PROLOGUE

This began as an attempt to novelize one of my favorite short stories, called Black And White. The idea in that story was so erotic to me that I always regretted using it on a short story as opposed to a novel.

The concept of the short story Black and White is similar to this novel, though I've made some significant changes. My intention was to fill in the original story, by lengthening scenes, adding more tension, and plumping it up with character development that the original story's length didn't allow.

I found, though, that I wanted to spin off in different directions with my characters. The old Danielle was too pliable, and the husband from the story, Mark, was almost nonexistent. Drake was too uncomplicated. I decided to change the characters to the extent that some of them are unrecognizable, so much so that I felt Mark even needed a name change. Black and White was a cuckold story, and Not Black And White is a hotwife story. Or at least it begins that way.

If you've read the original, Black And White, you will probably recognize only minor elements and the general idea of the story. I think you can enjoy this as a completely different story, based on the same premise.

The title of the novel has taken on many different meanings. The original title represented the black and white of Drake and Danielle. It also refers to the black and white of Drake's photographs. In this novel, it also the name of the series of photographs around which the action in this book takes place.

Why the Not? Partly, it's a quiet nod to my own (I like to think, excellent) sense of humor. (This is not the original story, Black and White. Har har.) There is Drake's exhibition, Black, the sexual exhibit, contrasted by White. He channels Danielle as a model through these series, and through them she transforms from a prude, reserved woman to a sexually awakened and sophisticated being – but she is neither Black nor White.

I also meant to get at the fact that the relationships and the feelings in the hotwifing lifestyle are not black and white, and not always what they seem.

I talked to my husband about all these meanings as I was writing the novel, and he suggested that I might be making erotica too complicated. But I think the most erotic things – the really, painfully hot things – are precisely that. Very, very complicated.

Never black and white.

I really hope this novel is as good for you as it was for me. It is intentionally a very slow burn in the beginning, but the dirt is worth the wait. I realize this will vex some readers. Sorry, guys. Others have told me they appreciate a lot of tension building, so this one is for you.

It was one of my favorites to write, just as the short story was, so I hope above all, you enjoy it.

GRAY

“I wonder what compelled him,” Maria Delacorte said, leaning close enough to me to whisper and nearly spilling her wine in the process, “to do a series and call it Gray. I was fine with the Black and White but this is just really...like, okay...we knew what they were about.” She snorted a little.

I assumed she was making a reference to the fact that Drake Reyes' photographs were sexual in nature, and hinted at BDSM, and...well...the word gray would be forever linked to BDSM because of fifty-you-know-whats.

I was caressing the canvas mount of the photograph, an enormous piece (mostly gray) called Ice.

Like everyone in the room, I was turned on by the photo. There were layers of sexuality in it, but on the surface it was 'clean.' Clean enough to be in an art exhibition, and not a porn shop. But we all knew what it was about.

Well...more or less. I knew what it was really about.

Unlike the people in the room, who were only guessing, I knew where and how the photo had actually been taken.

“You like it?” a voice purred in my ear.

I turned to wrap an arm around my slender wife, who was encased in a gray sweater skirt that hugged her lithe figure and showed off just a little too much of her long, muscled thighs. Her silky brown hair, which fell just below the curve of her small, perfectly-shaped breasts, slid over her shoulder and breathed a hint of some sexy, jungle flower near my nose. And just below that scent, I swore I could smell her. My eyes fell to the risqué line of her dress. She wouldn't wear that dress and not wear any underwear, would she?

Danielle was blinking at me as if she'd asked a real question. She knew I liked the photo. She turned her newly confident gaze on Maria. Maria used to intimidate Danielle, but now the reverse seemed to be true.

I looked at Danielle as she spoke to Maria, and marveled on how different my wife was from just three months ago.

Maria was giving Danielle the same corny line about 'gray.'

Danielle turned to the photo, and said, for Maria's benefit:

"I don't know. I like it. I don't even think it's about anything sexual."

This was a lie, of course, because the model in Ice, whose identity could not be discerned from the photo alone, was Danielle herself. She knew perfectly well that it was sexual. Obscenely sexual.

She turned to me, and smiled. "We're buying it. Right, darling?"

Maria seemed to choke on her drink, though I saw it only in my peripheral vision so I couldn't be sure. My eyes were on Danielle's tiny sweater-skirt where her hips gently made a curve, just before her lightly tanned skin tumbled out of the fabric in the form of thoroughbred legs.

Then Maria shrugged, recovering. "Why, Ice, I wonder?"

Danielle smiled, and squeezed my hand. "It's sort of wintery. Gray."

My cock was getting hard, thinking about the reasons Ice was called Ice, and none of them had to do with winter, or being gray. I nudged Danielle gently, in the direction of the door to the hallway. To all the unused rooms in the back, where we could go and fuck.

Because the 'ice' in Ice? Was the ice dildo Drake Reyes had placed in my wife's ass while he had fucked her. And it was a pretty hard thing to get out of my mind.

And the whole exhibition surrounding us, every abstract black and white photo that the whole crowd was murmuring about and fantasizing dirtily in their minds, every last picture?

They were all photos of my wife getting fucked by Drake Reyes.

The three of us, then – Drake, Danielle, and I – were the only ones who knew for sure why Ice was Ice, and Hole was Hole.

None of that was really what concerned me now, though. What I wanted was to get my wife into the backroom, and get her mouth around my cock.

You're probably wondering how a guy like me got a Mennonite, girl-next-door, farm-fresh girl like Danielle to wear a gray sweater-dress that barely covered her butt; let herself be photographed with an ice dildo in her ass and a big black cock in her pussy; and walk around in an art gallery shamelessly enjoying those pictures right before sneaking off to get face-fucked in a back room.

Let me tell you, so do I.

But to the best of my recollection, here is what happened.

YOU WANNA KNOW THAT STORY

“Check this out,” Cassandra slurred to me, stretching her arms across the reception counter without any other form of greeting.

Cassandra Brocca was as Brooklyn as you can get. And not the new Brooklyn, the Brooklyn of beards and ironic dad-pants, lesbians and obscure Swedish punkabilly/classical music. Cassandra was Brooklyn. Circa 1992. Boobs, nasal voice glued to high volume, long fake nails, and a beehive of frozen Italian hair.

When I took the job as curator, Cassandra came with the gallery. I wasn't one to question why the owner had hired her instead of planting a wan, vegan girl in dark clothing and oversized glasses at reception, like every other gallery did. It came out later that she was a relative of sorts, but by then I liked her anyway. The truth was: she had fantastic tits, two beautiful pillow lips under all her makeup, and I got used to her accent the way you get used to exercise.

Anyway, she probably came off as kitsch.

Also – and I would never admit this to anyone – I got a kick out of her knack for making an epic Brooklyn soap opera out of anything.

She was jerking her eyes toward the back of the gallery and then looking down at her boobs, which was Cassandra for, “come closer so I can yell in a whisper about what is happening in the back of the gallery.” Another reason I didn't mind her gossip so much was that she didn't mind it so much if my eyes wandered over her truly great cleavage while she delivered it.

“Hello, Cassandra,” I said cheerily.

She popped her gum and waited, her long nails strumming the counter. She had color-coordinated her nails with her color of the week. Today's blue outfit had taken form as a neon-blue tank top with ruffles that framed her large, firm breasts. The shirt just barely made the effort of getting to the black Lycra skirt she seemed to have put on as an afterthought, over neon-blue tights that didn't quite match her blouse.

I stepped closer.

“See that one?” she whispered loudly. She held one hand up to screen the finger she was pointing toward the back of the gallery.

I looked, and easily identified who she was talking about, because there was no one else in the room.

A very tall blonde in a classy and expensive houndstooth jacket and red sweater dress was standing near the back wall, looking at one of Drake Reyes' latest photographs. I couldn't see her face, or anything but her long, toned calves and her upswept golden hair, but she had the posture of a woman who was attractive and knew it.

Staring at one of Drake's Black series photographs was an unusual thing for a woman to do, moments after the gallery opened, and on a Tuesday with no show slotted for the evening.

And by herself.

“She's the model,” Cassandra mouthed, and nodded gravely to give her statement extra effect.

Because I was in the mood to play her games, I looked from the woman to Cassandra and opened my mouth in theatrical surprise.

The woman wasn't all that shocking, but it was interesting that she was here.

The content of Drake's photographs made it interesting, for one thing.

The rumors surrounding the photos made it even more interesting.

Cassandra dug this kind of thing. She nodded again and pressed her lips together.

She was about to lean forward and tell me more, when the back door opened and Drake himself emerged.

Drake was wearing a white t-shirt, and jeans that I knew were very carefully and very expensively torn just-so to give them the precise faded, casual look he was achieving. Drake's body was in utterly incredible shape, and his toned chest pressed at the spotless white fabric of his shirt. He walked with what I privately dubbed his “cool-walk” - the unhurried, space-occupying stroll of a self-assured black man. He towered over everyone in the room.

His hand extended to grasp the hand of the blonde woman, and then, with his undeniable suave, he brought it to his lips.

I looked down at the reception desk and pretended to be doing something with some papers. I hoped Cassandra would dish more dirt.

Drake's Black series was hugely popular, but it wasn't what you'd think of a series called Black. It wasn't making any kind of political statement, it wasn't portraying anything at all about being black. It was a series of black and white abstract photos. They were ludicrously sexual in spite of the fact that they displayed nothing overtly sexual at all.

They were blurred and completely cropped photos, but by themselves the shapes were sexually provocative. Curved shadows, damp skin, textures that came from intimate places. If you looked at them long enough, your mind inevitably expanded the picture to create the scene that surrounded what appeared in the photo.

And it was usually obscene.

Drake was getting all kinds of praise from critics and all kinds of flak from feminists. Pieces with titles like Cord, Welt, and Stretched were particularly inflaming material, even if the photos themselves showed nothing that could be confirmed to be a cord, a welt, or anything “stretched.” The genius of the photographs was that they only hinted at sexual form in their abstract shapes, and then left you wondering why. Then, if you were like me, you spent all day thinking about the larger picture.

As a washed-out artist, I hated admitting they were ingenious. But they were.

Drake said nothing about how the photos were produced, which I suspect was a savvy marketing plan on his part. He let the rumors fly until nearly everyone was talking about how they were pictures from actual sexual acts.

His actual sexual encounters.

Or, so went the rumor.

The rumor that didn't make it all around town, but was more of a personal theory of Cassandra's and mine, was that each of his “models” was actually having an affair with him.

And they were not single.

The photo that took up most of the wall in the back of the gallery was titled Wrist. It was impossible to discern anything like a wrist: the image was so close-up that only gray, white, and black shapes took form and looked more like two people fucking each other, writhing like snakes.

But if you stepped away, and thought for a moment about the title and the rumors, you could see how the photo might be a small piece of a larger picture, in which the black shadows were the twisted, chaffing skin of a woman's wrist where a rope or some tape bound her.

And then you got to thinking. About how she was bound. What her wrists were attached to.

Were they on the bedposts? Hanging from the ceiling? Was she prone, or supine? Were her legs parted for easy access to her tiny asshole, or spread wide for her juicy cunt? Was she on her knees with her mouth open and her hands suspended above her head, about to be facefucked? Or maybe this was this the aftermath, and she was covered in cum and panting on the sheets of a bed, with her ass in the air and her wrists tied behind her?

My cock was getting a little hard just thinking too much about it.

This is why the series was so popular.

Drake and the woman were standing quite close to each other, and I could hear the rumble of his low voice.

Even from a distance, it was easy to observe the effect Drake had on women. It was hard to describe, but they all seemed to move toward him, like they were pulled in by a magnet. They didn't become giggly or flirtatious, they become something else. Almost entranced.

Cassandra placed a sticky note on my paper.

Her bulbous handwriting read: Husband has appt 4 11:30

The '4' made me cringe, and I considered reminding Sandra that she was not texting on a sticky note. But then the scandalous content of the note reached my consciousness.

Husband.

Husband of the model. Husband of the woman Drake seemed to be having an affair with.

I looked at my watch. 11:21.

"I'm going to my office to make a quick phone call," I said to Cassandra. "Will you...?"

She nodded. She was a pure professional when it came to plotting drama-watching.

As I walked to the back door, I looked at the profile of the lovely woman who was so attentive to Drake's voice. She had high, sculpted cheekbones, the neat and tidy features of the well-bred upper classes of New York. She was probably taut with Pilates and mild starvation underneath those expensive clothes, and her skin was probably softer than silk. I tried to size up her tits, but the sweater-dress created bulk and shadows that made it hard to guess.

Drake himself turned slightly and raised a hand to me. “Hey man,” he said.

I nodded. I always wanted to act a little cooler when I was around him, but the more I did the more it flopped. I raised my newspaper in greeting, and was already wondering if I seemed like a jerk by the time the door shut behind me.

Drake was a real hands-on artist, in the sense that he didn't like just turning his work over and letting us sell it. He brought in all kinds of buyers, which was also fine by us because we still took the commission on the sales.

I felt a pang in my chest.

I couldn't wait for his exhibition to end.

In truth, I liked Drake. I had no reason not to like Drake. He was one of the nicer artists in the business, who didn't pull any diva bullshit. His work was actually intelligent and aesthetically pleasing, and not just some crap art that was popular because he had friends in the art world to tell people it should be. He was also making us money hand over fist.

Every time I saw him, though, I started to feel a squeeze on my chest. The middle-aged squeeze, where you start asking yourself what you've done with your life and why you aren't more like who you wanted to be twenty years ago.

And who I wanted to be twenty years ago was Drake Reyes. Good-looking, cool dressing, acclaimed artist and part-time war photographer Drake Reyes. A guy who had a scar on his shoulder where he was hit by shrapnel and walked around Mogadishu with it in his arm until it got infected and he nearly died. A guy who did all that just to get The Shot: a now-iconic portrait of a hardened Somali man holding his dead son in the middle of the street.

I mean, seriously.

And the kicker about Drake? He didn't even tell that story, to anyone, ever. The only reason I even knew about it was because the journalist who had been with him told the story at an unrelated event.

I looked around my office and tried to remind myself that I didn't have things so bad. My eyes rested on a photograph of Danielle. It was my own shot, a moment in which I had captured her looking out a window in the afternoon, back when we lived outside of Chicago. Her plain brown hair had a honeyed glow, and her skin was flushed with the afternoon light. An indiscernible smile was on her lips, one that only I could see, because she was seconds away from laughing at a joke I had told her.

Danielle was beautiful, and I loved her more than anything. I had a great job, one that most people (and certainly anyone with a fine arts and journalism degree, since they were all unemployed) would envy. I was back in New York.

Everything was coming up Rick Showalter.

I sighed. Who wanted to be Drake, anyway? Who wanted to be freezing in an abandoned hotel and shitting into non-working plumbing and being shot at by snipers just to go get internet access five miles away?

Who wanted to be taking pictures of married women while he fucked them, and then making a fortune standing around in a gallery watching hot, needy, women fall all over themselves trying to be his next model?

My heart raced.

It was a compromise, like so many others a marriage requires, that I abandoned my journalistic and artistic efforts. In exchange, Danielle agreed to move to New York.

It was one of those things that I spent a lot of time telling myself was “okay.”

My phone buzzed.

Something inside of me made my mouth turn up in a small, malicious smile. This had to be good, if all of Cassandra's information was correct. Which, through some magic, her gossip always was.

The man who was apparently the husband of the pretty blond woman was leaning over the counter and talking to Cassandra. Cassandra had her highbrow tone and expression on, and if she hadn't been wearing such a ridiculous get-up, she might have passed for a real professional.

I swept my eyes over the gallery, hoping to see a ripple of anxiety passing through its inhabitants.

Drake and the woman had not moved apart, and seemed not only unsurprised that the man was here, but unperturbed by it.

Cassandra, I privately tisked. You finally missed the mark.

I approached reception. My game face on. Because whoever this guy was, and whatever was going on, he was in my gallery and that was half the battle. Now it was time to sell.

Cassandra helped me out promptly. “Mr. Showalter. This is Mr. Smith. He's here to see some of Drake Reyes' pieces.”

When she tried, Cassandra could evaporate some of her Brooklyn accent away.

I extended my hand to Mr. Smith with a smile. “Mr. Reyes is actually here,” I offered, still hoping to incite some kind of drama.

“Oh yes,” the man said, and I was surprised he was British. “That's my wife back there with him. We're here to look at the pieces she modeled for him.”

I maintained my composure, even though I was surprised. “I see,” I said. “Well, please let me know if I can be of any assistance to you.”

Behind Mr. Smith, Cassandra's mouth had hung so far open her face was distorted.

We watched Mr Smith approach Drake, his wife, and the photograph. The photograph we believed to be of his wife's bound wrist.

“Maybe he isn't sleeping with them,” Cassandra said, taking little care to speak low.

But there was something interesting about the three of them. The way they were standing. The wife was closer to Drake, and her hand brushed across his thigh and his ass more than once. She almost leaned against his chest as she pointed at something on a second photograph.

And the husband surely would have seen all this.

But he didn't seem disturbed. He didn't seem distracted, or flustered. Or any of the things you would expect a man to be while his wife starts flirting with a man who photographed her in a very suggestive photo.

“They must just be staged,” I said, and didn't even realize I was talking out loud until Cassandra shook her head.

Staged or not, there was definitely something going on between Drake Reyes and Mr Smith's wife.

I was having a hard time making it look like I needed to be a reception, and Cassandra was having a hard time making it look like she wasn't staring. The interaction was a little more disappointing than I had hoped for.

“You should clean the windows,” I told her, and left her scowling at the desk as I went back to my office.

Drake was chatting with Cassandra when I merged about an hour later. She glared at me, which was par for the course. She remained angry for a full day every time I requested that she wash the windows, which was literally part of her job description.

Drake watched her walk away, and there was no doubt his eyes were right on her ass.

I looked at Wrist.

“Did it sell?”

Drake didn't turn to look at his photograph, and he didn't answer my question. Instead, he said:

“You wanna know that story.”

I didn't answer, because I had no idea what to say. I felt like I had been caught peeping through someone's window.

He smiled at my silence. “Don't you?”

His eyes were glinting with mischief I rarely saw in him.

“Are the rumors true?” I croaked.

He looked up at his own photo. “That I am fucking most of my models?”

I didn't say anything. I was getting a little nervous, because I had no idea where this was headed, and because offending Drake Reyes was the last thing I wanted to do. I already had orders to keep him on for his next project. And he likely knew that.

“I was fucking Mrs. Smith,” he said. Then he turned back to me and gave me a wink. “Those high-end, tightly-wrapped blondes, man. They're like a piano wire, you get them to unwind and...” He held up his hand in a pantomime of an explosion.

I wasn't entirely sure how to react. It was what I wanted to know, and it was the thing I had secretly hoped for.

And then I felt these words coming out of my mouth. They hadn't even passed through part of my brain that does that the thinking:

“And her husband? He knows?”

Drake cocked his head and looked at me. His expression changed suddenly, to one of curiosity. It confused me, because I was the one prying here.

He sucked his lower lip. “He knows.” He had a small grin on his face. He folded his arms over his chest. “You'd be surprised,” he said. And then he didn't finish his sentence.

It was a tactic for making me come to him. I couldn't resist it, though.
“Surprised by what?”

He brought his fingers to his chin, where his neatly trimmed goatee covered his ebony skin around his big, dark lips. “How many men like to see their wives with another man.” And then, as though he had told himself some private joke. “Especially a black man.”

The sentence sliced through me like a serrated knife. It wasn't as if the thought had never occurred to me: I thought about Danielle with other men all the time. But I had always thought of it as a fantasy for jerking off, the kind of fantasy where people and faces are exchanged without any real logic, for the sake of getting the most dirty and physically impossible thoughts to stand out the most.

I hadn't ever really taken my thoughts seriously.

I knew that there guys out there who did. But I also figured they were some small minority, some small vocal group of people who were leading everyone to believe that there were far more men actually out there watching their wives have sex with other men.

But now, coming out of Drake's mouth so matter-of-factly, and taken together with everything I'd just seen, the idea made everything inside of me start to vibrate.

“No shit,” I said, trying to sound like I was surprised and the idea had never, even for a second, occurred to me. Not even once.

Drake picked up a chair and lifted it to stack it in the corner. His arms were huge and toned, and he swung the heavy chair like it was a paperweight. He often did things like this, as though he worked here. I watched his muscles ripple with the easy effort, and my mind flashed to a dirty thought of him swinging my wife's small body onto a bed in the same easy manner.

“You never think about that kind of thing?” he said.

He turned back to me. He was smiling.

“Me? No. No...god no. It seems really fucked up.”

I sounded like an idiot. I wasn't sure why I was acting like I just got caught jerking off.

Drake was looking at me. He seemed amused.

“I mean, if everyone is into it, then whatever,” I said quickly, to break up the silence.

“Never thought about it, huh?” He folded his big arms over his biceps again.

I shook my head.

But I wanted more.

“I just don't get...what do they get out of it?” But I already knew what it was. I could already feel it, burning through me.

“The ladies?” Drake shrugged and sort of pointed at himself.

“No, the guys.”

He lifted his head, sort of cocking it, to tell me to come closer. He licked his lips and leaned toward me. “Look, you're married right?” He nodded before I could answer. “After a time it gets sort of dull, right? But you can't do certain things to your wife. Say she sort of wants to do them, like she sort of wants someone to tie her up and gag her and fuck her in the ass? They all kind of do. They all want to try it. And of course you sort of want that, too.”

I was shaking my head a little, and Drake looked at me with disbelief. He nodded. “Come on, you know you do. You know you think about it.”

He smiled as I struggled, and failed, to deny it.

Another thing that was shocking me into silence was the drastic change in Drake's personality. He never spoke like this, guy-to-guy. He was too suave for some locker-room talk like this.

He continued, lowering his voice: “If she does some dirty shit with another guy, and the husband is just watching, then everyone is happy, and you don't have this big thing hanging over your heads when you have a kid and that's the mouth she kisses your kids with.”

He leaned closer.

“Plus,” he said. “She feels guilty. Even if it's all above-board, and you agreed to it. She feels guilty. And that...well, think about it.” He slapped me on the back as though we'd just agreed to something.

Images of Danielle, bound by ropes with a gag in her mouth and taking Drake's huge black cock in her ass, had filled my head until I almost couldn't see.

“Never thought about it, huh?” he chuckled.

Drake's voice barely made its way through the imaginary moans I was hearing in my mind.

“No,” I said, and I knew that my voice betrayed my lie.

Drake played it cool, and he picked up another chair. He shrugged as he set it on top of the others.

“I gotta head out,” he said. “See you tomorrow.”

He turned and headed to the back room. Just before he opened the door he called back. “Hey, speaking of wives, you bringing that hot little number of yours? What's her name? Danielle?”

My mind raced, trying to think of why he knew Danielle's name. I almost never talked about her, especially at work. My heart went cold and hot all at once.

“I...maybe.”

After he left, I would have to ask myself if I had really seen him do this, but I think he licked his lips. Maybe he just pressed them together and smacked them.

Maybe I imagined the whole thing.

He swung the door open and walked through it.

“See you there.”

LUNCH

Danielle was not coming to the show.

We had already discussed it, several times. She didn't like the shows, she didn't know anyone and she didn't know anything about art except what I told her. No amount of explaining to her that most people were talking out of their ass about it could convince her to talk out of her own ass and enjoy the shows. She felt intimidated.

So when I found myself crossing the room, my phone in my hand, swiping through my contacts until the screen settled on D, I really had no idea what I was doing. I had no idea what I was planning to say.

Or why I was planning to say it.

Dalia Trebuchet.

Dan Ackers.

Dan M.

Danielle.

I tapped the phone.

“Hey.” Danielle's voice sounded tired.

“Hi honey. You sound tired.”

“No.”

What was it about marriage that made people turn into this?

I loved Danielle, and I knew she loved me. The first four years of our marriage had been hot, even if she was a little conservative in general, and by that I mean sexually. But just like everyone says, things seemed to have turned to boredom on her part. I didn't really know how to get out of the rut.

Drake's voice surfaced in my mind.

After a time it gets sort of dull, right? But you can't do certain things to your wife. But say she sort of wants to do them, like she sort of wants someone to tie her up and gag her and fuck her in the ass?

Images collided in my mind. The twisted skin in Wrist, the long legs of Mrs. Smith, the imaginary picture of Drake Reyes' big, thick cock pressed up against my wife's asshole, Danielle's mouth stretched around a big, red gag ball.

My cock was hard.

And then I found myself saying, without thinking about it at all: “You mind if I come home for lunch?”

A pause.

“That's...no, okay. It sounds great...you want to go out, or...”

“Let's just eat something at home.”

Another pause.

“Oh....kay. Okay. When?”

“About an hour, I'm leaving now.”

I took a cab, and regretted the decision, because traffic was bad and it probably took me longer than the subway would have. At least I could be alone in the back with my thoughts and my erection.

I had gone over the edge a little bit with wild sexual thoughts, from the moment Drake left the building. Something about everything I'd seen in the gallery had lodged itself in my mind and I was starting to think about it seriously. Almost obsessively.

With Danielle as the star. Danielle being tied up by Drake Reyes and bent over a couch to take it hard from behind. Danielle on her knees with her face tilted up and cum splattering on her lips. Danielle being spanked and then ridden like a pony.

These were all things I liked to think about sexually, and I liked to think about being done to Danielle. When I was alone, jerking off.

But any time I tried to do something debasing to her like that, I couldn't bring myself to actually do it. I couldn't even take the first step.

(I mean, I would never actually get someone like Drake Reyes to actually do it to her either.)

This was all just my imagination.

