

not so shy anymore

arnica butler

NOT SO SHY ANYMORE A HOTWIFE NOVEL

By Arnica Butler

Copyright 2022 by Arnica Butler
All rights reserved. No duplicating and no resale, but feel free to share with friends or family.

This book is a work of fiction. All characters, companies, organizations, products and events in this book, other than those that are clearly in the public domain, are fictitious, and any resemblance to real persons, living or dead, companies, organizations, events, or products, is purely coincidental.

All characters depicted in this story are 18 years or older at the time of any depicted or described sexual acts.

Cover characters are models. Image(s) is/are licensed from:
IgorVetushko/ DepositPhotos

Published by Thirteenth Line Publications

Sign up for our newsletter!

PROLOGUE

Shiloh was lying on her stomach, facing the computer screen, wearing nothing more than a shiny, semi-transparent white camisole. Mike had an excellent view of her pert breasts, plumped into large, fluffy pillows by her arms, and caught the occasional glimpse of a pebbled mocha nipple as she moved around. She seemed to have almost staged herself, lining up the smooth curve of her ass behind her so that Mike could see it, in all its barely-covered glory, distant and slightly out-of-focus, her bare feet swinging casually in the background as they spoke.

"So... you're on? For next week?" she asked excitedly. Mike stared at her lips, enjoying the twitches of mischief that trembled at the corners of her mouth, the glint in her eyes. Shiloh's feet swooped through the background again, like the tail of a cat getting ready to pounce. "I'll make sure to plan something special."

Mike smiled, distracted to the point of helplessness. What were they talking about?

Shiloh was still smiling back at him, expectantly. She waited for a moment, then bugged her eyes a little and jutted her chin toward the screen to prompt him. "Honey?"

Mike blinked, and in the time that he did, a figure moved in the far background, and Mike recognized the flesh-colored tones of a shirtless Joey. His chiseled chest loomed in the background for a moment, and Mike's dick, already hard, pulsed with forceful longing enough to make him wince - inwardly, of course.

"Yeah," he said. "I mean, yes. I'm on. For next week. Returning... next... week..."

Shiloh was grinning. He could see in her eyes that she had recognized his expression, that she knew Joey had come into the picture behind her. Joey was moving slowly forward, the contours of his body taking sharper form as he moved closer to Shiloh.

A simultaneous thrust of pain and a spike of pleasure ran through Mike's body. They were in the master bedroom: this was his bed, his wife, in the background, his walls and the entrance to his bathroom suite, a light left on deep in the recessed room casting a familiar weak yellow on the walls above the sinks. He could almost see Shiloh in 3D from Joey's perspective: long, lean legs stretched out behind her, ass mostly bare - maybe she had a sexy thong on, perhaps she had nothing at all. He couldn't see Joey's face, because it hovered above the line of the camera's view. But he could easily picture the look on Joey's face.

He shuddered.

"That's great, baby," Shiloh said breathlessly, but there was no telling if her breathlessness was produced by the prospect of Mike coming home, or by the sensation of Joey's hand on her foot as the latter reached for one of her swinging appendages and caught it in his hand, a thumb stroking a firm line down the sole, from heel to toe.

The whole view jiggled violently, and a blur of flesh and white camisole moved jaggedly across the screen before Shiloh's face came back into focus. Joey was climbing onto the bed, lowering his body on top of hers. Mike got a brief look at his face, mouth slightly open, eyes devouring Shiloh's bare skin.

Shiloh smiled at him. "I guess it's time to go, baby."

"Yeah, Mikey we got places to be," Joey chimed in. "And you have a meeting, bro. Remember?"

This was true, and it was why he was going to miss whatever happened next.

Shiloh was looking into the camera with her new, sensual smile. Her eyes dilated with excitement. A tattooed arm crossed in front of the lens, and Shiloh's hand pushed it up, above her head, as she ducked, giggling, to look into the camera again. "I love you, baby," she breathed.

"I love you, Shy," Mike said, as Joey called out cheerfully, "Yeah, love you too, man."

A sultry giggle.

Darkness falling over his view like a curtain as someone - likely Joey - closed Shiloh's laptop and silence cut out the glittery rain of Shiloh's giggles, sprinkled through a sentence she may or may not have said:

"I'll tell you all about every-"

CHAPTER 1

It took him several seconds to realize that he had been asked a question.

Mike blinked, moving his eyes and his body slowly, smoothing his tie, furrowing his brow. He chose each of these gestures to signal that he was, indeed, a man with something to say. Just as soon as he figured out what it was.

Meanwhile, his head spun in multiple directions. One thing he needed to do was get his wife - and what she was possibly doing at that moment - out of his mind. Another was to grasp at snippets of the meeting that he had heard, but not listened to, in the hopes of figuring out what the question was.

He was unsuccessful on both fronts. The image of Shiloh's body, squirming away on the screen of his laptop just before the display had gone dark, was seared into his mind and crowded out all other thoughts. And he couldn't get rid of it, he couldn't think about anything else - unless that something else was a fantasy about what had happened next - in flesh-colored, wet, tangy-scented detail that he could almost hear and smell.

"Uh... Jim, yeah," he said. Mike reached deep into his bag of bullshit, searching for an all-purpose response. He looked at Jim, because it was seeping into his consciousness that Jim had asked him the question.

Jim. Jim was a money man. This was about money. Whose money?

"Look, Jim," Rich Polis interjected. "I don't think you can really expect Mike to speculate on this. He's not a mind reader."

Mike looked over at Rich Polis, who was ordinarily neither friend nor foe, and whose motivations for coming to his rescue were murky at best. Since Mike still had no idea what they were discussing, but could agree that he wasn't a mind-reader, he moved his hands in a gesture of resignation, as if to agree that he couldn't be asked to speculate on "this."

Hopefully everyone assumed this was because it really did require him to read minds. Not because he had no idea what the fuck was happening, because he couldn't get the image of his wife's ass being cupped by Joey out of his mind.

"Yeah..." Mike said, cautiously, watching Rich's face. Rich nodded sagely along with him. "...I really can't read minds on this."

Back to Jim, who furrowed his own brow and put his steepled fingers to his lips.

"All right," Jim declared. He slammed a binder closed. "You get on it, then, Bell. Find out where White is on this, maybe you just have to come out and ask him. We have to move." Jim looked at Mike. "Can you get it done this weekend?"

Mike nodded.

He'd get right on that.

As soon as he figured out what the fuck "it" was.

The meeting adjourned. Rich slid over toward Mike. "Hey man," he said. "Gotta get your head in the game."

Mike lifted his briefcase and shoved his tablet in, along with a legal pad on which he'd written down a few incomprehensible notes, before spacing out completely. "Yeah, man, thanks for having my back."

Rich clapped him on the back, a little too hard. "You got a wife problem?"

Mike moved his head in a slow negative shake, not quite sure how to explain.

Rich smiled. "Ah. Girlfriend problem." He hefted himself to standing, letting out a big sigh, as if girlfriend problems were something he dealt with all the time.

"Nah," Mike said, looking up, genuinely interested in correcting the record. But Rich was already waddling away, dispensing advice as he did. Mike gave up on trying to correct the record and closed his briefcase as Rich waved a hand lazily in the air. "Just keep 'em away from each other and this will all work out," he advised.

If only that was his problem.

That kind of problem seemed more clear-cut. And easier to solve.

As if Shiloh possessed some kind of ability to mind-read, his phone rumbled in his pocket. He slipped it out and greedily opened the text from Shiloh. As much trouble as she was causing him, as much as she cluttered his mind and drove him insane, he went back to it like a crack addict. His fingers were so excited that he almost fumbled the phone.

Shiloh often sent him pictures. Right in the middle of the day. Sometimes they were neutral: an outfit, a pair of shoes, a request for him to choose one or the other color of underwear.

Sometimes they were outrageous, very NSFW, almost porn scenes.

Sometimes they were selfies of her with some guy, smiling. A string of question marks beneath the photo.

He had no one but himself to blame. He had nudged her in this direction, and then watched placidly while Joey took her by the arm and walked her into her slutty new stage of life. And Mike hadn't lifted a finger or opened his mouth to stop it.

He had wanted it.

It had excited him.

It still did.

But the tight grip on his esophagus, the crushing feeling in his chest, and the dump of pleasure that quelled the pain in his heart the way spilling cum from his dick quelled the pain in his balls - those had become so intense that he didn't know if he could bear much more.

He felt like Shiloh was slipping out of his control.

Out of even Joey's control.

The picture thumbnail had been a dark, unintelligible blur, but it expanded when he tapped it with his finger.

His eyes burned for a moment, and the focus was lost as his mind swam.

This is Joey's friend he wants me to meet.

The picture was just black skin, one dark, purple-pinkish shaft in the center, coiled hair curled on sizeable balls squeezed beneath the weight of the thick member. Just a guy's huge dick. Huge black dick.

A wave of unknowable feeling washed over Mike. He had never even really given any thought to BBC - it was just a thing that was out there, in the porn that he liked and in the general air of the hotwifing and swinging parties Joey had told him about. He knew it existed, that it was a lot of guys' kink - but in truth he just had never given it any thought of his own. Maybe peripherally, like the icing on the cake of some masturbatory fantasy.

But it had never been... a thing.

Now, though, staring at this cock, knowing that it was Joey's "friend," knowing that Shiloh had this picture on her own phone, that her hands would soon be within reach of that cock, that this big black cock would be inside of her - that brought the whole thing home. Slam, right into his face.

He felt like he had been punched in the face for a moment. Even the tingling sensation that gripped his sinuses and rang his bell traveled through his face, as if he had actually been slapped hard.

Shaking, always shaking slightly. Was it adrenaline? Excitement? Rage? Too much of something, some unidentifiable excitement, a pleasurable pain that he couldn't define as good or bad.

He typed, the shaking wearing off as he did, as it always did.

It was, after all, within his powers - easily within them - to call all of this off.

He only had to tell Shiloh no.

Right?

But he never did.

You ready for that? he typed instead.

The minutes while he waited for Shiloh to respond were the most excruciating. Always in a boardroom, or an office, or once, on the subway, like a pervert and an idiot. Waiting, almost salivating.

A thrill tickled him, reaching up from his groin and squeezing his lungs. The thrill was incredible. He let it wash over him, enjoyed the twist of his stomach as he waited.

Pushing the other dark thought into a corner, shoving it hard, punching it into a small ball that he could tuck away.

The dark thought, the one he didn't like to touch:

Maybe he didn't ever tell Shiloh no, or rein her back in, not because he loved the thrill so much.

But, rather, because he didn't think that Shiloh would listen. Maybe Shiloh was already out of control, lost to him, and he knew that deep down inside, so he didn't dare to face it. What would he do against her defiance?

He stared at the BBC, twisting in the wind, tortured.

His phone squirmed in his hand, and his feeling slithered coldly into a new knot as Shiloh's words appeared on the screen.

Joey thinks I am.

Winky face.

He stared at his fingers, almost hating them, as if they alone were responsible for the treachery as he typed:

Hot.

This isn't for this weekend is it?

And sent it.

Shiloh might have been out of control.

But he wasn't the right man to do anything about it. At least not now.

This weekend he was supposed to go home, get his hands on Shiloh at last. Part of him wanted her to himself, but another part of him stared at the screen, hoping that Shiloh would write back "yes." Nothing more. Just a tease, like she sometimes did now, leaving him twisting in agony.

It was even worse than that, it appeared.

Because Shiloh wasn't writing back at all.

CHAPTER 2

Just take a cab.

I'll be home

These were Shiloh's latest, cryptic words.

Cryptic, because if there was one aspect of Shiloh's personality that Mike had felt certain he understood, it was her need to be very precise. Shiloh explained every possible detail of everything she was doing.

Usually.

Now, Shiloh did things like this: she promised to pick him up at the airport, and then abruptly canceled, didn't apologize, and didn't explain.

He stared emptily out the cab window and turned Shiloh's last messages and communications over and over in his mind, his chest cold and stretching to accommodate the excruciating pleasure of having Shiloh toy with his mind and heart.

Her car was in the driveway. No other vehicles were on the street. No Joey.

The door was unlocked, and he cursed silently, reminding himself that they really did need to have a serious talk about locking the damn door. Even Joey, of all people, thought so.

"Shiloh?" he called out, kicking the door back with his foot. Now that he had stepped into the house, and traces of her perfume and skin lotion and even the smell of laundry reached his nostrils and filled his head, he was erect in seconds and ready to throw her on the bed and throw a wild fuck into her.

There was no answer. He tossed his keys and briefcase onto the table behind the couch and trotted up the stairs. Halfway up he lightened his footsteps, tuning his hearing, holding his breath to strain for sounds of any kind.

The upstairs seemed empty, eerily quiet. And yet he knew she was home: there was something in the air, a heat and a scent, the energy of another person, and that person was Shiloh. All that remained to be seen was whether or not she was there alone, and as he walked quietly to the end of the hall, his hand in front of him to push against the door, which was not fully closed, he wondered if he would catch her with someone on top of her.

Someone other than Joey.

Or even with Joey. He couldn't tell if that would somehow be worse, or better.

It would all hurt, he thought, but he savored the pleasure of the pain, let it twist in his stomach. The burn of jealousy was an acquired taste, but he felt like he had acquired it, and now, like hot peppers or booze, he needed to keep upping his dose to feel the sting of what he wanted to feel.

The door swung open, noiselessly, freshly oiled. This stung somewhere in his chest: Joey had probably oiled it. The metaphor suggested itself: Joey had oiled a lot of things in this house.

Shiloh was on the bed, strewn over the duvet in a baby blue costume of some kind, looking both like she had staged herself to be a loose pile of long legs and bare skin, sheer yellow fabric and slipping spaghetti straps, and also like she had plopped there hastily and without a thought. The duvet was spread out over the top of the bed, but it was tipped at an angle and hung too far on one side: definitely not the act of bed-making that Mike would have expected from someone as uptight as Shiloh.

And this was where the sweetest, chewiest centers of pleasure and pain came from, in these inexplicable and unexplained inconsistencies - haphazardly made beds, strange transparent fabrics Mike had never seen before, Shiloh lazing around on her stomach in the bedroom with her phone in the middle of the afternoon... none of these things were, by themselves, indicative of anything at all. But taken together, they hinted at whoreishness, the way some shades of red lipstick did on the right kind of mouth.

Shiloh purred at him without immediately taking her eyes from her screen. She did, of course, eventually. But in the seconds that her eyes lingered on whatever she was looking at, a coy smile on her lips plumping into a little pout, Mike was incinerated.

"Hey, baby," she said, looking up, at last. Really, it was only a second later, but in her eyes there was a glimmer of intrigue, a trace of disappointment, a fragment of longing to look back at what she held in her hands, instead of at Mike.

She smiled, and waved her bare feet, crossed at the ankles, above the smooth curve of her ass. The skimpy blue item she was wearing - maybe lingerie? A shirt? A camisole? A very tiny dress? - only covered half of her skin, and no traces of underwear appeared in view. Mike's brain was absorbing all of this - the titillating promise of the material's transparency, the suggestion of it, the implications, the possible backstories - they piled on top of each other in his mind until his brain was nothing more than a collection of impulses and fervors, images of real and imagined scenarios. His mouth was open. He needed to speak. What would he say?

Shiloh was looking at him, smiling. She tipped her head into her hand and gave her hair a shake. It was down, loose and wavy, damp at the tips, pretty in a carefree, sexy way that it acquired from the beach, or sex, or a two-hour delay after a shower. It was impossible to know how this particular hair had come to be, and Shiloh looked as if she had no intention of telling him.

Unless he asked. And he wanted to ask: he wanted to have Shiloh give him all of the answers, tell him how the duvet came to be on the bed like this, what she couldn't take her eyes off on her phone, how the tips of her hair were damp, why she was wearing this never-before seen skimpy shirt-dress-thing in the middle of the day.

But he also didn't want to break the spell, so he smiled. "Hmm," he murmured, closing the door. "Is this why you couldn't pick me up from the airport?" His eyes went to the phone in her hand.

Shiloh let the phone tip backward from her hand, her eyes on Mike, full of mischief. The image on the screen was a photo of a man, but Mike didn't let his eyes wander to investigate it further. Shiloh had him locked on her face anyway, her eyes glinting, her lips in an alluring moment of hesitation, quivering, changing shape several times before she spoke. "This?" she asked, and waited for him to look at the phone that she was lazily tipping in her hand. He didn't go for it, and this amused Shiloh, who rolled up to sit on her heels.

And then she said something, in a coy and playful voice, but Mike didn't hear it. The little shirt - a nightie, he supposed - drifted up with her. It clung tightly to her breasts, a thick hem of blue satin outlining their shape from ribs to sternum, then back across her chest, evocative of bondage somehow. The material that covered her breasts was transparent, as he had mused, and so her encased nipples, the darkness of her aureole, pressed against the fine mesh, straining to escape or be seen less gauzily.

The little outfit flared at the waist, and an inch or two of fabric piled loosely on her lap, obscuring, though not entirely, the fact that she wore no underwear. Flashes of her gash revealed themselves as she sat up, like quick, Cheshire reminders that hardly anything stood between Mike and the soft, wet interior of her cunt.

Mike stared.

"... and it was too late to get you, so I just... decided to amuse myself until you got home," Shiloh was finishing, holding the phone provocatively, looking at him as if she expected some kind of response.

When he just stood there, open-mouthed, she waited a polite amount of time, and then grinned, crawling toward the foot of the bed on her knees. "Don't you even want to ask?" she said, fluttering her eyes. "What it is?"

"What is it?" Mike said, gamely. His mouth was dry, the words stuck in his mouth. Shiloh was up on her knees now, the skimpy dress just skimming her pubic bone, her bare pussy peeking between her legs, tight and tidy, nothing more than a clean, untouched slit. Maybe Joey hadn't just been here, maybe the duvet hadn't been hastily tossed on the bed, maybe this skimpy dress was only for him. He wouldn't know until he put his fingers in her gash and felt her body, the slipperiness of her pussy, the scent of the juices that inhabited her interior. He could ask her, but he could see that Shiloh was not simply going to give him a straight answer.

Not this version of Shiloh.

"It's Joey's friend's profile on this app..." Shiloh said, grinning, reaching toward Mike with one hand while waving the phone like a treat for a dog in the other. Instinctively, zombie-like, he stepped toward Shiloh's groping hand, and she seized his shirt and balled it in her fist, pulling him toward her - and the phone, and the profile, and her lips, and the unopened present of her slit. He moved stiffly, awkwardly, unable to mentally catch up to what was happening.

