Midnight Mirror

To brighten her dreary flat, Natalie buys an old mirror, soon finding that it isn't what it seems. At the witching hour, her reflection takes on a life of its own. Natalie finds herself physically sharing the sex scenes taking place inside the glass.

Her mirror is her hot little secret until the scenes on the other side become disturbing, making her frightened to stay in her own home.

She knows she needs to overcome the force behind the glass, but the only thing she can think of is to use herself as bait...

Midnight Mirror

Chapter One

Natalie sat on the small couch and looked round her new flat. The walls had a rough-textured plaster finish and needed a coat of paint to cover the dirty outlines from the previous tenants' pictures. The exposed floorboards could do with another coat or two of varnish. The room was bleak and cold, which pretty much described Natalie's demeanour as well. After spending two years of her life with Joe, they'd split up over a ridiculous argument. He'd stormed out one evening, then came back a couple of hours later to announce their relationship was over. That had been three weeks ago, and during that time Joe had stayed with a friend while she'd found this flat. She'd moved herself and her clothes in three days ago, and kept hoping she'd wake to find it had all been a bad dream.

She suspected he'd been looking for an excuse to leave. Their argument certainly wasn't enough to cause a relationship to end, and she couldn't shake the thought that he'd engineered the entire thing so that he could get out. Maybe he'd met somebody...

Determined to stop feeling sorry for herself, Natalie made a decision. She checked her watch and calculated she'd have time to get to the DIY superstore before it closed—they stayed open until eight most nights. She left the house and drove to the retail park. Twenty minutes later she loaded her car with five litres of pale blue emulsion, a litre of clear varnish, a polythene dust sheet and a pack of paint brushes of varied widths. On her way home she called for a Cantonese takeaway and a bottle of wine, and after eating her dinner had an early night.

Natalie was up bright and early the following morning. She dressed in an old t-shirt and cut-offs, moved the couch into the doorway to her bedroom and covered the lounge floor with the polythene sheet. Starting on the wall over the fireplace, she gave all the walls a coat of paint, had a break for elevenses and then applied a second coat. After taking up the polythene sheet, she gave the room a quick vacuum and varnished the floor.

As soon as that was finished, she showered and headed off to peruse the second-hand shops, reasoning that a couple of nice pieces of furniture and maybe a picture or two would give the flat a much more homely appearance. Walking round one of the shops, she found a small coffee table, a brushed-steel standard lamp and a couple of framed water-colours that would go with the blue wall paint she'd chosen. She was looking at an old vase when her eye caught sight of a mirror leaning against the back wall. Natalie approached it, moving a pot-plant out of the way so she could see it properly. It was huge, maybe six feet high and over two feet wide, with an ornate, silver-painted frame. Although there were a couple of chips on the frame, the glass of the mirror itself was fine. Natalie thought it was a little expensive at £50. The Pakistani shop owner wandered over to where she stood.

He pointed at the mirror. "You like?"

Natalie nodded, looking at his reflection in the mirror. "Yes, but I'm not sure I can afford it."

The owner smiled, looking round at the items she'd already gathered. "If you take lamp, table and pictures, you can have mirror for only twenty-five pounds. How is that sounding? Good deal, yes?"

Natalie smiled. "That's very nice of you. Thank you, I'll take them all."

"Good, good." The man nodded enthusiastically. "Do you have car?"

"It's parked up the road."

The man pointed at the counter. "You pay now, then bring car and park outside. I load for you."

By the time she'd re-parked, the shop owner had all her items stacked on the pavement. With minimal effort, everything was loaded into her car.

Back home, it took four trips to get everything upstairs. The freshly-varnished floor was now mostly dry enough to walk on, so she moved the couch back into the room and placed her coffee table in front of it. Then she hung her water colours and gathered the strength to put the mirror up. She'd originally thought of using it as a full-length mirror in her bedroom, but decided to hang it width-ways over the fireplace where there was already a sturdy hook in place. The mirror was huge, almost half the length of the wall. But it was also deep enough for her to see her complete upper body when standing in front of the hearth. She placed her new lamp in one corner of the room and fitted a bulb. With the lamp on and the curtains closed, the lounge was no longer the miserable, bleak space it had been just twenty-four hours earlier. It now looked quite cosy. Happy with her endeavours, she ran a bath and went to get what was left of the previous night's bottle of wine.

Later that evening, her groceries were delivered. The van driver carried the bags up the stairs and to the door of her flat, and for the first time ever she appreciated the value of on-line shopping. Not having a strong man to help with the weekly shop wasn't going to be a problem, after all. She made herself chicken Carbonara and opened a new bottle of wine. Then she sat on the couch to eat, setting her laptop on her new coffee table and loading a DVD into the drive. She watched the latest Mission Impossible film, refilling her glass halfway through. When the film finished, she decided it was time for bed. She switched off the new lamp and started to unbutton her shirt.

As she passed the mirror, she glanced at her own reflection. Her shirt hung open, revealing a black lace bra and her flat, toned stomach. Natalie thought she looked pretty good, and hoped Joe was sitting alone somewhere. Missing her.

As Natalie looked, she saw her own reflected face and frowned. Rather than looking straight back at her, her eyes were still looking down at her exposed body. Natalie blinked a couple of times and shook her head, wondering how much the wine could be affecting her. The room was suddenly chilly. She felt her nipples pucker and goosebumps raised on her arms. She watched as her reflected eyes slowly moved up her body. As soon as they'd reached the point where they were locking gazes again, her reflection started to blink impossibly fast, making Natalie gasp and turn away. When she looked back, her reflection was normal. Her heart beat hard in her chest and her hands shook.

Maybe the turmoil of splitting with her partner was getting to her more than she thought. She checked her watch—it was just after midnight.

It'd been a long day, with the decorating and the shopping. Her hallucinating was more likely down to wine and tiredness, rather than pining after Joe. She went to bed without bothering to clean her teeth. What was the point of having fresh breath if there was nobody to kiss goodnight?

The following morning, Natalie lay in bed thinking about what she thought she'd seen in the mirror. She was definitely spooked, but knew she must have been imagining things—after she'd finished decorating, she'd drank almost half a bottle of wine in the bath, then nearly another full bottle watching the film. She was going to have to learn to regulate her drinking now she had nobody to share with. She got up and made herself a cup of tea, then wandered through to the lounge. She glanced at the mirror on her way past, and of course it just showed a rather tired-looking Natalie looking back at her. She straightened her shoulders, hating the idea of letting herself go. She was struck by the thought she might bump into Joe at the gym and booted up her laptop to find an alternative health centre nearby. She spent an hour dithering between the Virgin Active, the community gym and others in the area, determined not to think about him lifting weights. It didn't help—she kept imagining him playing rugby instead, his hard body crashing into other men with a force that would leave her breathless on the ground.

A brief memory of them both lying breathless on the ground after they'd made love in a wood in Scotland flitted through her mind. She stood up and went for a shower, determined not to ruin her Sunday by crying. Thirty minutes later she drove into the city centre. Today would be a nice day to just wander around the shops, have a nice lunch and spoil herself a little. She'd taken a few days off work to move her clothes into her new flat. Tomorrow was the first day back, and she'd have to tell her colleagues about her recent change of circumstance.

After a very pleasant day, Natalie returned home just as it was getting dark. She put away the couple of blouses and pair of jeans she'd bought herself, then turned on her lamp and sat on the couch. Not particularly hungry, she heated up a tin of soup and ate while reading a book she'd downloaded on her laptop. After she'd tidied round her flat and ironed some clothes for work, she decided to have an early night. She turned off the lamp and felt a shiver as she walked past the mirror on her way to the bedroom.

Chapter Two

Work had been fine, and all her colleagues were very supportive when she'd told them about her separation from Joe. Monday evening was pleasant enough, too. Natalie spent a while updating her Facebook page and letting her friends know her new address. She answered a couple of texts from friends suggesting they met up for a drink soon, and went to bed shortly after ten.

She was shocked the following night when her mobile rang, and it was Joe's number showing on the screen. Her hand trembled around it as she answered.

"Hello?"

"Hi, it's me. The letting agents say you need to sign a form to confirm you're no longer a tenant here."

Natalie was deflated, immediately angry at herself. Had she really expected him to say he'd acted like an idiot and beg her to come home?

"Er, why?"

"I don't know, but they're being arses. Since you were named on the old joint tenancy agreement, they need to cancel that before they can issue us with another one."

Natalie thought this was typical of the agents. They'd been worse than useless throughout the whole term of the tenancy—it had taken three days to get someone to look at the boiler last winter. She was just about to say this when Joe's words made her pause.

"Another what?"

"Er, tenancy agreement."

"Another joint tenancy agreement, Joe?"

"What?"

"I said is it another joint tenancy agreement you need?"

"Er, listen, Nat—"

“You bastard. You’re moving someone else in before the smell of my perfume’s had a chance to clear. My hairs are probably still stuck in the plug of the shower, and you’re already moving your new woman in!”

“Natalie, it’s over. Whatever I do now is nothing—”

“Fuck off!” Natalie hung up with a stab of her thumb and dropped her mobile onto the couch.

I fucking knew there was somebody else.

