

DELORES SWALLOWS

Entertaining
HIS BOSS

Entertaining His Boss

Her First Time Shared
A Loaned Wife's Journey (Book 1)

by Delores Swallows

Delores Swallows Publications

Web | Twitter | Amazon

Sign up for FREE stories and MORE from Delores Swallows

Join Delores' Mailing List

This book is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are products of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously. Any resemblance to actual events or locales or persons, living or dead, is entirely coincidental.

Copyright © 2020 Delores Swallows

Kindle Edition, License Notes

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form or by any electronic or mechanical means—except in the case of brief quotations embodied in articles or reviews—without written permission from its publisher.

Content Advisory: This book is intended for mature audiences and contains explicit sexual activity.

Entertaining His Boss

Julian's the perfect husband—kind, loving and loyal—yet Nicole had still allowed herself to stray with a colleague. But that was in the past. She'd learned her lesson.

At least she thought she had... until Julian invites his new boss around for dinner.

Ciaran is the exact opposite of Julian. He's probably never had a selfless moment in his life, but he's incredibly sexy, and seemingly captivated by her. After much flirting over pudding, she agrees to help him with his bookkeeping for a private business venture.

In the privacy of Ciaran's office the following week, she allows him to kiss her, and more.

She's just beginning to swim in the pool of self-loathing when something Ciaran says alerts her to the fact that her husband has a few secrets of his own. When she gets home that day, Nicole and Julian have a discussion that changes things forever...

Contents

Entertaining His Boss

Chapter One

Chapter Two

Chapter Three

Chapter Four

Chapter Five

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

ALSO BY DELORES SWALLOWS

$$\frac{\Psi}{\Xi}$$

Chapter One

Nicole was just putting the finishing touches on dinner when her husband's car pulled into the drive. As she was warming the plates, Julian came through the back door with one hand held behind his back and a broad smile on his face. He kissed her cheek, whipped his hand around with a flourish, and presented her with a bunch of orange roses.

"Why, thank you." She sniffed her favourite flowers, trying to think if this was one of their anniversaries. "Did I forget something?" Unnervingly, Julian remembered the dates of every milestone in their relationship—when they'd met, when they'd first slept together, when he'd proposed. Knowing him, he probably kept a spreadsheet.

"No, but I thought they might bring a smile to that beautiful face."

"Ah, that's so nice." She stretched up and kissed his cheek. "Thanks, hon."

"There's more." Julian's smile broadened, stretching his black moustache into a horizontal line across the middle of his face. He opened his briefcase and took out a bottle of champagne.

"Oh wow, bubbles on a school night?"

"And already chilled." He slipped off his suit jacket and slung it over his arm. "I'll go and change, and then tell you my news over dinner."

By the time Nicole had placed their dinner on the dining room table, Julian was busy removing the foil and muselet from around the champagne cork. "So, what are we celebrating?"

He smiled shyly as he popped the cork, poured their drinks and passed her one. "Apparently, I'm being considered for the role of regional manager, marketing division."

"Oh wow. Congratulations." Smiling, she wondered if 'being considered for the role' was actually worthy of a celebration.

He sat down and raised his glass. "Well it's not official yet, but Ciaran seems to think the board will go along with his recommendation."

“Ciaran, the new manager?”

Julian nodded.

“He’s only been there five minutes.”

He laughed. “He was at Head Office for two years before moving to our branch, and he’s actually been with us for eight months. He started in January—it just seems a short time because of the lockdown.” An embarrassed smile crept onto his face. “To be honest, I think the lockdown’s had a big influence on my potential promotion. It appears most of my peers weren’t as productive in their working-from-home duties as I was.”

“Well, I’m proud of you for even being considered.”

He shrugged as if embarrassed by the praise, which was typical of him. While she usually considered his social awkwardness endearing, it could be maddening sometimes.

“Speaking of Ciaran,” he said, dabbing his mouth with a napkin, “I’ve invited him round for dinner on Saturday.”

“What?”

Julian frowned. “That’s alright, isn’t it?”

Not really, dear. “Do people still invite their boss round to dinner? I thought that only happened in old American sitcoms.”

He barked an exaggerated laugh. “No, I think it still happens.”

Nicole was more than a little uncomfortable. “Julian, I really don’t see myself as a corporate wife.”

After another bout of embellished guffawing, he shook his head. “It’ll be very informal, I promise. We’re not talking lobster thermidor and your finest ballgown.”

She took a bite of her glazed chicken, wondering if this would be an appropriate meal to serve. “Will his wife be coming as well?”

“Ciaran’s not married. He’s the young, ambitious, go-getter type.”

This was a surprise. Julian had never mentioned Ciaran’s age. “Well, I don’t know what I’ll cook.”

He offered an appeasing smile. “I’m sure you can rustle up something without going to too much trouble. A simple chilli or curry will be fine.”

“I think he should have offered for us all to eat out, now that the restaurants are open again.”

Julian looked uncomfortable. “I just want to show him the new way I’ve been collating the figures and suggest it as a possible strategy for the whole team to use.”

Nicole didn’t want to dampen the celebratory mood, but she was far from happy about having to entertain Julian’s boss just so he could demonstrate his data management fetish.

After finishing dinner, they took what remained of the champagne through to the living room and chatted about their respective days. Julian had returned to his usual routine of visiting customers three days a week and spending two days at the local Blackburn office, but Nicole—who worked as a part-time bookkeeper for a local electronic circuit board manufacturer—was still working from home.

“So,” she said, turning the champagne flute by the stem, “When will a decision be made about your possible promotion?”

“I’m not exactly sure. To be honest, I’m astonished I’m even being considered.”

“Nonsense. You put an awful lot into your job.”

Julian offered another self-deprecating expression. “I know most of my colleagues see me as the office nerd—”

“I’m sure they don’t.” This wasn’t entirely true. She’d seen the expressions on her own friends’ faces when she’d first introduced them to Julian. But they were only looking at the surface and not at the kind, caring person he actually was.

“Yes they do. Whenever we go on sales conferences, they think I’m boring because I don’t drink myself into a stupor and join in with their childish banter.”

“How old are they?”

“Not that young. A couple are in the mid-twenties, but some are well into their thirties. I’m only forty-one, but they make me feel like the office grandpa half the time.”

“There’s a reason I chose a more mature husband.”

As she squeezed his hand, he grinned ruefully. “To be fair, I’ve never acted like that, even when I was younger.”

Nicole tried to imagine her husband as a drunk and giggling teenager. “No, I don’t suppose you have.”

“But if the board does support Ciaran’s recommendation, it’ll mean a decent pay rise, plus a bigger car allowance.”

“Really?” She hadn’t even considered the financial benefits yet.

“And my annual bonus can be up to fifteen percent of my salary, whereas at the moment it’s capped to ten.”

She thought about replacing the horrible ‘buttercup’ bathroom tiles which had come with the house. Or replacing their old cooker with a six-ring range. “Would the new salary mean we could think about getting the bathroom or kitchen refurbished?”

Julian put his arm around her. “We could. Alternatively, we could sell up and buy one of those executive homes on Parkside Grange.”

“Really?” The houses up there were fabulous, huge, red-bricked buildings with sweeping lawns and double garages. Although she’d never been that interested in material wealth, or the men who pursued it, she loved the idea of a more elegant house with a big garden she could really invest a lot of time in.

“Let’s not count our eggs too soon, but I think a house up there would be well within our means.”

She rubbed her leg against his. “Shall we finish our bubbles in bed?”

He guffawed again, killing the mood. “I need to get a few bits of work done first, I’m afraid.”

Nicole forced a smile, waited until he’d left the room, and then watched Love Island while she drank the champagne. She’d gone to bed and fallen asleep before Julian finished whatever he’d been working on in their office.

* * * *

For Ciaran’s visit, Nicole decided to repeat a recipe she’d used before: slow-cooking a shoulder of lamb and serving it with minted new potatoes and steamed vegetables. Dessert would be just fresh berries served with a bought sorbet. If he complained, she'd be happy to point out that dinner wasn't her idea.

Thanks to Julian obsessing over his world-beating algorithm, Nicole spent Saturday morning tidying the house and most of the afternoon prepping dinner. Just as she'd finally lowered herself into the bath for a little peace and quiet before getting dressed, Julian emerged from his office and came into the bathroom for a shave and shower. He babbled incessantly throughout, which she knew meant he was a lot more nervous than he'd let on. Determined not to let him down, she soothed herself by imagining life in one of the big houses on Parkside Grange with more than one bathroom. She might be able to bathe in peace for once.

She decided to wear her hair down and only applied a little makeup—just a touch of mascara and a subtle hint of lippy. She picked flat shoes and a pale blue, wraparound summer dress with a fitted waist.

When she walked downstairs, she found Julian looking through the bottles of red in the rack. He'd dressed in a hideous yellow V-necked sweater over a shirt and tie, and pale green chinos.

“Don't you think you're a little too... colourful?” she asked, trying to find a nice way of hinting he looked like an advert for a gay golf tournament. The sweater had been a gift from his mother, and Nicole had hidden it at the back of his wardrobe.

“I was trying to look casual. Do you think I should wear a suit?”

She laughed and shook her head. “Maybe lose the tie.” As he undid the knot, she had another idea. “It's quite warm tonight, so you probably don't need the jumper, either.”

“Really?”

“Just wear the shirt, maybe undo the button at your collar, and roll your cuffs back. It'll make you look relaxed.”

“Right, yes. Good idea.” Julian galloped upstairs and came back a minute later sans sweater, though with his hair sticking up.

Nicole smiled as she stroked it back into place. It was still completely black, though slightly thinning. “There, now you look less like a canary.”

He gave an exaggerated laugh.

“Are you okay, hon?”

“Yeah, course.” His flickery smile told her otherwise.

She stroked his arm. “Just be yourself. Tonight’s not an interview, so relax and enjoy it.”

He nodded repeatedly, then went back to choosing a bottle of red. “I’ve put a white in the fridge already, but I think I should open one of these now and let it breathe.”

“I think you should let yourself breathe.”

He gripped his chosen bottle. “I just want tonight to be a success. I need to show him the data output for this week’s figures so he can see how the standard deviation shifts when you take into account—”

“Stop!” Nicole laughed at his startled expression. “All I’m hearing is blah-blah-blah.”

Julian followed her into the kitchen. “You’re a bookkeeper. Surely you understand the advantages of being able to get an instant snapshot of ___”

“Blah-blah-blah. Tell Ciaran, not me. Now, let me check the lamb.”

Julian returned to the dining room with the corkscrew to open the red, and Nicole lit the gas under the pan of new potatoes.

When the doorbell rang, Julian came into the kitchen, his eyes wide. “Ciaran’s here.”

“Maybe you should let him in, then. Since it’s a nice evening, how about we have pre-dinner drinks on the patio?”

“G-good idea.”

“Take him out to the garden now, and I’ll join you as soon as I’ve got the veg in the steamer.”

“Yes. Right.”

Julian disappeared. A moment later she heard mumbled conversation as the two men headed down the hall and through the dining room to the patio doors. She gave them a couple of minutes before heading out to meet their guest.

“Ah, here she is,” Julian said as she stepped out onto the patio. “Nicole, this is Ciaran. Ciaran, this is my lovely wife, Nicole.”

She tried to hide her surprise. Ciaran was nothing like she’d expected. He was incredibly good-looking with dark hair and piercing blue eyes that sparkled. She finally found her voice. “Hi Ciaran, it’s nice to meet you.”

He flashed her a dazzling smile and held out his hand. “Nicole. Good to meet you, too.”

“Drinks,” Julian said, clapping his hands together a little too loudly. “What can I get you, Ciaran?”

“A beer would be good, if you’ve got one.”

“Beer, yes of course. Nicole?”

“I’ll have a glass of white, please hon.”

After Julian had gone inside, Ciaran nodded towards the garden. “You’ve got this nice.”

“Thanks. I know it’s only small, but I enjoy pottering around when I can.”

She let her eyes wander over his body as he walked across the lawn towards the flowerbed by the back fence. He obviously worked out; his arms and shoulders were clearly defined under his fitted t-shirt. His stomach was flat, his waist narrow. As he crouched down to look closer at the flowers, she got a good view of his faded designer jeans hugging his muscled thighs and pert backside.

He narrowed his eyes. “I’m picking up a smell. It’s familiar but I can’t place it.”

She walked over and stood next to him, conscious that her bare legs were very close to his face. “It’ll be that,” she said, pointing at a white-flowered bush. “It’s a liquorice plant.”

“Liquorice, that’s it. That’s what I can smell.” Ciaran straightened and was about to say something else when Julian returned with their drinks.

Julian passed Nicole her wine, then handed one of the bottles of Beck’s to Ciaran, raising his own bottle in toast. “Good health.”

“Yeah, cheers.” Ciaran took a swig, then pointed his bottle towards the flowers. “I was just admiring your garden.”

“Ah, this is Nicole’s domain. Though I’m tasked with cutting the grass, she’s the one who chooses the plants and tends to them.” He leaned closer to Ciaran, as if revealing a secret. “She’s the one who provides all the glamour, as it were.”

Ciaran caught Nicole’s eye and smiled. “Yeah, I can see that.”

She felt a warmth in her cheeks and between her legs, and had to look away. Her husband’s boss was really sexy. “I should go check the dinner.”

After draining the potatoes, she added butter and mint and put them in a serving bowl. Once her cheeks had cooled down, she went back to the patio door and called them inside. Julian nodded and held out his arm to let his boss come into the room first. Nicole saw Ciaran’s eyes wander over her body. Her cheeks heating again, she returned to the kitchen.

She carried the serving bowls through to the dining room and placed them in the centre of the table. When laying the place settings on three sides of the rectangular table earlier, she’d assumed that Julian would allow their guest to sit at the head of the table. Instead he’d taken that seat, which meant she and Ciaran would be facing each other. “Careful, everything’s still quite hot.”

Ciaran smiled at her. “It smells great.”

When she’d fetched everything from the kitchen, she uncovered the serving bowls as Julian fussed over the bottle of red he’d opened earlier, pouring a glass for himself and Ciaran. Nicole stuck to white. Red wine discoloured her teeth after just a couple of glasses. She sat, passing Ciaran the large serving spoons. “Help yourself.”

He grinned at her invitation, and she felt her cheeks warming again. Ciaran made free with the lamb and vegetables but only took one small potato.

Nicole began to fret. “Don’t you like potatoes?”

He laughed. “If only. I love potatoes, but I try not to eat any carbs.”

Her gaze automatically dropped down to his torso, and she realised he’d seen her do it.

“It’s particularly hard for me, being Irish and all. Potatoes are in my blood, you might say.”

Nicole glanced at her husband, who looked as surprised as she was. “You don’t sound Irish.”

“I was born in Cork, but my parents moved over here with my dad’s job when I was two. We moved around this country quite a bit over the following years, so I was never anywhere long enough to pick up any accent.”

Julian joined the conversation. “Do you still have family there?”

Ciaran nodded. “Yeah. In fact, my parents moved back when my dad retired, so all my family are in Ireland. I don’t have any siblings, but I have a lot of cousins.” He smiled at Nicole. “How about you, are you from round here?”

Julian answered before she had the chance. “I grew up in Hastings, and Nicole’s from Durham.”

Ciaran nodded. “How come you moved to Lancashire?” He’d directed the question at Nicole, but once again Julian answered.

“It was when I landed the job with GLP.”

Ciaran and Nicole shared a secret smile as Julian, oblivious to their guest trying to include the hostess in the conversation, launched off into a detailed history of his various roles at the company.

Ciaran tried again. “So, where did you two meet?”

“My previous job was in Nottingham, where Nicole was studying.” Julian took a sip of his wine and smiled at her. “I went to a lively little restaurant one night and fell for the most beautiful waitress they had.”

Nicole shrugged. “Most of my student friends had part-time jobs. We needed the money to eat.”

Ciaran nodded his understanding. “Yeah, I worked through my university years, too. Bar work mainly, but also a few shifts with a local swimming club. I’m a qualified swimming teacher.”

“Really?” Nicole couldn’t prevent the image of him in a tight pair of Speedos flashing before her eyes.

“Yeah. I did a lot of swimming as a kid and got the coaching licence as a way of making extra cash. I also did a couple of summers working as a lifeguard in Spanish hotels. That was a breeze—sitting on a high chair in the sun while kids splashed around on inflatable unicorns.”

Nicole suspected he'd have been great eye candy for the kids' mothers, too.

Ciaran picked up his glass. “So, what did you study in Nottingham?”

“She was—” Julian stopped as Nicole glared at him. “Sorry.” He gave an apologetic smile, then forked in a mouthful of lamb.

