CHAPTER ONE

IT WAS a hundred-and-five degrees and blazingly sunny on the hottest day of the summer. Darren Maxwell—his daughter on a work exchange program in Spain, his son spending summer recess in Cambridge, and a wife he was convinced was cheating on him away in New York City, offering her well-prepared symposium on general prosecution to selected international lawyers—was alone in the house laying on the comforter on his neatly made bed in just his shorts and a polo shirt. He stared at the ceiling.

His wife, the very capable Lynn Maxwell, Esquire, was far too attractive for him. Even now, both of them hitting the middle of forty, she turned heads. Turned them whiplash-hard. He was sure she'd been looking back, too. Going to the gym four, five days a week for two years now, her body tight and toned. Her wardrobe had gotten slimmer, too, as her body responded to all her efforts. She was always attractive, but he could see she was sending out a new message.

She was probably acting on it: Another addition to the wardrobe ... lingerie. Stuff she didn't wear for old Darren but stuff he found neatly folded in her drawers, hidden below her wool sweaters. Exactly when were these lacy, frilly, sheer things being worn?

Their love life had never been a great big show of fireworks, and now what little fizzle remained dwindled to a dying ember in a bed of ash.

Two times.

In one year he had made love to his wife only two times.

When Owen had left for Harvard and Tabitha was in her last year of university he'd been excited that soon he and Lynn would have the house to themselves, and maybe they could reignite some of their passions. When both their children were gone, however, his wife's renewed vigor and lust for life had not benefited him. He sat and watched from the stands. Watched her tan, watched her come home from the gym with a happy glow, watched her body transform and saw her new clothes hug her curves.

She had to be cheating on him.

What was the point in all her effort, right? If it wasn't for him, who was it for? Her friends at work at Goldstein-Farber? Why would they care? He knew in his heart some other man was enjoying his wife's body.

"Fuck," he whispered, and he dragged himself up into something approximating sitting, legs dangling off the bed, toes grazing the Persian rug, laid squarely under the bed frame.

Outside the sky was an oppressive cyan, a faint trace of bright azure fluttering up high above all that humidity. Hottest day on record for the last decade. The kind of heat that sapped you, robbed your legs of their strength, made them wobble. He watched a songbird out there, struggling through the bake, listless wings reluctant to flap, its tiny body looking heavy as a stone.

His head hung low between his shoulders as he viewed his neighborhood through the bedroom window. His drapes fluttered with lifesaving AC; beyond that, past the large billowing maple that grew large in their front yard, his cul-de-sac was lifeless. Everyone indoors like him, burning electricity to save their lives on this scorcher of a day.

There was a knock at the front door.

"What now?" he said to his sad, empty bedroom, and he stood, tossed away the discovered lingerie he'd been clutching, walked in his bare feet to the bedroom window and looked down into the driveway.

The Maxwells dwelled at 17 Pine Bay Court. Their home, like most of the others on the street, was a six-thousand square-foot Georgian, mature gardens professionally landscaped, Homeowner Association approved color palettes, twelve-thousand a year in property taxes, full acre-and-a-half lot with a tennis court, swimming pool, hot tub, and access to trails that led all around the shared and well-maintained private green space.

The car in his driveway was not from this neighborhood.

"Who the fuck is this?" he said, shaking his head in irritation. It was a ten-year-old Hyundai hatchback with rust-bubbled wheel wells and a fluffy hot pink air-freshener hanging from the rearview mirror.

THERE WERE TWO LITHE, bare-armed shapes wavering in the carved glass window set in the solid oak double-door that led to the front porch. Two figures, facing away, standing and talking to each other animatedly. It looked like two girls.

He sucked his teeth and paused, hand on doorknob, frowning. He opened it.

“Hey, Mr. Maxwell,” a girl said as she turned to face him. Skyler King. Notorious bad girl from old Bay Ridge High where his kids attended school. A ne’er-do-well his daughter had been on-and-off friends with since they were eight. More ‘off’ once they graduated to high school. Skyler came from a less comfortable part of town.

She stood now on his doorstep, a grown twenty-two-year-old girl. Beautiful. Last time she’d been at this house would have been a birthday party maybe twelve years ago. Times had changed. No longer the scraggly haired, unkempt little girl with unwashed feet, Skyler was stunning. Long gleaming chestnut brown hair with bleached locks that wound through in loose twirls. She wore a bikini top and cut-off shorts. Frayed, faded denim cut so short the front pockets hung below the fringe. Her legs were long, bare, and fine. Thin things with well-formed knees and little ankles, and pretty feet; painted toes curled against the foam bed of turquoise flip-flops that matched her top. She lifted a pair of oversized, white-framed plastic sunglasses and dazzled him with her green eyes. His heart clenched, and he felt unreasonably excited that such a spectacular human being knew his name.

“Skyler?” he said, unsure of what else to say, knowing it was Skyler, but at a loss for words, lucky anything at all tumbled out of his mouth.

She leaned on the jamb, slipping one foot up to rest on the threshold. She smelled like candy. His mouth worked open and closed and his eyes wandered over to her compatriot. She was an ample-bosomed knockout on her own. Sour-faced, bitchy and unimpressed, pouting lips under black sunglasses, long lank blonde hair hanging down on either side of her plump but beautiful face. She wore a white bikini top, her soft tanned tummy pressed in by a pair of tight madras short-shorts. She had muscular legs, bare feet in a pair of leather high-tops.

Skyler sang, “Oh, Mr. Maxwell, I haven’t seen you in so long ...”

SKYLER STEPPED up from the stonework of the front patio putting one of those flip-flops across the threshold of his home, lifting then up onto her toes and kissing his cheek, making his heart race with an awkward excitement.

She said, "You're looking really good, Mr. Maxwell."

"You are ... You are, too, Skyler," he said, then grimaced, feeling uncomfortable for acknowledging her looks given she used to be one of his daughter's friends. But she did look good. She was in her twenties now, and the truth was the truth, even if was uncomfortable. Still, he winced, then said, "You know what I mean."

She cocked a hip out and gave him a big smile and a wink, said, "Oh, I know I look good." She giggled, passing it off as though she were kidding.

She reached a long arm out, brushed her friend on the shoulder and introduced her to him. "Mr. Maxwell, this is Madison. She's a good friend of mine."

"Hi, Madison," he said. "I'm Darren ... you can just call me Darren, not Mr. Maxwell." He extended a hand to shake with her, unsure of the protocol but wanting to be polite just the same. She looked at his hand like he'd offered her something off-putting. But she raised hers and let him take it. Her hand was soft and lifeless. He shook it.

He leaned on the door, said, "Skyler, Tabitha isn't here. She's away."

"Away where?" Skyler said.

"She's in Spain. For school. She's been away awhile now, all semester and into the summer ..."

Skyler brushed past him, walking into the foyer and looking up and around, taking in the chandelier, the artwork, the family photos that festooned the walls that ran up the circular staircase.

She said, with her hands on her hips and her back to him, "The place is just the same. Remember when I used to come here?"

He said, "I do. I remember you very well, Skyler."

"I remember you, too, Mr. Maxwell. Darren."

"Have you talked to Tabitha recently?" he asked.

"Tabitha? No, I haven't. Haven't talked to her in probably a decade. You remember when she had her birthday party here? Her tenth? I was here for that. Remember we had it out at the pool?"

He said, "I remember we had the pony that we called a unicorn. Lynn had put—"

“A fake horn on it,” she finished, then gave him a girlish giggle.

Skyler looked now over his shoulder at her friend, Madison, still standing with a tart expression on the patio just past the door. She looked back to Darren, said, “You still have that pool?”

“THE POOL? Yeah, of course. Where would the pool go?” he said with good humor. Somehow the joke attempt making him feel more paternal than before.

Next to him, Madison’s pale voice: “It’s really hot out here.”

He looked at her, saw her wan face regarding him behind those jet black glasses. He said, “Oh, come in. Sorry, come on in. The air conditioning is on.” He held the door for her and she stepped up and in, drawing the scent of coconut in her wake.

Her untied sneakers clomped on the tile as she came into the foyer with her slumped shoulders and arrogant demeanor. “Some place you got here,” she said.

“Yeah,” he agreed. “Skyler’s been here before. She and Tabitha were good friends.”

Skyler said, “For a while.”

“You were,” he said.

Now Skyler turned around, looking very bold with her hands still on her hips, her young pert breasts pressing out her bikini top. She said, “Madison and I were just driving around the neighborhood—”

“We were,” Madison said, turning to face him as well.

Skyler continued, “We were just hating how hot it was. Saying we wish there was a way to cool off. You know they closed the community pool?”

“What community pool?”

“Oh, I guess not your community,” she said, waving a hand toward the door, meaning his gated enclave. “I mean where we live. So we were driving around, looking for something to do ...”

Darren said, “The pool. Did you want to use my pool?”

Skyler said, “Well, we don’t want to intrude ...”

Darren said, “You’re not intruding. I wasn’t using it. No one’s here, my wife, you know, Lynn—is away on business.”

“How is Mrs. Maxwell?”

“Lynn’s doing great. Better than ever. Busy, busy, busy.”

“Old Mrs. M. That was her. Intimidating.”

He chuckled lightly, said, “Intimidating? I suppose she could be.”

“Some of the kids were afraid of her.”

“Afraid of Lynn?”

“She still beautiful?”

It struck his heart a little. She was still beautiful. Still beautiful and he missed what they had. Somewhere along the way it had dissipated. Sometimes, he imagined, those things happened in a marriage. Just as they became empty-nesters, his wife seemed to have a lot of regrets. He couldn’t help feeling like maybe old Darren Maxwell was one of those regrets. They had a good life together up to this point, there was never really a bad word between them. Sure, their sex life fizzled somewhere along the way. Gosh, probably more than a decade ago ...

“So, you can use the pool if you wanted. It’s just out back.”

Skyler swayed, said, “Can you show us?”

HE LED them through the kitchen, then the dining room, over the terra-cotta flooring they put in just two years ago, out into the high ceiling of the family room that looked out over their well-manicured estate. One-and-a-half acres of prime suburban land just outside the city. A score they had achieved when they were young and only added to as their careers took off. It showed. And while he felt a little pang of badness walking these barely dressed young ladies through his house when he was alone—and a mature and married man—there was a certain pride that riled up his male hormones as he watched these two beauty’s eyes go around and take in all of his achievements. Though they weren’t entirely his to be truthful. Lynn did quite well on her own.

“Holy shit,” Madison said when she saw the backyard. They stood now by the French doors that opened out onto the twenty-by-forty irregularly shaped concrete pool complete with waterfall and sculpted gardens, slide, diving board, and hot tub.

Skyler looked at her and said, “I know. I told you.”

“Holy shit,” Madison said again.

Feeling a little inflated now, Darren held one of the doors open, said, “Well, go on. Go out and enjoy it.”

Skyler said, "Are you sure?"

"I told you, Skyler. Go on ahead, have fun today."

"You sure you're sure?"

He smiled, said, "Skyler ..."

Skyler smiled back, indicated for Madison to go ahead, and she did, stepping down and into the bright heat of the afternoon, her shoes clapping along the stonework.

"Go on," he said to Skyler.

She still held her hand out like she did for Madison, now saying, "After you."

"Oh, I'm not going swimming."

"Well, you're not staying in the house. Come on out with us."

"Come out with you?"

"Yeah, come hang with us."

"Hang with you? I don't hang. I'm twice your age."

"Don't sound so old. You still got it. A lot of the kids had crushes on you."

"On me?"

She rolled her eyes comically. "We're all adults now, no kids here anymore." Her eyes narrowed on his. That look she gave him got his heart hammering again, putting his pulse in a dangerous area. Fortunately, he was on medication.

"Okay," he said, his voice a little dry and a little thin. But he was still a gentleman, so he took the door from her, said, "After you."

"That's the spirit," she said with a sexy sigh as she walked past him and down onto the flagstone, drawing one of her long fingers along his chest as she passed.

He had no idea what the fuck was going on here. Nothing like this had ever happened in his life; it was the sort of thing guys his age would dream of. He wouldn't let the opportunity pass.

CHAPTER TWO

ON THE POOL DECK, out in the bright sun on one of the hottest days in the last few years, Darren stood and watched two stunning young girls in their early twenties saw their hips from side to side, squeezing themselves out of their dreadfully tight shorts and then stand before him wearing only skimpy bikinis and tattoos. He did his best to act unaffected.

Once she was disrobed, Madison wasted no time getting in the water. She jumped from the edge of the pool, going straight up, feet first, turning in the air so that she faced them as she fell in the pool slapping a hand up to pinch her nose before she disappeared under the crystal clear water.

Skyler hooted, clapping her hands for her friend. She turned to Darren then, grabbed his wrist, said, "You're coming in with me."

"No way," he said, "are you crazy? I'm still dressed."

Now she let him go, gave a very disapproving look. She said, "Go get your trunks on or none of us are having any fun today."

"I hadn't planned on swimming," he said.

She looked over her shoulder at Madison who was splashing around in the water now, pretty face with wet hair slicked back. She turned and said, "Neither did we. An hour ago we were just dying in the heat."

"That's terrible," he said.

"I know, isn't it? Such a hot day, such a beautiful pool. You shouldn't let it go to waste," she said, and winked. Then she turned, and he watched what a taut twenty-year-old body looked like when it hopped three steps then dove headfirst, arms outstretched, into his pool. Her skin was flawless, her flesh tight as a drum, the cheeks of her ass giving only a slight jiggle.

When she surfaced, he shouted, “Yeah. Maybe I will. Maybe I’ll go get my trunks.”

She didn’t answer, continued a breaststroke to the far side of the pool, but as her head turned he saw that she was smiling. He stood a moment longer wondering if the neighbors could see him. The houses were far apart—in the last ten years the shrubs had filled out. Still, what would any of them think taking a look out their windows and getting a glimpse of respected Mr. Maxwell swimming in a pool with two attractive young girls while his wife was away on business?

HE MOUNTED the steps to the second floor, a trip he’d taken countless thousand times since he lived here, never once before considering the trip this long, this onerous. He felt enervated, every bit of him conflicted. His body at once wanting to take part in whatever may occur today, but also, simultaneously, afraid of consequences.

His brain was the same. His brain knew how wrong this would be—should anything even transpire. These were two sassy girls; bad girls, with bad reputations. While they may seem like the two that would have sex with an old dad it was far more likely they were having a great time teasing his old ass.

The other part of his brain figured he deserved this. You only get one life. An opportunity like this is never presented. 99.9% of men, even successful ones, would never be offered such a gift. To ignore it, to reject it, would be insanity. Plus, he had his concerns over the conduct of his wife. She was cheating. He Goddamn knew she was cheating. Maybe he could get her back—or doing this would bring himself back. Maybe he was what was missing from the relationship.

Now in the bedroom, he went to the large walk-in closet that he shared with Lynn, moved to his side. He was determined to put trunks on. Knew that he would, as difficult a task as it may seem right now.

He stood in the closet for a long time, right in front of the drawer that held his swimwear, building the nerve to perform the task that he knew he eventually would. A muffled sound in the bedroom drew him to the doorway. Could hear the sound of feet on the Persian rug that lined the walkway from the hall. Saw now the surly one, Madison, dressed only in a bikini, standing in his bedroom with bare feet, dripping water, though she had a white terry towel over her shoulders.

He watched her as she surmised the photos that lined one wall as you came into the bedroom. Pictures of him and Lynn at their wedding, Owen, fifteen years ago with braces, photos of young Tabitha, various family vacations, and academic milestones ...

The girl's sunglasses were off now, and he saw that she had bright blue and expressive eyes. But the closer she came to him in his bedroom the more anxiety built inside. His guts twisted with dread. He wasn't the kind of guy who could do this sort of thing.