Shiloh pulled him closer, her mouth close to his lips, the flutter of the air stroking him senseless as she spoke. His eyes were everywhere, careening from Shiloh's lips, to the shape of her plumped breasts and her dark nipples straining against the blue fabric, to her bare right foot and the shapely line of it, to the phone, and all around again.

"So get this," she was saying, her lips glossy and fuller than usual, suddenly the only thing he could see or think about. "It's some kind of app for people who, you know... are looking for..." she stifled a laugh. "Playdates. That's what it's called." She wrinkled her nose. "Lame name, right? So, I was kind of just looking to make fun of it, but..." she drew her finger down the length of Mike's shirt, over his belt, and around the shape of his bulging cock. "It turned out to be sort of... inspiring."

Her lips were so close that Mike just assumed she would be kissing him next, and so it was a gut-punch when she laughed suddenly, and fell back onto her knees, then rolled onto her bottom and scooted back on the bed. She was still holding the phone in her right hand, flashing it, twisting it like a lure for a fish. In her eyes the knowledge gleamed - she had already caught her fish, and now she only had to reel him in. Mike felt a frisson of fear snake through him: was there a tinge of the sadistic in Shiloh's smile?

Did he care?

Shiloh's eyes dropped to Mike's crotch, moving over it like she was reading text. "It looks like you don't need any inspiration," she said, smiling seductively.

Mike started taking off his clothes, because he couldn't think of what else to say to this woman, who resembled his wife in many ways, but seemed like a stranger in many others. Shiloh watched him, leaning on her elbows, her legs tipped to one side, still hiding her bare pussy from him. Her attention seemed to have been entirely taken up by him undressing, and it was pleasurable but disconcerting, because one thing Shiloh never really did was stare at him like a wolf while he undressed.

That was, traditionally speaking, the other way around.

As he stumbled and stepped out of his pants clumsily, a sense of urgency filling him even though no constraints really existed on their time, Shiloh watched and stretched her legs out, tipping her legs open to ground one foot on the bed and pull herself forward a little with it. As her slit spread open, it crinkled wetly, and the pink of her pussy spilled open, glistening provocatively. She slipped her left hand over her hip bone, tugged the shirt up slightly, and then slid her fingers toward her gash.

Mike watched, transfixed and frozen, one hand still holding uselessly onto his boxers, which he had stepped out of and could have discarded. Shiloh's middle finger plunged into her fattened lips and sought out her hardened clit. She began to stroke herself, her eyes still locked on his, her smile revealing nothing except that she wanted him to fuck her.

Or maybe she wanted anyone to fuck her. The thought traveled along his spine and licked inside of him.

He fell on top of her, and she let him push her onto her back, lifting her pussy-soaked fingers to her mouth and sucking on the tips. His hands seemed to each have a mind and a plan of their own, grasping at whatever he could. A handful of her hair, tipping her mouth up toward his and making her growl; the plump firmness of her breast, her nipple grazing his palm, the garment clinging to her, impossible to remove easily, teasing him through layers of silky-soft transparency, blocking him from the hot, faintly sweaty rubbery soft of her skin.

He kissed her and tried to work his way toward her pussy, his cock slipping into her outer folds. Weeks of frustration and teasing, and hollow masturbation that only left him hungrier, seized him in a frenzy. But just as he felt the stiff contours of the entrance to her pussy licking his crown, her fingers closed around his cock and squeezed him tightly at the base. Her other hand went to the top of his head, her lips parted in that same mesmerizing and possibly sadistically-flavored smile, and she pushed him down her torso. Firmly. Confidently. No question about what she wanted.

Her legs were spread open for him, her hand insistent, pressing his face into her mound. His mouth was crushed into the hot, rubbery, silky soup of flesh and tangy juices that was her pussy. He couldn't see, couldn't move his head back, and so had to feel with crushed lips and a blind tongue for the center of her, for her clit, for the canal of her pussy.

For several moments he was disoriented, overwhelmed. She was so wet already that her juices coated his face, dribbled down his chin, cooled on his jaw and whispered of the sorts of thoughts she might have had to have in order to already be so ripe. He found her clit, bulbous and swollen, darting in the mess of flesh and juices she held his face to. His lips closed around its shape and he sucked, her flavors - peachy, over-sweetened, sour - streaming into his mouth.

When his tongue massaged her tender nerves, and he had the right spot, her body seemed to roll like a wave underneath him, and her fingers pulled at his hair. A sound vibrated in her chest, her thighs shook like a delicate tree shivering in the wind, a squeak leaving her lips. He opened his eyes, now that he had oriented himself, and her abdomen rolled in waves like an ocean of milk, her tits jiggling beyond them, her head tossing on the pillow.

She looked down at him suddenly, and her body froze, strained, her muscles shaking with the effort. Her eyes were on his but seemed not to see him, and yet they burned through him in their distanced gaze. "Don't stop, oh, oh, yeah, yeah baby, oh God, that's..." her head fell back.

Her orgasm shattered her, her body jerking and the sound cutting from her throat like she had been unplugged. Her pussy burst into hot liquid in his mouth, dribbling down his chin, an internal spasm sucking at his lower lip, her clit darting away like a fish, lost in her quivering flesh. Her thighs clapped suddenly against his face and she squeezed him hard, before her whole body jerked and she howled, turning to the pillow to push it into her face.

And then, and only then, he rose up and entered her. Her pussy was so wet and distended it didn't even really feel like her body. He pushed the pillow away from her face and she let it fall away. For a moment her eyes were vacant and unfocused, the pupils vaguely directed at the ceiling.

As he fucked her, overcome by his own needs, unable to do anything else but sink into her pussy and ram her, she rolled her head back to stare at him, her eyes lighting up slowly, like she was awakening from a dream.

She smiled, and he felt her body twitch back to life, another orgasm building up inside of her. She wrapped her legs around his hips and pulled him deep inside of her by grinding her heel into the small of his back.

And that was how Shiloh fucked him, and it was glorious, even when she continued to rut against his pubic bone and slide her slick pussy over his raw and depleted shaft to get her second orgasm while he shuddered from the first. It was wild, intense, and some of the best sex they had ever had...

Except for - or was it because of? - the thought that he could not shake from his mind the entire time. That bitter high note: the idea that Shiloh's inspiration came from some other place, from the thoughts that she had drifted away to, even with him inside her, when her eyes turned vacant. When Shiloh ground her hips against him violently, was she thinking about him? Or about Joey? Or about someone else?

*

It's the sort of thing Mike knew they should probably talk about. And he wanted to, he really did. Even if he didn't have the balls to be as direct as he might have wanted to be, he wanted to pry at the oyster of Shiloh's thoughts, just to peek in, just to tantalize himself. Even if she gave vague answers, they were just as sweet and titillating.

It was a question, though, of when. They dozed after that wild ride, and it didn't seem like a good time to Mike right after they had sex. He didn't have the motivation for it at that moment, anyway. And Shiloh fell blissfully asleep, her conscience clear, her mind unclouded.

Mildly troubling to Mike.

When she woke up, she dragged herself down the side of his body as he lay there, semi-conscious at first. Her lips were wet and they moved over his skin, spreading out through his body, bringing his cock back to life even as his mind struggled to free itself from sleep. Her eyelashes scraped over his skin behind her lips, fluttering, tickling. Her hair snaked after them, and the whole parade of sensations cut across his hip bone, over his abdomen, and then, as her lips closed around the crown of his cock, he was shaken violently awake.

He lifted his head - his arms were stretched out wide on either side of his body - and saw Shiloh looking back up at him, her fingers closing around his shaft, her lips closed and puckered at the tip of his twitching cock, a grin on her face.

He was so shocked at first that his cock jerked around in her hand, as if torn between becoming erect and turtling away just in case. There was an element of danger in the air, even if there shouldn't have been.

Shiloh began licking him, her pink tongue wet and warm, flicking at his shaft, then lapping at him. She swept it around him thoroughly, her lips closing sometimes on tender places, her teeth grazing against even more raw patches of skin. The ridge of his crown, the soft underbelly of his glans.

She began to talk and he felt it, a breathy vibration close to his cock, before he actually heard her. When he was hard she released him and let his stiff dick wag above his pelvis while she flicked her tongue at it, smiling. She seemed to know that the question burning in Mike's mind was about what she was doing - what was happening here? Because this was unlike Shiloh.

As if he had actually articulated the question, as opposed to just straining to hold his head up and stare at her, open-mouthed, she smiled and said:

"I used to think I hated tasting my own pussy, but..."

And then she closed her whole mouth around his crown, looking up at him, the smile that her closed lips could no longer make radiating from her eyes. He felt the brief scrape of her incisor as she took more of him into her mouth, her tongue swirling in the wetness of her mouth, her words banging around in Mike's head.

Shiloh sucked hard on his cock, but midway down his shaft she released him and started in again on her wet, slurpy licking. What she had been doing before had been delicate, but now she was attacking him like his cock was an ice-cream cone, really trying to scoop up whatever taste was on there.

And then, abruptly, she went back to sucking him off, and he had to let his head fall back onto the mattress because his shoulders and neck were throbbing in pain. Shiloh sucked hard, pausing after a few moments to gasp for breath and stroke his cock with one hand. "I also used to think I didn't like swallowing cum," she teased, in a sultry voice.

Mike jerked his head back up, disoriented, and caught a glimpse of his wife, leaning on one arm, stroking his dick and looking at it hungrily. Then she was on him again, her lips going all the way to the base, his crown packed against the back of her throat, where wet muscles and tissues quivered around his glans, almost like she was swallowing him.

And that was all it took for her to suck the cum right out of him, which is how it felt - less like he was boiling over and more like Shiloh was draining him. His cum poured into her throat and she just kept swallowing and sucking, until the crest subsided and his raw dick was being tortured by her attention. His hand flew to her head and he pushed her gently off of him, his body shuddering. "Shy, Jesus... hey... that's good..." he mumbled, stunned.

Shiloh released his cock and ran her tongue over her upper lip, grinning. Then she bit into her lip beguilingly. "Did you like that?" she asked.

Mike was still reeling, his abdomen spasming, his mind a complete blank. He laughed, and smiled, but found no words.

Which was just as well. Shiloh grinned devilishly at him and began to walk herself up his body, on her knees. Her naked body was glorious in the dim light. Sunset had come and gone and now only their obnoxious back neighbor's violent security lights backlit the window, bathing Shiloh in a blueish-white light and shadows that accentuated the curves of her body and smoothed her few imperfections to a glaze of sweat-drenched skin the color of porcelain.

She stopped when her gash was hovering over his cock, which slumped against his thigh, drained but feebly interested. She grabbed it and squeezed just as she said,

"Joey taught me."

He could feel his dick unfurling in her hand. Maybe it was the pressure of her palm, maybe the words she was saying. She guided the handful to her slit, working the crown that bulged from her squeeze into the wet layers of her pussy.

Her flesh was hot against his crown, her pussy lips kissing him as she stroked her clit with it. She began slowly, dragging his semi-hard cock in languid strokes against her swollen button and through the waves of silken-wet skin. But it wasn't the errant sloppy kisses of her pussy against his shaft, or the knob whose shape he could sense with the dome of his dick that made him shudder back to life with a painful, ecstatic throb.

It was that Shiloh's eyes were on his, her mouth smiling, as she did it.

She made herself come like that, hovering over his dick with it balled in her fist, squeezing it tightly and rubbing it against her clit. Her pussy juices snaked down his shaft, squelching in her hand, dripping onto his balls.

She came, and a warm gush of her cum washed over him. She collapsed on his lap - not, as he hoped, with his cock inside of her.

He panted, waiting, as she tipped her head back and purred. Waiting for what she would do next, hoping she would climb onto him again. His cock was, incredibly, bursting at the seams again.

Abruptly, Shiloh laughed, and popped up to her knees again. She swung one leg over him and departed from the bed, sending Mike into a wild free-fall.

She trotted into the en-suite bathroom, and he heard her turn on the shower. "Hey, hurry up," he heard her call cheerfully from somewhere in the cavern of tiled walls. "We're meeting Joey at Wet Deck and I want something to eat first."

A thing people seemed to ask Mike perpetually, since he had spent so much time lately in Toronto, was whether he thought there were any differences between Canadian and American culture. It was a question he had originally waved away with a bland, "not really," because whatever the differences were, they were too bland and subtle to matter.

Except that, as time went on, the differences had begun to emerge. Still subtle, still effectively unimportant to the tourist or the casual visitor.

But disturbing.

He could feel that same vague disturbance now, as he peeled himself from the bed and trudged into the bathroom with his third hard-on of the evening, to watch the woman he was married to take a shower.

She was pretty much like Shiloh, in every way that mattered.

Except... she also wasn't.

She opened her eyes after pushing the water from her face and grinned at him. Her gaze dropped to his cock, and her lips curled in the sort of smile he had never seen on her before. A frisson of terror - at what, he couldn't say - traveled through him, but it left as quickly as it swirled into existence. Shiloh was turning under the water, her eyes closed, her body shiny with rivulets of liquid and eddies of soap that framed her like lingerie that had been shredded during wild lovemaking.

"Sorry I got you all worked up again," she said, without opening her eyes, almost like she didn't care if he was in the room or not, or maybe more like she knew there was no way he wasn't. She was a hostage-taker now, and she knew it. "But I think that might make things more fun, anyway."

She didn't ask if he agreed.

The smile on her lips conveyed that she didn't really need to know that, anyway.

CHAPTER 3

Shiloh had everything planned out: Mike was just along for the ride. She knew where she wanted to eat, she took the keys, started the car, and drove there.

Not that any of those facts, taken independently, meant anything at all: it wasn't like Shiloh had never been decisive about where to eat dinner, and the year was 2022; there was nothing that extraordinary about a woman driving while a man sat in the passenger seat.

Sure, this kind of thing happened once in a blue moon, and usually for medical or legal reasons, but it wasn't a big deal in and of itself.

All together, though - along with the fact that Shiloh had told him (rather than deliberating with him) that they were meeting Joey at a bar afterward, and along with the variations in her blowjob game, and her sex game in general - Shiloh's many altered behaviors put Mike in a state of unease, and telling him where they were going and then driving them there was just one more of those details that didn't add up.

Not to mention his lingering, throbbing, unsatisfied hard-on, which seemed to only be made worse by the fact that they had fucked so much already.

Thai food. Shiloh ate sparingly, and there wasn't anything new about that. But she sat across from him, her feet twisting seductively beneath the table, grazing his legs, flitting around where he couldn't see them but easily imagined her feet twisting playfully. It was easy to imagine her feet because the shoes she was wearing - new, physics-defying, inexplicable - had burned an image and numerous filthy thoughts and images onto his cornea. Remnants of those images still flitted vaguely through his field of vision.

The shoes themselves were like flip-flops; the dull gold cords cut between her toes, and from there the two slender gold ropes wound around her ankle, then around her calf, in a sexy series of criss-crossing straps. The heels were startlingly high, so much so that the averagely-tall Shiloh was almost elevated beyond Mike's height of 5'11."

She would still - and this was in no way lost on Mike at all - be shorter than Joey.

Her toenails were carefully painted and she had obviously been to get a pedicure. This was another one of those facts that, taken by itself, didn't signal anything all that unusual. Shiloh went for pedicures sometimes.

And what was he so trepidated about? He loved Shiloh's pretty toes, wrapped up in these sexy, strappy, stilettos. He liked her dress, also new, a tight-fitting red dress with off-the-shoulder sleeves, deceptively patterned with whimsical flowers. The fabric evoked girl-next-door vibes, but plastered to Shiloh's body (except for the slightly ruffled sleeves), it acquired a whiff of sluttiness. Her hair, just below her shoulders now, tumbled in glorious, shiny, waves from some loose up-do. It had the peculiar quality of looking both carefully coiffed and also like she had just returned from a roll in the hay.

Her lips were a vibrant red that matched the main color of the dress. Mike had a hard time taking his eyes off them while Shiloh ate, closing them around chopsticks, inviting the memory of her lips closing around the crown of his cock to invade his thoughts and make his dick throb. He tried to be game and eat some of the food he had evidently ordered, but it wasn't easy.

"Nice dress," he had managed to say, at some point. Admiringly. Shiloh had smiled, twisting in her seat, her eyes filling with mischief again. "Joey picked it out for me," she purred. And then turned her attention to a bowl of noodles, her features forming a picture of innocence, as if she had no idea, no idea at all, that saying something like that would burn through him as if she had stabbed him in the balls with a hot poker.

At some point at the restaurant, mid-conversation about something banal, she had leaned over the table and grinned at him before announcing, in a husky, low voice:

"I don't have any underwear on."

Whatever he had been saying, he ceased speaking, and everything went out of his head. His fork - because chopsticks, he felt, were an inferior technology that it didn't make any sense to use - was suspended in midair.

The scary thing about Shiloh, he realized in that moment, was not so much that she did things like this, or even that she said them. It wasn't "normal" for her, whatever that meant, but Mike wasn't necessarily complaining.

The thing that kicked him in the chest - and from the inside out - was not any of that.

It was the glint in her eye when she did it. A flicker of something defiant and wild. Something "not Shiloh."

The dinner ended when Shiloh looked at her phone, which had vibrated numerous times on the table.

"Oh. Jeez. It's already nine." She looked up at Mike. "We gotta go."

*

Wet Deck.

Vaguely, in the back of his mind, Mike had gathered that there was some other meaning to this term that he had once heard but could not remember, so he had Googled it, like any sane person would. He was glad he had done this ahead of his arrival: after they had squeezed around a tiny, tall table at the bar and yelled uselessly at each other over the music, Shiloh had leaned in to Joey's ear to say something, her lips close to his skin but never touching him. And then she had trounced away.

"So... Wet Deck?" Mike had asked Joey, eyebrows raised.

Joey, who was in possession of the enviable ability to combine dismissive assholery and extreme likability into everything he did, shrugged and grinned, tipping a beer to swallow the last of it. He paused just before the liquid tipped into his mouth and gave Mike a friendly wink. "You like that, huh? I can't get a read on whether all these laaaadies are in on it or not."

Mike peeled at the moist label on his beer, soaked by condensation in the steamy heat of the bar, and looked around at the women in the bar. They were all dolled up like Shiloh, swinging their hair around, leaning seductively on the tables. It was hard to say what thoughts they had about a phrase that could mean either: the deck of a swimming pool, or a well-used woman.