But fuck, I was horny as hell. I had gone from typical middle-aged man with a vague interest in sex with his wife, if he could get it, to raging adolescent hornball in just a minute's worth of conversation. The images in my mind were getting more and visceral with each passing moment. My cock, hard and aching against the fabric of my underwear, was evidence that something about these thoughts was real.

But I put it aside and thought about getting home and screwing my wife.

I took the steps three at a time to get up to the fourth floor and I was panting by the time I arrived at our door.

Danielle was in the kitchen, making little sandwiches. She smiled at me.

“This is such a nice surprise.”

In my mind, her mouth opened to scream as a long, thick cock spread her ass open.

Danielle was looking at me. “You okay?”

She was actually wearing an apron, which was one of the most charming things about Danielle. She didn't try, but she often looked like fifties housewife. The apron was pink with ruffles and might have actually been from the fifties. It was tied neatly at her waist.

Danielle might be called plain by some people: her hair was a light brown, straight, and long. She did not cut it in any particularly sophisticated way, but wore it parted down the middle, which looked good on her but was probably the talk of the snobby town. She had a face that was, in a word, pretty. Her eyes revealed a Slavic heritage: straight lids gave the upper half of her eyes a hint of a slant. Her nose was unremarkable and straight, and her lips were of an ordinary middle-American thickness. No part of her was stunning, but taken all together she was pretty and cute, the quintessential girl-next-door.

Her body was long-limbed and thin, like a well-fed model's, and in truth she had a certain quality, if I caught her in the right moments, where her pale, exquisite plainness would not have been out of place on a runway.

She was still looking at me, a piece of ham in her hand.

I was a little dizzy from my whirlwind of thoughts and the long cab ride with a hard-on. I moved toward her with plans to grab her, push her up against the wall, and yank her tight gray pants down so I could finger-fuck her until she came, and then bend her over the table and get my cock wet in her juices.

Instead, I took the ham from her hand, tossed it on the table, and pulled her close like we were ballroom dancing. “I couldn't wait to see you,” I said, trying to balance out my erection, which she almost surely felt against her leg, with some levity.

Danielle was not exactly prude, but she was fairly unadventurous. Every sexual encounter, especially now that we had been married so long, was a little bit of a careful dance.

This could have gone either way, and my cock was aching by then, so I was relieved when Danielle's stiff back relaxed beneath my hand, and her body leaned closer against mine, Her lips turned into a smile and she rubbed against me. "Oh, I see," she said. "You just wanted to see me."

I moved my hand beneath her shirt and pressed her to me. I brushed my lips over her mouth.

My cock throbbed against my boxers, and my mind began filling with dirty thoughts again. As I walked Danielle backwards into the bedroom, kissing her and rubbing the small of her back gently, I was imagining my hand on the back of her head, pushing her face down onto my cock...wait...down onto Drake Reyes' cock...

Jesus fucking Christ.

I pushed her onto the bed a little roughly, and she looked surprised, but lifted her shirt over her head. As she did so, I climbed on top of her, straddling her, and caught the shirt as it reached her arms. I twisted it around in my hand, so that her hands were bound by the bunched material.

Danielle looked confused, and an electric look of slight fear flitted across her face. Rather than making retreat, it only turned me on more. I suspended her hands above her head and thought about her lips around Drake Reyes' cock while I unfastened my belt and removed my own cock from my pants.

I could see that she was a little uncomfortable. Surprise and uncertainty were mixing on her face, and she was struggling a little to pull her hands free of the sweater.

But I was absorbed for the most part in my own fantasies, and I didn't care. I couldn't get Drake's words out of my head, and I couldn't stop the images from flooding my mind as I pushed Danielle back on the bed and held her hands down on the pillows.

"Rick, wha-"

I covered her mouth with mine, to stop her from talking, but I found myself kissing her much more aggressively than I intended. She was trying to say something, or letting out a cry of protest, but I was unrelenting.

A strange feeling, almost like an impatience or an anger, rose up inside of me. My mind was spinning up images of Danielle sucking another man's cock, her hand around the shaft and her face bobbing up and down dutifully, and I was suddenly infuriated by what a little prude, sweet angel-type Danielle was.

Who the fuck did she think she was?

I jerked her pants down, taking the underwear with me, while the Danielle in my imagination kept sucking and sucking away at a black cock. I dove inside of her mouth and slid my fingers down to her full bush.

It felt good to be just taking her like this. In the afternoon of all things.

Just when a little bit of guilt began to rise up inside of me, my fingers found her slit. And they glided right into it, because Danielle – sweet little prude Danielle – was dripping with excitement.

I jammed my fingers inside of her and began to fuck her with my fingers. I pressed down with my other hand and tightened the restraint on her hands above her. She whimpered in my mouth, and I kept going. She was getting wetter and wetter – wetter than I had ever felt her before.

I was fucking her to the rhythm of my imaginary Drake Reyes, who was face-fucking her now in my imagination. My fingers slapped inside of her wet cunt at the same speed his cock slammed into the back of her throat.

I was going to come.

I pulled my fingers out of her pussy, and I slid my cock inside of her. Her hot, dripping cunt closed around me, and I began to fuck her. It was faster and rougher than usual, but I didn't care, and I could feel her grinding against me, her pussy getting more and more liquid as she tightened all around me and pressed against me.

I thought about jamming my cunt-soaked fingers into her mouth, and gagging her with them, but instead I watched her as she closed her eyes and contorted her face, her orgasm squeezing me tightly until I also came. I felt my cock explode inside of her, and it was so hot I was racked by an almost painful spasm from the tip of my cock to my chest.

I fell onto her chest, and then I rolled over, finally releasing her hands.

When I looked at her, her cheeks were flushed, and I suspected it was as much to do with the exertion as her slight embarrassment at such monkey sex in the afternoon. I grinned. "That was fun," I said, to lighten the mood. It had gone from heavy to slightly awkward, the way sex often does, right at the end.

Danielle covered her mouth with her hand and gave a light giggle.

I felt relieved.

"What came over you?" she said.

I turned on my side and pondered, for the briefest moment, what would happen if I told her. If I said: I was just imagining you fucking the photographer Drake Reyes like a dirty whore, and I couldn't get it out of my head so I came home to take what I could get. And then I sort of ended up hate fucking you for being such a prim little prude.

“I just missed you,” was all I said.

Partly, that was true. I just really dug Danielle, even if she wasn't sophisticated or naughty or stunning. She was sweet, she was lovely, she was a pristine woman who looked great for her age.

Something had been boiling inside of me, though. A desire to do something very naughty with Danielle, or to Danielle, or to see Danielle be naughty. Talking to Drake had unleashed it. I mean, it had just blown up in my face.

She smiled and looked at the ceiling. “Do you still want lunch?”

I pushed some of her hair back.

Then I found myself saying:

“I have to run. But I was hoping..maybe you could come to the gallery tomorrow? For the show? Maybe you could go shopping and get a dress today.” I knew what I was doing. I think I did, anyway. I wanted her in the same room with Drake Reyes. Like a little experiment, or a little game: I wouldn't make anything happen. I would just see what happened. Nothing would happen, because Danielle was...well, Danielle. But I could watch them together, and have a little more realistic fantasy.

Her face started to sour into a no, so I quickly added:

“Just to spend some time together.”

She turned to me. Her silky brown hair was tangled above her head from rubbing up and down on the bed. It was incredibly sexy to me when she looked messed up like that.

I knew she wouldn't be able to say no now.

“Okay,” she said sweetly. She touched my face.

She would do anything, if she knew I thought it was important.

THE SHOW

Drake was drinking club soda and smiled over his glass as I approached him the next night at the gallery.

“No wife?” he said. His eyes were burning into mine. Was he challenging me in some way?

I blinked.

Or were they just his regular eyes? Green-black, intense, dominating? God, I was imagining things.

But Drake jerked his chin forward. “Mmm?” He wanted an answer.

I swallowed dryly, wondering what exactly I thought I was doing. What game I was playing. And why he was really interested – so keenly – in Danielle.

“She's coming.”

Drake smiled, tipped his glass at me in a half-hearted cheers, and walked away smiling.

Danielle was coming on her own, because I had to work up to the last minute before the doors opened. I kept looking furtively at the door.

I wondered what I had put in motion here.

Nothing, you idiot. You haven't put anything in motion. Your wife is coming to an exhibition, which is a totally normal thing to do.

But I knew, as I kept one eye on the door and one eye on Drake, that I had most definitely put something in play. I knew it even then.

She arrived a torturously long hour later.

Danielle, I could see, had begrudgingly gone shopping. The dress she had purchased was sexy, but it didn't look quite right on her, and it was also lacking the fashion-sense of the “in-crowd.”

I somehow missed her entrance, and by the time I saw her she was holding a wine glass aloft and trying to smile. I waved at her and held up my finger to indicate that I was right in the middle of something.

She shrugged and tried to look like she fit in, which never really worked for her.

She hated New York, and she didn't hide it. It should be noted that there were few things that Danielle wasted her time hating. She was of Iowan Mennonite stock, and while her family had modernized generations ago, they had not abandoned the principles of Mennonite practices. They included some fairly healthy advice for life. Danielle was practical and well-adjusted as a result. They didn't believe in wasting time being mad at things, either. So she tried to like New York, and to her credit, she kept at it. But I knew she despised it.

New York was, on the other hand, treating me well. The gallery job had fallen out of the sky. I was finally making money, I was back in touch with my old friends, and I felt at home. Danielle's discomfort was biting at me, but I was going to wait it out. I was being selfish, and I knew it: she was miserable and I wasn't doing much about it.

I didn't even want to bring it up, because I knew that if I did she would suggest moving away. She wanted to be in the Midwest, near family. I didn't want to move back to Chicago, and I didn't want to have tell her that. I didn't want to have own up to how selfish I was. I didn't even want to admit it to myself, because I liked to believe that I would do anything to make Danielle happy.

It was easier to play ignorant. Act like I didn't see how miserable she was.

Sure, I felt like a dick sometimes. I knew I was being a dick. But she had some classes at Queen's College, she was going to finish a Master's, she would adjust.

One of the things that I knew Danielle hated the most about New York was the snobby, pseudo-intellectual art scene. I knew she would rather be home right now, wearing pajamas and watching The Mindy Project. I smiled at her when I caught her eye again. I appreciated that she came inspite of all these things, and tried to be chipper, and went through the trouble of buying a new dress.

She was a good, dependable wife.

I squinted. The dress did have a very drastic dip at the neckline. Nothing scandalous, but very unusual for Danielle. It allowed for a peek at the flesh at the base of her small, round breasts. She had piled her hair up on her head very elaborately – almost clumsily – but the sweep of her swan-like neck and nearly bare shoulders made up for it.

She smiled back, and then folded an arm under her elbow. She turned to look at Wrist.

A shiver ran through me as I wondered what Danielle might think about while she was looking at the photo. Though I knew Danielle's mind wouldn't go anywhere dirty – she would be actually quite shocked to hear what the photos were about, later, when I told her – I enjoyed imagining that she did. That secretly, behind her fresh, girl-next-door countenance, her mind was gushing with wet, obscene thoughts. That privately, Danielle was given to lewd fantasies.

To my surprise, she leaned in and looked at the title card.

Then she leaned back and stood in front of it, staring.

An electric excitement passed through me. It was almost like catching my wife watching porn. She was really getting sucked in by the photo. And now that I thought about it, while Danielle was a little prude, she wasn't raised on the moon. Surely between the title and the image, she knew the content was sexual.

Danielle usually shied away from 'sexual' things, especially in public. Instead of being shy, though, she was staring at it.

I felt my cock twitch with excitement.

Within ten minutes, it happened. The thing I had secretly been hoping for.

Drake was a large man, but he moved with grace. I could see that Danielle didn't notice that he had moved across the room and had been standing next to her for some time.

Maria, an art-house auctioneer from frown the street, was droning on and on to a group of unfortunates, including me, that she had caught up in her web. Since she was Kind Of A Big Deal, you couldn't blow her off: if she saw you, you were hers. She was holding us hostage with a story of some great item she had sold for way more than anyone expected. I nodded every few seconds to give the appearance of listening, but my ears were homed in on Drake and my wife, who I could just overhear.

Drake, in his low, calm voice: “What do you think?”

Drake's dark green eyes were naturally the first thing anyone looked at against his almost-black skin. In my peripheral vision, I could see that he putting on the move: boring into her with the intensity of his gaze.

Danielle looked at him briefly. I could see the change in her. A flutter. A flush. She was flustered, and she turned back to the photo.

My interest was piqued.

Danielle was pretty, but men like Drake usually did not talk to her – not in a crowded room full of model-thin, model-faced twenty-somethings. I could tell she was bewildered, and I knew it was because his tone seemed overtly sexual to her.

“It’s...I don’t, really,” she stammered.

The other amusing thing, or interesting, is that Danielle was one of the few people here who had almost no idea who Drake was. She knew him because I mentioned him, but she didn’t follow art, she didn’t really care about it, and she definitely did not care who was who. I wondered how Drake would take it.

Maria kept blathering, and it was fine because she didn’t seem to care so much that anyone was listening as much as agreeing, which I was doing, marvelously. I shifted my body just a degree in the direction of Drake and my wife, hoping to see better. My eyes were getting strained from trying to look, without looking, in their direction.

Drake leaned forward and pretended to read the title. Danielle was watching him, but I couldn’t see her expression.

Was she watching him lustfully? Surely even Danielle had to admit to some kind of attraction to a man that good-looking, a man who oozed masculinity the way Drake did.

I was going to enjoy asking her about it later.

“You’ve been looking at it for a very long time,” Drake said, after a pause, during which he faced my wife and probably ran his eyes up and down her body.

When another man interacted with Danielle, it made me see her in a different light. Almost like she was suddenly a different woman, a woman I had never met. Things that had become dull were suddenly sharpened back to their original, titillating quality, the things that made my cock twitch and my heart race when I met her. Her creamy, freckle-specked complexion, the wholesomeness of her face, the way she shifted in and out of sexiness without realizing it.

I could tell by her new stance, turned stiffly toward Drake, that Danielle had no idea what to say. She tried to shrug, but even that didn’t come out right.

She looked around, helplessly, for me. I kept my eyes fixed on Maria, and feigned absorption in her conversation. I felt a pang of guilt: it would have been better for me to help Danielle out. It would have been the more husbandly thing to do.

But something kept me rooted to the spot. I pretended to myself that I didn't know what it was, but I did: I was fascinated by Drake's smooth tongue licking at my wife.

In a sexual way.

A very sexual way.

Drake did not wander away in response to Danielle's awkward silence. He moved, instead, slightly closer, and he did not move his eyes away from her.

"What do you think of it?" he said, again. His voice was low and I was struggling to hear what he said.

"It's just porn," Danielle said quickly.

This surprised me. I really hadn't expected Danielle to identify the extreme sexual nature of the photos until I told her.

Her voice was a little flippant.

It got me wondering. Did she really think that? Did she really think of it as gratuitous porn, or did she feel a warmth in her stomach, flattening out toward her groin? Was her mind was wandering? Was she thinking of the man who was standing next to her? How he had taken the photograph, arranged its circumstances? Was she thinking about him binding her own skin in some similar way?

My chest was squeezed by an old longing. I could feel my cock getting hard and I blinked, trying to focus on Maria.

But Danielle's voice, low and breathy, was the only thing I could focus on. "High-class porn," she added. "But porn."

It was almost absurd, hearing Danielle say the word 'porn.'

"Hmmm. Sure." Drake rubbed his face as though he were agreeing with her. "So my question is more interesting now. Why are you staring at it?"

I felt a cool, dark sensation in my lower belly as I watched Danielle's body movement. She shifted from one foot to the other. She twisted her body a little, and I was torn away from my conversation to glance at her face and confirm what I suspected: her cheeks were lightly flushed.

Drake was disarming her.

I thought about it with a shiver.

And she was attracted to him.

I wondered how deep her attraction went. Just to her chest, where it made her pulse race? Only across her cheeks, a G-rated attraction?

Or did it make its way down further? Between her legs, deep in her core? If I walked across the room and slid my hand under her skirt to feel her panties, would they be wet?

The idea of doing just that took root inside of me.

Then Danielle's voice.

"I don't know why. I like it."

Did she actually say that?

Thoughts raced through my mind, each one dirtier than the last, but on the outside I remained calm and collected.

Drake raised a glass to his lips. He leveled her with his eyes.

And then I heard it.

Even though Maria chose that particular moment to maw like a cow, and emit a sustained and hideous laugh, I heard it:

"Do you want to go to dinner sometime?"

Drake Reyes had just asked my wife to dinner.

He knew she was my wife.

Oh god. Drake was actually hitting on my wife. Not a game. A real hit.

Fingers of jealousy started closing around my heart.

But they were accompanied by another feeling.

The feeling that kept me planted where I was, eyes ahead like I wasn't listening when Danielle's head snapped in my direction fearfully. The feeling that made me almost breathless, waiting to hear what she would say.

"I'm married," Danielle said quickly, and almost a little too loud.

She looked around to see if anyone had heard her. But there was a crowd and everyone was deep in conversation. People were already being too loud, having drunk too much wine. Or they were pretending, like me, not to be listening to this interaction unfold.

I could tell Danielle was horrified.

Or was she? The thought that her horror was mock-horror, that she was just faking how shocked she was, slid deliciously through me.

Drake was unruffled. He lifted a glass to his mouth and sipped his wine. A small smile had formed at a corner of his mouth.

I was stepping a little bit away from Maria and toward Danielle and Drake, while keeping my eyes resolutely focused on Maria to appear completely absorbed by her conversation, and not theirs.

Drake leaned forward and said something in a low voice. I couldn't hear him over Maria.

When Drake leaned away, I could see several things at play on Danielle's face and in her body language. She had been sucked into his orbit, the way every woman was. She had the trance-like stare.

She also seemed a little shocked.

My cock was hard now, and I was desperate to know what Drake had said to my wife.

Who the fuck did this guy think he was?

I could see that Danielle was moving within her own skin. Part of her wanted to step away, now that Drake was so close she could smell him, feel the heat off his skin. I could tell that she was attracted to him, that she knew she was crossing a line, even if it was ever-so-slightly.

I was enjoying watching her squirm. I felt something stirring inside of me, an urge to see Danielle struggle even more against her attraction. Maybe even give in to it, a little.

Then feel guilty about it.

The room seemed to be about fifty degrees hotter. Maria hadn't stopped talking but she was looking at me strangely. I must have seemed flushed. I didn't want to move and run the risk of missing what would happen next between my wife and Drake.

The photographer did not move away from Danielle.

He searched her eyes with his, and held her in his gaze.

I saw his mouth moving, and how I didn't hear his voice. He was whispering. He moved again, almost imperceptibly. Closer to her.

His dark skin, and the large muscles that moved underneath it, giving him the appearance of a stalking panther even when he was still, was closer to Danielle. His green-brown eyes, his full lips and the tidy goatee that framed them.

Would she wonder what that goatee felt like as it brushed against her thigh?

I'm sure I saw a flinch pulse through her, like static. Her breath was caught in her chest, and she stopped breathing for a moment.

Drake's eyes flitted to the photograph, dragging her gaze with his.

A hot sensation snaked through me, right into my already-hardening cock.

Danielle stood motionless, her mouth open but her voice caught in her throat.

And then the moment was shattered. Literally. By Danielle's wine glass falling to the floor.

When I turned, with the rest of the group, toward the source of the sound, I caught the final moments of Danielle staring at Drake, her chest heaving with a quickened breath, her arms stiffly at her sides, her body frozen. And her eyes, caught in his hypnotic stare.

Then she blinked, and brought her hand to her chest, and her face flushed with embarrassment. "Oh, gosh," she said, looking down at the broken wine glass.

I rushed to assist. When I touched her elbow, I thought I felt her shudder. She turned to me quickly.

Guilt was embedded in her expression. On her face it was beautiful. My sweet Danielle had had an impure thought, and she had dropped her wine glass because it was so impure. And now she was looking at me and she felt guilty.

My cock twitched. "I'll get this," I said.

Drake, always smooth, had magically crossed the room and obtained another glass of wine, which he handed to Danielle. Who seemed almost embarrassed to look at him. "Thank you," she said, and her voice was barely above a whisper. She held a hand to her face. "Oh gosh, I'm so embarrassed."

I thought I saw a flicker of amusement cross Drake's face.

Or was Danielle's use of gosh more like a challenge to him? To convince a girl who used words like gosh to get into bed with a man who was not her husband?

And do really, really dirty things with ropes with him?

For a moment the three of us were standing in a small circle, and the moment threatened to get awkward. There was a queer sexual energy between all of us, but no one (except perhaps Drake) knew how to act on it.

"I have to get...a...caterer," I said, to disturb the awkwardness.

I walked briskly toward the backroom, in search of a caterer.

He was already on his way, broom and dustbin in hand, so I turned helplessly to face the situation behind me.

But Drake, cool as a cucumber, had already led Danielle away somehow. Now she was smiling. He was pointing at something and she was laughing.

God. He was one smooth man.

“Ricky, darling!” Maria's nasal voice and fluttering hands beckoned me. I took one last look at my wife, smiling next to Drake, and then I turned back to my conversation. It was in Drake's hands now, whatever 'it' was.

My stomach flopped, and my cock twitched.

WHITE LIES

“So what did you and Drake talk about?” I ventured, once we were in the cab and on our way home.

I was hoping for two things at once. Hoping Danielle would tell me the truth, and hoping she would lie to me as well. Hoping she was a virtuous and truthful wife, and hoping Drake had somehow short-circuited her wiring to be good, and made her think about telling lies...telling more lies...doing bad things.

Danielle looked down at her hands. “We talked...we talked about his photos.”

Not a lie yet.

“And?”

Danielle shrugged, but with difficulty. She had a very, very hard time telling even a white lie. She couldn't even omit things from a story without feeling guilty. Her face was getting paler and she was really sweating it.

I was dying to know what Drake had said to her that I didn't hear.

What it was that had made her drop her wine glass.

Her voice was shaking as she exhaled. “I just had no idea,” she said, “That those photos were so...sexual.”

I smiled.

“Anything else?”

“What?”

“Did you talk about anything else?” I said impatiently. “It seems like you were talking for a long time.”

Danielle looked away from me and out the window. I knew her decision was tormenting her. To tell me, or not to tell me. There was always the possibility that she didn't think it was a good idea to tell me if he had said something inappropriate, since Drake was a client.

Maybe she had decided in her own mind to just let it blow over.

Or maybe she was attracted to him. And she was making secret plans.

Whatever it was, she turned back to me, and did an unusual thing for her, by looking me right in the eye. It was unusual because Danielle did tell the occasional lie, but she gave herself away every time by fluttering her eyes away from my face. "Oh nothing much," she said. "You know how all that art talk goes over my head."

A smile.

I nodded, and looked out the window.

So now she was lying.

She was, at a minimum, covering up whatever it was that Drake had said to her.

It was good.

It was bad.

Rick, what have you started?

My stomach turned and my cock ached all the way back to the house. Danielle looked out her window, and it is anybody's guess what she was thinking about.

I set the keys on the counter. Took off my jacket. I turned to Danielle.

She had reached behind her to pull a pin from her carefully styled hair. Her eyes were on the floor, her expression distant.

I stood in front of her. She looked up at me. She seemed surprised that I was there, as though she had been so involved in her own thoughts that she had forgotten I was even in the room.

Thoughts about Drake?

I moved my hand up to her throat, and stroked the soft dent near her collarbone with my thumb while I brushed my lips over hers.

Dirty thoughts began to fill my mind. I imagined her throat hard and bulging in my hand, full of cock all the way to the soft dent at the base of her neck. I imagined the tip of another man's dick punching against the skin from the inside.

Jesus.

But the images wouldn't stop, and I didn't even try to make them. I pushed Danielle against the wall, and I pictured her tied up on a bed, her ass exposed, cum dripping down her thighs, and Drake moving around her body taking photographs.

I moved my hand under her skirt and between her legs.

When I found the material of her panties between her legs, I was surprised that it was sopping wet. She had soaked them clear through the material.

This was very unusual for Danielle, who more often than not took a great deal of patient coaxing and foreplay to get into the mood.

I twisted a finger under the fabric and plunged into her pussy.

She was so wet.

I pictured Drake, using his big biceps to slam her legs up against the wall, her feet by her ears, her arms pinned by her thighs, right next to her ass. I imagined him telling her to turn her fingers inward and spread her ass open for him. Her pussy juices melting down to lubricate her tiny asshole just before he rammed his big cock into her.

I pushed her panties aside, trying to rip them but losing patience. I pushed her down onto the floor, and she wriggled out of her panties while I unbuckled my pants.

Not the same thing as what I was envisioning, but then again, I wasn't envisioning myself.

I was envisioning another man.

I was envisioning Drake.

Picturing his cock, picturing it disappearing deeper and deeper into my wife's ass. Into her pussy, into her mouth.

I was losing control already by the time I got inside of her.

Danielle was lost in her own thoughts. I noticed it only for a second because I was also in my own little world. Her eyes were glazed over and distant.

I hoped she was imagining the bulk of Drake Reyes' hard black body against her skin, his sweat mingling with hers, his big cock filling her up, while he pounded and pounded her until she was just a messy pile of juices and exhausted flesh.

Holy fuck what is wrong with you.

I pressed her arms to the ground and began to really pound her.

But Danielle – sweet, prude Danielle, who always took so much coaxing and warming up, was already coming. Her pussy clenched my cock and she closed her eyes as she whined and I thrust myself into her even harder. Her flesh was exploding hot liquid around my cock.

I tried to hold on, making her take it for a few moments after had already cum.