"Hey," he said, issuing it as a friendly hail but also using it as a command that a guard may issue to someone entering into a section they're not supposed to.

"Oh, hey," she said flatly.

"Looking for the bathroom?"

"No," she said. "Looking for you."

"What for?" he said as images of him on his bed with her mouth on his penis flashed in his mind.

"Skyler said to make sure you're coming down."

"I'm coming down," he said. "I'm just looking for trunks."

She shrugged her shoulders, still looking around his bedroom, said, "Big house, probably take a lot of time to find your trunks."

"Yeah," he chuckled. "I'm okay, I can find my shorts. I'll be down in a minute."

"That's good," she said, and she padded to his bed and sat her wet butt down on it, her feet not quite touching the floor, running them around in lazy circles. She sat at the foot of the bed, facing him.

"I'll be right down."

"Okay," she said. "Get your shorts on."

"Okay," he said, frowning a little. A big piece of him wanted to tell her to get out. That he would get dressed on his own. Another part of him felt like that would betray some of his weakness to her. Surely a man like him would want to change in front of a beautiful girl. He didn't want her to see him undress. Didn't want her to see his bare body, or what he had between his legs. But telling her to look away or to leave would be admitting that he feared that she may see him.

When girls like this sense the fear in you they capitalized on it. It was something true that he'd experienced many times. So he pretended. He pretended that he didn't care that she watched. Occasionally would glance in his periphery and see her bare young body sitting on his bed, see the dark shapes of her bikini bottom and the fleshy globes that pushed out the skimpy bra she wore. Urged away any hardness that may be coming to him, afraid what that might mean.

In a situation like this, while his desires might picture the two of them tumbling in his bed and her willingly taking him, it was far more likely that she would do nothing, then make crazy allegations, sue him, get his name in the paper, and shame him for being a dirty and lecherous man who wanted to swim with two girls that he should never be swimming with.

So he reacted as cool as he could, opening his drawer, finding a pair of trunks, taking his shirt off then his pants and turning to give her a three-quarter side view. He could have closed the door, but he still didn't want to do that. That would show that he was ashamed. Instead, he hid, let her see his bare ass for a brief five to seven seconds before he thrust his feet through the legs of his shorts and pulled them up as quickly as he could.

"There," he said firmly, and in a masculine tone, wrenching the knot on his trunks and flicking off the lights for the closet. He stepped out into his bedroom and the girl watched him without any expression. He said, "What we do now?"

MADISON CLIMBED THE LADDER, mounting the top of the towering blue slide that descended a fun curl into the deep end. She did a little gymnastics move holding herself up by two hands and scissoring her legs out before putting herself down, plummeting then with a loud staccato squeak as her butt cheeks slid over the dry fiberglass. She made a funny but happy face and held her hands above her head. Before she made it to the bottom, Skyler, bobbing in the deep end, hurled an inflated ball at her. Madison didn't see it coming, the multi-colored beach ball smacking her somewhere on the forehead over her left eye and rebounding straight up in the air. She splashed into the water laughing. Now Skyler was laughing too, arching her body and disappearing under the water to get away before Madison came up looking for vengeance.

“You bitch,” Madison called as she emerged from the water, running her blond hair off her face, looking around, trying to find her now sworn enemy. She swam after the blurry shape that warbled under the water toward the shallow end.

Darren laughed, standing in his shorts at the side of the pool and watching them. They were a lot of fun, and he missed that youthful energy. Missed it from when he was that age, missed it, too, from when this pool entertained his children and his children’s friends. Those were good days, and it was too bad they were gone.

Now Skyler was pulling herself from the pool, her hands slipping up the chrome tubular rails, her body throwing off cascades of water, and then she ran on the deck, coming his way. Madison was on the chase, coming up now as well, aiming for the ladder.

Skyler ran to him, throwing water all down his back and making him jump. She put her hands on his shoulder and cowered behind him as if she could hide.

“Don’t let her get me,” she whisper-laughed loudly in his ear. Her eyes were sparkling, her mouth smiling and opened.

He said, “What am I supposed to do?”

“Stop her,” she laughed, “stop her.”

But now Madison was making her way toward them, running down the deck throwing off water, her breasts bouncing. He put up an arm to defend himself and Skyler, but there was nothing he could do. She jumped as she drew near, high above their heads, body tucking into a tight ball, and she came down only about two feet in front of them in an enormous cannonball that heaved water right up and into their faces.

Skyler laughed and cowered behind him, leaving him to take most of the spray. Darren put his hands up to cover himself, squinted his eyes shut, but he was splashed with enough water for it to travel up his nose.

When he’d wiped the water from his face, stood up and moved from the edge of the pool where Madison was now trying to splash both of them by paddling her hands viciously through the surface of the water like a riverboat, he found Skyler, standing by the patio table texting again.

Madison said, “This isn’t over,” and then she ran her hand in a wide crescent across the water, skipping water up onto the deck again.

Skyler put her phone down face first on the patio table, said, “One more hour,” then she ran three steps past Darren, that tight body working, showing off its slender muscular grace, then leaping into the air and disappearing under the water.

SKYLER BROUGHT the fight to Madison. Diving, arching her body so that she came up and tickled and grabbed at Madison. Madison laughed and splashed trying to get away, taking in water and then spitting it out. Then the grappling started, the two of them grabbing each other and rolling around in the water almost like they were hugging. A game began between both of them: trying to take each other's top off.

Darren watched in disbelief. Two pretty girls, giggling, trying to disrobe each other in his pool, and his wife wasn't home. He sat with his feet on the top step of the ladder, sandwiched in between the chrome tubes, his hands rubbing on his knees, his back straight, the thing in his trunks also getting straight. It was too good to be true.

Skyler gasped, her pretty face in mirthful shock, mouth open, lips curled over those white teeth, both her hands clutched at her bare breasts. Madison swam away on her back, holding one arm triumphantly out of the water, a turquoise bikini top clutched in her fist, loose ties dangling.

Skyler gave chase, swimming after her, Darren watching the muscles of her back work, glistening in the water as she thrust, splashing, trying to catch up with her friend. Madison was panicking now, kicking her feet faster, letting the top go and getting onto her front so she could stroke with her arms. Too late though, Skyler on her, clutching her ankles, water spouting from their mouths, breathless laughter, and little shrieks as they struggled.

It wasn't long before Skyler was swimming away with Madison's top. Madison bobbed in the middle of the pool, blinking her eyes intensely, smoothing the hair out of her face. She laughed, said, "I don't even care."

Skyler treaded water for a moment, her arm reaching back then launching Madison's top into the bushes. "I don't either," she said, then went to her back, arms wide, long legs flutter-kicking, pert breasts cresting out of the water. She ran her tongue out at Madison. Madison returned with the same.

Skyler made her way to the edge of the pool at Darren's feet. She treaded in front of him and he averted his eyes so that she wouldn't see him drilling holes into her bare breasts.

“Aren’t you coming in?” she said with a smile.

“I don’t want somebody to take my top off.”

She laughed and looked to Madison to see if she heard the joke. Madison was under the water somewhere. Skyler said, “It’s your bottoms you have to worry about.”

“Well, then I’m definitely not coming in.”

In response, she cupped her hands together and heaved a bucket full of water up on his lap. She said, “Get in here now.”

He’d love to. He’d love to slip into the water and swim with them, be playful with them. Protocol was difficult. And, of course, getting into the water without the arousal in the front of his trunks being detected could be tricky, too. But Skyler looked like the kind of girl that would not take no for an answer; would not go away and leave him alone.

“Fine,” he sighed. He kept himself bent at the waist so nothing would poke out against the fabric and fell forward into the water.

By the time he came up she had her arms around his neck, choking him. He surfaced and spat up water. She was giggling in his ear, saying, “Take me for a ride.”

“Where do you want to go?” he said. He leaned forward, and she lay on his back, loosening her grip around his neck but holding onto him still. The nubs on her breasts scraped on his back and he ached from it. It was the most astoundingly arousing thing he could imagine. Even if this were all that happened it was incredible. A beautiful girl, having fun, enjoying your wealth, bare-breasted and carefree—it was the stuff of dreams.

He swam with her on his back and she would point directions for him to go, obviously trying to get Madison. Madison was onto them, coming up out of the water and whipping around looking to see where they were then dipping back under again.

“TAKE ME OVER THERE,” Skyler said, and he followed her long tanned finger as it pointed to another inflatable ball. He swam to it with her firm and tight body pressed against him, his firm and hard thing pressing out his pants under the water, and she grabbed the ball and tucked it against herself. “Okay, okay,” she said, then she got off and hid behind him.

When Madison emerged from the water, she heaved the ball and it was a direct hit again. Bouncing off Madison’s blonde head at the crown, making a comical springy boing, then shooting straight up and bouncing across the deck. Skyler, next to him, cackled, victorious and excited. He said, "Nice shot."

She said, "Fucking right that was a good shot. Girl's softball."

He turned and treaded face-to-face with her. "You play softball?"

"Not anymore. But I used to. Back when I was in high school."

"You've got a good arm."

She gave him an expression of pride, her smiling face with her beautiful hair slicked back, barely any makeup on. The perfection of youth and beauty. She kicked her legs a little harder, her body rising out of the water enough that she could hoist up an arm and flex her bicep like she was a bodybuilder. Only her breasts rose up out of the water too, and his eyes darted from her thin but shapely arm and settled on those rosy-brown nipples that had clenched to hard pearls. She knew he was looking, and she didn't care. That's when he realized Madison was up to something.

Too late, he felt his trunks being whisked down. He was fast though, and the waistband got hung up on his erection that stuck up straight. It saved him from losing his shorts to this girl. He grabbed the waistband in two fists and hunched himself, drawing his knees up rapidly and screwing the shorts back up his hips.

The two of them swam off again, and they high-fived each other. Skyler said, "We'll get you next time."

He watched them swim away, his heart pounding in his chest. He would've been mortified if he'd been disrobed. Had the feeling those two mean girls would've played keep-away with the shorts all afternoon. And they seemed the kind that wouldn't give up until he came out of the pool naked. But it was fun. And they were funny. He felt like he hadn't felt in years.

Right now, in his double-door stainless-steel Viking fridge, he knew he had six elk steaks. They were tenderloin filets, custom ordered for him by his butcher from a farm in Montana at over thirty dollars a pound. He called after the girls: "Hey, do you guys want to have something to eat?"

CHAPTER THREE

IT TOOK him a few minutes to wait for a free moment when the two girls had their backs turned. He had to get out of the pool and into the kitchen without one of them noticing the front of his trunks. It came when Skyler and Madison swam to the far side of the pool in search of a floating lounge. There was only one, and they were racing to be the first to possess it.

He hoisted himself from the pool and got inside. Took the elk steaks out of the fridge and put them on a plate so they could come to room temperature. He watched from the kitchen window, hands curled around the edge of the double tub porcelain sink. It was crazy. These two here with him.

He'd spent the whole morning going through his wife's things. Twisted with misery, his heart in a knot thinking of the woman he loved with another man. Went through her bank statements, credit card bills; went through some of her correspondence, but found nothing. Hadn't allayed his suspicions. He was positive. He still couldn't find the proof. The lingerie wasn't proof.

Now, look at him. It was like a gift. Something being given to him to make him feel better. The universe at work. His wife was cheating on him. He couldn't prove it but he knew it was true and somehow life had given him this wonderful boon. Two topless young ladies right now in his backyard clad only in skimpy bikini bottoms.

They darted on the concrete deck, holding the lounge between them, each struggling for control. Playing with each other, having fun with it. Madison had an incredible set on her. She was young, but she had a woman's set of breasts. Creamy, large, pendulous. Skyler's were great, too. Hers were perky and upright. Skyler's nipples were small, hard, and dark brown. Madison's pale pink like the petals of a rose. God, when was this boner gonna go down? He squeezed it through his trunks. What was going to happen here? Where would they all end up tonight? It was too much. He wasn't that kind of guy, was he? Could he be that kind of guy? God, he wanted to be that guy he thought as he squeezed himself harder.

The lounge was tossed into the water and splashed on the surface, landing upright, its armrests filled with Styrofoam to keep it afloat. They both dove into the water, and he watched now as they struggled to climb on top of it together. There was room for only one and he could watch them fight like this all day.

WHEN THE STEAKS were a decent temperature, he rubbed spices and salt into them and threw them in a hot pan to sear. Did it while he kept an eye out that window. The two girls were out there now, both of them squished against each other sitting on the lounge together. The sun beat down on their bare bodies. He couldn't wait to get back out there again. Put the steaks on a plate, went outside and fired up the Cross-Flame Pro.

"What are you making us?" Skyler called out from behind him. He looked over his shoulder to see her still boldly bare-breasted holding her hand over her eyes to shield the sun.

"Steak and some salad," he said back. Both of them smiled.

When the grill was at temperature, he laid the steaks down on the wire metal. He heard wet footsteps behind him. Skyler was there, coming to him dripping, wet bare feet, wearing a white towel like a cowl around her neck and hanging down to her waist. She came to his side, looked down to see what he was making.

"Look at the size of those steaks."

He said, "They're elk."

"Elk? Do you hunt?"

"Just at the butcher," he said.

"They look really awesome."

"You're hungry?"

"So hungry."

"Can you stay long? I know you only had an hour ..."

“An hour? No, we can stay as long as we want.”

“Oh, I thought you—”

Skyler was giggling now, and she shielded her eyes, blocking something that was happening to his side, acting like she didn't want to see it. He looked over to see that Madison had got out of the floating lounge, swam to the edge of the pool, climbed out, and was now looking to sun herself. She was slipping her bikini bottoms down her legs and her ass was completely bare. Darren audibly gulped. It was a shocking sight to see revealed when he wasn't expecting it. He thought he was used to this, having their breasts bared for the last half an hour, but somehow seeing this exposed to him now was excitement renewed.

He looked away quickly before Skyler caught him staring. But maybe they wanted him to stare. Why were they doing this? They knew he was there, they didn't care. Well, they did care—they wanted to him to look. Shit, he wanted to look. So he looked back. They didn't care, he knew it.

He watched this beautiful twenty-year-old girl completely naked now, slightly bent at the waist, perfect drooping breasts swaying gently from side to side visible at her side, under her arm. Then she got on her knees on a teak deck lounge with a towel spread on it, young yet pendulous breasts swaying forward, lay on her stomach with her legs slightly apart. He could see the seam of her ass where it dipped between her legs and there in the shadows, if he were to look very closely, he would be able to see her bare sex. The stiffness returned to him. He tried to look away but he couldn't. Madison put her hands up over her head and he saw the squashed shape of one round breast.

“So your wife is away?”

His eyes darted back to Skyler. She was watching him as he ogled her best friend.

“Yeah ... uh ... Yeah, she went away.”

“Where did she go?”

“She's in ... She's in New York City.” At least he thought she was. Who knew? That was what she told him. Right now though she could be in a hotel room anywhere in the world getting railed by her personal trainer. Some secret tryst. He knew she was cheating on him, he just knew it.

“The Big Apple.”

“Huh?”

Skyler said, “She's in the Big Apple.”

“Oh, yeah. She’s in the Big Apple.”

“What’s she doing there?”

He flipped the steaks over, the meat hissing as it touched the hot grate. He said, “A conference. She told me it was a conference.”

“She told you?”

“Yeah, for her work. She’s a—”

“Lawyer,” Skyler finished.

“Yeah, you know her.”

“Yes. I do know her.”

He set his tongs down, stirred a brush through a bowl of melted butter he was basting the steaks with. “And how have you been, Skyler?”

