CHAPTER 1 : Mile High Club

“Don't.”

Summer put her hand up, palm toward me, and stared ahead. Her lips were pressed together. She was feigning deep interest in the three promotional videos that were replaying on the small screen in front of her.

I couldn't tell which kind of mood she was in: the one where I could do something goofy, and she'd crack up, or the one where she'd stay mad for half the flight.

I decided to take my chances.

I put the barf bag on my hand and began to sing a Brittany Spears song in an operatic voice. For extra effect, I employed my “Italian” accent. Summer liked this accent, because it was terrible, and sounded more like the Swedish Chef than anything Italian.

She continued to stare straight ahead, but I could see that she had cracked. Her eyes had softened. She wasn't smiling, but the corners of her mouth had turned just ever so slightly upward.

No one else would have noticed the change but me.

I straightened my hand, and the mouth of my barf bag puppet let it rip:

“I'll never tell, tell on myzself.... buht I ghope she smella my pervume-eh, cacciatore!”

She was close to disintegrating.

I moved the bag close to her ear.

“Chicken,” I whispered. The puppet leaned in, and its voice dropped to Barry-White lows.

She lost it, with a wet snort. She leaned forward and covered her face.

I made the barf bag puppet throw its head back in delight and wave at the last of the passengers settling into their seats.

Even though something – and who ever knew what it was? - had caused a marital dispute nearly two hours ago, and we had been exchanging sharp but courteous words with each other only when necessary, I was still riding high on the fact that we were leaving.

Traveling to Italy. For two months.

And – and this was key: without our children.

Alone.

Alone to finish conversations and have dinner whenever we wanted and shuttle absolutely no one to soccer practice or anything else they desired to do.

I gave a sigh of satisfaction. Ah, yes. Italy was but ten hours away, and all of the delicious food, the classical art, the mornings filled with sex and decent coffee, stretched out before me.

Summer, of course, had been fretting up to the last minute and still was, about the kids and whether or not we should be abandoning them to a month of summer camp and another of hanging out with their cousins.

I had no such reservations, and I had been drinking a lot of wine in the bar to prove it.

(Come to think of it, this was almost certainly how the fight had begun.)

At long last, the late passengers found their way to their seats, the slight attendants clicked and locked and checked their way down the aisles.

We were stuffed in the middle of the middle row, but thanks to Summer, who insisted on being at the airport six hours before our flight (an exaggeration, but we were there something like four hours before), we were in the front-most row of Economy. This meant an extra two feet of leg space.

I stretched out, slumping to recline in spite of the repeated warnings to have my chair in the upright position.

The windows turned to a green blur, and then a gray one, and then a sheet of blue, and the sound I had been waiting for hummed softly from above us. Ding-dong.

Seatbelts off. And time for booze.

I turned to Summer, planning to gently entertain and cajole her until she indulged in glass of wine.

To my surprise, she was already like a new woman. Her face had relaxed, and she was smiling. She let out a sigh, one that I rarely heard from her: it was the sigh she used when she closed the door on something.

“I think I'm going to get drunk now,” she said pleasantly, without my having to suggest anything.

Summer was thirty-five this year, and while her appearance did not betray her age at all, her demeanor often made her seem at least that old, if not older. She had left her career behind to take care of our two children, and she applied the same zeal to that job that she had to her job in marketing. The only problem was that the children didn't involve nearly as much pressure or dedication, and she had made up for this by becoming permanently terse and by volunteering for everything under the sun. Now, I liked to joke, she worked just as hard for a negative amount of money.

On the bright side, she could never be fired.

Added to this, we had been married for fourteen years. I knew Summer still loved me, but it was evident in everything she did that she was always thinking of me as an afterthought. First, there was the business of the children, and then dinner, and then taxes, and then the dog, and then, at the end of the list, was me. She had time to run her fingers through my hair out of habit, and kiss me quickly on the cheek. Her mind, though, was always somewhere else. Usually something she had to do.

And then there was sex. She was always tired, and always in a hurry. While she seemed to know that it was good for our relationship to let me talk her into it once in a while, she often seemed to be miles away in her own mind. Usually worrying about soccer cleats or refreshments for the PTA meeting or any one of the six dozen things she volunteered for.

In short, like most women with children and fourteen years of marriage under their belts, she had become tired and cranky 85% of the time.

It was the possibility of moments like this that made me hold on, in my mind, to the love I had for her, and keep my fingers crossed that the other 15% did not happen while we were all sleeping.

She turned in the small seat and folded her leg up underneath her. She pulled the band that had been holding her hair in a ponytail loose, and shook out her mahogany-colored, shoulder-length hair. She rested her head against a hand that she buried in her silken mane, and blinked at me. “I'm so excited,” she said, and her eyes were wet and bright like she really was. “I finally feel like our vacation is beginning.”

I warned myself off advising her that she could have had this feeling three hours ago if she had ordered as many glasses of wine as I had, and instead took a chance by reaching out for her neck.

Her ample breasts were pushed up by the way she was sitting, and I let my eyes wander to them.

Summer followed my eyes, but instead of a flicker of annoyance crossing her face, as often happened, she smiled. She followed my gaze down to her chest, and pushed her breasts together for a better view.

Like all men would in this situation, I immediately started formulating plans for getting laid on the plane. At the time, they were only partially serious.

But as Summer and I proceeded to knock back tiny bottle of wine after tiny bottle of wine, the idea began to seem more and more realistic.

I was trying to come up with the best way to broach the subject, when Summer leaned in to my ear. She misjudged the distance and cracked her head clumsily against my temple, laughed, and then smashed her lips against my neck. She was quite drunk. "Ever join the Mile High club?" she giggled.

My eyes widened. Not because I didn't want to, but because I couldn't believe Summer was suggesting it.

She twisted her body even more in my direction. Her foot moved up and down in a quick tapping motion. Her eyes looked at mine.

I was unsure of what to do. This was completely unlike Summer, who was a few things: somewhat prude, usually a little conservative in bed, and a huge stickler about rules and regulations. She was also a recovering Catholic, and there were several nuns on this flight, something I had no doubt she had noticed.

Of course I was game for sneaking into a lavatory and having sex with my wife. But I didn't want to seize upon her offer unless it was genuine, and have her roll her eyes at me and make a fool of me.

So I grinned, and waited for her next move.

She pressed her lips together, and pushed up by her legs to look over the seat-back.

She plopped down. "I think the ones in the back are our best bet," she whispered. "They have a bunch of juices and waters back there, and so you can stand around waiting for the perfect opportunity without looking to weird."

Her eyes fell on the nuns a few rows back. "If it isn't casual," she warned, sounding more like herself, "don't do it. We'll try again later."

And then she unlocked her seatbelt, and she was gone.

I had been staring at her mouth, and her breasts, and not really listening to the plan, I admit. My head was filling up with images of her hair spread out against the mirror, and her legs pressed up against the wall, her strappy sandals by my cheeks...my mind began to wander to other, dirtier places.

I felt like all eyes were on me as I worked my way back to the lavatory, through the overhanging legs and arms and pillows that clutter the plane after 5 hours in flight. I was trying to hide my erection and look casual, but probably succeeded at neither.

A single flight attendant was sitting, bored, by the cups of juice. She was reading a magazine. Summer was nowhere in sight. I looked around at the lavatories. Several were unoccupied, several were occupied. I had no idea what to do, and it was just beginning to occur to me that I was quite drunk.

Summer opened the door next to me and pulled me in to the lavatory.

Inside, we were smashed against each other. The high-pitched whine of the plane made me feel, though, like we could do anything and go unheard.

Summer smiled and held up her hand. She was holding something cream-colored in it, and it took me a moment to realize what it was. When the faint scent of her excitement drifted into my nose, I understood: she had already taken off her panties.

She was serious.

She wasted no time. Her hands found my belt, and quickly released me from my pants and my boxers. When her hand wrapped around my cock and it was hard, she rubbed her lips together and gave a murmur of approval.

It was very suddenly like we were young again, and all of the things that had happened between meeting each other and now disappeared. I was filled with the kind of vigor I hadn't had in a long time. I crushed my mouth against hers, trying to drink her up. She tasted like wine and something lightly fruity, lip gloss maybe. The combination was intoxicating – childish and grown-up.

She pushed a leg onto the sink to slide up the wall behind her and push herself upward. I barely had to lift her, only to place my hand under her tensed, hard thigh that was still strong and well-muscled from her persistent yoga classes. I found her with my cock, and her pussy was wet and hot. Ready for me.

I fell inside of her, and we clung to each other, trying to be quiet and not slam into the wall too much. I moved slowly, much slower than I wanted to, sinking into her. She clasped the back of my head with one hand and dug her fingernails into the flesh of my ass with the other. Her pussy clenched around my cock, and I could feel her twisting inside of herself as she came close to coming. Her stomach tightened next to mine, and we were both sweating through our t-shirts.

When she came she leaned forward and bit my shoulder. Her fierce nails dug even harder into my ass. I was buried inside of her, and I forgot where we were. All I could feel was her heat; all I could smell was her honeyed pussy; all I could taste was her sweet sweat as I bit gently into her skin. Her cum was dripping onto my balls, and I moved within her, wanting so badly to throw the door open, push her onto the ground, and slam into her as hard as I could.

I had to settle for slowly turning and twisting inside of all of her dewy, superheated flesh, until I burst and filled her up.

We panted together for a few moments.

As sex always is, the whole scene was suddenly comical. We surveyed the way we were crammed and contorted in the steel bathroom, and the disgusting used-ness of the place, which we had been blind to at first, began to appear everywhere. Our eyes met and we laughed together.

“You go first,” she said. And then she moved her mouth lightly over mine, with just her lips teasing me. “I have to put my underwear on.”

I got a look from the bored flight attendant, who rolled her eyes in a way that I could see, flipped another page of her magazine, and gave off the loud impression that she had seen it all before.

I returned to my seat with my blood racing, my ears pounding. I was feeling the high of great sex, the high of a new, exciting woman. Because even though Summer was my wife of almost fifteen years, she seemed like a brand-new woman since she boarded this flight.

It was shaping up to be an excellent summer in Italy.

CHAPTER 2: Going Down

The scent of cigarette smoke, ever-present in Europe, mingled with the aroma of onions cooking in butter. I wound my way up the four flights of stairs, determined to keep my soft paunch from expanding while we were in Italy. The sharp and creamy aroma grew stronger as I ascended, and when I opened the door, it assailed me.

I paused for a moment to savor the scene: the large window was filled with Roman sunshine, and the stucco walls of the courtyard filled the glass. Vegetables were lined up on the counter, and Summer was busily peeling a carrot, her back to me. She had a form-fitting red shirt on, and neat gray capris that fit snugly on her round bottom.

The sizzle of onions confirmed that the smell was coming from our own apartment. Steam wafted from a large pot on the stove.

I tried to sneak up on her. I closed the door gently, and I crept theatrically across the floor. The building was old, and even though it was refurbished, the floor groaned and squeaked with every movement.

I saw her bob move up and down as she laughed to herself, trying to pretend she hadn't heard me.

I slipped my hands around her waist, and she treated me to an exaggerated jump and a sharp scream, but did not stop peeling the carrots. "Oh no! An Italian burglar is burgling me. Whatever shall I do?" she cried, in a falsetto scream.

I slipped the ponytail of hair to one side of her shoulders to reveal her neck. I moved my lips over her skin, and I was pleased when her fine neck hairs stood on end. "You'll have to submit to my demands," I said.

"Can't," she said, her voice returning to its normal, lovely contralto. "Cooking."

Then she turned around, and her face was flushed with excitement. "Did you know," she asked, her eyes getting wide, "that spaghetti sauce can be flavored with carrots and celery instead of sugar and salt?"

I was tempted to make a very wise remark, but the flush on her cheeks and the light in her eyes was so lovely that I didn't want to ruin it. "It went well, then?" I said, instead of quipping that it seemed like a pretty expensive class to be learning about spaghetti sauce, which came in a jar.

"It was just an overview today. But I thought I would try. Except...I'm not supposed to put onions in here. Or garlic. Can you believe that? But I like onions, so..." She pushed me gently out of the way and stirred the onions.

"Good," I said.

"Good that I like onions, good that I'm not taking the chef's instructions seriously, or good that it went well?"

When she turned around she had a carafe of wine in her hands. She handed me the carafe and smiled at me, her eyes moving over my face. "How was your research? How are the students? This has already been decanted."

She was talking quickly, moving around the kitchen with a busy energy. I opened the wine and poured it into two waiting glasses, thinking how lovely the next six weeks would be. Summer bloomed when she had something to do that captured her imagination, and she seemed to grown younger with every second we spent in Europe.

It wasn't only that she looked younger, although she did. Her movements and her speech seemed to be rejuvenated as well. She sat in chairs with one leg crossed under her, for example, and talked excitedly, with round, bright eyes.

She spent a lot of time not just looking at me, but seeing me.

"I think I'm going to really learn a lot in this class," she said to my silence. She was often too impatient to wait for my replies, especially if she was excited about something. "This guy is good...well, oh, I didn't tell you, at first I was pretty annoyed because that chef that was supposed to be teaching the class, who was an expert in pasta or something, which I was pretty excited about, he wasn't there, and he's been replaced. So at first, I was pretty disappointed." She paused to sip the wine I had poured, without smelling or tasting it. She looked past me, at the wall, as though remembering the distant past. "He's really good-looking," she said, bringing her eyes back to mine, and giving me a mischievous smile.

"Is that so?" I said. I moved forward, and pulled her close to me. The shirt she was wearing was low-cut and I had a lovely view from where I was standing, which I couldn't help but take in. Summer turned her head to sip more wine, and her mouth was smiling as she did.

“So good-looking,” she said. “A real Italian man.”

“Oh yeah?” I repeated. I didn't mean to sound like an idiot, but when she said things like this it got me really hotted up. I wanted her to repeat it, again and again.

I tried to extract this kind of teasing from Summer all the time. She was rarely game for it. There was nothing, it seemed, I could do to convince her that I really wanted her to say things like this.

I was feeling brave. “Tell me more about this new chef.”

I was hoping for more sultry short sentences about how he was so handsome and so dark, but instead she set the wine glass down and began to speak in earnest. “You know? I think he's actually a more reputable chef. He's really famous, apparently, in Bologna, and he has like three or four restaurants and he has a Michelin star...”

“Hmmm,” I said. “Wonder what he's doing at your cooking class?”

She turned from side to side flirtatiously and batted her eyes. “Maybe he heard that I was in town,” she said, “and I was too hot to resist.”

My cock was coming alive, as though it were a toy being slowly wound into place. I loved hearing her talk like this.

When Summer said things like this, she did it tongue-in-cheek: all her life she had been a little clueless about her attractiveness to men. She made jokes about it, and in her mind, they were jokes. I think she really viewed herself as less-than-desireable.

Summer's sister was a former model. She was long-boned and thin, had naturally platinum hair, and her face was cheery and perfect. She was as interesting as box of unsalted Saltine crackers and it wouldn't be entirely unfair to call her half as smart as Summer.

Summer, on the other hand, had grown up with mousy-brown hair that had become, almost as if by an act of magic, a peculiar shade of brown that looked like highly varnished oak. She was a full-figured girl: thick but not fat, with generous curves that were neatly proportioned. Her features, rather than being carefully arranged in porcelain teacup perfection on her face, were jarring and angular, or oversized and plump; but all together, they orchestrated perfectly into a stunning and interesting face. Summer still thought of herself as the mousy, chubby girl who had been outshined by her sister for so long, and it was true that a lot of men gravitated to Cora when they were together. A lot of men, though, gravitated to Summer – and

I saw how they moved around her and darted into conversation with her, like bees to a rich, nectary flower.

It turned me on that she was so oblivious to her powers of attraction. She never understood that guys were actually putting the moves on her, so she often completely devastated them when she put her arm around me and introduced me.

I enjoyed watching how let down they were, how the kindling fire of hope was crushed. I liked that she was so unaware of what she was doing that she often ground the disappointment into them like finely crushed glass. I knew it was mean of me, but it was a secret pleasure I had.

I often let my imagination run away with me when I saw her interacting with other men. I thought about what she must look like to them, touching her shoulder when she frowned in thought. Adjusting the straps of her shoes around her ankle, her full breasts forming two creamy mountains and dark amber valley over her knees as she leaned over them.

Then I liked to imagine what it would be like to feel my wife for the first time. To touch her hair, and see the dark pink circles around her nipples for the first time.

As my imagination kept going, it often turned on me, until I was watching another man touching her. Another man would place his fingertips on the velvet circles around her pert nipples, and then lean down to taste them. His other hand would find its way to her brown curls, and pry them open, and then his fingers would disappear into the flesh of my wife's pussy...

From there, things could really go wild. I might end the fantasy panting in the shower while I watched my cum spray all over the wall, imagining another man's cock spreading her pussy open, his fingers embedded in her ass, his seed spurting from her swollen hole while she rode him frantically screaming yes yes yes!

I wasn't entirely sure why my mind always went there.

But it did.

A lot.

Back in the kitchen in Rome, I set my wine glass on the table and moved my hand down the length of her body, which was smoothed out by the tight clothes she was wearing. I let my hand rest on her full, round bottom, and I squeezed gently.

She was responding warmly to my advances. She even placed her forearms on my shoulders, letting herself move closer to me. I could smell a puff of her deodorant, and nothing more than her very specific scent, the smell of her skin. Summer was decidedly unperfumed at all times but I could always smell her. She smelled like honey and something mildly feral.

Her pussy smelled like that, too, but more sexual. Mixed with the sweet scent of a woman.

The idea drifted through my mind and my cock pulsed against her leg. She gave me an inviting smile. "Well," she said, and her eyes dropped down, as though she could see through her plump breasts to where my cock was tapping at her leg. "Looks like you heard I was in town, too."

It was a silly pun, but the kind we used to make so long ago, for the fun of it. Puns that were not even puns.

I felt a kind of vigor starting to pulse inside of me. It was sexual, but it was also something else. Since we had arrived in Italy, Summer had been so much more youthful. More adventurous, and carefree.

Okay, maybe it was all just sexual, because her sense of adventure and carefree attitude were most obvious to me with regard to sex.

Case in point: she hopped up on the counter herself, and pulled her skirt up in one neat movement as she did it.

It took me no time at all to discover that she wasn't wearing underwear. The honeyed scent of her pussy drifted up to my nose before my excitedly probing fingers, expecting to bump into a wall of cotton over her soft curls, found instead dampness and flesh.

My cock had been stiffening since she sat on the table, but the feel of her wet pussy slammed it into a solid rock. I left my hand between her legs and fumbled with my belt. I didn't want to take my fingers away from their exciting exploration – peeling away the outer layers of her dewy flower, they were in search of something that would make her tip her head back. My other hand was having a hard time with the belt buckle and the button of my pants.

Summer had brought her face close to mine, along the side of my jaw, and was breathing into my skin. Her hot breath caressed my neck, and then my ear. Her fingers were working their way up to my hair, raking against my skin, sending chills down my spine that pulsed right into my cock.

One of her hands slid between my pants, and she leaned forward to get it down to her goal: her fingers squeezed the base of my cock, crushing my balls against the shaft.

It was painful but it felt good. This was a new thing she had just started doing. I don't know if she read something somewhere, or a girlfriend had passed the advice on to her, but she did it with a hand that almost seemed practiced. I could feel the tip of my cock getting sticky and wet with precum.