She stomped into the kitchen, chose a bottle of wine from the shelf and a glass from the cupboard, taking them both back to the lounge. She drank in silence, her stomach tight and her mood dark. Her mind ran through the possibilities as she pondered the identity of the other woman. How long had it been going on? Surely he wouldn’t invite someone to move in within a few days of splitting up if he hadn’t been seeing her for a while? She thought back to their last few weeks together. Had there been any clue he’d been seeing someone else? She hadn’t noticed, and even now, with hindsight, she couldn’t think of a single thing he’d done that seemed suspicious. He’d never got home late and blamed a car problem or missed train. He’d not had any unscheduled meetings to attend, or things to finish at work which had meant he’d had to stay late. She couldn’t even recall him being distant—he’d been his usual randy self in bed right up until their abrupt separation.

After a while she refreshed her laptop screen and skimmed through the news, her Facebook updates and some shopping sites. When she’d drunk the last of the wine, she glanced at her watch and was surprised to see it was so late—almost midnight. She closed down her laptop and took her glass and the empty bottle to the kitchen. Returning to the lounge to turn off the lamp, she glanced in the mirror on the way. As she looked, the eyes of her reflection started to blink repeatedly. Natalie stopped and stared, her own eyes not blinking at all. The room became cold, and she saw her breath condensing in front of her. Then the eyes in the mirror stopped blinking, and Natalie saw her own eyes staring back at her.

But it wasn’t Natalie in the mirror—or rather it wasn’t how she should have looked.

Reflected-Natalie had her face, but her hair was a deep auburn and cut shorter, the ends curled out from her face. She had bright red lips and looked like someone from an old movie. Her floral dress reached her knees and was fitted at the waist. The room behind reflected-Natalie wasn't the living room of the flat. It was larger, with retro décor. It had patterned wallpaper and a rug that didn't reach the walls. The floorboards showing around the rug were waxed to a shine. Framed oil paintings hung from a picture rail which ran round the walls at head height. Reflected-Natalie lifted her arm and straightened her hair, whereas real-Natalie stood stock-still. Rather than looking in a mirror, she seemed to be looking into a window from the past. The large mirror was like a TV screen allowing her to see into another world, but with no sound to accompany the show. All Natalie could hear was her own breathing.

Reflected-Natalie turned as the door on the opposite wall opened and a man in army uniform entered the room. As she watched from her own flat, Natalie knew this man was the husband of her reflected-self. He pulled off his peaked cap, showing a disfigured face—his scars a result of a fire. Somehow she knew the Wellington he'd been piloting was shot down over Germany during a bombing campaign, and he'd been a Prisoner-of-War for the last three years. Her reflected-self rushed to his arms, and Natalie heard sobs of relief break from her own throat.

Her heart boomed in her chest as she watched the couple in the mirror cling to each other, the woman kissing his scarred face, running her hands gently over the part of his head where the hair would never grow back. Suddenly they were tearing at each other's clothes, and warmth flooded between Natalie's legs. The woman undid her husband's uniform jacket as his hands struggled with the buttons at the front of her dress. They fumbled with clothes, still kissing. Natalie noticed the woman crying and felt tears on her own cheeks. As the man's shirt was removed, the extent of the scarring on his upper body became evident. His wife slowed her eagerness, gently running her fingers over his red and wrinkled flesh. Natalie watched, and she shared the woman's anger. How could anyone have done this to such a beautiful body? The wife gently removed his shirt and vest, then started to kiss each inch of his blemished torso.

The husband undid enough of the buttons to allow her to slip the dress back off her shoulders and slide it down her body. She wore a cream longline bra and matching pantie girdle with built-in clips to hold up her seamed stockings. She quickly unfastened her bra, and as Natalie watched the husband bend to take a nipple into his mouth, she felt her own nipple being sucked and nibbled. She felt a need deep within her. The Natalie in the mirror hurriedly unclipped her suspenders and the husband dropped to his knees, carefully rolling the silk stockings down her legs. The girdle and panties were quickly removed, leaving forties-version Natalie completely naked. Her husband fumbled with his boot laces.

Natalie watched the scene, her heart racing with expectation, a strange impatience twisting her stomach. Finally his boots were removed and his wife was undoing the buttons of his uniform trousers. As soon as she pushed the trousers down his cock sprung free, sticking out hard and proud. The only scars below his waist were on the backs of his legs.

Natalie held her breath as she watched her other self encourage the soldier to lay flat on his back on the rug. The wife positioned herself above him and held his erection at the opening of her sex. As she lowered herself slowly down, Natalie experienced being entered, filled, and a groan escaped her lips. Her muscles gripped involuntarily around the phantom shape inside, and the lady in the mirror began to ride her husband. Moving slowly up and down, the wife watched his face.

Natalie felt guilty for sharing their intimacy, but she was transfixed. She also worried that if she moved, the couple wouldn't get their climax. She remained still, watching. The woman sped up her movements, and the tell-tale first contractions in Natalie's groin told her she was about to orgasm. The wave swept through her entire body and she came with such intensity she let out a cry. Her legs were trembling so much she had to hold on to the mantelpiece to support her weight. Suddenly she saw the man in the mirror reach up to fondle his wife, and her own breasts were being squeezed. The muscles in the man's neck strained beneath his red-scorched skin and an ice-cold sensation flooded inside Natalie's sex. Her muscles contracted again as he ejaculated. She was coming again. She watched as her other-self cried out and fell forward onto her husband, grinding herself against him as she rode out the second wave. Natalie's legs shook so much she worried she'd actually fall over. She closed her eyes, concentrating on the feelings inside.

When she finally opened her eyes, the mirror was showing her own reflection. She looked pale and shocked as she stood within her own living room. The temperature of the flat seemed to be back to normal. Whatever had just taken place was over.

Natalie's pulse was still racing. It wasn't only her legs that were shaking. She wasn't sure if it was down to fear or because she'd just come twice in quick succession. She went into her bedroom and undressed. Her panties were sodden and when she took them off, there were clear juices running down the insides of her thighs. She couldn't explain what had happened, but was sure the juices weren't her own. She lay in bed for a long time before eventually falling asleep.

The following morning Natalie showered, dressed and left the flat without looking at the mirror in the lounge. She called for a coffee and pastry en route to work, and spent all day trying to convince herself that she'd fallen asleep on the couch after drinking too much wine. That everything she'd seen had been a dream. In her heart, she knew that wasn't the case. She'd been fully awake as she watched, and had two orgasms as a result of whatever had touched her body. When she'd woken this morning, the sheet was damp beneath her—more of the juice had seeped out of her in the night.

Natalie couldn't stand the thought of being alone in her flat that evening, so she suggested to her friend Sandra that they go out for dinner straight from work. They had a great laugh talking about work, men, and movies. Although Natalie was happy to discuss her recent split, she didn't mention Joe moving another woman into their flat. When Natalie got home, she didn't go past the mirror. She walked along the edge of the lounge on her way to the bathroom, then straight to bed.

Chapter Three

After several days of trying to work up the courage, Natalie was brave enough to see if the mirror would do the same thing again. She purposely stayed up late, her stomach tight with nerves. When the clock approached twelve, she stood before the mirror in her pyjamas and watched her reflection. As the clock ticked through the final minute, Natalie held her breath.

The room went cold and her reflection started to blink at the impossible rate she'd seen before. Then Natalie was gazing at her own face, much younger, framed by short, dark hair. It was like seeing a snapshot reflection of a different version of herself before the mirror showed the whole scene. As before, Natalie knew the girl in the mirror and everything about her.

The girl was on a school trip to a beach in Wales, sitting in a striped, fold-up deckchair in a sand dune, surrounded by high grass. She was wearing a one-piece, 50's-style swimming costume. Natalie could feel the sun on her legs, and could smell the sea.

A rustle of the grass made the girl look round, and a boy approached her. He had a badly scarred face, the result of a car crash; the boy had been thrown through a windscreen earlier that year. He shuffled from foot to foot, his hands in his pockets, keeping his distance.

The girl was pleased to see him, saying something that made him laugh. Without warning, she looked around, then pulled down the top of her costume, revealing her breasts. The boy looked shocked, checking all around them to make sure they were alone. The girl smiled, beckoned him closer. He approached, hesitantly. Natalie watched as the girl held out her hand to him. He reached out his own hand and the girl took it, pressing it against her breast.

Natalie was aware of the coldness of the boy's hand on her own breast. His fingers explored, teased her nipple between finger and thumb. She watched the boy's expression of wonder as he fondled the girl in the deck-chair, yet simultaneously experienced his ice-cold hands caressing her own breasts.

The girl lifted herself up a little and pushed her costume down her legs, kicking her feet to drop it onto the sand. The boy's eyes were wide as he stared at her. The girl opened her legs and said something to him. The boy knelt by her feet and leaned closer. The girl took his head and lowered it to her groin. Natalie sensed a cold tongue slipping between her labia. The girl in the deck-chair arched her back and re-positioned the boy's head. Natalie sighed as the chilled tongue moved up a little and started to flick her clitoris over and over in a slow, gentle motion. Her juices flowed.

The girl raised one of her legs and rested it over the boy's shoulder. As she talked to him, Natalie saw him push down his shorts and grip his erection. He started stroking himself while licking between the girl's legs. The girl kept talking to him, and although Natalie couldn't hear any of what was said, she somehow knew the girl was telling him she wanted him to come on her legs. She couldn't risk pregnancy. The girl arched her back again, the leg over his shoulder pulling him closer, and Natalie was suddenly light-headed. A burst of pleasure rode through her body and she grunted in surprise as she came. She grunted again as the tongue continued to move over her clitoris, grateful when the girl eased his head away from her. The boy closed his eyes, screwing up his scarred face as if in pain. His hand was a blur on his cock, then a thick jet of his cum shot out and landed on the girl's thigh. Natalie moaned as the cold splash landed on her own leg. The boy's hand kept moving, and another dollop shot from him. Natalie felt it landing on her knee. She put her hand down her bottoms—her knickers were soaking with her own juices. The material of the pyjama bottoms were sticking to her leg where the phantom splashes of the boy's semen had landed.