Skyler cocked her head, smiled, said, “Me? How am I doing? How do I look like I’m doing?” She bounced on her feet a little, her arms opening the towel just the slightest bit and he saw her bare tummy and cleavage.

“I have to admit you look pretty great. I hope things are going well for you.”

“Things are going real well for me, Darren.”

Skyler grew up without a father. He was around until she was five, ditching his family then and practically disappearing. Her mother had been a waitress. A waitress after her stripping days were done. If he remembered correctly, the rumors said she may have had a problem with alcohol. That wasn’t confirmed, but given the circumstances, he wouldn’t be surprised. There was great difficulty in tracking down her father, at least that’s how the other rumors went, and when she did, she sued him for alimony. But apparently, the guy never paid. At least not regularly. He’d even heard a rumor that the guy had gone to jail for delinquency one time. “How’s your mother?”

“My mother, Darren?” she said, her expression chilled. He winced, realizing a long time had passed since he knew Skyler. Almost thirteen years now since she had been a friend of his daughter. A lot could’ve happened in that time. Cancer, suicide, a whole host of terrible things.

“Oh, I’m sorry ...”

She brightened just a little, said, “Boy, you know how to wreck a mood. Things were going really well there ...”

“Forget I said it,” he said.

“Forgotten,” she said. “But only because you’re cooking me dinner.”

“Do you want some more drinks?”

“You have anything harder?”

When he looked at her, he saw that his her eyes darted down to his trunks. “Yeah, I do. What do you want?”

She looked at an imaginary watch on her slender wrist adorned only with leather cords, said, “I think it’s getting near cocktail hour, don’t you?”

“It is indeed,” he said.

“What do you have?”

“I have everything. Help yourself,” he said with a smile.

“Where’s your bar?”

He nodded his chin toward the kitchen door, said, “Just outside the kitchen, the smaller kitchen across from the pantry. There’s a bar in there, fully stocked.”

She bounced on her toes again, the towel parting and showing him her bare skin. She said, “Let me make you something.”

He asked, “What’s your drink?”

“I can make anything.”

“Surprise me.”

WHILE SKYLER WAS in the house making them drinks, Darren admired Madison’s feet. They were soles up, her legs not long enough for them to hang off the bottom. Perfect clean little feet, wrinkled, round tiny toes curled forward. She had fine ankles, legs that weren’t very long but were indeed quite shapely. Parted slightly, his eyes roamed up the inside of her thighs, examined that space in between. He swore he could see folds. Her skin there was very thin, and he saw multiple lines that must be that sensitive area beside her mound. Those little lines worked along until a sweeping crease formed at the lower crest of her buttock. That ass swooped to a narrow waist, and above, a smooth creamy back ...

She was watching him over her shoulder.

He jolted. Whipped his attention back to monitor his steaks again, feeling a wave of prickly embarrassment work over his back, clawing over his shoulders to scratch at his chest. His heart was hammering.

That was so lecherous.

The steaks were almost done, his salad already prepared and sitting on the kitchen counter. Just a few more minutes, and hopefully his heart would slow down soon.

Then Madison was next to him. Up off her lounge and padding over to him wearing absolutely nothing. He kept his eyes away. She stood at his side, said, "How much longer?"

He said, "Not too long now, Madison."

"Can I get in your hot tub?"

"You want me to turn it on for you?"

"Yeah, make it all bubbly," she said.

Slowly he turned his head to regard her. She stood with her arms folded, those big beautiful breasts squashed against them, her legs together but he could see the cleft of her shaved mound.

When he spoke, his voice was dry and draggy. His eyes had become glued to her naked body, and he had couldn't un-stick them. "Uh, bubbly ... Yeah, let me ..."

His body was in motion, his brain and eyes still transfixed, walking to the controller for the hot tub, with his head tracking over his shoulder.

He stumbled up the steps while Madison walked, arms still folded, ass cheeks shaking, stepping up to the cedar planks that squared around the curved edge of the hot tub. He kept it hot, had planned to soak later tonight. She dipped her toes in, and he admired her again. He found the toggle and flicked it, sending jets bursting in the hot tub.

Madison giggled to herself, lost in her own world. Her arms came down as she held them out for balance, her breasts swaying as she stepped a foot down onto a bench seat. Her legs parted, and he clearly saw her pink sex. A surge jumped through him, his prostate swelled painfully.

THE FRENCH DOOR SWUNG open behind him, Skyler coming, walking backward, a tray over both her forearms. On the tray were four highball glasses filled with ice and limes. In the center was a pitcher, also filled with ice and limes, and jostling with a cold, clear drink that frosted the sides of the pitcher with condensation.

"Hey," she said, catching his eye, "you know you had cachaça?"

"Yeah, I did. I didn't know what to do with it."

"I made caipirinha."

"Wow, you really know your drinks."

With a knowing tone, she said, "I've tended bars, Darren." She laughed, an open-tooth and wide smile, showing off how pretty her face was. The swell of her breasts sat on the tray, her nipples hardened and extended like they were chilled from the ice.

"Hey, you bitch, what are you doing in there?" she suddenly yelled over to Madison, noticing her in the hot tub.

"Drink time," Madison sang, extending an arm out of the hot tub where she sat, her hand cupped like she held a drink and wagging it back and forth emphasizing that it was empty. Skyler hooted, a loud excited sound, sashayed with the pitcher on the tray to the table that sat on the patio. She set it down, poured three glasses, winked at Darren then walked to the tub to join Madison, a drink in each hand.

Madison shouted past Skyler to Darren, "How about some music, Pop?"

"Yeah, right," he exclaimed now, too. He wrung his hands, trying very hard to act like a man who wasn't being crushed with anxiety right now.

By the back door, just above the hot tub switch, there was a control panel for the sound system. He fiddled with it, trying to find something that he thought they might like. Pretty sure they wouldn't like his stations. Scrolled through Sirius until he found something that he thought two twenty-year-old girls would get into. Turned it up a little, not too loud, enough for them to hear but not enough to attract ire from the neighbors.

When he turned, headed back to his barbecue, he stopped suddenly. The two of them were in the tub now, each with a drink in their hand, their eyes were closed and they were smiling, their faces coming close together. He held his breath and watched as the two of them pressed their lips and kissed each other. Just playfully, not exactly passionate; teasing each other.

The effect on him was devastating. His knees went weak with a sudden realization that this could really happen tonight. That all the things he imagined may not be phantasmagoric. He stood frozen on the spot, his mind flashing images of all the dirty ways he dreamed they may repay him for his hospitality. There were ugly scenes, but he wanted them desperately.

Now they were giggling again, sipping their drinks and dancing in place, liking his music selection apparently. He made his way back to the barbecue, saw the food was ready and then didn't want to tell them. Wanted them to stay in the tub, it was a place where bad things may happen. Maybe they would keep kissing ...

His penis had turned to steel watching them. He adjusted it, trying to get it stick straight up so it wouldn't be noticeable. Then he turned the barbecue off, rubbed his hands together nervously.

Skyler was climbing into Madison's lap, getting on her knees and straddling her friend's thighs. She held her glass next to her breast, her long graceful arms folded up, her chin tucked, looking down into her friend's eyes. He continued walking and getting closer.

Madison said, "You make a good drink, Skyler."

"Extra sugar for you, sugar."

Madison giggled, batted her eyelashes. Then she tilted her chin high to the sky, and Skyler began to kiss her neck and under her chin. Darren came to the lip of the tub and squatted down.

Madison, now with one hand gently cupping one of Skyler's round breasts, looked at him, said, "Is dinner ready?" Her eyes were narrow and lusty.

He said, "Yeah. You want me to bring it here?"

As Skyler ran her tongue along Madison's neck, laughing as she did it, Madison said in a baby voice, "Yeah, would you cut my meat up into little pieces for me?"

It was difficult to swallow, but he did, felt his Adam's apple jumping up and down. He licked his lips, said, "Sure."

Skyler was laughing again, kissed Madison's forehead, then pressed herself against her friend's chest, her hips grinding her sex into her as if she was humping her. She ran her hands like claws through Madison's hair, said, "Naw, we'll come out and eat with you, Darren."

CHAPTER FOUR

FOR DINNER, Darren had cooked the elk steaks. Seared them in the pan, brushed them with butter, cooked them at medium on the grill. Elk was extremely lean so you had to have a light touch. There was a salad, fresh greens that Lynn had bought at the farmer's market on Thursday. Chopped tomatoes, an avocado, fresh herbs; he even made his own dressing for them. Last year, when things were better between them, Lynn had bought him a one-week Healthy Cooking Course taught by a Michelin-star chef. It was a great gift, something he'd always wanted to learn.

The three of them sat at the patio table, Skyler's pitcher of caipirinha almost empty now. Madison was hungry. Proved it by diving knife and fork into the steak (holding her fork like a dagger with her thumb curled over the butt), sawing away while her legs kicked under the glass table. She ate with nothing on.

He could see her bare body through the clear surface of the patio table. Her breasts swung back and forth while she sawed. She ate the steak first, not even touching her salad.

Skyler had some pretense of manners. Sitting upright, holding a knife and fork like a human being, but put her elbows on the table a lot. Not the end of the world, obviously, because she was topless. Her breasts hung forward when she did.

They didn't talk much while they ate; the girls had an appetite. Cutting, and forking, and chewing. Washing it down then with sweet Brazilian alcohol. It was actually pretty wonderful.

Where Darren sat, he faced down the length of the pool, toward the shallow end where beyond a manicured hedge crested over flowering gardens. A walkway ran around from that wall heading to the tennis court, the path also veering to the right going behind the garage down the side of the house and out to the front driveway.

A man walked around the corner. Darren startled, physically gasping, his throat squeezing on a chunk of meat, coughing it forward so he didn't choke to death.

The man wasn't threatening, he could see that he smiled. He was good-looking (actually very handsome, like a model). He had salt-and-pepper hair, close-cropped at the sides and back, brushed forward a bit along the top. He had a rugged jaw and a wide chin and flashing eyes under a handsome brow. His teeth gleamed white. He was tall and tanned, dressed very nicely. Black polo shirt tucked into neat and tailored khaki shorts. He wore ox-blood loafers. One hand held the cord handles of a long narrow foil gift bag. He strode toward them, gently raising a hand to wave. Darren realized he waved at Skyler.

Darren's eyes darted to her, feeling concern, feeling suddenly caught. He was a grown man, and this was a terrible situation in which to be found. It was wonderful when he was alone but now he felt like he could go to jail. Everyone here was of age, but somehow this was just all very unseemly. One girl on his right, topless, and across the table, another girl sitting and eating and wearing nothing at all.

Skyler cupped her hand under her mouth as elk dripping spilled from the corner and down her chin. Now Madison, seeing Skyler's reaction, dropped her knife and fork and twisted quickly in her chair to look behind her. Her reaction was even more extreme. She jumped out of the chair, exuberant and joyful, she screamed "Daddy!"

Darren watched her naked body run down his brick walkway, ass jiggling, breasts swaying from side to side, visible even from behind. The man waited to receive her. She hopped up onto him and he gripped her, the heavy gift bag held out from his body. She kissed him on the face, both sides, then doing it over and over again while he laughed.

Darren rose and plopped back down heavily. He was caught. He was caught by this girl's father. This man would kill him just as he would kill another father he found behaving this way with his daughter. He suddenly felt nauseous, his just-eaten dinner deciding it no longer wanted to stay in such an inhospitable abode, sought to leap back up and out his esophagus.

But he clutched his fists hard and gritted his teeth and somehow kept it down. He tried to stand again and fell. He weakly said, "Skyler ..."

Without looking to him, she said, "Her Daddy's here ..."

WHEN HE FINALLY HAD THE ability to stand, Darren saw now this other grown man set Madison back down so her bare feet were on the brick. They kissed. It was not the kiss a father and daughter would share. It was on the mouth, and Madison gave this man her tongue. Her arms circled his neck and his hand lay on her waist, the fingers coming around and denting the upper crest of her buttock. Skyler sashayed her way to join them. Darren followed, his steps hesitant.

Skyler did the same as Madison, coming to this man and kissing his mouth. She said, "I'm so glad you could make it." As Darren joined them, she turned and said, "Darren, I want you to meet just about my best friend in the world. This is Loveless."

The guy was strikingly handsome. And up close like this there was something sparkling in his eyes that drew even Darren in. He held out a hand and the other guy took it. Gave him a very strong and firm handshake. His hand was much larger than Darren's.

"Darren," he said, voice deep and sonorous, "It's a pleasure to meet you."

"Likewise," he said.

Madison hung off the man still, and he put his arm over her shoulder. He said, "This is an incredible home you have, Darren." He looked around the house and the grounds admiringly.

"Thank you," he said. "You're a friend of Skyler's?"

"A friend, yes. Skyler and I are very good friends."

Madison chirped, "Me, too."

"And of course, you too." He kissed the top of her head and she hugged him.

Darren said, "And you're not ... Her ...?"

Loveless saw what he meant, said, "Father? No, of course not. We have a relationship, though, where my Madison likes to call me that."

Madison laughed and hugged him again. Now Loveless extended his hand that held the twine handles of the gift bag and offered it to Darren. He said, "And this is for you. For your hospitality."

“Oh, thank you,” he said. Though he offered no hospitality; the gift was presumptuous.

Skyler said, “Come sit with us, Loveless.”

Loveless said to her, “Run and get us drinking glasses, for Darren and I.”

“I’ll do it,” Madison exclaimed. She trotted off and all three of them watched her. Her bare body running along the deck, up the steps to the back patio and past the French door that led to the kitchen.

“What a girl,” Loveless said with a smile. “Open your bag, Darren.”

Darren held the bag up, pulling the mouth open with the twine handles and saw the top of a wooden case held closed with brass hinges and a lock.

“Come, Darren,” Loveless said as Skyler led him to the patio table. Darren followed, put his hand in the box and pulled out the polished case. Written across the front in wood-burned letters, it read: PORT ELLEN.

“Port Ellen?” he said.

“A gift for you.”

“Port Ellen closed in 1982.” It had. It was a distillery in Scotland that had closed but reserve bottles existed out there held by various agents. All of them treasured and expensive.

There were two brass hasps, and he flicked both of them with his thumbs simultaneously, giving off a solid metal clack. “Have a seat,” he said to Loveless, intrigued now by his visitor, as unwelcome as he had seemed.

Loveless sat at the opposite head of the table where Madison ate, eased her chair back and put himself down gracefully, and crossed one leg over the other, clasping his hands over his thigh. They were large and well-formed, looked strong but carefully groomed. He wore a wedding ring and a gold Patek Phillipe.

Madison burst now out of the door from the kitchen, bounced her way returning to the table, and set down two old-fashioned glasses with a crack on the patio table and then threw herself down in the chair next to Loveless.

“That’s a good girl,” he said to her without looking. Madison beamed.

Inside the case, set in a nest of shimmering red satin was a carefully labeled bottle. Port Ellen 1981, then over that label, above it, the name of the agent. It was a very well presented gift. He imagined it must have cost four figures.

With a wry smile, he said to Loveless, “Who are you?”

He smiled too, said, "I'm a friend of these two young ladies."
"We invited him," Madison reminded him.

"ALL RIGHT," he said. He figured as far as the roster of hardened criminals that these two bad girls could have hailed here, a grown and well-mannered guy his own age who brought such a generous gift was about as good as it would get. Other than two more girls just like them looking to take their clothes off and splash around in his pool.

He said, "That is quite a gift. I do like a good single malt ..."

"I imagined you might."

Skyler said to him, "What took you so long?"

Loveless said, "I was playing golf with the senator."

Darren, breaking the seal on the bottle, darted his eyes up, said, "Senator?"

Loveless put a hand up to halt him, said, "State senator."

Darren said, "A little hot for golf?"