Her lips were close to my ear, and I think I stopped breathing as I waited to hear what she was going to say. This, too, was fairly new since arriving in Italy. Sure, Summer had talked dirty to me a few times, after too many glasses of wine, but now she did it in the afternoon, in the evening, every chance she got.

“I want you to get your whole cock wet in my pussy,” she breathed, and slap those balls against my ass hard.”

It was stuff like that. Sweet Summer, mother of my children, baker of cookies, the brown-haired sister who did not fully comprehend her sexuality. Asking me to fuck her hard while she grasped my balls.

There was more, though:

“And then,” she said, and she teased me with a long pause as she ran her tongue along the outer edge of my ear, “I want to taste my own pussy on your cock.”

I hastily pushed back and used two hands to unbuckle my belt and let my pants drop to the floor. I pushed her thighs open and she scooted toward me, her hands guiding my cock with her firm grip toward her dripping slit.

I looked down to see her trimmed, feathery curls – the exact shade of her reddish-brown hair. They glistened with moisture. I caught a glimpse of her pink flesh, swollen with desire and coated in her creamy juices, just before she aggressively pulled me inside of her.

Her soft flesh encased my cock in its heat. She was so wet.

She put her hands on my ass, and dug her fingernails into my skin as she pulled me deep inside of her, until my balls were creamed by her wet pussy. They stuck to her skin, and for a moment she just twisted a little on the table, squeezing me inside of her, ball-deep in her flesh.

“Now fuck me,” she said, and she leaned back on the table with her legs spread.

I started to move in and out of her, watching my own cock disappearing and withdrawing.

Summer treated me to a moan – and this, too, had improved in sound and quality since coming to Italy. Before, she had moaned as though under duress. Acting out a part that she knew I wanted her to play. After so many years of marriage, what could you expect?

But now her moan seemed to come from her abdomen, and it seemed to squeeze out of her like another creature, coated in her pussy juices. It was a sticky, wet, throaty moan – and there was nothing fake about it.

“Harder,” she breathed. She put her hand on my shoulder and started to pull me in and out of her faster.

She tipped her head back, and her white throat was exposed to me as she opened her mouth and moaned again. It was almost like I could see the moan in her throat, like a cock, like my cock was going to be...

“Pound me harder,” she mewled.

She began to move her own hips to get me deeper inside of her. She pulled and tugged until we were slapping against each other furiously, and the smacks of our skin were echoing around the room.

The boiling water began to spill over onto the stove, and sizzle on its hot surface. I looked over at the stove, and Summer gave it a quick glance, but she looked back down at my cock without giving the stove much thought. She threw her arms around me, grasping my ass and imprisoning me in a vice grip with her legs.

“Don't stop!” she said.

Summer of only two weeks ago would never have let water boil over onto a natural gas stove while she clutched me with her legs and pulled my cock deeper and deeper inside of her. She twisted and tossed her hair. Sweat was gathering on her forehead, on her upper lip, on her cheeks. Her pussy was getting tighter, and her stomach was crunching up into a tight ball. She was no longer looking at me, or anything in the room – her eyes closed and her face contorted as she thought only of herself, pulling her pussy up and down my shaft with her legs.

When she came she screamed. She didn't try to hold it back, even though the kitchen window was open and everyone in the building would hear her. The scream was not a scream that could be mistaken for any other kind of scream, either: it was coated in sex like my cock was coated in her juices.

The pot continued to sizzle as water splashed out onto the surface. I concentrated on this sound, because I didn't want to come just yet.

Summer's promise still invited me, and I hoped she hadn't forgotten it.

She leaned forward on my cock, ceasing her pumping. Her pussy spasmed around me, a fist of flesh squeezing and releasing my shaft. The scent of her cum, and her body, filled the kitchen and drowned out even the onions.

She slid down between us, without my cock even coming completely out of her until her feet hit the floor, and then she escaped quickly. She hopped to the stove and turned off the burner.

It was prudent, I realized: the flame had gone out and we would blow up the apartment if we weren't careful. The scent of natural gas reached my nose.

It was dangerous, but Summer seemed unaffected by it. She turned to me, and approached me. My cock was still throbbing, and my mind was humming with the promise she had made: the promise of her mouth enclosing my cock. The promise to lick her own pussy juices off of my shaft.

She smiled at me, and for a moment she teased me. Just using her eyes, which somehow smiled mischievously.

She knew that she had me, utterly enslaved to her at that moment. It was an unusual thing for Summer, to take control this way. She swayed from side to side, and she ran her tongue along her teeth.

She knew that all I wanted was for her to touch my cock, in any way. To drop her eyes and look at it.

She teased me a little longer, and then she looked down. A faint smile appeared on her lips. She moved closer, and her hand moved, palm upward, beneath my stiff cock. She didn't enclose her hand around it, like my cock was screaming for her to do. She met my eyes, and her jaw shifted slightly – cockily – before she smiled again, and kissed my chest. Her hands trailed down my shirt, which I had never taken off, and she kissed me through the fabric. Once, on the nipple. Again, on my chest. A third time, her body sinking down achingly slowly, on my abdomen.

A fourth time, and this time her lips pressed to my skin right on my pelvis.

So close.

Her lips touched my thigh.

I looked down. She was looking up at me, her eyes filled with a combination of lust, mischief, power, hunger. I sucked in my breath.

Her hand was around my cock now, and she moved her lips just half a centimeter from the dripping tip of it as she moved to the other side of my body and kissed my other thigh.

She pushed her hand back to the base of my cock, exposing the long shaft, and she stroked it with her eyes, her mouth just in front of the tip.

I was screaming in pain by now, but I was enjoying watching her. Watching her watch my cock with such interest.

Her juices were drying now, clinging to my cock. I could smell her, still, a layer of honey stuck to my dick. I knew she could smell herself, and that she would have her own slightly sour, mostly sweet taste in her mouth soon...

She began by placing the flat of her tongue at the very base of my cock, and then licking outward. One long lick, to the tip of my cock. I shuddered.

Another.

At the tip of my cock, she opened her mouth wide, as though she were going to take me inside of her.

But she went down the side of my cock instead, running her tongue along it like cat cleaning up its fur. Again and again, until I thought I would burst.

She pressed her lips together, like she eating an ice cream cone.

Then she looked up at me, and paused with her mouth open near the tip of my cock.

"Say you want it," she said.

I placed my hand on her head, and pushed her forward gently. She smiled as my cock disappeared into her red, wet mouth. Inch by inch. She closed her lips around it, and without taking her eyes off mine, she let me move her head back and forth, all the way to the base of my cock as she had never done before.

She was still looking at me when I let out a mangled statement: "I'm going to come," I said, and the muscles of my abdomen squeezed tightly.

Instead of pulling away and jerking me off onto her tits, as she had surprised me by doing the night before, she grasped my ass with both hands and drove me deeper into her mouth than I had ever been before.

I tried to pull out, but she held me firmly in her throat, her hair falling over her face and my cock buried all the way to the very base.

I yelled as I burst inside of her, and could not stop myself from giving a few thrusts into her face. But she simply closed her throat and her lips over me, and took me in, all the way, and swallowed my seed.

When she pulled her mouth from my cock, she gave her lips a quick little wipe, and stood up in a bouncy, girlish way. She straightened her skirt out, and smoothed it against her skin.

I stood, shocked, and made no effort to do anything with myself. She gave me an amused looking-over, turned to the stove, and began to finish her dinner preparations.

After I got myself back together again, I approached her, and reached around her waist. Usually, if I ever managed to catch her cooking at home, she pushed me away hurriedly. Now she paused, and let herself absorb the kiss I delivered to the nape of her neck. “What was that?” I said.

She shrugged, as if it were something she did all the time, like adding raisins on a whim to a salad. She held a string of spaghetti up and inspected it.

She flung it toward the wall, and it missed. She laughed, and fetched another one. She tilted her head back, and slowly dropped the spaghetti into her mouth.

Knowing full well, I am sure, that I would think of the way she had just swallowed my cock.

CHAPTER 3: Not My Wife

In the Biblioteca Angelica, a golden-white light bathes the main floor. It is yellow from the old glass that fills the window, and it is yellowed by the dust in the air. There is a solemn, mildewed, academic air to the place. It was perfect for doing research, and I had been desperate to come here and spend my time in Italy absorbed in the old documents of the archives. For me, there was no greater pleasure than handling the real documents, sitting with them among the dusty shelves, and occasionally extracting a secret from the wizened archivist who fetched them for me.

I had arrived later than I had hoped to, charmed back into bed by my wife. I had still managed to seize a lovely work area. But try as I might, the things I should have been enjoying – watching the yellow light, smelling the annals of history – were doing almost nothing for me. I was having a very hard time concentrating on any of it.

I tried to force myself. After all, at the end of this excursion, I had to have more to show for my grant money than a memoir of great sex with my wife. I screwed my face up in concentration. I even resorted to an old trick I had used to get myself through university: if I read twenty pages diligently, I could have five minute of time to think about whatever I wanted.

And what I wanted was easy to conjure.

When I looked at the documents, the words on the page turned into the shapes of Summer's body. The musty air turned sweeter and sweeter until the only thing I could smell was the scent of her body.

There was the other matter that was filling my head, and this went beyond just general horniness. It was Summer herself, who seemed to be transforming each day of our stay in Rome. She was becoming bolder and more sexual. She was trying new things in the bedroom.

She was engaging my fantasies, and driving me wild.

What had begun as talk, and fantasy, and then a game, had begun to seem almost real to me. It was intoxicating, but I wasn't sure if it had gone too far already. I kept sipping at it, though. The way I had trouble having a last drink when I was already too drunk.

I couldn't remember how the game had begun. I am sure we had been drinking wine, and too much of it. We had discovered, one evening, that we could crawl onto the fire escape in our courtyard, and that it was very pleasant having wine there in the summer heat. Summer almost always overheated the kitchen in her zeal to practice her new skills.

She had almost knocked me off of the fire escape with surprise when she reached into her shirt and pulled out two cigarettes. She tossed her hair back from her face – she had been wearing it down all the time except for while cooking – and she looked almost as young as when I had met her, in university. “I found a guy,” she said, “who will sell them individually, down the street.”

We hadn't smoked for twelve years. She had liked having one or two a week, when we were younger, but she quit when it wasn't possible to buy singles from anyone, anywhere. She didn't trust herself.

“I feel like it's okay,” I said, “to smoke while you're in Europe.”

So we had taken to smoking one cigarette on our fire escape, drinking wine with every dinner, laughing until late at night and then having sex. Nearly every night.

The conversation turned to her cooking class one night, and perhaps because I was drunk, I led her down the path of my fantasy a little. The only surprising thing was that she went so willingly.

“So,” I had probably said. “Your instructor is still hot?”

She had turned to me, and tipped her head to the side. Do you want him to be? She had said. Or something like that. Something in a low, whiskeyed voice. Something that sounded like Mrs. Robinson in The Graduate. Whatever it was, it seized my insides like a giant's fist.

She was smiling. She was teasing. She moved her bare foot along my calf.

“You like thinking about me with other men?” she said.

She wasn't shy about it, the way she would have been before we came to Italy. The question was direct, and her lips were parted in a seductive grin. Her toes worked its way under my pants.

This is not my wife, I remember thinking. Aliens had abducted the Summer I knew, because even at the height of our falling in love, she wasn't like this. She was ready for a good time back then, but she didn't want to talk dirtily to me about my fantasies – not the real ones. And she had never been so forward.

A sense of danger began to smolder inside of me. It was a feeling of uneasiness, of suddenly having let a steering wheel slip from your hands, or having closed your eyes for a second too long. I felt like I was losing control of myself, and in a way, of Summer.

But this feeling was overruled by my cock. Especially when Summer reached over and put her hand on my crotch. Her eyes widened when she felt how hard I was. “You do,” she purred, and my head was reeling so it took me a moment to remember what it was that I did. I did like thinking about her with other men.

Her smile changed now. I wouldn't be able to describe it to anyone if I tried for a million years. It was not a smile of friendliness, or complicity, or pleasure. It was a smile of amusement – and there are many shades of amusement. There is amusement at someone else's expense. There is sadistic amusement. There is mischievous amusement, psychopathic amusement, vengeful amusement, selfish amusement. Plain old-fashioned amusement, not meant to be at anyone's expense.

I cannot say, to this day, which kind of amusement flickered at Summer's mouth as she leaned close to my lips and whispered:

“You like thinking about me with the chef, don't you?”

The wine got the better of me. The wine, my surprise, the way she was rubbing my cock gently through the material of my pants.

“Hey!” a voice yelled out in the dark. “Andate voi a prendere una stanza!”

Summer surprised me by waving her hand at the darkness in an obscene Italian gesture, and in a deep voice that mimicked a male baritone, which she always used to imitate Italians from Staten Island, she called out, “Hey! Vai all'inferno!”

“Now,” she said, turning back to me, and it could have been anything that she had in store for me. I was feeling both incredibly excited, and afraid. “We had better get inside, just in case that guy is big.”

That evening ended on a light note because of her flippant – and suspiciously good – Italian remarks. We were laughing like two kids when we got back into the apartment, and she imitated the goon from downstairs several times. We both forgot about my being turned on by the idea of her with “the chef.”

But it came up again, several nights later. She was late coming home, and I had waited in the darkening apartment for what seemed like an eternity, but was really only an hour.

We hadn't gotten cellphones in Italy. It had been part of our plan to slow down and enjoy life more.

I had no one to call, and I tried not to let my mind go to dark places. But I did. I poured myself too much wine, and began to get jealous in my living room at 8pm.

I had begun to indulge in my own dark fantasies about Summer more and more every day. As she became more sexually vigorous, and adventurous, I started to think about what it was that had changed her. I knew that it could be Italy – the frescoes, the romance dripping off of every wall and restaurant and passer-by. I knew it could also just be that she had some free time, and she could finally relax.

But I enjoyed glossing over those possibilities, and finding another reason. A darker reason.

I liked to think that she was learning all her new tricks in her “cooking” class.

Her chef asked her to stay late, to show her a new technique.

Maybe she almost lit the kitchen on fire, and had no other way to make financial amends.

Maybe she never even went to a cooking class. Maybe she was having an affair with a sexy chef she met in a restaurant. Maybe he wasn't even a chef; maybe he was just someone. Someone Italian and muscular, manly and rich.

No, she called him “the chef” far too often.

At first, in my fantasies, she and the chef would fuck against a wall. But the more she swallowed my cock and guided my fingers to make circles around her anus, the more I started to imagine her in dirtier, more contorted positions. Her chef got larger and larger in my imagination, and her pussy stretched out more and more to accommodate him. She squealed while he barreled his cock into her tight ass, and licked at the air while he splattered his cum all over her tits.

The fantasies made me hard. It was clearly where my mind wanted to go, because I always went there. I sometimes went there while she had her lips spread around the base of my cock.

But then the fantasies also made some sharp thing twist inside of me.

My head felt like it was expanding and getting hotter with every second. Blood was pounding everywhere inside of me, knocking against my arteries, flushing my face, hardening my dick. Images layered on top of each other, and in every one of them Summer's holes gaped wider and were filled by an even bigger man, and her moans became exquisitely sexual, like her cum had turned

I was losing it. I knew I was, even then.

Around 9pm, which was not late in Rome and certainly not late for our new lifestyle, she came through the door. She had several grocery bags looped around her arms, and she stumbled a little as she pushed through the door. The bags fell to the ground and vegetables gave hollow thunks as they rolled across the tile floor.

"A little help here," she said, laughing and chasing after some tomatoes.

In my self-inflicted fury, I had just sat in my chair, watching her, accusing her in my mind.

Or was I enjoying the accusations I had come up with? Still watching a cock slide through her open pussy?

As I watched her, clumsily chasing the tomatoes and laughing as they rolled away from her, my thoughts became dark again.

She seemed drunk. And why would she be drunk and coming home late when we always had standing plans now? Or why hadn't she called?

Realizing, suddenly, like waking from a dream, that I was being an idiot, I jumped up and started to help her.

"What's with you?" she said, looking at my face, which I could not make stop frowning.

I set the tomatoes down on the counter after standing up. I let out a sigh, and realized that I also had very little I could legitimately be mad about.

"You're awfully late," I said weakly.

Summer was already on to another topic, which infuriated me. "They have these little purple tomatoes down the street. They're so sweet they taste like candy. Here, try one."

I swatted the tomato away as she held it to my lips. "That's been on the floor," I said grumpily.

As the words were leaving my mouth, I felt like a child, but I couldn't stop myself.

Summer popped the tomato into her mouth and again the expression of amusement that I find so hard to describe flickered across her face.

But she didn't seem truly concerned.

Or did she?

“You seem tipsy,” I said, deflecting.

She put a hand on her hip. “I am,” she answered, matter-of-factly.

Then she started digging into her bag again.

I felt the slip again. The feeling that I was losing some kind of control. I mean, what in the hell was wrong with me? My wife was one hour late, and she had some wine, and she went grocery shopping in Italy. She was smiling and happy, and I was acting like a child.

But something about Summer's cool answer was what was bothering me.

Pre-Italy Summer would have had more to say about this. Pre-Italy Summer could never let anything go without explaining it fully and to death. She would have told me where she had been, and then analyzed why I was upset, and then discussed which part of my childhood made me feel that way. She would have done all of this without me ever having to say anything.

The old Summer would not have teased me by bursting a cherry tomato the color of ox blood in her mouth, letting it drip over her lips, smiling a mysterious smile, and then digging silently in the bag of groceries.

She wasn't just getting out the groceries, either. She was waiting for me to respond. She was teasing me. She knew she was infuriating me and turning me on.

This was hot – don't get me wrong. But it was just another thing that made me uneasy. It was so unlike her. Part of me liked it. Okay, my cock really liked it. My cock was doing all of the thinking as I watched her finger swiped the juice of the tomato she popped from her lip, and then suck on it.

She couldn't actually be doing that, and leaving me in the dark about where she had been after her cooking class with the hot chef, and not know what she was doing, right?

She placed another cherry next to her lips as she turned to me. She didn't eat it, she just held it there, brushing it lightly over her plump lips, amused in that indescribable way. She was watching me, watching my reactions. She knew exactly what she was doing.

“Can you pour me a glass of wine?” she said, and her voice poured out of her throat like bourbon.

As I was pouring it, I could take it no longer. “Who did you go out with?” I squeaked.

She gave the little twist of her hips that she had started doing. Inviting, teasing, admonishing all at once.

“The instructor. Some people from class. We had a test today.”

Her eyes were sparkling and full of an unusual sentiment. She was being naughty.

“Oh yeah,” I said, and I decided to play along, even though she was half-freaking me out. “And how did you do on your test?”

She took a step toward me, so that her breasts were close to me but not touching.

“That's the thing,” she said, and she added a little frosting of bimbo to her voice. “I burnt my cream filling. There's almost no coming back from that.” She fluttered her eyes up at me. “But I managed to work something out.”

“Did you?” My voice was hoarse.

She shrugged, and suddenly she was looking at me as though I were an idiot. She popped the tomato in her mouth and crushed it. “Of course,” she said casually. “I am actually a terrible, terrible cook.”

There was a silence between us, and I could have cut through the sticky tension and heat with a knife.

“Do you want to know how I'm passing all of my tests?” she said. Teasing.

A sickening and exciting, electric and cold shiver gripped my entire torso. I could barely find a way to make my head move up and down.

“It's very naughty,” she said. “Do you still want to know?”

She was doing that light twisting. Fluttering her eyes. She was putting on a porno-grade act. It was almost as if she were somehow siphoning off my thoughts and my fantasies, and turning them to real life.

