A Note To Readers

I wasn't sure how to title this novella, because it has elements of cuckolding, hotwifing, and swinging in it, and calling it one thing or the other, well...was going to ruin the surprise, or likely rain down angry hellfire on me from readers for misclassifying the story (Sorry, all. Sometimes it's tougher than it looks). I've settled with 'swingers' for reasons that I hope will be obvious, and satisfactory, at the end of the story. A word of warning: like Nothing Better To Do, this is a story meant purely to be dirty and fun.

Lately there seems to be a lot of talk, on all forums, about how realistic a story is in this genre. I think the discourse about erotica is great, don't get me wrong. But it's given me the feeling I need to explain why I do the things I do:

I do like dealing with reality and consequences in my novels, and so if you are more into the couple's relationship and how it develops or unfolds as a result of their extramarital adventures, you probably will prefer things like Not Black and White, The Tenant, The Hotwife Summer, The Hotwife Tattoo, or A Gamble.

For me, though, what is fun about erotica is that it doesn't always have to deal with real consequences, or realistic scenarios. People can do very naughty things, without having to deal with the aftermath. Like a car chase in action movies in which the car drives up the wall or something (which drives me utterly nuts, just like the lack of realistic disease transmission drives me berserk in The Walking Dead, one of my favorite shows) this is a story about people doing a really wild thing they wanted to do but knew they shouldn't, and in the end...well, that's the end.

Also, I have an extremely dirty mind.

So if you're up for that, I hope you enjoy this story. And if you aren't, read no further, but be patient: I am cooking up a long novel more in the vein of my other novels, coming soon.

As always, I sincerely hope you enjoy reading my story as much as I enjoyed writing it.

Try To Have Some Fun

Sherry was already flustered, but she had applied the most plastic version of her soccer-mom smile to her face and nothing could penetrate it. She had Jordan by the collar, to keep him from spilling over the railing, and her other hand hovered next to Eva, who had a tendency to bolt. But Sherry's mouth was rigid with cheer and she was smiling down at us, as though the entire morning had not been a series of small disasters, followed by whining, followed by yelling, followed by more whining.

Sherry.

I blocked out the screaming children – not just ours, but the whole cruise ship full of them – and appreciated my wife. Her pretty face, framed by shoulder-length blonde hair. Her full, round breasts and the small waist hiding underneath her loose shirt, which also covered her the pleasing curvature of her ass. Sherry had one of those nice, round bottoms that looked particularly good in jeans, and she rarely showed it off. But I knew it was there, hiding.

I was imagining the feel of Sherry's bottom against my fingers as I slipped them beneath one round globe to cup her, when my musings were interrupted. My (sort of) brother-in-law Hank appeared next to Sherry and said something to make her wooden smile take on a more genuine shape. She turned to him and pushed a strand of hair over her ear.

The bad feeling I had been having crept back into my mind, as I watched the plasticity of Sherry's smile melt away in real pleasure. She forgot about Eva and let her hand drop to her side, swinging flirtatiously near her hip. She was laughing at Hank's jokes.

“This is like a federal prison sentence.”

Iskra's throaty voice wafted past me from behind, vibrating against my neck and prickling my skin with an odd mix of attraction and dread. Something about the timbre of Iskra's voice, mingling with her very slight accent, infused everything she said with a hint of the apocalypse. “Do you want to come to this children's party?” she could ask. “There will be clowns and popcorn.”

And it sounded like she had invited you to eat your own bowels in hell for all eternity.

This time, though, the sentiment wasn't entirely inappropriate. We were standing in the cool shadow of the world's largest ocean liner, and all of the prefabricated utopia that it offered. Stuck, in the ocean, for five days of family-oriented fun on a theme-park-themed boat.

It wasn't my kind of vacation, and I knew it wasn't Iskra's kind of vacation, either. Hank, who drove trucks to oil rigs in the Arctic for a living, and had two full sleeves of tattoos rippling up and down his muscular arms, was being a good sport; but if I had to guess, I'd say it wasn't his cup of tea either.

I don't even think Sherry wanted to be here, but she had won our family's vacation as a prize.

You know those sweepstakes you figure no one ever actually wins? Those things you can only get if you have an in-home demonstration, which no one in their right mind wants to do? Well, my wife won the all-expense paid cruise.

And then she had the brilliant idea of inviting along Iskra, my ex-sister-in-law.

Iskra, and her new husband Hank. Who is sort of a brother-in-law.

I guess.

It's complicated.

The kids were all about the same age and close friends all through childhood, because Iskra's kids had practically lived with us while she and my brother went through a messy divorce. Sherry's logic was that the kids would play together, while the four of us "had a great time."

I doubted it would work out like that, and I knew from the way Iskra was squinting at the ship like it had just stepped on her foot, that she doubted it, too.

But we were all going to try.

Try to have fun.

I was under strict orders from Sherry to do so.

"You find what you were looking for?" I said to Iskra.

She was holding a slender, tanned hand over her eyes and staring up at the top of the ship. She flitted her dark eyelashes and her green eyes met mine. "Yeah, but now I just have to go to the pharmacy and get a suitcase of Valium," she said. And then, in that way of Iskra's, she didn't bother to clarify if she was joking or not. She slinked past me, because Iskra always slinks, and started up the gangway ahead of me.

I tried to keep my eyes focused on the criss-crossed white metal of the grated plank, or the water, or the gangway next to us, and not Iskra's small, lovely ass. Or the swash of exposed skin, all of it smooth and toffee-colored, between her tight jeans and the blue crocheted top that barely cupped the swell of her breasts in front and overlapped in back so that all of her unblemished, tight, young skin was begging to be looked at.

Or touched.

Her dark, shiny black hair swished against her skin as she walked. I loved Iskra's cascading hair. I always wanted to touch it, and feel it slip between my fingers, silky and almost blue with blackness.

Iskra had been a problem – a small one, because I had my own lovely wife, who I loved – since my brother had introduced her to me nearly a decade ago, when she was barely twenty. ('Iskra,' my brother had explained, means 'spark' in Bulgarian. He had assured me it was true, especially in the bedroom).

While averting my eyes, I looked up and over at my wife and Hank.

Trouble brewing there, too.

I was probably being crazy. I probably felt guilty because I harbored a secret, fantastical desire for Iskra, because I had once or twice jerked off with Iskra in mind, with Iskra on her knees in my imagination, sucking my cock with her large lips, her black hair bobbing up and down on my cock and tickling my thighs. The guilt made me try to make Sherry guilty of something, and the easiest thing to do was accuse her, in my mind, of a similar kind of forbidden lust.

But was it all that hard to imagine? Hank was a masculine guy, a real man. They had time together, and a ready-made excuse. Hank was often there at our house when I came home. He had come to pick up the kids, but often stayed for a coffee. Sometimes he had a beer.

It's true, they were just in the kitchen when I found them, with coffee cups or a glass in front of them.

But Sherry laughed a lot more at Hank than she did at...well, anyone. Including me. She tucked her hair behind her ear a lot. I swear she batted her eyelashes all the time.

And Hank was always “fixing” something in our house.

So handy. Hank the handy man.

I had worked myself up into a bit of an attitude by the time we got to the top and walked toward Sherry and Hank. A flustered cruise hostess did not want to let us go against the traffic flow. Iskra smiled brightly and shook the hostess's hand fervently while screeching cheerfully at her in Bulgarian.

She pulled this move all the time and it never failed. I watched her and winked at her. Iskra's love of being sparky and causing trouble was one more thing that I found incredibly sexy about her.

I mean, I'm sure she was a handful to actually live with, because she had a temper that flared up instantaneously, and she gave off the impression that she might be the type to actually get into a knife fight.

I'm sure that on a daily basis this was terrifying.

But from a distance it was sexy as hell.

I slipped past her and approached my wife, who was watching Iskra with interest.

Surprisingly, Sherry really liked Iskra. She had been the one to condemn my brother the most fervently during their divorce, and she had worked hard to keep her relationship with Iskra, even if it was now a little...strange. Especially since Iskra had married Hank in Vegas one weekend, without much notice.

(My brother had been none-too-pleased to hear of this trip, either.)

I looked at Sherry's face with scrutinizing eyes.

She seemed a bit flushed.

I wondered if Hank had been talking seductively to her. Plotting a getaway on the cruise ship. Maybe he found Iskra too dark, too brooding. He was tired of her dry commentary, her Slavic negativity, her lack of compliments and friendliness, and then her 'sparks' of mischief and bad temper.

He wanted a bright, cheerful all-American girl, like my wife, who would smile while he fucked her and compliment his skills.

I blinked.

I had already driven myself slightly crazy over the past few months, since the idea first occurred to me that Hank and Sherry might be sneaking around on me. I watched the two of them like a hawk. I felt certain that Sherry was up to something unusual – she had seemed a little more distant, a little spaced-out lately.

Like she was thinking of someone else.

All the time.

And why not Hank? He was the typical good-looking bad boy with a heart of gold. His muscled arms were covered in tattoos, and swirled into the mix were his army tats, from when he was a Ranger. Now he drove trucks in the Arctic Circle and fixed motorcycles the rest of the year.

He was a hard guy. I had only heard stories, of course, with the exception of the Dog Incident, which I saw with my own two eyes. A scary Rottweiler, in a foul mood, had wandered into the neighborhood and was behaving pretty strangely. Growling. Everyone was backing away. Hank had headed straight for the dog, who continued growling and started barking at him. When the dog had lunged at him, Hank had caught it by the throat with one bulging arm, knocked it onto the ground, and pinned it there until it started whining.

It was fucking incredible.

Now the dog, who it turned out was just hungry and hadn't been properly cared for by an alpha-male like Hank, was the family dog. His name was Casey.

So, you know...

I couldn't help but wonder if he was doing something similar with my wife.

By the time we got to our cabin, I was in fine form. Between the lurking thoughts about Hank and Sherry, Iskra's infectious cynicism, and the facts that all four kids were whining incessantly about everything imaginable, I had my Grumpy Middle Aged Man Hat screwed on pretty tightly.

I was given instructions, because of my bad mood, to get into my swim shorts and go 'check out' the ship and relax with a beer until they could catch up to me and we could all go to the pool. Sherry stopped me on my way out the door.

"I have a gift for you," she said, and her eyes were lit up with a little bit of mischief. She actually snorted a little as she said it, it was so amusing to her.

Her hands moved playfully on my chest, and I was briefly de-toxified by a pleasant fantasy of my wife being in a good mood and relaxing on this cruise. Maybe having too much wine at dinner, wanting to get a little funky in bed...

Sherry withdrew a brown paper bag from her suitcase, and handed it to me.

"Oh," I said. "What's this?"

It was too much to hope that it would be a sexy black negligee, but I hoped anyway.

I withdrew an article of clothing, but it was not silky or lacy. Or black. It was rough cotton, and covered in ludicrous, large flowers and giant toucan beaks.

"A Hawaiian vacation shirt." I mused. "Perfect. I was only praying someone would buy me one of these so my evolution to middle-aged dad would be complete."

In truth, though, the shirt was touching in some strange way. Sherry's fingers fluttered up to her nose, and she let out another silly, wet giggle. "I'm sorry," she said. "I couldn't resist. I just...wanted to thank you for being so patient about this trip. Also, it's very, very funny."

She watched me put it on, and ran her fingers down my chest while it was bare.

We kissed, tenderly, and I started feeling immediately guilty for having all the ridiculous thoughts I had had about her and Hank.

A strangled, high-pitched whine wandered into the room, growing louder: “Jordan sat on my bed and messed up all the covers and now he's supposed to have that one!”

And then did not! Did, too! Did-not-did-so....

Sherry smiled at me. “Go. Don't get grumpy again. You can't possibly, in a shirt like that. We'll meet you at the pool.”

I lingered for a moment, and considered staying to help, but the crying started. Sherry smiled lovingly, and so, I went.

It turned out to be pretty much like I had feared. It was a huge ship full of children like mine, wives like mine, and husbands like me, frowning and yelling at their kids to have a good time while they calculated and re-calculated how much money they had spent making themselves utterly miserable for five days.

The ship itself, by contrast, was bright and cheerful, which made the situation somehow more dire.

I forgot about the beer, mostly because I got lost in the endless hallways and mallways of the ship while daydreaming. I was enjoying the thought of my wife's unexpected tenderness just before shoos me out of the cabin, and I was entertaining some interesting fantasies about what sort of tenderness she might show me later.

I was looking at it all in a central, courtyard-type-thing, which looked more like the interior of a brand-new mall, when Iskra came toward me, materializing out of thin air like a desert mirage.

She had changed into a black bikini, no part of which covered her nearly enough. A bright orange wrap covered her ass – barely – and she had high heeled shoes that seemed to be made entirely of straps wrapped around her tiny, shapely feet. I didn't know where to put my eyes. Every part of Iskra was radiating sexuality.

She placed her sunglasses on top of her head and pushed her lips out, almost like a pucker. She reached out and grabbed my chin, and her fingers pushed my mouth upward in a scaffolded smile.

“Keith,” she said. “There is free babysitting, so turn this frown of yours upside-down. We just took the kiddies to there and now...I am going to a swim-up bar. No kids allowed. In the back.”

I had been so entranced by Iskra, and her barely-there suit, that I had not noticed Hank and my wife walking behind her.

Iskra bobbed away, with her girlish-streetwalker walk, and my gaze traveled to Hank and Sherry.

Hank was telling Sherry something that was making her laugh and keeping her rapt with attention.

My blood had run to ice, though, for a different reason.

His muscular chest was pressed against a well-fitting shirt.
A shirt covered in oversized leaves and orchids and toucans.
A shirt just like mine.

When the two of them looked at me, their conversation disintegrated.
I scrutinized the space between them. Were they standing just a little close?

“Isn't this nice?” Sherry said. Her voice was light, unencumbered by any kind of guilt. “No kids.”

“Hey bud. Great shirt,” I told Hank, without responding to Sherry. The shirt was burning at the edges of my mind.

Hank placed his palms together and rubbed them. The Hawaiian shirt clung to his broad chest and revealed the shape of his muscles as he did so.

I sucked in my stomach involuntarily, and smiled.

I looked to Sherry, searching her face for...what? Guilt? But for what? Her face revealed nothing.

Had she bought the shirt for Hank, as well?

Or was this just a coincidence?

How crazy would I appear if I asked?

“Let's have some fun adult times,” Hank said.

A dirty thought went through my mind, even though my heart was sinking. Sherry's tenderness in the cabin, and her gift that I had liked so much, were as painful as a hot coal under my skin. The idea that I had read too much into it made my cheeks flush hot.

Maybe it had just been a meaningless gesture. A gag gift.

A gesture she had possibly repeated for Hank.

Or had done for Hank first, and me as an after thought.

Hank frowned at the two of us. I was lost in thought; Sherry, apparently, was also thinking of something else, something distant.

Something over my shoulder caught her vacant stare, and she pressed her hand against my arm as she walked past me.

It was an odd gesture, unlike her. It was almost absent-minded, and too...affectionate...at the same time.