But Wet Deck did not have a pool, or a deck of any kind - it was, in fact, the only place Mike had been to in the past three summers that had made zero effort to create an outdoor area. It really only left the other meaning on the table. Something about it felt dangerous and thrillingly un-PC.

Joey was grinning at him when his eyes wandered back to their own table. "I think a lot of strippers come here," he told Mike. And grinned again.

Mike cleared his throat and looked back to where Shiloh had disappeared. A warren of rooms branched off from the smaller bar area, and there were a lot of stops between here and the restroom.

Joey watched him. "So?" he said. "How are you liking your new arrangement?"

Mike tipped too much beer into his throat and coughed a little.

"Easy, big guy," Joey said, pointing a finger at him. "These chicks'll fuck anything in the back alley, but you cough like that and those very same chicks will have you booted by a Hazmat team." Joey reflected on this for a moment. "Funny times," he mused.

Mike hit his chest with his fist and shook his head. "Just... beer," he croaked. Serious now, he leaned toward Joey. "So what's the deal? With this place?"

Joey looked at him sideways, grinning, and shook his head.

He had registered this question as a joke, and he was moving on to a topic he preferred. "Shy show you the guy I found for her?" he asked. Without waiting for an answer, he grinned. "Thank me later, pick up my tab."

Mike was, subconsciously, peeling his lips from his teeth in a grimace and scratching his forehead with his thumb. He stopped as soon as he realized what he was doing, but Joey had already seen him. It was a tell of his, scratching his forehead like that, one he couldn't get out of his poker game no matter how hard he tried.

"Man, it's cool," Joey sniped playfully. "Already paid for this beer, anyway."

When Mike didn't say anything, Joey's bro humor fell away. "What is it, man?" He looked behind him, into the writhing mass of Wet Deck women, as if he expected Shiloh - who was nowhere to be seen - to appear right behind him. "You ain't gonna sell me on you having a problem with this." He laughed, his eyes dropping very briefly to the table above Mike's crotch before looking him in the eye. "Your dick's been tryin' to get out since you got here."

Mike inhaled through clenched teeth. "Yeah," he said. "It's not that, man. It's just..."

Joey was chuckling, examining his empty beer bottle. "I need more beer. You think on what it is that's troubling you about your hot fucking slut of a wife - who is a real natural, I have to say, which I also have to say is unexpected as fuck - and I'll come back and listen to your sob story once you have your... you know... thoughts collected."

"They're collected," Mike said. "It's just..."

"Good, man, good, that's a good start," Joey said, smiling amicably, and dismounting his stool like he was getting off a horse. The lovable asshole. "You keep rolling the credits while I go get us some drinks, I'm gonna fast-forward on all this introductory shit." He winked. "Have something for me when I get back."

Joey went to the bar, picking up a trail of interested women like a magnet dragging through a pile of metal shavings.

Mike shifted his attention back to the part of the bar that had swallowed Shiloh up, but her red dress and lips were nowhere to be found.

It was just... what? Stuff like this. Shiloh felt like a slippery bar of soap to him. He still had her in his hands, but he felt out of control, always reacting, never certain what she would do next.

A very forward woman with huge tits and a shock of bright red hair was visibly throwing herself at Joey, and getting his non-committal-but-amused act in return. She gave him a business card and he accepted it warmly, before strolling back with two beers and another drink - rum and Diet Coke - for Shiloh, whose first drink was melting into depleted brown water.

Mike shook his head at his friend, who had not changed his act in all these years. And why would he? Joey just walked around being Joey, and women threw themselves at him.

Joey shrugged in response.

"What the hell is it like, being you?" Mike asked him.

"Great," Joey said, instantly, as if Mike had asked him how his day was. He pointed at the redhead through his own chest. "That broad, though? I think she forgot I already banged her."

"Losing your touch?" Mike said, actually amazed.

Joey shrugged. "Can't fuck a drunk better than vodka can, man." He changed the subject immediately. "You done blubbering? Ready to tell me what your fucking problem is?"

Mike glanced back into the crowd. "Yeah man, okay... it's shit like this, all right? Just... Shiloh. I don't know. This is hot as fuck, don't get me wrong -"

"Hot as fuck," Joey agreed wholeheartedly.

" - but I don't know man, she's kinda... out of control."

Joey found this extremely amusing and laughed mirthfully, shaking his head. "Shiloh? Nah, man. She is most definitely in control." He grinned at Mike and seemed genuinely pleased for him. "You're lucky, man. Just enjoy it."

Mike shifted his jaw.

"Ah, okay, yeah, I get it. You're not in control."

Mike pressed his lips together.

"That's the ride..." Joey said, happily. He edged Mike's beer toward him while he tipped his own bottle into his mouth.

A pause.

A glimpse, in Mike's periphery, of a red dress.

"...dumbass," Joey added, setting down his beer.

The redhead cackled loudly and a gathering of women around her giggled in chorus, looking their way.

He grinned at Mike, and then cast a look over his shoulder at the cluster of women, inducing two of them to make pouty model lips in his direction.

Joey turned back to Mike, who shifted his attention to his approaching wife, who had been slinking toward them but was now snagged, caught up in the attentions of two guys in suits.

Joey rotated very slowly to see what he was looking at, and then, just as slowly, rotated back, grinning. "Yeah, she is a pretty live wire, man," he conceded. And then chuckled to himself.

Mike continued to stare.

"You lookin' for advice here, buddy?"

This from Joey. It surprised Mike: Joey didn't give advice unless someone asked for it. The only advice Mike had ever gotten from him, in fact, was a limp, "It'll sort itself out."

"Not from you," Mike said, incredulously.

"Just enjoy it, man," Joey said anyway.

"That's your advice?"

Joey shrugged. "I can put the kibosh on... some of this, if that's what you want," Joey said.

Mike looked at him, Shiloh still burning in the corner of his vision. She was laughing, flirtatiously, at everything the two guys were saying.

Joey's eyes moved to the side. "Don't even worry about that," Joey told him, smiling. "Shiloh doesn't go for the suits -" He paused, beer in hand. "No offense."

"Oh, yeah," Mike retorted.

"She doesn't go for the suits for this, man," Joey assured him, with his confident smile. "Look, Mike... you're the suit she loves. This other stuff is just about the sex. Win-win." He pointed from himself to Mike, then reached over and clapped Mike hard on the shoulder. "Sit back. Relax. Enjoy the ride."

Mike was silent, his eyes shifting around the room haplessly.

"I can put the brakes on right now," Joey offered, with a glint in his eye as he took his phone out of his pocket. He started poking at his phone indiscriminately, his eyes on Mike. "Just tell Marcus you don't want his huge, black cock anywhere near your wife, and we'll all go home..."

Mike glared at him, nervousness creeping into the back of his throat.

"I'm not doing it," Joey laughed, shaking his head and putting his phone down. He snorted. "I don't have a problem with your wife being a total slut. I really enjoy it, actually."

Shiloh was coming their way.

Joey smiled as she approached, extending an arm toward her. Mike watched, and for a second, the world seemed upside-down. As if Shiloh was actually Joey's wife, or girlfriend, and not the other way around.

"See something you like?" Joey joked, glancing around Shiloh's body to the two "suits" she had just abandoned. They were looking at her as she sat down with Joey and Mike, a mixture of confusion, disappointment, and amazement on their faces.

Shiloh rolled her eyes for both their benefits and stabbed at her melted drink with a frown. "Not my type," she said. "But..." She leaned her elbows on the table and batted her eyes at Joey, and then Mike, in turn. "I did meet a pretty hot guy back by the bathrooms."

"Oh, yeah?" Joey said, his eyes lighting up. He moved his hand from the table to Shiloh's thigh, just below the hemline of her short dress. The gesture was so fluid and natural to him that for a moment, it didn't even register with Mike. When it did, and a cold stab of jealousy knifed him in the chest, Joey's hand had already been there for some time.

Joey peered over Shiloh's head and into the crowd, as if searching for her hot guy.

"Hotter than Marcus?" Joey asked.

Mike shifted his weight carefully to try and ease the pressure on his cock and the painful ache in his balls. He was unsuccessful: if anything, he made things worse.

Shiloh looked at Mike, twisting her straw in her fingers, the phallic shape of it hovering just an inch from her bright red lips and the smile that they formed. "Not hotter than Marcus," she said, her grin deepening as she watched her words steam Mike up. "But do I need to make a choice?"

Joey looked at Mike, widening his eyes with a smile. Shiloh was looking at Mike, watching his reaction. Mike didn't know what was happening on his face. He felt stunned into a paralytic state.

Shiloh laughed and put her hand on Mike's. "I'm only joking," she said, earnestly. Just as suddenly, she seemed mirthful and mischievous again. "I only go for a sure thing."

"I taught her that," Joey offered unhelpfully.

"A sure thing, huh?" Mike said. He couldn't imagine that Shiloh ran into too many men who weren't, ostensibly at least, a "sure thing."

"That doesn't seem like a very high standard," he added.

Shiloh looked briefly confused. Then she shook her head. "No, I mean... a sure, good thing. Like, a mind-blowing thing."

Mike was shocked, his mouth open.

"Otherwise, what's the point?" Shiloh mused, twisting her body on the high stool to flutter her eyes at Joey, after delivering Mike a simmering look.

Joey was back on his phone. anyway.

"Bad news, babe," he said, tucking his phone away in his back pocket. "Marcus can't make it tonight."

Mike felt something pop inside of him, almost the way a joint would. The relief was temporary, and then it disappeared, and the nagging desire he didn't completely understand returned. His chest was bathed in a cool, jealous sensation that threatened to overwhelm him completely.

Joey was looking at him as if he knew all there was to know about how Mike was feeling, like he, too, had sweaty palms and a racing heart.

Mike watched Shiloh's face, her eyebrows heavy with mascara as they closed slowly and opened again - a lazy, sexy blink. Disappointment clouded her features for the briefest moment, and then she said, "Too bad," in a tone that didn't sound terribly surprised or disappointed. She was looking right at Mike, her face strange and alluring. As if she was empathizing with a problem that he had.

She then smiled deviously, her eyes twinkling. She spun her stool slowly around, facing Mike first, and then the throng of people behind her in the bar. She made a complete circle, legs crossed sexily, and took a sip of her drink. "Well, let's not waste the whole evening because of it," she said.

The statement was typical of Shiloh: turn your frown upside-down, make the best of it.

Except, in the hands of this new Shiloh, "making the best of it" meant something completely different.

In seconds, Shiloh was sliding from her stool, smoothing her dress, and slinking away, without so much as a goodbye.

Joey watched her go, amused.

"What is she going to do?" Mike heard himself say. He wasn't sure he had even wanted to ask that question. And yet there it was.

Joey chuckled, watching Shiloh go. "Man, you never know with her," he said.

They watched Shiloh as she was absorbed into the crowd. Mike stared after her, dumbfounded, unsure of what to do in this situation. Was he supposed to follow her? Did she expect him to? Did he really want to? What was she planning to do - pick up some random stranger and take him home?

Joey tapped Mike's drink. "Your turn, bud," he said, as if they had come to the bar by themselves, a couple of buddies drinking at a sports bar. "You gotta go up there now, if you want one in the next three hours."

Mike walked like a zombie to the bar, to discover, when he got there, that Joey had pushed a twenty into his hand.

*

Shiloh disappeared for the better part of an hour. Girls flocked to their table and flirted, and Mike let Joey handle them, because his mind was elsewhere. He excused himself and wandered back to the bathrooms, seeing nothing of Shiloh on the way there.

On his way back, he caught a glimpse of her dress and one long leg, crossed over the other, on the edge of a planter in a very tiny outdoor courtyard that Mike had no idea how to get to - it was walled off from the room he was in by floor-to-ceiling glass.

He didn't want to stop and stare, so he kept walking, his attention cleaved toward Shiloh's legs and her dress. He whipped his head as he made a turn back toward his seat with Joey, and saw that she was seated on the low wall, talking to a group of guys, one of whom had a cigarette in his hand.

He almost crashed into a waitress as he continued walking, his mind elsewhere, wondering what to do - go out there and talk to her? Or keep walking? There was nowhere for him to hide in the tiny courtyard, because it seemed to be a design mistake that had been turned over to smokers. But was Shiloh smoking?

No way, he thought, collecting himself.

But even if she wasn't, the fact that she was out there was so unlike her.

A girl had taken his stool, and so he stood at the tall table when he got back, stunned.

Joey was in full Joey-cool mode, making all the ladies laugh and touch his shoulders affectionately. It took him a while to look over at Mike, who wanted to catch his eye. When he finally did, Mike leaned over the table, his heart still pounding. "She's out in the courtyard," he whispered loudly.

Joey returned a blank look for several beats, and then, when Mike added nothing, he raised his eyebrows.

He was expecting more.

"With a bunch of guys," Mike said.

Joey moved his open palm outward. And what else?

"Did she start smoking?"

Joey found this incredibly funny. "Uh... well. Not cigarettes, man." And then he seemed to turn it over in his mind for a moment. He shrugged. "Well... although, maybe."

Mike wanted desperately to bum a cigarette off Joey, just to have an excuse to be outside in the courtyard and see what Shiloh was doing out there. But he had quit smoking after a long struggle - mostly because of Shiloh. And he didn't want to look desperate. To either Joey or Shiloh.

He fidgeted while the girls gathered around the table giggled and flirted with Joey, and attempted to do the same with him. But his mind was on his wife, and what she was doing, so he barely even knew what they were saying or how he was responding.

Joey looked across the table at him. Then he stood up, stretched, and kissed one of the girls on the cheek. "Ladies," he said. "Take good care of Mikey here. I'll be right back." And grinning at Mike, he departed, headed in a different direction than the bathrooms.

"Where is he going?" one of the girls chirped, looking to Mike, who shook his head slowly.

They chattered among themselves (after giving up on Mike, who had been reduced to monosyllabic grunts), and for what seemed like an eternity, Mike was stranded there at a table full of pretty women, with no desire to even think about them. His phone rumbled against his thigh at long last, and he eagerly took it out, assuming it was Joey.

Which it was. A photo attached. Mike pulled it up greedily.

Shiloh. Today's red dress, the minimalist concrete and gravel garden courtyard. Shiloh's legs, one of them draped over a thick thigh in a pair of jeans. The fingers of her left hand splayed against her collarbone, wedding ring glinting, her head tipped in a flirtatious way. Her red lips open and seductive, the fingers of her other hand somewhere out of sight. A man in sunglasses leaning in toward her, his head tipped as well. They could have been leaning in to tell secrets, but also, they could have been leaning in for a kiss.

Mike stared, his head whirling, his body losing all sensation except for cold, raw, jealousy and his painful hard-on. His eyes kept being drawn back to Shiloh's left hand, to her slender thigh, crossed over her own lap and then the knee of a stranger. He saw a new detail every second: the man's arm was down, straight, almost like he was reaching for something on the floor - but his fingertips were resting against the exposed arch of Shiloh's foot, as if he was lazily stroking it.

A wave of nausea, a fantasy of standing up and walking out there -

Joey. Sitting down. Grinning. Looking at Mike, who looked up from his phone in desperate, horny, expectation.

He had the very faint scent of cigarettes on him, and the smugness of a man with a delicious secret.

"Ugh!" one of the girls exclaimed. "Were you smoking?"

Joey continued grinning at Mike for a few beats before giving this girl - the least pretty of the three who had joined them - a devastating smile. "Is it a dealbreaker?" he asked her, deploying his usual Joey charm.

She appeared stunned, but her friends jumped on this like piranhas on raw meat. "It is for Shelby," the tall blond tittered. The unsaid part of her sentence lingered in the air: it was not a dealbreaker for her. But Joey, being Joey, was still watching the brown-haired girl with interest, waiting for her answer.

"How 'bout this, honey?" Joey said, seriously, leaning toward her, after she didn't answer for a while. "We don't have to kiss."

She scoffed at him, turned like she intended to walk off, but her anger fizzled out and she picked up her drink instead. Joey was already back to looking at Mike, as if he had expected that entire conversation all along and was just reading off his lines.

Mike stood up. Joey grinned at him and tipped the bottom of his beer bottle in his direction.

Walking. Walking through a sea of flesh, push-up bras thrusting tits in his face everywhere, and he saw none of it, was thinking of none of it. A blond walked into him; pretty, pink lips, gauzy dress, smelling like vanilla. She giggled and apologized with a wet, welcoming mouth, but she might as well have been a sack of flour. Mike pushed her gently to the side. "You know where the courtyard is?" he asked her gruffly. She rolled her eyes and walked away.

He followed the scent of cigarettes and found the entrance, a right-turn off a corridor that led to yet another room in the back. But there were only three people in the courtyard now, and none of them were his wife. He spun around wildly and the people looked at him, briefly and disdainfully. His heart was pounding. Someone asked him if he needed a cigarette. He waved them away as he took out his phone and typed a message to Shiloh.

Where did you go?

He sent it, and then stared at what he had done, looked up and searched for her, but saw her nowhere.

Unsurprisingly, she did not immediately write back.

He made his way back to Joey, looking for signs of Shiloh as he walked, but he didn't find her.

Joey had somehow smoothed all the ruffled feathers at the table of girls, and they seemed considerably drunker than when he had left. Joey was grinning, smiling like well-fed wolf that hadn't decided if he was going to gorge himself on all the raw meat that seemed to be raining on him from the sky.

Minutes ticked by, dragging themselves out. Mike couldn't have told anyone for a million dollars how many passed before Shiloh reappeared. Dress first, her curves sashaying through the bar crowd. Her hair had changed: it was still piled on her head and falling in loose waves, but she had re-done it. She caught his eye and smiled at him, holding his attention completely as she approached the table.

The red that had made her lips so provocative before was gone, wiped completely away. She seemed to be supremely conscious of what this would do to Mike, because she smiled and ran her tongue quickly over her top lip when only he was looking.

Shiloh's eyes cast about the table, and all the women shamelessly flirting with Joey. For a moment, a flame of jealousy lit behind her eyes, but it simmered quickly to a slow-burning, female irritation, the kind that could burn, like a pilot light, behind a woman's eyes interminably. She shifted her attention almost immediately to Mike, slipping between him and the brown-haired girl who didn't hate Joey's smoking all that much after all.

Her skin was hot when it brushed against his arm, and the scent of her body radiated from her, the way it would if she had exerted herself, but only a little. Mike couldn't take his eyes off her lips, the bare, used pink of them.