He said wryly, "We were able to stay hydrated."

Darren poured an ounce into each glass and said, "Yeah, but the state senator ... isn't he seventy?"

"He is. He's seventy-one, but he takes good care of himself." He picked up his glass, holding the rim with all his fingers and whirled its contents, examining its color as it spiraled sunny heliographs on the patio table.

Darren put his nose to the glass and smelled this very rare beverage's unbelievably peaty scent. "Well, cheers," he said then, and tilted his glass toward Loveless who met it. They each savored their drink. Darren complimented him on his choice. Told him how much he liked the Port Ellen. He never had one before but it was striking. Then he asked: "And what business would one be in that they spend the afternoon playing golf with the senator?"

Madison interrupted, saying proudly, "He's a big-time judge."

Loveless looked to Madison and gave her a warm smile, winked at her, turned to Darren and nodded in agreement.

"A judge?"

"State Supreme Court," he said.

Darren said, "Good for you. That's an achievement."

Loveless was nodding now, his smile still tugging at his handsome cheeks. “And what do you do, Darren?”

“Insurance. I was an actuary a long time ago, then I struck out on my own, established a niche market.”

“That’s the path to success.”

“It was for me,” he agreed and took another swig of the single malt.

“And you’re married?” he asked, nodding toward Darren’s ring.

“Of course,” he said. “Married twenty-five years. Two kids, but they’re out of the house now.”

Loveless said, “Just like me. Married twenty-six years to the love of my life, and two kids off to Brown.”

“You’re married presently?” Darren said.

Loveless smiled and narrowed his eyes at him, assessing him. He looked to the left at Madison who was ogling him, sitting there not wearing a thing, and beyond her, topless Skyler who was examining her phone. Two friends of his. Friends that a man of his stature and age shouldn’t have. He said, “My wife accepted my transgressions a long time ago. And these girls—they’re so much fun, aren’t they?”

Darren held his gaze, felt caught in it like prey under a raptor on a perch. It was a knowing look, a man who knew exactly the lustful thoughts that whipped around Darren’s brain all day today. Knew all the dirty things he’d hoped would happen. Here was a guy who made it happen for himself. He knew how to do it. Didn’t wait for it to come to him, he manufactured his world. “They ... They definitely are,” he said.

“They are indeed, Darren,” he said and raised his glass again. Darren brought his up to clink against it.

CHAPTER FIVE

SKYLER CAME from around her side of the table, walking behind Darren's chair, lifting the outrageously expensive bottle and reading the label. While her eyes scanned it, she asked, "What do you think, Darren?"

He set his glass down, said, "It's quite nice. That's not something I've tasted before. It's an amazing gift, I know its history, and it's a very generous gift your friend brought."

"Uh-huh," Skyler said, then leaned forward on one leg, the other extending behind her. She filled both their glasses again.

"Hey, whoa," he said, seeing her pour too high.

Loveless laughed, and he ran his hand up the back of Skyler's thigh.

"It is very nice, Darren, isn't it?" Loveless said, then lifted the glass, pausing it below his nose to sample its aroma before taking a long pull.

Darren sipped as well, said, "It is." Then looking up to Skyler he said, "It's very peaty, but caramel, too. Very complex, I've never had something so earthy that tasted this sweet in a way that I like." He extended the glass for Skyler to sample. Skyler took the glass with both her hands then let one linger and hold Darren's fingers while she tilted the whisky back.

His eyes wandered her bare unprotected body while her head was back, darting over those young nipples and breasts, down to the cup of her navel and the little stud of jewelry that pierced it. Then down to her bikini bottom, exploring the shape of her mound underneath the fabric. He knew Loveless was watching him, could see his smirk out of the corner of his eye.

Skyler put the glass back in his hand and held her lips closed while she let it sit in her pretty mouth. She swallowed, then winced, eyes watery and blinking, and she said, “I don’t know how you guys drink that stuff. It’s disgusting.”

Loveless gave a light chuckle, his hand ran up the back of her thigh again and returned to his lap. Skyler let Darren’s hand go and then came to lean against his chair.

Madison let out a long and low exasperated sigh, slumped forward on her chair like she was bored, rolled her eyes dramatically. “Enough with the whisky,” she groaned.

Skyler said, “Madison, let them enjoy a drink together. Let them get to know each other.”

She huffed, her bottom lip pouting. Then she reached out slowly but confidently, cupped her hands around the top of Loveless’s old-fashioned glass, eased it from his grip. They all watched as she took one sip of the rare whisky, then leaned right back, breasts swaying, upended the glass and drained it in four gulps.

She set it down with a thunk. Her eyes traveled all their faces, wet and blinking, she wheezed, “There, now can we do something fun?”

Loveless tsk-ed her, shaking his head, but there was another smirk working his face as he regarded her. No one answered Madison’s question, and she said, “What?” shrugging her shoulders and looking sheepish now.

Skyler said, “You probably just drank about $300 of whisky.”

Madison’s chin dimpled, she shrugged again, said, “So?” Then both her hands gripped Loveless’s wrist, and she pleaded, “Take me to the hot tub, please? Please?” drawing out the E’s in ‘please.’

Still he regarded her, and her expression began to soften as she realized that she might be in trouble. She said with an apologetic smile, “I’m your saucy wench, remember?”

Loveless slowly licked his lips, said, “You are. You are at that, Madison.” Then he eased forward, his eyes closing, his mouth opening. Madison imitated him—eyes lowering as well, lips parting—until they came together and kissed deeply. Darren could tell that Madison had slipped her tongue into Loveless’s mouth.

He watched their mouths work, their necks gulping as they kissed. It was only a few heartbeats, but it seemed to go on forever. Madison’s nipples puckered, condensed to rosy buds. He watched as her thighs came together, muscles squeezing, and her toes flexed on the patio stone. Loveless really did it for her; she wasn’t putting on a show.

When their mouths came apart with a wet smack, they looked into each other's eyes, and Loveless said to them all, "I think Madison is right. I think a hot tub right now sounds like a wonderful idea."

THE TWENTY FEET from the patio table back to the hot tub seemed the most arduous distance he'd ever traveled. While he trudged slowly his mind raced at four times the pace.

By the time they were at the tub he'd worked out every scenario, and all of them ended up with him having to disrobe in front of them. Knew that would be the culmination of these events. But that was too big a step. He was a married man, and though he knew Lynn was unfaithful, he truly didn't have concrete proof. And even if he did, was that enough for him to return the favor?

Once again, though, this was an opportunity that would never likely return. His teen fantasies playing out before him. An event so impossible as to be absurd. How could he resist?

Madison brought the glasses, Skyler brought the pitcher and the whisky bottle, and Loveless and Darren each carried their drinks. They all stepped up and stood around the bubbling tub, lit from under the decking overhang, lights coming on automatically at dusk.

As Loveless pulled his shirt overhead, Madison stooped in front of him, undid his belt buckle and unbuttoned his shorts.

Darren said, "I think I have trunks that might fit you." It seemed like a reasonable thing to say, but once uttered it belly-flopped and he felt foolish. A laugh escaped Madison so abruptly it was like she had blown a raspberry. Skyler laughed as well. Loveless pulled himself out of his shirt, a dimpled smile on his handsome face.

"Trunks? Trunks, Darren? What is this the 1920s? Look at our companions, we may insult them by being overdressed."

Skyler said, "Nobody's wearing anything." Then her hips see-sawed as she shimmied her bikini bottoms down. Her mound was furred with a dense but manicured pad of pubic hair. Something glimmered there between her legs, and Darren figured she had jewelry that matched her belly button.

Loveless said, "Darren, if you please. Don't be the one to make us self-conscious."

“No, I know.” He put his thumbs in his waistband, turned and looked nervously over the hedges that separated him from his neighbors. Couldn’t even see a light in a window, but he couldn’t help escape feeling watched. He turned from them, showing them his back as he’d done with Madison in his bedroom. Slipped his trunks down and stepped out of them. Now came the dilemma. He was on display, putting on a show. The last one to disrobe got the most attention. Had he not wasted time, just jumped in, got into the hot tub without his trunks, nobody would’ve paid him any mind. Now he had three spectators eager to see what he would reveal. He could turn, cover up with his hands, but that would be embarrassing. Once again, shyness attracted aggression. Took a quick look down, saw he was shriveled, scrotum drawn up, and his anxiety had come and robbed him of his erection but maybe that was a good thing—leaving him with something a little more plump than were he un-aroused.

When he turned, he held his trunks at his waist, but didn’t cover up, merely casting shade on his genitals below. Loveless had removed his shorts as well. Between the judge’s legs, a monstrous club dangled. So large it made Darren flinch. What quite accurately would be comically described as a baby’s arm. Only Loveless wasn’t even aroused. It hung limply, thick and wrinkled, circumcised with a large and bulbous glans that pointed to the cedar deck. Behind it, two sagging testicles hung between his toned and tanned thighs. Pubic hair was dark, looked trimmed, and also sported flecks of silver. Darren stared too long, struck with a horror before he could avert his eyes. He let the trunks come down to cover what he had. But it was too late.

In a lilting, taunting tune, Madison sang, “Some-bod-y’s-got-a-lit-tle-dick,” and she wagged a crooked pinky.

Loveless said, “Madison, darling. That’s not very nice. Darren, don’t let Madison’s careless tongue keep you from joining us.” He held out a hand. “Come and get in with us, we’re all friends here. Madison ...?”

“What ...?” she protested, but Loveless held her gaze and slowly Madison began to slump, finally she shrugged, mouthed Sorry, then said to Darren: “Sorry, Darren.”

SKYLER NEVER LOST HER SMILE, leaned to Darren and said, “I think he just needs a little excitement in it,” then ran her nails up his thigh to his hip. His scalp tingled like with electricity and his nipples turned to stones, his mind reeling backwards. Under the shorts bunched in a ball between his legs his balls tightened to a firm pouch.

“Skyler ...”

Skyler purred next to him, her body so close, her eyes between his legs as she took the trunks away to reveal himself. With his other hand he blocked the view of his penis from Madison and Loveless. The stroke of her nails on him had charged it with blood and while he wasn't erect, his size had improved.

“See,” she whispered, and the fact that this hot young girl was so close, and intently staring at his penis, they both watched as it extended and bobbed right before them, the loose skin of his shaft beginning to tighten. He grew to full hardness.

“Look at that. Not so bad now, Darren ...”

“Yeah,” he said, lifting his eyes and seeing she stared at him, her face friendly and brightened with a beautiful smile.

“Come on, Darren, don't be a spoilsport,” she said, holding out a hand to him as she stepped backward toward the hot tub, tossing his shorts away. “Come in with us.”

He covered his erection again with one hand, took Skyler's hand with the other. Skyler took his with both her hands now and tugged him to the hot tub, making faces like she pulled with great effort and it got him smiling.

“Yeah, okay,” he said, and he went with her, feeling a lightness now, the arousal that stiffened him felt pretty good. What Loveless had between his legs was a rarity. Something like one in a million. Maybe one in ten million. What Darren had was what one would expect between a man's legs.

“Okay, Skyler, I'm coming, I'm coming ...”

Madison muttered coyly, “Not yet ...” as Darren stepped into the tub. Knew what that implied, but chose not to believe it. Surely it wouldn't really happen. This was a Playboy fantasy, a Penthouse letter. As much as he'd like to think that this was going to end in his bedroom, the chances were slim. Reality was far harsher than fantasy. Most likely, he would wake tomorrow with a hangover and a painful set of blue balls that he would have to relieve in the bathroom shower before Lynn's flight got in.

So he disregarded what Madison said, acted as though he didn't hear it, and Skyler did the same. He figured, given the relationship dynamics, if events were to transpire as his boyhood fantasies would want them to, he would be paired with Skyler. Quite clear that Madison had a distinct claim on Loveless, and a distinct disdain for Darren. So his energies should be concentrated, as nefarious as it may seem, on the girl who once played in his pool when she was a little kid and he was her best friend's father.

LOVELESS CLIMBED IN, the water bubbling and steaming. Stepping down, the water came up to his knee, then down lower as he put a foot on the center floor. That enormous thing he had swung back and forth, shaking when it bounced against his thigh. Then he sat, his generous genitals disappearing under the water as he leaned back on the edge of the tub, the water coming around his chest. Madison was quick to assume a position next to him, curling at his side, his arm going around her shoulders and her snuggling so a cheek pressed his chest.

Madison looked to Darren and said, "Don't worry about your dick. Nobody's as big as my Daddy."

Darren winced and he couldn't hide a grimace. Loveless chuckled, witnessing it. He leaned his head to Madison, and she rolled her eyes up to him. He said, "I think it bothers Darren when you call me that."

It made her smile, and she said to Darren, "Relax. He's not my Daddy Daddy," and he jumped feeling the soft sole of her bare foot touch his knee. Then she said, "Don't be stupid. That's gross. My real dad is an asshole."

Skyler had been sipping her whisky, and she drew it down to say, "And he doesn't fuck you as good as Loveless."

Madison gasped with shock, her face peeling with a horrified howling smile. The foot she touched Darren with now kicked at Skyler under the water. Skyler laughed, her arm thrashing underneath the surface to block her kicks.

"You dirty bitch," she laughed. "I can't believe you said that."

Darren watched the two of them play fighting, calling each other very bad names. He took in Loveless, too. This confident, powerful man sitting in his hot tub, uninvited. Not invited yet somehow strangely welcome. He seemed like a good guy, a guy that could be a friend. Introduce him to a new world when Lynn left him.

A stony pit appeared in his stomach at that thought. It could happen. They were at that age, their children were gone. All the happiness that had been in their life was exhaled. Now his wife wanted new and fresh air. It was obvious. Was he going to be the one to suffocate in this house? When she left him, when he picked up the pieces and could finally live again, he would need to start over.

Loveless sipped at his whiskey, held in his big masculine hand, his wrist wrapped with an expensive watch, his gold wedding band flashing. A confident and capable man. Someone he could emulate. This man's two youthful and unbelievably sexy companions arguing and slapping at each other, trying to tweak each other's nipples now. His erection was not going to go away.

When the slapping abated, the two of them getting tired from their silly activity, Madison curled next to Loveless again, looking up to him and whispering, "She's such a bitch."

"I know she is, sweetheart," he said, winking over her shoulder to a smiling Skyler.

Madison said to Darren, "I love his big dick. He's the biggest I've ever had. And the best." She gave her 'Daddy' an enthusiastic squeeze. "Remember Chad?" she said to Skyler, tapping her thigh with her foot.

Skyler said, "Yeah."

Madison continued, "We went to school with him. He dated Tabitha, Mr. Maxwell. He had a huge dick but he didn't know how to use it."

Darren scoffed, "The Chad who dated my daughter Tabitha? Why would you tell me that?"

"Tell you what?"

"Never mind," he said with irritation.

Loveless groaned, "Madison, behave."

"What ...? I didn't—" she sat up and looked in his eyes, gave him her scolded little girl face. Then she slumped again. "Okay." She lay herself against him again and she whispered. "I see. I get it," though she rolled her eyes away from Darren and didn't apologize this time. Loveless stroked her hair.

MADISON PUT her arms around the judge's neck and held him tightly. Slowly their faces came together again. Darren watched as their mouths pressed together, and this twenty-year-old girl stuck her tongue into a fifty-year-old man's mouth. Of course, this fifty-year-old had his shit together.

Darren could be that guy. He didn't let his body get too out of shape. Maybe a year in the gym, a friend like Loveless, his broken heart stitched together, maybe he would be playing golf with the State Senator, and then afterwards ... Who knows?

Then suddenly something occurred to him. A bubble creeping up from the depths to burst at the surface. Something he hadn't thought of, hadn't even bothered him, but some psychic force within him tapping at the glass until that bubble zig-zagged to the surface.