She placed her hands on my belt, where it buckled, and now her mouth was close to mine. “Are you sure?” she said, her lips just centimeters from mine. “This is your wife, the one who raises your children. Kisses you goodnight. Maybe you don't want to know all the dirty things I've done with my mouth to make the grade in my cooking class.”

Her fingers were working the belt out of the loops now. Unzipping the zipper, with her eyes never leaving mine.

Yes, I wanted to know. Yes, I wanted them to be dirty.

When she had freed my cock from my boxer shorts, it was so hard that it stood at attention, straight out. As she slid to her knees to show me how she made the grade in her cooking class, she let the tip of it trail from her navel, between her breasts, along her neck, and to her lips.

She looked up at me. "The chef," she said sweetly, "has a lot bigger cock to swallow. So it will be even easier for me to show you what I do."

I could not actually believe she was saying this stuff.

Really, actually saying it. I pinched my own arm to make sure I hadn't just passed out on the armchair drinking too much wine while I waited for her to come home.

"Do you want me to tell you more about his big cock?" She was smiling. "Or do you just want me to show you what I do?"

She reached up as she was saying this, and held my cock to her mouth almost like it was a microphone and she was speaking into it. She brushed it over her lips, letting the dabble of precum stain them like gloss.

I had to squeeze myself like an accordion to get the words to leave my mouth. "Show me." My voice was barely a whisper.

Is that what I wanted? Maybe I wanted her to talk some more.

She looked at me hopefully, and then it seemed like she was reading my mind. Her hand moved back and forth very slowly on my cock. "The first time I sucked his cock," she said, "I was a little bit surprised by how big it was. It's been such a long time since I've seen another man's cock." She looked now at mine, as though examining it. Her hand continued to move up and down my shaft. "But maybe I expected it to be that big. He's just...the kind of man you expect to have a big cock."

I sucked in my breath.

"Why's that?" I managed to say.

I was so glad I didn't have to ask her to keep going, to keep saying exactly what she was saying. Whether it was truth or fantasy, she had figured out that I wanted to hear it. I wanted every word to leave her mouth as sticky and wet as another man's cum.

"He's just so...commanding," she said. "He takes what he wants. He gets what he wants. I guess you just expect a man like that to have a big cock."

“How big?”

Now her eyes met mine. “So big,” she said, and every word was wet and full in her mouth. “I could barely. Get. My. Mouth. Around. It.”

She looked at me, her face some strange combination of amusement and pleasure. Her hand was moving up and down my shaft, but not fast enough to make me explode all over her face, as I was imagining myself doing. Imagining the chef doing. Imagining these two things, along with a lot of other dirty scenes.

But I was also watching her mouth, waiting for her to take me inside of her.

“I just really, really, wanted,” she licked at the tip of my cock, and the hot wet sensation of her tongue against my flesh shuddered through me and coiled up inside of me. “To pass this class. So here's what I did. You tell me if it's any good.”

And then, without saying another word, she opened her mouth wide, and swallowed my cock.

All the way into her throat, all the way to the base, until it was absorbed by the soft flesh deep in her neck. My cock was surrounded by her heat, her soft mouth, and then: she started to squeeze something, somehow, deep in her throat. It felt like someone had managed to rub my cock through her neck.

I turned my face up to the ceiling, because between the view of her eyes looking up at me, and her mouth spread around the base of my cock, and the sensation at the tip of my member, I was almost ready to burst already. Add to all of that the images I had created, of her sucking off this mysterious chef, and his gigantic cock filling her throat, and I was almost done for.

I felt her lips sliding up and down my cock, and one more image flashed through my mind, of her on her knees, gagging on the thick dick of an Italian chef, his hands in her silky hair, pushing her further and further down his shaft – and then I felt myself go past the point of no return.

She pulled my cock from her throat, and rubbed my climax out of me over her open mouth. I was so tightly strung it only took a few quick strokes. My cum sprayed into the air, and fell onto her face in wet globs. She moved her open mouth to get some of it inside of her, and she licked at the splatters on her lips.

I had already come, but her tongue moving along her lips sent new shudders of ecstasy through me, as she swallowed me, accepted me, tasted me.

I watched, still shaking with the last gripping waves of my orgasm, as she lifted her fingers to her face and rubbed the splatters of cum into her skin.

My mouth was hanging open already, so perhaps nothing changed on my face, but it felt like her fingers had worked their way from her face to inside my balls, and were now milking another hard cock out of me. I felt a shudder course through me, and I expelled a gasp of air.

It was so hot.

It was so unlike her.

When she stood up, I could smell the salty, pleasantly sour scent of my cum on her face. It was pasted to her with a light sheen, quickly drying. She was close to me as she whispered: “This way,” and she let the pause linger between us, while the anticipation turned inside of me, “you'll think it's only your cum smeared all over my face.”

Changing her tone almost immediately, she straightened her clothing, and found a lipstick in her underwear – a place from which, I'd noticed, she had been pulling a lot of things lately. She applied a bright red, and pressed her lips together as she turned to me. She gave them a little pop.

“Let's go out to dinner,” she said. “I'm famished.”

CHAPTER 4: The Plan

Summer was looking through the still-busy street, her mouth slightly open and her jaw moving from left to right in her signature expression of indignant disbelief. On the table before us were two wine glasses, still half-full; a clean ashtray, just changed by the waiter; and our crumpled napkins. The restaurant had done an excellent job of sweeping away our ten or so cigarette butts, our empty wine bottles, and the plates with nothing left on them but shells and a few stray splatters of chocolate. We had really outdone ourselves.

“I can't believe you thought I was serious,” Summer repeated, for the tenth time.

But her face was not entirely displeased.

Somewhere in the course of our dinner, and certainly long after we had consumed a lot of wine, I had brought up the evening's encounter. How hot it was.

I didn't think I had mentioned that I thought it was something she really did. But I must have, because here she was repeating, over and over again, that she couldn't believe I had thought that it was.

The thrilling thing was, she had not gotten up from the table, thrown a napkin or a glass of wine at me, and stomped off. Which is how I always imagined it would be if I confessed my secret desire to see her with another man.

“Seriously?” she said, again. She turned toward me, and she leaned on the table. Her posture was inviting, rather than repelled. “You're not just..fucking with me or something?”

I felt like I was walking on early spring ice. I wasn't sure if I should, as the Russians suggested, move quickly, or if I should retreat.

“I know it sounds strange,” I said. I had this part memorized, because I often played this conversation out in the car on my way to work. I just never really thought I would actually be saying it to her.

A bus pulled away from us, close to the curb, and a cloud of diesel filled the air. Summer took a sip of her wine and smiled. She toasted the air, or nothing in particular. “Ah, Rome,” she said. “We might as well smoke all we want.” She took out another cigarette and held it in her hand, close to her cheek, without lighting it.

“I just don't get...what's the appeal? I mean I would be murderous if I saw you fucking some other woman. Just so you know.”

But she was leaning on the table, looking into my eyes, and her own eyes were bright and interested.

She was actually interested.

Oh god, I thought to myself. Make it good.

“Look,” I said. “I'm not even really sure myself. It's just...a fantasy. I mean, can you really explain all the things you fantasize about?”

She had confided a few things to me that evening. Some of them were very, very dirty. She fantasized about anal sex, but was quick to add that she didn't like the idea of actually doing it. Just thinking about it.

To my surprise, she looked upward, and gave my statement some thought. “Okay,” she said. “Fair enough.”

She leaned back in her chair. “I just...I mean, you actually want me to do it?”

I nodded, because she was sweeping me up in a spell, and my cock was getting hard and robbing my entire body of blood. She was on the cusp of perhaps agreeing to my fantasy; she was like a doe in the forest. I didn't want to startle her.

“So if I said, 'I want to fuck the Italian chef,' you would be like, 'Okay, as long as I can watch?'" She was no longer looking at me, but away, with an expression of incredulity.

I waited for eyes to return to mine.

“Yes,” I said. I chose my tone carefully. I wanted her to know that I was serious.

She was holding the cigarette in her fist, still unlit.

Her eyes revealed nothing about what she was thinking.

“And you wouldn't get jealous?”

How to explain this one? I had tried, so many times, in the car by myself, to come up with something simple to explain to her.

“It's not that,” I said, and I searched for the right words.

“The jealousy is part of the thing,” she finished for me. As if she knew all about it.

I looked at her as she lit her cigarette.

She suddenly seemed so different. Like who Summer would have been if I had never married her, and we had never had kids. The Summer I might have seen here, at another table, laughing with her girlfriends, or fighting with another man. Her face looked younger and just slightly different – like she was her own sister. Not Cora, but another sibling, who had all the elements of Summer's face, ever-so-slightly changed. Aged differently. Beneath them, a different personality simmering.

Candles flickered in the light breezes made by the traffic. The air smelled of cigarettes and coffee. Dishes clattered everywhere around us, and at all the tables there were couples in conversations like ours. Wives, lost in thought.

Her eyes moved back to mine, and the glimmered.

“I mean, okay. If that's what you really want...okay.”

I said nothing. I was afraid of breaking the mirage.

“I can actually make this happen,” she warned. “You really want this?”

My cock was so hard I was starting to feel dizzy.

I just nodded again.

Summer smiled, her jaw shifting, and she looked out into the street. Thinking.

THE NEXT DAY

“I've arranged it all,” she said.

She climbed on top of me. I was between her tight, tanned thighs, and her breasts tantalized me from above, beneath her shirt but just within grasp. I was getting so strung up I thought I would snap and burst all over her pretty flowered dress just listening to her talk. She seemed to know that, and she moved over my body seductively, and lifted her hair up in a pile on top of her head while she spoke. “If you want to get out of this,” she said. “Now is the time to do it.”

“Do you want to get out of it?” I asked, but I did it quietly, and only because I felt it had to be said. I wanted desperately for this to really happen. My voice was a whisper.

She leaned close to me, and she was smiling, knowing that she had me on the hook. She knew what I wanted her to say, and she wanted to tease me just a little longer. “Hmmmm,” she hummed in my ear.

“No,” she said. “No, I want to go ahead with it.” Her words worked their way up and down my shaft like a lubed palm. I grasped her and quickly turned her over on the bed.

“Tell me what you'll let him do,” I said, taking my chances that she would play along. I think, at the time, that I still didn't really believe she would go through with it the end. In the back of my mind I still believed that she was taking me on an elaborate, fun fantasy ride, and it would all come to a halt when she backed out of it at the last minute.

And truth be told, I wasn't sure I really wanted her to go through with it, 100%.

Yes, I did. Very much.

No. Not really.

Even though my wife was new to how my mind worked with this fantasy, she seemed to have a tap to my own thoughts and desires.

“Anything he wants,” she purred.

I moved my hand down to between her thighs, and I was pleased to find she was soaking wet. I slipped a finger into her, then another. She mewled.

“Will you let him finger you like this?”

She moaned a little as she breathed: “If he wants to.”

“Harder?” I pushed my hand forcefully inside of her.

She closed her eyes like a napping cat and purred again. “Yes.”

I worked another finger into her, and clawed at her from the inside. Her body shook and she howled in a low voice. “Deeper?” I demanded.

She made a sound that meant nothing, and was only pleasure.

I hastily unbuckled my belt, and got myself inside of her.

“He'll want it rougher than that,” she said, opening her eyes. “He'll want to fuck me until I can't walk.” She gave me an insolent grin.

Jesus.

I thrust myself deep inside of her, and she squealed.

She held her hands up to her thighs, and pulled them open.

“Is that what you'll do?” I breathed. My cock was so hard I felt like I would burst any second.

“I'll let him fill me up with all of his hot, Italian, cock.”

Fuck. I could feel myself so close to tipping over the edge. I slowed, and she looked disappointed.

“What's the matter?” she smiled. “You can't fuck me like a man?”

I pushed myself deep into her, and she rolled her eyes back and bit her lip. “That's what I'll let him do to me. All the way inside while I hold my legs open for him and let him pound his cum into my pussy until it's full...”

I didn't hear the rest of what she said. As soon as she said “pound,” I could feel myself bubbling over, and I was yelling and straining against my own skin while I filled her up as she went on and on in her dirtiest and most seductive voice. My mind filled with images of her Italian chef between her legs, spread wide by her own two hands, pumping himself deep inside of her while she screamed in pleasure. Fucking her thoroughly, turning her inside-out.

But the blood was pounding too hard in my ears to hear anything she said.

The plan was elegant in its simplicity, and easy to execute. Summer perched on a chair next to the window and told me about it with her foot extended to my crotch, her pleasure growing as she told me the details and my cock got harder and harder.

Friday the class was going to eat at some famous restaurant, a former student's place. Some well-kept secret that was going to make it big as soon as her instructor gave the word and endorsed it. It was a lesson for the class in some particular kind of cooking.

Seafood or something. My mind wandered while she gave me all these details. I watched her mouth moving and imagined her biting her lip while her chef pushed his cock inside of her.

Spouses were welcome. I could go with her, tease myself through part of dinner, pretend to be called away for some important...

She paused, her eyes skyward.

“A meeting,” I offered.

“Yeah, okay. A historical emergency. The archives are on fire. Whatever.”

Her words were deliberately acidic. How could she know, I wondered, what would sink into me like liquid sex?

Her eyes were sparkling as she told me the next part: she would stay late, lure him here, and I would be tucked away in the closet to watch.

“What if he doesn't go for it?”

Summer lifted her chin haughtily. It was so fucking hot, what was happening to her. She raised an eyebrow. "He'll go for it," she said, with absolute confidence.

I was looking at a piece of paper. My eyes unfocused. My thoughts scattered.

She moved her foot over my cock. "How do you know he hasn't already?"

I let my arm drop, setting my wine glass on the floor.

Keep talking.

She tossed her hair over her shoulder.

"How do you know he hasn't had me already? All kinds of ways. Ways you would never be man enough to even think about?"

"Like what." I whispered, a statement more than a question.

She smiled. "Maybe you have to wait and see."

It's a game, Ben.

I forced a smile. Mostly, I was smiling. But part of me was wondering, even then, if I wasn't being taken on some kind of ride.

"You have to promise me something, though."

CHAPTER 5: El Giardino

July is scorching in Rome, and the days are unbearable late into the evening. By eight o'clock, though, the night has cooled, and the heat trapped in the pavement and the stone radiates to calf-height, while breezes made by the shifting temperature caress the bare legs and shift the skirts of women. It had rained in the early evening, driving everyone indoors for coffee and gelatto, and now the streets were awash in the white-sodium lights that lit up the landmarks. The red of brake lights dropped onto the slick pavement and stained it all directions.

We had had far too much wine, but the perfect amount of wine. We had opened the bottle while waiting for the rain to die down, and then we forgot what we were waiting for and drank the whole thing. I followed Summer's swishing skirt, and her bare legs, which ended in a pair of incredibly sexy heeled sandals that I could not take my eyes away from. The streets were alive with snippets of music and the sticky splashes of rain, the clatter of dishes and the disintegrating laughter and conversation that rose and fell as we passed each patio full of diners. Coffee filled my nose, then smoke, then coffee, then something terrible and foul, then a blank space where there was only the flower shop: a floral undertone, rain.

In the Foro di Augusto there were opera singers performing free in the ruins. Summer stopped to listen, leaning her arms over the edge of the wall. Her skirt got caught in the breeze and lifted high on her thigh. Her hair was loose, fluttering away in long strands. She looked ten years younger as she turned to me and smiled. "I love Rome!" she shouted.

A well-dressed young man in passing did not hesitate a nanosecond to turn on his heel and reply, "Roma anche ti ama, bella!" As always in Italy, the comment caused every man around to turn and look at the source of the man's affection, and the smiled in approval before returning to what they were doing.

Desire and a pang of jealousy scratched inside of me.

I pulled her by the hand to the sidewalk. "Come on," I said, trying to sound playful. "We have a dinner date, remember?"

"Come to dinner with me, bella," a man called out.

All in good fun, in Rome.

“Tomorrow!” Summer called out, winking at the man.

This met with a general murmur of approval among the group. I felt myself tugging Summer closer to me and quickening my step, even though I didn't want to. You had to remain calm with Italian men, or they sensed weakness.

Luckily it was a busy night, and we had a green light at the intersection. Summer dashed into the shining street, and I ran after her. Then men told her they loved her, and they would wait for her, and they bid her a very filthy goodnight.

We found the restaurant finally, after getting almost hopelessly lost in the narrow alleys. The fresh scent of rain and the wine we had both consumed kept our endless wrong turns from disintegrating into a fight. The evening was cool, our spirits were high, we kissed against the chipping stucco walls in quiet corners before we started looking again for the mysterious Lo Giardino restaurant.

Embarrassingly, we asked the stern headwaiter outside Lo Giardino where Lo Giardino was, and after bestowing upon us a look of contempt that he seemed to keep in reserve especially for drunk Americans, he stepped aside and waved his hand over the doorway like a magician. “E qui,” he said calmly. He somehow managed to make his sentence sound as if it ended with, you fucking rube idiots.

Summer stepped back to look up at the very small rectangular sign above the door. We had passed the place several times and given it no notice, because only two tiny and uninhabited tables on either side of the door gave any indication that there was a restaurant here at all.

“I thought giardino meant 'garden,’” Summer confided to me in what was meant to be a whisper, but because she was so tipsy, came out much louder than she had wanted.

“There is a very nice garden in the back of the restaurant,” the headwaiter snipped. “We do not make our customers eat on the street like peasants. Do you have a booking?”

Summer tried to compose herself. “Well...I am not really sure...”

“It may be some time before we can get you in.”

We were standing in a very small lobby, beyond which we could hear the bustle of a busy kitchen, and smell the delightful food that awaited us.

I was thinking of none of these things, of course. I was thinking of the man who would fuck my wife, and what he would be like. I was thinking of myself, tucked away in the closet, watching him fuck her until she screamed in ecstasy.

The headwaiter gave me a curious look. I blushed.

The headwaiter was impassive.

“This is not a school,” he cautioned, as though speaking to a child. He began to lean over the small podium where he kept the reservation book. “There is no class at Lo Giardino.” He almost spat as he said ‘class.’

I was close to cracking up. This was too much. It was like a movie, but better.

“It’s a cooking class,” Summer said, drunk enough, and in a good enough mood, to let the headwaiter’s snobbery sail right through her. “It’s Sandro Cervi’s class, maybe he...”

Everything in the room transformed, inside out and backwards. It seemed like by some cinematic trick, I saw her lips again forming the syllables: San. Dro. Cer. Vi. They fell like sleet from the sky and slapped me in the face. No, my face went numb. No, my heart came to a sudden stop, colliding one final time in slow motion against my chest and then sticking there. A dull pain began to wind up slowly inside of me. My ears filled up with pressurized blood and I went deaf.

Deafened by the sound of Sandro Cervi’s name, I watched the headwaiter rise from his podium, and with his rising, the features of his face transformed. The look of disdain he had been hiding only minimally until then was hastily covered up by a warm and flattering smile. His eyes lit up and his mouth formed the same syllables that Summer had pronounced:

Sandro.

Cervi.

At the same time, my mind was attempting to console me. It could be a different Sandro Cervi, my mind whispered. My body wasn't listening. It was flashing hot and cold in patches, and I felt my chest constricting.

Summer was turning to me and beaming. Oblivious. The headwaiter was practically bowing as he opened the curtain and led us through the bustling restaurant, and outside to a garden. Strings of lights kept the courtyard bathed in a warm glow, but I was freezing inside.