But her face was still screwed up with the pleasure of her orgasm, and the idea of her showing this face to Drake, over and over and over again, sent me over the edge.

We went to bed after that, as usual. Danielle had gotten up from the floor with an embarrassed smile, and had straightened her dress out neatly just to walk to the bathroom. Her cheeks were blushed with her prude tendencies, but she was also smiling. I heard the shower turn on, and I stayed on the floor until the humidified air and scent of her soap puffed from the bedroom door as she exited. It was strange that she was being so secretive, but it was also seductive, in its own way.

She seemed to fall asleep easily. If she was thinking of Drake, it wasn't plaguing her the way it was me. She was able to put it out of her mind, unlike me.

Unlike me.

I stared at the ceiling and tried counting sheep. By the second sheep I was already seeing a huge cock dripping cum onto Danielle's lips.

I tried thinking of politics, and got no further than an image of the White House before I thought of cum-stained dresses and imagined Danielle getting fucked and then creamed in a nice evening dress, and hanging it, stained by another man's cum, in her closet.

After a time it gets sort of dull, right? But you can't do certain things to your wife. But say she sort of wants to do them, like she sort of wants someone to tie her up and gag her and fuck her in the ass?

I put a pillow over my head.

In the ass, in the ass, in the ass...

Drake's cock was almost certainly gigantic. I imagined it sliding into Danielle's ass, filling her up, spreading her open.

Sweet, prude Danielle.

She would feel guilty. So very guilty.

"But you can make it up to me, sweetheart," I would tell her. And then I would bend her over and tell her to hold her asscheeks open while I fucked her in her tiny hole. She would twist in my hands but be unable to pull her hot flesh away from my cock, and secretly she would like it. Secretly, she would love it.

Such a bad, bad, girl.

I had to jerk off again, quietly, next to Danielle. I had to move my hand slowly to not wake her, and so the pain of my desire torture me for far longer than I wanted it to, as I imagined my wife getting facefucked, and then punish-fucked, and then fucked in the ass. Over and over and over again.

TRADE SECRET

I am the one who called Drake. He answered as though he were expecting my call – not just in general, but right at that moment.

“Rick.” A statement, not a question. No need for formalities. Almost no need to explain.

My mouth was dry. Lamely, I started talking. “I know we don't have anything on the schedule, but-”

“You got time for lunch?”

Thank god he cut me off. I really had no idea where I had been going with that. There was no 'schedule.' I was winging it, flailing around, trying to talk to him about something I couldn't even explain to myself.

I breathed into the phone. My breath was nervous. “Uh...yes.”

“Meet me in...can you get to the Village by one?”

I looked at the clock. Doubt it.

“Yes.”

“Bob's. See you there.”

He hung up the phone before I could clarify.

Cassandra would straighten it out. She seemed to have eaten in every restaurant in the entire metropolitan area, because she had lured every man in all of Brooklyn and Queens between the ages of 18 and 75 to take her on a date. She seemed to be working her way through Staten Island now.

“Bob's Cajun Maison,” she said, without looking up from her computer, where she was diligently making browsing Instagram look busy. She pronounced it mason. She crunched up her nose. “It's a lot of fried.”

Cassandra, at complete odds with the rest of her personality, ate only fresh salads and sushi, unless she was at her nona's.

“Thanks.” I began to type it in to my phone.

“Wait,” she said, looking up at me, her eyes suddenly in predator mode. She sensed gossip.

I pretended not to notice.

“Who you meeting?”

I held the phone to my ear and waved her off. She scowled at me as I walked out the street. The traffic was paralyzed. I headed for the subway.

Drake shook greasy crumbs from his fingers. He had devoured a large red plastic basketful of fried pickles in about ten seconds, which was astounding, because he had, prior to that, eaten an a combo meal that included etouffee, catfish, crawdads, gumbo, rice and beans, and fried chicken.

"Is this place authentic?" I asked. Drake had moved to Chicago when he was fifteen, but he was originally from Louisiana.

He smiled at me. "No pig's feet."

I bit into my Po' Boy because I wasn't sure how to take that. The sandwich was, in fact, delicious. I could feel hours of my life getting shaved away by every bite, but it was delicious.

"So," Drake said suddenly. "You want to talk about Danielle."

My mouth was full of food. "I..."

I couldn't move my mouth. Drake waved a hand at me to tell me to stop trying to talk..

"This ain't my first rodeo, Ricky. Don't worry about it."

Don't worry about what?

"What did you say to her?" I asked him.

"When?" He bit into a fried pickle.

"Last night," I said.

The image of Danielle dropping her wine glass made me twitch with excitement again. The silky feel of Danielle's wet pussy slid, a wet ghost, over my cock.

Drake shrugged. "I asked her to dinner."

He was staring at me over his next handful of pickles, daring me to challenge him.

Or maybe expecting that I would not.

I wasn't sure what to do, and I surprised even myself by passing over his statement. I had heard him ask my wife out, and I hadn't cared about that. I was after something else.

"Not that," I said. "After that."

He sort of chuckled, and tossed the pickles into his enormous mouth. He destroyed them with his malevolent jaw and wiped his lips again. "That made her drop the glass?"

I nodded, and he smiled.

I looked away. I wasn't sure what I was even doing here. What was it that I wanted? It was just below the surface of my consciousness, where I didn't want to actually touch it.

“Look, man. You were digging it, and I know you're thinking about it. And your wife....pfffft. I can coax some wild things out of her. She'd be in to it. But look.” He leaned his big arms on the table and punched his hands together. He now looked more like a linebacker than the Drake Reyes who charmed ardent critics of his erotic photography in Brooklyn art galleries. “I'm not gonna do anything until you give me the go-ahead.”

I looked at him. I'm not sure what expression was on my face. Was he suggesting what I thought he was suggesting?

And where was my outrage?

Drake seemed to know me better than I knew myself. He seemed to know that I wanted the very thing he was offering, but that I was too paralyzed by my fear of it to act and get it done.

“Or how 'bout this: you tell me when it's gone too far, and I'll put the brakes on it.”

Then he looked down at his food. “God!” he shouted. “I can't believe you don't like these. I could eat these all day!” He licked the grease from his fingers. “Most guys, though, I gotta tell you. They just give it a try. And then they just keep wanting more.”

He was waving a fried pickle in the air.

He smiled at me.

I knew he wasn't talking about fried pickles.

THE WAIT

After that, it was nearly a week and a half of waiting. For anything to happen at all.

I wasn't even sure what, if anything, I had agreed to with Drake. Had I merely given him permission to flirt with my wife? Which was silly, because he had done that anyway, without me talking to him about it.

Or had I implied something more?

And there was the matter of my wife. I felt like an ass for what I was machinating behind her back. As much as I tried to tell myself I didn't know what I was doing, I did. I knew exactly what I was trying to do: I was trying to push the two of them into orbit with each other, to make sparks ignite.

What I didn't know, and what I couldn't be 100% sure about, was whether or not I really wanted those parks to actually ignite.

I liked thinking about it.

I liked imagining it.

But did I actually want Drake Reyes, the man I was jealous of professionally and personally, to put his big, dark hands on my wife's small breasts while he hammered his thick cock into her pussy?

And see, every time I had a thought like that? My cock got so instantly hard I had to hide myself behind a desk or sneak away to the bathroom. It was like being an adolescent again.

But I had to wait.

Drake, with his usual mystery, disappeared for a while. He couldn't be reached, he didn't drop by, he wasn't at parties or installations or openings. It later turned out he had gone to the Hamptons with some crowd of nouveau riche art dealers, Maria probably among them.

All the while he was missing, I was trying to play it cool. I wasn't going to ask him about it, or call him, or stir anything in the pot of delicious trouble I had cooked up.

Or should I?

My sweet wife went on about her normal business, which was part-time literacy volunteer work and courses at Queens.

She had no idea I had solicited a man to seduce her.

Or not.

I watched her with a new, voyeuristic interest. It's difficult to describe. She was still my wife, still sweet Danielle in her aprons. Danielle making robust and unfashionably classic meals from the Midwest, from scratch, in the kitchen of her Brooklyn Heights apartment. Danielle pushing her hair from her face and tucking it behind her ear. Danielle frowning at the news, and then writing checks to charities. Danielle curled up in a chair and reading a book. Danielle who did not want to go to any parties, not even the ones most people would cut an arm off to attend. Danielle sleeping next to me with her smooth skin and untroubled face.

Was it wrong to feed a sweet girl like this to a man like Drake?

She was my wife for chrissake.

Was this even what I wanted?

My mind went in circles, on and on and on, until I began to doubt that I had even met Drake at Bob's Cajun Maison. Or that a place as ridiculous as that even existed.

I even, in a moment of high-pitched paranoia, looked it up on the internet because I so doubted its existence.

After nearly a week of these thoughts, I arrived at the conclusion that I had spoken to Drake, that Bob's existed, and that I had eaten there. But that Drake had only been joking. He had taken me for a ride, and was playing a mean but deserved joke on a credulous white man.

And then he reappeared.

Cassandra was the messenger of his return.

"You know how Drake Reyes has been M.I.A.?"

A furrowed brow. "Has he?" I even held my hand to my head in the theater version of forgetfulness.

Cassandra's mouth moved deliciously from side to side. Gum snapped. "He has been..." she allowed for a pause, a tension-builder. "In the Hamptons. With Gia Ricocco. Fracking Gia Ricocco." She made this announcement to the entire, empty gallery. "And, I hear Maria Delacorte was there." She raised her eyebrows as if to say, you know what that means.

To hide my own interest in Drake's return, I shook my head in judgment of Maria Delacorte, whatever it was that it meant to Cassandra.

"You know they fly a fracking helicopter out there? A helicopter. So there's no traffic." She sighed and looked up at the ceiling.

Cassandra's dream, you could tell without her saying so, was to be the next Kim Kardashian.

I caught myself, as my inner monologue took on a judgmental tone.

After all, my dream, if even no one could tell, was to see my wife get fucked by another man.

DON'T BELIEVE THE RUMORS

I don't know, to this day, how Drake arranged to run into Danielle just outside of her class at Queens College. I like to imagine it, sometimes, to give everything that happened between them an extra sting. Perhaps he broke into my computer somehow. Maybe he sweet-talked Maria Delacorte into giving out too much information. Maybe he stalked Danielle, in his smooth, dark way.

Whatever it was, it was almost like he had hunted her. Just the thought of him following her, hunting her down, made me hard.

I also will never know exactly what was said between them. I'll never know what Danielle did when she saw him walking toward her, on a bright fall day. I won't know if she smiled shyly, and wondered if the magnificent black man from the gallery would remember her. I'll have to wonder forever if desire twisted inside of her, and if it traveled to the tender flesh behind her knees as a cool, sexual shiver.

Whatever she had done, they came together in the courtyard, and they talked. They must have stood very close to each other, and Drake must have watched Danielle's straight eyes fluttering with nervousness. He must have stolen glances at the curves of her body. He must have suppressed his thoughts about touching her, opening her up, fucking his come into her until her eyes rolled back in her head.

Because he was going to do all those things to my wife, and that's why he was there. But he knew he had to coax the sweet-faced Danielle very gently to his lair.

I'd give almost anything to have watched him in action. To hear his voice and watch it rolling over Danielle's skin, raising the hairs on the back of her neck, until she agreed with what he had suggested.

Even though it was plainly inappropriate.

Even though it crossed Danielle's very clear and reasonable Mennonite lines of marital conduct.

Instead, I only heard the part of the story Danielle told me when she came home on Tuesday night.

I was still being tortured by the anticipation the questioning of my own memory. I had been suffering since meeting Drake for lunch.

“Rick?” Danielle said, halfway through a plate of spaghetti I had set in front of her. Her voice was small and childlike, a voice she reserved for delivering bad news.

Bad news.

Bad news like: I forgot to pay the phone bill. I got a parking ticket. I lost the spare key to storage.

I let a shiver of excitement run up and down my spine and land with a hard thump in my crotch anyway. My breath stopped in my throat and I could hear my heart pumping harder, louder. My chest tingled with a sweet sickness.

Maybe this was it.

I looked at her attentively.

Wait for it. Do not be over-anxious.

The moment seemed to last forever. I had time to imagine her saying a hundred different things.

I've made a terrible mistake.

I did something I regret.

I am such a bad wife.

I let Drake Reyes fuck my mouth, but it's not cheating really, or at least that's what he said.

I was overpowered by my passion and now that I've been fucked properly by a real man, I think...I think I want a divorce.

I still have some cum in my throat, you want to see it?

I shook my head a little, as though I could shake my increasingly filthy thoughts out of my head.

Danielle shifted in her seat again.

“I have to tell you something. I just want to...well, it's actually something I want to do, but if you're not okay with it, then...” She looked down into her plate.

My body started to buzz even more. I had the high I used to get, back when I first met a girl I liked, back before anything had had time to happen, and definitely before it had grown stale. My chest felt like someone was sitting on it. I rubbed my fingertips together.

I had to go slow, not appear too eager.

“What is it?” I asked. I tried to make my tone genuinely curious, genuinely concerned.

She opened her eyes and looked at me. The sweet, delicious pleasure I was getting from seeing guilt swimming around beneath her skin was making me dizzy.

Danielle opened her mouth, but she seemed unable to make anything come out.

"I -" But the rest of her sentence was caught in her throat. I ran into the guy from your gallery, the photographer."

"Drake Reyes." My throat was dry and the 'k' almost choked me.

"Uh...so he needs a model, well lots of models, for his new series White, which is not..." she moved her hands across her plate, face down, to mean, not sexual like Black. "And he actually talked to me about it."

"To you?"

I was playing dumb now, because I could see Drake's plan. I knew what it was now, and I respected his smoothness.

"Uh..yeah. For like, because of all the girls in my classes. That I know. That could maybe be models."

There was something untrue, or something hidden, in what she had just said.

I had known it was coming, so I had a very ready response.

Surprised, just a little, but not too much.

Confused, just a little, but not too much.

"Oh...really? But..yeah, okay, I mean, makes sense."

Danielle sighed. "I just...You know all about the rumors about Drake Reyes, right?"

I shook my head. I did it with my eyes closed, because I would have had a hard time looking her in the eye otherwise. I accompanied it with a swig of wine so I could look like I was savoring the taste of my drink.

"No, what?" I said.

Danielle bunched up her shoulders and folded her arms over her elbows. "Well it's...that he has affairs with...his models."

I wiped my nose. Nonchalantly: "Oh, yeah, I heard something about that...but what does this have to do with you?"

"So...well, I don't think it's true, first of all. And it's that.."

There was a very, very long pause here.

"He asked me...well you remember when you wanted to know what he said to me at the gallery?"

She was all over the place. This was probably the most flustered I'd ever seen her.

And she was being duplicitous. She was avoiding the truth, or the truth was making her nervous. She was softening it, or contorting it.

I sucked in my breath, trying not to give away how excited I was.

"He just asked me if I wanted to do any modeling for him."

She breathed it out like it was some terrible confession. I would enjoy asking Drake what he had really said to her, savoring how much she had lied to me, enjoying wondering why she told the particular kind of lie that she told.

I watched her face. "I know it's weird but...okay so this is what I actually wanted to talk to you about." She laughed a little, a small laugh, for herself. "I want to do it." She looked up at me. "It's for a different project," she said quickly. She added "White," apparently so flustered she forgot she had already told me about which series it was for.

My heart was beating so quickly it felt dangerous, and adrenaline was making me shake, I wanted water but I kept my hands at my sides. I had to appear calm. Blasé.

"He's told me a little about the series. Are you right for it?"

Danielle shrugged. "He seems to think I am. I don't know, it sounds kind of fun, you know?"

I looked down at my own plate of food, and with great concentration and control, wound some spaghetti around my fork. I took a bite. "Well," I said. "I mean...yeah, if you want to do it, you should."

Danielle looked at me. I could see she was as torn as I was, half-coping for me to get her out of it by saying no, and half given in already, to temptation.

"Really?"

I wiped my mouth. "Yeah of course, why?"

"I just...you know, because everyone says he..." she let her voice trail off.

"Nah. I don't think there's anything to those rumors," I said. The words came out of my mouth slowly, like all heavy, deliberate lies seem to. I had time to think about them, as I said them. I knew by saying them, I was doing something that would change things, and I wouldn't be able to take it back later.

But I did it anyway.

I wonder, often, what went through Danielle's mind then. Was she disappointed at that moment, that I didn't believe in the rumors? Was she secretly hoping there was truth to them, and that I would try to stop her from going to Drake Reyes' to "model?" Did she need me to be a safety valve?

Or was she relieved, because she wanted to go and see him? Because she believed the rumors were true?

Or was she actually just so innocent and naive, that she thought nothing of it at the time?

The possibilities were endless, each one its own delicious fantasy, each one enjoyable on its own, for different reasons.

"Okay," she said. "Well...then..."

And was she waiting for me to stop her, here?

"I'm going to do it."

I wiped my mouth with a napkin and smiled. "Whatever makes you happy, sweetheart."

But it didn't make me happy.

When we finished dinner I fucked Danielle in the nice, sweet way we always fucked.

Or at least it began that way.

I let her take a shower, floss her teeth, crawl into bed. I turned to her, mixing just the right amount of playfulness and suggestion, treading carefully, keeping her from turning over on her side and declaring that she needed some sleep. I tugged at the strip of her nightie and it slid down her shoulder. I stroked her skin. She smiled, the smile that told me she wanted to squirm her way out of sex, but could maybe be convinced...

I snuggled up to her. I breathed on her neck, and the fine white hairs on her skin prickled in a wave from the nape of her neck to the back of her shoulder. Her breathing changed, and she rippled underneath her skin.

I was in.

I slid my hand beneath the covers, searching for her skin.

And then my mind began to wander. Away from the scene right in front of me, in which my wife was laying against a clean white pillow, unsullied and acquiescing to my desires. Away from the scene that was about to happen in reality, in which I would gently push her onto her back, spread her legs, and fuck my cum gently into her warm pussy in the missionary position.

My mind percolated, instead, with an alternate reality, the one I was trying to set into very real motion. Where my wife sat nervously on a chair, a white background behind her, and Drake Reyes told her to touch her mouth. Then he crossed the room, having discovered a problem with her neck. His fingers moved down her throat and continued, right between the edges of her shirt, unwrapping her like a present. The shirt folded away, and Drake's black hands cupped her breasts.

"No," Danielle whispered in my fantasy, but it was a no-yes, a thing she had to say even though her pussy was ripening and dripping onto her white panties.

In real life, I pushed the pillows away, and I kissed my wife on her mouth. The taste of her lips made my imagining mind skip ahead, to the moment where her lips were next to Drake Reyes' cock. She would kiss the fat tip of him, and then she would lick at his cock like a cat.

Cleaning it up.

Because it had just been in her ass...

My mind was going wild, and my cock was getting so hard I couldn't take much more of the drawn-out foreplay that was part of our ritual lovemaking. I pushed her thighs apart roughly, and I rammed inside of her. She wasn't quite worked up yet, and it was a rubbery, squeaky entry that made her gasp and freeze beneath me.

But my mind was on fire, and placed my fingers on her neck. Not squeezing, just holding her, just letting her know that I could choke her as I fucked her, just feeling the place where I hoped Drake Reyes' cock would fill her throat so full it could be seen moving under her skin...

As I fucked her roughly, though, Danielle's pussy welled up with more sweet, viscous honey than I had ever felt inside of her. She closed her eyes. Her body started to tremble, and she seemed to come, a real orgasm of gasping, wet, trembles. Later, I would wonder why. What secrets was she keeping in her head, that made her so wet? Why didn't she say anything about the way I had fucked her?

But I was lost, pounding my cum into her as deep as I could while imagining the black shaft of Drake's cock moving and out of her tiny hole.

I lay awake afterward, unable to stop my obsessive thoughts.

Would she go to him?

And what if all he did was ask her to model for White? If all he wanted was her asexual self, in asexual photos? If he was just teasing me, in the most perverse way: by leading me to believe he would fuck my wife, but then not doing it?

My heart rate was so high I couldn't have possibly fallen asleep.

YOU CAN HAVE THE PHOTOS

I was haggard the next day, and I knew Drake could see it. He had appeared in my regular coffee shop, which was odd, but not beyond the possibilities of coincidence. I realized, as I turned and nearly walked into his massive chest, that I had no idea where Drake Reyes even lived.

He wasted no time. He had his hands in pocket again, an aloofness radiating from him, and in such contrast to my own desperation that I felt like a fool.

“Your wife is coming to my loft.”

I stared at him, still shocked that he was in front of me.

“I know.”

He pressed his lips together, and his smile was one of amusement.

“All right, then. As long as you know.”

That was it, right there. Without really saying it, I knew this meant: I am going to fuck your wife.

He started to leave.

“Drake.” My own voice sounded unfamiliar to me. I walked over to him. “I want to -” I cut myself off and shifted from foot to foot. “I want to make a deal with you.”

He folded his arms across his chest. Like he had heard it all before.

“Man, you really oughta talk to your wife about this shit.”

I was always surprised by how much Drake's speech changed from the gallery to our private conversations.

“I just...”

“You really want to watch.”

How did this guy know exactly what I wanted?

I looked at him without saying anything.

He shook his head. “Nah. You can have the photos, but I'm not really into that.”

I must have looked crestfallen, because he said, almost comfortingly:

“What you do – or what I would do, if I were you – is get her to tell you about them.”

I gulped, as I imagined Danielle naked on a stool, holding a black and white photo of herself gagged with Drake's cock in her ass, across her legs, while her pristine mouth told me the story of how it all happened.

Drake sort of snorted and looked wistful. "Yeah. Guys like that one."

"But..." I almost sounded whiny, and I hated myself for it, but I was unable to stop myself. I was like an addict, pining for a hit. "Danielle won't do that."

Drake raised his eyebrows, and his eyes retreated into his own mind for split second, and then he smiled again. "I think you'd probably be surprised," he said, and I thought it was another one of his cliff-hanger sentences until he finished it, "about what Danielle will do."

And he left.

I sat down in the nearest seat. It was hard to believe that Drake Reyes was even real. I wondered if maybe I was having some kind of mental breakdown, imagining things that weren't actually happening.

But no.

This was real. I was really letting a great-looking black man seduce my wife, and I was not only doing nothing to stop it, I was helping him.

And I couldn't wait.

But the day didn't come until the end of the week, a few days later.

Danielle told me about it in the morning. She told me about it while she sipped her coffee, as though it were some ordinary part of her week.

"Oh yeah," she said. "I'm going to be later than usual tonight."

An unfamiliar sensation plunged through me, like red-hot sword. I knew what it meant that she would be late. I knew this was the moment.

I looked at Danielle.

Did she look nervous, like a woman who was attracted to another man and was placing herself in a dangerous situation?

"That works out pretty good," I squeaked. "Because I'm...I have some things...I'll be pretty late, too."

I looked down at a paper on the counter, trying to hide my excited reaction.

I realized she might think it was strange I didn't want to know why she would be late.

"Why's that?" I added. My voice felt like it was rattling inside my chest.

"Why's what?" She sounded so genuinely innocent.

"Why will you be late?"

“Oh.” Her attention flickered to her phone, and I wondered if she was just putting on an act. Trying to make it look like this was as casual as it should have been, if there was nothing more to it than innocent photos. My heart clawed inside my chest as I waited for her to answer the question.

“I’ve got that thing with Drake Reyes.”

I would replay this sentence again and again in my mind, all the way to work. What was her tone when she said it? Serious? Casual? Uninterested?

Or was it sexual? Was she panting like porn star and touching her lips? I’ve got that thing with Drake, that thing, that thing where he’s going to pound me with his huge cock.

By the time I arrived at work, I had replayed her words so many times, in so many different ways, that I had no recollection of how she had really said it.

The only thing I was sure of was that my pretty wife would be in Drake’s loft this evening.

Alone.

I could have called Danielle, of course. I could have stopped her from going to Drake’s.

Instead, I locked myself in the bathroom to jerk off over the toilet and think about what it was that she would do over there.

Maybe she would just be a model, and nothing more. A model for his White series, which Goran, our gallery’s never-present owner, had told me consisted of girls like Danielle in thrift-store clothes looking like white trash but also supermodels. Danielle fit the bill. Maybe all of this was just innocent. Just art. Maybe Danielle would sit against a white background in a scruffy white coat with her legs hanging out and Drake would take some incredible portrait of her and I could look at it all the time and be amazed by my sexy wife.

That was appealing. That she would just go over there, blush when she changed her clothes behind a screen because too much of her shoulder was showing, look into Drake’s eyes as she unhooked her bra, feel guilty, and suck my cock the next day to make up for it.

Or maybe he would reach out and move her coat open an inch more. Then an inch more.

Then he would move close to her, and his animal heat would be next to her. She would look at his muscles, think about his cock inside of her. Danielle would whisper, "I can't," and Drake would slide his dark hand between the white folds of the coat: down, down, down, to where Danielle had very naughtily left her panties off.

Then further, between the pink folds of her pussy, while she rolled her eyes closed and purred like a cat.

I grimaced as I came over the toilet, trying to be quiet so Cassandra didn't roll her eyes at me when I came out of the bathroom. Which is probably how she would respond. Cassandra's boyfriends did some truly disgusting things, and she told me about every one of them. There was nothing I could do that would make her so much as raise an eyebrow.

She would just give me an eyeroll.

The whole day went like this, with smatterings of sales and work in between dark hours in which I locked myself in my office and deliberated about calling Danielle. My fingers hovered over her sweet face next to her number in my phone. I could text her. I could stop this.