"Where've you been, Shy?" Joey asked, looking at Mike with amusement.

Shiloh drew her middle finger over her lower lip as if she was clearing some sauce from it. Sexily. And then she shrugged, her eyes on Mike the whole time. For a moment, the implication simmered between them; she didn't need to say anything at all to plant filthy images in Mike's mind.

After skewering Mike with this look, this non-commitment to explaining herself, she turned sharply and scanned the table. "Hey," she said playfully. "Where'd my drink go?"

Joey's attention was now fully on Shiloh. This caused a ripple among his pop-up harem, who detected whatever sizzled between Joey and Shiloh as quickly as Mike did.

"Where'd your lipstick go?" Joey asked her.

Shiloh leaned her elbow on the table and touched her lips. It was now The Joey and Shiloh Show, whether anyone wanted it to be or not. The tall blond was still talking to her friend, but her attention was on this exchange. They were all sizing Shiloh up, trying to figure out if she was there to steal Joey away from them.

Mike watched with interest, because he had never really focused on this kind of interaction among women. It happened all the time around Joey, but he'd never been invested in the outcome before.

Shiloh shrugged, and Joey grinned. "The usual?" he asked her, sliding off his tall chair.

The tall blond tossed her hair aggressively and stole a sharp glance at Mike. As Joey walked away, her eyes went back to Shiloh, a sliver of viciousness in them. "I'm Christa," she said. She threw the two words at Shiloh like knives.

Mike's heart skipped a bit; he wasn't sure why. When this kind of sexually aggressive energy started brewing among men - which happened all the time with his clients - he had a whole shtick for diffusing the situation, which usually involved offering to take everyone to the strip club (if they weren't already there), or otherwise distracting everyone involved.

It didn't seem like the right play among the ladies, so he sat, watching Shiloh and her new personality.

Much of it seemed borrowed from Joey. Shiloh let her chin glide into her palm and tipped it into a resting position that made her look both alluring as fuck and quite bitchy. "Hi, Christa," she said. Her tone was falsely friendly.

"So what did happen to your lipstick?" Christa shot back snottily, with another shake of her hair. Her eyes shifted to Mike, filled with a mean-spirited triumph, before she looked back at Shiloh.

Shiloh let her pinkie slide to her mouth, and she nibbled it absent-mindedly. Her unshakable cool was foreign to Mike: Shiloh was one to get flustered quickly in a conflict, and never one to be in this kind of conflict.

But the new, Joey-enhanced Shiloh merely laughed under her breath, and for a moment gave the impression she hadn't even heard the question. "I guess it all rubbed off," she said, shifting her amused gaze from Christa to Mike. She batted her eyelashes as she burned through him with her nonchalant smile.

Joey returned and set three drinks on the table: one for Shiloh, a beer for Mike, which he slid across the table with a grin, and his own beer.

"He-ey!" the blond whined, holding her nearly-finished Cosmo aloft. She was getting pretty worked up. Tall, slender, with a big mouth and pretty features that made her "hot," she was obviously not accustomed to being passed over for drinks or getting pushed out by other women.

Joey looked up at her. "Hey darlin,' I'm sorry," he said smoothly. "I only got two hands."

Christa's eyes moved from Joey to Shiloh, then to Mike, and back again at Joey. She seemed to be re-assessing the situation, unable to figure out what was going on, annoyed that Shiloh - somehow - had the attention of both men, or perhaps by Shiloh's free drink, or perhaps by both. She narrowed her eyes and spun around to go get her own drink.

The brown-haired girl and her dark-haired friend remained, mouths slightly agape, not entirely sure what was happening.

One might have mistaken Joey for finding all of this very amusing, but Mike knew better: it wasn't Joey's style. He didn't actively try to create situations where women were fighting over him - once, he had even left a scene much like this one, saying he was going to the bathroom, and had never come back. When Mike had next seen him and asked him what had happened to him, Joey had waved at the air. "Too many cats makes for too many claws out, man."

There was a lull in the conversation momentarily. Mike cleared his throat, ready to make an attempt to speak to the two witless girls, but he hesitated because he didn't want Shiloh getting the wrong idea. After all, Shiloh seemed ready to do almost anything. Who knew how she would respond if she got the sense that Mike was flirting with either of these women? Who he could not have actually cared any less about.

But Joey was already moving in, looking at Shiloh with a particular brand of hunger, something Mike had never seen on his face before. He nudged Shiloh with his elbow and grinned, and Shiloh responded by pushing her hair from her face and turning to him, as if Joey was her other half. Mike felt a pang of unlikeable jealousy, and his neck started to get hot. For some reason, this interaction between Joey and Shiloh made him more uncomfortable than their sexual relations.

"Seriously," Joey goaded Shiloh, in a low voice with underlying currents of intimacy that had never been there before. "Where'd your lipstick go?"

Joey glanced up at Mike, an amused grin having returned to his face. Mike knew he was doing it to include him, but it was another scene that left Mike perturbed more than reassured. It emphasized a point that was clear as day but somehow hadn't been highlighted until now, at least not for Mike: Joey was the driver here. Mike was just along for the ride.

And Shiloh?

She followed Joey's gaze to Mike's face. Her expression was, like Joey's, playful at the same time that it was not. It spoke the same, loud truth to Mike: she was only looking at her husband because Joey's eyes had told her to, because she was following Joey's lead. Otherwise, Mike wondered, would she have turned toward him to deliver this next bit? Or would she have been playing this game with Joey and Joey alone?

Her eyes, awash in her dark and slutty makeup, seemed to be weighed down by something as she blinked slowly and lazily, making Mike, at least, think of lying in bed with her after she'd been thoroughly fucked. "It came off when I sucked that guy off in the bathroom," she purred, only loud enough for Mike to hear it, as she leaned closer and stroked his cheek and jaw with her hand.

Mike was frozen, a cold fist of jealousy punched upward through his chest, entering at the sternum, twisting like a wild animal in his ribcage. His breath shook as he inhaled, his mind spun out again into a blizzard of thoughts. What to do? How to respond?

Joey, who either just knew what Shiloh would say, or could read lips, was smiling at Shiloh. A look of pride on his face. He glanced at Mike again, and whatever he saw there made his eyes twinkle.

Suddenly, though, his expression changed, as if he had a thought. He grinned even more, his hand moving to behind Shiloh's head. He grasped her head from the base of her skull upward, cradling it, and turned her toward him. "No, you didn't," he said, amused.

And then he pulled Shiloh's head toward him and kissed her.

It was a dirty, sloppy kiss. They moved their heads and their tongues appeared, squirming and tangled together, as they made the shift. Joey released Shiloh and looked at her. Then he shook his head.

Shiloh laughed, tucking a loose strand behind her ear.

Mike looked on, perplexed.

The blond had returned, a little stunned, evidently having seen this all play out as she returned from the bar.

Joey was still grinning at Mike. He tipped his beer into his mouth, sipped, and then held it thoughtfully, swishing the liquid around in his mouth.

He shook his head again and his eyes twinkled. "She definitely didn't," he repeated. But the smile on his face called the whole statement into question, an endless wheel of possibilities and unanswered questions.

Shiloh laughed, her pinkie back playfully between her teeth.

Mike was cold, afraid to speak, not wanting his voice to shake. Inside, he was trembling with arousal, a fever sparked by fear and by rage.

"Shiloh always provides a full service," Joey said, looking at Mike. Then he looked back at Shiloh and extended his arm, almost hugging her fraternally, shaking her back and forth gently in his firm grip.

Mike looked at his wife.

Shiloh did not always provide a full service, he was thinking.

The fact that Joey thought she did - he could assume this meant swallowing, and he could only assume that Joey had used his tongue to sweep for some evidence of that - inside his wife's mouth. He could think of nothing to say.

Shiloh smiled at him and shrugged. "Okay," she said, in the tone of an adult giving in to a toddler who was insisting the moon was made of cheese. "I didn't."

Nothing settled.

She walked her fingers up Mike's chest, looking at him now, staring at him until all the rest of the bar fell away and it was only them. It was only Shiloh, and her fingertips, and her bare, slutty, lipstick-free lips. She was moving closer to him, her mouth just in front of his, close enough to smell and feel the heat of. "But I definitely thought about it."

Fingers curling under his chin. A throaty rattle to her whispered voice. A violent rush of blood to his cock.

And then Shiloh kissed him. Her mouth was warm, cool and rum-flavored, nothing but the remnants of Joey's kiss tainting her lips. It was a kiss of twisted emotions - disappointment, relief, arousal, jealousy - that reached deep inside of him and put his balls in a cold vice.

When their lips parted, and Shiloh's eyes fluttered open, he stared at her in that moment that follows a kiss. The woman who looked back at him seemed like someone he didn't know, and the muscles in his groin felt like they were being wrung out.

"So..." the blond said, pointing her finger at each of them in turn, "Is this like, a thing? Are you guys some kind of thruple or something?"

It was Shiloh, possessed of a new personality, who turned back toward her, gliding around calmly on her chair. She was sitting tall, devastatingly beautiful in a trashy, marred kind of way that sent another slurry of feelings snaking through Mike's lower abdomen. "Not exactly," she said, completely unbothered.

Completely in control.

She tossed her hair and picked up her drink, jerking it ever-so-slightly in Mike's direction. "This is my husband," she explained. She looked at Joey. "Joey here is more of a coach."

Something - some female sensibility, some moral outrage, was triggered in Christa when Shiloh said this. She stiffened. "Of what?" she sniped.

Mike's eyes moved, uneasily, to his wife, but he didn't turn to face her, because he wanted to keep one eye on Christa. He'd seen more than one catfight go down between the wives and girlfriends of his clients and women who had been, either mistakenly or correctly, identified as their side dishes or girlfriends. He considered himself adept at detecting when men would throw a punch, but a failure at guessing what women would do, and when they would do it.

But Shiloh was cool as a cucumber. She set her drink down and smiled at Christa.

"Just stuff," she said, dismissively. Her hand had traveled to Mike's thigh, and as she answered Christa, it moved sensually along the top of his muscle, and once there, she let her fingers fall casually into his crotch, her nails raking the turgid shape of his dick as they went.

Mike couldn't have been sure - his mind was everywhere and nowhere at once - but he thought he saw Joey's shoulders jerk, subtly, like a small electric shock had been delivered to his pecs - at the very same time that a similar jolt traveled through his own body.

CHAPTER 4

Joey diffused the situation, after letting it simmer for his own amusement for a few beats, by clapping his hands together, piling on the charm, and suggesting they all go to a club where they could go dancing. Christa liked the idea and seized on it, and her two friends seemed to have very little agency, so they implied immediately that they would go, too.

They had to finish their drinks, though, and before long they were all talking and flirting, and new people filtered into their group. Women, obviously there to scoop up Joey, and men, there to snarf up whatever scraps were left over - a common occurrence that Mike had seen before and recognized. (Guys had, in fact, told him before that he was lucky to have Joey for a friend, because he was like a walking aphrodisiac, and there were always disappointed, drunk women in his wake, waiting for someone to take them home).

It mattered very little to Mike that night. His attention was on Shiloh, who came and went like the tide. One minute she was next to him with her fingers moving over his cock under the table; the next, she was flirting outrageously with another man. Mike started to worry that she was going to go off with any number of people, or even with Joey. This molten pain subsided when she turned her attention back to him, and then disappointment tugged at him from another direction.

He had more to drink than he'd intended, and within an hour or so, he was ready to take Shiloh home, himself, and fuck her. He was, in fact, just reaching for her wrist, ready to enclose it in his fingers and pull Shiloh away from a guy she was flirting heavily with, when Joey picked up his phone and read a message.

Joey smiled, then leaned behind a pair of girls who were standing very close to each other and talking, to mouth something to Shiloh that Mike couldn't see.

Shiloh went back to talking to her new suitor, as though nothing had happened, and Joey coiled slowly back to his chair, typing with two hands, grinning.

Shiloh turned toward Mike after a few minutes and leaned close to him, her lips grazing his ear. The heat of her breath raked the length of his neck, and he shivered. He was so amped up that the faintest touch or hint of anything sexual from Shiloh at this point threatened to cause him to burst his seed in his pants, whether she touched him or not.

"Joey just got a message from Marcus," Shiloh murmured, her hand trailing lazily down his torso. Mike watched her eyes as they moved beneath her lids, which were angled so that he couldn't see beneath the thick black of her mascara-laden lashes. But he knew that she was looking at Joey, smiling. She tilted her head back and closed her lips - dry and warm - over his jawline. "Should we go meet him?"

A medley of images. Marcus' thick black cock, ebony and purple in the picture Shiloh had shown him. Shiloh's smeared lipstick, her mouth open and her head turned back to watch as Joey fucked her in the ass. The tip of her tongue flat against the bulbous crown of another man's dick, his precum like a wet cobweb, clinging to her mouth as she leaned back to gasp for air.

He couldn't take it anymore. Whatever that meant.

With a glance at Joey, who seemed to receive all of this information and some kind of message all at once, Mike took Shiloh's wrist and pulled her closer to him. His hands seemed to have a mind of their own, one sliding between her thighs, then up, under her dress, until he encountered the warm, wet slick of her pussy juices, smeared all over her inner thighs. He slipped a finger into her soaked gash and felt a tremor through her body.

This inflamed him even more. His other hand moved over her breast, cupping the heavy flesh in his palm for a moment before he moved upward to her face, and stroked her mouth with his thumb. "No," he said. "No, we're going home."

The last he saw of Joey, he was holding a beer up and chuckling to himself, turning around toward the sea of eligible women like a shark ready to go on a hunt. Shiloh was looking at him with an expression that could best be described as knowing surprise, as though she had bet on a horse she didn't believe would win and was now watching someone count out her winnings.

They slipped away, Mike with his hand encircling Shiloh's wrist, Shiloh following in a state of bewildered interest, the look on her face doing more for Mike's cock even than the recurring image he had concocted in his own imagination: of "Marcus's" dark cock glistening with Shiloh's pussy juices, poised at the entrance of her gaping, fucked-out pussy, throbbing with a load of cum that began to spew in thick ropes across her wet and battered pink flesh, just before plunging with the rest of its load still gushing, to be hammered deep into her body.

*

"So Marcus, huh?" Mike said, pushing Shiloh into the wall and lifting her slutty red dress to her hips with one hand. Shiloh was smiling at him, teasing him a little, and it was a miracle they had arrived at home without crashing, because she'd been doing this all the way back. Circling close to him, saying things that made his whole body cold or hot, depending on what they were.

Now, with her body pressed against the kitchen wall, his hands sliding over the smooth contours of her ass, his fingers encountering the abundance of juices sliding down her thighs, he was tired of her teasing and ready to fuck the shit out of her.

But if he was done with Shiloh's teasing, she wasn't done with him. Her body tortured him: his fingers sank into her wet cunt and made the wheels spin in his mind. Was she this wet because of her antics in the car, because she was thinking about Marcus, or because she had actually blown some guy at Wet Deck? It couldn't be known for sure, even if he had tasted her mouth right after Joey. So the sweet, tangy juices that poured from her were as tempting and as unforthcoming as her lips: what was the source of her heat?

Leaning against her to keep her against the wall, he freed himself from his pants and underwear, letting them fall only as far as he needed them to, one hand still exploring her pussy, feeling for signs of true physical betrayal or proof of nothing, finding only a wet mystery that smelled sweetly acrid, that he wanted in his mouth.

It infuriated him that he couldn't really know, and it struck a chord deep inside of him that he thought had long ago been extinguished by the passage of time, by age. That thing inside of him, when he was younger, a place where the boundaries of rage, infatuation, sex and love, with a dash of blurred violence, mingled and became one, all-consuming force.

Shiloh smiled. Beguiling, mysterious, infuriatingly hot. "Mmm, Marcus," she said, a hint of mild cruelty in her voice. Tipping forward to run her tongue along his neck, up to his ear, as he lifted her by the thighs and pushed her weight against the wall, she murmured: "I hope you make it worthwhile missing -"

Her sentence was cut short by Mike plunging into her pussy, thrusting upward and deep inside her. Her legs bounced, the heels of her stilettos tapping his bare ass. He put a hand against her forehead, pushing her head back and tilting it so he could sloppily kiss her neck, her jaw, feel her breath hot against his own neck as he punched it from her chest with every thrust.

He looked into her eyes, faraway and glazed, the secrets of her thoughts hidden behind the clear, unfocused blue. His fingers were on her lips, pulling her mouth open, which she let him do with no resistance, her mind consumed by her thoughts, consumed by sex, but with whom?

Deep inside of her, almost ready to come, he ground into her body and pinned her there, impaled by him. Whispered in her ear. "You thinking about him?" Her pussy clenched around him, and cum boiled in his balls, straining in the vessels of his dick. "Yeah. Think about that big black cock, baby. Think about it and make yourself come all over my dick."

Shiloh's unfocused eyes fluttered almost closed, her mouth open, and a mewl escaped her chest as her pussy spasmed around his dick. Tight, wet pulses massaged him as she squirmed and rutted against him, her hips working violently to get his cock stroking her insides. "That's it," he breathed, stunned and wildly aroused, stifling the urge to come, the pain of it reaching up from his balls to his abdomen like a vice. "Show me how much you want to fuck that cock."

Shiloh's limbs flailed as she struggled to free herself, but he had her pinned hard against the wall and so she could only struggle and squirm, her liquid pussy shifting as she moved her hips and clawed at his back, sweat rising from inside her and coating her in a slippery sheen.

When she came, her mouth fell open in a frozen "o," and her legs shook violently, clamping around him as waves of her flesh rolled over his dick and sucked the cum from deep inside of him. They slid limply down, and her body turned to dead weight as he slammed the violent spurts of his seed deep inside her.

They stood in the kitchen, half-dressed and sweating, mashed against each other, staring into each other's eyes, for a few moments. Shiloh dropped her legs to the floor and his cock slipped from inside of her, slapping against her thigh and then his, not fully flaccid yet, twitching with life.

Shiloh smiled at him. A silvery laugh escaped her lips, she pushed her hair from her face. "That was hot," she told him, biting gently on his lower lip. She tugged at her skirt and pulled it down, almost like she was trying to be prim.

"Is that all you got?"