It could be someone else, my mind kept urging me. I had to think hard to move my limbs forward, following Summer's swishing hair, her soft skin, her occasional delighted smile directed back to me. Sandro was a common name. Cervi was...probably common. This was Italy. Everyone was a chef.

It could be anyone.

It seemed like we were crossing the garden forever.

And then, Summer parted to one side, to take a seat and greet her instructor. A blond man, his face far more weathered and yet somehow more handsome than last I saw him, moved his piercing blue eyes upward.

Had he known he would see me? There was a moment – and everything seemed to hang in the air for an eternity for that moment – that I could swear his face seemed to register only what he had expected to see. A flicker of a smirk, maybe.

But he very quickly jumped, as though a snake had popped out at him in a garden. Then his geologically creased and handsome face broke into a wide smile, a cartoonish expression of surprise. He extended his arms and widened his mouth even more, looking from the perplexed Summer to the headwaiter to me, to anyone, generally, in the audience of the restaurant that was now watching his theatrics. “Benny?!” he finally shouted. “Benny, Benny Brooks!”

Ah yes. It was that Sandro Cervi.

CHAPTER 6: Sandro Cervi

Before he was Sandro Cervi, popular and sought-after chef with three Michelin stars and more money than God, he was Sandro Cervi, my roommate. Even then, Sandro's face had been creased by his perpetual intensity: he stayed up late, he partied hard, he had a deep passion for anything that interested him and he pursued it relentlessly.

His career.

Women.

Women and more women, but specifically, other mens' women.

My women.

Specifically, one girlfriend.

I was an art history student at the American University in Rome, and while I was having grand time racking up student loan debt and not thinking about it at all, I needed a roommate. Sandro had been introduced to me by a friend.

At the time, Sandro was a cook in a tourist-trap restaurant. We were eating there in the hopes we could get some free bread and a free beer. We were lamenting our financial woes on the sunny patio when I mentioned my need for a roommate.

"I have just the guy," Ric said.

At that moment, Sandro had been walking out of the kitchen. He was clothed in the long white apron of a kitchen cook, but in spite of what sounded like a chaotic kitchen where marinara sauce salted to American tastes was flying through the air, he was unscathed. He was a neat and tidy guy, which I instantly liked about him.

Sandro was a northern Italian; his hair was blond and his eyes were blue. There was no mistaking him for a Swiss or a German, though: there is a certain swagger, and a certain masculinity that radiate from Italian men. Sandro had it droves.

From beneath his long apron, he produced a basket of bread.

"On the house," he said, in a crisp English accent. He had attended a boarding school in Switzerland, I would find out later, and his English was flawless. When women came around, he layered it with a creamy frosting of Italian for effect.

It worked.

“This is the guy,” Ric said.

Sandro shot out a hand and smiled his thousand-watts of clean white teeth in my direction.

The thing about Sandro is that even after all of the things that happened between us, when I remember meeting him, or remember him at all – I still have an inclination to like him, in a weird way. As I think of his hand and his smile and the casual way he tucked breadsticks into his pants for laughs, I still like him.

I shook his hand, and his handshake was firm and commanding, but friendly. He had that ease with himself and other guys (and later, I would learn, with women) that made his life a series of uncomplicated interactions with everyone.

“Sandro,” he said to me. To Ric: “Why am I the guy?”

“Ben here needs a roommate,” Ric said.

Sandro nodded, as if the deal had already been done. And in a way, it already had. Like all men and all women who met Sandro, I was under his spell. He simply said what was going to happen, and then it was done. “I’m hardly ever there, mate,” he said, his haughty British accent sliding away easily to some of-the-people variety. He jerked a thumb back toward the kitchen to explain himself.

“Where are you?” he asked me.

I explained where the cramped apartment was, in a trendy and overpriced area that was a few metro stops from here.

Sandro squinted. “Sounds good. When do I move in?”

Sandro had been true to his word: he was hardly ever home. He was neat and tidy, as his apron had suggested.

But when he was home, and our worlds collided, he was a hurricane.

There was no escaping him. Every night that Sandro was home, he dragged me out with him.

The ladies fell at his feet. There was no woman, as far as I had ever seen, who could resist his charm, his alpha-male easiness. He was like a wolf. Lopping nimbly through the packs of women that thronged at the clubs, standing aloof by the bar. Doing nothing, really – but the energy of the entire club would somehow change, as if elevated to a higher pitch, one synchronized with Sandro himself.

Within half an hour he would have five women circling round him. Not just any women – the prettiest, the hottest, the most beautiful women.

“Yeah,” Ric murmured one night, as we watched the whole thing happen in front of us and hoped for a jilted girl to latch on to one of us as a substitute. “I shoulda told you, lock up the girlfriend.”

It wasn't until many months later that it was even an issue.

Sabrina was an American girl, cool and raven-haired. She was studying art history for a year and then she was going back to America to live in a rat-infested loft where she was going to make the next Piss Christ if everything went her way. She was not at all Sandro's type, and Sandro was everything she insulted for hours over rum and diet cokes that she enjoyed ordering to the chagrin of every waiter in Italy. It never even crossed my mind to “lock her up.”

And then they collided.

“Ciao.”

“I'm obviously not Italian.”

Sabrina was cross-legged on my couch, and to my delight, having none of Sandro's alpha-wolf charm. She was playing video games and smoking a cigarette, and she was looking as un-Italian as any woman possibly could. Italian women had nice clothes, for one thing, and then there was the matter of her simply not looking Italian. Her eyes and her features, all lovely, had the softened, blended, American look to them.

There was also the bitchiness. There was European bitchiness, and there was American bitchiness. European bitchiness was of the I'm-so-bored-while-I-give-you-this-hand-job variety, while American bitchiness was the kind that would get fingers pointed in your eyes and lectures about post-modernist feminism.

Sandro shrugged, and disappeared into his room.

I could not have been more pleased with the interaction, because by then I was hopelessly in love with Sabrina, and her dark-haired beauty, her softness when she was alone with me, her brilliantly scary mind. I liked that she wore torn jeans in her classes, and spoke perfect Italian even though she almost never used it, and was top of her class even though she always seemed to be too tough to even go to class. She was sexy, she was fun, she was smart – and most lovely of all, she seemed completely unaffected by Sandro.

“Aggggh!” she screamed, throwing the controller across the room and covering her eyes. “I’m going to fucking crash!”

We were playing some mindless game that came with the game center a departing student had dumped in his hallway before he left. It was ten years old and pointless, and involved driving trucks into other trucks. Sabrina, endearingly, was trying to drive carefully through the game without hitting any other vehicles.

But I underestimated Sandro, and I underestimated the power of his charm. He reappeared, a moment later, in a t-shirt and jeans, which his physique turned into a magazine ad. He plopped on the couch.

“America,” he declared, and for a moment he sounded like he was going narrate a documentary. “My friend is having a party. It’s a big, fun party. Let’s all go.”

Sabrina uncovered her eyes and opened her mouth to explain why we couldn’t go.

Sandro was looking at her. He had a talent, this guy, that I would never be able to analyze. He had, after all, just met Sabrina, a girl I had never mentioned or described. Somehow, he had composed his face into the perfect blend of humor and sensitivity, mystery and allure, domination and charm...whatever it was, whatever elements Sabrina wanted, and the exact quantities of those elements. He smiled.

“You don’t like me, America,” he declared, but my stomach was already seizing up because I could that she did. “But we should not miss an excellent party just because of that. Ben....” he looked at Sabrina and paused. He was drawing her name out of her like a snake charmer.

“Sabrina.”

“Ben, Sabrina. Put on your dancing shoes, or whatever terrible thing you non-Italian people do, and let’s boogie.”

Sabrina turned her head to me. She didn’t implore. I didn’t fight.

There were people who said things, and then the people around them just did them. Sandro was one of those people.

Sandro didn’t steal Sabrina from me that night. I would never know, really, how he did it. I could see him circling in, ever-closer. He seasoned his jokes just for her. He helped her translate something with a cranky bartender. He gave her a ride on his Vespa when he saw her walking down the street to the Metro. He pulled us both into his circle with magic fingers, like he was casting a spell. Oh, come to my restaurant. Free dinner for both of you, I'll make it something special.

It was obvious, when I looked back on it. Obvious as anything.

Sabrina loved me, of course. She told me so and we made plans to continue our relationship when she went back to New York. But something else was in her eyes while we made love, and it was Sandro. Sandro who had that dominating thing, Sandro who was so good-looking and so ambitious, Sandro who hammed up his Italian accent to charm the ladies.

I should have done something about it, but I didn't. Who can say what it was? Sandro made the men around him as powerless as the women he charmed. I saw the way that Sabrina's eyes disappeared inside of her own head when Sandro would appear in the apartment, toss his keys on the table, and disappear into his room after a brief, "Ciao, bellissimi." I saw how she took his every word and gesture and tucked it away in her own mind, where she was fantasizing about him. Her eyes would gloss over, and she would no longer be paying attention.

"Mmmhmmm," she would murmur.

"I think I failed that test."

"Mmmhmmm."

"I ate an entire spit roasted pig for lunch."

"Mmmhmmm."

I knew she was dreaming of him. Thinking about him when I was trying to keep her happy in bed. I knew she listened through the walls for Sandro's voice, thinking of his superior body, his superior masculinity. He had her wrapped around his finger long before anything really happened.

When I found them, then, it was no surprise. The only surprising thing was what Sandro had convinced Sabrina to do.

CHAPTER 7: Gone

Twenty years later, in Rome, Sandro embraced me. My chest was getting tighter by the second. I tried to take a deep breath, and made an absurd noise instead. I tried to cover it up by pounding on my chest in the universal sign of heartburn.

Sandro slapped me on the back.

“Don't have a fucking heart attack, man!” Quickly, he turned to Summer, and held up a hand. “I'm sorry,” he said. “Ladies are present.”

Summer was looking from Sandro to me. The confusion on her face seemed genuine. She seemed genuinely surprised.

Or did she?

Sandro hugged me again. Through his silk shirt, I could feel how trim and hard his body was. He was as intense as every, and the energy coiled inside of him and snaked under his skin.

“You two know each other?” Summer said. She was sinking slowly into her seat, and a variety of emotions seemed to be playing across her face.

Meanwhile, my own stomach threatened to turn itself inside out. I looked at Sandro's face, seeking any sign of connivance, any indication that he had something up his sleeve. But it was impossible to tell with him. He was shining his dentist-ad smile on anyone and everything in the room. He yelled, “My old buddy Benny!” to anyone who was listening, which turned out to be quite a few of the people on the patio.

He threw himself backward into his chair, a low-reclining wicker chair straight from Fellini's Italy. “Benny Brooks,” he said again. He shook his head.

I had no idea if his surprise was an act or not.

Sweat had begun to form everywhere that sweat could form, and I felt icy cold in spite of the heat. My fingers felt numb, and my head was actually spinning, on a separate axis, inside of my head. I was sure I was going to stroke out, or puke, or both.

My own voice surprised me with its calm:

“This is such an unbelievable surprise,” I said. “I just...I’ve had to use the head since we got here. Excuse me.”

I barely felt my feet moving beneath me as I turned, stepped neatly off the raised deck, and made my way past a lightly roaring fountain, the stern-faced headwaiter, a swinging door, a flight of steps. Opened door, closed door, tiny, cramped room.

I leaned my head against the door.

Sweat was pouring from my armpits and my scalp.

Was I going to hyperventilate?

I had to get control of myself.

I had to get control of myself, and then I had to find a way to get Summer alone. I needed to put the breaks on everything we had set in motion. I needed to -

What was I going to tell her? It had to be quick, it had to be to the point.

I want you to fuck other men. Any other man. Just not Sandro.

And Sandro. What about him?

My stomach started to turn again, this time at my own weakness. I knew that what I should do, if I were a real man, would be to go upstairs, take my wife by the hand, and walk out.

No: I would find out from him if he had planned this all along. Surely he knew her last name was Brooks. Surely she had said my name in his presence. Surely he had put it all together, and he knew it was me.

If I were a real man, I would punch him in the face.

If I were a real man, I would have been in control of this whole thing from the start, and I would not have been masterminded by the cool, dominating Sandro.

The fucker.

Heat began to sear through me, rising up to my face. I turned to the washbasin and turned on the cold water. Leaning on the counter, I looked into the mirror. My eyes were wild and my face was red with anger.

I had to get control of myself.

This asshole had probably plotted the whole thing. And now I had done myself in, I had convinced my own wife to fuck him...

The voice of reason elbowed its way into the dialogue in my head.

Maybe he never knew, at all. Maybe this whole time your wife has just been feeding you lines about screwing around with him. Maybe your name never came up at all...

Was that worse? I asked myself. Was it worse, or better that way, if Summer had never mentioned that she was married, if Sandro had never known her last name.

Don't be an idiot, my angry voice screamed. He's a woman-stealing low-life, and he knows exactly what he's doing.

Shame and anger burned inside of me, each one feeding the other.

I gave myself over to a quick fantasy, in which I marched upstairs, punched him in the mouth, grabbed the wrist of a confused Summer, escaped out the back, and we made love in a taxi.

The room was spinning still, so I clutched the washbasin. I tried counting myself down. I needed to act, to do something to stop this disaster from happening.

Any man but Sandro.

I looked at my watch. How long had I been in here?

I wiped sweat from my brow.

I couldn't leave my wife alone with Sandro Cervi for more than a few moments.

I needed to get my game on.

Summer's laugh, breaking apart like a flock of doves in the air, reached me over all the sounds in the garden dining area. Her head was tipped to one side, and her mouth was open in a wide and generous smile. Candles dotted the table now, magically air-dropped in by the busy waiters. The lights reflected in the wine glasses and her absorbent eyes.

Sandro was making her laugh, of course, and another peal of laughter reached my ears before I made it to the patio.

She barely looked up at me as I arrived. "That's incredible," she was saying.

Sandro looked up, his white-toothed grin still swimming around on his face. Something about him gave him the appearance of a Cheshire Cat.

"You look pale," he said.

I placed my hand over my stomach. "Some kind of..." I began lamely, but Sandro interrupted me and leaned across the table, tapping his finger on Summer's outstretched hand, as though they were the lovers and I was the friend. "He's seen a ghost, is why," he said. "God. Benny Brooks. How long has it been? Twenty years, almost." His eyes quickly flickered up and down my physique. I was still standing, like an idiot. Sandro placed his hands on the back of his head, his elbows splayed out. In his neat silk shirt and his expensive jeans, he looked like a European playboy, but his gestures were those of an American stockbroker.

Good fuck, I said to myself inwardly.

“You look good,” he said, and his tone was laced with acid.

I did not look good, his tone said. Not good enough for Summer.

Almost as if he were reading my thoughts, or accepting the narration I was providing in my own mind, he leaned again toward Summer and lifted her hand. He moved elegantly to the edge of his chair to kiss the back of her hand, as though she were a princess. “However did you attract such a gorgeous creature?” His voice was dripping with honey, and Summer was batting her eyelashes and smiling.

“Ben, sit down,” he said, almost as part of the same sentence. “You’ve been standing there like a goon for five minutes.” He brought his hands together in a hearty clap. “Now!” he yelled, and the energy of the room changed – it was a noticeable thing; the waitstaff seemed to stiffen into shape and turn their attention to us, without moving - “Let’s eat!”

I sank into the chair in an awkward movement. My knees gave out on me halfway down.

Summer looked at me, and she was smiling. She seemed to notice nothing about me at all, and I wondered if she was just taking everything to the same conclusion we had planned on. I tried to catch her eye, but she was too busy flirting with Sandro, laughing at his jokes, opening her eyes in surprise as he spoon-fed her an appetizer.

Sandro leaned over and poured something from a bottle.

“Aperitif,” he said. “It’s for your stomach.” Then, with little pause, he turned on me with his intense, dominating eyes. “It’s a good thing you came, mate. I was just telling Summer, the rest of the class has canceled.”

How convenient.

My eyes moved like overcooked eggs from Sandro to my wife, searching for the truth. Had Sandro planned it all along, and if he did, had he known it was my wife, specifically, he was planning to seduce and fuck? Had Summer known? Had they planned this little bit of theater together?

I looked at Summer.

I needed to know if she was in on it, this grotesque plot of Sandro’s.

For surely, that's what this was. Even if he hadn't known all along that Summer was my wife, he was seizing her like a hawk now. His eyes would not leave her. He was eating her alive, undressing her right in front of me. Slapping me on the back and telling me what a great catch she was, while his eyes stripped her clothing down to her moist panties and he sucked her inside of his mouth like a plume of smoke.

He would then turn to me, and I could have sworn his eyes said: I am going to fill your wife so full of cum she splits open.

Sandro leaned back in his chair. "Maybe they didn't hear me when I said I would pay for dinner," he quipped. It took me a moment to realize he was talking about the class.

I watched Summer. She was just playing the game we had agreed upon, I reminded myself. This is what we had planned to do before I saw that it was Sandro she had chosen. Sandro of my past, who I had never told her about.

Sandro. The smug fuck. Thinking, maybe, that he had plucked my wife right out from under my nose. I couldn't stand him not knowing that this was the plan all along. This was my plan, this is what I wanted.

Or was it?

Surely Summer had caught on, by now, to the fact that I needed to change the game plan? Surely she would consult me, and ask if everything was still on like it was before? Now that the person was someone I knew?

I had a chilling thought: Maybe she assumed that I had known all along that her mystery chef was Sandro.

And what about me? What about you, Ben? I screamed inside my own head. Do something!

I was impotent. Powerless. I wasn't moving from where I was sitting, to snatch my wife away from Sandro's encircling grasp. I thought about it. So many times. Leaning over and telling her I needed to speak to her, whispering the story of Sabrina to her quickly, running away in the streets.

Sandro drank wine, and water, and more wine. I waited for him to need to go to the bathroom. I waited for him to begin a conversation with the waiter, or anything at all that would allow me one small second to say something to my wife, something that would unlink this chain of events.

Summer would go to the restroom. Surely. Then I could stand up and follow her.

I waited. Why was I waiting? Humiliation rose up in my cheeks. Summer said I looked quite drunk and poured me another glass of wine. Was she being mean? Was she being kind? What did her face say?

I downed the wine to give myself more courage. Maybe if I was drunk enough, I would be brave enough to tell Sandro to fuck off. I would get my wife back for the evening. I would find a way to arrange this game with her another time.

Instead of doing any of these things, however, I sank further and further into my chair. Sandro and Summer began to talk to each other more intimately, only occasionally looking my way to include me, in some offhand way, in the conversation.

And wasn't this what we had planned, I thought. Isn't his just what Summer said she would do, and now she was doing it?

I looked at her.

It was true: she was simply carrying out the plan we had created together. She was excited. Her face was flushed with her excitement. Her eyes were bright and smiling.

I looked at Sandro.

The bastard. He was just carrying out the plan he had all along, to humiliate me again.

Why wasn't I doing anything?

For a brief moment, I let myself touch on what might have been the truth: I didn't want to stop what I had set in motion, even if it was Sandro who Summer had chosen. I didn't want to take the chance that Summer would abandon this plan forever. Because I really, really wanted her to have sex with another man, and I was so close I could taste it.

I tried to dig deeper into myself, and ask myself if I really didn't want it to be Sandro.

A cold feeling spread out in my stomach, the kind that is both erotic and fearful, angry and pleased. The kind I could not exactly explain to myself.

But the feeling turned hard when it reached my cock, and so I guess that was my answer.