But those same thoughts eventually turned to thoughts of my wife getting fucked and gasping in pleasure as the hardest orgasm she had ever had or imagined made her shriek and sweat beneath Drake's hard body.

So I never made the call.

I HAVE TO TELL YOU SOMETHING

All women are beautiful when they cry. Maybe I'm alone in thinking that, but I really get off on it. Danielle was particularly gorgeous, a real mess, but beautiful. I watched her for a moment, and then I began to comfort her.

After all, I knew what she was crying about, but I had to pretend like I didn't.

She had come home late, as promised. I had looked up from the chair where I had been sitting, holding a book and reading nothing. I had been watching the clock and layering images of Danielle over each other, until my mind was a cloud of sick and twisted orgies and throbbing pussies and open mouths and streaks of white cum.

"How was it?" I said. I appeared, maybe, too happy. Too eager.

It's possible that Danielle had been planning to lie. It's possible that I could have amused myself with even more sweet torture from her, as she lied about what she was doing. And later Drake could have told me the truth, or at least a part of it.

Danielle had come through the door with the face of a woman who was simply going to go to bed, distracted.

But something about my question broke her almost immediately.

"Oh god," she said, and a fat tear began to roll down her cheek. She crumpled into a chair.

I looked at her with concern.

"I...have to tell you something."

I must have looked ridiculous. I was trying to look concerned, confused. But beneath my expression I knew I looked hungry.

I blinked.

What I was thinking about is whether or not I should tell her that I not only forgave her, but I wanted her to do it, that I had pushed her into it.

"What happened?" I asked sweetly.

She looked at her feet. "I did something...really bad."

Of course I had already guessed that.

What I didn't know was just how bad she had been.

I hoped it was very, very bad.

No, you don't.

Yes, I do.

I stood up. I walked to her hunched form. I stroked her back.

“What is it, darling?”

“Oh god, I can't even tell you,” she sobbed. She covered her face.

The pleasure of her guilt really was delicious, Drake had been right about that. It was so delicious I almost couldn't bear sitting here listening to her confession: I wanted to get to the part where she needed to make it up to me. Where she needed to get on her knees and show me how much she wanted me to forgive her...

She interrupted my dirty train of thought by sitting up and facing me. “I went...I have to tell you, before I even tell you what happened, I have to tell the truth...I was...I shouldn't have gone to see him.” There was a long pause while she tried out different things in her mind, and settled, finally on: “I was attracted to him.”

“This is Drake?” I said, feigning ignorance. I tried to look shocked. I put a layer of indignation in my voice.

She began to cry again. Two pretty, perfect tears squeezed from her eyes as she closed them. They rolled down her wet cheek and I imagined them cutting through a thick cum facial. I hoped she couldn't feel my erection, or my racing pulse, or the heat coming off my body.

“What did you do?” I said. I was pleased with my whisper, with my voice sounding shocked, fearful – horrified, even. It covered up my lust so well.

She looked down at her hands. She was shaking her head.

“It all started just...so normal. He just wanted to take a picture of me. I was sitting on his chair....and then...”

And then he stood in front of me, and he unzipped his pants, and his cock was so huge and so beautiful, that all I could do was stare at it. He held it in his hand and he grabbed me by the hair, and I pressed my lips closed because I am your sweet and virtuous wife, but his cock was so enormous that it just pried my mouth open. And in it went, and once it was inside, it started to stretch my jaw open wide, wider than I have ever opened my mouth before. But it tasted sweet, and I decided I liked it. He asked me if that was the biggest cock I ever had in my mouth before, and my mouth was so full it was all I could do to murmur an unintelligible sound and sort of nod, while my eyes watered just like they are now..

“...and then...I don't even know how it happened...but I....”

I swallowed gallons of his cum, and let him fuck my mouth on the chair, on the floor, on the bed with my head hanging over the side. I lay down on my stomach on an ottoman and balanced there with my heels in my hands and let him gag me until a puddle of spit was on the floor and then I swallowed and swallowed and swallowed his cum until my belly was round and full....

“I kissed him.”

It was convenient that the sigh that escaped me was one of disappointment. Danielle could believe it was the disappointment of her infidelity, and I could express the raw dissatisfaction of her doing something so banal, after I had worked myself up into such a froth.

“Did you do anything else?” I said.

I tried to sound like I was angry, but my voice was hungry. It would not have fooled her ordinarily, but Danielle was too distraught to notice.

She shook her head and more fat tears fell from her eyes.

And now, I was faced with a new challenge. Well, two, actually. I wanted to have sex, and I wanted to do something that would not push Danielle away from Drake permanently. But either of these things would require a carefully laid plan, and I didn't have one. I had so convinced myself that my fantasy was being played out that very night that I had not even considered what to do if Danielle came home and said something like this.

My mind raced.

I did the only thing I could think of. I feigned being distraught. I told Danielle I needed some time to myself, that I needed to think about what she had said.

It was mean, because she felt really terrible, crying where I left her on the couch. I liked her feeling guilty, but not guilty like that. I didn't want to hurt her, and I didn't want to manipulate her too much, not to the point of it being mean. I knew I shouldn't be manipulating her at a moment like this.

But I was being driven by my own needs, and I was being selfish. So I locked myself in the bathroom, and I jerked off, conjuring the image of Danielle prone on an ottoman, her spit gushing from her mouth with every punishing thrust of Drake's cock into her open throat.

Then I sat on the toilet and held my head in my hands. I wanted a way to get Danielle back into Drake's apartment, and back into his bedroom, and on her knees while he fucked her – but without having to tell her that I wanted it. I wanted Danielle to just go be a very bad little whore, and I didn't want to take any responsibility for having to tell her that's what I wanted.

It hit me, there in the bathroom.

I was being a huge dick. I looked at myself in the mirror. I needed to talk to my wife. Tell her what I really wanted. Not be an ass.

I opened the door.

I sat down next to her on the bed, and she blinked through her tears hopefully.

Would I forgive her?

I'll forgive you, if you do just one thing, and that's go back to Drake's apartment right now and measure the size of his cock with your mouth...

God. What the fuck was wrong with me?

I exhaled.

“I need to tell you something,” I said quietly.

The sound that Danielle made was incredible. I had never heard her voice that loud, I had never heard it that strangled or rough. Danielle has a voice like a quiet lark, always melodious, always smooth. She never lost control of it. She never raised it.

She snatched her purse. She walked to the door and she threw it open.

I followed her. I made the usual pleas, the kind husbands make when a wife is angrily putting on a coat.

She turned to me and her face was red, and she said nothing, but she pointed at me with her finger, which seemed almost sharpened like a knife, and I knew I had better let her go.

I sat down on the couch.

Somehow, this had all gone wrong.

But what had I expected?

Had I even really wanted it to go right?

I was trying to think, and I was trying to think rationally, but my brain was full of a fever, and I couldn't get a coherent thought through.

I know I should have talked to my wife. I know I should have put my needs aside and thought about her.

Believe me, I wanted to do that. I wanted to.

But I wanted to do it the way you want to quit smoking. They way you want to have one reasonable glass of wine for dinner.

It's the right thing to do.

But you're not going to do it, and you know that from the start.

I squeezed my head in my hands.

Stop thinking like this. Stop thinking of how to get what your cock wants, and think about how to get Danielle's trust back.

But I still believed there was a way to get Danielle's trust back, and still get what I wanted.

I was thinking of how to do just that the entire time she was gone.

All I had said to her, after all, was that I wasn't as mad as she might expect. That I had an unusual fantasy, and that her kissing Drake had not upset all the much...in fact, it had kind of turned me on.

"A fantasy?" She had asked. "Like a fantasy to see me with another man?"

I had nodded.

"Having sex?"

Nod.

"But not really, right? This is bad because it was real. You wouldn't really want that?"

I had not shaken my head.

And she had lost it.

But there had to be a way to reel her back in.

Fuck. I shouldn't have told her. I should have let her make more mistakes, I should have let Drake reel her back in. He was obviously better at this than I was.

I closed my eyes.

I wondered where my wife was, but every thought ended up back at Drake's loft, a place I had to imagine, with Danielle crying softly on his couch, and his hands moving down the folds of her shirt. Brushing her tits lightly, once, twice, three times, until her nipples were hard little pebbles beneath her conservative bra. Danielle lifting her eyes, meeting his stare, and his mouth covering hers...

I was nearly falling asleep when the door clicked open.

Danielle entered.

She closed the door behind her.

The coat and scarf she had thrown on hastily were now neat and tidy. She unwound the scarf, which was tied carefully and fashionably now around her neck.

Her face was strangely calm. She was almost...

What was she?

I didn't trust her placid expression.

"Where did you go?" I said. My voice was almost accusatory.

She pulled her coat from her shoulders.

"I walked."

"Where?"

"Around."

"For three hours?"

She shot me a look. "Why are you talking to me like that? You're the one who just told me you want me to have sex with another man."

She had me there.

But three hours did seem like a long time to just be...walking.

"You didn't go see Drake, did you?"

I have no idea why I asked that question.

She glared at me. Her look said: – and this was a very rare look from Danielle, very rare indeed – it's none of your business.

"I think," Danielle said, and her voice was calm to the point of sounding robotic. "I may have overreacted. I...I am just going to go to bed, and maybe we can talk about this some other time. I'm...I feel really tired."

I stared at her. I had no idea what to say. This was completely unlike her. Danielle never kept secrets. She never went to bed to think things over. She wanted to have it all out.

My wife went to bed, closing the door behind her to indicate I was not welcome.

I put my face in my hands and rubbed my skin, trying to block out all of my crazy thoughts, and all of my sexual thoughts. Maybe I should have gone to knock on the door. Maybe I should have put the brakes on everything.

But I didn't.

I was awake all night.

A chorus of thoughts rose up inside of me, each one competing for attention and dominance.

I was awake thinking about whether Danielle had gone to see Drake that night, and if she had, why she had done it. It called into question how guilty she felt, if she went running back to the man she had kissed.

Or maybe she had just been angry and wanted to get revenge.

Or maybe she had done more than kiss him.

Or maybe she had decided that I had given her permission to do whatever she wanted with Drake.

Or maybe, you fucking idiot, she didn't even go see Drake at all?

I went in circles, wondering, until my mind got busy imagining not whether she had gone to Drake's, or why...but what she had done there. If he had pulled her into the apartment with his charming smile, leading her by the hand to his bedroom. Don't worry, little doll, Drake will take care of you...

On and on.

MORNING AFTER

When Danielle emerged from the bedroom in the morning, she was fresh-faced and appeared untroubled.

Like she had gotten a very good night's sleep, which was painfully in contrast to how I felt.

It also felt like a betrayal. How could she have slept well, even if she only kissed him?

She smoothed her hair, draping all of it over one shoulder. She brushed a strand from her face and took the cup of coffee I set in front of her.

"Look," she said. "I...I overreacted. I'm the one who did something bad yesterday, overstepped my bounds. I want to..."

She looked up at the ceiling. Something was strange about the way Danielle was talking to me. I couldn't put my finger on it.

"I want to tell you this. I knew something like that was going to happen with Drake, but I put myself in that bad position anyway-"

She stopped short, as though someone had interrupted her.

I looked at her. She pressed her lips together and her eyes swam around the room.

Who was this person?

A sinking feeling began to creep over me, a possibility I had thought of and imagined but never really believed would materialize. I had been so selfish, thinking only of what I wanted, that I hadn't given any real thought to the idea that Danielle herself might want, really want Drake Reyes.

Without my machinations, or arrangements, or bringing them together.

The possibility existed that Danielle herself had sought him out, or followed him, or put herself in his orbit. That Danielle herself had asked to be a model.

No. No, no, no, no, no. This was my idea. I was in control.

I needed to stop this. All of it.

Danielle seemed like a stranger in my house, as I watched her try to form her next sentence. What was she going to tell me? That she couldn't help but fall for Drake Reyes, that she had gone after him herself, that in spite of her sweetness and loyalty and belief in marriage, she was going to throw it all away...not for me, not because of what I wanted...

but for herself.

“Honey, listen -” I began, speaking quickly, wanting to somehow stop everything like I had an emergency brake.

But she held up her hand, and cut me off. “Listen. I just have to say this...I'm...I'm not comfortable with it. Any of it. Not what I did, and not what you said.” She sucked in her breath.

My heart felt stomped on. I could feel the wet, throbbing core of my desire, the one that had been so close to my grasp, getting wrenched from my hands. I could also feel a sense of betrayal – which I knew was ridiculous, given how much I had manipulated things until now – creeping over me, cold and painful.

But Danielle had her mouth open to say more. “I...” she looked up at the ceiling again, and her mouth got turned up in the slightest bit of a smile. “Okay...I'm uncomfortable with it...”

I was actually so riveted on her now, that a bomb could have gone off without me even noticing. My heart seemed to stop, slam! Right against my chest.

“I'm uncomfortable with it, but I'm also...not.”

I gave a shaky exhale.

I had no idea what I wanted anymore. In just minutes, I had gone from wanting to wanting to stop, from guilty manipulator to betrayed husband, and back again, and in circles.

I felt ill.

But desire is a strong force. It twisted inside of me, awakening again. Interested.

“Are you really into it?” she asked, and she seemed to be peering at me like I was a rat in a cage. Probing me, to see what I would say. “Into seeing me with...him?”

She was meeting my eyes now.

This is the detail I will always remember best, though it seems strange. This cool, direct look from Danielle. She never confronted anyone with her eyes that way, not about anything. And the last thing I would have imagined her being so direct about would be this. Sex. Sex with another man, at my request.

I realized that I had never expected this moment to come.

I realized I hadn't wanted it to come like this.

Who in the hell was this woman?

I had never expected Danielle to just...agree to this.

Was she turning the tables on me somehow?

Had Drake told her of my plans, and given her this idea?

She blinked at me. Her face was as sweet as ever.

I had nothing to say.

'Are you really into it?' she repeated. "I need to know."

"It's not something I can explain easily," I said, and my voice was shaking as well. "I just...it gives me a high, thinking about it. A high like...when we first met, you know? It's about....I don't know..."

I was being more honest, speaking that much out loud to her, than I had been with myself for a long time.

"Sex has been better," she admitted, "since you started thinking about it."

I jerked my gaze back to her face.

Was this my wife? It almost seemed like someone had snatched her body.

I had never imagined her saying something like that.

"Oh come on," she joked, but she put her hand on her mouth with slight embarrassment. "We haven't had sex like that for so long. And then after you told me about...what you were thinking..."

It was cute that she couldn't bring herself to give it a name. Now that was more like Danielle.

Then she smiled.

I had been up and down so much in this conversation I was afraid to trust what seemed to be happening. I wondered if she was laying a trap for me.

What kind of trap would that be, Rick?

Danielle flipped her hair. It was a change of subject.

I was disappointed, but it gave me some time to think of what I wanted to say to her, how I wanted to explain things.

"You have to go to work," she said.

"I can't," I whispered.

This was a turning point. Really. Because the old Danielle, the Danielle I had always known, would have scrunched up her nose and asked why. She would have expected an answer like, I haven't taken a shower.

The old Danielle would not have done what this woman did, which was let her eyes fall down – immediately, not as though she had been searching for anything else – to my cock. The shape of it must have been visible in the fabric of my pants, because it was so hard I couldn't walk.

And then she smiled.

“What do you want me to do?”

Half of me wanted to finish our conversation. Half of me wanted to know what it was that Danielle wanted from Drake Reyes. Half of me wanted to hear it, over and over again, hear exactly how it felt in her heart when she saw him.

The other half of me wanted to fuck her brains out.

The possibilities. The things I wanted Danielle to do flashed through my mind, every one of them filthier than the one before.

But I couldn't say those things to her. Not now.

I probably wouldn't ever be able to do them to her, that's for sure.

But Drake could.

“What do you think Drake would want you to do?” The words were out of my mouth before I had a chance to think about them.

My heart flopped around in my chest in the milliseconds between what I said, and her reaction.

But my wife seemed to change in appearance, suddenly unlike herself to the point of being unrecognizable. Her eyes flickered with mischief.

And she slid to the floor, onto her knees. She crawled in front of me, her eyes on mine. She smiled. It was a nervous smile, to be sure: this sexy, vixen-like behavior was well outside Danielle's ordinary personality. I tried to make no sudden moves, almost like I was coaxing a wild animal toward me.

An animal I would fuck.

An animal I would fuck in the mouth.

But it was Danielle who slid the belt from its buckle, Danielle who reached in, and found my hard cock. Danielle who twisted my boxers and pants away from it. My cock sprung into the air, harder than ever before.

“Show me what you would do,” I whispered. It was another escape of words from my mouth, without much thought behind them.

Danielle lifted her eyes. Her face was angelic in the late morning light, and her brown hair had a honey-colored glow. Her fresh, farmland features were looking particularly young in the light, so she was almost like the high-school girl you dreamed about, the one no one could touch because she was always at youth group...

The head of my cock felt like it was going to fall off, just looking at her.

And then she said:

“Show me what you think he would do.”

Her words set up a chain reaction inside of me, one that pulsed through me with such intense eroticism I was certain I was going to come all over her face right then and there. But it also disconnected all of my inhibitions, all of my rationality.

I grabbed her by the back of the head, and took my cock in one hand. I was, I think, planning to stroke my shaft while Danielle sucked just the tip of me. That's all I could really get her to do, usually.

I pushed on her head, and then the animal inside of me got control of me. Show me what you think he would do...what he would do...

Drake would take your hair and pull it around his fist like a handle, and then pump your face over his cock, all the way to the base, all the way to where your chin was smashed against his hairy, huge balls...maybe he already has.

I pushed her mouth onto my cock, and then down. Down further. Her wet mouth twisted a little, as she gagged, but I kept going, and she barely resisted. My whole shaft became enveloped in the heat of her mouth, and I leaned backward and closed my eyes. I pushed on her head, and I felt her lower lip touch my balls.

Then I lifted her up. And then pushed her down.

Her throat made sticky, wet sounds as her head moved up and down my shaft, guided by hand in her hair.

I know I should have looked down, to enjoy the view of my wife gagging on my cock, taking me deep in her throat. But instead, I imagined her mouth spread even wider, her throat even more punished and filled, her gagging even more exaggerated, for Drake Reyes' cock.

I pushed her hard onto my cock with that thought, and I felt her gag and twist in discomfort. I held her there as long as I dared, and then, just in time, I yanked her away from my cock and held the tip of my dick against her lips as I came.

My cum spilled out onto her lips and drenched them, and I pictured the rivers of cum that Drake would pour into her mouth. Drake would probably tell her to hold it in her throat, and taste the bitterness of it, before he closed her mouth and made her swallow.

I didn't say any of this, of course, and I didn't tell her to lick my cum from her lips, as Drake almost certainly would have done. Wouldn't he? Wouldn't he tell her to lick it all off? I liked the idea of doing it, but she had disarmed me so much I was afraid to ask.

Danielle let her head fall forward, to hide her face, and made a funny sound. I wasn't sure what it was until she made it again: she was laughing, a kind of giggly, nervous laugh.

When she looked back up at me she had wiped the cum from her lips.

Then she sat back in her chair.

The same strange expression, the one that made her seem so unlike herself, crossed her face again. She was serious, as suddenly as she had been laughing. Then she threw another complete curve-ball at me.

"I don't know, Rick, if I can do anything more than the fantasy."

I was sitting, stunned, in the chair, with my cock still out.

What was going on here?

And then she said, or at least I think she said:

"For now."

PHOTOS

I practically charged at Drake when he arrived at the gallery that day. I wasn't sure what I was doing: going toward him in greedy, lustful desire, to rip the photos from his hands? Or angrily, because this was the man who had lured my wife into his loft? Seduced her? A man who could be playing any kind of game?

He held his hands up as I moved toward him. Be cool.

He was flashing extra charm around for Cassandra, talking to her about some episode of trash TV that had been on the night before. Cassandra was snapping her gum and squealing with delight.

She loved Drake Reyes and she would fuck him “in a heartbeat.”

I waited, squirming underneath my skin.

I finally managed to usher him into my office. I turned around as soon as we were in the room. My eyes were on the envelope in his hands which obviously contained the photos. But my mouth was already moving on the other thing I wanted to know.

“Did Danielle come to your apartment?”

Drake looked from the photographs to me as he extended his hand.

“That's my studio,” he said wryly. “So, yeah.”

I greedily opened the envelope and spread the photos on the table.

“But did she come..back...” I lost my train of thought as I took in the glossy black and whites. There was very little lewdness in them, and yet there was.

My eyes traveled over Danielle's slim figure against the white background. Only her eyes, the faint shadows of her arms, were visible. Gray, almost fading into the white. The effect was eerie, sort of like how I felt about my wife right now. Unsure about her shape and form for the first time.

“I meant...after that.” I was still talking. ‘After the shoot. Did she go back?’

Amusement, and maybe a bit of cruelty flickered across Drake's face when I looked up at him. “Why do you ask that, man?” he said.

I shook my head.

“No reason.”

Drake shook his head. “Look, I'm straight up. That's the best way to be. So if you two start playing some game with each other – that's cool. That's your business. But it won't end well.”

“But did she go back there?”

Drake shook his head again, like I was a dumb child who just wasn't listening.

He motioned with his head toward the photographs. “You got everything right there. That's all that happened that night. It was a tame night. Things get too weird, that'll be it, too. I don't like a bunch of complication.”

He swung his trendy suit jacket from his shoulder, put it on, and turned up the collar of his shirt.

He looked me in the eye. “I have to go,” he said.

His expression, however, was asking me if I understood what he was saying.

Which I believed I did.

I mean, didn't I? He wasn't going to get involved in some kind of complication here. Take sides. Share secrets, if he even knew them.

So I nodded.

As soon as he left, I was in turmoil again.

What had I implicitly agreed to with him?

I felt like both Drake and Danielle needed careful handling now, to maneuver them into the place I wanted them to be.

Where is that, Rick?

Fucking.

Dirtily fucking.

But all while loyal to me.

I moved my fingers over Danielle's body on the white photograph, and spikes of desire prickled underneath my skin. It was almost like actually touching her.

My cock was hard again.

I felt like my body was getting taken over by my desire.

Fuck Rick. You need to get a hold of yourself.

I put the photos away in a drawer, and I made myself go out and talk to Cassandra. Maybe she had some gossip to distract me. I had been thinking of Drake and Danielle for half a day straight now, and I was exhausted. I needed to clear my head with some mindless celebrity reality TV updates.

I think I believed, at the time, that I would have more time. Time to think about what I really wanted, time to explain it to Danielle. Time to figure out if my wife was being more secretive than I wanted her to be.

Time to wonder why I needed another man to fuck Danielle like a whore, when I could just do it myself.

Because that's what this seemed to be boiling down to.

I thought, because things had taken so long to heat up to this point, and because Drake had disappeared to the Hamptons after we talked the first time...I thought I would be waiting and agonizing for weeks before anything happened again.

The way Drake left my office, he almost seemed like he was going to dump us, as a couple. I didn't even know what I thought that meant.

After all, not much of anything had happened yet.

I thought there would be a lot more time to think things over.

But I didn't have much time.

Not at all.

DISAPPOINTMENT

When I got home, Danielle was already there. She was sitting in the armchair by the largest window in our lovely Brooklyn apartment. It overlooked Clark Street, and we could see the slightest sliver of the Brooklyn Bridge and the Manhattan skyline between buildings.

She had her hands clasped in her lap.

There was a different air about her. It was subtle, but she seemed different. Perhaps in the way she pushed her hair back from her face, and lifted her chin. Maybe because she looked directly at me.

I was already slowing, feeling cold, knowing what was coming but not quite believing it.

“I saw him today.”

I felt like liquid nitrogen was sliding through my body.

Today? Today, today?

I sat down on the couch. Danielle watched me, but she watched me like she was watching an insect.

I was stunned by the timing, but my heart was also leaping with sudden excitement.

I searched her face for guilt.

Her eyes fluttered down, suddenly breaking her calm demeanor to pieces.

She squirmed in her chair.

“Why today? I thought...” I stammered.

What had I thought? That it made a difference how soon my wife fucked another man after I told her I wanted her to?

Well, yes. Maybe I did.

Danielle hesitated. “We went to lunch. He said if I had some time, he needed a few more shots...”

She was nervous, she felt guilty, and... she was a little turned on. I could see all of these things playing out on her face.

Hundreds of questions bubbled up in my mind. Like who called whom, when, how...

“Tell me,” I whispered. It was all I could say.

She paused. She twisted her fingers together.

"I told him I was nervous," she said.

What in the hell?

I pressed my fingertips together to stay calm. I didn't want to spook her, now that I was so close to getting her to tell the story.

"And what did he say?"

"He didn't say anything." Danielle closed her eyes. For a second I thought I might be losing her. "He told me that I was free to go home...at any time. If I was nervous about...you know. That I was...nervous." She was not making a ton of sense, but it was almost better that way. "But I wasn't. Not really."

I imagined Drake's hot stare, sucking Danielle in, hypnotizing her.

In the bathroom at the restaurant, she considered running away. She knew it was what she was supposed to do. Thank him, leave, and come home to tell me everything.

Apologize for almost violating their vows of marriage.

Except she thought about what I had said.

Danielle was looking at me now. Surely she could see how turned on I was. Surely she could see that I wasn't asking for her confession because I wanted her to feel bad.

So she didn't leave. She went back to the table instead.

She stopped speaking and looked at her hands.

"And then what, Danielle?" I prompted. My cock was aching now.

Fuck, I hoped it was good. Part of me hoped it wasn't, but that part of me was being overtaken by the animal inside of me. And the animal wanted to see Danielle's pretty pink mouth open and tell me how Drake had pumped her full of cum.

He had guided her into a taxi, and then into his loft.