"Loveless?" he said.

"Yes," Loveless said, pulling his mouth from Madison's with a wet smack.

"No ... Wait a second. Loveless. That's your last name? Lovelace ... Love-lace? L-O-V-E-L-A-C-E?"

"Lovelace, yes," he said.

"Hold on ... You used to be a prosecutor? Erik Lovelace?"

"Yes."

"My wife went up against you. She called you her nemesis." And occasionally Satan.

"Maxwell, Maxwell ... Lynn Maxwell? Oh, Darren. My friend. I know her very well. You are a lucky man, aren't you? Yes, Lynn and I went head-to-head on many occasions, and she rarely bested me."

Darren laughed and took a swig of the Port Ellen. "She drank champagne when she did," he divulged.

"She was a worthy opponent," Lovelace said, narrowed eyes on Darren, twinkling in the automated garden lights that came on at twilight. "To Lynn," he announced, and he raised his glass. The girls joined in, turning around and finding their tumblers on the lip of the tub. They all came together in the center and touched glasses raised above their heads, and Darren watched the girls' breasts.

"To Lynn," they all said out of sync, then sat back and drank.

Lovelace said, "Where is Lynn now?"

Skyler's eyes darted to Lovelace as she sipped at the whisky. She said, "Says she's in NYC."

Lovelace said, "Is she? The city that never sleeps. What's she doing there?"

"She's at the National Attorney General Research Institute's international fellowship conference. She offers a symposium for selected international lawyers. Done it for ten years now.”

“I thought I heard she left the DA’s office.”

“She did. Two years ago she up and quit, went to work as a Land Use Attorney.”

“Really? I bet you that was a successful decision. There’s a lot of opportunity these days, given recent marijuana legislation ...”

“That’s it exactly. You know your stuff.”

“I do.”

“Yeah,” he said. “It’s been terrifically successful for her. Less stressful, and ...” he hesitated, “...listen, she doubled her salary, too.”

“I imagine she would,” he agreed and sipped. “How did you two meet?”

“Lynn and I? We met at University. We were friends for a while—she transferred from Georgetown and joined me at Yale in sophomore year. We were friends right up until near graduation. Then one night after hanging out for the umpteenth time we all stumbled back to her place after a few too many, you know what I mean, one thing led to another. Seems like all those feelings I’d harbored for her ... she had them as well. Kept them separate, like I did, and then it just all came out in one night. I guess we’ve been together ever since then. So we got married before Lynn went to law school, I worked as an actuary. Supported us, then when she became a lawyer and we had a double income it allowed me to experiment a little ...”

Lovelace was nodding, and he leaned his head back behind him to look up at the house. “And I see it turned out well,” he said.

“It did. But I really couldn’t have done it without her.”

And suddenly his heart felt very heavy. Who was he kidding? He was going to sleep with one of these girls? Sure, Lynn had done the same, he was most definite. But maybe what they had between them could be saved. But if he went ahead and did something tonight, he would be no different from her. And if they were both the same, then there was nothing to save. He felt a lead case close around his heart and it caused him physical discomfort. He winced and leaned forward holding his drink in two hands, up near his chin so it wouldn’t go in the water.

“You okay?” Lovelace asked.

Madison cooed. Skyler joined in saying, “Aww.”

Lovelace took another sip of the Port Ellen and said, “I hope there’s not trouble, Darren.”

CHAPTER SIX

HE WOULDN'T TALK to these three about it. Shoot, once he started he bet he wouldn't stop. He'd end up blubbering all over this hot tub and someone would have to escort his drunken ass up to the bedroom and tuck him into bed. That would be embarrassing. So he bit his lip, buttoned it physically and spiritually.

"Nothing I can't handle," he said. It was bravado that was needed right now.

Lovelace nodded, said, "Here, here," raising his glass once more. "A man has to take care of his home. A man has to take care of his woman."

Madison shivered as if she were cold then giggled, "I just got goosebumps from that," and Lovelace laughed.

But Skyler still regarded Darren, her face almost a scowl, not quite angry but very serious. She said, "You were a good couple."

"We are a good couple," he said, not meaning to correct her but putting himself in the right frame of mind.

Skyler said to Lovelace, "You should've seen them. Like one of those paintings from the 50s, this family. They had it all." She spoke quietly as if what she said had great value.

Darren calmly said, "Thank you."

Skyler said, "Tabitha with her nose up in the air, so much drama. At home she had everything she could ever want ... this perfect family, but she still found things to complain about."

Lovelace warned her, said, "Skyler."

"Don't say that, Skyler," Darren said.

Skyler shook her head and blinked, raised her gaze from the bubbling water, looked to Darren and said, "I'm sorry, Darren. Some girls dreamed of having a mother and father like you and Mrs. Maxwell."

"I'm sorry, Skyler. I can understand."

Skyler looked unconvinced, but she didn't make a face.

THE PORT ELLEN WAS RETIRED, most of the bottle being consumed by Lovelace and Darren. Skyler had gone back into the kitchen and brought out a pitcher of something else she concocted. Not too sweet, bubbly and refreshing like she wanted to lift her spirits after her sullen exposé on Darren's marital past.

Darren sipped it from a clean and ice-filled highball glass. Lovelace did the same, sitting side-by-side with him now. They were on one side and the girls on the other. They talked closely, Skyler's arm around Madison as Lovelace had done. Bare-breasted, beautiful, and talking way too close. His thoughts drifted to how he'd seen them while he barbecued. Skyler climbing up in Madison's lap and kissing her while Madison tugged at her nipples. Not once this evening since they got into the hot tub had his erection gone away. It was painful and swollen right to his anus.

Lovelace was relating to him the journey from law school to private practice to high-powered defense attorney, his short appointment to Superior Court, and finally, with immense political aspirations, finding himself granted life tenure on the State Supreme Court. And while Darren listened, his attention was drawn away as Madison and Skyler came even closer and it was obvious they would kiss. Even Lovelace's proclamations of his success waned, his voice growing to a croak and then stopping. The two men watched.

Skyler held Madison's chin, and they kissed with tongues. Their soft pouting mouths pressing together, perfect white teeth tugging and pulling at each other's lips, giving each other their tongues and sucking on them. Darren groaned, his erection and arousal becoming more painful. Hands began to work now under the water, Madison obviously playing with Skyler's breasts, and Madison's much larger ones being pressed up above the surface of the water with Skyler's hand. Darren watched as she plucked at her friend's nipple. It was hard to take.

Hard, but he couldn't move his eyes away. Seeing it so close to him, in the house he lived in, in the home he'd known for seventeen years now—it tightened everything inside him. He didn't even know what it was. It was lust, and it was even anger. Somehow angry at them. Mad at how beautiful they were and how carefree and how they had everything that he wanted. But it wasn't for him. His time was done. He groaned again and leaned back against the hot tub. He needed a distraction, so he winced as if in pain, his head rolling toward Lovelace. He asked, "How do you know them?"

Lovelace's eyes didn't come away from the action, his chiseled face drawn in a pleasant smile while he watched. He said, "My girls? I know them from a private club. A gentleman's club."

It all came to him. Skyler, of course, the way he knew her when she was young, the family she came from, her mother ... Skyler was a stripper. Or he supposed would prefer to be called a dancer. Some wood-paneled gentleman's club. And then a man like Lovelace was a member, standing out amongst all the paunchy red-nosed drunks that populated places like those. A guy like him would be king. And girls like these would fall before him. Darren laughed inexplicably.

Lovelace said, "Something's funny?"

"No, it all just came together for me."

"Ah," Lovelace said with a smile, comprehending what he meant. He nodded and took another sip of Skyler's drink. He regarded Darren, and they looked into each other's eyes until Darren was uncomfortable again. Lovelace said, "And what do you think of a man like me with two young girls like these?"

Darren didn't look away, feeling mesmerized. He said, "Honestly? Admiration." And then he felt foolish having said it, knowing the girls overheard him.

LOVELACE APPRAISED HIS WORDS, reflected on them, looked away and watched the girls as they continued to kiss. Smiles on their faces now, knowing they were being watched, putting on a show. Lovelace said, "I suppose you admire me because I take what I want."

Darren said, "Yeah, you do. That's not the way I am."

Lovelace said, "Would you be surprised if I told you that I didn't take anything? That I take nothing. I give. There's much that I give. That is the direction of power.”

Madison giggled around Skyler’s kiss.

Darren said, “The direction of power?”

“Those who take by force, Darren, meet opposition. When you take something, you’re depriving. I’m generous and my gifts are many. I don’t take. My control is not issued by robbing, it’s through giving.”

“Gifts?” Darren said.

“Not so simple, Darren. Gifts, sure, as Madison and Skyler would attest. But it goes beyond that.”

Madison was giggling again, leaving Skyler to lick at her smile and her exposed teeth. She said, “He put my boyfriend in jail.”

Lovelace smiled as well. Looking her over, he said, “I did. And that was a gift.”

Madison darted a glance to Darren and said, “He was bad.”

Lovelace agreed, “He was very bad. But he isn’t a concern.”

“Not anymore,” she said brightly. “Daddy took care of him in prison, too.”

Lovelace brushed that one away, said, “There were consequences for his actions.”

Skyler was rolling her eyes, doing it with mirth, though. She sat back with her head leaning on the lip of the tub. Madison groaned in her absence, she moved closer to her and her hand dipped below the water, her shoulder moving forward as if her hand went between Skyler’s legs.

Lovelace said, “Darren, do you know what kind of boys beautiful young girls like these can find themselves with?”

“I do,” he said. “I have a daughter and I worry.”

Skyler scoffed, and Darren supposed that Tabitha’s boyfriends did not run in the same circles that Skyler’s boyfriends did, and he felt stupid for saying that.

Lovelace said, “The value that these two have is enormous. You know it. I saw what they did to your body. The value of a woman is incredible. It extends beyond their beauty ... as these two have. There’s things within them that if nourished can be drawn out. Their beauty is a tiny facet—I can’t tell you the many amazing things I’ve learned from these girls’ spirits. There’s women like these two precious beings that haven’t been allowed to flower, and there’s women, like your wife I imagine, who are powerful ...

But they all need something. I don't take anything from anyone. I give them what they need."

Skyler scoffed again. She rolled her eyes, sat forward and smirked. "You think we're that simple? You think we're just puzzle pieces that you fit your things into?" She was being coy, her disdain part of her charm. It brought a laugh from Lovelace.

Skyler asked again, "Are we that simple?"

Madison sang, "I am," raising her hand like it was a question asked in class, and bobbing across the tub, her head going up and down as she tried to stay under the water while making her way toward Lovelace. She said, "I'm that simple." Then she embraced him, circling her arms around his neck and straddling him under the water. "I melt for handsome men with lots of money and big, giant dicks."

Lovelace laughed heartily, his head leaning back and resting on the tub, eyes narrowed, watching her. He said, "And how many men like that are there?"

"Just you," she said cutely. "Just you."

"I'm the only one?"

Madison said, "You're the only one I ever met. You're one in a billion million trillion." She giggled, bit her lip. "And you melt me." Then she kissed him, her fingers scratching through his hair, and her mouth working over his.

Darren watched as her hips must've been swaying under the water, the way her shoulders dipped up and down, alternating. She began to moan into his kiss. She broke away, whispered, "I want it. Give it to me."

LOVELACE'S big hands went over Madison's slim shoulders and he admired her for a moment before easing her off his lap. He rose.

At first, Darren thought that these two would retire to one of the bedrooms in his house. Saw Madison bobbing in the water again, looking up and watching this man that she had fallen for as he stood above her. That huge dong had grown excited with the things that his young girl was doing to him. It hung between his legs much more engorged than when he'd taken his shorts off. Water ran down it, veins rose on its surface. It looked like it was halfway down his thigh. When he sat down, putting his ass on the lip of Darren's tub, his heavy penis and testicles hung below his legs, resting on the sidewall.

He held his hands out as if he were asking the young lady to dance, and Madison took them. He helped her to stand. Now Darren watched her naked body; the water running in lines over her unbelievable sweeping curves. Steam rose off her and into the night. Hands were released, and she went back down on her knees between his open thighs, kissed the insides of his legs, alternating left and right up his thigh, getting closer and closer. Then she was kissing his penis, starting at the base, working along the top, but he hung too low. So she lifted it, cradled it in both hands and ran her tongue over the swelling glans. His coronal ridge flared out as he grew harder, the head that was already large looking almost unreal now.

It wasn't too big to fit in Madison's plump mouth. She put the ring of her lips around it but could only get the first third of him into her. She was very familiar with Lovelace's equipment, knew what he liked, and Darren imagined she'd done this many times. Pictured her doing this in limousines, the back of a gentleman's club, maybe even under his judge's robes while he presided. Shit, that must be something.

That painful thing Darren had of his own, but paled in comparison to the one next to him, throbbed, and felt hard as steel. Perhaps the single hardest erection he'd had since he was fourteen. And just like when he was fourteen, the thoughts, and blood, and lust that drove it to such proportion and resilience also punctured holes in the rational part of his brain. And as he watched Madison work and bob her mouth on the judge, the only thing he could think of was that Skyler was for him. That if Madison were doing this to one man, Skyler would do it to the other. And he was that other. And all those thoughts of fidelity, and doing the right thing, and making amends in his relationship with his wife went right out the window. He wanted nothing more than to have a beautiful girl in her twenties go down on him in his hot tub. Wanted that steely shaft pushed into something unbelievably beautiful.

So he rose from the tub as well, running his backside up the wall, then sitting with his thighs parted. Not the kind of man to boldly say something cool and masterful indicating what he expected, instead let his legs part and hoped that everything would work out the way he wanted. Hoped that Skyler would bob across as Madison did and let him sink his erection into her mouth.

And then she was doing it, easing away from the wall where she sat, bobbing across the short distance of the tub. But her trek veered from the course he wanted, her bobbing taking her to the left and she joined Madison, running a hand over her back and slipping herself in between Lovelace's thighs next to her. He was going to explode.

MADISON RELUCTANTLY GAVE way to Skyler, willing to share but somehow still possessive, letting her mouth come off Lovelace, gripping his shaft in the middle and then kissing her friend. She stroked the judge while the two of them made out again.

Skyler's hand went down to assist Madison in stroking, then down below and cupped his hanging balls. She lifted and fondled them, and Darren watched them squirm in her grip. Their kiss broke, and they both went to their knees now, Madison holding the judge's cock and Skyler putting her mouth on it.

They went on like that while Darren watched, alternating, taking turns each holding it and sucking it, stopping to kiss, fondling his balls. It grew and grew while they did. The way the judge sat hunched, when Madison lay it up against his body the tip touched his sternum. The girls played with his balls, each tugging on one with their lips while they looked up at him making pouting faces. Lovelace stroked their heads and ran his thumbs over their brows. He said to Darren, "All girls just love a big cock."

Darren had nothing to say. He imagined they did. It was apparent they did right now. At least these two.

Lovelace, not getting an answer, turned to regard him. He looked between Darren's legs, saw the pretty normal thing he had sprouting out of his pubic hair. He reached over and gripped it. Darren just about jumped out of the tub but the judge had a good grip.

"Easy, easy," Lovelace said, and Darren trembled feeling a foreign hand hold his penis for the first time in about twenty-seven years. And this wasn't a girl, this wasn't one of these lovely ladies, it was a strange, handsome, and powerful man. He was frozen. He looked down, saw the big strong hand holding onto him. Saw how small he looked. How just the end of it poked out past his thumb and knuckle. But Lovelace didn't stroke him, didn't pleasure him, just gripped him tight. The smile he had, the endearing one, seemed skewed now. There was something mean and condescending there.