Natalie saw the couple in the mirror smile at each other, then both of them started blinking and she knew the image was going to fade. Then she was staring at her own reflection.

Natalie turned off the lamp and went to bed. She was less freaked out by the mirror, this time. When she thought about it, both visions had been quite nice. She'd actually experienced the wife's rush of relief and delight on the return of her soldier husband, and the thrill of their first sex for years, and something inside told her that the scene which she'd somehow shared in had resulted in the wife becoming pregnant with their first child. As for the scene with the young couple on the beach, Natalie had a strong idea that they'd sat together on the bus journey home, holding hands beneath the girl's cardigan, their secret kept from the other kids.

* * * *

The following night, Natalie was cooking dinner when the intercom buzzed. When she answered she was surprised to hear Matt, a friend from work. She let him up, and a minute later he was standing at her door holding a bottle of wine. Natalie was a little embarrassed at Matt seeing her this way. When she'd got home, she'd changed into a denim skirt and old t-shirt. The skirt wasn't that short, but the fact she'd removed her tights and was also barefoot made her a little uncomfortable.

Matt didn't seem to notice her discomfort as he looked around her flat. "Nice place, Nat."

"Thanks." Natalie felt awkward. She'd always liked Matt, and knew he had a soft spot for her. They'd never really spent any time alone together, and she wasn't sure what to talk about.

He stood by the fireplace, looking at the mirror. "Are you sure this is big enough?" He was smiling at her reflection.

"I didn't appreciate how big it was until I got it home." She shrugged. "Or maybe I didn't realise how small this room was."

Matt looked as if he was just about to reply when he pulled his face. "Is something on fire?"

"Shit!" Natalie ran to the kitchen. The cheese sauce she'd been making had scorched to the pan and was giving off a rancid odour. She turned off the hob, placed the pan in the sink and opened the window. "Looks like I'll have to start that again."

Matt was standing close behind her. "Shall I just phone for a pizza?"

Natalie laughed and nodded. "Pizza would be good, thanks."

She opened his bottle of wine and they chatted on the couch as they waited for the delivery. She could tell he was trying hard to cheer her up, and she appreciated it. When the pizza arrived, Matt insisted on paying. They ate and drank some more, and Natalie laughed for the first time in ages. He said something nasty about one of their bosses at work, and she remembered she'd heard a rumour about that particular guy. As she leaned forward to tell Matt what she'd heard, he kissed her on the lips. Natalie paused, but kissed him back. Matt moved his hand to her arm and pulled her closer, kissing her again. Natalie closed her eyes and let it happen. It was nice to be held, to be kissed. She opened her mouth and his tongue brushed her lips, her teeth. She moved her tongue against his. His hand stroked her breast, and she heard herself groan into his mouth. His other hand caressed her bare knee and her legs reflexively parted. She leaned against the back of the couch. It felt so good to be touched again. He slid off the couch and kneeled on the floor by her feet, leaning in to kiss her again.

She raised her hand to the back of his head, but she knew she had to stop this. "Matt..."

"God, you've no idea how long I've wanted this."

"Hmm, I know, but..."

"Oh, Nat..." His hand brushed over the crotch of her panties.

She shuddered with the thrill of it, but knew she had to call a halt to the evening. "Hey, we need to take things—"

Suddenly the thin piece of material was pulled aside and he entered her. Her eyes flew open in shock. She'd had no idea he'd undone his trousers. She placed her hands flat on his chest as he started thrusting into her.

"Matt—"

"Oh, you feel so good."

"We shouldn't—"

"You've no idea how many times I've dreamed about this..."

She watched his face. His eyes were closed and his expression looked like it did when he was concentrating on some complicated problem at work. Natalie looked down and saw his cock plunging in and out of her.

She didn't know what to do—she'd been wet when he'd entered her, so her body had obviously wanted him.

“Oh, shit, I'm—” Matt suddenly withdrew and came all over her legs.

Natalie cried out, partly in surprise that he'd pulled out of her, and partly that he'd shot his load all over her.

He was still moaning and holding his cock when out of the corner of her eye, she saw a shadow move across the mirror.

Matt looked down at the mess on her legs and couch. “Sorry, but I didn't know if it'd be safe...”

Natalie didn't know what to say. She'd had no intention of having sex with Matt but it had happened, and his cock was there right in front of her. Surely the fact he'd thought about contraception at the height of his passion showed he was considerate... She smiled and moved her hand towards his cock, thinking she could explain she was on the pill and get him back inside her. Before her hand reached him, there was a loud crash as the mirror fell the few inches down the wall and banged against the mantelpiece. They jumped and Matt leapt over, holding his hand out to prevent the mirror from falling forward. Natalie instinctively checked her watch, even though she knew what it would tell her. It was exactly midnight.

Her body shaking, Natalie excused herself and practically ran to the bathroom, refusing to risk looking at the mirror. Once inside, she locked the door and wiped the cum from her legs. As she washed her hands, she looked at herself in the bathroom mirror, terrified that the eyes of her reflection would start blinking. They didn't. She tried to calm herself by taking a few deep breaths. Finally, she returned to the lounge. The mirror was hanging back in its usual place. Matt had fastened his trousers and was using a tissue to wipe his mess from the seat of the couch. Natalie kept her back to the mirror as she approached him.

“I'm so sorry about this...” He looked terribly embarrassed.

Natalie tried to smile. “You could have come inside me, it would have been okay. But thanks for thinking, anyway.”

He shrugged. "I didn't think it'd happen so fast. I'm sorry, I know you didn't get a chance to—"

"It's okay, Matt. I'm fine." She nodded toward the mirror without actually looking at it. "What'd happened to the mirror?"

"I'm not sure. The string had come off the hook somehow. It probably wasn't on properly and chose the worst possible time to fall off. Perhaps I banged the floor when I jumped off you..." He shrugged.

Natalie tried to smile, but fear rose inside her. She couldn't shake the thought that whatever was within the mirror hadn't approved of her being with Matt. In fact, she wasn't sure if she approved of it herself. Matt seemed to be waiting for her to ask him to spend the night. Even though she didn't like the idea of being alone, there was no way she'd be letting him stay over.

"Thanks for the wine and pizza."

Matt smiled, but she could see his disappointment. He made his way to the door and turned.

She kissed his cheek. "Night, Matt."

As soon as she'd closed the door she took a shower, dried herself, then went straight to bed without bothering to turn off the lamp in the lounge. She lay in the semi-dark, thinking about Joe, and whoever he was with now. She reflected on her evening. Against her better judgment, she'd allowed Matt to fuck her—although it'd been so brief she probably couldn't categorise it as being fucked. He'd shoved his dick inside her, pushed a couple of times, then pulled out and unloaded over her legs. She smiled when she remembered his reaction—his embarrassment as he'd half crouched between her legs, gripping his dripping cock.

Natalie stroked herself through her fresh panties. She was wet again. She slid her hand inside the soft material, cupped her hand over her mound and pushed her palm against her clit. She closed her eyes and rocked her hand gently, squeezing and releasing her mound between her palm and fingers. Her orgasm arrived quickly and as it peaked, she slipped her second and third fingers inside. She rolled onto her tummy and ground down onto her hand, grunting into the pillow as her body shook with the release. She lay breathless for a few minutes and eventually fell asleep.

Matt was still endearingly embarrassed when she went to see him in his office the next day. He mumbled something about probably putting her off him for life, but she found herself inviting him out for a drink sometime in the next week.

Chapter Four

For the next few nights Natalie avoided any chance of a recurrence of the visions in the mirror by making sure she was in bed well before midnight. She was constantly on edge—barely sleeping—but finally decided she couldn't allow a piece of furniture to implement a curfew in her own home. She convinced herself she had to confront the mirror again.

She faced the mirror at midnight in her pyjamas.

As expected, the room temperature dropped suddenly, and her reflection's blinking began. The reflected-image fell away and this version of herself had long, straight blonde hair and a fringe, her make-up bold—red lipstick, thick eye-liner and mascara. She wore a white mini-dress and white, shiny, plastic knee-length boots. The room was fairly small, furnished with hard-backed chairs facing wall-mounted mirrors. A lot of guitars leant up against those walls.

Natalie's heart raced along with the girl's as she connected with her reflection's train of thought and feelings. The blonde was a groupie from the 60's who'd managed to get backstage and access to the band's dressing room. Suddenly, the door opened and two men walked in. One was about six feet tall, the other a little shorter but broader across the chest. They were wearing the dark grey suits which the band wore on stage, but they were also wearing clown masks. Natalie stared at the surreal image and though a little disturbed, she was simultaneously excited. Her rock-chick counterpart saw the masks as an added piece of intrigue. She was going to have sex with two members of her favourite band, but she'd never know which ones they were.

The men approached.

Natalie saw the reflected girl smiling shyly, fluttering her heavily-mascaraed lashes.

The taller man put his hand on her shoulders and encouraged her to get down on her knees, which she did. He undid the buttons of his trousers, presenting her with his semi-erect cock.

Natalie watched her sixties-self look up into his face and open her mouth. As the guy pushed in, Natalie felt a chill slide over her tongue. A tap on the side of her head drew her eyes to the second man, who'd got his cock out, touching it against the groupie's face. She watched as her other self released the first cock and greedily took in the second. This cock was much harder, and as the stocky man pushed his hips forward, Natalie gagged as a phantom cock hit the back of her throat.