He turned on the lights – bright, photography lights under umbrellas – and closed the blinds.

He had told her not everything that happened in his apartment ended up in his work. He had handed her a glass of wine as though he were having an ordinary conversation about the weather. He would use only what she approved of. But he would photograph everything.

"And did you still think he just wanted you for a model?" I asked.

She had known from the time he first spoke to her that he wanted her. I wanted her to say it.

Danielle chewed on her lip and looked down.

“Sort of,” she said.

Oh Danielle, I thought, and a shiver of pleasure and pain rippled through me. That's bad. That's very bad.

“I knew I was supposed to get angry, or nervous, or at least object somehow to what he was saying. I was...it was pretty clear he was asking me to...I was about to have an affair...” She whispered the word 'affair.' “And he was telling me he was going to photograph it. He wasn't even asking.”

She knew she was supposed to say something.

“But you didn't say anything?”

She shook her head.

“And why not?”

Danielle looked up at me. And very suddenly, her face changed.

“I was turned on,” she said, and her voice was almost a whisper.

I closed my eyes and imagined her wet from the tension that had built up all evening. I pictured her shifting in a seat in front of Drake like she was now.

“Were you wet?” I said boldly.

“What?” Danielle breathed. Her face flushed a little.

“Were you wet?” I looked down between her thighs.

Danielle let another puff of air escape her mouth. “I...maybe.”

Her face flushed more.

“Keep going,” I prompted. “And tell me everything that happened. Every detail.”

She looked at me hopelessly, and then an expression almost like recognition moved across her face. Did she realize this was the price of her cheating?

She told me the story in halting, trembling sentences. But she ground the details from inside of her.

Drake had watched her. “You're still nervous.”

She stared at him. She was unable to move her mouth and explain what she was actually feeling.

He moved toward her. “You feel bad about Rick.”

I knew that was part of it.

But there was something else.

Danielle was still the sexually timid girl she'd always been.

Drake moved closer.

“Or...you're worried about me hurting you.” He placed his fingers on her neck. “You've never done this before.”

He leaned toward her.

“That's why I like you. We'll go slow.”

“How did that make you feel?”

Danielle shrugged. I thought she might start crying. I knew I was pushing her to her limits.

“It gave me goosebumps,” she finally said. Then she looked at me. “This is part of why I wanted to...try this.”

As she said it, she seemed to take on a little more confidence. Another flicker of it, like a moment before. She spat out the next part rapidly.

He had taken her clothes off, and pushed her gently on the bed, and wound an electrical cord around her wrists. He pushed her thighs apart.

He lowered his head, and his lips brushed against her thighs. He spent a long time there, kissing her inner thighs, and it was then that she knew she wouldn't stop, no matter what happened. No matter what he asked her for. She had started feeling guilty, but there was no way out – not with the electrical cord, and his mouth getting closer and closer to her wet pussy.

His tongue found her clitoris easily-

I stopped her, told her to give me more detail. She shook her head and blushed.

“Then how did it feel?”

It was hot. His mouth was hot on her flesh and he was...good at what he was doing. Professional. Right away she found herself twisting and howling in pleasure. Somehow he had found the precise place to send a spike of ecstasy through her. He licked her into an orgasm over a long time, letting her orgasm rise up inside of her until she was begging him to let her come, and then pulling away to photograph her. While she waited for him to finish her off.

My cock was hard and I was begging Danielle with my eyes for more. She had stopped talking, and she was looking in my direction, but her eyes were distant.

Had she been surprised that Drake wanted to tie her up?

Surely she had known. Surely the photo had given her some idea of what she was getting into?

“And then what?” I panted.

Danielle shook her head. “That's all.”

I tried not to let the disappointment crush me.

“You didn't have sex with him?” I said, bluntly.

She shook her head.

“You didn't even see his cock?”

She squinted at me strangely. “No.”

Was I relieved? Or disappointed?

My cock was hard anyway, and I imagined Danielle squirming on Drake's bed. My wife, tied to the bedposts, damp with sweat, her legs open and smeared with her pussy juices, begging Drake Reyes to make her come.

While he slowly, patiently, circled her and photographed her.

I swallowed. “Was it good?”

I knew she wasn't sure how to answer the question.

“What should I say? I don't...” her eyes fell on the floor.

“Say it was good,” I said, hoarsely.

Was that what I wanted?

Her eyes moved back to my face. “What?”

I moved over to her, moving on my knees. She involuntarily closed her knees together, but I pried them open and began to slide my fingers along the inside of her thigh. “Say it was good. Say it was better than anything you've ever gotten from me.”

Danielle looked at me for a moment. And then it was like a light went off in her head.

“It was, though.”

Her voice seared through me, and I closed my eyes for a moment to submerge the rising, liquid heat that by itself almost made me burst on the floor.

“Tell me how he did it.”

“More?”

I nodded, moving my finger up to her hair, brushing it with my own finger. A sliver of her clit poked between her lips. She shivered when I brushed past it.

“Did he start right in?” I prompted.

“No,” she said. “He kissed my thighs, and then he pulled me open and started very slowly, but right on the most sensitive part. He found it so easily. I was almost in pain after just a minute.” She shivered again.

“Here,” I said, pressing against her clit.

“But he did something different,” she breathed. “He found exactly where to press. It was like...a shock went through me.”

“And I don't.”

“No,” she said, and as I stroked her she became even more breathless. “You never do.”

I wanted to keep playing this game, but it was getting too hard for me to hold myself back. I grasped her by the back of her knees and jerked her legs upward and near her face. I pulled her panties away from her wet cunt, just long enough to thrust inside of her, and ignored her light squealing as I pummeled my cum into her very wet, very hot pussy.

“Next time,” I said, trusting deep inside of her, hard, “I want you to fuck. Drake. Reyes.”

I saw her mouth open, as an apparently sneak orgasm overtook her, and she grasped my neck to hold herself steady while she pulsed around my cock and her legs trembled on my sides. I hammered my cum into her.

I lay on top of her, and we were both panting. I pushed her sweaty hair from her forehead and kissed her damp skin.

“Is it wrong to be doing this?” she whispered, finally.

So wrong. So deliciously wrong. So horribly wrong.

“No,” I said. “But what do you think?”

I have no idea what I expected the answer to be, or even why I asked the question.

But I wished I hadn't, because she smiled a wooden smile, and then she squirmed away and walked to the bathroom.

And I was left to wonder about the answer.

MORE PHOTOS, LESS TIME

Cassandra was encased in a red pleather atrocity that was pushing the boundaries of decency, even if she was in the gallery to play up some kind of twisted retro Brooklyn chic.

“That's obscene,” I told her, without needing to explain what I was talking about.

She puckered her lips into a kiss and kissed me fuck off.

“Mr Reyes dropped off an envelope for you,” she hollered through her nose, once I was halfway to the office door.

I turned back to her, very slowly, my heart beating in my chest.

It had been nearly a week of agonized waiting. Drake had no reason to come in to the gallery, and I had not called him, because I didn't want to reveal how eager I was. But I wanted the photos desperately. I thought about them all the time.

Cassandra was looking down at her desk as I walked back, shifting my briefcase from hand to hand.

“Did you look at it?” I said, and immediately wished I hadn't.

She put one red-clawed hand on her hip and tossed her hair over her shoulder. “No. I closed my eyes and took it from him and walked to your office without looking at the outside of a plain manilla envelope. Christ.” She went back to what she was doing, but her interest in gossip overcame her and she paused with her pen in the air. “Why? Is he blackmailing you?”

“Never mind.” I walked back to the back room, attempting to look casual but moving more like an Olympic fast-walker.

A thick manila envelope was on my desk.

It sort of did look like an ominous scene from a movie about blackmail. It was centered squarely on the glossy mahogany desk, in the shadows.

But it wasn't blackmail. It was photographs of my wife, as she 'modeled' for Drake Reyes. Photographs he took of her between licking her into the best orgasm she'd ever had.

I snatched the envelope. It was still sealed, and it had Drake's signature over the seal. What a guy. Professional to the end.

It was relief that Cassandra had not delved into the envelope. She wasn't mean-spirited, but she couldn't keep her mouth shut about anything under the sun. If she saw the photos, the news would spread through the entire art community in under 20 seconds.

I closed my eyes, and tossed the envelope into the top drawer of my desk.

I had spent the entire week wasting time, thinking about my wife fucking Drake Reyes. I needed to take a break from it. I needed to get some work done.

I needed to pretend to myself that the only thing in the room, the only thing in the universe to me, wasn't that envelope and what it contained.

I opened my laptop and stared at the screen.

I felt like the envelope was burning through the desk. The letters and shapes on the screen were meaningless to me, as much as I tried to focus on them.

I wanted to save the envelope as a treat for myself. As a reward for getting something done besides imagining my wife getting fucked by Drake.

The phone was ringing for almost a full minute before I realized it and picked it up.

"Jesus," Cassandra spat into the phone. "Are you asleep in there? I have Michael Winehouse on the phone. He says it's important."

"Okay...yeah, okay."

"I told him you were talking to a client."

"Thanks."

"You okay Mr. Showalter?"

"Yeah."

"Okay. Answer the phone next time, then."

I talked to Michael Winehouse. I don't remember the conversation at all. Sweat was forming on my upper lip and my eyes kept retuning to the handle of the drawer I had closed. To the idea of Danielle with her hands clasped together as Drake Reyes wound the electrical tape around her wrists. The soft poof as she fell onto his bed, the look on her face as he pushed her thighs apart.

I knew none of this would be in the photographs.

Was I glad of that? Or did I want to see it, every last detail? Was this all better left to the imagination?

“So, the twentieth then?”

Who is talking to you, Rick?

“Uh...” I said. “Let me just....”

“You said it was fine.”

I didn't even know what we were talking about, or what month this “twentieth” would fall in. It took me a moment to remember I was talking to Michael Winehouse.

Didn't matter. “Yes, Michael, absolutely. Let me just send you back to my assistant so she can confirm everything for us.”

I dialed Cassandra. “Cassandra,” I hissed. “You have to find out what date, and what event I talked to Michael about. Just...act like you're confirming everything.”

Cassandra was silent. I could almost hear her screwed-up face through the phone.

“Do it. Please,” I insisted. I had no patience for her right now.

“But what am I confirming?”

“That's what I need you to figure out. Just -”

“Weren't you just talking to him?”

“Cassandra. Please. Stop asking me so many questions. Just...figure it out.”

A pop of gum. For Cassandra, it was confirmation. I transferred the call.

Jesus Christ. For all I knew I had just lost a ton of business because I was daydreaming.

I rolled my chair across the room and locked the door. I dragged myself back slowly by the feet, opened the drawer, and smoothed the envelope out on the desktop.

The top print was perhaps a dummy print, the space almost entirely occupied by what appeared to be skin. My heart sank. I worried that they would all be so abstract that I wouldn't get what I craved.

But the next picture was of a woman's mouth. Wide open, twisted into the half-smile, half-scream of a woman who is being well-pleasured.

Danielle's mouth.

I stared at it, imagining the sounds Danielle must have made as she begged Drake to finish what he had started.

I swiped the glossy picture away to look at the next one.

Danielle's hands, bound tightly together by at least a yard of electrical cord, wound around and around, through her arms, the cord biting into her flesh.

And below her hands, a triangle of hair, unmistakably Danielle's. The curls of her sweet triangle were darker than her hair, and in the stark contrast of the photo they looked almost black. I leaned forward. Were they glistening?

I swiped the picture away.

This was a more abstract photo, with long, curved lines of darkness in it. It took a few seconds for me to recognize that it was an elegant snapshot of Danielle's wet cunt.

I wondered how long he had let her writhe in agony, wanting him to let her come, before he set aside his camera and finished the job. How he had brought her to a climax. Whether he had tasted her deep inside.

I slid to the next photo, and the next, until I had them spread on the table in front of me. My cock was aching, and I looked behind me, just to make sure the door was closed. Then, without a second thought or even a hint of remorse, I unzipped my pants and took my cock in my hand.

One photo, in particular, struck me, and I my eyes kept going to it: what seemed to be Drake's thumb, pressed against something hard to discern. It looked to me like Danielle's round, hardened clit.

In my mind, I zoomed out. To the whole scene, where my wife writhed on his bed, her eyes closed and her mouth open to pant, while Drake stroked her clit with his thumb, his skin black against her hot pink pussy.

I ignored the phone, which started ringing, because I couldn't stop what I was doing. The pictures swarmed in front of me, and the imaginary sound of Danielle gasping and moaning filled my ears. I came into a Starbuck's napkin and leaned on the table with one hand, sweaty and panting, blood pounding in my ears.

The pictures were still there but they suddenly seemed even more obscene.

What the hell am I doing?

I crumpled the napkin and hovered over the trash bin, wondering how I could get it out of here and away from Cassandra's freakish sense of smell before she came into the office for something.

As though she were a devilish spirit I had accidentally summoned, her fingers strummed on the door. She knocked and then strummed again, her nails scraping on the outside of the door. “Mr. Showalter?”

“Fuck,” I whispered.

“I...yeah, sorry Cassandra, I just...” I was stammering.

God I sounded like such a cliché.

“You okay?”

I swept the photos into the drawer and closed it. It banged and I was sure Cassandra heard it.

Why was I even hiding them? There was no one picture that looked like my wife at all. To anyone else, the photos would look like Drake Reyes had decided to take his pornographic element up a notch.

I hovered over the desk. Should I take them out? Would it be less suspicious?

“Fuck,” I whispered again. “Yeah, I’m...I just...”

I was sweating. I looked around frantically – no Kleenex, nothing. I reached into the waste-bin and took out the balled-up napkin. No time to be picky. I dabbed at my forehead with a clean side of the napkin-ball, and then I buried the whole thing under some unused paper in the wastebasket.

I felt like an adolescent boy as I opened the door.

Cassandra’s brown eyes, encircled by a maroon pencil, moved critically down my body to my shoes and then back up again.

Did she just sniff?

“What. Is going on?” Her Brooklyn accent was turned up to max.

I shook my head.

“You look pale.”

I seized the opportunity to place my hands on my stomach, giving the universal signal for being ill.

Cassandra stepped back from the room, evidently sensing she was about to smell something she didn’t like. She was like a bloodhound.

“You know something? You should just go home,” she advised me.

I shook my head.

“You know you just agreed to an installation with Michael Winehouse for October 20th? You know that?”

I blinked at her.

“You already have Cecil here that week.” She blew upward, as though her shalacked bangs could be moved, and rolled her eyes. “This is what I’m saying.” She wound a jingling arm through mine and urged me toward the door to the gallery. “Leave this with me, I’ll fix it. You’re sick. Go home, please. Now.”

I wiped my forehead, which was indeed sweaty. I hammed up my sick voice. “I just...okay. I have to get my briefcase.”

And the pictures.

Cassandra squinted, but she opened the door. “Just as long as you are out of here in the next five minutes.”

I managed to retrieve the photos from my office. They burned away in my briefcase, which I clutched on the subway like it was filled with gold.

I spent the whole afternoon looking at them. The details, the softness and the wetness, the black against white in all of its lewd possibilities and obscurities. I imagined and re-imagined Danielle’s gasping and mewling with her legs spread and Drake’s dark head between them. I zoomed in and out of my imagined scenario. In, to where I could see the pink of Drake’s tongue flicking between the engorged inner lips of Danielle’s wet cunt. Out, to where he stood looking over her as she twisted on his sheets and opened her wet mouth and asked him for more.

I jerked off twice. I can admit that.

Danielle was at a class, all the way in Queens, and wouldn’t be home until late. I paced like an animal in the house. Putting the pictures away, taking them back out again. Like an addict. I couldn’t get enough.

I turned on TV, but even though my eyes were on the screen, my mind saw only Danielle and Drake. Twisting together like snakes, one black, one white.

At seven I was an hour away from Danielle returning. I looked at the pictures again and I was ready to jerk off. Then, I decided to save it up. I decided to sit there, my imagination filling in the blanks between each shot, my fingers trembling over the glossy photos. And when Danielle got home, I would fuck her brains out. I would come inside her hot little cunt, fill her up with all of this pent-up energy. I could almost feel my hands in her hair, her skin against mine, her hot pussy wrapped around my dick.

The time passed quickly, as I sat there staring at the photos, my head filling with images and my cock filling up to bursting.

When I could finally tear myself away from my fantasy and look at the clock, I was shocked to see it was 9:00.

I blinked at the clock. Strange, that it was on an exact hour. It changed as I stared at it, my heart sinking and my mind whirling.

9:01.

I watched the red lines dance, realign, transform, from 9:02 to 9:03, until 9:07.

Where the fuck was Danielle?

Another few minutes passed, with me staring in confusion at the clock. Maybe because all the blood had gone to my pulsing cock.

I finally had the sense to grab my phone.

[Danielle][7:34]: Drake just called me. He wants me to come over. He needs more photos

[Danielle][7:45]: What should I do?

[Danielle][7:46]: What do you want me to do

[Danielle][7:48]: No one is answering the phone

[Danielle][7:49]: I'm going. If you get this and want me to stop, text me back.

[Danielle][8:00]: I'm in a cab. You okay with this?

[Danielle][8:10]: Last chance ???

I stared at the phone. My breath was choppy, and my chest was tight. I mean, this is what I wanted, wasn't it?

Why in the fuck hadn't I looked at my phone earlier?

My phone was my lifeline, I took it with me everywhere, I looked at it constantly.

Had I done this on purpose, not looking at it?

I felt almost as if there were two people inside of me, playing against each other. One, who wanted Drake Reyes to fuck my wife in the face, and the other, who wanted to only play with the idea. Get close to it, but never really let it happen.

Which one was I? The me who was holding the phone in my hand right now, like a dumbass?

I held the phone to my chest.

Where was Danielle now, at this moment?

Drake had moved faster, again, than I had expected him to. He had thrown me off, by dropping off the photos today. He had waited a week, torturing me, and then he had acted while I was paralyzed.

Had he planned it this way, all along? Did he know what kind of man I was, how obsessive I was getting?

My cock was near bursting. Now it was throbbing painfully. I was so hot I was shaking. Actually shaking.

How long would she be gone? And what would he do to her?

What was he doing, right now?

Drake didn't waste time. By now he could have his cock out and at the wet opening of her cunt. He could be pounding her with his huge cock until she screamed.

Or would he take it slow? Seduce her? Kiss her and move his hands down her body, use his fingers to stroke her to an orgasm in seconds? Get her ripe and ready, so that when he put his huge cock in her it slid into her like she was a hot, fleshy melon?

I imagined Danielle's face as his cock slid into her. Would she be forever unsatisfied after she fucked him, unsatisfied because Drake Reyes was a hard man with scars from bullet wounds and a loft in Hell's Kitchen and green eyes set in ebony skin, and a huge thick cock that he wasn't afraid to use?

Her mouth would open and her eyes would roll back in her head as inch after inch of fleshy, black meat filled her up. The lips of her pussy would spread out until they turned white as his shaft pushed inside of her...

I went on and on like this, until my erection was so full and painful I could barely do anything but sit in the chair and wait, trying to think of something else but not being able to. My thoughts became darker and darker.

Danielle had done this just because I asked her to, but after she tasted Drake's prowess she would start to fall in love with him.

Danielle had actually masterminded the whole thing, including her reluctance, to get me to think I had pushed her into it.

Yeah. Actually, I was crazy. I had been crazy to let this happen. It had been crazy to think this would work out the way I knew I really desired it to, where Danielle would feel nothing for Drake and everything for me, and just be pushed to her sexual boundaries by him, and then there would be a happy ending.

Because that's what I had thought, wasn't it?

But Danielle was a nice girl, an emotional girl. A girl who was practically a virgin when I met her. A girl who had taken almost four months to get anywhere near a bedroom.

She wouldn't fuck someone like a slut, someone she felt nothing for.
What had I done?

I had pushed my wife into a position where she couldn't help but be overcome by her emotions.

And that was definitely not what I wanted.

I imagined Danielle crying as she told me, I didn't mean to, I didn't want to, but I think I've fallen for him.

The pain twisted in my stomach, and the images of Drake's ebony skin covering Danielle's sweaty pale skin, rubbing against her body, pushing himself deeper and deeper inside of her, rose up and covered the pain with desire.

Over and over and over again, until Danielle came home.

SAFE WORD

I was still in the living room. I had swiveled a chair out to face the window, in a vain effort to take my mind off of things. It was almost 3:00am.

I heard the door click closed.

I could barely move, because my cock was so hard and I felt so dizzy from all of my emotions. So I stayed where I was.

Danielle turned on the light and I swiveled around to see her.

When she saw me, her face changed from flushed and somewhat pleased, to surprised. And then very quickly after that, to guilty. Like she had been caught sneaking in.

I must have looked like a crazy person by then. My hair was damp with sweat. I'm sure my eyes were wild and beady.

She shook her head, like she wanted me to disappear or change. Like I had said something to her accusing her of something. "I called you," she said. "I sent you like ten texts."

Seven, I thought, the shapes of each of the letters in each of her texts burned into my memory from reading and re-reading them.

I didn't say anything. I didn't want my voice to be shaky.

There was also another feeling under all of these other feelings of jealousy and betrayal. I hadn't expected it, though maybe I had known in my subconscious that I would feel it. I was enjoying the power I was wielding over her. In our relationship, Danielle had the power of wanting or not wanting sex, of it being a thing she could take or leave. I was the one who felt guilty for always wanting her, always trying to get her in bed. It felt good to have her standing in front of me, feeling guilt and feeling uncertain. Needing to make things up to me. Because even if I had been the one to suggest what she had done, she was the one who actually did it.

God, you're so perverse, Rick.

I let her wait, breathless, wondering if I would be angry, and what I would say next. I let it simmer for a moment, enjoying the show of emotions that played across her face. A sort of emotional BDSM, in a way: I was constricting her with my silence, making her submit, and doing it for my own pleasure.

“Tell me about your evening,” I finally said.

Danielle's lips, pressed together until now, parted in a very light puff of relief. She blushed.

“Uh...well I wasn't expecting him to call.”

“Come over here,” I said. My voice was hoarse and hungry. Danielle's eyes flicked over my crotch, and she must have seen the erection I had been dealing with all evening.

She sat, nervously, on the ottoman. She was less than a foot away from me now, and I reached out and stroked her knee. “Tell me in detail.”

There was a pause, while Danielle seemed both turned on and at the same time ready to cry, and then she began to speak.

When she arrived at his apartment, and he set a glass of wine in front of her, he said: “You don't want to eat, now, do you?”

She shook her head.

“Do you want to model for me?”

She shook her head again. It could have meant anything.

“Do you know what you want me to do to you tonight?”

I went cold and hot all at once. How did he get her to do this shit? What was it about his voice, or his eyes, or his physique? He was great-looking, but how did he take a timid girl like Danielle, and keep her in a room, and say things like this to her without her running away?

“What did you answer?”

Danielle shook her head. She didn't know. Or she didn't want to say. Her eyes flitted about the room, uncomfortable as she searched for some way to tell me what I wanted to hear.

I enjoyed slicing open her experiences like this. It was its own form of tying her up, making her submit to me and tell me what she did with Drake.

“We had a safe word,” she blurted.

I pressed my fingers to my lips.

“He asked me if I remembered it.”

I was dying to know how he had told her what it was, gotten her to agree to needing one. Perhaps he had suggested it, and Danielle hadn't even realized what it meant. All that it entailed, the needing of a safe word. But I didn't want to derail her. I wanted to get to where she fucked him.

“What next?” I whispered.

“He told me...” Danielle held her face in her hands. “I’m sorry, it’s just hard to say it.”

And I liked that it was hard for her.

“He told me...to take off my clothes. To...stand by the bed with my back to the door.”

“And you did?”

She nodded.

“Why?”

This was the part that I wanted to hear most. The part I wanted to know the most, to understand until I could actually feel it. But I would settle for making Danielle say it.

“I don’t...” She was squirming in her seat. “I don’t want to say.”

“Because you are attracted to him? I want to hear it,” I assured her.

Do tell. “Like what?”

She was looking at her hands.

“I like the way he controls me.”

“And I couldn’t do that for you?” I was really laying into her. I wanted her to say no.

She shook her head. “It’s not the same.”

My entire torso and groin were twisting with pain and pleasure. “Go on,” I said, and my voice was low.

She went quickly to the next part, speaking breathlessly, as though it were a confession. She was relieved to not have to tell me how she loved that Drake Reyes took control of her, how he was so much more of a dominant, masculine, alpha male that she wanted to submit to him. And not to me.

“He tied my wrists together. Then my ankles. He asked me to sit on all fours, like a cat. He said that I needed to arch my back.”

I sucked in my breath. It was quick and dirty, but it was still far filthier than anything I ever expected to hear coming out of Danielle’s mouth.

“And you just did it?”

A nod. She opened her mouth to say more.

“Do it for me now. Show me what you did,” I interrupted.

Danielle looked up at me. Did an expression of defiance cross her face? No, it was something else. She slid from the chair and got on her hands and knees. She placed her wrists together and crossed her ankles. Then she stretched like it was a yoga class, tilting her ass into the air.

Her voice was sultry when she started speaking again. So sultry it was shocking. "He pulled off his belt."

She let me sit with that, my breath trapped in my chest.

"He threaded it around my neck. Like this," she continued.

She pantomimed the winding of a belt around her neck, and then the tail of it above her, being held by another hand. By Drake's hand.

She didn't let him actually do this to her, did she? Not really?

"He held the belt in one hand, like this."

She held her hand above her neck, as though a belt were in it. I imagined Drake with my wife on a leash made out of his belt, with her ass right in front of him, with my wife on her hands and knees, ready to take whatever he gave to her because she "liked the way he controlled her."