Nicole turned to Ciaran, who was smirking. “I did a BA in classics, which meant I studied Ancient Rome and Greece.”

“That sounds...” He blinked. “What sorts of things did you study?”

“The cultures. Art, literature, mythology. Even the language. I chose Latin.”

“Fascinating. So, do you work as a teacher or historian?”

Julian scoffed again and Nicole rolled her eyes. “No, I work part-time as a bookkeeper for a small local company that produces heating controllers.”

Ciaran's eyebrows went up. “Really? Well, I guess there's not much call for classical art and literature experts, but the bookkeeping sounds interesting.”

She laughed. “It's not, believe me.”

“No, I meant the fact you can do it. I'm looking for a bookkeeper right now.”

Nicole glanced at Julian, then back at Ciaran. “Don't you have an office full of qualified accountants?”

“Yeah, but I have an interest in another business with one of my cousins. I always keep that side separate from my full-time employment.” He went back to eating, and little more was said until the main course was finished.

As Nicole stood and leaned over the table to collect the plates, she caught Ciaran checking out her breasts. He offered to help clear the table, but she insisted he remain seated. On each subsequent trip with the dirty crockery, she felt his gaze following her movements. The heat between her legs confirmed she enjoyed the attention.

By the time she returned with dessert, the men were talking about Julian's program for collating sales figures. Or rather, Julian was talking about it. While her husband waxed lyrical about self-populating projection formulae, Nicole ate her berries and sorbet and sipped her wine. She noticed Ciaran only ate the berries.

Julian had hardly touched his own dessert, now in full-on data-analyst mode. "...So, if everyone spent ten minutes a day updating their figures, we'd have an instant snapshot. It'd make the monthly updates almost redundant. Those figures would be—"

"I'm not sure I understand how you'd be able to accomplish that," Ciaran said with a frown.

Julian stood up and smiled. "I'll just run some figures through the program and print out what I mean. It'll be easier to show you then." Without another word, he left the room.

Ciaran laughed as Julian took the stairs two at a time. "I've never known anyone so passionate about numbers."

Nicole smiled. "Hmm, me neither."

He picked up his glass and stared at her over the rim. "You're not what I expected."

"I could say the same." Her stomach tightened.

He took a sip of wine, then put his glass down on the table. "How on earth did Basil Fawlty get such a gorgeous wife?"

She smiled at the flattery, but then frowned. "Basil Fawlty? Is that what you call him in the office?"

He shook his head. "That's how some of the guys in the sales room refer to him, but it's light-hearted and mainly based on his appearance. He's a respected member of the team, hence me putting him forward for the regional manager's role."

Nicole stared into Ciaran's blue eyes, trying to work out if he was being sincere. She found it hard to believe that her husband was the type to earn respect from his peers.

“You have a fabulous body.”

His words shocked her into laughing out loud. “Er... thank you. I think that your no-carb regime is working for your body, too.”

He gave a confident smile. “Maybe we should let our bodies get acquainted. Allow them to enjoy each other.”

Nicole stood and brushed a stray lock of hair from her face. She could feel her cheeks burning. “I’ll get the coffee.”

She walked to the kitchen and he followed her. When she reached the counter, he stepped close behind her and slid his arms around her waist.

Although her heart pounded in her chest, she kept her voice low and calm. “Ciaran, this isn’t appropriate.”

“No, I know.” His mouth was close to her ear, his breath on her neck making her shudder.

She placed her hands on his and tried to free herself. “Please, I can’t —”

“I can smell your arousal.”

Her jaw dropped but she couldn’t answer, worried that it might be true. She remembered him crouching by the liquorice plant as she stood right next to him. Upstairs, the printer in Julian’s home office beeped and then whirled into action.

Ciaran released her and she turned to face him. He took out his phone and touched the screen a few times, then handed it to Nicole. “Send yourself a text. That’ll give me your number, and you mine. I really do need a bookkeeper for my side venture.”

Even though she didn’t believe him, she tapped in her number and sent a blank text. Her own phone beeped from the kitchen table and he smiled, slipping his phone back into his pocket. At the sound of Julian’s footsteps on the stairs, Ciaran made his way back to the dining room and she turned on the percolator.

Nicole stayed in the kitchen for a few minutes to allow her heartbeat to slow and her cheeks to cool. She couldn’t believe what Ciaran had just done, or that she’d been stupid enough to give him her number. Though her body still tingled, she was angry with herself.

After loading the dishwasher, she took three cups and saucers through to the dining room. Ciaran was reading the sheet of paper Julian had printed and didn't look up. She returned to the kitchen for the percolator and cream, then sat opposite Ciaran again. "There's cheese and biscuits if you're allowed them on your diet?" she teased, determined not to let him see how much he'd affected her.

He looked up and gave her another mischievous smile which kicked her heart rate up again. "The cheese, yes. The crackers, no. I don't need anything else, but please, you two go ahead."

She looked at Julian, who shook his head. "Not for me, thank you."

Nicole poured the coffees. "I suppose sugar is out of the question."

His eyes seemed to twinkle again. "Definitely, but I'd love some cream."

This surprised her. "Cream's allowed?"

"Oh yeah. I have lots of cream."

He'd stared directly into her eyes as he spoke, and wet heat bloomed between her legs once more. She squeezed her thighs together, worried that both men would be able to smell her arousal. "Aren't there a lot of calories in cream?"

"Yeah." He smiled again "And protein. But I'm not too worried about the calories. I just don't eat sugar, or anything that's metabolised to sugars."

"And I always thought cream was bad for me." Nicole flashed her eyes, knowing her husband wouldn't notice.

Ciaran flirted back. "No, you can have as much cream as you like. Just don't have it in a cake, because they're made with flour."

"Ah, she does like flowers," Julian said, smiling sweetly at her.

Nicole and Ciaran shared another smile.

While the men discussed the figures on the sheet, and how using this principle could work within the framework of their sales data, Nicole drank three cups of coffee and watched Ciaran. Not just his expressive face, but also how his biceps and triceps flexed when he moved his arms to point at the sheet or pick up his cup. Every so often, he'd flash her one of his smiles.

She was on dangerous ground, but it'd been a while since she'd felt so alive.

Julian offered Ciaran another glass of red.

"No thanks, I'd better not have any more."

"Are there carbs in the wine?" Nicole teased, smiling at him.

Ciaran chuckled. "I'm actually more concerned about staying under the legal limit for my drive home."

"I can make fresh coffee," she offered.

He shook his head. "Not for me. I probably won't be able to sleep after the three cups I've already had."

She bit her lip and wondered if he'd be lying awake thinking about her. She was pretty sure she'd be thinking about him...

"Well," Julian said, holding out the sheet of figures he'd been obsessing over. "You can take this with—"

"No, it's okay." Ciaran smiled. "I understand it now, and I think it's a good idea. You should implement it for a trial period as soon as your new position's confirmed."

Nicole saw her husband's face light up with pride, his moustache curling up like a dead caterpillar.

Ciaran turned to her. "It was lovely to meet you, and thanks so much for dinner. It was delicious."

She tilted her head to one side and gave him a wide smile. "It was lovely to meet you, too. I'm sorry about teasing you with the potatoes."

"Oh I love to be teased." He shook her outstretched hand. "I was serious about the bookkeeping thing. You mentioned you work part-time—what days don't you work?"

Her heartbeat kicked up its pace again. "Usually Tuesday and Friday, but with the home-working thing at the moment, it's more flexible."

He nodded. "That's great. Maybe we could meet for an hour so I can explain what sort of thing I'd need?"

She held her breath and glanced at Julian, who seemed thrilled at the prospect of his wife doing work for his boss. She gave Ciaran a brief nod. "Sure, that'll be fine."

He gave another smile and left. After Julian had closed the door, he clasped his hands in front of his chest. “Well, I think it’s safe to say that tonight was a success. Not only was your cooking delicious, but he seemed quite taken with your accountancy skills.”

Nicole shrugged. What Ciaran actually wanted from her wouldn’t be related to bookkeeping. The man was so bloody arrogant and seemed to have a complete disregard for others—namely the guy he was proposing to promote—and yet she’d still gone along with his actions, passing on her contact details in an instant. Her cheeks flamed.

How desperate did that make me look?

They wandered back to the dining room and collected their wine glasses, then adjourned to the living room. Julian seemed to be in a very good mood, and since Nicole had spent the previous hour or so with a wet crotch, she sat next to him on the sofa and snuggled into his side.

“Ciaran seemed to like your algorithm,” she said, using the sort of language that she thought might get him in the mood to scratch her itch.

“Hmm, he did, didn’t he?” His eyes shone with pride.

She rubbed her calf against his leg. “I’m glad that all your extra effort is finally being recognised.” She placed her hand on his thigh. “I might even reward you myself.”

Julian looked down at her hand and bit his lip. “I was just going to run some more figures through my program.”

Nicole slid her hand up his thigh and over his crotch. “Do that tomorrow.”

“It’d only take me five minutes.” He gave another smile, and she realised he was teasing.

“If what I want from you only takes five minutes, you’ll be in trouble.” She felt his cock start to swell beneath her hand.

“Do we need to tidy up before we go to bed?”

She shook her head in dismay. “I’m offering you hot sex. Stop thinking about algorithms and chores.”

Julian abandoned what was left of the expensive red wine in his glass and allowed her to lead him up to their bedroom. He quickly removed his shirt, revealing his tall, wiry frame and thick band of black hair running from his chest down his stomach, and Nicole undid the belt of her dress and slipped it back off her shoulders.

He removed the rest of his clothes and climbed into bed, his eyes glued on her body as she unclipped her bra and rolled her panties down her thighs.

She moved to the side of the bed and smiled at him. “Lie on your back.”

He paused, a little uncertain. “I’d be happy to—”

She shook her head. “No, not tonight.” Her husband was patient and generous when it came to foreplay; she sometimes struggled to get wet enough for penetration. Tonight, that wouldn’t be a problem.

Julian lay flat on his back and smiled up at her as she straddled him. She leaned forward and dragged her long brown hair over his face, which she knew he liked. Then she gripped his erection, pointed it at her entrance and dropped down on his length.

He let out a groan, probably surprised by how wet she was.

Nicole rocked her hips forwards and back, grinding her clit against his pubic bone and clenching around his shaft. He slid his hands up over her hips and around to cup her breasts. As he squeezed her nipples, she felt her orgasm begin to wind like a clock-spring. She bore down harder, mashing her clit against him. The delicious tension inside her increased as she inched closer. Bucking her hips faster, she willed him to come at the same time—to hell with her warnings about him not lasting five minutes.

She closed her eyes and remembered Ciaran’s breath on her neck, his voice in her ear. I can smell your arousal.

Nicole’s legs began to shake. She opened her eyes. Julian’s jaw was clenched tight—the expression in his eyes one of turmoil. He was afraid to come.

Her wave broke and she let out a grunt. She stroked his chest. “Come now.”

His body tensed and his eyes rolled up. He was coming, and she rode her own wave as they both cried out and writhed on the bed.

Eventually they stilled, and Nicole lay down on his chest. She could feel his heart beating and presumed he'd be able to feel hers, too. It'd been a while since they'd had sex with so much passion. Or maybe it'd be more accurate to say since she'd felt so much passion.

He slipped his arms around her waist and squeezed. "That was a pleasant surprise."

She smiled at his after-sex talk. "A pleasant surprise?"

"What I meant was, I wasn't expecting you to be so—"

"Maybe I'm finally coming round to the eroticism of algorithms."

He laughed, the resulting shudder easing his now-flaccid cock out of her. "I don't think it was that."

She tensed. Had he picked up her flirting with Ciaran? Maybe he hadn't been as oblivious to the innuendo as she'd assumed. "Oh?"

"No. I think your mind is already planning the garden in one of those big houses on Parkside Grange."

"Yeah, maybe I am." For once relieved by his obliviousness, she slipped out of bed and headed for the bathroom. After turning on the shower, she quickly brushed her teeth at the basin and then stepped under the jets.

By the time she returned to the bedroom, Julian's eyes were half-closed. He'd drunk more than usual, and she suspected he'd also expended quite a bit of nervous energy in the build up to tonight's dinner. On top of that, she'd ridden him like a pogo stick.

Settling down on her own side of the bed, Nicole closed her eyes and thought about Ciaran. He was a dangerous mix, but she couldn't deny the excitement he made her feel.

It'd be risky—but then, she'd taken risks before and gotten away with them. Though in truth, the thrill she'd experienced then hadn't outweighed the self-loathing she'd felt afterwards.

$$\Psi$$

$$\Xi$$

Chapter Two

Nicole stopped working and stretched, glad to have the sun warming her at her improvised desk at the patio table. She was more than welcome to use the office they'd created upstairs while Julian was out at work, but her sunny spot just felt more relaxed. Her phone buzzed. It was a text from Ciaran. A long one.

Hi Nicole

Re: Discussion about bookkeeping

Would it be possible for you to come into the GLP offices tomorrow lunchtime? I thought I'd have enough time in the afternoon to be able to meet in town for a coffee, but my PA has just reminded me there's a video conference I can't miss.

Would 12.30 work for you?

She replied, saying that'd be fine, but she barely got a thing done for the rest of the afternoon, or before Julian got home later that evening.

He already knew about her appointment with Ciaran. "It's a shame you're visiting on a day when I'm out of the office. I'd have liked to show you around the place."

"That would have been nice, but I think Ciaran chose the day he thought would cause least disruption to my week."

He nodded. "That smells like curry," he said, looking over her shoulder at the pan on the hob.

"It is. Go get changed, and I'll serve it up."

They ate at the dining table and chatted freely about their respective days. Julian had spent his day at the GLP office and seemed particularly pleased that she may be able to do some work for Ciaran's side project.

“Isn’t he breaking your company’s code of conduct by having an interest in another business?”

“How d’you mean?”

“I mean some companies don’t allow their employees to moonlight. They tend to see it as a conflict of interest.”

“Ah, right.” Julian tore off a chunk of naan bread. “I suppose it might be construed as a problem if his side interest was in the same business sector as GLP, but from what I understand, the venture with his cousin is engineering-based.”

“Is he an engineer?”

“I think his cousin is—or at least was—but they employ people to do the actual engineering work. From what I understand, they import individual components and then construct and sell the finished product. Some sort of filtration pump, apparently.”

Nicole chewed while she thought about what Ciaran could want her to do. “Do they sell the pumps in Ireland or in the UK?” She hoped this wouldn’t involve relearning the entire HMRC tome on import tax which had sent her to sleep during her exam period.

“I assume both, because he seems to have concerns about Brexit. His business is in the EU, so a trade deal being agreed or not could have a big impact.” Julian smiled. “I’m sure he’ll explain things when you meet up.”

“Yeah. So, where will you be tomorrow?”

“East Midlands. Leicester and Nottingham.”

“Any more news on the promotion?”

“Not as yet.” He raised his eyebrows and gave a teasing grin. “But I did notice that there are at least two houses on Parkside Grange on the market.”

She laughed and shook her head. “Let’s wait until you hear before we start making plans for spending money we don’t have.”

Julian nodded. “Fair enough.”

They finished eating, then had coffee sitting at the patio table enjoying the last of the evening sunshine.

“Is there a visitor’s carpark at GLP?” Nicole asked.

“There are a couple of areas reserved for visitors’ cars, but there’s always spaces available, even if those two are occupied.” He sipped his coffee, then looked at her. “What will you wear?”

“Wear?”

“Mmm.”

“I thought a tight lycra miniskirt, thigh-length boots and sparkly boob-tube.”

Julian guffawed. “Although Ciaran might have appreciated you wearing that on Saturday night, I think he’d prefer something more formal for the office.”

“Oh? Why d’you say that?”

“He likes the staff to look smart, says it reflects on the company’s image. We have casual dress on Fridays, but when one girl came to work in a pair of patterned running tights, Ciaran said they were a little too casual.” Julian’s moustache twitched as he smirked. “Maybe he only said that because Sharon really doesn’t have the figure to be wearing skin-tight running gear.”

Nicole had intended wearing her jeans because they were comfortable. “I’m not actually GLP staff, so his rule shouldn’t apply to me.”

“True. It’s up to you, I just thought I’d mention it.”

She was silent for a moment, then looked at him. “I didn’t know there was a casual dress day. You wear a suit every day of the week.”

“It’s not compulsory,” he said with a shrug. “Besides, I’m more comfortable in a suit.”

She smiled, rubbing his arm affectionately. “Of course you are, dear.”

After they’d loaded the dishwasher and tidied the kitchen, Julian disappeared into his office for an hour and Nicole decided to have a bath.

Lying in the hot soapy water, she closed her eyes and thought about her upcoming meeting with Ciaran. Worries about the extent of her import tax knowledge aside, she was far more concerned about being alone with him in his office.