My mind was still on the shirts, and the queer pain I was feeling every time I had the thought that Sherry had also given Hank a shirt in a brown paper bag, snorting her little laugh, buttoning the buttons for him, her hand moving along his toned, hairless, chest...

“Where to?” I asked Hank, watching his eyes to see if they followed my wife. To see if he followed her with a possessive, that's-my-ass kind of look. Or even an interested, I-wish-I-could-bang-that expression.

He didn't watch Sherry at all, but continued to squint at me.

It could have meant anything – after all, I was acting strangely – but decided he was lying about something.

Clever monkey.

He changed his expression suddenly. “I,” he said cheerfully, “am going to the bar, and then to watch my wife float around in the pool in that skimpy bikini.”

For a second, I thought he said, 'watch your wife float around in the pool in a skimpy bikini.' A flush of anger burned across my already-hot cheeks, before I realized what he had actually said.

But what could be done?

I followed him through the cavernous ship, to wherever we were headed, turning over the misheard words in my mind. Watch your wife in a skimpy bikini...

Your wife.

Your wife.

I closed and opened my eyes, and summoned some cognitive behavioral therapy tricks I had learned, attempting to speak to myself about the very obvious cognitive distortions I was making about my wife and Hank.

It didn't do much for me. Hank's voice just kept repeating in my head.

Iskra, who was all business when it came to relaxing, had already left all of us behind to walk at her own brisk pace to the 'adult pool,' where the alcohol flowed and no children were allowed. Thanks to her efficiency, she was already floating on a luxurious floatation device with a drink in her hand. She had added a wide-brimmed hat to her getup and she looked like an advertisement for a luxury liner.

Her face moved almost imperceptibly in greeting when she saw me and Hank.

Sherry was standing in front of the bar, her face dripping into a frown. She was wrapped up in a fairly conservative swimsuit cover, but it was tight against her skin and I knew that underneath it – if she loosened up enough – her new swimsuit was hugging her porcelain skin in an apricot one-piece with a sexy slash on the side. She had modeled it for me in her excitement about a month earlier. The swimsuit was sporty, because Sherry never did anything impractical, but it was also sexy. It dipped low to show off her round breasts, and the gash showed off just enough flesh to tease without being over-revealing.

I slipped my hands around Sherry from behind.

She flinched with surprise and turned around quickly.

When she saw it was me, her surprised face melted into a smile.

“Oh hi, sweetie.”

Oh, hi, sweetie?

“Expecting someone else?” I quipped.

Like maybe Hank?

She ran her hands over my forearms, and a ripple of erotic heat traveled to my shoulders, through my chest, and down to my cock. I sincerely hoped we would get some private time soon.

“I’m trying to decide which drink to have,” she said, without answering my question.

I was surprised to feel my cock pulsing, much more than her arm-rub should have caused.

Was I getting turned on by the idea that Sherry had thought I was another person?

You have no evidence of that, my voice-of-reason reminded me. She could have just been surprised that you grabbed her. It's been a long time since you've been affectionate.

I looked at the drink menu. It was written on a blackboard in chalk, which is about what you'd expect for a place this stereotypical. Someone had fastened mock palm-thatched roofing to the veranda over the bar.

It was beyond kitsch.

"I wonder what Iskra is having..." Sherry murmured.

If I knew Iskra, she was probably having a huge glass of rum with just enough iced red daiquiri mix in it to make her look like she was having an actual 'drink.'

Hank sat down at the bar. He had removed his Hawaiian shirt and he looked like an ad for something, his perfect physique almost too muscled to even fold up so he could sit on a bar stool.

"Hank?" my wife said.

A shudder went through me. Her voice was so sweet, so affectionate, and the sound of her saying Hank's name while I had my arms around her and half an erection was...what?

Incredibly titillating.

"What do you think Iskra is drinking?"

I wished she would say his name again.

Hank waved the bartender over. "Hey man," he said. "You know that smoking European chick who was just here? What'd she have?"

He didn't look in Iskra's direction, or need to explain anything more. I could see the bartender – a young kid, really, in his early twenties – lighting up at the memory of Iskra.

"This lovely lady will have the same," Hank said, extending a hand in the direction of Sherry.

The bartender enjoyed his visual trip over Sherry's body, that much was easy to see. He smiled.

"Hank!" Sherry gasped, and I released her so that I could hide my stiffening cock. "I didn't say I wanted that..."

Hank smiled. "Live a little, Sherry, love," he said.

The word love chafed inside my ears.

Sherry-love.

My rational mind reminded me that Hank, for reasons unknown, often used that suffix. With everyone. He had begun saying it sarcastically and ended up using it all the time, probably without knowing it.

Sherry. Love.

I had tucked myself under the bar, and I was grateful because by now I had quite an erection. One entire part of my mind was twisting Sherry and Hank's bodies together, their sweat bleeding together, Hank's muscles flexing as he moved my wife around like a toy beneath his hard body.

Sherry sat down between the two of us. She seemed to be agreeing to the drink.

“How do you think Iskra got that floaty...thingy?” she mused aloud.

I was so preoccupied with the words Sherry and love that I was late to her question. Hank had already pounced on it, jumping up and pointing a finger at her. “Never fear, my lady. If you want a 'floaty-thingy,' then a 'floaty-thingy' you shall have!”

And away he went.

The bartender set a drink down in front of my wife.

She smiled, and his pleasure was barely disguised. “This doesn't have a lot of alcohol in it, does it?”

“Just the right amount,” he assured her. With a wink.

“One floaty-thingy,” Hank's baritone voice announced behind me.

My cock was still too hard to move away from the bar. When Hank asked if I needed a floaty-thingy, too, I pretended to be grumpy and ordered a beer.

“I don't need so much sun,” I said, lamely. “Right now.”

Hank raised his eyebrows, and I watched him and my wife walk toward the pool. He gallantly carried her 'floaty-thingy' for her, and held it patiently in the water with her drink in the other hand while Sherry slipped out of her swim cover.

I watched with enjoyment, as did the bartender and Hank, I'm sure, as Sherry raised her arms and began to squeeze out of the fabric. The edge of the coverup slid along her cream-colored thigh, up to the round swell of her buttocks, and then slid higher -

I was surprised to see, instead of the light orange swimsuit fabric I had been expecting, that her skin kept going. Going and going, a full three of four inches of her ass. I was beginning to think she had forgotten to put her swimsuit on at all, when finally the tight coverup let loose of its grip on the fabric of her suit, and a piece of scandalously small red fabric dropped down to barely cover the full swell of her ass.

I stared at the small bikini bottom as she continued to uncover herself. It was a string bikini, and little more than a small patch of red covered her triangle of blonde hair. The strings were tied too loosely, if you ask me, and the fabric on the rear had bunched up to reveal almost the full, creamy mound of her left asscheek.

But that was not all. The coverup kept going up, and Sherry's torso – a little thicker since the kids, but, I noticed for the first time in a long time, quite toned from her time spent at the gym – was bared to the whole tiki-bar crowd. As the coverup slid further up her skin, I almost closed my eyes. Two triangles of red fabric clung loyally to her round breasts, but the shape of her curves overflowed from them.

Two conflicting feelings rose up inside of me. The first was that Sherry looked hot. Watching her coverup pulling away from her skin and revealing inch after inch of her curvacious body, in a swimsuit I hadn't expected, I had the odd sensation of watching another woman. It had been too long since I had really looked at Sherry like that.

The other thought, of course, was that I wanted to run over and cover her up with a towel.

I was sure Hank was enjoying the view.

I looked at his face, and saw that he had diverted his eyes to the pool, where he was waving at Iskra. Iskra was making some kind of funny face, like Hank was the greatest hunk she had ever seen.

Hank was probably trying to hide his attraction for my wife, I figured. Or maybe just be polite.

A low whistle came from the pool. It was Iskra. She paddled herself lazily over to the side and looked up at Sherry.

"Nice suit, hottie," she told her.

I watched as Sherry slid into the water, and then pulled herself up on her float. Hank leaned over to hand her a drink, and I envied the view he had of Sherry's full breasts and Iskra's slender legs. The two girls linked arms as Hank pushed them out to the middle of the pool, where they spun, tantalizing different sides of the patio with their barely-clad bodies.

The bartender wiped the bar in front of me and raised his eyebrows. "Certainly have to thank you two for bringing some lovely ladies by," he said. "Drinks on the house."

Hank backed up until he was sitting in a chair next to me. He put his elbows on the counter and watched the ladies, a smug look on his face.

Or was it smug?

Hank was a pretty nice guy.

But I couldn't help feeling like his eyes were all over the porcelain-skinned Sherry, and not where they should be: on the leggy tanned body of his own wife.

Speaking of his wife...

I let my own eyes run over Iskra's legs, which seemed to go on and on for much longer than they should. She looked like a movie star, in her oversized sunglasses, with her unreal, ink-black hair shining in the sun, and her toned body barely covered by her bikini.

I imagined Iskra's long legs warm against my hips, and her small, soft heels digging into my lower back.

Hank squinted at me. "Something up, buddy?"

I tried to look manly as I squinted at my own reflection in the mirror.

"I...have a hard time relaxing at first."

Hank slapped me on the back. "There's a cure for that." He turned to face the bar, and raised his finger to beckon the bartender (who most definitely had his eyes on the ladies in the pool), and ordered us some more beer.

The girls floated around in the pool for what seemed like hours. Hank and I joined a few dull conversations, as men my age circulated through the bar and were escorted away by their wives before they got too drunk.

I had one eye on Sherry's pale skin – so much of it! - and the thin strings that shifted dangerously on her hips whenever she moved, threatening to unravel and let her freshly trimmed snatch out on display. Or the little bow on her back, tied in a single knot, that threatened to release her very full bosom, and the pebbled nipples in her pale brown areolas. I could see the wandering male eyes in the bar, a glint in each of them revealing their hope that either one of those string bikinis floating in the pool would fail. I was rooting for Iskra herself to reach behind her back and untie her own knot, as she had done numerous times in public, and stretch out on her floatation device with her small, pert breasts in the sun, her big, dark areolas bare and unbothered. (Iskra had lived in Denmark for two years, where apparently she had gone topless all summer, and she hated tan lines. And, it would seem, American conventions against avoiding them in public places.)

Sherry's bikini, on the other hand, was making me nervous. It was so precariously held together.

I was also worried about Sherry's skin, but when she finally emerged from the pool she was still pale and not red. I wondered who had applied the sunscreen to her body, rubbing all the white cream into her skin until it was translucent. Smearing and spreading it out, across her chest, underneath the fabric of the tiny bikini, palms over her hard nipple...

Iskra plopped down next to us. "I feel so great," she said. "Not having to answer any stupid questions for two hours." She slapped her hands together. "Now, I'm refreshed, let's try to have some fun. Sherry-love, what will you drink?"

Iskra had said Sherry-love with a peculiar emphasis and a glance at Hank.

Was she, like me, suspicious of something brewing between those two? And how could I ask her about it?

Sherry seemed oblivious to Iskra's tone, and pressed her hands together primly on her lap. She raised her shoulders. It was far too early in the afternoon for her, her shrug said.

Iskra hung her head toward her accusingly. "Oh, come on. Try to have some fun."

"I just...I don't want to have to deal with a hangover or anything," Sherry protested.

Oh, she was headed there anyway. She was already very tipsy from her daiquiris, which Hank had refreshed several times.

Iskra rolled her eyes. "Sherry," she purred. "There is nothing that can happen to the kids on this ship. You have no breakfast to cook, they can take themselves to go eat, then you drop them off at that...cage for children, and boom, they are out of your life all day...if you want to have a hangover ever again in your life, now is the time."

She waved the bartender over without waiting for Sherry's reply. Thin gold bracelets jingled up and down her slender arm. Iskra always had a bit of gypsy-ish gold jewelry clattering around on her body in some seductive way. "I need two very big drinks, with fruity things in them and drink umbrellas," she told the bartender, in her deep, raspy voice.

The guy, I could see, was charmed by Iskra's animated pantomime of the drinks, and the umbrellas she wanted, and her sexy lips and pert tits pressing squarely against her bikini. He's make her whatever she wanted. "But put lots of booze in them," she warned him. Her face softened into a well-timed, pouting smile and her voice softened. "Please. I don't like these watered down American drinks."

"Where are you from?" the bartender asked, under her spell.

Iskra immediately turned up her charm, and leaned on the counter to purse her lips a little and wink at him seductively. "I am from Bulgaria," she said. "And the drinks are very strong there."

My cock twitched a little. It was all an act, and Iskra had been in the US almost as long as she had lived in Bulgaria at this point. She was hamming up her accent, which few people who just met her could even hear. No matter how over-done it was, though, it was hot as hell. She was curled up on the chair in a seductive s-shape, and her lips looked bigger than ever. She tossed her glossy black hair over her shoulder for extra effect.

The bartender smiled at her, and gave her a kind of strange click. When he turned to the bar, I watched him pour heavily in both of the glasses he had gotten out.

Impressive.

Iskra looked over at me and shrugged. She let her eyes wander over her own body, as if to say, I am also impressed with myself.

I looked at Hank. He wasn't even looking at Iskra, but was giving my wife a crinkling, nice-guy smile.

I wondered what Hank thought of Iskra's easily accessed sexuality – she could go from just sitting there looking hot to oversexed vixen in a nanosecond.

Surely he saw how men reacted to her.

But he seemed not only to not even care, but to be only mildly interested.

Something pawed at me inside my chest:

Maybe because he's interested in your wife.

Another thought nibbled at me:

Maybe it was because Hank was just a big enough bad-ass to not be worried about his crazy, sexy wife. Maybe he knew he could just punch someone in the throat, so he could relax. Maybe he knew he was so hot in bed that Iskra would never stray.

After the drinks came out, Iskra and Sherry downed them and were on to another in no time.

We ordered nachos, which Iskra ate by holding in front of her big lips and nibbling one tiny bit at a time. I tried to avert my eyes, but she pulled me to her. Nibbling away, the way she might bite playfully at my ball sack.

Jesus.

Sherry and Iskra settled into some private conversation, and Hank and I reached that level of drunken bar-sitting between men, when the conversation is hardly about anything at all except agreeing with each other about all of it.

I kept Iskra on my radar, though. With every drink she downed, she seemed to become more sultry. She curled her legs beneath her on the bar stool, and her body seemed to snake and wind around the chair. Her mouth seemed larger, and her lashes were long and flirtatious, batting at everyone on the patio.

Hank seemed either not to notice or to care.

Iskra leaned over to Sherry and said something, and Sherry blushed and shook her head.

Then Iskra's head moved closer to her, and Sherry giggled again.

It took me a moment to realize they were giggling in the direction of a couple of men in their late twenties, on the other side of an expanse of tables stretching out next to the bar.

It was a strange sight. They didn't look like the typical cruise-goers, but I supposed they probably had wives who had disappeared to the spa.

"No!" I heard Sherry gasp.

"Just do it, don't be so prude. You can't prove me wrong any other way."

Sherry's face flushed.

Hank and I both stopped talking and he turned around to face the girls with interest.

"Ladies?" Hank purred.