While looking at Darren, the judge said, “Girls, let Darren’s hand in there.”

Darren squirmed again, trying to get away, but strangely doing it halfheartedly. Not wanting to leave. If he went in the house right now, this would be over and all chances of sleeping with one of these pretty girls would be done. He would stay, but he had limits. “No, I don’t think so,” he said, his voice sounding quieter than intended.

“Darren,” he chided, and he nodded with his head toward his own massive erection. Madison angled it toward Darren. Lovelace was so hard he looked like he might split, the head of it like a bursting, polished gray crabapple. “Go on, Darren.”

“That’s all right,” he said, still frozen, still feeling the strength Lovelace had in the grip around his cock.

“Do it,” Madison urged, and she shook Lovelace’s tool toward him. “Take it.”

“No, I don’t want to.”

“Don’t be shy, Darren,” he said. “It doesn’t mean anything. I just thought you might be interested.”

“Not interested,” he said.

Madison sighed, “So lame,” and Darren was shocked at the effect that had—an intense feeling of peer pressure over something so ridiculous.

Then Skyler was getting out of the tub, leaning toward him, the water sloughing off her body and cascading over the tip of his penis held in Lovelace’s hand and making him flinch. She whispered very warmly, “It’s okay, Darren. It’s okay.”

She ran her hands over his shoulders and it put butterflies in his stomach. His nipples hardened to steel bolts again. Her hands came together running down one forearm of his, holding him by the wrist and then taking it. She led his hand toward Lovelace’s penis and he let her. Could have stopped her, could have whipped his hand away, but didn’t. His heart pounded in his chest, an insane lechery like he’d never felt racing through him now. The last thing he wanted to do was touch another man, but somehow in the company of these unbelievable young women and given the lusty adventures of the day and evening, he wasn’t running away. He had limits and apparently this wasn’t one of them. He let Skyler wrap his hand around the middle of Lovelace’s shaft. He held another man’s penis.

“Look at it,” Lovelace said. And he did; held this enormous thing away from Lovelace’s body, looked at his hand on it. Knew what his hand looked like on his own and recognized the difference. Didn’t need to put his hand on it to do that, yet just the same it was an astounding experience. Women that this man had slept with would feel this thing. Feel the size that this man had and have known the comparative feel of other men. Would know how superior this man was. Just touching him, Darren felt humiliated. It was clear to everyone here that what he had between his legs was far inferior. Not even close. All of them here agreed that the thing he held was better than anything else. This was the envy of all. Not that it was something he could achieve, but it was something desired. By men and women. His mouth had grown dry and all he could taste was the peat in the old whisky. His heart hammered still, his ears pounding, and they felt stuffed with cotton. He didn’t let go, kept admiring this other man’s equipment. He wouldn’t stroke him, wouldn’t do any more, but he understood the point.

Lovelace said, “What do you think?”

Madison laughed, said, “Boy, is it ever.”

Skyler wrapped her hands over the grip he held on it and she helped Darren stroke a little and watch the skin ruffle as it bunched under the big, flared ridge of that enormous cock head.

“Okay,” Darren said, and he squirmed his hand out of Skyler’s grip. The three of them laughed at him, and instead of feeling humiliated, he laughed too. He put his hand in the hot water and shook it like he was trying to get germs off it.

Lovelace laughed at that, let Darren’s smaller penis go, and clapped him on the back, said, “You’re a good sport, Darren.”

When Darren sat up again, Lovelace looked to Skyler and said, “Skyler, dear, would you go down on Darren, please?”

CHAPTER SEVEN

“OH, UH ... WELL,” Darren bumbled. He fidgeted where he sat as Skyler made no protest but got to her knees, worked herself between Darren’s thighs. There were a million ways for him to stop this. All of them would be embarrassing—what kind of man would prevent this from happening? Especially when he’d allowed so much already tonight.

So much was on the line, so much at stake, yet he succumbed, no strength in him to produce any protest. He fumbled with things to say, uttering croaking consonants and vowels, not forming any words that told her that they really shouldn’t do this, and he watched as this young girl got herself very close between his thighs and then she held his erect penis. The second person other than his wife in the last twenty-seven years to touch him. And this one was incredible.

She ran an okay sign around the base of his cock and he didn’t stop her. His eyebrows rose up into his hairline and his scalp felt like it was peeling back. He held his breath as if he was about to witness two cars coming together at breakneck speed. This was slow motion though. Just as frightening somehow, but Skyler’s mouth worked toward him laggardly. And when her pretty, perfect mouth opened he felt a blackness rolling over his brain; a fading out, signing off for the evening.

She flicked her tongue on it and a lightning bolt shot through him. He gasped, high and breathy, like a female porn star, and then bit his lips. It made Skyler smile, and that smile was the most beautiful thing he’d ever seen. And then she sunk it into her mouth. Surprisingly cool, he felt the crown of his cock head mush on the top of her pallet, glide over the corrugated inside of her mouth. She took him all the way. Right down so that her lips went into his pubic hair. Then back up again, and he saw that his fingers had dug deep holes into his thighs he'd clutched them so hard.

He gasped a sharp intake of air, held it again. Watched as her perfect face made love to him. Trying to pleasure him, bobbing up and down, swirling her lips. She was doing things inside, too. Her tongue darting over the shape of his glans, stroking the cable on the underside. Up and down she went, and every time the ring of her lips passed over the rim of his cock head a white painless migraine flashed behind his eyes.

Next to him now, he watched Madison performing the same actions as young Skyler. She held Lovelace with two hands, thumb to heel, gripping him near the base. Her head bobbed, and a wavering string of drool danced from the point of her chin. Lovelace's cock stretched her lips wide. Then, between his own legs, Skyler took him deep again, all the way until he disappeared inside her.

Lovelace's big hands cupped Madison's head lovingly while she pleased him. The muscles in his legs flexed, and he slowly eased himself up to stand, Madison never once stopping her action. They worked themselves to the center of the hot tub. Darren watched them now over Skyler's shoulder. Skyler was aware that they had moved, her eyes darting to the right.

She drew her lips to a point, then off of him, his unbelievably erect penis snapping up and slapping his belly. That made her smile, and she dipped low and kissed his testicles. The feel of her pouting lips pressing him in so sensitive an area rolled his eyes way up. He looked to the sky, saw the steam rising from the hot tub he and Lynn had added to the pool about a decade ago. Steam billowing, dissipating, stars twinkling above. Then she was taking him by his wrists again, and he looked down to see her pulling him toward the center of the pool. He let her, followed along and she stayed in the water and he stood until she was back to back with Madison and he stood face-to-face with Lovelace. Lovelace didn't acknowledge him, chin tucked to his chest while he watched his young stripper perform magic on him.

SKYLER'S LIPS RETURNED, plunging him deep again, her chin squashing his scrotum between his thighs. He groaned and winced, his eyes narrowing. Now Lovelace flashed a look to him, those dimples in his rugged cheeks deepening as he smiled. He nodded to Darren, a knowing sort of look, acknowledgment that these were the greatest and rarest pleasures of life tonight. He couldn't agree more.

He mimicked Lovelace now, his hands boldly taking this young girl's head, cupping it, feeling the shape of her ears underneath her hair. Her head worked backward and forward, her tongue forcing upwards against her palate, applying great and wonderful pressure to his under-used organ. He felt his knees trembling, felt his thighs jumping, wondered now such a strange and exciting thought—should he tell her he would come in her mouth? Would he just do it? She seemed like the kind of girl that wouldn't be offended. Seemed like if he did explode without warning that she might laugh it off. And just that thought added onto the actual physical pleasure had his heart racing and his pulse pounding up his neck, making him feel tight and constricted.

He was close, so close. But then, what after? Would they be finished for the night? He didn't want it to be over, didn't want this to ever be over. He pushed away thoughts that were bringing his fluids to the surface, tried to condense a masculine control over his sexuality. Deep breaths, flexing his back and his chest, he pushed away the slippery pleasure she gave him. But it was so hard.

He saw her pretty nose, the cheek, the shape of her mouth as it formed a pouting ring around his erection. Looked over her shoulder, saw Madison's blonde hair bobbing as well. Sucking, two hands working, twisting and stroking a little. Water bubbled and boiled around them, steam rising from below, chill night air on his back. It was the most incredible feeling, and he realized he hadn't had a blow job from someone he hardly knew in about thirty years. Didn't realize what an absence that could be, didn't realize until he was reminded.

Now Madison was saying something to Lovelace, her head pulled back and her two hands stroking, encircling just the big flared end of him. She was mouthing funny things, and it was making Lovelace chuckle. Her hands could barely contain Lovelace's hardness. Somehow seeing that, seeing this girl's hands form a broken grip around such a sexual totem hardened Darren further, aching him right under his balls.

He flexed and felt fluid seeping from his tip. Felt the sudden urge to apologize, let Skyler know he was sorry. He had just put fluid from inside his body into her mouth, there was no way she could like that. She didn't seem to mind, but she did notice. He looked to see her now, eyes turned up to him, the slightest smile on that pouting ring. Then she pulled it away, her tongue forming a point and running up the underside of him then pressing into his urethra. He groaned and buckled and felt more clear excitement spew from him.

She took her tongue away, and it drooled, a silvery string swaying to the right and disappearing into the hot water. Skyler looked at his cock in her hand and stroked him. The new and slippery feel had his knees dipping again. It made her giggle, and she slowed and squeezed his scrotum.

That round shining apple head that was the end of Lovelace's cock was tapping Skyler on the shoulder. When she turned, Madison, holding Lovelace's cock, mushed it into Skyler's mouth and made her jump with a laugh.

Madison whisper-growled, "En garde," and gripping Lovelace at the base now she pointed it toward Skyler's face threateningly.

In return, Skyler pinched Darren close to his base and poked it pointing over her shoulder toward Madison.

Madison said, "Dagger versus machete."

Skyler laughed and said, "I don't usually bring a dagger to a machete fight."

MADISON RAISED Lovelace's erection up past 45° and then yanked it down to strike the tip of Darren's cock, hitting it straight down like a hammer hitting a nail. He felt a jolt from his tip right down to his buttock and he flexed his stomach, more lubrication spurting and streaming down his shaft now.

Madison saw and cooed with lurid excitement. Skyler held Darren steady, and now Madison took the swollen glans of Lovelace's cock and swirled it around Darren's head, getting Lovelace coated with his pre-come. Darren groaned, his mind doing somersaults at this unbelievably dirty display. Two hot young strippers holding two cocks and pressing them together, their eyes glued to the contact.

Skyler whispered, "Make them kiss."

Madison giggled, and they lined up the two men's erections then pressed them together, mushing the plump, slippery shapes of their glans'. The head of Lovelace's cock was more than three times the size of Darren's, and he marveled at it. His was small and narrow, a sort of prow shape, but Lovelace's was round and swooping and it flared outward muscularly.

The point of Darren's pressed neatly in the concave shallow swell of Lovelace's urethra. The girls had spread Darren's semen around both of their heads and the two organs slipped together with a feathery feel.

Darren's eyes grew narrow and heavy and he realized he was holding his breath. He looked up now, saw Lovelace staring at him. He looked confident and slightly mean, his eyes narrow as well but that smile curled up one side of his mouth. He shook his head slightly with how crazy these girls were. Here they were, two grown men, their penises touching, and neither one of them was backing away, neither one of them stopping these girls.

Madison said, "Press them together," then she and Skyler slipped and bobbed a little out from between them. They each encouraged the two men, pushing on the backs of their thighs and buttocks to get closer. It was crazy but Darren complied. Now their penises pointed, connecting at the tips, then slipping their bellies along each other as they got closer, going upright against one another, Lovelace's extending much higher now. The two bellies of their cocks pressed together and while they stood the same height, Darren's was about half the length, Lovelace's extending up to Darren's own rib cage.

The girls began caressing both of them, using all their hands and keeping them pressed together. Four hands going over their hanging testicles, and stroking their shafts, and running their fingers over their glans'; the whole time the undersides of their cocks slipping up and down against each other.

The stroking hands got faster and faster, going up and down quickly, squeezing and pinching at the swollen cock heads, running fingers in circles over the flared shapes. Faster and faster until both men realized they were trying to make them come. Darren backed away, not doing it on purpose, stumbling in ecstasy, putting one foot behind him. Skyler stayed with him, now gripping him and jerking him furiously, pointing his cock toward Lovelace. And Madison did the same, her hand gripping as best she could that fat tool and stroking him, her hand going in a blur now.

The girls were laughing, watching the cocks, eyes darting to each other, smiling. They were playing some game, maybe something they'd done before, a competition of some kind. Who could make their man come first ... It was so incredibly awful and dirty and he couldn't believe he found himself in such a disgusting situation. But his heart pounded with an excited love for this event. This was something he couldn't even believe was happening.

He didn't care which one of the girls won, he wanted to spew his seed right now. He wanted to shoot it wherever she pointed it, he didn't even care if it landed on Lovelace. Didn't care if Lovelace's white stuff started shooting out and roping all over him, he was just in love with this lewd and lascivious act. His head felt stuffed again, his hearing growing distant; he began to sway, white sheets flashing in his eyes every time her stroke went up over his glans.

He was going to go first. He was going to be the winner or the loser; whatever way these two judged the game. It was going to be tremendous. He was going to impress them, throw his fluids all over Lovelace, and Madison—and Skyler, too, probably; stray bullets striking his partner. Friendly fire ...

"There, there, hold on, hold on," Lovelace said as he reached down and slowly took the girls' wrists and slowed them.

Darren groaned, feeling the swelling inside him that was ready to burst—that needed to burst. It continued to swell but now he knew the release wasn't coming.

The girls stopped and a hard ball swirled in Darren's frontal lobe. Threatening to blot his consciousness, conspiring in some way to continue without these girls, figure out some way to launch what he had in his hanging balls out into the open air. His brain wanted release and wanted it now.

But Lovelace held the girls wrists steady, and they watched him with open smiles. He said, "Darren, I imagine this beautiful home has a bedroom or two."

CHAPTER EIGHT

DARREN WOULD HAVE PREFERRED TAKING them all to one of the guest suites, but Madison was in the lead, walking Lovelace while holding his hand, and she brought them to the master bedroom where she had been earlier and watched Darren change. He didn't protest, too busy following behind and watching them all. All four of them naked, stumbling in the darkened halls. Walking up the stairs and witnessing those two young and round asses lifting and shaking as they mounted the steps. Then down the hall, the feminine sashaying, even took a look at Lovelace and his strong, lithe body, and that wagging and swinging thing between his legs.

He ran his hands along the hallway wall to steady himself, turning and running the other hand now over the railing of the balcony that fell below to the steps to the foyer. Then they were clumsily banging through the double French doors that led to the bedroom suite where he shared his nights with Lynn. Madison flicked the light switch on the wall and it burst overhead, far too bright, Skyler hissing like a vampire. Lovelace laughed, turned it off, wandered to the side and slipped his hand up under a table lamp in the hallway that led into the suite.

"So bright," Skyler moaned, her and Madison stumbling into each other, Skyler with her hands over her eyes. Lovelace was walking behind them now and he grabbed both of them by the back of the neck and squeezed them. He looked over his shoulder while he did, noticing the array of photographs that plastered the one side of the hall. He stopped and looked at them, still holding the girls by their neck, rubbing his thumbs up and down.

"Where is this one?" he said to Darren.

Darren made his way there, still a little woozy, came to stand next to the three of them, saw a picture of him and Lynn, a twelve-year-old Tabitha and a ten-year-old Owen. Owen with his summer tan, Tabitha as well, wearing a baggy Justin Bieber T-shirt. Lynn was stunning, a big bright smile under her sunglasses, also sporting a tan, honey-blond hair pulled back so she could sun herself that day on the beach. Behind them there was sand, the trunk of a palm tree.