She was still angry at herself for the way she'd behaved on Saturday night and should have told him in no uncertain terms that he was out of order for slipping his arms around her waist. For a man to behave like that with the wife of a colleague was outrageous. If another man had done that, she'd have slapped his face, but she'd been so unnerved by his comment about being able to smell her arousal.

Who says that to a woman?

Then she'd spent the rest of the evening flirting like a tramp. Nicole supposed that Ciaran behaved that way with every woman he met. Being so good-looking, he probably got away with it more often than not. It was infuriating that she'd allowed herself to be so shallow.

Nicole sighed, held her breath and slipped below the surface. After counting to twenty, she sat up and decided to leave washing her hair until her shower tomorrow morning. Instead, and seemingly at odds with her resolve to have nothing to do with Ciaran, she started shaving her legs.

* * * *

Having allowed the usual forty-five minutes that it took Julian to get to work, it took Nicole only twenty-five minutes to drive to the GLP office outside rush hour. Far too early to walk in, she listened to music in her car for fifteen minutes before heading for the glass double doors.

She'd ended up choosing a smart pair of black trousers and black high heels with a white blouse. With her hair pinned up and wearing just a little mascara and lipstick, she was trying to convey a professional appearance.

Reception was a large space with a tiled floor, huge windows, and chrome and leather seats. A pretty blonde sat behind a raised counter. "Hi. Can I help you?"

Nicole realised she didn't actually know Ciaran's last name. "Nicole Steadman. I have a twelve-thirty appointment with—"

“Ah, yes.” She put a tick on a list of names she had in front of her. “Please take a seat, and I’ll let Ciaran know you’re here.”

Nicole moved to one of the chrome and leather seats as the receptionist picked up the phone. The tightness in her stomach reminded her of the last interview she’d attended.

A door at the end of the room opened and Ciaran, looking fabulous in a perfectly fitted charcoal grey suit, white shirt and tasteful silk tie, walked over and smiled. “Nicole, thanks so much for coming in.”

Nicole stood and smiled, wondering whether to shake hands. Ciaran ran his hand down her upper arm, then looked over towards the receptionist. “Fleur, do I need a visitor’s badge for Nicole?”

“Not if you promise to keep an eye on her,” she said with a flirtatious smile.

Ciaran laughed. “Oh, I promise to do exactly that.” He smiled at Nicole. “Come on, let’s head upstairs.”

His manner and words felt too casual, and too intimate. She reminded herself to make it clear that this was going to be nothing more than a working relationship.

As they walked up the stairs, passing several other members of staff, Ciaran turned to her. “Have you eaten? I can get some sandwiches sent up if —”

“No, I’m fine, thanks.”

When they walked through an outer office, a middle-aged lady sitting at a desk looked up and smiled.

“Any chance of a couple of coffees, Bern?”

The PA smiled and looked at Nicole. “I can also offer tea, if you’d prefer.”

“Tea would be lovely. Thank you.”

Ciaran led her into his office, which was a huge square room with a view over the business park and the moors beyond. “Sorry,” he said as he slipped off his jacket and hung it on a metal stand in the corner. “I don’t drink tea, so it never occurs to me to offer it.” He pointed at a table and chairs beneath the windows. “Please, take a seat.”

Nicole sat at one side, and Ciaran took the seat adjacent so they were sitting at right-angles to each other, knees almost touching. Although it was much less intimidating than him sitting behind his huge desk and her perched on a hardbacked chair, she still felt a little uncomfortable.

“I thought today,” he said, looking into her eyes, “I could just give you a brief overview of our setup and explain what we need regarding the accounts.”

“Okay.” She tried to hold his gaze. His cologne intoxicated her, and what felt like a weak electric current tingled in her lower stomach.

“Has Julian told you about what’s involved?”

“A little. He mentioned buying parts and having a team of engineers who make up some equipment you then sell.”

“Yeah, that’s pretty much it. But we’re thinking of changing it a little. At the moment, we—”

The office door opened, and Ciaran’s PA brought in a tray bearing their drinks and a plate of biscuits.

Ciaran flashed her his gorgeous smile. “Thanks, Bernice. You can take your lunch break now, if you like. I don’t think I’ll need anything else before two.”

Bern nodded, then left.

Ciaran passed Nicole her tea. “Milk and sugar?”

“Just milk, thanks.” She picked up a shortbread finger and smiled. “Luckily, I’m not on the same diet as you.”

He let his gaze drop to her body then looked back into her eyes. “You don’t need to diet.”

She let her own gaze sweep over his chest and flat belly. “Neither do you.” So much for keeping things professional.

He smiled at her flattery. “My dad spent much of his working life travelling around the country visiting customers, and as a consequence he had an awful diet—all fast food and far too much chocolate. He piled on weight and developed type 2 diabetes in his fifties. I believe obesity is genetic. All the fat kids I knew at school had fat parents, and I have a fat parent. I'm trying to give myself the best chance of not becoming like my dad."

Nicole nodded. "Fair enough. So, you said you were changing your business?"

"Yes. Like you said, we purchase parts—from Ireland when possible, but from elsewhere in Europe when not—and put them all together. We have a team of six engineers doing the work, three of whom are retired and work on a part-time basis. Then we sell the assembled product and also carry out service contracts for the maintenance. But what we're hoping to do is make a change to leasing the equipment to our customers rather than selling it. Saves them the initial expense of buying and gives us guaranteed regular income. Sporadic peaks and deep troughs are hard to ride in this economy."

"And you need me for...?"

His eyes bore into hers. She held her breath. That wasn't how she'd meant to phrase her question.

Ciaran gave her one of his knowing smiles. "What I need is for you to help implement the changes to our accounting system. The spreadsheets we use simply have sales and receipts, plus wages and overheads. When we lease the equipment we'll need to take depreciation into account, and we're not sure how that'll work."

"Will I need to know about the import and export protocol? I'm afraid I have limited experience in that."

"I can get you up to speed with what you'll need to know, but with the way your Prime Minister's behaving, we haven't a clue what's going to happen."

She laughed. "My Prime Minister?"

"At times like this," he said, "I wave my Irish passport in the air."

"I don't blame you. I certainly didn't vote for him. He acts like a spoilt child backed up by his bully friends."

"So you're not a fan?"

She shook her head. "Julian votes Tory. Always has done, always will do. I didn't mind David Cameron, but I haven't got time for Boris. He's witty and likeable as a TV gameshow host, but I don't think he's up to the job of running a country. What's more, I wouldn't trust him as far as I could throw him."

Ciaran stared for a second, then leaned in and kissed her. Nicole was too shocked to respond. She didn't kiss him back, but she kept her lips parted and didn't snatch her head away.

After a couple of seconds, he pulled back and looked into her eyes. "I'm sorry, but I've wanted to do that since I first saw you walk out through your patio door."

She was dumbstruck and angry. Angry with him for his arrogance, angry at herself for allowing it to happen, and even angrier at her body for tingling all over and flooding her crotch with a hot need.

"Ciaran—"

"I know it was wrong. Just as I know my behaviour on Saturday was wrong, but—"

"There are no buts. I'm a married woman. What's more, I'm married to someone who works for you. This is totally unacceptable. For both of us."

"I know, and I'm sorry. I shouldn't have..." He shook his head.

"Is there actually any need for me to be here, other than for stroking your ego?"

"What?"

"The bookkeeping thing you said you—"

"Yes. Yes, of course there is." He sighed. "I didn't ask you here just so I could make a pass. I do need a bookkeeper, and I'm sorry for letting my personal feelings..." He stood up and walked to his desk to pick up a pile of printed sheets.

"I've made some notes for you to take away and have a look at," he said. "I'll also send you the spreadsheets we've used for the last couple of years' accounts so you can see how we've done it in the past." He handed the stack to Nicole, then sat down in the seat opposite, finally keeping the table between them.

She glanced at the papers, then back into his face. Although she was still angry, she couldn't deny that to have a man who looked like Ciaran apparently captivated with her was flattering.

“Tell me about Julian,” he said. “How did you two end up together?”

“Why?” She couldn’t help smiling. Many of her friends had asked the same question.

Her smile seemed to relax him. “I like Julian, and I respect his capacity to manipulate figures and quickly solve problems. His ability to assimilate sales data quickly has been key in the months I’ve been here. I suspect my predecessor benefitted personally from Julian’s knowledge. I think he’d used what Julian had suggested and claimed it as his own idea, and as a result he got offered a better job with a rival company.”

“I didn’t know that.” Nicole was simultaneously proud and irritated.

“I can’t prove it, but nothing else the guy had ever done in his time here suggested he was a forward thinker. After I started here, Julian explained the details to me, and I asked if he was the one who’d thought of it. He just offered that shy smile of his, and I knew.”

“Did you tell him that his boss had pretended it’d been his idea?”

“I didn’t see the point, but that’s partly why I put Julian forward for the manager’s role.” Ciaran sat back. “I know he seems an odd fit for a manager—he’s shy, unassuming, and not the best at interacting with people—but he’s damn good at his job.” He smiled. “I’m hoping he can lead by example rather than inspiring his team with his motivational skills. We have HR for all the touchy-feely crap. I want someone to show them how it should be done, not to tell them how they’d like it done.”

Nicole had never heard anyone speak so well of her husband. “Thank you.”

He shook his head. “I’m not flattering him to try to look better in your eyes, I’m merely stating how he fits into my plans here at GLP. But my question still stands. How did he manage to win your heart?” He flashed her another gorgeous smile. “I doubt you fell for him because of his ability to manipulate sales data.”

She bit her lip and stared into his eyes for a second, then shrugged. “You told me about your fat father and his diabetes, and how you don’t want to end up like him.”

Ciaran nodded.

“Well, my dad’s the main reason why I chose someone like Julian to spend my life with.” She swallowed, surprised she was actually revealing this to a relative stranger. “When I was a child, I thought my parents were perfect. My mum was pretty and always happy, and all my friends at primary school liked my dad because he made them laugh when they came round to our house. But by the time I reached my teens, that had all changed. Mum had stopped smiling, and my dad had stopped making anyone laugh. He was a selfish bastard who cheated on my mum time and again. He destroyed her with his lies and his false apologies. She became depressed, and her prettiness faded. By the time he eventually left her for good, she wasn’t the same person. Ten years later, she’s still bearing the emotional scars and doesn’t trust men. She lives alone and refuses to let anyone get close.”

Ciaran stared at her, grim-faced and silent.

“I hated my dad for what he’d done, and I haven’t spoken to him in ten years. I know he remarried and quickly separated after he’d cheated on his second wife, but that was ages ago. I haven’t heard anything of him since. At university, I met a nice guy who I thought I could trust, but when I discovered he’d been seeing another girl at the same time, I dumped him. I didn’t intend having a life like my mother’s. Then I met Julian.”

“While working as a waitress.”

She laughed. “Yes. Okay, so he was a bit weird, and my friends thought he was a dork. But he was honest and caring. He was the first man I’d ever known who put my feelings before his own. He made me feel special. He still makes me feel special, and I probably don’t deserve that.” She blinked, remembering the way her body had reacted to Ciaran’s advances, then forced a smile. “So that’s why I’m with the man whose colleagues refer to him as Basil Fawlty.”

“Don’t mention the war,” Ciaran laughed, reaching out to squeeze her hand. “You know that’s an affectionate nickname, right? He’s a good man.”

She nodded.

“But that doesn’t change the way I look at you. The way I feel when I’m with you.” He raised his eyebrows. “Or the way you look at me.”

“Ciaran!” Nicole gave a sigh. “I think of you in the same way that you think of potatoes. Tasty, but ultimately bad for my health.”

He laughed and slapped the table. “That’s a good analogy. I like the idea of being a new potato, hot and tempting, covered in butter.”

“I was thinking of a greasy chip.” She smiled at his hurt expression.

“Well, that’s put me in my place.” He stood and nodded at the pile of papers on the table. “Take those with you and have a read. If you let me have your email address, I’ll send the spreadsheets for you to look at, too.”

Nicole ripped the corner off one of the sheets, took a pen from her bag and jotted her details down. “Here you go.”

“Thanks.” He took the paper from her and walked over to put it on his desk. As Nicole made her way towards the door, Ciaran approached and smiled. “Maybe after you’ve had a chance to read the notes, we could have another chat?”

She nodded, and they stared into each other’s eyes for a split second. Her stomach tightened. Ciaran reached out and gently ran his fingertips down her upper arm. Nicole held her breath, the thrill from his touch sending a shudder to her core. He stepped close, cupped the back of her head with one hand and pulled her head toward his.

As their lips met, Nicole closed her eyes and kissed him back, tasting the coffee on his breath and sucking his tongue when he pushed it into her mouth.

He ran his other hand up her stomach and squeezed her breast, and a groan escaped from her throat. His hand slid downwards, passing over her stomach to her crotch. Her resistance now non-existent, she stood with her feet apart to give him easier access as she ran her hands over the back of his shirt. The muscles in his back flexed under her touch.

Ciaran pushed her against the wall, keeping his mouth clamped to hers, and dragged his finger back and forth over the gusset seam of her trousers. She pushed his head back and looked into his eyes. They were both breathless.

“Ciaran, please... I can’t.”

With deft efficiency, he unsnapped the fastener of her trousers and slid the zip down.

“Ciaran...”

His warm, smooth hand slipped down her tummy and inside her panties. He cupped her mons, then smiled at her. “You’re dripping wet.”

All she could do to respond was let out a stuttering breath.

Ciaran slipped two fingers inside her. She let out a whimper, her nails digging into his bicep. She stared wide-eyed into his face as he finger-fucked her against the wall of his office—an office her husband probably visited often.

Ciaran’s thumb grazed over her clit as his fingers curled up to press against the front wall of her cheating, saturated cunt, and Nicole bit into his shoulder to stifle the scream of her orgasm. The spasms shook her entire body while his thumb continued to circle the nucleus of her pleasure.

She gasped through clenched teeth, fighting to regain control of her body so she could try and salvage some of her dignity. But the slut in her wouldn’t relent, and she squeezed his arm tighter, knowing she could come again.

Ciaran got the message. He removed his thumb from her clit and added a third finger to her cunt. Then, bending his back slightly, he pumped his arm, slamming her against the wall and almost lifting her off her feet.

Nicole dug her nails deeper into his arm and pulled his hair with her other hand as the second climax racked her body. She groaned and sobbed and clenched around his fingers, grinding herself against his hand like a bitch in heat. She knew, even as her juices were drenching his fingers, that she’d hate herself later. But it didn’t stop her from kissing him, pushing her tongue into his mouth and nipping at his lips.

Ciaran eventually stilled his arm and slipped his hand out of her pants. They stood staring at each other, with him looking almost as shocked as she felt.

“I...” He shook his head. “Nicole, I didn’t...”

She tucked her blouse in and fastened her trousers.

“I’m sorry if I forced myself—”

“You didn’t force yourself on me.” The guilt was already creeping over the pleasure like a dark shadow, covering the thrill with a bitter aftertaste of self-loathing. “I let you do it, and I rode your fingers like a slut.” She blinked to clear her eyes. “I’m no better than my...”

Ciaran’s brow creased, and he shook his head. “You’re nothing like your father. You have your husband’s blessing.”

“What?” She wasn’t sure she’d heard him correctly.

“Julian. He knows. He encouraged me.”

“Don’t be absurd.” Nicole shook her head, wondering if he was trying to justify all this. “What makes you think—?”

“He told me you’d enjoy the excitement. Said he’d seen the way the two of us hit it off at your house on Saturday night.”

Nicole opened her mouth to say something but was completely lost for words.

“He said you’d had a fling with a guy you worked with last year, that it’d been just a physical thing.”

She went cold. How could he know about Sam? “He what?”

Ciaran looked puzzled. “Julian explained your relationship was strong enough to withstand your trysts with other men. He even told me on Monday that you’d admitted you were attracted to me.”

Her only admission of attraction had been the fact she’d fucked her husband with abandon as soon as Ciaran had left. “I didn’t tell him that.”

He gave a rueful smile. “Maybe he’s more perceptive than either of us give him credit for.”

Nicole’s mind was still playing catchup. “Ciaran, did Julian tell you that he thought you and I would become lovers?”

“I don’t think ‘lovers’ would be the right word.” For the first time since she’d met him, Ciaran looked less sure of himself. “He told me that he wouldn’t be surprised, or offended, if you decided to enjoy yourself with me.”

“Enjoy myself?” This conversation was becoming surreal. Between the come-down from her adrenalin rush, and a brain flooded with oxytocin and dopamine, she could barely think straight.