Iskra slapped her hand at him impatiently. "This is a private bet," she said.

Hank shrugged and turned back to me, which was disappointing because I wanted to know what they were up to.

Iskra ordered more drinks, and she and Sherry continued to giggle and look in the direction of the young men. Who, I noticed, were not at all oblivious to the attractive women at the end of the bar, whether their wives were somewhere on the ship or not.

Iskra and Sherry were also getting much louder.

"No!" Sherry hissed.

I couldn't hear everything Iskra said to Sherry. The volume of her voice was unsteady and she was moving with the clumsy gestures of a drunk, falling forward and steadying herself on Sherry, then laughing and nearly hitting Sherry in the head with her own face. "It's a....bet, so if you are wrong you have to....and then, Sherry.....tell...."

Sherry giggled. I stared at her.

Iskra clapped her hands together to indicate she had made a deal.

Then they sat there quietly and sucked down their fifth drink. They had moved on to Long Island Iced Teas, and Iskra had almost certainly convinced the bartender to make them however she wanted, which meant they were pure alcohol.

Sherry's eyes were glassy and she was giggling far more than usual.

I eyed them suspiciously.

Hank raised his eyebrows, turned around to look at his wife, and then turned back to me.

“Should I be worried about this?” I said.

Hank grinned. “You never know, with Iskra, do you? But nah. Sherry's a good girl.”

Sherry's a good girl.

My cock, which had thankfully relieved me of its erection for the past hour or so, twitched back to life again.

What the fuck did Hank mean by that, Sherry's a good girl?

Sherry was dismounting her chair now, and she was smiling as she did so in some conspiratorial way with Iskra. I felt the flicker of interest that rippled through the guys they had attracted from across the bar.

Sherry dropped her shoe. And laughed as she bent over to pick it up.

When she stood up Iskra shook her head. “I am going to win, you stupid bitch, I told you,” she slurred.

Iskra cussed a lot. No one even flinched, because it went with her accent.

Win what? I wondered.

Whatever was going on, Hank's interest was renewed. He turned around as Sherry began to walk, not very steadily, to the bathroom, swinging a small purse along. She looked fifteen years younger from behind, especially with her tipsy gait, and her disheveled hair blowing in the breeze off the ocean.

I looked at Hank. He was enjoying the view of Sherry making her way across the patio to where the restrooms were.

Iskra's eyes were on the two guys. She brought her straw to her lips and sucked on the tip of it seductively, rubbing the shaft of the straw between her fingers. “Mmhmm,” she murmured.

Hank smiled.

The two men looked busy talking to each other, and their eyes lifted up to furtively take in Sherry's body as she passed.

“Wait for it,” Iskra said.

They turned in their seats, in a not-at-all-subtle ogling of my wife's ass, and once she disappeared, they conferred with their heads close together.

I have to admit it gave me a rush, seeing other men – younger men – checking out my wife. When she walked by again they stared at her in appreciation.

Hank shook his head. “Guys,” he said.

Sherry plopped back into her seat.

“You lose,” Iskra told her, staring into the straw of her drink as though she had lost something inside of it. “Those boys almost broke their necks turning around to watch you.”

Sherry pushed her hair out of her face. “Oh,” she said. “I doubt it was that drastic.” But you could tell she didn't mind the compliment.

“No, I'd say they definitely craned it,” Hank told Sherry. I watched Sherry's face. A rose-colored flush spread across her cheek.

And she didn't look over to me, for my opinion.

Which stung a little.

But also felt a little good.

Anyway, Sherry was drunk. I shouldn't read anything into it.

“Anyway, you lose,” Iskra told Sherry.

Crimson spread across Sherry's cheeks. What did it mean?

And then the matter wrapped itself up very awkwardly, with everyone going silent.

We collected the kids and had a quick dinner. We went back to our rooms to make sure they understood their instructions to stay in their rooms and go to bed. They were absorbed in their own fun and gossip and didn't listen to us; evidently the ship's Adventure Cruise Camp (or whatever it was) had instantly turned into a hotbed of pre-adolescent drama.

Iskra had insisted that we go to the ship's "disco," which was about the farthest from anything I wanted to do. But Iskra had been curled up on a bar stool, purring, with her tits nearly bursting out of her bikini, when she asked me to please be fun and promise to go. So what could I do?

I was changed in a minute, but Sherry took more time. I sat on the bed and watched her through the twice-reflected bathroom door. She had her leg up on the toilet seat and was pulling the lacy three-inch swath of a stocking along the top portion of her thigh.

I hadn't been paying attention. Sherry had been working out and her legs looked fantastic.

She was wearing a matching black panty and bra set. It was new, or at least I was half-sure it was new. The lacy backside of the satin fabric formed a thick thong, nestled between her two perfect buttocks, the lace curling its tiny flowers and swirls along the intimate insides of her ass, disappearing between her legs. The same flowery, swirling lace folded close to her full breasts, overflowing from her black bra.

Suspicion, fueled to flames by alcohol, snaked through me again. Why the sudden change of swimsuit? Why the racy bikini? Why the new underwear?

It could only be one thing, really. Why else did women but new underwear after fourteen years of marriage?

I pushed it out of my mind.

She snapped the lace of the stocking around her thigh, and turned to the mirror. She gave herself a critical appraisal with her eyes.

In my view, she looked flawless.

The suspicions I had tried to turn off kept creeping in.

Why was she wearing stockings?

It was a sexier-than-usual detail. I hadn't seen her in stockings for years...how many?

As I struggled to remember when the last time Sherry had put on stockings was, the door closed and blocked my view for a moment. I heard a hanger scrape on the wood door.

Had she put those stockings on, and that sexy thong underwear, for Hank?

The door opened, and Sherry had shimmied herself into a tight black dress.

She looked...stunning. The dress hugged her figure in all the right places, and slimmed her to her pre-children size. Her arms and legs, I noticed again, were more toned than I had realized.

She looked hot.

A sinking sensation overt took me again, as I thought of Sherry working so hard at the gym to tone her figure up. Was it for Hank? Had I not been paying attention to her, and to what she was doing, and had my wife stolen right out from under my nose?

Sherry rifled through a small bag on a table just outside the door, and went back to the mirror. She leaned gracefully over the counter, and another display of her fitness made my cock twitch: her tight, flat abs held her aloft and leaning toward the mirror. She began to smear a red paint over her lips.

I stood up and moved to the doorway. "Nice dress," I slurred. I was a little tipsy.

Her eyes flashed quickly to me, but just as quickly back to her lips in the reflection. She had sucked in her lower lip to trace carefully along the bottom boundary.

She didn't respond.

"When did you buy it?" I said, and I sounded lame when I did.

Sherry's face sort of quivered in the mirror. She sensed what I was up to – trying to get information out of her, feeling a little jealous.

She shrugged.

I moved closer to her and slid my hands along the fabric of her dress, just above her hips.

She pushed her lips together, and let them pop. Then she moved her eyes toward mine. "Not now," she said. "We have a 'disco' to go to."

She was silly. Friendly. Moving in my hands like a fish.

I moved closer to her neck, wanting to send a shiver down her spine and make her abandon her lipstick.

She squirmed away, patting me on the cheek. “You'll mess up my makeup,” she said. “those guys are waiting for us, anyway.”

It was exactly what I wanted, though: for Iskra and Hank to wait, to wait much longer than made sense, and to see us when we emerged from the cabin, panting and sweating, adjusting our clothes.

I wanted Hank to see that I fucked my wife all the time.

But I didn't say this to Sherry, and she slid from my hands easily and flipped her hair, before picking up her purse. “You ready?”

Iskra could still pass for twenty-something, especially when the lights were dark or flashing strobes. She had encased herself in a complicated silky red shirt that drooped from one shoulder and somehow had no back. She had tight jeans on, which barely reached her hip bones, and as usual her hair was loose and wild.

Iskra would not look idiotic in a club, and Hank had the kind of attitude that told people to fuck off from such a long distance that he would not look out-of-place anywhere.

Sherry might be okay: she looked hot. She didn't look twenty, but the appeal was almost greater because of that: she wasn't especially trying to look like a twenty-something bimbo. She just looked like a hot, thirty-something woman who knew how to dress.

And probably knew a whole lot of other things.

A woman like Sherry, in fact, was exactly the kind of woman who intrigued me when I was younger. More so than the flirtatious, too-easy girls my age. There was a kind of difficult edge to a then-older woman like Sherry. Like the game might be more challenging, the reward much more sophisticated.

On the other hand, I had the painful premonition that in this 'club,' I was going to look even more like what I was: a middle-aged, middle-management, uncool guy who did not know how to dance (ever in his life) and was trying to have a better, younger time than he could.

Iskra looped her arm through mine and patted me as we walked down the hallway. A puff of the oddly Eastern combination of soaps she used entered my nose and sent a shiver through me: Iskra always smelled like a plain, ordinary soap, except for a dusting of something spicy that made me think of belly-dancers or harems. It never failed to get me a little excited.

“Don't be grumpy,” she advised me. “It deepens your wrinkles. This is a club on a family cruise ship. There will be lots of eighties music and old people just like you.” Her hair slid over my shoulder and brushed across my neck. Electricity bored through me.

I looked at Sherry's ass, reminding myself that I had plenty to be turned on by, and plenty to watch, without thinking of Iskra in a harem.

Iskra turned out to be so right it was comical.

The disco was full of exactly the kind of people she had envisioned, playing exactly the same kind of music she had described. Having helped themselves to a great deal of alcohol, these 'old people just like me' were now dancing with no inhibition on the dance floor.

It looked like a wedding party. Or a twenty-year high school reunion.

Sadly, I felt instantly better and selected a bar stool from which I could watch the dance floor, hold Sherry's purse, and easily obtain more drinks.

The "Electric Slide" came on and I turned away.

Hank propped himself up on his elbows and watched with an expression that could have been amusement, or a man twenty seconds from murdering everyone in the room. Hank's face rarely changed much.

But as the alcohol dropped a nice, anesthetized curtain over me, and the music changed, I became less annoyed. I turned to the dance floor to watch Sherry and Iskra, who were playfully dancing next to each other to something by George Michael, mouthing the lyrics while holding fake microphones.

I looked at Hank. It was impossible to tell where he was looking or what he was thinking. The music was too loud to start a conversation, so I ordered another drink.

When I turned back to the floor, the music changed suddenly, again. The beat became slower, and the girls emerged from within the writhing hands and feet on the outer edge of the floor, like two sirens, and began beckoning us toward them.

I shook my head.

To my surprise, Hank slammed his beer, and a shot he had ordered and left sitting there mysteriously. Then he clapped his hands together, and dove toward the dance floor. When he reached the girls, he grasped each woman's hand, held them high over his head, and pulled them inward to the center of the flashing floor.

They were gone.

I hated that I was too chickenshit to dance, and I was pissed at Hank for being not too chickenshit to dance. There was also no real way for me to get in there now without looking foolish. I imagined myself, manning up, crossing the small patch of carpet between the bar and the floor, moving my shoulders, wriggling in among all the squealing, drunk ladies and swaying, red-faced men.

The sight of myself in my own imagination was too embarrassing. I could almost see Iskra running her eyes from my toes to my head, then snorting with laughter.

The crowd thinned and parted a little as the music slowed and took on an R&B beat. As more people moved away, I was able to see more and more of Iskra's hair, shining in the light. Then the bobbing head of my wife. Her eyes were closed, and her skin was wet with sweat. The lights shifted and flashed; it was hard to see what they were doing.

Hank was right next to Sherry. Was their skin touching? Were they grinding?

It was hard to tell. Sherry moved again, and then my eyes went to Iskra. I couldn't see well because of a frenetic couple in front of the gap I was straining to see them through. They looked close, and then a strobe flashed, and they looked far away. Their eyes were closed, and they seemed to be grinding together: first Iskra and Hank, then Sherry and Hank, then Iskra and Hank....

I squinted.

Or were they?

The strobe flashed, and the scene changed.

Their eyes were open. Iskra was close to Sherry, telling her a joke. It made Sherry tip her head back with laughter.

The crowd thinned more.

No. They were just being silly. Hank had Sherry by the hand and was twirling her as though there was a waltz playing.

Iskra was smiling and moving her hips in exaggerated movements..

No one seemed to care that I was not there, which stung a little, but no one was doing anything...illicit.

Right?

Sherry and Iskra next started making a huge show of grinding against each other. Iskra extended a slender, long arm to rest on Sherry's shoulder, and they theatrically pressed their bodies against each other. Their full breasts flattened as they contacted, and I felt a finger of desire tickling my balls as I thought of how each of them could feel the hard nipple of the other through the material of their shirt and dress.

I looked at Hank, who was also being theatrical, and pulling out some Michael Jackson dance moves.

In that way that I always swing wildly when I am drunk, I rose from my paranoid state to a pleasant high. What a nice group of people to be spending time with. They were so funny. There was nothing nefarious about Hank, or Hank and my wife: I had been imagining things all along. They were just being silly, having a good time. And who cared if Hank found my wife attractive?

I swept my eyes around the bar, and was satisfied to see that the men who could escape their own wives' cold stares were all watching the dance floor, and I knew what they were looking at was the two sexy ladies with their muscled, tattooed chaperone.

I sincerely thought about walking out there to join in the fun, but I felt like I would break up their rhythm.

And just like that, a low feeling swept back through me.

God, I was really drunk.

Sherry looked across the dance floor and waved at me.

She wasn't asking me to come out there, that much was obvious.

But she did wave.

Her mouth was turned up in a smile.

Iskra bumped against Sherry, facing me, and mimicked Sherry's wave. She sneered a little as she did. Iskra had no time for people like me, who did not know how to have fun.

Always so sarcastic, Iskra.

I smiled back at her anyway, and raised my beer in a cheers. The warm feeling that had showered me when Sherry gave me the Hawaiian shirt returned for a moment.

Sherry spun around carelessly and fell into Hank's hard chest. Her fingers lingered just a little too long on his muscles. I watched them, almost feeling Hank's hot skin beneath the fabric of his shirt on my own palm. I could almost feel the pleasure that must have rippled through Sherry.

And then the disappointment.

This was not her husband.

But could she have him anyway?

And just like that, the warm feeling I had before was invaded by the cold breath of betrayal and fear.

I ordered another drink, and the bartender pretended not to hear me, leaving me alone to try and look under control while the three of them danced, ever-happier, and ever-closer.

I had to hold Sherry up as we left the 'disco.' Since we were all drunk and high on the fun evening we were having, I didn't think too much of it (I had swung wildly back, again, to a state of contentment). She was drunk, sure, and she'd have a nasty hangover, but there in the moment it was nice. Even though it was on a tacky cruise ship and we were surrounded by Disney-grade kitsch, we were also in the middle of the water, and up late, and drunk, and everything took on that glowing, party hum that I hadn't felt since college.

I noticed, but deliberately paid little attention to, the fact that Sherry often lost her balance and went careening into Hank. Who was more than willing to help her stand up. He steadied her against his broad chest, holding her thin wrists in his big hands. They laughed. He teased her by waltzing with her. Once when she fell he took her by the legs and started to drag her along the deck, claiming to be a janitor, while Sherry squealed and laughed.