“Costa Rica,” he said. He placed a hand on the wall in between picture frames and leaned his weight against it.

Now all four of them stood naked in his bedroom, cramped in the narrow passageway between the hall and the suite, staring at the photographic history of the life he led with Lynn. Took them all in, birthday parties for when his babies were young, graduation when they were old, a picture of the day he dropped Tabitha off at residence in her first year of university. It was sad to see all the faces changing and having them documented here like this as though it were a museum. This was his past.

Lovelace reached a thumb out and ran it over the photographic chin of Tabitha, said, “Your daughter is incredibly beautiful. Just like her mother.”

“She is,” Darren agreed.

“She’s in school?”

“Graduated. Sort of. She’s doing an extended program in Spain this summer.”

“Smart girl?”

“Deadly smart,” he said.

Skyler’s knees made quiet pops as she squatted down to take a look at a picture frame that was put on the wall a little low. It was a birthday party, and Darren imagined she thought she might see herself at it. He didn’t think so, it was Tabitha’s twelfth. Tabitha and Skyler not having been friends since the seventh grade.

LOVELESS DRAPED one arm over Madison’s shoulder, and she looked up and around taking in Darren’s past with a warm and appreciative smile. Madison leaned into the judge, her hand rubbing up and down his belly, dipping low and stroking him a little.

“Quite the family,” he said. “Quite the story, Darren.”

“I know,” he said feeling a sense this man was suggesting that it was done. Something that was in the past. Maybe in a sense it was. He didn’t know anymore. Wanted the evening to continue, wanted to see where this would go, but at the same time knew there were consequences.

He slipped behind them, sidestepping to get into the bedroom, crossed over the Persian rug and climbed onto the bed. He was feeling woozy again, the room beginning to spin a little. He tucked his penis between his legs, the thing still as stiff as steel, leaned back on his hands spread out behind him. They didn’t join him, the three of them still looking at Darren’s family pictures.

He knew the picture. Knew what would be so funny. The vacation at the ranch in Colorado. Lynn had snapped a picture of him in a cowboy hat, grinning like a young man who had been living his childhood fantasy that week.

Madison suddenly remembered something, grabbing Skyler’s shoulders, her mouth opened, her eyes wide, eyebrows high. She gasped, said, “I forgot,” and she tried to leapfrog but fell sideways over Skyler. She trotted toward the open walk-in closet door, her breasts bouncing and swinging. “Shoes,” she cried, running now and disappearing inside the closet.

Darren could hear her hands slapping around on the walls in there trying to find the light switch. Skyler was right behind her, hopping along on her toes and slipping into the closet. The light flicked on and in the narrow gap at the door hinge Darren could see their bare bodies close together, rifling through Lynn’s clothing. He thought to stop them, knew it was a violation of his wife’s belongings. He just felt so enervated, felt so heavy he wanted to sink right into this mattress until he was inside it. He lay back, listened to hangers being whisked, clothes being removed, the long zipper of a boot.

Lovelace walked toward Darren, then turned to face the open closet doorway, leaned an elbow on the dresser where Darren stored his shirts and ties and socks. His hand rested near a double-photo frame, two different shots of Lynn and Darren on their wedding day. Lovelace watched the girls playing dress-up.

Madison appeared in the doorway, still completely naked except she wore a pair of Lynn’s very expensive winter boots. It was undeniably sexy.

This perfect young thing wearing tight black leather boots that came up just below her knee, heels raised on narrow spikes. She knew it too, showing off for the man she called her Daddy. He brought his hands together and gave her a little applause.

“There’s so much stuff in here,” she said to him breathily before turning on Lynn’s heels and disappearing in the closet once more.

Darren thought again to stop them, but he still just didn’t have the heart. He weakly said, “Girls, maybe just leave her stuff alone,” but he didn’t think anybody heard him. Both of them were back in there rummaging around, but now Loveless turned his attention to Darren and it froze him. His breath clutched in his throat when their eyes met. Loveless stalked slowly toward him, his menacing weapon bobbing and swinging, repeatedly drawing the letter W as he stepped toward the bed.

HE APPROACHED Darren as though he were a woman laying on the bed in wait and he was seducing him. Darren’s skin crawled. The judge mounted him, straddling him on the bed. Darren looked up to see this powerful man staring down at him with a merciless look on his face. Darren was frozen, his skin now going to goosebumps, his nipples hardening. He wanted to say something but all the words froze in his mouth.

Loveless reached down and took Darren’s erection and gripped it, stroked it a few times. Then he twisted his hips until his big member flopped onto Darren’s and he gripped them both. He slowly began to hump it along the underside of Darren’s cock.

His mouth fell open, he couldn’t deny the pleasure, but it was horrid, and if he was stronger, he would cry for him to stop. Lovelace kept going, stroking against him and Darren looked down now to see that swollen end with the big black eye receding then advancing toward him, slipping along over top of his own meager size.

Then it was over—a slap came as a bare body jumped on the judge’s back. A slender tanned arm slipped around his neck in a V and strangled him. Thin feminine legs hooked around his waist. It was Madison, and she opened her mouth wide and bit him savagely on the neck. The judge rose, his hands coming up to grab at her but she was stuck to his back. She reared her head, her mouth wide open, deadly fangs ready to attack again.

Darren saw that they were fake. Vampire fangs. And around her neck ...? ... the collar of a black cape. She wore Lynn's Halloween costume from two years ago. She'd gone to an office function dressed as a vampire. Played it down, not the sexy type, but more of an elegant specimen.

Madison, giggling, tried to clamp the fake teeth down on the judge again. He was laughing too, but trying to claw at her face and she bit his fingers. He stood up with her on his back and she gripped tighter and he tried to shake her off. Darren sat up, saw Skyler standing in the light of the walk-in closet wearing a pair of Lynn's Prada heels, an Hermès silk scarf around her neck. She had her arms crossed, a big smile on her face while watching the silliness.

Now the judge stumbled to the center of the room, and he began to spin himself in circles trying to get her off. But they grew dizzy, and what began as a tight circle went off kilter, the two of them swooping and stumbling all over the bedroom. Madison wore nothing but Lynn's cape, the knee-high boots, and fangs.

Now Skyler joined in, getting behind the judge and Madison, grabbing a corner of what Darren remembered as a quite expensive cape and tearing it upward revealing Madison's bare tush. Skyler slapped it hard, making it bounce, and Madison yelped.

Skyler had to step away as the judge was still spinning, now going around in another circle trying to get this monkey off his back. Darren watched as Skyler winked at him and sunk her index finger deep into her mouth. As the judge stumbled around once more, growing slower as he grew dizzier, Skyler tore the cape away again revealing that bare bottom, and she slipped her index finger along the crack of Madison's ass and then shoved it inside her hole. Madison screamed with laughter so loud he feared someone would call the cops on them. He shushed them though he found himself breaking up in laughter as well.

Madison kicked her heels up, trying to hit Skyler and she backed away laughing so hard she couldn't breathe. She returned, tried to stab again, but she was too busy with her regaling. Poking at her cheeks rather than getting an accurate aim. Madison was screaming "No, no, no," but she was cackling loudly, her hands coming back to cover her ass crack.

The judge stood straighter, but Madison was too heavy and he stumbled backward, his erection still sticking straight out, bobbing up and down like it was agreeing with what was happening, and then they crashed together into the dresser and Darren saw his wedding photo close and fall to its side. Skyler stumbled backward, ankle twisting sideways and breaking one of Lynn's heels as she collapsed on the floor, laying on her back and drawing her knees up, her mouth howling in silent laughter.

THE JUDGE LURCHED FORWARD, and he tried to spin with Madison again, convinced this time he would get her off. Pretty legs shot out and Lynn's boots swiped across the low hall table and knocked the lamp to the ground where it popped with a burst of electric light and the room was dark again. The two of them then collapsed against the wall and took down half a dozen of the frame photos. They smashed on the floor with the clatter of breaking glass.

Darren jumped up, in a panic, stumbling forward and falling on his knees, walking on all fours. His three guests all on the floor laughing their asses off though this wasn't funny. He stumbled around in the dark, wary of pressing a bare knee on broken glass, but still wanting to stop anybody from wrecking the pictures further.

The judge stood and held out a hand to help Madison as Darren tried to keep the photos from being scratched by shards of glass. With thumb and forefinger he delicately plucked jagged glass out of the frame and put them on the floor at his knees. He lined up the six frames that had been broken on the floor, leaning on the wall.

Dark red drops now appeared in the dim on his polished maple, between the wall and the Persian runner. Turned his palm to face him, saw a scarlet crescent on the heel of his right hand. He looked dumbly up to the left and saw three spectators. Madison and the judge facing him, but embracing. On the right was Skyler, broken heels kicked off, standing naked except for the scarf wrapped twice around her thin neck.

All four of them stared each at each other silently for a long moment then Skyler stepped forward, coming around on his right to avoid stepping in the broken glass. She put her hands on his shoulders and guided him to sit on the opposite side of the hall away from the carnage, his back leaning against the table where the table lamp had perched. He held his wrist, squeezing it like it would prevent the blood flow. The cut wasn't bad, but it still bled.

She went to her knees next to him. Took the fingers of his injured hand so she could examine where he'd been cut. She unwound the scarf from her neck and wrapped it tightly over his palm and wrist, crisscrossing around his thumb. She tied it tightly at the back of his hand. Then looking in his eyes she slowly lowered her lips and kissed where he'd been injured. The feel of her soft and feminine hands working on him, touching him and healing him, made his eyes tear. She ran her nails up his chest and over his shoulders and his nipples hardened again. She turned to face him, throwing a leg over and straddling him.

Now she was over him, looking down in his eyes and he looked up at hers. She cupped her hands to his cheeks and kissed him on the lips. He kissed her as well, felt her soft plump lips, her slick and ticklish tongue darting over his own sensitive mouth. She put her hands back to his chest, pressed herself closer, began to sit on his hips, reaching behind and finding his hardness.

Despite the madness of the last few minutes, despite the injury to his hand, despite seeing the careless handling of his past by strangers in his bedroom, he was as steely as ever. She held him firmly with three fingers and a thumb, angled him away from his body and when he felt the heat of her core touch his tip, he hissed a sharp intake of breath. His body began to tremble. She curled forward, looking down on him, and she began to wag his stiffness against her, the tip of his penis slipping up and down her pussy.

"Is this okay?" she asked him. Her voice a soft and sexy whisper.

Here it was again, the presentation of an escape. A way to avoid doing something terrible and ruining his life. This wasn't his wife, and his wife was a good person. Maybe she was cheating on him but maybe she wasn't. This girl was his daughter's friend at one time. He was probably almost twenty-five years older than her. She wanted to put his penis inside her without a condom. Nothing about this was good. At least it wouldn't be tomorrow. But right now he knew what he wanted.

"Yes," he whispered back. He gave her a quick and trembling nod, his mouth falling open.

"Good," she whispered, and she firmed him inside her, letting the head of his penis sink into her body. Then both her hands were on his neck again, scratching at his nape, sending his heart into overdrive. She let the weight of her body settle against him and he slipped inside this young and beautiful girl.

CHAPTER NINE

SKYLER WAS TIGHT AND PERFECT, hot; not sopping wet, but not dry. Her pussy was only twenty-two years old. His cock felt incredible inside her. She let him get all the way inside her, their pubic bones coming to rest against one another.

She rocked on him for a while, on her knees spread out on either side of him, her hips winding in circles. He wasn't so much going in and out as spinning himself in broad circles while he was fit inside her. A high tingling came to him, a breathlessness attached to it; he looked to the ceiling in disbelief. And it was hard to believe. He spent this morning in pain and sadness, pondering the demise of a relationship with a woman that he had been head over heels in love with. Then a knock on the door and a few hours later he was having sex with someone young and exciting and beautiful.

It all changed when she began to bounce on him. Seeing that desire in her, seeing that she could receive pleasure from him filled him with a sense of value he couldn't believe. It was value that he hadn't felt as a man in a decade. Pleasuring a woman was something that seemed to have escaped him for a long time. This young Skyler was giving it all back. Every time he thrust up inside her his heart swelled with the feeling that was fearfully very much like love. Each slippery stroke up and down and inside her was changing him. What was happening right now would change his life forever. And that was very true. Whether this stayed a secret or became something known to Lynn, things would never be the same. But this moment, right here, right now, was a truth. And as ugly as it was it made him feel like he was worth something. More than a husband, more than a father, more than someone who signed checks, paid bills, performed household chores, more than someone who had been robbed of a certain masculinity ... He provided for the members of his family, but it was safety, and it was money, and it was nourishment. This primal side of him had been missing.

He put his hands on her, his thumbs going over her ribs; he felt how fine a young body could be. Lynn was beautiful, and Lynn was his wife, but they had been divided. Lynn's doing, Lynn putting something between them. He gripped Skyler's breasts, squeezed them and she gasped. He swelled even harder inside her at the sound he could make this girl make.

Lynn's scarf wrapped around his hand, he brushed it over her nipple, her tight tying choking off the blood flow, and he plucked at her nipples with his fingertips, could barely feel them they were so numb. She alternated from bouncing to rocking, grinding, pushing herself hard down on him. She moved off of her knees and got to her feet, forcing her weight even harder down on him. He was as deep inside her as he could go.

She looked in his eyes but her face was expressionless. Lips slightly parted but nothing else being given away. To the left he saw the judge leading Madison to the bed. They'd been watching, and he hadn't been aware. So intent on his young partner that he didn't care that they watched. He gave them no mind. But now they were moving, and he watched them get on his own bed.

Skyler noticed as well, following his gaze. Now she was smiling at him again. Sucking her lower lip under her teeth and biting down in a mirthful manner.

She held his neck, then slapped one of his cheeks slightly. She lifted off, letting his erection slap against his belly, feeling so chilly without her heat. She left him, sashaying boldly toward the bed. He watched her ass, felt a certain ache in his heart having her leave him so coldly to join her friends. So he got up, knowing he would follow this girl anywhere tonight. Got to his hands and knees, then just his knees, checked the scarf, saw there was a dark mark from his blood but the wrap was holding. Stood himself up shakily and headed toward the bed.

ALL THREE OF them were on it now. Madison crawling on all fours then stopping near the middle, cape draped down one arm, the white humps of his duvet bunching up around her knees and hands like clouds. She threw a look over her shoulder, that sultry Madison face, somewhere between arrogant and sexual. The judge got behind her, ran one of his big hands from her tailbone up between her shoulder blades and she made a low purring sound, her head whipping forward, her hair slashing over the bedding. Skyler was climbing up on Madison's left, sitting in the pillows, but there was no room with her so Darren took a spot on the right-hand side looking at her now over the crest of Madison's humped back.

Skyler was watching as Lovelace began stroking himself. She watched this other man stroke his impressive member right in front of her. An intense feeling of jealousy washed over him which was crazy because all three of these people meant nothing to him, or at least shouldn't. But he was drawn in by Skyler's beauty. Not just her face but she had something in her that was beautiful. He felt it when he was making love to her.

She was reaching out now, brushing away Lovelace's hand and taking over for him. That jealousy rose within him again, a vicious swell this time. Seeing his lover wrap her pretty hand around another man's massive organ. She stroked him gently, going from base to tip a half-dozen times then guiding him toward Madison's entry. She used her fingertips to push his glans into her best friend's opening.

At the touch of the judge, Madison gasped and threw her head back, looking over her shoulder again, flashing a smile. She made an encouraging mewl sound and eased her rump back toward his intrusion. Skyler brought her hand to her mouth and licked her fingertips, cupped her hand and spat in. Then she moved back to where the other two were joined, and Darren felt that stab again seeing her caressing her spittle at the seal where his big penis spread Madison, running her fingertips over the lip of the judge's big glans, making sure she slipped underneath, tickling its chin, coming up under his shaft and getting it wet.