*

"Are you sorry I made you miss your big chance with Marcus?" Mike said, sleepily, stroking Shiloh's shoulder as they lay on the bed after a lengthy session of what could only be called unbridled fucking. He lasted longer, long enough to fuck her doggy-style, to have her climb on top of him and bounce hard on his dick until her juices poured over his balls like a waterfall, and then, after she came several times and seemed to be exhausted, to push her legs to one side and watch her face as he hammered his cum into her again. Her heels were on the whole time, alluringly kicking up to his hips while he had her on her hands and knees, glimmering sexily as he fucked her bent to the side.

Shiloh's mouth was close to his left shoulder and she puckered her lips to kiss him. He felt her tongue dart out to taste his skin. Another non-Shiloh-like move, another needle stabbed into his torso. Where did she get these ideas from? Joey? Or was she just more energized, more sexual now, and these were things that generated from inside of her, desires and sexual acts that she had always had inside of her but had not been unlocked until now?

"Mmm," Shiloh murmured, her voice froggy from thirst. "This was so much more fun," she said. And then, tenderly, but with the effect of a cold dagger: "I missed you."

It was everything he wanted to hear. Everything he might have said he desired. And yet it twisted another knife inside of him.

Shiloh peppered his chest with kisses as she rolled onto her knees and dragged her hands over his chest, rising up and hopping out of the bed. "It's not like he won't be around," she said casually.

And then she turned and walked to the bathroom.

Mike rolled onto his side and propped his head in his palm, his elbow crooked to support it. He heard Shiloh peeing in the en-suite, not having bothered to close the door all the way - a bizarre thing for Shiloh to do, titillating and disturbing all at once. "So, are you like, really into that?" he called, moving his fingers lazily over the sheets, tacky stains of dried cum catching his fingers as they moved.

"Into what?" Shiloh called back, after flushing the toilet. Mike heard her padding around in the bathroom, and then a burst of water from the shower. He sat up and cradled his knees in the crooks of his elbows. Shiloh walked by, naked, her breasts bouncing, her long legs exposed for all their glory. His cock twitched, fully hard again in seconds, despite their earlier activity.

"Black guys," he said.

Shiloh didn't pass by the door immediately for several seconds, or answer.

When she did pass by, a towel in hand, she paused by the door and looked over at him, saying nothing. Then she shrugged, mischief glinting in her eyes, and continued to the shower. "Maybe," she called out as she went.

He swung his feet over the edge of the bed and faced the mirrors of the bathroom, where he could see his own reflection. He stood up, surveying himself: he was no Joey, tattoos winding around the bulky, hard contours of real muscle earned by manly endeavors. But he was still trim, and he lifted weights occasionally and played the odd game of basketball. His cock wasn't huge, but it wasn't small. As Joey had said pointedly once: "Yeah man, nobody's gonna write home about that. One way or the other."

This had always seemed like a fairly good deal to Mike. But now, with his wife seemingly unmoored from everything he had been certain about regarding her, he felt a pang of fear. Her failure to really answer the question disturbed him further.

He walked into the bathroom. "Maybe, huh?" he asked her, pretending to need to brush his teeth, his eyes on the mirror and the shape of Shiloh's body through the splattered and steamy glass door.

All he obtained from Shiloh about this was a chuckle.

He spat into the sink. "Seriously, Shiloh," he said.

Shiloh was washing her hair. She hummed blissfully for a second, as if she hadn't heard him. It was infuriating and intoxicating. Mike stared at her figure in the mirror.

"I guess I wasn't, really," Shiloh said. Mysteriously. And then she said no more.

"You weren't," Mike parroted. "Does that mean you are, now?"

Had Shiloh already been with this guy? Since he had gone back to Toronto, Shiloh and Joey had been sleeping together occasionally, and going out together to trawl for men for Shiloh, but in the end, Shiloh hadn't actually slept with any of those guys.

At least, that's what they had told him.

Shiloh shrugged again in the shower, emitting a carefree, "Meht."

"Shiloh, yes or no?" Mike said, suddenly irritated. "Did you already hook up with this guy or something?"

Shiloh dropped her arms and pushed the door open to look at him. She was slightly incensed, even though a wicked-looking smile was still echoing on her lips. "What do you think?" she asked him. She shut the door. "Our deal was, I tell you everything, right?"

A pause. The falling of water on the floor of the shower as she squeezed it from her hair.

"So are you?" Mike asked quietly. "Into it?" The question twisted inside of him, having asked it made him feel as though he was standing in the middle of a wide-open field, with monsters lurking everywhere around him.

Shiloh laughed. "Baby," she said. "Of course not."

The answer sounded genuine.

And yet, it sounded like so many other things. A tease, a deliberately vague tone that was meant to leave him wondering, sarcasm. It could have been anything.

And yet, he knew, he had to let it go.

This was a game about trust.

A game he had started. A game he had let get played.

And so he couldn't keep bugging her about it, couldn't ask for further explanation, couldn't harp on it.

Because that would make him a tit.

He ruffled his hair and went to the kitchen to make the Bloody Mary he had promised Shiloh, somewhere in the middle of it all.

CHAPTER 5

Shiloh went with him to the airport, sitting in the passenger seat in yet another loose sundress with a high skirt, no sleeves, and a deep dip in the neckline. If it hadn't been a pale yellow, it would have looked like an outfit for a nightclub.

She was also, as was apparently the norm for Shiloh these days, not wearing any underwear. Mike knew this because, after she had come out of the closet and given him a twirl in her new dress, asking if he liked it, he had pulled her close to him and slid his hands along her thighs and up to her smooth, bare bottom.

And then she had climbed on top of him, walked him onto his back, and squeezed his head between her thighs while she stuffed her pussy into his mouth. Obediently (eagerly), he had gorged on her utterly smooth pussy lips and glistening gash, worked his jaw to a pleasant tiredness as he massaged her clit until she came.

He could still taste her in his mouth, still had the erection she had inspired, and was having a hard time driving as a result. Especially because Shiloh was poised sexily, with the skirt of the dress pushed up nearly to her waist, only a transparent layer of the breezy yellow skirt grazing her thighs, barely covering her gash.

"I may have forgotten to tell you that I really like that dress," he said, after a few minutes in the car. He was running later than he ever would have under normal circumstances, but he and Shiloh had been up all night, fucked again in the morning, and then she had attacked him after getting dressed - when they were already dangerously late. He could barely remember the last time he had been so pressed for time on the way to the airport - and by sex, no less.

Shiloh grinned and made a throaty noise as she adjusted her hair. "I got the general idea."

"Is this your new style?" Mike ventured. What he really wanted to ask was something more direct: was she going to dress like this all the time? Sexy dresses bordering on NSFW, no underwear? And whose idea was that - hers or Joey's? And did this mean that she was going to pick up guys everywhere, even the supermarket?

Shiloh looked at him archly from the passenger seat, a grin on her closed lips, letting him stew for a moment. "Oh," she finally said. "You mean the dresses?" She looked down at herself, exaggerating her facial features, pretending she had only just noticed the yellow dress.

Mike nodded, smiling. "Uh... well, the dresses, yeah... and also the, you know, no underwear."

Shiloh tipped her head back and laughed nonchalantly. "It depends," she said, and then enjoyed - because he could see it on her face - watching him squirm.

"Uh-huh," he said.

She slapped him playfully. "Of course not, silly. I just did this for you, because you're leaving, and I thought I'd make your flight as uncomfortable as possible." She slid her hand over his thigh and grazed his cock. He dared to glance down at his crotch, because the way Shiloh was working him up, he was going to have a stain of precum on his suit.

Shiloh shifted in her seat, leaving her seatbelt on, but sitting dangerously, sideways. Leaning toward him, she slid her right hand over his thigh, moving toward his cock again. Her left hand went up to his hairline, sending electric pulses down his shoulders and neck as she twisted the short strands between her fingers. "Unless..." she said.

She started to lean over, her right hand working on the button and zipper of his pants.

"Shiloh..." he breathed. As much as he wanted to, he was too far in the middle-age zone to get a blowjob while trying to drive. "That's... really dangerous..."

Shiloh gave her hair a toss and sat back in her seat, mirthful about her own mischief. "Hmmm..." she said. "It's too bad someone isn't in the back seat so I could suck his cock while you drive."

A jolt traveled through Mike and he didn't have to look down to know that his cock was pumping out precum like he was having a wet dream.

Shiloh was looking at him, waiting for his reaction. He exhaled sharply, making a sound like "Huh," and forced himself to stare at the road and remember he was driving. "That would be..." he said distractedly, but his mind was filling with images so fast that he lost track of what he was saying.

"Maybe Joey will like that," Shiloh mused, flipping down the sun visor to check her lipstick. She seemed satisfied with whatever she saw and flipped it back up.

"Oh, yeah?" Mike said, hearing a faint shakiness in his voice. His cock ached. There were places here and there to pull over, but the clock was ticking, and if he missed his flight, it would set off an avalanche of very bad things that would jeopardize him coming back here to visit as frequently as he did. Driving, while Shiloh tortured him, seemed like his only option.

"You ever do that with Joey?"

"Give him a blowjob while he's driving?" Shiloh asked, nonchalantly. He looked over at her. She had her right leg up on the seat now, in a child-like pose unsuitable for a dress that short, and Mike could see the pink, swollen flesh of her slit peeking out between her legs. The scent of her pussy was strong and intoxicating, threatening to knock him senseless.

"Jesus, Shiloh," he whispered.

"I don't think Joey would mind if I did that," Shiloh said. "But I haven't done it... yet."

His groin was twisting around with lust, so intense that it was beginning to feel like a stomach cramp. "I, uh... was kind of talking about... the other..." Mike stammered. "Thing."

Who the fuck was this woman? Shiloh grinned and pushed her gorgeous hair around, while the fingers of her left hand stroked her inner left thigh in what looked like absent-mindedness, but which Mike knew was deliberate. His eyes were still on the road, but he would have driven into an open pit without stopping if one appeared. His mind was savoring the sight of her fingers on her silky thigh.

"You mean sucking some guys off in the back while Joey drives?" Shiloh purred.

As if she'd already done it.

She hasn't, Mike reminded himself, as his blood boiled. Their agreement was that she told him everything. And she had never told him that.

"Would that be hot?" Shiloh asked, as if her question was purely innocent and rhetorical. "Listening to me, not being able to really see what I was doing? Just hearing it? Having to keep your eyes on the road?"

"God," Mike said, because that was all he could immediately think of. Shiloh's words had traveled through his brain and generated the exact scenario she described, almost as if it was really happening. Steel-cold jealousy spiked in his chest, expanding, and his cock strained against his own skin, ready to burst. He wondered, briefly, if Shiloh could make him explode just by talking.

"I feel like that would be more dangerous than doing the driver."

Mike's knuckles were white when he saw them. "Uh..."

"You need to be like four lanes over, honey," Shiloh told him, grinning.

He managed to get to the exit without endangering anyone, and they drove to the drop-off in silence, Shiloh smiling all the way. She hopped out when he pulled up, and the wind caught her dress and blew it up to her waist. She pushed it down in time to avoid giving a show to the entire airport, but Mike got a fleeting glance of her bare ass before the magical, transparent layers fell back down to cover it.

Stiffly, grateful that his suit was a dark color and that he could hold something in front of it until he got checked in and could then stow himself in a bathroom to fix his cum-stain problem, he walked around to the trunk and removed his suitcase while Shiloh leaned provocatively against the car. Mike caught sight of the driver parked behind them gaping insensibly from behind his windshield.

Shiloh leaned in to kiss him. He expected the kind of standard, peck-at-the-lips kiss that married people give each other after a few months of marriage and then for the rest of their lives, but her hands went to his chest and she kissed him hungrily, fully. It ignited a storm inside of him. Holding the back of his head in her feathering, teasing fingers, she suspended his lips close to hers. "Thanks for the great idea," she told him, before kissing him again.

He was stunned, and what little blood had been servicing his brain drained away to further swell his dick. Everything seemed to be spinning: Shiloh, the wind playing with her skirt, their marriage, the airport...

"You're coming back in two weeks, right?" Shiloh asked, smiling.

He nodded, his throat dry.

"Good." Shiloh kissed him again. He was like a middle-schooler being kissed by a girl for the first time, his body rigid, his dick hard, his mind unable to process anything. "I love you. Now run, so you don't miss your flight."

Shiloh walked to the driver's side and opened the door. She paused, looking back at him. He was fumbling with his luggage, checking to make sure he had everything - or even something. The taste of her mouth lingered on his lips.

"Thanks again," she said, coyly. "For the idea. I'll run it by Joey."

Mike pushed the trunk down, and Shiloh waved out the window as she drove away.

CHAPTER 6

Nice idea bro

This was the extent of the text that accompanied an mp3 sent to Mike by Joey, time stamp 5am, making it 3am their time when the file was sent.

He didn't have to open it to know what to expect, and so he didn't, not right away. He had a whole day to get through - a day of presentations and hand-shaking and ass-kissing, and he knew better than to implant the images that were almost surely on that file into his head before doing all that.

Not that it worked especially well. Like his wife, his professional life felt like it was attached to a rope that was slipping through his grip, faster and faster, and he was about to lose control. Shiloh's antics had his mind so knotted-up and inward-looking that more than one person had approached him to ask if he was okay. Sweat - under his collar, beneath his eyelids, snaking down his spine - had become a daily problem for him, because every time he conjured images of his wife in her yellow dress, cheerfully leaving him at the airport to go make his fantasies real with Joey, he went into an erotic form of shock.

He phoned it in all day - not technically, but for all intents and purposes - thinking almost the entire time about the seconds, minutes, and hours that stood between him and opening that file. About what it contained.

Their rules were pretty simple, and Shiloh wasn't breaking any of them. Not technically. But she sure was walking right up to the line. The only person she could sleep with without clearing it first was Joey, but there was a glaring loophole there that Shiloh had been exploiting: she could do almost anything else, with anyone else, as long as Joey was somewhere around, like a bodyguard/chaperon.

Or a fill-in husband. Watching his hotwife.

When this arrangement had been made, Mike had somehow envisioned it playing out differently. He hadn't counted on Shiloh's feverish embrace of the lifestyle, on her having such a wild slut living inside of her. That had been pure exhilaration at first, and he had felt like he was in a dream.

But the more this went on, the longer his work insisted that he stay based in Toronto, the more Mike started to wonder at something that gnawed away at him in a strange combination of pain and arousal: was Shiloh doing all of this because she wanted to please him? Or did she want to please Joey? Or did Shiloh just want to please herself? Surely it was some blend of all these components. What Mike didn't know was the exact mixture. And he wasn't sure if he would ever be able to find out.

Or what percentages he even wanted it to be.

Somehow, he slogged through it all, the file burning in the back of his mind. Leaving the office, he felt like he was outside of his own body, hearing the imagined sounds of Shiloh panting, mewling, screaming, as if they were real.

He didn't know what to expect. He was briefly tempted to play it in his car but opted to drag out the wait until he was back in his hotel room. Feverish, he dropped everything as he strode into the suite, heading directly for his couch and the laptop sitting on the low coffee table. He sat on the edge of the couch and set up the connection he'd been planning all day, through his phone, but stopped halfway through the process to shake his head. This wasn't a video. A bigger screen would only amplify the absence of video.

Shaking with excitement, he pondered getting a beer before he started, but his thumb jerked on the screen and played the file, so he sank to the couch as the first moments played for him on speakerphone.

An eerily silent car interior. The sound of traffic, the low hum of wheels on the pavement, the trapped feeling of the sound. At first, he didn't know what he was listening to. Music was on very faintly, as if someone had turned the radio down hastily.

Mike strained to listen, trying to decipher what he was hearing. For several seconds - long, erotic seconds that stretched into eternity - he didn't know at all what was happening. His memory hadn't been jogged by the recording, he was feeling the steep decline of his enthusiasm, the bitter pang of disappointment.

And then, he heard Joey's voice. "Hey man, can you just put that back there... yeah, right there man."

There was a muffled sound, a human voice, saying something like, "Right."

The sound shifted.

Mike stared at the painting in front of him - some corporate art, full of colorful squares - as a chill poured over him and his heart bled in his chest, spilling its pain into his interior.

A sucking sound, wet and crinkly, was now audible on the recording. Steady, obviously the sound of a blow job, it continued, the lone sound other than the background noise of the car, for what seemed like an eternity. As the minutes ticked by, though, the sounds degraded, becoming sloppier and slurpier. A man's voice hummed something inaudible, and then the sounds of his voice started to form into words.

"Hey, get him too, baby," the voice was saying.

A pause in the slurping, and then a faint, sexy murmur, definitely Shiloh's voice, before the sucking started again.

It went on and on like this for about fifteen minutes. There was very little else: the occasional murmur of a man's voice. "Don't be greedy, now, baby, there's lots to go around." And the sucking. The endless sucking, the sound of his wife's mouth sealed around another man's cock - or evidently, two other men's cocks. Mike was left with nothing but the sounds, and the blank canvas of his mind.

That, and the single surety: the woman's voice was his wife's.

The file cut off abruptly, just as one of the male voices started to speak. His first word was cut off, unintelligible.

Mike played it again, settling back into the couch, so that he could unzip his pants and jerk off. As he listened, his visual fantasy became even more filthy, his imagination running wild.

Slurp, slurp, slurp. Shiloh was so enthusiastic, her rhythm steady, her jaw tireless.

Joey. Driving his wife around while she enthusiastically sucked off two guys in the back of his car.

Mike's face burned.

It was so awful.

It was so hot.

Hey, get him too, baby.

Don't be greedy, now, baby, there's lots to go around.

*

By the time he managed to, at long last, quit the audio file, it was late into the night and quite dark. The room had become dim around him as the sky transitioned from powder blue to inky black - late into the night.

Joey had sent him another text message by then.

So? Hot, right?

Mike let the phone fall onto the couch for a moment. His mind was another blizzard of confusing ideas. He felt, incredibly, like he could come in a moment if he started jerking off again. "Jesus," he said to the empty room. He turned on a light and called Joey.

As the phone rang, he thought better of the call and hung up. He started typing a response to Joey when Joey called him back.

He answered, but found himself unable to say hello.

"You called just now?" Joey said. He was in a bar or a club somewhere, the music loud in the background.

"Hey. Yeah," Mike started, but in a low and much too timid voice. Joey hadn't even heard him. "You calling about that fucking hot audio?" he screamed.

Mike didn't know what to say. Joey seemed pleased with himself and blissfully unaware of Mike's mood.

"That was all her idea, you know... she says she got it from you? Hot as fuhhhck."

"Who are those other -"

"Hey buddy," Joey said, and it wasn't clear who he was speaking to, because he seemed to be yelling at someone on the other end of the line. Abruptly, he added, "I gotta go, bro," and cut the call off.

