, and he let her twist and spasm around his cock, then settle to a heaving mass on the bed, calm, before he tried again.

Finally, he began to swipe her clit with a steady rhythm, and she screamed into the pillow until her entire body was seized by an orgasm so intense that it almost terrified her. Xavier's cock inside of her ass made it that much more pleasurable. She heard him breathe in pleasure, and she knew that he was enjoying the pulsing of her flesh around his cock as her orgasm throbbed inside of her.

She collapsed into the sheets with her ass still upturned to him. She was unable to move, totally spent. She felt Xavier turning her body, lifting her legs as though she were a doll, but she lay limp and let him move her as though she had no volition of her own. She shuddered as he spun her around with his cock still embedded inside of her.

He pushed her legs up, next to her head. His skin, dry against her own damp flesh, was hot against her nipples and her chest. He held her legs up to her ears, and she gasped as his weight pushed her body down. She imagined what she might look like at that moment, say to Josh, if he ever got his wish of watching her. What would he see, if he were sitting in the armchair, or hiding behind the curtain? Would he be able to see Xavier's cock, stretching her open?

The thought made her blood begin to boil with lust again. She had never thought of herself this way, like a pornographer. Never considered what it might look like from somewhere else in the room. The thought of seeing Xavier's cock in her ass, and her own legs bouncing around near her head with her high heels on, spiked another jolt of arousal through her.

Xavier began to fuck her. It was then that she understood the reason for turning her around. The first thrust was excruciating, rough inside of her, and she screamed in pain. But the gushing juices of her cum and excitement dipped onto his cock and when he pushed into her again it was smooth and slick. His pelvis ground against her clit. She felt herself, almost incredibly, being sucked into another wave of building climax.

She relaxed and let her ass open for him. As his cock got wetter and wetter, he fucked her harder. She started to enjoy each thrust, the exquisite pain of it, as he drove himself deeper and deeper into her.

“Come one more time for me, Rachel,” he told her. He was looking into her eyes. It was not an expression of tender intimacy, but of control. He was dominating her, and she was his plaything to be used and filled. The thought, along with the imagined picture of his cock spreading her to her limits, made her crest again in a final orgasm that made her stop breathing.

She was barely present as he slammed inside of her. How long did he fuck her like that? Like an animal, pounding his enormous cock into her ass until she was certain she wouldn't be able to walk, until at last she felt her ass being filled with the hot liquid of his cum.

He wrapped her arms around her legs at the knees, so that she was holding herself open with her thighs up. Her knees bent, grateful to be released from the position he had held her in. His cock slid out from inside of her, still hard, and she felt the odd sensation of relief and disappointment. The satisfaction of being filled was lost, but the torture was over.

He rose to his knees, and stroked the final spurts of cum from his cock, his eyes on her pussy and her gaping asshole.

The sight of his face burned into her memory. She knew she would summon it, later when she was thinking about this day in her shower, stroking herself to relief. She could feel it working its way inside of her, like fishhooks: she was addicted to being dominated.

Dominated by a man who was not her husband.

Xavier fell on to the bed on his back, and held his arm to his forehead. He pulled Rachel to his chest, and she put her cheek against his skin. It wasn't a loving gesture, just a friendly one. “Dang Rachel Elliot,” he said.

They lay like that for a while, but they had work to do.

Rachel took a shower, and they got dressed.

They were off to investigate the shoe shiner of Fourteenth Avenue.

IN-DEPTH COVERAGE

“And then what?”

Rachel was on all fours, and Josh was behind her, trying to fuck her slowly while she recounted her experience with Xavier. Josh's cock was starting to pulse and flex inside of her, and he was hard as rock. He would burst inside of her any moment, but he wanted to hear about how Xavier had fucked her, right up to the end.

So far, Rachel had told him in great detail about how Xavier had told her to shave her pussy, and then rewarded her by eating her out. Josh had lapped at her wet cunt as she told the story, enjoying the bareness of it. Savoring the fact that she had done it for Xavier and not for him.

And then he had placed her on the bed, on her knees, the way she was now for Josh. With his huge, fat cock, he had fucked her the same way Josh was fucking her now. And he had pried apart her ass with his thick fingers, and fucked her with them.

Josh started at her asshole, which was not yet recovered from Xavier's abuse. The dull pink of her anus had turned bright, and the pucker was pouting from its abuse. A small gape still yawned at him. Xavier had really gone at her.

“And then...” Rachel hesitated.

At first, Josh took it for her being overcome by her rising orgasm. She was sloshing wet again, and she had come for him once already. Rachel herself was the one grinding back against him, as though telling him the details of her afternoon with Xavier were turning her on as much as it was Josh. It was mildly disconcerting, but Josh had no time for that feeling now. The only thing he could feel was his need, his need to hear what Xavier had done to his wife.

He thrust into her hard. “What, Rachel? Did he fuck you in the ass?”

She was getting closer to coming. “I can't...” she squeaked. She was pumping back against the force of Josh's thrust and seemed to have gotten lost in her own world.

“Did he come in your ass?” Josh demanded. Only now, there was something different to his request. It was no longer only about how much he lusted after her words, after the details of her defilement in Xavier's black hands, but something else.

Josh plunged a finger into her ass. It was surprisingly not difficult. He pushed deep inside of her, and he felt Rachel squirm and buck against him. She pushed herself up and back, trying to get Josh's finger deeper inside of her.

“Did he cum in your ass, Rachel?”

She threw her head back. Her hair was damp with sweat and it slapped on her skin. “Yes,” she panted. She mewled, and Josh drove his fingers deep inside of her. Her flesh was silky-smooth and hot on his fingers. Rachel was rutting against him. He watched with fascination: she was like an animal.

“And I liked it,” she said, after a pause. She ground against his hand. “I liked having his cock in my ass.”

Josh began to pound himself into her. He left his fingers inside of her as he did, and when he came he felt her also spasming with her own climax. It undulated over his cock inside her pussy, and her ass tightened and released around the fingers in her ass. Hot, smooth flesh, tight against him.

He could see why Xavier had fucked her there.

His seed filled his wife's pussy, and as she squeezed around his hand, he felt sure that he could feel some of the cum Xavier had pumped into her being pushed up and over his fingers. He dug deep inside of her, and he could feel the pressure of his hand against his cock. Rachel moaned and squirmed, but he held her like that for a moment. Then he slowly withdrew from both of her holes, and she collapsed on the bed on her stomach.

He fell down on his back.

They lay there. Josh felt like he should say something, but the only thing that occurred to him was how hot what they had just done was. He knew that maybe Rachel would want something else, something more romantic.

Or would she? He looked over at her. She had a faint smile on her lips, and her face seemed untroubled in spite of the silence after the moment.

Then she rose up abruptly, getting onto her knees and pushing her hair out of her face. Her hair was damp and tousled, and she looked beautiful. Josh moved a hand to her stomach and played with her damp skin.

She grabbed his hand, pressed it to her lips, and then jumped out of bed.

“I have to take a shower,” she said, abruptly, and trotted out of the room.

Which was strange. Going down the hallway.

Josh placed his forearm over his eyes and sighed. His mind felt both heavy and light, and his heart was the same way.

He tried to think about it, sort through it, but he was fucked-out and tired.

Surely this was good, after all.

He would think about it later.

SIGNS OF CONFLICT

Rachel knew that her locking the door to the bathroom would not go unnoticed by Josh. She knew it was a sign of trouble. Why else would she do something she never did?

But she needed to be alone. She needed to sit down in the clawed tub of the guest bathroom with the shower running, and think.

She wiped water from her face and leaned back against the wall of the tub, looking up at the ceiling. She didn't want to close her eyes. She knew that if she did, she would wind up letting her mind go to thoughts about Xavier. And she wanted to have clear thoughts about what she was doing right here, right now.

Sex with Josh was hot. It was hot now, and she couldn't deny it. What they had done had improved their sex life.

She wished she could just end the sentence there, and think no more about it. This was a good thing they had done, and that was that.

But something was unsettled inside of her.

There was the fact that she had almost not told Josh about what she had done with Xavier. She wasn't sure why not. She had almost said: "He put his fingers in my ass and finger-fucked me." She had almost left out the truth. And truth be told, she hadn't exactly divulged the full truth to Josh.

She had said that she liked it, but that was the wrong word.

She didn't like it. She had a feeling that was so extreme that it was on both ends of the spectrum at once: she hated it and she loved it. Or something like that. She couldn't stop thinking about it.

She couldn't wait to do it again.

She couldn't stop thinking about what he would do next. How extreme it could be. How far she would let him go. Where could he even go from here?

She was shocked at herself, in a way. She was no prude, but Rachel had never been one to engage in sex that belonged in a porno. She had never been one to think about it much. If someone had asked her a month ago if she would let a man fuck her in the ass, she would have screwed up her face and scrunched her nose and shook her head. She would have meant it, too.

But now she was a woman who not only let a man do that to her – a big man, a well-endowed man – but she was thinking about it. Obsessed with it. Hoping he would take it even further.

There was that.

Then there was the other twist. She enjoyed thinking about Josh watching her. She enjoyed thinking about the view he would have. She enjoyed thinking about what it looked like, not from where she was, crushed into the pillows and taking a cock deep inside of her. No, she wanted to see what it looked like from the armchair. What did her body look like as Xavier stretched it open and used it for his own pleasure?

She moved her fingers between her legs, and found her pussy slick with arousal. She began to slide her pointer finger over the knob of her clit.

The sensation was dull. She parted her legs and stretched her lips open, trying to find that place Xavier had stroked. She imagined the sensation of her ass being filled.

She came quickly, because thinking about Xavier had ratcheted the ache between her legs up to its highest level in no time at all. She leaned her head back and let the shudder of her orgasm pass through her.

It was good, but she knew now that it could be so much better.

She didn't like this feeling. This was the feeling of addiction. This constant need to take things further. The propensity to lie.

She shook her head. God, what was she doing?

She knew she should talk to Josh. She knew she would come clean about what she was feeling. Put the brakes on all of this. Hell, it wasn't even that hard to do.

Josh would listen to her.

Xavier would understand.

She let her mind visualize herself getting out of the tub. Wrapping a towel around herself. Going to the bedroom, sitting on the bed. Saying: “We need to talk.” Josh would rub her back. Josh would tell her not to worry.

Xavier would be as he always was: totally cool. They would go back to their friendship, like none of this happened.

And she would have done the right thing.

But she didn't do any of these things.

Her own desire – a base desire – kept her cemented to the bathtub with the water streaming down her face. She wasn't going to do any of that.

Because deep down inside, she wanted to feel what she felt today, again. And she was past the point of not taking risks for it. She was going to talk to Josh, but it wasn't going to be about their relationship.

No. She had another plan.

THE SUGGESTION

Josh was stunned by Rachel's suggestion.

Well, perhaps not the suggestion, but rather the...what was the word? Glee. The glee with which she proposed it. He watched her mouth and her face and her body as she told him her plan. Pupils dilated; skin painted with a slight pink as her rushing blood filled her capillaries; chest rising and falling in shallow, short breaths. Her voice shook and her accents disintegrated into the kooky edges of her Aussie accent.

To be sure, Josh had done nothing to stop it all.

She had perched on his desk, her legs crossed and her feet tapping at the air. Her heels on the edge of the desk, close to her ass, so that if she merely uncrossed her legs, her would see what was between her legs. Her freshly shaved snatch, smooth like butter, with her gushing red slit between her creamy-colored folds. Maybe she had some new pair of panties on, and maybe they were soaked with cum. He wouldn't know until she started talking, and he could see that she was fully aware of her power over him. She tossed her hair, kicked her foot around, the deliciously high heel stabbing at the air. She bit her lip.

"So I was thinking," she began, and she let it linger there in the air, sliding her hips seductively on the desk, waving her sexy shoe at him. She flexed her thigh, made a move as though she was going to uncross her legs, and then let her foot drop. She watched Josh's face as she did this. He almost certainly betrayed his excitement and then his crushing disappointment. He want her to part her legs so he could get a whiff of what was in there. She had come home late. He wanted to know if she had been at a hotel, or in a stairwell, or in the car, letting Xavier pump her full of his cum in one or all of her red, wet holes.

He was frozen. He was standing by the bookshelf, staring at her. His cock was robbing his entire body of oxygen. He just waited, waited for her to speak.

She tossed her hair. "I was thinking that maybe you wanted to...you know, do that thing you mentioned a while back, when this all started."

Josh racked his brains for a "thing" he had mentioned. His dirty mind offered a whole list of filthy sex acts, but he did not remember ever voicing any of those ideas to his wife.

She smiled at his confusion. He could see that she was starting to enjoy making him uncomfortable, in this particular way. It was unlike her, to be the one who lured him into sexual encounters. She never teased, she never lured.

“Watching,” she said finally. Then she cocked her head in mock-innocence. “Isn't that what you said you wanted to do?”

A fist of painful pleasure punched through Josh's gut.

He dropped some papers he had been holding in his hand the whole time.

“I...” his throat was dry and his voice cracked out of him as though he hadn't spoken in a year. He cleared his throat. “I...yeah. I...”

“Yeah?” Rachel repeated, and she was grinning. “That's not very committed.”

She uncrossed her legs at that point, and placed her foot on the edge of the desk. Now she was almost crouched there, with her spiked high heels pushing her legs into a contorted position. Between her legs, her pussy glistened. Bare. Without a scrap of lace or transparent fabric covering it. Josh stared at her gash, and saw that she had most definitely been up to something with Xavier. His cock was already hard but he felt as though it pulsed to an even higher plane of hardness.

“I can tell you all about the things I do,” she purred, and her voice was as unlike her regular voice as it could possibly be, except for her Australian vowels, “or you could just come and watch them.”

Josh was unbuckling his pants, staring at her cunt. He moved to the desk, and in a series of very quick movements, he dropped his pants and pulled his wife onto his aching cock. He nearly fell into her: she was so wet that there was little doubt he was plunging into a pussy full of another man's cum. His balls slammed against her taint and were instantly sticky. He reached down and grasped her buttocks, and began to pump her body over his cock.

Rachel thrust herself up and down his shaft, and met his eyes. There was a strange glint in them, and she was smiling. If he hadn't been balls-deep in her pussy, he might have been terrified by the expression.

“I want you to watch me,” she breathed.

Josh may have been disconcerted by his wife, but that was a thought for his brain. His cock did the thinking now, and so he said:

“Watch you what?”

He pulled her hair, and tilted her head back as he pounded her more fervently. He was going to come any second, so he repeated himself. "Watch you what?"

"Take a big cock in the ass," she said. "I want you to watch me get fucked like a little whore."

Josh's balls felt as though they had been placed in a vice, and the cum inside of him was being crushed out. He opened his mouth to yell, but he came so hard that his body seized up and could do nothing but slam his hips against Rachel's body. He felt her body harden in his hands as well, and she gasped when she came.

And that was how she brought it up.

She told him the plan after they had uncoupled. She reached into a pocket of her skirt and unfolded a handkerchief-sized pair of panties and put them on. As if she did that sort of thing all the time. Josh stared at her, his own boxers still at his knees with his pants.

Her eyes were on fire. Her skin flushed to life as she spoke.

She had all the details planned out.

"So? You want to?" she finished. She was leaning on the desk now, tapping her fingers lightly against the back of it.

Her eyes dropped to his cock. It was still wet with her cum, his cum, and probably Xavier's cum, and yet she had brought it back to life just talking about her plan for Friday evening. Her face lit up with victory when she saw his hard prick, and she didn't move her eyes away. Instead, she reached out and took him in her hand. "I think that's a yes," she said. She pulled him by his cock toward her, and he nearly fell with his tangled pants tripping up his legs.

She brushed her lips over his, and her mouth flickered with entertainment when his cock pulsed in her hand. "I'm a little worn out right now," she said, "so why don't I take a shower? That will give you some time to think on it."

She kissed him, and left him in the room alone. Wondering what in the hell had happened to his wife.

And with his cock hard as steel, anxious to get what she had promised him.

EMBEDDED

His stomach felt like it was trying to claw its way out of his body. He had the same feeling, radiating out to his limbs, that he had before his first post-university job interview. He had the same feeling he used to get when he saw Jenny Meyer, long-limbed blond cheerleaders, walking down the hallway in ninth grade. He had the same feeling pumping through his veins that he had when his lips finally touched Rachel's, after pining for her for a year.

Somewhere in there, also, was a feeling not unlike the one he felt when his neighbor's irascible Rottweiler, who had jumped against the fence and landed two feet from Josh's waist, frothing and demon-eyed. A sort of deep freeze from the crotch up.

(The dog, it turned out, was very friendly).

All of this, churning in his stomach, and a hard-on. An incredibly painful erection that seemed to have gone on for hours.

After exploring, as she put it, the options at hotels and motels, and the station, Rachel had concluded that the best idea was for Josh to get his watching-fix in their own home. They had toured the house together, in an odd twilight, opening doors and trying out nooks and crannies by stuffing Josh inside of them. In the end, they had concluded that the simplest solution was for Josh to sit comfortably in the closet. They could remove the doorknob.

Rachel had removed it, in fact. Matter-of-factly, she had gone to the hall closet, located a power screwdriver, and drilled it out of the door. Josh had stared at her, leaning over in her Saturday skin-tight jeans, her white t-shirt drooping to reveal her breasts swinging free without a bra. Then she had put her hand on her hip, and dropped the knob into his hand. "No problem. See?"

She crinkled her nose. The gesture struck Josh as utterly absurd. Here she was, acting like no one he knew or had ever known, and crinkling her nose as though everything was normal.

"Josh. You still want to do this, right?"

And here was the thing. She was saying all the right things. She was asking all the right questions. But her voice had a certain edge to it. A certain...god, what was it? Taunting? Daring? Confidence? Perhaps a tone that made him feel as though he could say no, but she would probably do it anyway. She would fuck Xavier anyway, right in their bed.

And so what else could he do? Here he was, sitting in his closet.

He couldn't lie to himself: the air tasted sweet, he was tingling from head to toe with excitement. His cock was squeezing the sexual equivalent of heroin into his bloodstream with every anticipatory thought. He was finally going to see what he wanted to see, comfortably, and not through a camera lens or with the fear of being caught ruining the moment.

He was only further excited by Rachel's not knowing that he had seen her in action when she was unaware he was watching. She would be thinking this was the first time Josh would see her with his own two eyes. Josh couldn't help but indulge in the painful fantasy that perhaps she would do something completely different now that she knew he was watching, thus revealing some kind of physical or emotional betrayal. One that he would never be able to confront.

Why on earth, he wondered, would he be as turned on by that idea as he was repulsed?

Rachel had done him the favor of sending him a text when she neared the house, so he didn't have to spend his whole afternoon watching the street. He did it anyway, but it was a nice gesture of hers. He had taken off work to be here, to wait for his wife to come home with her lover. The absurdity should have made him laugh, but it didn't.

He heard the door unlock. The old Victorian they had bought creaked and groaned to life as Xavier and Rachel entered. Otherwise, they were silent. Josh sat in the darkness of the closet, listening to their bodies moving through the house. No voices. Their movements were uneven, as though they were tripping and falling.

But he knew the truth. They were locked at the lips, and stumbling down the hall as they peeled each other's clothing away. He sucked in his breath. What would they look like by the time they got into the bedroom?

He was hoping he would get to see Xavier take his wife's clothing off. He had imagined it so many times.

Another thump, right next to his ear where the closet hall was next to the hallway. Josh's stomach turned sharply and he felt as though he might actually throw up for a moment. He leaned on his knees, over his lap, and peered into the hole of the doorknob.

Rachel first. Still clothed, but with her cream-colored blouse open. A new bra of rich silk satin embroidery, which Josh had never seen before, climbed like vines over her creamy breasts. Xavier's hand came into view, and he slid her blouse away.

Xavier's other hand went between her legs, pushing up the tight-fitting black skirt as he did. Josh was surprised to see that Rachel was wearing thigh-high stockings that ended in a thick lace band mid-thigh. Also creamy white. Almost like something a bride would wear.

He heard Xavier chuckle. "Rachel Elliot," he growled. His hand had found something, and Josh knew what it was.

All that fancy lingerie, and his wife wasn't wearing any panties.

"Did you record your segment like this?"

Josh watched his wife smile only to give her assent.

He closed his eyes and savored the image for a moment. His wife, delivering her ultra-cute human interest stories, her blouse pressed and professional, her skirt neatly wrapping up her cute tush and covering her to just above her knee. Perfectly G-rated for the family-oriented KRTV 5 o'clock news.

Standing there looking wholesome, and not wearing a scrap of underwear.

Josh opened his eyes.

Rachel's skirt was bunched up at her waist now, and Xavier had his fingers between her legs. Deep. Josh knew his fingers were inside of her. He wondered how wet she was for him. How wet did his wife get before she had sex with this man?

A sticky sound answered his question.

Xavier used his hand, almost as though Rachel were a puppet, to toss her onto the bed. She spread her legs open as she fell, and Josh saw that Xavier had buried three of his large fingers inside of her. Rachel reached up with two hands and stroked his ebony arm. She bucked beneath him, trying to get him deeper inside of her.

Xavier fucked her with his hand for a while, and Rachel spread her legs wider and wider. She reached down for her ankles and held her legs open. Josh couldn't tell if she was doing this for him, or if it was merely for herself. She seemed lost to a wild animal that was inside her. She twisted her head back and forth on the sheets. Airy gasps came from her mouth at random intervals, and Josh could see that her stomach was rippling as her whole body strained to reach her oncoming orgasm.

Xavier pressed his thumb against her clit. He was kneeling on the bed now, looking down at her. He was wearing only boxers, though, and the front of them were pressed outward by his enormous cock.

Rachel was very close, Josh could tell, when Xavier slowed the rhythm of his hand, and then slowly withdrew from her cunt. Rachel let out a garbled cry of disappointment, and lifted her head to look at him. She still held her legs open wide, and Josh could see that her pussy was already redder. The whole of it, and the sides of her thighs, were slick with her juices.

Xavier was sliding his boxers down. His cock sprang loose.

It was long, but the most impressive feature of it was how thick it was. Though he had seen it before, Josh was much closer now. He could see the bumpy surface of it, covered with the thick veins that worked so hard to service this tremendous organ. The skin of it was a chocolate purple, smooth as though he were made of something other than flesh. But when the fat member twitched in the air, it was all far too horribly clear: this was a man, of hot flesh and blood, and he was about to sink his fat cock into one of his wife's pulsing, wet holes.

Which one would it be?

Josh knew his wife would let Xavier do nearly anything to her, and so as the man knelt poised over his wife, even if it was only for a few seconds, the torture of waiting to see what he would do next was delicious. Josh's cock was throbbing.

Rachel reached out and grasped Xavier's cock. She took it with both hands. Josh shivered as she swept her eyes quickly, but very deliberately, to the hole of the closet door, where she knew her husband was watching her. It was the briefest of glances, but as she did it she turned her mouth up in smile.

The gesture sizzled through him. Her inclusion of him in this moment, however strange it may have seemed, squeezed him tightly in his heart.

But her eyes were back to Xavier almost immediately. Josh wiped a droplet of sweat from his brow as his wife pulled Xavier toward him, toward her waiting, dripping pussy, and rubbed the head of his cock over her swollen clit.

She tried to pull his cock inside of her, and she lifted her hips to impale herself on him. Xavier used one large paw to push her down. His hand practically covered her entire collarbone. "Don't get greedy," he growled. With his other hand he took his cock, pushing her fingers away. "Hold your legs open for me."

Rachel obeyed with a stunning display of submission. She reclined on the bed and spread her legs open so that Xavier could take the fat head of his cock and slide it over her clit.

It was, at least, what Josh assumed he was doing. The organ was so large it obscured her pussy completely.

Rachel twisted on the bed, and her breathing changed from rapid puffs to hyper squeaks. Her body started to harden again, and her feet flapped wildly in the air. "Don't stop," she begged him. "Oh god, please. Don't stop."

"Now that depends," Josh heard Xavier growl. The movement of his cock over Rachel's cunt slowed and Rachel moaned in protest. "Are you going to be a very dirty girl for me?"

"Yes," Rachel answered without hesitation. Josh's stomach flopped. His cock felt like it would burst open.

Xavier leaned his head to one side. The answer was not good enough, and he paused, his cock still in his hand. He started to stroke himself, and Josh watched Rachel's face as she looked at his cock hungrily.

