

A romantic close-up of a man and a woman in bed. The woman, with blonde hair, is lying down and looking up at the man. The man, with a beard, is leaning over her, looking down at her. They are both wearing black lingerie. The background is a soft, out-of-focus white pillow.

BEN BOSWELL

ONE NIGHT IN CLEVELAND

BOOK ONE

One Night in Cleveland: Book 1

Ben Boswell

One Night in Cleveland: The Making of a Hotwife (Book 1). All Rights Reserved © 2022 by Ben Boswell

Cover image © iStockPhoto. Used under license. Cover designed by Kenny Wright

First digital edition electronically published by Ben Boswell, April 2022

With the exception of quotes used in reviews, this book may not be reproduced or used in whole or in part by any means existing without explicit written permission of the copyright holder.

This book is a work of fiction and any resemblance to persons, living or dead, or places, events, or locales is purely coincidental. The characters are productions of the authors' imagination and used fictitiously.

Foreword

This book took me a long time to complete. I had the story largely written by the end of 2020, but it took over year of edits, discouragement, false-starts, and long periods of inactivity to get it done.

The problem was that I couldn't quite figure out what I really wanted this book to be. There were times when I thought I could "clean it up," "fade to black" instead of including the explicit scenes in the hope of making this more of a mainstream book – something that might allow me to move into more of a Romance rather than Erotica lane. The story is, essentially, meant to be a slightly less rosy take on one of my earlier books – Annual Leave. I think readers will notice the similarity in set-up. It has, I think, more emotional heft. As you'll see, this is not always an easy book. Unlike much erotica, this isn't all just happy fucking and sucking (although there is plenty of that as well). There is also betrayal, self-doubt, and honestly some genuinely shitty behavior going on. And so, you know, I thought, maybe this would be a transitional book toward becoming a more mainstream author.

But it never quite worked out that way. Hard to explain exactly why. A big part of it is that, ultimately, I didn't have the confidence to put it out without the erotica elements. I like to think that I write some pretty hot sex scenes. That is clearly what most of my readers most enjoy of my books. That is, however, a bit of a crutch. You write yourself into some sort of weird plot cul-de-sac, throw in some hot sex and you distract the reader. Or your characters aren't behaving in a way that feels genuine emotionally, well, then have them fuck their brains out and explain away their actions as a consequence of losing their minds sexually. And as I read the book over, with and without the hardcore scenes, I was never able to convince myself that the story worked without the bedroom gymnastics.

Another part of it, though, is that I like the sex. It is hot. It is fun. It's fun to write. Exciting to read. It's my thing in a sense. So why not just stick to erotica and fuck trying to be mainstream? But that's a hard thing to fully embrace, at least for me. Being Ben Boswell is a surprisingly big part of my life. And it's weird for something that is so significant to me to be, well, so hidden. My wife knows what I do and write, but basically no one else knows I am Ben Boswell. Which is weird, right?

So, anyway, I struggled, and this book became a victim of the weird debates that plague my internal monologue. I do like this book a lot, though, despite the emotional churn it provoked in me. There is some of my very best writing here. And yeah, the sex is hot. I hope you'll agree.

A lot of people provided feedback over the nearly two years this book was in the works. Kenny Wright was, again and always, my best sounding board. I don't say this enough, but if not for Kenny I'd have never become Ben Boswell, and my writing would not be half as good. Other folks provided great feedback as well. Mike, Gary, Andrew... It's been a while, so I may be forgetting someone. As always, I'm delighted by reader feedback. You can email me at Ben.Boswell.Author@gmail.com. Or follow my Twitter @BenBoswellAut. Or read my short stories on Medium at <https://medium.com/@ben.boswell.author>. Or if you really love my work and would like to support me further, consider joining my Patreon page: <https://www.patreon.com/BenBoswell>.

Ben Boswell, April 2022

Chapter One

Kate Morris stared into her glass of Pinot Grigio and nursed her grievances. Tonight, she had many.

The big one was that she was stuck in Cleveland, fucking Cleveland, a place she'd fled at seventeen and never returned to... until now. Worse, it was snowing, and she didn't have a hotel room. That would probably resolve itself, but not without a trip in the weather, if she could find a cab, and the hassle of hauling her luggage to another hotel, which was another nightmare because United had split open her suitcase (now being held together with duct tape) and torn off the handle and trashed the wheels, so it now had to be carried around like an oversized baby.

Of course, she wouldn't have had to find a room if her flight hadn't been canceled. And her flight wouldn't have been canceled if she hadn't had to rebook for a later flight after she had to cancel her earlier reservation when Mike bailed on her, making up some sort of work-related excuse that had sounded like bullshit at the time and only smelled worse since.

"Maybe you'll hook up with an old boyfriend," she said, mimicking his voice under her breath. "Idiot."

All of which would have been, perhaps, a small price to pay had the weekend in Cleveland for her fucking twentieth high school reunion been any fun, but it wasn't. It wasn't fun because she was going stag, thanks to fucking Mike. And it wasn't fun because although one might think that twenty years would erase all ill-feelings and replace them with sweet nostalgia, the truth was that it had just allowed those feelings to curdle and rot.

"I didn't like those people in high school, why would I think I'd like them now?" she muttered to herself.

Had Mike been there, it might have been fun. Look at that one. She was a total bitch in school, now she's as big as a whale. Ha! He was so snooty, now he manages a car wash. But instead, she spent the weekend making excuses for him and fending off suspicions that he might be made up, a predicament she should have expected thanks to the whole "Eduardo incident" junior year, which she'd managed to suppress, but which had apparently continued to keep her classmates in stitches for the last two decades.

"Assholes," she grumbled.

And then there was the endless series of emails all weekend. Work crises that were not really crises, but simply rank incompetence among her team. And home crises that were not really crises, but simply rank incompetence from Mike. Seriously, was it that hard to remember that Becky's dance class was at 11:30am and Jeremy's Tae Kwon Do was at 1:00pm? Who gets those confused? And how does, "It's all good, I took them out to Five Guys" fix it exactly? Fucking Mike.

"Infuriating," she snarled into her wine glass.

"Um, are you okay?"

Kate turned to her left. She rolled her eyes. This she didn't need. He was a good-looking guy, mid-30s, with a bit of the Jon Hamm vibe going on, in the sense that he was darkly handsome and looked vaguely dim-witted. Also, given the hour and his empty rocks glass, he was probably drunk and on the make.

"What?" she replied in a tone that she hoped signaled both disinterest and general contempt.

It didn't work. He was too dull for nuance.

"I asked if you're okay. You seem, um, agitated."

"I'm not."

“You’re arguing with your wine glass.”

“Do I know you?” she asked in a tone she hoped would convey that she didn’t in fact know him and had no intention of knowing him.

It was like water off a duck’s back. Worse, in fact. He brightened.

“Not yet. I’m Adam.” He held out his hand.

She stared at it.

“This is where you shake my hand and tell me your name,” he suggested.

She tilted her head and frowned, but she didn’t see a graceful way to refuse to answer. “Kate.” She didn’t shake his hand. He looked at his and smiled before placing it back down on the bar.

“So,” he said after a pause, “are you stuck here with the snow?”

“Are you?”

He grinned. He actually had a nice smile. “As a matter of fact, I’m not! I just got in for a convention.”

“Oh God,” she groaned.

“What?”

She shook her head. “This can’t be good.” In her mind she was going through the possibilities. Was he a LARPer? Some sort of obsessive collector? “Okay, so what is it?”

“Guess.”

“No.”

“Oh, come on, Gloomy Greta, what convention am I here for?”

She rolled her eyes. “Jeez, I don’t know. Sports collectibles?”

He nodded, impressed. “No, but close. Miniatures.”

“Miniatures?”

“Historical battles.”

She snorted. “You play with toy soldiers?”

“And tanks and planes. And sometimes fantasy armies. Ever heard of Warhammer?”

“No,” she replied, though she had a vague recollection of Mike buying some sort of board game with tanks and planes for Jeremy. “How are miniatures and sports collectibles close?”

“I don’t know. Just seems like a lot of overlap. Comics too.”

“Well, sounds like a lovely nerd gathering for you.”

He laughed. “I knew it.”

“What?”

“I knew you’d be a hater,” he said lightly.

“And why is that?”

“Hot blonde chick. Probably a cheerleader. All into jocks and guys with motorcycles. Looking down on the nerds.”

He was so transparent, but even still the description tickled her. “Oh, poor baby,” she clucked. “Did the prom queen turn you down for a date?”

He screwed up his face and faked a sob. “Oh, God, my secret shame!”

She chuckled despite herself.

“Buy you another?” he said, with what she had to admit was impeccable timing, her glass was recently empty, and she was coming off a laugh.

Maybe he wasn't as goofy as she had thought.

"I'm married," she noted.

"Married people don't drink?"

"Married people don't accept drinks from strangers."

He nodded sagely. "Okay then, you get the round."

Before she could respond he called over the bartender. "Old Fashioned for me and another glass for Kate." He paused before adding dramatically, "On her tab, please."

The bartender eyed her quizzically. She laughed and nodded. "Sure, why not?"

Adam smiled. "Look at this, what a great night. Snow outside. A couple of days of Bolt Action gaming. And a beautiful woman buying me drinks. This might be heaven."

Kate laughed again. "In Cleveland, playing board games with a bunch of sweaty nerds, and mooching booze off a married woman. Very impressive."

"You're a glass half-empty kind of girl," he noted.

Their drinks arrived and she took a deep swallow of her wine. "Now I am."

He sipped his. "So, you seem in a better mood. Why were you so grumpy?"

"You don't want to know."

"I do."

"You don't. You're just saying you do because you think you're going to make time with me."

"Make time? What is this, 1957?"

“What? People don’t say that anymore?”

“Not since James Dean went to Porsche heaven, but don’t let me stop you.”

Kate sighed. She did want to talk to someone, and since Mike wasn’t here....

“High school reunion.”

“Tenth?”

She giggled and then chided herself silently for being so easy. “Twentieth... and save the bullshit shocked act. I know I don’t look 27.”

He grinned and held up his hands. “Guilty. Still, you know you look good for someone going to her twentieth. I bet you were one of the hottest women in the room.”

She smiled despite herself. But it was true. Most of her classmates had put on a fair number of pounds, which they all seemed to want to write off as baby weight, as if Kate hadn’t spit out two kids of her own.

“It wasn’t like that.”

“What do you mean?”

She shrugged.

“Oh, I get it, you were expecting them all to be fawning over you?”

“Jeez, that makes me sound awful.”

“But, yeah, right?”

“No. I mean, not exactly. I mean.... I wasn’t a cheerleader back in high school. I was a band geek, braces, acne, and also skipped a grade.”

“Ah ha! Now, I get the nerd hate. You’re one of us! Nothing worse than a self-hating nerd.”

“Um, excuse me, but playing a musical instrument and having bad skin is not the same as sitting around playing with toy army men.”

“Recreating famous military encounters.”

She pumped her hand up and down. “Jerking off.”

He laughed. “You sure you weren’t a mean girl?”

“No, and it turns out... if you weren’t one of the Populars back then, you’re not going to be one now.”

“I’m sure that all of those mean girls’ husbands were checking you out.”

She enjoyed the flattery, but it was enough. “You need to stop that. I told you I’m married.”

“I can’t help myself. You know what they say about band girls.”

“You know American Pie wasn’t a documentary, right?”

“Speak for yourself. I’ll always have a soft spot in my heart for my first apple tart.”

She chuckled. “You’re nuts.”

He shrugged. “Okay, so lousy reunion. Doesn’t explain why you’re sitting in a hotel bar by yourself muttering into your wine glass like a crazy person.”

“Because I’m an idiot. I went to the airport. My flight was delayed, then canceled. Now I’m rebooked for a 7:45am flight tomorrow. I took a cab back here because this is where I’d stayed the last two nights, only to find they were booked up now. The front desk is trying to find me a room somewhere else, but last time I checked, the city seemed to be shutting down.”

“No place to stay, huh?” He raised an eyebrow.

“Don’t,” she warned.

“I wouldn’t dream of it.”

“Uh huh,” she replied skeptically.

He shook his now empty glass. She rolled her eyes. “Nah uh, you get this round.”

He gestured to the bartender and then smiled gloatingly.

“Bravo. You managed to buy me a drink.”

He luxuriated in his victory for a moment, and then asked, “So, who was ‘infuriating’? That’s the one that got me. Such a blend of annoyance and disappointment in your voice.”

Kate eyed him carefully. “What do you do? I mean, when you’re not playing with army men?”

He clucked. “You know, in Europe asking that is considered quite gauche.”

“Last I checked, Cleveland was still in the good ol’ U.S. of A.”

“Yes, but my point is, what does it matter what I do?”

“I just like to know what I’m dealing with,” she replied.

“I don’t bite—”

“Yes, yes,” she interrupted. “Unless I want you to.”

“I wasn’t going to say that.”

She looked at him skeptically.

“Okay,” he acknowledged. “Maybe I was. But it would have been meant ironically.” He took a sip of his drink. “What if I was a lawyer?” he proposed.

She regarded him carefully. “You’re not.”

“No, I’m not.”

“You’re not a sales guy. Your bullshit isn’t heavy enough. IT? No. That’s just the nerd stereotype talking. Some sort of... professor maybe?”

He nodded, impressed. “Close actually. High School journalism teacher.”

“Those who can’t, teach?” she teased.

“Those who want to get a salary and still write, teach.”

“Working on the Great American Novel?”

“Yes. The working title is The Great Gritsby.”

“What’s it about?”

“I don’t know. That’s as far as I’ve gotten.”

She chuckled. “And what am I?”

He laughed. “Oh, that’s easy. You’re some sort of project manager.”

She looked at him surprised, and a little freaked out.

“Do I know you?”

He laughed. “Bam. I’m good.”

“No, seriously, what’s this about?”

“It was just a guess. But... you’re obviously tightly wound—”

“Am not.”

“Says the woman cursing at a glass of wine. Type-A... is that better?”

She rolled her eyes.

“Anyway,” he continued, “you just have that vibe about you that says you like to see the trains run on time.”

“You’re comparing me to Mussolini?”

“Doesn’t everyone?”

“Um, not usually.”

He chuckled. “Well, not to your face.”

“That’s not very nice,” she noted. Then after a pause, “But it is probably true. At least my husband thinks so.”

“Ah ha,” Adam chimed triumphantly. “I think we’ve found Mr. Infuriating.”

She nodded thoughtfully. “You’re good at this.”

“Okay, so what did Mr. Infuriating do?”

“We shouldn’t be talking about this. I shouldn’t be talking behind my husband’s back to a strange man.”

“I may be a stranger, but I am not strange. Anyway, we’re just talking until your hotel room comes through, right? And then, poof, I’m just a ship passing in the night.”

She laughed and nodded at his nearly empty drink. “You should slow down on those.”

He downed it quickly. “Probably.” He waved for another round.

“Are you trying to get me drunk?” she asked.

“No, I’m trying to get myself drunk. You’re just collateral damage.” He paused. “That’s a military term, you know.”

“Oh, good to know talking to me isn’t distracting you from your real purpose here.” She finished her own glass and promised herself to only sip at the next.

“Back to Mr. Infuriating.”

“Please don’t call him that.”

“What should I call him?”

She grunted. Every personal detail was one too many to be sharing with a stranger, who was indeed at least a little strange, but truth be told, still quite handsome and not quite as dim as she’d originally suspected.

“Mike.... And he’s not infuriating.”

“Well, not 24/7 surely, otherwise you wouldn’t still be married.”

“We could be staying together just for the children,” she noted.

He eyed her pensively. “No, that’s not your style. Come on, you’re vamping.”

“I wanted him to come to the reunion. He said he would, and then he backed out at the last minute. We’d gotten a package deal on the flights, and I had to cancel them and rebook, which put me on a later flight, and got me trapped here by the snow. Also too, it meant I had to deal with the mean girls on my own.”

“You can’t blame him for that.”

“Sure I can. That’s what being married is all about, blaming your spouse for things they have nothing to do with.”

He laughed. “I’ll keep that in mind.” Then after a pause, “Okay, that makes sense. I’m surprised he’d let you come to your reunion by yourself.”

“Why is that?”

“I guess I’d be worried about my wife hooking up with some old flame or something.”

“Or getting chatted up by a stranger in a bar,” she noted, surprising herself with her own flirtatiousness. She caught herself. “Anyway, no real old flames. I told you, I wasn’t that kind of girl.”

“‘Kind of girl’ sounds a little judgy to me. What, any girl who dates in high school is some sort of slut?”

“I didn’t say that did I? Maybe I’d have liked to have been that kind of girl, you know, the kind who didn’t have to pretend to have a boyfriend, and....”

His eyes went wide.

She stopped and covered her mouth. “Oh God... I shouldn’t have said that.”

“But you did.”

She shook her head. “I’ve never told anyone....”

He shrugged casually, though he couldn’t fully hide his interest. “I am no one, remember? Just a stranger in a bar. A curious one, but still a ship in the night.”

“No. No. I can’t,” she giggled.

“Oh come on. This has to be epic. You made up a boyfriend? What, was he from Canada?”

She blushed bright red and took a gulp of wine. So much for nursing it.

“Please,” he insisted. “I promise I won’t tell anyone.”

“Of course you will. You’re going to tell everyone you know. It’ll be known forever as ‘the story of the crazy, drunk woman Adam met in a bar.’ My ears will be burning for eternity.”

“I think you’re being a little melodramatic, but if you’re trying to sell it, you’re doing a great job. Going to have trouble living up to the buildup, though.”

She sighed. She knew she shouldn't, but she really did want to tell it, and more than anything, she wanted to tell Adam.

"Okay... so... this is so embarrassing... but okay... so...."

"Jesus, get on with it already."

She took another sip of wine and then a deep breath.

"I had a crush on this guy Jason."

"Band guy?"

"No. I think he was in my English class. Actually, I know he was because that's where I fell for him. He was dreamy, with this wavy, dirty-blond hair and hazel eyes, and he was weird in that he was, like, cool, but he also, like, sensitive. He liked poetry," she said by way of evidence.

"Okay, so you had a crush on a gay dude."

Kate rolled her eyes. "This is 2021. We don't do gay jokes."

"It wasn't a joke. I was just covering up my own attraction to him. Did he have a nice cock?" he lisped.

She rolled her eyes again, but she was laughing. "I wish I could tell you. Anyway, I was mooning over him, and telling my friend Beck all about it, and we were, like, hatching plans to get him to notice me."

Adam shook his head. "Girls are so silly. Always looking for just the right subtle signal to send a guy when the answer is always just... tits."

"I should have just flashed him, you think?"

"It would have worked."

"Well, if I ever get a time machine, I'll try it out. But anyway, as it turns out, I didn't just flash him my boobs—"

“Cleavage works, too,” he added.

“Can I tell my story?”

“Sorry, go ahead, but see what I mean? You haven’t even shown them to me and even still I can’t stop thinking about your tits.”

“Charming,” she said coldly, but she couldn’t suppress her half-smile.

“Well, Becky told Christina, who told her boyfriend Geoff. And somehow it all circled back to Jason. I had gotten up the nerve to ask him to be my partner to do a report on Ode to a Nightingale, but by then he’d heard I loved him, which I guess freaked him out, so he told me he’d think about it, but then I found out he’d paired up with Emily instead.”

He laughed. “From the venom in your voice, I am guessing Emily was the sticking point.”

“She was a stuck-up little bitch, and she’s now as big as a whale.”

“You really need to let that go.”

“Yes, I do,” she replied in a tone that said she wouldn’t. “But anyway, Emily came over and rubbed it in my face. ‘Sorry about stealing your boyfriend,’ or something like that. And, of course, I fired back, ‘I have a boyfriend already.’”

He chuckled again. “Ugh. See that was the worst thing to do because you just confirmed the whole story—”

“Thanks Captain Obvious. I know that now! You don’t think I’ve replayed these conversations in my head a million times?”

“I still don’t see the big deal,” he noted.

“That’s because you’ve only heard about the first shovelful, not the entirety of the hole I dug for myself.”

“I suspect you’re making a mountain hole out of a mole hole.”

“You’re drunk.”

“A little.”

“Want to hear my story?”

“More than anything in the world.”

“So, people started asking me who my boyfriend was. I went through the expected sequence. You don’t know him. He’s not from around here. Then I got creative. I really can’t tell anyone because he’d get in trouble. He comes from a famous family.”

Adam laughed. “Uh oh.”

Kate drained her glass. Adam ordered another round.

“It gets better,” she said. She shook her head and chuckled ruefully. “I have to admit, I outdid myself. Do you know the King of Spain?”

“Juan Carlos?”

“No, that’s the dad. The son is Filipe. Anyway, mid-1990s, he was a hottie. I saw his picture in People magazine. Tall, dark—”

“Royal. You told people your boyfriend was the prince of Spain?”

She blushed. “No, but his nephew... Eduardo.”

“Does he have a nephew, Eduardo?”

“Um, no.”

“Tricky.”

“Yeah. Luckily, this was still early days of the Internet, so not that easy to check. Anyway, I muddled it. He became Filipe’s second cousin or something. And then I found a picture of a hot Spanish guy to go along with the name.”

“Wow, you really dug in your heels.”

“You have no idea. See, here’s the thing... I think I sort of started to believe my own nonsense. Like, I knew I wasn’t really dating this hot, Spanish royal, but I’d spent so much time filling in the gaps in my lies, that it was like I was.”

“And it all came crashing down, but people still remembered it?”

“Yup. Which is why Mike not being there this weekend was so awful. See, it was like Eduardo all over again.”

“I’m surprised he made you go through that.”

“Oh, I’ve never told Mike.”

“Really?”

“No. Would you?”

He chuckled. “Probably not. So how far did this obsession go? Did you fantasize about him?”

“Wouldn’t you like to know?”

“Ha! That’s a yes.”

Kate blushed. “Fuck you.”

He laughed heartily. “Oh please. I doubt it was worse than my Britney Spears obsession. You could repopulate the earth after the apocalypse with all the seed I spilled thinking about her.”

“At least she’s real.”

“Well, there is that, but....” he trailed off.

“Oh, no you don’t. I told you my deep dark secret, you can’t hold out on me.”

“This one is creepy.”

“Like mine wasn’t?”

“Okay, but promise not to think ill of me.”

Kate laughed. “Talk about a buildup. Spill it!”

Another round of drinks arrived unbidden. The bartender rapped gently on the counter. “On the house.”

“Oh God,” Kate groaned, “you’re going to have to carry me home.”

“I’d love to,” Adam replied flirtatiously.

“Not until you tell me about Britney.”

He shook his head and laughed. “Okay... but, you have to understand the difference between boys and girls.”

“Um, I’ve had two kids, I think I know about the birds and the bees.”

“I’ve never understood that expression. Did people once think that birds and bees fuck each other?”

Kate giggled.

“Anyway, my point,” Adam continued, “is that I imagine that when girls are curious about sex and want to imagine what it is like, it is just a matter of, you know, finding some sort of cucumber and, well, experimenting. I mean, isn’t that what you did?”

“Um, no comment.”

He grinned. “But didn’t you ever wonder how a boy might try to simulate a pussy?”

She laughed. “Um, no Adam, I have to admit. I have never, until this very moment, considered that.”

“Typical female lack of empathy.”

“I see what you mean. We girls shouldn’t be so selfish about the whole thing. If a guy is curious about sex, we should just spread our legs and provide him with the experience.”

He raised his glass. “Now you’re talking. Where were you when I was sixteen? Anyway, since you weren’t around to help me out, I resorted to my own creativity.”

“Do tell.”

“Well, I tried various tubes and things, but while that seemed like the right shape, it didn’t seem to capture the sensation. So, I ultimately made my own sex doll, I guess. I duct taped two pillows together with a paper towel tube in between, and then added some hand lotion, and then I...”

“You humped the pillows? And did that work?”

“Work how? Did I achieve climax?” She nodded. “Well, of course, but at sixteen, a stiff breeze could accomplish that.”

“No,” Kate asked, “I meant, in retrospect, how close was it?”

He laughed. “Really? Between the birds and bees comment and this, I’m beginning to wonder if you actually do know how sex works.”

“Oh, believe me, I know.”

Adam raised an eyebrow. “Hubby gives it to you good and hard?”

She rolled her eyes. “Married twelve years, two kids, what do you think?”

“I think you need to go out of town and meet a stranger in a bar.”

She felt her stomach flutter. She was drunk. Yes, that was it. But he was cute and he was funny. And... she really needed to get away before anything happened. She’d already spent too much time and had too many drinks with this man.

“Nice try, Buddy,” she said as she patted his arm. “Now, let me check on my room.”

She pulled her phone out of her purse and gaped at the screen. It was past midnight and she’d missed three calls.

“Oh fuck,” she gasped. “How’d it get so late?”

She turned away from Adam and put the phone to her ear and listened to the messages. They were all from the front desk.

Ma’am we found you a hotel room at a sister property, please call back so we can confirm the stay.

Ma’am, are you still looking for a room? We have other guests looking for accommodations.

Ma’am, it is midnight and we’re closing down the office. Seems like you found a room. Have a good night.

She placed the phone back into her purse and silently sat on her barstool. When it rains it pours.

“Are you okay?” Adam asked.

She laughed. “I missed my chance to get a room.”

“I have a room upstairs. You can stay with me.”

“You’d like that,” she said.

“I would,” he admitted. “You might like it too.”

She was pretty sure she would at that. She turned to face him. Better to lower the boom and make sure he understood nothing could happen. He was already turned toward her, his smile hopeful rather than rakish, his gaze earnest rather than hungry. She didn’t want to go back out in the snow. She didn’t want to sleep in an airport lounge or a hotel lobby.

“I can’t,” she muttered, but she didn’t turn away as he leaned in and gently kissed her on the lips.

It was electric. She felt her face flush and her belly do a flip. Their lips stuck together as he pulled away, and she followed after him. They kissed again. She felt his hand on her knee, and this time the fluttering in her belly moved lower, a twinge between her legs. His hand cupped her cheek—oh how she loved that—and they kissed again.

“They’re going to tell us to get a room,” she gasped softly, her mouth inches from his.

“Well, then I guess we have no choice.”

He took her hand in his and helped her off her stool. She pressed her body against his and they walked hand-in-hand from the bar.

Chapter Two

In the time it took to cross the lobby, Kate's excitement spiked. She was going to a man's room! A handsome stranger had picked her up in a bar, and now she was going to his room to have... sex. It was unthinkable, but now that it was happening, it was wildly exciting.

They entered the elevator and waited for the door to close. It took all of Kate's self-control to stop herself from wheeling around to face Adam, to continue what they had begun in the bar. The doors began to slide shut. She felt his hand tighten on hers. Her breath caught.

"Hold it please!" a shout from outside, a hand slipping between the doors, the elevator opening up again.

Kate swallowed hard and tried to calm her nerves as three snowy travelers dragged their luggage into the increasingly cramped space. As they adjusted themselves, Adam leaned forward.

Lips to her ear, he whispered, "I'm going to fuck your brains out."

Kate gasped, suddenly weak-kneed. A flash of heat bloomed from her fluttering pussy. Her panties dampened. She scanned the others frantically, sure they had heard him, or that if not they could sense her excitement. She felt like she was naked, on display, that everyone could see her for the horny slut she was. Her nipples ached and she was acutely aware of the wedding band on her finger.

She felt Adam's hand on her lower back, and she barely suppressed a moan. He made small circles with his fingertips, going lower and lower, teasing the top of her butt crack through her dress.

Adam's room was on 10. The other travelers were on 4, 7, and 8. The slow progress of the elevator was torturous. At each stop, as the new arrivals shifted to get their luggage out and then exchanged plans to meet for breakfast, Kate bit her lip impatiently. She glanced over her shoulder at Adam, handsome, grinning, amused. She hated him for his apparent calm. Somehow, it made her want to fuck him even more.

At 8, the last of the other passengers finally exited. The door seemed to close in slow motion. It finally hissed shut. She began to turn toward Adam, but before she could, he had his hands on her shoulders. He spun her around and slammed back against the wall of the elevator, making it sway on its cable. She gasped and he kissed her open mouth with an almost violent passion. She sucked his tongue into her mouth. His hands dropped down and mauled her ass, pulling up her dress at the same time. She slipped her hand between them and rubbed his thick, hard cock.

Kate felt overheated, delirious. She needed it now. Needed his big, fat prick inside her.

The elevator chimed. 10th floor. Kate wished the doors would stay closed, the lights going out so they could fuck right there. Instead, they stumbled into the hallway.

He was rock hard, his pants tenting. It should have been funny, but instead it just filled Kate with desire. One step. Two. Then they tumbled into each other and against the wall, kissing, groping, gasping into each other's open mouths. Take me right here! The thought echoed in Kate's mind, inflaming her further. She shouldn't. She couldn't. But she knew she would. If he pulled it out, she'd let him fuck her right then and right there, out in the open, not caring that anyone could happen upon them.

They managed to separate and took another few steps, but it was too far. He pressed her against the wall, hands mauling her boobs, mouth on her throat. She stroked his cock hard and gasped, "Oh God, how much further to your room?"

"Not far, not far," he gasped.

"If you don't get me inside, soon—" she warned.

He groaned and cut her off with a full mouth kiss. Then: “God, that would be so hot.”

Lust and terror fought it out inside Kate. He wouldn't be the voice of reason that she so desperately needed, which meant there would be no limits unless she imposed them. And she didn't want to set any.

They resumed their slow crawl down the hallway. Her bra came undone, and her breast slipped out of her twisted dress, his shirt came out of his pants, and when they next kissed he squeezed her plump nipple between his fingertips as she palmed his flat stomach. They weren't fucking in public... yet... but even so, every click, thump, and creak had her scanning up and down the hallway for the appearance of a sudden audience... a thought both mortifying and wildly arousing.

Finally at his door, he fumbled in his pocket for his keycard. Her breast was still exposed. She had her hand down his pants, stroking his hot hardon.

“You're so big,” she sighed.

He shivered excitedly as he heard those words. He shoved his key into the slot, bending low at the same time to suck her nipple into his mouth. She cupped his head, and they half-fell into his darkened room. The door slammed behind them, he shoved her up against it. His hand slipped beneath her dress. She moaned.

“You're so wet,” he gasped as his hand touched her soaked panties.

“You're so hard,” she replied, though he was getting wet as well, his cock leaking precome all over her fingers.

He dropped to his knees, and she whimpered as she lost her grip on his prick. The drapes were open, and with the door closed, the room was bathed in the faint glow of lights reflecting off the snow still falling outside.

“Lift up your dress,” he ordered.