So he dialed Shiloh.

"Hey, handsome," Shiloh purred.

It was this kind of thing that always punched Mike right in the gut, even if he was fired up and jealous, with half a mind to end the whole damned thing for good. Shiloh never talked like this before. She didn't have the kind of sexy, bedroom murmur in her voice that she had now. Not in the sack, not in private, and definitely not over the phone.

Now, Shiloh's every single movement, everything she said, everything she did, carried an overtone of sexual excitement.

It was thrilling, it was hot.

It was very difficult to maneuver around it. Because he liked that.

"Did you listen to what Joey recorded?" He could tell that she was smiling, excited. His cock was betraying him, coming back to life.

"I, uh... it's right here... yeah, I just listened to it."

There was a pause, during which Shiloh's smile seemed to become a sound and travel through the phone, so that he could almost actually see her lips as she began to form the next words.

"It's so hot, isn't it?" Shiloh practically mewled.

Mike was useless, he realized. He was a useless man, at least in this arena of life. "It's so hot, Shiloh," he panted. "Who is... where were you?"

Shiloh emitted a bimbo-like, sexual sound, one that meant nothing at all, but made Mike's balls boil. "Oh, those were just guys that Joey knows. It made me so hot sucking cock in the back seat while we drove home. If you ever come home..." her voice became playful and teasing, "I'll let you drive us around so you can see how you like it when you're actually there."

The sounds of her slurpy blowjobs echoed in Mike's ears.

"Uh..." he fumbled. "Yeah... Shiloh, who are these guys?"

Shiloh breathed impatiently into the phone. "Just friends of Joey's," she said, casually. "He knows, like, so many hot guys who want to have sex with somebody else's wife." She waited for Mike, and when he didn't speak for a while, she ventured more tentatively. "I mean... you're cool with all that, right?"

Mike sighed. It was a golden opportunity to say something to her. But he didn't know exactly what he wanted to say. He didn't want her to stop. He didn't want her to stop fucking Joey. He couldn't even say what was perturbing him.

"It's, uh.... yeah, of course, of course it is..." he said.

"Mmm," Shiloh intoned. She seemed distracted. Mike knew he was probably being paranoid, but the hint of distraction burned inside of him.

"Shiloh," he managed to say. He scratched his head and rubbed his face. It was always a complex decision: to talk to the wife or to let things blow over. He wasn't sure which one he did more of, but he was fairly sure he usually regretted both. The last thing he wanted was to have a fight with Shiloh. "I think we need -"

"Honey... I have to, uh... yeah, I have... I have to go..."

Shiloh's words dribbled away into breathless sounds. Or at least that was what Mike heard.

"Shiloh?" Mike asked. "Do you have someone... you know, over there?"

There was a pause, one that seemed suddenly icy. "Joey's not here," she said. "I would have told you that, anyway."

Mike felt his heart plunge. "I'm not, uh... I just, it sounded like -"

"It sounds like you don't trust me to follow the rules," Shiloh said. Her tone was difficult to unpack. Mike couldn't decipher it at all: it was sexy and teasing, but a real feeling lurked somewhere below the surface. Was she actually mad at him for not trusting her? Or was she just playing another game?

He hardly knew this woman, he realized. He had no idea which one it was.

"Shiloh, of course I trust you," Mike began. He was just about to begin his next sentence, something along the lines of not trusting... what? Other men? Her ability to control herself? Each was true in its own way but he knew better than to say any of it out loud.

Shiloh waited, her silence, though, somehow pregnant. Mike could easily imagine her typing on a computer or smiling devilishly awaiting his response.

And then, suddenly, she murmured something, words he couldn't make out. Maybe there were no words, and it was just a mewl, but the sexual overtones of it fed his imagination like gasoline on a fire. He pictured Shiloh there with someone - maybe Joey, maybe Marcus, maybe just a random guy from "Playdates," licking her pussy while she purred to her husband on the phone.

"Shiloh," he said desperately. "Is someone there with you?"

Shiloh laughed. "Don't be silly..." she answered, after a much-too-long pause, her speech a little halting. Breathless.

"So what are you doing?" He sounded like a robot.

"Hmm," Shiloh said. "Just getting ready."

"Shiloh," Mike breathed.

"You're the one who called me and got me thinking about all that."

Mike's mouth was open, and the world spun around him like a black void. "Uh," he managed to intone.

"I'm heading out," Shiloh said, cheerfully, her mood changing.

"Sometimes I like to get a little bit... wound up first. You know?"

"Wound up how?"

Shiloh treated him to one of her deep, nasal chuckles, an alluring sound that she hadn't made since they were first dating. Wouldn't you like to know? it said.

And he did.

"Wound up," Shiloh repeated, a smile in her voice. "Ready to go."

"Are you masturbating?" Mike breathed, his voice wooden to his own ears.

Shiloh didn't answer. She just left enough time in the air for an imaginary answer, a mystery to unfold. "I have a feeling it's going to get pretty wild." She kissed at the phone.

And that was that, because while Mike tried to articulate just one of the questions he had, she had already hung up.

CHAPTER 7

"Jesus, man, this better be an emergency."

It was Joey.

"It's eleven o'clock," Mike said, pinching the bridge of his nose, befuddled at himself.

Sure, it was eleven, but that wasn't what was on his mind or why he'd called or even in the same ballpark as what he wanted to discuss, especially now, when Joey had answered Shiloh's phone instead of Shiloh.

He was more interested in why his wife had told him she was going out last evening, and hadn't called or texted since.

Joey made a sound of begrudging agreement. "Man, what do you want?"

"Why are you answering Shiloh's phone?"

Joey sighed, and something about the way it sounded over the phone implied that he was grinning as he did it, exhaling with effort, so probably also sitting up, using only his toned abs to lift his muscled torso. "Yep," he said, as if that answered the question.

Mike was speechless, wondering where to go from there, but Joey, thankfully, had more to say.

"Shiloh ain't in any condition to answer the phone," Joey added, the grin still audible in his voice.

Mike's head was spinning, he could think of nothing to say, at least not quickly enough to keep up with Joey.

What did that mean, "not in any condition to answer the phone?"

"Here," Joey croaked, obviously stretching as he spoke. The video abruptly flickered onto the screen, a streak of gray and white and the glare of a large window coming into view, a blur of exposed brick, wobbling as Joey adjusted himself while holding the phone.

Mike's heart pounded as he recognized his own room. Their own room. His master bedroom, the place he shared with Shiloh. Even though it was not news to him that Joey was sleeping over there sometimes, and even though he had known Shiloh and Joey were hooking up the night before, the sight of his own bedroom spinning across the screen touched a cold, hollow space inside of him and made it throb.

The camera was still whirring through the air, but it finally settled on a sea of blue - blue sheets, crumpled and unfresh, strewn in sodden streaks and bunches over the alluring pale flesh of Shiloh's legs and back.

"She is passed out," Joey narrated, as the picture moved in on Shiloh's face, her lips visible behind a curtain of her disheveled hair. Joey's hand and forearm came into the scene as the phone wobbled and the picture blurred slightly with the movement. He pushed Shiloh's hair from her face so that Mike could see her, eyes closed, mouth open, obviously sleeping like the dead.

"Shy, baby," Joey said, making no attempt to be quiet. He pulled on her shoulder gently and rolled her onto her back, and Shiloh stirred, bringing a hand up to swat uselessly at Joey.

"Leave me alone," she complained, in a childlike voice.

"It's Mike, Shy. Wake up."

Shiloh swatted at the air, her arm falling limply back to her stomach midway through the gesture. "I'm so tired, I'll call him back," she murmured, without opening her eyes.

Joey, meanwhile, had zoomed in on her face. "You see what I mean?" he said, his voice now fully awake and his mood light. Just like Joey to snap back to life like that. "Shy had a pretty crazy night last night," he continued, getting closer to her face so that Mike could see the worn-out puffiness of her lips, the rubbed-off makeup and the streaks of smeared mascara beneath her eyes.

Shiloh was beautiful, even when she had just stepped out of the shower, and she was beautiful now, with all of her makeup worn away, but there was an alluring and horrifying un-freshness to her appearance. She was the bizarro version of herself, her makeup smeared away by lips and possibly cocks, as opposed to removed carefully with a special sponge and cleansed by some expensive exfoliant.

She looked like Shiloh never looked: slutty, filthy, used.

The worst part, of course, was that she almost certainly was. All of those things.

Joey's fingers were on her mouth, pulling gently on her lower lip. "Come on, Shy, wake up, say hello to your hubby," he was teasing, but his voice was softer, still infused with the joking, playful tone that Joey rarely lost. His hand moved down her neck, and Shy stirred and murmured something, but still seemed either determined to keep sleeping, or actually too sleepy to wake up.

Joey pulled the sheet away from Shiloh's body, moving the camera along with his hand. The sheet fell away from Shiloh's breasts, and Shiloh murmured something and twisted her body with a feline growl, but didn't roll away or pull up the sheet.

"You gettin' this man?" Joey asked.

"What are you doing?" Shiloh croaked.

"It's for Mike," Joey said. The sheet continued to slide away from Shiloh's body. "This little girl," Joey was saying, "got all kinds of wild last night... you gettin' this, man?" Joey's fingers moved down Shiloh's body and stopped on her navel, making a slow, splotch-shaped outline next to her belly button. "Pretty sticky right here," Joey reported, the audible grin in his voice beaming through the sound like a wide, satisfied smile.

Down his fingers continued, Shiloh inert beneath his touch, barely responding to it except to squirm half-heartedly and murmur something about being too tired.

"I know, baby..." Joey agreed with her, moving down to her hips. The curve of her hipbone came into view, the camera wobbled, and then the screen filled with the pink of her burst, ripened gash, Joey's hand nudging her leg open, his fingers grazing the reddened hump of her outer pussy lip.

"She is covered in cum, man," Joey's voice continued, more softly than before. But the lowered volume didn't seem like a courtesy he was extending to Shiloh, or solemnity - more like an accident, driven by his own distraction as he dipped his fingers into Shiloh's pussy. A sticky, sodden sound crackled loudly enough for Mike to hear it. "I think she's too sore to fuck today, she got so much dick last night."

Joey filmed himself slipping two fingers into Shiloh's pussy, and Shiloh's hand appeared, grasping Joey's wrist, pushing him away. "No, Joey," she moaned, "I'm too sore."

But the edges of her voice curled with invitation. Mike could hear it, Joey would hear it. It was the kind of voice that wrapped around you like a tongue, throaty and fried, beckoning with its purr over the meaning of its words.

Mike felt sick, and his cock had throbbed to life violently at some point and now pulsed even more painfully. He wanted to know more about Shiloh and what she had done last night, wanted the questions to form themselves and leave his mouth as smooth, gliding syllables, his voice calm. How many guys did Shiloh sleep with? Was she really covered in cum, and why? Was her pussy really too sore to fuck her?

But he didn't manage to say any of this, only to stare, maybe breathing and maybe not, his chest a block of ice, his cock violently full, twitching in his pants.

"Too sore, like I said," Joey was saying, and the phone was moving toward Shiloh's face again. "Baby, hold this and talk to Mike," Joey's voice said.

And the screen went wild again, a blur of whites and blue and the color of flesh. A protest from Shiloh, some whispering, a moan, a throaty female laugh that could have also been a moan. And then Shiloh's face filled the screen, her eyes heavy-lidded, black makeup smeared across her lids and to the sides of her eyes. Her lips were swollen and filthily alluring as she puckered them just before her mouth opened in a sudden "o" and her eyes flew open, pupils reacting wildly, then consuming the blues of her eyes.

"Hey baby," she purred, smiling into the camera. "I -"

Her voice cut off abruptly, and her eyes fluttered as she sucked in her breath. She struggled to look into the camera, and the pictures smeared a few times as she lost her grip on the phone. "Uh..." she gasped. And then she was back on the screen.

"Shiloh," Mike breathed, but that was all he was able to get out. Shiloh looked into the camera, holding it steady as her head, almost imperceptible, moved up and down the pillow, just a little, and her mouth fell open, her eyes melting away in distraction. "I'm too sore," she complained, her eyes on the camera, but her voice directed somewhere else.

To Joey. And whatever he was doing. Was he fucking her?

Shiloh's voice might have been complaining, but her lips were forming a slight smile.

"Tell him what you did," Joey's voice said from off-camera. "Tell him what a little slut you were."

Shiloh's eyes focused a little, and she seemed to become more present in the conversation with Mike. She opened her mouth, and then paused, seemingly startled by what she was about to say. "Baby," she breathed, a tiny bit of fear creeping into her eyes. "I was so... so, bad..." Her eyes dropped, and her lips twisted, and the camera moved away from her face a little. "Don't," she said, almost shuddering. She tipped her head back, her eyes rolling backward. "Don't stop, Joey," she whined.

"Tell him what you did," Joey's voice said. It was closer to the camera now. He was holding the camera, Mike realized, as Shiloh's breasts, bouncing lightly, came into the picture. The bouncing slowed, and Shiloh gasped.

Joey moved the phone down to what he was doing, just for a moment, and Mike saw his thumb plunging into the raw red flesh of Shiloh's pussy, Joey's dick sawing slowly beneath it.

But that was all he was allowed to see. All he needed to see. His mind could fill in the rest easily as the camera returned to Shiloh's face, to her open mouth, her vacant eyes. Her face, but also not her face. This woman was a different creature, her features twisted into a pleasurable, painful grimace.

"Tell him how many guys you fucked last night," Joey said, and Shiloh's body moved as he fucked her slowly. "Tell him why your pussy is so sore, you little slut."

"Oh, Joey," Shiloh moaned. She tossed her head on the pillow. "I can't... I can't... don't stop... I can't take any more... I just... uhn... oh God..."

Joey laughed. "Fuck, man, you have no idea how fucked-out she is right now, this pussy is so sloshy and full of cum, but she's still tight somehow... she still wants it... don't you, Shy?"

Shiloh's face filled the screen. "I'm so... I'm so sore..."

"You want me to stop fucking you, baby?" Joey asked, his voice indicating that he had no intention of stopping at all.

But Shiloh's eyes flew open. "No," she panted, "No, oh no, don't stop," she purred.

"This is what I'm talkin' about," Joey said. "Jesus." This seemed to be aimed at Mike, but Mike couldn't do anything but stare, tears of some unidentifiable sensation gnawing at the very corners of his eyes, threatening to turn into something real but never doing so.

"This?" Joey was saying, through the haze of moaning and gasping that swirled in Mike's mind. "This is what I'm talking about right here."

The camera was suddenly turned upside-down, or at least the image - and for a second it was incomprehensible. And then suddenly, totally clear, even without Joey narrating what was happening. It was all visible, in color, with amazing clarity.

Joey's cock, sawing in and out of Shiloh's slushy, slurping pussy.

Her abdomen straining, quivering, sweat dripping down her thighs, the clap of flesh and bone against flesh and bone, the slurp of her gaping gash.

It was obvious, even before Joey said it. Impossible to fathom, painful and cold and horrifying and hotter than the sun all at once, but above all, somehow very clear, even without Joey's explanation.

"You see that?" Joey said. "I am just doing a plank, man. She's the one fucking that cock."

More slapping, the universe closing in around Mike, a feeling of sinking into a black swamp, but also of flying, of being slingshot into the sky.

"Been like this all night. She just can't... get... enough..."

And the scene collapsed. A slurry of white and blue, and then a grayish darkness as the phone fell into the sheets. Shiloh's voice, squeaky, hysterical, working into a frenzy to the rhythm of whatever Joey was doing to her, was all that remained, muffled by the bedding, a barely audible sound outline of what Mike could not see but easily imagine: Joey, fucking her sore pussy on their marital bed, adding one more load of cum to... how many?

He might never know. He was a voice on a phone that had been tossed aside into the sheets without much thought while Joey and Shiloh were consumed by their wet, sticky, sloppy rutting.

Shiloh's voice crescendoed to a grotesque squeal, and then cut off, almost as if the phone had gone dead. But Joey's voice filled the silence, laughing lightly, panting, still fucking her. Quiet sloshes punctuated the silence between his words. "Oh, yeah, there you go, baby, you're okay... that's it, just lie there now and Joey's gonna give you a nice big load of cum..."

Joey groaned. Shiloh was silent.

Joey laughed as he picked the phone back up and Shiloh's face came into focus on the screen, Joey's hand on her jaw. "You see what I mean, buddy? Fucked-out. Totally fucked out, but she just keeps coming back for more."

Mike's heart seemed to have fallen through his core and was slithering between his legs, a crushed smear bleeding into his lower abdomen. God, Shiloh, he thought, and his lips moved to say the words but no sound left his mouth.

"I gotta run, man," Joey said, flipping the camera back to his own face. He winked, grinned, and blinked out of existence halfway through his sentence. "So fucking ho-"

Mike held the phone in his two hands, his mouth open, staring at the blank window, the blackness empty and deep.

Surely this was too far. Farther than even his own wild imagination had ever taken him. Shiloh wasn't like this... not Shiloh, his prim and almost conservative wife, Shiloh, queen of tidiness and neatness, Shiloh of anodyne business-cocktail dresses and color-coded Tupperware sets, Shiloh who demanded that Mike shower before having sex if he had been out on a run.

Even the Shiloh who had hooked up with Joey, the Shiloh who had been a slut at a slutty party - even that Shiloh did not seem capable of such... slutty heights. Or lows, depending on how you looked at it.

Mike let himself crumple on the stale hotel bed, still holding the phone, staring at it in disbelief.

This had been his fear, he realized. The fear he had been running toward, and maybe it was also a fantasy, but at the moment it mostly felt dark and terrifying. Perhaps he hadn't believed it would ever really happen, and that's why he had tempted fate, why he had wanted to push Shiloh's boundaries. He hadn't believed that she would become this insatiable, this slutty, this kind of rag doll of a fuck toy who, barely awake and with a sore pussy, was driven to ride cock anyway. Because he may not have known exactly what he was looking at, but he did see that much clearly: it was Shiloh who had been fucking Joey, not the other way around.

And what now? What was he supposed to do now? Shiloh wouldn't answer the phone; she needed to sleep. She was, in Joey's unforgettable words, "completely fucked-out." But that wasn't enough for Mike, just hearing that, just being left to imagine it, to feed off the snippets that Joey had tossed at him. How many guys had Shiloh fucked? And how? On her knees? In the ass? Sucking dick at the same time? How many loads of cum had been slammed into her pussy? What about her ass? What about her mouth? And where was Joey that whole time? Watching? Waiting his turn? Taking Mike's place, even as a cuckold? Had he fucked Shiloh when they got home while she was still freshly doused in bitter cum?