This was an expression so wild, so primal, that Josh almost could not believe it. He blinked to make sure he hadn't drifted off into a dream. His wife – or rather, the woman on the bed who looked like his wife but was nothing like her – panted, desperately:

"I'll be a good, dirty girl, I promise."

Xavier rubbed her clit. He started slow, and then he built momentum. Rachel disintegrated again, falling backward and spasming on the bed until her body appeared to freeze while she screamed at the ceiling.

But before she could even cease shuddering from the orgasm that had sent cum oozing from her cunt, Xavier had his hands on her thighs and was sliding her between his legs, down to the edge of the bed.

Her body slid onto the floor and crumpled. She was still reeling from her climax. Her back was still slung across the edge of the bed.

The interaction between the two of them had suddenly taken on some kind of change. Rachel seemed to be no more than a limp doll, and it was very apparent that Xavier was far from done with her.

Rachel seemed to recover a little. She looked up at Xavier. And then she opened her mouth.

Xavier rubbed his cock along her lips, coating them with the sheen of her own juices. Rachel pressed her lips together with a smack, but opened again quickly to take the tip of Xavier's cock in her mouth.

The scene was obscene: Xavier was now kneeling on the edge of the bed, pushing his enormous cock downward toward Rachel's mouth. The full thickness of it almost blocked out the entire space between his legs.

He pulled Rachel's head up, and Josh watched the black column disappear into his wife's mouth. Her lips spread open to pencil-thin lines, and she took him bravely further and further.

He could have easily fucked her throat, but he seemed to prefer to hold her head in his hand and jerk it up and down on his shaft.

And then it became apparent: he was merely cradling her head, but Rachel was the one who was bobbing up and down to suck on his dick.

The sound of her swallowing his cock crackled in the air. Gurgling, splattering, popping sounds that only got wetter with every long draw she took of his dick. With each bob over his member, he sunk further and further into her throat, until his balls rested on her chin. Josh's eyes fell to her neck, and he almost tipped over the edge, there in the closet with even touching his cock, because the bulge of Xavier's cock moved beneath her flesh as though she had swallowed an apple.

It was the most hardcore thing he had ever seen, really.

And it was his wife doing it.

How long would this go on? he wondered. Xavier's purple-black balls spread out against his wife's chin, nearly to her throat, as he plunged deep into her and held her head to his pelvis.

He released her, but only after what seemed like an eternity. When the final inches of his cock slid from inside of her, Josh's wife let her eyes fall, again briefly, to where Josh was watching. Her mascara was streaked and her eyes watering. Her lips were wet and a silver string of saliva hung like a curtain rope between her lips and Xavier's erect cock.

She winked.

Did she just wink?

Josh had no time to think about it, and no time to consider what it might mean that his wife had made this strange gesture (she never winked), because Xavier was now tugging at her hair and pulling her by the arm to get her onto the bed again.

He watched as his wife turned and arranged herself on all fours. There was a quality to her movements that seemed foreign to Josh. There was something slinky, almost trashy, about the way she propped herself up. The way her limbs moved in fluid, feline movements. The way she arched her back and displayed her ass. She tossed her hair over her shoulder and looked back at Xavier. She ran her tongue along her top lip. Gone was the Rachel of clumsy movements that made her “adorable.” There was nothing “cute” about this Rachel. She was a filthy, dirty slut.

It was hot as fuck. Josh slid his boxers down, and then opened and closed his hand in a fist. He should wait. He should wait to touch himself. This could last a long time.

Xavier was using his cock now to draw shiny pearls of Rachel's cum from her engorged pussy to her asshole. He held her left buttock in one hand, to spread her open, conveniently giving Josh as perfect view of what he was doing to her. Rachel watched him over her shoulder, or more appropriately, watched his cock with that same animal look as before.

The size of his cock seemed suddenly absurd, now that he pressed the tip of it against Rachel's tiny ass. There was no way that was going to actually fit, Josh thought.

And yet she claimed it had.

And yet she seemed to be bucking backward, against his cock, asking him with her body to give her what she wanted.

Xavier dipped his cock inside of her cunt. Josh could see how it stretched her, seemingly to her limits, but she was so wet that he glided into her tight hole with little trouble. He fucked her a few times, and Rachel's mouth opened in pleasure. But it was clear that she wanted something else. She was wriggling obscenely, asking for a different kind of stuffing...

God. Josh tried to stop his own thoughts from getting filthier by the second. His wife was being such a pornographic slut he could scarcely breathe, let alone know how to feel about it.

The black flesh of Xavier's cock grew slicker and slicker as he moved in and out of Rachel's strained cunt, but after only a few thrusts he edged his hips backward. Rachel continued to pump against him, craving more, but he slowly moved away from her until his cock slid from inside of her.

His dick was so hard that it was pointing straight out from him, in spite of its size.

"Please," Rachel said. "Please, I want to take your cock in my ass."

"You do, don't you?" Xavier said. "Because you're a dirty little slut."

Josh was shocked by Rachel's reaction to this, which was to smile back at Xavier.

But then she seemed to be overtaken by another idea. Her eyes moved back to where Josh was, and with the smile still on her face, she stared long and hard at the door. Her expression absorbed his attention so much that Josh missed it as Xavier pressed inside of her.

Rachel's face suddenly changed, and she screamed. The scream had a special quality to it, of both intense pleasure and pain, and Josh's eyes darted to her asshole. It was already stretched open by Xavier's cock, and now his thick meat was disappearing slowly, slowly, an inch at a time, into her ass.

Josh's eyes moved frantically between this incredible sight, and Rachel's face. Her mouth seemed to open like her ass, wider and wider. No sound came out, but the shape of her mouth was not one of shock, rather, pleased disbelief. Satisfaction.

Josh didn't dare to touch his own cock, even though it pulsed hotly for him to do so.

The base of Xavier's cock finally reached Rachel's ass, and she turned her head toward the headboard when it did. Her feet twisted, and for a moment Xavier held her like this, full of his cock, writhing in her pleasurable agony.

Then he began to fuck her.

Rachel remained on her hands and knees for the first few thrusts. Sounds came from her open mouth, fucked out of her by Xavier's hard thrusts. Then she fell to the bed, her chest against the sheets, her hands curled loosely in front of her face. Her ass was still in the air, taking Xavier's cock, and he continued to slam into her. She seemed to lose herself so much in the moment that she was melting into the sheets. Her body slid upward until her head was banging lightly into the headboard. Her expression was now distant: Rachel was outside of this room, this planet.

"I'm about to fuck this ass full of cum," Xavier groaned.

He slid his hand around her stomach and down toward her cunt. Rachel's legs parted more, and then even more, so that she was stretched wide open. Then, as Xavier's fingers struck her clit, she spasmed. Her whole body began to twist, even though she was also immobilized in Xavier's firm grip.

She placed her face in the pillow, and started to scream into it. She came, and her whole body thrashed against the bed and against the force of Xavier's grip. He reached for her ankles, and pushed them up. Then he held her feet like handlebars and drove himself into her.

In and went his black cock, until finally, with a loud yell, he dumped his seed inside Rachel. He thrust into her so hard that she skidded into the headboard and had to arch her back and climb up the wood to keep from being crushed.

They remained in this contorted position for a moment, panting.

Then Josh heard it, distinctly:

Rachel's low laugh. She draped her arm across the narrow top of the headboard and turned so that Josh could see her smile. She lifted her eyes, and they were on the door when she said: "That was so good."

The words were uttered in her most sultry, voice, her accent dripping with her Australian vowels.

Josh's cock responded to her words by pulsing to a new and excruciating hardness. Her eyes were singeing the air between them.

Xavier gave her a playful slap on the ass. His cock slid from inside of her, only slightly deflated by his orgasm. Josh stared at the massive gape left by his intrusion. As though she sensed where his eyes had gone, and the depraved pleasure it gave him, Rachel twisted her ass a little in Josh's direction, so that when her hole began to throb closed and expel the creamy cum Xavier had pumped into her, Josh had an excellent, unobstructed view.

What unfolded next between his wife and Xavier was a bit of a blur for Josh. She trotted to the bathroom, and he stood up, scooped up his clothes, and put them on.

Josh sat, staring into the empty bedroom, as Xavier sat down on his bed – Josh's bed – and flipped through a magazine on his back.

Rachel came from the bathroom, wrapped in a towel, and Josh watched, paralyzed, as she walked right toward the closet.

His heart stopped in his chest. He lifted the back of the chair and scooted himself backward into the depths of the walk-in. A small walk-in, and not really walkable: clothes crowded around him and blocked out the doorway from his field of vision.

Rachel turned on the light and stepped inside, closing the door behind her.

What the fuck was she doing? Josh had the thought, and he felt the terror of getting caught, but only for the briefest moment. Rachel giggled, and opened up her towel. She let it drop to the floor. Through the hanging clothing, Josh could see snippets of her body: her navel. Her shaved pussy between her small thighs. A sliver of her caramel-colored areola, but not the nipple. He reached his hands out and pulled her by the hips.

Willingly, she sat down on his lap. "Did you like it?" she whispered, but as she asked the question, her hands found his cock, which was still freed from his boxers. He almost yelled as she closed her hand around it. "I guess you did," she whispered.

She began to stroke his shaft. His glans was wet with precum, and as she stroked him, it lubricated his cock for her quick jerks.

"What did you like best?" she whispered.

Josh just breathed out, and then in, because it was all he could do. He wanted to say, "Rachel," and warn her of how dangerous this was, how close they were to getting caught. He wanted to explain to her that he was going to come so hard he would have no choice but to scream. But he couldn't say any of this, he knew, without letting out a terrible sound when he tried to speak. So he gave himself over, instead, to the sensation of her hand on his cock.

His fingers found their way to her bare snatch, and he slid them inside of her. In spite of her shower, she was still slippery with the juices of her cunt. He pushed inside of her, and the sensation of her body, that had been so recently opened up for another man, sent him over the edge.

Rachel seemed to sense that he was going to explode. Maybe it had been her plan all along. She grabbed the sleeves of the shirts swaying on either side of him, and crammed them into his mouth with one hand. But her other hand kept pumping his shaft, until he felt his cum shooting out of him. Some of it landed on his legs, but his eyes were squeezed tightly shut and he was submerging the scream he wanted to let out. The pain of holding back from this was excruciating.

He felt dizzy.

Suddenly, Rachel let go of him, and she moved around in the closet, yelled "Ouch," and was gone.

Josh collapsed on his own lap, his legs apart, and tried to calm himself. He felt like he might be having a heart attack, the orgasm had been so intense and the pain of stifling it had been almost horrific.

It wasn't until Xavier and Rachel had chatted, and she had presumably gotten dressed, that Josh realized she had covered up her closet antics beautifully, by telling Xavier she had stubbed her toe on something.

He didn't recover, though, until they were already gone.

After he took a shower for a long enough time to get hard again and jerk off again, he had plenty of time to lie on the bed thinking about what he had seen. About the way that Xavier had transformed almost instantly into a friendly colleague, his testosterone purged, his dominance unneeded. Josh had time to think about the sound of his wife's voice, the moaning and the gasping, and the look on her face as she was taken so completely by Xavier.

The whole thing was hot as fuck, of this there was little doubt. When he had come in the closet, it had been, without a doubt, the most mind-blowing orgasm – experience, even – of his life.

But the nagging feeling that had begun when Rachel first slept with Xavier was turning itself up to “high.” High enough that it was competing with Josh's desire to see what he had just seen again and again and again.

The clash of these two forces inside of him was tremendous. He was exhausted.

He fell asleep at six, something he hadn't done for twenty years. And certainly never without a copious amount of alcohol.

Rachel woke him up when she came through the front door: the shudder it sent through the whole house felt like a low-magnitude earthquake. But he was drowsy, not really wanting to get out of his sleep, and his mind was playing tremendous tricks on him about the time. He had the vague feeling it was the early afternoon, and his thoughts were miles away from what had happened before he had dozed off.

So you couldn't say he was feigning sleep, but he wasn't entirely asleep when Rachel came into the room. And he wasn't entirely asleep when she lay down next to him. He was awake enough to feel her bare skin, to recognize she was naked. His body began to jerk to life faster than his mind.

He was definitely, then, feigning being asleep when Rachel slid her hands down his body. Her mouth followed, and her fingers pulled at his boxers as she moved her head down his chest. Her soft hair swished over his skin as her lips went down, down, down.

He was still soft when she took all of him into her mouth. His whole cock, all at once.

He opened his eyes, because now he definitely was awake, but he just looked down at his wife, and savored the sensation of his cock growing hard in her hot, wet mouth. Filling up, pressing against her palate and her teeth, until she had to let him flop free of her mouth so that she could reposition herself.

She began to suck his shaft, in long, leisurely pulls. Finally, she looked up, and grinned when she met his gaze. He was staring down at her, and the expression on his face was almost surely one of shock.

It wasn't until that moment that the events of the afternoon washed over him in a tidal wave of filthy, hot images. Xavier's cock, stretching her open; Xavier's cum, dripping from her ass; the feel of her stretched cunt around his fingers as she stroked his cock in the closet.

His cock pulsed, and Rachel smiled.

She sucked him a little longer, and then she paused, her her lips hovering over the head of his cock while her hand made light strokes up and down his shaft. She smiled at the way he sighed in desperation. He propped himself up on his elbows to look at her.

"So," she said, breathing the word over the very tip of his dick. "Did you like it?"

Josh made a sound, and it was a garble of three sentences he started all at once ("fuck," Rachel," and "yes"). Rachel smiled again, and Josh could see that she was amused by her power over him. Her eyes snapped up to meet his. "I liked it, too," she said. She sucked at the head of his cock like it was a lollipop, and then released him with a wet pop. "I liked thinking about you watching me take it up the ass for you." She sucked on him again, and he knew that the briny cream of his precum was filling her mouth. She dug her tongue in after some more after she released his head again.

Josh had gone from soft to screamingly, painfully ready to fuck in just these few moments. He had no patience for her teasing. "Stop teasing," he breathed.

Rachel climbed up on top of him. Her body was naked, and spectacular in the moonlight: silver and pale. She lowered herself down, over his cock, but she grasped him in her hand and rubbed the tip of him over her clit. Her pussy was wet, and her juices dripped down the length of his shaft as she teased and teased, letting only the very tip of him be enclosed by her hot flesh.

Josh lost his patience, and pulled on her hips. She slid onto him almost too easily: her cunt was so wet, and probably so stretched from fucking Xavier, that she plummeted to the base of his cock with no resistance whatsoever. She rocked only once or twice before her body stiffened and her pussy burst with even more hot cum.

Josh gripped her hips and jerked her body up and down over his cock, violently. He watched her breasts bounce and slap against her chest, and then he turned his attention to her bare pussy and the sight of his own cock moving in and out of her. Then he dumped his seed inside of her, pushing his hips up in the air to grind his cock as deep inside of her as he could go.

Rachel collapsed next to him on the bed, and Josh held her to his chest. Her fingers moved over his pecs, fluffing the sparse hair there, while Josh tried to think of something – the right thing – to say. He finally settled on “I love you.” He looked down at Rachel's face, though, and saw that she had already fallen asleep.

Josh stared up at the ceiling, and was surprised to find himself sleepy again. He knew exhaustion was claiming him, as he drifted off to sleep in spite of his troubled thoughts. The two forces inside of him had played such an epic round of tug-of-war that he had nothing left to give. His eyelids drooped, and he fell asleep.

TOO INVOLVED

Rachel had a fitful sleep. She fell asleep on Josh's chest, and then she woke up and rolled over to face the wall. Her mind would not turn off from that point on.

Her dreams were ordinary dreams, except that continued to wake her up somehow. Something that was not terrifying would slam through her mind, and she would open her eyes and stare at the wall. Her heart was racing. Adrenaline was coursing through her at that moment. And then she had to try to get back to sleep.

She was going to be a wreck the next day.

What had happened that afternoon in her own bed was what was troubling her: of this she had little doubt.

She had not expected herself to feel the way she did. In fact, going into it, she had felt sure she wouldn't feel much of anything different. She had almost been hoping to feel uncomfortable, so that something would put the brakes on what she now knew to be a completely out-of-control insatiability.

Instead, she had felt like someone had slipped her a drug. While Xavier was filling her up, and slamming his cock into her, while her body had been sliding against the fabric of her sheets, she could not get the idea out of her head that Josh was there, watching.

She had imagined what he was seeing, and she almost harbored jealousy: she wanted to see it too. She looked back toward the hole in the door of the closet, and the idea that she was giving a performance for a man who was behind that door, and that his cock was raging hard watching her, had filled head with a powerful aphrodisiac. She had come hard, almost just from the thought of this, as soon as Xavier had flicked his fingers over her clit. She felt herself gushing out of every hole: even her mouth, where her saliva fell into the sheet as she screamed.

When Xavier had come inside her ass, and she had imagined that Josh was watching that very scene, that he would see her ass gaping and welling up with Xavier's white cream, she had been racked by another light orgasm. She had turned her ass toward the closet door, and felt herself spasming with the delight of imagining what Josh was seeing.

In the dark, with Josh sleeping next to her, she could wonder why that was. Think it was a little bad, or a little weird. Try to talk herself into never doing it again.

Because where would it go from here?

She felt something squirming inside of her. Rachel had never been a person to experience addiction. She had never gotten into drinking too much; she had smoked but it had never exercised any pull over her and she had quit without even thinking about it. She had always been sort of take-it-or-leave it about sex: she enjoyed it but she never felt hooked on it. Never had any kind of craving except an immediate one.

Until now. Now she could feel the fingers of addiction and desperation closing around her heart, digging deep inside of her. She was thinking about this all the time. Thinking about cock, while she delivered the news. Thinking about sucking cock and taking cock up the ass...really vulgar, filthy thoughts she'd never had before. She could feel herself plotting for the next encounter. Taking more and more risks. Like today, when she had filmed her outro with no underwear on. It wasn't that risky, but it also wasn't something she would have imagined herself doing, ever.

There was also this sense that she had, that this bad and she knew it. It was toxic somehow: it had to be. She couldn't keep getting more and more extreme with Xavier, and have Josh watch like she wanted to, without something going wrong. She could sense something was off with Josh, even if his cock was on fire. She could sense something was off with herself: she was thinking about the wrong man, more than she was thinking about her husband.

She was out of control.

And the only problem she had, was that she had no idea what to do to stop herself.

EXECUTION

He wasn't sure, in the end, what prompted him to actually do it.

He had rehearsed it in his mind a hundred times, and then played out the whole entire fantasy of what would follow. Hundreds of times. But when he thought through his fantasies and jerked off in the shower to clear them from his mind, he eventually thought his way around to reality: a plan like this was...well....farfetched at best.

In fact, in the few minutes after his cock exploded against the tiles of the shower or inside of Rachel or wherever he happened to be, he had the presence of mind to think the plan was stupid. Reckless. Idiotic.

The world needed people who thought outside of the box, though, he would reason later. He had boxed himself in good with this situation. He couldn't confront his wife and just ask her stop seeing the man he himself had essentially pushed her into having sex with. He couldn't even face the risk of asking her to do such a thing.

But what if he could make Rachel leave Xavier herself?

It was true that the idea had come to him in part in the form of a dream. It was also true that he was not some kind of metaphysical, religious, new-agey quack who believed that anything intelligent could be brought to him by his sleeping mind. This was also clearly a plan that could derail quite easily. There were so many unknown factors.

And yet.

And yet.

He had researched it all very carefully.

He had done everything he needed to do.

And really, he had already done it, in stages. There was only this final thing.

He had done all of it on cheap laptop he had paid cash for, rebuilt, and would toss in the trash. He had stolen wifi from a random home in a part of town he never visited to post his video, sitting in the street in the dark. He had mailed the USB key and his blackmail letter through a remailing service using a throwaway accounts and prepaid credit cards.

Not that he thought his tracks would ever need to be so well-covered. He was just a thorough guy.

So you could say that the moment itself, the moment when he clicked to post the video, was not a moment unto itself. He had done many, many things on many different days to put this plan into action.

Still, when he actually did it, he felt almost instantly as though he had snapped out of a trance.

But there it was.

No way to get any of it back.

The USB key had been mailed days ago, after all.

Now, he had only to sit back and look as perturbed as Rachel when the package arrived.

A knife of regret sliced through him. He let himself feel it for a moment. And then, as he always did, he reset the parameters of his problem to what they were at the present moment. The action had been taken. There was no point thinking about anything but where it would go from here.

THE LETTER

“Rachel?”

Josh was practically screaming. Rachel looked away from the sheet of paper in her hand, and when she saw Josh's face she realized he had been calling her name for several minutes.

She couldn't find a way to say anything to him. Her hand might have trembled, but she was frozen solid. She had gone numb, from head to toe, when she read the letter.

It had arrived in a padded envelope. Manilla, letter-sized. Addressed to Rachel Elliot, with Rachel Elliot as a return address as well. Printed address labels. Postmarked from Florida, a place where she knew only a handful of people, all of them maternal aunts and uncles who had long since forgotten the world, let alone a niece. She had a brief flash of hope, one she was immediately ashamed of, that perhaps someone had left her something in a will, but the return address made her dismiss that thought.

It was conspicuous, so she opened it immediately.

A USB key fell onto the table and clattered to the floor. A single sheet of white paper was inside the envelope, typed, neatly, and it read:

This is a blackmail letter.

I have in my possession a video of Rachel Elliot and Xavier Lewis engaged in sexual intercourse.

This is a copy of that video.

I will return the original video for the sum of $20,000 USD, to be wired to a bank account. Details will be given to you in two weeks. From the postmark on the envelope you will have one week to transfer the funds.

If you contact law enforcement, not only will they find me untraceable, but I will post the video immediately to the internet. I have posted a segment of the video to demonstrate that I am serious in my intentions and cannot be traced – but do not attempt to do so using law enforcement, or you will regret it.

There was no signature.

Josh took the paper from her hand and read it. He held it for a long time. His eyes moved over the paper again and again, and Rachel could see that he was attempting, already to solve the problem.

Finally he looked up.

“Did you watch the video?” he said.

Rachel shook her head, mostly in disbelief. How could he say such a thing? Didn't he care that someone was blackmailing them? At all?

Josh frowned. “First of all, we have to watch it, to see if it's even legitimate. Don't you want to know...I don't know? Where it is? How could someone have even gotten video of you and Xavier?”

Rachel shook her head. She could barely think. Her mind had gone now to the most awful sentence in the letter: “I have posted a segment of the video.”

“Rachel!” Josh hissed. “You've got to focus here. We need to watch the video.”

He stormed down the hallway, USB key in hand.

Rachel looked down at the letter, rooted to the ground. The words blurred and swarmed in front of her.

It was a nightmare. And she should have seen it coming. She had been reckless and she had known it. She had been taking chances with her heart, with Josh's feelings, with...everything. All because she was gripped by the most base of instincts, unable to stop herself, insatiable.

Even in the midst of her despair about the video, thinking on her sexual exploits was stirring up arousal inside of her.

She grabbed the paper and stormed down the hallway to Josh's office. She had to slide around his desk, because he had re-arranged the furniture for some reason.

A small window was already playing the video.

Rachel squinted, because for a moment she didn't recognize anything about what she was seeing. She didn't recognize herself in the woman, the main protagonist in this piece of porn, bent over a table with an enormous cock plowing into her. It looked like something from a porn site: amateurish, poorly lit. Poorly staged, though as she drew the scene into focus and into the context of her mind, it began to – and she would have been embarrassed to admit this – titillate her. The balls slapping against the woman's inner thighs and pussy were Xavier's; the cock plunging in and out of the woman was Xavier's.

And the woman. That woman, who was bent over the desk and taking that enormous cock inside of her, moaning with pleasure as Xavier pulled her ass open, that woman was her.

It was lewd. It was obscene.

And yet she found herself being overtaken by a surprising feeling as she watched it. The feeling was drenching her mind, stirring up the now-familiar ache between her legs. The feeling was making her pussy well up with excitement. It was overriding her anger about the letter, and her fear about being exposed on the internet. It was like boiling water being poured on the ice that had nearly burst open her veins just moments before.

She was enjoying watching herself. She could feel it, even if she didn't want to feel it. She liked watching what she had done. She liked the raw, visceral visual of it. It was getting her wet.

She watched, mouth open, as Xavier fucked her and fucked her. Her pussy began to throb with the phantom feel of his thick cock inside of her. She found herself wishing there was a film of Xavier fucking her in the ass. She would have to ask Josh to get a camera...

What the fuck was she thinking? She interrupted her own train of thought and gave her head a sobering shake.