He could have lifted it himself, but she knew he wanted her to do it. That she had to expose herself to him, offer herself to him. She wanted to tease him, but she couldn't. She was too primed, too ready to waste time with games. She reached down and quickly yanked up her dress, holding it bunched at her waist. She noticed her hips sway unconsciously and the sheen of dampness on her thighs.

Adam also was too excited for patience. He grabbed her panties at the hip and yanked them down. She sucked in breath through her teeth and felt her face flush. He was face-to-face with her closely trimmed sex. He could smell her arousal, and she knew what she was presenting, her pussy swollen, wet, red and open. No ambiguity. No subtlety. She was a bitch in heat, and she couldn't deny it.

He didn't hesitate. The sight of her inflamed like that was like a red flag to a bull. He lunged at her, his mouth all over her sloppy, wet slit. Licking, sucking, breathing deep of her scent, slurping up her juices. She grabbed the back of his head with one hand, fingers winding into his thick hair.

"Oh fuck, oh fuck, oh fuck!!" she moaned.

He grabbed her ass, squeezing her cheeks almost painfully, but deliciously, pulling them apart, his fingertips almost at her anus. She lifted a leg, opening herself even more to him, half-straddling his face. Her hips were thrusting involuntarily, humping his handsome face. He slurped passionately, and for a moment, it felt like he had her entire pussy in his mouth, then his lips honed in on her clit, his tongue flicking at the swollen hood, his mouth sucking on her exquisitely sensitive nub.

"Oh God," she cried out. "Ohhhh Gawwwdddd!"

It wasn't a normal orgasm. It was more of an explosion. A burst of heat from her belly that spread outward, leaving pins and needles in its wake. She was lightheaded, parched, gasping like a sprinter. She began to collapse, but he rose up quickly, holding her up.

He kissed her sloppily, his mouth drenched with spit and her juices. Her excitement overwhelmed her squeamishness. She kissed him back, wetly, sucking on his tongue, conscious of her own taste, shocked at how much she enjoyed the raunchiness of it. The momentary sense of being sated that she felt after coming quickly passed. She felt his strong arms, his muscular back, his raging erection, and she knew she wanted more, wanted it all. He felt it too. Felt her hunger growing again. He took her hand and led her into the room, toward the bed.

She stopped suddenly and yanked back on his hand. "Wait."

He turned to face her, disappointment etched on his face. He'd misunderstood and thought she wanted to stop. That she'd selfishly gotten hers and now was backing out. She studied him. Disappointment, but nothing more. No flash of anger. No scowl of determination. And that made her melt even more. He was willing to take no for an answer. And in a strange way, that made him sexier, and ensured there was nothing she'd say no to.

She took a step closer and smiled. And then, with what she hoped was a sultry suggestion, she slowly dropped to her knees before him. He grinned widely.

"I need to return the favor," she said.

Her climax hadn't dampened her lust, but it had cooled her ardor enough that she wanted to see his big dick before it was inside her. She slowly rubbed his crotch through his pants, fingers tracing the outline of his erection.

"Is all that for little ol' me?" Kate cooed.

"Every last inch," he replied, though he couldn't quite keep a straight face.

She opened her eyes wide. "What if I can't take it? What if it is just... too... much," she stroked him in time with her words.

"You can handle me. You don't fool me Band Girl with all your deluded talk of birds and bees making out, you know your way around a... beehive."

Kate smirked. “And here I was planning to suck your cock, and now you’re making stupid jokes.”

His face dropped again. “Sorry.”

“That’s better. Now... let’s see that thing.”

It was strange undoing another man’s belt, unzipping his trousers, and edging down his boxers. Strange and also incredibly sexy to wrap her hand around another man’s cock. To feel his girth and his hardness.

“Oh God, that’s a beautiful cock.” The words just came out, unbidden and unexpected. She blushed furiously, but she also couldn’t take her eyes off it. It was a beautiful cock. Long, but not too long. Thick, but not too thick. Smooth and perfectly proportioned. Uniform in color. A cock that begged to be sucked, and Kate felt her mouth water in response.

Adam was grinning proudly. She couldn’t blame him. What man could resist that kind of flattery, particularly coming from a woman he’d just picked up and who was kneeling before him?

Kate closed her eyes and took the head into her mouth. She knew she should be making eye contact with him to maximize his excitement. But she didn’t want to. Not quite yet. For now, she just wanted to focus on the sensation of a strange prick in her mouth.

Her lips stretched around his girth, his cockhead spongy and salty on her tongue, his barely contained urgency as he resisted the urge to thrust his hardness deeper into her wet, willing mouth. She breathed deeply of his musky excitement. A bit deeper, and then she lifted off, swirling his prick with her tongue. His soft moan turned to a gasp as she swallowed him again, deeper this time. She reached around and grabbed his firm ass, hugging him close. Again, she let him slide from her mouth.

Now she opened her eyes and met his. Then slowly, slowly she took him in her mouth again, deeper, deeper, until she was on the verge of gagging on his tool. She noted excitedly that he had a few inches left, and she moaned at the thought of that big cock pressing into her pussy, stretching her out, filling her completely.

She hummed on his prick and prepared herself for his come. She knew the effect of her big blue eyes and the sight of her mouth full of cock. But he stayed in control, running his fingers through her long, thick hair, and Kate's pussy fluttered at the thought of what this handsome, hung, and confident man would be like in bed.

She slowly made love to his erection, alternating between deep swallows that tickled the back of her throat and licks and kisses all the way up and down his shaft. She bent low and suckled his balls, his prick squishing wetly in her pumping fist. Then again, deep into her mouth.

"God, I want to fuck you," he croaked, lifting her to her feet.

They kissed again, passionately, and he didn't seem reticent in the least though she could taste his precome on her lips. They spun around each other as they waltzed toward the bed. At the foot, he stopped and started unbuttoning his shirt. She yanked her dress up over her head. He froze.

"Are... you okay?" she asked, suddenly self-conscious.

He smiled. "Wow, you're gorgeous."

"Easy, Honey, you've already got me up in your room," she said, blushing and smiling at the same time.

He couldn't take his eyes off her, his eyes roaming over her full breasts, puffy areolas, hard, dark red nipples. He licked his lips as he admired her stomach, the swell of her hips, the tight triangle of blond muff above her swollen sex. She worked hard to stay in shape, and she couldn't remember the last time Mike had looked at her with the same kind of unmistakable hunger Adam had for her now.

She threw herself onto the bed, edging upward, legs parted just enough to ensure he had a good view of her pussy.

“Take off your shirt and join me,” she said, crooking a finger at him.

He forgot he still had two buttons and, in his excitement, he whipped open his shirt, sending the buttons flying. Kate giggled.

“Oops,” he said with a shrug as he crawled up the bed and between her legs.

She moaned as she felt his prick rub against her knee, and then brush against her inner thigh as he paused to kiss and knead her full breasts.

“Later, later,” she sighed. “I want you now.”

He pressed his body against her and kissed her. She could feel his hard cock between her legs, teasing her slit. She reached down between them and stroked his cock, pulling him into her. He pulled back slightly and kissed her again.

“What do you want?” he asked.

“I want you to make love to me.”

“Yeah?”

“I want you to fuck me,” she cried.

He relented and she slipped the head of his cock between her slick folds. He moaned at the sensation of her hot, sticky channel. She gasped. Even as excited as she was, his thickness stretched her. He pressed inside her slowly, and she raised her hips off the bed, opening herself completely to him, giving him the best angle to fill her completely. She shuddered as he entered her, going deeper and deeper, until suddenly she felt his abdomen against hers, and she knew she’d taken it all. Every last inch of a handsome stranger’s big, fat cock.

“Oh God,” she gasped, her pussy fluttering. She clenched him tight and wrapped her legs around him as she came again.

She looked up at him, her face hot, smiling stupidly, a tear running down her cheek.

“God, you come easy,” he teased.

She couldn’t think of a comeback. She was easy. Just putting his cock into her had made her climax. “Shut up.”

He laughed. “You okay?”

“God, yes. Just don’t expect to me to... you know... again.”

“I’d be terribly disappointed if you didn’t,” he said as he began to work his prick in and out slowly.

She knew right away that she needn’t have worried. His big cock felt so good inside her. She knew she shouldn’t be so focused on the big part of it. It was crass and meaningless, but she couldn’t help it. She loved the way he filled her, loved his girth, loved how long and deep his strokes were.

He kissed her hard, tongue probing in time with his thrusts, and then rising up on his arms, he smiled at her. He was enjoying her thoroughly, which was itself incredibly exciting. Knowing that he was taking pleasure from her body, her mouth, her breasts, her pussy was intoxicating.

“What are you thinking about?” he asked her.

She blushed, but then answered him. “Your big cock. And how much you seem to be enjoying my pussy. You?”

“I was wondering if I’ll be able to get into the Warhammer tournament, even though I didn’t sign up in advance.”

She crunched upward and bit him on the chest.

“Ow! You crazy broad.”

Kate laughed. “Tell me the truth.”

“You can’t handle the truth,” he snarled in his best Jack Nicholson voice.

She laughed. Then serious: “Tell me.”

He dropped down heavily on her, engulfing her body. He began thrusting harder, making her gasp. She could feel his hot breath at her ear.

“I’m thinking how good you feel. How much I like your hot, tight, cunt.”

She shivered at the sound of that word. His strokes were coming faster, rougher.

“I’m thinking,” he continued, “how I’m fucking a hot married woman, with amazing tits, a great ass, and a tight, juicy, tasty box. I’m thinking how lucky I am that your husband was dumb enough to let you out of his sight.”

Kate moaned, feeling dizzy.

“I’m thinking of all the nasty, dirty things I’m going to do to you before I let you go home to him.”

She felt again that fluttery sensation in her belly, the awareness of imminent madness.

“Like what?” she gasped.

He fucked her still harder, the sounds of their bodies slapping together and her moans surely audible in the neighboring rooms. A layer of sweat between them. His own raspy gasps. His thrusts turned ragged and desperate, and she knew it wasn’t just a line, that he was imagining how he’d like to use her body, things that she wanted too even if she couldn’t even admit them to herself.

“You’ll see,” he grunted.

She gasped at his self-assurance, and realized she was already twisting and falling over the precipice. He was also caught in a low, throaty growl, his body also shuddering. He thrust in deep and remained there, and she knew he was coming inside her.

“Oh Jesus,” she wailed as her body bucked and writhed against his.

He rose up on his elbows and gave her a eskimo kiss. He started gently churning his noticeably softening prick in and out of her sloppy pussy, milking every last bit of enjoyment out of the encounter. Kate could feel herself smiling widely. She kissed his chin, his throat.

He rolled off her. She mewled softly as his cock slipped out, and then giggled as she felt what seemed like a wave of jism flow out of her.

“Were you saving that up?”

“My whole life. You just popped my cherry.”

She laughed. “Uh huh.”

“What?”

She shoved him over and nuzzled up close to him. “You don’t fuck like a virgin,” she growled lustily.

He laughed, but she felt his body stiffen. She’d gotten to him.

“You’re in a good mood. And to think, just a few hours ago, you were arguing with a glass of Chardonnay.”

“It was Pinot Grigio. And you’re going to sleep in the wet spot tonight.”

He grabbed her and rolled her on top of him. He kissed her gently. “Who said anything about sleeping?”

“Oh yeah, Loverboy, you ready for round two?”

He spanked her ass. “I was born ready... but I’m going to need a few minutes.”

She laughed. “Well, maybe I’ll go freshen up, then.”

Kate started to roll off him, but he held her tight. “Not yet.” A deeper kiss, his hands kneading her butt. She felt a rush of heat and let out a soft sigh. She couldn’t remember the last time a man had gotten her so worked up.

Kate edged her knee between his legs and rubbed against his flaccid, but still substantial prick. It made her want to kiss him down his hairy chest, across his flat stomach, and swallow his cock into her mouth.

As she shifted, another dollop of come dribbled down her thigh. Kate giggled.

“What?” he asked.

“You’re leaking out of me.”

“I guess I didn’t put it deep enough.”

“Oh, it was plenty deep, you just must have runny jism.”

She rolled off him and headed toward the bathroom.

“Hey, I think that was an insult.”

She looked back to see him staring at her ass. It made her feel fuzzy. She went into the bathroom and switched on the light. She squinted in the sudden brightness, and after peeing, stood up and looked at herself in the mirror. She was a mess, hair askew, looking pale and blotchy in the too-bright lights above the sink. She dampened a washcloth and wiped down her mound.

What the fuck was she doing? She was a married woman. A mother. She was supposed to be at a high school reunion, not wiping down her slimy pussy after fucking a stranger who picked her up in a bar. Fucking pathetic.

She startled as the door creaked slightly.

“You decent?”

“Not hardly,” she replied.

“Good.”

He walked in and stood behind her. He was smiling. And yeah, he did have a great smile.

“Yeah, I don’t know how you girls do it. If I looked like you, I’d be standing in front of the mirror naked looking at myself all day long.”

She snorted.

“Spare me the bullshit. You already got in my pants.”

He shook his head. “You really don’t see it?”

Kate looked at herself again. She saw thighs that were too wide, that little bulge at her belly, her breasts losing firmness by the day, and in the bright light, the start of crow’s feet at her eyes.

“You should have seen me back in college.”

He stepped up close and wrapped his arm across her upper chest, cupping her upper arm. He kissed her bare shoulder.

“I wouldn’t want to. You’re perfect now.”

“Now you’re just being silly.”

He wrapped his other arm around her, hand on her belly, pressing up against her. His chest hair tickled her back. His thickening prick dangled against her ass. He trailed his finger across her belly, between her teardrop breasts.

He cupped a breast, enjoying its heft. “You have great tits.”

“Classy,” she snarked. But she couldn’t resist a smile. “They’re saggy.”

“Natural,” he replied. He circled his thumb around her areola. “And amazing, suckable nipples.”

“My kids thought so,” she joked.

“Lucky kids,” he said as he transitioned to her other breast, covering it with his hand, rolling her nipple in his palm until it stiffened and her lips pursed.

His hand slid back down, over her belly to her abdomen.

“Like my six pack?” she asked sarcastically.

“The only six pack I want with my woman is the one she’s taking out of the fridge to drink with me.”

He ran his fingertips through her tightly, trimmed muff.

“I’m not even shaved.”

“Your one flaw,” he admitted.

She elbowed him lightly in the ribs. They grinned at each other in the mirror. He cupped her mons, making gentle circles with his fingertips.

“What do you think you’re....? Ah.”

His fingers slipped between her moist folds. She closed her eyes and thrust her ass back into his groin. He explored her slowly, sliding up and down her slit, tracing her labia.

“Your pussy is like satin.”

“Is that good?” she sighed.

“The best.” He curled his finger and pressed it inside her. “So tight and wet.” His other hand traced down from her shoulder to her breast. He rolled her nipple between his thumb and forefinger.

Kate opened her eyes. She was shocked at the glassy-eyed slut staring back at her, engulfed by a powerful stranger, his finger churning into her vagina, her dark red nipple seeming ready to pop from his attention. She could hear him squishing inside her, hear his excited breaths in her ear. She felt his prick, so big and so hard, pressing against her back.

“Oh God, fuck me,” she gasped.

He chuckled and kissed the soft hairs of her neck right below the ear. “So impatient,” he teased. He slid his fingers out of her vagina, dragging them across her clit.

She shuddered. “Oh God, Baby, put it inside me.”

He pulled at her nipple, stretching out her areola. He teased her clit with hard tight circles.

“Oh God,” she moaned. “Please, fuck me. Please. Please fuckkkk meeeee!” she cried out as she began to climax again.

She was lightheaded and already gasping for breath as he pressed his fat cock into her gooey, throbbing cunt. It was like a jolt of nitrous into her system. Her orgasm folded back in upon itself and redoubled. A flash of light. Buzzing in her ears. She couldn’t feel her feet. Her eyesight blurred, and she felt wobbly. But he was holding onto her firmly, hands on her hips, as he filled her again and again with his exquisite prick. Her eyes finally refocused, and she found his in the mirror.

He grinned. “Thought I’d lost you there for a minute.”

She tried to speak, but her mouth was too dry. She brought up some spit and coated her tongue. “You’re amazing,” she gasped.

“We’re amazing together.”

He thrust in harder, and she felt like he was almost lifting her off the ground with his powerful strokes. She mewled in passion. Part of it was the sensation of his cock pounding into her, but perhaps a bigger part was what she was seeing in the mirror. It was like watching a porno, but a million times more intense. She could see his hips driving forward and immediately feel her pussy submit to the insistent demands of his pounding tool. She watched his hands kneading her hips and felt his hunger and passion as he pulled her onto him. She saw her mouth half-open and could hear her own moans. Her breasts swaying. The trickle of sweat on her forehead.

He slowed, his thrusts now long and deliberate. She moaned as the change of pace seemed to bring a whole new set of nerve endings into play.

“Have you ever watched yourself fuck?” he asked.

“No.”

“It’s hot, isn’t it?”

“Yes,” she sighed. “So hot. So hot.”

He released her hips and cupped a breast in each hand. He squeezed her soft flesh and thrust in hard. She moaned.

“I wish we were filming this.”

She thought of watching the video after, slowly stroking his fat prick while he fingered her pussy. She shuddered.

“Yes,” she gasped.

He mauled her tits. It was almost painful, but she loved the window it provided on his excitement, as if he could barely contain himself.

“You were built for fucking,” he growled. His hands roamed over her body possessively, palming her belly, squeezing her ass, cupping her jaw. He ran his fingers up her nape, into her blonde locks, and closed them tight into a fist, pulling back on her hair as he thrust in harder.

“I want to feel you come,” she said, her voice a throaty whisper.

“Yeah?” he said, voice tight.

She sensed his rising ardor.

“Yeah, Baby, come inside me.” He thrust harder. “That’s it. I want to feel you leaking out of me.” Another hard thrust. “Fill my nasty married pussy with your come.”

He let out a sound somewhere between a grunt and a roar. Kate smiled as she felt his body shiver and his prick pulse as he came deep inside her. He wrapped both arms around her and pulled her into a tight, sweaty hug. She turned her head and they kissed over her shoulder, wet and sloppy.

“Goddamn, I love fucking you,” he moaned.

She chuckled and disengaged from him, his big cock slipping out of her battered pussy, and his load immediately beginning to run down her thigh.

“Disgusting,” she said.

“You asked for it,” he replied.

She turned to face him, and they kissed again.

“You should lick it clean.”

A shocked expression came across his face, and she could see him debating it.

“Um, I don’t think so.”

She smirked. “What, only girls are supposed to eat come?”

He grinned. “You’re a vixen, you know that?”

She laughed. “I thought we were both virgins before tonight?”

“Mmmm. Well, if this is our first time, we really ought to keep practicing.”

She rolled her eyes. “Oh God, if you’re not satisfied yet, you should see a doctor.”

He squeezed her ass and kissed her again, a long, deep passionate kiss.

“I want more,” he said.

“Okay.”

Chapter Three

Kate jolted awake. She glanced at her watch.

“Oh shit,” she gasped.

It was 6:38am. Her flight was at 7:45am.

Adam was sleeping with what seemed like a contented smile on his face. Which he should have. After the fun in the bathroom, they’d had another marathon session in bed. Thinking about it, Kate could still feel his hands on her full breasts, slowly massaging them as she slowly rode him up and down, up and down. And then the conclusion. On her back, legs high in the air, screaming in passion as he pounded her over and over and over. She blushed and hoped that the walls were thick.

6:42am.

“Fuck!” No time for reminiscing. Though, still naked, she would have loved nothing more than to curl up with him again and see if his zeal from last night would translate to morning. She fought the temptation to peel the covers back and just peek at him, at his broad shoulders and manly chest and his perfect prick. Even though her sex was noticeably sore, she could feel her excitement growing.

She glanced at her watch again and shook her head. No time, and anyway, there was no way that they could recapture the magic of last night. It was too perfect, and the best thing to do was just walk away. Still....

She sighed and took a deep breath, and then with a lot of reluctance, turned away from him and tried to gather herself up. Her dress was easy. It was crumpled up on the floor at the foot of the bed. She couldn’t find her bra and panties. She wasn’t even sure if her bra had made it into the room. She thought of their hot making out in the hallway, remembered her breast popping out, the way he'd tweaked her nipple as they kissed. Her panties, though, should have been in the room. She shuddered as she recalled him yanking them down and attacking her slit with his mouth. That was by the door, but when she looked, they weren't there.

6:50am. No time. No time.

She hustled out of the room, acutely aware of her nakedness beneath her wrinkled dress. The elevator seemed to take forever. She tapped her feet anxiously.

"Come on, come on," she hissed.

It finally arrived. She ducked inside and caught a peek of herself in the mirrored wall.

"Oh God."

Unsupported breasts swaying, hair a complete mess, it was the ultimate walk of shame. Emphasis on the shame. Her wedding ring bit into her finger. She reddened at the realization that anyone and everyone seeing her would know exactly what she was. A dirty, cheating slut. She ran her fingers through her hair and tried to restore her blond mane to some semblance of order. But that would do nothing to conceal her boobs or the feel of fabric against her bare nipples or the sensation of a breeze on her throbbing, naked cooch.

She rushed out into the lobby, face reddening at the thought of facing anyone. Surely the people at the front desk would know it all. Were the hotel staff talking about it? About the slutty married lady who got picked up in the hotel bar? Who kept half of the guests of the tenth floor awake with 3:00am shouts of Oh God Oh God! If they did know, they didn't comment... though was that a smirk from the little bitch at the front desk. Oh sure, little miss perfect, like you don't spread your legs. Cunt.

Luckily the girl at the front desk had a key to the concierge locker. Maybe she wasn't such a judgy bitch after all. Kate was grateful to recover her coat—it made her feel less exposed—and luggage. There was a taxi out front, though the driver didn't seem in as much of a hurry as Kate would have liked. Still, they got to the airport with thirty minutes to spare. Thanks to TSA Pre, Kate made it to the gate just as the last group was boarding. And miracle of miracles, there was still space in the overhead bin.

Kate sat down heavily in her cramped seat. She was breathing hard and a little sweaty. She didn't even want to think of what she smelled like. Other than wiping herself down a couple of times, she hadn't showered since yesterday morning. She surely reeked of sweat and sex. She glanced around. No one seemed to be paying her much attention. Was that deliberate? Were they just averting their eyes from the trainwreck in their midst?

All those thoughts were embarrassing. No, worse, humiliating. Mortifying. A perfect word. So ashamed that you want to be dead. It was an oppressive feeling. Almost overwhelming. The engines whined as the pilot throttled up. The plane accelerated down the runway and launched itself into the air. She was on her way home. And it was then that it occurred to her. As abashed as she was at her own behavior, as guilty as she felt about betraying Mike, as anxious as she was about what came next, the one thing she didn't feel was... regret.

As the plane touched down in Hartford, Kate's anxiety spiked. It was one thing not to feel regret. It was quite another not to be worried. Should she tell Mike? Did he have a right to know? It was, after all, a one-time thing. A mistake. Not a stupid mistake. No. It was a delightful, magical mistake. And so, what possible reason would she have to confess? It wouldn't make her feel better. It definitely wouldn't make Mike feel better. In fact, if anything, the responsible thing to do... the courageous thing to do was to keep it secret.

Kate snorted. The Nile something something. Okay, so it wasn't courageous. It was actually quite conveniently cowardly. But that didn't make the argument wrong. Well, it was wrong, but not incorrect.

She hustled off the plane, again acutely aware of the fact that she was naked beneath her dress and coat. Naked because she'd lost her bra and panties in the process of getting fucked silly by a stranger in a hotel room. Adam. His name was Adam. At least she knew that. Last name? Not so much. She knew she was smiling, and she really shouldn't because the whole thing was tawdry. So so tawdry. Sleazy. Skanky even. Although maybe that was going too far. It wasn't like she'd fucked a guy in a bar bathroom. Almost in a hotel hallway, but not a public restroom. So, she had that going for her.

Despite her swirling thoughts and rationalizations, it occurred to Kate that she really ought to put on some underwear. Mike could be clueless. But even he would get suspicious if he noticed her flouncing back into the house after a weekend out of town with her tits flopping out and going commando.

She ducked into the nearest bathroom and popped open her suitcase. She was acutely aware that she was drawing attention, especially when she pulled out a bra and panties and wiggled into them beneath her dress. Pretty obviously a loose woman with something to hide. No real room for alternative interpretation, is there? Blushing, Kate decided to bluff her way through it. Head high. Yeah, I'm a whore. Suck it bitches.

She stalked back into the throng of returning travelers. Kate realized she was feeling especially sassy, though she didn't know why. Probably something about all the flattery and amazing sex. She needed to watch out for that. She wasn't really a sex goddess... even if, right now, she sort of felt like one. All the validation she'd been craving at the reunion, Adam had provided. It was a bit of a dark thought. It implied she was a needy, easy mark.

She slipped into a cab and gave her home address. She stared out the window and the gray day outside. Dirty snow. Overcast. Cold and raw, and without any of the romance of fresh powder.

It was nearly 11:00am when she pulled up to their house. The week-old snow in the front yard had been trampled up by the dog, and the kids' snowman was still there, though looking crooked and a bit forlorn. Still, it was a family home. They had a literal white picket fence. In the backyard was a pool and a tree with a rope swing. A happy home. And Kate had put it all at risk. And for what?

She stepped out of the cab with her battered suitcase and stared at the house. For what? The cab drove away. For what?

She thought about Adam. About his enticing smile and his amazing cock. About his sense of humor and the way he touched her.

For what?

She shook her head. No regrets.

Chapter Four

“Yay, Mommy’s home!” Becky called out, running to Kate, meeting her at the front door.

“Yay, Mommy’s home,” echoed Mike.

He came over and gave her a hug over the top of Becky who was attached like a barnacle to Kate’s legs. The cutest little barnacle, but Kate realized with a jolt that part of what she’d loved about being with Adam was that she wasn’t “Mommy.” She was just a hot slut.

Mike kissed her forehead. He didn’t seem to notice that she stunk of another man’s sweat.

“Did you have fun?” he asked.

She stumbled into the house with Becky still firmly attached.

“It was okay,” Kate replied. What she really wanted was to take a nice, long, hot shower. “Look, I had to sleep in the hotel lobby,” she said, pulling out the lie she’d concocted on the plane. It would avoid having to explain how she managed to stay for free the last night if he happened to check the credit card bill, and it was likely to go over better than I was sitting on another man’s cock all night. “Mind if I take a quick shower?”

Mike grinned. He had a nice smile, too. It was apparently her weakness in men, because otherwise, they could not be more different. Adam was tall, dark, and handsome. Mike was slender and had a typical British Isles pallor to him. Adam was funny and charming and could be aggressively sexual. Mike was kind, patient, a bit scatterbrained, but always considerate.

“Good idea,” he said. He sniffed. “You are a bit ripe.”

Kate laughed. “You’re such a charmer.”

She managed to get Becky unclamped from her leg and scurried upstairs. She ducked into the bathroom and locked the door behind her, leaning against it. She breathed a deep sigh of relief. Somehow Mike hadn’t noticed the fact that she’d spent most of the past twelve hours pressed in close to another man.

Kate turned on the shower, dialing in the water to be extra hot. When she stepped into the stream it was both a matter of cleansing and penance. The water was nearly scalding, and as she soaped herself up, it felt as if she were washing away her sins, her guilt. She had no regret, but guilt, that was another question. It came and went in waves.

She rubbed the soap over her body. Every touch, though, reminded her of Adam. At first, it was a distraction. Then it became a temptation. She slid the soap across her breasts and shivered as the hard, slippery edge of the bar teased her nipple. Using the bar of soap to circle and tease her nipples, thinking of how Adam had rolled them between his fingers, squeezing, pulling as he fingered her clit. Groaning, she massaged her belly with the bar of soap, and then went lower, lathering her pubes, and slowly, tentatively using her sudsy hands and fingers to excite her clit.

At 37, Kate was no stranger to masturbation. Nor even was she innocent about thinking about other men while doing it. Christian Bale. George Clooney. She’d rubbed it out to those fantasy men before. Many times. Who hadn’t? But today, under the near scalding, supposedly cleansing water, she didn’t think of those men from TMZ. Even when she tried to refocus. Somehow, unbelievable, Christian became Adam. George never had a chance.

Kate moaned softly, then louder, louder, knowing the shower would cover her sounds.

“Oh Baby, that feels soooo good,” she sighed.

She rubbed her soapy fingers against her swollen clit. But in her head, it wasn’t her hand, it was Adam’s. Not just what had happened, but what she wished had. She fantasized about skipping her flight, staying with him. Naked, showering together, his fingers on her clit. His cock stiffening, poking her thigh.

“Fuck me, Baby,” she moaned. Words she’d never said aloud to anyone other than Adam.

She imagined him entering her, drawing upon a memory so recent and vivid that she could almost feel it. Feel his big tool forcing its way into her tight pussy. She rubbed her clit harder, faster.

“Oh God. Oh God,” she moaned, palm against the shower wall to keep herself from toppling over.

The house was a mess. Mike was perfectly competent in real life. Smart, a successful lawyer, quite handy too. He woodworked as a hobby, and liked to build small, beautiful objects, jewelry boxes, picture frames, sometimes artwork. When they were still dating, he made a portrait of her, using just the different tones of wood, textures, and grains to create the image. It was one of her most prized possessions. But somehow, he seemed incapable of managing the house when she was away. He hadn’t done any of the kids’ laundry, so they had nothing to wear for school. He didn’t notice they were out of milk. And this she couldn’t even fathom: how do you let a muddy dog into the house, even if all he does is curl up on the already ruined couch.

Kate felt her frustration rising. She choked it back. You do not have any right to complain about any fucking thing, you raging slut. But that wasn’t satisfying. Her sins didn’t excuse his.

She worked on fixing the house in between making up her mommy debts to Jeremy and Becky. That was the dark, though widely shared secret, of modern motherhood. The model for being a mom was still June Cleaver.

Home to meet the kids after school, making lunch, having a hot, nutritious dinner. Except it wasn't. Because June wasn't expected to hit the gym to stay tight. She didn't need to trim her pubes or suck cock. Once a week, June got beneath the covers, spread her legs, and let Ward rut into her full bush. Five minutes and wifely duty was done. But no longer. A modern wife had to be fucking June Cleaver during the day and fucking porn star at night. And men? They just had to show the fuck up. Be present.

Kate was starting a load of laundry when her phone vibrated.

<312.778.4249> Hey beautiful, just want to make sure you got home alright.

She glared at the message. She knew who it was from. But she couldn't admit it to herself.

<Kate> Who is this? Do I know you?

Edge of panic. Tightness in her throat. If she hadn't known better, she'd have started to worry about some sort of anaphylactic shock.