“I think, in layman’s terms, he meant he wouldn’t mind if you chose to fuck me. Julian knows you love him, and he’s made it perfectly clear that he loves you. He’s not worried that you’d ever leave him for somebody else, and he’s happy for you to have a little fun every now and then.”

“Julian would never say that. He isn’t...” She shook her head. “That’s not who he is.”

Ciaran looked puzzled. “It’s not something I’d make up. I assumed this was something you’d discussed at length.”

Nicole shook her head, but nothing would clear her thoughts. “I’m sorry, I have to go.”

“Right.” He nodded. “Of course. Please, read the notes and check your email for the spreadsheets. And talk to your husband. I get the impression that he’s perhaps opened up to me about your arrangement a bit prematurely.”

Nicole bit her lip. She wasn’t about to admit that there was no arrangement, and that what she’d done the previous year had actually been a selfish act of infidelity. Numb, she nodded and opened the door.

Bernice was behind her desk in the outer office, eating a sandwich and reading a magazine. Nicole wondered if the older woman had heard her groans and the banging of her backside against the wall while her boss had finger-fucked her to oblivion. If she had, there was no judgement in the friendly smile the PA gave her as Ciaran led Nicole past her desk and back to reception. Nicole walked on unsteady legs to her car and had to sit for several minutes to calm her nerves before driving home.

She and her husband had a lot to discuss, and it was a conversation that she wasn’t looking forward to.

$$\Psi$$

$$\Xi$$

Chapter Three

As soon as Nicole arrived home, she stripped off her smart clothes and threw her drenched panties into the laundry basket. After taking a shower, she dressed in leggings and a baggy sweatshirt, then headed downstairs.

Even though she hadn't had lunch, she wasn't hungry. Her stomach was still in knots after what had happened in Ciaran's office.

With just a couple of sentences, he'd managed to blindside her. He'd also left her wondering if she actually knew her own husband at all. Why would Julian encourage another man to make a pass at her? How could he possibly benefit from that?

Nicole grabbed a wine glass and a bottle of red, then took a seat at the wrought iron patio table. She poured herself a large glass of merlot; she'd need Dutch courage to talk to Julian about what had happened last year, let alone what had happened with Ciaran. The birds sang and Nicole drank her wine. She topped up her glass and drank some more. After a while, she closed her eyes and tipped her head back, letting the sun warm her face. Meanwhile, her stomach remained tight and cold.

* * * *

"Enjoying the sunshine?"

Julian's voice made her jump. She looked around, disoriented, then checked her watch. It was only half three. She glanced at the half-full glass on the table, then peered up at Julian. "I'm sorry, I wasn't expecting—"

"My last scheduled visit was cancelled." He slipped off his jacket, hung it on the back of another patio chair, and sat down next to her.

"There's been a case of Covid amongst their staff, so everyone's back to working from home while self-isolating. I decided it wasn't worth driving back to the office, so came home instead."

“That’s nice.” To her horror, she realised her speech was slightly slurred.

His eyes twinkling, Julian reached over to pick up the wine bottle. “I’m guessing this was full when you first came out here.”

She was shocked to see it empty. “I didn’t realise I’d had so much.”

“Was it your meeting with Ciaran that drove you to drink?”

“I... He said...” She frowned and shook her head. “Ciaran told me things—things I didn’t know.”

He watched her from beneath his dark brows, but didn’t interrupt.

“What’s more, he said you’d told him things I wasn’t aware you knew.”

“Ah.”

“Julian, I’m sorry.”

He shook his head. “Don’t be.”

“How can you say that? I was selfish, and I cheated. You didn’t deserve that. You’ve always been so—”

“It doesn’t matter.”

“Of course it matters! I stood next to you in church and swore to forsake all others. I gave you my word, and yet I still—”

“I knew it was just a physical attraction.”

Nicole blinked to clear her eyes. She didn’t know if the tears that spilled over and ran down her cheeks were due to her shame or self-pity.

Julian wiped them away with his thumbs, his hands gently cradling her head. “If I’d thought you’d done it because you didn’t love me, then I’d —”

“I shouldn’t have done it at all. I hated myself afterwards and ended it because I couldn’t stand the thought of hurting you. Or lying to you.” She sighed and looked up to the sky. “I couldn’t stand the thought of us having a life like that of my parents.”

“That’s not going to happen. We’re different people.”

“I’m not so sure I’m any different from my—”

“You’re nothing like him.” Julian lowered his hands to her shoulders and squeezed. “He didn’t care about anything but himself, and that’s not you.”

“Really? You could have fooled me. Who else was I thinking about when I allowed myself to do what I did?” A memory of having sex in Sam’s car flashed through her mind. It’d been uncomfortable and sordid, her skirt bunched around her waist, her panties pulled to one side and her legs wrapped around his as she’d writhed and moaned through their lunchtime sessions.

Julian’s hands were warm on her shoulders. His comforting patience made her feel so much worse. “How did you find out?” she asked. “And why didn’t you say anything?”

He held her gaze for a second, then sat back and picked up her wine glass. After taking a sip, he stared down into the rich depths. “I suppose I first got suspicious when you started to wear your favourite perfume for work. You used to only wear it when we went out. And then one time, I happened to notice the smell of...” He looked up, embarrassed. “After one of your nights out, you came to bed and I could smell condoms, or at least I could smell whatever it is they coat them with.”

Nicole stared open-mouthed. She’d always insisted Sam wear a condom because she’d been terrified of catching an STD. She remembered that night, when she’d got home late and thought it too risky to have a shower before getting into bed. She’d assumed Julian was asleep and had gotten up to shower before he woke next morning.

Julian bit his lip. “It got to a point where I had to know. On days I was based in the office, I’d spend lunchtimes waiting outside your factory to see if you left with anyone. One day I saw you walk out with a bearded man and get into his blue Audi. I followed you to a country park and waited in a layby farther down the road. His car came back out forty minutes later, and I followed you back to work. He dropped you off around the corner, presumably so you could walk in separately. Your hair was mussed and your skirt creased, and I knew why.”

Tears were now flowing freely. Nicole hated herself. “I’m sorry.”

“I didn’t mind.” His jaw seemed to be clenched, and he was shaking slightly. “I’d just seen my beautiful wife get out of another man’s car. I knew she’d had sex with him, and yet I didn’t mind.”

Cold seeped through her. He was hurt and angry, yet he was blaming himself for his own reaction to her infidelity. “Julian, I—”

“I was glad you were having a little fun. Happy that another man was giving you excitement.” Finally, he looked into her eyes. “The idea of you receiving pleasure was...” He swallowed, then cast his eyes down at the glass again. “A nice one.”

“Why on earth would you like the idea of me being with another man?”

Julian licked his lips and swallowed again. “I’d never had a girlfriend who looked like you. You were so far out of my league, and—”

“That’s not true.”

“Yes it is. I’m sure you’d never had a boyfriend like me before, either. I couldn’t believe you accepted my invitation to dinner.” He gave another embarrassed smile. “Even on that first date, I could feel other men in the restaurant looking at us, wondering why someone like you was having dinner with me.”

“Oh Julian, that’s simply—”

“I also saw the expressions on your friends’ faces when you first introduced me. I know they thought me a bit...” He shrugged. “Well, you know how I am.”

“You’re kind, and you’re considerate, and you’re honest.” Nicole sniffed and wiped her face with the sleeve of her sweatshirt. “You’re also a lot better than I deserve.”

Julian shook his head. “When you told them later we’d got engaged, they all thought you’d gone mad.”

“I didn’t care what they thought. But what I don’t understand,” she said, looking deep into his dark brown eyes, “is why you’d be happy about me seeing another man.”

He looked around the garden as if searching for the answer in the flowerbeds.

She took a steadying breath. “Ciaran seemed to think that you wanted there to be more than a professional arrangement between him and me.”

Julian bit his lower lip, still staring at the far end of the garden. “I knew immediately on Saturday night that the two of you were attracted to each other.”

Nicole started to deny it, and he laughed.

“Oh, come on—I saw the way you two looked at each other. And all the flirting over dinner, it got me thinking that...” He took a deep breath, then finished the remainder of the wine in the glass. “If you’d have introduced Ciaran to your friends instead of me, they’d have all been jealous as hell, rather than wondering if you’d lost your mind.”

“Julian, I don’t care what my friends think. They don’t know you like I do, and with Ciaran I wasn’t—”

He leaned forward and stared deeply into her eyes. “Please don’t deny it. I may struggle to articulate things, but I’m not so naïve that I can’t see what’s going on right in front of me.”

She remembered all the innuendo during the dinner. Holding Julian’s gaze, she nodded. “Okay. I admit I flirted, and it was selfish of—”

“I’m not complaining. I rather enjoyed it.” He gave a sudden cheeky grin. “What’s more, I benefitted from your arousal later that night.”

Her stomach twisted in turmoil. “You still haven’t explained why you liked the idea of me being with another man.”

“Like,” he corrected. “I still feel the same way. It makes me... proud, I suppose. Proud that other men covet my wife.”

“I don’t under—”

“When I was a child, I wasn’t very popular with the other children on our street. I wasn’t good at sport, and I wasn’t good at making them laugh. But I had some Star Wars toys, and they’d come and visit my house and we’d play together.”

“Please don’t liken me to your Millennium Falcon.”

“No, I wouldn’t. Not the Falcon.” His moustache twitched with the hint of a smile. “One of the Stormtrooper models, maybe.”

She slapped his arm playfully. He rarely showed his sense of humour and she appreciated him trying to lighten the mood.

Julian shrugged and gave a nostalgic smile. “Anyway, for a few hours on rainy Saturday afternoons when the weather stopped the other boys playing football in the park, I had friends playing with my Star Wars figures. I got a thrill from knowing they liked my toys, and later—after they’d gone home—the toys were still mine, and I could play with them whenever I wanted.”

“I’m not sure I like that analogy. I’m not simply a possession for you to—”

“No, of course you’re not,” he said, shaking his head. “And that’s not what I meant to convey. I was just giving it as an example. But the way I’d felt as a child sprung to mind when I saw you get out of the man’s car after you’d...”

“I’m so sorry.”

Julian sighed. “Why don’t I get changed and bring out another bottle?”

Nicole nodded, watching him take his jacket from the back of the chair. She sat in the silence of her garden, too confused to arrange her thoughts into any sort of order.

Julian returned wearing a cable-knit sweater and carrying a bottle of wine and second glass. He filled his own and replenished hers.

“The man at work,” she began, not daring to look into her husband’s eyes, “was called Sam. He was nice to me, and made me feel...” She shook her head. “I never meant it to go as far as it did. I was flattered when he paid me attention, and for a while it was just harmless teasing and fun.”

Julian watched her over the rim of his glass.

“And then one day it went a little beyond that—”

“How?” His expression suggested curiosity, not anger.

“We’d joked and teased each other for weeks. It was just light-hearted banter, and then one day we were walking to the carpark after work, and as I turned to say something, his face was close to mine and...he kissed me.” She let out a pent-up breath. “And I kissed him back.”

“And did the two of you drive somewhere private for more than kisses?”

“No. I got into my car and drove home. I was shocked that I’d kissed him, and I hated myself for doing it.”

Julian kept his face neutral, and she had no idea what was going on behind his eyes.

She took a gulp of wine, knowing she’d never be able to justify her actions. “And from that moment on, all the light-hearted banter and teasing between us had an undercurrent to it.”

“What sort of undercurrent?”

“A kind of sexual tension.”

“Did it feel good, this sexual tension?”

Nicole frowned. “Yes, but it was double-edged. Thrill and excitement versus guilt and self-loathing.”

“But it was the thrill and excitement that won the battle, obviously.” There was no malice in his voice.

“In the short-term, yes. But longer-term, guilt and self-loathing got the upper hand because I stopped seeing him.”

“And how did he take that?”

“He understood. It wasn’t a love affair, it was just a physical thing.”

“Physical?”

Nicole’s stomach knotted tighter. “Sexual.”

Julian nodded and sipped his wine. “How did things progress from the kiss to something sexual?”

“What?” It was hard enough admitting she’d been unfaithful—surely he didn’t want the sordid details?

“I’m not asking you to describe every single thing, but I’m curious about some aspects, like how it went from a kiss on the factory grounds to intercourse in another carpark.”

She closed her eyes and tried to remember. “There was another kiss the following week—in a deserted room at work—and then he asked me out to lunch. We decided that rather than go to a pub, where we might be seen, we’d go to a quiet place and have a sandwich. And we went to the country park.”

“And you had sex?”

“No, not then.” She took a steadying glug of wine. “We talked. I told him that I loved you and didn’t want to risk my marriage, but admitted that I couldn’t stop thinking about him.”

“Is Sam married?”

“He is now, but he wasn’t then.” She shrugged, embarrassed. “He married the girl he was living with while he was seeing me.”

“So that was why you needed to use his car. Neither of you had a house you could use.”

Nicole nodded, too ashamed to admit that while Julian had been on a three-day sales conference in Guildford, she’d invited Sam to her home and fucked him in the marital bed.

“And how was the sex?”

“Julian, do we have to do this?”

“Yes. I think you owe me that much.” His expression wasn’t one of anger, but she could see he was determined.

She sighed, knowing full well that she could hardly complain. “The sex was exciting, though that could have been down to the situation. Someone new.” She shook her head slightly. “I’m sorry.”

“Did you always come?”

“Oh, for God’s sake!”

“I think—”

“Yes, I came.” She dropped her head back and took a deep breath. “I can’t confirm it was every time, but it could have been.”

“What about oral sex?”

“Christ, you cannot be serious.”

His expression suggested he wanted an answer.

“Yes, a few times. Maybe three or four, I honestly can’t remember the exact number.”

“Did you take him all the way?”

She shook her head, amazed that he felt it important to know if the other man had come in her mouth. “No, it was just foreplay. I sucked him for a short time, then fitted the condom so he could go inside me.”

Julian considered this. She wondered if he was going to ask if Sam had performed oral sex on her.

“Why did he wear a condom if you’re on the pill?”

His question surprised her. “I couldn’t risk passing an STD on to you.”

“Ah...” He nodded his understanding. “So how long did it go on for?”

“Just a few weeks. The ill feeling I got from deceiving you began to outweigh the excitement I got from...”

“The fucking?”

She blinked, surprised at his use of the f-word. Julian rarely used expletives, and never when referring to sex. “I was going to say the trysts, but I guess your description is more accurate. That’s all it was. Fucking.”

He took another gulp of his wine and topped up his own glass. Nicole’s was still full, but he was almost a bottle behind her. “So, how many times in all did the two of you... get together?”

“I honestly don’t know.” She tried to work it out. It’d been at least a couple of times a week for seven weeks. “Probably fifteen, something like that.”

“Have there been others?”

“No.” She shook her head vigorously. “None, I promise.”

He nodded and smiled. “I believe you.”

“I’m sorry. I wish I could take it all back.” That wasn’t completely true—she had some wonderful memories of her time with Sam.

“I don’t think you should regret it. As I said, the thought of another man giving you pleasure was nice. I found it...arousing.”

“The idea of me being with another man turned you on?” She knew men like this existed, but had no idea that Julian was one of them.

He nodded. “I was angry at myself for feeling that way, believe me.”

“But if feeling that way made you angry, why would you try and instigate...?” She couldn’t make herself use the same layman’s terms that Ciaran had, earlier. “I mean, with Ciaran.”

Another smile raised the edges of Julian's moustache. "Because watching the two of you flirting was also arousing, but then"—he looked directly into her eyes—"In bed, after he'd left, you behaved in a way that was..."

She squeezed her eyes shut, mortified. She should have known he'd pick up on that. Only a fool would fail to see how she'd acted, how wet she'd been, how quickly she'd climaxed.

"I got the impression you were using me to satiate the desire that Ciaran had generated."

She started to shake her head but decided against it. She gave a weak smile as she conceded the point. "I can see I've underestimated your insight."

He took another drink. "Did flirting with Ciaran feel the same as with Sam?"

Nicole picked up her own glass and took a sip, watching his face while deciding how to answer. After putting the glass down, she nodded. "Yes, a little."

"And what about in his office today? Did you feel the same excitement then?"

Nicole's jaw dropped. Did he know what happened?

He saw her expression and chuckled. "I'll take that as a yes."

She wondered if Ciaran had already phoned him to reveal how easily his slutty wife had been seduced. Rather than offering her confession, she decided to turn the tables. "Did you want me to feel the same excitement today?"

He averted his eyes. "Yes."

At least he was being honest. "And have you spoken to Ciaran since?"

"No. I thought I'd mentioned that I didn't bother going into the office."

"Oh yes. Sorry, I'd forgotten that."

"So, today?"

“Today, I felt even more excitement than I did on Saturday.” She held his gaze, trying to see if her words were pushing his buttons. “Because we were alone in his office.”