She squinted at the video. Where was the person who had filmed it.

"That's the office," she said softly. "It's..." she turned her head and moved closer to the screen, as if it would help clarify something for her. Was the camera on the floor? Had it been on the floor of her office, in plain view, and she had failed to see it?

As if he could read her mind, Josh said: "It looks like it's shot through glass." He lifted a finger to the screen and waved it over a faint streak to make his point.

Rachel went cold again.

"So who...?" her voice trailed off.

Who did it? That was the obvious question, and it hung in the air, heavy and dark.

Rachel did not think like Josh. She often wished that she did. Josh thought in neat, perfectly ordered lines. He did so calmly, and that's what he was doing now. He was looking at the screen, and analyzing. He was in what Rachel thought of as his "Cold Mode," though she never said as much to him.

She, on the other hand, could feel her head "snapping." That's how she thought. Snap. Snap. Snap. Maybe not all in a line.

It had to be someone at the station. Some devious bastard, under the table like a belly-crawling animal. Snap.

All the leaked videos. The leaked footage. Snap.

Someone who could get into the station. Snap.

Bribery. The fucking nerve. Snap.

It all had to be the same person. The same person. Snap.

The simplest explanation, Josh repeated to her so often it made her head hurt, was usually the right one. Rachel loved to retort that it might be true of science, but it was not of journalism.

And yet, the simplest explanation materialized in front of her, in her mind's eye. It froze her through to the core, exactly as the letter had done.

Josh was on the internet now, clicking through window after window of internet garbage, and then there it was: the posted video.

Rachel watched it. She was divorced from her body as she did so, so she felt nothing, not even relief that it was only a few seconds and only the very beginning of the video, and so blurry and poorly shot that it was impossible to tell if it was her in the video or not.

"No one believes this is you," Josh said. He was scanning the comments. "That's the good news. Everyone thinks it's a fake."

Her mind went quickly down an illogical path, a path of hope. The whole thing was fake! She felt her heart bursting with hope, before her mind caught up to her emotions.

It wasn't fake. The internet might now know that, but the video was definitely of her, and the person who had posted it had a whole, lengthy video in which it was clear that it was her. And he was going to post it.

Unless she paid the money.

Again, the simple explanation formed an image in her mind. Her arteries filled with rage. The sensation, as the metaphor went, threatened to blind her. Her heart was racing and her blood pressure was so high that her peripheral vision turned orange-red.

Josh was still cold, analyzing. "Yeah, no one in the comments thinks this is real, Rach. So now you just have to..."

But she was already turning down the hallway. Already marching toward the kitchen.

Josh followed her. "Rachel? What are you doing?"

"Looking for my bloody keys!" Her own voice shocked her. Her American accent, the accent she cultivated, was destroyed. She practically spit as she yelled.

Josh's eyes went around the room ahead of her, and he jumped at the counter top where the keys were sitting and held them in his hand. "What are you doing, Rachel?"

"Give me the bloody keys."

Josh shook his head. "I'm not letting you drive in this state. Tell me what you want to do and I'll help you do it."

Rachel felt her anger, which was at fever-pitch, easy to point in any direction. It pivoted away from her original target and toward Josh, Josh and his cool head. Josh and his analysis, Josh and his rationality.

"Give me the fucking keys."

She watched his face. What was his expression?

"No way," he said. "Not until you calm down."

He was right of course. There was a part of her that knew it.

She grabbed her purse, and stormed out through the living room, jerking a coat from the coat tree and knocking it over. "I can take the bloody train!" she shrieked.

Did he call out after her? She had no idea. Her ears were pounding with anger and she was enervated by something wild. Wilder than she had ever felt before.

And wasn't that just the way of things now?

Her eyes burned with the stress as she stomped down the street and into a subway station. People gave her odd looks.

She caught a northbound train, choosing a random line, burning her stare into the windows.

After all, she started to realize, if she was headed to Xavier's house, she had absolutely no idea how to get there by train. Her mind felt shattered in a million pieces, unable to recall his address for blocks and blocks.

When she finally managed to remember the cross streets and organize her plan: to get a taxi; she was in an industrial wasteland. She walked a few blocks from the light rail station before it became clear that there was nothing but office parks, and she walked back.

The next train was half an hour in coming.

So she sat, and her rage built.

By the time she knocked on Xavier's door – a train ride, a cab ride, and a half-mile walk later, her eyes were criss-crossed by reddened capillaries and she must have looked insane. He stared at her. “You okay?” he said, tenderly.

VARIABLES

Things never went as you expected, when you implemented a plan. This was a known danger. There was always something out of control.

And this was a crazy plan to begin with.

Josh had expected Rachel to cry. He had expected her to mortified, to slump on the couch, to re-think everything she'd been doing.

He had expected to have to coax her to where she seemed to have gotten. He had expected to have lead her thinking – her non-linear, criss-crossing, branching, wild thinking – down a path to the conclusion she seemed to have arrived at.

And that was just the thing. Just the problem.

She seemed to have arrived at the conclusion he wanted her to, but he had no way of knowing if she had or not. Because she had flown so completely off the handle. Because she – his wife, Rachel Elliot – had stopped talking.

He had not counted on that.

Sitting in his office, wondering where his wife had gone, grateful he had been able to stop her from driving in a blind rage, Josh felt the full insanity of what he had just done, all of his stupid actions, converging upon him.

There were stories of people doing incredibly stupid things that fascinated him. Of people digging themselves in deeper and deeper to some kind of mess, that left the average person in awe. That guy who stacked up all the bodies in his crematorium until there were just hundreds of them. Lance Armstrong, just lying and lying until it became an avalanche.

Josh had always held a fascination for these stories, because he felt a certain empathy for these people.

And now, here he was. A man who had just kept digging himself into a hole.

This was utterly ridiculous. What the hell had he been thinking?

He sat in his chair, a portion of his mind dedicated to reading the comments about the video. This, at least, he had predicted correctly. No one believed (though everyone wanted to) that the video actually showed Rachel. Only Rachel knew it was real, and so she would stay quiet about the blackmail, Josh would dig up $20,000 and send it to himself (he could tuck it back into their savings over years), and Rachel would be relieved.

And all the while, Josh would muse: who could have done it? Who would have had access to the station? Who knew you were there?

And why, Rachel? Why would somebody do this?

His hope had been that Rachel could be guided to the obvious: it was Xavier. Xavier was the only thing that made sense. It was unfortunate that he was such a shit, unfortunate that she would never be able to prove it...but at least she could cut things off with him. What a terrible mistake. Who could have known it would turn out like this?

(Or another variant, in which Josh “went out to talk to Xavier” and got everything cleared up. Like a man.)

But he had nixed that idea because it was too farfetched. Which was of course a little laughable, all things considered.

So what would happen? Rachel would confront Xavier, and Xavier would of course tell her he had nothing to do with this video or blackmail. Naturally, he would seem convincing, because he didn't have anything to do with it.

But Xavier's problem would be that the truth was something so ridiculous, so farfetched and insane, so unlikely, that no one would ever think of it.

And so, he would look guilty by default.

Josh would convince Rachel, quite easily, that Xavier must be lying. He would tell her they should send the money, be done with this whole business, forget any of this ever happened.

And she would never feel the same about Xavier again. She wouldn't trust him, she wouldn't want to keep seeing him.

And voila. Problem solved.

Rachel, though, had not reacted as he had predicted.

There was the anger: he had certainly not expected her to disintegrate into a rage.

There was the quickness with which she had done so.

Josh had fully expected to have to use his “it's-usually-the-simplest-explanation” line. Don't look for zebras. Rachel, though, had tried and convicted someone, there in just a few short minutes. He never had the chance to lead her to the conclusion he wanted her to arrive at.

All of these things were very, very unusual for Rachel.

Very unusual.

Josh felt a very unpleasant fear cooling his insides:

Good god. What had he done?

ACCUSATIONS

“Calm down and tell me what happened.”

Rachel's eyes were blurry. Her mind was snapping back and forth between several ideas, idea she probably should have thought out completely before she had banged on Xavier's front door. She had plenty of time, on the train, and the next train, and walking to his house, but in all of that time she hadn't thought anything through at all.

Once Xavier touched her, one hand on each of her biceps, her anger had melted away. Not a lot, just a little. His face was genuinely perplexed, and concerned, which only chipped away further at the conclusion she had drawn back at home: that Xavier was the one, all along, who had been filming her and leaking videos on the internet.

That Xavier was blackmailing her now.

She had been so sure of herself, and she had allowed herself to be carried away by the anger. Maybe a part of her, she realized, had been relieved to have a reason to hate Xavier. Part of her – that part she felt she couldn't get under control – was thrilled to have a way out. That part of her, she was starting to realize, had perhaps jumped on a conclusion that really didn't make any sense.

On the other hand, what was the other explanation?

Now, after only minutes of thinking about it, she was faced with a strategical decision: she could tell Xavier why she was upset. But if she had been wrong, and he wasn't the one blackmailing her, there was no telling what he would do in response. Maybe he would call the police. Maybe he would lose it. She could be setting off a whole chain of events that were not a very good idea.

She clutched her stomach and pretended to hyperventilate. It was a cheap trick, but it would buy her some time. Time to weigh her options.

If Xavier was the one who was blackmailing her, then he was certainly putting on a very good show of having no idea what was going on.

Anger flickered around inside of her again, though not as furiously. What a psychopath he was, if that was the case.

She sat down on a dining room chair.

Should she tell him? What was the right move here?

“Sod it,” she muttered. She was no good at strategic games. It just wasn't in her nature.

Xavier had been talking to her this entire time, trying to calm her down and repeatedly asking her to explain what was wrong.

By now she had faked hyperventilating so much that she was certain she actually was, in reality, hyperventilating. She couldn't slow down her hysterical, rapid breaths.

“There's a video,” she said finally. “There's a tape...a video... It's on the internet.” She waved her hands in the air, not sure herself what the gesture meant, and Xavier caught them.

“Rachel. Rachel, hey, take a deep breath.”

“Now. Video. Video on the internet. Video of what?”

She started breathing hysterically again. This time it was again a ploy to buy herself time. Her head was muddled. She wished she wasn't there, in Xavier's room. She wished she had given her tactics more thought. She wished she wasn't acting like a crazy person.

“There's a video on the internet,” she repeated. “It's of us.”

Xavier, who had been crouching next to her, fell back on his heels. His face changed from one of concern to a sort of angry seriousness. “Of us,” he repeated.

Rachel watched his face carefully. In her line of work, it wasn't uncommon for people to lie and to exaggerate. They were also often telling a story about something that had already happened. There was a certain innate artfulness that nearly everyone had when they told a story, and their face changed to emulate their shock or surprise, or their anger, or their compassion, for what they had seen moments or hours or days before. But that expression was never anything like the real expression of shock, or surprise, or anger, that a person had when the news was truly new.

Xavier seemed to be genuinely reacting to news about something he knew nothing about.

But there was a part of Rachel, of course, that wanted him to know nothing about this. A part of Rachel that was relieved by the touch of his hands on her knees. This part of Rachel did not want Xavier to be the man who had done all of these awful things. This part of Rachel did not want an excuse or a way out of her relationship with Xavier.

God, she was a mess.

“Where?” Xavier said, after a long pause. His voice was cold.

Rachel blinked. “What?”

“Where? Where is the video?” Xavier was barking at her now. He stood up from his low crouch.

Rachel shook her head. “On the internet...”

“No. Where was the video filmed?”

Rachel wiped her eyes. “In the office. In my office.”

Xavier stared down at her, incredulous. “How, in your office? At the station?”

“It was under the...under the table, the next office over. Through that glass...strip...down the...” She found herself unable to finish the sentence.

Xavier was already turning around and marching into the kitchen.

Rachel followed him, after a moment she took to try and compose herself.

When she entered the kitchen, Xavier was typing and clicking with fury on a laptop on the kitchen counter.

“Which site was it?” he barked.

Rachel stood in the doorway, her arms at her sides. Her head was spinning.

“What?”

“Site, Rachel. Site where you found the video?”

She shook her head. “I...Josh found it...”

His eyes went back to the screen, and he moved his hands quickly over the keyboard.

There was a pause in his furious searching.

“Call Josh,” he said.

Rachel stared at him. He looked up from the computer screen and his eyes were nearly on fire.

“Call Josh,” he was almost growling, “and find out what site he went to.”

Rachel's mouth was hanging open. It was clear to her now that Xavier wasn't the one. He couldn't be. Her head was now reeling with trying to decide if she should tell him about the blackmail letter or not.

Maybe just see how this unfolded. That was probably the best course of action.

She dug her phone out of her purse and came back to the kitchen.

She opted for texting, which elicited a glower from Xavier. Her text was brief, asking only for the name of the website. She half-regretted sending it that way to him.

“I can't call him,” Rachel said helplessly, both for Xavier's benefit and her own. “I left the house...” she let her voice trail off. She didn't feel like explaining it all to Xavier. And she didn't feel like explaining it all to Josh: why she had left the way she had left, and what she was feeling now.

She felt, quite suddenly, exhausted.

She set the phone on the counter and stared at the screen, while Xavier continued his search on the computer in silence.

A text from Josh:

[Josh]: Are you okay? Where are you?

Rachel typed:

[Rachel]: Fine. Explain later. Plz. What was the site?

There was a painful pause while she waited for Josh's response. It seemed delayed, and she imagined Josh reading it in the house.

[Josh]: XXXbunny

Rachel read the name aloud, and Xavier finished the address off simultaneously. “I already found it,” he added softly.

There was an awkward silence while he stared at the screen. Rachel stayed where she was: the images had been burned into her mind forever and she really didn't want to see it again.

His brow furrowed in confusion. He folded his arms and leaned back on his stool.

“So,” he said quietly. “You were over here because...?”

He was angry, she could tell. She looked down at the counter. “I thought it was you,” she said meekly.

Xavier opened his mouth as though he intended to say something while he swept his hand toward the screen, palm up. His eyes were quite dark with what seemed like rage.

“What possible reason would I do that, Rachel?” His eyes snapped back to the screen. “Why would anyone do this?” He started shaking his head. He leaned forward on the stool again and started clicking away with the mouse. He seemed to have forgotten his irritation with Rachel's accusation, and he was now on the trail of something else.

“What's the point of releasing any of this? That's the question we need to be asking,” he said, his voice very low, and only for himself.

He was right, of course. The only problem was, he didn't have all the information.

“It starts with a few leaked videos, right? You have Rachel outtakes...” his voice trailed off as he scanned the comments. “And there's nobody who could really get their hands on that except someone at the station, right? Or Xavier...Xavier seems like the likely suspect...but why would Xavier do this?” He was talking like a detective in an old crime drama now. Thinking aloud.

“Then this bit about the jungle fever...” his mouth turned up in a grin that was neither amused nor angry, but some perfectly blended combination of the two. More scanning, more reading.

Rachel stood staring at him. She felt awkward. She twirled the phone, unsure what to do with her hands.

“But why?”

Xavier squinted. “What's the motive here?”

He leaned back on his stool again and pressed a thumb against his lips. His eyes flicked to Rachel's.

“It's someone at the station. It has to be. So now we have to figure out: Why?”

Rachel's own mind was scrambling.

For blackmail, of course. But who? Who would do that? Who would risk his career and a jail sentence over $20,000? And who would engage in such a long-term elaborate scheme?

“Does someone hate you? Some female counterpart? Melissa? Whose office is this, next to yours?”

“Harry has some stuff in there,” she said, vaguely. Both Rachel and Xavier shook their heads lightly. Harry not only wasn't the type, he had been on vacation that week.

“Another reporter? Maybe a jealous one?” Xavier suggested again.

It had potential. “It's possible,” Rachel said, her voice unconvinced.

“Girls do some crazy shit, Ray. And this is...why is there only part of the video, though, I wonder? No one even really believes it's us, if you read the comments...” Xavier's voice trailed off while Rachel's stomach twisted. “And that's the weird thing, isn't it?” he thought aloud. “That they only put up part of the video? I mean...” he lifted his eyes to the ceiling, and Rachel knew he was trying to remember what they had done. “There was a lot more than this,” he said. “Why only post this snippet?”

He looked to her now.

Rachel tried to look like she had no idea, but she knew right away that she was doing a terrible job. Xavier saw through it. His eyes grew sharp.

“What else do you know, Ray? There's something else.” He wagged a finger at her.

Rachel covered her face. “I can't.” She shook her head. Real tears were coming out her eyes now. Tears of hopelessness. Everything was falling apart so quickly. Now she just wanted out. She just wanted to take everything back, and have none of this ever have happened.

“What is it?” Xavier's voice was firm, not consoling. He had moved next to her, standing on the other side of the counter.

Rachel shook her head, and he took her hands and peeled them from her face. “Tell me.”

She looked down at the floor. Xavier's voice was so commanding, so firm, that she knew at that moment there was no real way out of this.

“You can't...you have to promise not to go to...not to make a big deal, because, because...this person has the whole video....I'm so sorry I thought it was...it made sense at the time, I don't know, but I should have thought it was you.” She was babbling now, incoherent. She couldn't stop herself.

“Rachel,” Xavier said firmly. He tugged at her wrists to jerk her back to reality. “Slow down and tell me what it is - “

But he cut himself off, because he had it figured out.

“Oh. I see.” he said, and he rolled his tongue in his cheek and nodded his head. He dropped Rachel's hands. His whole body seemed to ripple with aggression, suddenly. He really did see, though how he had exactly figured it out, Rachel wasn't sure. “How much does this fool want?”

Rachel shook her head. “Twenty.”

“K?”

She nodded.

Xavier rolled his eyes.

After a pause he began to strut in the kitchen. He was angry. Rachel was convinced now, more than ever, that Xavier was definitely not the man who was blackmailing her. He continued: "I see his game, too. He thinks if I don't get blackmailed as well, you'll go to thinking it's me. Me doing it."

Rachel wiped her eyes. That did make sense.

Although, it could also be some kind of complex chess play: it could still be Xavier, anticipating that Rachel would see through such a simplistic ploy to direct the blame at Xavier, and actually feel more confident that it wasn't him.

The possibilities were endless.

She put her hands to her head. "I don't know what to think."

Xavier moved back to her again and pulled her hands away from her face. "Rachel. Listen to me. You may not know what to think, but I'll tell you one thing and I'll tell you straight. And have I ever not been straight with you?"

She blinked. "No, I mean yes...I mean, no, yeah, you've always been straight with me..."

"I am not the person who's been doing this, okay? I have nothing to do with any of this."

He was really worked up.

Rachel nodded her agreement, partly because she believed him, and partly out of fear.

Xavier folded his arms. "So where's the rest of it?"

"What?"

"The rest of the video?"

"It's...he has it."

"How do you know?"

"He sent it."

"The whole thing? Everything is on there?"

Rachel went backward in her mind through her angry haze. "It...no, it starts, it starts like this, the one he sent us. It starts there. Not..." she blushed a little. "Not in the hallway."

Xavier pressed his lips together.

"Okay. Okay." He looked at the ceiling again, and then let out a long sigh. "I want to see it. All the way through. We have to figure out where exactly this person was. How they got there. Did the camera move while it was filmed?"

Rachel shook her head at the question. "I don't know," she said.

Xavier looked at her strangely, like she had three heads. Who would not notice a thing like that? His face was saying. She shrugged in response. "I'm not a cameraman," she explained.

This lightened the mood a little. They both laughed.

"Let's go," Xavier said, reaching behind him for his keys. "We have some research to do."

Not knowing what else to do, Rachel followed him.

Rachel stood in the doorway. Her blood was boiling, and her stomach twisting. She was implicitly there to be a lookout for any stray employees who might be on this level at this hour: unlikely but, as always, not impossible. The adrenaline of the cloak-and-dagger work they were performing was making her a little ill. High, but also queasy.

She had crossed the room and turned on her computer, in a crazy attempt to get things over with as quickly as possible. Xavier had grabbed her hand as she was reaching to stick her USB key into the port. "No, Rachel no way, not on this computer."

Of course. She was still reacting like a crazy person.

Xavier had brought his own laptop, and he positioned himself on Rachel's chair, with his back to the windows and the pegboard wall. This way, no one would (hopefully) see the video he was going to play if they wandered into this absurd scene.

Rachel found herself looking at Xavier's strong thighs. She watched his face as he watched the video: there was no doubt that it turned him on, even with all this hoopla. She tried to keep her eyes from going to his crotch, to size up how much it turned him on.

God, she was crazy. She was totally crazy. She could feel herself getting turned on, her slit getting slick with her excitement.

She swiped a piece of hair away from her face and tried to think about the immediate problem. Blackmail, the ruination of her career...but somehow the thoughts were exciting her. Leading her back to her craving for Xavier.

She looked from side to side, checking the hallway for passers-by.

Xavier set the laptop down on her desk: turned away from the doorway, like a pro. He crouched down on the ground, and looked under Melissa's small desk. He crawled under it, then crawled out and pushed past Rachel to go to Harry's semi-office.

"That's it," he said, returning. He looked around the office. "That's where it was, and from the looks of it, there was somebody holding it."

Rachel furrowed her brow to indicate she wanted to know why he thought that.

"It jiggles around. Not a lot, but definitely more than if it had been somehow propped up. Also, there's no real way to prop it pointed that way...I just can't figure out..." his voice trailed off. He rubbed his thumb on his eyebrow. "How did this person know? When to be here?"

Rachel leaned against the edge of the table.

"We have to find out who this is," she said desperately. "I can't have that video go on the internet. I just can't." She swiped at a tear. Then she sighed. "Or we could just pay."

Xavier shook his head. "No fucking way. No fucking way I'm going to pay. Nah. I'm going to find out who this was, and that's who's gonna pay."

Rachel shuddered. She reached out a hand and placed it on Xavier's arm. "Listen," she said. "No matter what, you aren't going to the cops, right? I can't have this scandal get out. Please. No one would ever take me seriously again."

Xavier didn't say anything, but she was sure he knew she was right.

"Please, Xavier," she repeated. "This is my problem...don't do anything that...please don't do anything without...I don't know. Don't screw this up by getting mad."

Xavier pressed his lips together. Rachel was seeing the things she was attracted to in his personality from a different perspective for the first time. Xavier's alpha stubbornness, his acute masculinity – now they were a liability for her, a prospective problem. She felt overwhelmed. She placed a hand on his arm. "Please."

Xavier did nothing for a moment, but then he covered her hand with his. "We'll find a different solution. You're not going to pay for some blackmail," was all he said.

INVESTIGATION

People often forgot that Rachel Elliot was an investigative reporter, and an excellent one. It was easy to forget, because while she was a consummate professional even with her fluffy, human interest stories, it was difficult to see the gleam of her professional skills through the silliness of the stories she was assigned.

And now, Rachel Elliot had no journalistic scruples. This was really the principle thing that divided a spy from a journalist: both would go to essentially any lengths to find out what they wanted to know.

Before she even arrived home the evening she and Xavier had watched the video in the office, it had become abundantly clear to Rachel that things were swinging wildly out of her control. On the one hand, she had someone threatening to post a lewd video on the internet. She had her attraction to Xavier, and her addiction to her husband watching her. These forces gripped her so tightly she couldn't think straight. Then she had Xavier's determination to find the blackmailer. Something seemed to have snapped inside of him, and Rachel didn't like it. It made him, quite suddenly, more unpredictable than she had thought it was possible for him to be.

Everything was up in the air: her marriage, her career, her savings, her own desires.

She needed to get things under control.

And if there was one thing she'd learned a long time ago, it was that information was power. It had been why she became a journalist in the first place, even if that idealistic girl was long gone.

It was all so much seedier than noble, and it wasn't like she was out changing the world, but she knew if she was going to change her own life, she'd have to find out who was blackmailing her. For sure. And she was going to get that information first, before Xavier, before Josh.

What she would do after that, she had no idea. But she would be better able to direct this train wreck if she just knew who was driving it.

Or at least, this is what she settled on. It gave her clarity. It distracted her from her other problems. So she chased it like a hound.

It really didn't take long for the picture to paint itself. Rachel wore her shortest and tightest skirts, and her highest heels, and charmed her way into archives and security. She felt a little bad, as she brought the poor kid at the security desk a coffee, and flirted with him – he was putty in her hands – but she was on a one-track mission.