<312.778.4249> Ha, didn't think I was quite so easily forgettable. I got a Chaos Marine army destroyed thinking about you.

She stopped folding laundry. For fuck's sake. Adam. She felt a flutter in her belly that didn't quite overwhelm the sense of dread in her head.

<Kate> How the fuck did you get my number?

<312.778.4249> HA. So you do know who this is. I... um... looked through your purse. And yeah, crappy thing to do, but less crappy than running the risk of never seeing you again.

Her heart pounded in her chest. She pasted a smile on her face and went upstairs. She leashed the dog. Once out the door, and assured of a little privacy, she replied.

<Kate> Please. Please, don't fuck up my shit. I can't do this.

She checked her phone obsessively for a reply. It was just a matter of minutes, but felt like an hour. Kate dragged the pooch on a second lap around the neighborhood.

<Adam> Chill, gorgeous. I don't want to fuck up your shit. I just wanted to let you know I had a great time with you. Epic. And if you ever want to meet up again, I will literally fly to the ends of the earth to meet you.

<Kate> That's not going to happen.

<Adam> I can always hope.

She was smiling for real now, thinking of him. She knew she'd never see him again. Couldn't see him again. But there was no real harm in ruminating about it, was there? Where to meet? Not Cleveland. That was for damn sure. That was one place she never needed to go back to, even if she now did have a particularly pleasant memory of it... well, at least of a particular hotel room in the city. Maybe a beach vacation. Someplace down in the Caribbean. Secluded. Fruity drinks and coconut sunscreen. Frolicking in the surf. Moonlit walks on the beach. And then hours and hours of kissing, licking, sucking. Less of the urgency this time. At least at first. She knew that by the end, he'd be unable to hold back and that in any case she'd be begging for him to...

She shivered and stopped herself, suddenly frightened at how quickly things had gotten real. Heat and wetness in her panties. The seam of her tight jeans as she walked was almost enough to set her off, and she had to fight hard to resist the temptation to help things along with her hand. And then where would she be? You know Kate Morris from down the street? She was jilling herself off on Maple Court. That would surely make neighborhood gatherings awkward.

Also, too, the whole "going through my purse" thing was creepy. Stalkerish. So why couldn't she stop the grin and warm feeling in her chest as she thought of it?

Mandy finally did her business and Kate turned back toward the house. And though she tried to think of something else, anything else, she couldn't quite stop imagining the warm tropical air, his sexy, sweaty body pressed up against her, and his gorgeous prick driving her mad.

With the kids finally in bed, Kate went into their bedroom and changed for bed. It was chilly in the house, and she pulled on her flannel PJs with puppies on them. So comfy, yet so frumpy. But it was okay. Mike wouldn't expect anything different.

She climbed into bed with the latest mass-produced James Patterson novel. But it wasn't enough to keep her attention. She read and reread the same paragraph over and over, but her thoughts kept returning to Adam and Cleveland. She knew that would fade. In time the memory would become hazy and indistinct. But for now it was still so raw and real, and almost anything could drag her back.

She heard the front door shut. Mike was back from walking the dog for the final time. And sure enough, he was soon coming up the stairs, and into the bedroom. He closed the door, but didn't lock it, which was the usual tell they used to signal they were frisky. That happened maybe once a week. Sometimes less. And from what her friends said, it seemed like that counted as a active sex life for a married couple in their late 30s with kids and jobs.

"You look cozy," Mike said.

"You want to come cuddle up?"

He raised an eyebrow. "Should I lock the door?"

Ah romance. "Sure."

He grinned. "I should send you away more often."

She choked back a brief surge of panic. Did he know something? No. Of course, not. It was just a silly line. And the fact that he went to the bathroom to brush his teeth and change rather than launching himself at her was also a pretty good indication he wasn't feeling particular ardor.

Wearing a tee shirt and flannel PJ bottoms, he joined her in bed.

"So did you have fun?" he asked.

The truth was, those few minutes between climbing into bed and turning off the lights was about the only time they had to themselves. Otherwise, it was all about the kids and the sheer logistics of life. Shopping and cooking and cleaning and kids' appointments and sports. And even that time in bed was often just catching each other up on what had happened during the day.

"It was okay. Jeannie was there, but she had to leave early because of her kids. Other than that... it turns out there's a reason we don't see most of those people."

He chuckled. "So, I didn't miss anything?"

Nothing at all, Honey, except your wife getting her brains fucked out by a stranger. "Not really."

"What's with the grin?" he asked. "Run into that old flame?"

She nearly choked on her own spit, and a coughing fit followed. She shook her head, eyes red. "No, no old flames."

Mike laughed a bit nervously. "You sure? That was quite the reaction."

He did know. He knew something. He had to. What was his game? She felt panic rising into her throat. No. He was just teasing her. She decided to tease back.

"What if I had?"

He hesitated. "Ha! I know you too well, Honey. Even if there had been an old flame around, I bet you were too happy to have the bed to yourself to do anything about it, right?”

She forced a laugh. “You do know me too well.”

He edged closer. “So... I did lock the door.”

“Yeah? Well, then, I guess we’re committed.”

He leaned in and kissed her softly. It was... nice. Gentle. He began to unbutton her top, sliding his hand inside and teasing her nipple with the back of his hand. They kissed again, now with a little tongue. He caressed her belly, light circles with his palm. She reached down into his PJs and began stroking his cock. He wasn’t hard yet, which was okay, she’s wasn’t ready yet either, but she couldn’t help but recognize the contrast with Adam. She thought about how hard he’d been, and how she’d been soaking wet as well.

Mike moistened his fingertips and then began slowly teasing her slit. She stroked him faster and felt him stiffen.

“Should we get naked?” he asked.

She remembered Adam yanking down her panties.

She nodded and they quickly shed their clothes. Mike rolled onto her. He gently kissed her nipples and then kissed his way down, over her belly, teasing her thighs before licking her slit. She spread her legs for him. His tongue felt good, and his spit helped her get to where she needed to be. He licked her clit and slipped a finger inside her. She sighed. And he crawled up beside her.

Her turn. So, she dipped down beneath the covers and took his cock into her mouth. He was hard now, and she swirled her tongue around his shaft. He ran his fingers through her hair. She felt him begin to pull her up. She eased herself onto him and reached back to rub his cock against her pussy. As the head slipped inside, he thrust in deeper.

They moved together with practiced ease. He sucked on her nipples, and she ground against him, working her clit against his pubic bone. She moaned softly. She was getting close. Eyes shut tight, she tried to focus on the pleasure. It built slowly. And then she was there.

She moaned louder.

“Did you?” he asked.

She nodded.

He thrust in harder. Once, twice, three times. She felt him shudder and knew he was coming inside her. She dropped onto his chest. They kissed tenderly.

Then she rolled off him and again slipped into her flannels. He went to the bathroom to clean up, and then returned dressed to cuddle with her.

Wifely duties complete. It had been nice. She loved Mike despite all of his flaws. And they knew each other's bodies so well that when they did make love, it was almost always successful. She came, and he came. It was nice. But it wasn't Adam.

Chapter Five

Kate was working on her spreadsheet, double checking task completion and color coding the results. She liked the process. Liked turning all those cells green, troubleshooting the yellows, raining hell down on the reds. Making the trains run on time. It satisfied her need for control.

Her phone buzzed.

<Adam> Hey, beautiful. Can't stop thinking of you.

So much for control. Here was chaos personified. But she couldn't resist responding.

<Kate> Thinking of you too.

<Adam> Yeah? Tell me all about it.

<Kate> I'm at work.

<Adam> Exactly.

Kate stared at the screen. She knew she shouldn't answer, but....

<Kate> I think of you in the shower.

She tried to leave it at that, but after about a minute he prompted her.

<Adam> Tell me more.

Kate stared at her spreadsheet. She knew she should go back to that. Ignore Adam. She couldn't. It was like a compulsion.

<Kate> I touch myself thinking about what you'd do to me. Massaging my soapy breasts. Teasing my hard, little clitty.

<Adam> God, I'm so hard right now.

<Kate> Aren't you at work?

<Adam> Yes, but I have the students working on a group project, so I have a few minutes to fantasize about you in the shower, naked and wet. My arms around you. Pulling you close. My cock between your thighs, rubbing against your pussy.

“Oh God,” Kate sighed. Her office door was only half-shut, but she couldn't help herself. Reading and re-reading his words, she slipped her hand up under her skirt. It didn't take much. Just a fingertip pressing against her wet panties. She imagined what came next. His fat prick forcing its way into her tight pussy. A feather touch on her clit. A hair trigger. She gasped and bit down on her lip to keep from crying out, even as her body shuddered violently.

<Adam> You still there?

She was breathing hard, red with shame. She hoped no one would come into her office. The scent of arousal was surely overwhelming. Did she have a visible wet spot on her skirt? She stood up quickly and shut her door. It would seem strange to the others on her hallways, but better that than being discovered.

<Kate> Yes.

<Adam> Did you come?

Kate blushed even redder, her cheeks burning. He'd cast a spell on her, and it was like they had some direct connection.

<Kate> Yes.

<Adam> That is so hot. You are so hot. Your husband is a lucky man.

She snorted to herself.

<Kate> Oh yeah. Luckiest man on the planet. Married to a cheating slut who plays with herself at work while texting another man.

<Adam> Didn't you fuck him when you got back?

<Kate> Isn't that a little personal?

<Adam> Oh, right. I'm sorry. Let's go back to non-personal topics, like talking about boning each other in the shower.

<Kate> Ha! Would it make you jealous if I did?

<Adam> Au contraire. It would at least assuage part of my guilt at messing around with a married woman if I knew he was at least getting some collateral benefit.... So, did you?

She chuckled to herself. He was completely crazy.

<Kate> Yes, we made love. Happy?

<Adam> Absolutely. As sexy as you are, it's a tragic waste any time you're not having sex.

<Kate> Hmmm. That makes it sound like my primary mission in life ought to be spreading my legs so that as many men as possible get a shot at me.

<Adam> Oh Baby, now you really are going to give me a stroke.

<Kate> Are you also so generous with handing out sexual favors when it is your woman rather than one you're just borrowing?

<Adam> Ah, now that is a conversation for another time. Perhaps when we next meet. Or at least when I don't have a classroom full of tenth graders starting to get antsy. And in the meantime... next time you're with hubby, don't just make love. Fuck his brains out.

Kate rolled her eyes. Yeah, I will definitely start taking marriage advice from my side piece. That will surely turn out well.

She returned her phone to her purse and took several minutes to make sure she was decent before reopening her office door. She peeked out into the hallway. No one seemed to have noticed her odd behavior. And indeed, what was so odd? She'd just shut her door for a few minutes. Only she knew her own transgressions.

Kate sat in the lunchroom with Jenna. She'd grabbed a corner table for privacy because lunch with Jenna was always interesting. Jenna was 26, single, and very pretty. With dark blue eyes, a pale complexion, and nearly jet-black hair, she caught men's attention even before they noticed her sexy body invariably clad in tight, revealing clothes. She was an office temptress and inveterate flirt, and Kate usually enjoyed observing the mayhem that always seemed to follow Jenna around. Usually, but not today.

Jenna was talking, as usual, about her love life... sex life, actually. There was Todd. He was the older man in her life. Fresh out of a failed marriage, he showered the younger woman with gifts and travel. Jenna fucked him occasionally, so he wasn't being totally used, but he wasn't getting much of a deal either. Todd's best friend, Jerry, who was still married, though probably not for long, was secretly wooing Jenna on the side. He'd leased her a car, and she'd had a frantic make-out session with him that apparently left him with boxers full of jism, even though he'd barely copped a feel. While Jenna was stingy with Todd and Jerry, she was quite the opposite with Miguel, her fitness instructor, who had six-pack abs and a trouser snake that made even the quite experienced Jenna get weak in the knees.

And then there was Brent who: "... totally still wants me. Even if that little slut Nadia won't even let him follow my Instagram."

"Can you blame her?" Kate asked.

"Blame her? No. But I can be annoyed that she's a jealous little twat."

Kate sighed. “Didn’t you cheat on Brent?”

Jenna rolled her eyes.

Kate, of course, knew the answer to that question. She knew Jenna was sleeping around with other men well before her then live-in boyfriend Brent did. And that was the rub. Usually, Kate could enjoy Jenna’s madness as a dispassionate observer. But given the events of the weekend, things were hitting a little close to home.

“That doesn’t mean,” Jenna explained with the kind of patience one usually reserves for a child, “that she could just move in on him when he was vulnerable.”

Brent’s fragility had come about because he’d happened to walk in on his girlfriend bouncing up and down on another man’s pole, which Kate knew about because Jenna had described it all in excruciatingly titillating detail, down to the fact that Brent’s appearance had both startled and exhilarated Max (who got jettisoned shortly thereafter in a failed effort to appease Brent) and led to a fountain of come, some of which ended up in Jenna’s hair, which made her efforts to explain things less than successful.

“You can’t blame people for being hurt,” Kate said, thrusting a dagger into her own heart.

“Sure you can. I mean, obviously, Brent wasn’t meeting my needs. Him and his stupid video games.”

Although Jenna’s justification seemed forced, Kate found herself nodding subconsciously at the appeal of it. Really, there was some truth to it. What had happened in Cleveland sort of was Mike’s fault. He should have been there for one. And anyway, if he weren’t such a wreck at home, maybe....

Kate snorted at her own bullshit. Jenna took offense. “Fine, don’t believe me. But, it’s true. Anyway, Brent was a dud in the sack.”

Ouch. But was that it? Would Kate have strayed if Mike were a more accomplished lover? If he fucked her like Adam had?

“Then why do you want him back?”

Jenna took a bite of a carrot, making even that look sexual. Kate wasn't into women... but there was something about Jenna that made Kate feel a little... curious. Jenna smirked, knowingly, though, of course, that was all in Kate's head... or was it?

“I don't want him back. I just don't want Nadia to think she could take him away from me.”

Kate groaned. She could see where this was going.

“What?” Jenna demanded.

“You're going to fuck him just to prove a point to Nadia.”

Jenna went wide-eyed. All innocent. “Me? That would never have occurred to me.” A pause. “Though now that you mention it.”

Kate groaned again.

Jenna laughed. “I'm just kidding. Anyway, Miguel is keeping me more than satisfied. He was fucking amazing Saturday night. He can just go and go and go. You have no idea. No idea.”

And that yet another reason this conversation was frustrating, because almost from the moment they had first sat down, Kate had been dying to spill the beans, to one-up that little tramp Jenna with her own debauched tale. To brag that Adam was surely twice the man Miguel was, and that she, Kate, married and 37 with two kids... “no idea” Kate had fucked another man's brains out in a hotel room.

Instead, she just glanced down into her salad to hide her grin. “No idea,” she muttered softly.

Kate drove home distractedly. She and Mike switched off leaving work early to care for the kids, and Mondays were his night. She could already feel herself getting annoyed. On her days, by the time he came home, the kids had finished their homework, the house was straightened up, and she had a well-balanced meal nearly ready. On his days... it was rarely so smooth.

Her phone vibrated. She silently cursed. This was about the time Mike often texted to ask her to pick up something on the way home because, “time got away from me” or “there’s nothing in the fridge,” which was never the case because she made sure there was always something in the fridge for when he was cooking.

She pulled over so as to not rage crash when she read his text. She pulled out her phone.

<Adam> Take off your panties.

Kate shook her head and laughed darkly. She wasn’t sure whether she was amused or jealous or both.

<Kate> I think you have the wrong number, Stud. I was your weekend conquest, not tonight’s flavor.

<Adam> LOL. I know who you are Prom Queen. I want you to give your husband a treat. Take off your panties and give them to him.

<Kate> I don’t think so.

<Adam> Do it.

She waited for more, but that was it. She placed her phone back in her purse and pulled back onto the road. A horn beeped. She swerved to avoid a collision. Distracted. Unsettled. She felt annoyance rise like bile into her throat.

“Men are idiots,” she muttered to herself, not sure if she was thinking of Adam or Mike.

No... it was Adam. He... fuck him... what kind of stupid game was he playing? What did he care if she and Mike had sex... or good sex vs. bad sex? He shouldn't even be thinking about that. She thought of her reaction when she'd read his text. Green-eyed jealousy. She hated the idea that he was putting the moves on another woman already. That's what she wanted from him. She wanted him to hate the idea that she was back with her husband, that she was fucking anyone other than him. Not... not encouraging her to fuck his brains out.

She thought about it. She should give him what he wanted and see if he really liked it. Make him realize that it wasn't all a game.

Kate pulled into their driveway. She was conscious of her thumping heart. She took a deep breath to calm herself. It didn't work. She felt clammy and agitated. Another deep breath and then she lifted herself off the car seat and eased down her panties and crumpled them up in her fist.

She walked into the house. Sashayed really. There was something about holding her warm panties in her hand, remembering how wet they'd been earlier in the day, that made her feel sassy. She sloughed off her coat in the foyer. The kids were in front of the TV in the family room, which would have annoyed Kate normally, since, surely, they had homework to do or violin to practice, but she was pleased with it now, since it meant Mike was alone in the kitchen.

“Hi Honey,” he said. He was rearranging a pan full of chicken drumsticks that actually looked quite delicious.

Kate gave him a quick kiss on the cheek. And then before she could lose her nerve said, “Here, hold this.”

He looked down at her simple black panties. His eyes went wide. She wondered if he could pick up the bouquet of her earlier arousal. She didn't give him time to comment, instead striding toward the family room and the kids. Kate thought she could feel his eyes on her. She glanced back over her shoulder to make sure, and then with a quick motion flicked her dress upward to flash him her bare ass.

“Hey, Sweeties,” she said as she plopped down between her kids on the sofa. Becky gave her mom a hug. Jeremy could not be distracted from the TV, so she just mussed his hair.

“Erm... dinner is ready,” Mike called out after a few minutes.

Kate was amused at his uncertain tone, and she consciously ignored his questioning gaze, though it took a lot of effort. Though she tried to pay attention to the kids, she didn’t really hear anything of what they said. She knew Mike was equally distracted. But that was okay, and since neither of them seemed able to speak, the kids were, as always, perfectly content to filibuster. It was a surprisingly fun dinner, and Kate didn’t even bother to note that, technically, corn does not count as a vegetable.

After the meal, Mike kept trying to corner his wife, but with calculated obliviousness, Kate pretended not to notice. It was easy to keep busy. Cleaning up the kitchen, prepping lunches for the next day, getting that violin practice done, putting the kids down. She couldn’t help but grin as she noted Mike’s increasingly frantic expression. Those panties had gotten under his skin and were burrowing deeper and deeper by the minute.

When Kate came back downstairs after putting the kids to bed, Mike was waiting for her in the family room. He was sitting in the leather armchair, staring at the stairs, her panties in his lap.

“What are you trying to tell me?” he asked.

His voice had a surprising rawness to it, as if he were trying to contain his emotions. She couldn’t tell if he was more confused, angry, frightened... or aroused. He didn’t know what to think, and seemed more than a little distressed, which should have been concerning, but which Kate instead found weirdly empowering and interesting. Empowering because it suggested that despite the maddening insouciance with which he greeted most of her nagging, she had the ability to shake him up. Interesting because she couldn't help but wonder what thoughts her panties had triggered inside him.

She smiled at him and languidly poured herself a glass of wine. He was almost vibrating now. Kate approached her husband.

"I'm trying to tell you that I don't have any panties on."

He let out a sound between a growl and a whine. She chuckled. "That's quite the reaction."

"Kate," he began, trying to sound calm. Failing. "Were you not wearing them all day?"

Curious. What was he driving at?

"And what if I hadn't?"

"Are you... are you seeing another man?"

She almost gasped but managed to contain herself. This was dangerous ground. But he didn't really know anything. It was just where his mind went. Sort of like when he asked her if she'd run into old flames at the reunion. Interesting.

"You think I took off my panties because I was with another man rather than just because I wanted to give my husband a treat?"

He blushed deep red as he realized how absurd that sounded.

"Fine," he harrumphed angrily, putting his hands on the armrests and beginning to rise.

This was going south in a hurry. First, he'd been angry and suspicious, now he was angry and embarrassed. It was time to take charge. She remembered Adam's suggestion: Fuck his brains out.

Before Mike could fully rise, Kate pushed him back down in his chair and straddled him. A splash of wine dripping onto his polo.

“Hey,” he exclaimed.

“Shut up,” she hissed.

She placed the wine on the side table and kissed him hard.

“Jesus, Kate, what about the kids?”

“They’re in bed. Anyway, that’s the beauty of no panties. As long as you don’t pull my dress up, all they’ll see is Mommy and Daddy cuddling.”

“What? Right here?” he exclaimed.

“Mmmm hmmm, right here.”

She sensed his reluctance even as she felt his cock beginning to stiffen. He shifted uneasily as if he might pull the plug before things even got started. She leaned down toward his ear.

“Right here,” she repeated. “Unless you do want me to go find another man?”

Bullseye. He gasped and got rock hard. He was crimson with embarrassment, sweating. Kate worked fast, clawing open his pants, pulling out his hard, red prick. She was surprised at how easily he entered her, how wet she was for him. He seemed paralyzed, but she didn’t need his help anyway. She humped him roughly, grinding her clit against him.

“Slow down,” he begged.

He was about to come. So quickly. And that was a surprising turn-on. After 12 years of marriage, it was hot to think that just being inside her could make him lose control.

“Oh fuck,” Mike gasped.

She felt him shudder beneath her. She fucked him harder, nearly frantically, feeling him beginning to soften, knowing she had just a few more seconds. So close. So close. And then she thought of Adam, imagined him cheering her on. She gasped and clamped her arms around her husband's neck hard enough that he let out a pained squawk.

She leaned back and smiled at Mike. He seemed shocked.

“Jesus, Honey.”

She chuckled. “That was fun.”

Chapter Six

Kate was making the kids an after-school snack when Adam's text came in. It was short and to the point.

<Adam> So, did you do it?

After refilling cups of chocolate milk, she retreated to the corner of the kitchen to reply.

<Kate> Do what?

<Adam> Ah, playing it coy. That might work better if I didn't know you so well.

<Kate> Do you?

<Adam> I'm pretty sure I can pick your nipples out of a lineup.

She chuckled. She knew it was a lame line, but she was smitten.

"What's so funny, Mommy?" Becky asked.

"Nothing, Sweetie."

The little girl didn't seem convinced, but luckily, she also had a short attention span. Becky returned her attention to her grilled cheese sandwich, and Kate to the phone.

She was tempted to continue to tease Adam, but she also was desperate to get it out. Revelation won out.

<Kate> I did. It was fun.

<Adam> Spit it out. All the details. The nastier the better.

She giggled. Becky shot her a quick glance, and Kate ducked around the corner out of earshot.

<Kate> The panties definitely got him all worked up. He had no idea what to make of it. He asked if I was having an affair.

<Adam> Interesting that was his first thought.

Kate pondered that. It was indeed peculiar. And she remembered how her taunt about finding another man had set him off. She wondered if Mike had often feared or suspected she might have an affair. Was that a vibe she gave off?

<Adam> Don't leave me hanging. What happened?

<Kate> Well, I gave him my panties, and then I flashed my ass so he'd know they weren't just an extra pair. Then I let him stew on it for a couple of hours.

<Adam> Ooooh, you're a wicked, little tease.

Kate felt a surge of heat as she read that. She hadn't teased Adam, not at all. Once they left the bar, it was like a spark to tinder. But she thought about how much fun it would be to play with Adam that way, to really get him all worked up and desperate.

<Kate> Hmmm. He seemed to think so. He was ready to burst by the time he got me alone.

<Adam> Did he ravage you?

<Kate> More like I ravaged him.

She paused and then decided to give him a treat.

<Kate> I sat in his lap and I ground my naked pussy against him. I was sooo wet. I just wanted to feel his big cock inside me.

<Adam> Is he big?

The kids were done with snacks and asked to go play. Kate knew she should get them started on homework, but she was glad for the temporary respite and sent them off. She returned to her texting. Sexting.

<Kate> Would that be good or bad?

<Adam> That depends on you. If you like 'em big, I hope he's fucking huge.

She chuckled to herself. She did “like ‘em big.” Not obsessively but getting two hands on Adam’s cock had been hot, feeling the stretch was sexy, and just the idea of it... a big, hard, cock was arousing.

<Kate> Not as big as you, Stud. But big enough. I tore open his pants and pulled it out and then impaled myself on it. I was so hot. I fucked him hard. Making him gasp with pleasure. Grinding my hard, swollen clit against him until we both came together. It was hot.

She was surprised at how exciting it felt to write that. Both thinking about it again, but also because she was sharing these intimate details with another man.

<Adam> Mmmm, yeah. God, you're a sexy thing.

And a few seconds later, another text arrived. Kate gasped. It was a mirror selfie. Adam, shirtless, his pants pulled down and his first wrapped around his gorgeous erection. She was shocked at how it affected her. She’d heard friends joke about dick pics, and Jenna had even shown her several she’d received. It had always seemed funny or pathetic, but Adam’s was neither. She felt woozy, her insides all gooey, knowing that if he were there right now, she wouldn’t be able to resist sucking, fucking....

The phone buzzed again.

<Adam> Your turn.

She knew what he wanted, but she couldn’t do it. Except, she was already making her way to the bathroom, closing and locking the door behind her.

She'd never done this before. She was already married by the time smart phones appeared. What would he want to see?

Kate improvised. She unbuttoned her blouse and slipped her tits out of the bra cups, so that they were thrust upward, prominent, on-display. She yanked up her skirt so that it barely covered her sex and pulled down her panties so they stretched across her thighs. She snapped a pic and sent it immediately, not wanting to risk losing her nerve.

<Adam> Oh, fuck, Baby. That is so fucking hot. I want to fuck you so bad.

Kate was rubbing herself even before his text arrived thinking of him gripping his hard prick. Now she imagined him jerking himself to her picture. She was so wet, so ready. She rubbed hard circles on her clit, biting on her lip to stop from moaning in case the kids could hear. It didn't take long. She gasped and nearly dropped the phone but caught it and fell back against the bathroom wall.

Another text.

<Adam> Did you make yourself come?

<Kate> Yes.

<Adam> Me too.

<Adam> Now send that pic to your hubby. ;-)

Kate knew she had to focus on the project spec sheet because once signed, it would determine most of her working hours for the next two years. Mistakes now meant time wasted down the road, missed suspenses, and lost bonuses. The problem was, she was exhausted.

Morning came early as always, but Mike helped ensure it was a late night. He'd come home and remained nearly mute through dinner and after, enough so that Kate was worried that she'd sent him over the edge. And she had, in a sense.

He'd waited for her outside Jeremy's room as she put their son to bed. And he'd dragged her to the bedroom, nearly tore off her clothes, and ravaged her. The first time was quick. The second time nearly as fast. The third turned into a long, sweaty romp. It was still largely, lights-out, underneath the covers, sex, but with more passion, and certainly more times, than... well... ever.

After the third time, Mike had fallen fast asleep, but Kate remained all charged up. She slipped downstairs and texted the details to Adam. He must have been asleep because he didn't respond, so Kate took her time and wrote it all out, full of the sort of details she knew he'd enjoy. How wet she was. How Mike's cock felt inside her. The sensation of come dripping out of her pussy as he churned it up, dripping down her ass crack. The way he sucked on her nipples until they were sore. And all the while, she slowly played with herself, remembering Mike's excitement, imagining Adam's as he read her texts when he woke up. She finished by describing what she was doing. How she was texting one-handed as she rubbed her clit. She ended abruptly as she came, leaving that last text unfinished, certain he'd understand the significance of it.

She'd slept fitfully thinking about how her life seemed to be revolving increasingly around sex and sexual fantasies. And now at work, she couldn't shake those memories and images. Mike's arousal and worries about infidelity. Her secret, now no longer excusable as a one-night stand, turning into something more, an on-going relationship of sorts that demanded she think of Adam not just as a pleasant and fading memory, but as a secret lover. His body and cock not only lodged in the past but carrying the promise of future encounters. It made her whole body tingly, and she couldn't avoid the sensation of her now perpetually swollen nipples pressing against her bra, her pussy seeming to throb in her noticeably damp panties.

Tired and horny. It was a bad combination for a productive day at work. She opened up her HR portal and entered in information for a sick day. She considered the comments field, and for a brief moment was tempted to enter “Excessive Concupiscence.” Instead, she typed in “Migraine.”

Leaving the office, she felt like she was playing hooky. It was still cold out, but sunny. Maybe she’d grab Mandy and take her for a nice, long, head clearing walk. Or a nap before the kids came home. Or, both if time allowed. She pulled into the driveway and went into the house.

Her phone buzzed with an incoming text, and she felt her knees go weak. It could be from anyone, of course, but intuitively she knew it was from him... Adam. She retrieved the phone from her purse.

<Adam> Where are you?

She could feel his urgency. It fed her own.

<Kate> Home.

<Adam> Alone?

<Kate> Yes.

<Adam> Skype me

He gave her his address. She knew this was a bad idea, yet another step deeper into the morass. But she also knew she’d do it.

She grabbed her laptop and brought it up to the bedroom. She locked the door and hopped up onto the bed. Sitting cross-legged with the laptop in front of her, she made the connection.

“Oh God,” she moaned as she saw him.

He was on his bed as well, naked, his own laptop between his spread legs, his back propped against his headboard, and his hand stroking his massive erection.

“Take off your clothes,” he said. It wasn’t a request. It was a command.

“Okay.”

She moved quickly. Pulling off her sweater and removing her bra. Her full breasts spilled out. He eyed her hungrily. Her stomach did a flip. His excitement was unbearably seductive.

“Now the pants.”

She couldn’t speak. She just nodded and unzipped herself. Kate wiggled out of her slacks and removed her panties. She felt torn in two. Part of her desperate to please him, eager to strip for him, to give him anything and everything he wanted. The other part stared in shock, not quite recognizing the wanton woman squirming across her bed, naked in front of a webcam for her illicit lover.

“Show me,” he demanded.

She knew what he wanted, and she was too excited to be coy. She matched his posture, leaning back against some pillows, laptop between her spread leg. She slipped a finger between her slick folds, and slowly began to play with herself in time with his fist pumping up and down his cock.

He sighed. “Fuck, I miss you.”

She giggled. “We barely know each other.” Then after a breath. “I miss you too.”

“I had to call in sick,” he said. “After your texts, I wouldn’t have been able to keep my wood under control.”

“I wish I was there to take care of that,” she cooed.

“Yeah? How would you do that?”

She leaned forward to get a closer look at his cock. “I would suck you deep into my mouth. Lick you up and down.”

He stroked himself faster. “Oh, yeah. Your mouth feels so hot and wet.”