The taller guy walked round behind the girl, pushing her down until she was on all-fours and rolling her knickers down her thighs. The shorter man dropped to his knees so she could still reach his cock with her mouth. Natalie could still feel the presence of the hard cock in her mouth when the sensation of being entered hit her. She watched as the girl pushed herself back onto the first man, all the while using her mouth on the second. The two men swapped places and again Natalie shared the feeling of being entered and fucked.

She could taste her own juices when the other cock pushed into her mouth. Her panties became wet as the girl was fucked hard by the stockier man. Then the mirror trio changed positions. The taller guy lay on his back on the floor, and 60's Natalie lay on top, using her hand to guide his cock inside her. The other man lowered himself into position and entered her anally.

Natalie let out a yelp as the second cock pushed in, giving her a sensation of fullness she'd never had before. As the mirror figures writhed on the floor, Natalie was in some discomfort, but also experiencing a lot of pleasure. She found herself moving her body in time with them, in shock, but unable to stop herself from responding to the cool, hard double-penetration. She breathed heavily, moaning with every push of their hips. The men increased the force of their thrusts—one above, one below—and a surge washed through Natalie as she and the girl in the mirror both came.

Natalie cried out loud, and the lack of sound did nothing to diminish the ecstasy of the girl on the other side of the mirror. Natalie watched as the men banged harder and then held still. Iciness flooded her insides, both front and back.

She closed her eyes, focussing her feelings, knowing she was going to come again. Holding on to the mantelpiece for support, she contracted and relaxed her muscles around the phantom cocks still invading her and tumbled into a second wave of pleasure. Her breath was ragged when she finally opened her eyes and looked back into the mirror.

She'd expected to see her own reflection, so was a little surprised to look back up at the dressing room scene. The men stood up, their backs turned to Natalie, and looked down at the groupie who was still sitting on the floor, smiling up at them as their juices ran out of her. Natalie could feel the cold seep in her crotch and inner thighs. As the men removed their clown masks, the smile on the girl's face turned to shock, then distress. She held her hand over her mouth and let out a scream that Natalie felt like a slap inside her head.

The men turned round and looked at Natalie, making her gasp and take a step back. Never before had the people in the mirror shown any indication that they knew they were being watched. The men weren't band members, but imposters who'd bought similar suits. Their badly disfigured faces couldn't conceal that, beneath the scars, they were a lot older than the girl or the band members—perhaps in their forties or fifties. As they looked directly at Natalie, they smiled without a trace of humour. When their eyes started the high-speed blink, she turned and ran into her bedroom.

She got very little sleep that night.

Chapter Five

Natalie returned to her policy of making sure she was in bed by eleven every night. On the fourth night after the groupie scene, Natalie was reading her laptop in bed when her bedroom door slowly swung open. She looked up, her pulse racing, then glanced at the clock in the lower corner of the laptop screen. It was midnight. The bedroom became suddenly icy-cold. She got out of bed and stepped toward the door, peering into the lounge.

The room was dark except for the dull glow coming from the mirror. Even though she didn't want to, Natalie could see the new scene playing out from the doorway. A woman walked down a dark alley, glancing over her shoulder as she hurried along.

Natalie's heart thumped in her chest and there was a lump in her throat. No doubt her reflected-self was trying to get away from a scarred or disfigured man. Stepping back into her bedroom, Natalie stripped off her pyjama bottoms and pulled on a pair of jeans and a jumper. She stepped into her boots, not bothering with bra or socks. As she moved out of her bedroom, she glanced at the mirror. Her reflected self had reached a dead-end and was being pushed face-first into the obstruction of the eight-foot chain-link fence, the outline of a man behind her. Natalie had no intention of watching another version of herself getting raped, or experiencing the woman's pain and trauma. She grabbed her keys and opened the door. She took the stairs two at a time and ran out without pausing.

Once outside in the clear night, she finally let out a long breath, her blood booming in her ears. She briefly considered phoning Matt, but didn't think it fair to drag him into something like this. She thought of the other people she knew, trying to think which of her friends would believe what she had to tell them. Her brother was the only person she could trust not to think she'd gone mad, but he was a hundred and eighty miles away at university. The idea of sitting in her car all night didn't appeal, so she called Sandra from work. The call was answered on the second ring.

"Natalie?" Sandra's voice sounded sleepy.

"I'm really sorry to call you so late, but can I ask a big favour?" Natalie heard Sandra moving, presumably sitting up in bed.

"What's wrong?"

"There's a gas leak in the flat below mine, and we've all been evacuated until it can be sorted. Is there any chance I could crash on your sofa?" Natalie held her breath.

"Of course, but you won't need the sofa—I'll make you the spare bed up. Come over whenever you like."

Natalie sighed with relief. "Thanks, you're a life saver." She walked to her car and, without looking back at the window of her flat, drove away.

The following morning she left Sandra's early, telling her friend she was going to the gym for a shower, but instead headed straight home.

The mirror had invaded her life. In the first few days she'd experienced nice emotions as a result of watching the scenes in the mirror, and enjoyed a lot of sexual pleasure—orgasms, even. But since the dressing room incident with the two men in the clown masks, the mirror had become a sinister thing. She found it difficult to relax—even when she wasn't in her flat. She'd even become wary of looking into any other mirrors—at work, in the supermarkets, even her car. Last night had been an alarming change to the pattern: it was the first time she'd experienced anything unusual when she wasn't looking directly into the mirror, and that really unnerved her.

Natalie was confident the mirror would be harmless during daylight hours. She double-parked near the front door of her building, then went up to her flat and walked straight to the mirror. Without looking at her own reflection, she lifted it off the hook and carried it down the stairs. She dropped the back seat and placed the mirror, glass-down, in the back of her car. Then she drove to the local refuse tip and carried the mirror up the iron steps at the side of a skip marked 'glass'. She dropped the mirror inside, ran down the steps and drove away.

When she got back home, she showered. Fifteen minutes later she'd dressed for work and left her flat with her hair still wet. It was like a weight had been lifted off her shoulders, and she realised for the first time just how anxious she'd been. She stopped at a newsagent's to buy a box of chocolates for Sandra, and when she arrived at her desk, she fired up her computer and emailed Matt to ask if he was free for lunch. He replied almost immediately, explaining he had a meeting he couldn't get out of, but suggested they meet for a drink after work instead. Natalie hesitated for only a few seconds. The fact that Joe had already moved his new girlfriend in proved he was already over her. Natalie agreed to meet Matt at his local pub. He lived in the trendy part of town where the bars and restaurants were busy with the early-evening crowds.

When Natalie arrived, the car park was already quite full. Matt was at the bar and when Natalie joined him, she squeezed his arm in greeting. He leaned in and gave her a kiss on the cheek.

"What can I get you?" He wore a big smile on his face.

She looked at the list of wines on the chalkboard behind the bar. "I'll go for a glass of the Malbec, please."

The bar was busy and had a typical Friday night-mood, with workers enjoying the start of the weekend. They took their drinks to a free table near a window. She told Matt the same gas leak story because Sandra would probably have mentioned her late-night visitor to other colleagues. They chatted freely about things at work and other subjects, but Natalie got the distinct impression that he was avoiding any mention of his visit to her flat. When their drinks were finished, they decided to find somewhere to eat. As they walked slowly, looking into the windows of the numerous restaurants and bistros, Natalie slipped her arm in his.

She leant on his shoulder as they approached a bistro called 'The Plot'. "How about here?"

Matt shook his head and kept walking. “No. I took my parents there once, and my dad spent the rest of the weekend in the smallest room of my house. Food poisoning.”

Natalie laughed. “Maybe we’ll give that place a miss, then.”

Matt shrugged. “Me and mum were fine—just don’t order the mussels. Ever since then, my dad’s referred to that place as The Trots.”

In the end they settled on a small place called ‘Chez Bob’—mainly because they liked the name. Their table was in a dark corner and they chatted and laughed throughout an excellent meal. Natalie drank another glass of wine, which meant she wouldn’t be able to drive home. A taxi was a possibility, but she knew the most likely scenario would be that she stayed at Matt’s flat. She insisted on splitting the bill, and also bought the drinks at the next bar they visited. Natalie was more relaxed than she’d been since her split from Joe. As their glasses became almost empty there was a lull in the conversation.

Natalie could sense Matt’s reticence and she thought it was sweet. She leaned forward and kissed him gently on the lips. “Are you going to invite me back to your place?”

Matt nodded eagerly. When he started to say something else, Natalie leaned forward and kissed him again. They finished their drinks and left, the short walk to Matt’s two-story terraced house taking less than five minutes. He took her coat and hung it on a chair by the small dining table.

She looked round the room. It was small but tidy. There were two small couches at right-angles to each other, a plasma TV in the opposite corner. The small dining table was placed next to the patio doors, but it was too dark outside to see the garden. A set of open stairs led to the first floor.

“Would you like a drink, or a cup of tea?” He seemed to be holding his breath.

Natalie moved closer and slipped her arms around his waist. She kissed his cheek, then brushed her lips against his ear. “Maybe in the morning.”

She took his hand and pulled him towards the stairs, pausing at the landing for him to show her the way. He led her into a small bedroom. There was room for a double bed and not much else, but that was enough.

She started to undo his shirt, and he fumbled with her top as they kissed. Eventually, both naked, they fell onto the bed. Natalie pushed him onto his back and sat on his legs. She slowly ran her fingers up his thighs to his cock, which was already hard. She held it in her hands, looked into his face and smiled.