The night she and Xavier had been filmed, only three other employees had been present in the upper floors, according to the card entry record (this had been a particularly smarmy moment in her research, when she had leaned close to poor Richard, the kid, so that he could down her cami to her full breasts, while she purred: “So you know, like...who is coming and going? All the time? You could just pull it up, for say like...any day? Like September 19th?”) And he had done it. The poor kid had acted like he was scripted into a terrible movie, and proudly showed her how to pull up any night, like say, September 19th. She had then continued the cliched and terrible movie script, by pouring coffee on herself, and sending poor gullible Richard for paper towels, no doubt hoping she would take her blouse off and let him wipe the coffee off himself. While he was gone, she had snapped the screen with her phone.

Too easy.

Arthur, Xavier, Rachel, Khalid, Ronald the janitor (who had come in at 11:52 pm, and could therefore be eliminated), and Lucy.

Not Xavier, and not Rachel.

Khalid, who could really use $20,000, was also not a likely suspect. He had only worked at the station for a month the night the video was taken, and she really had a hard time believing the devoutly Muslim Iraqi immigrant would go risking his job to film her. But she followed up on him anyway.

He wasn't immune to her charms, Khalid, but he did his best not be interested in Rachel when she sat on his desk and tried to talk to him. Some things became very clear in her conversation with Khalid, and with the rest of his IT crew: he had no idea who Rachel Elliot was, or about her fanclubs, and he didn't care. He was a keep-your-head down kind of guy. He stayed late to sort stuff out all the time. Rachel quietly crossed him off her list: not impossible, but unlikely.

Lucy was the archives manager, which made her very much a potential suspect. She had access to the videos that were leaked to the internet, and she was there that night. But after chatting with her – a 63-year old devout Catholic who wore a small cross around her neck and offered

Rachel a doughnut and pictures of her grandchildren – it was fairly obvious Lucy was unlikely to be the suspect.

Ronald had entered the building too late.

Or someone very sneaky, who had perhaps bypassed security by sneaking in behind another person.

Arthur, though: he fit the bill for the other leaked videos. He fit the bill, in fact, for everything. He was an asshole, he clearly had some kind of obsession with Rachel. He had access to everything, and no one would question him because he was the station's general manager.

The only thing that didn't really fit was the $20,000.

It made more sense, really, for Arthur to just post the video, with no blackmail. He clearly wanted to get some mileage for the station out of Rachel's popularity.

Rachel flicked her thumbnail against her teeth and stared at the wall in her office.

So what the hell would he try to blackmail her for? Why wouldn't he just post the video, like he did with everything else? And she felt so certain now, she had the “feeling” that it was Arthur who had leaked all the other footage. It all fit. It all benefited him. She knew if she went looking for proof, she would find it.

But that wasn't her task right now. She needed to know who was blackmailing her. Arthur fit the bill for opportunity, but that one piece of the puzzle: the why of the blackmail, made no sense.

Oh I see his game, Xavier's voice suddenly bubbled up in her mind.
He wants you to think it's me.

She stopped her own thoughts cold.

It all became too clear to her:

Arthur didn't give a shit about the money. He would release the video anyway.

This was his way of throwing everyone off the scent.

For a moment it seemed so clear.

Then it seemed so stupid.

Then it seemed likely again.

Then it seemed like the only explanation.

Sometimes there's only one way to find out, and that's to confront the story yourself. Head-on.

OPPORTUNISM

Arthur Frost hadn't gotten where he was by being a “nice” guy. He also wasn't insanely ambitious, or even moderately ambitious. He certainly wasn't the kind of man to do what Rachel Elliot was accusing him of having done.

Though he wished he were.

What Arthur Frost was an opportunist. If he had more spine, or more of a different kind of intelligence, he would have gone much further in life. He didn't really want to be the kind of man he was, a man who waited for opportunity to come by so he could seize it, as opposed to the kind of man who made his own opportunities. But that's what he was.

And then there was this: Rachel Elliot, that long-limbed piece of ass who was bringing in advertising dollars to KRTV's news hour like she was hosting a fucking PBS telethon for cancer and saving the world, was sitting across from him in his office.

And there it was: an opportunity.

The thing about an opportunist – the thing that propels a man like Arthur Frost to the heights of a TV station, even a small one like KRTV, with absolutely no qualifications or connections or skills whatsoever – is the con-man's ability to take advantage of an opportunity. Right then, right there. And part of this talent has to do with being able to sniff out an opportunity, even if you're not exactly sure what it is at the outset.

“I'm sure you've seen the video on the internet,” Rachel said. This was the point that a man like Arthur smelled opportunity. Her voice was altered, just slightly, by a suppressed anger. She was shaking underneath it. Her Australian accent, which Arthur heard only as only a rumor until now, warped the word “internet.”

Arthur's interest was piqued. Of course he had seen the video on the internet. He was the man who had leaked all of the outtakes to “the internet,” and he took a perverse pleasure in checking on what “the internet” was thinking about Rachel Elliot. The more “the internet” thought about Rachel Elliot, the more his advertisers thought about blowing their wad on KRTV.

He couldn't have been more pleased about the video on the internet. It was as if god himself had sent Arthur a present: a Rachel Elliot sex tape

(which he would dearly love to get his hands on) that wasn't really a Rachel Elliot sex tape. It generated gossip, speculation, and bitter internet fights, but kept anyone from getting sued or actually defamed. This all spelled good news for Arthur as far as he was concerned.

A lesser man, or a more responsible one, might have been concerned that his employee was bringing up such a topic. But not Arthur.

“Video?” he said flatly.

“Cut the shit, Arthur.”

Oh, her face was really sharpened now. Her eyes were so angry. He felt himself getting more turned on than usual by Rachel, because she never acted like this.

But Arthur's opportunist was turned on, up to full alert now. His ears and his eyes were picking everything apart. Every little rabbit-like twitch of Rachel Elliot's face and voice. Arthur said nothing. It was always best to let people unravel their own stories. They might even do all your work for you.

Most people, of course, can't stonewall someone this way. They get uncomfortable, making another person uncomfortable.

But Rachel Elliot was not uncomfortable, Arthur noted, as the pause stretched out for what seemed like an eternity. She was angry.

Arthur almost laughed. She was angry at him.

“I know who it is,” she seethed.

An ordinary person might not have inferred from this statement that Rachel Elliot thought it was Arthur. And other ordinary people might guess such a thing and jump quickly to correcting her. After all, this was a very bad, murky employee-relations area: he was her boss, and a sex video was on the internet, and she seemed to think he had done it.

But Arthur's mind was miles ahead. Racing a head to other possibilities, all of them his own.

Rachel had, by saying this, admitted that the internet film was real: it was really her. For a moment he let himself indulge in the images again, and gave some thought to how he was going to enjoy watching that clip now that he knew it was, in fact, Rachel Elliot.

There was also this interesting thing. Intriguing, really: Rachel wasn't here with her HR rep or her the police or anyone at all, which meant Rachel had a reason to keep this conversation quiet.

How fascinating.

He looked at her over his fingertips. “Do you, Rachel?”

Her eyes narrowed at his answer. “I feel sure I do now.”

Opportunity began to fill the air.

Arthur's nimble mind clicked through all of the possibilities. It ran over a transcript of everything he had just said, checked it with his internal lawyer to make sure that, up to this point, he could not get sued. And then he ran through all the many things he would like, if he had the opportunity to get them. His eyes moved over the swell of Rachel's breasts, and the graceful curve of her neck. His mind went to all the times he'd wanted to spin her cute ass around and fill her up with his cock. Or get her to open up the little heart shape of her mouth and swallow a load of his cum.

Arthur was good-looking. He was fairly rich. He didn't have a hard time getting women. But Rachel Elliot has thus far been just out of reach. One of those women who took her marriage vows seriously, is what she had always seemed to him. He had left it on the back-burner of his mind. He wasn't going to chase her around, but someday an opportunity might come up.

Maybe that day was today. It was practically falling in his lap.

It seemed Rachel Elliot was not as prissy and marriage-loyal as he had assumed, and it seemed Rachel Elliot had been a very naughty girl.

Another thing about opportunists like Arthur: they don't worry about what will happen if they have things wrong.

Arthur leaned over the table. He could feel his smile shaping into a smug grin. He leaned on his elbows. “You know, Rachel, I think I could make this all go away for you. Easy-peasy.”

There it was. A look of confusion on Rachel's face. So there was more.

Arthur waited.

“You...you already...look, that's the limit!”

A lesser man, having no idea what Rachel was talking about, might have twitched. Given himself away. Wondered what sort of mess he was getting himself into. Given in to curiosity, and asked what the limit was.

Not Arthur.

Arthur, opportunist and jerk, waved his hands at the air. “Oh, I was thinking about something else.”

The stain of pink that crawled over Rachel's face told Arthur that his suggestion had not in any way gone over her head.

HARDBALL

What a total fucking asshole, Arthur Frost.

That's what she should have thought, and she knew it. It should have been the only thought to go through her head.

She felt embarrassment slide up over her cheeks, getting them hot. But it only lasted a second.

Because if Rachel Elliot was being honest with herself, there was something very changed inside of her.

There was the part of her she thought maybe she should be: the Rachel Elliot of KRTV's human interest stories. The Rachel Elliot everyone assumed could not possibly be the bare-snatched slut fucking a well-hung black man who was definitely not her husband in the video clip on the internet. Rachel Elliot the sweet-faced and good-natured wife of Josh Elliot, who would never ever consider what she was considering now.

But there was a part of Rachel that was getting off – and really, deeply, truly getting off – on the idea of being KRTV's darling, but not wearing any underwear while she filmed her lead-ins and outros. She liked the extremes she was taking sex to with Xavier, and she liked that her husband was watching her. She liked having this alter-ego inside of her. She liked indulging...well, her slut.

The flush across her cheeks faded almost instantly.

She uncrossed her legs, and then crossed them again, channeling Sharon Stone (although, and a small part of her regretted this, she was wearing underwear.) A confidence took over her body, straightening her spine, turning her eyes to mischievous marbles. She could almost see herself from across the room, and she liked what she saw. Not so much for itself. More because it was so not her. No one would believe this Rachel, if they saw her.

It excited her.

In fact, she felt high.

And Arthur, that truly huge sack of shit, lost all his confidence. Just for a second, maybe only half a second. But she saw it, and it surged inside of her.

She moved her eyes over Arthur's chest. He wasn't a terrible-looking guy. And he had an undeniable confidence that Rachel had always felt a slightly hateful attraction to. His steely blue eyes and square jaw under his jet-black hair made him look like a Disney Prince gone slightly off. Like what Prince Charming would be if he had been born a used-car salesman.

She had given some thought to it, once in a while. She liked to tell herself she was utterly repulsed by the idea.

But the new Rachel was a different person.

“Something else,” she said. She bounced her foot around flirtatiously and gave him a dark smile. She watched with pleasure as another quick wave of discomfort flitted over his face. “Let's talk deals then.”

She could see he had no idea what to say.

A thrill coursed through her. She stood up and went around the side of his desk. He spun his chair toward her, and tried to maintain the composure on his face, but it was clear he had no idea how to react.

What a shit. He had probably expected her start crying. She felt another flush of pleasure that she was, instead, doing everything he probably didn't expect her to do.

But she knew she was going to have to take it all the way.

She had a brief thought flit through her head, about Josh, but she tucked it away.

There was no reason, anyway, that Josh ever needed to know about this.

She put her hands on her hips, and used her knee to flirtatiously moved Arthur's knee open. Her eyes went to his crotch, where his cock had made a tent in his pants already. His cock was, by the looks of it, quite substantial.

It might be kind of fun.

“What is it, then, Arthur, that you had in mind?”

She could see that his mind was spinning. His hands reached out and grasped her thigh, just above the knee. He moved his right hand along her thigh and up to the inside of her leg. She would have been lying to herself if she had said it didn't turn her on.

Rachel had a devious thought. She liked to tease: she had gotten quite the taste for it at this point.

“What if I leave you,” she said, sliding down to the floor on her knees. “With a down payment, while you think a little bit on what it is you want?”

She unbuckled his pants, pleased that he seemed shocked as she did so. She took out his cock, and it jerked wildly until she caught it in her hand. She felt his whole body shudder and heard him suck in his breath.

She pressed the fat end head of it against her lips. His cock ended in a bulbous, meaty knob. She was pleased that the dome of it was slick with his precum, and she rubbed it on her lips. She looked up to meet his eyes, and another sliver of delight went through her when she saw the shock still plastered on his face.

She took his head into her mouth, and swirled her tongue around it. She dug into the crevices of the rim, and the rivet leading to his hole. She enjoyed the way his muscles spasmed in his thighs and arms. She knew that part of the thing that was reducing him to such a mess was how unexpected her behavior was. It was making her hot as well, and her panties were soaked through.

She popped off the end of his cock. She stroked his shaft with her hand while she looked at his member. It was smooth and pink, larger than Josh's and as thick as Xavier's, though not as long. She felt her pussy pulse, and then an ache in her ass as she thought about what it might feel like to let Arthur get his most filthy fantasy.

Then her limbs jerked as an exciting thought passed through her mind: she could ask Josh to watch. Surely he'd love to save $20,000 and watch his wife submit to this prick, and take his cock in her ass.

She gave the tip of his cock a lick, and then she swallowed the whole thing.

It wasn't normally such a turn-on for her, sucking cock. But sucking on Arthur's cock like this was getting her more worked up than she had been in a long time. Maybe because it was blackmail. Maybe because she was thinking of what she would look like, if Josh were watching. Maybe because she was being the lewd, slutty doppelganger of Rachel Elliot.

Arthur put his hand on the back of her head when he got close. His cock had been erect when she took it into her mouth, but as she bobbed her head over him he seemed to grow twice as hard and even fatter, until he was stretching her lips open almost as much as Xavier.

She had a very dirty idea, one she would love to use on Xavier while Josh watched, and one that she would do right now, just for kicks. When she felt the boiling cum unleashing at the base of Arthur's cock, she drew her head back only partway, and let him fill her mouth.

He panted and groaned, and gave a shout as he burst into her throat.

Rachel leaned her head back when he was done, and opened her mouth wide, so that he could see the pool of cum in the back of her throat. It gave her such a rush, thinking of how perfectly filthy, how porn-starry this must have looked, and how no one would ever think that Rachel Elliot would do such a thing.

Then she swallowed, and winked at the very stunned Arthur as she did.

She wiped her lips and stood up.

“You decide what you want, Arthur. Then we talk place and time. But it's a one-off. Then I'm paid up, and you give me the video. Got it?”

He just sat there, open-mouthed, as she spun and left the room.

Rachel flipped her hair over her shoulder. Her panties were soaked. She certainly hoped there was not much traffic, and that Josh was already home. She had plans for him.

She was on a high like she hadn't felt before. It scared her, but she was too turned on to think much about her fear. She knew it would come later, after she got home and Josh made her come. Her pussy was throbbing, her skin was tingling. This must be what men feel like all the time, she thought, and smiled to herself. No wonder they were such dogs.

When she rounded the corner of the hallway, she saw him, and instantly her plans and her troubles flew out of her head. Xavier's broad shoulders and muscled back, covered by a gray t-shirt, were turned to her. His thick arms were folded, and her eyes went to the curvature of his muscles.

She felt herself winding up inside.

Sure, there was something in the back of her mind. A blip, a flickering light. Rachel, it said feebly, you just swallowed another man's cum, and now you're strutting into your office to pull another, different man into a closet and fuck him in your office...you're being, well, a bit of a slag.

The voice was weak, though. She ignored it.

Xavier turned when she walked into the room. “Turn anything up?” he said. “I have nothing.” He was angry.

Rachel jerked her head. Let's talk somewhere else, she was saying. In her mind she was already miles ahead, already feeling Xavier's cock inside of her.

He followed her, and she took him out to the stairwell. She wasn't sure where she was headed. She'd heard rumors of janitor's closets, but when she got to the tenth floor the door was locked. "Shit," she said.

Then she turned around and pressed her body to the door. Xavier was standing on the top stair.

She looked around and shrugged. "This should work."

Xavier grinned and shook his head. "You naughty girl," his expression seemed to say. Or maybe he did, in fact say that. Rachel wouldn't be sure later. She was already hiking her skirt up, to slide her panties down to her ankles and step neatly out of them.

Xavier moved to her in one easy step, and pushed her against the wall with the mass of his body. If he was surprised, he had recovered quickly: his long cock had taken on its hard, full form in his pant leg, and Rachel could feel it against her bare inner thigh through his jeans. He covered her mouth with his, and kissed her invasively. One of his hands was unbuckling his belt, and the other grabbed one of her wrists and pushed it above her head.

When his cock was freed, he moved his hand behind her, clutching her ass in his big palm. He squeezed her flesh and lifted her, and Rachel let her legs open wide as he did. Her cunt was dripping wet, and so she sheathed him with no effort at all. She gave a gasp as his thickness spread her open and crowded her abdomen a little when he thrust all the way inside. She wrapped her legs around him and pushed her back against the wall to drive herself even further onto his shaft.

Xavier cupped her ass, and gritted his teeth. "Oh, you're a hungry little slut, aren't you?"

She was. Rachel was a cock-hungry little slut and she liked that even Xavier had no idea just how cock hungry and dirty she had been. Her pussy spasmed around his cock and she opened her mouth in pleasure.

Xavier began to hammer himself into her, and she clung to his body and held herself steady as he did. Juices dripped down to her ass and all over his hands, and she came in no time at all, shrieking a little when she did.

And then she bit her lip, and let Xavier pound her hard, thinking only to the moment she really wanted, when his cock burst inside of her and filled her up with hot cum.

Rachel's legs dropped and Xavier slid out of her. He was panting.

“Damn, Rachel Elliot,” he said.

She grinned and dropped to the ground to get her panties and slide them up under her skirt. They were cold; they had been soaked when she dropped them to the floor. The cool, wet thong nestled between her ass and she felt another twinge of excitement.

She kissed Xavier, and there was something exciting about doing it with a dirty mouth. She could scarcely believe that she was already turned on again, already plotting her next adventure, with Josh.

“Don't worry about the video,” she said. “Something will turn up.”

Xavier took a step back from her, as though he couldn't believe what he was hearing.

“So sure of yourself,” he said, but it wasn't really in reference to finding or not finding the video.

Rachel scooted her skirt down and shrugged.

But she was sure of herself. There had been a minute, when she was coming down off her high of orgasmic sluttiness, that she had started thinking about consequences and her actions and feeling out of control.

But now, the craving was back again, and she was thinking about the creme-colored lingerie she had bought originally for Xavier, and where it was, and how she could get home and get it on before Josh got home, so she could tell him all about the very bad things she'd done this afternoon.

Her pussy was already throbbing, in fact, with a desire to do just that.

She kissed Xavier on the mouth and scooted down the stairs to his still disbelieving stare. “Gotta run,” she said.

I'VE BEEN VERY NAUGHTY

The door to the house was unlocked when Josh arrived home, which was a pleasant surprise but a bit foreboding, given the problems he had, and the fact that all of them revolved around Rachel.

She was not in the kitchen, and she seemed to have entered in some kind of hurry. Her shoes were flung at the shoe stand, and her keys were teetering from the edge of the counter as though she'd tossed them and they'd skated across the counter. All very unlike Rachel.

Josh's stomach filled with dread.

"I'm back here, honey," her voice called out.

Josh perked his ears up toward the sound. She didn't sound distressed. She sounded...playful.

Sexy.

His cock took over and began to get hard.

He went to the hallway, and was surprised to see Rachel's figure in the doorway.

"I've been very, very naughty," she purred. "But I think I've solved all of our problems."

Josh stared at the woman in the doorway of the bedroom. She was hanging playfully with both hands on the door frame. Her blonde hair was tousled, as though she had just been with a lover in the other room. And perhaps she had. He felt his cock pulse with the thought.

She was wearing some get-up he had never seen before. It was a cream-colored bodice that tied together at the center with laces that were begging to be ripped apart. Her breasts and the sides of her creamy torso were encased in a delicate lace. A cream bikini-bottom with loose garter clips covered her bare pussy. The entire outfit gave off both the flavor of a bride and a prostitute, and it was erotic as fuck.

This woman, Josh thought, was not his wife.

She looked like his wife. The same long lashes on the doe-eyes. The upturned nose and the jovially pouty mouth. But this woman was possessed by an energy Josh had never known Rachel to have.

She was pulling him in with her eyes and her flirty, playful hanging from the door frame. "Don't you want to know what it is?" she said, and her voice had dropped to a lurid whisper.

He dropped his briefcase, which he had been clinging to, stupefied, without realizing it. He must have look confused beyond all reason, because she helped him. She leaned closer and reached out with one hand to pull him a step closer with his tie. "That I've done?" she clarified.

His cock was hardening like cement. His brain was screaming at him, screaming at him that some detail was terribly wrong here. But his brain was not able to get through to him. Josh could only feel the pulsing of his cock.

Rachel let go of the door frame, but not his tie, and she popped toward him. He could smell a lot of scents mingling on her skin, but none of them were the scent of a fresh lean shower. Whatever naughty thing Rachel had done still lingered on her.

And she wanted it that way.

Josh's eyes fell to the two creamy mounds propped up in the lace of the bodice. Her hazelnut nipples were visible through the skimpy fabric, and he could see that they were hard little pebbles. He slid his hands over the soft lace and tried to get beneath the fabric, but Rachel was slipping away from him, falling to her knees.

She unbuckled his pants, and tore his boxers down. She was doing this now with such a practiced ease that Josh wondered if she had more practice than she was letting on; more that she had with him.

"I'll just show you," she said, and she filled her mouth with the head of his cock. Her tongue moved around the smooth skin of his glans, then she began to dig into the tender flesh beneath the ridge of his helmet. He shuddered. The shaft of his cock was screaming for the feel of her mouth. She grasped him, but her hand stayed where it was while she lent all of her attention to his glans. Her probing, fierce little tongue went now to the hole of his penis, and then back around the smooth bulb of his head.

"I'll show you first," she said, stroking his cock with her hand, "and then I'll tell you who I did it with."

She pulled him inside of her mouth, all the way to the base of his cock, just as the meaning of her words slapped him, cold and hard.

He could feel the way that Rachel smiled. He knew she was smiling because his cock had almost surged into her mouth. She slurped and bobbed over his shaft, taking him deep into her mouth and throat.

He placed his own hands on the door frame to steady himself, and watched as his wife sucked his cum from deep inside of him.

He yelled as he came, and she grasped his shaft and held it inside of her mouth, halfway buried in her throat.

He felt himself unloading in her mouth, and the words she had just spoken seemed to squeeze it out of him like a vice: then I'll tell you who, then I'll tell you who.

She released him, and tipped her head back. Josh stared, as she opened her mouth, and let him look down at the creamy cum pooled in the back of her throat, before she smiled and swallowed it.

Then this woman who was not his wife hopped up, her eyes twinkling.

“I think I've solved the problem, and maybe we can have some fun with it, too. But first,” she stroked her breasts at the edge of the lingerie bodice, “I have to finish telling you about my afternoon.”

Josh stared at her. “I don't know if I can...”

Rachel backed up. She slid her panties down, one delicious inch at a time. Josh was still too blown-away by what she had just done to feel like he could have enough energy for what she seemed to want.

“How about I tell you what I did, and we'll see if you can?”

And she was right, of course. She had only to sit on the bed, her fingers dipping playfully into her red cunt, her juices welling up, Xavier's creamy cum gushing out with them and coating her legs, while she explained that after she sucked down this other man's cum, she let Xavier pound his big, thick cock into her in the stairwell. While Xavier kissed her dirty mouth...

And Josh was suddenly able, quite easily, to perform again.

THE REVEAL

“Oh fuck.”

Josh held his fingers to eyes and tried to summon the brightest, and therefore the loudest, stars he could manage by pressing dangerously firmly against his eyeballs. It was all he could do. “Fuck.”

Rachel was still next to him, poised like tigress on the bed.

Arthur. Josh racked his brains for an image of the man: dark hair, blue eyes...not bad-looking. Jerk. Real wheeling-dealing managerial type.

“Alpha male twat,” Rachel had called him.

Oh fuck, this had all gotten so out of control.

“Why?” he seethed. He thrust his hand away from his face. “I mean, why Arthur? Why are you sure it's Arthur?”

He looked at Rachel. He was shocked to see that instead of looking worried, or apologetic, she had an amused expression on her face. A face full of confidence – which is something that Rachel had always had, but it had been a different kind. This was like a woman who had emerged from a chrysalis, a fully-formed...something. Something not like his old wife at all.

“He as much as admitted it to me,” she said casually. “And now he'll ask for something like a night with me. But this is the best part, right? Because it's all win for us. And then we get the video back.” She shrugged.