She plunged a finger deep into snatch. “So’s my pussy.”

“Mmmm, yeah,” he moaned. “And so tight. I love fucking you. Love feeling you come.”

She moaned as well. “You make me come so hard.”

He jerked himself faster, his cock squishing wetly in his fist. She slipped a second finger inside her.

“Play with your titties while you do that.”

Kate smirked. She loved how sexy he made her feel. She pinched one hard nipple and then the other. “Like this?” she asked. “Or like this?” She lifted her breast to her mouth and licked her areola.

“Oh yeah, just like that.”

“Mmmm yeah, you wish you were sucking on my big titties?”

“Oh fuck,” he grunted,

Kate gasped as she saw a thick, creamy spurt of come shoot from his cock and arc onto his belly. She’d seen it in porn, but never from a man she knew, a cock she’d sucked and fucked. She plunged her fingers deep inside her and began to shudder as her own orgasm hit.

“Oh God, oh God, oh God,” she moaned, her mouth going dry, her head spinning. “That was fucking amazing.”

“Yeah, it was,” he said. “I want to see you again.”

She sighed. “Oh Baby, I want that so bad... but I can’t. I can’t leave town again so soon.”

“I could come to you.”

She shuddered. She wanted him so badly. Wanted him inside her. Wanted to feel his come leaking from pussy. But it wasn't just that she couldn't travel, it was also that she knew that if she saw him, she might not be able to restrain herself.

"Not yet, Stud. Not yet."

He nodded. Disappointed, yet understanding.

"I want more stories from you."

She chuckled. "I don't know what else I can do with Mike."

"Ohh, there are so many treats you could give him... and me."

She laughed. "I bet."

He grinned. "Shave yourself."

"My legs?" she teased.

"You think you make me hard now, just see what happens then."

She felt her belly flutter. "Oh God."

Kate knew she wouldn't... couldn't do what Adam asked of her. Things were complicated enough as is.

That really hit home when Mike came home. He looked tired and run-down, which wasn't unexpected given their late night, but he was also moping and anxious, not at all like a man who'd gotten his pipes cleaned three times last night. In fact, he was so shaken that for a fleeting moment, she wondered if he somehow knew about her midday Skyping with Adam. But that was impossible... wasn't it?

As usual, they deferred anything serious until after the kids were down, and by that point, Kate was feeling apprehensive as well. She knew he wouldn't be waiting outside Jeremy's room to drag her off to bed, but she was a little shaken when she found him sitting upright at the kitchen table, looking both serious and scared.

"Are you... okay?" she asked.

She poured herself a glass of wine and offered him one. He shook his head. She put her glass down, not wanting to drink alone.

"You hooked up with an old boyfriend, didn't you." A statement, not a question.

She felt the urge to confess, but by asking specifically about an old boyfriend, he made it too easy to lie. Still, she couldn't bring herself to deny it completely.

"Why do you think that?"

He placed his palms flat down on the table and looked up at her. His eyes were both sad and wild.

"The way you've been since you've been back. The panties, the picture... everything. Your smile. I see it. You'll think of something, and suddenly there it is."

Kate knew he was right. She couldn't stop thinking about Adam. She looked away to hide her blush, even though she realized that was also a tell.

"Maybe, I'm just thinking about how lucky I am to have you, and that was brought home precisely because I got to see how all those high school people turned out."

He sighed and looked away, unconvinced. He was right to be. She'd never actually had that thought until just now. But now that she'd said it, it occurred to Kate that it was true. She spent so much time focusing on what he didn't do for her that she didn't realize how much he did. He was actually pretty amazing, even if he didn't know it, and even if she didn't always acknowledge it.

"I feel like it's my fault," he said as if he hadn't heard her at all, and maybe he hadn't. "Like I took you for granted, and also... like maybe, at some weird level... I sort of wanted it."

Her ears perked up. "Wanted it?"

Now he blushed and looked away.

"I don't know. I thought... I thought... maybe... if... you know.... You've been so angry and disappointed recently. And I don't know. I thought maybe if you flirted or something with an old flame you'd come back in a better mood."

Kate picked her glass back up and took a deep swig. "Flirted or something? What does that mean?"

Mike's mouth opened and shut like a fish out of water, but no sound came out. Then suddenly, he was gone, like a shot. Kate was tempted to follow after him. But she was too shocked.

She drank more wine. "What in the fuckedy fuck?"

He was in bed pretending to be asleep when she went up, and then he was gone before she awoke. But that was sort of okay, because at this point, she didn't know what in the world to think. It was odd enough that Adam seemed turned on by her having sex with Mike and the idea of her flirting with another man, but he was a guy she'd met in a bar who had picked up a married woman. He was handsome and funny and had a great cock, but who the fuck really knew where his head was at? He was an adult who played with army men, for fuck's sake. But Mike....

She did know someone who might be able to shed light on this, however. As crazy as it seemed, Kate realized she'd need to turn to Jenna for advice.

Chapter Seven

Jenna was caught in a lunch meeting, but she proposed they meet for drinks after work. It was Mike's afternoon with the kids in any case, so not a disruption. Even still, Kate couldn't remember the last time she'd gone to a happy hour.

Walking up to the bar, Kate felt unaccountably self-conscious. In simple black slacks and a thin, beige sweater, she felt frumpy.

So what? You're just meeting Jenna, she reassured herself. Except, in the back of her mind, she couldn't help but picture Adam, naked, and his belly slick with his own jism, telling her to flirt with and tease another man. She smiled, and then when she realized it, chided herself. It was exactly that sort of thing that had Mike on edge.

Kate arrived first. The bar was crowded with young singles. TVs over the bar showed sports, but the vibe was sleek and modern, dark counters and stainless-steel stools. The music was contemporary and loud, the conversation still louder. She managed to snag a high top that was being vacated as she arrived. She ordered her own drink even before they bussed up the half-dozen beers the previous occupants had ordered.

Alone at the table, her bashfulness returned in spades. There were men looking at her. A couple of young guys in suits, probably in insurance. They barely seemed out of college, though the one on the right, olive complected and with a great smile, was definitely cute. From the bar a man looked up from his beer. Shaved head and thick salt and pepper goatee, he confidently held her gaze a moment longer than innocence would suggest.

"Hey sorry, I'm late," Jenna chimed. With a half nod at the man at the bar, she noted, "He's sort of cute for an older guy."

Kate rolled her eyes. “I’m married.” It was the normal thing to say, but also rang hollow to Kate given the past week.

“Yes, but not dead,” Jenna replied.

The waitress brought Kate’s chardonnay and Jenna ordered one as well.

Jenna was in a gray pencil skirt and a mauve v-neck sweater, and the girls were on display.

“You’re all dressed up,” Kate said.

Jenna shrugged. “You never know who you’re going to meet.”

“I’d think your dance card would be full.”

Jenna waved that away. “There’s always room for another. Anyway, I’m not really seeing anybody. I have a couple of sugar daddies and a fuck buddy.”

Kate laughed. “True. But don’t any of your men get jealous of the others, or are you just that good at keeping them compartmentalized?”

Jenna’s drink arrived. She drained half in one gulp.

“Truth is, most guys don’t care, as long as they get what they want.”

“Brent cared.”

Jenna laughed and pulled out her phone. “He just sent me a dick pic.” She showed it to Kate. A perfectly fine prick, though nothing compared to what Adam had. Or even Mike for that matter.

Kate was desperately tempted to show Jenna what she’d received. Instead, she snapped, “Jesus, Jenna, put that away, we’re in public.”

Jenna complied, though slowly, and with a grin.

Kate hesitated, then asked: “Do any of your men actually like knowing that you see other men?”

Jenna's face seemed to reflect her processing of the conversation. Puzzlement followed by realization. "Oh my God, Mike?" Jenna asked, covering her mouth. "He wants you to fuck other guys?"

Kate flushed a deep red but tried to cover it up. "Of course not. I was just curious."

Jenna gave her a knowing grin. She took a sip of wine. "Just curious," she repeated, obviously skeptical. "Well, Todd knows about Miguel." Todd was one of her sugar daddies, the one she actually fucked; Miguel her personal trainer. "And it turns him on."

"Yeah?" Kate felt a little flush. She finished her wine and called for another round.

"Mmmm. I mean, he's like 50, so he knows he can't really keep up. But anyway, he actively likes it when I tell him about Miguel." Jenna paused, then leaned in closer. "Can I tell you a secret?"

Kate suppressed a chuckle. Jenna had no discretion whatsoever, so this was obviously just a tease. No matter what she answered, Jenna would spill. Kate played along and nodded.

"Todd likes to eat me out while I tell him about fucking Miguel. And this is the craziest, and actually hottest part... he gets the most turned on if he thinks I've been with Miguel recently."

Kate scrunched up her nose. "He likes to... taste..."

Jenna laughed. "All in his head.... So far. But yeah. He's apparently got that fantasy." She paused as Kate tried to process it. "So, Mike...."

Kate shook her head. "No. Not Mike." Though she wasn't sure what to think anymore. Men were crazy.

"Uh huh."

"Jenna."

The younger woman laughed again. “So what is your question again?”

Kate sighed, trying to figure out how to phrase things.

Jenna seemed to feel pity for her friend. “It’s not a big deal. A lot of guys have that fantasy. Of their woman with another man. I guess it makes them feel like studs that some other guy wants their girlfriend or wife or whatever.”

“Yeah?”

“For fuck’s sake. It’s all over the Internet. Like one of the biggest fantasies out there. And look at you, all blond hair and blue eyes. You’ve got that whole snow bunny look. I bet Mike jerks it thinking of you fucking Black guys.”

“Jesus,” Kate hissed. Then too late: “He doesn’t.”

Jenna laughed. “Don’t be a dummy. This is the best fucking thing that’s ever happened to you. You’ve got this great hubby. He’s cute, a good earner, goes halves on taking care of the kids... and he wants you to fuck other dudes? It’s like hitting the jackpot.”

Kate shook her head frantically. “No, no, no... I swear, Jenna, he doesn’t. You can’t—”

“Oh, don’t worry, I won’t tell anyone. But I’ll tell you what, if you want, maybe we can double date with Miguel. See what happens.”

“I am not a swinger.”

“Call it what you want. Don’t worry, I won’t bang Mike unless you’re cool with it.”

Kate felt a surge of heat. Jealous rage. She did not want Mike anywhere within a million miles of Jenna, the little slut. She took a deep breath.

“You want to have sex with my husband?” she asked, her voice tight.

Their waitress chose that moment to arrive with the next round of drinks. Kate was mortified, Jenna amused.

“Of course not, unless you want me to,” Jenna replied with a wink.

Jenna’s phone buzzed, and she added. “Speaking of which, I have my personal training session in a few, so I have to run.”

“You drink before working out?”

She laughed. “Miguel’s idea of a good workout is... um... a little more intimate than going to the gym.”

Jenna guzzled her wine. She offered Kate a twenty, but Kate waved her off. And then, suddenly, she was alone in the bar... but not for long. The bald man from the bar approached.

“Hi, I’m John. Is your friend coming back?”

Kate hesitated, weighing options. Did she want to chase him off? Leave herself? Or....

“No, she has a date.”

He laughed. “Not real surprising. She’s a looker.”

“So, I’m not really an expert on this, but I am pretty sure that if your plan is to chat me up, you’re not supposed to be lusting after my friend.”

He raised an eyebrow. “For what it’s worth, you’re much more attractive.” A pause. “Well, until I saw that,” he said, gesturing to her wedding ring.

“You’re not interested in married women?”

He shrugged. “Not usually. Why are you in an open relationship?”

“Maybe,” Kate said coyly, imagining herself as a different person.

He raised the other eyebrow. Kate laughed.

“Not sure that is a maybe question.”

“Maybe it depends on the man?” she proposed.

He tilted his head quizzically. “So, how does that work? Are you a free agent, or do you need to get permission to play?”

Kate was making it up as she went along. “He trusts me.”

“Trusts you to be faithful, or to pick the right man?”

“I’m always faithful. I’m just not always exclusive.” Was that accurate? Did it describe things with Adam? Or was she just playing a role?

He nodded, as if that made sense. “So as long as you come back to him...?”

“Something like that.”

Her phone buzzed.

“Speak of the devil?” the man asked.

She peeked at her phone. “Sure enough.”

<Mike> Hi Honey. Do we have any more pasta sauce?

Spaghetti, of course. Tacos, spaghetti, and takeout. When she was out, her family ate like college students. Tonight, she found that amusing.

<Kate> In the pantry.

Of course, he knew that. Which meant that he was checking up on her.

<Mike> Great. So, what are you up to?

She chuckled.

“Everything okay?” John asked.

She smiled. “Need to keep the hubby in the loop.”

“Ah, real time play-by-play. Very sexy.”

Kate felt a surge of adrenaline.

<Kate> I was having drinks with Jenna. But she just left.

She waited a few moments.

<Kate> Now, I’m talking to a man.

She imagined Mike receiving the text. Choking on his own spit. A furious blush. His heart racing.

<Mike> What? Who?

She decided to let him stew a little. She returned her attention to John.

“It can be. Though, of course, at some point, play-by-play becomes, um, impractical.”

She thought about stumbling down the hallway with Adam. They could barely get into the room, much less text.

“So, what kind of man tempts you to play?” John asked.

“What do you mean?”

He shrugged. “Now, all I know about this is from what I see on the Internet, but don’t most couples have a very particular idea of what they want in a bull?”

She giggled. A bull. Like she was a cow to be mated. It was funny, but also a little sexy. Adam was a big strong man with a large cock, and he had taken her like a bull might. She also remembered Jenna’s “snow bunny” comment.

“Like a Black guy?”

John nodded and shifted his feet from side to side. The idea seemed to excite him.

“I like all different kinds of men,” she concluded provocatively.

“So, your husband doesn’t have a preference?”

“Like I say. I make love to whomever I want. That’s not really his choice.”

Speaking of which, he’d stewed enough. She glanced at her phone and saw he’d texted again.

<Mike> Kate?

<Mike> Who are you talking to?

<Mike> ??

She grinned. He was getting frantic. She wondered where his mind was at the moment. Was he imagining she was already fooling around with another man? Did he picture her in a booth at the bar, making out with another man? Maybe it was time to add some visual details.

<Kate> Just a man. He looks a little like the guy from Breaking Bad.

“He wants to know more about you.”

John laughed. “Like what? My, um, shoe size?”

She raised an eyebrow. “That’s a myth.”

“What is?” he asked in mock innocence.

She raised her glass in a toast. “You just want to get me to say something about big dicks.”

He laughed and clinked her glass with his beer bottle.

Her phone buzzed again.

<Mike> Kate, what are you doing?

<Kate> Flirting.

Then after a brief pause.

<Kate> Or something.

That should be enough to get him going. She switched off her phone and returned her attention to John. She batted her eyelashes at him.

He laughed. “You’re just messing with me, right?”

“Probably.” She leaned in and with deadly solemnity borne of truth, she continued, “Though you wouldn’t be the first strange man to pick me up in a bar... even this week.”

He chuckled, but then got serious. “You’re telling the truth.”

She nodded. It was crazy, but she’d been bursting at the seams to tell someone all about it. And here was this complete stranger, and he was all ears.

“Buy me a drink and I’ll fill you in.”

He did. And Kate regaled him with the whole story of her time in Cleveland, sparing no details, even as he squirmed and adjusted his cock in his pants. She told him about making out in the elevator, about Adam pulling down her panties and eating her pussy. She described reciprocating and his big cock.

“So, what do you think?” she asked as she finished.

He shook his head. “You’re either the best damn wife or the worst fucking nightmare.”

“Or both,” she proposed.

“Or both,” he admitted. Then he put his hand on her forearm in a way that was both non-threatening and earnest. “You’re a real beauty. And it would be an honor if you’d consider letting me give you a story for the next guy.” She smiled. He continued, “I promise, it’ll be fun for us both.”

Kate took a few moments to ponder it. She had to get home to her husband and kids. But... it could be fun to play a little. She imagined following John to his car. Climbing into his passenger seat and loosening her pants just enough for him to slip his hand into her panties. Sucking on his cock while he fingered her wet pussy. She was already damp from recounting her story. A quick and dirty blowjob, his come in her mouth. She shivered, aware suddenly that her nipples were so hard they were visible despite her bra and thin sweater.

She placed her own hand on his. He jolted, and she felt a peculiar sense of satisfaction that she had such a powerful effect on him. “I’m sure it would. But I can’t. Not tonight.”

He chuckled and adjusted himself again. He rose and before she could react, he gave her a quick peck on the cheek. “You’re something else.”

She smiled.

Kate powered her phone back up to a series of five messages from Mike.

<Mike> I’m sorry. I didn’t mean it.

<Mike> It was just a stupid thought. I didn’t... oh God Kate, please don’t do this.

<Mike> Baby?

<Mike> Kate. This is crazy. You can’t.

<Mike> Please call me.

She felt bad, but also amused. Wicked. It was all so unlike her. She didn’t know who this cheating, teasing woman was. She wasn’t sure she liked her either. But she did like the fact that this woman seemed to have a surprising power. Adam. Mike. John. She had the sense that any of them would walk a mile through the snow just to hold her. It was intoxicating. But not really her.

<Kate> I'm sorry Honey. I was untangling a work emergency. I'll be home soon.

The kids in bed, Kate wondered where she'd find Mike. Outside the door, waiting to drag her into the bedroom? At the kitchen table looking dour? In bed, naked or perhaps pretending to be asleep? Instead, she found him in the living room, sitting cross-legged in front of the fire... sipping on a scotch?

“Work emergency?”

“Or something,” she smirked. “When did you start drinking scotch?” Kate couldn't remember Mike ever drinking anything harder than wine.

“It's Bourbon.”

“What's the difference?”

“Scotch is made from barley. Bourbon from corn. I'm starting to like it.”

She nodded. “Good to know. And the reason for this exploration of hard stuff?”

“I'm thinking I need something stiffer to deal with you.”

Kate grinned and then laughed. Mike chuckled after a moment as it hit him as well.

“I didn’t mean it that way,” Mike said. “Though, maybe it works both ways.”

“Do I get one?” she asked.

He rose and poured her two fingers in a rocks glass. He handed it to her and they clinked. Then he sat back down watching the flames. She sat down on the raised hearth slightly to the side with the fire at her back. They didn’t speak for a moment. Then he took a deep breath.

“So, are you done punishing me?” he asked.

Kate took a sip. She crooked a finger at herself. “Me? Punishing?”

“What would you call it?”

Two glasses of wine at the bar and now some bourbon, and Kate was feeling a little saucy. “Giving you what you want.”

He shook his head. “No. I mean. No. I didn’t explain it right, I guess. I just thought, you know—”

Kate slid over so that she was now between her husband and the fire. She spread her legs and leaned forward toward him. His eyes bounced between her crotch, her cleavage, and her face.

“Yeah. You just wanted to lighten my mood. It had nothing, nothing to do with your own fantasies.”

“Wha.. what fantasies?”

Kate grinned. “Oh, I don’t know, Mr. Morris. Maybe something about your fantasy of your wife with other men.”

“I don’t want you to—”

“Oh, I didn’t say you did want me to. I just said you fantasized about it.”

“I don’t—”

She reached out and touched his cheek. He jolted. "It's okay," she reassured him.

He looked up at her. He had tears in his eyes. "I don't want to fuck everything up."

"You're not."

"You wouldn't..." he said.

Kate was pretty sure she knew what Mike wanted to hear. He wanted her to promise that of course, she would never, ever, fuck another man, but he wanted her to do it so implausibly that he could keep the fantasy alive. She didn't know if she could manage that, even if she hadn't already blown all of that to hell with Adam.

"Are you sure, Baby?" she asked.

He looked shocked. "What?"

"What did you imagine... or fear... I was doing tonight after I stopped answering your texts?"

"I thought it was a work emergency."

She laughed. "I lied." He opened his mouth to protest. She cut him off. "But you knew that, so was it really a lie?"

"So, what did you do?" he asked.

Kate took another sip of bourbon. She noticed his glass was empty. Before answering she rose and recovered the bottle. She poured him a half glass and topped off her own. Mike stared at her hungrily. She sat back down, even more conscious of how her posture served to torment him.

"Hmmm," she began. "The real question is, can you handle the truth?" She didn't try to channel Jack Nicholson. She just said it straight.

He answered by gulping his Bourbon.

She grinned. “What if the truth, Mike, is that I let him take me to his car?”

His eyes went wide. “Kate—”

She cut him off. “Handsome guy. Confident. He definitely wanted to spend time with me. And now that I figured out your fantasy, why say no?”

“What did you do?”

His voice was shaky, concealing barely contained terror. Kate was also sure he was rock hard.

She dragged her index finger from her knee toward her inner thigh. His eyes followed intently. She traced the seam of her pants to the crotch, where it joined the other leg, the stitches marking the line of her slit. She paused there, fingertip tapping her pussy, and Mike’s mouth gaped open. She continued upward, over her belly, into the valley between her full breasts. Then she completed the journey, sliding her fingertip over her throat, her chin, outlining her pursed lips, and sucking her finger into her mouth. He gulped as he watched her slowly pump her finger in and out of her wet mouth. He looked up and their eyes met.

“You... you...” he stammered.

“Say it.”

“You... sucked his cock?”

“And what if I did?”

“I... I...”

“Say it.”

But he couldn’t. Instead, he began to tremble. “Oh God,” he moaned excitedly. And then a moment later, “Oh God,” but this time his tone betrayed shame.

Kate dropped onto the floor in front of her husband and pulled him into a tight embrace. He hugged her as well, but awkwardly, obviously trying to hide the fact that he'd come in his pants.

"It's okay, Baby, it's okay. I didn't do anything tonight. I was just teasing you. We're just playing."

She tried to reassure him, but he was embarrassed, and she didn't push it. After a few minutes, he disentangled himself.

"I'm... not feeling that well.... I'm... going to bed."

He shuffled awkwardly upstairs. Kate was torn. She wanted to follow him, but she knew he needed some space to deal with this. As did she. It certainly wasn't a simple situation. It would have been hard to manage even if.... Kate's phone buzzed with an incoming text.

Chapter Eight

She shouldn't be doing it. It was reckless and dangerous. Unnecessary fuel to add to an already out-of-control fire. But she couldn't resist. And after all, she'd promised Adam.

Kate had already shaved her legs, so it was easy to keep going. She lathered up her closely trimmed muff. She'd never gone completely bare. Never thought she would. It had always seemed weird. Lewd. She went slowly, not wanting to cut herself. It was challenging. She couldn't keep her hand steady, and every time the razor touched her sensitive skin, she nearly jolted.

She couldn't stop thinking about what would happen next. She knew that once she was shaved, she'd need to send pictures to Adam. And once she did that, he'd begin stroking his big, hard cock and send his own pictures to her. And when his pictures arrived, she'd be unable to resist playing with her now bare pussy. That was, after all, what had happened last night after Mike fled the scene. Shamefully and secretly, hiding out in the basement with a half-filled washing machine as a cover in case Mike happened to come downstairs and find her.

It was so risky. Texting with one hand. Taking pictures of herself. Her wet pussy. Her fingers glistening with her juices. Tongue circling her hard nipples. Gasping at each new picture of his beautiful cock, leaking pre-cum, slick and perfectly ready to slide into her hot pussy. Her mouth literally watering as she imagined sucking it, licking it.

She'd come three times. Gasping, wheezing, sweaty. And Adam came as well. It made Kate a little giddy knowing she'd made two men climax that evening without even touching them. The guy in the bar had probably jerked off thinking of her as well. Three. It made her feel sexy and slutty. Just like shaving herself did.

After, she dried herself off and looked at herself in the mirror. She again noted all of her imperfections, like she always did, but this time the voice in her head that tried to tear her down had to compete with other voices, those of the two men in her life. Where she saw breasts that were beginning to sag, they saw large, maulable mounds with endlessly suckable nips. Where she saw wide hips and thighs, they saw a bangable booty to grab and squeeze. And where she now saw in her shaved snatch desperation, she knew they'd see a tasty pussy that they'd want to eat and fuck until she begged them to stop. Except she wouldn't. She'd only beg for more.

She took mirror selfies. The first one coy, arm crossed over her breasts, an abundance of cleavage, but no nipples. Then another, over her shoulder, down to the top of her butt crack. Then a full frontal, hand demurely placed over her missing patch, just enough visible to hint at what she'd done. And then finally the reveal. Again over her shoulder, but this time bent at the waist, legs parted so that her ass and shaved pussy were visible, though shaded. Another, foot on the sink, no longer any doubt about what she'd done. Lastly, a closeup: Shaved, lips glistening with excitement, a hint of pink within.

She reviewed the pictures, her arousal increasing with each. Her clit was swollen, hard. She rubbed it faster and faster. Mike. Adam. Mike. Adam. Cocks, tongues, and fingers. She came. Gasping and grunting. Lightheaded.

“Oh God,” she moaned softly as she caught her breath.

There is a temptation when one is in the midst of a whirlwind to drag other people along. People say that misery loves company. That's not really true. It is chaos that loves company.

Kate was all sexed up. It was all she could think about at the moment. Everything reminded her of fucking. Her phone brought up memories of sexting with Adam. The armchair in the living room of riding Mike the night she'd given him her panties. Her body felt weird, unfamiliar, her clothes itchy, slick, too tight, too thin. It wasn't that she was uncomfortable, but rather that she was more conscious than ever of her breasts, her legs, her ass. The way they looked, felt, and appeared to others.

She was in a fog. Distracted and aroused. It was tempting to drag Mike and Adam further into this with her, but she resisted the urge to text them her pictures right away. It was bad enough that she was too horny to work. No need to get them all worked up as well. In any case, it was easier for her to ignore her damp panties than it would be for them to hide their erections.

There was an accident on the highway, making Kate's morning commute unexpectedly slow. It gave her mind time to wander. Time to think about all the developments of the past few days. Of her time with Adam. Of Mike's convenient, if weird, fears and fantasies of her with other men. She wondered whether he would, in reality, like her to have an affair, and she debated in her mind whether she'd like that or not. On one hand, it would take away her guilt. On the other, it would eliminate the thrill, which she knew was part of the excitement. Would it be as sexy to ogle pics of Adam's big cock if she didn't have to do it surreptitiously?

In the stop-and-go traffic, she let her hand slip down into her lap. Just a quick tease of a finger against the crotch through her skirt. She shivered, her nipples stiffening. She wondered if Adam fondled himself in his car, thinking about her, rubbing his hard prick. She touched herself again, this time slipping her hand beneath her skirt, peering out the window anxiously, wondering if anyone could see in. There was an Asian woman one car over reading her texts. A man in a pickup singing along to the radio. But no one was looking at her as she felt her shaved pussy through her moist panties.

The sensation of bare skin beneath the sheer fabric made her feel so sensual. She traced her sex and touched her now seemingly perpetually swollen clit. She let out a small gasp, and then looked from side to side to see if anyone was watching, and found she was a little disappointed that no one was. The realization surprised her. Her lane began to move again, and she was beside the man in the pickup. He was probably in his late 20s, bearded, wearing sunglasses. She slowed to remain alongside, peering out of the corner of her eye at him. He didn't seem to be gazing at her, but it was titillating to know that any moment he might.

She rubbed herself slowly, the movement of her hand bunching her skirt, exposing more and more of her creamy legs. The traffic slowed, and then came to a dead stop. The pickup was beside her, and she knew that if he looked down, he'd get quite a view of her bare legs and her hand in between. No real doubt what she was up to. And with the congestion, she wouldn't be able to drive away. She'd have to remain, and even if she covered up, he'd still be there, watching her. She felt a surge of heat and lust. She rubbed herself harder and moaned. She looked over again. He wasn't looking... or was he? Maybe out of the corner of his eyes? He was smiling, head tilted a bit awkwardly. He might be. He was.

"Oh God," Kate moaned.

She couldn't resist. She pulled her panties aside, ran her finger along her bare skin and juicy slit. She rubbed her clit hard with two fingers. She moaned again.

"Oh God, oh God," she said, shuddering.

A horn beeped. She jolted out of her orgasm. The traffic was moving. But the pickup remained beside her. She didn't dare look up. She knew. Knew he'd seen it all. Had seen her masturbating herself in traffic. She hit the gas and accelerated. He remained close by for a while, and Kate couldn't help but wonder what would happen if she pulled over.

The vision flooded her mind, vivid and real. He'd pull up behind her and get out of his truck. She'd step out of her car, her eyes drawn to the bulge in his pants. No words. He'd grab her firmly and bend her over her car hood. No words. He'd lift her skirt and tear off her panties. No words. He'd bury his huge, hard prick in her wet, willing hole.

"Oh God," she sighed.

She looked around, knowing that if he was still there, she'd have no choice but to stop. But he was gone. Lost in traffic. She felt a rush of disappointment.

“Oh God.”

Kate bided her time so as to not blow up her men's days. Though it felt arrogant to even think it, she knew those pictures of her would wreck them both. She waited until the end of the day to send the first text.

<Kate> I have a surprise for you.

She attached the first picture, the one where she was naked with her arm over her breasts. She sent both Mike and Adam the exact same message. She wasn't sure why, but doing that was a thrill. She got a response almost immediately.

<Adam> More! More!

She chuckled and wrote back to him.

<Kate> Patience is a virtue.

<Adam> Cocktease. ;-)

She grinned. A couple of weeks ago, she'd have been dreadfully offended by the epithet. Now she was tickled pink... except... where was Mike's response? He had the kids, but even still, he could have acknowledged receipt.

“If he doesn't watch out, Adam's going to be the first to experience my new look,” she murmured as she walked to the car.

Kate checked her phone again at the last traffic light before the highway. Still nothing from Mike. She quickly composed a second text and attached the over-the-shoulder picture. Adam responded instantly.

<Adam> Yum. I want to lick down your spine to....

It was sexier for the discretion. She filled in the blanks. Adam on his knees behind her, spreading her ass cheek apart, licking her... everywhere. It was such a dirty thought. She felt blooms of heat on her face, between her legs.

Had it really been a week since she'd been with Adam? It didn't feel that long. She still had a rich, visceral memory of him. Of him pulling down her panties. His mouth tasting, probing, sucking her drenched pussy. The feel of his fat cock in her hands and her mouth. His body against her. And most of all, the sensation of him entering her, stretching her again and again making her come over and over.

She started playing with herself yet again. Faster this time, more focused. Traffic was moving well, and she wasn't interested in the other commuters. It was her and Adam. Sexy, sexy Adam.

Kate knew she could summon him, and he'd be there in a matter of hours. He'd hop on the first flight from Chicago. It was 5:30pm. By 11:00pm, he could be ensconced in a downtown hotel room. A quick excuse to Mike.