I drank so much wine that I started to get ill. The seafood Sandro had insisted on giving me was settling in like barnacles on my stomach. Maybe he had poisoned me. I excused myself and steered like a boat to the bathroom.

I was sweating. My eyes were bloodshot. I needed to get control of myself.

I splashed cold water on my face. I gave myself a talking to. I sat on the toilet thinking.

A man pounded on the door.

“Just a fucking minute,” I said.

A discussion ensued outside the door. I couldn't follow the Italian. I placed a washcloth on my face.

You need to act.

I looked at myself in the mirror.

No, I thought slyly. What I needed was not to act. If I never left early, then Summer would know it was off. We had to go home sometime.

I straightened my jacket and looked at myself again. I walked tall up the stairs and into the garden. Where Sandro and my wife were - Gone.

The word gone flooded my mind, the way blood seeps from the floor in a horror movie. With it came the image of Summer, her arm linked with Sandro's, walking down the streets. Back the way we had just come, her skirt dancing around her bare thighs. Her hair streaming around her face, her lips open in a generous smile. All the same things that I had treasured so much as we walked down here – but now she was giving them to Sandro.

And Sandro, his bright smile and his perfect hair, his blue eyes moving up and down her body. Smiling, pretending to listen. All the while thinking about what her pussy would feel like when he slipped his cock inside of it.

I spun around in the middle of the restaurant, looking for signs of them. The waiters were busy waiting, the diners were busy dining. Incredibly, no one cared about my problem. No one had noticed them go, or cared that they were gone, and that my life was unraveling before my eyes.

My heart was racing as I pushed my way hastily out of the restaurant. The headwaiter glared at me as I left. “Did they pay the bill?” I said, not wanting to get arrested.

The man's lips quivered, just a little, at the edges, and turned up into a smile. He looked down quickly, as though he had just suddenly gotten the very big joke that was all on me, as if he knew everything that had just played out before him. He flipped a page of his reservation book for no reason. "The bill has already been paid by Signore Cervi, sir."

I fled.

I ran until I was out of breath, which didn't take long. I knocked people out of my way as I did, and many of them shouted at me in Italian. I slowed to a brisk walk.

I knew that I looked ridiculous. Frantic, pathetic. My eyes were devouring the streets in search of Summer's white dress, but it was Rome, and it was summer, and every woman was beautiful and wearing a skirt that was caressing their legs.

I threw myself down the subway steps like a drunk.

As the windows filled and refilled with scenes of Rome and rock and Rome and rock, the train going in and out of the city's holes like Sandro would go in and out of my wife, I thought of what had just happened.

Summer must have thought I decided to leave early.

Now she was heading back to the house.

What excuse had she given Sandro? What had she told him to get him out of the restaurant so quickly? How much had he wanted to fuck my wife that they took only seconds to pay the bill and disappear from the restaurant?

My mind was spinning. How long had I been in the bathroom? Longer than I thought?

Or was this a plan the two of them had made, was this all an elaborate ruse of Sandro's...to make me think I was pulling the strings, only to find out it was him all along? Maybe Summer was with him, helping him, cutting me open...

I saw the ticket controllers making their way down the train, and realized I had no ticket. I got off one stop early, and spun wildly on the platform trying to decide if I should wait for the next train or run to the apartment.

I felt like I had gone through a terrible time machine, one that worked like a washing machine and sloshed everything together. The street where Sabrina had lived was not far from here, looked like this one, and smelled the same.

No, it didn't look like this. This was not the past. This was not the same thing.

I started running again when I reached the quiet street where our apartment was. I fumbled with the outer lock, I threw the door open. Anyone seeing me might have called the police. I was wild, confused, drunk.

I froze.

I reached out, and took the sticky note from the stairwell door.

It was, of course from Summer. The post-it was American in every way – Europeans did not deign themselves to leave post-its on doors. It was a bright orange, taken from our drawer. The color of my own notes for my research. There was little doubt that it was hers.

Still, my mind tried to tell myself a thousand lies as I read it. This wasn't English (it was) and it wasn't her handwriting (it undoubtedly was).

Remember your promise.

I crumpled the note in my hand.

The first flight of stairs: I ran. Fuck my promise. I promised before I knew it was Sandro she was going to fuck.

The second flight, I walked.

Did it matter that it was Sandro? It didn't matter to her. We were going to do this anyway. Nothing about our own arrangement had changed.

The third flight of stairs, I was re-energized again by my hatred for Sandro, for the way he had so smugly stolen Sabrina right from under me.

The last flight of stairs:

Did I care about Sabrina? Sabrina was gone. If Sandro hadn't stolen Sabrina, I never would have met Summer.

My face grew red with anger. But it was the way he had done it.

I opened my palm and looked at the crumpled note.

The thing was, and I didn't admit this to myself at the time of course – the thing was, I was grateful to have the note. The note made it so that I could avoid the real humiliation, and the darkest one: I was too afraid to stand up to Sandro, anyway.

I took out my key, and slid it into the door silently. I turned the lock slowly, and with it my chest turned inside. Like I had swallowed a ball of molten lava.

When the door clicked, it sounded like the clanging of the doors of the Vatican gates. I stopped, but my own heart, knocking against my chest, drowned out every other sound in the hallway.

I placed my hand on the wood door. It was new, the landlord had told me several times, knocking on it and smiling with his ear to it, as though he was expecting something inside of it to answer him.

I blinked away the memory of the landlord's smiling face.

I pushed against the heavy wood, and stepped into the small foyer.

Remember your promise.

I stepped out of my shoes. Since coming to Europe we had decided to be as European as possible, and we placed our shoes by the door. There were slippers there for me, but I ignored them and began to shuffle down the hall on my socks. Silently, remembering my promise.

My face burned as I looked at Summer's shoes: one, tipped over in haste, near the shoe rack. The other standing upright, a few feet down the hall.

The scene drew itself for me. Summer trying to get her shoes off, and Sandro too hungry for her to keep his hands off her. Did he lift her with his big, muscular arms? Is that how her shoes had fallen, straight down, to land with a clank on the tiled floor? And then what? Against the wall, his lips pressed to hers?

I imagined the look on her face as his hard body pressed her against the wall. So much muscle, all of it hard as a rock, all of it animal and beautiful. And against her thigh, his stiff cock, bigger than mine, bigger than she had imagined, bigger than any cock she had ever had.

I reached the end of the hallway. I heard their voices, both of them speaking in the low, sultry murmurs of two people who know they are about to fuck and are just dragging it out.

I tipped my head to the side, to look past the wall and into the small living area.

Summer was propped on the coffee table, perched like a beautiful cat. Her legs were tucked under her and to the side, and she was holding a glass of wine. Her eyes, which were resting with a dreamy, bedroom glaze on the man in front of her, lifted immediately and met mine. A knowing smile turned up the corners of her mouth, and she took a sip of her wine.

Was her hair out of place? Messy, like Sandro had grasped it in his hands?

The knife of alternating pain and erotic heat turned slowly in my abdomen. If I wanted her to stop, this was my last chance. I could shake my head, bring my hand to my throat and make a slit over my neck.

But I did none of those things, and before I could think any more about them, her eyes were back on Sandro. Her smile, the one she had cultivated in Italy and which she had given only to me, blossomed up for him.

She turned ever-so-slightly, and set her wine glass down on the table. Her mouth was moving and I could hear the seductive tones of her voice but not what she was saying.

I had a hard time tearing my eyes away from what she was doing, even though it time to go to the place we had agreed that I would hide to watch her.

To watch my wife with another man.

The excitement prickled through me and filled my head like a strong drink. My cock twitched and strained against its own skin. My wife, who now was brushing her hair over her shoulder and leaning forward, was going to let another man fuck her for my pleasure.

“Oh yeah?” I heard Sandro say. I could easily imagine the expression on his face, even as I tried to imagine what Summer might have said to him. What dirty, conniving things was she saying, in her sultriest voice, to lure him to the places she wanted him?

My body moved itself, while my mind remained where it was, trapped in loops of disgust and pleasure. The truth, it would seem, was that I wanted this.

Even if it was Sandro.

Even if it was Sandro.

The landlord had apparently blown all of his money on the door he took such pride in, because the closet in the bedroom was blocked off by a rickety, folding door that seemed to swing in every direction except the one you needed. A material that was not quite cloth, not quite rattan, and not at all new, covered the frame of the strange door. We had enjoyed making fun of it since we arrived, but now the door redeemed itself. It swung silently back to place, slightly open so that a long crack of the room was visible from inside. The strange material had large gaps in it from place to place, so I could easily follow the action in the room with little difficulty.

It was spacious in the strange closet, and there was even room for a chair. I sat on it it now. I tried to slow my breathing, which seemed incredibly loud.

My cock was a fat, swollen slab of meat when I touched it, and I could have easily jerked myself off in ten seconds without seeing another thing. Just imagining Summer's lips parting to say the word fuck next to Sandro's ear.

The promise was that I would let her be in control of everything. That I would not interfere, once things were going. It was Summer's show, and I would let it happen.

I took my hand away from my cock, and let the throbbing pain wash over me. I had to wait.

I could hear their bodies moving in the hallway. They were colliding with each other, kissing. The sounds were wet and animal, like two wild boars coming through the bushes.

I closed my eyes.

CHAPTER 8: In the Closet

When I opened my eyes they had arranged themselves in the room next to the bed.

Summer gave him the seductive smile, and traced her pink tongue over her upper lip. Slowly. She was looking right at him.

Her hand moved down her dress. It was tight against her body until it flared at the bottom, and it was impossible not to watch her shapely hand as it followed her curves, like she was giving a preview of all the places he could go.

Then her other hand fell to her side, and they both lifted the dress from the bottom.

It peeled from her body in one smooth motion, turning inside out as rose up. First her thighs, shapely and feminine, ending in white lace and satin boy-cut panties, so thin that I could see the dark mahogany of her curls through the material. Up went the dress, and her stomach appeared.

Her breasts, encased in matching white satin and lace, filled the cups of her bra and were pressed together as she pulled the dress over her head. They were toffee-colored from her tan and the light of the late Roman evening. When she shook the dress away, her hair spilled over her shoulders, equally silky and shiny, like her lingerie.

Sandro had moved closer to her, and I could almost feel the heat radiating off of him. He pulled his own shirt off, and I was treated to the view of his toned and muscled back. I watched Summer's eyes moved over his body with pleasure.

She moved, in two neat steps, back to the bed, and tucked her knees underneath of her to get onto it in a kneeling position. Her eyes were on Sandro's face now, probably meeting his own eyes. She was reeling him in like a very big fish.

But Sandro, I knew, needed no extra reeling. He could see what I could see: the round, full flesh that filled the white satin cups, the hips that held up the silky panties, just barely. He knew what was underneath them, and that he would feel her pussy wrapped around his cock, wet and hot, in just a few minutes.

Could this actually be happening?

Sandro was unbuckling his belt with one hand. With the other he reached behind Summer's head and worked his big, strong fingers into her hair. He pulled on her hair to tip her head back, to face his gaze.

Summer, who had only moments before been the leader of this seduction, was now being taken into his control. I knew how it happened; I had seen it before. Sandro the snake-charmer, Sandro the alpha wolf. Sandro with his blue eyes that let nothing and no one escape.

Summer responded by opening her mouth lightly, and smiling. But her own power was gone. It was plain to see that now Sandro would be the one to call the shots. And Summer loved it. She was giving herself over to him completely.

I knew the look. Sabrina's face, as it had also changed, was burned forever in my mind.

Now I wanted to stand up and knock down the crazy closet door. A dark turn had taken place, and I was feeling more pain than pleasure turning in my chest. Click, click, click, like a medieval torture device, and now I had clicked too far.

But it was too late, and I could see that. Nothing would come of stopping them now. Summer was seduced, just like that. Just like all women were seduced by Sandro.

Maybe it was nature. We were all just programmed to play the sexual role we were meant to play, and there was something about Sandro that no one could fight against or resist. Because he was the better man, he was the alpha male. Look at him. His David-like body, his blond hair, his blue eyes. He was strong and healthy and perfectly symmetrical. He should get whatever mate he wanted.

Summer gasped in one of those hyper-sexualized, porno gasps, and her mouth broke open in a welcoming smile.

Sandro let his pants fall to the floor.

I watched Summer's eyes as they fell, like autumn leaves, stopping here and there on the chiseled body, before they landed on his cock. His big, perfectly-shaped, cock.

She reached out with her hands to hold it. Her white hand squeezed him through the silky material of his boxers, and she opened her mouth in an even wider, even more pleased smile.

I rubbed my eyes. The image was burning like acid. I could not believe I was seeing this. I watched Sandro's fingers moving over Summer's skin – my Summer – and as they inched down her body to the hem of her panties, I felt like I was being flayed.

What's more, I couldn't tear myself away from what I saw.

Sandro peeled away his boxers, and his thick, long, Italian cock sprung forward. Summer's hand immediately grasped it, and she gave him a gasp of pleasure again. I could see her hand on his shaft, barely able to wrap around the circumference.

Not like me, I reminded myself, not sure what I was doing. Not like my cock that she could easily grasp in her hand with her fingers on her palm.

Sandro's was the biggest cock I had ever seen or imagined, even after so many years of watching porn. It had not changed since it had been seared into my memory the night he had taken Sabrina from me. It matched his physique of masculinity and perfection: his muscles were huge, veined, enormous, and so was his cock.

The cock my wife now held in her hand with a smile.

My eyes were glued to Summer's hand. She began to move it, rubbing it back and forth, from base to tip, making a neat little circle over his head, like she had done with me. I looked at her face. She was staring straight into Sandro's eyes, as though she had no idea I was there. Was she teasing me now? Making me want her to look at me? Or had she forgotten about completely when she took Sandro's big cock into her hand.

“You like that, little girl?” Sandro groaned.

Summer leaned closer to him. Her voice was serious, and edged with a feral sexiness when she said: “I love. Italian. Sausage.”

It should have been funny, but it didn't make Sandro laugh, nor me. His cock flexed in her hand.

I watched in horror as she backed her knees and legs out behind her, coming to a position on all fours that gave me a stunning view of her tits, hanging below Sandro's ass. There was just enough of an angle that I could still see half of her face, looking up at him. Seducing him. Her mouth was opening...her red, full mouth. Her wet mouth, and all of the hot, soft flesh inside of it.

I closed my eyes. I tried to tell myself again that the best thing to do was not to watch. Did I really want to see my wife suck on Sandro's enormous cock?

When I opened my eyes my pulse raced, and all of my blood gushed directly into the tip of my own throbbing cock. I could feel the precum oozing out of the end of it, like one painful, slow orgasm. Summer had her mouth stretched open, and her lips were wrapped around the base of Sandro's huge dick.

She had just opened up and taken it all in.

I stared at her lips, spread over him, her lower lip against his ball sack.

I love. Italian. Sausage.

She began to bob her head back and forth, slurping and gulping and licking and sucking at his cock like it was the greatest thing she had ever put in her mouth. She bestowed so much attention on it that I almost forgot that Sandro was even in the room. I just watched her mouth and her lips, working their way all along his shaft, kissing his thick Italian snake of a dick. She licked at him like a kitten while he sucked in his breath. She swallowed him whole, and the bulge of his cock pressed out of her neck and moved down her throat.

The deepest cut came from her eyes, which she lifted submissively to him. Meeting his eyes, letting him consume her. Sucking his cock with her eyes locked on his.

How long did this go on? It seemed like forever. I was dripping precum and holding my cock like it was injured, trying not to burst.

Sandro, unable to take her teasing any longer, grabbed her suddenly. He lifted her up by her hair to a standing position. He ripped her panties away, shredding the fine lace with a single jerk. He turned her around and pushed her forward onto the bed.

This is when Summer finally treated me to one of her smiles.

He'll like it rougher than that, I remembered her saying.

I wondered if they had been fucking all along. Rehearsing. Rehearsing my humiliation. Laughing at me together.

Summer smiled for me, and winked. She licked her lips, but I wasn't sure if it was Sandro or for me. Her eyes were turned toward him now, pulling him in.

My eyes moved to where Sandro's hands had gone.

He was behind her, and he had his fingers dipping into her pussy. She closed her eyes and mewled.

She was dripping wet. The sides of her upper thighs were smeared with her juices. Through Sandro's legs I could see his fingers, nimble chef's fingers, pulling apart the lips of her pussy with expert ease. His forefinger had found her clit, and pinched it outward so that the rawest part was exposed to his fingertips.

Summer made a sound I had never heard before.

Just like Sabrina, she was gushing and twisting in his hands, reduced to a puddle by his expert fingers.

She bit her lip, and tossed her hair. I watched for the second time as Sandro turned a woman I loved into a panting, stamping, whinnying horse.

He slid his wet fingers up, up to the little circle of her ass.

She wouldn't.

She arched her back, and moved her ass up higher for him. Toward him. His finger moved in a sweet circle around her contracting anus. As he did, it seemed to open for him like a magic door.

I knew he was looking down at her, sweaty and panting like an untamed mare, and thinking about how easy it was to make her open up for him. To claim her, and fill her up with his cum in any hole he wanted.

My cock was going to rip open. There was a puddle of precum on the chair now.

Summer crawled forward onto the bed, allowing Sandro to place his knees on the edge. So he could get inside of her with that big cock.

She reached her hand behind her and found it, stroking it like she couldn't bear to stop touching it.

"Fuck me," she breathed. "Put that big cock inside of me and fuck me full of your cum."

Then she lowered her head to the bed, and turned it slightly, so she was looking toward the closet. Toward me. But her hands moved from behind her knees, up her thighs, and to her ass.

She was pulling herself open for him.

For a moment Sandro, too, took some time to enjoy the view: her oak-highlighted hair spread out over the sheets, a few strands stuck to her skin by sweat. Her perfect ass, rounder than ever, tilted to him in an act of utter submission. Her hands on her buttocks, pulling apart her flesh to spread open the dripping pink flower and her tiny, virgin asshole. All of them glistening with her juices. Swollen with her excitement. Feverishly hot.

Sandro held his cock, and moved it over her clit, making her twist and beg a little. “Oh god,” she said. Please just fuck me!”

When he began to push the tip of his cock inside of her, she squinted her eyes and opened her mouth, crying out in agonized pleasure.

“Oh!” she squealed. “Oh, oh, oh it's so big! This is just what I wanted!”

Was that for me? Or was it just what she wanted?

“Oh, yes. Oh fuck, your cock feels good,” she said. Her voice scraped away at my heart, licking at the inside of my ribs with torturous pain.

Summer moaned and howled as Sandro sank deeper and deeper into her. I could see her pussy stretch out, the petal deforming into pencil-thin pink lines as the hard cock pushed them open. Further and further, filling her up and gaping her pussy wide. Then he moved slowly inside of her, and his fat, hairy balls crashed gently against her clit. She was so wet the juices were soaking his scrotum with cum.

Summer moaned, her hands picking up fistfuls of the sheets.

Could they have planned this, to make it look so much like the past? The similarities were awful and beautiful all at once.

In and out, purple cock against her pink and white skin. Every sound of his cock moving through her slippery, pussy splattered around the tiled room more than once. And for a few minutes there was only that: the pumping of Sandro's cock in and out of my wife, and the slippery sounds of her engorged, wet cunt.

“Come for me,” Sandro said, and it was like I had been taken back in time. “Come for me and get my cock wet. I'm going to fuck you in the ass, and you want my cock to be wet, don't you?”

I didn't know if I was seeing Sandro with Sabrina, or Sandro with my wife. If I was watching my life disintegrate now, or twenty years ago.