He swallowed, licked his lips and then took a sip of his drink.

“Is that what you wanted to hear?” Nicole realised the wine had loosened her tongue.

Julian clenched his jaw and nodded once.

“Are you hoping that I’ll use you again, to satiate the desire that Ciaran generated?”

He shrugged. “I thought that as the two of you were alone in his office, maybe he’d already satiated those desires himself.”

“Is that what you expected?”

“I...” He shook his head, probably too embarrassed to admit he’d been hoping his wife had let another man have sex with her.

She slid her hand across the table and gripped his. “Tell me what you wanted to happen.”

“I thought that... I imagined you two would—”

“Did you want him to fuck me?”

Julian closed his eyes and frowned. It seemed like it was his turn to gather courage. “Yes,” he said eventually. “I guess I was hoping the two of you might—”

“What if we had? How would you feel about it if I’d had sex with him?”

“I suppose I’d find it...”

Nicole stood up and walked towards the house, stopping when she reached the patio door. “Follow me,” she instructed. She was halfway up the stairs by the time he came into the house.

Once in the bedroom, she kicked off her shoes and peeled down her leggings and panties at the same time. Julian came through the door and stopped as soon as he saw her naked from the waist down.

“Lie on the bed,” she told him.

Julian complied.

She crawled onto the bed and started to undo his trousers. “Was it arousing for you, imagining me in Ciaran’s office earlier?”

His embarrassed frown gave her the answer. She tugged hard at his trousers, getting them down to mid-thigh, then released his cock from his boxers. He was already hard, and precum covered his entire cockhead.

Nicole looked into his face. She could hardly be shocked that their discussion had aroused him, because her own panties had been sodden when she’d taken them off.

Gripping his cock and still wearing her sweatshirt, Nicole crawled up the bed until she straddled him. “Sorry to disappoint, but this will be the first cock I’ve had today.” With that, she impaled herself.

Both groaned and she rocked her hips, his cock filling her.

She looked into his eyes while riding him. “But today’s meeting wasn’t completely innocent.”

He stared up at her, pushing his hips up in time with her own movements.

“Do you want to know what happened?”

“Yes. Please.” Julian raised his hands to grip her hips.

“We were sitting at the table in his office, and he leaned in and kissed me. I told him off, and he apologised. But then, as I was about to leave, he did it again.”

His eyes opened wider and his nostrils flared.

“This time, I kissed him back. It was a passionate kiss, with tongues.”

Julian opened his mouth, his breath coming in short gasps.

“Ciaran’s hands started to explore my body. He cupped a breast...” She leaned down until they were eye to eye. “Is that arousing, knowing I let him grope my tits while I sucked the saliva off his tongue?”

Julian let out a groan. His eyes fluttered as if struggling to keep his focus on her face.

“And then he ran his hand down my body to my crotch, stroking me through my trousers.”

“How did it feel when he touched you there?” he whispered.

“Dirty. Delicious. I didn’t stop him, and when he undid the button and slipped his hand down inside my panties, I encouraged him by putting my feet a step apart.”

Julian let out a grunt and arched his back, lifting her off the bed. Nicole groaned and bounced on his cock as it pulsed inside her.

Gripping the pillow on either side of his head, she bucked her hips and ground her clit against his body. “I came on his fingers, just like I’m going to come on your...”

She squeezed her eyes shut and her mouth opened in a silent scream as she came. The release of tension was intense, and she bucked like a woman possessed. Her movements were so vigorous that Julian’s flaccid cock slipped out, leaving a void inside her. Opening her eyes, she saw his shocked expression and immediately regretted her confession.

Nicole took a deep breath, then rolled off him and lay on her own side of the bed.

After a few moments’ silence, he turned onto his side and stroked the hair out of her face. “I’m glad you let him touch you.”

“Why?”

“It’s—”

“Arousing?”

He flashed his embarrassed smile. “Does it make me weird?”

Like he’d done for her earlier, she tried to lighten the mood. “You were weird before, so this just makes you weirder.”

He gave a muted chortle, which was another of his cute mannerisms.

“I felt bad immediately afterwards,” she said. “It was then, when I was regretting what’d happened, that Ciaran told me you knew about Sam, and that it’d been your encouragement that had made him...” Now that her passion had been quenched, she struggled to name what she’d allowed to happen in the office.

“Didn’t you feel the urge to touch Ciaran?”

His question took her by surprise. “That never crossed...” She hadn’t actually thought about it—then or since—but now, she wondered if Ciaran had expected her to reach for his cock. She shook her head. “No, I didn’t.”

“Oh.”

“Are you disappointed that I didn’t?”

“I should ask you the same question,” he said, grinning.

She laughed. This was a whole new world, and she wasn’t sure how to deal with it. “God, what’s happening to us?”

“Nothing need happen to us—if you don’t want it to. But if you do...” He moved his hand to stroke her shoulder through the sweatshirt. “If you wanted to have a little more excitement, then I wouldn’t object.”

She didn’t reply, but raised her eyebrows.

“Perhaps ‘not objecting’ was understating things a little. I suppose it would be more accurate to say if you took things further with Ciaran, then both of us would be experiencing the excitement.”

Going further with Ciaran was an enticing proposition. She’d ended her only previous indiscretions because she hadn’t been able to live with the guilt. Now she was actually being given carte blanche to do as she wished with another man, agreeing to take that leap with Ciaran should’ve been easy. But for some reason, that wasn’t the case.

“How would it work out between us?” she asked, sitting up in bed. “If I were to... Y’know...”

Julian pulled his trousers back up and sat alongside her. “I think you know the answer already. What happened with Sam didn’t stop me loving you, and it didn’t make me feel like you’d stopped loving me.”

“I stopped liking myself.”

He gave her his sweet smile and reached out for her hand. “When I first discovered you were seeing him, I analysed your behaviour. Everything you said, and how you acted. You didn’t give me the impression you wanted to be somewhere else. Never once were you short with me, rude, or cruel. I decided you weren’t seeing him because you’d fallen out of love with me. You were just doing it because of the physical attraction between the two of you.”

“You didn’t think me selfish?”

He shook his head and smiled.

“Well, that’s how I saw myself.” She sighed. “But Ciaran would be different. You have to see him every time you go into the office.”

He shrugged. “And?”

“Wouldn’t it be awkward?”

Julian stared at her for a second, which made her think he hadn’t actually considered this. “No, I don’t think so.”

She didn’t share his view. “I don’t like the idea of the two of you comparing notes.”

He guffawed and looked incredulous. “I certainly wouldn’t be discussing what went on with him, because that would be awkward.”

“You wouldn’t?”

“Of course not. What goes on between the two of you is exactly that—between the two of you. If, however, you wanted to tell me certain things, like you did just a few minutes ago, then that’s between the two of us.” He grinned. “I got the impression you’d enjoyed telling me about it, and I’m sure you saw from my reaction how much I enjoyed your... disclosure.”

“You’d want the details?”

He shrugged. “Only if you wanted to tell me.”

Nicole considered this. “And if I didn’t want to tell you?”

“Then you’d keep them to yourself.”

She frowned, wondering how Julian could possibly benefit from the arrangement he was offering her if she chose to keep things to herself. Her stomach rumbled and she realised she hadn’t eaten since breakfast. “I’m going to make myself something to eat. Are you hungry?”

“Starved.”

They headed downstairs to the kitchen.

Ψ

Chapter Four

Neither Nicole nor Julian brought up any proposed future liaisons between her and Ciaran until Sunday evening. Pretending to surf the web on her phone, she watched Julian out of the corner of her eye as he calmly flipped pages in his novel. He'd be seeing his boss tomorrow for the first time since her session with him in the office, but he was acting like it would just be another day at work. Abandoning the thrall of social media, she twisted to face him.

"So, how do you feel about seeing Ciaran tomorrow?" she asked.

He looked up from the pages and smiled. "I feel no different than I do about seeing him any other time."

"Really? Not even a tiny bit apprehensive, or curious as to what he thought about Friday?"

Julian smirked. "I'm sure I can guess what he thought about Friday, and I expect he'll be eager for another meeting with you."

Her mind tumbled in somersaults as she waited to see if he would say more. She knew he meant Ciaran would be eager to get more than his fingers inside her. Eager to have a release of his own.

"Did you arrange a second meeting?" he asked.

"No, not yet. He said he'd email some spreadsheets for me to look at, so I'll check tomorrow to see if he's sent them."

Julian nodded, then went back to his novel. She surfed her phone for a few minutes but found that she'd made herself impatient to find out whether Ciaran had been in touch.

He had.

Her inbox contained three messages from him, two from Friday afternoon, and one time-stamped Sunday morning. The first two were unexciting, containing spreadsheet attachments and a covering explanation of some of the figures. The third simply read:

I need to see you again. Are you available this Thursday?

Nicole smiled as she typed out a reply: I can make myself available.

As Julian put his book to one side, she did the same with her phone, plugging in the charger, then lay down. She lay awake in the dark for a long time, thinking about giving herself to his boss.

* * * *

On Wednesday, a text arrived from Ciaran, telling her to check her email. Nicole was working on her laptop in the dining room and clicked through to her inbox, opening his note.

Hi Nicole

Fridays are traditionally casual dress for the office, but for the rest of the week we insist on formal attire.

So, although I loved the way your trousers hugged your perfect backside at our last meeting, I think it would be more appropriate for you to wear a skirt on Thursday. You should also wear nylons (but I'll be disappointed if they're tights).

Can you make 12.30 again?

Ciaran

At first she thought it might be a joke, but then she remembered Julian mentioning that Ciaran had reprimanded one of the female staff members for wearing bright leggings. She couldn't decide whether to be amused or offended. If another man had told her how to dress for a meeting—specifically asking her to wear stockings—she would have given him a two-word answer, the second of those words being ‘off’.

But Ciaran was different.

Not because he was handsome, sexy, and charming—even though he was. Ciaran was different because, thanks to her husband’s encouragement, she’d already decided to have sex with him. And if her wearing stockings in the office would get him hot and horny, who was she to complain? She closed the email and tried to get back to work but struggled to concentrate for the rest of the day.

Julian arrived home at the normal time, and after dinner they took coffee out on the patio.

She crossed her legs and ran her hanging foot against his leg. “Have you remembered I’m having another meeting with Ciaran tomorrow?”

“Of course.”

“Are you working in the office tomorrow?”

“Ordinarily I would be, but Ciaran’s asked me to accompany a junior colleague to visit a customer.”

She frowned. “Is he allowed to send you away like that?”

“He’s the boss, so yes. But there’s actually some justification—the customer was asking questions that my colleague hasn’t really got the background knowledge to answer fully.”

“Oh, okay.”

“Are you looking forward to your meeting?”

She smiled and raised her eyebrows. “How do you mean?” A buzz of excitement tingled in her stomach, though she wasn’t sure if that was due to her meeting with Ciaran tomorrow or the conversation she was about to have with Julian.

“I mean exactly what I asked. Are you looking forward to tomorrow?”

“I’m...” She laughed at her own reluctance to admit it. She nodded. “Yes, I’m looking forward to it.”

“Good.”

“What about you?”

“Well, I don’t really know this customer, so I—”

“Julian! You know perfectly well what I mean.”

He grinned in a way that showed he wasn’t sorry at all. “I’m experiencing some pleasant anticipation regarding your meeting.”

“You’re experiencing ‘some pleasant anticipation’?”

He laughed. “I suppose that sounds a little—”

“It sounds ridiculous. You’re not at a marketing seminar, discussing potential sales figures with shareholders. You’re at home and talking to your wife about her having sex with another man.”

“Yes, I just...” He shrugged. “You know what I’m like.”

“I know what you’re like.” She leaned closer and lowered her voice to an intimate whisper. “But it’s only recently that I’ve learned what else you like. So, I’ll ask again. Are you looking forward to my meeting with Ciaran tomorrow?”

Julian looked her directly in the eye. “Yes. The thought of what might happen is...”

“Arousing?”

He laughed. “Should I have used stronger language?”

“Though I’m glad you don’t walk around effing and jeffing all the time, I liked the way you talked the other day, when I was telling you about Sam.”

“Ah. Right.”

“So, when the two of us are talking about sex—or more specifically, talking about me having sex with another man—can we just use plain English?”

“Plain, as in four-letter English?”

“Mmm. I think if we’re going to be doing something dirty—and let’s face it, you encouraging me to sleep with another man is very dirty—then we should use appropriate words to describe it.”

“Wouldn’t that make you feel...well, dirty?”

“I hope so. So, your feelings about tomorrow?”

“I’ve been thinking about it since you told me. I’m... I’ve spent all week in a state of...” Julian sighed. “It turns me on, thinking about it.”

“Me too.”

“Are you expecting that the two of you...? That you’ll...?”

“Say it.”

He frowned. “Do you think you’ll have sex?”

“I’d rather you’d said ‘fuck’.”

He sniggered. “Will you let him fuck you?”

“Possibly. Or maybe I’ll fuck him.”

His eyes widened slightly.

“Ciaran sent me an email earlier to point out that as this meeting isn’t on casual-dress day, I should dress more formally than last time.”

“What did you wear last time?”

“A smart blouse and dress trousers. I looked formal and professional.”

Julian looked puzzled. “So what was wrong with that? Many women in our office wear smart trousers all week.”

“Hmm. Well, tomorrow I’ve been asked to wear a skirt. With stockings.”

“Really?”

She nodded.

“And are you going to?”

“Yes. If it’s something that turns him on, I don’t mind.” She smiled. “Do you mind?”

“No, not at all. It’s a sexy image.” He frowned. “Do you even have any stockings?”

“I’ve got a couple of pairs of hold-ups. I also have a suspender belt, but I’ll have to nip to the shop tomorrow to buy regular black stockings if I choose to wear that.”

Julian was silent, but she could see there was a lot going on behind his eyes. She was turned on by simply watching him consider the implications of Ciaran’s request. “What are you thinking?”

“Stockings give him easier access to your body than tights would.”

She nodded. “True, though last time I was wearing trousers and he still got his hand up my cunt.”

Julian’s eyes and mouth snapped wide open, and he glanced around the garden as if worried the neighbours might have overheard.

She slapped his arm. “Stop being such a prude.”

“I... I’ve never heard you say anything like that.”

“Yeah, well, get used to it. When we’re talking about this, there’s no censorship.”

“Right. Yes...” He glanced at her, then averted his eyes again. “I like the image of you being fucked in stockings and suspenders.”

“You do?” She blinked. “How come you’ve never mentioned it before?”

He shrugged. “Because it’s you that’s important, not what you wear. Though actually, we have done it while you were wearing stockings. In Paris, remember?”

“Yes, I remember.” They’d been out for dinner and held hands walking beside the Seine. She’d worn a purple sequined dress and black hold-ups, and once back in their hotel room she’d removed her dress and panties, but left on her bra, stockings and shoes.

Julian shivered again, and he looked up at the sky. The sun had dropped behind the neighbouring houses. “Shall we continue this conversation inside?”

She nodded, then carried their cups through to the kitchen. Julian closed the patio door and waited in the hall, looking embarrassed.

Nicole stopped when she saw his expression. “What’s wrong?”

“Nothing, I just...” He frowned. “I just remembered I need to look up a few things before I see the customer tomorrow.”

“Oh.” She’d worried that he might be having second thoughts about what she could do with Ciaran. “That’s fine. I’ll have a bath.”

After a good soak, Nicole put on her robe and wandered into the upstairs office.

Julian looked up and smiled at her. “I’ve almost finished.”

She slipped between him and the desk, then stared into his eyes. “I think you should take a break.” Before he had time to look puzzled, she undid the belt of her robe and pulled it open, revealing her nakedness.

“Ah. I, er...”

She sat on his desk, rested her hands on the desktop behind her, and leaned back. “Don’t talk. If you have to wag your tongue, I can think of a better way for you to do it.” She slowly opened her legs.

After holding her gaze for a moment, he dropped his face to her crotch and licked along the length of her sex. She let out a sigh. He was slow and gentle, teasing her outer folds with his tongue and lips before pushing deeper. She moaned every time he dipped into her channel. As her juices started to flow, he moved his attentions up to her clit.

Another groan escaped her lips, and she brought one hand forward to stroke his head. “Oh, that’s nice.”

“Mmm.”

“If you want to finish me off with your cock, I wouldn’t mind.”

He looked up into her eyes but kept his mouth on her sex. After a little shake of his head, he placed his lips over her clit and sucked gently, making her writhe.

Nicole watched his face as he took her to the edge, then she could no longer do anything but squeeze her eyes shut and sob through her climax. He moved his mouth away from her sensitive clit and lavished soft kisses all over her inner thighs.