“Listen, Natalie, about the other night...”

She shook her head to tell him it didn’t matter. She leaned forward and kissed the tip, heard him inhale. Looking up to his face, she held eye contact while she pushed her head down and took his entire length into her throat. He groaned, an expression of total surprise on his face. She moved her tongue against his shaft for a few seconds, then slowly eased herself back up and released him from her mouth.

She sat up, smiling sweetly, then crept up the bed until she was in position. Raising herself slightly, she held his cock upright and slipped the head between her outer lips, stroking herself with it. “Now remember, don’t try to take this out until I tell you to.”

She lowered herself onto him and they both let out a groan. She rocked on him for just a few minutes and could tell from his face that he wasn’t going to last very long, but that didn’t matter—she was already feeling the first tingles of her own orgasm. She cried out when it hit, and Matt gripped her waist, pulling her down onto him as he emptied himself inside her. His cum was warm, unlike everything she’d experienced since her split with Joe.

They lay side by side in the afterglow. He kissed her head, her cheek, her mouth. She fell asleep contented, and when she awoke in the early hours they made love again. This time he started on top, and they took their time. They slept until after nine. While Natalie was in the shower, Matt made tea and toast.

She walked down the stairs barefoot, her shoes dangling from her fingers. “So, what do you usually do with your weekends?”

“I’m playing football this afternoon. Saturday mornings I usually wash my car, go to the shops, that sort of thing. Nothing that can’t be postponed.”

She pushed her still-wet hair back off her face and picked up the tea he'd made for her. "I need to do stuff this morning, so you don't need to postpone anything. What about tomorrow? Fancy going to watch a film or something?"

He smiled, nodded enthusiastically. "Yeah, I'd really like that."

They finished their breakfast and he offered to walk her back to her car, which was still at the pub. She assured him she'd be fine, gave him a tender kiss on the mouth and left. She smiled all the way back to her car. On an impulse, she drove to the main shopping centre, deciding to treat herself to a couple of new outfits. After spending three hours and more money than she could probably afford, Natalie stopped for a cup of tea and a cake in a café before returning to her car.

She drove home, calling at the supermarket for more groceries and wine on the way. She skipped up the steps, opened the door of her flat and stopped dead in her tracks. Her throat constricted and she felt the blood draining from her face. Her arms became heavy. She saw an apple rolling on the carpet and realised she was no longer holding the shopping bags. She contemplated turning and running back down the stairs, but something told her this would be futile. She stepped further into the flat and closed the door behind her. She looked back into the lounge, over the fireplace. There, hanging where it had been until the previous morning, was the silver-framed mirror.

Natalie wondered if someone could be playing an elaborate trick on her. Perhaps they'd followed her yesterday morning, retrieved the mirror from the skip and returned it to her flat. Maybe the guy in the second-hand shop was also part of the scam, a sinister version of 'You've Been Framed'. 'You've Been Fucked' would be more appropriate. But what if the mirror was actually a piece of clever technology that looked like a mirror, but could also distort a reflection and add rapidly blinking eyes, and then turn into a television screen? Even as her mind raced, her thoughts tripping over themselves trying to find plausible possibilities, she knew she was clutching at straws. The characters in each scene she'd watched had looked like her, and Natalie had physically shared experiences and sensations with her lookalikes.

No, the mirror had some supernatural power, and it had chosen Natalie to be part of whatever game it was playing.

Natalie crouched down and picked up the spilled groceries. She was glad she'd bought more wine, and grateful the bottles hadn't broken when she'd dropped her bags. She left her bags of clothes shopping on the floor and put everything away in the kitchen except one of the bottles of wine. She got a glass from the cupboard and took both through to the lounge, collecting her clothes bags on her way to the bedroom. On autopilot, she ran herself a bath and got undressed. She turned on the lamp in the lounge then took her wine and glass back into the bathroom. The water was piping hot, but she barely noticed. She stared into space for over a minute, then filled her glass to the brim. She took a sip, savoured it for a few seconds, and then took a very large gulp. She needed a plan.

Natalie thought about everything she'd seen and felt since bringing the mirror home. The scene with the returning soldier had been a very pleasant experience. Sharing the woman's relief and elation at seeing her husband again had made the experience extra special. Never mind the two intense orgasms, Natalie had actually cried with joy.

The second, with the youngsters on the beach, had been less emotional but gave her a strong sense of power and satisfaction as the popular, pretty girl chose the boy whose sense of self-worth had been shattered along with his face, against the windshield of his older brother's car.

The changing point had definitely been her evening with Matt. Could the thing inside the mirror actually be jealous? Natalie pondered this: for reasons she couldn't explain, she'd always assumed that whatever had been happening was due to something inside the mirror. The very first time she'd seen anything strange was the night when the reflection of her eyes had been focussed on her body, and there had been a lecherous quality to the gaze. She was sure whatever was inside the mirror had been looking at her then.

She'd already started believing there was something malevolent on the other side of the glass, and now felt it was somehow capable of crossing the barrier and coming through the glass. How else could it have pushed open her bedroom door, or brought the mirror back to her flat? She had to use that to her advantage—had to somehow get whatever was in the mirror on to her side of the glass. She knew her reflection was just a fuck-puppet for whatever lived inside the mirror, and wondered how many other women had watched and felt themselves being taken over the years.

She sat in the bath for a long time, adding more hot water as she needed it. By the time she finally got out, it was dark outside and the wine bottle was empty.

Pulling on her dressing gown, she collected another bottle from the kitchen and walked into the lounge. After retrieving her mobile from her handbag, she settled on the couch and poured herself another large glass. So much for regulating her drinking. Her phone showed a message from Matt.

Hiya - I had a great time last night. We won our match, and I scored again.

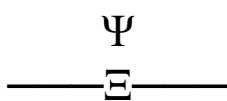

Natalie smiled at the smiley face and the ‘thumbs up’ emoji. He made her happy, and she knew he’d be here in an instant if she asked for his help. But this was something she had to do on her own. She didn’t know what was needed, or how she was going to do it, but that didn’t seem to matter. She checked the time. In less than three hours, the mirror would come to life. She considered googling the exorcism of mirrors but dismissed the idea immediately. She looked up at the mirror. From her seated position, she was too low to see her reflection. All she could see was the ceiling and the upper half of the opposite wall.

Natalie picked up her glass and raised it to the mirror. “Cheers.” She took a long drink and settled back on the couch.

Although there was nothing logical to base her theory on, Natalie believed the only way she could confront whatever was in the mirror was to make the woman in the scene her own actual reflection. Not some other version of herself again—it had to be her. If the scene involved the real Natalie, then she could lure out whatever really existed on the other side of the glass. She sat in silence and thought about what she had to do, and drank more wine to give her the courage to carry it out.

At eleven thirty, she stood and lifted the mirror down from the hook. She turned it on end, carried it across the room and placed it on the floor, leaning it against the wall opposite the fireplace.

Chapter Six

She emerged from her bedroom a few minutes before midnight in full make-up, wearing a black bra and matching suspender belt with black stockings and high-heeled shoes. A pair of ornate dangly-earrings completed her outfit. She lit several candles around the room, switched off the lamp then stood in front of the mirror, looking at her full-length reflection for a few seconds. She lay on the floor, opening her legs and placing her feet on the wall, either side of the mirror. As the clock clicked through to midnight she watched her reflection until the eyes started to blink.

Her breath became visible in the candlelight. In the mirror, a man stood next to the girl on the floor. She raised her head a little and saw her own reflection—dressed exactly as she was now—not a different version of herself. A man dressed in a collarless, dirty-white shirt and dark trousers looked down at the face of her reflection, so real-Natalie could only see the back of his head. There was nobody in the room with her, but he was definitely there on the other side of the glass. She saw him reach down and run a hand down her stockinged leg, felt the chill of his fingers through her nylon. He dropped to his knees and placed his hands on the reflection's breasts, mauling them roughly through the bra.

Natalie could feel her own breasts being squeezed and pulled. Trying to seize the initiative, which she'd never been able to do yet, Natalie leaned forward, making her reflection do the same. She reached out her hands and, judging the right movements by watching in the mirror, placed her hands on the man's crotch. She twiddled her fingers and watched as her reflected-self undid the man's trousers, then pulled them down to his thighs. He wasn't wearing any underwear. Natalie could see his huge erection sticking out towards her reflection's face. She leaned forward and opened her mouth, watched his cock disappear into the mouth in the mirror. Sitting up on the floor in her room, Natalie could taste his unwashed cock, smell his sweat. She saw him reach his hand down and her head was pulled forward by the hair. The phantom cock hit the back of her throat and she gagged.

“Suck it.”

The voice was hoarse and seemed to be coming from somewhere above her. Goosebumps raised on her arms. Her hair was pulled harder, the cock slipping into her throat.

The man with the raspy voice was breathing heavily, holding Natalie’s head tight. In the mirror she saw him thrusting in and out of her face, his cock showing briefly before disappearing between her lips. Natalie lifted her hand and, watching the reflection, placed it on his stomach and pushed him away. She sat up and dropped onto her hands and knees, her face so close to the mirror that she and her reflection were almost nose-to-nose. She wiggled her backside from side to side, indicating that she wanted him to fuck her from behind, knowing this would allow her to see his face. The guy positioned himself behind her reflection. He had long, straggly brown hair which hid his face while he looked down at her sex. He held his huge cock in his hand, glistening with her saliva in the candlelight, and she felt his tip ease between her already-wet outer lips. She held her breath, ready to push back onto his full length.