Until Sandro took the palm of his hand, and slapped Summer's ass. “Ride it!” he said.

Did he know I was here? Would he turn around and sneer at me as my wife obeyed his command, and rose to all fours to work herself over his cock?

Summer began to pump furiously at him, and the whine in the back of her throat built up to a scream as she plunged herself over his cock until she arched her back and threw her head back. I watched as her creamy cum pushed through her stretched pussy lips and onto Sandro's cock.

She fell onto the bed, and I froze in utter disbelief as her hand came back, over the top of her hip. Her long fingers worked their way into her pussy, and then up to her ass.

“Put your finger in,” Sandro said, holding his cock close to her opening.

Summer howled while she inflicted the pain upon herself, pushing her finger into her tight ass. Sandro placed his other hand on her ass-cheek, holding her still and open for his viewing pleasure. He dipped his own fingers in her welling pussy, and used her cum to get his cock shiny and wet.

He moved her hand to the small of her back, and pressed it there so she would know to leave it.

The tip of his cock, thick and blunt, had to make several attempts as Summer moaned on the bed. And then, like a flower opening, her anus unlocked, and his cock slid in as she screamed into the pillow.

Her feet were together, as though they were bound, and they twisted in discomfort, and probably pain, as the long shaft went deeper and deeper inside of her.

“That's it,” Sandro said. “Just relax.”

Her feet stopped their twisting, and Sandro began to move as Summer lay still, giving herself over to him as he began to pound her ass. He started slowly, opening her up, breaking her in.

But as she lay there taking it, letting Sandro fill her up in the most intimate hole, the place I had never been, he started to fuck her harder. I watched the slab of his cock as it stretched her open. I imagined the pain she was enduring for his pleasure. I could feel it in my own ass.

I took my own cock in my hand when Summer looked back at he closet. How she found my eyes, I do not know. “Fuck me full of that cum,” she breathed.

The smack of her skin sounded like a spanking as he rammed his cum into her ass.

“Fill my ass up with your cum!” she screamed.

“Say it again,” Sandro growled. “Say my name.”

“Sandro,” she said. “Sandro, fill my ass up with cum!”

I was gone as soon as the first syllable of his name left her lips, but my eye never left the sight of her ass being pummeled full of his cum. Not as he yelled and smashed himself so deep inside of her I thought his cock might emerge from her throat. Not as he gripped her ass and jerked his final spurts of cum inside of her. Not as the now-rubbery snake slithered out of her hole.

There it was, wide and gaping: a red, swollen ring around a black, open hole. And out of it gushed Sandro's cum. He held her open, as though he knew he had an audience, and watched his seed snake from her anus to her pussy, where it mingled with her own frothy cum.

Summer fell onto the bed, turning around. Her silky bra still held her breasts up, in a display reminiscent of a bride. My hand was wet with cum, and I was trying hard not to breathe too loudly and give myself away.

Summer was panting. She smiled at Sandro and pushed her hair from her face. "You had better go," she said finally. "Before Ben gets home."

Sandro, an expert at leaving a bedroom quickly, had already stepped into his boxers by the time she finished her sentence. He put on his jeans, but he climbed onto the bed and covered my wife with his body. He grabbed a handful of her full breasts, and kissed her mouth passionately.

Then he hopped up and slipped his shirt on, all in one fluid movement.

"Ciao, bella," he said. "See you Monday."

CHAPTER 9: Aftermath

Of all the images that stayed with me afterward, one that surfaced the most was of Summer's stretched and tender asshole, dripping Sandro's white cum into the hungry mouth of her pussy. I lay awake all night, face up, playing out the images I had just seen on the blankness of the ceiling.

After the door had clicked closed, my wife had propped herself up on the sheets and looked at the closet expectantly. She had a pleased smile on her lips, but when I didn't move from the closet, it soured a little.

She slid to the end of the bed, and moved her hands between her sodden thighs. I watched, unable to move, as she moved her fingers to her clit, and pulled the lips of her pussy open for me to see.

"I'm still not done yet," she purred. "Don't you want to come and get the leftovers?"

I had no idea where she got this stuff from, or how she knew that it would prick me in exactly the right way. How did she know that the word leftovers, leaving her lips as she sat at the edge of the bed with another man's cum dripping from her stretched cunt, with the images of her face twisted in ecstasy burned in my mind and the sounds of her moans still echoing in my head, would make my cock twitch again?

The weight of the man who fucked my wife being Sandro was lodged in my chest, but my wife's fingers slipping and sliding in the wetness of her pussy went straight to my dick like an elixir. As bewitched as she herself was by Sandro, I rose in a trance-like state, and opened the closet door.

She looked at my cock, and took in the wetness on my boxers, which still hung around my knees. Disappointment flickered, very quickly like a flame, across her face. It was a brief second of disdain, but it scorched me to the core.

"Do you think you can get it up for me again? Can you satisfy me?" she said.

I moved toward her.

"Keep talking," I whispered.

"It will be very, very hard to fill me up now," she said, and her eyes looked down to my cock and quickly back up at my face. "You were supposed to wait. After all I did for you, and you couldn't even do that..." her voice trailed off and she ended with a tisk.

"Maybe I just need to pleasure myself," she suggested.

I held my cock in my hand and watched her as she moved her fingers down to her clit, and closed her eyes. She bit her lip, putting on a real show for me, as she moved her index finger in slow and then quicker circles over her little red button. As her excitement built up again, her muscles tensed, and the cum from her pussy and Sandro's cum in her ass gushed out in little spurts.

My cock was rock-hard again when she gasped a little and shuddered with a light climax. She said nothing, just opened her eyes like her lids were drowsy, too heavy to open quickly. She bored a hole through me as she stared into my eyes, letting me wonder what she had been thinking about.

Then she looked at my cock in my hand, and gave a kind of shrug. She lay back on the bed, and spread her legs for me.

Her pussy was as wet as it had ever been, and my cock slipped in with incredible ease. Did she feel stretched? Her flesh hugged me, but was it as tight?

The slippery cum from Sandro's huge cock, that had been deep inside my wife's most intimate hole, smeared across my thighs and heated up with the friction of our bodies. It was all I could smell: another man's cum, soaking into and dripping out of my wife, sticking to my own skin.

It took a while to come, because it was the second time and because her pussy was so wet there was almost nothing touching my cock but the most slippery and feathery of kisses from her body. But when I came, it shook me from my feet to my head, and I collapsed on top of her.

When we finally parted, she propped herself up to face me.

The meanness from before was gone, and she was smiling in complicity with me. 'So? Was it what you imagined?'

She was excited.

"How about you?" I managed to say, and I feigned the cheerfulness she was radiating.

"I liked it," she said. "I liked being so...naughty."

She threw herself backward and looked up the ceiling.

I sat in silence for a while, looking over her body, looking for changes. I was thinking dark thoughts. Thoughts about her and Sandro, thought about how perhaps I had created a monster. Thoughts about how she might get swept away by Sandro's charm. It was all my own fault, though, wasn't it, because I am the one who had convinced her to do this.

My mind began to sink into the endless conspiracy theories I had half-hatched on the subway: Sandro had wanted my wife all along, since we married. He had pulled strings to get the pasta expert removed from Summer's cooking class, and replaced him, for the purposes of seducing my wife...

I must have been frowning, because Summer sat up abruptly and patted my cheek, almost a slap.

"Hey," she said. "You're not..I don't know...you don't regret that do you?"

In her eyes was genuine concern.

Did I?

I shook my head, and tried to put on my most loving face. Because I was the one who had wanted this, and because if it had been anyone but Sandro, I would have enjoyed it. Immensely.

I brushed her hair from her face. "No. No...it was amazing. I'm just...lost in thought."

"You look upset."

I shook my head. "Not at all."

Things will be fine, I told myself. And I managed to squeeze a smile out of my face. It was hot as hell. And if there was one thing I had learned from being a historian, it was that you could tell any story the way that you wanted to, and if you did it enough, it became what you always said it was. I would write Sandro out of the picture, and that would be that.

I pulled Summer to my chest, and I stroked her hair until she fell asleep. I knew she wasn't 100% convinced by my act, but she fell asleep without probing it further.

And I lay awake, trying to focus on the images and not the man who had fucked my wife.

But I could not get Sandro Cervi's smug face out of my mind.

CHAPTER 10: Truth

I stood, motionless by the door, limp like my cock and my personality. I could not actually believe that I had said what I had just said to her, and I was wishing I could take it back. It was too late, though, the damage was done. Summer had the look of fury in her eyes, and she was moving around in unnecessary, jolted motions. She folded a sweater three times on the couch, waiting for me.

I felt like I had been submerged in a vat of honey, preserved as a corpse by an ancient ritual, and now could only stare at her, hollow-eyed and open-mouthed.

“That's it? You have nothing to say?”

She looked at me and crossed her arms.

When she still got no response, she threw them up in the air in exasperation.

“This was your idea!” she yelled. Her voice was shaking with anger. Her face was flushed and her eyes were dark.

“Well,” she said, and her voice was overtaken by a terrifying calm. This was the most awful thing that could happen to Summer: the calm.

I watched helplessly as our whole summer, our whole beautiful, hot summer, disintegrated into anger. I felt like crying, but like any man, I just stood there getting hot on the face and cracking on the inside.

“I'm finishing that class.” She snatched her purse from the counter and began to storm away.

Ben. Ben do something.

My hand seemed to act on its own, and it reached out and grasped her.

There must have been something in my face, because when she looked at me her own face changed from furious to compassionate in an instant.

“Tell me what is going on,” she said, her voice low.

It was now or never.

“I have to tell you a story,” I began.

I came home early from a weekend tour of Pompeii, part of my history class. I left Pompeii with the feeling that something was brewing. Something in Sabrina's voice. Something about how vague she was.

I went to her apartment, and her roommate, a pale girl from France who spoke terrible English and worse Italian and made little effort to be understood, blew smoke at me with pity. "Going all weekend," she said, enigmatically.

I knew what it meant as I hoofed it through the streets. I walked at a slow pace, not really wanting to find what I knew I would.

I expected just to find them on the couch, snuggled up. Perhaps Sabrina would be eating guiltily from his fork at one of the cafes in our neighborhood.

I climbed the steps to our third-floor apartment with dread. I felt like I could hear them before I reached the top, though I doubt that's possible or true.

A high-pitched hum began in my ears, drowning out all sound, as I walked in slow motion through the hallway, through the kitchen.

A slatted door, to small room with no particular purpose that we had piled with junk, divided Sandro's room from the main hallway. I fell onto a huge flight-sized duffel bag of winter clothes and books. Pain stabbed me through the knee.

Their voices had already made their way through the deafening hum in my head. It was taking a long time to process what they were saying. Give it to me. Oh, yes. That's it, just like that.

But when I finally found their bodies through the perfect slat in the door, the scene unfolded for me in crisp, painful clarity. Even then, I struggled to make sense of it.

Sabrina was on her back, in only her bra and panties.

I slid in defeat and the duffel bag made a groaning sound.

Did Sandro hear me? His ears perked for a moment, like a predator listening for prey. I think his lip turned up cruelly.

"Not yet," Sandro growled, returning to Sabrina. "I want you to spread your legs for me."

I stared through the slatted closet. Even though the movements of their bodies were acting out precisely what I had thought I'd heard, I still couldn't believe it. My mind tried to turn the words into something else. Anything else.

Sabrina's mouth was open in a wide, inviting smile. She opened her mouth opened wider and her pillowy lips formed a knowing grin.

Sabrina the feminist, Sabrina who was often accused of being a dyke. Sabrina who hated me bossing her around. Hated playboys and arrogant men.

Sabrina, the girl I loved.

My mind was reeling. I felt jealousy, anger, rage, disbelief, all brimming over inside of me, and they worked like a toxin and paralyzed me. I think I stopped breathing, as the cool effect of my feelings spread out in my abdomen like liquid nitrogen.

Sabrina opened up her legs, spreading them wide, her hands between them as though she wanted to protect some sense of modesty still. Sandro pushed her hands away and climbed on top of her. He jerked her bra up, sliding it up her arms to her wrists, where he twisted it expertly and bound her hands.

“Leave your hands up there,” he said.

I watched Sabrina's face in horror as she smiled.

And then Sandro put his dirty hands on either side of Sabrina's ribcage, his thumbs turned inward to stroke her pink nipples into hard little balls. Her red mouth emitted a gasp of pleasure.

My eyes were stinging. My cock was hard. My heart was being shredded into a million pieces.

He didn't waste any time, he moved down her body with his mouth. He sat back on his heels and surveyed her spread legs and the black cotton panties between them.

He reached down and moved the panties aside with one finger, holding them open so that he (and I) could see the bright, wet pink of her pussy, already engorged and craving his touch. He started lightly, placing a fingertip on her clit and stroking it lightly like a feather.

Sabrina twisted in his hands, mewling like a cat. Sandro stared down at her, calming her into submission with only his gaze. “Stay still,” he growled.

And she did. My Sabrina. My defiant Sabrina. She lower her hips and spread her legs like she was under some kind of spell.

Sandro parted her petals one by one, feeling each layer of her like it was silk at a bazaar. He held her soft, wet skin between his fingers, smiling. I could see what he was thinking. It was written all over his face: how good it would feel when he slipped his cock between each of those swollen, soaked lips. How good it would feel to dominate the indomitable Sabrina.

How good it would feel to fuck me over, to fuck my girlfriend.

I tried to will myself to move, but I couldn't. I was glued to the floor, my breath lodged in my chest like a stone.

He toyed with her clit, making circles on it with his forefinger while she struggled to stay still enough for him to touch her. Her muscles contracted and twisted beneath her skin, and her breath came in ragged puffs from her mouth, every one of them hyper-sexualized and sweaty.

I watched, fascinated and aching with humiliation and pain, my cock so hard it felt like it might split, as Sandro dipped his finger into her pussy.

His finger glided into her. She was so wet I could see her juices glistening on her inner thighs, dripping down to the sheets of the bed we shared.

Sandro put another finger in, and another. Each finger he slipped into her pussy sent a finger through my heart, digging and probing and destroying me with pain.

He clawed upward with his hand inside of her, squeezing her from the inside like a lemon. She howled, and her legs started to tremble.

Sandro pulled his fingers from inside of her. He lifted them to his face. He smiled, enjoying Sabrina – but it almost seemed as if her were smelling my pain.

“This is so wrong,” Sabrina said, and her voice was dripping with sex. She started to sit up, and he pushed her back down.

She didn't really fight it, but I felt a pang of tenderness toward her for just a moment. Thanks for trying. At least she tried.

He stripped the panties away from her, ripping the seam in a single motion. I saw Sabrina's smile, leaking over her face. She was impressed; she was pleased. Because I would never rip her underwear apart.

Sandro reached toward her hands, pulled them free of the bondage of her simple black bra, and guided them down to her spread legs. He threaded her arms through her legs, so that she was holding her legs open for him. She was completely exposed now for his mouth to lap at her, or his cock to be thrust inside of her.

And Sabrina was complying with it all. She was even helping him. Helping him to twist her body like a pretzel into the position he wanted her in. My chest tightened even more as I watched him hover above her for a moment, looking over body, deciding what he would do next. He leaned in, letting his mouth hover over her mound. She writhed beneath him, eager to feel a tongue on her rawest part.

He extended his tongue and toyed with her, lapping with feathery touches at her swollen clit. The sounds Sabrina was making now were animal and torturous to hear, but I sank into them like they were a juicy, sweet fruit on a hot day. She squeaked, and then growled; panted and whimpered like an animal on a chain. The sounds were outside of her own control, it was easy to hear. There was no faking them, no placating her lover – she was wild.

Sandro's face went in for the kill. I couldn't see what he was doing any longer, but it must have been terrific if I went by the sounds Sabrina was making. She flopped around and screamed, digging her nails into her thighs.

I could see her climax rising like a tide. Her muscles were stiffening and her legs were trembling so wildly that her feet were flapping uncontrollably in the air, like a kite in a tornado.

He lifted his head.

The howl that came from Sabrina was an awful sound. She lifted her head and her chest was heaving in panicked gasps. Shiny drops of sweat were soaking out of her skin, her hair was damp and sticking to her forehead. “Don't stop,” she begged. “No, no, no, don't stop!”

“That's good. Good girl, beg me not to stop.”

She panted the word please as he brushed his fingers over her dripping cunt, flicking at her clit, teasing her.

“I want you to beg me a different way. And if you are very, very good, I will make you scream.”

For a moment I felt sure I would no see some kind of vindication. Sabrina was the kind of girl who heard about guys who said this kind of thing, and flew into a rage. She talked about porn stars like they were the scourge of the earth, “reinforcing ridiculous tropes that no woman would ever possibly participate in.”

And yet.

Instead of punching Sandro in the face, Sabrina threw her head back and moaned. She made all kinds of dirty, filthy promises. She begged like a whore.

“What will you do?” Sandro asked her.

He leaned close to her, and said something I could not hear from across the room. Sabrina's own ragged breath was making it hard to hear him.

When he stopped speaking to her, she flipped onto her stomach, in a sexy, feline stretch. As though she had done this a million times, she grasped her ankles from behind her. She was poised on the bed as though in a yoga pose. A slutty, pornographic yoga pose. Her hands clutched her ankles behind her and she lifted her mouth to the height of Sandro's cock.

No way she was going to -

She opened her mouth, and it was wet and hungry. She flicked her tongue out, without any bidding, to lick the precum from the tip of Sandro's huge cock.

I was strung up so tight I thought I would break like a piano wire. My heart was blistering, my cock was about to burst. My balls felt like someone had them in a vice, and they were closing slowly on them.

This is when it happened. The things I can never be sure if I imagined or not.

Sandro turned to the closet, and looked at it – or he looked at me. And he smiled.

He looked at me, grinning, as he moved forward just an inch. Now Sabrina's big, poofy lips closed around the tip of him and she sucked into her mouth like an oyster. He let her lick and suck away for several minutes.

But his head was still turned, to the slatted closet. His eyes seemed to have found mine, somehow. He was looking directly at me, his hand on the back of my girlfriend's head, pushing her throat over his cock.

Or was he?

He turned back to Sabrina then, and watched her mouth moving over his shaft.

My cock was so hard it was sending pain through my entire lower body. This heat mixed with the pain, and the cold fear that had frozen me in place when Sandro's icy blue eyes stared at me. Or didn't.

He worked his fingers into her hair, and pulled it hard. As though she were a blow-up doll, she opened her mouth, with no command at all, and let him slide her face all the way down his shaft.

Sabrina had never, ever let me do anything like this. I watched as she took the whole thing in her mouth, apparently unaware that it was not me. Down her throat, all the way in.

She moaned and made deeply pleased noises.

Sandro tightened his grip on her hair and held her still. From deep in her throat I could hear the sounds of absolute submission: choking, gurgling, swallowing, sucking. And her sultry, moaning approval.

When he pulled out, she had spit and mucous dribbling all over her face.

“Get on your hands and knees with your ass to me, now.”

I watched as Sabrina obeyed. So willingly. So happily.

He pushed her head down, so that she was on the sheets. And now her face was staring directly into the closet as well. I knew that she couldn't see me, but her eyes seemed to meet mine. Her fingers came to her mouth and she sucked on them. She was lost, abandoning herself to Sandro's pleasuring of her, in a way I couldn't even begin to compete with.