“He admitted it to you, how?” Josh snapped.

Rachel became annoyed. “It has to be him.” Then her expression changed and she folded her feet under her excitedly. “I figured out that it was him, right, because I -”

“How? How could you have possibly figured out that it was Arthur?” Josh practically yelled.

“I was about to tell you,” Rachel snapped.

Josh was shaking his head in disbelief.

“I got the fob records for the night the video was made,” Rachel began.

Josh's stomach went cold.

“And then I eliminated everyone but him. Then I went to his office and I was like, 'Arthur, I know it was you,'” she imitated Al Pacino in The Godfather, but her Australian accent destroyed it, “and he was like, 'we can work something out.'”

“It's not him,” Josh said flatly. “Oh god. Oh god, what the fuck did he say, exactly, that made you think it was him?!”

He was asking the wrong questions now, or at least questions that didn't matter. Flinging blame in every direction but the one that deserved it most: himself. He knew that, but he couldn't stop.

“What are you on about?” Rachel seethed. “It's sorted. I thought you'd be happy.”

“It isn't him,” Josh repeated. Now his voice was quiet, and serious.

This made Rachel, who was about to go over the edge with runaway anger, pause.

She stared at him. He could see that a bad feeling was brewing inside of her.

“What do you mean, 'it isn't him?'” She sat up and then sat back down on her legs. She folded her arms.

Josh covered his face. “Oh fuck,” he said.

Rachel was going to kill him. At the very least divorce him.

He had gone too far. Far, far too far, and now his wife had demeaned herself with her boss.

Unless...

There was always the possibility that Rachel had actually enjoyed it. She certainly didn't seem to be horrified by it when she had her mouth around his cock. Or when she had practically gargled with his cum.

The two competing forces of jealousy and arousal ignited in Josh again.

“Fuck,” he repeated.

Rachel pulled her knees up to her chin. “Fuck, what, Josh?”

“This whole thing is so far out of control,” he muttered.

He had no idea where he was going to go after that. Rachel could have said almost anything at that moment. She just gave a strange, strange laugh, into her knees. Almost like a hiccup.

“You're telling me,” she said.

Josh whipped his head around to her. The whole thing suddenly seemed so comical. “What are we doing?” he said.

Rachel pressed her forehead into her knees. “Josh, I don't know. I don't know. It's like...you're right, you know, when you say, 'it's out of control.' That's how I feel. But then...ugh. I don't know. I just sort of lose myself in it.”

“What do you...”

“I just really...oh, I don't know. I don't even know how to explain it. It's like, I don't know, like a drug addiction. Like cigarettes or something. I'm always like, 'I'll quit,' and then I get a craving, and...I don't know, it's getting worse. Yeah, look...I don't even know how we got here. I don't even know what I'm doing, giving my boss a blowjob, in the middle of the afternoon, and then coming home to tell you about it...like, what is this? Who are we?”

“I have to tell you something!” Josh blurted.

Rachel looked alarmed.

“It's about...okay. Okay look, please try to understand before you react, okay? Because I was feeling the same way you were, right? I was out of control, and then I...” Josh looked around the room frantically, as if the words at the end of his sentence were a lost pair of keys or something.

“Did you sleep with someone?” Rachel asked.

“What? No. God, no. Something worse than that. Something...a very bad idea, okay? I had a very. Bad. Idea.” Josh had no air left in lungs after he expelled the final word.

There was a pregnant, almost terrifying pause. Rachel's face was contorted into a strange expression while she tried to imagine what it could be, and Josh could not believe that he would have to admit to this thing that she would never, ever think of.

Really, a betrayal.

But he had done it out of...he didn't know. Some kind of reckless love. How to explain that?

A hundred different sentences occurred to them, and so when he opened his mouth to speak he tripped all over the first words and sounded like he was gargling. Rachel's face broke into a smile, and then she snorted and covered her mouth. “I'm sorry,” she said quickly, waving her hand in the air in front of him.

The scene, though entirely different in context, reminded Josh – almost painfully – of when they had first met. He had been a much more awkward geek outwardly than he was now, but Josh had never really suffered from insecurities about himself because of that. A lot of women seemed to want to treat him as if he should, though, and it both annoyed and confused him. One of the things he had found most endearing about Rachel was that she laughed outright at him, exactly as she was now, and then tried to cover it up but only made herself laugh more.

The nostalgic feeling smashed through him. He had second thoughts about telling the truth.

Rachel was looking at him.

“I’m the one who blackmailed you. Or, I am. I am blackmailing you. Well, not really of course, because the money will be...look, it isn’t Arthur, is what I’m trying to...”

Rachel’s face had twisted into an almost gnomish expression.

“What?!” she said finally.

He started to talk, but before he could say anything she was shaking her head. “I don’t understand. I don’t understand what you’re saying at all.”

Which meant that, in a way, she did.

“How does one ‘blackmail’ his own wife...what are you even saying? Can you...? What the fuck are you talking about?!!! You put...and the website? You did that too? You put that fucking video on the bloody internet? You complete.....fucking....fuck.” Her sentence had begun as though it would fly off into outer space, and then instead deflated. She seemed almost calm as she hissed ‘fuck’ between her teeth.

A silence. Josh’s mind was careening in all different directions.

“Why? Why in the hell would you...?”

Josh put his head back in his hands. “I don’t know. Jealousy? I thought...fuck, Rachel, you know what? I don’t know what I thought. I thought, I couldn’t come to you and say, ‘I asked you to do this thing,’ and then I wasn’t sure about it, and so now I want you to stop...and then there was, well...it’s like with you. I liked it. Yeah. That was the problem.” He lifted his head and looked at the wall, saying this last part with the conviction of a man who has thought something a hundred times but only just seen the truth of it. “I liked it. I loved it. I was out of control. I didn’t know what I wanted, so I just...I kept doing a little piece of it, one piece at a time, and then one day it was just...done.”

Silence again.

And then Rachel let out another snort. “It’s so....stupid,” she said.

And this was true, Josh realized. It was very, very true.

Josh nodded his head enthusiastically, still staring at the wall, his fingers still on his lips. In spite of himself, the stupidity of his actions was making him smile.

He turned to his wife. He was suddenly serious. He put his hand on her knee. "I wanted a way out. I didn't know how to say to you..." he exhaled sharply, "I love you, and I love what you're doing, but I want you to stop, but I don't."

It was Rachel's turn to put her fingers to her eyes. "Just like that. That's what you should have said."

"It's harder than that."

"Moron." Then she changed her voice suddenly. Evidently she regretted saying it like that. "I know," she said, comfortingly. "I could have...said something to you, too."

Another silence, a friendlier one, took over the room.

"So what was your idea?" Rachel said suddenly. "You would blackmail me and I would, what? Hate Xavier?"

Josh shrugged. "Or just think: 'oh, this was too risky, I have to stop.'"

"Oh, it's really..." she cooed. "Really quite ballsy, don't you think?"

"It was going to go wrong. I knew that from the beginning," Josh admitted. "But I did it..."

"...for love," Rachel offered. Her tone was half-sarcastic, but there was some tenderness in it, too.

She reached out and took his hand. "Oh I do love you, you bloody idiot."

He squeezed her hand, and tried to remain composed. But really, his heart was in turmoil. He was on a high. Rachel had said exactly what he had hoped she would say, and he was starting to feel like he had the reassurance he wanted, but couldn't ask for.

Then she stiffened. "That fucking Arthur. What the fuck could he be on about?"

Josh felt shame wash over him again. "I'm so sorry, Rachel, I'm so sorry about that...you know..."

She paused, looking skyward. Then she bit her lip. "Don't get mad," she said, "but it's not that big of a deal to me. I kind of liked...I don't know, let me explain to you how the whole thing happened. But...after that, we think of some way out of this. Some way that screws Arthur, because he's a right bastard. And then...there's Xavier, too."

"He's pissed?"

Rachel still had to calculate what "pissed" meant for a nanosecond, in spite of how long she'd been in America. "Very. Very...pissed." She looked at Josh. "So we'll have to sort that out, too."

They looked at each other.

"Good thing you've got your best mind on it," Josh offered playfully.

Rachel laughed, and shook her head.

"So tell me the story," Josh prompted.

"Are we okay?" Rachel said, changing the subject suddenly.

Josh kissed her, and it was the kind of kiss they hadn't had in many years. Something stirred inside of him, something from long before any of this happened. Rachel must have felt it, too, because she lingered on his lips. It was almost like a first kiss. Pregnant with possibility, fraught with the potential for disaster. The man, still uncertain whether or not he would ever get laid...

They were okay.

"I love you," he said.

"I love you, too."

They smiled.

"Now tell me the story."

CONFESSIONS

It's said that confession is good for the soul, and Rachel wasn't a big believer in souls, but confession had certainly been good for whatever had been inside of her. The expression "to feel as though a weight has been lifted" never had more meaning. That was, in fact, how she felt.

She had told Josh everything, every last detail. Once she got started telling him about what had happened with Arthur, it all spilled out of her: her obsessions, the way she felt out of control.

Instead of reacting the way she feared – and this was a fear she never really voiced to herself before that moment – and finding her behavior outrageous, Josh seemed to understand it.

Josh. What an idiot, with his crazy plans. That was probably why he could understand how reckless she had been.

She should have been angrier at him, but to tell the truth there wasn't anything else he could have done to turn her own mind and her heart around more, as crazy as it seemed. The gesture was so reckless, so ridiculous, so...dumb...that it reeked of a deep love and a pure sincerity that Rachel had forgotten about. Love and sincerity that had lain dormant in their relationship for so long that she had forgotten they were there. Now they were calling her back to what was important. It was making everything much more clear.

But Xavier was a problem. She could see that he wasn't going to let the video go. He wasn't going to stop looking until he found out who it was, and who knew what he would do then? He wasn't going to let Rachel just pay her blackmail money, either. He was like a dog with a bone, and the only way out was for him to get what he wanted: the satisfaction of confrontation, of winning.

Rachel also knew that she didn't want to tell him the truth. What Josh had done was kind of...well, private. Too silly too be understood by anyone but the two of them.

So what, then?

Josh thought on it all night. She could tell by the way his body was still but never really stopped moving.

But when they woke up in the morning, after making love – which really was like making love, like their old personalities and old bodies had come to life inside of them – it was Rachel who had come up with the seed of the idea.

“Whenever you've done something...well, stupid...it's best to have a scapegoat. We need a scapegoat, right?” she said. “But we already have one.”

Josh stood still with the milk in his hand. His quick mind didn't take long to follow her thoughts.

“Arthur,” he said. “But if Xavier confronts him, he'll end up telling him the truth. He's a chickenshit, you said.”

“And he doesn't have the video,” Rachel reminded herself. It was easy to get confused. “Damn.” She took the milk from Josh and poured it over her cereal.

Josh was staring at the wall again. She paused to watch him. He was getting an idea.

He sat down on a stool and pressed his lips together. “What if Arthur had the video? Or...looked like he had it? What if Xavier did something to actively get it back from him?”

“I'm listening,” Rachel said, but her voice was incredulous. Arthur, of course, didn't actually have the video, and he would surely make that clear if Xavier came after him for it.

Josh held up his hands, but didn't look at her, as he often did when he was explaining and thinking at the same time.

“What if everything were the same as you thought it was last night? What would you have done?”

Rachel chewed a mouthful of cereal. “I guess...I guess I would have slept with him.” She didn't feel bashful saying this. In the long confessions and reconciliation of the night before, she felt like each of them had made their peace with everything that had happened.

Josh, too, seemed to have a neutral feeling about this admission of hers. He was on to solving the new problem, ever the analyst. “And what would you have told Xavier?”

It was a good question. She didn't have the answer. “I guess I would have...”

“You said he's not letting it go, right?”

She nodded.

“So eventually, he would have been talking about it, and you would have told him, right?”

Rachel shrugged, but affirmatively.

“So would you have told him before or after?”

She didn't know. What would she have done? In her strange state, she had no idea if she would have told Xavier or not.

Josh already knew where he wanted the conversation to go. He was impatient, but he hid it well. “What do you think he would do if you told him everything you told me last night?”

“Punch him in the face,” Rachel offered, without hesitation.

“So he wants revenge, you think?” Josh continued, ignoring the obvious hyperbole.

Rachel considered it. Xavier – or at least Xavier lately - seemed like that kind of guy. But not the kind of guy to fly off the handle.

“He seemed like he'd want something...served cold, though, you know? Except what are we talking about, because Xavier doesn't have anything to actually be mad at Arthur about. You're the one who's offended him the most-”

“Stay with me, Rachel,” Josh said. He was rubbing his thumb and forefinger together. “We can find a way, surely, to make Xavier think he's gotten his revenge, and screw Arthur a little, too.”

Rachel dipped her spoon into her cereal. “I hope your plan is better than the last one,” she said, jokingly, even though, in truth, she had confidence in Josh's plan in spite of this fiasco. He was clear-headed now, she could sense it.

He leaned on the counter.

“I'm going to need your investigative skills again, though,” Josh said.

Rachel turned the spoon in her mouth and smiled.

Even though it seemed utterly ridiculous, and it was likely going to end in disaster, it seemed like they might have some fun along the way. And now, it felt like an adventure they were on together.

That's what they had to find out.

ROGUE ELEMENT

It ended up being remarkably easy to find out what Arthur Frost was afraid of.

Rachel jogged easily around the clay-red indoor running track of the Aspen Club (no “the,” but no one in town was asshole enough to call it just “Aspen Club”). It was the ultra-expensive, ultra-snobbish athletic club to which all of the super-wealthy and celebrity-status people of the city aspired to become a member. Keeping in mind that this was not exactly New York, there was still plenty of nouveau riche money lying around. Rachel had avoided Aspen Club like the plague, in spite of her celebrity status, partly because of its almost heart-stopping membership fees, and partly out of principle. She hated this kind of dick-measuring.

The club wasn't worth the price (she was praying silently that she could somehow get out of the membership she had just purchased), but it was a class above any “gym” Rachel had ever set foot in. She also had to admit that it had been a little bit of an ego boost when the man at the membership desk fell all over himself with excitement that she was “finally” joining their club.

Everything in Aspen Club was a flawless white, except for the track or the manicured indoor lawns for golf and tennis. They seemed to purify the air the moment it came off someone's body. It smelled like cedar or citrus everywhere, and Rachel was now circling the tennis courts on a raised track and had almost forgotten why she was here in her enjoyment of the clean, crisp richness of it all.

Then she spotted her. Moving like a gazelle on the tennis courts below.

Charlotte Heller Frost. Her long, thoroughbred legs moved over the grass with the unhurried ease of someone who is good at tennis not because of a desire to be athletic, but because it is the way that rich people spend their martinis before having a martini in a private club. She bounced an easy volley with a sexy, languid stroke, and her little white skirt flipped up to reveal her small, rounded ass in the white underwear of the skirt. Her midriff was bare and her stomach was tightened into the same, expensive, personally-trained shape as the rest of her body: tight but only just tight enough. Her skin was toasted by real sun to a fashionable, crispy almond color. The two spherical breasts that barely bounced with her walk were far too large for her frame to be believable. Her face was blandly beautiful, her expression permanently a little sour. Her hair was a carefully crafted platinum: it looked real but it was, like the rest of her, entirely too perfect to be so.

She was the quintessential trophy wife.

Rachel circled on the track, and kept an eye on Charlotte's game as it appeared to be winding down. Charlotte was taking instructions from the man she was playing with, so perhaps he was her instructor.

When Charlotte crossed to the net to shake his hand, Rachel veered off to the stairs down from the track. She jogged down to the first landing and then slowed to a casual walk, her eyes seeking out Charlotte's figure.

At the Aspen Club, though, platinum hair and sexy figures abounded. Rachel walked in a half-panic past a juice bar and toward the locker rooms, when she caught Charlotte, a towel around her neck, chatting coquettishly with another man. Then Charlotte turned, thankfully, and headed toward the juice bar.

Rachel went around the divider, looked into the pool, and then walked back, and was pleased to find that Charlotte was there, seated, looking boredly into her phone. An empty seat was next to her.

She had no idea, no idea at all, what to expect from Charlotte Frost. It was a long shot, but it was where she had decided to begin her hurried investigation into "what would blackmail Arthur Frost."

Josh hadn't really explained to her how a piece of information like that was going to help them, since Arthur was not actually in possession of anything they wanted, but Rachel trusted him for having a plan. In spite of of his poor track record thus far.

Rachel sucked in her breath and headed toward Charlotte in the juice bar. There was no point not trying. She had gone this far, and this was quite far: the membership, the digging into Arthur's personal life.

Also, it was sort of fun.

She hopped onto the stool next to her and ordered a smoothie the color of Vegemite. For kicks, she let go of her American accent. People seemed to like Australian accents all over the world, and half the time that was all she needed to do to get a conversation started, or at least warm people up.

In this case, it was absolutely the right move. The juice bar man appeared stunned for a moment. When he handed her her smoothie, he said, as though in confidence, “You know you look exactly like Rachel Elliot from Channel 7?”

And from Rachel's left, a bored voice murmured, “She is Rachel Elliot, Tom, you idiot.” Rachel was as surprised by Charlotte's voice as Tom was by her own: Charlotte's voice was dripping with a near-extinct, wealthy New Englander accent.

Charlotte didn't look up from her phone to say this. Tom, as his name apparently was, let his mouth hang open. “You're English?” he said to Rachel, dumbfounded.

“Aussie,” Rachel said, smiling through the inevitable annoyance that this sort of question generated. Her mind was whirling around, trying to get a read on Charlotte, who was, to say the least, unexpected.

“No. Fucking. Way,” Tom said.

“Tom, do you know what Australians call Americans?” Charlotte drolled, still not looking up from her phone, which she was managing to type on very rapidly in spite of carrying on with this conversation. She looked up to check his face, and seeing that he didn't, she pursed her lips and began typing again. “Seppos.”

Rachel's mouth twitched at the corner. This was certainly going much differently - and more amusingly – than she had anticipated.

Tom, who Rachel was actually feeling fairly sorry for, leaned on the counter with his arms spread and, with a bit more challenge in his voice than Rachel would have expected, he jerked his head at Charlotte. “Oh yeah? Seppo. What's that supposed to mean?”

Charlotte raised her eyes to look at Rachel, and Rachel shook her head slightly.

Charlotte set her phone down. She leaned on her elbows and crossed her arms over each other, and it was suddenly evident that she and Tom had had this kind of volley before. Charlotte's snottiness seemed suddenly to be an act which amused them both.

“It's short for septic tank. Seppo. Septic tank, yank. It works on two levels,” she said, flipping her long bangs from her eyes and making her pony-tail bob delightfully, “because Americans are so full of shit.”

Tom, who not only seemed to have been rounds with Charlotte before, but with plenty of people like her, shrugged. “Still a sexy accent,” and he winked at Rachel. He then disappeared into the back, and his half-whispers echoed over the tiles. “Dude. You will not believe this. Rachel Elliot, you know hottie from the news? She's fucking Australian. She's out there right now.”

Charlotte leaned on her elbow and turned toward Rachel. “Don't get him fired, please. He's all I have to entertain myself between tennis and lunch.” Her eyes were twinkling with an odd mischief, one that seemed friendly. Rachel could see that her rich-girl act was one of those delicate balances between truth and sarcasm.

Rachel was almost knocked speechless. She had expected Charlotte to be a bimbo – a real, true bimbo. Instead, she was....what? A bitchy rich girl? Not really. She was that, but she was also somehow likeable.

Rachel opened her mouth and closed it, her mind trying desperately to think of the best course of action. Her original plan was shredded now, in tatters because of Charlotte's forwardness. Rachel had planned on approaching her, getting a sort of upper hand. Rachel had planned on slowly teasing what information she could out of her. Look for an insight into their personal life that could bring Arthur down. Find out how angry his wife might be if he was having an affair.

Now the whole plan had spun off the rails.

“I am surprised you're Australian. Arthur never mentioned it,” Charlotte said smartly.

Rachel tried to read her face for a trace of bitchiness as she said this, and found none. Charlotte evidently didn't care that her husband talked about Rachel Elliot.

Too bad.

“Arthur?” Rachel managed to say, remembering that she was supposed to be just innocently sitting down next to someone she didn't know.

“Arthur Frost. Your boss. Black hair, asshole? He's my husband.” Her eyes, blue, blackened a little, as if hate had filled them up them like oil in a well. She shrugged. “Does he even know? You're Aussie? You know he practically stalks you.”

Rachel was grateful that she actually didn't know what to say. It seemed Charlotte was going to lead this discussion wherever she wanted it to go.

Tom had returned to the bar, with a disbelieving friend trailing shyly behind him. Rachel smiled for him.

“Put another shrimp on the barbie,” Rachel drolled, scrunching her nose up for extra effect.

The two men, boys really, smiled in appreciation.

“She's going to have you fired, you simpletons,” Charlotte proclaimed. She turned to Rachel, rolling her eyes. “Let's go to the bar.”

Charlotte, who had a way about her that made people do what she said, was evidently unconcerned about whether or not Rachel could or would join her at the bar, and so she slid off the stool at the juice bar and began walking away without turning around. Rachel followed her through the spotless white athletic club and up some stairs to a room that looked for all the world like it had been imported from an episode of Downton Abbey.

“We're not up to dress code,” Charlotte said, plopping into a low, rich leather chair by a small cocktail table. “But I always like to see if anyone has the balls to ask me to leave, don't you?” Then, as an afterthought, and as though it disappointed her immensely, she added, “They won't.”

Rachel sat down next to her.

A waiter appeared immediately, and Charlotte looked at him expectantly. When he said nothing about her skimpy outfit, Charlotte looked at Rachel as if to say, “You see?”

“I'm having a martini,” she told Rachel, and then to the waiter: “Vodka, extra dry, no olives.”

It was ten am. Rachel looked helplessly at the waiter. “I'll...me, too.”

“And which vodka would you like?”

“The best one,” Charlotte said. “And your best vermouth.”

The waiter smiled and left. Rachel wondered how much this martini was going to cost.

“All vodkas are the same,” Charlotte said, her eyes on the window as if she were reminiscing. “Chemically. They are identical, did you know that? People are total fucking idiots for ordering expensive vodka.” Her eyes flicked back to Rachel's, and Rachel smiled at her. She was beginning to genuinely like Charlotte. Cautiously, the way a person “likes” a panther at the zoo. “But this is Arthur's tab. I don't even like vodka martinis that much, I just enjoy twisting the knife a little.”

Rachel gave her head a slight shake. Her mouth was open and she had no idea what to say.

Charlotte was going to be a fucking gold mine, if she was for real.

The waiter returned with two ice-cold martinis, and Rachel regretted ordering hers without an olive.

“So is it real?” Charlotte said, before she had even taken a sip of her martini, abruptly changing the subject. “The video?”

Rachel raised her eyebrows. This question seemed designed to throw Rachel for a loop.

Either that, or it was just genuine curiosity. It was hard to tell with her. Charlotte was either a jealous wife who knew everything Arthur was up to, who was scheming a revenge of her own. Or, she actually hated her husband, and she was scheming something else.

One of these possibilities was dangerous, and the other might be too helpful to be believed.

Rachel pushed aside the dumb, friendly personality she had been cultivating in advance of meeting Charlotte, who she had been so certain was a bimbo. She sipped her martini. “Of course not,” she said, in a mysterious tone.

Charlotte pulled her ponytail holder out, and her magnificently platinum hair fell into a perfect coif. She drank her own martini, and if she was surprised by Rachel's answer, she didn't let on.

Rachel's mind was on fire. She wished she had Josh here to evaluate this situation. Josh was so much more of a poker-player.

Then Charlotte really surprised Rachel by flipping her hair over her shoulder, her head leaning to one side. “Are you sleeping with Arthur?” she said pointedly.

Rachel almost choked on her martini. “What?”

Charlotte looked out the window, and squinted as though she couldn't read something. “I didn't think so,” she said, and she sounded disappointed. Then she turned quickly back to Rachel. “What do you think of Arthur?”

Rachel shook her head slightly, not knowing what else to do.

“That's what I thought. He's such a sleaze. He practically pimps you out. Of course you can't fucking stand him. What am I thinking?”

Rachel stared.

“I have a nasty prenup,” she continued, as though Rachel were an old, old friend. She brought the martini glass to her lips, sipping it like she had one every hour of every day, barely disturbing the liquid as she brought it to her lips. “And I know the bastard has his cock in every hole he can find. That's not the problem...god, better someone else than me...the problem is, I can't catch the bastard.”