"And then?" I prodded.

Danielle struggled with the next part. "I felt his...I felt him against my...pussy."

"Was he big?"

Danielle nodded. "I didn't know it, though. Not until...it was just the...tip. He started to push inside of me-"

I got on my knees, in front of her. I tilted her head up and pulled her hair so that she had no choice but to look at me. "What were you thinking?"

Instead of resisting, she seemed to welcome the submission. Her mouth opened more as she spoke. It was strange to see her like this, taking on a...a what? A sheen, almost, of sexuality. She was enjoying herself, almost as much as I was.

Maybe more?

"I wasn't thinking. I was...I couldn't think. And then, when he started to fill me up, it was so big that I couldn't think of anything else."

I pulled her hair, and her eyes began to water, but her mouth opened seductively. She was egging me on to do it.

I couldn't believe this was my wife.

She gathered momentum. "It hurt. His cock was so huge it hurt. So I bent over. Like this." She bent forward, like a cat. I loosened my grip to let her show me. "So he pulled on the belt."

My cock was throbbing painfully now. "Hard?"

"Gently...this time."

I pulled her hair and tilted her head back again, so her face was turned up at me.

She almost smiled, and kept going. "He choked me with it, and told me to arch my back."

I was so hot now that my whole body felt like it would rip out of my skin.

"So I did," Danielle said, in barely above a whisper. She arched her back then, in front of me, and gave me a view of what she had done for Drake Reyes as he had pushed his cock inside of her sweet, dripping cunt. Her long body dipped in the center, and her head and ass tipped up. All her holes were tilted and ready for whatever came their way. Open. Wet. Ready to be fucked. And behind her, Drake Reyes had his cock, just hours ago, in her pussy.

"He released my throat, slowly. As slowly as he was fucking me. And then he choked me again."

I imagined it. I imagined her moving her ass toward him, and he jerked on the belt, quickly cutting off her air. Her eyes watered.

"He told me not to move unless he told me to."

I took my cock out, and held it in my hand. I placed the tip on Danielle lips, and rubbed it over them as she told me her dirty story.

"Did you want to move?"

Danielle closed her eyes, and I almost spewed on her mouth as her lips formed the words, I wanted to come, against the domed head of my cock, sticky with precum.

He fucked her like this for a while, and she endured the misery of wanting to come, but having to wait, as he slowly moved inside of her. He pulled out as she was close to coming...

"And then I felt his fingers..."

I waited, my cock burning like it would split open, my eyes on her lips, pressed to my cock.

"...in my ass."

Precum gushed from my cock. "Tell me what he did."

"He just circled my..."

"Asshole," I offered.

She nodded.

I don't even know where I got the balls for this, but I lifted my cock and slapped her lips with it. "Say it," I whispered.

“My asshole.” Her lips moved to form the word in front of my cock, her breath hot on the tip of it.

“And then what?”

“I arched my back for him again. He pulled the belt so I had to.”

I imagined Danielle, her neck wrapped in the leather of Drake's belt, her face turning pink. Her ass tilted up toward his cock.

“And then?”

“He said, 'Not yet Danielle, I won't fuck you in the ass just yet. We'll move slowly to that. But right now keep your back arched, and relax.'”

I pictured her as she closed her eyes, Drake's fingers tracing around her anus. The dark skin of his cock stretching her pussy open, and the dark skin of his fingers against her little eyelet.

“I was still wet, I wanted to come.”

Danielle. On all fours, throbbing with desire to come. She had been so close.

“He put a finger... inside.”

Her words almost sliced me open.

“Lick my cock,” I ordered her.

Danielle obeyed me, immediately, and without even blushing. Her tongue made circles around the edges of the head of my cock.

“How did it feel?” I said, going back to her story.

“It hurt. But he tightened the belt and told me to arch my back and relax. Relax and push out, and then it would be much less painful for me.”

“Was it?”

She nodded.

I imagined her, unfolding the scene in my own mind as she narrated it in her clumsy, crude language. I used my cock to smear her lips with precum as she spoke.

She did as she was told, and felt his finger move into her. The pain released, and then she felt another finger in her wet cunt, moving in and out, slowly. She was surprised to find that she sort of liked what he was doing. Then he worked a finger into her pussy, next to his cock. And then a second one, stretching her open, to her limits. And then – and she will never be sure how he did this, he pushed down with the finger in her ass, against the fingers in her cunt so that everything pushed against her clitoris.

She screamed as she came, suddenly, almost painfully, with ripples moving through her whole body, through her ass. She must have moved, because he jerked on the belt, but she was not in control of herself, and he choked her hard as he thrust his cock into her and pounded at her pussy until she thought she would pass out. The orgasm seemed to go on and on, with the belt on her neck, until she felt it loosen, and then the warmth of Drake's hot cum dripping between her legs.

I made her tell me this last part, supplying the words for her because there was no way Danielle would say them herself.

"Tell me again," I said.

"His hot cum was dripping between my legs."

"And is it still there?"

She looked up at me, pleading with her eyes. She felt guilty, I knew she did, because she had enjoyed herself so much. "Yes."

I wanted, very much, to feel her pussy full of cum.

But I also wanted to what I could get my darling Danielle to do out of guilt.

"That's very bad, Danielle. How can you make it up to me?"

I had my hand on the back of her head already, but Danielle, unlike anytime before, needed no prodding to open her mouth, and take my cock inside of it.

I pressed on her head, and she opened wider, and gave in to my insistent hand. Further and further down my shaft went her lips, her wet tongue, her hard palate, then the soft back of her throat on the tip of my cock.

I moved my hips, and I felt her gag as I punched at the back of her throat. But I kept going. I could feel her throat spasming and her body shuddering to fight a gag each time I pushed deep into her throat, but it only made me harder. I grasped her hair tightly in my hand and held her face immobile as I face-fucked her. All the while imagining her on all fours, taking Drake's enormous, filling cock inside of her.

When I felt myself coming, I pulled from her throat, and tilted her head up at me. Her eyes were watering and red. I let my cum spray all over her face, and as I did, I imagined Reyes' finger deep inside of her ass.

I touched my fingertips to her cum-shiny face, and then rested then on her lips.

I had pushed her to sitting on her knees. I nudged her legs apart, and then I pushed her backward. I pulled her legs apart so that I could see her pussy, and there it was: engorged and wet. Dripping from inside of her was a streak of white, mixed in with her own juices. Her tangy scent was overlaid with the smell of cum. Another man's cum. I trailed my hand down her body, and found her cunt among her wet curls. Her clit was actually throbbing. It was easy – just a matter of a few, not even particularly well-placed strokes – to make her shudder and exhale with her own orgasm, and as she did, more of Drake's white cum oozed from inside of her, and slid down to her anus. I watched it, fascinated by my own fascination.

There was a strangeness to how, from that torrid scene, we each got up and got ready for bed. And then Danielle curled up against me, her ass against my crotch. Spooning.

She fell asleep easily, which I found a little disturbing: shouldn't she have been more guilt-ridden? More disturbed by the things she had just done?

Or had I unleashed a real Danielle, a Danielle who had been lurking beneath the blushing, girl-next-door surface?

I liked this Danielle.

But I liked my old Danielle as well.

My cock was hard again already, pressed against the small of her back, thinking of her face sticky with cum, and her holes gushing with Drake Reyes' sticky liquids.

I moved my hand down her body, hoping to rouse her. But she was sound asleep.

LOSING CONTROL

When I arrived at work I had to exercise more self-control than I ever had in my life to keep from running to the back and looking for the photos.

I didn't want Cassandra, whose senses for gossip, once activated, were alert like a dog's, to sniff out my secret. I restrained myself from asking her if anyone had brought photos by.

If Drake had brought me another manila envelope of photos of my wife. This time my wife with a belt around her neck, his cock in her pussy, his fingers in her ass. Abstract images filled my head: dripping, frothy orifices, blurred in black and white; open mouths, screaming in agony; dirty drops of cum on thighs.

But when I opened the door, my desk was empty.

It was no surprise, really. Last time he had waited a week to deliver them.

But that was before last night. Now all I could think of was looking at the photos, with a glass of wine, and Danielle on her knees sucking my cock while she told me her story and begged for forgiveness.

Or while I fucked her on her hands and knees, making her breath ragged as she spoke with every punishing thrust of my cock.

"Cassandra?!" I sounded more frantic than I meant to.

"Mmm."

"Drake didn't drop off any photos, did he?"

"No." I could almost hear her eyes rolling. "Was he supposed to?"

I closed the door and headed out to a taxi.

"Hey. Mr. Showalter? Was he supposed to? Where are you going? When will you – hey! They have phones you know!"

I knew Cassandra would know something was up.

I also had no idea where I was going.

But I was being driven by a reptilian force, and not my own mind.

I needed to see the photos.

I didn't want 'this.'

I couldn't live without 'this.'

I was going to find the photos, and I was going to find them now. And then I was going to lay them on the bed and look at them while I fucked my wife and made her tell me about every last detail in them, again and again.

Of course once I was in the cab I realized I had no idea where I was going. I gave the cabbie vague direction to go to Hell's Kitchen and then set about digging through my phone to try and find Drake's address on anything at all.

Finally, I gave up and texted Danielle.

[Me]: I need Drake's address

[Me]: Danielle. Now.

[Danielle]Why?

[Danielle]I hope you aren't going to do anything stupid you know what just call me

My phone rang almost instantly after I received the message.

“What are you doing?” Danielle's voice was sharp and to the point, qualities she almost never had.

“I just need to talk to him about something.”

My own voice was perfectly calm. So calm it almost terrified me, because inside of my chest my heart was racing and adrenaline was rushing through my body. I had that shaky, hyped-up feeling you get right before a confrontation.

“Rick,” Danielle sighed. Her voice was pleading and also exasperated. A strange combination. “You're the one -”

“It's not about that, Danielle. Look, I just really need to...find him.”

There was a silence.

Danielle's voice was disbelieving. “Why not call him?”

“He isn't answering.”

This conversation was dragging. It was getting weird.

I wanted to reach through the phone and shake her. Just give me the fucking address!

Something inside of me didn't want to tell Danielle about the photos. Not just yet. I wanted to spring them on her. Throw them on the bed and watch her twist underneath her skin in discomfort. Then make her confess her bad behavior again while we could both look at the evidence of it.

I wanted it so badly, I was doing ridiculous things.

“Give me the address, Danielle,” I pleaded. “Please. I really need to speak to him in person. It's not about...it's not what you're thinking.”

What was she thinking? What was she worried about, or what was she hoping for? Did she secretly want a husband who was man enough to fight a man like Drake Reyes for fucking his wife? Did she not want me to talk to Drake because more had happened than even what she had told me? Did she want to keep us apart because she had feelings for him and didn't want him to think she had told me about their affair?

No, Danielle wasn't that duplicitous.

Or was she?

A sigh came over the phone.

“Do you have it?” I insisted.

“Just a second. I have to look through....”

She sighed again, and gave me the address.

“But Rick?” she added.

“What?”

“Swear to me you aren't going to do anything stupid. Remember, this was all..your idea.”

“Danielle, it's just business. I swear.” My voice was reassuring. So reassuring I almost reassured myself.

When I hung up the phone, though, I was left alone with my own craziness, and the lie disappeared.

Drake, incredibly, was at his loft and buzzed me up with instructions on how to operate the elevator. But he sounded annoyed.

When the doors parted, up and down, because it was an old warehouse service elevator, Drake was standing in front of me.

His loft gleamed white: white curtains, white couches, white rugs. Exposed brick, wood floors. It was fucking ridiculous.

Drake himself was wearing white sweatpants and no shirt. His skin was so dark it could almost be seen through the fabric, and I had really focus on not letting my eyes drop to his crotch to check out the size of his cock. The cock my wife's pussy had been wrapped around less than a day before.

He rubbed his face, finishing off with a grooming tug of his goatee, and leaned casually against his wall. Then he turned and walked toward what seemed to be a kitchen: an expanse of counters in the middle of his vast loft. I had a view of his muscled back, rippling muscles moving with fluid strength beneath his onyx skin.

I was almost turned on by him, in this weird way, just because he had fucked my wife.

There was no one better to give your wife to than a man like him, I had to give myself that.

"Look man," he said, pouring himself a glass of brown-green liquid, produced from a fridge that seemed to be under the counter. "I do not want any trouble about this." And he leveled me with his eyes.

'This' was Danielle.

I stood there like an idiot.

"Why you here?" Drake was getting impatient.

I opened my mouth. "I...I want the photos."

Now Drake's demeanor changed. His face became a cross between smug and amused. He began to nod his head, and it was like he'd heard it all before.

"You want a smoothie?" he said abruptly.

"Just the photos."

He smiled.

He drank the rest of his 'smoothie,' taking his time. Then he walked slowly into the only room that seemed to be divided from the rest of the loft.

My eyes swept around the room. I wondered where they had done it. Where was his bed? Where did he lick her pussy? Where had he started in on her, luring her toward him? Had they stood in the kitchen, wine in their hands, laughing and smiling at each other's jokes?

Had they talked about me on the couch? Did Danielle tell Drake she would just need some time to leave me?

I shook my head.

I was going crazy.

Drake returned, holding out a manila envelope for me. "I was coming by, you know. This afternoon, maybe tomorrow. When I got to it."

I nodded, and held the manila envelope defensively.

Drake's eyes dropped to my hands, and his expression changed to one that more of pity than anything else.

“You got it bad, man. I never would have taken you for it.”

“For what?”

He shrugged. “I mean...I don't know Rick. An addict. You're all in, you know. Look at yourself.”

I didn't care.

The realization that I didn't care washed over me suddenly.

“Okay,” I said. “Thank you.” My voice was strange.

Drake cocked his head but didn't say anything else.

The photos were burning through my hands. It felt like someone was stroking my cock in some twisted blowjob that was traveling up my arm.

I was an addict.

I didn't care.

He pointed at me as the elevator closed. “Be careful.”

But I wouldn't even think about that until later, because I was already tearing into the envelope, trying to see the photos without taking them out.

Of course I could see nothing, but I kept trying. I must have looked like a madman in the cab, which I barely remember. I must have been prying into the envelope and then putting it down, prying again, straining to see something in the shadows beneath another photo.

The cabbie gave me a look as I paid.

Again, I didn't care.

I only cared about getting the envelope open, and seeing what Drake had done to my wife.

DO WHAT I WANT

“Shouldn't you be at work? What happened? What's that?”

Danielle fired questions at me as her eyes took in the sight of me in the doorway. Assessing.

Her gaze came to rest on the envelope.

“What's that?” she repeated. But something inside of her already knew.

A few different things began to creep across her face. Heat. Guilt. Fear. Interest.

All expressions that were largely alien to our marriage for a long time now.

All of them delicious.

Her eyes were still on the envelope as I moved across the room. It was sexy, seeing Danielle, who had never been dirty-minded in the least, forming dirty thoughts, remembering dirty things that she had done.

It was almost as sexy as watching her take off her clothes.

“You know what these are,” I said. It was more of a statement than a question.

Danielle nodded.

“I want you to tell me about them.”

The way I said this, it wasn't like I was dominating her. It was almost like a plea. I whispered it, my voice was needy. I couldn't control myself.

We sat down, facing each other in two matching armchairs.

I shook the first photo out of the envelope. “Tell me what this is.”

I held it up for her.

Danielle squinted. I didn't even look at the photo myself. I watched her instead, searching the abstract image (which was meaningless now) for what it was.

“It's my mouth.”

My heart was beating erratically, pushing blood into my cock.

“When?”

Danielle moved in her chair. She was uncomfortable, but my the time she finished adjusting herself, she seemed to have changed.

She tossed her hair a little.

She met my eyes.

“It's hard to say. It looks like maybe when he put his finger in my ass.”

Her words slammed through my body and pulsed in my balls, which I was planning to get her to lick.

The woman in front of me, who looked like Danielle, was not Danielle. This woman was a filthy-mouthed little girl.

“And this one?”

I held up the next photo. Again, without looking at it. Again, only watching her.

She held her hand up to her neck and touched the skin there. “Looks like part of the belt.”

My eyes begged her to say more.

And she complied.

“Where he pulled on it,” she said, speaking slowly, letting each word slice through me. “While he fucked me.”

“Was his cock big?”

“His cock was huge.”

Something wonderful was happening to Danielle. Again, she was picking up some kind of confidence. She saw what she was doing to me, and she liked talking like this. Her voice was getting stronger, more assured.

“Did you like being choked?”

And then she did something amazing, that little slut who had inhabited my wife's body.

She ran her tongue along her upper lip. I could feel myself shudder as she did it, and I could sense how much she liked what she doing. What she was doing to me.

“I liked it when Drake did it.”

The photos fell out of my hand and spread out on the floor, their gloss helping them move out, a slow-moving river of dirty black and white photos.

Danielle's hands moved up to her yoga pants and her panties, and she slid them both down her hips, then her legs, and left them around her ankles. She watched me as she did this, clearly enjoying what she was doing to me.

“Ask me about another one.”

She slid down to the floor, and scooted like a cat, with her pants still twisted around her ankles. She poked through the photos while I watched, entranced.

“Like this one.”

I got off the couch and moved behind her. I began to slide my belt out of my pants. I wasn't sure what I was doing, because I had never done anything like this with Danielle. But this wasn't Danielle. This was a slut inside my wife's body. A slut who had moved photo out of the pile, a photo that very clearly showed an orifice of some kind. Wet. Black. Maybe her ass, after he had pulled his finger from it. Maybe some portion of her cum-filled cunt.

I shivered as my belt slid from the last loop and I held it up to loop it around her neck.

“Did he do it like this?” I asked her.

I pulled gently, slowly, until I let resistance. I knew I was choking her just a little, and I would have felt bad even a month ago doing something like that. But now I was turned on as fuck, and she deserved it anyway.

She liked it anyway.

She didn't resist. Instead, she arched her back so that her ass tilted up and toward me. Her feet twisted in her yoga pants, and above her long thighs, her cunt – still a full bush, minimally trimmed because Danielle was a conservative girl – glistened with her pussy juices.

I tightened the belt.

I unzipped my pants and clumsily removed my cock, climbing over her so that her yoga-bound feet were between my legs. I still had her by the belt, like a leash, and the dirty photos were on the floor where I could see most of them. I guided my cock to her dripping pussy.

And then I slammed into her.

I released the belt, and she gasped for air.

“Is this how he fucked you?” I said.

Danielle panted for a moment. And then she breathed, “Harder.”

I slammed into her, so deep I felt the wall of her cervix with the tip of my cock, a place I rarely reached. I wondered briefly how Drake's enormous cock filled her up, maybe he couldn't even get it all in, maybe that's why he wanted to get inside of her ass...

I looked down at the photos, especially the one Danielle was fingering. I pulled tight on the belt and jerked her head up.

I wasn't sure what kind of fuck I was throwing into my wife. Part love, part hate, part incredibly hot, part incredibly painful. Part of me was humiliated for myself, part of me ashamed that I had subjected sweet Danielle to such dirty sexual acts, and I was only going to do more. Ask for more. Hope that he would get more and more depraved, and that she would keep going back to him for more.

"You've been very bad, Danielle," I groaned.

Danielle's voice didn't even sound like her own voice, as she lifted her head and said to me:

"Maybe I need a spanking."

Oh fuck, those words ripped right through me and sent me over the edge, before I even had time to spank Danielle. Yes, she needed a spanking. I had a flash of the image of me turning her over on my lap and spanking her just like a bad little girl, and I was gone.

I pounded my cum into her and pulled hard on the belt, arching her back just the way she told me Drake Reyes had made her.

I knew I wanted him to train my wife to be an obscene whore, and that I would be satisfied with just these scraps of her bad side. Satisfied with giving her a nice little punishment when she got home.

But even as I pounded her with all these pleasant thoughts in my head, and she moaned and grew wet around my cock, a wave of dissatisfaction came over me.

It was about more than just getting Danielle to be filthy. It was more than just making her suck me off in apology, or smacking her ass red (I couldn't wait) for being such a bad little girl.

I wanted to see her. I wanted to see what she did when he fucked her. The photos were no longer good enough.

I lifted her up by her chin and pulled her close to my chest. My shirt was soaked through. She started to move her own hips over my cock, and leaned back against me. Her eyes were closed.

What was she imagining?

Drake, instead of me?

"Danielle," I whispered into her ear. "Do you want to come?" I stopped her movement and let her squirm on top of my cock. She was so close, I could feel the pain of missing her release shuddering through her body. She fought against me, and I tightened my grip on her.

“Do you?”

She squirmed and then gave up. “Yes.”

“Then promise me you'll do something for me.”

She squirmed again. She was panting and flustered, and hot and ripe like she had never been before. “Promise me and I will fuck you and make you scream.” I had already come, but my cock was still hard as a rock.

She didn't even ask what it was.

I'll do it, she panted. Now just fuck me.

At least, I think that's what she said.

I pummeled into her after pushing her to the floor. She screamed as she came, and I yelled so loud I am sure the neighbors were mortified.

With my cock still throbbing in her pussy, I told her what I wanted her to do.

And by the time I was done, I was ready to go again, and I started to fuck her gently. She lay there like a limp rag doll, and let me fuck her cum-soaked hole, her face sliding across the wood floor, until I came again.

THE PROMISE

I knew, somehow, she had made it work for that night. The thing I wanted. The thing I had been unable to stop thinking about for two long weeks while I waited for her to make it happen.

At least for those two weeks we had fucked like rabbits, each of us buzzing with the sexual excitement that was promised in the future.

Finally, I knew it was here.

For one thing, she had asked to come along to the opening of Hugh Oppenheimer's work, which she had no clue about. She had insisted on it.

So I was worked up by the time I got there.

And Danielle was already there.

Danielle was wearing a dress I had never seen before. I saw the dress long before I realized my wife was in it. Certainly, there was the familiar shape of her body, inside of it, but it was a black dress that seemed to be made of oversized lace, and everywhere imaginable her skin was peeking out between the floral swirls. It clung to her to her knees, but a lengthy slit opened as she moved to reveal her long and muscled thigh.

It dipped as far in the back as it did in the front, a wide plunge that barely clung to her small round breasts.

My eyes enjoyed the scene for a moment while brain caught up:

That was my wife.

Her hair was down, and there was nothing especially different about it, but it somehow looked better. Less neatly combed? What ever it was, it was sexier. Her face was fresh, and she still looked like the girl-next door, but naughtier.

What was it? I scanned her face as she smiled and approached me. It was still her face: light freckles, hardly any make-up and all of it in natural tones. Still the same lips, and nose, and eyes...

Something was different, though. Something in the way she carried herself.

And that fucking dress.

Maybe it was just the fact that I knew that her light-pink lips had almost surely been around the girth of Drake Reyes' cock only hours before.

That her eyes, framed by her dark-brown mascara (never black) had been watering as he pushed more and more of his cock into her throat.

Now she looked so clean. So fresh. But she wasn't. It was glinting her eyes.

She stopped in front of me. She had a glass of wine, but I noticed that it was half-full. Usually she just held it, and now she was drinking it. A faint, Merlot-colored stain darkened her lower lip, near the inside of her mouth.

As though she read my mind, she chewed on her lip and it cleared away.

"This is pretty interesting," she said.

I was so enraptured by her dress, that I actually sat there staring at the way the black material criss-crossed and swirled over her skin, along the center of each breast, barely enclosing her nipples.

"Honey?"

I snapped up to her face. "Nice dress."

She leaned closer to me. "Drake got it for me."

She whispered this, but I felt as though she had shouted it. My eyes flickered quickly around the room.

"He did, did he?"

"He did."

God, Danielle's voice was like a knife. She never spoke like this, every syllable dripping with innuendo. "Because I did something for him."

Her words went straight to my cock. I wanted to try and make myself concave somehow, and hide my erection. But I knew it would only draw attention to it.

Danielle didn't wait for me to say anything. She leaned even closer, until her pretty pink lips that had just stretched wide for Drake's big black cock were right next to my ear. "And I have a little surprise for you, too."

And then my wife, Danielle, the girl-next-door, pride, Mennonite girl from Iowa, leaned closer in her black, holey dress, and told me that she had a hard, silver dildo, fairly small, in her ass. Keeping her stretched out, reminding her of the things Drake would do to her later. And if I followed her at the right time, she had it worked out so I could finally get what I wanted. What I had made her promise weeks ago.

And then she turned, and walked away.

I caught the look they exchanged. I saw Danielle excuse herself, set her wine glass down, and walk toward the long hallway that led to the restrooms and the back of the gallery, where there was storage and offices.

And then Drake. A few beats, a smile for whoever he was talking to, and then he was moving away from his group. Toward the hallway.

I held my hand up and pressed my closed fist to my mouth. A universal sign of sickness, of urgency. No one tried to stop me as I moved toward the hall myself. No one even asked why.

It was perfect, because I'm sure Cassandra had dutifully reported on my "illness" of late, and that everyone in the room knew I had gone home sick twice in the past few weeks.

The hallway they had gone to was a long, narrow affair that was not lit during shows. I got there just in time to see their figures at the end of the hall. I stepped into a small enclave and bent awkwardly over boxes of Xerox paper when I saw Drake pause to look both ways to make sure that no one saw them. I noted the door they were standing next to and waited, adrenaline pumping through me because of all the ways I could get caught. After a minute I looked out to the empty hallway.

I moved like a zombie, wondering what I was doing and somehow, at the same time, not even thinking.

After all, they would lock the door, right? Surely. The sounds of the show were still loud and clear enough, even here, to overhear a conversation in full.

What if the room was no bigger than a closet? What then?