I noticed that even Iskra had begun to think something was up between the two of them. She was watching more carefully, her defined Bulgarian features narrowing into the face of a hawk.

Nah, I told myself, I am drunk.

Sherry fluttered back to me, and started rubbing her leg against mine.

Then she fluttered away and threw her arms over Iskra's shoulder and whispered some kind of secret into her ear, which made Iskra laugh.

"What?" I said, as a vein of strange paranoia fingered its way through my torso.

Iskra tossed her shimmering head back. "She's just saying that you're terrible in bed, Keith, there's no need to worry."

It was a joke, of course. It wasn't what Sherry had said, because Sherry wouldn't say such a thing. It was one of the many offhand, heartless things Iskra might say to anyone, a favored way of joking. Hank didn't even hear it; Sherry almost tripped and everyone was distracted immediately and surely forgot about it.

But I looked at Hank's face and thought I saw a flicker of pleasure crackle at the corner of his mouth.

Iskra's voice ripped at the inside of my heart: She's just saying you're terrible in bed, Keith. Terrible in bed, terrible in bed.

Not like Hank, who was made of muscle, who was a real man.

Sherry flopped onto the bed and rested her forearm over her eyes. "Oh god," she murmured. "I hope I don't get seasick."

I smiled, and crouched on the bed next to her. I unbuttoned my shirt.

I could see that Sherry was too drunk to have sex, and that she would be asleep in a few minutes...but I couldn't help but try. I had been suffering all day, watching her float in the pool on her skimpy bikini, dance with Iskra, flirt with Hank...Sherry is a good girl.

I reached out and rubbed along the collar of her dress. She smiled with her eyes still closed, and reached up to move my hand away.

I knew what was coming. She was too tired.

Still, I thought I might try once more. I had been looking forward to the two-person berth we had secured, which did join to the children's four-bed suite, but at least had a very closeable door, and some privacy. I had been hoping that Sherry would relax on her vacation, and let loose a little in more ways than one.

I moved one hand up her thigh. I fingered the few inches of lace that held her stockings to her thigh.

"Keith," she murmured.

Was it inviting? Or the beginning of the dreaded sentence, Keith, not now honey, I'm so tired.

I moved my hand up her thigh a little further. I wanted to find her black underwear with my fingertips. I wanted to see if Hank had her turned on all night, like I thought he did. If I would find the satin material wet and scented like her pussy...

Her hand moved deftly down her own leg and she pushed me away while rolling over. "Oh god," she said. "I'm going to feel terrible tomorrow. Will you get me some water?"

I knew what was coming, but what can you do? Deny someone a bottle of water?

By the time I came back to the bed, she was under the blankets, and appeared to be asleep. I moved a hand across her face and pushed her hair away. Was she really asleep? Or just pretending to be?

I set the water next to her on the table, and went to jerk off in the shower.

Then I watched mindless TV until I dozed off.

When I woke up the light was off and I was under the covers. The bathroom light was on and I could hear Sherry in the bathroom. I opened an eye, but I, too, had consumed too much alcohol, and it was hard to stay alert. I dozed off, listening to the shuffling in the next room, a small part of my brain wondering what she was doing in there. But I was too tired, too drunk to really care...

The door clicked.

The sound of it woke me from my slumber like a gun shot.

I threw the covers off.

“Sherry?”

The evening, and my suspicions about Hank, came flooding back to me. I was suddenly as paranoid as I had been at the restaurant, and I bounded for the door, without thinking.

Sherry was leaving to go see Hank. There was no other explanation.

I had no shoes, no wallet, and no sanity when I reached the door and opened it. The only thing I had was a strange desire not to get caught following Sherry. Not to call out to her, and stop her. But to follow her. I peeked out of the door carefully.

Why?

Why did I do that?

As I watched Sherry's figure moving down the hall, without looking back, my blood turned to ice. It's one thing to imagine your wife having an affair. It's almost fun to indulge in the idea, to think she is enjoying some hot, muscular man when you aren't home. Gasping and wet, sweating on the sheets of your own bed. Doing unimaginably dirty things with that man.

But once I saw the excited way that she was skipping down the hallway, like she couldn't wait to be where she was, like she was so filled with thoughts about Hank that she couldn't think sensibly, or be bothered to look behind her and make sure she had escaped – well then it was different. Less like a fantasy and more like a nightmare. A fantastical nightmare.

I watched her, whispering silently to her to turn around. If she turned around, she would see me standing there. She would be caught. She would have to turn back, to come to me with her head hanging and confess what she had been doing. And Hank would have to hide wherever they were planning to meet, and wait. And wait, and wait, and then realize that something had happened.

But Sherry didn't turn around.

I followed her.

I let the door close softly behind me. I didn't even have the sense to take my room key. I didn't even think about what I was doing.

I padded, in bare feet, down the rich carpeted halls. Out to the outside deck. I turned left and right, hiding my body in the shadows.

Why? Why did I do that? I would ask myself later why I didn't do anything to get caught, to put an end to things before I saw them play out, before the image burned into my mind and changed everything forever.

The walk down the hallways was a long one, and time seemed to be moving slower. I had time to think about all the ways our lives were going to fall apart because of this. Now that I knew. Now that I had no choice but to confront her about it, and confront Hank, and tell Iskra.

And so there was a part of me that wanted to catch her.

A part of me that wanted to see her do whatever she was going to do.

And a part of me that wanted myself to be wrong. For Sherry to be doing something utterly innocent. Even though all the evidence was overwhelming, and no other conclusion could be reached at this point, I still wanted to believe that maybe she was just wired, unable to sleep, taking a walk, looking for a pharmacy...

It was a warm night. There were a few people on the deck. To the left I saw my wife, still walking with determination, in a hurry, anxious to see Hank. She never looked behind her. She was too caught up in what lay ahead.

It pained me. I clutched my stomach.

She turned a corner. I followed her outright. It was clear, by then, that she was not going to turn around, and if she did, the part of me that wanted to catch her and confront her would be satisfied.

It was all in the hands of fate now.

Maybe she did just have a headache. Need a walk. Leave something at the disco, which we were not headed to.

When I turned the corner the deck was empty. My eyes scanned the scene frantically.

Stairs.

She must have gone down the stairs. It was the only explanation.

I turned and headed to the stairs.

At the bottom of the stairs there were numerous, forking pathways, all of them empty. She was lost to me, but I think I sniffed her out like a dog.

Signs pointed in all directions, but only one made sense: the indoor pool.

I reached the door to the pool area. A sign warned me that there was no lifeguard on duty. Lights were out, but I knew from the brochure Sherry had forced me to read thoroughly several months ago that there was 24-hour access to the lap pool.

I looked down at the door, and my heart sank. There was a lock on it, glowering at me with one red eye.

Like anyone would, I tugged on the door anyway.

Ready to be utterly disappointed, and to hurry back to my room like a madman and get my key, then back here, only to find them gone, I almost shouted when the door, through some weird miracle, opened anyway.

I stared at the handle. My heart restarted, and I took a deep breath to steady myself.

I had seen Iskra and Hank together once. It was an accident, when Iskra was watching the kids while I was on a business trip and Sherry had gone...where had she gone? I couldn't even remember, because the image of Iskra's lithe body, sitting on top of Hank, reverse-cowgirl, was burned into my mind for ever. I had heard the moans, and crept down my own hallway, to stand in the shadows and look through the crack of the door into my own room. Where Iskra's head was turned up at the ceiling, her big mouth open and red, her black hair plastered to her wet cheek, her dark brown areolas bobbing lightly with her tits as she bounced up and down on the thick muscled thighs of her latest boyfriend. My eyes had moved down, to her shaved snatch, to the lips of her pussy, pushed out and swollen by the huge, thick slab of meat between them. Hank's hand had been pressed to the small of Iskra's back, pushing her up and down, his head tilted to watch his cock disappearing into her flesh...

And now this was really it. I was really going to see Hank and my wife together, maybe the same way, with Sherry's big tits bouncing and heaving as she screamed in ecstasy.

Maybe she's just swimming.

I pushed the door. The lights were off.

The liquid echoes of the small pool moved through the room alone, splashing against the walls like the reflections of the water. I strained to hear something, anything, but only heard water.

And then a laugh.

My mind was so focused on finding Sherry that I assumed it was Sherry's laugh. It was familiar, though something about was odd.

When I edged myself far enough along the wall of the entranceway to peek in at the dazzling pool, lit by lights beneath the water, none of this recognition helped me understand the scene in front of me. It made so little sense that I closed my eyes, like I could refresh it like a screen. I did it again, when the same scene appeared before me.

But it was still the same.

I squinted.

New sensations began to course through my veins, replacing the angry and heated adrenaline that had been gnawing at me just moments before.

The sensation that comes with having solved a mystery.

The sensation of being sadly mistaken.

And a searing, erotic heat.

The second figure in the small pool, with Sherry my wife, was not Hank. Underneath the shimmering, distorting surface of the water were two sets of thighs, pressed close. Sherry's pale skin and darker skin with a blue-gray tattoo along the thigh. Two sets of arms were entwined, as I had expected, and one of them was littered with ink. Toned. Muscular.

And small.

Behind the dark skin that was snaked around my wife's body in the shaking, splashing pool, an oil-black puddle floated.

Not a puddle.

A wet slick of raven-black hair.

Shiny. Luxurious. Blue-black.

Iskra's hair.

My wife and Iskra were holding each other close. Smiling, their lips next to each other. The sight of Iskra's big, pretty lips next to my wife's pink, all-American smile was almost too much to take in. When they met, and moved against each other in obvious, genuine delight, I had to steady myself against the wall.

A shiver of pleasure ran through me, chased quickly by an odd fear.

Or was it jealousy?

Who knows? This was the last thing I had been expecting to see. Actually the last thing I had been expecting. My brain was having such a hard time understanding the scene I didn't know what to feel.

The two figures parted, and for a moment I believed I had watched a first kiss. Iskra smiled and backed away, then stretched out on her back and pushed herself through the water.

Sherry remained where she was, submerged to her shoulders in the water, playfully swinging her arms in front of her.

My heart was slamming against my chest.

Maybe this is all I would see.

Maybe this is all there was.

Of what? God, what the fuck was happening here?

I found myself hoping that Iskra would change directions. That she would return to where Sherry was.

Sherry pushed herself up on the side of the pool, sitting as though she had taken a swim. She was wearing her bra and panties, and her ass was so toned and hard that it maintained its beautiful shape even with her weight on it.

Iskra changed directions, this time on her side.

Still smiling.

But now her smile was more wolf-like.

She was coming in for Sherry.

She was hungry.

I couldn't see Sherry's face. I wished I could. I heard her laugh lightly.

Iskra moved closer.

Sherry didn't move.

I crouched down behind a cart with towels on it. I leaned in, as if I could see something better by being an inch closer to it.

Iskra was moving her hand along Sherry's inner thigh. She started at the knee, on the inside, and I watched with a drunken high as Iskra's hands moved over Sherry's body. Hands I wanted to touch me, touching the body I wanted to touch.

I leaned too hard on the cart, and it began to roll forward.

Terrified, I jerked myself back, scrambled along on the floor on my belly, and ran out of the door.

I heard Iskra's laugh, and a splash.

My heart was slamming against my chest, and I didn't know what else to do, so I hurried back to the room.

Only when I was standing in front of it did I realize that I didn't have the key.

I looked at the kids' door.

I imagined myself banging on it, waking them, having to answer questions.

No.

I walked, panting and turning behind me foolishly, to the front desk and obtained a new card. The receptionist looked at me curiously and blinked away her sleep and my explanation.

I ran back to the room.

My heart kicked inside of me as I tried to walk calmly to our room in the middle of the hall. Sherry could already be back, or Sherry could come around the corner any moment. And if she did, she would know I had followed her, and she would know what I had seen.

And she would also know that I had run away.

And then she would know...

What would she know?

What was there to know?

I didn't even know, myself.

All I knew is that I didn't want to have some conversation with Sherry right now about any of this. My head was reeling.

I pushed the door open and was relieved as the blackness inside hit me in the face. I turned on the light gingerly, like I was setting a mousetrap.

No Sherry.

I closed the door and leaped toward the bed. She could still be back any minute.

I covered myself with the blanket – it was ice-cold in the room – and tried to calm my breathing.

The moments passed as though they were hours, still and quiet.

Until finally, the door opened, and I heard Sherry moving in the darkness.

She went to the second bed. I heard her slide between the sheets.

I gave it some time, and then opened my eyes. Adjusted to the darkness, I could see Sherry in the faint light that came through the window. I wanted to climb into her bed, and pull up the covers. I wanted to smell the scent of her body, and move my fingers down to her underwear – if she was still wearing them – and feel if they were still wet. Slide my finger into her pussy and see if she was wet there, too. Wet like a woman who had just come, all over Iskra's wide, beautiful mouth.

In my mind I placed my lips on Iskra's two sweet pillow-lips, and sucked the taste of my wife's pussy from her pouting flesh.

My cock was hard and I would never get to sleep. When I closed my eyes, the alcohol and the desire to have seen whatever had unfolded between Iskra and Sherry pounded in my ears, and I almost couldn't keep my lids closed over my eyes.

I wanted so much to get up and get my hands on Sherry.

But if I did, then she would know who had caught the two of them in the pool.

And if I had played my cards right, she didn't suspect me.

And that gave me a strange kind of leverage. I didn't know for what, but for something.

My mind became a jumble of images and plans, thoughts and more images, until I drifted off.

When I opened my eyes a few hours later, it was unclear to me what had been a dream, and what had really happened. The two worlds mingled together, and some of my dreams had been more easy to believe than the reality I had witnessed.

I rolled on my side.

Sherry was on her side, facing me. Asleep, or it would be believed. Her face was untroubled and still; if she was dreaming her own dreams did not trouble her. Her conscience certainly didn't keep her awake.

The feeling that had jolted through me last night squeezed me inside my chest again, traveled around in my blood, and in the end, throbbed with a searing ache in my groin.

Iskra. Sherry. Iskra and Sherry. Iskra and Sherry with their lips close to each other.

Layers of betrayal ate away at my mind. Sherry's very real betrayal. Two of them, really: a betrayal of infidelity, and the betrayal of sexual attraction.

Iskra's betrayal, which I knew was all in my mind, a betrayal I had no right to – but her betrayal as a sister-in-law (which she really wasn't) and as...

As what?

As a woman I was attracted to, and attraction I had resisted.

And then she ran off to kiss my wife in the pool.

And what had I interrupted? What would have happened if they had kept going, if Iskra's fingers had traveled further up my wife's leg, up to her wet black panties, under the fabric?

How long had it been going on?

But all of these troubling thoughts, as dark as they were and as cold as they felt, could not dampen the other thing building up inside of me:

Intense desire.

I closed my eyes, as though I could shut out everything competing inside of me by doing so. Make it go away.

My eyes opened, taking in Sherry's sweet face: her eyes closed in the shape of pretty, elongated half-circles, her lips slightly parted, her smooth shoulder exposed and inviting.