Rachel was silent with shock. She actually couldn't believe her ears. This was actually – actually, literally, positively – the very best thing that could have happened to her. It was just falling into her lap.

Her eyes were wide.

Charlotte spun her glass a little, like it was wine, and then she downed the whole thing in one gulp. “I don't imagine you have any dirt on Arthur, do you?” She sighed, as if it was already a foregone conclusion that Rachel did not, and Rachel was rendered speechless by the shock of her good fortune. Then Charlotte sighed again and lifted her hand to order another drink. She looked at Rachel's, and even though it was only a quarter gone, Rachel nodded.

“You wouldn't give any thought to propositioning him, would you? I'd pay you, you know.” Charlotte gave a laugh, and it was impossible to know if she was serious or not. “Of course I'm only joking. No, I'm serious. I want out. The problem is, I've let him know it.” She was rambling. “I'm hoping to get you drunk and convince you to do terrible things. I'll tell you the truth, I almost pissed myself when you sat down next to me.” She rolled her eyes skyward. “My salvation has come, I was thinking.”

She flicked her nail and smiled at Rachel. “Oh, don't be afraid of me. I'm also just a lot of fun. So you have the afternoon free? Let's have more martinis and go mess with those boys at the juice bar.”

Rachel's mouth was actually hanging open now.

“I haven't shocked you too much, have I?” Charlotte continued, but not as if she cared. “Arthur really is a sonofabitch. Do not feel sorry for him. However bad it is having me for a wife, it's a million, bazillion times worse having him for a husband. I'll tell you all about it and you'll believe me.” She took a martini from a tray that materialized next to her.

Rachel was still staring. The waiter deftly set Rachel's second martini on a nearby cocktail table.

Charlotte drank her martini, unbothered by Rachel's silence.

“Charlotte,” Rachel said hoarsely, finally, and the younger woman's hungry, intelligent eyes instantly dilated with her quick knowledge that Rachel was about to say something interesting.

Rachel leaned closer to her, and the glee spinning up in Charlotte's eyes let Rachel know, without a doubt, that what she was about to do was a good idea.

Reporter's instinct.

FABULOUS NEWS

Rachel was still in her workout clothes, but from the looks of it she hadn't been working out at all. She was quite drunk, and she apologized for that as soon as she stepped through the door, in a loud voice.

Josh took in her tight black pants, and her bare midriff. She was wearing a racer-back hot pink tank top, and he knew she had been quite the sensation at the Aspen Club. Her hair bobbed in a cute ponytail, and her breasts bobbed in her running tank, pressed tight against her body.

"I have," she declared, and she really was drunk because she was slurring and sounded more Australian than Crocodile Dundee, "the most fabulous news. You aren't even going to believe it. I don't even believe it. It all just plopped right into my lap."

Josh smiled.

"I know I'm drunk," she said. "But this is all true."

And then she crossed the room, took two beers out of the fridge, sat herself on the counter, and proceeded to tell him all about Charlotte Heller Frost. How Charlotte had gotten married to spite her father, how she had grown bored of Arthur and of this town, how Arthur had been such an incredible dick on so many occasions that Charlotte's heart had turned to ice and she now wanted nothing more than the sweet revenge of taking his money with her in a divorce. And some horse. How Charlotte had hired private investigators and Arthur had heretofore escaped her clutches, because he was an overly cautious, clever bastard. How the two of them seemed to be embroiled in an epic battle to piss the other off as much as possible and winner take all the money.

"And the horse," Rachel added.

"So what did you tell her?" Josh said, nervously.

"I told her," Rachel said drunkenly, happily, accentuating each word with a small thrust of the beer bottle, "that we were made for each other, because I also need to fuck Arthur over."

"Did you say why?"

Rachel looked at the ceiling and thought about it. "I can't remember. It doesn't matter. She doesn't care. She does...she did literally everything for us. You wouldn't believe it if you saw it. 'Josh won't believe this,' is what I was thinking all afternoon." Rachel leaned in toward Josh. "He goes to a gentleman's club,” Rachel said, in a whispery voice, putting her arms on Josh's shoulders. “He hires prozzies there and get this, Charlotte...and Charlotte, bam! Came up with a plan, and it was brilliant. Absolutely brilliant.” Rachel laughed, and took a sip of her beer, and it spilled out over her face and made her laugh more. She wiped her mouth.

Josh stared at her. He was utterly lost. “What plan?” he said.

“It was brilliant,” Rachel said, ignoring him. “I just...can't remember what it was.”

Who was this woman? Josh opened his mouth to say something, and Rachel placed a finger over his open lips. “Don't worry,” she whispered. She lifted her other hand, and almost fell backwards as she did. In her hand was a business card. “I got her number.”

Josh took the card and looked at it.

Shiny black letters, on a very expensive paper, read:

CHARLOTTE HELLER FROST

“It's brilliant,” Rachel repeated. Her hands dove into Josh's pants, and her fingers fluttered over the top of his cock.

Josh smiled at his wife, though a little nervously. He loved how excited she was, how thrilled she was obviously feeling to be back on the hunt of a juicy story. He loved that she was getting wilder and wilder in bed. But she made him a little uneasy.

Just for a little while, though, he thought, as her hand wrapped around his cock and she bit into his lower lip.

It only really made him uneasy for a minute or two.

Rachel pushed him backward, smiling and nibbling on his mouth.

“Let's see if you can get my head cleared, how about that? Then I can tell you the plan,” she said, giggling.

So Josh went with her.

MORE BLACKMAIL

“You have to promise me, first, you'll hear the whole thing out.”

Xavier folded his arms across his chest and cocked his head slightly. Rachel was relieved to see his was mostly amused. That was good, because what she was about to say sounded infinitely crazy, and if Xavier caught a whiff of falsity about it, there could be a real shit storm on her hands.

She took a deep breath, and reminded herself of the plan, because at this point, even she was beginning to be confused about what was what.

Josh had told her to believe that the lie she was telling was the truth, which had worked so well that she now had to think hard about what the truth was.

For Xavier, the plan was this: she would tell him that Arthur was the one who had the video. She would tell him about Charlotte, in the sense that she would tell him Charlotte was hungry to catch Arthur cheating on her. Then she would tell him about the gentleman's club and the crazy – crazy – plan that Charlotte had concocted. At the end of that plan, if all went as planned and they could keep Xavier away from Arthur, then it would appear that Rachel had blackmailed Arthur, and the video was returned to her, and everyone would be happy.

The catch of course, was that Arthur had no video, and they were actually just blackmailing him for Charlotte, and because he was an asshole who deserved it. But there was no reason that Xavier had to ever find out that detail, and if he didn't, he would believe that it was Arthur all along who had filmed them, and that his dish of cold revenge had been served. Rachel could wrap things up nicely with Xavier. The End.

There was, also, a cherry on the cake: there was quite a bit of money in it from Charlotte.

Deep, deep, down, as well, there was also something inside Rachel that liked another part of this plan. It was the excitement of the plan. The danger of it. The seedy, filthy, naughtiness of it all.

She shuddered. She was a little ashamed of herself.

This was going to be the end, she had promised herself. So she might as well enjoy it.

She placed her hands on Xavier's chest. “Okay look. I went digging, and you won't believe who did it.”

“Arthur,” Xavier said, without a moment's hesitation.

Rachel was taken aback. “What makes you say that?”

“He's a real shit. He's the only one who stands to gain from those leaked videos. It makes sense. I just couldn't prove it.”

“Well, take my word for it, it's him,” Rachel said. “I got my hands on the security...whatever it's called, and -”

Xavier gave her a grin. “How'd you do that?”

Rachel fluttered her eyes. “Anyway. I confronted him. And do you know what that asshole said?”

Xavier's face was too dark to flush, but Rachel could see him heating up. “I can only imagine what that asshole said,” he seethed.

Rachel held a hand to his lips. “Look. You promised.”

She wavered for a moment, trying to decide if she should tell Xavier about her blowjob, but decided it was too complicated to explain. She wasn't even able to explain that one to herself, or the fact that it had turned her on, or the fact that the plan they had concocted was making her feel high on her sexual power.

“So I figured: what's the one thing I absolutely don't want to do?”

“Sleep with that prick?”

Rachel shook her head. “I don't want that video on the internet. Now, Josh says there's no way to trace it back to Arthur anyway. If I go to the cops I get nothing, except that video on the internet, and I don't want that-”

“Me either.”

“Have you told Tyra?”

“She's pissed off. Yeah.” Xavier seemed to be resigning himself to the logic of not going to the police.

“So then, there's, beat the shit out of him, which is just going to end in an assault charge and probably the same thing: video on the internet, right?”

Rachel was impressing herself with her lies. Well, half-lies. Whatever they were. She moved her hands up beneath Xavier's shirt, and enjoyed the feel of his hard abs as she continued to tell her lies. It turned her on. She could feel herself getting wet. Her blood was racing and it felt like gasoline.

“So I thought: what if there was a video, of equal value to Arthur, that we could bribe him back with? What if there was something that Arthur didn't want to get out?”

Xavier was nodding, his lips pressed together. Rachel could feel his cock getting hard, and she knew it was because of her flushed, sexualized energy. She made lazy circles over his stomach.

“So I tracked down his wife. Charlotte. And she is....oh, man. She is a real piece of work. She hates him. It turns out I had to look no further than her, because she has a plan all ready for catching Arthur in the act, and all she needed was someone to help her out with it.”

Xavier grabbed her wrist. “Wait, wait, wait, Rachel...if this is going where I think it is...it's not any use. You still have to sleep with him. How's that helpful?”

This had been Rachel's initial thought as well. And to be honest, she hadn't cared. There was still the fun of dressing up, acting like a prozzie, and then sticking it to Arthur in the end. She had talked Josh into how fun it would be, and he hadn't been totally adverse to watching her screw another man both literally and figuratively.

Still, Rachel thought it best, for whatever reason, to tell a lie here. Later, she would probably end up sleeping with Arthur, and Xavier would find out, but too late for it to matter. If she played her cards right, Xavier wouldn't know about it until after all the blackmailing.

“That's the best part,” Rachel said, her voice as sticky-sweet as her dripping cunt. “I don't have to. Charlotte has an idea, and I think it will work a treat. And she's even willing to throw in some money on the side. Now,” she said, and she reached into his pants and grasped his cock. “If you want to hear it, you'll have to do something for me.”

Xavier smiled, and pushed her around in a circle and into the wall. He pressed his lips against her neck, nuzzling her and sending a chill across the back of her neck and shoulders. “Yes ma'am,” he growled. His fingers began to crawl beneath her shirt, around to the front. Rachel had worn a white t-shirt to meet him, with no bra, and she wasn't wearing any underwear beneath her tight-fitting yoga pants either.

Rachel closed her eyes to imagine the scene as though she were a voyeur of herself. She could see Xavier's hands beneath the fabric of her shirt, finding her breasts, stroking her nipples until they turned hard between his fingers and he could squeeze them until she shuddered. He slid one hand down the back of her pants, and made a pleased murmur when his fingers plunged into her smooth, shaven folds. She was soaking wet, and his fingers were instantly drenched.

He tugged her pants down, one side at a time. He kept one hand on her breast, using the tips of his fingers to pull at her nipple gently, until it ached. His other hand dipped between her legs again, and he pinched her clit as he passed over it.

Rachel mewled, and he did it again. She pressed her ass out, against his body, eager for him to do more than just get her worked up. Xavier fanned his fingers and Rachel yelped a little as he pushed one into her ass, with no warning. The other finger stroked against the finger in her ass through the tender flesh of her cunt, and another finger caressed her swollen clit.

It took almost no time, moving his hands like this, to make Rachel howl and twist with a climax. She felt her whole body squeezing him, and her cum oozing onto her thighs.

But she wanted more. She wanted him inside of her. She wanted him to fill her, and she wanted to feel him burst and soften inside of her when he came.

She pushed her ass against him, and pushed herself back a little with her hands. Until she was nearly doubled over, like a table was beneath her and she was bent over it. She pushed her hands against the wall, her fingers splayed.

Xavier wasted no time, except to slowly draw his fingers from inside of her. He drew her cum up to lubricate her a little, dipping inside of her with first one finger, then two. He pulled on her rim, stretching it a little. It felt a bit like her wanted to pry it open and look inside, and then Rachel felt the heat of a drop of his spit landing squarely inside of her, on the flesh inside of her ass. She moaned in anticipation. Her insides were quivering with the desire to feel him fill her.

At last. He placed the tip of his cock against her eyelet, and the heat and stickiness of the head of his cock caressed her rim. She ground herself against him, trying to push back to get what she craved. But Xavier held her for a moment, one hand on her ass, teasing her. Then, very slowly, he pushed himself inside of her.

Rachel stared at her hands against the wall as Xavier's cock tore her open. The pain seared through her, but she knew it would fade, and it did, much more quickly than before. She felt herself open for him, and then the satisfaction of his enormous cock, so hard and so thick, filling her completely.

He fucked her slowly at first, withdrawing his long cock inch by inch, until it was nearly out of her. She squirmed with desire, the vacancy of his cock driving her wild for him to fill her again. And then slowly, he did, until his balls crushed against her drenched pussy. This went on and on, and the most tortured sounds escaped Rachel's mouth.

Then finally, his cock pulsing with his own need, he began to fuck her steadily. He worked up to a fast rhythm, pounding himself into her until she had to pressed her chest up against the wall. His cock pressed out against the back of her ass, scraping at some raw, fresh part of her that made her legs tremble. She slid her hand to her soaked slit, against the wall, and had only to stroke herself a few times to summon another climax. It knocked the breath out of her, and she barely felt it as Xavier slammed his shaft into her until her ass was full of his hot, creamy cum.

Xavier nuzzled her neck again. They were both wet with sweat, their skin sticky from head to toe. His cock was still inside of her, and she didn't want him to pull out. Her ass throbbed with a pleasurable ache. "Now," he said, his lips against the skin on her shoulder blades. "Tell me about this plan."

FIFTY NOW

They met at a bar down the street from Xavier's, on what was literally the wrong side of the tracks, where the upscale artists' neighborhood he lived in fell apart and turned into a place of abandoned warehouses and weird lounges that still smelled like cigarette smoke. The crowd on a Tuesday evening was a decidedly hostile and decidedly drunk gathering of three old men, tattooed from head to toe, race indiscernible, faces rolled up into permanent scowls.

Xavier waved at them, and one of them nodded.

"Jesus," Charlotte said, dropping into a black pleather half-circle of a booth. And then, with the peculiarity of her personality, she cheerfully seethed: "This place is fantastic."

She put her sunglasses on her head. Her blonde hair was swept up in a ponytail, and she was clad in a lavender, off-the shoulder top out of which her enormous, high, firm breasts threatened to spill any moment. It had been sliding ever-downward, and she seemed to be the kind of woman who would never, ever, adjust the shirt, even if her breasts tumbled out. They were all watching to see when the shirt would shimmy down to her nipples, but it had paused tantalizingly in its descent. The dark crevice between her round hills yawned invitingly.

"Rachel, darling, order my drink, I don't have any idea what to get here," she said, slapping a grimy menu closed. "Now," and her face was radiant, drawing Xavier and Josh right to her pretty and expensive features with her twinkling eyes. "Let's talk plans. I have to be at a golf lesson at eight."

Rachel smiled at Xavier. Charlotte was everything she had promised, and Rachel could see that Xavier was amused by her. Josh gave Rachel a playful kick under the table with the same sentiment.

When the bartender shouted at them from behind the bar to take their order, Rachel ordered Charlotte a martini. Charlotte's eyes, normally glazed over with a bedroom smokiness, came to life. She took a quick slice out of the bar with her eyes squinted, and spoke quickly: "Just a glass of vodka, please. Triple. Ice." Then, with almost no pause, she began to speak. "My husband, as all of you seem to know, is a real sonofabitch. It seems we can all come to some sort of mutual...solution...to our same problem. Arthur.” Her eyes came back to the table and she smiled.

“Rachel's told you about the plan?”

Xavier nodded. Rachel could tell that he still had his guard up. After all, Charlotte seemed too good to be true. The reason for meeting her was less to go over the plan, which wasn't especially intricate, and more to see if she was for real.

“So you just need some proof that Arthur is cheating on you?” Xavier said, and there was a tone of incredulity in his voice.

Charlotte's bedroom eyes were back on, and she blinked slowly, sexily. When she opened her mouth to speak it seemed like she was yawning, even though she wasn't. “I need something to hold over his head. Make him...willing to apply a less rigid interpretation of some of our prenuptials. It's all very boring. There's a horse involved.” She closed her mouth to indicate the subject was closed.

Xavier shrugged when he turned to Rachel. Rachel had been right, of course: Charlotte was a strange bird, but there was something about her that made her strangely likeable.

Maybe the fact that she hated Arthur so much.

“Arthur is very cautious about his affairs,” Charlotte said suddenly. “But I know he goes to a gentleman's club-”

Charlotte shook her head. “My lawyer thinks not. And I'm fucking him – my lawyer – so I feel he'd be inclined to be optimistic.”

Josh's mouth fell open. Xavier shook his head. “Okay. So this club...”

“It's just a strip club, you know, high end. All the girls have had a lot of work,” Charlotte made big arches over her own “work” on her chest, “that kind of thing. But everyone knows that a lot more goes on than lap dancing.”

“So why does Rachel need to be in on this plan?” Xavier said. Rachel could feel Josh stiffen next to her. Xavier's voice had an undercurrent of possessiveness about it.

She knew it was crazy, but Rachel felt herself getting turned on by Josh's reaction, and Xavier's. She dropped her hand to Josh's thigh, and started to slide it inward. She was pleased to find the shape of his cock, hard as stone, with her fingertips.

It was all so wrong, but it was undeniably hot.

“Well,” Charlotte said, taking a glass of vodka from her bartender and then sipping it, waiting for him to disappear. When he left, she took another long gulp, nearly emptying the glass. “The place is...very discreet,” Charlotte explained. “Those girls are making so much money, there's no way to crack them. You can't even get at them, really. It's probably run by a mafia or something...anyway, no way they're going to sell a client out.”

“What is this place?” Xavier said.

“Shangri-La,” Charlotte said. “You haven't heard of it. But if Rachel, who Arthur already has his sights set on, were to suggest to him that she would like...I don't know, some sort of additional activities, he would take her there, absolutely.”

“And then what's the plan? Film it? Why couldn't she just film herself with Arthur, if she's going to go through with it anyway?”

Charlotte nodded, as if she were participating in a civilized debate. “Because I want something very, very bad on Arthur. I want something that will damage his reputation and get him charged with a crime, not just infidelity. I want,” and her face suddenly turned very dark. “My horse.”

“Must be some horse,” Xavier said.

She flashed him an icy stare.

“I'm willing to pay, of course,” Charlotte said. “And I hear you all have a rather...unconventional relationship. And a bit of a problem of your own.”

Rachel moved her hand over Josh's cock. Slowly, as not to arouse suspicion of what she was doing among those at the table. She was enjoying that he was getting off on this as much as she was.

She had a very, very naughty idea. She shifted in her seat and moved her leg toward Xavier's. She let her shoe fall off, and she tucked her foot under his pant cuff.

Xavier's eyes went to hers briefly, and his mouth smiled just a little, but he played it cool.

Rachel was getting ideas, and they were taking her mind far away from the discussion at hand. What was she doing? She had her hand on her husband's cock, and she was moving her foot up her lover's leg, seeking out what she hoped she would find: the hard lump of his huge cock. She was talking about sleeping with her boss to blackmail him, and imagining having two men inside of her at once.

She knew it was all very, very wrong. At the same time...

“But how will Rachel get a phone inside, and film it? It seems to me like Arthur must be cautious, and since he's blackmailing Rachel it seems like he'd be...I don't know, on guard,” Josh said. Rachel felt a rush of pleasure when his cock twitched as he said her name.

Charlotte took a gulp of her vodka. “It's a problem,” she said, like it wasn't, and she didn't care. “But I feel like you can work something out.”

She reached into her purse, and took out an envelope. Everyone had seen enough movies to know that the lump inside of it was cash. Charlotte pretended to be looking for something in her purse, and then she swept the envelope back inside.

“That's half. If you agree, I can pay it to you now. There are other benefits, of course. You get your video back, and I imagine you could get some time off, Xavier. Better assignments, Rachel?” Charlotte pressed her lips together, and for a moment it looked as if she were going to have an orgasm right there, thinking about screwing over Arthur. “Well. I'm going to the ladies'. I'll just leave this here,” she said, pointedly, and patted her purse. “I'm usually ten minutes or so in the ladies'.”

When he was out of earshot, Xavier let out a low whistle.

Rachel had her foot on Xavier's inner thigh, and her hand on Josh's cock. She could scarcely believe her behavior. Not only that, the idea of screwing Arthur, in a strip club, for money, was making a pool of juices gush into her panties. It was such a rush.

Josh looked at Xavier. Rachel wondered if either of them knew that she was stroking the cock of the other.

Josh exhaled. “I like the idea of getting back the video,” he lied, and Rachel gave him a look. He was falling into his own role as easily as she was hers.

“I like the idea of fucking Arthur over,” Rachel said.

Xavier narrowed his eyes. “And you're okay fucking him? To get this done?”

Rachel shrugged. So he hadn't just “forgotten about” this part of the plan. She was, she was more than okay with it, but she had planned an answer for just his occasion. “Maybe I can get the footage without actually doing it. Tell him I want to see him bonk some other girl first, it turns me on.”

Xavier smiled and shook his head. “I never heard of a girl like that,” he said, amused.

“But we all dream of one,” Josh said softly, and his cock twitched under Rachel's hand. “He might buy it.”

Xavier looked across the bar, thinking. “We still have the problem of filming it. How're you gonna do that?”

They fell silent.

“Tiny camera?” Rachel said.

“Wait a minute,” Xavier said. “Wait a minute.” He sucked in his lower lip. A devious grin was beginning to grow on his face. “What'd she say that place was called?”

“Shangri-La,” Rachel said. “It's more exclusive than Aspen Club.”

Xavier grabbed Charlotte's purse and took out the envelope money as he talked. “I got it. I got the whole problem solved.”

Josh looked at him strangely. Rachel's foot and hand stopped their massaging.

“You gonna tell us?” Rachel said, finally. After all, he was committing them to this thing by taking the money.

“We got this thing. I just remembered.”

“Remembered what?” Rachel said, impatient for the answer.

Charlotte was returning from the ladies', and they fell silent. She picked up her purse, and without looking into it, she gave her hair a toss and fluttered her fingers. “Well then,” she said coyly. “I have to get to golf. We'll be in touch then?”

Xavier was looking incredibly smug. He nodded.

Charlotte bounced away.

When she was gone, Rachel leaned toward Xavier. “Xavier, what?”

“Oh man,” Xavier said, rubbing his palms together. “I love it when a plan comes together.”

“What?” Rachel and Josh both said, at the same time.

Xavier just nodded happily. He was beaming.

“Tyra,” he said finally.

MORE GOOD LUCK

“You all are straight crazy.”

Tyra was standing at the head of the dining table, her arms folded, her statuesque body towering over them. Her exquisite face was hardened into a disbelieving stare that also conveyed something like motherly disappointment.

She was wearing a lime-green shirt that hugged her supple curves, and jeans that made her ass murderously round and sexual. Rachel stared up at her in awe of her beauty. She was remembering it all now: that Tyra managed a modeling agency. That she and Rachel had a whole conversation about what a bad business it was, and how the girls could hardly make any money.

And how the plight of the models led them to work bottle service at strip clubs.

Sometimes escort services.

The whole conversation was coming back to Rachel now. Josh was still confused, because Xavier had not bothered to connect all the dots for him, and he had no idea what Tyra even did for a living.

Xavier had simply stood up at the dive bar, and told them they needed to follow him home because they needed to speak to Tyra.

Now, sitting at the table with Tyra standing at the head of it, Rachel was putting the whole thing together.

Tyra, however, seemed unconvinced.

Xavier took the envelope out of his coat pocket. He opened it and set the cash on the table.

“That's half. And we get the video back. And I think we could negotiate a little more. A sabbatical. Go to the Caribbean, like we planned?” Xavier said.

“How much is that?” Tyra whispered.

It was Josh who answered. “Fifty.”

Tyra's eyes grew wet with excitement looking at the money. Then she shook her head. “Nuh-uh,” she said quickly. “Nope. This here is a bad idea.”

“Baby,” Xavier said. “Think about it.”