Maybe Drake was in on this plan. Maybe he had wanted me to follow them. Maybe it had all been planned between the two of them, and Danielle had engaged in a subtle betrayal by telling him my desires, as I had asked her not to.

At any rate, when I turned the door handle, it turned easily. Unlocked.

It was a round knob and it turned silently. I stood outside the door, the knob fully turned, the door ready to be opened, my heart slamming against my chest, for a full minute.

I could hardly breathe.

I looked at the entrance-way to the gallery at the end of the hall. Maybe someone would come. Ask me what I was doing. Stop me.

But no one did.

I pushed, very gently.

The door moved a fraction of an inch.

I could hear them now. Their breath. Drake's voice. The movement of hands on flesh, clothing being pushed against bodies.

And then I pushed the door further.

Now I could see Danielle's body. She was maybe ten feet away. The room was bathed in shadows and there were all kinds of shelves and canvases, junk that was needed for installations, boxes, blocked any direct view of the door from where they were.

In short, there was a way for me to hide.

As she had promised, weeks before, Danielle was getting me into the room so that I could see them together. Smell them. Hear them.

Wasn't she? Wasn't that what she had done? She had told me of her 'surprise', she had let me follow her, and now, she had maneuvered him to the other side of the room, and drawn his attention to her body so that he wasn't facing the door. It was, for me, a simple matter of moving into the shadows, carefully, and lodging myself between some shelves. From there, I could strain my eyes through the semi-darkness and watch the real thing.

The real, sweating, wet, fuck between my wife and Drake.

He turned her away from him, and slid his hands along her arms and out to her hands, placing them on the wall. He pushed her dress up, and slid her panties down to her feet. "Step out of them," he said. "I want you to spread your legs apart for me."

He really talked like that, then.

And she really let him. Danielle did as he instructed, her placing her high heels a few feet to either side of where her panties lay in a small pile. I could see they were wet, by the way they clung to themselves. Soaking wet.

I watched as he placed his hands on her buttocks. His hands were large and almost palmed her entire asscheek in each hand. He pried her ass apart.

He traced his thumb around her exposed anus. I watched the tip of his black finger against her dull pink asshole, inside of which, protruding slightly, there was a small silver item.

The dildo.

Keeping me stretched out, for what he'll do to me later.

Danielle sucked in her breath as Drake's fingers moved along her sensitive ring. Circling her plugged hole, tickling her as he traveled over her most private skin. She moaned lightly.

“You've been very good, Danielle, keeping it in there.”

Drake pulled on the ribbon at the end of the dildo, and moved it back and forth, in and out of her ass slowly. She bit her lip and closed her eyes.

He traced his fingers along the edges of her ass for a bit, and Danielle squirmed with her eyes closed. Then I watched, my eyes wide with excitement, as Drake Reyes expertly wiggled another finger next to the dildo, into my wife's ass. His finger stretched her asshole even further, and Danielle whimpered.

“Shhhh,” Drake cooed. “Be quiet. Don't make a sound.”

Danielle she bit her lip again, and I could see she was trying hard not to cry out.

Drake's dark fingers moved down, into her pussy. He seemed to want only to check that she was as wet as he had hoped, or as wet as he wanted her.

He brought his fingers to his face and smelled my wife's pussy.

I watched him unzip his pants. Danielle was trying to hold still and be quiet, but her hips seemed to move on their own, and they ground against him.

My wife. She wanted Drake's cock to fill her up, and she couldn't stop herself from showing him.

He grabbed her hair, and whispered next to her ear: “I can't wait until tonight.”

He made light circles against her throbbing hole with the tip of his cock.

I stared at the member in his hand. It was bigger than I had imagined, and I could see the blood in his veins, the twitching of his flesh. It was dark and thick, and it was at the opening of my wife's cunt.

And then I watched as it disappeared, inch by inch, into the flesh of her pussy.

She gasped at first, and looked up at the ceiling.

He disappeared slowly inside of her, and she moaned in half-agony, half-pleasure.

It seemed to go on forever, this first slow thrust inside of her.

Her pussy was sticky and wet, and I could hear the long, drawn-out wet crackle of his cock spreading her open.

He pushed against her, smashing her against the wall. His cock was all the way inside of her now, but as I suspected, he couldn't get it all in. It was too long.

Danielle's legs trembled and nearly lifted from the ground. He pushed up against her, and her thin frame disappeared beneath the mass of his body. I watched her face as she closed her eyes, and bit into her lower lip.

He made her come like this, his cock deep inside of her. He moved only a little, his cock doing the work of making her writhe and squeal quietly as he ground his hips and his cock into her body. His huge balls flapped against her pussy as he moved. She turned and pressed her forehead against the wall as her orgasm built up inside of her abdomen. I could see every muscle in her body tense up with the pleasure of it, nearly bursting. The ache in my own cock felt the same way, like it was coiling up and ready to burst apart any moment.

Danielle let out a high-pitched squeal, and he reached with one hand to cover her face and muffle her voice as she shuddered. Her legs twitched and spasmed, shaking almost an inch from the ground now as he impaled her with his cock and made her come.

Then he pressed her to the wall, limp like a rag doll, still squirming with waves of pleasure as he pounded his own cum into her.

I could see the moment when he exploded, and watched Danielle savor the sensation of his cum filling her up, all the way to full, until it started to leak from inside of her, even while his cock was still embedded in her flesh.

"That's a good girl," he whispered.

I licked my lips. This next part is what I wanted to see, first-hand, more than anything.

He released her, and she clung to the wall, panting. I watched his cock slide from inside of her. And there it was: his white cum gushed out with it. I squinted to see it perfectly: the white froth pulsing from between her swollen lips with each squeeze of her orgasm. It was dripping down her legs, gushing from between her pink folds.

He pressed his fingertips against the exposed small of her back. "Stay like that."

He zipped up his pants and straightened his shirt, folding down the collar that had somehow cocked up.

Then he moved coolly past where I was, without looking to my shadowed corner, and slipped out the door. It clicked shut behind him, and I was alone in the room with my panting, dripping wife.

I could smell her pussy from where I was, and the salty, almost ocean-like scent of Drake's cum.

As I moved behind her, I unzipped my pants in one fluid motion.

Danielle remained, as she had been instructed, with her hands pressed against the wall.

Why had he instructed her to do that?

The thought fluttered in my head and disappeared to haunt me later.

In front of me, my wife's ass was exposed, tilted slightly, as she had held herself to be fucked by Drake.

I pulled her by the hips away from the wall a little, so that she was still bent over with her hands against the wall, but at a height where I could fuck her.

And then, without saying anything, I guided my cock to her pussy.

Above her engorged pink flesh, her ass was wet and glistening, and the dildo gleamed from inside her taut hole. I touched it with my finger and Danielle shuddered.

Later.

Her flesh was hot, and soaked. I could feel and smell the cum that was dripping from her pussy, mingling with her own juices.

As my cock disappeared inside of her, I could feel that she was stretched a little. Not as tight, and so wet with another man's cum that it might have been hard to build enough friction for me to come.

Except.

Except that the image of Drake's cock, only moments before, had disappeared inside of her right before my very eyes. And the sloshy wet mess I was burying my cock in was his.

And the dildo in her ass pressed down, and stroked the top of my cock through the thin membrane between her ass and her pussy.

And I knew her ass was going to get fucked by Drake later. Tonight. That my naughty wife would be howling as that big snake of flesh pushed inside her tiny hole.

The warmth of her body encased my cock, and I had barely to move back and forth a few times before my own cum exploded in her flesh. I slammed into her, pushing her up against the wall, and I felt all of the excess cum, hers, Drake's, and mine, splash from the sides of her loosened pussy and drip down her legs and over my thighs.

I pushed her hair up and placed my lips on her neck. She was twitching, though I didn't know if it was from another orgasm or just the excruciating pleasure-pain of being fucked right after she came. "Are you going to let him fuck you in the ass tonight?"

I moved my fingers down, between the flesh of her asscheeks, and found the hard dildo inside of her asshole. I pushed on it, and drove it into her. A single tear squeezed from her eye as my finger forced the dildo deep inside of her.

I was getting hard again, I could feel it.

"You're looking forward to it, aren't you, Danielle?"

Now I knew that she hadn't come again yet, but she wanted to. She was moving her ass against my hips, trying to get the pressure of my fingers to bring to her second sweet release.

"Tell me how he got that dildo inside of you."

Danielle squirmed. I knew she wanted to come again, and so I could get her to say what I wanted.

"He called me in the afternoon. I wanted him to go further than he had before, and I wanted to get you what you wanted."

"So?"

Danielle closed her eyes and moved against me. I pinched her clit, hard, and stopped her from moving. "Tell me what you did."

"I told him I wanted him to fuck me in the ass."

"You told him?" I released her clit and stroked it. "Is that true?"

Danielle nodded. "I...yes...maybe...I wanted it."

"So what did he do?" I was suddenly impatient. I was getting hard again already. Danielle's squirming, liquid pussy was driving me wild, along with the rampant images in my head of her tossing her hair over her shoulder, hand on hip, telling Drake, I want you to fuck me in the ass.

"He rubbed oil on me -"

"On what? What part of you?"

"My ass."

"And then?"

And then lightly over her anus.

Then he was gone, and she turned to look back and see where he had gone.

"Were you wet, then?"

"Yes."

“Very?”

“Very.”

Drake had barked at her, telling her to look forward. She realized that he had a camera, that he was going to photograph her. “These are for my own pleasure. And yours. And Rick's. Arch your back,” he said.

Danielle did as he asked, and heard the camera, clicking away.

She felt his fingers on the skin around her anus, pulling it apart.

Then nothing.

Then she felt him rubbing her lightly on the ass again.

And then something cool. He pushed the tip of it into her ass, and she froze.

“Relax, Danielle. Be a good girl. This is very small. I'll be very gentle this time. Be good, accept it.” He rubbed her buttocks again. “Arch your back” he insisted.

She obeyed, and tried to relax.

He pushed the small dildo deep into her.

“Did it hurt?” I was stroking her clit now, with one finger pressing the dildo back into her, against the throbbing of her ass. Danielle nodded only, her eyes wet.

She gasped at the pain, but concentrated on relaxing, and it slid into her. Then he left her like that, writhing a little, and watched her.

I imagined Drake, standing back from my wife's plugged ass, admiring his work, and I shuddered.

“And then?”

He pulled the dildo out, and she could feel him pulling her anus apart, looking at it.

“What did he say?” I breathed. “Say exactly what he said.

Danielle sucked in her breath.

“This is so nice, and soft, and wet inside...But I'm not going to fuck you yet.”

He pushed the dildo back in, and moved it back and forth. This time she liked it – not in the same way as when he stroked her clitoris, but in a different way. She could not explain it, even to herself.

He told her to arch her back again. That he wasn't going to tell her again.

So she obeyed him, and she could feel his hard cock between her legs. She pushed her ass against him.

He moved the dildo in and out, and then he stroked her clitoris, but he slowed before she came.

"You like that he controls you like that, don't you?" I said.

Danielle nodded.

"And that he makes you say such dirty things, and do such slutty things. You like being a bad little slut for him, don't you?"

I couldn't actually believe, after I left the room, that I had said this to my wife. But there you have it. It's what I said, and Danielle purred like a cat.

She moaned lightly. "Please fuck me," she whispered. She pushed back against me.

"Tell me about the dildo."

"He pushed it inside of me...it hurt but I liked it...then he pushed me onto the bed, with my...my ass was in the air. And he fucked me. But he didn't let me come. And then he told me to get dressed, and to wear it...to wear the dildo all night long. To keep it there for later."

She closed her eyes, losing track of what she was saying as I stroked her clit. She was tensing up, close again to coming.

I moved my cock to her clit. "Grab my cock, and use it to make yourself come. But finish your story."

Danielle reached around her body, and found my cock with her hand. She grasped it and began to stroke herself with it. It was clumsy and she was unsatisfied at first, moaning in frustration. She pressed her head against the wall. "I...I..."

"You had the dildo in your ass," I prompted. I was stroking what she wasn't grasping in her hand to stroke herself.

"I had it in my ass, and I was walking around with it."

"And you wanted someone to fuck you?"

"Yes."

"Do you want to come?"

"Yes."

"And will you let me fuck your ass if I do?"

She looked upward, and let out an agonized sound. "I'm not...I can't...I'm not supposed to."

"No?" I said, and I pulled my cock away from her clit.

"I can't," she said. "I can't take it out. He would know."

I shuddered in pleasure.

“What can you do for me, then Danielle?”

She pressed her forehead to the wall. “I can suck your cock. I can suck your cock after you fuck me.”

I shivered, thinking of all the cum – Drake's cum, and hers - that would be coating my cock by then. All the dirty cum and pussy juice she would have to suck up.

If only I could keep from exploding inside of her.

I pushed inside of her again, scarcely able to believe that I was already hard, after coming just minutes before.

I let her move her own hips, make herself come. She ground against me, sweating, and then stiffened beneath my body, against the wall. She mewled, and clawed at the wall. She bit into the flesh of her own palm as she came.

And then I backed away from her. It was time for her to pay up.

She peeled herself from the wall. Her face was flushed and she had the stunned look a woman had after coming hard. Her ears must have been ringing, and her stare was almost vacant. Her hair was wet and clung to her face and her shoulders. Her dress had twisted, and one nipple was exposed.

She slid down to her knees, and looked up at me.

My cock was sticky and wet with all of the filthy things she had done that night. I was so close to coming it would take next to nothing.

She took my cock in her hand, and licked it like a lollipop.

I watched for a moment, fascinated by how depraved she had become.

But I was too hungry.

I grasped her hair, and drove myself deep into her throat. I didn't pause to enjoy her mouth as I went in, deep.

I came at the back of her throat, and did not release her. I filled her throat with come, and she had no choice but to swallow. I was so deep inside of her it was all she could do.

When I released her, she coughed. And then she hurried to put her panties on and straighten her dress.

She stood up. It was clear she wanted to get back to Drake, before she was discovered.

Was that good? Or was it bad? It meant she hadn't told him I was here.

But it also meant she was playing two men.

I caught her by the neck, and I held her close to my face.

What did I want to say to her then? That I wanted to stop this? That things had gone too far? That I no longer felt the same now that she seemed to be in control of things as much as I was, or as much as Drake was?

What was it?

Her eyes scanned mine, and she twisted away, and left me in the dark. Satisfied and unsatisfied. Wanting more, and wishing I could sweep over the whole thing with an eraser, and make none of it have ever happened. Wishing I could pour gasoline on it, and make it happen faster.

She left with him.

I didn't see it with my own eyes. But they were there, and then they were gone.

She disappeared first, and I looked around for her while Maria Delacorte blathered away at me.

The smell of Danielle's pussy was still all over my hands.

I saw Drake, who winked at me.

Maria shouted at me.

I looked away, and he was gone.

And then, with no excuse to leave, and no one to go home to, I stayed. Talking to people vacantly, and imagining all the possibilities that were infolding in the white loft of Drake Reyes. I drank too much. I did it on purpose. I knew Danielle wasn't coming home until an obscene hour, and I wanted to pass out when I got home, to pass the time between now and when she would come home to tell me what naughty thing Drake had cooked up for her ass.

I was surprised as hell that it turned out to be so naughty I didn't even think of it for a second when I imagined her with him.

THE REST OF THE NIGHT

I was already awake. I heard her footsteps in the hall and somehow I knew it was her. I poured myself a glass of water and watched the door open.

She set her keys on the table.

There was an aloofness to Danielle now, one that was hot as hell but also terrifying. The wife of the fifties-apron, the wife who had been so timid of cocktail parties and who wore a plunging neckline guiltily – she was gone. I could see that.

In her place was this incredible creature, and she was terrifyingly beautiful. I had created her, after all. This is what I had wanted, what I had envisioned and fantasized about.

Right?

She flipped her hair over her shoulder. She had washed all of the makeup from her face, and she was wearing a casual red dress, one of her own, presumably the one that Drake had removed the day before, to put the dildo in her ass.

What had she done with him? What had her face looked like after she did it?

Part of me wanted it to be utterly filthy. Physics defying, humiliating, truly obscene.

Another part of me wanted it to have all ended somehow.

Wanted her to have watched movies in a pair of pajamas.

This is your own fault, my conscience told me.

She looked me right in the eye.

Then I saw it: a little streak of embarrassment in her eyes.

Old Danielle was still there.

I felt power coming back to me, like regained strength after an illness. I squeezed my fist. I could get her back to what I enjoyed her being, what I liked most:

A slutwife who blushed while she told me her dirty stories.

“You were out late.”

She bit her lip. She nodded. I felt a little of my power getting drained away. She was too confident now.

The possibilities were endless, weren't they? Danielle was taking me for a ride. Or Drake was. Or Drake had feelings for Danielle, and that's why he was covering up her actions. Or they had been having an affair all along...

Or, that everything had simply happened because I had set it in motion.

"Tell me what you did," I breathed. I was shaking. I didn't care what time it was, or that I felt like shit. My hangover went away instantly as my blood started pounding through me, when Danielle began to speak.

When they arrived at his apartment there was very little pretense.

"Were you already excited?"

Danielle blushed, which would later seem incredible. She wasn't quite ripened yet, not ready to tell me her story.

But she was excited. I knew the answer to my question.

She was wet again by the time she arrived at his loft, not just wet from all the fucking she had done in a backroom at the gallery. Wet. Excited. Aching in her pussy.

He pushed gently through the door to the bedroom, and onto the bed. He pulled her skirt over her ass.

"Put it in the air for me," he had said. "And pull down your panties."

Danielle's face flushed again. It seemed incredible, after everything that had happened at the gallery, that she could be embarrassed. I felt my cock slamming full of excited blood. If she was blushing about this...it must have been deeply depraved.

"Tell me what you did."

"I did..." She hugged herself. "Okay...this next part is a little bit...I can't even believe I did it. I don't know..."

"As long as you tell me about it, as long as you give me the details and don't leave anything out, it's fine."

She didn't look convinced, but I knew this was the best way to wrench every detail I could from her. If she felt bad, and I told her she had to be detailed, she would do what I asked.

She obeyed him, getting on the bed in the submissive position he had asked her for, and slid her panties down her leg. He stopped her mid-thigh, and told her to hold them there, like that. Between her legs and just above her knees.

Another pause. But Danielle was opening up a little bit. Unfolding.

“Keep going.” My voice was a whisper.

“So he...got his fingers wet-”

“Show me how.”

Danielle looked surprised for a moment. I knew it was a little cruel, to boss her around this way while she told her story. But I was getting off on it like nothing before in my life. I couldn't stop.

Danielle put her fingers in her mouth, rather than describe Drake getting his fingers wet with his spit.

“And then?”

And then he touched me on my...ass.”

“On your ass, or your asshole?”

Another flush of color. “My anus.”

I inhaled sharply. I imagined Drake's dark fingers making a circle around my wife's anus, leaving his spit on her pink asshole, glistening and beckoning.

Another thought quivered inside of me. Did this mean...?

“He walked around me, taking photos.”

Photos I would get to see. My cock throbbed.

“He said:”

She swallowed, evidently a little uncomfortable with re-telling the story.

There was a long pause.

“I like to photo it while it is tight, untouched,” he said.” Danielle looked down. “And then after...” her voice dropped off to a very audible whisper. “Full of cum.”

“What's that last part, Danielle? I didn't hear.”

My own voice was strange.

Danielle sucked in a breath and then seemed to gather courage.

Or obedience.

Or both.

Her eyes met mine.

“I like to photo it after, when it's full of cum,” she said. Loudly.

I shuddered. I had never, ever heard Danielle say anything like this. Even if it was a quote, even if it was about another man, it seared through me as though I were in the room with her when this happened.

“He pulled me up to stand next to the bed,” she said, unbidden.

I wondered what I looked like to her. My lips were trembling, but I didn't know if she could see them.

“He had a...” she blushed again. “Contraption. He put it on the edge of the sheets.”

My mind raced, imagining what the contraption could be.

“And what did it look like? The...contraption?”

She bit her lip. “It had four holes in it. Two big ones and two smaller ones.” She moved her hands to show me how they lined up. Big ones on the outside, small ones in the center.

I had seen it in a porno, this very thing. For holding feet on the outside of wrists, with arms beneath a prone body, forcing a woman's ass in the air. Immobilizing her. Helpless.

“He unsnapped something, and the top came off. Then I...I...realized what it was.”

She squirmed in her seat.

He took his camera and photographed her face as he asked her to look at it.

My cock was so hard now, I could barely stand it. I thought of the package of photographs that would come to me, how a picture of her face would be inside of them. What would Danielle's face look like as she looked at a contraption built to immobilize her while Drake Reyes fucked her ass?

He asked her if she understood what he was going to do with it.

She nodded.

“What?” I said. “And be detailed.”

Danielle sucked in her breath again. “He said, 'say yes, and look at me when you do. Say, yes, I understand that...’” She swallowed. “You are going to put your... fist in my ass.”

My eyes widened.

She didn't actually do that, did she? My wife. My wife, Danielle.

I found my mouth saying: “Were you scared?”

She bit her lip.

“Did he do it?”

Danielle's eyes flicked suddenly, and met mine with a level, burning stare. “You're rushing me.”

Was her voice sexual now? Was she seductive in her tone? I had no idea, it was so completely unlike anything I had ever seen or heard her do, or believed that she was capable of.

Just the words, coming out of her mouth. Let alone...

She hesitated.

"I don't..."

He set the camera down. "You've never done that," he said, and he stroked her hair. "But I'll go slow. You want to please me, and you have to do this because it will please me. Do you understand?"

She looked at the bed.

"I think..most of me wanted to do it. I wanted to lie down and let him have his way with me."

"Were you scared?" I repeated.

"There was an element of fear. But it..."

It was just enough to make her even more excited – underneath it all.

"I'll be gentle," he said. "This time. In time you'll learn to enjoy the submission, submitting completely. What I have done to you so far is only the first step."

She moved back onto the bed, taking off her dress as she did.

"That's it," he told her. "Now place your ankles here, and lie forward, tuck your hands under you..." And she shivered as he pressed the two pieces together and locked them down, turning them slowly so that they tightened. Her legs were spread apart and her hands were clamped down between them, under her body, with her ass pointed up in the air.

She suddenly began to struggle; it was involuntary. He could do almost anything to her like this. While he had tied her up before, this was a new level of bondage – there was no way to even adjust the way that she was positioned.

"Danielle," he said. "Remember that you have to trust me. This is your first time. I will go slowly. But you must learn to give yourself up completely."

She heard him moving around behind her. He rubbed oil onto her ass, his hands kneading her flesh. He tugged on the ribbon of the silver dildo. It slid from her immediately, because she was tense inside the contraption. The word 'fist' would not leave her mind, the anticipation of pain would not leave her alone. She could feel her asshole contracting and throbbing. He stroked her tight ass, rubbing oil on it, and then he placed his thumb in her anus. "You have to relax. Or this will be much more painful than it needs to be."

She tried to relax, her head turned to the wall, where there were the pictures of her open mouth from her previous 'session.' He moved his fingers so that one was stroking her clit, and two were moving rhythmically in and out of her ass.

Slowly, she relaxed. "There we are," he said. She admitted to herself that she liked it, that she liked the feeling of submission that she felt when she was bent over and fucked in the ass. She began to move her hips in time with his fingers.

He put another finger into her anus, and she tried to jerk her head from the bed, but she couldn't. She sucked in her breath and tried to relax. The pain faded and he stretched his fingers apart, pulling her anus open. She could hear him taking pictures, and she never understood how he managed it all: moving his fingers, taking photographs, keeping her at the edge of climax all the while. She focused on the sensation of her ass as he stroked his fingers more roughly, in and out. A sweet, dull ache began to consume her.

When he put his fourth finger in she gasped. He wasted no time, quickly putting all five in, and then he pushed. Danielle strained with the pleasurable pain of it, which made her dizzy, and screamed and moaned and moved back and forth as though she could escape. She twisted her feet in circles. He left his hand in her ass, and photographed her as she screamed and twisted against him. "Shhhh," he said, "Calm down, little girl. Breathe." She tried to relax, and let her chest fall down, wet with sweat and heaving, onto the cool sheets.

She paused.

"Tell me about it, Danielle. You know I like to hear it."

*She smiled. "That's exactly what he said. He said, 'talk to me, tell me what you're feeling.' Why do both of you like it so much?" She mused this final part aloud, and I almost opened my mouth to tell her, but she restarted her story. The question I had, was why she liked it so much.*

He was photographing her head now, she knew: her hair, her mouth open and gasping on the sheets. She told him it hurt.

"What did you say, exactly?"

"It hurts, it hurts, it's too much for me." She tossed her head back and forth.

It did hurt, but it was not too much for her, she wanted him to continue. It just pleased her to say that it hurt.

"This pleases me Danielle, do you know?" he said. "It pleases me to feel you struggle, to feel you tossing and turning."

She moved around and sweat and moaned and cried, and then slowly relaxed, sobbing softly. "It hurts," she said. "Oh, please, please no more."

He smiled, she could see in the corner of her eye. She had not used the safe word, so she was still submitting herself to him, asking him, really, to go further.

Because it did hurt, but it also felt exhilarating to be so violated.

"Please," she gasped. "Please, no more, no more, it hurts so much."

He leaned over her. "Again, Danielle. Beg me to stop."

"Please," she said. "Please stop."

When he pushed his hand in further, she gasped and was unable to breathe. But he pulled it out, and she was given a sweet release for a moment. Her asshole throbbed, she could feel it opening and closing. But just as she began to breathe, he put his fist in her again, this time bluntly, and she screamed into the pillow. He pulled his hand out, and did this for a few minutes. Each time she screamed and tossed her head on the pillow, but the screams changed as he continued. As she relaxed it felt better and better, less painful and more sensual.