"Work emergency, Honey," she said out loud, testing the sound of it.

By 11:15pm she could be on her knees, tasting his delicious prick. By 11:30pm she could be naked, on her back, legs high in the air being driven mad by Adam's deep, hard strokes. She pulled aside her panties and pressed two fingers deep inside.

She moaned. He felt so good. So good. She was close. Even as she drove down her own street on autopilot, she continued to play with herself. So close. So close. Maybe just one more tour around the block.

Kate saw the house. Saw a minivan in the driveway. Pennsylvania plates. Stick-figure family on the rear window: A man and a woman, two girls, two boys, a dog. Kate's sister... Michelle... and her family... for the weekend... how had she forgotten?

“Oh God.”

Chapter Nine

The house was riotous with six kids under the age of twelve and two rambunctious, excitable dogs in the mix. It did provide some cover for Kate's discomfiture, though she remained acutely aware of her wet panties and throbbing sex.

"Katie!" Michelle shrieked.

Kate hugged her sister. Michelle was two years younger. Her hair was darker, dirty blond, and she was more slender than Kate. She was a bit earthy-crunchy, jeans and sweaters, hair usually in a ponytail.

"How was the drive?" Kate asked.

"Miserable," answered David.

Michelle's husband was a sardonic counterpoise to his cheery wife. He had an impressive shock of nearly black hair but had put on some weight over the years of working as a computer programmer. He had trouble not staring at Kate's breasts when they were together.

Kate gave David a hug. What wouldn't he give to know what she'd been up to recently? Mike appeared with three beers. He handed one each to Michelle and David. He gave his wife an amused grin.

"What? I don't get one?" Kate asked.

Mike rolled his eyes, but handed over his beer, and returned to the kitchen to get another. Kate turned back toward David. He'd been watching her ass. He was harmless, and it didn't bother Kate. In truth, she'd barely thought about it, but his roving eyes made her realize something: He really wants to fuck me. It was a strange epiphany, because Kate had never really considered herself that way. Sure, she knew she was attractive enough, but it had never registered that other men regularly wanted to have sex with her. David wasn't just looking at her breasts; he wanted to grab them and squeeze them, pinch and suck her nipples. He wasn't just admiring her ass; he wanted her on all fours so he could fuck her from behind. Kate wasn't disgusted. She was, instead, amused, maybe even a little proud. She smiled at her brother-in-law. He seemed surprised, then looked away abashed. Caught.

Mike returned with another beer. "Why was the ride so bad?"

David gestured into the living room. "Kids."

Kate laughed. She'd always thought her sister was crazy for having four. "That's why we stopped at two."

Mike chuckled. "Oh, right, because riding five hours with ours is a walk in the park."

"Dave's just upset his Sirius app crashed and he couldn't listen to Stern on his earbuds."

"Could have played it over the radio," Mike replied.

"Mommy, what's a lesbian?" Michelle said, imagining outloud how that might go.

"They have to learn sometime," Mike replied.

Michelle looked at her sister. She rolled her eyes. "Men."

"Did Mike show you where you'd sleep?" Kate asked.

"Figured the same as last time?" Mike said.

Kate nodded.

Even with a four-bedroom house, ten people was tight. It meant Michelle and Dave in the guest room, which was right next to the master bedroom. Sleeping bags in the kids' rooms, and a couple of kids on the sofa in the family room. It also meant little to no privacy. Kate hoped her pictures hadn't gotten Mike too worked up. It would be awkward to try to bang with a house full of family.

Mike got everyone settled, while Kate went into the kitchen to work on dinner. Mike had gone shopping and had a couple of baking dishes of chicken legs in the oven. Either he'd remembered Michelle and family were coming, or it was good improvisation. She noted in some surprise that there was also a huge green bean salad on the counter. It looked store bought, but all in all, a good choice.

Kate jolted from a sharp spank.

"You forgot they were coming," Mike said, with a grin.

"Of course not.... Okay, yeah," she laughed.

"Too busy taking pics to check the calendar, eh?"

She blushed, but then felt coquettish. "Maybe," she said, running a finger down the middle of his chest.

"I don't know what's gotten into you," Mike said. "But I sort of like it."

"Sort of?" she asked with a crooked smile that hinted at more.

He reached around and slapped her ass again. "Behave. We have guests."

They set up the kids at the larger table in the dining room, while the grownups sat around the smaller table in the kitchen.

Michelle was a stay-at-home mom. With four kids that was almost a given. Kate knew that would make her nuts, but it seemed to work for her sister, who always seemed to have some sort of kid-related project.

"Go ahead, tell them," Dave prompted.

"It's not really that crazy," Michelle replied.

Dave smirked at Mike. Get this.

“We’re making a chicken sandwich from scratch.”

Mike shrugged and looked at Kate. “Don’t we do that every day?”

“No. No,” Dave said. “Scratch scratch.”

Kate laughed. “Oh Jesus, Shell, really?”

Her sister nodded.

“What?” Mike asked.

“It means,” Dave explained. “We now have a chicken coop.”

“And a patch of wheat,” Michelle added.

“The kids know the chickens are food, not pets?” Kate asked.

“Well, sorta,” her sister replied.

“Seems like they’re going to learn some good skills,” Mike suggested.

“Uh huh, in case of the zombie apocalypse,” Dave snarked.

“Better than playing video games all day,” Michelle concluded.

They talked kids and school and vacations and family. They drank wine and got sillier. After a while they returned to the chickens.

“So, how are you going to kill them?” Mike asked.

Michelle giggled. “That’s man’s work.”

Dave groaned. “I’m going to bring the chickens to a farm and bring back some chicken meat from the store.” He held up a store-bought drumstick.

“Oh come on,” Michelle said.

“I didn’t marry a crazy hippie chick thinking she’d make me murder poultry.”

“What did you think you were getting?” Michelle asked.

Dave grinned at Mike before answering. “I don’t know. Free love?”

Michelle replied, “Hairy legs and underarms?”

“Now that I wouldn’t put up with. But tell you what, I’ll kill the bird if you shave the kitty.”

Michelle slapped her husband. “See what I put up with?”

Kate blushed and forced a chuckle to cover it up. She changed the topic. “Did you ever hear about the raccoons?”

“Did Michelle eat a racoon?” Dave asked.

“No. More like she adopted them.”

“Did not,” Michelle replied.

“Shell got it into her head that we needed to compost, and she badgered Mom and Dad into it. But, of course, we had no idea what we were doing, so instead of creating lovely new soil, we basically ended up with a colony of raccoons living out back. And when Dad wanted to clean things up, Shell threw a fit—”

“I made reasoned arguments.”

Kate rolled her eyes. “Anyway, family of racoons. She even named them.”

Even Michelle laughed. “They were so cute.”

“What happened to them?” Dave asked.

Kate smirked. “Shell discovered boys and pot in high school and forgot about them.”

Michelle turned red, eyes wide. “You are such a narc.”

Kate laughed.

Michelle smirked. “Should I tell them about the spreadsheet?”

Kate blushed but tried to act unperturbed. “Go ahead.”

Michelle paused to build suspense. “Okay, so this is Katie’s idea of romance...”

“Uh oh,” Mike said.

“Katie was always too serious for boys—”

Kate interrupted, “Or maybe I just had higher standards than to let any guy feel me up just because he could score a joint.”

Michelle stuck out her tongue. “You’re just jealous. Anyway, this is a story about you, not me.”

Kate shrugged.

“But senior year, she decided she wanted to go to prom, so she built a spreadsheet of the boys in her class.”

“What was on it?” Mike asked.

Michelle smirked. “Oh, all sorts of things. Height, whether he had a car, GPA.”

Mike laughed. “GPA?”

Kate nodded as if this were perfectly normal. “Sure, why not? I wasn’t interested in dating a dummy.”

Everyone laughed.

“And then what happened?” Mike asked.

Michelle went on. “Well, she ranked the boys, and then settled on her choice.”

“Bryan Daniels,” Kate said. “It worked. We had a great time. He was a perfect gentleman.”

“He was gay,” Michelle replied.

Kate laughed. “Yes, it turns out he was.”

“That might have been a good variable to add to the spreadsheet,” Dave suggested.

“How did I do on the spreadsheet?” Mike asked.

Kate grinned. “Well, I married you, didn’t I?”

They laughed. Kate hadn’t actually used a spreadsheet with Mike. It was much more prosaic. Setup by a mutual friend. They got along well. They were at the right time in life to be open to a serious relationship. And that was that.

After dinner, working on the dishes, side-by-side with Mike, she struggled to reconcile her competing emotions.

The kids in the house and the conversation around the dinner table were just what Kate needed. A little grounding in reality to help combat the feverishness of the past week. This was her life... not Adam and hotel rooms and sexting.

But that wasn’t quite true. Or if it had been, it wasn’t anymore. That was the trick. She still felt guilty about Adam. She was a little scared about her games with Mike and where those might lead. She was embarrassed about... well... a lot of things. But one emotion she couldn't quite conjure up, even though she felt she should, was regret.

"You okay, Honey? You seem pensive."

"I'm sorry about last night," she said. "I didn't mean to make you feel weird."

He blushed. "It's okay. I could have handled it better. It's just... well it caught me by surprise. I'm just happy PE is not a disqualifier on your spreadsheet."

She laughed.

"Those pictures were hot," he added.

You have no idea. "There may be more where those came from."

"Yeah?" he asked hopefully.

"Maybe," she teased. "But we probably should hold off on those until we have the house to ourselves again."

"We're going to wait until the kids go to college?"

Kate laughed. "Maybe not that long, but until my sister and her brood decamp."

"That's probably a good idea," he replied. "Though we could hide out in the basement."

She blushed. Did he know what she'd done last night after he'd gone to bed? Of course not. He couldn't. He really had no idea what was going on. He couldn't possibly suspect it because it was completely out of the realm of the possible. She was the girl who rated potential dates by their GPA, not the crazy woman who played with herself on her commute. Mike found it hot that his stodgy wife had a bit of a wild streak. But he'd surely not be happy to learn how far that went.

“That seems a little risky,” she answered finally.

“Probably. So, what are we going to do with them tomorrow?” he asked.

“I haven’t thought about it.”

He laughed. “Now, those are words I never expected to hear from you.”

She laughed as well. “Can you finish up? I’ll check on Shell.”

He nodded.

Kate left the kitchen, but before she could find her sister, her phone vibrated with a text. She’d been ignoring it all evening, but she knew she needed to respond. She ducked into the bathroom and pulled out her phone. There was a series of texts from Adam.

<Adam> Those pics are such a tease. But I want more.

<Adam> Come on, Baby. I’ll return the favor.

<Adam> Kate?

<Adam> Everything okay?

She should just end it once and for all. But she didn’t want to, and she knew she couldn’t. Still, she needed a break. She composed her reply.

<Kate> Everything is fine. But I need to step back from this for a little. Need a breather.

She hesitated. Then she appended the frontal picture with her hand coyly over her bare patch and sent it.

<Adam> Oh God. You’re amazing.

And then after another moment.

<Adam> Thank you for that. And let me know when you're ready to get back in touch.

Kate smiled. He always seemed to be able to give her exactly what she needed when she needed it.

It was a bit raw and damp, but actually not bad once they were ten minutes into their run along the Windsor River Trail.

“You and Mike seem good,” Michelle said.

“What do you mean?”

“Just seems like you two are more relaxed than the last time we saw you.”

“Yeah, I guess we are. Hard sometimes with work and the kids.”

“Mike’s great with helping out,” Michelle said. “I mean, I can’t remember the last time Dave helped with dinner.”

“As long as it isn’t anything too complicated,” Kate replied.

“Well, okay. But he also comes home early to be with the kids.”

“Yeah. I have nothing to complain about, really.” So why did I cheat on him?

“Really?” Michelle echoed, turning it into a question.

“Oh come on, Sis, you’ve been married almost as long as I have, and you have more kids. You know what I’m saying.”

“You’re bored.”

“Sometimes. You?”

Michelle laughed. “Sure. Especially when the kids are sick or cranky... or just kids... I’d love to run away with the pool boy.”

“You don’t have a pool,” Kate noted.

“Well, maybe I fantasize about that too. Anyway, I think that’s normal. I mean... you don’t... you didn’t....”

“What?”

“Stray?”

Kate shivered and hoped her sister would chalk it up to the cold. She couldn’t tell her sister... but she desperately wanted to tell someone. As when she spoke to Jenna, she had a profound urge to confess or maybe to brag or maybe just to bring another person into the secret so she could talk it out. But she couldn’t do that to Mike. It was bad enough his wife cheated on him; she couldn’t bear to also let other people know he was a cuckold.

“No, of course not. Why would you think that?”

“I don’t know. It just seemed like maybe you were leading there. And it’s weird, but sometimes it seems to help a relationship.”

Kate laughed. “Yeah?”

“Well, if it doesn’t break them up, it can be a little slap in the face. I’m not interested in cheating on Dave, but I do sometimes like to tease him a little. You know, all innocent like, ‘the tree guy was so helpful today.’ Then he’ll scowl and say something like, ‘You know he’s hitting on you, right?’. And I’ll just wave it off. ‘Don’t be silly.’ But then he’ll bring home flowers or set up a date night. They’re not bad guys. They just forget sometimes.”

Kate felt naive. It had never occurred to her to play that sort of game. Maybe if she had, she wouldn’t have been so frustrated with Mike, and such an easy mark for Adam.

“How would you feel if Dave played games like that with you,” Kate asked.

“Hmmm. That’s a good one. But you know, it feels different because I think for guys it requires them to put themselves out there. So, we can get little digs in purely innocently, right? I mean, walk into a bar and a guy will offer to buy you a drink. Even if you turn it down, you can still mention it to your man.”

“You’ve given this a lot of thought.”

Michelle laughed. “It’s possible I read too many romance novels.”

Chapter Ten

The weekend turned out to be a good break. Lots of kid activities and family meals, and because of the crowded house, no sex. By the time Michelle and family departed Sunday afternoon, Kate felt almost normal again. Almost. Because although the fever had broken, she still felt a dull ache of longing for Adam.

When she reshaved herself on Sunday, she thought of her men. Was she doing this for Mike? Or Adam? Mike would benefit, but as she ran her fingers over her silk smooth pussy, the image in her mind was of Adam devouring her, making her come and beg for more.

In bed that night, she played it coy. She snuggled up close to Mike. He took the hint and kissed her gently. He did everything gently. It was just his way. His lips were soft and tender. She thought of kissing Adam, hungry and urgent.

She unbuttoned Mike's pajama top and ran her fingers through the thin hairs on his chest. She thought of Adam's broad torso and thick thatch of dark hair.

Mike followed suit and cupped her full breasts. He leaned down and kissed and licked her nipples. She felt tingly and warm, and remembered the way Adam had mauled her.

She reached into Mike's bottoms. He was hard, his cock nice and manageable, and again she compared him to Adam.

Mike reached into her bottom. Hand moving over her abdomen. Lower, lower, and then a pause.

"Oh Honey, did you?"

“Mmmm. Want to get a closer look?”

She wiggled out of her bottoms and Mike dipped below the covers. She knew Adam would instead have torn the sheets off the bed and turned on the lights so he could see her. Mike was shivering with excitement. He kissed her smooth shaved skin, and tentatively flicked his tongue at her slit. She giggled. It tickled a little but felt nice. He caressed her, his slick thumb slipping into her folds, teasing her sensitive flesh within. He touched her clit and she moaned softly. She reached down and cupped his head as he slowly licked and kissed her.

Kate felt her excitement build. Warmth in her belly. Her skin tingly. Mike’s tongue probed deeper inside her and swished over her sensitive nub. She moaned louder. More kissing, licking. Still teasing, when she was ready for more, for a firmer touch, more urgency, harder... but that wasn’t Mike’s way. It wasn’t their way.

She used her fingertips to drag him up. He slid up her body, kissing her belly, her breasts, too respectful to kiss her on the mouth straight from her pussy. She reached down. He was rock hard. Kate guided his cock to her pussy. He took it slow. Just the tip. She moaned. It was nice. He slowly pressed in deep. Kate grabbed his ass and urged him on.

They got in a familiar rhythm. She lifted her hips off the bed so that his strokes better stimulated her clit. She leaned up and kissed his neck. He thrust in hard. Kate moaned. She was getting closer. So was he. She hoped she’d make it.

She thought of Adam. Imagined him above her, inside her. His big cock. His strong hands. His hunger. She gasped.

“Oh God,” she moaned as she came.

Mike shuddered immediately after. He slowed and then rolled off her.

“You’re amazing,” he gushed.

“You’re not so bad yourself,” she replied.

They got cleaned up and back into their PJs. They cuddled and drifted off to sleep.

Kate awoke around 2:00am. She glanced over at Mike, sleeping peacefully. He'd enjoyed her gift. She knew that. It just wasn't in him to go wild, lose control, and it wasn't fair to hold that against him. But still, she was disappointed.

She rose and went downstairs. She took her phone and texted Adam.

<Kate> Are you awake.

After a few moments he replied.

<Adam> I am now. Everything okay?

She didn't quite know what to say.

<Kate> I miss you.

<Adam> Miss you too.

Then a moment later.

<Adam> That was quite the picture. You should probably know that I've been beating my meat like a government mule.

She chuckled.

<Kate> Ewww.

<Adam> You love it. So, I couldn't be sure, but... that picture. Looks like you might have done some cosmetic modifications.

<Kate> Are you asking if I shaved my puss?

<Adam> Well? Did you?

Kate grinned. She sent the next pic. The one of her bent over at the waist, showing her ass and bare pussy.

<Kate> You like?

<Adam> Mmmm, yeah. That's how I want you. I want to eat that pretty pussy from behind.

Kate sighed. That would be so hot. She imagined him devouring her, his finger rubbing her clit, his mouth all up and down her shaved snatch.

<Kate> Then what?

<Adam> I'd make you beg for it.

<Kate> Maybe I'd make you beg.

That was mostly bravado. She knew she would beg for his fat cock. She sent the next picture. Foot on the sink, her shaved pussy prominently displayed.

<Adam> LOL. You're right. I'd beg. What did hubby think? Or has he not seen it yet?

<Kate> He liked it.

<Adam> Liked it? That's it?

<Kate> Maybe he's not as sexed up as you are.

She sent the last picture, the close up of her pussy, smooth as silk, and juicy from the excitement of posing in front of the mirror.

<Adam> Oh man, that is a tasty looking snatch.

Kate giggled.

<Kate> Snatch?

<Adam> Look what you do to me.

He attached a picture of his beautiful, fat prick. She licked her lips, thinking how good it would feel inside her. She slipped a hand into her panties. She was wet and very sensitive. Even the lightest touch on her velvety folds made her shudder.

<Adam> Are you touching yourself?

<Kate> Yes.

For a while neither one texted. Kate knew that he was stroking himself. She pictured his thick cock glistening with precome. She imagined taking him into her mouth, her tongue exploring his hot, rigid shaft. Releasing him and lying back, inviting him to take her shaved pussy. She could almost feel him entering her. Her fingers plunging inside her again and again, until she gasped and climaxed.

<Adam> I made a mess. Thanks a lot.

She grinned. And looked at her own sticky fingers.

<Kate> You're welcome. Now go back to sleep.

But she couldn't. Sex with Mike had been nice. Sex with Adam, even at a distance, was explosive. Part of it was circumstance. Mike was her husband. They'd been married 12 years. Adam was her adulterous lover. She was cheating, unfaithful. Breaking her marriage vows. Behaving like a slut. Even thinking those words gave her a thrill.

It was more than that, though. Adam was visual and vocal. He devoured her with his eyes. She thought of how he'd taken her in front of the mirror. And of all the dirty talk they'd shared. Mike had loved her shaved pussy. He was harder than usual, had come faster than usual, but he was so demure compared to Adam. Mike would never tell her she had a pretty pussy or express how much he wanted to fuck her. At this point, it was probably too late to add that into the mix.

Adam was novel, but he was also surprising and exciting. She thought of all the things she'd done with him. Making out in public, getting eaten out standing up, dirty talk, sex in front of a mirror, sexting, giving her panties to Mike, Skype sex, shaving.... Had it only been one night together and a little more than a week of e-sex? So hot already, and what would come next?

She couldn't help herself. She reached down and again began exploring her swollen, tender sex. She knew Adam was thinking about her, thinking about what he'd do to her if he got the chance. It was intoxicating and frightening and irresistible all at the same time.

Mike was cycling emotionally. Kate could see it in his eyes. She was making him bipolar, except instead of wavering between mania and depression, he was pinballing between arousal and anxiety. Last night, in bed, he'd been excited to find her shaved. Tonight, he had again broken out the bottle of bourbon and was again looking for answers. She found him sitting at the kitchen table.

Kate felt sorry for him, but also wickedly amused.

"So you don't like that I shaved my, um privates?"

She knew she wasn't that sexy in her flannel PJs, but he blushed just the same. "I... I didn't say that. I just...."

"You don't understand why."

He nodded.

“Why didn’t you ask last night then?”

“I don’t know.”

“Thinking with the little head rather than the big head maybe?”

“Maybe. Look, Kate, I’m just a little confused.”

“Maybe I did it just to please you,” she said.

“Did you?”

She shrugged. “Or maybe I heard Dave joke about how Shell should ‘shave the kitty’ and I thought it might be fun.... Especially if he were somehow to find out.”

Mike’s eyes went wide. He swallowed loudly. “Find out?”

“Maybe I mentioned it to Shell when I knew he could overhear?”

“Kate, what’s with all the maybes? Is this all a game?”

He couldn’t resist following her hand as it drifted down to her lower belly. “This was real, wasn’t it?”

“Yes, so what—”

Kate cut him off, feeling mischievous, “Or maybe I’m sexting with the hunky ex-boyfriend I hooked up with in Cleveland, and I did it for him.”

It was a reckless thing to say. Crazy. But it made her heart race and her pussy flutter. It pushed Mike’s buttons as well. He reddened and his left eye twitched.

“You’re making that up,” Mike said firmly. “You’re making all of it up.”

Kate grabbed a rocks glass from the cabinet and poured herself a taste. She sat down across from her husband and took a sip.

She smiled. “The man at the bar was John. He was about 5’11”, probably in his late 40s. He had a shaved head and a thick, salt and pepper goatee. He was wearing khakis and pale blue button-down with the sleeves rolled up. He was fit, with muscular corded forearms. And confident. He noticed my wedding ring and commented upon it. He asked if we had an open relationship, and if so whether you had to give permission or whether I was free to select my own lovers.”

He jolted at the last word. Kate paused, knowing Mike wouldn’t be able to resist validating her story.

“What did you say?” he asked.

She took another sip of Bourbon, both to hide her grin and to drag things out a bit. Why was it so fun being a manipulative bitch?

“I told him, I make love to whomever I want.” She took another sip. “I should have said fuck. Fuck whomever I want. That would have been more amusing.”

Mike gasped. “But you know... you know you can’t.”

“Shouldn’t,” she corrected.

“Don’t.”

She shrugged. “Not yet at least.” A lie. She didn’t feel good about that. She was trying to avoid those, even if her defense was legalistic.

“What’s gotten into you?”

Adam’s big cock. “I think you put it into my head.”

He shook his head. “I didn’t. I didn’t mean to.”

He took a swig of bourbon.

“Yes, you did. You admitted to it. You thought it might loosen me up.”

“I meant flirting.”

“And do you still feel that way?”

“No, I—”

She cut him off. “Mike, stop. Just slow down for a minute. I know I’ve been messing with you, and to be honest... it’s fun. I don’t know why but getting you all worked up is amusing. You’re so placid usually that... I just like seeing you a little ruffled. And I know that has made it complicated for us to talk, but we do need to talk.”

He sighed. “It’s hard.”

She raised an eyebrow. “What is?”

He groaned. She laughed. The tension seemed to drain from the room. He smiled and refilled their glasses.

“Okay... so... you say you like to see me a little ruffled? Well, I guess I like to think of you as a little wild.”

“Yeah?”

“Yeah.”

“And this is because I’ve been pissy around the house?”

“A little... but... there’s also something else... something new,” he said cryptically.

“Yeah?” she asked, curious.

He took another swig of bourbon. “I need to be a little drunk to say this.”

She laughed to cover her growing excitement. She thought about how Jenna’s sugar daddy was turned on that she had a fuck buddy. Was it possible that Mike might actually be the same way? That he might be happy to learn she had a lover?

“That’s quite the buildup,” Kate said.

He took a deep breath. “I used to worry you’d cheat on me.”

“Mike, I—”

He put his hand up to stop her.

“The way guys look at you.”

“I don’t.”

She hadn’t. Not until recently. And even now, Adam’s compliments seemed so over the top... if he didn’t back it up with pictorial evidence, she still wasn’t sure she’d believe him.

He rolled his eyes. “I know you don’t. And I liked that. I hate to say it, but it was comforting that you didn’t seem to get it. That you think you’re a nerd. Or a plain Jane. Or just a mom, whatever that means. But guys do look at you... and they like what they see.”

Kate blushed. It was an uncomfortable conversation. She couldn’t help it. When she looked in the mirror....

“And now?” she asked.

He shrugged. “I guess.... I guess I’m not as afraid of losing you. I don’t want to make it seem like I take you for granted... though maybe I do. I mean, that’s what happens over the years unfortunately. Familiarity breeds complacency.”

“It can,” Kate replied. “And I know I take you for granted too, and—”

He stopped her again. “I need to finish. Okay?”

She nodded.

“Anyway... those fears... they’re not really fears anymore. I can’t explain it. It makes me queasy. I don’t want you to cheat on me. I don’t. But the thought of another man looking at you is... sorta... hot.”

Kate smirked. “Just looking?”

He blushed. “I like the idea of you being tempted by another man.”

She raised an eyebrow. “I am sometimes tempted.”

He let out a low groan. She laughed.

He took another gulp of Bourbon.

“I sometimes think of you with other men.”

“Yeah?”

Kate tried not to seem overeager. It was hard, because it was so enticing. She knew that a month ago, these revelations would leave her feeling sick. As if he didn’t love her enough to be blind with jealousy. And in truth, it still stung. How could he even think that? But at the same time, it gave her a rush. She shifted in her seat, her pussy demanding attention.

“Yeah.”

“So, if I flirt with other men?”

He gulped. “It’s hot.”

Her pussy throbbed, hot and wet, though that was surely her imagination.

“I know you wouldn’t,” he added quickly. “That’s what makes it safe.”

She smiled to hide her disappointment. Then it struck her.

“Except you know it isn’t completely safe.”

He reddened again, and a vein pulsed on his temple.

“If it were,” she continued, “it wouldn’t be exciting.”

He didn't speak. She knew he couldn't.

"Because I'm only human. And if I'm talking to a sexy man, and maybe drinking a little wine, and he's making me laugh, I do get tempted."

She slid off her chair and crawled beneath the table, reappearing between her husband's legs.

"Kate..."

She ran her hands along his inner thighs, feeling him tremble with excitement. There was a wet spot of precum at his crotch. She ran her hand along his hard bulge. He moaned urgently. No time for subtlety. She worked open his pants, remembering how she'd done the same for Adam. His prick popped out, red and slick.

"Oh God," he gasped.

She didn't hesitate. She took his cock deep into her mouth.

"Oh no," he moaned.

She felt his come spurt into her mouth. He tried to push her away, but she held on tight, and gulped his slimy, bitter load. He pulsed again and again. Kate couldn't believe how much he had, and she couldn't believe she was swallowing his come. She hadn't done that since a drunken hookup back in college.

"I'm sorry. I'm sorry."

She let his prick slide from her mouth.

"What do you think I fantasize about when I get tempted?" she teased.

"Oh God," he groaned.

She felt his cock twitch, and then he was jerking her up from beneath the table. It was aggressive and angry. He was wild-eyed and for a moment, Kate felt a surge of panic. Then he dropped to his knees and yanked down her pajama bottoms. He stared at her shaved pussy. She knew she was unmistakably aroused. She blushed with embarrassment at being so exposed.

He attacked her with his mouth. He grabbed her ass and dug his fingers roughly into her cheeks. He devoured her like a wild animal. He lapped at her juices with his tongue and sucked her clit hard into his mouth. She gasped at the ferocity of it. It was too much, too much. She tried to push him away, but he was too strong, too hungry, and then suddenly it was just right.

She opened her mouth in a silent scream, her body shuddering, and then melting into his arms.

They sat side-by-side gasping. Kate clapped her husband on the thigh.

“I’m going to flirt with men more often.”

He stiffened, but then pulled her into a hug.

“Just don’t get too tempted.”

“Well, that’s the problem, Honey. You don’t know it is too much until it is too late.”

Chapter Eleven

Kate groaned as she read the email. Daylong client meeting in New York scheduled for Friday. It would make for a long day whether she drove, went by train, or flew.

Jenna popped her head in. “You summoned to New York too?”

“Yup. Want to drive together?”

At least Jenna would be entertaining, though Kate worried that five hours in the car with the younger woman might lead to some unexpected disclosures.

“Sure. But I probably won’t be coming back that night.”

“What are you doing?”

Jenna shrugged. “Who knows? But New York is a big town with a lot of hot and rich guys.”

Kate laughed. “So, you’re just going to hook up with a stranger?”

“You should try it, especially now that you know that Mike’s into it.”

“He isn’t.”

Jenna smirked. “Of course not. Anyway, everybody is a stranger at first. By the time we’re ready to hook up, we’re old friends.”

“And by that, you mean drunk?”

Jenna made a claw gesture with her hand. “Meow.”

Kate laughed and Jenna scooted away. But it got Kate thinking. It would be a long day, and maybe it would just be better to spend the night in the city. Especially if....

She pulled out her phone and sent a text.

<Kate> I'm going to be in New York Friday for some meetings and I was thinking of spending the night.

She waited anxiously for a reply, unable to work until it did. Finally, her phone buzzed.

<Adam> And you'd like some company?

<Kate> Maybe.

<Adam> Mmmm. Dirty girl.

<Kate> I didn't say you'd get any action.

<Adam> I'll take my chances.

Kate smiled goofily as his texts arrived. She was infatuated with him and how he made her feel. But it was more than that. Just seeing his name on her screen filled her with a sense of physical longing. She wanted to see his eyes as he looked her over. Feel his hands all over her body. Experience again his thick manhood inside her. Thinking about Adam made her lightheaded and shaky, her breasts and pussy swollen and sensitive with excitement.

And also a rush of guilt. Cleveland hadn't been planned. It had just happened. It was wrong, but it was spontaneous not premeditated. The communications since were virtual not real. This was different. She was making plans to meet with her lover, and there was no way to rationalize it as anything other than an affair. Still, she suspected that Mike was not being completely honest about his real fantasies about her. As much as he might say he didn't really want her to be with another man, he couldn't disguise his reactions. When he discovered she was shaved, it had been a turn-on, of course, but they'd still had conventional married sex. When she teased him about not being able to resist temptation, he turned into an animal, coming in her mouth and then eating her alive. It was night and day.