I licked my lips, because they were very dry. My cock felt so heavy it might tip me over. I took it in my hand. Even as I did this, I felt shame wash over me. I was too impotent to put a stop to this Italian stud filling my girlfriend up, but I was going to stand behind the closet door and stroke myself off while he did it.

Sabrina grasped the sheets. She pulled them up in fistfuls, screaming into them. Her cheeks were flushed. Her skin was sticky with her spit and the precum that was gushing from the tip of Sandro's cock. She was gorgeous and defiled.

Sandro dipped each of his fingers in her pussy. She whined and gasped, clenching the sheets.

Then he knelt forward, and licked her, starting at her clit – she squealed – and then up, up, in an agonizingly slow line. I knew where he was going. I wanted to look away but I could not. He trailed his tongue in circles around her dull pink anus.

Surely this would be too much for Sabrina.

But no.

She panted ooooohhhh and yes, yes, egging him on, begging for more. She let him lick at her and tease her, and then he slowly worked his tongue into her, and a sound something between a growl and a screech escaped from deep inside of her.

He sat up and fanned his fingers again, dipping them in like he was going to finger paint, and then he slipped them in in the most elegant motion: one in her ass, one in her pussy, and one rubbing against her clit.

Oh God, she whimpered. Her ass bobbed up and down, and she opened her mouth to breathe and bite the sheets around her.

“Get my cock nice a wet for your ass.”

And then he turned to the closet. He smiled. A smile that said, I can get this Sabrina to let me fuck her in the ass, not like you. Just watch me.

“Oh, god” Sabrina howled, but she did nothing to stop him.

He slipped his cock into her engorged slit, and I saw a gush of her sweet juices spill over, down to his balls. He pressed down on the small of her back and pushed her lightly back and forth. He went slowly, even though she begged him and coaxed him.

“Fuck me,” she said, over and over. “Fuck me hard!”

“I’ll fuck your ass hard,” he said.

His face was contorted and he was bursting at the tip of his cock. Of course he was, he was balls-deep in all of that very wet, very pink, very hot flesh, and she was pushing her ass back toward him for more.

Sandro let her beg and moan like this for several minutes. He pulled out and stroked her clit with his cock. Sabrina began to cry. She twisted in the sheets in frustration and disappointment. “Oh please,” she was saying. “Oh please, please, please.”

“Say what you want.”

As he said this, he guided his cock up to her ass. He pressed to the pink entranceway as though his penis was giving her little ring a firm kiss.

“No, I can’t,” Sabrina moaned. “No...I’ve never done that before.”

But she wasn’t moving away, and neither was Sandro. He was watching his cock with all the arrogance of a man who simply did things like this: told women he was going to fuck them in the ass, and then did it.

“You’re going to come with my cock in your ass,” he said, and his voice was soothing and hypnotic again.

Sabrina moaned in response to the command, and said she couldn’t do it. But her claims were made in a weak voice now, and she moved her hips backward, bumping up against his cock. She was submitting to him.

When he pushed forward and stretched open the first part of her, an agonized sound came from the pile of sodden sheets that Sabrina had buried her head in. She roared and clawed at the bedsheets. “Oh GOD,” she screamed.

“Stay right there.” Sandro said it like it was a fact, with the tone of voice one would tell a story in the past tense. Such was his confidence as his cock disappeared inch by inch into her ass.

Sabrina flung herself around on the bed but kept herself there for him, squeaking and crying. I could see her mouth, finally, and it was not as agonized as her crying.

I had a great view of his cock deep in her ass, moving in and out, stretching her tight little hole open. It disappeared into her unyielding skin as she screamed about how big it was and how much it hurt.

“Make yourself come,” he ordered calmly.

Sabrina's hand moved under her body, and it worked its way to her fleshy pussy. The sticky sounds of Sandro deep in her ass and her own juices being squeezed out by her fast-moving fingers filled the room.

Sabrina was covered in an a feral sheen on sweat; her mouth was contorted and her every breath escaped as a whine.

Then a moan, then a howl, then a scream.

When she came her entire body shook, and I watched as a creamy cum gushed from her. It slid down all over her hand, covering her in her own white, sticky cum. I knew her ass was seizing and clenching around Sandro's cock, and I could see how much he enjoyed it. I could see it on his smug little face. He gave me a final grin, his hips rocking back and forth in Sabrina's ass.

Then he took both hands and lifted her by her hips, plunging her up and down on his cock.

Sabrina was used up now and flopped like a rag doll: her ass was so wet with her own cum, and so stretched by Sandro's cock, that her body moved over him like a sex toy. He essentially jerked himself off, with her tight, pink ass as a glove. His face was smug as he grinned at the closet, and at me.

It was his dominating smile, his smile of victory, as he plunged in and out of my crumpled girlfriend, that made me finally tip over the edge. I shook with the most painful orgasm I had ever had, my eyes on Sandro's sticky-wet cock, the ring of tight ass around it. My cum splashed onto my hand, and I slapped the wall to keep from screaming.

I left before I saw him fill her up with his cum, but I heard it as he came, and I imagined it as I scurried like a rat, away from them, and climbed out the fire escape. As I hid myself from both Sabrina and Sandro, neither one of whom I had the balls to confront – that day, or ever – I could see only Sabrina's distended asshole, gushing with white cum, while Sandro's slapped his cock against her ass in victory. Over and over and over again, until I could see nothing else.

CHAPTER 11: A New Plan

When I finished my story (which of course was not as graphic as all that), Summer stood in silence next to me. I couldn't gauge her reaction, or anticipate what she would say next.

"Are you in on some plan with him?" I asked finally.

"I just met him!" she almost shouted. "I had no idea about any of this."

"Look," I said. "I really want you to finish your class." When I started the sentence, I was going to add a pregnant "but," and let her figure from there that she should not go back. I changed my mind, and decided to be a man about it. It was important to her. She had gotten caught up in the strangest of circumstances.

She bit her lip.

There was a long silence.

"What a bastard," she practically spat.

Then, after a pause:

"I have a better idea," she said. "I have...listen. Do you trust me?"

The question was terrifying. I did, didn't I? That's what this all came down to in the end: trust. There was no reason to trust my wife any less, just because she had stumbled onto Sandro Cervi instead of any other man. My wife, after all, was still my wife.

"Yes," I said.

It was mostly true.

Summer was picking up steam, turning her ideas into projects, making her imagination a reality. When she did this, her eyes turned inward on themselves, where her mind was drafting diagrams, rehearsing dialogs, solving problems.

"I'm going to class today. I'm going to think of something...I just need...to think a little...I have an idea though."

I nodded. My throat was too dry to say anything, even "okay."

I spent most of the day in a haze of thoughts and images of Sandro and my wife, while staring at the pages of yellowed books in the library.

The old archivist scowled at me. It seemed hotter than usual, and damp; but it was likely just me, sweating out my fears and excitement. I accomplished nothing, but stayed all day. I was reluctant to go home, as much as I wanted to hear Summer's plan. Part of me, I suppose, still worried about the trust I was handing over to her. Part of me worried that she was with Sandro right now, being seduced and charmed by him. He was, after all, the far better catch: handsome and rich, successful and commanding. He was the epitome of masculinity, and he had a huge cock that he knew how to use to give my wife what she obviously loved in bed.

There was no reason for Summer to choose me, just like there had been no reason for Sabrina to choose me.

Except that she loved me, right?

I wiped sweat from my forehead and tried to carry on. I guessed this would be the test of that.

When I returned from the library Summer was leaning over the banister and looking down at the winding stairs as I ascended. Her hair hung down around her shoulders, and her face was smiling and excited. She had a glass of wine in her hand.

"I have an idea," Summer said, walking ahead of me into the apartment, shedding her shoes and her purse, as though she were the one who had just arrived instead of me. "It will make everyone happy."

She poured me a glass of wine, and refilled her own glass. She leaned across the counter-top and with wide, excited eyes, told me her plan.

It was, indeed, a masterpiece – one in which I got my chance at revenge, and she got another chance to be naughty. It was a win for everyone.

While she told me what she wanted to do, my cock got so hard I felt like I would blow apart, and she smiled and got nearer to me with every sentence. She slipped her hand into my jeans, talking all the time, and took me in her hand. Her other hand slipped the sipper down and freed me from the boxers underneath. My cock sprang into the air, and she looked me in the eye while she continued to describe, in raunchy detail, as much of her plan as she cared to reveal.

She stroked me from the base of my shaft to the tip, up and down, moving with the rhythm of her words, until I came. She was nearing the end of her plan, and then she put her lips together. "That's all I can say about it," she told me. "Because the rest is a surprise." Her hand was stroking me quickly, and I tipped over the edge, folding over as I spilled my seed into her hand.

"What do you think?" She wiped her hand on her dress, and brought her wine glass to her lips, as though we had been discussing a vacuum cleaner.

I was panting.

"It's a good plan," I breathed.

And it was.

THE NEXT DAY

I was starting to get uncomfortable, lying on a metal table in a kitchen area of endless stainless steel, adjacent to Summer's cooking class. She had smuggled me in around 3pm, and covered the table with a white tablecloth to cover me.

"Won't they notice the tablecloth?" I had asked, incredulously.

"They won't notice the tablecloth," she said, and her voice was sexy as ever.

She was sexy as ever.

The plan she had come up with was incredibly dirty. So dirty, I wasn't sure she would be able to pull it off. She was convinced it would be no problem, though, and I was swept up by her new-found naughtiness. She was so in control, so filthy-minded, and so vindictive. Her mind had cooked up a punishment for Sandro, and a way for me to see her being nasty with not one, but two men.

She had also refused to reveal the final act to me, no matter how much I pleaded.

I had pleaded with her as we walked quickly through the streets at lunch hour, in search of a cheap electronics store. She wanted a video camera, she told me to explain to the clerk. A hand-held one. I fumbled with my Italian and watched Summer scan the merchandise. She was cool as a cucumber, and it was hot as hell.

"Tell him the camera doesn't need to be very good."

The clerk, an old man with little patience, rolled his eyes and disappeared into the back of his store.

"Why?" I asked her.

“Because.”

The tension she was building, by revealing some but not all of her plan, was almost too much to bear. She was leaving to wonder if the end would turn on me, or turn on Sandro. I knew she wanted me to wonder, I knew she had a sense that I enjoyed the torture. But still, it was agonizing.

Before she dropped the tablecloth over me, she checked the camera we had ended up purchasing. “The cheapest I have,” the store owner had said languidly, before shooing us out of his store.

Her hands moved quickly over the buttons, as if she did this kind of thing all the time. Then she handed it back to me, with a reminder to keep it silent, and to turn it on before they actually came into the room.

I wasn't sure why Sandro was going to care that he had been filmed having sex, enough that he would do what my wife had planned for him, but Summer winked at me and assured me that he would.

Her confidence was contagious, and I couldn't argue with her.

“You're good to go with this, right?”

I took a moment to think about where I was. Cross-legged under a chef's table, with a video camera in my hand, on the ready to film my wife as she seduced two men.

I nodded. What else can you do?

Summer smiled. “Trust me,” she said. She blew me a kiss, and dropped the cloth.

The tile on the floor soon made its cold way through my light jeans, and my ass started to go numb, but I was breathless with anticipation. My stomach turned and twisted. Anything could go wrong, everything could go right. There were endless possibilities awaiting me. Summer could have a plan to humiliate me, instead. I savored the fantasy for a while, and then I spent some time thinking about the part she wouldn't give me any details about. What did she have planned?

“And then what?” I had asked her.

“And then, I make him pay.”

“I don't think we should try to blackmail anyone...” I began.

“Not with money. You'll see.”

So here I was, waiting to see what my new, twisted wife had thought of.

CHAPTER 12: His Just Desserts

I remembered Summer mentioning Marcel. She had mentioned that he was handsome, that he was French, that he thought “The Chef” was a jackass, that he was also very appealing.

She had not mentioned, however, that Marcel was black.

Inky, deep, night-time black.

So black that he could only be seen against the darkness in the kitchen because he was moving. When he stopped moving, his skin faded away and he seemed to be absorbed by the black-blue light.

Summer was saying something as she came through the door. Something about “it” being “just over here.” How had she lured them, I wondered. But then I saw her ass as she turned on her heel to look back at them, two perfect mounds that moved up and down in the most rounded, interesting way as she walked. The matter was easy to solve.

She wore white jeans, so they must have changed after their class already. I imagined her leaning against a locker, walking her fingers on the metal, fluttering her eyes. “Marcel, mon cherie, could you help me with something? You're so big and strong.”

I could see that the two of them – Sandro and the enormous, muscled Marcel – did not know exactly what was in store for them. But they had hope. They had sniffed it first with her suggestive walk. They were, like any men, expecting her to ask for help with a heavy box, but secretly letting their imagination drift to a fantasy in which she bent over, and asked them to fill her up.

A fantasy in which she did precisely what she was doing now.

She leaned backward against the door. I heard it click as she turned and locked it.

I could only see the two men vaguely in the dark, but the outlines of their forms prickled like animals: ears perked; faces turned; spines stiffened. It was almost as if you could see them sniffing at the air for their prey.

I looked through the camera lens without hope. It was too dark.

Summer, however, was utterly prepared. She behaved as if this were a play she had rehearsed a thousand times, or perhaps it's better to say, she was like a puppeteer. “I like to see what I'm doing,” she purred. “I like to see what you're doing. Turn on the light, would you?”

No one would say no to a request like that, and a voice like that.

The room filled with fluorescent lights and the hum that came with them. The steel glowed.

I could see the face of Marcel now. His eyes shifted from Summer to Sandro, who I could not see but imagined smiling smugly. He was unsure of what he was being trapped into.

Summer ran her tongue along her teeth while she smiled. She was leaning against the door.

“You are one naughty girl, Summer Brooks,” Sandro declared. I could hear it in his voice. How much he liked to say her last name, to enjoy the taste of her belonging to another man -to me - in his mouth.

Summer was a naughty girl, but when her eyes and her smile quickly flickered to me, under the table, I knew she was naughty for me and me alone. I knew in that moment that I could trust her plan. I began to relax, to enjoy the show. I still had no idea what she had planned, but I knew I would like it.

I held the camera steady. My cock was throbbing, but I wanted to wait until the end that she had promised me.

“Don't let yourself come until I say so,” she had told me. “You'll see why.”

I licked my lips.

“I have a little fantasy,” Summer said, moving her fingers along her neckline, “and I think you two might be the ones to help me out with it.”

Marcel's mouth was hanging open, and he looked almost ridiculous for a moment: a big, ebony god with eyes wide, scared of my wife.

But as his eyes moved over the scene, and especially over my wife's body, he quickly grasped what was about to happen. He recovered well.

His voice was deep and syrupy with a French accent. “What is it you need for this fantasy?”

Summer gave Sandro a look, and then she moved closer to Marcel.

“I have a thing for sausage,” she said. Her hand moved over his chest, and began to make its way down to his crotch, where I could see part of him already understood Summer's desires. “And I've never had any French sausage before...”

Her hand squeezed him through his lightweight jeans.

The two men were moving closer to her now. But she kept right going, so there was nothing unclear about what she wanted.

“An Italian, French, American fusion,” she murmured. “With sausage?”

It was almost funny, when I thought about it later: so clichéd, so hilariously lifted from some B-grade porno script. The three of them, though, had become animal-serious, circling each other, getting ready to mate. No one laughed.

And what of Ben, tucked away under the table? I was sweating, even though the kitchen was cool and the floor had frozen me through my ass earlier. I was breathing in serrated gasps, and despite my best efforts, the scene on the camera screen jumped round wildly as though I were running.

Inside, I felt like my guts were sweating as well. Was it from excitement? From fear?

Summer was formidable. She had converted into my fantasy woman, and now she almost terrified me.

And then there was the reality unfolding before me: she was going to take it hard from two men.

My mind remembered Sandro, but my rushing blood drowned everything out except Summer. Summer sliding the straps of her shirt off each shoulder. Summer slipping out of her jeans. Summer encased in black and white panties, which I could only guess she had bought for this occasion.

Marcel was the first to act. The enormous ebony man pulled his shirt off in one quick movement, and revealed a chiseled chest, a vicious burn on his forearm, and biceps that seemed as large as Summer's waist.

She looked him up and down with approval. Her hand was in his jeans as he took them off, and when she found his cock with her exploring fingers, she opened her mouth in gigantic smile. She treated me to a sideways glance at that moment. When her eyes widened with her pleasure, my pulse quickened as though I had been stabbed with a needle-full of adrenaline.

In a tidy movement, Summer moved slowly down to a crouching position, as though inspecting tires on a car. As she moved down his body she placed her hands on him, feeling with obvious pleasure the hard, dark body. She tugged at his jeans until they slipped down around his ankles, and then she did an amazing trick of turning herself slightly. He followed her cue, and also made the slight turn.

“Take it all off for me, Marcel,” she said, and lifted her eyes to meet his.

Sandro had leaned against a table, and was smugly and slowly unbuckling his belt. He had kicked off his shoes, I noticed. Summer's were still on: black heels that wrapped around her foot like bondage.

But it wasn't what I was looking at: I could see Marcel's cock clearly now. It was a long, thick, black-red snake stretched in front of him. Just inches from Summer's wet mouth, which she was twisting around seductively in front of him, moving closer to him without touching him. Teasing him.

Her eyes focused on his cock as she let her knees drop, one by one, so that she was no longer crouching but kneeling. Her eyes widened as she drank in the sight of him, and she licked her lips appreciatively.

She reached with her hand and grasped his hard flesh. She smiled. “Oh,” she exclaimed. “Oh, it's so big! It might be too big.”

She looked back at Sandro. Was she goading him?

Her voice was carrying everywhere, it seemed. Echoing endlessly in the metal and tile room. Oh it's so big, oh it's too big!

My cock throbbed. I wanted desperately to shift my position, but I was afraid of dropping the camera, or missing a moment of the action. Or worse, disappointing Summer by falling out from under the tablecloth and ruining her unknown plan.

Summer guided Marcel's cock to her lips, and she rubbed the tip of it against them. The man's enormous member twitched, and because it was so big, I could see it from where I was. Summer wrangled it back to where she wanted it, and then she looked over at Sandro invitingly.

The message was clear, and he understood it.

I couldn't have had a better view: Summer was kneeling between the two of them, and they were turned at a slight angle toward her. She placed a hand on Sandro's cock. With one huge cock in each hand, she looked from one to the other, as though she simply couldn't decide which delicious treat she wanted to eat first. She was almost facing me now, and she looked to the center, at me, for me..and winked again.

Marcel was the first to break. His giant black hand came out of nowhere and cradled Summer's entire head in his palm, like a basketball.

He pushed her toward him.

Summer opened her mouth, and I watched as her red-painted lips slid down Marcel's black shaft. The dark meat disappeared into her, inch after thick, black inch, until her lips closed around the base of his cock.

Marcel groaned.

Summer leaned back ward, and the seemingly endless black cock slithered out her, wet and sticky with her spit now, slipping from deep in her throat. When it fell from her mouth it was so much harder that it barely bobbed down, and now it seemed almost monstrous. She returned her hand to the shaft, and turned to Sandro.

She gave his cock a look. It was almost imperceptible, but I am sure that Sandro saw it. A look as though her next task would be easy. Almost a shrug of the face.

She repeated her talented dive over Sandro's cock. Her lips slid easily over him, and she opened up wider and wider, without even gagging, taking the whole fat Italian cock into her mouth.