Did I really want everything I was feeling to disappear?

Did I really want not to have seen what I saw last night?

I sat up slowly, trying not to disturb her. My plan was to creep across the narrow walkway between the two beds, to slowly crawl into bed with her, to slide my finger from her panties – which must still be damp – along her back and up her spine. To make her shiver, and gooseflesh prickle her skin across the shoulders. Then to turn her prone, and find her cunt beneath the fabric of her wet underwear, slide a finger into her, feel for how wet it was....

But Sherry's eyes opened and she stared at me.

For a moment I was breathless, my heart cool and still in my chest. What would she say?

She smiled and raised an arm to stretch. “Oh god,” she said. “I really had too much to drink.”

But she wasn't saying it like ordinary Sherry. Sherry who would have been jumping out of bed and throwing clothes on and angry with herself for getting up so late.

This Sherry seemed largely unconcerned with the time.

She hadn't even asked about it yet.

She looked up at the ceiling and yawned.

Her casual yawn, for some reason, stabbed me directly through the heart. It wasn't so much that she had cheated on me – and maybe only a little – with our sister-in-law, and a woman. It was that she was so unaffected by it, and untroubled.

“What is going on with the kids?” she said. Her tone was one of idle curiosity.

“I don't actually know,” I said, dryly.

I watched my wife rise calmly from bed, move to the connecting door, and knock lightly.

When nothing happened, my wife – my wife, Sherry – sort of shrugged and rubbed one eye. “They must have gone to breakfast,” she said, before walking into the bathroom and closing the door.

I flopped back onto the bed and stared up at the ceiling.

What was I feeling?

I've never been particularly good at discussing my feelings, even with myself. They just swam around inside of me, hot and then cold, turned on and then disgusted, excited and then fearful. Disappointed. Betrayed. Feverish.

Pretty soon there was nothing left but images.

Imaginary ones: droplets of water on Iskra's skin, dripping onto Sherry's cunt.

And real ones: Iskra's big lips brushing against my wife's mouth.

Sherry appeared at the foot of the bed. If she saw my erection, she made no note of it. She was brushing her teeth.

“Oo mayuhn i I go oh reakfast wuh Ikra?” she asked. She stopped brushing. “We though maybe you guys could go enjoy some guy-time.”

Ordinarily, of course, this would have been an incredible gesture. “Guy-time” was Sherry's code for “I will not complain about how much beer you drink or frown if I find out you had a cigar.”

My mouth moved mechanically, even though inside of me I was being torn to shreds by all of my competing emotions.

“Guy-time? You bet.” I needed some kind of time to sort myself out.

I looked at her face. Was my performance good enough? She was looking at me strangely.

Or was she?

I didn't want her to know that I was the one who had disturbed her and Iskra. I wasn't sure why, or if I was never going to confront her and tell her, but I was so confused by what I had seen that I needed to keep my cards close until I had a plan.

She raised her eyebrows, and stuck the toothbrush back in her mouth.

“I igned hats aht oo yay.”

She went back into the bathroom.

My heart was twisting around in my chest.

Should I tell her that I had seen her, and put a stop to what was happening, in case her relationship with Iskra was new, and fresh?

Should I keep honesty in our relationship?

The realization slid over me, dark and cool:

Sherry could always ask why I had followed her instead of stopping her before she got there.

Or why I had run away instead of interrupting.

I would have to admit to something I didn't want to admit to.

I would have to admit that I had wanted to see her cheating. I had wanted to see her, not stop her.

I had wanted to see her with Hank.

“Sounds great,” I said, as though I were really looking forward to sitting next to the husband of the woman my wife was having an affair with in a bar all day.

Because this was the other thing that gnawed at me:

Should I say something to Hank?

Hank and I decided to go back to the adult pool. It felt nice to be outside, and it was less Disney-themed than anywhere else. We said almost nothing all the way through breakfast, and we said almost nothing at the bar half an hour later.

I was so deep in my own thoughts, wondering what Iskra and Sherry were doing together right now, that I barely noticed the silence between us. Were the girls in one of our rooms? Were they sliding each other's underwear from their hips right now? Did Iskra have her tongue along the edge of Sherry's inner labia, tickling and teasing, up and down the narrow ridge at the top of the skin? Making Sherry scream into a pillow, promising and never delivering?

After about an hour, the two showed up at the pool.

I looked at Sherry's face when she saw us. She raised her hand and waved, but her downturned mouth told a different story. Iskra appeared to be scowling.

They didn't come over. They just plopped into the pool on their floats.

Hank was squinting into the sun. He seemed perturbed about something.

I wondered if Iskra had woken him the same way last night, with a click of the door.

"What's up, Hank? Hung over?"

Hank squinted more, behind his sunglasses. "Nah man. Just...thinking on some shit."

His eyes were on Iskra.

I looked at the two women, and saw only their misbehavior now, in every word and gesture. They floated together, their hands clasped. Innocent before and now an outright betrayal, right under my nose.

I looked at Hank. He seemed unhappy as he stared at Iskra. I decided he was suspicious of her.

I didn't know how to talk to him about it, though.

And what if I brought it up, and he wasn't even worried about it? What if I was the one who accidentally broke the news to him?

Or what if it caused some huge family rift?

Would he care?

Would he want to put a stop to it?

Or would he, like me, be mildly turned on and bemused by the whole thing?

I ordered him another beer.

He kept frowning, while Iskra and Sherry kept splashing away playfully in the pool. As I watched them, now, I saw that they touched each other a lot. I saw that all of the flushed faces and blushing I had attributed to Hank was actually directed at Iskra.

Iskra. That clever little....

What? I wanted to call her a slut, but hadn't I, all along, wanted to do with Iskra exactly what Sherry was doing with her?

How long had it been going on? I wondered. Years? A short time?

And who had initiated it? Money was on Iskra, but it was sweet-painful to think that maybe Sherry had been the one.

What if Sherry had been the one, all along, and what if my brother had divorced Iskra because she liked women...

But why had Iskra married Hank, if that's what she wanted?

My mind went on and on, thinking out each horrific and delightful explanation, savoring and cringing from the pain of each possibility.

Hank interrupted my thoughts, and turned my blood to ice by saying: "You ever suspect Sherry of doing...something...behind your back?"

I froze. My mouth was hanging open, inches from my beer. I tried to move my lips to at least close my trap, but I couldn't do much of anything.

Hank was looking at me, but he wasn't really seeing me, and he wasn't thinking about me. He didn't care if I answered his question or not.

He squinted again.

There was a long pause – too long, in fact, for what I said- for it to not seem awkward.

"You think Iskra's having an affair?" I blurted.

Hank turned to me and now he was frowning. His face was changing into a much different expression.

My voice had sounded different than I meant for it too. There had been a quality of fakeness to it, and it seemed Hank had picked up on it. His eyes revealed that some deeply troubled thoughts were passing through his head.

More squinting.

“What makes you say that?” he said. He folded his arms over his chest.

I shook my head, and waved my arms, because for a moment I thought he was offended for Iskra, by the suggestion that she would do such a thing.

It took me moment, but then I realized: he must have had the same suspicions about Iskra that I did, and like me, he was now getting around to thinking the first thing that made sense.

That the nearest, handiest man around would easily fit the bill...

I slammed my drink on the table. “No, man,” I whispered frantically, because who knew, with Hank? He might blow over something like this, and he was a big guy who choked Rottweilers. “Not me – look, I say it because Sherry is having a...” I swallowed. Hank's face was still melting into meanness. “A little...uh....look, I have to just come out and tell you something.”

Hank was glowering at me, but he didn't say anything.

I rubbed my face with both hands.

I was about to open my mouth and tell him what I had seen, when Hank cut me off. “Man, don't even worry about it. That's totally cool with me. Iskra and I have an understanding, you know? I had no idea you two were like that. I thought for sure Iskra would have mentioned it, though. I mean, we're supposed to. But maybe because you're family. Anyway...no man it's nothing about any of that.” He leaned on the counter.

I was staring at him as he worked up the strength to tell his own story, which apparently had nothing to do with Iskra having an affair, or him even caring if she did.

Had I heard that right? Iskra and Hank were swingers?

And now he thought Sherry and I were, too?

“So wait,” I croaked, selfishly forgetting Hank's real problem, or even my own. I wanted to hear more about their relationship now. A mordant curiosity was stirring inside of me. “Do you guys...is your relationship, like...open?”

Hank shrugged. This discussion was uninteresting to him, and he had other things on his mind. “I don't know, probably how you guys do it,” he said. His voice was bored.

The man was talking about swinging, and his voice was bored.

He looked at me, and impatiently finished his thought. He recited it, as though he told someone about it often. "She has to tell me what she's doing, we have to be honest, all that. So I'm a little surprised about this..." he waved at me. "But, whatever, she probably had a reason. I trust her judgment. I know she would have told me soon."

I stared in disbelief. He really did not seem to care that his wife was having an affair with her ex-brother-in-law.

Which, I reminded myself, she wasn't. No, it was much...worse? than that.

He looked like he wanted to go back to brooding, about whatever it was that was bothering him, but I was too much in need of information to let him do it.

"What if you aren't? What happens if you aren't? Honest, I mean?"

Hank's interest was suddenly piqued. "Never had it happen," he said. He looked skyward. "I guess...I dunno man. I'd have to play it by ear. Depends on why." He lifted the beer to his mouth, and his face revealed that he was suddenly overtaken by an entertaining thought. He smiled.

"I guess, though, you could make lemonade out of that...think of some kind of fitting punishment."

I nodded and smiled. I didn't know how to un-do my allowing him to have the misconception that Sherry and I knew exactly what he was talking about. I also wanted to know more. My head was spinning.

I looked at the pool, and watched Iskra and Sherry. They had done something to make themselves spin in a circle, and their fingers were entwined to keep them together.

I was angry. I was turned-on. I was excited. I was disappointed.

All these things were competing inside of me, and so that might be the reason that I did this:

Out of nowhere, as though my mouth had a life of its own, I said, casually, as though it caused me none of the emotion that it did, "You know it's Sherry and Iskra who are having an affair, then?"

Hank pulled his beer away from his mouth and held it out with a straightened arm, as though the beer had delivered him a bad message and he wanted it far away. He swallowed and looked at me. "Are they, now?"

I narrowed my eyes, as if it would help me to figure out what Hank met by that.

His tone was...what was it?

Surprised?

Yes, but not much.

Angry?

Not at all.

Amused?

I looked at Hank's mouth.

"That sneaky little bitch," he said. But he wasn't angry. He was smiling. He was saying in almost a complimentary way. Then he turned to me suddenly. "I mean, unless it was Sherry. How long ago'd she tell you?"

I opened and closed my mouth, trying to decide what to do. I had trapped myself in this weird situation, and for some reason, I couldn't find it in my heart to back out of the lie I had let Hank believe. I wasn't even sure what had just happened, only that I had somehow indicated that Sherry and I had the same relationship as Hank and Iskra.

Iskra's body filled my head. Available. Hank is totally okay with it.

I wondered if I should be honest now, and tell Hank that Sherry and I were not at all like them.

But would we like to be?

Why was I so worried about honesty with Hank? And not with my wife?

Hank helped me out. "Oh..." he smiled. He nodded with understanding. "You didn't know either." He turned back to the pool and raised his glass in their direction, then spun around and ordered another one with a demanding gesture. "Sneaky little bitches."

Again, more with admiration than anything else.

There was a pause. I was almost shaking, but I had no idea what from.

Hank made me jump by slapping me on the back. "Don't worry man," he said. "Iskra won't make it into a big deal, even though it's family. She's...you know. Good at breaking things off without a problem."

I had no idea what to do. Hank was talking to me now like we were in on some kind of deal, and I hadn't even talked to Sherry yet at all.

"Oh-yeah?" I sang, as if I talked about stuff like this every day.

He scrunched up his nose. "She had a thing with my stepbrother, it was cool." He offered no further explanation and sipped his beer. "I am...just surprised she went after Sherry. I really didn't have Sherry pegged as the type, you know?"

“What type's that?” I felt like I was reading a script. The words were not mine, and I had managed to turn off my feelings as I talked. I wasn't sure where any of this was going. It felt dangerous, lying to Hank like this, pretending to have some kind of relationship with Sherry that I didn't...but also I was enjoying it, Just getting taken along for a fantastical ride.

Hank shrugged. “Into girls,” he said, as I were some kind of idiot. We sipped our beers.

“That is pretty sneaky, though,” he said. He turned back to the pool, and then back again to me. He leaned in closer, and his smile was twisted up in a frightening shape. Malice, mischief, and desire were playing out on his mouth and twinkling in his eyes.

“You know,” he said. “We could try to have some fun with this.”

And so the plan was born. I explained to Hank how I had caught Iskra and Sherry together, which had prompted him to call Iskra a 'sneaky little slut' several more times.

We decided they would probably do it again.

We would not let on that we knew.

We would pretend to get smashed.

We would go to bed early.

And then we would find them.

And catch them in the act.

I mean, I should say that Hank decided all of this. The conversation went on with my complicity, without me stopping Hank to clear up the fact that I was not, in fact, one half of a swinging couple, and that I had not, in fact, set any kind of boundaries or any kind of rules with my wife. He just spoke as if they existed, as they must have for him and Iskra.

The scene was so absurd: the cheery, family-oriented decor of the ship, the bright plastic floating in the pool, the blue sky. My...whatever Hank was, in relation to me...telling me how we would catch our wives in the act, having a sexual relationship.

It felt like a dream. Not a nightmare, just a dream with the potential to go terribly awry, or really well. Just weird.

I swallowed my last gulp of a third beer.

What did I have to lose? My wife was having sex with my ex-sister-in-law.

“What the fuck?” I said, in the same voice I had been using. Meaning: sure, why not?

Hank held up his hand, two fingers splayed, and then drove them downward to the table. Decision made. “Two tequilas!” he said.

I looked at Iskra and Sherry, who heard the order, and leaned closer to each other, smiling.

From what I remember, the day dragged on. We stopped at an island and the kids joined us and everyone else from the boat in a bay of shallow, pale blue water with white sand gleaming at the bottom. While we waded in the water, my conversation with Hank, and what I had seen the night before, seemed so remote as to be impossible.

Hank swung the kids around and tossed them tens of feet in the air while they screamed and giggled. Sherry and Iskra shrieked when they were splashed. A pleasant state overtook me, as I watched them all together.

What was wrong with sharing a little more?

I smiled, and drank a fruity drink with Sherry by my side. She laughed and rested her arm on my shoulder. "See?" she said, at one point in the afternoon. "Aren't you glad we came, in the end?"

I nodded, because I was mostly on auto-pilot.

She turned to me, and smiled again.

"I'm so glad you tried to have fun, in the end."

As if the sky knew about my problems, a cloud – the only one in the perfect, azure expanse – blocked the sun and cast a shadow, over me and me alone.

The afternoon passed by in a blur:

Return to ship.

Dinner.

Kids to bed.