Rachel had it all connected. She jumped in. “Nothing. Think about it. There's no reason for him to know anyone helped us...in fact, there's no reason he would suspect it. From his perspective, we could just be very clever. And anyway, this is all blackmail, right? He won't say anything to anyone about any of it, provided the video stays quiet. Just like we didn't run to the cops, when he had the upper hand.”

Rachel could see that Tyra was thinking about it.

“All you need to do, baby, is get one girl to help us out. Get me and Josh into the club. That's what they do, right? Bring in new clients?”

Tyra tapped her fingers on her arm, shaking her head. “And then what?”

Tyra sighed.

There was a silence.

“You aren't going to need anyone else,” Tyra said finally. “Not for the referral, at least.”

Xavier sat back in chair, his eyes going wide with disbelief. “No shit,” he said. “You're not working there are you?”

Tyra shot a look at him. “Don't be a fool,” she snapped. Then more softly, and it was clear she was making an admission. “But I sometimes make...referrals.”

Rachel's eyes nearly popped out of her head.

Josh looked at Rachel. “What is going on?” he mouthed. He was still hopelessly lost.

Xavier laughed, shaking his head.

“So what?” he said, finally. Rachel was staring at Tyra, and Tyra was looking at her fingers, a little sheepish with her admission. Josh had an expression of utter confusion on his face. “Are we gonna do this thing, or what?” Xavier asked them.

Josh looked to Rachel for help.

She shrugged.

Tyra was staring at the money. She gave a hopeless shrug.

“Let's plan then,” Xavier said.

THE SETUP

Rachel felt taller than she had ever felt before. Some of that had to do with the five-inch heels she was wearing: a rich, black open-toed shoe with a spiked heel and an ankle strap that looked faintly like bondage. But in part she felt tall because she was surging with energy. A new kind of sexual energy, unlike any she'd ever felt before. She was on a high: a power-high, a sexual high, an adrenaline high. On the inside she felt like her veins were filled with electricity instead of blood.

But outwardly, she was calm. She was enjoying the act, slinking down the hallway to Arthur's enormous office in a short white skirt and black silk blouse. After she passed his secretary, Rachel unbuttoned one additional catch in her shirt, so that as the blouse moved over her skin with her walk, the occasional snippet of black lace would peek out, and the swell of her breasts was visible between the folds of fabric.

She could see that Arthur was surprised when she entered his office. Not so much that she was there, but by the way she was carrying herself. It gave Rachel another delicious jolt of adrenaline, arousal, or whatever it was that was coursing through her. She closed the door and leaned on it. She crossed her ankles and placed her hands on her hips.

"I've been giving it some thought," she purred, before Arthur could recover from her dramatic entrance and say anything, "and I have a request for you."

Rachel had discussed this tactic last night with Josh, and at first she had been a little unsure of herself. She and Josh had gotten themselves worked up into quite a fever, talking about their plans, and Rachel had been atop Josh in their bed, her hand behind her on his balls, riding him to make herself come as she told him how much she was getting off on this adventure. But how would she convince Arthur to go to a strip club? His strip club?

Josh hadn't had anything to say at the moment, but after he came he started laughing.

"Rachel," he said. "Trust me. If you walk into Arthur's office and say, 'oh, that thing we have planned, I'd like to do it after watching you with another chick, maybe get in on some girl-on-girl action, what do you think? I...have a feeling you won't have to do much 'convincing.'"

And of course Rachel realized that was true now. Arthur Frost was clearly a man who used his brain only to think of workarounds for his cock. She liked the way his eyes were unable to leave the crevice between her breasts, or the lines of her legs, dangling from her short skirt.

Bugger it, she thought. She crossed the room as she spoke, swaying her hips slightly to add an extra layer of sex on her every move. "I was thinking. There's no reason we shouldn't have a bit of fun with this, is there?" She moved around the desk, and sat on it, pushing Arthur's chair back with her foot. It was almost too easy, she thought.

She had always striven not to be this sort of woman, using her sex appeal for personal gain.

But it was fun.

It was sexy and addictive.

She parted her legs, and she knew Arthur could see into the folds of her skirt, right past her smooth inner thighs, to her freshly-shaved snatch. She had no underwear on. She knew her pussy was glistening with excitement, and that Arthur could smell it. And he reacted just as she had expected, and just as she had hoped: he stared right at it.

Entranced.

"I have a bit of a fetish, you see," Rachel cooed. She liked the sound of her voice. She liked how the tables were turned now, and she was taking control. "And I thought, maybe you help me out with it."

Arthur was trying hard to compose his face into its normal, domineering sneer. But Rachel knew she was getting to him, and it felt good. God, it felt good. She moved her toe to the middle of his chair, close to the seam of his pants, where she knew his cock was throbbing beneath the fabric. She looked down at him, and smiled. "Would you like to know what I have a thing for?" she said.

She enjoyed the fact that he looked both frightened and as though he were having quite a struggle, trying to get himself back in control.

"Sure," he said, and he tried to sound cavalier.

Poor Arthur, she almost thought. He really had no hand here, and he might even be wondering what he'd gotten himself into. There was no way, no way at all, that he could possibly imagine the grand plan for revenge that awaited him. All the people who were anxious to screw him over.

"I like to watch," Rachel said. "I like to watch other people fucking. What I'd really like to watch, what would really get me going, is if you could fuck a girl while I watch.” She rubbed her toe over his cock, and she was pleased to feel that it was, indeed, hard as steel. She could practically feel it pulsing through the bottom of her shoe. “Who knows what that could lead to?”

She watched his face. Oh yes, he was already there, imagining Rachel and some other woman, maybe a favorite he had already imagined hundreds of times. She could see his head spinning, his mind teeming with ideas.

“I think,” Rachel said, and she realized she was somewhat channeling Charlotte, “that if I’m going to cheat on my husband like this, it might as well be something really spectacular, don’t you agree?”

She pressed down gently with the toe of her foot.

“Do you think you could do something like that for me, Arthur? And then we can clear up this whole sordid business, once and for all.”

Arthur’s mouth was hanging open, but he managed to pull himself together enough to say, “I think we could arrange something.” Then he placed his hand on Rachel’s ankle, and began to move up her leg, his greedy eyes on her snatch.

Rachel watched him, and let his fingers travel further and further up her leg, until he was just a breath away from the hem of her skirt, and the juices of her pussy were within inches of his fingers. Then she slid off his desk, slapping at his hand playfully.

“Eh-eh,” she said. “One time only.”

She went to the door, moving her hips with deliberately exaggerated movements, going slowly so he could enjoy the view of her ass. Then she turned as she opened the door. “Let’s make it count, shall we? Do you think you can work that out for me?”

Arthur cleared his throat, and gave her a smile that was probably the most lascivious thing she had ever seen. “I’ll be in touch with you, Rachel,” he said, in his most professional tone.

She left, closing the door behind her.

READY

“Do you think someone will recognize me? Would you recognize me?”

Josh let his eyes wander up and down the figure of the woman who was standing in front of him.

The truth was, he'd recognize his wife anywhere, but this woman did not really seem to be his wife. This was not the Rachel Elliot he had married. The Rachel Elliot of nose-scrunching cuteness. The Rachel of the heart-shaped mouth and infectious giggle.

The woman in front of him was wearing a dark wig, for one thing. It was a shoulder-length raven black wig, human hair, loaned by Tyra. Combined with the chocolate of Rachel's eyes, it gave her an exotic appearance, changing even her features so that she looked like Persian princess. Her lips were painted a dark red, and she was wearing a scandalous dress. It was like nothing she had ever worn before, and that was perhaps the thing that transformed her the most: this dress was only just a cut above trashy. It was a tight fitting, off-the shoulder Lycra number. One side of the dress had a huge swath of the dress cut out of it, so her taut abdomen was exposed along her ribs and down to where her hip flared.

She was wearing knee-high black boots. There were a full seven inches between her knee and the hem of her skirt, and her legs looked like a colt's.

It wasn't the unusual get-up, though, that made Rachel look different. It was the way she was holding herself, her chin slightly upturned, her cuteness vanquished. This was Rachel the blackmailing slut, and she felt very much at home in this skin.

Rachel leaned toward the mirror and dabbed some more black mascara on her eyelashes. Ordinarily, she went with dark brown, because of her fair hair. Her eyes were hypnotic, coated as they were in the smokey brown-black eyeshadow she had applied.

“You're all set?” she asked Josh. She pulled a trench coat over her outfit and appraised herself in the mirror. “Ha,” she said. “That bit really makes me look like a prozzie.” She turned to admire her own ass in the mirror. Her voice was amused, and she seemed pleased with her appearance, her similarity to a “prozzie.”

Josh swallowed hard. On the one hand, he fucking loved this version of Rachel. But looking at her admiring herself in the mirror, showing not the slightest trace of concern or distaste, or even thought about what she was about to do, he felt a need for reassurance.

“Rachel,” he said.

She turned to him.

“You're sure about this. This is...” his voice trailed off. “I mean, this is it, right?”

Rachel came over to him, and climbed onto his lap. “I promise,” she said. “This is the grand finale.”

Josh leaned in to kiss her, not entirely convinced by her words. She pulled back, pressing her fingers to his lips. “Don't mess up my look,” she said, and she hopped away.

The plan involved Rachel driving Josh to meet with Xavier, and then on to an arranged meeting place with Arthur. Josh and Xavier would go to Shangri-La together, and get into the locked area with back rooms as guests of a girl named Alice, one of Tyra's models.

From there, they would have to play it by ear to get the video they wanted. And Rachel had promised a spectacular performance, and then an end to what had turned out to be, for Josh at least, a beautiful and terrifying experiment.

Rachel was back, and she leaned into the room. “Ready?” she said, jiggling her keys.

“As I'll ever be,” Josh said.

She waited for him to get to the door, and they kissed. “Everything will be fine,” she promised. It was a lovely promise; it was exactly what Josh wanted to hear.

Still, there was something terrifying in her tone of voice. No restraint, no hesitation. Just excitement.

What had he created?

SHANGRI-LA

Rachel had half-expected Shangri-La to have some sort of mystical theme. She had certainly expected it to be classier, after all the talk from Tyra and Charlotte about how it catered to high-end clientele and employed only the crème de la crème of strippers and escorts. Shangri-La was neither mystical nor particularly classy.

The women were beautiful, and that was evident right away. The girls dancing on the stage were lean, big-breasted beauties who barely looked legal to work there. They had pretty faces to go with their spectacular, and often plastic bodies. They were all young, eager, and well-manicured girls with full lips and uncreased faces.

But the place itself was only a small step above any strip club in town: the stage looked like stainless steel, which elevated its appearance, but closer inspection revealed a cheap metal that was scuffed and ill-treated. Multi-colored lights flashed continually, the girls were coated in glitter, the bar was black lacquer with rounded edges of the same scuffed metal on the stage.

Rachel could barely see any of this because she had chosen, in addition to the rest of her disguise, to wear sunglasses. Still, the moment she removed her coat, she felt the eyes of the room gravitate toward her body. She could almost feel them moving over her curves, taking in the size of her tits, delighting in her bare midriff, imagining her without anything on but her sexy black boots.

And she liked it.

Arthur leaned over to her, sliding his hands around her midriff for the fiftieth time that evening. Rachel had agreed to meet him at bar a few blocks from here, because a member was needed in order to get into Shangri-La, which was totally unmarked from the outside and tucked away in the basement of an unsuspecting building. “I got you a drink,” he shouted over the music. “Sit here while I arrange the rest of it.” Even over the music, Rachel could hear the seedy tone in his voice as he said, “the rest of it.”

Arthur stood back from her to look at her face. He leaned in again. “You like it?”

Rachel's eyes were on a magnificently busty girl with long red hair, who was spinning effortlessly around a pole in the center of the stage. The two huge balloons of her bare breasts barely moved as she turned upside-down or bounced against the pole. Only a bright red thong covered her between her legs. She crawled on the floor and gyrated her very round ass.

Rachel had only been a strip club once, during journalism school, when she had interviewed a few workers as part of a project for a class. She had gone at a different time, though; not while the club was in full swing like now. In some ways, she felt uncomfortable. But the prevalence of bare skin, the glittering bodies, the women whose every move was distilled sexuality, was mostly turning her on. She looked at herself in the mirror of the bar. She was not herself; she was someone else. She could do anything here, anything at all, and it was like someone else was doing it.

She removed her sunglasses. She was pleased with her reflection, and satisfied that no one would take her for Rachel Elliot. She was far too cheaply sexualized to be mistaken for the sweet, “adorable” KRTV news reporter.

Arthur had disappeared, without waiting for an answer to her question, and a magnificent blonde wearing a dress of criss-crossing leather straps and nothing more came to stand in front of her. “What can I get you, darlin’?” she said.

Rachel gave her black hair a toss, and ordered a martini, much the way Charlotte would have. Playfully, with confidence. The old Rachel might have stammered and ordered the first thing that came to mind.

“Any particular vodka?” the woman half-yelled.

Rachel was a little surprised to hear herself with a fake, Slavic-sounding accent, as she leaned across the bar flirtatiously. “All vodka is same,” she said. She was fully aware of the figure she was making, and the eyes on her to either side: her legs were crossed, and the dress was riding high on her thigh, so that her ass was almost exposed at the seat of the stool. She was swirling her finger in slow loops, meant to make men think of exactly what they were thinking of as they watched her. She let her long, black eyelashes flutter provocatively.

“No shit,” the bartender said, evidently finding Rachel's fake accent proof enough of her authority on the subject.

“But give me the most expensive one anyway,” Rachel said.
“Gentleman is paying.”

The effect of this sentence was incredible. The bartender winked at her with a sort of camaraderie, Rachel supposed that all the girls in this place might have. Any way to stick it to the guys who are sticking it to you, she guessed.

Arthur returned. His excitement was evident. "Okay, I have a room," he said. "With Crystal." He pointed at the busty redhead. "She has a set to finish and then she'll be available."

Rachel looked over at the Amazonian redhead spinning on the dance floor, and felt a strange rush of pleasure at the idea of watching Arthur with her. Perhaps even touching her herself...

The bartender came back with a martini and another complicit smile for Rachel. Her voice still cheerful, but noticeably empty, she smiled at Arthur. "For you?"

Arthur was staring at the martini, and for a second Rachel was afraid that this implicit reminder of Charlotte might give away the whole game. But Arthur seemed to lose interest in it, and he ordered a whiskey.

They watched Crystal on stage, and Rachel let her hand wander to Arthur's crotch, where she found his cock, already stiff as a board, twitching beneath his pants.

She let her eyes wander through the crowd. The lights made it difficult to see who was out there, but this was a good thing: they didn't want to tip Arthur off.

She had a strange mix of arousal and fear inside of her again. The danger of what she was about to do, the raw seediness of it, was turning her on. But she wanted to make sure that the plan was backed up. What if Josh and Xavier had been unable to get into the club? Would she still go through with it?

She couldn't see them anywhere. She ordered another martini. Would she still go ahead with it if she didn't know for sure they were there?

Crystal finished her set, and a pair of girls slinked onto the stage, handcuffed to each other, to the hoots and shouts of the audience. Rachel watched the two girls' hands moving over their bodies. This sort of thing had never turned her on before, but she was finding all sorts of things out about herself she had never known.

Arthur pushed her wig hair from her back and stroked her neck. "Almost time," he purred. His voice had a trace of arrogance in it, but Rachel found it stimulating. She swept her eyes over the audience again, and her stomach felt like it was dropping through the floor.

Then she saw them. She hadn't recognized them because they were dressed up in ridiculous suits. Josh was wearing a dark hat and had pulled it the brim over his eyes.

They cut a very shady twosome.

Rachel smiled, and turned to Arthur as she did. He took her smile as an invitation, and slid his hand over her breast, stroking her nipple with his thumb. "Let's go," he said.

Rachel placed a hand on his back and started to follow him. This next part had logistics she was unsure of, but she was determined to play things smooth. She could feel the excitement of money, of filthy sex, of illicit, dirty things, and it was all turning her on.

"Hey, babushka doll!" the bartender called out. Rachel looked back, and saw that the bartender was looking right at her. She went back to the bar. The bartender beckoned her to come around the bar, as though there were something she wanted to show her. As they hunched over a small nook with a few scattered papers on it, and a coffee mug of what was obviously vodka, the bartender placed her hand in her hair and leaned close to her ear. The gesture sent shivers through Rachel. "A message, from your friend. She'll leave a note for you in the bathroom in the back hall, under the paper towel holder."

Rachel looked at her quizzically when she released her head, but the bartender picked up her coffee mug and got back to work without another glance.

"What was that all about?" Arthur said.

"We had a bet going about vodka," Rachel said, surprised at how easily the lie came out of her mouth.

A bouncer stared them down as they slipped through a curtain and then waited in a tiny foyer for someone to buzz open a door. Rachel felt a surge of subdued panic as they passed through the door. She unconsciously crossed her fingers, hoping that all the remaining piece of the plan would fit into place the way they were supposed to.

The hallway after the door was narrow and straight, with doors on either side. Rachel could feel her heart beating faster, and her fear and excitement building at the same time. The hallway was lit by a red light, and the doors had red lights at the top of them, some on and some off, presumably to indicate if they were vacant or not. A door opened at one point for a waifish girl wearing nothing but high heels to slip out. She giggled and trotted down the hallway.

Arthur stopped at a door at the end of the hallway with a number six on it. "This is us," he said, his face smirking.

Rachel felt an interesting inner conflict: on the one hand, she couldn't really stand Arthur. On the other, she was experiencing an incredible high as she separated her normally emotional and rational self from her sexual self, and let that sexual Rachel run wild. She tipped her head coquettishly and smiled. Then she slinked into the room.

The room had a small stage in it, with a pole, raised up at the center of a wraparound booth that took up most of one corner of the room. Rachel smiled, and let one side of her brain engage in mindless chit-chat, while her eyes scanned the room for a place to stash Josh. "I'm not doing any dancing," she said with a smile, rubbing her hand up and down the pole suggestively. She tossed her purse in a corner of the room, and took note that Arthur made a note of this as well. He might have been being led by his cock, but he wasn't about to take any chances with a phone being out.

Rachel hopped onto the stage and crossed her legs. She set her martini next to her. This gave her a view of the room for a few seconds, before Arthur blocked it, coming in for a cheap feel. Rachel played along, smiling for him and letting him trace a finger from her lips, down her neck, over the material of her dress to her breasts. "I normally prefer blondes," Arthur said. "But this is very sexy. Should we amuse ourselves while we wait for Crystal?"

Rachel let him move in and kiss her, and she had to admit that he wasn't half-bad as he moved his mouth over hers. But she let her eyes flutter open so that she could scan the room: a leather settee-type thing in the corner, its intended use obvious. A large vase of scraggly, decorative flowers on the floor – strange, as though anyone needed decor in this room.

Josh could hide under the settee, she was sure. She closed her eyes, just as Arthur began to push himself against her with more fervor.

She pulled back, and gave him a smile. "I need to go pee," she said, treating him to a light giggle.

Arthur did not try to hide his annoyance much. "Yeah. Okay...bathroom at the end of the hall."

Rachel moved sexily and slowly out of the room, and then she picked up the pace in the hallway. There were two bathrooms at the end of the hall, and Rachel felt a small flutter of panic at the thought of having to look through them both. They were, curiously, marked for women and men.

Rachel frowned, but decided “Ladies” was her best choice for “the bathroom,” where her secret message would hopefully be.

The bathroom was also bathed in red light, and there were three stalls and a messy sink. A dispenser for condoms and what appeared to be sex toys was spilling its wares onto the floor. She spun around and looked at the sink. A metal paper towel holder was nearly falling off the counter, and Rachel picked it up gingerly, afraid that something might have gotten lost. But sure enough, there was a scrap of paper beneath it. She snatched it and went into a stall. The lock didn't work, so she sat on the toilet with one hand braced against the door and read the note.

Write room number here and leave under basket. 10 mins.

Rachel looked around.

Fuck, she didn't have her purse or anything to write with.

She thought quickly. She drew her finger over her blood-red lipstick and used it to write a faint six on the paper. She set it under the basket, and then had a thought that made her spin around and fish it out. She wiped off some of her eyeshadow to underline the six so that it wouldn't be confused with nine.

She hoped it would be enough.

She looked at herself in the mirror. She knew she should feel worse about what she was about to do, but the main feeling that quivered inside of her was excitement. Josh, hiding under the settee, watching it all, watching as she fucked her boss for money and for blackmail.

She walked back to the room and opened the door gingerly after knocking on it.

Crystal had come into the room while she was gone, and she was sitting on Arthur's lap, her hands over his shoulders, laughing sexily at everything he said. She had her same incredibly high black shoes on, the long spikes of her heels bouncing playfully in the air. She had donned a very tiny mesh skirt over her red panties, and a mesh “bra” that covered nothing, but somehow made her caramel nipples impossible to stop looking at through the material.

“Here she is,” Crystal said, as Rachel came through the door. “Let the fun begin, then. So what were you two looking for, hmm?” She tapped her finger, with a long red fingernail, on Arthur's open mouth. He took it in his mouth and sucked on it, and Crystal smiled appreciatively.

Rachel gave a glance at the door. For extra assurance, she wanted to make sure that she caught as much of Arthur's misbehavior on video as possible. She needed to buy a little time before the real fireworks began.

“I was...hoping you could do a dance,” Rachel said, and she felt like she sounded a little lame. Things were already heated up well beyond that, and Crystal had just come from dancing.

The disappointment was evident on Arthur's face.

“It turns me on,” Rachel purred, amping up her sexiness factor. To her delight, it seemed to work on Arthur. Crystal shrugged and crossed the room to a stereo, where she shuffled through some CDs. “I like something slow,” she said, without turning around.

Rachel took Crystal's place on Arthur's lap. She could feel his cock on her ass, hard and probing. She gave him a wriggle to keep him happy, and he slid his hands over her body and squeezed her chest.

Crystal looked at her when she turned around. A slow-moving R&B track began. “You a dancer?” she asked Rachel.

Rachel shook her head.

Crystal seemed to not care at all about the answer, as if she had never asked the question. She hopped onto the bar in one neat motion, and backed up against the pole. She dove right into lewd dancing, sliding up and down the pole, spreading her legs wide at the bottom so that Arthur, and Rachel, had an unobstructed view of the very tiny patch of material that covered her obviously shaved snatch, nestled between her sculpted legs.

She did this for a while, and on the fifth lunge down, she slid her right fingers over her thigh and pulled at the material of her “underwear,” so that she exposed her gash to the two of them. Rachel stared. She had never really looked at another woman's pussy like this. She could see that Crystal was already getting wet with excitement, and she caught a whiff of her smell just before she snapped the panties closed again.

She spun around a little on the pole, and then she slid down to the floor, opening her legs wider and wider until she was doing the splits right in front of them, her back leaning up against the pole. She swung her pink tongue out over her lips, and then dropped her hands to play with her own tits, kneading them in her hands. Rachel stared.

Crystal slipped the mess bra off with a practiced movement, and her huge breasts sprung loose. She was still swaying slightly with the music, but now she was clearly moving beyond dancing.

Arthur was running his hands up and down Rachel's body as he stared over her shoulder. His breath was hot on her neck and kept getting faster. Under her ass, she could feel his cock twitching. Crystal squeezed her nipples and leaned forward, then swung her legs up so she could grab her heels. In a feat of incredible skill and strength, she swept herself upward in a roll, with complete ease, so that she rose back up and onto her knees without ever letting go of her heels. Her breasts swung close to Rachel's face, so close she could feel a light breeze and smell Crystal's skin as she did.

Rachel had almost forgotten to keep her eye on the door. She glanced quickly at it, and wondered if ten minutes were close to going by, or not at all. Crystal was still holding onto her heels, and swooping toward them, swinging her breasts in their face.

Arthur's hands were becoming more insistent. "So?" he breathed in her ear. "What now, Rachel?"

"I want to watch," Rachel breathed. It surprised her as the words left her mouth, because she realized that they sounded convincing. Because it was true. She really wanted to watch whatever Crystal was going to do. Something told her it was going to be extraordinary. Something beyond anything Rachel herself had done, even as experimental as she had become lately.

In the corner of her eye, she saw the handle of the door turning. Her heart beat a few times and the room seemed to move in slow motion: thunk, thunk. Then she had an idea.

"I want her to suck your cock," she said. She slid off of Arthur's lap and propped herself up on the booth, leaning her elbows on the stage. "Can you do that? I want to watch her suck your cock."