He looked up at the instant he rammed his cock inside her. Natalie let out a cry as his cock surged all the way in, stretching her inside. His cock was icy cold, but it was nothing compared to the chill she got from looking at his face. He looked to be somewhere in his mid-forties, his long, straggly hair combed forward from the back of his head in an attempt to cover the baldness which resulted from the scarring. His face was criss-crossed with welts, the entire left side also red and blotchy as if burned. One welt ran down the side of his eye, elongating the shape to a slit. Another scar cut diagonally from cheek to chin, crossing his mouth. That part of his lips was missing, baring some of his yellowed teeth in a sinister sneer. Spittle dribbled from the gap in his lower lip and his eyes blinked at an impossible speed.

He slammed into her again and again. Natalie knew she couldn’t lose her nerve now. She looked into his face, gritted her teeth and pushed herself back to meet his thrusts, stunned at the pain, knowing she’d be bruised and sore for days after this. She lowered her gaze to her reflection's face, shocked to see her other-self enjoying it, her expression of pleasure—ecstasy. Natalie watched as her other-self moaned and whimpered at the onslaught from behind. The man sneered at her, then moved a hand down. His icy fingers brushed over her warm clit. Her reflection threw her head back in abandon. Natalie heard the screams in her head as her other-self climaxed, but she hadn't come. This hadn't happened before—she'd always achieved orgasm at the same time as her other version.

The man gripped her reflection's hips and Natalie winced as his long yellow nails dug into her soft flesh, holding her in place while he pounded her. One hand released her hips and slid over her buttock. An icy finger pushed into her anus and she cried out. Her reflection obviously enjoyed this latest twist, throwing her head back and letting out cries of delight. Natalie grimaced as he slammed into her with more ferocity. She tried to hold eye contact with him, but it was impossible because of the blinking. Suddenly he withdrew, coming all over her back. Her reflection writhed and moaned as if his ejaculation had taken her to new heights, but to Natalie the icy splash started to burn like acid. She was worried it'd leave a scar and lost her nerve. She tried to stand but he pushed her down, holding her in place.

He held his cock in his hand and moved it back behind her. He was still fully erect and re-entered her forcefully. Her reflection writhed and moaned, pushing herself back, but Natalie was seething. He slammed into her several more times, and then pulled out and re-positioned himself. Natalie saw him release a gob of saliva, the icy drop landing on the puckered rosebud of her anus. She knew what he was going to do but was powerless to prevent it. He flashed a triumphant smirk and entered her anally. Her reflection's eyes opened wide in shock, her mouth a perfect O. The man began to thrust, but only slowly. As he fucked them, Natalie saw her reflected-self enjoying it and could hear her moans, but for her it was immense pain.

The guy reached over the reflected version and pulled her hair. Natalie's head was yanked back until she was face to face with her own reflection, but the expressions on their faces were poles apart. Icy fingers brushed over her clit and a thumb slipped into her pussy as the huge cock continued pushing in and out of her back passage. Her reflection was coming again, but Natalie was livid, her body shaking with anger and helplessness. The man pushed into her with force and his icy eruption chilled her bowels. In her head she heard groans as her reflected-self revelled in the fact he'd just come again, but Natalie glared at him with utter loathing.

Suddenly, he leaned forward over her reflection's back so his face was close to hers. He stopped blinking. His eyes had no iris—just small dark pupils set in yellowing whites lined with blood vessels. She recoiled, but was held in place by his weight on her back.

His breath was cold in her ear when he spoke. "You should have left things as they were, bitch."

Natalie was too afraid to reply.

"I let you have your fun, but then you went and let pretty boy into your filthy slut cunt."

She tried to stand, push him off her, but it was hopeless.

He sneered at her. "You didn't need to frig yourself off after a night with me, did you? Not like after that useless fucking prick."

Natalie was horrified that he knew she'd masturbated after her night with Matt.

The rasping voice sniggered. "So, here's what's going to happen. I'm going to use you as my fuck-whore whenever I want. No more romantic visions to help you get off. You can just watch me fucking your tight little body whenever I want it, then frig yourself off later like you did with pretty-boy."

Natalie tried to steady her nerves. She shook her hair back from her face, licked her lips seductively. "Why don't you fuck me again, now?"

Shock crossed his face. His eyes started to blink again, slowly at first, but then quicker. He smiled, a cold grin that made Natalie shiver.

She started rocking her body beneath him. "Come on, fuck me again." Natalie nodded towards her reflection. "But I don't mean her, I mean me. Fuck me."

She knew that while on the other side of the glass he was in total control, able to use the reflection of anyone looking into the mirror to conjure up a scene. He'd given her reflection different hairstyles and clothes, and disguised himself as much as possible, but hadn't been able to totally eradicate the blemishes. Or maybe he hadn't wanted to. She hoped if she could get him—or at least part of him—on this side of the glass, then she might stand a chance. There would be one moment he wasn't totally in control of the situation—when he was having an orgasm.

The man in the mirror stood. As soon as his weight lifted from her back, Natalie scrambled to her feet. Her reflection started to blink rapidly and Natalie feared she'd lost her chance—that the evening was coming to an end.

“No!” she screamed in frustration.

The mirror darkened and her reflection faded. After a few seconds, a scene started to play. She was looking at a beautiful manor house set in a large, well-tended garden. A young couple, dressed like sweethearts in a Jane Austen novel, walked into view holding hands, but the girl wasn't another version of Natalie. At first, Natalie was angry at seeing another scene being played out. She assumed the guy had disappeared behind another illusion, and her plan had failed. But the girl in the mirror wasn't another version of herself, so she was curious. Surely she wouldn't be able to experience whatever sensations the girl in the scene did?

The girl's pale yellow dress had a tight bodice and long flowing skirt; the boy's attire was less extravagant—a simple linen shirt and brown breeches. The girl was laughing at whatever story the boy was telling her. Natalie could tell immediately that they were in love. The girl's dark hair was pinned up, her pretty face in a permanent smile as she watched his handsome face. His pale blue eyes danced with mischief as he recounted some tale. Suddenly they both stopped, their faces pale as they watched something out of Natalie's field of vision. Natalie regretted turning the mirror onto its narrow edge.

A group of men approached. An older man in a long coat led four men in black jackets and cream trousers. Some kind of uniform. Natalie knew the older man, the squire, was the girl's father and that the boy was from the local village. As the father took his daughter back to the house, the men dragged the boy away.

The scene switched to the inside of some kind of barn. The boy was spread-eagled on a wooden, flat-bed cart, his arms and legs secured to the frame with rope. The four men were standing a few feet away. The squire came into view carrying a bullwhip. He said something to the boy, then took a step back, swinging the whip. It caught the boy in the face, making Natalie jump at the impact. The squire took a step to the left, swung again. Natalie watched, horrified as the squire kept changing position and lashing, again and again, raising vivid welts on the boy's chest and shoulders. The boy's face was now covered in blood. The squire spoke to one of his men, who picked up a pan from over a fire and flung the contents—hot oil—onto the boy's face. Natalie saw him writhe in pain.

The scene faded, leaving only the man on the other side of the glass. Natalie now had no reflection at all. Her heart started to beat faster. This was the chance she needed, but after seeing how he'd got his scars, she was beginning to have second thoughts.

He must have seen her pity because he sneered again. "Or maybe that's not exactly how it happened. My memory isn't what it used to be..."

His image faded again, and Natalie was watching another scene in the same garden. This time there was a soundtrack in her head. She could hear a girl screaming, saying 'no, no, no,' and there, by the trunk of an oak tree was the same girl in the pretty yellow dress. The boy in the linen shirt and breeches wrestled her to the ground and pushed her skirt up. He lowered his breeches as he clambered between her legs, forcing himself on top of her while the girl cried out in terror. The squire and the henchmen appeared as they had done before; the boy was dragged off and the squire took his daughter back to the mansion.

When Natalie blinked the tears from her eyes, the man was staring back at her, a sick smile on his face. He saw her tears and laughed.

Natalie knew which version she believed, and it reminded her what she needed to do. She moved closer to the mirror, her nose almost touching the glass. "I thought I'd explained. I'm tired of watching other people fuck. I want to get it myself."

The man licked his cracked, disfigured lips. He started to pump his hand up and down his erection.

Natalie looked down at his cock for a few seconds, then back into his horrible eyes. She turned around and stood with her back against the glass, placed her feet a step apart and bent at the waist, keeping her legs straight. She gripped her hands around her own ankles and wriggled her ass at the mirror.

“What’s the matter?” she taunted. “Do you think a real cunt is going to be too hot for your icy cock?”

There was a strange hissing sound and the candles flickered. His hands gripped her waist and his cock slid into her pussy. There was no coldness—this wasn’t the phantom-like experience of every other time. This was really getting fucked. Natalie closed her eyes and pushed back onto him. It was the biggest cock she’d ever had inside her, but she needed to concentrate and be ready.

She bit her lip and pushed herself back. “Yeah, fuck me.”

“Ah, you like it, you filthy fuck-whore...”

“Ooh. Yeah, that’s right. Come on, use my slut cunt...” She wanted him to keep talking so she could gauge when he was about to come.

“Oh, I’m going to use every slut hole you’ve got.”

“I want you to shoot all you’ve got inside me. I want your cum when it’s hot...”

“Oh, it’ll fucking burn!”