As her heart crashed in her chest, she opened her eyes and smiled at him. “Thank you, that was lovely.”

He flashed her his shy smile.

“Do you want to go inside me?”

He shook his head. “No, I’m fine.”

“Are you sure?” She’d expected him to be horny from the conversation they’d had, and even more so after she’d plonked herself down in his desk.

His embarrassed expression returned. “I’ll wait until after...”

“After?” She gave a smile. “Okay.” She slid off the desk and fastened her robe, then moved towards the door, where she turned. “But you don’t need to wait until after anyone else, you know that.”

He smiled and nodded.

Nicole walked into their bedroom, stripped off her robe and climbed into bed. She liked the thought of her husband joining her later, discovering her nakedness and forcing himself on her, taking her roughly.

As it was, she fell asleep before he’d finished whatever he was doing with his spreadsheet.

* * * *

The same pretty receptionist welcomed Nicole with a smile. “Hi, please take a seat. I’ll tell Ciaran you’ve arrived.”

The heels of Nicole’s black patent stilettos clicked on the tiled floor as she walked over to the chrome and leather chairs. She sat down carefully, keeping her knees together. Her skirt was black and figure-hugging. When she’d checked closely in the mirror of her bedroom, the outline of her suspenders was visible through the stretchy material.

Ciaran arrived a couple of minutes later, and his eyes swept over her body. He smiled, thanked the blonde receptionist, and escorted Nicole up to his office. Bernice again offered tea or coffee, but neither wanted refreshments.

After Ciaran had suggested Bernice take her lunch break, he and Nicole entered his inner office. Without waiting, and ignoring the table they’d used on her last visit, she walked to the chair opposite his desk and sat down. Ciaran hesitated for a second, then walked around his desk and dropped into his swivel chair.

“It’s good to see you again,” he said.

“Thank you.” Nicole slowly crossed her legs, knowing as she did so that her stocking tops would become visible. “It’s nice to see you again, too.”

He looked momentarily flustered, which surprised and amused her. “I, er...” He shook his head. “Did you get a chance to look at the spreadsheets I sent?”

Nicole had no intention of wasting this meeting talking about the bookkeeping façade. “No. Sorry.” She raised her upper knee slightly, flashing bare thigh and black suspender.

“Oh. Well, that’s okay, I can—”

“Do you insist that Bernice wears stockings at work from Monday to Thursday?”

“What?” He laughed and shook his head. “No, I don’t think...” He swallowed. “I don’t think even thirty years ago that Bernice would have looked anything like...” He nodded at Nicole’s legs. “Anything like that.”

She stood up, straightened her skirt, and walked slowly around his desk until she was standing next to him. He swivelled his chair through ninety degrees and looked up into her eyes.

“Do you approve of my skirt, then?” she asked.

His usual self-confident smile was nowhere in evidence. He nodded. “It’s a lovely skirt, and it fits you perfectly.”

“Hmm.” Gripping either side of the material in her fingers, she slowly inched it up. Ciaran’s gaze dropped to watch as first the lace stocking tops, then her bare thighs and suspenders came into view. Her skirt was now bunched around her waist. “What about the stockings?”

“Fabulous.” His voice cracked at the final syllable.

“You can touch them, if you like.”

He tentatively held out his hands, tracing his fingertips over the smooth flesh on either side of the black strap down the front of each thigh. Then he slid his palms over the sheer denier of the nylon on her inner legs.

“Do they turn you on, Ciaran?”

He nodded, taking deep breaths through his nose.

“Show me how much they turn you on.”

He looked up and frowned. “Sorry?”

“You’re looking at my legs and stockings because they turn you on, so I want to see that arousal. Are you hard?”

Ciaran blew out his cheeks. “This is a bit... What’s happened since —?”

“We both know why I’m here.” She smiled. “As my husband’s already told you, this is something I’m allowed to do.”

As understanding dawned, his arrogant smirk returned. “I’m glad to hear it.”

“Good. So, don’t you have something to show me?”

Ciaran stood up and pulled her head close, kissing her roughly on the mouth. Nicole responded by nipping at his lips, then she ran her hand over the bulge in his trousers, gripping his erection through the expensive material of his designer suit, making him gasp.

He undid the buttons of her blouse and pawed her boobs through her lacy bra. Nicole kept kissing and pushing her tongue in his mouth, her fingers already working on his belt buckle. Once it was free, she undid his trousers and slipped her hand inside, feeling the hot skin of his hard cock.

She wrapped her fingers around the shaft, impressed by the girth. Looking down, she squeezed out a pearl of clear liquid between the tip of her forefinger and thumb. She brought her hand up to her mouth and stared into his eyes, sucking the precum from her fingers.

Ciaran twisted her round until she was backed up against his desk. He kissed her passionately, his teeth occasionally clashing against hers. She wanked his cock, and he lifted her onto the desk. Standing between her open legs, he slipped his fingers past the gusset of her black silk panties to the entrance of her drenched sex.

The instant he slid his fingers inside her, they both moaned, continuing to kiss and grope each other.

Eventually, Ciaran removed his fingers, pulled his head back and looked at her. He pushed her body down until she was lying on her back across his desk. She raised her legs, resting a high-heeled shoe on each of his shoulders.

His confident smile had returned to full wattage. He tried to pull her panties down but realised he wouldn’t be able to unless he undid the suspenders. To Nicole’s consternation, he took a pair of scissors from a desk drawer and quickly snipped through the waistband on either side of her panties.

He chuckled at her expression. "I'll replace them." Then he slid his cock through her outer folds, coating his entire shaft with her juices.

Nicole whimpered and looked down, seeing his cock rise over her mons before it slipped back until just the tip showed. She clamped her hands on it, holding it against her mound as he slowly thrust forward and back. His shaft slid over her clit in the most delightful way.

She looked up into Ciaran's eyes. "Get a condom."

"What?"

"Put a rubber on so you can go inside me."

"But I thought you'd..." He shook his head, looking tortured. "I don't have one here."

"Oh, fuck. I'm really hot for it, now."

"I can tell." He looked down at her body and sighed. "So am I."

She used both hands, open palmed, to hold his cock against her as she rocked her hips. The friction as his shaft slid against her clit was delicious. "But this is nice."

"Nicole, please..."

She rocked harder, enjoying his look of desperation. "Oh, yeah. I quite like this. It'd be enough to..." She fluttered her eyes and dropped her mouth open.

Ciaran increased the speed of his thrusts, and she ground her clit against the constant back and forth of his smooth shaft.

The tell-tale tingle of an orgasm developed deep inside her. "Oh yeah." She licked her lips, purposely acting like the proverbial slut. "Oh fuck, yeah."

His eyes were fixed on hers. "Nicole, I really need to go inside you now."

She shook her head just as her orgasm hit. Bucking up from the top of his desk, she clenched her teeth and rubbed herself frantically against his cock.

Ciaran gasped. An arc of cum spewed out and landed on her tummy. She cried out and lifted her head, watching his cock shoot another two spurts up to her belly and onto her bunched-up skirt. He kept thrusting his hips until the final drops of cum oozed out and soaked her fingers.

Ciaran took a deep breath and held it for a couple of seconds before letting out a long sigh. He looked down at her body, and her gaze followed his. Her stomach was splattered with cum, as were her skirt and pubic hair.

Nicole slowly rubbed it into her skin, watching his face as she did so. "You've made a mess."

Without taking his gaze from her fingers, he said, "I was hoping to shoot it somewhere else."

"Hmm, that would have been nice," she teased, "but you cut my panties, so it would have been dripping out of me all afternoon."

Still breathless, he stepped back and tucked his cock back inside his pants. "If you knew I needed to wear a condom, you should have brought one with you."

"Maybe I did." She smiled sweetly, then sat up on the desk. "Or maybe I decided having you sliding along the edge was too good to stop." She looked down at the mess on her and her skirt. "Do you have any tissues?"

He walked over to the table by the window, grabbed a box, and carried it back to the desk. Then he flopped into his chair and watched her mop up his cum from around her bellybutton.

"You do realise," he said with a smile, "that we're going to have to have another meeting. Very soon."

"Oh?" She dropped the first sodden tissue on his desk and took out a second to wipe the mess from her pubes.

"Yes. You haven't read the spreadsheets yet, so we'll need to go through those."

Nicole laughed, then finished cleaning up the mess on her skirt. Thankfully it seemed that all the stains were on the inside lining.

She started buttoning up her blouse. "Do you really want me to read the spreadsheets?"

He shrugged. "I really want another meeting."

"It's nice to be in demand."

“And at the next meeting, I’ll make sure I bring something that means there’ll be no mess on the outside.”

Leaning so her lips almost touched his ear, she whispered, “Next time, I might let you make a mess on the inside.”

With that, she picked up her handbag and walked to the door, turning with her hand gripping the doorknob. “I can find my own way back to reception. You’d better dispose of those tissues before Bernice brings your afternoon tea.”

* * * *

Nicole was in a much better mood driving home from her second meeting with Ciaran.

Although she felt a twinge of regret that she and Ciaran hadn’t actually fucked, she was pretty happy with how things had turned out. It had felt important to not give him the upper hand. It’d been nice to see him a little disappointed, and maybe even a little desperate. What’s more, the sex had been appropriately dirty, and definitely enjoyable. Losing her pair of sexiest panties and having to get her skirt dry-cleaned was a small price to pay for his look of tortured frustration.

By the time Julian returned home, she’d showered and made dinner. She could tell he was desperate for the details even as he came through the door.

“How was your day?” she asked, struggling to keep her face straight.

“It was okay.” He swallowed, then stood looking at her with an expectant smile.

“And were you able to answer all the customer’s questions?”

“What? Oh, yes. Yes, I think I managed to iron out any wrinkles he may have thought he had. How about your—?”

“I’ve bought a lasagne, is that okay? Why don’t you go and get changed, and I’ll dish it up.”

Julian looked crestfallen, but turned and trudged upstairs.

The second their bedroom door shut, Nicole crept upstairs, stripped to her bra and panties on the landing, then followed him in. Julian stood in his shirt, socks and underpants—an almost comical sight—while putting his trousers on a hanger. His eyes popped open when he saw her.

“I thought you might like to hear about my meeting with Ciaran,” she said, walking over to him. As she started to unbutton his shirt, he dropped the trousers and hanger onto the carpet. “Can you wait for your lasagne, or would you rather eat now?”

He nodded then shook his head. “Later’s fine.”

“Good.” She pushed his shirt open and sucked his nipple, which was right in line with her lips. As he stared down into her face, she ran her hand down his stomach to his shorts. He was fully erect. “Oh, what’s this?”

Julian’s breath caught in his throat.

“I’ve been a naughty girl.”

“Have you?”

“Mmm.” She leaned close, squeezing and relaxing her grip on his cock through the cotton of his shorts.

“How naughty?”

She pursed her lips. “Not very naughty... But quite naughty.”

He took several shallow breaths through his mouth. “Quite?”

She nodded. “I let Ciaran see my stockings.”

“See them?”

“Yes. And he saw my suspenders, too.”

“You wore the suspenders?”

“Mmm hmm.”

“Did he...?” He swallowed. “Did he like them?”

“Oh yes. They made him shake a little, just like you’re doing now.” She slipped her hand inside Julian’s shorts and gripped his cock, which was dripping freely. “I let him touch them, too. He stroked my legs through the stockings.”

He blinked several times in quick succession, then sighed.

“He also stroked my thighs above the stocking tops.” She tilted her head up and nibbled his chin. “And I touched him, too.”

“You touched him?”

She smiled. “I rubbed him through his trousers, and he got all hard—like this is.” She glanced down at Julian’s cock, which was so hard and red it looked almost angry.

“And did you...?”

“I took it out and played with it, just like this.” She wanked Julian slowly, then smiled. “I think he liked it.”

His eyebrows reached for his hairline. “I imagine... he would.”

“And he touched me, the same way as he did before. With his fingers, until I was all hot and wet.”

Staring into her eyes, Julian looked expectantly at her. When she didn’t say more, he nodded. “And?”

“Ciaran didn’t want to wear a condom.”

He frowned and looked confused. “So what happened?”

“I told him he wasn’t allowed inside me without one.”

“Oh. But you’re... So what happened?”

“He pushed his cock against my body, rubbing it against the outside. I was lying on his desk with my skirt pushed up and my legs on his shoulders, and we both sort of bumped together.” She pumped his cock as he evidently struggled to visualise what she described. “His cock ran over my clit, and it was nice. It was so nice that it made me come.”

His eyes seemed to smile. “You...?”

She nodded. “And then Ciaran came.”

“Ciaran came?” he asked in a whisper.

“Yeah, all over me. On my tummy and my skirt. On my suspenders, in my pubes and all over my hands.”

As Julian’s eyes half-closed, she decided to forego her own pleasure and make it nice for him. “And now I want you to do the same.”

Before he could answer, Nicole dropped to her knees and pumped him fast, cupping his balls with her other hand. Julian let out a groan as a thick dollop of cum hit her on the neck. She aimed it lower and took the second spurt on her boobs, then held his cockhead against her cheek and was rewarded with a warm splash there.

Turning her head, she opened her mouth and took him into her mouth, making him whimper and shake. His final eruption oozed onto her tongue. She moaned and purred to show her appreciation, sucking and licking his cock until it softened.

Slowly releasing him from her mouth, she looked up into his face. “How was that?”

He took a shuddering breath, then blinked. “I think I need to sit down.”

She laughed, and as he stepped to the bed and sat on the edge, she crawled across the carpet and stayed on her knees by his feet.

He stared down at her with a look of wonder, then frowned. “I’m sorry, I think I’ve ruined your bra.”

“It’ll wash.”

He was silent for a few seconds, then shook his head. “Was Ciaran not upset that you... That he didn’t...?”

She laughed. “I think it’s pretty safe to say he was disappointed, but me going bareback wasn’t something we’d discussed, and I wasn’t sure what you’d want.” Since Julian still looked baffled, she broke it down for him. “Before, with Sam, I made him wear a condom.”

“You told me. But that was before I knew.” He looked thoughtful. “Technically, it was before you knew I knew.”

She smiled at his pedantry. “Yes.”

“But now I know, so what’s the problem?”

She stared. “You wouldn’t have minded if I’d let Ciaran take me bareback?”

Julian shrugged as if he found her question strange.

“I just wasn’t sure how you’d feel about that level of intimacy.”

“Why? He’s still putting his dick inside you.”

His words shocked her a little, but so did his failure to see the obvious. “Yes, but with a condom it’s only his dick.”

Julian’s puzzled frown returned.

“Without a condom,” she explained, “it’s his dick and his cum.”

He shrugged. “But you’re on the pill, so there’s no—”

“I’m not worried about getting pregnant!” She sat back on her haunches and sighed. “I wasn’t sure how you’d feel about him coming inside me, that’s all.”

“Isn’t his dick being inside you the important thing? I don’t see any difference if there’s a condom or not.”

“Really?” As Julian reached out to take her hand, she didn’t know whether to be disappointed or relieved. “Well, if we’d had this discussion last night, Ciaran would probably have been a lot happier about the meeting.”

“I’m sure you can make it up to him.”

She was taken aback, but Julian didn’t seem to notice.

He just flashed her one of his reassuring smiles and said, “Now, how about that lasagne?”

$$\frac{\Psi}{\Xi}$$

Chapter Five

Nicole spent Friday morning weeding the flowerbeds. Then she submitted an online food order, to be delivered on Sunday. Just after she'd made herself a sandwich for lunch, her mobile rang. Seeing Julian's name on the caller ID, she instantly began to worry. He very rarely phoned from work.

She accepted his call. "Hiya."

"Hi, just a quick one. Don't make dinner tonight, I've booked us a table at The Crown."

"Oh?"

"Don't worry, the tables are all socially-distanced, and you're allowed to remove your facemask when you eat." He gave one of his chortles. "We'll need to leave as soon as I get home, so please be ready for five-thirty."

"Okay." She wanted to ask if it would be just the two of them, or if Ciaran had been invited to join them at the upmarket joint. "What should I wear?"

"It's The Crown, so probably not jeans. But wear whatever you're comfortable in, because you always look beautiful."

She smiled. "Thank you. Okay, I'll see you later."

"Bye, love."

After he'd rung off, she took her sandwich and a glass of Coke outside to the patio. As she ate her lunch, she reflected on how differently she felt compared to sitting here exactly a week ago.

* * * *

Julian ushered her into the car so briskly she barely had time to stop her dark grey dress catching in the door. He was good humoured but distracted, and she had to point out that they were in the wrong lane as they reached the main road heading into town.

He flashed her a smile. “We’re calling somewhere on the way.”