I watched in lurid fascination as she moved back and froth from Sandro to Marcel, and the fat members of these two other men filled her throat. They grasped her head and her hair, and pushed her deep onto them, until even the talented Summer began to gurgle a little, and choke slightly. Each time her mouth left the tip of one cock, spit trailed from her lower lip to the flesh of the man she had just sucked. It was dribbling down to her breasts, dampening the bra she was wearing. Her makeup began to smear. She was turning into a beautiful, exquisite mess.

It was Summer who remained in control, however. Summer who stopped by resting back on her heels and scooting away from them. She was gasping for breath, and covered in slick, viscous saliva and precum. She didn't make a move to wipe her face.

At this point I saw that I had let the camera slowly drop, and I was filming the floor. I jerked it back to her face.

"I want you inside of me," she said. "I want to fuck both of you at the same time. I want to get all. Filled. Up."

She felled the giant Marcel by reaching out for his cock and pulling him down to the floor with it in her hand. She pushed him down onto the floor, where now they were close enough to me that I could smell the sweat of their bodies. Beneath that scent was the sweet, honeyed aroma of Summer's cunt. She wriggled free of her underwear, and was left in only her lovely bra and the black heels that so sexily bound her feet.

She straddled Marcel, who seemed to have been taken utterly by surprise and was only just recovering his senses enough to grab for her body with his giant hands. His dark skin was pressed against Summer's hips, then her breasts, then her legs. He was moving his hands around her body like she was silly-puddy he would mold into something different. In his enormous paws her body – so round, so full – looked fragile as a teacup.

His cock was pointed at the ceiling, just behind her ass. Summer rocked her hips a little, so that her fleshy bottom stroked his shaft with a feathery kiss. Where her mound met his pelvis, a sheen of her excitement stuck to his skin.

Impatient, Marcel used one of his hands to grasp her arm and hold her in place, and the other to grab his own cock. He lifted her up – and she had to rise to kneeling, which even then was not high enough – and guided his cock to her pussy.

Summer reached down with her own hands, and held the big cock between them. She rubbed the tip of his shaft against her clit, but because of its length, she almost had to bend it. She abandoned the plan and moved the tip of his cock to her wet hole.

She looked over to me, biting her smiling lip as she sank down his column.

I sucked in my breath as my wife's pink pussy filled to the brim with his black cock. When she came to rest against his pelvis she let out a deep moan, and purred like a cat. “Oh, fuck, your cock feels so good. I'm all filled up by it.” She mewled again. Sweat was gathering on her skin, making her shine as though she had been oiled.

Marcel grasped her hips, and moved her easily, as though the weight of her were nothing, up and down, over his cock. The sticky sound of her flesh being fucked while she creamed all over another man's cock filled my ears.

And then, to my utter surprise, she leaned forward, propping herself up with one hand on Marcel's hard chest. For a moment it seemed that this was to position herself so that Marcel could pump away at her, which he did. But I saw her extend her arm behind her, and over her ass, and then stretching gracefully, she reached for her own ass with her fingers.

Sandro.

I had forgotten Sandro. The image of the black flesh filling my wife and making her howl had erased him from my mind.

But there he was. He had knelt behind her, between Marcel's legs.

Summer tossed her hair again, and turned her gaze on Sandro, watching his face as her fingers fanned across Marcel's pumping cock, and drew her own moisture up to her ass. He watched as she slid her own fingers inside of her.

I watched as Sandro rose to a half-standing kneel, and positioned himself just over her asshole. He pursed his lips, and a glob of clear spit dropped from his mouth. It missed, and slid down her bobbing ass. He tried again, and it nearly hit its target. As I hoped, he gave it one more try.

My cock, now, seemed to have fallen away from my body. It ached worse than it ever had, and though it seemed like my torture couldn't get any worse, even more superheated pain filled my dick as I watched Sandro spit on my wife's anus.

She rubbed her own ass, still looking back at him.

The tip of his cock was nearing her now, close to her pink eyelet.

"It's so big," Summer gasped again. "It's too big. I can't take it all!"

What a show. She was gasping and panting, moving her hips up and down, and that voice. Her voice said that not only could she take it all, she wanted it all.

Sandro wound her her hair in his hand, and palmed her asscheek with the other. He moved her ass toward his cock. Summer let her own hand drop to Marcel's chest.

"OH GOD!" she screamed, in a low growl, as he began to enter her.

He was taking his time, and only a few inches of his thick slab were between her legs already. "Oh!" she squealed. "Oh, it hurts! It's too big for me!"

But her voice, of course, indicated that it was just the right size for her, and her mouth was open in gasp of pleasure.

He released her hair and she fell forward. I watched as she fell onto Marcel's chest, as though she were a lover resting on him, instead of a hotwife taking his cock hard. Marcel gathered her hair now, conveniently pulling it away from her face so I could see her contorted gasps for air.

Sandro's cock moved in and out of my wife, shaking her gently against Marcel's body. Her open mouth, her closed eyes, her fair skin pushed with each thrust against his ebony muscles. I watched his cock, glistening with her wetness, dipping further into her. Stretching her open in the ass, while Marcel's thick meat pushed the lips of her pussy open. I could almost feel, in my own cock, the sensation he must have, of sinking into her tight softness, the length of his cock against the veined hardness on the other side of the flesh between her two tunnels, spread thin as a membrane. His balls slapped against the big, hairy balls of the giant black man, who had his mouth open and my wife's head clutched in his hand as Sandro fucked everyone to a screeching, twisting climax.

Summer moaned. Oh yes, her mouth formed, but the sound that she made was like a sputtering animal at the verge of drowning. Sandro picked up speed, and his thighs slapped against her upturned ass as she clawed at Marcel's skin. Back and forth, back and forth, her face sliding on her own sweat and the sparkling black surface of Marcel's chest. She cried and mewled, biting her lip and saying over and over how big and thick their cocks were, how she just couldn't take any more.

I couldn't take any more. The ache in my own cock was so consuming I felt only the throb and the quiver of it. I had let the camera fall, and I was sick and sweating. I tried to lift it but I was so consumed by the ecstasy of watching the two men violate my wife so thoroughly that my hand refused to obey me.

She opened her eyes as she came, looking straight to me. Her eyes were black with excitement, her pupils having spread like her holes. As her body spasmed with her own delight, she opened her mouth as though to scream, but her voice was caught in her chest. For a moment the scream ricocheted through her without escape. When she finally yelled, the sound vibrated with the rhythm of Sandro's hard, deep thrusts.

My stomach filled with what felt like a cold liquid, but my cock was so hot and so heavy with desire I felt it would break apart like a water balloon if I moved at all. I realized I was holding my breath, and I gasped.

Summer was the only one who heard me, because Marcel was groaning – a thundering, deep groan that came from deep inside of him, and Sandro was hammering hard with his own need.

He arched his back, and Summer kept her eyes locked on mine as her two holes filled to the brim with cum, as they slammed it deep, deep inside of her. I could hear how their cocks sloshed now in the cocktail of cum that was splattering from her two, wet, filled holes.

“Fill me up! Fill me up with your hot cum!” She screamed, as they thrust the final spurts of their seed into her. All for effect, all for me, as though she knew my mind and wanted to burst my cock with her words.

They panted in a heap for a moment, catching their breath.

Sandro did the thing he loved so much, of pulling his cock slowly from the women he fucked, and admiring the rising well of cum that oozed from their tightening holes. He watched as it welled up and spilled over, down to the cushion of brown balls beneath her pussy. Running like a river, mingling with everyone's sticky white froth.

Then he released her, pushing himself up on the small of her back, crushing her into Marcel.

Summer lay inert on Marcel's chest.

It was me now, alone beneath the table, unable to calm my heavy breathing, dizzy with ecstasy and pain, who needed release.

Summer gave Marcel a smile, and rolled off of him. She pushed her sweaty hair from her face and adjusted her bra, which still held her tits neatly encased in silk and lace; the only part of her nearly unravished. She sat so that I could see between her legs, where her thighs were wet and slippery with cum. Her pussy was distended, her ass gaped.

She looked around, very suddenly composed, as though she was looking for her keys.

Sandro leaned against a table, panting.

“Mrs. Brooks,” he said, when she stood up. “You are a very naughty girl.”

She tossed her hair. Her face was different now. There was an element of meanness in it. She bestowed a waspish grin on Sandro, and winked. “I am.”

I could barely breathe now. My stomach was gathering flesh from every corner of my torso and wringing it tightly. My cock, near busting, could take no more.

But Summer was not done yet.

“I just want to show you something,” she said. Her voice was still thick and syrupy, still coming out of her mouth like honey. Her mouth that had just swallowed his cock, was still full of the taste of his precum.

But her voice had an acidic quality to it, and Sandro heard it.

I had a good view of Sandro as his face changed, and his body turned flaccid. I could see that the same cold, indescribable fear was building inside of him, filling up his arteries, moving from his heart out to the rest of his body. His eyes watched the camera in her hand.

Marcel was intrigued, but he no fear gripped him. If anything, he seemed amused. He said something in French, but when it left his mouth it sounded like a laugh.

Summer twisted the camera in her hand. She was haughty now, in control of everything.

Even I didn't know where this would go, or where she was leading us. She didn't make anyone wait for long.

"Now," she said, and her voice had a dominant ring to it. "I think a lot of people would be very interested to see something like this on the internet." She was strutting now, to Marcel's amusement. "A successful chef, soon to get his own TV show...so unprofessional, so..." her eyes drifted to Marcel, who was rising up to his full height like a mountain forming in a tectonic plate shift. She left the statement in the air, telling its own story. So nearly gay, in a country of macho men.

Sandro looked like a tiger, ready to pounce.

"I wouldn't," Summer warned. Her voice was sharp and she let this warning tell its own story as well: she was covered in his cum, filled with his cum. Everyone had seen enough Hollywood movies, enough TV dramas to see where she might be headed. She was a respectable and beautiful wife and mother of two, and Sandro was a testosterone-hyped playboy chef who wouldn't take no for an answer. "Anyway the disc has been tucked away somewhere safe." It wasn't, but it seemed like a prudent thing to add as she unpacked her blackmail surprise.

What was she doing, I wondered. Now the game seemed dangerous, but I was too excited to feel any real fear. Summer, too, seemed to hold the whole elaborate plan in her hands, like an expert knife juggler. She had her dead-calm voice on now.

She didn't give Sandro too much time to think. She let her words wash over him quickly, once, backing him into a corner. He was getting flushed with anger now.

My cock could barely take the pressure that was building up. I didn't dare move; it was part of her plan. Stay where you are until I tell you to come out.

"Now, Sandro," she purred. "I wouldn't want to ruin your life. That's so...tasteless. A sex scandal," she tisked. "I know you're Italian, but I don't think what just happened here is anything you'd want to get out. So let me see..." she ran her hand along the shiny table. "I need to go back to my husband. You remember Ben, don't you? I love Ben. I wouldn't want Ben to know how naughty I've been, you see." She looked over at Marcel.

"Darling, if you want to leave...it doesn't concern you."

Marcel shook his head. He was thoroughly amused. He chuckled a low laugh, and then he crossed his arms, leaned against a table, and crossed one ankle over the other. He had found his pants and put them on in some act of graceful magic. He was staying for the finale.

She set the camera down, as though it were useless, as though to back up her claim that the disc was somewhere else entirely. She moved closer to Sandro.

"So I think," she said, catching a lone chair with her foot and pulling it close to her, "that we can work something out." She sat down, and spread her legs open. "I think, that if someone could clean me all up, then Ben wouldn't notice anything, and I could probably just..." she glanced at the camera, and shrugged, as though it had fallen out of her hand.

I watched with the most perverse kind of pleasure as Sandro's face turned red and then pink and then white and then red again. I could almost feel the confusion and the sickness that twisted inside of him.

"How do I know you'll give it to me?" he spat.

Marcel tried to cover a laugh with a cough. Sandro shot him a look and something poisonous in French. Marcel shrugged in reply. His big white teeth were showing through his dark lips, in a mean smile.

"Come on, Sandro darling. It's what I want. Just clean me up nicely, and we can forget about the whole thing."

I sucked in my breath.

For a moment Sandro was still. Then his head hung a little, like the dog that he was. A beaten dog.

I almost felt sorry for him.

He slumped to his knees. Marcel tipped his head back in vicious glee, but made no sound.

Summer reached out, and placed her hands on Sandro's head. She scooted her soaked pussy to the edge of the chair. "There we go," she cooed. "Do a good job cleaning."

I was disappointed, though I knew it must have been tricky to orchestrate any of this at all, that I had no view of Sandro's face as he lowered himself to where my wife's sodden pussy was. I could not see his tongue finding its way to her cream-filled hole, and I couldn't see him lap up Marcel's cum from inside of her.

But I could hear it. Like a dog drinking water from a bowl of flesh.
Lap, lap, lap lap.

"That's it," Summer said. She held her hand out, with a single finger held up. For me. Telling me to wait just a little longer.

"Oh, good. Now keep going. Right there. Suck it out. Drink up."

She really made him work for it, holding his head against her wet flesh. The sounds of his sucking and licking echoed around the room.

Finally she released him, and he fell back to his heels. He glared at her, and wiped his mouth.

"Now the tape," he sneered.

Summer didn't answer. She stood up and turned, and propped herself up on the chair with her ass back toward him. She winked at me under the tablecloth, and displayed her ass for Sandro. Her hair made a shimmering arc of golden-brown as she tossed her hair over her shoulder. "I really need everything cleaned up," she insisted.

My need for release had been tapping against my insides up until now, but it slammed against me as though another person were growing inside of me and had kicked my groin. My eyes were so wide they were beginning to sting.

I looked at Summer, and she was unrecognizable. She was a whoreish, mean, temptress. She was using her sexual powers to get everything she wanted, to humiliate another man.

It was intoxicating.

Sandro looked at Marcel, as though for help. Marcel extended his arm in the universal arc of hospitality.

"I'm not doing it," Sandro said.

"No?" Summer said. She shook her ass a little. "That's cool. I suppose I'll just have to get this out on the internet, if my marriage is going to be ruined over a thing like this."

Silence.

"You already went this far," Summer said sweetly. "Just get me all cleaned up, Sandro. A real man cleans up after himself."

Marcel laughed out loud. "Just do it, man."

Sandro was still on his knees, so it was a short stretch for him to begin.

A knife of satisfaction ripped through me as he sucked in his breath, and leaned forward to place his hands on Summer's hips.

Summer turned to me, and was looking right at me with a wicked grin as the sounds of Sandro's humiliating lapping filled the room. Sucking his own cum out of her ass.

"Get it all," she breathed. "Do as good of a job for me as you did before. But get it all cleaned up."

Her eyes were half-closed in pleasure.

"I have to get all cleaned up for Ben, Sandro darling. I'm going to see him very soon."

She had a naughty smile for me as she said this.

Oh god. If her plan required me to stand up or walk, I was going to fall over on my own dick and impale myself. I was faint from the rush of blood that was leaving every organ except that one.

Sandro suddenly jerked his head away. He spit and wiped his mouth. "There," he said.

Summer sighed. "Oh, all right. If that's the best you can do."

She stood up, and conveniently found her underwear on the floor next to her foot. She pulled it up neatly while Sandro stared at her with a mixture of humiliation, anger, attraction, and admiration on his face. She shimmied into her pants, as though she were dressing in her own room, perfunctorily. The red shirt was near the camera, and she picked the hand-held we had bought earlier that morning up and turned quickly, tossing it to Sandro.

Sandro reacted quickly and caught the camera with ease. He looked down at it, and the final pieces of comprehension washed over him, like a trickle of rain. Marcel sprinkled him with his amused laughter.

The disc had been there all along.

Summer pulled her shirt over her head. "Gents," she said, as she did. "Thanks for your assistance. Ben."

I heard my name but it took me a moment to realize it had left her mouth. It was slowly moving inside of me. What did it mean?

"Let's go, honey. I'm sure you're in need of some TLC."

I fell, awkwardly to say the least, from behind the tablecloth. My cock was hard and my legs screamed at me with a thousand small bites where they had fallen asleep. I managed to straighten myself out and walk with some dignity.

“Dang,” I heard Marcel say, in imitation of American blacks. It was mangled by his French accent, but it still felt good to hear. A convenient one-liner, delivering a pang of satisfaction.

I turned back to look at Sandro as I left. His face was utterly stunned, the camera in his hand, his mouth open.

Like I said, there was always a part of Sandro that you couldn't help liking. It was the same thing that almost made me feel sorry for him, again. But as the door swung closed, I felt certain that in the final seconds, his mouth turned slightly upward. The expression was, if it really happened, most akin to camaraderie.

Summer collapsed into laughter in the hallway, and she took my hand to walk fast, and then we ran. She was ahead of me, looking back occasionally, through hallways and out into a courtyard, through an adjacent building, into another set of hallways. All in a blur. My heart was pounding but every ounce of blood was rushing to my cock, and the only thing I could feel was how much I wanted to burst inside of her.

She pushed a door open and we entered a restroom.

I grabbed her and pushed her against the wall, turned her around and pushed her capris away hastily. My hand tugged at the soaked underwear, and slipped into the mess that still covered her, in spite of Sandro's cleanup. She pressed her hands against the wall and helped me find my way inside of her pussy. In only a few thrusts inside her scorching, filthy wet pussy, I came hard, crushing her against the wall. My orgasm seemed to last for minutes, and I let it shake out of me as I sandwiched her to the wall, panting, breathing in the heavy scent of hardcore fucking that covered her skin.

Epilogue

“Where's your wife, then?” Nigel Wentworth says to me, looking sideways for her like nervous hamster as he hands me a glass of wine.

I know where Summer is, and so does everyone in the room. She is covered, only tastefully enough, in a clingy and strappy red dress that seems like it will slip off of her but never does. The tan she acquired in Italy, the final two weeks that we spent at the beach (Summer, topless and unafraid of it) still radiates from her skin. Her plump lips are painted the same bright rose-red shade as her dress, and all anyone can see are her breasts, and her round bottom, moving beneath her dress like small bowling balls under a magician's silk cape. Awaiting some kind of magic trick.

I sip my wine and smile. “Around,” I say vaguely.

Against all odds, I managed to complete my research and then, the eight months after we returned, a book. I had strayed from my original topic, and written a historical comparison of sexuality and social unrest. The publisher had opted for a launch party, the book was so riveting.

Well, not really. But it was a glamorous success in my circles, and I had been absorbing praise all night while my wife sparkled around the room with all eyes on her.

Summer glittered next to the bar, where she was flirting shamelessly with a bartender ten years younger than her. I smiled.

The unwritten rule seemed to be that there was no real hotwifing until the summer. Just teasers, a constant reminder of what lay in store for me when we took another holiday this summer.

Summer.

When I had met her, the word had divorced itself from the season in my mind. There was Summer, wife, mother. And summer, season of heat and mowed lawns.

Now there was one Summer, and it filled my head like a bottle of wine.

Summer, my wife, everyone agreed without saying, had returned from Rome a changed woman. They meant a reawakened woman, a sexy woman, a confident woman.

She was unstoppable now.

She looked over her shoulder and found my eyes. Briefly, but long enough that it felt as though she trailed her tongue the length of my shaft with a single look. I watched the bartender as she returned her attention to him. He was eating it up.

Summer knew I was watching. Enjoying her flirting, the preview for what was to come. She had all year to tease me, and she was in it for the long game. She enjoyed it.

“Whatcha doin' this summer, old buddy?” I said.

Nigel answered me, but I heard nothing except Summer, moaning softly in my ear. Her two round buttocks moving underneath the silk, she tipped her head back and touched her throat for the bartender. For me.

All for me.