His thrusts increased in speed and intensity, his fingers gripping her waist tighter. He was getting closer, approaching what Natalie hoped would be his point of no return. She couldn’t allow him to escape back inside the mirror.

His breathing became ragged, his grunts urgent.

Natalie raised one leg slightly off the floor and slipped the shoe off her foot. Holding it by the toe end like a hammer, she waited until the first hot jet fired into her. When she heard him groan she slammed the stiletto heel of her shoe back into the glass of the mirror. There was a cracking sound, and she hit the glass again just as a second hot jet flooded her insides. It was uncomfortably hot—burning her. She ignored the pain, hitting the mirror a third time. Suddenly there was a loud crash, and as the glass shattered and showered the floor, a cold wind swept through the room.

All the candles flickered. Some blew out, leaving only a few still burning. When the cock inside her shrivelled to nothing, Natalie straightened and quickly stepped away from the mirror. When she looked back, only the frame remained. The glass was scattered all over the wooden floor, but rather than the silver reflective pieces she'd expected, the shards of glass were blackened and scorched. Natalie stared at the mess around her, trying to decide what to do. She hadn't thought this far ahead, but something told her she needed to get rid of the mirror right away, rather than going to bed and finding it back on its hook in the morning.

In the bedroom, she pulled a pair of leggings over her stockings, then found a jumper and a pair of flat shoes. From the kitchen she got several carrier bags and the dustpan and brush. She swept up the glass from the mirror, dividing it into several different bags. Then she picked up the frame and took it downstairs and through the front door. She propped it on the doorstep and stamped on it, snapping each of the four pieces in turn. She didn't care if she woke her neighbours. She left the broken bits by her car as she went back to her flat.

A thought occurred, and she smiled. She slipped off her boots, jumper and leggings, and replaced her high-heels from earlier. Then she put on her long coat and took out her phone. It was almost one in the morning, but she was sure Matt wouldn't mind a late night visitor—especially one dressed as she was now. She sent a text asking if she could come to see him, then took the carrier bags down stairs and picked up the bits of broken frame on her way to her car.

Just before setting off, she received a text from Matt. No words, just a long line of smiley faces. Natalie started her car and drove down the main shopping street of her suburb, where there were several bins around. There were a few people still walking around, but none of them sober enough to be curious as she dropped the five carrier bags of glass shards into five different bins. The frame parts were deposited in two different places on her way to Matt's.

When she got to his house, he was watching out for her through the window. He'd opened the door before she'd got out of her car. She ran to him and held him tight, finally allowing herself to believe the ordeal was over.

He took her inside, his face showing concern. “Are you okay?”

Natalie smiled, nodded.

“Would you like a drink or anything?”

She started to undo her coat buttons. “Er, I’ll give the drink a miss, but I’m up for anything.”

As she slipped her coat off her shoulders she laughed at his expression.

“Fucking Hell!”

She walked slowly towards him. “You like?”

He was nodding as she slid her arms round his waist.

“Take me upstairs and fuck me all night.”

Matt looked at her again, worry on his face. “All night?”

“Well, fuck me now, and then we’ll see how long I’ll let you rest before you have to do it again.”

“That sounds fair enough.” He took her hand and led her up the stairs.

The Ménage Diaries

I woke as Gemma slipped into bed beside me, her bare leg rubbing against mine. There's nothing like waking up to a soft, warm body after five solitary nights in a cab, and my dick was hard before she'd slid her hand under the quilt.

"Mmm," she said as she wrapped her fingers around me. "What've you been dreaming about?"

I eased her onto her back and slipped inside, hearing her sigh as my cock slid all the way home. She often told me mine was the biggest she'd ever had, but I assume she was trying to stroke my ego. I reckon if it was that big, my ex-wife wouldn't have been so eager to sample quite so many others.

"Ah, that feels good," Gemma whispered as I started to fuck her with long, slow thrusts. "That's just so..."

I sped up a little, revelling in the softness of the mattress and her tits, the smoothness of the sheets and her legs. The snugness of her bed and her cunt.

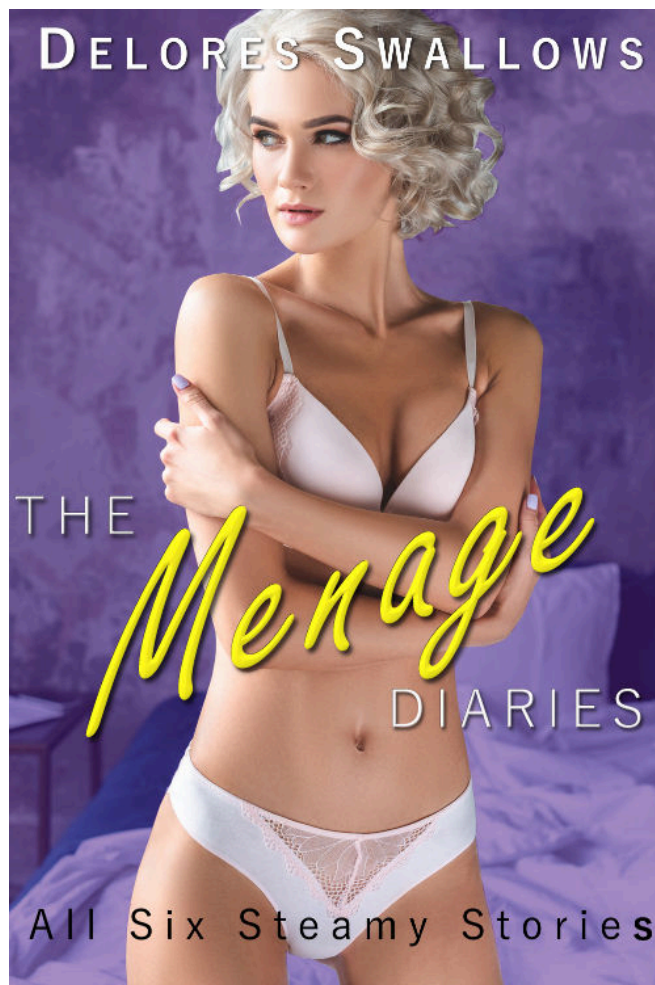

"Oh, Jon."

When she came, her nails raked my back and her inner muscles gripped my dick. I ploughed on through her contractions, feeling her wetness dribbling onto my balls. Her nails dug into me again, and it hurt. I pinned her arms above her head and held myself up as I pounded her, watching her tits shake from the force of my thrusts. Her eyelids fluttered and she let out muted little whimpers.

With a final lunge, I buried myself as deep as I could and unloaded, flooding her. She let out encouraging moans as she wriggled beneath me, and I finally dropped on top of her, satiated. This was the best way to start the weekend.

The complete collection — all six steamy ménage stories.

Taking the Plunge: When Nick asks Molly about her ultimate sexual fantasy, she reveals it's a threesome with two men in a hot tub. Though shocked, the more Nick thinks about sharing his wife, the more turned on he gets. The idea of watching her with another man becomes an obsession, but it turns out that Molly's only too happy to make her fantasy a reality—going as far as booking a chalet in the Swiss Alps with its own private hot tub.

The only question now is who Molly will choose to join them...

1999: As her husband of twelve years has run off with another woman, Mindy faces the new millennium needing a new home and new job. But before facing her daunting future head-on, she decides to celebrate the upcoming special Hogmanay in style. In a posh Edinburgh hotel, she puts on her best dress and happy face, deciding that tonight's the perfect night to take a man back to her room for a night of no-strings passion—something she hasn't done since her punk rock days.

Her night starts promisingly when she shares her table with two hunky brothers—complete with kilts—but when that spell is broken, a different offer presents itself in the form of a beautiful Scottish woman and her handsome Scandinavian husband.

It's something she's never considered before, but... New millennium, new Mindy.

Victor-Juliet-Charlie: When police raid a large house in an exclusive London suburb expecting to find women forced into the sex trade by human traffickers, all they find are very attractive young women reaping the benefits of being the playthings of older Russian oligarchs. While most of the officers consider their evening wasted, Lynne, a WPC, sees things differently. Having witnessed a young blonde woman tied to a bed being used by two men, she finds herself both excited and painfully aware that her own life isn't as exciting as it should be.

As the raiders 'debrief' over a few drinks at the pub, Lynne confesses to Joey, an old friend and ex-lover, how much the experience had affected her.

And when a young, handsome PC joins their conversation, she realises that this may be the perfect opportunity for her to have a little fun of her own...

The Lodger: Trucker Jon has a good thing going. He might spend the week in his cramped cab, but his weekends are spent in the warm comfort of Gemma's bed. Life couldn't be better—until Gemma announces that she's taking in a lodger.

He's worried at first that their blissful routine may be disturbed, but it turns out that drama queen Amy happens to be a blonde stunner with a body to die for.

When Gemma confides that her attempts to comfort Amy went a little far one night, her previous indiscretions come to light, too. Jon gets the impression that his lovely girlfriend is giving him carte blanche to sleep with the flirtatious lodger to even up the scores.

Jon knows that only the most unscrupulous of men would accept such an offer, but who's he to deny Gemma her absolution? Besides, the lodger is so incredibly hot...

Julia 07: Julia receives an invitation to attend a Retirement Ball for her ex-lecturer and decides to attend, even though she won't know any of the other attendees. Once there, she meets two charming young men who both vie for her affections, each trying to persuade her to choose him over the other. But as the night progresses, she realises her choice doesn't have to be a simple either-or decision.

Later that evening, after doing something she'd never have believed herself capable of, Julia realises she hadn't made the most of the situation. This may be a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to lose herself in the ecstasy of surrendering herself to two men at the same time.