"I'm really doing him a favor," she whispered to herself, trying it out.

She laughed. At herself. At the absurdity of it. At her desperate rationalizations. The truth was, when she thought of Adam and read his texts, when she felt herself getting warm and silly, felt her pussy twitch and her panties moisten, Mike was the furthest thing from her mind. She thought only of her lover and what he'd do to her. It would be great if somehow Mike liked it and approved. But Kate knew it didn't really matter. Even if Mike couldn't abide the thought, she'd still find a way to be with Adam. She was dishonest and twisted and maybe even a little evil, but in a strange way that made it all even hotter.

While doing laundry, Kate broached the trip with her husband.

"I need to go to New York Friday. Project meeting with Bessemer."

Mike groaned. "Ugh. One of those all-day things? You going to fly?"

"I was thinking of driving down. Jenna's going too."

"You sure you want to drive? Last time you didn't make it back until like 11:00."

"Um, I was thinking of maybe staying over. You know, sleeping in, maybe going for a run in the park, then coming back Saturday."

He stopped folding a shirt mid-way. "Jenna too?"

Kate shrugged. “She’s a big girl. She can train back if she wants. But I think she’s planning to stay too.”

He dropped the shirt back into the pile. “So... wait... you and Jenna are going to spend the evening together in New York?”

Kate laughed. Mike had heard all about Jenna and her casual approach to sex, and Kate knew her husband sometimes fantasized about her co-worker.

“No. I didn’t mean it that way. Like she and I are going to go out and pick up dudes.... I mean, unless you want us to.”

He blushed.

“Or were you worried that maybe... Jenna and I would... spend the night... together?”

This time he laughed. “Oh please, I’d pay to see that!”

Despite his enthusiastic tone, it was pretty obvious that this idea didn’t have anywhere near the same emotional resonance as did the idea of her flirting with other men. No doubt as a straight man, he’d enjoy watching her and Jenna get it on, but she doubted it was the kind of thing that would make him wild.

“I don’t doubt you would. And that might be enough for Jenna. She is a material girl. But I’d have to be really drunk and horny to even consider it.”

“You want me to pay for the booze too?”

Kate laughed. “Getting drunk is the easy part.”

He realized where she was going and gulped. “Kate....”

“You started it,” she said. “I was just talking about sleeping in. You’re the one whose mind went right into the gutter. So, anyway, how’s this for a scenario: Jenna and I meet a couple of cute guys. They buy us drinks. Make us laugh. We have a good time. We’re getting turned on—”

“Kate—” he interrupted.

“But—” she interrupted back. “But, nothing happens with the guys. Jenna and I, now horny and drunk go back to my room and....”

“And what?” he asked hungrily.

Kate shrugged. “Experiment? Though I suspect Jenna has some experience in this as in most things.”

He was back into it. “Will there be pictures?”

“Maybe. If we’re not too carried away.”

He picked up the shirt and resumed folding. “I have no problem with this.”

Kate pulled a sheet out of the dryer and tossed one end to her husband. They stretched it out and began folding.

“But as we talked about the other day, you never know how these things will turn out. Maybe I’ll find out that I love....” She agonized over the next word. Pussy. No, too much. Girls. No, too little. “The feel of a woman’s naked body.”

They folded the sheet again. Kate noticed the bulge in her husband’s pants.

“I can live with that.”

Kate grinned. “I bet. But there are other dangers. I mean, who’s to say that once drunk and horny, we’ll be able to resist the cute guys? Jenna certainly does not have a track record of resisting.”

“How about you?” Mike asked.

“I’m only human.”

“Are you trying to tell me something?” Mike asked. His tone was flirtatious, not serious, and Kate knew he had no idea how close he was.

“Is that a hopeful tone in your voice?”

He shook his head and stepped close to take her end of the sheet. He gave her a quick kiss before backing away. “I know your game.”

“My game?” Kate chortled.

He nodded. “Your game. The whole, making me think you’re having an affair game.”

“Why would I do that?”

“Because you think it turns me on.”

“It does.”

They each reached into the dryer. He pulled out a pair of kids’ pants. She grabbed a towel.

“A little,” Mike admitted.

“Why?”

He tossed Jeremy’s jeans into a clothes basket.

“I don’t know.”

She placed her own folded towel into a different basket. She could tell he was holding back.

“I think you do.”

He grabbed one of Becky’s sweatshirts from the dryer. It was inside out and fixing that gave him an excuse to look away as he spoke.

“You’re sexy... and... you’re mine... but... you’re not... because... I... don’t... own you. And....”

She waited for him to continue, but he had run out of steam.

“So,” she said, “it turns you on because if other men are interested it... means you’re a stud? Because you... get... me? Or...” she needed to tread carefully here, “you actually are turned on by the possibility that you might lose me?”

“I don’t want to lose you.”

“That’s not what I said.”

He sighed. “I don’t know. I really don’t. When you talk about flirting with other men, I’m all over the map. Jealous. Angry. Excited. I don’t want anything to happen, but I also don’t want not anything to happen.”

Kate laughed. “Don’t want not anything? Is that even English?”

He shook his head. “I don’t know.”

Time to let him off the hook. “Anyway, assuming that the New York trip results neither in an orgy with me and Jenna and a bunch of dudes nor with Jenna and I exploring the sapphic arts, would you be okay with me spending the night?”

“Sure.... No. Wait. Yes to the lesbo stuff, no to the orgy.”

“You sure are complicated. Flirting with men, okay. Lesbian sex, okay. Actually, more than okay. Encouraged.” He nodded. “Orgies, out.”

“Lesbian orgies are okay,” he clarified.

“I’ll keep that in mind.”

Sex that night was good. Better than usual, if lacking the desperate intensity that characterized those spontaneous explosions she triggered by talking about his fantasy. It was clear, though, that it was in the back of his mind. His caresses were a bit firmer, his thrusts a little harder, his tongue a little more insistent. But the biggest thing was that they were having sex at all. During the week and a half since her return from Cleveland they'd had as much sex as in the previous three months, and that didn't even count all the times she'd jilled off by herself.

Well, not always by herself....

After Mike fell asleep, Kate again went downstairs and curled up on the leather armchair, phone in hand.

<Kate> You up?

<Adam> When you text me late at night, is it because your husband didn't want to bang? Or because he left you unsatisfied?

<Kate> Ha. There's another explanation. But you sound jealous.

<Adam> I am jealous. I'd love to have your naked body pressed against mine every night.

<Kate> You know that can't happen.

<Adam> I know. But I am jealous. Wouldn't you be disappointed if I wasn't?

<Kate> So then, why do you encourage me to do things to turn him on?

<Adam> I told you. It makes me feel less guilty about being involved with a married woman. And I like thinking of you having sex, even if it is with another man. So, you didn't answer my question.

<Kate> We had sex. And I was satisfied.

<Adam> So why our late-night texting.

<Kate> Maybe I just want more.

<Adam> What's he like?

<Kate> Mike?

<Adam> No. The fucking Easter Bunny.

<Kate> Ha ha. Why does it matter?

<Adam> I'm curious. I want to know what he does for you, and what he doesn't.

<Kate> I'm not sure that's a good idea.

<Adam> Why not? We're past one-night stand territory. We're making plans to see each other again. You're not having second thoughts?

Second, third, fourth... tenth thoughts. But no matter how many times she went over it in her head, she always came back to the same conclusion. She wanted to see Adam again. More than that, she needed to see him, to see if that night in Cleveland had just been an unrepeatable fluke. Serendipitous but sui generis. Because if it wasn't. If it was a real connection, kismet, then she knew she wouldn't be able to deny it.

<Adam> Kate?

<Kate> Second thoughts? Of course. But I want to see you. And you're right. We do need to share more than just dirty pics. You first. Are you involved with anyone else?

<Adam> Of course not. What kind of a cheating slut do you think I am? Oh wait....

Kate grinned despite the lameness of the joke.

<Kate> Why not?

<Adam> Why am I not in a relationship? Long story. I promise I'll tell you, but hard to do by text.

She was curious but didn't want to press it. In truth, she didn't want to hear about his other relationships. It was enough for her that he wasn't in one. She thought about her own husband and what to say about him.

<Kate> Mike's sweet and thoughtful. And sometimes frustrating and forgetful. He's good with the kids, and his idea of romance is... well... I'm not sure I remember.

<Adam> And in bed?

<Kate> About the same. We satisfy each other. It's routine.... Except a bit recently, when I've teased him about me flirting with other men. That gets him going... sometimes too much so.

<Adam> How big is he?

Kate laughed.

<Kate> Oh God, really?

<Adam> Yeah.

<Kate> Average, I guess. Fine. No complaints.

She paused for a second.

<Kate> Not as big as you. Do you like that?

<Adam> Of course. Who wouldn't want to be cast in the role of the big-dicked stud who takes advantage of the hot, married, MILF?

She giggled.

<Kate> You're an idiot.

<Adam> I miss you. I want to put my hands all over your naked body. I want to suck your nipples until they're ready to explode. I want to finger your pussy until your juices are running down your thigh.

Kate sighed, and read those short sentences again and again, as she slowly rubbed her clit.

<Kate> I want to suck your cock deep into my mouth. I want to feel the soft head against my throat. I want to play with your balls. I want to taste you. All of you. And then I want you inside me. Hard, urgent. Turning me inside out. Making me scream.

She gasped. The words. Her hand. It was all so real all of a sudden. She squirmed in the chair. Felt sweat dripping between her heaving breasts.

It was a while before he replied. She knew he was reading her words. Stroking his gorgeous, thick prick.

<Adam> You make me nuts.

<Kate> Same. See you Friday.

<Adam> I can't wait.

She knew what he meant. Knew that even as she began slowly teasing her pussy again, he too was rubbing his prick.

Chapter Twelve

The pieces came together slowly, and each one created a new frisson of excitement.

She confirmed the work meeting location, near Rockefeller center. She thought of skating hand-in-hand with Adam. Laughing and being silly. Falling and being caught up in his strong grip. Silly. A romantic, schoolgirl fantasy, but it left her feeling warm and happy.

Kate booked herself into the nearby St. Regis. Pricey, but an elegant treat, the sort of classy midtown hotel that would make an ideal setting for an affair... no, an assignation. Doormen in livery, ornate chandeliers, polished mahogany, thick carpets, soft towels, and gilded fixtures. And most of all, overstuffed beds with abundant pillows, perfect for naked frolics. She flipped through the images on their webpage, imagining herself luxuriating as she waited for her lover to appear.

He had to work, so he'd be arriving late, his flight landing at Newark at 8:12pm. Kate knew Jenna would drag her to a happy hour, and that she'd return to the hotel buzzed with wine and expectancy. She'd have time to take a long bath, and shave... everywhere. Time to primp in front of the mirror, naked, or maybe in a loosely tied bathrobe.

She wanted to look good for him. More than good. Irresistible. He'd been attracted to her frumpy and annoyed the last time, but this time she really wanted to make an impression. That meant something new. Something red. Something sexy.

Trying on dresses at lunchtime, she felt overexposed. The kind of dresses she was considering didn't belong in daylight. She tried a halter dress first. It was loose at the hips, which made her feel less self-conscious, but she could tell it would be difficult to keep her boobs from spilling out the sides. She had no doubt it would keep Adam's attention, but the message it sent was loose rather than sultry. She next essayed a slinky, short bandage dress, with a diamond cut-out at the chest. It made her look like an hourglass, with a big show of cleavage in the center. It was hot, and Adam would love it. But so would every other man, at least some of whom would likely approach and offer her money for her time. In truth, it made her look like an escort. That was an oddly exciting thought, but too much for now.

Finally, she tried on a simple, short sleeve bodycon dress. Cocktail length, it was classy, with a 1940s vintage look at the shoulder, but a sleeker, more modern styling at the hips. She liked the generous expanse of upper chest it left exposed, and she imagined adding her heavy gold cord necklace. It was sexy, too, she could adjust her bra to make her cleavage more or less prominent. She could let it ride up a bit to show off a little inner thigh, or smooth it down to appear more demure. Adam would love her in it and be hungry to take it off as well.

Over the previous week, Mike had been more attentive, but the pressures of work, kids, and home were unrelenting, and it was easy to fall back into routine. Kate was thankful in a way. A less distracted husband would surely have noticed something was up. She caught herself periodically glancing at her phone, smiling goofily at the thought of one of Adam's jokes or, just as often, one of his steamy pictures. They had agreed to keep communication limited, to let anticipation build, and it worked. The less she heard from her lover, the more she thought of him. And when she did, she smiled at the air. Sliding her hands across her body, she imagined and reimagined their reunion. Would he sweep her into his arms and kiss her passionately? Would they play it cool and coy, flirting and teasing?

She felt bad for Mike. He didn't deserve to have a cheating slut for a wife. The guilt was part of a swirl of emotion, always present, but also always overwhelmed by excitement, anticipation, and lust. What's more, the guilt was itself part of the exhilaration. Being bad was sexy. She'd never really been bad before. Catty surely. Sometimes a little haughty. A touch slutty even, though is there any college girl who hasn't gotten a little handsy on a dance floor, given out a casual BJ or two, and had some regrettable one-night stands? But never bad. She'd never cheated on a boyfriend. Never kissed someone else while in a relationship. Never even given her number to another man when she was dating someone. She'd always been strictly monogamous.

But cheating was intoxicating. The legalistic parsing, no, I didn't hook up with an old-flame, was bracing. Hiding her plans, electrifying. A misstep would be disastrous. She had to be perpetually cautious and on-guard, which meant that she had to be constantly aware of what she was doing and going to do.

On Thursday night, she and Mike made love. Mike was gentle and tender and considerate, as usual. Kate was completely absent. When he touched her breasts, she imagined Adam sucking hard on nipples. When he caressed her ass, she thought of her other man mauling her cheeks. When her husband entered her, she fantasized about fucking her lover.

Mike was pleased with himself. His wife had been hot and wet and came hard. He finished and rolled over. She rested her head on his chest as she usually did.

"That should hold you," he teased.

Kate bit her lip. She was thinking of Adam, and she knew that once Mike fell asleep, she'd get up and curl up in the armchair, and rub her slutty, cheating pussy until she came again and again anticipating her lover's touch.

Kate was sleepy despite the oversized cup of coffee in the cupholder when she picked up Jenna at 5:30am Friday morning. Jenna looked even sleepier.

"Rough night?" Kate asked.

"No rougher than usual. Miguel came over. We banged a couple of times. I'm just not a morning person."

“And you’re still thinking about partying in the city tonight?”

“Hells yeah. Miguel is hung like a horse and fucks like an animal, but—”

“A horse is an animal,” Kate noted.

“But...” Jenna continued, “I’ve been fucking him for like six months, and I’m definitely in the mood for some new cock. You should try it.”

Kate rolled her eyes and took a sip of coffee.

Jenna laughed. “Well at least you’re not denying it anymore. No more, I’m married. Good for you. Might as well tear it up while guys are still interested in hitting it.”

“Tear it up?”

“Uh huh. Tear up that pussy.”

“Jesus, Jenna, you’re in rare form today. Are you going to be like this for the next two hours?”

“Probably. Next twelve actually. If you see me on my phone during the day, I’ll be working Tinder like a fiend. Hope to have some dick pics to compare before making happy hour plans.” She looked over at Kate. “I hope you brought something hotter to wear for tonight.”

Kate blushed, thinking about her red dress. Then she looked over at Jenna who was ostensibly dressed conservatively but wearing a black skirt and silver sweater that showed off every curve. In her maroon slacks and blazer, Kate would certainly get less attention. Which was fine. She didn’t need scrutiny.

“Who says I’m going out?”

“You will when I show you the pics I get.”

“You think that will tempt me?”

Jenna shrugged. “It should. There is nothing like the feel of a big, new cock.”

Kate shivered involuntarily.

“See, you know it,” Jenna laughed.

“I just had a chill.”

“Look, I swear I won’t tell,” Jenna insisted.

“Won’t tell what?”

“That you’d like a little taste on the side.”

“Jenna, seriously—”

“That’s your problem. You’re too serious. Anyway, you’re going to need a wingwoman. My guess is that you’re out of practice.”

“Practice for what?”

“Picking up dudes. But we go out together, and I guarantee by midnight you’ll be enjoying a big, hard dick in your married pussy.”

Kate chortled. Unless Adam’s flight was delayed, it would be well before midnight, even with a generous allotment of flirting and teasing.

“What?” Jenna asked.

“What makes you think I need your help?”

“Ooooh,” Jenna rubbed her hands together. “Now we’re getting somewhere. So, tell, tell.”

“Nothing to tell. Just saying. Guys hit on me.”

“Hmmm. No. There’s something else.”

Kate glanced over to see Jenna observing her closely.

“You’re creeping me out,” Kate said.

“You just keep driving Missy. Something’s different about you recently. I walk by your office and see you smiling to yourself. And those questions about Todd and Miguel—”

“I didn’t ask anything. That was just more of you oversharing.”

“Shush, you. No more deflections. And now planning to spend a night alone in the big city. At the St. Regis of all places.”

She was wearing Kate down. “It seemed nice,” she said lamely.

“And romantic,” Jenna retorted. “You are totally having an affair or thinking about one. But you’re definitely meeting another man.”

“I am not.”

“Soooo... you wouldn’t mind if I hang with you tonight?”

Kate felt a rush of panic. She tried to answer lightly. “Sure. If you don’t mind watching me read a book over a quiet dinner, and then going to bed early.”

Jenna laughed. “You did not book a room in Midtown to have a quiet evening alone. Jeez. How dumb do you think I am?”

Kate groaned. “Look, it’s not what you think.”

“Ah ha!” Jenna exclaimed triumphantly. “Spill it.”

Kate took a deep breath. She didn’t know where to start or end. Jenna, sensing victory, let her twist in the wind.

Another sigh. Then: “I met a man. It wasn’t anything planned. It... just happened.” To her surprise, Kate felt relieved. She continued, “Remember when I went to Cleveland a few weeks ago?”

Kate saw Jenna nod out of the corner of her eye.

“I wasn’t looking for anything. He was goofy. I don’t know, he just grew on me. I didn’t have a hotel room anymore. It just... all the pieces fell into place.”

“And it was good?” Jenna asked.

Kate laughed. “Oh my God.”

Jenna giggled. “You’re lucky. In truth, a lot of hookups are pretty lame.”

“Not that lucky. I sort of wish it had been just a lame, forgettable hookup. Because now, it’s a problem, you know?”

“You’re meeting him tonight?”

Kate felt all syrupy thinking about it. “Yeah. He’s flying in.”

“Well. He must have had fun too.”

Kate felt a surge of warmth. She grinned. “I hope so.”

“Are you in love?” Jenna asked.

Kate shook her head, even though she wasn’t really sure. “No. I don’t think so. Infatuated maybe. But I like him. It’s not just the sex. I want to see his smile. Hear his silly jokes.”

There was a moment of silence, and then Jenna asked. “Does Mike know?”

Kate gasped. Her throat tightened. She was on the edge of a sob before she pulled it together.

“No. I think... I think he knows something is up, but I don’t think he can put his finger on it. I’ve... I’ve been playing with fire. He... he admitted it does turn him on to think of me flirting with other men.”

“That’s a start.”

“A start toward what?”

Jenna laughed. “Well, you know you can’t keep running around behind his back. Sooner or later he’ll find out. They always do. So if you want to keep seeing this guy, you’re going to need Mike to be on-board.”

Kate rolled her eyes. “Uh huh. Like that’s gonna happen.”

“See, and that’s why you need a friend like me. Because I guarantee you, if he’s admitting to a flirting fantasy, then he’s definitely going to be up for more if you play things right.”

“Oh, and what’s that mean?”

“Hmmm. Let me think on it. In the meantime, now that I know you’re taken care of, I still need to work on getting myself laid.”

Kate peeked over to see Jenna madly swiping left and right on Tinder. A little while ago, it would have struck Kate as desperate and reckless, but now who was she to speak?

Kate was well-aware that project management was not the most glamorous career, but she’d always found it extremely gratifying. The way timelines intersected, the sense of continual progress, the satisfaction of seeing a complex project, involving dozens or hundreds or more people, coming together over time. She knew she was largely a bookkeeper in all of this, but nevertheless, it made her feel like she was in charge, in control. A puppet master making all these different individuals dance to her tune.

The Bessemer project was a mid-sized, relatively simple one, an effort to integrate various financial products and cross-selling activities across offices. The project team was composed of about 20 people, and they met in a conference room with translucent walls, Aeron chairs, and a glass table. Modern, stylish, and completely soulless.

The simplicity of the project was a boon in this case, because it meant that Kate was able to respond to the half-dozen queries that came her way during the day despite the fact that her head was definitely not in the game.

She worried about her revelation to Jenna, who was even now sitting prettily in the back of the room, still working Tinder and periodically fending off flirtatious interactions from the young, and not so young, men in the room. It had been good to confide in someone, but the problem with Jenna was that she was loose-lipped. Kate would need to reinforce the importance of discretion.

Then there was Mike. Jenna's confident assertions aside, Kate was pretty sure he wouldn't be cool with her having a lover... and it wouldn't make it hot either, at least not in the way she might hope. It was interesting that he had some sort of fantasies about her and other men, but he'd made it clear that these were fantasies, not desires, and she had no reason to believe otherwise.

And finally, there was Adam, with whom she'd had fun, but really barely knew. In her rational mind, she knew tonight could be a disaster. In her heart... well, maybe a little lower than that... she hoped it wouldn't be, that somehow that magic spark from Cleveland, rekindled electronically, would still be able to start an exciting fire once they reunited. In truth, she didn't know what she really wanted. If it was a bust, it would spare her the drama and near-certain heartbreak of dealing with Mike, but she didn't want it to be a bust.

Kate glanced over at Jenna. She wished she had some of her sangfroid. Jenna bounced from man to man, from bed to bed, taking from each interaction what she wanted. Gifts from Todd. Orgasms from Miguel. Some weird, perverse satisfaction from tormenting Brent, her ex. Jenna was a selfish bitch, of course, but she wasn't preying on innocents. They were getting something out of it too. But the key for Jenna was that she wasn't worried about making everything all right for everyone. She was out for herself. At the moment, Kate found that enviable.

They were served lunch in the conference room. After a break, a nice little buffet appeared, with roasted chicken and a surprisingly tangy pasta salad. Kate sat down with a plate and was immediately joined by a young executive she'd earlier noticed eying her from across the room.

"Hi, Kate, is it?" he held out his hand. "I'm Lucas."

She suppressed a sigh. Business was business. And even though this guy was going to try to get into her pants, as long as he wasn't too overt about it, she would tolerate it. He wasn't a bad looking guy. Mid-30s, nicely, though conservatively, dressed in a dark blue suit with a patterned red and blue tie, with horn rimmed, tortoise shell glasses. A delicate mouth and hazel eyes.

She shook his hand.

"We really appreciate you guys coming down for the progress review."

Kate smiled. "Just want to make sure everything goes smoothly."

"Did you fly?"

"Drove."

"Ouch. Going to leave after rush hour?"

Here it comes. "Not sure yet. I have some friends in town and might just crash on their sofa."

"Well, if you'd like to see the town, I'd be happy to show you around."

Kate forced a smile, bringing her left hand up to her chin as nonchalantly as possible. "Thanks. But like I say, I'll be meeting up with some friends."

He smiled, obviously a little put out. It was hard to get in his head. Did he think that because she was a contractor, she was required to socialize with him? Or maybe that being a country-bumpkin from Connecticut she should be grateful for the attention, despite being married?

She excused herself to get a glass of iced tea and was relieved to see him move away from her place before she could return. Jenna joined her.

“Smooth with the ring,” Jenna said. Then lower, “Though we both know that doesn’t really matter.”

Kate blushed. “Please, no,” she whispered.

Jenna laughed. “I’m just teasing. Anyway, these guys don’t care about anything like that. They’re New York bankers. You could have your hubby’s name tattooed on your forehead and all they’d notice is your boobs.”

Kate unconsciously pulled her blazer tighter.

“So,” Jenna continued, “I’ve been thinking about your problem.”

“Jenna, can we please not talk about this here?”

Jenna rolled her eyes. “Okay, whatevs. Over beers after. But I have a couple of dates lined up, so it’ll need to be quick.”

“A couple?”

“Yeah. With Tinder you need to hedge your bets.”

Kate laughed. Jenna could be infuriating, but she was endlessly entertaining. And in truth, given her crazy lovelife, maybe Jenna was the best person to turn to for advice.

“So you make plans with more than one guy?”

Jenna shrugged as if this were perfectly normal. “Sure. I’ll probably shoot for three or four tonight. Like at seven, eight, nine, and ten.”

“So, what if you like the first guy?”

“Well... if I really like him, I might blow off the other guys. Or, I might go ahead and see if I can trade up, and if I can’t arrange to meet him again later.”

“Guys put up with that?”

“Guys will put up with about anything if they think you’ll put out.”

“So, you’ll actually tell them you’re meeting another guy?”

Jenna laughed. “Sometimes. Depends on whether I think it’ll be fun.” She leaned in conspiratorially. “Most guys don’t even mind if you hook up with another guy before meeting up with them. Keep that in mind for Mike.” She winked.

Kate pushed Jenna away. “Leave me alone, Silly.”

It got in her head though. What a deliciously lewd thought. Kate pictured tomorrow morning. Checkout time approaching, but unable to resist. Already showered and dressed, but again sitting in Adam’s lap, panties pulled to the side, his big prick in her already very sore pussy. Wet kisses. His hands squeezing her ass. Grinding against him. Coming lightheaded, his cock pulsing inside her. Hurried rearrangement, a sad goodbye. The long ride home, feeling his come leaking into her panties. Teasing Mike. Him half-aware, mostly clueless, reclaiming her. Her husband’s prick lubricated by her lover’s seed.

As the afternoon session began, Kate found it difficult to keep lusty visions out of her mind. There she was on her knees before a naked Adam. Then Jenna bouncing happily from one Internet hook up to another. She and Adam arm-in-arm in Central Park. Mike, in bed alone, imagining, knowing really, though not admitting it, that she was with another man, stroking himself in embarrassed excitement.

Her body was all tingly, her clothes almost unbearable, particularly where they touched her erogenous zones. Her throat, her breasts, her thighs, her increasingly damp pussy. She had an urge to just tear them all off and run naked through the streets. Or maybe to find a comfortable place to sit, legs parted, and play with herself, making herself come again and again.

There were three Kates in the meeting. One was trying her best to remain focused, to be ready to answer questions that might come her way and keep track of project changes that she would be expected to manage. It was challenging, but she had enough experience that she was able to make do. Another was a schoolgirl, staring at the clock, wishing it to advance more rapidly, shocked at how slowly the seconds seemed to tick by. The third was the new Kate. Horny, prone to lurid fantasies, everyone and everything feeding visions of throbbing pricks, wet pussies, kisses, moans, gasps. Peeking at men's crotches, imagining their packages. Speculating about which of the women in the room was wearing outrageous lingerie. Who was planning to hook up with whom?

Quarter to five and the meeting finally broke up. In some ways that made things worse. There was no longer the distraction of work. She got corralled by Jenna into a group of people heading over to an Irish pub for happy hour.

Kate gamely flitted around for a while. Questions about kids and vacations. I'm so pleased the weather finally broke. I'm sick of snow. It was all a bit of a chore. The bar was loud and conversation was hard. Kate checked her phone. There was a message from Adam. Kate retreated with her white wine into a booth for a little quiet and privacy.

<Adam> Plane's on time. Can't wait to see you.

She began to type her response.

<Kate> Same here. Have a great flight.

She stared at the message. It was so... conventional. The sort of message she'd sent to Mike. She deleted it and tried again.

<Kate> I hope so. I'm so horny that if you're late, I might have to start without you... or with someone else.

She grinned at the phone and awaited his reply.

<Adam> Mmmm. Well, maybe I'll take my time getting there and see what kind of trouble you can get into.

Kate laughed. He may be a high school teacher who played with army men, but he was kinky, and she loved how adventurous he made her feel.

“Mind if I join you?”

It was Lucas. Fortunate timing for him. She gestured to the bench across the table. He slid in, setting his Guinness on the table.

“Do you really like that?”

He chuckled defensively. “You think I’m just drinking it as an affectation?”

She shrugged. “I can’t actually imagine another reason to drink it.”

He didn’t take the bait. Kate was disappointed. She’d hoped he might be at least a little entertaining.

“So, where are these friends you’re meeting up with?” he asked.

She decided to try again.

“Maybe I’m meeting up with them. Or maybe I haven’t met them yet.”

His eyes gleamed. “Which is it?”

Kate laughed. “Do you often hit on married women?”

“Only if they are as beautiful as you.”

She laughed. “Laying it on a little thick, don’t you think?”

“Not at all. Anyway, a lot of women wear a wedding band just for show.”

“Sort of like carrying around garlic to ward off vampires?”

“Something like that.”

“Well, I’m actually married.”

“And yet, here you are, out of town, having some drinks with a man in a bar.”

“Yes, that does happen sometimes,” Kate said dryly, enjoying her private amusement.

Jenna appeared out of nowhere and squeezed in beside Kate, jostling her out of the way.

“So, who’s this?” she asked.

Lucas’ face dropped. Kate swallowed back a chuckle. Poor guy. He’d obviously noticed Jenna at the meeting, and she hadn’t recognized him.

“Oh Jenna. You remember Lucas. He’s here with Bessemer.” Then to Lucas: “Jenna was a bit distracted today. You might have noticed her emailing back and forth on a crisis back at the home office.”

He smiled wanly. “Right. You did seem engaged.”

“So, how did that work out?” Kate asked Jenna.

Jenna smiled. “Crisis fixed. Got everything scheduled out just as I’d hoped.”

“What was the crisis?” Lucas asked.

“Personnel,” Jenna replied briskly. “Hard to find the right man for the job.”

“Or woman,” suggested Kate.

Jenna grinned. “Well, not this time, but I wouldn’t rule it out.” She finished off her drink

Kate wasn’t sure if she was more amused by the banter with Jenna or by the fact that Lucas was trying to gamely pretend like he wasn’t completely at sea.

“Would you like another round?” he asked.

Kate began to shake her head. But Jenna replied quickly. “Sure. Vodka cran for me.” She gestured at Kate.

“Chardonnay.”

Lucas nodded and went to the bar.

“You don’t think he’s going to roofie us, do you?” Jenna asked.

“I doubt it.”