When they took a left, she knew they were heading for Parkside Grange. “I thought we’d agreed to wait until...” She gasped as she realised why he was taking her out to dinner. “Has it been confirmed?”

Julian grinned. “You are now married to the marketing division’s Regional Manager.”

She placed her hand on his arm and squeezed. “Congratulations. I’m so proud. And I’m happy for you because I know how hard you’ve worked.”

Flashing her another smile, he took another left and stopped outside a red-bricked home with a ‘For Sale’ sign on the lawn.

Nicole stared at the large house and detached double garage at the end of the block-paved driveway. “This looks fabulous.”

He nodded and checked his watch. “We have a viewing booked, so let’s have a look inside, shall we?”

She got out of the car, and together they walked to the front door. Julian handed her a face mask and, once they’d both fitted them, he rang the bell. Nicole looked down the road at the other houses. No two were built in the same design, all the gardens were well-maintained, and all the cars parked on the drives were expensive models.

The door was opened by an attractive woman carrying a toddler. “Hi, I’m Cheryl,” she said. “And this little fella is Mason.”

Julian introduced Nicole and himself, and Cheryl invited them into the large hallway, which had a wide staircase running up to a galleried landing.

She bent to put her little boy on the slate-tiled floor. “You want to go play with Tania?” she asked. He nodded and disappeared into one of the rooms off the hall.

Cheryl straightened and nodded towards another room. “Let’s start in here.”

They followed her into the huge open space that was the living room. It was at least thirty feet long. Bifold doors along the back wall overlooked a large garden.

The room was fabulous with oak flooring, leather sofas, and an open fire. Nicole walked to the glass doors and swept her eyes over the entire garden. It was beautifully landscaped. Open fields stretched beyond the fence.

“Nicole is a keen gardener,” Julian said.

Cheryl smiled. “We have a corner plot, so our back garden is bigger than the others—though to be fair, all the gardens are a good size.”

“Why on earth would you want to move from here?” Nicole couldn’t help asking.

“I don’t, believe me. But my husband’s company has asked him to take a job in Australia.”

“Oh, wow. That sounds fantastic.”

“We hope so. It’s the only reason we’ve agreed to leave here. We’ll be living in Sydney for at least three years, then we’ll decide if we want to come back to the UK or not.” Cheryl nodded towards the hallway. “Come on, I’ll show you the rest of the house.”

The kitchen-diner was equally impressive, with immaculate fitted cupboards and a granite-topped island. All the appliances were finished in brushed steel, and a set of French doors led out to a stone-flagged patio. Next, they were shown into a smaller sitting room, where Mason and his slightly older sister were watching cartoons on a huge flat-screen TV mounted on the wall. Toys were stacked on shelving units.

“This is mainly used as the playroom,” Cheryl explained.

“It’s lovely.” Nicole was thinking it’d make a nice place for her to work in. A picture window overlooked a side garden bigger than their whole back garden at home.

“Let’s go upstairs.”

Nicole and Julian exchanged excited looks all the way around the tour, but Nicole couldn’t help assuming that the house would sell before they’d even arranged to get their own on the market.

“What stage are you at with your own sale?” Cheryl asked.

Julian frowned. “Ah, very early stages, I’m afraid.”

“Well that could be perfect. Gordon’s company has agreed that if we identify a suitable buyer, they’ll purchase your house and sell it. I assume that’ll work out cheaper for them than getting a bridging loan on this place. We’re due to leave in three weeks’ time.”

Nicole’s heart soared. “You mean...?”

Cheryl shrugged. “I mean if you like the house and are happy with the price, it’s yours. Send us your solicitor’s name, and Gordon’s company will arrange a valuation of your place. You won’t even need an estate agent.”

Temporarily speechless, Nicole glanced around the hall again, trying to imagine living here.

“Do you have any other viewings booked?” Julian asked.

“Not at the moment.”

Julian glanced at Nicole, then looked back at Cheryl with a beaming smile. “We’ll take it.”

Once back in the car, Nicole stared at the house as if in a dream. “Are we really going to be able to live there?”

“We certainly are. I phoned the bank earlier to check what mortgage I’d be able to get with my new salary. We can more than afford this one.”

“Wow. I can’t believe it.”

He started the car. “Right, dinner.”

The Crown was a beautiful black and white half-timbered building set back from the road. The carpark, which was usually crammed, had only four other cars in it. Once inside, they were escorted to an isolated table by a waitress in a clear visor and disposable gloves. She was back within two minutes with their drinks order, placing them on a side table.

Nicole took a sip of her gin and tonic. “I can’t believe we could be living in that house in a month’s time.”

Julian reached across the table and took her hand. “It might take longer for the legal side of things to be completed, but I’m happy to be patient.”

She nodded. "Me too."

He pushed his leg against hers under the table. "I think our life is turning out to be perfect."

She looked into his eyes, knowing he was talking about more than his promotion and their potential new home. "Is it really better for you?"

"Yes."

"But it seems like you're doing all the hard work and making the sacrifices, while I'm the one who's getting most of the benefits."

"And that's as it should be. You deserve to be the centre of attention."

She stared into his eyes, feeling guilty and excited and spoiled all at the same time. "Thank you, but are you sure you want us to go down this...?" She shrugged, wondering exactly how to phrase the fact she'd be having sex with another man. "This sharing route?"

"Yes, but rather than sharing, I prefer to think of it as a loan."

"A loan?" Nicole wasn't sure she liked that term. "Doesn't a loan usually involve some sort of interest payment?"

He guffawed. "My only interest is knowing that you're enjoying yourself, and knowing how it will make things more exciting between us."

"You really like the idea of it?"

He nodded.

"What if I hadn't...? I mean, last year. What if I hadn't been so selfish? Would you have felt like you were missing out?"

"I don't know. This wasn't something I'd thought about or longed for. I don't think I knew I had these feelings until I had to confront them."

"I'm still sorry for what I did."

"As I said, it's opened up something for us that could be... Well, we've already had a lot of fun, and it's only just started."

She nodded, thinking how passionate things had become between them since she'd first met his boss. A thought occurred. "Was it Ciaran who told you about the promotion?"

"No. I got a phone call from the Marketing Director, but Ciaran had been informed because he came to congratulate me, and then sent out a memo to all the others in the team.”

“And how did your peers take the news?”

“They seemed pleased for me.”

The waitress approached, left two menus on the neighbouring table, then retreated. They silently studied the choices for a few minutes. Julian opted for pâté followed by bream, while Nicole went for scallops followed by a vegetable bake.

After they’d placed their order, Nicole asked the question that’d been on her mind all day. “Did Ciaran make any comment about our meeting yesterday?”

“Only that you hadn’t had time to look at the spreadsheets yet.”

“I’m not convinced he actually needs a bookkeeper.”

“I think he does, but maybe he allows himself to get distracted.”

“Is that what he thinks I am, a distraction?”

“I think the distraction is the chemistry between the two of you.” Julian grinned. “I imagine he finds it hard to concentrate on business when you’re with him.”

That’s because he thinks with his dick. “And what about you? Do you find it hard to concentrate on business when I’m with him?”

He chuckled quietly. “It’s fair to say I’m more than a little distracted when I know the two of you are in a meeting.”

“But distracted in a good way?”

“Yes.”

“Good. But now...” She raised her glass. “No more talk about anyone else. This is your night. We’re celebrating your promotion, which is a fitting reward for all the extra work you’ve put in over the years. And when we get home, I’ll be rewarding you for being such a kind and loving husband.”

His eyes sparkled with excitement. Just then, the waitress delivered their first course.

Over dinner they chatted about their potential new home, Nicole worrying they wouldn’t be able to afford to furnish every room for a while. Julian suggested Cheryl and her husband might consider selling some of their furniture since it'd probably cost more to ship to Australia than to replace it once they'd arrived. They both agreed that moving to Parkside Grange would certainly make up for not being allowed to go on holiday as a result of the pandemic.

It was a warm evening and only nine-thirty when they arrived home, so they drank brandy out on their patio. When their glasses were empty, Julian asked if she wanted another.

Nicole leaned close and nuzzled his neck. "No. I want you to take me to bed."

He smiled. "Is this going to be another case of you using me to satisfy desires a certain other person has generated?"

"No, this has nothing to do with him. We're not going to mention anyone else."

"Ah. That sounds—"

Nicole kissed him on the mouth, then pulled him to his feet. Sliding her arms under his jacket and around his waist, she hugged him as they kissed. Then she led him inside and upstairs. Once in their bedroom, they slowly undressed each other, kissing flesh as it became exposed. They climbed naked into bed and lay side by side, stroking each other while kissing.

He ran his fingers over her sex and smiled at the wetness. She eased him onto his back and climbed on top, lying full length with her boobs crushed against his chest and her legs either side of his. Julian reached down and fed his cock into her. She writhed and undulated on him as he stroked her back and bum. Their love-making was slow and tender.

Getting close, she opened her eyes and stared into his. Julian gazed up at her, then as her muscles clenched around him, he leaned up and kissed her face. Nicole cried out as the orgasm surged through her.

Finally, with the spasms ebbing to a warm throb of contentment, she stilled and smiled down at him. "Mmm. Now it's your turn."

Julian rolled them both over without letting his cock slip out. Once he was lying on top, he held himself up on straight arms and pumped his hips. He started slow, gradually increasing the speed and force of his thrusts as she watched his face. When his breathing became ragged, she rocked her hips, clenching and relaxing her muscles around his cock.

His mouth dropped open and he held still. She could feel his cock twitching as it unloaded deep inside her. Bucking herself against him, she came again. Julian resumed his thrusts. The two of them groaned and clung to each other as they rode out the final ripples of pleasure.

Breathless, Julian rolled off. He turned his head and smiled at her.

She snuggled up to him and kissed his cheek. "Thank you."

He was silent for a moment, then took a breath. "It's been a long time since we've made love like that."

"Hmm."

"I mean the last couple of times, after talking about..." He nodded, as if in agreement that Ciaran wouldn't be mentioned. "They were wonderful. And intense, but—"

"They were us fucking. This was us making love."

"Right, yes. But what I'm saying is, do you think what we just did was because of the recent developments?"

"Tonight was about us, not Ciaran. What we just shared proves we don't need anybody else to make our sex life satisfying."

His mouth opened, and he looked slightly concerned.

Nicole giggled. "I'm not saying we won't use him for our kinky fulfilment, but we don't need him."

"So you're still...?" He gave another embarrassed shrug.

"I'll do it if you tell me it's what you want."

His jaw clenched and he breathed through his nose. Then he closed his eyes and nodded. "It's what I want."

She smiled. "That's what I thought." She laid her head on his chest. "In that case, I guess I should read his spreadsheets and suggest we have another meeting."

She felt Julian's heart beat faster as they lay in silence.

* * * *

Nicole finally got around to looking at Ciaran's spreadsheets late on Sunday afternoon. They seemed pretty straightforward. She had no doubt that she'd be able to fulfil his bookkeeping needs as well as his carnal ones.

She typed out a text:

Hi Ciaran

I've now had time to look at the spreadsheets.

I'm sure I'll be able to do whatever it is you need. Let me know when you want me to come into the office.

Maybe I could visit at the end of a day, after Bernice has gone home. That way I won't need to worry about being quiet :-)

Nicole

As she hit 'Send', a tingle developed deep inside her.

Ciaran's reply arrived within a minute:

Tomorrow at 6pm.

Dress appropriately.

The tingle intensified to a deep, yearning need. In twenty-four hours' time, she was going to have another man's dick inside her.

* * * *

Nicole stopped at a security gate that had been open during her day-time visits. The guard raised the barrier as soon as she gave her name.

Reception was completely empty except for Ciaran, who stood by the inner door minus his jacket, his tie loosened, and cuffs turned back. He smiled and ran his eyes hungrily over her body, taking in the red silk blouse, black pencil skirt, nylons and high heels. They walked in silence up the stairs, along the corridor and past Bernice's desk.

As soon as they were inside Ciaran's office, he closed the door and nodded toward a cardboard box on the table under the window. "That's for you. It's all the paperwork for this financial year. Receipts and invoices. Have a look through and let me know if you need anything else."

Nicole glanced at the box, then looked back at Ciaran. "Okay. Does that mean the bookkeeping discussion's over now?"

He smiled, his blue eyes twinkling. "It depends if you have any questions."

She bit her lip and looked to the ceiling as she pretended to think, then shook her head. "No, I don't think so."

"Good." He slipped his arms around her waist and pulled her close, looking into her eyes. "So, are you going to play hard to get again?"

"Did I do that the last time?"

"You know you did." He reached into his back pocket and took out a pack of condoms. "But today, I've come prepared."

"I actually had some in my handbag at the last meeting but thought what we did instead was quite sexy."

He looked angry for a moment, then chuckled and shook his head. "You fucking tease."

"I suppose I was." She ran her hands over his shoulders and down his arms, reminding herself how good his body felt. She leaned close and inhaled, savouring his cologne and musk. "But I'm not going to tease you tonight." She took the condoms from his hand and held them up in front of his face. "And you're not going to be wearing one of these, either." She dropped them to the floor, then stepped away from him and started to unbutton her blouse.

Ciaran's eyes widened as she opened the blouse and slipped it off. Her erect nipples were clearly visible through the black lace cups of her bra. She undid the catch and zip of her skirt and, with a wiggle of her hips, let it slip down her legs to the floor. Stepping out of it, she stood in front of him wearing only her bra, suspender belt, stockings and shoes.

He stared wide-eyed at her fully exposed sex.

"I didn't want you cutting up another pair of my panties."

He took a deep breath, then finally tore his eyes away and looked up into her face. "Fucking hell."

She strutted over to the table under the window, grabbed the box and put it down by the door. "So I don't forget it," she said, suppressing a grin at his perplexed expression. "I'm hoping you'll take my mind off the accounts for a little while."

Nicole walked to his desk and leaned her bum against the top. Ciaran stepped close. Watching his face, she unfastened the knot of his tie, then began on his shirt buttons. "I still remember what you said the first time I met you."

"Oh?" He traced his fingers around her nipples, setting her nerve-endings ablaze.

"We were talking about healthy food, and you said I could have as much cream as I liked..." She pushed his shirt open and bent to suck his nipple, then straightened and kissed his jaw. "Remember?"

He nodded.

"Good." She raised herself up onto his desk and parted her legs. Reaching down, she stroked the bulge in his trousers. "Because tonight, I'm going to put your theory to the test."

Her fingers made short work of his belt and zipper. Once she'd released his cock, she stroked it with both hands. It was just as thick, long and straight as she remembered.

"Are you saying you want my cream?"

She smiled and pointed his cock between her legs. "Yes. But you have some work to do first."

"I do?"

She nodded. "You've got to fuck me." She bit his ear lobe. "And you've got to please me."

Ciaran stepped to the desk and slid his cock inside her. Nicole cried out, surprised by the girth. He was thicker than Julian, and it felt delicious. She gripped his head and wrapped her legs around his waist.

"Fuck, you're so tight," he whispered. "So fucking hot and tight."

She looked into his eyes and breathed through clenched teeth, unwilling to admit to him how big he felt.

After easing her back until she lay on his desk, he gripped her hips and fucked her with slow, deep thrusts. Nicole reached between the cups of her bra and undid the clasp, freeing her boobs. Ciaran's hands immediately seized them, caressing and squeezing gently while pulling at the nipples.

Nicole began to rock her hips, writhing on his desk as he fucked her. She arched her back, which allowed his cock to slide in deeper. "Ahh... Ow!"

He smiled down at her. "You like that?" He pushed in again, the tip of his unsheathed cock hitting places that hadn't been reached before. "Does it feel good?"

She nodded.

"Are you going to come for me, Nicole?" He pushed in again.

"Yeah, I'm going to come for you."

He pinched her nipples harder while continuing to push deep with each slow thrust. "So come."

Her eyelids fluttered and her breathing became ragged. "I'm..."

He pushed deep again, his cock stretching and filling her.

"I'm..." Her legs trembled and her heart raced in her chest. "Oh!"

Nicole gripped the edge of the desk on either side of her legs as she came. Ciaran fucked her harder, ploughing in and out through her spasms as they gripped his cock. He pinched her nipples harder, making her cry out again. She bucked and twisted, willing him to come, but he just fucked her harder.

When her orgasm had passed, he slowed his thrusts and smiled down at her. "Ready for a change of position?"

She blinked, amazed that he still hadn't come. "Okay."

He eased back and out of her, then helped her off the desk to the floor. "Take a step away, turn and bend over."

She did as told, the front of her bra hanging down. Gripping the edge of the desk, she placed her feet wide apart and kept her legs straight.

Nicole looked over her shoulder at Ciaran and wiggled. "Come and get it."