He jerked off, grimacing. It was more an issue of survival at that point than a true pleasure. The orgasm tore through him painfully, and he stared at the spurts of cum as they fell on the duvet cover, thinking of Joey's fingers embedded in the soft pink of Shiloh's pussy, slicking through the wetness, his pale pink cock beyond them, sawing, wetly, in and out and in and out of Shiloh.

And raging, like the sound of a waterfall, drowning out all sound nearby, louder even than the ringing in his ears: Shiloh's voice on repeat. Whiny, sticky, moaning.

Don't stop.... oh, Joey... my pussy is so sore...

CHAPTER 8

As the dull, digital, throb of the video call whirred from his speakers, Mike had the not entirely unpleasant sensation of calling up a girl he was trying to attract. It wasn't so much the feeling that was confusing - Shiloh still made his abdomen cool with love sometimes, even before all of this. But mingled in the lusty desire was the definite sensation of uncertainty.

He had to remind himself, to keep his head on straight, that he was calling his own wife. And that his own wife had only done the things she had done because he, himself, had asked her to.

He had arranged the call days ago, telling Shiloh he wanted to talk to her, and her alone. No one else in the background, lurking behind doors, appearing in the frame as a muscled hand reaching for her ass.

As amazing as all of that was, he needed to have a conversation with Shiloh, and Shiloh alone.

The call picked up, the usual distorted muffle and blurred lines of light as Shiloh answered, still moving, with the phone in her hand. Flashes of red, the shape of her breast, another flesh-colored contour that could have been the smooth roundness of a bare shoulder, a length of jawline, the roundness of her breasts.

And at last: focus. Shiloh in a sexy, tight red camisole, one slender strap threatening (or promising) to slide from her shoulder, not quite there yet. Red lipstick the color of the shirt - a blessedly familiar item of clothing that Mike had always liked. A broad smile. Her hair coiffed perfectly.

"Hey, baby," she said, warmly.

She was in the kitchen. Their cupboards hovered above her head, blanched by the bright sun. They had agreed to talk in the afternoon, on a Wednesday, when she would be - at least in theory - working from home.

"Hey," Mike said, squinting a little. He wasn't entirely sure how to start the conversation he wanted to have, perhaps because he wasn't entirely sure how the conversation should go. What exactly did he want from it?

Foolishly, feeling like a man tripping over his own feet, he blurted: "I thought you weren't allowed to wear sleeveless shirts when you're working at home."

"Shhhh," Shiloh hissed playfully, putting her finger seductively to her lips. "If you don't tell on me, I can even give you a little show."

Mike, rendered speechless, watched with an open mouth as his wife hooked the finger she had shushed him with beneath the strap that was already threatening to fall from her shoulder. Slowly, smiling, she pulled it down, taking the time to let the red camisole peel away from her skin at a glacial pace. The seconds ticked by until the brown of her aureola and the hardened nub at the center peeked into view.

Then Shiloh giggled, and lifted a white jacket to her shoulder. "I have a plan if a professional contact calls," she chirped happily. Then she dropped the jacket, and straightened up her shirt - again, very slowly, her awareness of what she was doing to Mike a serrated edge in her grin.

"I already know what you're calling about," she said, smoothly. It was the kind of comment Joey would make, in the tone that Joey would make it: she knew, she knew she had done something scold-worthy, and she was here to tell you that she just didn't really care, and hey, you liked that about her anyway, right? The fuckery?

Mike blinked, temporarily disoriented. "You do," he said, flatly.

Shiloh nodded, doing something with her lips that involved her teeth and was incredibly wet and sexy. And unlike herself. "I do. And listen... I'm sorry. But I technically didn't break any rules." She grinned into the screen, watching his reaction. "Anyway," she added, purring. "You liked it."

Mike sighed. "Shiloh..."

"You didn't like it?" she asked, leaning on her elbows, plumping her breasts at the neckline of her shirt. Shiloh's breasts weren't huge - she had a more athletic than curvy build, and Mike wasn't a huge, huge boob guy... but this display was impossible to look away from.

"It's not that I didn't like it," Mike began, when Shiloh just kept smiling at him. "It's just... uh... baby, it seems a little, like..."

Shiloh groaned, looking up at the ceiling. It wasn't her typical groan, not born of real frustration or disdain. There was a playful element to it - again, almost too close to Joey's mannerisms for Mike to be completely comfortable with.

When Mike didn't finish his sentence, Shiloh returned her gaze to the screen, smiling at him alluringly. The exchange of silence and this simmering look seared him inside and out. It was almost as erotic as watching her actually have sex with someone.

Almost.

"It's like...?" she prompted, after a while.

Mike hesitated. "It just seems, uh, you know... a little out-of-control. I guess."

"Mmm," Shiloh responded. Quickly, agreeably. Mike had the unpleasant sensation of feeling like he was being managed by an upstart young punk who had been kicked upstairs to middle management on his way to the boardroom. "So... do you want me to stop?"

She had a teasing tone to her voice now. Infuriating, because she was asking the question with the confidence of a lawyer who had someone squirming on the stand: she already knew the answer.

Mike stared back at her. "I, uh... well, no, not stop," he said. He was even able to laugh a little.

"It wasn't hot?" Shiloh asked, fluttering her eyes innocently.

"Uh... Jesus, Shiloh," Mike bumbled. He scratched his head and whisked his hand beneath the table as soon as he realized he was doing it.

"It was hot," Shiloh told him leaning closer to the screen. "I bet you haven't been able to get it out of your mind."

That cold fist through his chest again. The rush of entrapped cum, straining against his ball sac. His cock throbbing. The queasy, love-sick flutter in his abdomen.

Lacking anything better to do, he shook his head slowly from side to side with a profound, almost humiliating honesty.

"Joey was there the whole time," Shiloh said, her eyes gleaming with the power she had over him.

That was the rule. That, and tell him everything.

"But you didn't tell me about it," he croaked. His voice, whispery, paper-thin and turgid all at once, betrayed that he was besotted. Addicted. At her mercy.

"But Joey told you all about it," Shiloh said, eyes glinting. "Anyway... the details don't really come across... and it's all kind of a blur." She chewed seductively on her lower lip. "If you know what I mean."

He shook his head, just barely. It was impossible to know if Shiloh even registered it. It was a shake of nonrecognition, of disbelief: he didn't know what she meant, because this woman was not his wife.

"Baby," Shiloh said, suddenly breaking the character of seductress. Her eyes moved over her own screen, reading something. "I have to go, that's the boss." She was pulling the white jacket up and over her shoulders, working her sinewy limbs into the tight fit.

"You just say the word if you want me to stop," she said, grinning.
And she waited, smiling, the full glorious knowledge that he would tell her no such thing written smugly all over her face.

"I'm picking you up on Saturday, right?" she asked, distracted by whatever was on her screen.

"Yeah... uh..." Mike said, feeling like he had said everything he was capable of saying and yet was still being left utterly unsatisfied.

Shiloh blew him a kiss. "Okay, gotta run," she told him. Her puckered lips were the last thing he saw before the screen was black again, and he was left alone in his hotel room again. His wife, thousands of miles away, running wild.

Just like you wanted her to, he reminded himself.

Another wave of cold nausea bloomed in his gut.

END

WANT MORE FROM ARNICA BUTLER?

*Check out my catalog at: www.thirteenthline.com
...and while you're there, sign up for our newsletter to get free books and updates on sales by Arnica Butler and Jason Lenov!*

Email me at: info@thirteenthline.com

Follow me on Twitter: @ArnicaButler

Chapter 8

Joey was waiting for him when he exited the airport, which was surprising to Mike, because while Joey was extremely reliable about time in the event that it met Joey's criteria for "important;" he was notoriously lax about promptness in all other circumstances. Mike was surprised to have made the cut.

Joey was reading something on his phone, smoking a cigarette, occasionally looking around - probably to avoid getting busted by security for parking, smoking, and acting like he owned the place. When he saw Mike coming, he flicked the cigarette away, stuffed his phone in his pocket, and, with nothing more than a nod at Mike over the roof of the car, dropped into the driver's seat.

"Hey man," he said amicably, when Mike slipped into the passenger seat. The car was moving before the door had fully closed. "How was your flight?"

"Great," Mike told him, miserably. This made Joey smile. They were already careening through the slow-moving traffic winding out of the airport complex. "Uh... they're pretty strict here, man, about speed."

"Yep."

Joey continued to drive as he pleased, smiling.

An awkward silence - at least for Mike - came over the cab. Joey drove for a while without seeming to notice it, glancing a few times over at Mike. Finally, he broke out in a grin and pounded on Mike's left knee with a closed fist. It was a playful punch, but Mike was reminded of the latent strength that lurked within Joey. He wasn't a purely beach-muscle kind of guy; real strength was coiled up inside of him, like a spring.

"You-want-to-talk-about-Shiloh," Joey sang, smiling. He had his eyes on the road, which was a good thing, because he was moving swiftly among transport trucks to pull out ahead of a large glut in the traffic.

Mike didn't respond. Joey looked over at him. "So?" he said. "Talk."

Mike stretched out and resettled himself in the seat. "Man, it's just... it's a little extreme. Is all."

Joey laughed under his breath. "Man, you sound like a guy who signed up to jump out of a plane and now he's complaining it's not more like a fishing trip." Joey chuckled again. "Your wife is fucking other men, dude. It's a ride." He weaved in and out of lanes to get ahead of a slow-moving van.

Mike had no idea what to say. He looked out the passenger window.

Joey looked over at him. "You think she crossed the line?" he asked, with a little gleam in his eye. Then he nodded, returning his eyes - Mike thanked a random deity - to the road. "I gotta tell you, I did not expect Shiloh to be quite so... enthusiastic."

Mike grimaced. Joey grinned and leaned his head back against the headrest.

"The thing about it, Mikey, is that it's toothpaste out of the tube now. All you can do is make the best of it."

"Oh, yeah?" Mike said, a little glum. He wasn't sure why he'd even opened up to Joey at all about the "extremeness" of it all.

Joey nodded, biting his lower lip. A pause.

"Look, man. If you think she crossed the line, then put that shit in check. But... and this is purely from experience, okay...?" Joey paused to look over at Mike. "Nothing's wrong with a little rule-breaking, if she makes it up to you. Catch my drift?"

Mike's cock had caught Joey's drift long before Joey had probably even caught it himself.

"And just so you know," Joey added, before looking over at Mike and smiling. "I am fully available for any assistance you need on that front."

"Huh?"

"Huh?" Joey repeated, mockingly. "If you need any assistance, you know, having Shiloh make it up to you. Do some penance. That kind of thing? I humbly offer my assistance."

Joey was very amused with himself.

"Yeah, thanks bro," Mike said. "Maybe you could start by keeping her in check at some of those parties."

Joey smiled and nodded. "I might could do," he said, drawing deeply on his long-buried childhood dialect. He grinned. "But this other way sounds like a lot more fun. For everyone."

Mike held his hand over his forehead and leaned his head back. He let his fingers fall onto his temple like a curtain and massaged at the pain in his temples. "Just get me home."

Joey drove for a while in silence.

"All right, man," he said after a while. He looked over at Mike, who was slouched in his seat and cradling his head like he had a hangover, which he didn't.

"So why couldn't Shiloh pick you up?" Joey asked, after quite some time had gone by. His words felt like an elbow to the ribs.

"She's at work," Mike answered.

"Huh."

Joey didn't say anything else, and Mike's eyes were closed. By the time he opened them and looked over at Joey, his friend was driving, a placid and neutral expression on his face, the hint of a smile on his lips.

Maybe it was nothing. Mike closed his eyes and pretended to be dozing.

But the cold, hard, knot of jealousy and arousal was twisting in his chest again, clawing like a wild animal trapped inside of him.

*

"What the...?"

Shiloh's car was in the driveway, with a dry patch beneath it, which put her, even by the crudest estimates, at home for at least an hour, because a light drizzle had been falling from the sky since Joey had collected Mike at the airport.

But even more disturbing was the only partially wet rectangle of concrete next to Shiloh's car.

Mike opened the door before the car was even stopped, looking over at Joey as he did. Joey had his eyebrows raised and the kind of look on his face that he usually wore when he was about to, as he put it, "dis-involve himself because crazy."

There was no need to speak, because Joey didn't need a narration to know what Mike was thinking. He was clearly thinking the same thing himself. He held his hands up over the steering wheel in an exculpatory gesture, shaking his head. "Don't look at me, man," he said.

Mike snatched his small carry-on and bent over to mumble something at Joey - thanks, see you. He would never remember what he said. A walk up the grassy slope in front of their house, his heart racing. A dull throb in his ears, making him partially deaf. A high-pitched whine that coasted into his ears on any wave of stress and high blood pressure. Opening the door. Standing in the foyer, straining to hear.

The door clicked behind him and he heard himself breathing, the hum of the HVAC, nothing else.

And then, there she was. Shiloh. Wearing a pair of short, white terry-cloth shorts and a matching sleeveless shirt that fell from one shoulder. Hair down, mussed. Her makeup was worn away, applied with precision at some other time of day and worn away now, patchy, a little sloppy.

Shiloh didn't seem especially surprised to see him. She was coming out of the kitchen, a martini (a martini!) in hand, and she came to a stop when she saw him, as if she had always intended to stop there, even if she was still alone in the house, and contemplate the living room and foyer. She smiled blandly at Mike and leaned against the door frame, bringing the martini to her lips to take a sip before she spoke. "You're home early," she said, smiling.

Mike was still standing, briefcase in one hand and small bag in the other. He looked from Shiloh back to the door, his mouth open in semi-disbelief.

The scent of Shiloh was reaching his nose now. Not freshly showered. She smelled like sex. He could pick up the notes of her pussy juices in the air. She crossed one ankle over the other and waited for his answer, sipping her martini.

"What the hell, Shiloh?" he stammered. He lifted his right hand to point, across his chest, at the door. "I thought you had work."

Shiloh shook her head very slowly, and though she didn't shrug, her demeanor was like a shrug that she had chucked at him violently.

"Something else came up."

"Did he park in the driveway?"

Shiloh looked at him for a moment, the kind of clear-eyed, rationally assessing look that his wife (of old) used to give him, before answering.

Mike wondered what she was making of him. He didn't even know what to make of himself.

Her face changed; she had come to a decision. She dropped her left hand to her belly, lifting the loose terry shirt to draw her finger sexily along her abdomen. "He did. And then he came in."

She started walking toward him, setting the martini down on a long table against the wall by the stairs. She slinked over to him, wetting her lips, the right shoulder of her - never-before-seen- little outfit sliding to mid-arm and peeling away from the full shape of her breasts.

The scent of her pussy was even stronger now; the mixed scent of cum now asserting itself, impossible to deny. Until that moment, it all could have been just a nightmare or a tease, but someone had clearly fucked his wife recently, and it wasn't him.

Not that Mike could really do anything about any of this, or think straight. Shiloh had him mesmerized as she approached him, and put a hand out to his chest. She smoothed his shirt, then traveled back up to his neck with her fingers. Mike's cock was painfully hard, pressing against his stiff suit. "And then," Shiloh said sweetly, her voice a candied razor slicing through the tissues of his heart. "He came... in... me."

Mike shuddered, his insides melting, only his skin holding him in place, keeping him upright.

"Not right away, of course," Shiloh said, smiling. She was unbuttoning the top of his shirt, looking from the buttons to his face before she moved to the next one.

He stood there, letting her do it, every possible thought gone from his mind. Her fingers were working on his pants now, threading the belt out of the buckle, pulling it through the loops, sliding her hand into his boxers, palm to his abdomen. Her fingers were cool at the tips, where she'd held the martini, and hot everywhere else. They glided over the shape of his confined and twitching dick, taking a moment to play with his shaft. Then she cupped his balls, reaching deep, bringing her own body closer to him, her lips within inches of his mouth. Her eyes were locked on his and full of mischief. "I know it's against the rules," she mewled. "But it just sort of... fell into place."

Her fingernails scraped very gently at the paper-thin skin of his ball sac, underneath, a ripple of erotic heat traveling in every direction, making his ass clench. "Shiloh," he half-heartedly objected.

"I know it's against the rules," she repeated, her mouth very close to his, her free hand gliding up to the back of his neck. "I just couldn't help myself. The only thing is..." her voice trailed off for a moment, and they breathed on each other, caught in the intense sensuality of the moment, which could have lasted five seconds or three hours. Mike had no idea. His mind had been rammed into a very narrow pathway of thoughts.

"... I'm not quite satisfied yet."

"Jesus."

Shiloh grazed his cheek to put her mouth close to his ear. "I've gotten to the point where just one load of cum doesn't really do it for me anymore."

She had worked her hand in his boxers up as she said this, and now she took his hand - limply hanging at his side, lifeless and paralyzed by shock, like everything but his cock - and guided it to the front of her shorts, pushing his fingers into her pants and down to the slippery lips of her pussy. Her clit and labia swam in a sea of juices and semen, as though her lover had only departed minutes ago. Mike sank his fingers into her cunt, slipping three fingers easily inside of her, feeling the liquid aftermath of her unfaithful romp.

He played with her pussy for a while, rubbing her clit, finger-fucking her, pleased with how she mewled and her body rolled against his in pleasure. But he wasn't priming a cold engine: she was already wet and ready to go long before his touch.

Shiloh watched him, her lips parted, her breath getting ragged, a smile on her lips. And then she tugged on his hand, pulling him from her pants, gripping his wrist, bringing his fingers to her own mouth. She rubbed them over her lips first, watching his reaction, and then, her eyes hawk-like, she watched him as he stared at his fingers disappearing between them, into her mouth.

She sucked on them like she gave blowjobs - a gentle suction, a playful tongue. Mike's forearms tingled - probably for the first time in his life - with an erotic shudder that lingered before spreading out to the rest of his body, and all he could do was stare, captivated.

Shiloh released his fingers. And then, she pushed away from him. Walked up the stairs, tossing first the shirt behind her, and then letting the shorts fall to her feet, before she stepped out of them, all without breaking her stride. Headed to the bedroom.