Jenna shrugged. “So, I guess that’s not your mystery man.”

Kate shook her head. “You’re impossible. You really didn’t notice him in the meeting all day?”

“I was busy.” Jenna pulled out her phone and before Kate realized what her friend was going to do, she was looking at a picture of a very muscular Black man sporting an outrageously large erection. “I have him scheduled for a 10:00pm date, but if your guy doesn’t show, I’d be happy to set you up with him.”

“That’s, um, very generous. But I’m not even sure what I’d do with that thing.”

Kate finished her wine in a big gulp as she continued to stare at the man. He had muscles in places she didn’t know muscles existed. And that cock... what would that be like?

“Don’t worry about it. I’m sure he’s got plenty of experience corrupting innocent white girls.”

“That was a little racist, no?”

Jenna rolled her eyes. “Why don’t you ask him about that after he’s done turning your pussy inside-out?”

“I wouldn’t want to deny you the pleasure.”

“What are you two looking at?” Lucas said as he returned with the drinks.

“Oh nothing,” Jenna replied with a smirk. She put away her phone, but slowly enough that it seemed likely Lucas might have caught a glimpse. This left Kate feeling vaguely horrified, but also luridly amused.

Kate took a sip of her new wine.

“So do you guys get down to the city often?” he asked.

Jenna chuckled. “Oh come on, you can do better than that.”

“What do you mean?” he replied, sounding a bit wounded.

Kate cringed but couldn’t look away.

“Well, you’re obviously trying to pick one or both of us up. She’s married, but that’s not a real impediment.” Jenna shot Kate a rascally glance. “And I didn’t notice you all day, but then again, I’m easily distracted. But either way, you’ve got your work cut out for you. And what do you bring to the table... do you come here often?”

“Um... okay...” he sounded a little shaky, but Kate had to give him credit for not giving up right away. “So, how about... what do you guys like to do for fun?”

Kate groaned.

“Look at that. You made my friend groan.” Jenna was having fun. “What are you thinking? That just because you’re cute, a banker, and have funky glasses, we’re going to fall on your dick because you bought us a round of drinks? We may be rubes from Hartford, but it’s going to take more than that to get either one of us to go back to your studio in Brooklyn.”

“I live on the Upper West Side, actually. And it’s a one-bedroom.”

“Oh now we’re going to get a real estate lesson.” Jenna rose suddenly.

“Sorry guy, I have a date. Have fun.”

Lucas watched her leave in a mix of shock and obvious arousal.

“Is she always like that?” he asked.

“Pretty much. You want her number?”

Lucas swallowed hard. “Uh... yeah.”

Kate laughed. “You men are crazy. You know she’d eat you alive, but you’d still go for it because she’s hot.”

He nodded. “You’re right. It wouldn’t be worth it,” he said unconvinced.

Kate knew what he was thinking. That in addition to being hot, the fact that Jenna was half-insane was a plus. She could tell he was graphically imagining how wild she was in bed.

He cleared his throat. “Well, I know I’m not the most skilled pick-up artist, but I would like to take you out to dinner. Unless you also have a date,” he said with a smile.

“Actually, I do.”

“Oh, did your husband come down to join you?”

Kate finished off her wine.

“Husband? No. He’s actually still up in Hartford taking care of the kids. But what he doesn’t know, won’t hurt him, right?”

She stood and walked past him, trailing a finger over his shoulder as she went. Jenna wasn’t the only crazy bitch in the room.

Chapter Thirteen

Kate debated waiting for Adam to have dinner, but then it occurred to her that they might be too busy to eat. It gave her a warm, fuzzy feeling. She couldn't wait to be in his arms. To press her naked body against his. To feel him inside her. She checked her watch. Still 90 minutes until he landed.

As she walked toward the hotel, she noticed a sushi place on one of the side streets. Her stomach growled. She ducked inside and took a seat at the end of the sushi bar. She ordered a light meal and a beer. Her phone rang. It was Mike. As usual when either was out of town, the kids went first. Then shooed back off to the TV, the adults talked.

"So how was your day?" Mike asked predictably.

"Fine. You know. The usual. PowerPoints and lots of talk of direct-to-user training modules and contractor support agreements. You?"

"Document review. Deposition prep. The usual." He paused. "Do you think we're in a rut?"

Kate chuckled. "Work wise? Yeah, just a little. But look on the bright side. Only thirty more years until we can retire."

"Not just work."

Uh oh. "What do you mean?"

He sighed. "Just seems like maybe we could both do with a little excitement."

Kate perked up. "You mean excitement like the kind we've been batting around recently?"

“Maybe.”

“Well, a guy did try to pick up Jenna and me at happy hour.”

“Yeah?”

Did he sound hopeful?

“Good looking guy. Maybe a couple of years younger than us. Nice suit. Stylish glasses. Cool apartment on the Upper West Side.”

“You saw his apartment?”

Kate covered her mouth to mute her chuckle. “Maybe I’m there now. Naked in his bed.”

Mike sounded like he was choking on his own spit.

“You okay, Honey?” she asked.

“Kate... are you?”

“Is that the kind of excitement you’re talking about?”

“Oh God, Kate. I know you’re just messing with me, but....”

“But what?”

He sighed and Kate realized she’d missed the opportunity to challenge his assumption that she was just teasing him.

“But what?” she persisted. When he didn’t answer. She did for him. “It turns you on. And not just the flirting, but the idea of me being in another man’s bed.”

She shuddered. Playing with fire. And worse, because she was pretending the discussion was hypothetical, when she knew, and in fact was aflutter with anticipation as a result, that in just a couple of hours she would be naked, in bed, with another man, making love to him, feeling him inside her, gasping into his mouth, clawing at his back....

“The idea, maybe,” he answered pointedly.

“Maybe the reality would be even better.”

He gulped. “Was the man at happy hour that appealing?”

Kate laughed. “No. Sadly not. And after Jenna was done emasculating him, I couldn’t even stick around to work up a good story for you.”

Mike chuckled as well.

“But,” Kate continued. “The night is still young. And New York is the city that never sleeps.”

Now he was silent.

“Mike, you still there?”

“Yes.”

“Stay close to your phone.”

“Kate?”

“And... sweet dreams.”

She hung up before he could say anything more. She put her phone down on the counter and dipped a piece of Hamachi in the soy sauce before taking a bite. Mike could call back. Or he could text to clarify things. And if he didn’t, it meant he didn’t want to. That instead he wanted to spend the evening having sweet, and not so sweet, dreams about his precious wife, alone in the big city.

Kate finished off her yellowtail and took a sip of beer. It was all very interesting indeed.

Sunset in New York is bizarre. By the time the sun is ready to dip below the horizon, much of the city is already shrouded in deep shadows. But then at the cross-streets, there blooms a searing orange glow. Even at walking pace, it creates something of a disorienting strobe-light effect. At least it did for Kate. Although she was also conscious of the fact that she'd also had a few drinks, and that her mind was also hazy with lust.

Walking along the crowded streets, Kate felt disembodied. Ever since that night in Cleveland, there were times when she felt as if she were outside herself, not quite recognizing the woman she was observing.

The sensation continued as she checked into the St. Regis. Her luggage, dropped off with the concierge before the meeting, was already in her room. Also, on the bed was a beautifully wrapped gift, topped with a red rose. She stared at it for a moment, very conscious of the fact that she couldn't be sure who it was from, her husband or her lover? And that was a very strange sensation indeed.

She smelled the flower and set it aside, and then pulled out a heavy, cream-colored card from the matching envelope.

I hope you like these. I can't wait to see you tonight. --Adam

She smiled and felt warm inside. His handwriting was rounded and flowing, it felt playful and happy. Kate opened up the box and grinned. Sexy lingerie, a black mesh and satin bra with a matching thong. Such a typical gift from a man, but she was impressed that he'd gotten her sizes right. Size 5 panties and 34-D top. That was surprising. She thought of Adam, talking to the salesgirls, trying to describe Kate's body in order to get it right. He'd certainly been paying attention. She wasn't sure Mike would have done as well.

The room was just as she'd hoped. The centerpiece, a high, overstuffed king bed, with a richly embroidered green and gold bedspread. Two comfortable-looking armchairs by the window. A solid, wooden desk with a large mirror above it. The bathroom was luxurious as well, with a large jacuzzi tub, a separate toilet. She fingered the soft, thick towels and matching bathrobes.

Returning to the bedroom, Kate unpacked her bag and hung her dress to make sure it looked perfect. She stripped off her clothes, consciously shedding her old identity with each item she removed. She kicked off her shoes, digging her toes into the plush carpet, and she was no longer Kate the responsible professional. She slipped out of her blouse, and she was no longer Kate the project manager. She wiggled out of her pants, and she was no longer Kate the mom. She unhooked her bra, freeing her heavy breasts, and she was no longer Kate the wife. She shimmied out of her panties and looked at herself in the mirror. If she was no longer any of those things, what was she?

Naked, she padded around the room, luxuriating in the freedom of it. She opened the minibar and removed a half bottle of rosé champagne. She popped it open, and poured the pale, fizzy liquid into a flute. She brought it to her lips. The bubbles tickled her nose, and she giggled as she took a sip. She finished unpacking, bringing her toiletries into the bathroom, putting her clothes into a drawer. She tried on Adam's gift. They fit perfectly. Sexy without being trappy. Appropriate for this new Kate, alluring, but not trashy. Unfortunately, they wouldn't work for tonight. Her dress required a strapless bra, or none at all. She stripped off the bra and panties. She'd model them for Adam later.

Another sip of champagne, and she looked at herself again in the mirror. Blond hair, blue eyes, large breasts, shaved pussy. She wasn't a kid. Her stomach wasn't flat enough, her tits not perky enough, her hips too womanly. But even still, she saw herself for a moment through Adam's eyes.

"MILFy, MILFy, MILFy," she said softly to herself.

She drained her glass and went into the bathroom. She filled the tub with hot water and stepped into it. She fired up the jets and rested her head on a folded towel. So relaxing. She ran her hands over her body, exploring her curves, fantasizing about Adam doing the same in a couple of hours.

She raised a leg out of the water and began to shave herself. First one leg, then the other. Her underarms. She ran a hand across her mons. Sleek, but not perfect... She lathered herself up and couldn't resist tracing her labia and lightly caressing her clit. She moaned softly but went no further. She didn't want any release. She slowly drew the razor over her sensitive skin, until it was perfectly smooth and silky. Cleaned, shaved, and shampooed, Kate ducked beneath the water to rinse off. Then she climbed out of the tub and swaddled herself in one of those decadent bathrobes.

She took her time blow-drying her hair, adding loose curls to give it body. Then makeup, all those things she did so rarely, eyeliner and mascara, lip-liner and gloss. She returned to the bedroom and sat in one of the armchairs. She glanced at the clock. 7:45pm. He'd be landing soon. Her pussy was already damp with excitement. Kate painted her toes and fingernails a rich, deep red to match her lips. Letting them dry, she finished off the half-bottle of champagne.

She thought of Adam, of being ravaged by him. She ached to touch herself but couldn't until her nails were dry. She was torn. As primed as she was, she wouldn't be able to resist him. Not that she wanted to. But she did want to make him work a little. She didn't want to make it too easy or to seem desperate. She wanted to put on her dress, and looking spectacular, tease him, drag it out. But there was a part of her that wanted no part of those games, that wanted instead to just wait for him in the room, naked, by the door, ready to drop to her knees the moment he arrived and begin sucking on his perfect cock.

Kate shook her nails dry and strode purposefully to the closet. A man might enjoy a desperate woman, but he probably wouldn't respect her. She eased into the dress, tight against her body. She'd planned to wear a strapless bra, but the fabric was snug enough that she found she didn't need it, and it was exciting to be naked beneath the dress. She adjusted herself to get her cleavage right, and then returned to the bathroom to look at herself in the mirror.

She snapped a picture and sent it to Jenna.

<Kate> What do you think?

<Jenna> I think I have some competition for office slut.

Kate grinned and then felt like an idiot for doing so. Is that what she wanted? To be known as the “office slut”? Of course not, and yet it tickled, because every woman, whether she admits it to herself or not, wants to be, if only temporarily, the vixen. The woman who drives men crazy with lust and desire. Was it even Adam she craved? Or the way he made her feel?

She removed her wedding band and placed it in her purse. Then stepping into her spiked heels, she left the room and sashayed down the corridor toward the elevator. Naked beneath her dress, on her way to meet her lover, she felt wicked and alive. Everything tingled and there was electricity in the air. Crossing the lobby, she was conscious of mens’ eyes upon her, undressing her, their imaginations running wild. In those few moments, she knew they had her naked, on her back, on her knees, on all fours, cocks plunging into her mouth, her pussy, her ass, drenching her face, tits, and butt with their come.

She strode into the King Cole bar and admired the famous mural and the stately decor. Richly carved wooden tables, patterned leather chairs, thick carpet. She took a seat at the bar and ordered the Bloody Mary, invented at the St. Regis at the height of the depression. The bartender, older, but with jet-black hair, dignified, smiled as he delivered it, his gaze dipping just for a second into her cleavage, more an acknowledgement of her charms than a lewd gesture.

It was an eclectic crowd. Mature. Grey-haired men, and lithe, elegantly dressed women. It was too late for the theater crowd. This was more the cocktails-before-dinner set, about to head off to Per Se or Le Bernardin. There were some businessmen at the tables, perhaps from abroad, more slender than the usual American, hair longer as well, Brazilians perhaps, or southern Europeans. And a few couples from out-of-town, identifiable by their selfie taking.

She took a sip of her drink. It was spicy and strong.

“That’s how I like my vegetables too,” a man said from beside her.

Kate turned to face him. He was in his mid-50s. Slender, salt-and-pepper hair, in a perfectly tailored, gray pinstripe suit, crisp white shirt, and patterned purple tie that matched his pocket square.

“I’m Chance,” he said, holding out a hand.

“Of course you are,” she said with a chuckle. She shook his hand. “I’m Kate.”

“You’re quite stunning, Kate.”

She was a bit taken aback by his directness, and also his confidence. She doubted he had either the muscles or the cock of Jenna’s Tinder connection, but regardless, she knew she could quite easily be seduced by this man. She wondered if Adam had merely broadened her horizons, made her realize what was possible. Would he be just the first of a string of new lovers?

“I’m sorry,” Chance said, “I hope that didn’t come across as too forward.”

“Not at all,” Kate replied. “You’re very handsome yourself.”

He smiled and took a sip of his Old Fashioned.

“I have a feeling that despite my name, I’m not actually lucky enough that you’re here by yourself.”

“Well, I am... for now.”

“But you have someone coming?”

“I do.”

“Any possibility it is someone you’d be willing to forego meeting?”

“What kind of a woman would I be who’d stand up a rendezvous to go off with a man I just met?”

He raised an eyebrow and gave her a saucy grin. “Well, that’s what I’m trying to find out.”

Out of the corner of Kate’s eye, she noticed a younger, broad chested man walk past her. He had dark hair and a couple of days of scruff. His tailored tan slacks showed off his nice ass, and his black, silk shirt was rolled up to the elbows showing off his strong arms. Yummy. He sat down at the bar a few seats over and then turned and gave her a smile. Adam. She felt lightheaded.

She fought back the urge to climb into his lap and grind her pussy against his cock. To kiss his handsome face and whisper dirty thoughts into his ear. To drag him forcibly from the bar and just... fuck... his... brains... out.

Kate turned back toward Chance.

“Trying to find out, huh? Well, what range of options are you imagining?” she pressed.

“Unsatisfied?”

She chuckled. “I don’t think I’d have put so much effort into getting ready if I wasn’t planning on being satisfied.”

He grinned, obviously pleased that she was willing to go along.

“Adventurous?”

“Hmmm. I am that,” she answered flirtatiously. “But what if I already have adventures planned?”

He reached out and placed his hand on hers. His finger traced the indentation left by her wedding ring on her finger.

“Maybe you and your satisfactory and adventurous rendezvous like to play.”

That got her fluttery. Adam had more than hinted that the idea turned him on. She imagined the ravaging he'd give her if she first went off with Chance and only later returned to him. Kate peeked over at her lover. He was grinning and without making eye contact, he subtly tipped his glass in her direction. Go for it.

She looked again at Chance. He was handsome and mature. There was something about the way he observed her and the casual yet confident way he continued to caress her finger that convinced her he knew how to handle a woman's body. That he'd be good, very good, in bed. That he'd make her squirm, and mewl, and come with his hands, his tongue, his cock.

But no. She couldn't. That was a step too far. Cheating on Mike with Adam was one thing. Having sex with a stranger in order to get her lover riled up to make cheating on her husband better was... sick. Hot... but sick.

"I'm afraid I don't know what kind of games you might be thinking of," she said with a grin.

Chance stroked his chin. "Hmmm. I can't tempt you with satisfaction, adventure, or play...." He paused. "I don't think it could be lucre?"

Kate ought to have been offended, but she couldn't be. The situation was too ridiculous, and he'd asked in such disarming fashion, all disbelieving and Old English. She brought her hand to her mouth and giggled.

"Oh my, Chance, are you accusing me of being on the clock?"

"Not accusing. Merely assessing."

"Just as one might assess the value of a house?"

"Touché. I usually drive a hard bargain—"

"But tonight you'd like to drive your bargain hard," she punned.

"You're quite the cunning linguist," he japed in return.

"I'd have thought that would be more your job."

He grinned. “I surrender.” He again rubbed her ring finger. “Is this the game you play with hubby? Or are you freelancing?”

“Why don’t you not worry about that? I mean, really, what difference does it make to you?”

“You’re right. What if I were to offer you twice whatever your current rendezvous has promised.”

“That’s quite a generous offer, considering you don’t know any of the terms of the deal.”

“Well, first of all, I’m pretty sure I can afford it. Second, you don’t seem like a stingy type. Third, I’d sort of like the challenge of seeing if I could make you bust whatever boundaries you might set.”

It was all a game, of course. Or was it? Just a few weeks ago, the idea of having an affair would have seemed foreign. In the interim, sexting nude pictures and flirting with strange men had become almost routine. But the idea of selling herself to a man, even one as handsome as Chance, was just crazy. She was doing this just to play with Adam, who, she noticed, was watching her more closely now.

“So, what are you offering?” she asked.

“As I said, twice what—”

Kate laughed. “Ah, but you’d never respect me as a businesswoman if I named the first... number.”

He chuckled. “Very clever. But, putting a price to things, even rare and exotic items, is a bit of a specialty of mine.” He cupped her second hand with his and leaned in closer, so they were face to face. “You’re lovely, and you have a delicious body....”

“But....” she suggested.

“You’re not twenty and you’re not a pro.”

“I’d have thought that would be a plus?”

“Well, there are tradeoffs, of course. But, in any case, I suspect that this game of yours is not really about the money. So, while you might be able to squeeze out a few more shekels, I think your commitment is for a couple of hours of fun to bring back to... someone.” He rubbed the indentation again. “So, I think your current offer is for, hmmm, a thousand. Maybe fifteen hundred at the outside.”

Kate chuckled to buy time. This was all so very heady. It was just a game, of course. And she’d never really have sex for money, but it was unexpectedly exciting to put a price on her... virtue. She wasn’t sure why. She should have been appalled, embarrassed, offended. She wasn’t a piece of meat, to be bought and sold, nor was sex supposed to be so transactional. But it was thrilling. Chance was a handsome man, and he was offering....

“And you’d pay twice that?” she confirmed.

He grinned. She couldn’t tell whether he was already imagining his prize, or perhaps cottoning on to the reality that this was a game, and he was just playing a part.

“In a heartbeat. I’m sure it would be well worth it. Call it an even three?”

Okay, so three thousand dollars was probably nothing to him, but even still, she was tickled. She laughed and removed his hand from hers.

“Chance. It’s been a pleasure meeting you. But as you surely know, in business, it isn’t just about getting the best price. It’s also about building relationships, and it wouldn’t be good for my brand if I were to break a pre-existing commitment so easily.”

He smiled and leaned in to kiss her cheek. “Perhaps some other time then,” he said. He slid a business card beneath her palm. “Call me.”

She smiled as he walked away.

“I thought I was going to be spending the night alone.”

Kate turned to face Adam.

“You still might.”

“I don’t even have a hotel room.”

She chuckled. “I seem to remember you made me pay for mine. Again and again.”

He kissed her cheek. “And you loved every minute of it.”

She squeezed his hand. “Good flight?”

He laughed. “Uh oh. We’re screwed if we’re already at the ‘did you have a good day, honey’ phase.”

Kate released his hand and instead gave his crotch a quick squeeze. “Fine. How is your cock?”

He laughed louder. “Better. But tell me about the other man.”

“Which one?” she teased.

“Mr. Bespoke Suit.”

“He thought I was a working girl.”

Adam groaned. “Oh God, why do I think that’s hot?”

Kate chuckled. That was the problem of Adam, and also the beauty of him: he channeled her worst instincts. “You’re a horndog man. So not really surprising you’d find it hot. The problem is that I think it’s hot too.”

“You’re supposed to be offended.”

“I know. But I wasn’t. Maybe that’s just because I knew it was just a game.”

“So you weren’t tempted? Did he make an offer?”

“Three grand, if you’ll believe it. But honestly, it isn’t the amount, it’s—”

“Whoa, whoa, wait. He offered three thousand dollars? And you let him walk away?”

“Ha ha.”

“I mean, that’s like, a million dollars a year.”

“Yeah, if I turned tricks every day.”

“You have a million dollar pussy.”

She laughed and slapped his chest. “Fuck, you’re an idiot.”

He grinned. She almost swooned. He was so cute. But it was more than that. It was his easy manner that really won her over. He was fun.

“So where is your luggage?” she asked.

“I had it sent up to your room.”

She rolled her eyes. “Jesus. At least pretend you’re working me.”

He laughed. Then serious. “Hi Beautiful, do you come here often?”

She thought of Lucas. That was about his opening line. She giggled.

“I have someone to introduce you to....”

Her phone buzzed. She glanced quickly at it and chuckled.

<Mike> Kids are down. I’m going to watch a little TV and go to bed. How about you?”

“What?” he asked.

“My complicated life,” she answered. “That’s my hubby. He wants to know what I’m up to.”

“Easy,” Adam replied. “You’re going to soak in the tub and go to bed early.”

“Hmmm. Except that’s not what he wants to hear.”

“Yeah?”

She grinned. “He’s another idiot. What is wrong with you men?”

“Oh, don’t blame us. It’s you vixens, with those big boobs and tight... that make us crazy. So, what does he want to hear?”

She typed on her phone.

<Kate> Still early in the big city. I’m down in the hotel bar. Having a drink.

She showed it to Adam. “Watch this.”

Mike’s reply arrived almost immediately.

<Mike> Alone?

<Kate> Not quite.

She shared the exchange with Adam. He raised an eyebrow.

<Mike> Tell me.

<Kate> Can’t. Later.

Adam laughed. “You teasing slut.”

“It’s what he wants.”

“How much does he want?”

Kate shrugged. “How much does he want? Or how much can he admit he wants?”

Her phone buzzed again.

“Man, he’s curious.”

Kate glanced at the phone and laughed. “No, this is the other lunatic in my life.”

<Jenna> Bzzzt. Two duds in a row. But still willing to share Darren.

She showed the text and the accompanying obscene picture, all muscles and erect penis, to Adam.

“Holy shit, what’s that?”

“My friend Jenna’s upcoming Tinder date.”

“Are you going?”

“No, of course not.”

He groaned. “I don’t know, Baby. You’re putting a lot of pressure on me. First you turn down three grand, and now a Mr. America with a, what, twelve incher?”

“You want me to see if he goes both ways?”

“Would you?” he asked eagerly.

She chuckled. “Mixed signals. You send your bag up to my room, but you’ve spent the last ten minutes trying to talk me into seeing another man. And you haven’t even commented on my dress.”

“That’s because I keep thinking about what’s underneath. Did you get my gift?”

She grinned. “I did. But I couldn’t wear the bra because the straps would show.”

“And the bottom?”

Kate temporized, “Well... I mean... it is a match set. So it would just be wrong to wear one without the other. And... I’m not actually wearing a bra.”

He shifted in his seat. Kate delighted in his reaction.

“What are you wearing then?”

Kate’s phone buzzed again.

<Mike> Kate?

She held up her hand. “Sorry, Baby. Need to answer my hubby first.”

<Kate> Hard to talk, Honey. Or do you want me to tell him I’m married?

<Mike> No.

That came quickly. Then a clarification:

<Mike> I mean. What’s going on?

<Kate> Just talking.... For now. Should I do more?

She showed the texts to Adam. He raised an eyebrow.

“Wow, this is... sort of creepy.”

She shrugged. “You’re okay with banging married women, but not this? Married women have, you know, husbands.”

Adam nodded. “Yes, but I think they usually try to create some distance between their two worlds.”

“Not me,” Kate replied.

Her phone buzzed again.

<Mike> I don’t know. What is “more”?

Kate was again taken aback. Despite her bravado with Adam, she felt adrift. What were Mike's limits? And how guilty should she feel that she'd already probably transgressed them? Still, she smiled at Adam and angled the phone toward him as she typed.

<Kate> He wants to know if I'm wearing panties.

"Are you?" asked Adam.

<Mike> Are you?

"Great minds..." she smirked. Her eyes drifted to her thighs, exposed as her dress rode up.

Adam took the hint. He reached down and caressed the inside of her knee with his finger. Kate shuddered and peered around the room. It was a posh, older crowd. Discrete. She and Adam were sitting close together, so it wasn't completely obvious what he was doing, even as he traced a finger up beneath her dress, along her inner thigh.

"Should I answer my husband?"

"I don't see why he should find out before I do."

Adam didn't seem to be in a rush, however. His progress slowed, his fingertip tracing lazy circles across her sensitive skin. She wanted him to find out, wanted him to touch her, to feel her excitement. Kate struggled to avoid squirming in her seat. His eyes gleamed with amusement. He knew he had her.

"I'm not going to beg," she offered.

He grinned. "Oh, I think you might."

"Two can play at that game."

"Mmmm. Is that a threat or a promise?"

Kate knew she'd lose the first round. The idea of him teasing her until she was ready to plead for him, followed by her doing the same to him was unbelievably exciting. It was worth losing just to play that game. His finger on her thigh, making gentle circles, suggesting a slow progress toward her sex, was beguiling but false. He could drag it out forever. Just as she might with her hands and tongue on his cock. She smirked at the thought. Anything he did to her, she'd repay tenfold later. Except even thinking that had her feeling flushed and lightheaded.

She fixed his gaze. "Don't push your luck," she warned. "Or I'll head uptown and meet up with Jenna and that big, black cock she has lined up."

He jolted. "Say that again."

Adam eyes were locked on her painted lips as she humored him. "Big. Black. Cock."

He rolled his eyes and groaned. His hand slid further up her thigh. She knew she was damp and sticky, and he was unable to resist as he got closer. His fingertip brushed over her slit.

"You're a dirty slut," he teased.

"Hmmm, yeah. And what are you going to do about it?"

His fingers ran up and down between her lips. She moaned softly, biting her lip to try to hold it in. He pressed a finger inside her.

"Fuck, that's nice," he said.

"It would be even nicer with your cock inside me."

Kate's phone buzzed.

Adam chuckled. "Hubby or your slutty friend?"

<Mike> Honey? What's going on?

She showed the phone to Adam.

“Tell him I’m fingering your dirty, married...” he leaned in close. “...cunt.”

She nearly fell from her seat. But instead of following his order, she pushed him away, sighing as his finger slid from her pussy. She replied to her husband.

<Kate> I’m not wearing panties.

Mike didn’t answer. Even through her sexual fog, Kate tried to process the situation. She’d told her husband she was with a man in a bar, a man asking about her underwear. And instead of telling her to get out, instead of calling to insist upon it, he’d asked whether she was, indeed, bareass. And now, once informed she was, he still didn’t know how to react.

<Kate> Should I tell him. Or let him find out by himself?

And still no response. Adam raised an eyebrow as he read the texts.

“I’m feeling a little used here,” he said.

Kate laughed. “You are the other man.”

“I should be offended.”

“Except you want to get in my pants.”

“You’re not wearing pants... or panties, you slut,” he said with a grin.

She smiled and returned her attention to her phone.

<Kate> Still there?

<Mike> I don’t know.

<Kate> He just invited me to his room. Should I go?

Kate counted off in her head. One Mississippi, two Mississippi... ten Mississippi.

<Mike> No. I'm not ready yet.

Yet. It made Kate gasp.

“You okay?” asked Adam.

She ignored him, and instead typed back to Mike quickly.

<Kate> Okay. Let's talk tomorrow.

“So, I'm out of luck?” Adam persisted.

“I can't go to your room.” She paused and then smirked. “But that doesn't mean you can't come to mine.”

“I don't even have a room.”

She took his hand and remembered that his finger had been inside her. She shivered.

“Then you better make sure you go all night.”

He squeezed her hand. “Challenge accepted.”

“I think you're all talk.”

He laughed. “I promise, I'll give you the best thirty seconds of your life.”

Kate giggled. “I'm going to hold you to that.”

They paid and left the bar, hand in hand. It lacked some of the excitement and uncertainty of their last trip from bar to hotel room. There was no ambiguity this time; they were going upstairs to fuck. But it was still hot. After all... they were going upstairs to fuck.

Inside the room, Adam slipped past Kate and sat on the bed. He was confident and at ease, while she was all fluttery and eager.

“That's an amazing dress. But I want to see you naked.”

“Oh, is that right, Milord? And I’m a simple peasant girl who has to obey your orders?”

He just smiled, and while she wanted to resist, she couldn’t. She wanted to give him everything and anything he wanted. She reached back and unzipped her dress and pulled it off her shoulders. She released her grip and it swooshed to the floor.

He let out a low whistle as he surveyed her naked body, her insecurities vanishing before his manifest delight.

“Now that’s the kind of matched set of underwear that I really like.”

He held out his hand. She stepped closer to take it, and he pulled her closer still, until she stood between his legs, her naked body inches from him. He gently explored her mons with his fingertips. She shivered.

“You’re so smooth.”

“I shaved again this evening.”

“You wanted to be perfect for me?”

She nodded. “Yes. I wanted... I wanted my pussy to be perfect for you.”

“It is,” he said.

His finger slid up and down her slit, and then again inside her. Kate moaned and squirmed. She sought out his eyes, but his were glued to her sex. He licked his lips, and Kate grinned. As crazy as he made her, she was pleased to see that she was able to scramble his brains as well. Still, as his finger moved inside her, sliding over her swollen clit, it was all she could do to stop from swooning.

“You’re so wet,” he said as he added a second finger to his probing.