He pulled away and came around to where her face was and photographed it. She looked at the camera, as he asked her to. He moved around her, and then she could feel his hands on her bottom, pulling it apart. He photographed her asshole, and she enjoyed imagining it, gaping and red.

I sucked in my breath. Those pictures would be mine, would be sitting on my desk by the next day, in a manilla envelope. Danielle's stretched asshole, fresh from a fist-fucking, yawning at me on a glossy paper.

All the while he left her in the restraints.

"Now, Danielle, the next choice is up to you. Do you want me to put my fist back into your ass, or do you want my cock?"

She lifted her head. "No, please! Please, please no more."

She loved begging him.

"It's one or the other, Danielle, which one do you want?"

She panted on the bed, straining her arms and her legs against the restraints. The ache in her thighs was more and more intense with every word that he forced her to say. She wanted him to fuck her, but she also wanted him to continue drawing out the pain, making her throb and want for more.

He put his fingers in her ass. She jerked up and begged, "No, no, no, okay, no, I want your cock."

She did want his cock; she wanted to feel his huge, black cock deep inside of her, filling her up. And she wanted his legs slapping into her ass from behind. She wanted him to groan and fuck his cum into her.

He told her to beg for it.

She was describing things with ease, in gritty detail.

She seemed to be getting off on it herself.

I interrupted, wanting to take back some of my control.

"How did you beg? Beg the same way, right now." My head was spinning hopelessly.

I pushed her down on the bed, so her ass was in the air for me now.

I pulled her filthy, cum-drenched panties away from her ass. It wasn't gaping, not like she had just been fucked, but it was stretched. It was distended and must have been sore. There was a small gape in the center. I traced my pointer finger around the circle and Danielle mewled.

"Say what you said," I ordered.

"Please. Please, please, please give me your cock."

She was whispering now, whining a little.

"Finish your story."

I traced my finger around her anus as she told me the rest.

As she tried to beg, she realized that she was begging for real, that she really wanted his cock, his domination of her to be complete.

"More."

"Please fuck my ass with your cock, please," she was sobbing.

"Please, please I'm begging you, fuck me with your hard cock."

"And what will you say when I fill your ass full of cum?" he said.

She knew the answer to this one, she knew it without him telling her.

"Thank you," she whispered.

"I'm not sure you've made me believe you want it, Danielle."

"Please. Please," she gasped.

"Maybe begging isn't enough. Maybe your mouth can beg more than that."

She strained against the restraints and tried to turn her head around. "Let me suck your cock," she said.

"What did you forget to say?"

"Please. Please let me suck your cock." She was panting now and she had her eyes on his hard cock. Now she wanted to take him inside of her mouth, to show him how much she wanted to submit to him, to be fucked by him.

"Suck my cock and show me how much you want it?"

"Please."

"I will take your hands out but you leave your legs there, do you understand?"

"Yes."

"Yes what?"

"Yes master. Please. I will do whatever you say."

He lifted the restraints and she removed her hands, but he tightened it back on her legs. She moved forward on the bed as he came around, and he knelt in front of her. His cock was enormous, throbbing, hard and dripping with precum. She looked up at him.

"Open your mouth, and show me how you really beg," he said. She obeyed, opening her mouth and her throat, and he thrust his cock deep into her mouth. "Look up, Danielle, look at me and beg me with your eyes."

She obeyed, and strained to see his eyes. He moved his cock back and forth in her throat. He took it out, to let her breath, and then thrust himself into her open mouth again. "Get your tongue on my balls," he said, and she obliged, straining her tongue over his dick to lick his balls while he pushed her throat further and further onto his cock, pushing against the back of her head. "Massage it, massage it with your throat. Come on, Danielle, beg me to fuck you with my cock."

She began to swallow, a thing he had taught her to do – to swallow as though she were drinking water, massaging his cock with her throat.

I wondered briefly when that had happened, when he had taught her to do that, and why she hadn't told me about it. I scanned my memory, and found nothing. But like so many other nagging thoughts, it was instantly pushed out of mind by what Danielle was saying.

He pulled his cock out of her mouth and photographed the spit on her face, and then moved around to her ass again. "Lie down," he said. "Lie down and bite that pillow. I am going to fuck my cum into you so hard it will come out of your mouth."

She lay on the pillow and felt herself smile, because now she was thinking of his cock, of the thickness of it and how hard it had been in her throat, and when he pushed himself inside of her.

"In your ass," I interrupted. My mouth was dry. My mind was imagining come spilling out of her mouth the way Drake had so crudely described it.

"Yes."

"How did it feel?"

Danielle turned her head, and shifted her eyes to meet mine. Her hair was strewn across the floor.

"I liked it."

"I'm going to fuck you while you tell me why."

I pressed my cock against her asshole.

She closed her eyes.

"Why did you like it?"

I pushed inside of her, and she was tight and resisted for a moment. I wasn't sure I would get inside, her ass was so clamped down on me.

"Relax," I said.

And then I was inside of her. Again, inside my wife, after another man had soaked her with his cum.

"You like being filled up?"

Danielle moaned, but did not say anything. Why she would, for Drake, and not for me, gnawed at me in my chest.

But I couldn't last much longer anyway. I moved slowly, savoring the way she whimpered as I fucked her, and she submitted to me utterly.

"Finish the story," I whispered.

That, she would do for me.

He slid in as though he were in her wet pussy, and then he began to fuck her, his skin slapping against her ass, and she could feel his muscles tightening, and his cock getting harder and harder, and then the wet warmth of his cum. It was a relief, and a disappointment, when the pain of his cock disappeared.

He pulled himself out of her and she could hear him taking photographs, and then he placed his hand on her anus, and his thumb on her clit, and moved it slowly, just a few times, and she came so hard that she felt dizzy. She barely felt it as he pushed her down to the sheets, unlocked his contraption, covered her with a sheet. She heard him leave, most likely to go to deal with his photographs. She was still shaking from her orgasm.

When Danielle finished telling her story my ears were ringing. I had come as hard as I ever came in my life, and her asshole was sloshing and full around my still-hard cock.

I had no idea what was happening anymore. As soon as I came, all the other thoughts flooded my head. The things I had pushed down, like why Drake didn't see me in that cramped room. Had he only pretended?

Like when Drake had 'taught' Danielle to massage his cock. When had it happened?

Like why Danielle would only tell me about talking dirty, and not actually do it.

Like whether everything added up so that I knew everything Danielle had done. And how Danielle really felt.

The main thing centered around control.

Who had control over whom.

I didn't have control over myself. That was clear.

I had thought I had a form of complicity in Drake – he gave me photos, I thought he kept to his boundaries. And yet he was fucking my wife in the ass. Teaching her to massage his cock in her throat. Seeking her out, making her beg for his cum.

And I had thought I had control over Danielle. That I made her do what I wanted. That she ultimately felt loyal to me.

But perhaps I had none of these things.

Danielle squirmed beneath me. I had forgotten I was still inside of her.

I pulled out of her, and watched the gush of cum that dribbled down her thighs and pooled on the floor.

I fell down on the floor, and rolled over, facing the ceiling.

I put my hands on my face and wiped the sweat from my skin.

Danielle rolled over and sat up, hugging her knees.

I looked at the line of her back. I touched her spine with my fingertips.

She turned back to me, and put her cheek on her knee.

“Do you think this has gone too far?” she said, echoing my thoughts.

It was a strange moment. I wanted to talk to her, and it seemed insane that it was hard, after fucking in her in the ass while she talked about the man she had let fuck her in the ass at my request. But this conversation was somehow more intimate.

More risky.

I could tell her the truth: I like watching your fuck Drake Reyes and being a little whore, but I also want to keep your love and trust. Basically, I just want you to do whatever I say sexually and then be yourself other than that, with no attachments to him, and only to me.

I could have said: this is the hottest sex we've ever had.

I could have said: I love you and I don't want to lose our relationship over my sexual obsessions, or yours.

But all of these things were risky.

What if I said, I don't want you to develop feelings for Drake...

and she said:

I already did?

The queer pain that slithered through me was hot and horrible at the same time.

“I don't want any of this to mess up our marriage,” I blurted.

Danielle rubbed her lips.

“Me either.”

And then she was the one who said. “But I don't want to stop.”

There was a pause, while I weighed what I was doing, and then I said:

“Me either.”

And that was that.

But I had no idea if it was really 100% true.

Part of me did want to stop. And part of me didn't.

I had no way of knowing if Danielle felt the same way.

Frankly, it was making me uncomfortable, thinking that she was perhaps as obsessed as I was. That she was beginning to get addicted like me, to all the vulgar things he was doing to her body. It was fun when I was pushing Danielle into it, it was fun when she was reluctant.

But she was changing now.

Was she becoming the same kind of addict as me?
Or something else?
But we left it at that. Questions unanswered. Un-asked.

PUNISHMENT

So Danielle continued seeing Drake. Not a lot. Not a little. Maybe once every two weeks. They both used the pretense of his next exhibition, and then the next one after that, still in the planning stages. It was a convenient half-truth that kept everyone happy and unhappy at the same time.

Except maybe Drake. Hard to know what that guy was thinking, other than that he was having a great time tying up and fucking another man's wife in the most vulgar ways possible.

I'm not entirely complaining.

I never tried to stop it. There was too much I liked about it, even I was risking a lot.

Danielle learned to do some things that stunned me. Things that almost went to far. She started sucking both of my balls up into her mouth, or licking them while she had her throat stuffed with my cock. She let me fuck her in the ass – in fact, after seeing Drake, she almost seemed to prefer that I fuck her in the ass. She held her ass for me, bent over the couch, and begged me to fuck her harder.

She was the one who asked to be spanked. We had forgotten about the promise of it weeks before, and it had tantalized me ever since. But I had assumed it was one of those things you say in the heat of the moment, and then forget about later.

It was Danielle who came home one night, with her pussy full of cum and more filthy stories to tell me, and said: "I've been very, very bad."

It was Danielle who had stretched out on the couch, her ass in my lap, her skirt hiked up so that her bare skin and her filthy panties were right there for me. And then she began to tell me what she had done that night, how she had been tied up and hung from the ceiling while Drake stretched her ass open with his big hand. And how she had liked it. She liked submitting to a real man.

But she felt very, very guilty.

I smacked her ass hard, and the crack echoed through the apartment. The sound that came from Danielle's mouth was a gasp of pleasure. I slapped her ass again.

Then I began to slap her ass until it was bright red, enjoying the sounds of the slap and Danielle's gasp. Enjoying the way she was draped over my lap, getting what she deserved for being such a little whore.

Evidently, Danielle liked that as well, because she began to come home and confess her sins to me across my lap, getting spanked thoroughly, before I made her apologize in other ways.

But I was never sure if I was getting the whole story.

We all paid for things in different ways.

Outside of the 'bedroom,' which we rarely actually made it to, Danielle was also transformed.

It made me as pleasantly and painfully uneasy as her bedroom transformation. I liked it in some ways. She was more confident.

But she was also more sexual.

She hadn't done anything to change her physical appearance, but something inside of her had changed. Now men sort of circled around her, attracted to her. They saw her from across the room. She drew attention to herself, where before she had been easy to not notice.

Now men craned their necks for glimpse of Danielle.

She was hot now.

And it was gratifying, sure. But I wasn't entirely sure what I had created, or how to stop it. Or if I wanted to.

I just didn't know.

What had I done?

ICE

So three months later, I heard the story of Ice.

I heard the story of Ice because I called Danielle to find out where she was, one late evening, maybe at 1am.

“Uh...where are we?” she said, away from the phone.

And then Drake's voice, Danielle's repeating it just after him:

“Alphabet City.” Then Danielle only: “..Stop...” A giggle.

Her breath.

My own voice had gone cold on the line. “Danielle are you coming home?”

“Yeah soon...” but her voice was a panting, barely disguised moan.

I knew Drake was doing something to her.

Where were they? In a cab?

“Where are you?”

“In a... cab.” She could barely speak. My mind filled with images of her legs splayed open and Drake's head between her legs. But they couldn't do that in a cab. Surely...the cabbie would say something.

“Where are you going?”

“To a...” she lost her train of thought. Right there on the phone. Her breathing turned heavy and I was left to wonder what he was doing to her. What Drake Reyes' big black hand was doing to my wife's body that made her close her eyes and pant on the phone instead of answering her husband.

“What's he doing to you?”

Drake's voice, a chuckle: “Go on, tell him.”

A growl.

“He's...just...he's just touching me. That's all.”

“Where?”

She only breathed. “You know where.”

And then she panted, while I listened, and the phone seemed to drop onto the seat. I could hear the cabbie's radio, I could hear the squeak of rubber cab seats, I could hear them both panting.

She left her phone in the cab.

I listened in horror to the sounds of her phone, traveling around the city, until it was pushed into the seat and the sound was muffled, all the while thinking of where Danielle had gotten off to, what she was doing, how Drake Reyes' hands were covered in her cum.

And that night, he had done the most obscene thing to her that he had done yet.

I made her tell and re-tell the story to me. I retold it to myself, over and over and over again, until I had filled it in with details that perhaps Danielle told me, and perhaps she didn't. Until it went like this:

She couldn't see, because he had clipped a collar around her neck and then to the bed so that she couldn't lift her head. The collar had come into their relationship weeks before, but he had never clipped her to the bed until that night. Her face was against the sheets, facing right.

He had pushed her legs open, and clipped them to the posts of the bed, but he had left her hands free. He instructed her to put her hands on her ass, and to pull it open for him, which was a favored position of his.

I imagined why: he liked that she had to submit this way, to hold herself open for him. Wasn't that the ultimate in submission? And the fact that it was another man's wife, a kind of double humiliation, must have made it all the sweeter for him.

He was moving around for a while while she remained like this. Sweet Danielle, holding her ass open obediently for a man who was not her husband. She didn't know what he was doing: the excitement of her not knowing was almost unbearable.

She heard rustling, and a crack of some kind. I loved imagining what she was thinking, submissive on the bed like that, when she heard that inexplicable sound.

She strained to look behind her, but could see nothing. Then he moved around to where her head was, and he knelt beside her. "Open your mouth," he had said. She did, and he placed a gag of some kind in her mouth – one that would still, really allow her to speak, which he noted to her and explained: "You can still use our safe word, but you can also bite into this. You may need it."

You may need it. The promise and the threat of the words had raced through her. My cock got hard every time I thought of them.

Drake set something in front of her. It was a camera.

And then what did he say? Danielle didn't tell me exactly. I imagined him delivering these instructions coldly, a photographer to a model:

"This is set on auto," he said. "It will take a picture every minute. I want you to always be looking at the camera, Danielle. Do you understand? Be a very good girl and look right here."

He pointed to the camera.

There was a mirror behind the camera, she had told me on maybe the fourth or fifth repeat of the story. He had explained that it was so he would know if she stopped looking at the camera.

"It could get very bad for you if you disobey me," he had said.

Danielle closed her eyes to assent to his wishes, and she could feel herself getting wetter than ever before. Anticipating the unknown thing he would do to her.

What could it be? She had already submitted as much as she thought was possible. He had already used her in every obscene way she or I could think of.

He went back to where he was, and she looked in the mirror behind the camera, but still could see nothing of what he was doing.

She jerked when she felt it because it was unexpected, and for a moment she thought it was hot. He pushed her onto the bed, and placed the object back onto her skin.

She screamed and writhed, but soon enough the feeling that she was being burnt gave way to the feeling of cold.

It was ice.

"Look at the camera, Danielle. Make sure that we capture everything."

She did as she was told but squirmed in her restraints. Her feet moved from side to side, twisting in their restraints. Her hands flew up to try and grab whatever it was, to feel it, to know what he was going to do to her.

He snatched an arm and pushed it back to her ass.

"Don't move your hands. Place them here and hold your ass open, Danielle. Do not disobey me."

So my wife moved her hands back to her ass, and held her skin, pulling herself apart for him and whatever he had decided to do to her.

For a moment nothing happened.

Then again, the searing ice. This time on her thigh.

Her mind raced as she tried to think what he might do. She struggled to keep her eyes on the camera, to look into it as he wanted her to. It was almost more humiliating than the times he had forced her to look at him while he fucked her mouth, or when he had held her eyes open while he sprayed his cum on her face. Something about what he was doing now was more dominating, more cruel.

And hotter.

She could imagine her face, contorted with worry. But underneath all of these things, a current of erotic heat pulsed through her.

He moved the cold object – what was it? - down her thigh.

The sensation disappeared.

It reappeared on her other thigh.

Again, gone.

She started to move her hands. He grabbed one again, and held it as he wound another rope around her waist, incorporating her wrist into the knots. The rope burned her skin – she had showed me later where. He tied her first hand, then her other hand, to her waist.

She could now grab only at her ass, or the flesh of her thighs.

”Put your hands on your ass,” he said, and now his voice was stricter, more in command. She obeyed. She squirmed.

And then she felt the ice on her clit.

Moving up.

A cold drip of water slid down her clit, to the lips of her pussy, to her hole.

Up went the ice.

On her anus.

He kept it there, moving it lightly around her asshole, teasing her, never letting it get too cold. He was letting her know what he would do, letting her think about it before he did it. He knew this made the pain more intense for her, and the pleasure.

“Look at the camera, Danielle. I won't tell you again. And keep those hands on your ass. These are the only things you have to do.”

And then he pushed the object into her ass.

It was large, and kept going. At first it was merely cold, and the sensation was incredible – the same slight pain as always, but layered over that sensation was the intensity of the cold.

She wiggled, and a moan escaped her mouth.

“Eyes on the camera, Danielle. I don't want to miss any of this. You want to be a good girl. Show me you can do it.”

And then the pain began to sink in – soft at first, then burning. All through her groin, deep inside of her, out to her limbs. She began to whimper. “Oh god,” she said into the gag.

But she didn't want him to stop, not yet. She dug her nails into her ass, and closed her eyes, shifting her head. She screamed.

Just like that, the pain was gone: he pulled it out of her. What was it? Now something warm: his thumb. In and out, stroking her calmly, but the cold was still inside of her, deep in her flesh.

Then his tongue on her clitoris.

Now the cold faded entirely, and she could feel her ass, cool like something silky in the winter, but a needy heat was building up in her pussy. The two throbbed against each other: cold and hot. He kept licking her, and she began to twist. “Open your eyes,” he demanded, and she flicked them open in surprise: she hadn't even realized what she was doing.

He stopped, as she knew he would, before she came. She could feel her wet, hot cunt pulsing, and her ass, which had slowly warmed up but was still slightly cool. She struggled to keep looking ahead, because she knew what would happen next.

Again the white-cold in her anus. It seemed like he left it there longer, while she made muffled sounds that she had never made before and strained against all of the restraints – so much that she realized she could not breathe because she was pulling so hard against the collar.

It was awful but she wanted to endure it. She wanted to feel that same throbbing, pounding between cold and hot when he pulled out.

She gasped, and was panting like an animal when he pulled the ice dildo from her ass. The relief was instant, and her head flooded from the extra blood and air as she relaxed her head, and the endorphins that must have been building up until then. Drake started in then, with his mouth on her pussy, which was still hot. The heat spread through her, the tingling as her ass warmed.

She could make no sense of the sounds she was making. She sounded like an animal.

He put a finger into her ass, and she could feel that it was wet with some kind of lubrication. He stroked her, and then he put his cock in, slowly, inch by inch.

His cock was hot, compared to her frozen skin, and she writhed with the intensity of it. It was almost too much for her: not pain, not pleasure, just an intensity she could almost not handle.

“Now,” he had said. “I want to see how good you can be for me”

And this was the best part.

Had Danielle told me that he had used these exact words? Or had I invented them? I can no longer remember.

“You're gonna to do this next thing like a little rag doll, Danielle. I'm going to put this ice in your ass, and I am going to fuck you, and you are going to come when I come, but you will leave your hands at your sides, and keep your eyes, open, on that camera. And if have to bite that gag, then just do it. But you will not scream, and you will not move, and you will not close your eyes.”

He didn't wait for her to say she would do it. He knew that she would. He knew that my wife was under his command, that she wanted to please him.

I was the only one who was unsure of what my wife wanted to do for me.

Drake pulled his cock out of her, inch by delicious inch, and he stroked her clitoris again, so that she was taken to the very brink of ecstasy again.

Her pussy and her ass were throbbing again, and she wanted to come as badly as she had ever wanted to.

As he unwound her, she let her arms fall to the bed.

She looked at the camera, she relaxed her arms. “Good,” he had said. Or maybe, “good girl,” while he stroked her hair.

It was this kind of submission – the kind that required her to restrain herself – that she liked the best. She told me so. She told me she loved it. But only for Drake.

She felt him shifting on the bed.

She stared into the camera.

She felt the scorching ice inside of her, building from the moment he put it in her into an intense, silky pain. Then Drake was inside of her open cunt, hot and hard. The pain of the two hard objects inside of her was one thing, and layered over it the contrast of heat and ice, as the two sensations beat against each other inside of her. Again, she felt as though she could not breathe, but she maintained her eyes on the camera, as he had commanded her to do.

Drake thrust into her, and she felt herself so close: the orgasm was building up in her and was more intense, she could tell, than any other she had experienced. She felt tears streaming down her face, and she bit into the gag. She wanted to scream: it was not pain, it was not pleasure, it was something impossible to even think about.

She gave herself over to it, and she felt as though she was burning and freezing and already coming over and over again.

When Drake began to moved more quickly, and harder, into her – he was close to coming – the orgasm took over. It came from her thighs but streaked through her like lightning. And then it didn't stop. She lost control, she could not keep her eyes open, she could not stay quiet. She screamed, she screamed as he came and filled her with hot liquid, she screamed as he pulled out of her and removed the ice from her ass. She was still screaming, and twisting, and coming, then she yelled the safe word he was not even touching her: she wanted it to stop and yet she did not. Her mind went blank, she thought maybe she had passed out but maybe not. Finally, slowly, the waves stopped, and she gasped for air.

She was lying on the bed but all the restraints had been removed.

Drake was stroking her hair, his palm on her chest. “Are you all right, Danielle? Are you okay?” he was saying.

And here's the part, when I have my hand on my cock and I think about the whole terrible and gorgeous scene – this is the part that cuts through me the deepest.

The idea that Drake was stroking her hair tenderly.

And what did Danielle think, then?

“What did you think about then? How did you feel?” I'd asked her, so many times.

But she had never really answered.

She never really gave me exactly what I wanted.

She claimed to have been so 'out of it,' she didn't know what she was thinking or feeling.

I spent more time, some days, wondering about her answer, replaying her casual shrug when I asked her how she felt, than I did thinking about Drake's cock in her ass.

And that's how I knew things had gone too far.

LEAVE WHILE IT'S GOOD

And so here we are, at the gallery, staring at Ice.

Eyes all around the room, male eyes, move over Danielle's little body and the gray sweater-dress that slides over her smooth skin. Every now and then, she reaches up for something – a toast, to touch her hair – and the dress promises to show a tiny bit of her ass. It never does, but the promise keeps many an eye on her thighs, waiting. Hoping.

Drake is beside me, with his superhuman grace, before I realize it.

“You really gonna buy this?” He is looking at Ice.

I shrug. It's magnificently expensive, and I wouldn't hang it in my house.

“I'll give it to you,” he says.

I turn to him. “What?”

“Listen. I'm leaving in a few days.”

I blink at him. Everything he is saying is so unconnected.

I look over at Danielle.

“She knows,” he assures me. Then he smiles. “This is about the time I think it's best to be pulling out.”

He smiles, and I'm sure there is some innuendo in his statement, but he doesn't care if I get it or not.

He lifts his champagne flute to his mouth.

I look from him to Danielle, and he gives me a look that lets me know it's all worked out.

I feel relief coming over me, and disappointment. Part of me still wants to know what the two of them could do, what depraved things they might invent if only they have more time. Part of me wants to see how sexual Danielle can become.

A big part of me wants to keep spanking her while she tells me filthy stories. Real, filthy stories, about Drake's domination of her.

Drake downs his champagne.

“An important thing to know in life, my brother always told me, is when to leave the party. Right while it's fun. Before it gets ugly. Don't say goodbye. Just get out. And then,” he smiles and claps me on the back, “you’ve got it all figured out.”

And just like that, he turns, and walks out of the gallery. A wife-fucking fairy godfather, and poof! He is gone.

Danielle. I smell her before I see her. I feel the men in the room move around, trying to look at Danielle without their wives noticing. Her hair shimmers in the light. She’s curled it a little. She looks at Drake’s figure through the swinging glass door. It’s cold outside, and the air from the street sends a shiver through her.

I’m holding Drake’s empty glass.

I turn to Danielle. “I guess that’s that.”

She does the strangest thing, and rolls the lip of her glass along her mouth with a strangely elegant motion. She smiles, but her eyes look upward, like she’s entertaining me by agreeing.

Does her look say, we’ll see?

Or, I’m meeting him in Paris in a month?

I look at her face, and she looks like sweet Danielle again.

Does her look just say, all’s well that ends well?

The corner of her mouth moves, just a little. She has a small smile beneath her lips. Quivering.

I don’t know my wife anymore, I realize. The idea is terrifying. And exciting.

It is, I realize also, irreversible.

Because unlike Drake, I am in this party until the very end.

Danielle leans toward me and whispers, “Want to find a back room?”

And then, I watch her tight little ass moving away from me, the gray material bending into round shadows as she walks, her long legs stretching everywhere in the room.

Fine. I don’t exactly know her anymore.

But I can get to know her.

Right?