By the time he got up there, after shaking off a wild moment of total paralysis, in which he felt pretty certain that his heart had stopped beating, Shiloh was on the bed on all fours. Naked. Looking over her shoulder, her fingers drawing lazy circles around her asshole. Mike observed, with some relief and some disappointment, that her anus was puckered and pink, tight and unviolated, but below it, her pussy burst open in distended red petals, dripping with cum.

She used some of this to lubricate her fingers, and he knew as soon as they began to move into the wet layers of her pussy-flesh, what she was going to do. He robotically shook himself out of his clothes, staring, as Shiloh rocked back and forth in pleasure as she slipped a wet, slimy finger into her own ass.

I've gotten to the point where one load of cum doesn't really do it for me.

She was looking at him over her shoulder, a hunger in her eyes that he not only had never seen, but might not have believed was possible. Not from Shiloh. Half a dream, half a nightmare, the all-consuming craving in her expression seared through his heart and squeezed his balls. He glanced down at his cock, where a glob of pearly precum was squeezing itself out.

He didn't know which of his instincts to follow. Part of him wanted to make Shiloh pay for her sins, maybe on her knees, sucking him off. But if her finger-sucking was anything like her cock-sucking, he would erupt in her throat in moments. Part of him wanted to fuck her sloshy pussy hard, filling her up with another load of cum, if that's what she wanted. And there was even a part of him that wanted to dip his dick into her wet gash, and then pry open her tight ass for his first time. He struggled with where to start, staring at her finger as she fucked herself with it.

When his eyes drifted to Shiloh's face, he saw that she was watching her own finger, almost as intently as he was. She seemed to sense his eyes on her, and she smiled knowingly before her own eyes lifted to meet his. All the while, her finger dipped in and out of her ass, her pussy dripping beneath her hole.

"I like when you watch me," Shiloh said.

The flare of adolescent fuck-rage ignited in Mike again. "Oh you do, do you?" he asked her, pleased and slightly terrified that whatever Shiloh heard in his voice only made her more beguiling, her smile acquiring a thick, sexual pout. "Is that why you couldn't wait for me to get home before you fucked your little friend?"

Shiloh grinned at him, a bratty highlight in the shape of her smile, as alluring as it was infuriating. "No," she said. "I did that because I just... couldn't... wait."

Joey's words on penance rattled around in Mike's brain, fueling ideas that were too filthy even for him; he was left juggling them in his mind like a hot potato, trying to recoil and unable to just set them aside.

He crossed the room to the bed, feeling suddenly like a very different man. Perhaps part of the reason that he fantasized about Shiloh sleeping with other men was because he himself couldn't do the things to her that he wanted to see done - at least not most of the time. But his normal reluctance to defile Shiloh like a whore had been washed away by her behavior, replaced by the occasional dark man that he became.

He slapped Shiloh on the ass, harder than playfully, and enjoyed the squeal she emitted, the surprise in her eyes, the turn of her mouth that indicated pleasure. "That's against the rules, Shiloh," he said.

She responded with a feline growl, tipping her belly down to the mattress and her ass in the air, her finger still massaging her own ass, pumping slowly, vulgar and beautiful. "So what are you going to do to make it up to me?"

Shiloh laughed, almost scoffing at him. Like she didn't believe in the seriousness of what he was saying. But her confidence in the joke of it all faded quickly; when she looked at his face, she saw that something had changed in him. Her eyes lit up with a new kind of lust.

"Hmm?" Mike continued, palming her left buttock and dipping two fingers of his right hand into her pussy, finger-fucking her until the slimy juices coated his fingers and ran down his hand. "You sure this guy only fucked one load into you? Shiloh? Tell the truth."

He was pushing her own hand away from her ass, watching her finger slide from inside, catching on the rubbery puckered lips of her anus, making a droplet of water pool in the corner of her left eye. Her mouth had fallen open, maybe in surprise, maybe in pleasure, maybe both.

"It was a big lo-" Shiloh began, sassily, but her voice dropped to silence as though a mute button had been pressed when Mike pushed his two fingers roughly into her ass. She had a tiny gape where she had been fucking herself, so he pushed into her easily, gliding on the lube of her pussy juices and the cum that had been freshly pounded into her. But he still had to wriggle and jimmy his fingers into her tight hole, while Shiloh mewled and her ass clamped around them.

Mike had never been an anal sex guy, no matter how much Joey sang its praises, but he thought briefly of conversion as his fingers encountered the very hot, tight silk that sheathed his fingers. Fascinated, he watched himself finger-fucking Shiloh, who seemed to like it, moaning like a whore.

He twisted his thumb down to stroke her clit as he fucked her, enjoying the way that the right stroke made her body squeeze his fingers, made her wriggle, her muscles straining against her skin. It was easy to tell that an orgasm was building inside of her, as her body went more rigid and she began to buck against him. It was as if he could feel the contours of her orgasm, the shape of it like a shockwave ahead of the explosion.

As she neared the edge, he ceased to rub her clit, and clawed his fingers down inside of her ass, making her squeal in disappointment. She tried to push back against his hand, to rub her body against him to get the stimulation she craved. But he didn't let her.

He played with her ass and her clit, winding her up, never letting her release, for a few more minutes. Shiloh bucked against him and twisted her body, trying to wring an orgasm from him, begging with her body and the motion of her hips.

"Baby," she panted, after squealing in disappointment on the fourth iteration of this game. "I'm sorry. Please, please let me come. Oh," she whined, moving her hips wildly - to no avail, because he just let her buck around, taking his hand with her.

"You wanna come?" he asked her.

"Baby, yes, please, let me," Shiloh whined.

"Are you sorry for being such a little slut?"

Shiloh paused, a smile creeping back into her hungry, half-open mouth. She was not sorry, no matter what she said. That's what her smile revealed.

"No?" Mike asked. He slowly pulled his fingers from inside her ass, while Shiloh made a noise of complaint and supplication, but still refused to beg him, to apologize how he wanted her to.

"Ba-by," she complained, after his fingers left her interior and her gaping hole winked closed in waves. "Okay, okay," she said. "I'm sorry. I'm sorry I was such a little slut... please..." Her voice had become believably contrite, sexily desperate, punctuated by gasps for air.

"Yeah?" Mike said. He reached for her hair and bunched it loosely in his fist, dragging her by the hair and the arm to the foot of the bed, turning her as he did, so that she tumbled from the edge of the bed to the floor, legs open, the scent of her pussy filling his nostrils. "Show me how sorry you are."

Shiloh had already gotten onto her knees, and a gleam was in her eyes as she looked up at him. She grasped his cock and squeezed it, looking down to watch the precum squeeze from his cock. She clearly had something in mind, some desire to take control of the situation again, but Mike was too fired up, enjoying too much the return of his authority over Shiloh, however temporary. He peeled her fingers away from his dick and replaced her grip with his own, guiding his cock to her lips to smear the precum over them.

"Lick that off," he told her.

Shiloh complied, still giving him the vexing look of surprise, almost condescending, that she had been giving him all along.

"Show me how you sucked his cock," he breathed.

"I didn't suck his cock," Shiloh said, without hesitation, She let this sit with him for a moment, enjoying, no doubt, the shudder that traveled through him when she did. "Not today."

"Then show me how you're going to suck his cock," Mike growled, putting a hand to the back of her head, pulling her toward him. He fed his cock to Shiloh as he did so, and soon it was enveloped in the silkiness and heat of her mouth, her teeth barely grazing the top of his shaft, her eyes locked on his.

"Suck," he told her. "Show me how sorry you are."

Shiloh appeared to grin even with her mouth full of dick, and then she went to work, putting her hands on his chest, walking them up, her eyes on him, utterly submissive. She sucked diligently, new tricks abounding, each of them invigorating to Mike but with a painful kick - the knowledge that they had all been taught to her, probably by Joey, in an endless series of blowjobs and "training sessions."

He dropped his hand and let her bob against him, taking him deep to the back of her throat, her gag reflex nonexistent now. Each time he bounced against the back of her throat, and she didn't gag, struck him like a slap across the face.

She paused to catch her breath, her cheeks wet with spit, saliva dribbling from her lips to her chin. Her mascara had smeared, and she was looking a sight more used than she did when she'd opened the door. "When you come," she said, breathlessly, her voice so sexy and foreign that it made

Mike's ass clench and a cold electricity travel from his anus up his spine. "I'm going to show you what Marcus made me do."

Marcus. The name brought the picture of his black cock to the forefront of his mind, the effect jarring and disorienting. He almost tipped over, he grew so dizzy.

So it was Marcus who had smashed his wife's pussy to a pulp, Marcus's cum in her pussy right now, the size of Marcus's cock that her pussy had stretched to. He wondered if she was so loose now that, with all the liquid in her pussy, he would even be able to feel the grip of her cunt around him if he fucked her.

As though she could read his mind, perhaps because she sensed the current of this filthy thought as it traveled through him, she began at that moment to suck on him. She seemed to actually draw his cum from deep down and through his cock like a straw, so that when he erupted in her mouth it felt more like she had made it happen than a surge from within.

As he groaned and his seed spilled into her mouth, she pushed her tongue against his dick, the flat of it on his spewing eye. This happened within the expanding, liquid explosion in her mouth, his cum puffing her cheeks. She finished him off, tongue swirling, lips tight against his shaft as she released him. His shaft emerged from her mouth, heavy and still partially turgid, a dribble of cum dropping her lips as she opened her mouth wide and tipped her head back.

With her eyes locked on his and a smile forming on her open lips, she let him view the glob of white cum nestled in the back of her throat, quivering with her trembling muscles. Just a glimpse, a hint of what Joey had taught or Marcus had done to her, before her mouth closed and she swallowed his seed, grinning dirtily at him.

He exhaled sharply, trembling, the room suddenly chilled, his own sweat icy with an erotic suddenness that almost inflated his dick to full hardness again.

Shiloh swept a finger over her lower lip and sucked the cum from it, looking up at him, sinking onto her heels. What did he do now with her? Shiloh's own needs were clearly not satisfied. Impossibly, like in Joey's video, she seemed to have no end to what she needed.

Her eyes dropped to his cock, and she seemed to be sizing it up, watching it for signs of sufficient life. Her expression revealed that she was torn, somewhat disappointed, still hungry - but optimistic. She reached for his cock and he let her stroke it, feeling himself twitching back to life.

"Get on the bed," he told her. "Get on the bed and spread your legs for me, Shiloh. Show me what a bad girl you've been."

She complied; her eyes lit up. Slipping onto the bed, rolling her lubricated over the sheets, reclining to spread her legs open and show him her swollen, soaked pussy. He stared at the undeniable proof of her infidelity, of her breaking of the rules, the creamy center between her legs that oozed from the reddened tissues of her ordinarily pink and tidy pussy.

There were other changes, too: gone was the landing strip, something he hadn't noticed in all the commotion, in all of his wild drive. Had she done that for Joey? Or for Marcus? Or simply for anyone, any stranger who wanted to fill her up?

She had dropped her fingers to her pussy and slipped her long, manicured pointer finger into her folds. With the expertise that one can only have for their own body, she began to stroke her clit, a moan coming from deep inside of her.

Mike watched, his dick getting harder, as she flicked at her clit with her finger. Her moist flesh crackled with the movements, stickily announcing the tempo of her strokes. Pearly cum poured down her taint and pooled beneath her hips on the bed as her muscles spasmed and made her pussy gush.

Mike reached out with the quickness of a striking serpent and caught her hand, overcome suddenly by something almost cruel, a desire to make Shiloh repent even more. Her body shuddered and rattled to a stop, a bit the way an old car would shudder to a stop. Her eyes flew open in surprise, a hungry panic wild behind her pupils.

She writhed around on the bed and made a go for her pussy with her left hand, but Mike caught it easily and held them both in one firm grip. "Now," he breathed, not sure himself of his next words or the contents of his own devious plan, a plan that seemed to come to him by the second, driven entirely by lust and perversion. "Tell me, Shiloh, are you very, very sorry for breaking the rules?"

"I said I was sorry," Shiloh complained, but this was fun for her, it was evident in her voice. Whatever she met with in Mike's eyes, though, made her change her tack. She seemed to recognize that something had changed in Mike. "Please, baby," she breathed, seriously, a bit more like her old self. "I want you inside of me. Please make me come."

Mike reached down to her lazily with his free hand, climbing onto the bed to straddle her. He found her clit with his fingers and stroked it lightly, making Shiloh squirm. Her hands struggled uselessly in his grip. He paused his stimulation, making her mewl, and then began again, leaving more time between each ministrations, while Shiloh begged him to fuck her.

But if he thought that he could keep Shiloh captive like this forever, he had underestimated the force of her cravings - probably because, in all their married years, Shiloh had never behaved like this. She twisted in his arms until one of hers broke free, and from there she went wild with such unexpected fury that Mike was thrown onto the bed by her, mostly due to surprise.

She climbed on top of him, and he let her do it - she was small and nearly weightless, but the shock of her appetite paralyzed him and he just leaned on his elbow for a bit before falling to his back and letting her have at him.

Shiloh bounced on him violently, her slick pussy gliding like hot liquid velvet over his cock, sending shudders of too-intense pleasure bordering on pain through his balls and his abdomen. His dick was still hard, and she was, to be fair, on at least her third orgasm of the day. But she wanted it, and she wouldn't stop, so he held on to her hips and enjoyed the view as she bounced on his dick. Her small, firm tits bounced with her and slapped into her skin at the bottom of her bounce, a testimony to how violently she was fucking him. It went on until he thought he might have to stop her, because his dick was so raw and tender.

But at last, her thighs shook and tightness filled her limbs and squeezed around his dick. For a moment she ground against him, her pussy clenching his cock, a blubbery squirt escaping from between their smashed genitals.

She released her grip on his shoulder and chest, and the pain abated quickly. She brought her hands to her own body, feeling her slippery skin, her hips rocking slightly, her head tipped back and her eyes closed. Her mouth hung open and she panted, a squeaky mewl sneaking into the back of her throat occasionally - at the same time, her pussy seemed to spasm and grip his dick. "Oh," she breathed, over and over again.

At last, she looked down at him, her eyes, momentarily, still filled with insatiable lust. She let all of her weight fall onto his hips, her bottom spreading over his balls, his thighs, the sloppy wetness trickling over his sac and his thighs in maddening, tickling waves.

She sighed audibly, and blinked, and she seemed to return to normal, rolling off to the side, falling onto the rumpled sheets.

She pushed her hair from her face and closed her eyes, smiling. "That was so hot," she said.

Mike was still in a trance, staring at the ceiling, but it evaporated quickly, and he looked over at Shiloh, who was still looking at him.

"Shiloh," he began, reaching for her cheek, planning to gently caress it. The urgency of the talk he wanted to have with her had ebbed away, but he knew it would return.

He had to, right? He had to get Shiloh under control. Even if this business of "apologizing" was hot as hell. She clearly was out of control, and they - he, at least - couldn't go on like this.

Shiloh was grinning, now. More than seemed to make any sense. She pushed herself up with one arm, leaning on it, twisting it a little so that her elbow was at a weird angle, a familiar habit of hers.

"It was Joey's idea," she said, with breathless excitement, a lilt of whimsy in her voice. "He said you would think it's so hot that you wouldn't even ask me about it afterward." She sniffed. "I said you totally would."

Mike was staring at her again with his mouth open. Who the hell was this woman, and what was she talking about? And Joey again. Joey and all of his crazy plans.

Shiloh slapped him playfully on the arm. "I didn't sleep with some random dude," she explained, theatrically. "Or Marcus. It was just Joey." She grinned at him. She slid back down to the bed, letting her arm, stretch out until her hand hit the headboard, folding it, and continuing down until her head was cradled in the crook of her elbow. "Stop looking at me like that... what are you thinking?"

"Whu... uh..." Mike murmured. He was actually reeling. What was he thinking? That he couldn't keep up with the plot?

Shiloh seemed very satisfied with herself. She gave her hair a toss. "Joey was the one who fucked me before going to the airport," she re-explained.

Mike's mouth flopped open and closed. There were so many other egregious violations of their agreement - well, at least egregious from a technical perspective - that he didn't know what to do. Start with them? Or save them for another day, another apology?

Shiloh leaned in to kiss him. Her lips were sweet, tainted with the taste of his cum and her own pussy. "And the other night," she continued, grinning.

Mike's eyes went wide. "Wait... Joey?"

"Just Joey," she said, laughing. "He said it would get you all wound up." She dropped her eyes to his cock, which had come fully back to life again, and was now painfully hard for the third time since he'd arrived home. "And boy, did it," she noted, a tone of pleasure in her voice.

Mike was staring at her, which made her grin. She fell onto her back and tossed her arm casually above her head, bending it over the top and letting her arm hang next to her face, her fingers seductively stroking her lips. "But now that I know you really like it, maybe we need to re-write the rules."

Mike rolled over, onto her body, pinning her arms above her head gently. "You're saying... all that, with Joey...?" he slipped his cock inside of her and felt the mewl that surfaced in her chest before he heard it.

There were unanswered questions that he couldn't get to, mysteries that still lingered, and they clanged away inside his chest as they made love slowly, more intentionally. The Shiloh that clawed at his back and kissed him, her body warm beneath his, was his Shiloh again.

The medley of emotions that clawed inside of him, though, was a very different brew.

It would come out later that everything had been a tease, that everything had been an elaborate (and well-acted) play, written by Joey, interpreted by Shiloh, and designed to drive him wild. He could admit, between filthy, sloppy kisses, that it had worked.

The blowjobs (Popsicles and PornHub voices), the many men she had apparently fucked: all illusions. Marcus was a real person, a real possibility, but not someone she had actually done. ("Yet," Shiloh had said, somewhere in the montage of slippery-wet skin and mewls and breathless sweating).

Mike lay in bed late into the morning, staring at the blue tint of dawn creeping across his ceiling, unsure of what to feel about any of that. When Shiloh rolled over to kiss him, and slipped away to the bathroom, it felt as if all was right in the world. "I love you," she whispered in his ear, biting his lobe gently, leaving the promise of more with him as she drifted into the other room.

And yet a dark thought, one that he could consistently push aside but which nonetheless remained crouching in the shadows of his mind, would not simply free him to enjoy what they had created:

Shiloh, it was true, was not as out-of-control as he had feared.

Another step toward the dark place: she was under control.

A patch of sunlight. Another step and the murky depths would swallow him. He stared at the ceiling, fighting with his own mind not to edge closer to the gaping mouth of that cave.

But the cold rushed forward and he stepped into the darkness:

Shiloh was under control, all right.

But the will she served now was no longer his.

Nor possibly even her own.