It was nothing compared to his prick, yet, but she could feel her pussy tight around his digits. He twisted them back and forth. She sighed as the intermittent pressure on her clit created waves of pleasure. He slipped his fingers from her pussy, and she moaned at the sudden sense of loss, even as she unconsciously edged closer to him.

He lifted his fingers to his face and sensuously sucked his glistening fingers into his mouth.

“And tasty,” he said.

Their eyes met.

“Maybe you want more?” she suggested hopefully.

“Are you saying you want me to eat your pussy?”

Kate felt a surge of heat. She knew what he wanted her to say, and she burned to say it. “Eat my pussy.”

She startled as he lunged toward her. His strong hands cupped her ass and squeezed her cheeks. He rolled back into the bed, pulling her onto him. He maneuvered her upward, so that as he laid back on the mattress, she rose above him, her pussy straddling his face. Kate was in the dominant position, but there was little question who was in control. With a firm grip, he rolled her wet slit, back and forth across his mouth. His tongue probed inside her, hungry and eager, and flicked at her clit.

“Oh God,” she groaned.

She looked down at his handsome face, increasingly glazed with her juices. His tongue slurped at her bare snatch. She reached down and caressed his cheek and ran her hand through his hair. He reacted by squeezing her ass harder, grinding her around his mouth. At the same time, her other hand caressed her own chest. Her nipples were so hard, almost painful to the touch, but that didn’t stop her from rubbing them, squeezing them, cupping her large breasts.

Kate glanced over her shoulder and groaned. She was naked, completely naked, riding a man’s face. His fingers digging furrows into her ass. Her hair was an unruly mess. Her eyes focused on his crotch. Even through his pants, she could see his excitement. She licked her lips. As good as was his mouth, that was what she wanted.

“I want you to fuck me,” she sighed.

“Not yet.”

He sucked her clit into his mouth, and she hissed. He squeezed her ass tighter, fingers digging into her cheeks and snaking into her crack. He spread her apart and his tongue seemed everywhere. She reached back and stroked his cock, so hard, so fat. She licked her lips again. She wanted him inside her, in her mouth, in her cunt. Deep and hard. But God, oh God, what he was doing to her with his tongue was maddening. She began to thrust against him, her hips moving of their own volition, but soon encouraged by his palms.

“That’s it,” he encouraged, “fuck my face.”

She caught a glimpse of herself in the mirror and realized that was exactly what she was doing. Riding him, grinding him, relishing in the sensation of his lips and stubble all over her spread pussy. She’d never done that to a man, never had a man demand it. She felt a surge of power and had the lurid thought of doing this to a man after he’d come, and making him lick his own load. Dirty, slutty. She wondered what Adam would think of it.

“What,” she gasped, “if I told you I’d already been with another man today.”

He crushed her ass in his grasp until she yelped in excited pain.

“Is that why you’re so wet?”

“Yes,” she moaned.

He slurped at her eagerly. “I would have tasted the difference, but you’re a slut for even suggesting it. Do you fantasize about that?”

She hadn’t. Not until now. But now that it was in her head, it was insanely exciting. Her whole body was tingling. Her nipples were so hard and swollen that they were painful to touch.

“Yes.”

He lifted her off him momentarily and plunged three fingers deep into her pulsing snatch.

“Do you want to do that to me? Or to your husband?”

Another surge of heat. She gasped. He was fingering her hard, his thumb on her clit. The scenarios flipped back and forth, but then quickly resolved and settled on one, and it was like Adam could read her mind.

“You naughty girl... You want me to fuck you and you want to make your husband lick you clean.”

“No!” she gasped, horrified, even as her mind screamed, yes, yes, yes.

“Okay, you dirty slut, close your eyes and pretend you’re emptying you’re leaking twat into your husband’s mouth.” He removed his fingers and pulled her again to his face. He sucked her clit and then thrust his tongue deep inside her.

In her mind, she was back up in Hartford. Her earlier fantasy of returning to Mike with a pussy full of Adam’s becoming a reality. And Mike, reckless from their flirting fantasies all too easy to manipulate into the scene Adam was describing. She imagined hiking up her dress, Mike going crazy at her lack of panties, driven insane by her wetness, willing, eager to eat her. Adam’s come dripping, dripping, into her husband’s mouth.

“Oh God! Oh God!!!” she cried out with a sudden, desperate passion.

Adam continued to suck her clit, more gently now, lengthening her orgasm, skillfully working her pulsing nub until finally, it was....

“Too much. Too much,” She rolled off him onto the bed.

His fingers replaced his tongue, and gentler and more dexterous still, he worked her through another few gasping convulsions, until finally, panting she pushed even his hand away. Through blurred eyes, she could see herself still slowly writhing on the bed, covered in a sheen of sweat, skin blotchy, and her sex, swollen, wet, gaping. She looked like the victim of a gangbang, but Adam was still dressed, and they hadn't even really started.

He curled up beside her and kissed the side of her mouth. His fingers trailed across the clammy skin, between her breasts.

“With that body and that dirty mind, it’s a wonder you haven’t gotten into more trouble.”

She laughed. “Who says I haven’t?”

He nibbled on her neck. “Is that right?” He cupped her breast, his thumb circling her still distended, though no longer painful, nipple.

“Maybe.”

He chuckled. “I don’t think so. I think I’m corrupting you... well, me and that slutty little friend of yours with the Tinder account.”

Kate laughed. It was true. Between Jenna and Adam, she could end up getting into all sorts of delicious mayhem. “You have no idea.”

“Have you and her ever...?”

Kate laughed again. “Oh God, how did I know that was coming?”

“You’re a mind reader?”

She reached down and palmed his hand prick. “More like a dick whisperer.”

“If you want to, I’d be happy to, um, participate.”

Kate stiffened. There was no way she was going to let Jenna anywhere near Adam.

He laughed. “Oh, so you’re the jealous type.”

That didn't seem fair. When you're cheating, you don't have the luxury of being jealous. "No. I mean...."

He caressed her belly. "It's okay. We can't affect how we're wired. Just because your hubby gets hot at the idea of sharing you, doesn't mean you have to get hot at the idea of sharing him... or me."

"I don't own you."

"Or him. But you're still allowed to be jealous."

She shook her head, but she couldn't deny it. Lying in bed naked with her lover, she still didn't like the idea of either of her men with another woman.

"Stop talking and get naked," she said.

"Why would I want to do that?"

She flipped onto her belly and rose up on all fours. Glaring at him through sweaty strands of hair, she growled, "So I can suck your fat cock."

"Yes, ma'am," he replied with a chuckle.

He unbuckled his belt and worked off his pants. Kate stared at the impressive bulge in his boxer briefs and the glistening damp spot at the head of his penis. She moved toward him. As he began to unbutton his shirt, she yanked down his underwear, freeing his hard tool. She wrapped her hands around the base and took him into her mouth. He moaned satisfyingly, and she swirled her tongue around his shaft.

Kate moaned as well. His cock was delicious in her mouth, warm and hard, salty, a little musky, and very masculine. His enjoyment was palpable, and she was very conscious of how much pleasure his prick would provide when it was inside her.

"God, I love your cock," she cooed.

It just came out. But as embarrassing as it sounded, it was true. He was naked now, and though she eyed him up and down, it was his manhood that commanded her attention. She swallowed him again, bobbing up and down on as much as she could take. Her hands fondled his balls. He moaned softly. She glanced up at his face. He was smiling that shy, grateful smile men get when they're getting their cocks sucked. Like she was doing him a favor rather than delighting in his taste, his girth, his small shudders of delight, the excitement of it. Straight men didn't get it. Didn't understand how exciting it was to give head, to take a man's hardness into your mouth and feel his arousal. To see his reaction and enjoy the power it gives the cocksucker.

"You're good at that," he sighed.

She rose off him and jerked his prick roughly. It squished in her fist.

"Good enough to give me a taste of your come?" she challenged as she slurped him into her mouth again.

"Let me eat you while you do that," he replied.

He didn't wait for her to agree. Instead, he seized her, spun her around, and pulled her on him. With her thighs around his head, she resumed sucking his prick at the same time as he began licking her wet slit. Kate grunted. It was too much. Distracting. Between his size and the new angle, she couldn't take him half as deep, and she struggled to keep her teeth off his shaft. But he didn't seem to notice that the quality of her blowjob had diminished. Instead, his excitement, now that he was tonguing her pussy, seemed to increase. She tasted his precum, felt him begin to thrust excitedly, and it was that, even more than his mouth on her clit, that triggered the heat in her belly that quickly spread to her chest, her limbs, her head. She gasped and his prick went deeper into her mouth, tickling the back of her throat, and suddenly he was spurting into her mouth as she shuddered with her own climax.

It was so hot... for just a second. And then his come went down the wrong pipe. She coughed violently, feeling his jism backing up, heat shooting toward her sinus. At the same time, she heard his muffled whine, and felt him shove her off him, sideways onto the bed, where she continued to hack into the pillow.

“You almost broke my nose,” he said, laughing.

“You almost drowned me with your come,” she replied, also laughing through coughs.

“Okay, so that didn’t work,” he said.

She wiped her mouth and curled up beside him. “I’m not sure about that. I mean, it was great up until the very end.”

“Sort of like a plane crash.”

She slapped his chest. “Jesus, that was dark.”

He shrugged, and then kissed her forehead. “You okay?”

She nodded, her hand sliding down to cup his sticky cock. “If you fall off a horse, you need to get back in the saddle.”

“Am I the horse in this scenario?”

She stroked his prick and replied suggestively, “Sure seems like it,” before adding, “by which I mean your smell.”

He chuckled. “You sure know how to flatter a guy.”

“I do my best.”

He pulled her into an embrace and kissed her, a bit tentatively she thought, but given that she’d just coughed up a load of jism, it was better than most. His hands, though, were more decisive, exploring her body, cupping her butt, palming her breasts. He slid her swollen nipples up and down between his fingers.

“If that is your best, then it’s lucky you have such great tits.”

Kate giggled. “Well, we’re both charmers, I guess.”

He rolled her on top of him. He wasn't fully hard yet, so instead of fucking immediately, they kissed, and she ground against him. She slid her slippery labia back and forth over his semi-rigid shaft.

"Mmmm, that's nice," he croaked as his hands explored her body, cupping her hips, caressing her lower back.

"And better yet, it's not even cheating."

He laughed. "Rubbing your wet pussy on my cock isn't cheating?"

"Not unless there is penetration."

She rocked against him harder, feeling his prick stiffen. Her clit found the head of his cock, and with a hiss she ground down harder. He palmed her nape and pulled her into a wet, passionate kiss. He was no longer tentative. He was hungry, aggressive. He shifted his legs and thrust upward. Kate gasped as he filled her.

"How about now?" he asked. He began pumping his hips, driving his fat cock into her tight pussy again and again

"Yeah... ugh... this... is... uh... cheating."

He grabbed her ass cheeks, squeezed them hard, and pounding her still harder. Eyes closed, she lifted her head. He craned his neck and kissed her neck.

"You like cheating."

"Yes. I like your—"

His fingers edged deeper into her butt crack. Moistened by juices, he began to tease her anus. Kate gasped. It was so dirty and so wrong, but she always had that reaction when Mike touched her there, though with him it was always fleeting, accidental. But Adam had noticed her reaction and he didn't stop. Kate opened her eyes and met his.

“Dirty girl,” he teased. He ran one digit after another between her cheeks, fingertips tickling and lightly touching her ass.

She blushed hard, and shut her eyes tight, lurid thoughts racing through her mind. The idea of anal sex was terrifying, especially as big as Adam was. But the idea of it, stoked by his caresses, was exciting. Dangerous and scary. Dirty and forbidden. It would hurt, but she deserved to be punished. Punished for cheating on Mike. Punished for loving the sensation of Adam’s big cock inside her. Punished for the wicked thoughts his finger on her ass provoked.

He sensed it. Her vulnerability and desire. He thrust in harder and crunched upward to suck her nipple into his mouth, hard, until she hissed, his fingertip more insistent, until suddenly it was inside her. Just a little, but enough.

“Oh God, oh God, oh God,” she cried out, her orgasm washing over her.

It all went from just right to too much in an instant. She recoiled off him like a cat off a hot stove. He looked up, concerned, until he saw her reposition herself between his legs, poised to take his slimy prick into her mouth.

“You make me nuts,” she said, and she swallowed him deep. She’d always been a little squeamish about taking a man right from her pussy into her mouth, but with Adam it just seemed right.

“You’re not so bad yourself,” he replied. He reached down and ran his fingers through her thick blonde hair.

She bobbed up and down on him, taking him deeper and deeper. He was too big to take completely into her mouth, but she wished she could. She wanted to devour him. She wanted to please him. To wow him. She wanted to be the best he’d ever had, the best he ever would.

“No Baby, you don’t understand,” she said, as she fondled his balls, in between tongue strokes up and down his shaft. “You’re turning me inside-out.”

“I’m not that big.”

She slapped his thigh and stroked his perfect cock. It squished wetly in her fist, and she longed to take it again in her mouth and pussy.

“I don’t mean it like that. Well,” she amended with a smile, “I do. But I also mean that you’re... changing me—”

‘I don’t mean—’

“Turning me... making me...” she tried out the verbs, looking for the right one, “tempting me... to be someone I’m not. Or someone I didn’t know I was.”

“Is that bad?”

“I... I don’t know. I can’t think. All I know is that right now, I just want you inside me again.”

Kate spun around and rose up on all fours. He moved quickly behind her, his hands caressing her round ass. She looked back over her shoulder, and she could see he was admiring the view. It made her heart skip. He rubbed his cock up and down her swollen, wet slit, the spongy head teasing her from her clit to her... anus. He paused there for a moment, and she sucked in her breath in a sudden panic that he might try to enter her... a panic mixed with longing, because while she knew that she wasn’t ready for him and that it would tear her apart if he tried, the idea of it, of her lover’s cock thrusting into her married, virgin ass was dizzying.

Instead, he entered her pussy with a confident stroke. She shuddered as he stretched her out. He moaned contentedly.

“What?”

He gave her a long, slow stroke. “I love the view.”

“Mine’s not as good,” she replied as she glanced at the headboard.

“Then I need to distract you.”

His next stroke was hard, even brutal. She'd have fallen forward if he hadn't been firmly gripping her hips.

"Oh God, yes!" she gasped.

He pulled out slowly, deliberately, the pleasure mixed with the anticipation of what would come next.

Bam! All at once he was again inside her.

"Oh God! Oh God!" she cried out, surprisingly out of breath.

He withdrew again so languidly that she could experience every inch of him, feel her labia clinging to his cock, a delicious, constant teasing of her clit. Then just the head was inside her, and she was panting as if she'd run a sprint just with the expectancy of it. He had her just where he wanted her, and the smug bastard milked the moment, one hand gently caressing up her spine, while the other held her in place.

Then suddenly a sharp pain on the back of her scalp, her head yanked upward as he pulled hard on her hair. She yelped and he thrust back in. Hard, so hard. She saw stars, felt like there were flames lapping at her body. She couldn't speak. All that escaped her mouth was a low, feral growl. He pulled out, but faster this time, his own excitement obviously building. Then another brutal thrust, bracing and insistent, forcing every thought from her mind except for his cock, hard and thick, plunging inside her, again and again. It was so good, so overwhelming, and she never wanted it to end.

"Do you like that?" he asked, his voice hoarse and tense.

"Yes," she gasped. "Fuck me."

He yanked back harder on her hair, and his cock seemed to get even bigger and harder, his strokes still more ferocious.

"Fuck me," she grunted again.

His low growl provided potent testimony of the effect of her exclamations.

“Fuck me hard,” she gasped challengingly.

SLAP! Kate yelped in pain as her ass felt like it was on fire. She realized he’d spanked her at the same time as she sensed her pussy flow wetly. She looked at them in the mirror. She was sweaty. They both were.

“Harder!” she growled.

He slammed into her, seemingly trying to tear her apart, but only succeeding in feeding her passion. She saw him raise his hand. She shivered in anticipation of the painful sting, and when it came, she howled at the commingling of pain and pleasure. She could barely recognize herself in the tramp she saw. Her eyes were glassy. Her body jiggling wildly from the force of his strokes. She looked like a wild animal. It was all too much.

“Fuck me. Fuck me,” she yelped. “Fuck me like a whore animal,” she gasped.

Adam hesitated for just a second, and in that moment it all came crashing down. He stifled a chuckle, but Kate couldn’t deny her mortification. She shook loose of his grip, and plunged down onto the bed, burying her face in the pillow. He was laughing louder now as he dropped down to pull her into a cuddle. She glanced back over her shoulder, through a mass of matted hair.

“I’m sorry Baby, I couldn’t help it,” he apologized.

She chuckled, enjoying the sensation of his hands gently exploring her body.

“You make me so crazy that I don’t know what I am saying.”

He laughed again. “I don’t know why, but when you said it, it made me think of a cow in fishnets.”

Kate laughed. “I guess I’m not so good at the whole dirty talk thing.”

“You were doing pretty well until then.”

She reached between her legs and grasped his heavy, slick cock. She thrust back moaning softly as he sank back into her.

“Talk is overrated,” she sighed.

He palmed her breast and slowly churned inside her. “Yeah, it is.”

Kate closed her eyes and lost herself in the sensation. As when she was changing in the hotel room, she experienced a shedding of layers. There were dark thoughts lurking in the back of her mind. Those men in the bar. How they made her feel, and what those feelings said about her. There was Mike. Her hurtful impulses toward him. The heat she felt as she imagined humiliating him. Deceit mixed with cruelty. The sense of madness Adam triggered. Reckless. Stupid. But... but... his cock... his hands... those soft, nibbling kisses on the back of her neck... his chest hair on her back... thrusting... faster... deeper... until that was all of it and everything else was gone, washed away by waves of pleasure.

Gasping. Dizzy. Sweat dripping into her eyes. Abs aching from coming so hard.

He withdrew his softening cock. A stream of hot jism spread over her thigh.

“Oh Jesus,” she said with a giggle.

“You’re fun.”

“So that’s all I am to you? Just a fun time piece of ass?”

He chuckled and swatted her butt. “Pretty much.” A pause. “You’re not falling in love, are you?”

His tone was off. Almost... hopeful. Or was that her? She rolled over to face him. Kissed his soft lips and handsome face.

“Of course not,” she replied.

He grinned. Was his smile a bit forced? It was all so confusing.

“Good. Maybe there is still time for you to go back downstairs and hook up with Mr. 3Gs.”

He smirked. Was the joking a deflection? Kate didn’t know, but she was grateful for it. She wasn’t sure she was ready to be honest with Adam... or herself.

“And what would you get out of that?”

He sat up. “I figured we’d split it 50-50.”

“Ha! I’d be doing all the work.”

“I got you ready.”

“So could a three-dollar tube of lube.”

“Do you have one?” He asked.

“No.”

“There you go. I’m irreplaceable.”

She shook her head and laughed. Palming his limp prick, she teased, “Not so irreplaceable.”

He guffawed. “Ouch! You’re mean.”

He rose and strode to the bathroom. She admired his ass. But now that the sex was over, for now, those thoughts came rushing back in. What the fuck was she doing in a hotel room, naked, joking around with another man?

Her phone buzzed. She groaned. It was surely either Mike or Jenna, and neither seemed likely to be a calming influence.

It was Jenna. And there was a picture attached. Kate gasped. It was a selfie of Jenna with Darren. She was naked. So was he. And Jenna’s hand was gripping his huge, erect prick. His cock glistened, and Kate knew it was either from her friend’s mouth or pussy. She felt a strange twinge, and maybe a touch of jealousy. She shuddered at the visceral realization that were she there, she wouldn't be able to resist playing with that thing. She imagined tasting him... and... feeling him inside her. She couldn't take her eyes off the image. Jenna was a hot little thing, pale skin, her nipples hard and dark red, her hand tiny against Darren's manhood. Kate studied her friend's face, and she sensed that Jenna would do... anything... everything Darren asked. Was that the way she looked when she was with Adam?

"Good grief, I've only been gone a minute and you're already looking at porn."

"I am not." Then Kate chuckled. "Well, actually, sorta. Check this out."

Adam flopped down on the bed beside her. He laughed. "Should you be showing me this? I mean, your friend is naked."

"Jenna's not the shy type."

"No, I guess not."

Kate reached down and grasped Adam's prick. It was heavy and warm, and beginning to stiffen again. She stroked him up and down.

"No matter how much you do that, it's not going to get as big as his," he noted.

"Close enough," Kate replied.

He groaned softly. "That feels good."

His prick was jutting up proudly. Kate couldn't wrap her hand completely around him. She loved the feel of it, the feel of him. Such a hunk of man.

Still holding his cock, she reached for her phone.

"What are you doing?" he asked.

She laughed. "Returning the favor."

She snapped several selfies, careful to keep their faces out of the frame, but including a generous view of his sexy body and her hand on his thick prick.

“Um, do I get a say in this?”

Kate laughed. “Don’t worry. Jenna’s discreet.”

He chuckled. “Now that I doubt.”

She forwarded the best pic and got an almost instant response.

<Jenna>: Yummy. Have fun you dirty slut.

Kate grinned. She pushed Adam onto his back and climbed on top of him. Sitting up, she slowly impaled herself on his thick tool. She gasped. She couldn’t get enough of this.

Chapter Fourteen

Kate woke up, naked, in Adam's arms. She was sore all over. Tired. But warm and happy. She couldn't stop smiling. It was a perfect night. They'd fucked and made love. Hard and gentle. In every imaginable position. Sitting in his lap, his big thing inside her. Kissing, deep and wet. Her arms wrapped around her neck. And then standing, her legs wrapped around his waist, getting pounded into the wall. On her back, legs over his shoulders, his hands mauling her full breasts.

She slipped out of his grip and walked naked to the window. It was a lovely morning, bright sunshine, the city alive. She peeked at her phone and saw that Jenna was up. They agreed to meet for brunch.

Kate left Adam still asleep. She walked over to Eighth Avenue and met Jenna at a small place. Jenna was already seated at a window table.

Jenna laughed when Kate sat down. "You have that well-fucked look about you."

"Do not," Kate replied.

"Mmmm yeah. You can't wipe that grin from your face. And you look equally content and tired."

Kate chuckled. "Ok. Guilty."

"Yeah, guilty is right. Or did you clear it with Mike?"

"Not quite."

"Getting closer?"

"I don't know. I think so. Anyway, what about you? You in love?"

Jenna shrugged. "Darren fucks like a machine."

"Is that good?"

"Fun for a weekend."

"Weekend?"

"I was thinking about staying another night. You up for that?" Jenna asked.

Kate hesitated. Of course, she wanted to spend another day with Adam. But she knew she was flirting with disaster. Playing with fire.... Behaving like a cock-addled twit.

"What did you tell Mike?" Jenna redirected.

Kate sighed. It was all so fucked up.

"I told him I was flirting with a man in the bar."

"Flirting?"

Kate nodded. She took a sip of her Mimosa. "I pushed it. I made it clear it was more than innocent flirting. That he was interested in me. I asked Mike if I should tell him I was married, and he said no."

Jenna laughed. "Oh Honey, he totally wants you to do it. God, that's so hot. I hope I marry a guy who wants me to fuck around."

"It's not like that. I... tested it... I told him the man I was flirting with wanted to know whether I was wearing panties."

"And?"

"Mike froze. And then I told him the man had asked me to come to his room... and Mike said no."

"You rushed it."

“It would not have made a difference.”

“Yes it would! You were in such a hurry to get that beautiful cock in your pussy that you rushed it. I mean, I get it. Adam seems very fuckable. But —”

“Jenna, he said no.”

“You’re totally missing the point. Yeah, he said no, but that’s just because he was scared and felt on-the-spot. He didn’t throw a fit. He didn’t order you home. You want to know the truth? He’s probably convinced you did go up to this guy’s room and fucked him. Well, he probably spent a sleepless night going back and forth on it in his mind.”

“Yeah, well, that I know is true.” Kate pulled out her phone. “Texts at 1:32am, 1:53am, 2:15am.... You get the picture.”

“You didn’t reply to those, did you?” Jenna asked.

“Um, no. I was a little busy.”

“Yeah, you were, you little slut.” Jenna put up her hand for a high-five that Kate accepted to prevent Jenna from getting any louder. “God, I bet that made him nuts. And I’ll tell you what else. In those moments when he thought you did do it, he was probably jerking off like crazy.”

“You’re nuts.”

Jenna took a bite of avocado toast and smirked, “Mike probably dropped more loads thinking about you getting fucked than Adam actually did in fucking you.”

“Jesus.”

“So what did you tell him this morning?”

“I haven’t texted yet.”

“Ooooh, that’s cruel. You know what he’s imagining now, right?”

“I... no....”

Jenna leaned in and smirked. “He’s thinking that after a night of banging another dude, you passed out, fuck drunk, only to wake up first thing in the morning just needing to sit on that new cock again.”

“Oh God....”

“Text him now. Text Mike. Tell him you want to stay in the city another night.” She paused. “Tell him that your flirt-buddy wants to take you on a date.”

“Jenna....”

Jenna’s had a lunatic gleam in her eyes. “Do it. And when he says yes, and he will, let him stew on it for the rest of the day. Tonight, text him pics of you getting ready for your date. Hold his hand through it. And when it comes time to ask about going to Adam’s room, he’ll say yes.”

“This is nuts.”

Jenna tapped on her own phone until Kate pulled out hers.

<Kate>: Hey Honey, you up?

Except from Book 2

Mike couldn't quite remember when the obsession had taken hold. It wasn't an obsession initially, of course. At first it was just run-of-the-mill jealousy. Kate, with her blonde hair and big breasts, always got looks. She ignored it or pretended to, probably a necessary coping mechanism a lot of women develop just to get through life, but Mike noticed. There were the envious guys, who often gave him a small nod and a rueful grin. There were the arrogant challengers, with their fixed stares and not-so-subtle flexing. Old guys, young guys, rich and poor, they see an attractive woman and immediately want to check out and compare themselves to the man she's with. Being out with Kate could feel like an endless contest as a result, even if she did nothing to encourage it.

But did she really do nothing? Mike knew it was probably just his insecurities speaking. Realistically, he couldn't expect Kate to refuse to speak to a man just because, behind her back he was shooting daggers at Mike. But it was also true that what she might code as "friendly" he sometimes saw as "flirty."

Over time, those feelings of jealousy faded. She didn't seem to be going anywhere, didn't seem to have eyes for other men. They moved in together and got married. The kids followed. Men still looked at Kate, but if anything, what Mike felt now was pride. It was a bit of a rush to be married to a genuine MILF. Mike sometimes found himself deliberately fading into the background at gatherings or taking his time returning from the bathroom if they were out at a bar, just to see if she spoke to another man. He wondered if she was just being polite, or if she ever were attracted to someone else. It would only be natural if she were, of course. As they say, being married isn't the same as being dead.

From there, the idea progressed. He wondered if she flirted with men she met. If maybe there was something with the guy who led her spinning class. Or perhaps someone at work, maybe even someone she met when traveling for business. Out of town, staying in a hotel, surely dealing with flirtatious men. It was sort of hot to think about it. Painful... yet hot.

When she mentioned her high school reunion, it immediately provoked thoughts about her running into an old boyfriend. Kate had always been guarded in talking about her past romances. There's nothing to tell. Which, of course, just made Mike more curious. After all, she had been interested in boys in high school, and in going to this reunion there was every chance she'd run into a guy she'd had a crush on back in the day. Even if that guy had been too stupid to pay attention to her at the time, there was no way a man pushing forty wouldn't notice her now. There was also the very real possibility that there was an old boyfriend in the mix. A man, who as a boy had kissed her tender lips, and handled her full breasts. Who had maybe experienced her hot mouth on his hard cock. Maybe even the man who'd taken her virginity. Would it be tempting to hook up again with her first? Just out of curiosity maybe? To do it right, perhaps, if her first time was disappointing like most? Or maybe just out of nostalgia?

He knew his teasing about an "old boyfriend" annoyed her. But he couldn't help himself. It was like picking at a scab. Her eyerolls, her frustrated sighs, even her attempts at a simple denial provoked him. Just getting a reaction out of her each time he raised it gave him a jolt. Faking an excuse to get out of the trip was a natural progression that would let him continue the game when she returned.

And then she came back, and she was... different. Until then the game had been one-sided, consisting mostly of Mike needling his wife. But after Cleveland, Kate suddenly seemed into it. Teasing him, taunting him, and even more frighteningly, acting with a sexual abandon that Mike had suspected... hoped... feared she might be hiding, but that she'd rarely displayed before.

Mike wasn't sure, couldn't be sure, what was going on. Had she just decided to have a little fun with his fantasy, or had he been closer to the truth than he realized? She denied everything, and yet she didn't. It was maddening and exhilarating.

Then the trip to New York... with her crazy, hot, sexed-up friend Jenna. A night alone in the city, but not alone for long. Kate had met a man in a bar. Mike asked for more information. She answered only after long, excruciating pauses. She mentioned that she wasn't wearing panties. That the man had invited her to his room. She wanted to know if she should go. Mike had wimped out... or come to his senses... she'd bluffed him... or she was really with another man... she'd taken his no for an answer... or she'd ignored him.

One minute he'd picture Kate sitting in bed, alone, reviewing her texts to him, and grinning to herself. It was a sexy thought. His beautiful wife spicing things up with a little role playing. A little fantasy. It was out of the blue, but certainly welcome, what with the years adding up and kids leaving little time for real romance. He promised himself that when Kate got home, he'd keep up his side of the bargain. Buy her flowers, surprise her with a babysitter arranged and reservations at her favorite restaurant.

But then a few minutes later, he'd imagine the reverse. That she had really met a man. That they had really had drinks. That, encouraged by her husband, she'd allowed herself to get excited enough that going to his room was even an option. And then Mike had pulled the plug. Or tried to. Because how realistic was it that she'd be able or even willing to turn it off so fast? And what about the man? Handsome enough to get her attention. Interesting enough to keep it. As comforting as the first image was, this one seemed almost more plausible and exhilarating, and it was just as easy to picture Kate hungrily kissing another man. Naked, stroking his big cock while his hands explored her luscious body. On her hands and knees, being taken hard from behind, gasping as he fucked her again and again, aroused beyond belief both at the sheer novelty of a new cock after so many years and at the naughtiness of cheating on her husband.

He texted her during the night but received no response. Was she sleeping? Teasing him? Or just too busy enjoying her new lover to respond?

Mike passed a sleepless night. And an anxious early morning. Where was she? Was she still sleeping? Were they still fucking? The kids were a brief distraction as he made their breakfast before they ran off to play video games (Jeremy) and watch YouTube videos (Becky). But then he was back where he'd been. Tired, agitated, and anxious....