Could she live with herself if she did it? Then again, could she ever forgive herself if she didn't...?

Party Crasher: Emma's delighted when her housemate tells her that sexy postgrad-come-barman Jamie is hoping to run into her at an upcoming student party. She's hoping he'll be more mature than the undergrads she's dated so far.

When they meet again, Jamie's just as cute, charming and funny as she remembers. She knows that before long, they'll be doing a whole lot more than just flirting.

Then Pru crashes the party. Blonde, gorgeous and confident, she's every rival's nightmare.

Emma's unwilling to give Jamie up without a fight, but she's not prepared for Pru to be such good company. She's certainly not expecting to find another girl attractive.

Yet as the night progresses with a move to Jamie's place, it turns out that Pru isn't the party crasher after all...

Web of Deceit

I'm in Germany on business, attending a conference. While in the hotel spa, during a free afternoon, I meet a German couple who are on holiday. They're mid-thirties and both attractive—particularly the woman, who has a great figure. We chat while in the hot tub, and when they discover I'm staying on my own they invite me to join them for dinner that evening.

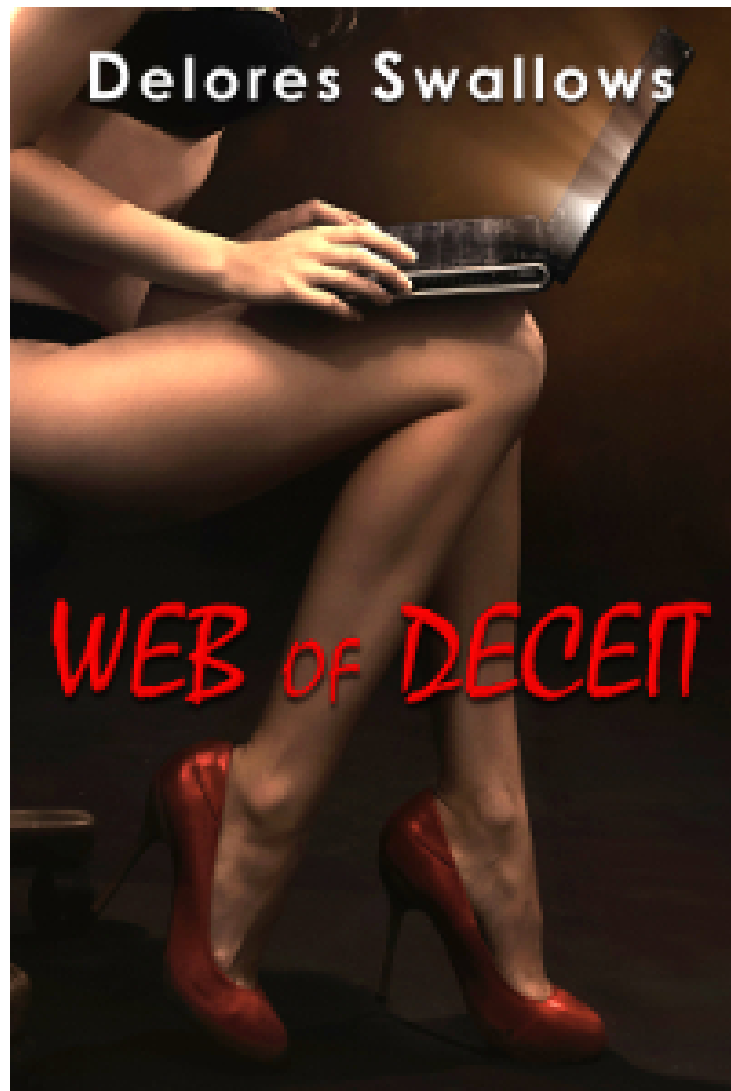

After a very pleasant meal we adjourn to the bar for a few drinks, and then we all go back to their room. I know I'm about to have a threesome, as the conversation throughout the meal had been filled with innuendo. Once in their room the lights are turned down low and we all stand by the bed. There's a lot of touching – mainly them touching me, but I also touch them. They slowly undress me, and I help them to lose their clothes, too. When we're all naked we move onto the bed. I'm lying on my side in the middle, with the guy behind me, almost lying 'spoons'. His wife lies on her side facing me, and she kisses me on the mouth and then strokes and kisses my boobs. Her husband is stroking me down my side, across my hip and down my legs. I'm pushed back a little so I'm almost on my back, with the guy beneath me. His hands are running all over my boobs and stomach, and his wife is kissing all around my bush and inner thighs.

As I look down I see her head is moving backwards and forwards. I move my leg to get a better view and see she's sucking her husband's cock. I briefly feel like I'm surplus to requirements, but then she takes it out of her mouth and puts it at the opening of my slit. I realise she was just getting him hard enough to enter me, which he does. He slides all the way inside me from behind, pulling my hips down with his hands. Then his wife starts to lick and suck my clit, and he starts to fuck me slowly. I come almost straight away. I'm practically screaming, and he keeps fucking me and she keeps licking me. I come again. I'm pulling her hair and scratching his legs and panting like a dog.

I'm lying very still in the afterglow, waiting for my heart to stop racing and my breathing to get back to normal, and I feel him move slightly inside me. I realise I'm the only participant that's had an orgasm—well, two. I somehow manage to lift myself off him, and tell her to lie where I'd been. I want her to feel what I'd just felt. So as she lies back onto her husband, I guide his wet, slippery cock into her cunt. Then I bend forward and taste another woman for the first time ever. I lick and suck her clit as he starts to fuck her, and then I feel his dick bang against my chin. He'd obviously pulled it too far out. I hold his dick in my hand and take it as far into my mouth as I can manage. I run my tongue around the tip and I hear him moan. I slip it back inside his wife and get back to licking her and she's pulling my head against her. I can tell she's about to come. I rub his balls and then rest my fingers against the shaft of his dick. With each thrust my fingers are going inside her, and she's screaming almost as loud as I did. I decide I should help her husband along, so I drop my mouth from her clit onto his balls. I take one onto my mouth and suck it, and then do the same to the other. I can hear him grunting. Finally I press my tongue against the base of his shaft, and as he comes I can feel each spurt that he pumps into his wife.

What starts as a light-hearted flirtation with a stranger in a chatroom soon becomes an obsession for Chloe. Her on-line discussions quickly progress from innocuous revelations about previous partners to her most intimate fantasies. As she's becoming fixated with exploring different ways of giving and receiving pleasure, her partner Damien gets caught in the cross-fire. Meanwhile, Damien finds himself being used to satisfy her sexual appetite, so why does he feel so guilty?

In the anonymous world of cyber-sex and cheating, it's hard to tell exactly who is being deceived.

And what happens when the fantasy isn't enough?

She took a sip of wine. "Can I ask you something?"

He sat forward "Yeah."

"It's about me being with Bromley..."

"Oh." He looked deflated, as if resigned to the fact he wouldn't be getting any after all.

"I'm just curious about your feelings. What goes through your mind when you're out here and I'm in the bedroom with Bromley?"

He cast his eyes to the floor. "I try not to think—"

"Come on, don't hold back. For the first time in ages, we're actually talking to each other like we used to. We've had a lovely evening." She adjusted herself in her chair, moving her legs to reveal more of her thighs. "I've even dressed up for you..."

He glanced at her legs, then held her gaze. "I think about how you must look on the bed."

"How do you mean?"

“You know, your face, your body.”

Janine was puzzled. “I’m not sure I—”

“I think about your expressions, your body language. I imagine you lying down on the bed and looking up at him.” He shrugged, embarrassed.

“You mean when I’m lying on the bed and watching him undress?”

Adam nodded.

“What about when I pass him the condom and watch him roll the rubber down onto his cock?”

“Do you help get him hard?” His voice was little more than a whisper.

She shook her head. “No. By the time he unzips his trousers, he’s got a hard-on.” She saw him swallow, bite his lip.

“And what about you? Does he need to...?” He pushed a shoulder forward in a childish shrug, as if ashamed to use the word foreplay.

“No.”

“Why not?”

“I’m always wet enough.”

He nodded, took a gulp of wine.

Janine was enjoying herself. She was wet now, just talking about it. “He dribbles, too. I can see precum all over the head of his cock. It glistens until he rolls the condom on.”

Adam was silent, his eyes a little glazed.

Janine uncrossed her legs, placing both feet on the floor. “When he kneels on the bed, I open my legs for him, like this.” She allowed her knees to fall open. “Do you like me opening my legs for another man?”

He frowned, nodded his head slightly.

She smiled. “At last, you’re being honest. Good.”

Adam put his wine down and slid off the sofa, crawled on his hands and knees across the rug until he was by her feet.

She raised her bum high enough off the chair for him to remove her panties. “Can you imagine my expression when he runs the head of his cock through the wetness of my slit?”

When Janine allows Adam to talk her into visiting a casino to celebrate five years together, she never imagines that a night that starts with so much fun and flirting could end in such despair and debt. Adam doesn't just lose all the money they'd saved, he takes out credit they cannot afford to pay back. They work extra hours and struggle for a month to save up enough for the first payment. Then, it appears, the casino manager has another way the struggling couple could make the interest payments.

Outraged, Janine immediately rejects the indecent proposal. But, despite the sleaziness of the suggestion, she's flattered someone would be prepared to consider giving up that sort of money just for... her, and the thought of allowing a complete stranger to use her body pushes buttons she didn't know she had.

And why does Adam seem so keen she should do it...?