Sherry sliding a white dress, of thin material, over her body. The fabric was just thick enough to only hint at the color of her skin through it, and two narrow strips of thicker fabric covered only the place where her nipples would have been visible, pink and only slightly faded by the dress. And the second, where her dark blonde hair led neatly to her pussy.

I sat down on the bed.

Her legs were withing reach of me, and so I reached out and took placed my fingers on the back of her knee as I pulled her gently toward me.

She giggled. She closed her eyes in pleasure as I strummed my fingers along the sensitive skin on the back of her knee. "We don't have time," she said, but she was half-hearted in her denial.

I moved my hand up, along the back of her leg, and I heard a low growl in the back of her throat.

“Sherry,” I said.

I had intended to keep talking, to say: Sherry, I need to talk to you about something. To spill the beans, and tell her I had seen her with Iskra. To find out how long things had been happening.

But when she growled again, and I felt the soft, supple flesh of her upper thigh quivering beneath my touch, the desire to have sex with my wife took over. I moved up further, curling my fingers around, into the space between her thighs. Where it was warm, almost hot, and my fingers stroked against the soft, satiny feel of her panties – also white. I worked my fingertips into the hottest flesh, the place between the outer lips of her cunt and her thigh, smooth and shaved. Under the line of the underwear, inward, to softer and softer flesh -

Two sharp raps on the door interrupted my journey, and Sherry jumped.

I looked up at her, pleading for more time.

She kissed me on the forehead, as Iskra's voice drilled through the door. “Let's go, old farts, you have to be back for early bedtime, right?”

“Let's take a rain check,” Sherry purred, close to my lips. “Just until tonight.”

Her lips pressed against mine and she slid her fingers along the back of my neck.

I knew I should have said something.

I knew I should have told Iskra to wait, talked to Sherry, talked to Hank...sorted things out.

I was in a daze as I followed Sherry – her dress sliding its half-sheer fabric over the sweet curve of her ass, the strip that only barely blocked the view of her thong nestled between her two hard spheres of flesh tantalizing me. There was a chance that I might see between her thighs, where it was dark and wet.

I did nothing to stop the door from opening, nothing to stop Hank's smiling face and Iskra's dangerously sexy lips from pouring into the room, sucking Sherry up, and taking us all with them. Because deep down inside, I knew there was a part of me that did not want to put the brakes on any of this at all.

Part of me that wanted, very desperately, to live the life Hank thought I had. To 'have some fun,' as everyone had been telling me to do.

After all, Sherry was doing it, wasn't she?

And so was Iskra.

And so was Hank.

So why not Keith?

We had drinks in a dark bar, designed like a pub but comically lacking in dinginess. Hank involved the girls in a game of darts, and pulled me to the bar where we ordered club sodas and sort of awkwardly winked at each other. I watched Iskra, who had encased herself in a dress that seemed to me made of tangled red yarn, and not nearly enough of it, as she moved closer and closer to Sherry. Touched her arm here, touched her lower back there. Handed her the sharp darts and let her fingers linger on Sherry's fingertips for just a moment too long. Their faces moved closer to each other, and they began to speak to each other as though every sentence was a secret, and needed to be whispered next to the other's ear.

“Sort of obvious,” Hank said, at one point in the evening. “Now that you've said something.”

And he laughed.

I wondered if Hank felt the same excruciating pleasure and twisted pain as I did, watching my wife and Iskra sliding their fingertips up and down the length of the sharp darts. If the sight of Iskra's hair sliding against Sherry's pale skin sent shivers through his groin, set the hairs on his arms up on end.

Sure it did: he was only human.

But did he feel the same clenched fist squeezing his heart, the same pounding of blood in his ears, the same cocktail of fear and desire?

Or did he and Iskra have things so locked down that he could watch the way she smiled at Sherry, and touched her hand, and feel safe in their relationship?

Was I afraid of something more than just sex happening between Sherry and Iskra?

Was I bothered by it?

Or did I want to see it play out?

The invisible hand on my heart started its crushing squeeze, again and again, each time the pain stopping my breath but ending with a cold, titillating ache in my balls.

“Okay,” Hank said. “Now's the moment. Let's act really drunk for the next ten minutes until they send us home.”

It worked like clockwork.

Hank threw a dart into the wall, and quite deftly acted the drunk – nothing over-the-top, but enough to prompt Sherry to raise her eyebrows and turn to me. “How much did you guys have?”

I put my hands in my pockets and rocked lightly from heel to toe, which is how I responded when I was busted for drinking. Sherry rolled her eyes. “Oh, my god.” she leaned closer to me. Her voice was low. “I thought we were going to...you know.”

I was torn. A big part of me was so pleased that Sherry hadn't forgotten me, and that she seemed to want to go home with me, that I wanted to abandon the plan. I wanted to go back to our room, strip the white dress from her pale skin and sink into her soft flesh.

But Iskra chose that moment to toss her raven hair, glimmering and thick, over her shoulder, and place her hand on her hip. Her fingers rested on her hip bone, where all of her flesh tried to peek through the twisted red yarn. The sight of her fingers, so close to where her flesh plunged from her hip bone to her pelvis, tipped me over the edge. I imagined Sherry's lips there.

I was done for.

Confused by myself, I heard my mouth say, “I...really, I'll wait up for you.”

It was Iskra's turn to roll her eyes.

They looked at each other. The sexual energy burned through the air. It was almost as if Hank and I were not there at all as we told them to stay out and enjoy the evening. They nodded – or did they even bother? – and looked at each other with their eyes glimmering and their minds filling up with ideas.

I almost talked to Hank, as we walked past the door to my and Sherry's cabin. We went all the way back to our rooms, though this seemed to be by Hank's design. I wasn't sure why. I didn't ask questions. Maybe in case the girls actually followed us.

I opened my mouth several times, to say something. But I had no idea what to say. It seemed like everything had been put in motion, and couldn't be easily stopped.

And I knew, deep down inside, that only a small part of me wanted to stop things.

Mostly, I wanted to see where this would take me.

And it took me, almost predictably, to the hot tubs.

It was such a cliché, but that's where they went. And we let them get comfortable, waiting outside the doors. Smiling at each other in the hall. Hank had the face of a kid playing hide and seek: he wasn't nervous; he wasn't confrontational. I had so many things running through my mind, and some of them were about Hank and Iskra – how they managed to be like this. So calm, so comfortable, so cool with their lifestyle.

Another part of me was nearly queasy.

Another part of me was hard as a rock.

Finally, as if some secret timer had gone off, Hank nodded at me, and we moved into the hot tub area like a SWAT team.

My breath was so loud in my own head that I could barely hear anything else as we pushed through the doors, and around the corner, into the semi-darkness.

Another corner, a more private tub, tucked away.

And there they were.

“Well, well, ladies.” Hank's voice was amused more than anything. He rubbed his hands together.

Iskra did not react immediately. She smiled, but left her lips on Sherry's for one more lingering moment. Then, peeling herself away, she plopped onto the bench and raised her arms up over the back of it. She raised one leg and crossed it over the other, wiggling her toes above the water as she did. She smiled almost adversarially at Hank.

“Well,” she repeated. It was a very sexy, very coquettish 'well.'

I looked at Sherry. She seemed, in stark contrast to Iskra, scared. She was staring vacantly in front of her, afraid to meet anyone's eyes.

Of course. She was the only one here who genuinely thought she was caught.

“You're being rather naughty, aren't you?” Hank said to Iskra, and perhaps to Sherry as well.

Iskra threw her head back and smiled. “A little.”

My eyes moved from my wife to Hank to Iskra and back again, in disjointed jerks. What the hell was going on here? Was I actually standing here, contemplating what I thought I was contemplating?

Iskra met my eyes.

She shrugged and smiled. As if to say: who cares?

I had no idea where anything would go from that moment. The whole plan had seemed great until then, and I realized I had no idea what I wanted. I tried to meet Sherry's eyes, and when I finally did, I think there was as much panic in my own eyes as hers. I tried to send a message to her, that I wasn't...angry. But I had no idea what I was feeling instead of anger.

Then, breaking up the silence and the indecision, and to my utter surprise, Hank slid his boxers down his legs.

His cock was hard already, and it sprang forward. I looked away at first, with locker-room modesty but then I had to look back: it was a big, thick, veined slab of meat, uncircumcised but protruding from the foreskin. It was bobbing up and down with his excitement.

In spite of everything that had happened, I looked from Hank to my wife. My mind was still obsessed with the idea, and the insecurity, that my wife had been sleeping with Hank behind my back. Sherry's eyes were closed now, and her mouth was slightly open. Her expression was no longer embarrassed.

It took me a second to process that Iskra's arm had dropped from the backrest of the hot tub, down, into Sherry's lap. The water was churning lightly and the foam covered what she was doing there, but it was clear that her hand was moving with the turn of her wrist, somewhere between Sherry's legs.

I watched, my breath caught in my throat, as Iskra turned and leaned to place her lips next to Sherry's ear, grazing her skin lightly. She nuzzled her to move her wet hair from her damp skin and her lips began to move, whispering.

I was frozen in place, entranced by the movement of Iskra's lips, so close against the skin of my wife's neck, tickling the skin beneath her earlobe and sending a ripple of pleasure through Sherry. I watched a Sherry's mouth turned up, a slow, deliberate smile spreading across her mouth.

Her eyes opened, and they were large and glinting. She looked right at me.

Her look said everything I needed to know, and yet it was such a strange expression on her – a sexual, come-to-me look, that I may have squinted in confusion.

At that moment, I realized that my cock was hard. Sherry's mouth popped open a little, and Iskra kept whispering to her mischievously. Hank, I could see in my peripheral vision, had his hand on his large shaft and was slowly stroking himself. Not to get hard, just absent-mindedly while he enjoyed the show of his luscious wife's lips nibbling and whispering unknown dirt in Sherry's ear.

Sherry's face became flushed, and I could see that whatever Iskra was doing to her beneath the water was coaxing her quickly to an orgasm. Her eyes closed to thin slats, and something jerked inside of her. Her mouth opened and she leaned her head back. Over the hum of the water I heard nothing, but I knew she had given a small gasp.

There was a moment where the world narrowed to only the sight of my wife, satisfied and flushed, with Iskra's lovely lips biting at her earlobe and her manicured nails walking slowly up Sherry's chest. Her fingers stopped when she found the fullness of Sherry's breast and made long, slow circles around her nipple.

Another whisper in her ear.

Iskra's eyes went back to Hank's, smiling wickedly, as Sherry opened her eyes and rose, slowly, out of the water. Her breasts first, water and bubbles sliding down the smoothness of her skin, all of her shiny and wet like she was starring in a porno. Then her flat stomach, and then, as I sucked in my breath, her hips, bare. Finally her trimmed blond snatch, nothing more than a landing strip guiding my eyes to where her pussy was burst open like a pretty flower. Engorged and wet.

She moved toward me, her eyes on mine.

Hank moved behind her and into the water. I was frozen in place, not quite able to take in what was happening. Sherry came to where I was standing and crooked her finger to beckon me closer as she rose onto the bench of the hot tub on her knees. I moved closer, until I was looking down at her.

There was no hiding my erection, and she reached up with a hot, wet hand to grasp my penis through the material of my shorts. The heat of her touch made me twitch, and she smiled.

She tossed her wet hair back, and it flipped with a sticky sound. She was gorgeous, flushed and glistening beneath me, a bit of her mascara streaked beneath her eye. It was incredibly erotic to me, and my mind ran away with the idea of seeing her even more dirtily mussed than she was right now.

And the idea that it could happen.

She smiled. "Now that we're caught," she said, "we might as well have a little fun."

Her other hand reached to the waist of my shorts and dipped beneath the fabric, running her fingers along my waistline and brushing through my pubic hair. The tickle sent a surge of heat through my cock, and I began to feel overcome by the desire I had been keeping suppressed for so long. I heard Iskra giggle, and I saw behind Sherry that Hank was diving right in to this scenario: his hand was on Iskra's face and he was grasping her hair with his fingertips. "...so bad," I heard his voice say.

Sherry pulled at my shorts, and they slid down. My own cock sprang out. She caught it one hand and pulled me toward the hot tube with her firm grip. It was as hard as she ever squeezed my cock, and I was so hard that the pressure jolted me.

Iskra slung her hair again, and looked at me.

The same look that Sherry had.

I was dragged to sitting by Sherry, who looked back at Iskra, as though for encouragement. Then she turned to me, and her face was impish. Her hand was stroking my cock lightly, and the spray of the bubbling hot tub was tickling my balls.

"I've been very bad, sweetheart," she said. "So I think..." and she turned back to Iskra, who winked at her, "and Iskra thinks, you should have a little fun."

She looked at me, and her mouth was very close to the tip of my cock. She was moving her palm up and down my shaft, and her mouth was getting closer, closer...I could already imagine the feel of her lips on my head. Her breath was hot as she nearly whispered:

"What can I do to make it up to you?"

I looked at Iskra.

A flash of understanding went across Iskra's face, and she slid through the water, moving toward me, and my cock. I watched as her lithe body emerged from the water, in all of its dark glory. I welcomed the sight of her large areolas and the tear-shaped breasts that turned up to display her round, hard nipples.

She was a little tipsy, and she splashed a little clumsily into the seat next to Sherry.

Now they were both in front of me, giggling, smiling. My wife and my ex-sister-in-law, the gorgeous, wet, big-mouthed Iskra. "What can we do?" they giggled in turn.

I looked at Hank. He had his own arms stretched over the back of the hot tub, and he kind of nodded at me with amusement. Like, go ahead buddy.

I knew I should be thinking about how wrong all of this was, and what would happen after it happened, and what it meant that I was about to let Iskra lick the length of my shaft...but I was done for.

The girls gave me no time to think, anyway.

Sherry placed her mouth on the head of my cock, and closed her lips around it along the ridge of the head, sending a sharp shiver through me. Her wet tongue ran in circles over the tip of me in her mouth, and I could feel my cock jerking in her hand.

I leaned back on my hands, unsure of what to do, and I closed my eyes for only a second.

Then I felt Iskra's tongue. She began on the skin of my scrotum, and it was such a small, cat-like lick that I almost didn't believe it was real. Then wetter, her full tongue against my ball sack and licking in swirls.

I had two women's mouths on my cock right now.

I opened my eyes and watched as Iskra bent her head to run her tongue up the length of my cock, and back down again. She closed her lips on the side of my shaft, and I dug at the cement, trying to control myself. Up again, she went, all the way to where Sherry's mouth was still working on the tip of my dick. Iskra's big mouth pushed Sherry's heat away, and they locked lips and mouths together, with the tip of my cock in between them, getting prodded by their busy tongues.

Iskra took my shaft in her hand, and her other hand worked its way behind Sherry's head, and then she pushed her forward. She guided my cock into her mouth and almost pulled to shovel it in while she pushed on Sherry's head. My cock slid into her mouth, deeper than ever before, until I felt her spasm with a gag, but Iskra kept going, Pushing her harder, all the way to where her fingers were wound tightly around the base.

And then, with her strong arms, she began to moved Sherry's face up and down my shaft.