Crystal, who was obviously a professional, gave a smile, and used one long finger to indicate to Arthur that he should rise up onto his knees on the booth. Rachel fell backward into the curve of the booth, both to get a better view, and to have her eye on the door.

Arthur unbuckled himself and his cock sprang loose. He looked over at Rachel, who made sure to have her eyes appreciatively on his cock. Following Crystal's lead, she ran her tongue over her lip seductively. She was, in fact, looking past Arthur's cock to the door, which she could see was opening bit by bit.

She looked at Crystal. Crystal slid down in a snake-like move, running her hands over her thighs and then swooping across the floor and arching up on her belly to where Arthur's cock was waiting for her mouth.

She started in by licking his balls, and he groaned and closed his eyes. Rachel watched as Crystal pulled Arthur's hairy sack entirely into her mouth. Her cheeks puffed out, and her jaw moved up and down as she massaged him inside her mouth. His hard cock twitched wildly over her upturned face.

Then she stretched out and arched up more, and caught her legs again by her heels. As though the move had been orchestrated many times, Arthur guided his cock to her mouth, and placed his other hand on the back of her head.

It was perfect timing for the door. Beyond the lewd scene in front of her, Rachel saw the door open and close, and a figure crawl along the floor toward the settee. When he was safely stowed, Rachel let her eyes go back to the very lewd scene in front of her.

So that was it. They were set. Now she just needed to make this a great performance, one that would make Arthur give everybody everything they wanted.

Arthur's cock was fat and stretched Crystal's small mouth open wide. He was holding her head and moving his hips back and forth to fuck her in the mouth. With every thrust his cock became more and more wet with an increasingly opaque spit, and the sounds coming from Crystal's mouth became stickier and nastier. Arthur was winding her hair up in his hands more tightly, and fucking her face harder, as his own orgasm wound up inside of him. All along Crystal held the heels of her shoes above her back, letting herself be used like a fuck toy with an incredible professionalism. Rachel's eyes flitted to the mirror behind her. The view of Crystal's ass and her twisted legs was even more submissive-looking from there: her head bobbed over Arthur's cock, and his face screwed up as he pounded himself into her.

Rachel felt herself aching with excitement in spite of herself. The scene was amping her up, and now she wanted to feel someone pounding her.

Arthur slowed his assault on Crystal until he paused with his cock in her mouth, and sucked in a deep breath. Rachel could see he didn't want to come just yet.

She took advantage of the opportunity. She needed to make this good. She wanted to make this good. She crawled up onto the stage and twisted herself around so that she was under Arthur's cock. She could see Crystal's mouth wrapped around his dick, the underside of it with its thick vein. Rachel lapped at his balls, swirling her tongue playfully around on his ball sack. She had her hand on his thigh to steady herself and felt him shudder. Crystal's mouth began to move, and Rachel watched her start to suck on his cock again. Rachel slid her teeth lightly over themselves, with a scrap of Arthur's skin between them.

Arthur pulled his cock from Crystal's mouth and away from Rachel with a yell. He panted as the two of them laughed and Crystal bent down to kiss Rachel on the mouth. "Now what?" Rachel said playfully. She rose up onto her knees and pulled at her tight skirt from the bottom hem. The material rolled up over her body, exposing her inch by inch. When she tossed the dress free, on the floor, she took in her image in the many mirrors.

Her ass looked as great as Crystal's in the black thong she had worn. She appraised the tight swells of asscheeks, with the wedge of black cutting through them. Her breasts were smaller than the magnificent stripper next to her, but they were high and firm, and the black bra that suspended them in lace gave them a perfect shape. With her black wig she looked like another woman, and inside she felt that way, too.

She spun around and turned her ass toward Arthur. She flipped her hair over her shoulder and winked at him. "Well. That's what you've been after, isn't it?" She slid her hand down her back and under the lace of her panties, running her fingers up and down the thong and pulling it up at the same time so that he could see her asshole and her clit. She gave him a few long looks, and then she reached up with her hand and placed her fingers in Crystal's mouth. Crystal went along with it, and sucked on them. Rachel slid them back to her own ass, and slid her index finger inside of her ass.

The sensation sent a pang of remembered ecstasy through her, and she felt the familiar craving for Xavier's thick cock inside of her, stretching her open and filling her up.

Later.

She slid her finger in and out of her ass, enjoying the expression on Arthur's face. He, too, could not believe that his was the same Rachel Elliot his beloved station put on the five o'clock news. And she loved it. She loved that she was being so twisted. She extended her fingers and plunged her middle finger into her cunt. She could see herself in one of the mirrors and she looked spectacular: spectacularly slutty, like a porn star. She dropped her lower back to arch herself up more, give the scene even better aesthetic quality. Arthur sucked in his breath.

He reached out impatiently for her hand, and pulled her fingers from inside her. He pulled her panties down to her knees.

"Fuck me in the ass," Rachel found herself saying. "Get your cock nice and wet first, and then fuck me in the ass." Then she had a naughty idea. "And I want you," she said to Crystal, "to make me come."

She felt Arthur's cock, unhesitating, slide inside of her. She was already wildly wet, so his thick cock slid in easily. He was thick but not as satisfying as Xavier's long cock. Still, Rachel felt some quenching of her desire, if only for a moment, as she ground against him.

Then she reached behind him and grasped his cock with her hand as he pulled out to thrust in again. She pulled backward and guided the tip of him to her ass. He looked up, meeting her gaze in the mirror. She gave him a wink.

He shook his head, as if to say he was surprised that she was such a dirty girl, but he didn't wait to give her a chance to back out: she felt the fat end of his cock against her ass.

Rachel tossed her hair again, and looked toward the settee. She could see figure there, but he was well-hidden if you weren't looking for him. She hoped the coverage was good, especially of this scene. A shiver went through her as she imagined watching herself, watching this performance.

And then Arthur pushed forward, and she yelped as his cock barreled inside of her ass. There was a moment of pain, and she opened her mouth wide, before she got control of herself and relaxed.

Crystal seemed impressed. She was playing with her tits for Arthur's titillation, waiting for his cock to go in Rachel's ass so she could begin her own role. "She's done this before," she commented, with a smile, and then slid down on the stage and rolled over. Rachel saw that she had her hand on her own clit and was sliding her finger up and down in the gushing juices of her pussy.

Then she felt Crystal's tongue on her own clit. She sucked in her breath and closed her eyes. Crystal's fingers pried open her lips, and then Rachel jerked as she lapped at her clit in the center. "Oh god," she said.

Arthur began to fuck her earnest now, and Crystal played with Rachel's clit, getting her closer to coming with every lap. Then her tongue disappeared, and Rachel could tell by the shudder through Arthur and the pause in his thrusts that Crystal was sliding her wet tongue all over his sack again. Then she came back to Rachel, and her two poofy lips closed around Rachel's entire clit, soaking her in warmth. She squeezed Rachel's clit between her lips until Rachel felt her orgasm explode from deep inside of her.

Her ass clenched and unclenched around Arthur's cock, sending waves of pain and relief through her with the waves of her orgasm. She screamed. Arthur grabbed her hips, and Crystal unrelentingly continued to suck on her clit, until it was almost too much to bear. Rachel could feel her whole body spasming and wildly out of control as she was racked by the most intense orgasm she had ever felt.

Then she felt Arthur pumping her violently, but he pulled his cock from inside her suddenly. Rachel dropped her chest to the stage, panting, and watched as Arthur pulled Crystal by her hair to turn her around and get her mouth over his dirty cock, just in time to come in her throat.

He yelled as he did, and Rachel remained as she was, her ass in the air and gaping for the camera, as Crystal slurped up the last of Arthur's cum. The scene was obscene. Wildly obscene.

Arthur collapsed onto the booth.

Crystal wiped her mouth and spun around, picking up her bra in one motion. She slid it on and adjusted her soaked panties and skirt. "Gotta run," she said, as though she had come for lunch. "Toodles, Arthur," she said. And then, with the extreme discretion that made Shangri-La the place it was, she smiled at Rachel and said nothing more, trouncing out of the room.

Rachel was still panting against the stage, but now she rose up on her knees and slid her panties up her legs. The fabric rubbed against her sore ass. She spun around and planted herself on the side of the booth, blocking Arthur's view of the door. She hoped it would give Josh enough time to creep out, and that he would take the hint and do so. She grabbed her dress and slid it over her head, taking her time, praying that Arthur was as dazed as he looked and wouldn't catch sight of the door opening and closing.

She gave a shake of her head. "Well," she said. "I can assume we're paid up now. I want the video back tomorrow. Every copy."

She tipped her head to watch Arthur's face. What would he do, she wondered? Did he really think that she would have been so stupid as to not make sure that he gave her at least one copy before she pulled this stunt?

Maybe he did. He seemed to think she was an idiot.

She watched a mean, smug grin turn up on his lips. "Certainly, Rachel. Certainly. Come to my office tomorrow."

Rachel smiled. "Oh, I will."

She could see that Arthur would spend the rest of the night feeling smug, enjoying the fact that he had pulled one over on her. She wondered what he planned to say to her tomorrow, and she relished the fact that he would never get to say it.

She opened the door and peeked into the hallway.

A girl with long brown hair passed her and caught her eye. She held up her hand with four fingers raised.

Rachel smiled and walked to Room 4. She knocked on the door and waited.

FINALE

Rachel gave Josh a sultry grin as he opened the door.

He was high as a kite, and his cock was pounding with excitement. His heart was fluttering unsteadily. He pulled Rachel into the room, grabbed her face, and kissed her passionately. He knew she could feel his cock against her thigh, and he was thrilled when she moved her hand down to rub him along his inner thigh with a complicit grin.

“Did you get it? Please tell me you got it all.” Rachel's voice was excited.

“Everything,” Josh said. “It was...incredible. You're incredible.”

She tipped her head slightly to look at Xavier, who was sitting on the rounded lounge with his arms over the back of the seat. He had an expression of mild disbelief on his face, and he was shaking his head a little. For the most part he looked amused.

Rachel still had her hand on Josh's cock, rubbing it slightly. After witnessing what he had just seen, he was near exploding. When Rachel purred next to his ear, with her hand still on his cock “And what did you do to amuse yourself in the meantime?” Josh almost lost it. He had to bend slightly at the waist to get away from the pain and the ecstasy, and move his cock away from Rachel's touch.

“Oh, I found something to do,” Xavier said, amusement in his voice.

Josh had left Xavier with “Alice,” Tyra's model and their ticket into Shangri-La. When Josh had returned from filming his wife with Arthur, Alice had been shimmying back into her clothes and she and Xavier had exchanged a not-very-subtle wink.

Josh was relieved that Rachel's mouth formed a wry, knowing smile, and she didn't seem to be overcome by any kind of jealousy because of this.

“So,” Rachel said, her eyes back on Josh. She placed her arms on his shoulders. “Now what?”

She was close to Josh, and she lifted her leg to rub her knee against his hard cock. The suggestion was clear. Josh could feel the blood pounding in his cock, pounding in his ears. He was almost paralyzed by his arousal.

Rachel walked over to settee in this room (which was almost identical to the other room, a helpful piece of information that the lovely Alice had shared with them). Rachel lounged on the settee with her legs crossed, looking at the two of them.

Josh knew what he wanted, and he could see from Xavier's face that the man was game for what seemed to be happening here. But he had no idea how to get the ball rolling.

"I feel like we should celebrate," Rachel said, helping them out.

Josh decided to take the plunge. He wasn't sure what would happen next, but his cock was robbing him of the will to think. He walked over to his wife, and as he did, he unzipped his pants. Rachel smiled at him, like she was proud of him for taking the initiative. She reached out and grabbed his cock with her hand. Her thumb swept over the head and smeared the dripping precum that had been soaking into his boxers and pants for the past half hour over the head of his shaft. Her fingers teased him, swirling and tickling as she pulled him nearer and nearer to her mouth.

Then, with that same new, devious smile, she looked up at him for a moment. He could see that she knew exactly what she was doing, driving him wild, letting him marinate in his lust with her mouth so close to his cock and his head filled with all the images he had just filmed. Then, at last, just when he thought he would have to grab her himself, she opened her mouth and took him inside of her.

Josh groaned with the pleasure of it. He wanted to last long, savor the moment, but he felt like he was going to explode any second.

He closed his eyes, and tried to distract himself from the hot sweetness of Rachel's mouth. Her dirty, slut mouth that she had used -

His thoughts were interrupted by a pop, and the vanishing of Rachel's hotness around his cock. He opened his eyes and saw that Xavier had come over and taken up a place to his right, and that Rachel's hand was already clamped around Xavier's enormous cock. Josh couldn't help but stare at it: he had never seen it this close before. Only a few feet away from his eyes, it was more enormous than he had thought. Josh stared at the veins that ran along its tremendous length, at the meatiness of it. Rachel could barely get her hand around it. Josh shuddered, remembering that his wife had taken this fat member into every one of her holes. Repeatedly.

Rachel opened her mouth, and gave Xavier a smile, before she took his cock inside of her. She had to really stretch her jaw, and the fat flesh filled her completely, so much so that the strain on her lips pulled at all of her skin and made her eyes start to water.

Another pop, another smile for Xavier, and Rachel turned back to Josh.

She did this a few times: sucking each man's cock a few slides, her other hand on the other man's shaft, stroking. Alternating from cock to cock, taking them deeper and deeper into her throat with each turn. She looked up at whoever she was sucking on, and met his eyes. Josh could feel an intense, erotic pain swelling at the base of his cock as he watched his wife suck and suck, two dicks in alternation.

Then she pulled back from Josh's cock, and sat back, her hands making leisurely tugs at each of them. Her eyes moved from cock to cock. Josh could barely recognize his wife, with the hunger for such lewd, raw sex in her eyes.

"There's something I've never done before," she said.

Josh stopped her pumping hand on his cock, because he was ready to burst. Rachel smiled, knowing why he had done that. It was not because he didn't want to do this next thing she had never done, but because he wanted to last for it.

She fluttered her eyes up Xavier. Josh was unsure of how they communicated so perfectly what happened next, but Xavier kicked himself out of his jeans and rolled onto the settee, and all the while Rachel moved with him, without ever letting go of his cock. She stood up, and finally released him from her hand. She reached down to the bottom of her dress, and just as she had done before with Arthur, she peeled it over her head. Xavier's hands went up with it, dark and enormous against her pale frame. Josh was mesmerized as Xavier's hands pushed her bra up with her dress, ripping the fabric a little to get it to go over her head. He cupped Rachel's breasts, covering them completely.

Rachel tossed her dress to the side shook her hair out and then climbed, one leg at a time, onto Xavier's lap. She looked down at her thong, and gave a light laugh. Josh saw that she was rising up to take it off, but Xavier slid his big hands along her thigh and up her ass, under the narrow straps of the thong that rested on her hips, and pulled hard on the material, jerking it upward. Rachel gasped as the fabric cut into her gash, but almost instantly the straps snapped on both sides, and Xavier slid it out between her legs. The material was sopping wet and landed with a hard plop on the floor.

Rachel raised her hips to get up high enough for the tip of Xavier's cock, which now seemed even larger and longer, into her pussy.

She lowered herself slowly, and Josh knew it was for his benefit. He watched as the thick black cock disappeared one, slow inch at a time. As she slid down onto Xavier, he spread his legs with his knees against hers, prying her legs open wider and wider. As her legs spread, so did the view of her stretching cunt and the black meat inside of her, as well as Josh's view of her asshole.

Her asshole was still slightly gaped from Arthur's treatment of her. Josh kept his hand away from his cock as he watched the scene before him unfold. He knew that if he touched himself while looking at his wife's distended asshole hovering over a thick black shaft pistoning into her pussy, he would explode. And then he would never get the chance to help Rachel try the thing – the one thing, it seemed – that she had not done yet.

He watched as she hopped up and down on Xavier's shaft, and his cock grew stickier and wetter with each bounce. She was as soaked and ripe as she had ever been, almost to the point that she seemed like a damaged fruit that was going to turn to mush with any more squeezing. Josh stepped closer to them, his cock throbbing.

Rachel reached behind herself, and used her fingers to draw some of her juices toward her ass. She clutched Xavier's balls to get her fingers soaked with all of the juices dripping down. Josh watched her fingers caressing his trimmed, huge balls, then trailing playfully back up to her own ass.

Unable to take it any more, and knowing he would not be long in this scene, Josh guided his cock to the red eyelet of Rachel's ass. Even though a black hole winked at him from the center, the hole was still tight and his cock was still going to pry her open.

Rachel took both of her hands now, and grabbed her ass. “Oh god,” she moaned. Josh could tell she was going to come soon. “Josh just fuck me. I want to be all filled up by two cocks, please, just get your cock in there!”

She was really bouncing on Xavier now, and Josh pressed against her back to slow her down so he could get inside of her.

Xavier grabbed her hands and her ass to stop her bouncing. He held Josh's wife frozen, impaled on his cock, with his two huge paws on each of her buttocks. Her hands were between her ass and his palm. "Slow down, baby," he breathed into her neck.

Josh pushed against her ass. At first, her asshole closed up tight, and he was worried about hurting her. "Relax, Ray," Xavier said, using his hands and hers to pull her ass even more open for Josh. He nodded at Josh, and Josh pushed forward again.

This time Rachel's ass opened up, and Josh sank into her hot flesh. From having his fingers in there, he knew it was the same feel but even tighter. The wall of her ass was pressed hard by Xavier's cock, and she was tight as hell because of it.

Whatever was happening to Rachel, Josh lost control of himself. He didn't even really hear the sounds she was making as he plunged all the way to his balls inside of her ass. Her body writhed between his body and Xavier's, and for a moment they were a confused mass of limbs and cocks and Rachel's hot body. Then they formed a sort of rhythm, and the two men began to fuck her: Xavier grinding against her from below, and Josh hammering into her from behind. Her knees were spread so wide apart she looked as if she might split in two. She tried to toss her hair, but she was trapped between the two of them, sweating and screaming.

Josh felt her orgasm rip through her body. Her ass clenched around him, and squeezed his own climax right from the base of his cock. The pleasure of it was so exhilarating and took him so excruciatingly high that he lost any sense of time or place for a few moments. He just yelled as his cum burst out of his cock and inside of his wife.

When he calmed down, and pulled his cock from inside of Rachel's ass – because they crouch he had been in was now uncomfortable – he realized that Xavier must have come, too. A puddle of cum and Rachel's juices were dripping from around his cock, out of her ass, to the floor.

Josh collapsed on the floor, his hands on his knees, and stared at Rachel's gaping asshole, and the still-hard cock inside of her pussy.

Xavier drew his legs in, so that Rachel's legs were not so stretched open. Rachel let her head hang back, and her black wig shook over her ass. "Oh my god," she said.

Then she lifted herself up, and rolled over to the settee.

They all sat there, panting for a bit. After a while, Rachel sat up and kicked her dress to herself. She slid it over her body, leaving the bra and panties on the floor.

She looked at Josh, then at Xavier.

“Buy a girl a drink?” she said, with a smile.

She could have been talking to either one of them.

EPILOGUE

“Put that away. Jesus, you're an addict,” Rachel said, slapping the smartphone Josh was holding down toward his pocket. “Do you need me to take it away from you?”

“Maybe,” he said.

Rachel tossed it into her purse. Then she spun around and held her arms out wide.

A warm, almost hot, ocean breeze picked up her hair and her sundress. Her golden locks whipped around her face, and her dress slid up to ripple like a flag just inches above her ass. Enough, Josh noted, that he could say with 85% certainty that Rachel was not wearing any underwear.

It was a thing she did now. Only sometimes. When she had an urge.

“I can't believe you want to read trashy internet porn when you can look at this!” she said.

Josh knew she meant the ocean view, the glorious pale-green water of the Caribbean, the lines of the white yachts anchored out in the deeper water of the bay. But what he was looking at was her ass, and the slash of her skin exposed by the deep dip in the back of her sundress.

“I'm skinny-dipping, just so you know,” she said. “There's barely anyone here.”

She trotted down the sandy path.

“Do you have a swimsuit?” Josh called to her. He cringed at the slightly worried note in his voice. Rachel was probably just fucking with him, and wearing an extremely tiny red bikini under that dress.

Or at least the bottoms, he thought, realizing that no strings from a tiny top criss-crossed her back.

And the beach was nearly deserted. He indulged in a moment of enjoyment, imagining his wife's naked body splashing around in the water or stretching out on the white sand.

And he liked the wilder side of Rachel's personality. Of her sexual personality.

It just...sometimes felt a little out of control.

He surveyed the beach, looking for the dark skin of the couple they were here to meet. There was a tanned woman lying by herself on the far right corner of the beach, a tiki hut, another small wooden cabin, and then:

Tyra's unmistakable ebony skin, her hand extended into the air, waving at Rachel. Tyra was barely concealed in a lime-green bikini, and when she turned Josh was pleased to see that her high, rounded ass was exposed and only the sliver of a lime-colored thong obstructed the view.

Josh's eyes lingered for a moment on Tyra, and then scanned the beach and water.

And there he was: Xavier, standing waist deep in the ocean with what looked like fishing spear.

Well, Josh had always wondered what a guy like that did on a year-long sabbatical in the Caribbean. Besides fuck around in his sailboat.

Xavier and Tyra had taken their money from Charlotte and purchased 1/3 of a very beautiful boat, but not before Rachel had secured Xavier a sabbatical, at full pay.

Josh breathed in. It always made him a little nervous, thinking about the final moments of their grand scheme. How close they had been to Xavier finding out that Josh had cooked up the whole "video." He still woke up sometimes, after a stress-dream in which he was following Rachel, close behind her, just like he had been when they decided to go get a drink at the Shangri-La bar after their adventure in Room 4. In Josh's recurring dream, they would see Arthur, just as they had that evening, sitting at the bar with Crystal in his lap, looking smug.

Just as he had that night long ago, Arthur would turn and see Rachel. His face would have the same smug expression on it, and he would start to raise his glass to give her a mocking toast.

In the dream, Arthur's face would slowly crumble, in much the same way it had on that very real night, when he saw Josh, and then Xavier.

What had the man been thinking at that moment? Josh often wondered. Had he put any of it together in the few seconds that they approached him? Was the look dripping slowly down his face the look of a man who was slowly realizing that he had been royally fucked?

Or did he just not get it? Was he still smug, right up until Rachel leaned close to his ear, and whispered to him.

I have a video of my own, Arthur. Would you like to see it?

As the group had walked toward Arthur, Josh had felt his heart nearly exploding with its pounding, and nearly falling out of his body and through his feet. There was still a possibility that this elaborate, fantastical plan could fall apart.

This is likely why, in Josh's recurring nightmare, Xavier leaned in to Arthur to say something. Arthur began waving his hands and shaking his head. And then everyone, including Rachel, turned to Josh with an accusatory look on their faces. Arthur pointed at Josh yelling: "It was him! It was him!" and the doors of the club burst open, kicked down by the police.

But in reality, of course, that wasn't what happened at all.

In reality, Xavier had brushed past Josh, and sat cockily next to Xavier, and ordered a drink for him. Xavier had leaned in to say something to Arthur, but it was, they would never know.

In reality, Rachel had taken control of the situation, and leaned in to say something in Arthur's ear. Wild-eyed, he had walked away with her and into the back room for half an hour, while Josh sat paralyzed at the bar, thinking through all the possible outcomes of this final chapter in their adventure. Xavier had stared into the mirror behind the bar, anger under the surface of his skin.

And then Rachel had bounced over to them. She had ordered a bottle of champagne.

Josh and Xavier had turned on their stools to see Arthur, visibly shaken, stumbling out of the club.

Josh had leaned in to Rachel. "What did you say to him?"

And she had smiled. "I just explained things to him," she had said.

Then she had leaned over to Xavier, and told him something in his ear.

And then they had toasted their wild blackmailing job gone right.

And now they were here, eight months later.

When they got back from vacation, Rachel would start as anchor of the five o'clock news. Xavier might never return, from the looks of things, but then again, he might.

Charlotte, of course, got her horse and the terms of her divorce, exactly as she wanted them. Rachel occasionally trotted around the track at Aspen Club with her, since she never canceled her membership in the end.

And Josh?

Well, Josh got a wife who sometimes skinny dipped on the beach, or delivered her news segments with no underwear on. A wife who did some very wild things in bed.

They had decided to take a break from this new “thing” in their marriage, on account of it being so crazy at the end. But now Josh felt certain, as he watched Rachel waving exuberantly at Xavier from the shore, that the adventure was not over forever.