He bent his knees slightly and entered her with force, making her grunt. Now he fucked her hard, his hands gripping her hips and pulling her back to meet each thrust.

With her eyes closed and her hair hanging down on either side of her face, Nicole's focus was on the fat cock reaming her from behind. She was being used. She was being used and it felt amazing. She began to push back to meet his thrusts, rendering his hands on her hips redundant.

"Fuck me," she growled.

Ciaran complied.

Glancing over her shoulder, she saw his brow beaded with sweat. "Where's the cream you promised me?"

He pounded her, then pushed in all the way and held still.

Nicole moaned as she felt his cock pulse. She used her fingers to rub her clit while his cock continued to pump its load inside her. She came a second time, grunting in a most unladylike manner.

Ciaran resumed his thrusts, and she lowered her head onto the desk as he kept fucking her. His cock was still hard, and she was happy for him to continue. She closed her eyes and revelled in the sensation of being used in this way. He was relentless, banging into her over and over for a long time before letting out a long sigh and holding still.

He'd come twice—something she'd never experienced before.

When he eventually pulled out and stepped back, she stood up. Her hair clung to the perspiration on her face, and her entire lower body ached. She looked over at Ciaran, who stared at her with wide eyes while taking huge gulps of air.

"I told you there'd be no teasing tonight," she said.

He dropped down onto his office chair without bothering to cover his cock. "God, that was..." He shook his head, then let out another long exhale. "Jesus."

Nicole fastened her bra, then stepped back into her skirt.

"Do you want a drink or anything?" he asked.

"No thanks." She had no intention of sitting here in the afterglow. She picked up her blouse and slipped it on, fastened the buttons and smoothed down her skirt. Combing her hair with her fingers, she flashed him a smile and walked over to pick up the box of receipts. Holding it against her hip, she opened the door.

“Is that it?” he asked. “You’re just going to leave now?”

“We both know I only came here to fuck. Now we have, I’m going home.”

“But we’ll do this again, right?”

She smiled. “Oh yes, we’ll do it again.”

With that, Nicole left his office and let the door swing shut behind her. She walked along the deserted corridor, down the stairs and through the empty reception. Once in her car, she glanced inside the box. On top of the pile of receipts and invoices, she found a small, wrapped parcel. Picking it up, she knew immediately what it was. Inside, she found a black silk thong identical to the one Ciaran had cut from her during her last visit. She laughed, dropped it back into the box and drove to the security gate. Waving to the guard, she settled back for the drive home.

Julian was pacing when she walked in through the back door, his eyes full of questions.

“Go to the bedroom,” she ordered. “Take your clothes off.”

He practically ran out of the room and up the stairs.

Nicole followed at her own pace. By the time she’d reached their bedroom, he was sitting on the bed in just his underpants.

Holding his gaze, she slowly removed her blouse and then stepped out of her skirt, exactly as she’d done for Ciaran earlier.

Julian’s face was a picture. “Did you...? Is that how you dressed for your meeting?”

She nodded.

“And did...? What did he say?”

“He liked it.” She took a breath. “Listen, shall I go for a quick shower?”

“No.”

She stepped closer to the bed and frowned. “I could be a bit messy down there.”

He reached out and ran his fingers through the matted hair around her sex. As he pushed his fingers inside, she heard the squelch and felt Ciaran's cum ooze out. Julian pulled out his fingers and rubbed the mess all around her sex.

"You don't mind?" she asked.

He kept his gaze fixed on the gooey mess. "No, I don't mind."

"I thought maybe you wouldn't like it."

He slipped his fingers back inside her. "It turns me on."

"I thought his dick being in me was the important thing. You said it made no difference if he came in there or in a condom."

He wouldn't meet her eyes. "I may have... That wasn't completely true."

Nicole stared down at him, then placed her feet a little wider to give him easier access. "You liked the idea of him coming inside me?"

He swallowed, then nodded.

"Do you want to go inside me now, feel all that sticky wetness on your dick?"

He looked up at her. Swallowed hard. "I may not last very long."

"I don't care, just put it in and do whatever you want."

She crawled onto the bed, lay on her back and spread her legs. Julian removed his shorts, clambered between her thighs, and pushed into her.

Letting out a sigh, Nicole wrapped her arms around his waist.

He held himself still and looked down at her. "Tell me."

"I went into his office and removed my blouse and skirt like I did for you. Then I sat on his desk and told him what I wanted."

His breathing was shallow. "Which was?"

"That I wanted to be fucked. He lay me down on his desk and did exactly that. After I'd come, he made me stand up and bend over his desk, and he fucked that way until he came."

Julian began to tremble slightly, but seemed reluctant to move his cock in and out.

“I came again when Ciaran did, and after he’d come, he stayed hard. He kept fucking me until he came again.”

“Really?” Julian closed his eyes and frowned. He was on the brink.

She kissed his cheek. “Don’t fight it. We can talk more later. Just relax and give me a third shot.”

His eyes clicked open as soon as she’d said it, his hips snapping forward. Nicole wriggled beneath him and he cried out, his legs locked straight and his body shaking.

Nicole rubbed his back and whispered encouragement. “Yeah, that’s it.” She kissed his face.

Eventually, they both stilled. Julian took a deep breath and rolled off her, then stared up at the ceiling.

“Are you okay?”

He shook his head. “I’m sorry I was so...brief.”

“Don’t be. It’s flattering that you can get so turned on by the thought of me... y’know. With someone else.”

He shrugged in his typical way.

Stroking his arm, she looked into Julian’s eyes. “And there was no reason to lie to me before—about wanting to hear about him coming inside me.”

“I didn’t want you to think me a complete pervert.” He smiled again. “Sorry.”

“It’s okay. But if we’re both going to get as much out of this as we can, then we need to talk about all the things we want.”

He leaned up on one elbow. “You’d do that? I mean, if there was something I wanted?”

She smiled. “Maybe. But now, I really do need a shower. How about you phone for a pizza, and I’ll get cleaned up. Then after we’ve eaten, you can bring me back to bed and tell me all the things you want me to do with Ciaran.”

Nicole walked through to the bathroom, a little tender but very content. As the hot water cascaded down over her body, she allowed herself to reflect on how their lives had changed over these last few weeks. Julian's promotion, the new house, and the desires her husband had kept hidden.

The prospect of being a loaned wife was exciting. Especially when her husband was going to come up with a list of dirty things he wanted her to do with another man.

THE END

Delores Swallows

United Kingdom (2020)

About the Author

Delores Swallows has many dirty thoughts, and during his free time he writes them down in the form of stories. Born and bred in the northwest of England, he has a commoner's accent and a bit of a crush on his future queen (Kate, not Camilla!).

His stories often feature petite brunettes, high-heeled shoes and voyeurism. He claims he didn't realise these were obsessions until someone pointed out how often they appear in his work.

Find out more about Delores on his web site, chat on Twitter, or follow his new stories on Amazon. And don't forget to sign up to his mailing list for a free story.

Don't forget your dirty story exclusively available to members of Delores' mailing list.

Also by Delores Swallows

A Hotwife's Journey

Her key in the door made his heart race. He listened as she came up the stairs, then held his breath when she walked into the bedroom. He couldn't help staring. Her clothes were twisted, her makeup was smudged, and her hair was dishevelled.

She's fucked someone.

Karen walked to the foot of the bed and looked into his face. "I did it."

He swallowed.

She pulled her top over her head and dropped it on the floor, then pushed her skirt down over her hips and kicked it away. Slowly, she unclipped her bra at the front. As the cups came away, he saw a love bite on one of her breasts. Karen held his gaze as she pushed her thong down her legs and then bent to pick it up, holding it open so he could see the gooey mess soaked into the crotch.

It was another man's cum, and it'd dribbled out of her during the drive home. The guy had deposited it deep in her cunt, and she'd returned home to her pervert husband to show him the evidence.

Nigel ached for her.

After her husband's open invitation to become a hotwife, Karen enjoys a variety of surprises and adventures that are hotter than any wife could wish for.

This collection covers her entire journey.

Karen's Open Invitation

Nigel is a lucky man. He has everything a man could want: a successful and beautiful wife, a happy marriage, two wonderful daughters, a nice home and his own business.

So why risk it all just to satisfy his dirty fantasy?

When Karen's throwaway comment about a hot colleague in the Sweden office unlocks the door to his secret desires, he offers her the chance to have a little fun; to mix business with pleasure.

Nigel has fantasised about sharing his wife for a long time. And from the way Karen's been behaving lately, he suspects the idea appeals to her, too. But there's a big difference between fantasy and reality.

Will she take up his suggestion and have a passionate tryst with a virtual stranger while attending an overseas meeting? Neither know the answer when she leaves for the airport, but she doesn't have to make her decision straight away. She can see how the meeting pans out. After all, it's an open invitation...

Karen's Party Surprise

Nigel is amazed by how Karen's taken to her new role as a hotwife. Not only does she give herself freely to strangers, but she also thrills her husband by giving him all the juicy details he craves when she gets home.

Their sex-life is better than ever.

Nigel realises that an upcoming company get together will mean that they'll be staying in the same hotel as Sean, the first man he ever shared her with. He offers Karen the chance to enjoy another night of passion, and they hatch a plan that could work. But Sean comes up with a counteroffer that's just too good to refuse.

For a wife-sharing couple like Nigel and Karen, it's the ultimate party surprise...

Karen's Holiday Adventures

Life keeps getting better and better for Nigel. His long-held wife-sharing fantasy is now his reality, and he couldn't be happier.

Or at least that's what he thinks until his wife reveals her plans for a break.

Their daughters are going away with their cousin's family, so Karen books a holiday for the two of them—on a Caribbean island. What's more, she promises to make it a fun-filled week where nothing is off-limits.

Under the hot tropical sun of St Lucia, Nigel learns just how hot his hotwife can be.

He's shocked by the diversity of her sexual appetite, but then she did promise him an 'anything goes' holiday adventure...

A Hotwife's Journey is available from Amazon

Take My Wife

After about fifteen minutes, Sophie leaned up on her elbow and started to kiss Joel, ready to continue with her night of passion. As she pushed the quilt down the bed with her foot, Jim saw that her hand was gripping Joel's dick, slowly masturbating him. Joel was already hard. Evidently, he was ready for more, too. Jim wondered how long Sophie had been playing with him. Sophie climbed on top of him, feeding his thick dick inside her.

Jim knelt on the bed next to their legs and watched as his wife slowly made love to the other man. Her head was buried against Joel's shoulder, her long tousled hair a dark fan over the pillow, hiding both their faces. Their bodies moved together in a slow, sensual dance. From his position on the bed, Jim had a perfect view of their union. With each slow, upward movement of Sophie's hips he could see Joel's slippery hardness, partially exposed for a second or two before it disappeared again inside the dark pinkness. Joel was holding Sophie's hips in his hands, moving her on him. Jim stretched his hand out and gently stroked the back of Sophie's leg, aroused to feel her thigh muscles working as she rode his friend.

There was a layer of perspiration on Sophie's back, giving her a sultry, exotic look in the dim yellow light. Their lovemaking seemed to go on for a long time before Sophie reached her climax. She was very vocal as she came – muffled moans and sighs as the current built up, urgent grunts as the waves swelled inside her, then screams and shouts as the waves broke into an explosion of pleasure. Finally, she let out grateful cries and whimpers as she rode the final waves.

The epic saga of how a really dirty fantasy becomes a fantastically dirty reality. All three books under one sweaty cover.

Bon Voyeur

Another man in their bed? Madness! Sophie and Jim had never done it before—heck, it was only supposed to be a fantasy to get them in the mood for each other. What if Sophie likes it too much? What if Jim has second thoughts when he sees his beautiful wife taken by another man? What if she enjoys the other man more because he has more to offer?

When the perfect opportunity presents, though, they both jump at the chance.

Joel is tall, handsome, and so much bigger than even Sophie expected! Best of all, he's moving to the other side of the world, so they need never see him again. If Jim plays this right, Joel won't even suspect the stranger they're sharing is his loving wife.

Watching his beautiful Sophie—so vulnerable, so unprotected, so utterly owned—Jim experiences a powerful revelation. It's sure been fun having a gorgeous wife all to himself, but it's much more fun to share.

Abuse of Power

Jim's learning things about himself that he never knew. Surprising things. Like how much he enjoys watching his wife lose herself with another man. Sophie's learning as well, like how when it comes to male attention, for her it's a case of the more the merrier.

And Sophie loves getting merry. You might say she's becoming addicted. Sometimes she needs it so bad she'll take the initiative herself, even when Jim is not around. For most men, that might be a problem, but Jim is not most men. Just knowing what his loving wife is doing without him, giving herself to those men, letting them have her in every way they can... Yes, he gets jealous, but if Sophie tells him everything, how she becomes so needy that she simply relinquishes her will, it can be almost as good as being there.

Drunk on the seemingly inexhaustible depth of his wife's libido, Jim oversteps at a swinging party and starts directing Sophie's lovers, telling them where they should finish. Finally, Sophie cracks. Sticky, degraded, angry, she strikes back and gives her cuckold husband a taste of his own medicine... or at least, her lovers' medicine.

Global Playground

Jim is a simple man with simple needs. He's lives in a nice house on a nice street, he's got a good job, and he plays tennis to wind down. And on weekends he kisses his wife Sophie goodbye when she goes off to swingers' parties to service her ever-escalating needs. Billionaires, porn stars, dancers—one at a time or all at once, it doesn't matter to Sophie. She'll take it every way she can get it and relay all the juicy details to Jim when she gets home.

Life is good. Too good, you might say. For a voyeur like Jim, his open marriage is damn near perfect. Little bit of wife-watching, little bit of playing around... what more could a man want? Well there's only one answer to the eternal question, and that's the eternal truth. He want's what he can't have—romantic dates, curling up in front of a fire, sweet togetherness—and while Sophie is off jet-setting with wealthy men to service her needs, Jim falls into a comfortable friendship with Naomi, a stunning older woman and self-described cougar.

For a man who's known nothing but chocolate-chip, where's the harm in trying vanilla for once? Just a little taste... maybe a scoop...

Take My Wife is available from Amazon

Extramarital Pursuits

Michelle climbed up off the lounge and turned to face Harry. Lucas's sunglasses still hid her eyes, and his cum still covered her chest and stomach.

She tilted her head to one side and smiled. "Take my picture."

Harry did so, taking at least ten shots.

"And now shoot a video," she ordered.

Harry obeyed, selecting the correct option and pressing the red button.

Michelle smeared the cum all over her stomach and breasts while looking directly into the lens. "I have a confession—this isn't my husband's cum. My husband has just watched another man fuck me, and I know he enjoyed it almost as much as I did." She licked her lips. "And when we get home, my husband is going to use me for his pleasure, and then he's going to come all over me as well." Michelle gave her most beautiful smile. "I love my life."

The complete sordid trilogy under one sweaty cover...

Operation Cuckold

Harry's having problems rising to the occasion and discovers Michelle's been using porn to help take care of things herself. He suggests she lives out her fantasy of a one-night stand, but is shocked by how much he gets out of it. As they repeat the experience with other men, pretty soon neither can stand the idea of going back to what they had before, even though Michelle pushes Harry right out of his comfort zone.

A cuck and bull story about a very happy hotwife.

Stag Nights

Harry and Michelle are now fully entrenched in their new wife-sharing lifestyle. Michelle is proving to be one of the hottest hotwives around, with bulls waiting in line to take turns. Literally. As Michelle gets more of what she craves, she pushes Harry further into the role of the cuckold and he's presented with situations he finds hard to accept. Things look like they might be going awry until a helpful bull called Ben explains that not all wife-sharing husbands need to be cucks...

Unleashing the Bull

When Josh's ex-girlfriend asks to meet for coffee, his hopes that they might get back together are crushed by news of her whirlwind romance and marriage. He offers his congratulations through gritted teeth, still besotted enough to agree to meet her again just days later. This time, Olivia's more provocative, more flirtatious, and she tells him exactly what part of him she misses the most. Caught up in a rush of emotions which steamroll over his morals, he goes back to her upmarket townhouse and indulges in what he's been missing. Her behaviour—coarser, sluttier—puzzles him, but that doesn't stop him going back for more. And then she tells him that her husband wants to meet him. Josh is stunned to find that her husband is a cuckold who actively encourages their liaisons. Hotwife Olivia, with her husband's help, convinces Josh that he has the physical attributes and stamina to service not just her, but several of her friends. Rising to the challenge, he becomes Ben the Bull, and loves every minute of it. As he explains to a friend, his life is full of dates with gorgeous women interested in having hot, dirty sex and nothing more.

Surely, no red-blooded man could want for anything more than that...?

Extramarital Pursuits is available from Amazon