She was watching my wife's mouth with pleasure as her lips moved up and down my cock. Iskra squeezed me tightly, and then she moved her fingers down to my balls. She squeezed and tickled them, then leaned toward Sherry as she pushed her head all the way to the base of my cock.

I could feel Sherry resist, but Iskra pushed her down until I could feel Iskra's fingers stroking my balls and fluttering over Sherry's lips against my balls. "Be apologetic," she laughed in Sherry's ear. "We've been so naughty." Then she turned, her head resting against Sherry's, and smiled at me. She ran her tongue along her upper lip.

My cock was entirely surrounded by my wife's throat, for the first time ever. I opened my mouth and stared at the women in front of me. Iskra released Sherry's head and Sherry began to suck my cock of her own accord. All the way up and down.

Apologetically.

Iskra smiled, and tickled my balls.

Hank was moving, but I hadn't noticed him doing so until he was behind the two women. I realized he had had an excellent view of their two lovely asses this whole time. Of my wife's full bottom, and Iskra's tiny, hard ass as they bent over and sucked on my cock. He was standing behind Sherry now, and I had only a moment to think about what was going to happen: his big, veined hand was moving from beneath the water to between Sherry's legs.

Iskra, however, nudged Sherry away at that precise moment, and guided my cock to her own mouth.

And there she was: my brother's beautiful ex-wife, with her huge lips opening for my cock.

I had no idea where to look. The two women alternated sucking on my cock, each of them deepthroating me, almost as if it were a contest. But behind my wife Hank's hand was up to mischief, and I wanted to see that, too.

Iskra pushed Sherry out of the way, and Sherry, compelled by whatever Hank was doing to her, placed her hands on the edge of the hot tub and scooted to the left. I now had a better view: Hank was moving his finger in and out of Sherry's pussy, pulling her lips open to get a nice view of her dripping cunt.

Iskra, for her part, began to suck my cock slowly. She sensed that I was ready to burst, and when she reached the base of my cock I felt her tongue sliding around, darting out, between my cock and her lower lip...

Dear fucking lord, the woman was licking my balls while she gagged on my cock.

Iskra's silky jet-black hair was pooled in my lap, and I could see only the wet and dry strands of it, sliding and shining as she moved slowly up and down my shaft with her full lips. Her mouth was entirely different: the softness of her full lips was electric and sweet, her teeth barely touched me: she was clearly a near-professional at her blow jobs. Nothing but her soft mouth and her throat and the occasional little prick of a tooth.

My eyes went to Hank and my wife. Sherry's eyes were closed now, and she was gasping in pleasure as Hank moved his fingers over her clit, stroking her to near-orgasm. But my eyes were on his hand, on his cock, and the fact that he was moving it closer to her. Closer to Sherry's pussy. It was big and thick, and it was going to stretch her wide, wide open.

"Oh god," I said, and Iskra slowed, almost stopping, because she seemed to want to suck me off some more while I watched Hank spread my wife open. She deliciously sucked on me to the tip of my cock, and her mouth released me with a wet pop. She looked behind her, and watched with me as Hank placed the tip of his cock to the opening of Sherry's pussy, and slowly slid inside of her.

Next to me, Sherry tipped her head up and opened her mouth in a silent scream. Hank pushed in, inch by inch, and she gave a sharp squeal and shook her head. He must have been twice as thick as me, and I wanted a view of his cock opening her pussy up, spreading her lips to their whitest, most-stretched before they were shredded. For now I had to settle for my imagination.

Iskra looked back at my cock. She was smiling, and she watched as she massaged white droplets of precum from the tip of my aching cock.

I put a hand out to her shoulder, to indicate that I was almost past the point of no return, and I wanted to watch more, see my wife rock back and forth faster and faster. She seemed to understand, but she didn't release me. Instead, she extended her tongue, and ducked under my cock, and squeezed the drops of my precum into her open mouth.

Sherry whimpered next to me, and I looked at Hank's cock. Her hair was making wet slapping sounds against her shoulders, and Hank was pounding her a little harder and faster now. His muscled thighs slapped against her buttocks.

I looked down at Iskra, unsure of where to rest my eyes. She was smiling, and her tongue made seductive circles over her lips as drops of my precum spilled onto their red fullness.

My breath was ragged and my voice didn't sound like my own as I blurted:

"I want to fuck you," This was for Iskra, and as I said it I realized it had been true for a long time.

"I know," she said, her hand caressing the head of my shaft. "Plenty of time."

I stared at her. Was this really happening? Had she really just said, 'plenty of time?' Was I actually participating in an orgy with my wife, and Iskra, and Hank?

Fuck.

I looked at Hank. He smiled at me. "This girl is so nice and tight," he said, moving his hips and getting his cock rubbed down by wife's flesh. He sucked in his breath. "So tight."

Did Hank actually have his cock inside of my wife?

I knew I shouldn't just sit there, letting Iskra move her hand up and down my shaft with her big mouth under the tip of my cock, open and begging me silently to come in her mouth, while I watched Hank enjoy how tight my wife's pussy was.

I was hoping to see Hank fill my wife up with cum, I realized. I was hoping for so many things: to put my cock inside her sloshy, used pussy and spank her while I fucked her dirty hole; to get my cock inside of Iskra's ass; to see the two of them licking each other's dirty, cum-filled cunts and covering them in my own cum while I did it.

It was this final desire, and the insistent slapping of Hank's hips against Sherry's ass, that sent me over the edge. I felt cum surging up from inside of me, and I looked down at Iskra as she slowed her hand. She wrought my orgasm out of me, tantalizingly, painfully slowly. I shuddered as my cum spluttered from my cock, splashing into her messy black hair, across her cheek, and over her forehead. Then she guided me closer to her mouth, so that the rest of my cum sprayed directly into her mouth. She pumped my cock, as though she were squeezing the cum out of it for her own enjoyment, and her tongue rolled around her mouth.

I was still shaking, and my cock was still hard, as I watched Iskra open her mouth to show me the churning, swirling motion of her tongue and the glob of cum I had sprayed into her. I watched in fascination, because nothing like this had ever happened to me or anywhere near me, except in my imagination and on a porno.

Then Iskra turned to Sherry. The cum was still in her mouth; she hadn't swallowed.

Sherry. I had forgotten completely about Sherry, who was being pummeled by Hank now. I saw that Hank was tightening up, his veins straining against his skin, his eyes on his own cock moving furiously in and out of Sherry's pussy.

He groaned, and I watched the scene move slowly before me: Hank grasping Sherry's hips and pushing his enormous cock all the way inside of Sherry while his cum exploded inside of her. Sherry's mouth, open with her own orgasmic scream. And Iskra, her mouth full of my cum, smiling, swishing it around playfully in her mouth, moving closer to Sherry...

She took Sherry by the chin, turning her head toward her, and planted her full mouth on Sherry's lips. I watched, not understanding for a moment, and then realizing: Iskra was filling her mouth with my cum.

My cock, incredibly, was coming back to life again. Almost ready to go again.

Dribbles of white spit slipped between the sloppy-kiss lips of Iskra and my wife.

Iskra pulled away, smiling again, and used two fingers to close Sherry's mouth. "Swallow," she said.

I moved almost mechanically, a little unsure of myself. I reached out and put my palm on Sherry's forehead. "Wait," I said. Sherry looked at me.

"I want to see it," I whispered. I wasn't even sure where this voice had come from, or how Sherry would react, but I was jumping in. All the way in. Might as well. Things were already so out of control.

My wife opened her mouth, and there it was: my cum, from Iskra's mouth to hers. Watered down, but still creamy and white. I tipped her head back and watched it in her throat, like a fleshy cup full of milk.

Then I released her, and she obediently swallowed.

I was tingling with excitement again. Hank had been watching this whole scene with his cock still inside of my wife, amused. He slowly withdrew from her, and beckoned Iskra over to him with his still-hard cock in his hand. Like me, Hank was not spent by his orgasm: just the opposite, his cock looked even more huge and swollen than it had before.

Iskra gave me another smile, and then floated with grace to the other side of the hot tub.

Hank climbed out, and knelt on the cement. It was at that moment that I realized the hot tub was so hot I could barely stand it. He crooked a finger at Sherry, who was still panting on all fours, partially in the water. She crossed the tub and knelt on the opposite bench. Her head was right at Hank's cock-level.

I watched as my wife began to lick the length of Hank's cock. I pushed myself up and moved around the tub to where Hank was. Iskra was reclining in the hot tub, apparently not as overheated as everyone else. She watched the scene before her with amusement while the white bubbles in the tub swirled across her tits, right at her nipples. I longed to pinch them in my fingers while I fucked her, but I wasn't quite sure how to make a move on her now. Iskra herself seemed to be leading this orgy, and she was, for now, relaxing.

So I knelt next to Hank, and watched my wife's tongue lick the length of his cock. Cum and her own pussy juices coated his foreskin, and I could smell them from where I was. I stared at the pink of her tongue, lapping at his fat cock. Then he worked his fingers into her wet hair, with his palm on the back of her head, and he pushed her down the length of his cock.

Hank's cock was longer than mine, and fatter, and the meat of his slab stretched her mouth wide and stuffed her throat full. I saw her gag, and heard her desperate breathing as she struggled to get her last breath of air through her nose. Soon, though, his cock was all the way inside of her, filling her throat, and she stopped breathing and gagging and simply took it deeper.

The skin of her neck moved with the shape of Hank's large cock. I stared as he went deeper and deeper, and Sherry's eyes watered. All the way to the base of his cock.

I looked quickly to Iskra, who had her fingers between her own legs and was watching with glistening, greedy eyes.

God, she was so bad. Dirtier and filthier than my imagination had ever dared to come up with.

My eyes went back to Hank, who released Sherry. His cock slid from her mouth and she gagged and gasped at the air while she could. Sticky spit dribbled from her mouth.

I watched as Hank went in again, all the way down, before Sherry could even get enough air. He watched her squirm, her mouth stretched open and her throat filled with cock, unable to breathe. She couldn't even make a sound. "Look at me," he ordered her. "Be good and I'll let you breathe."

My cock felt like it was being hammered from the inside.

I watched Sherry's face. Her eyes went from Hank's...to mine.

Hank slapped her gently on the cheek, three quick pats. "Back at me, Sherry. Make sure look at the man whose cock you're sucking."

Iskra let out a gasp. She was getting off on this big time. Her eyes were trained on Sherry's bulging throat.

Hank released Sherry, and moved her head like it was the head of a doll in his hands – towards me.

I was a little concerned of Sherry now. But she smiled at me just before she opened her mouth. Her mascara was streaked down her face now, and her eyes were teared up and red.

I took her head in my hand, and pushed her down the length of my shaft.

When she reached the bottom, I pushed her against me. She took my cock inside of her throat easily – I am an average-sized guy and she had already accommodated Hank's giant cock. She did not resist, but let me grind her face against my pelvis.

Fuck, it was so hot, using her like a toy like this.

Hank and I passed Sherry between us like this for another minute. She sucked on one cock and then the other, breathing heavily between each plunge into her throat. Her face was shiny with spit, and she became dirtier and filthier with each pass at her mouth. But she was enjoying it, opening her mouth wide to take us in.

Iskra, finally, emerged from the water, and crossed behind Sherry to be closer to Hank. When Sherry turned to me and took my cock into her mouth, Iskra pulled Hank to seated and turned around.

Sherry's lips were against my ball sack when Iskra grasped Hank's cock, pointed it at herself, and began to sit down. She looked right at me as she slid her pussy over Hank's cock, and by the looks of it she was wildly wet because she slipped right down his pole.

Then she looked me in the eye as she bounced up and down on Hank's cock. Her small tits bounced lightly and her thighs flexed to give her momentum. She opened her mouth, and I could see her feverish orgasm building inside of her. But she kept her smiling, playful eyes on me.

Hank grasped her with his hand and slammed his cock up inside of her. I looked at Iskra's small body and wondered how his cock even fit inside of her. Iskra gasped but with a large smile.

"Don't let him come yet," she said, and it took me a second to see that she was talking about me, to Sherry.

Sherry started to move more slowly, and then she pulled away from my cock completely and squeezed me tightly to push down the orgasm as we watched Hank and Iskra come at the same time, yelling loudly.

My cock was so hard now it was painful, and Sherry had cut me off painfully close to the tipping point. I breathed out, shocked, and stared at the scene.

Oh god. She wasn't going to leave me like this, was she?

Iskra pushed her hair out of her face and slid from Hank's cock. She sat on the cement and pulled her legs up to her torso. She moved her feet away from her snatch, so I could see it dripping with Hank's cum.

I looked desperately at Sherry, who was moving away from me. She seemed to be pulled toward Iskra by some imaginary leash.

"I just want you to be ready for this next bit," she cooed at me.

Sherry knelt next to her. Hank had pushed himself backward and was leaning against a bench out of the water, watching with interest but not, like me, tortured by what Iskra was going to do next.

"Sherry lost a bet," Iskra explained, reaching out and stroking Sherry's hair. "And so she's promised to be my sex...pet... for the weekend. Haven't you?"

Sherry nodded. She was feigning submission, or actually demonstrating it, but she liked it.

Iskra smiled at me. "So Sherry here," she said. "Will have to do anything I tell her."

Her words sent a shiver through me. Now I was actually aching all the way through my torso to my back.

Iskra moved her fingers down to her own cunt, and played with herself absent-mindedly. Cum was gushing from inside of her, and her pussy was a filthy mess.

"I bet you've been thinking about fucking me for a long time, no?" She stroked her clit with a long, languid movement.

I said nothing. I was in so much pain, and my heart was throbbing inside my chest so hard I was almost certain that if I moved, I would have a heart attack.

“Of course you do,” Iskra said. “But I think you should have a chance to have a nice, clean cunt to fuck, since it's our first time.”

My heart might have actually stopped.

I was paralyzed as Sherry obediently followed Iskra's gestured commands to lie down on the cement. I had to scoot back for them to have room. I stared as they twisted into that most holy of holies: the sixty-nine. Their legs entwined with arms, and hair stuck to thighs, and they writhed like snakes for a moment.

And then I watched as Sherry reached around Iskra's legs, rolling to the side so I could see better, and pulled Iskra's bare pussy lips apart. Then, Sherry's tongue snaked down to where all of the white cum from Hank's last load was oozing from the distended lips of Iskra's pussy, and she began to lap it up like a dog.

In and out of her hole, a white glob of cum on the tip of her tongue like she was licking a dessert...and then it disappeared into her mouth.

I couldn't take it anymore. I was still on my knees, with my cock in my own hand, and I edged closer to them. I wanted to fuck Iskra, yes, but the pain in my cock was too much to take. I began to stroke myself, and it was only a few seconds, my eyes on my wife's tongue sucking cum from Iskra's pussy, before I came.

I sprayed my cum liberally all over the two of them. Why not? There seemed to be no boundary we could not cross now. I watched with delight as streaks of cum slashed across both Iskra's and Sherry's skin, a single splatter landing on both of them. I got their faces, their backs, their asses.

I was breathing heavily, and I would have felt certain that was the end.

But I found, to my utter surprise, that I did not feel the same exhaustion as I normally did. I felt like a teenager. I would be ready to go again in a matter of minutes.

The two girls continued to lick each other into a third, or second – I had lost track – orgasm for each of them, and as I watched their entwined bodies and tongues and lips, my cock began to fill with blood again. I felt it starting to ache.

I hoped they would still be up for more.

I looked at Hank and saw that he was watching, and his cock was still hard, but I couldn't tell if he would be up for another round.

I really, really, wanted to fuck Iskra, and I had a feeling if I missed this chance it might never come around again.

I heard the ladies gasp, and then they pulled apart from each other. Iskra rose up to her knees and the two of them stroked each other and kissed. I imagined what their mouths must have tasted like, with so much cum and pussy juices coating each of them, smeared on their lips. Like kissing a freshly-fucked cunt.

Then they began to lick the splatters of my cum off each other.

My groin felt like it was being kneaded.

Iskra traced her fingers over Sherry's breasts.

"I think we want one last fuck, if you boys are up for it," Iskra said.

Hank, to my surprise, shrugged. For a moment I was disappointed, but I realized it was part of the game. "I don't know," he said, and my eyes fell on his cock. He was ready to go. "I'm a little tired. I need the right motivation."

Iskra turned to me, batting her eyes. "What about you?" she said.

Again, I was paralyzed by her. I opened my mouth but didn't say anything.

She turned fully around to me, and we were face to face. Her hard nipples brushed across my chest. "You want to fuck me, don't you?" she was teasing me, walking her fingers over my chest.

She turned back to Hank. "What if..." she looked back at me, but was talking to Hank as she looked in my eyes for my reaction. "What if I offer you Sherry's ass? Think you could get going for that?"

I knew I should look at Sherry, to see if Sherry was okay with that.

But I couldn't take my eyes off Iskra.

"Iskra," Sherry said. "I can't...it's too big."

Iskra smiled at me. "What do you think, Keith? Is Hank's cock too big to be in your wife's ass?"

I knew what I needed to say, if I was going to get what I wanted. And also, I wanted to see Sherry take it in the ass. "No," I said, almost in a whisper.

When I looked at Sherry, I saw she was genuinely nervous, but I could also see that she was game. She had evidently enjoyed signing her rights over to Iskra, and she liked being told what to do.

Who would have guessed that about Sherry?

“Get on your hands and knees for him,” Iskra told her, but without looking away from me. Her hand was walking ever-closer to my cock. I trembled with anticipation. I could barely breathe.

Sherry obeyed, and got on all fours.

“Now,” Iskra told me. “I imagine you want to watch this, too. Watch Sherry take a big cock in her ass while you finally get your cock wet in my pussy?”

I just nodded. My mouth was dry.

Iskra smiled, and pushed me backward. I realized she was guiding me to a chair. It was knocked over, and I fumbled to set it up. She pushed me down in it after I stood up next to it. “Just relax.”

She turned around. Her ass was right in my face now, and her engorged cunt within my reach. I could smell how ripe and delicious her pussy was. How soft, how hot...and she was lowering herself now. Iskra, my sister-in-law, was lowering her body down over mine.

She hovered over my cock, the tip close to her pussy, for a teasing moment.

Then she slid down my shaft slowly.

And sat on me.

My cock was hot with all of her forbidden flesh, and I grasped her tits for the first time, feeling their taut shape in my hand.

Iskra leaned backward, clearing her body from the view she wanted me to have.

Hank was behind my wife now. He was using his fingers to pull her cum from her pussy to her anus. He was rubbing her ass, kneading her flesh. His finger made a circle around my wife's anus, and she sighed lightly with the pleasure of it.

Iskra clenched my cock.

I was grateful that this delectable scene was coming now, after already coming so many times. Because it was so scorching hot I would have splattered my cum everywhere about a minute ago if not.

Now I was aching to come, but able to last. Placed his hands, one on each butt-cheek of my wife, and pulled her apart. We were angled so we could see Sherry's little pink hole. She was tightening up already, in anticipation of the violation that was coming. Her asshole glistened with her pussy juice, but it would not be enough.

Iskra moved slowly, rubbing my shaft with her pussy. She was quite something, able to clamp down with a muscular grip, so that her pussy felt as tight as a virginal lover.

I watched as Hank let a glob of spit fall from his mouth and onto Sherry's ass.

He placed his thumb closer to her, and let another wad of spit fall just above her ass.

And then. He pushed his thumb inside of her.

Sherry squealed, and bucked. Hank held her easily in place with only one hand, the hand that held her ass and had half of his thumb in her asshole now.

"It hurts!" Sherry said.

I felt a pang of guilt, but I wasn't able to compel myself to stop this. I wanted to see how bad Sherry could be.

"Relax," Iskra told her.

Hank pushed further inside of her. His thumb was buried inside of Sherry's ass to the second knuckle.

Sherry was panting, her face down at the floor in concentration. She squealed a little more as Hank pulled back on his thumb. He pushed forward again.

He guided his cock to her pussy, and played with the tip of it at her dripping gash.

"Maybe I can get my cock wet and make it easier for you," he said. "But you'll have to ask Iskra."

Sherry turned her head and looked at Iskra, who was riding up and down on my shaft comfortably leaning against my back. She looked at Sherry, and maybe raised her eyebrows, as if to communicate that Sherry needed to come up with her own request.

"Iskra?" Sherry asked.

Iskra said nothing, and Sherry squeaked as Hank plunged his thumb in deeper to her ass.

"Say it," he told her.

"Can Hank fuck me to get his cock wet?" Sherry squeaked.

Iskra slid up and down on my cock. She turned her face toward me. "What do you think?"

Sherry was looking a little uncomfortable, but I could see she enjoyed the submission. For the briefest of moments, I wondered how long she and Iskra had been playing this game, how long she had been Iskra's obedient slave.

But I didn't have time to consider it.

I nodded.

Hank pushed inside of Sherry again, and slowly wet his cock. Sherry bit her lip, because even though she was stretched out and ready for him, she knew where that big cock was going next.

Heat ricocheted through my groin again. Fuck, I wanted to see her get fucked in the ass.

I played with Iskra's tit as I watched Hank withdraw his cock, sticky and soaked with Sherry's pussy juices, and slowly extract his thumb from her ass.

He treated all of us to a minute of anticipation, as he moved the blunt tip of his cock in a small circle around Sherry's asshole. She was pushing against him now, wanting it, but her face looked worried.

I stared at Hank's cock. Who wouldn't be?

My own cock was being massaged by Iskra's sweet, tight cunt. I was nowhere near coming though, not after so much sex. I could, amazingly, just enjoy the scene that was about to play out in front of me.

Secret: I loved seeing anal sex. I had never had the balls to try it on Sherry, except once a long time ago when we drunk. She had slapped me away and gotten pretty mad. But I still loved it, I watched it all the time on pornos, I thought about what Sherry's ass would look like gaping wide with a big cock in it.

And now, I was about to see it. With Iskra's sweet pussy massaging me until I came.

Sherry wailed as Hank pushed the tip of his dick through her tight sphincter.

"Oh no," she said. "No, it's too big."

I had a sinful idea, so I acted on it. I pushed Iskra's hair away from her ear, and whispered to her:

"Tell her to do it."

And then I added, for the fun of it:

"Call her a slut."

Iskra moaned lightly, or maybe she growled. It turned her on. I could feel hot liquid well up around my cock with just the idea.

"Do it, you little slut," she purred at Sherry.

Hank edged forward, and an inch of his cock disappeared into Sherry's ass.

It really was stretched open quite wide. Sherry whimpered and lowered her torso to the floor. She pressed her forehead to the floor.

"Tell her to turn our way," I told Iskra, and I enjoyed the way her pussy spasmed around my cock and grew wetter.

"Look at us, Sherry."

Sherry turned her head to face us, and her mouth opened wide but without making a sound, as Hank pushed forward slowly. Stretching her wide, pulling her ass part with his big thick cock. Inch by inch, disappearing inside of her.

Sherry's face was vacant, maybe in shock from the excruciating pain of taking Hank's big dick inside of her.

But maybe six inches into her, something seemed to give way. He moved more easily, more quickly, and Sherry's face lost some of its contorted pain.

"Oh god," she said.

Iskra began to grind herself on my lap. She moved her fingers down between her legs and spread them wide open. I felt her fingers make sweeping circles, over my cock, around my cock, back up to her own gash and her own clit.

Sherry was watching Iskra's display, and I was watching Sherry's most intimate hole stretch to accommodate every last inch of Hank's cock.

"Up on your hands now," Iskra told Sherry. "Hank is going to pound your ass full of cum."

I watched Hank as he began to slam his cock into Sherry's ass. Sherry pushed herself up as he was doing this, and got on all fours. She threw her head back and gasped as Hank delivered punishing blow after punishing blow.

Iskra began to bounce on me, enjoying the show. Her small ass was hard against my thighs, and her tits barely bounced in my hands as she slid up and down my shaft. Her juices were dripping down my balls, tickling them.

Suddenly I said: "No. No, tell him not to fill up her ass."

Iskra smiled. She didn't stop bouncing. Her lips were parted and she was nearing her own orgasm.

“Hank, pull out of her ass before you come,” she said. “And then what?” she asked me.

I closed my eyes and tried not to come as Iskra bounced and bounced, and Hank slammed and slammed into Sherry's ass while she whinnied like a horse. “Then,” I panted. “Then...” I was losing my train of thought.

“Then, put your cock in her mouth.”

Hank grinned, and kept at his pummeling of her ass.

“I want to fuck Sherry's ass full of cum,” I told Iskra.

She smiled and slowed her bouncing. Her fingers moved to her own cunt and stroked her clit. She ground her hips back against me and I felt her squeeze tightly, just before a burst of her juices coated my cock and leaked from the side of her lips and onto my cock.

She stood up slowly, and nodded to Hank, who had to slow himself gradually. He was having a great time in my wife's ass, but it was my turn. He grinned at me.

I fell to the floor, almost dizzy with my erection. Hank's cock slid from Sherry's ass and I stared at her hole. Everything else in the room disappeared, as I moved behind her. Her asshole, which had been such a tight pink hole just moments ago, was now a big, red hole with a large black center.

I pressed the tip of my cock to her asshole, and the ring twitched around it, brushing against my head. I shuddered.

I looked up, and saw Hank taking Sherry by the hair, his cock in his other hand. He placed his cock on her lips and stroked them with the head of his dick.

I pushed forward.

The heat of Sherry's ass, and the softness, were almost too good to be believed. She was so tight around me I felt like I was fucking her for the first time. She squirmed around my cock, but she took it like a good girl, and soon I was slamming into her like Hank had been.

“Make her come,” Iskra said, in my ear. “And her ass will clench hard around your cock. You'll love it.”

I could barely breathe. “Will you,” I began. “Will you do it?”

Iskra smiled, and shrugged, and disappeared beneath us, almost like she was going to work on a car. Her long limbs, navel, and tits were still in view.

Hank had his cock in Sherry's throat now. We were fucking in unison, and Sherry's holes were squeaking and gagging, emitting sticky sexual noises.

And then I felt Iskra's lips, and her fingers...not for me, but brushing me accidentally as she pulled apart Sherry's lips, and with her tongue, very expertly brought her to an orgasm in under a minute. I heard Sherry moan with excitement into Hank's cock as it built up inside of her, and then she came.

Just as Iskra had promised, Sherry's ass clamped down on my cock, hard, and then began to squeeze and un-squeeze. The sensation was so extraordinary that I felt a rush to my head that threatened to make me fall over, passed out.

Hank grasped her head, and pushed deep into her throat, and grimaced as he exploded in her mouth.

Iskra's tongue licked at my balls.

It was my turn.

I rammed into my wife, and felt my cum blasting into her spasming ass, filling her up. I kept fucking, and Iskra remained where she was, licking at my balls, at the dribbles of cum that were falling toward her face and her mouth.

"Fuck," Hanks said, in comment. He fell backward onto the floor.

Iskra squirmed away, and I remained where I was, pulsing to a slow halt inside of my wife's ass.

Sherry sat backwards, pushing me to my knees. I placed my arms around her, unsure of the sentiment I was trying to express. But oddly – or maybe not – she relaxed in my arms.

I suppose the whole thing could have gone any number of ways, and that I hadn't thought it through for a moment. How to end it, that is.

Iskra did us all a favor by laughing, suddenly, as if she had just heard the greatest joke of her life. She stood up, and grabbed a towel. She shook a finger at Hank. "Well, you guys got us," she said.

There was something magical in the way she said it. It put us all at ease. Hank left with Iskra, and it was just the two of us.

We slipped into the hot tub. Sherry sat in my lap, and with her back against me – in some later conversation she would tell me she was a little embarrassed to look me in the eye.

“How long has this been going on?” I said, finally, but stroked her thigh to let her know it was all right.

She shrugged. “It was just a thing since...just before the cruise. But, like...I only kissed her. I was just...curious.”

I realized I had been hoping she would say something like that.

“Are you angry?” she half-whispered.

I shook my head, and I felt her relax on top of me. “I thought you were having an affair with Hank.”

I don't know if she felt it, or if she just suddenly had this idea:

“Wait a minute,” she said, and she turned to me. “You and Hank planned this out...”

I shook my head. “No, no, I swear not exactly-”

She pressed her lips together, but she was smiling. Now we had a complicity between the two of us I hadn't felt for a long time. “You didn't just run into each other, though, did you? And you...” she was catching on to things now, seeing them in retrospect the way I had seen her with Iskra differently after I saw them together. “What happened? Wait...when did you know?”

I closed my eyes. “I'm so sorry. I'm the one who-”

She slapped me on the shoulder. It was playful but hard. “It was you!” she said, realizing it was me who had interrupted her with Iskra the first night.

I nodded. My eyes were still closed. In spite of everything, I still had a smile on my face.

“Sneaky monkey,” she whispered.

“Me? What about you?”

We laughed. It was true: we each had each other over the barrel.

“But...what about Hank? How did he...”

“He...oh man, it's a long story. He thinks we're swingers.”

Sherry nodded sagely. “Because they are.”

I raised my eyebrows. “So you knew.” I looked skyward. “Am I the only one who never knows anything?” I demanded of the ceiling.

Sherry snuggled against me.

“You're always at work,” she explained.

And then, as if by magic, we both snorted a laugh at the same time.

“But we are, too, I guess.” Sherry laughed. “Swingers, I mean.”

We sat for a few minutes, contemplating the truth of that.

I took in a deep breath, and I was about to say something, when Sherry started shaking her head. She knew that I was about to ask if we really were swingers, and what that meant, and how she would wrap things up with Iskra, and go on and on....

“Don't,” she said sharply, but her tone was warm. “We'll work it all out later. For now...”

I pushed her hand up, her fingers entwined in mine, and we looked at our hands together in front of us.

“Try to have fun,” I finished for her.

“No point bringing too much reality to a boat like this,” I said, after a pause.

She squeezed my hand. “Nope.”

There were, after all, only three days left of our vacation.