Despite the strange pain in his chest seeing his new and young lover touching another man he couldn't deny an astounding arousal that was abruptly within him. He put his hand around his own cock and began to pleasure himself. He would have his turn. She would return to him. Skyler looked to the judge and whispered, "Fuck her, Lovelace. Fuck her hard."

Madison agreed, saying, "Fuck me hard."

The judge took a handful of Madison's hair and pulled her neck back sharply, and she yelped in pain. He drove himself inside her, not being gentle, not being careful, just slamming himself deep inside this young girl. She cried out again, the size of his intrusion must be hurting her. Skyler squealed with delight, her eyes glued to where he shoved himself.

He pulled back and drove again, doing it fast and hard now. His cock was rigid and swollen, very thick and very long. Darren could see Madison's bright pink and tight membranes gripping his girth, the size of the judge turning her inside out as he fucked her.

Skyler watched and made appreciative faces, licking her lips and biting them, watching his shaft go in and out of her friend.

SHE WORKED her hand around behind him, running her hard nails down his rump and slipping underneath. As the judge thrust inside Madison, Skyler's hand pulled back and Darren saw that she had both his testicles squeezed in her grip. She was urging the judge, grunting in his ear: "Fuck her, she wants it hard, fuck her cunt harder."

Lovelace yanked Madison's hair again, forcing her to kneel, and she growled in pain. Her hands came up to grip her own hair, to alleviate his pull. Her nipples were swollen like stones. Her breasts bounced and jumped from his thrusts. Lovelace was indeed fucking her hard. Each slap into her made the young girl's thighs shake and quiver, sent a tremor up her rump and into her back.

Lovelace's body grew a sweaty shine, his muscles bulged, veins began to stand out in his arms and up into his shoulders. He made mean faces, snarling and scowling, making Darren's bed shake like it hadn't in twenty years. He had a young girl impaled on his massive size and she was going out of her mind.

Darren stroked himself faster, but he was determined not to give himself release. He watched then as Skyler got to her knees, making snarling faces of her own, making direct eye contact with Lovelace now.

She was snarling, "Fuck her, fuck this bitch, fuck her harder."

It drove the judge, and he did, getting even more frantic now, the fucking of this young girl making Darren sway on his own bed. Madison screamed and howled with insane pleasure. He gripped her hair and her neck arched in a bow, her face was squinted somewhere between pain and pleasure.

Then he was kissing Skyler. The two of them coming together, locking their lips. He let Madison go, and she collapsed on the bed, onto her elbows, her back heaving for breath. His cock was still inside her.

Now his hands were going over Skyler, and he began his thrusts anew, going easy this time and Madison helped him, bucking her hips gently, angling herself for the most pleasure. She shone as well, her skin glowing wet in the pale light that came through the curtains of the bedroom.

Skyler's kiss broke, and she reached down and held the exposed part of his cock and helped him ease himself from inside Madison. When he was free Madison squeezed her thighs together and Darren saw her fingers mashing at her clit. Skyler stroked the judge frantically now, his cock pointing straight up to the ceiling, her hands pumping furiously, swirling around his big glans.

Then she angled it forward, ran the tip through the seam of Madison's round ass. Madison complied, angled herself so she would be run through again. Only now, Skyler took her fingertip and poked it in Madison's anus. Her thumb and other fingers still held the end of the judge's shimmering cock, and she guided it along the underside of her finger, point of his cock pressing into this girl's tiny sphincter.

Darren saw Madison's fists claw as much duvet into her hands as possible and grip them tightly in preparation for what she knew would be painful. Once his glans penetrated her, Skyler leaned forward and let a long string of spit from her lips drop onto Madison's tailbone where it ran down and around where he was entering her. And then Skyler was stroking again as the judge slowly pushed himself inside her friend.

Darren had to stop the movements of his hand. He was way too close. This was something he couldn't even believe was happening. Two nights ago he and Lynn had laid in this bed, him on his iPad reading a Harlan Coben thriller while she read the newspaper through her reading glasses. The disparity was enormous.

CHAPTER TEN

THE JUDGE FUCKED Madison's ass. Reaching forward and gripping the back of her neck under her cape, he drove her face into the sheets and she made muffled cries into Darren's bedding. He pounded her hard. Not going deep, but fast and driven. Skyler began to slap at Madison's rump in time with Lovelace's thrusting.

Darren had to squeeze himself tightly before he lost it all over his sheets. He held his breath, feeling an orgasm trying to get out of him, trying to find some escape, trying to leap out of any hole it could. He gripped himself tightly while the judge continued, getting deeper and deeper, Skyler making those disgusting acclamations: telling him that Madison wanted it harder, telling him she liked it that way, calling her friend a bitch who needed it, telling him to wreck her ass.

Madison continued to scream and wail into the bedding. Then Madison had an orgasm. The judge gave her an anal orgasm and Darren's eyebrows rose up high, cranking his forehead in disbelief.

He watched her get sweatier and sweatier, watched as her toes curled up in Lynn's boots, creaking the leather and arching the soles, then she began to kick her legs, and as Lovelace fucked her faster she did as well, pushing herself against him, fucking him as much as he was fucking her.

Those fistfuls of sheets began to shake and tremor and then she cried out louder than ever into his sheets, the scream going on and on, one long note until it turned into a gravelly croaking groan that lasted forever. Darren still stared in disbelief.

The judge let her off, held back his thrusting, let her enjoy her orgasm while he rubbed her back. Slowly she sank away from him, settling into the duvet. And when her croak stopped, she began to heave for breath, coughing into the sheets. The Judge was smiling. He withdrew his tool from her ass, a loud belch of air coming up with it and Madison made a giggling sound and covered up with a hand reaching out behind her.

As soon as the judge's cock was out, Skyler had it in her hand, gripping midway and squatting on her knees and putting her mouth on it. Darren coughed and put his hand over his mouth. She sucked him, his cock having just been inside her best friend's ass. She did it without hesitation, did it because she wanted it. His heart was hammering in his chest being so close to something so incredibly lascivious, the most unbelievably sexual display. And there was a proximal excitement as well.

The horrible but insanely exciting things they were doing could include him. He could be a part of this. Not bold enough to step in and do it himself, he waited to be drawn in, but he enjoyed the excitement, the anxiety while he waited.

MADISON CAME AWAKE NOW, rising up out of the bedding, her head hanging low, cape draped over one shoulder, her hair hanging to the bed. She looked over her shoulder, then turned to sit, throwing her hands behind her to lean on them, her breasts swaying. She watched sleepily, her sultry eyes narrow.

The judge was on his knees proudly, hands on his hips. Skyler's head bobbed up and down on the end of his cock, her hand stroking the base of the shaft, her other hand cupped under his balls. Madison licked her lips then went to join her. Skyler held his cock for her and she took it in her mouth and sucked while Skyler stroked. They went back and forth like that, taking turns, sharing.

Then Madison was guiding Skyler to get on her hands and knees and she did. Crawled to the middle of the bed, her rump exposed, and Madison guided his cock inside her. Now Darren got up to watch because Madison blocked his view. He sat up near Skyler's shoulders. His hand went out, shaky with fright, unsure if this was okay, but he rested it on her back while the judge went into her, making a slick wet sound as he pushed her walls apart.

Lovelace made direct eye contact with Darren as he began a good and steady fucking of her. Now she was making noises that she had not made when Darren was inside her. Grunts and squeaks and shouting Yes. She wriggled on him the way she wriggled on Darren, but the pace and the power was so much different. He felt it in the rumble in her back with each pistoning.

Madison made funny faces at him, biting her lips and snarling, then running her hands up Skyler's back and spreading the cheeks of her ass wider. Then she repeated Skyler's performance, getting on her knees and making out with the judge while he fucked Skyler. She ran her hands up his body and over the muscle of his chest, scratching at his shoulders and then up to his neck. They worked their tongues through each other's mouths while Darren rubbed Skyler's slender back.

She bounced under his touch, her flesh shook as the judge drove his hips into her rump. He felt it build inside her, could feel her breathing, could feel the pleasure she was being given. Her breath came quicker and so did her grunts of pleasure. Turned then into breathy gasps until her mouth just hung open and that was the only sound that escaped her. He cooed for her, got closer to her ear, said, "That's it, Skyler, that's it," and he dug his thumbs into the muscles of her neck and her back, and she sighed for him, turned her face but kept her eyes closed. He kissed her shoulder.

Then the judge was back, and Madison was at his side and she was slapping at his rump now. Slapping his ass cheeks, and also then grabbing and squeezing his balls, then back to slapping. She gave him instructions as Skyler did: "Fuck that little pussy, fuck her harder." The judge gripped Skyler's waist tightly, his hands big enough that his thumbs met at her spine but his fingers dug into her tummy. He fucked her seriously.

His face looked like he hated her. He snarled and bared his teeth, and he pounded into her at quadruple time. He had her wailing and singing, making the highest descant, a piercing sound in his normally quiet bedroom. He made Skyler come, feet balling up as Madison's had, and she lurched forward, having to get off his painful size and flattening herself on the bed while Darren ran his hands on her again, getting on his knees over top of her.

She made loving and sougning sounds of pleasure, her mouth opening and closing like a grouper on a dock. She was still coming, just writhing on his bed, her eyes closed, her lashes fluttering; she squeezed the sheets like Madison did.

But Madison knew the judge was close and now she dove over top of her friend, pushing Darren's hands out of the way and straddling her, knees and elbows on either side while he kissed Skyler's shoulder. The judge went into Madison from behind again, by the sound of it returning to her rectum. The sawing began, and his body swayed as the two girl's lips found one another.

DARREN WAS HOLDING his breath again. He gripped his cock hard but didn't stroke. The judge pounded Madison's little butt while the two girls made out and as his own breath came quicker and quicker; the judge beginning to snarl and gnash, Skyler pulled her kiss from Madison and pushed her leg away so she should could climb out from underneath. The judge continued pounding her and Skyler got near where he was entering her. She waited and waited, watching his cock go in and out of her anus, listening to his breathing, listening to his grunting, waiting for something ...

And then she was moving, pushing on Madison's ass cheek, shoving her toward the bed, gripping the judge's cock with the other hand and pulling it out of her. Then she was jerking it, her tongue darting out and running all over the shape of his glans.

The judge gripped her hair tight making her wince and chirp a painful noise, but it didn't stop that narrow tongue still licking all over—and then the white dashes came. An eruption of bubbling at first, like an overflowing. And Skyler licked it up, but then he started shooting it; long wriggling ropes that landed somewhere in Darren's sheets before Skyler's mouth locked around his glans and he pumped it inside her.

Skyler took it, her breath snorting out her nose, her face turning red, tendons standing out in her neck as he gripped her hair and ran his cock in an out of the tight ring of her lips. He roared like a lion, then did it again, hips driving, her cheeks billowing. His body shone in the pale light.

He was done, his cock falling out, still dribbling, and he collapsed down on one hip and watched Skyler. Madison was up, nails grabbing over Skyler's body, the two of them coming together to kiss. Darren saw Skyler's mouth open and Madison's did the same, tilting her head back, and Skyler let a mouthful of slimy white spew into Madison's waiting maw. Everything that the judge had deposited inside Skyler being given now to Madison who drank it.

Madison returned it then, twisting Skyler in the bed so she lay on her back, getting over top of her and letting what was left spill over her open lips. Both of their faces shone wetly from the judge's sexual product. Then they were making out, kissing lovingly, their hands going over one another, and touching each other's breasts.

Madison began to kiss lower, down between her breasts and over her belly and then between her legs. Skyler gasped, drew her knees up and Darren reached out to hold one. Skyler put her hand over his. While Madison ate her out, humming a tune while she did, she blew wet bubbles through Skyler's sex.

His wrist was grabbed, and he looked to see a large masculine hand circling it, pulling him to the edge of the bed, the judge guiding Darren, holding him by the back of the neck. He pushed his face to Madison's upturned rump; forcing him between her cheeks.

HE STUCK HIS TONGUE OUT, let its breadth run wide on the hot, wet, coppery flesh between that young girl's ass cheeks. He ran it up and down; the judge guiding him, forcing him to do it. He didn't need to be forced; she tasted amazing.

Then he was pulled back, roughly, and the judge guided him to lay on the bed and Darren worried that he was going to be mounted again. Only now it was Madison the judge assisted getting up, and Skyler climbing on top of him. She straddled his hips, her knees next to his ribs, her face over top of his, her hair sealing him off from the room; it was just the two of them in the tent of her shampoo-smelling mane.

She locked her lips on his, and he loved kissing her, her hand scratching at his neck and around his ears and through his hair. He tasted the judge in her mouth, didn't care, gave her his tongue and she sucked it. Her mouth was wet with another man's semen, but she was kissing him and that was what mattered.

He jumped then, feeling himself trapped underneath her, his erection unprotected and open below her rump; someone was scratching his thighs, someone was running a hand over his scrotum. Then he felt a wet warmth encircle it. A mouth taking him fully inside. He could feel the scrape of teeth, could feel the probing of a tongue. Then they were bobbing, going up and down on him and he was so close. Could picture the judge now, his mouth wrapped around Darren's cock, humiliating him and his much smaller penis, taking control of it, not allowing him one of these beautiful girls.

But it felt incredible, and he was so close. He pictured it as Madison—his eyes darting out to the left and right, hoping to see the judge at the head of the bed but seeing only beautiful lustrous locks. Then a finger went between his cheeks, another hand pushing one of his knees high. He didn't fight it; the finger went into him, stroking along his seam up past his prostate and then up into his anus. His balls disappeared inside his body, into his stomach practically, and he exploded.

Everything that had been inside him squeezed forcefully from his balls like they'd been slammed in a heavy book, jets blasting out of the end of his cock and into someone's mouth. Skyler kissed him furiously, holding his face firm, shoving her tongue into his mouth biting at his lips. He snorted and grunted wetly into her kissing, heaved and choked, felt hot wet splashes shooting into someone's mouth, felt them gripping him. His hands went up her sides, cupped her breasts as he enjoyed the most powerful orgasm he had in a decade.

Skyler bit his lower lip hard and pulled it away from his face and he looked to see her smiling, his flesh pinched between her perfect white teeth. She giggled, let it snap back. She rose up over him, knowing he had ejaculated, knowing the job was done. His humiliation was complete.

But then Madison was there, climbing over her shoulder, the point of her chin slipping up Skyler's collar, Skyler turning to meet her. Madison opened her mouth and Darren's semen dribbled from it; running down from the curve of her pouted lip and to the point of her chin, and Skyler sucked it up then kissed her.

Darren groaned and cried with itchy ecstasy and watched them until he went black.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

DARREN never even heard the car door. Head filled with whisky-soaked cotton, the first foretold Lynn arrived home was the sound of footsteps downstairs in the foyer. He bolted upright.

He lay crossways on the bed, his knees bent, feet dangling above the floor. On his right side, laying next to him, was Skyler. She was face down with the blankets bunched up underneath her as though she were hugging them. She had a pillow under her head. At the head of the bed he saw Lovelace, laying up against the pillows on top of the covers, his legs parted, his huge but deflated thing laying down on the sheets. Cuddled up next to him with a pillow between her knees was Madison, peacefully sleeping with her cheek on his chest and his arm around her.

He jumped up, an urgent and pounding sense of dread beating its way through him. He ran to the walk-in closet and found the clothes he'd worn before settling into the trunks to go swimming with two twenty-year-old girls. The walk-in closet was a mess, all of Lynn's clothes pulled from hangers and scattered throughout. He found the shorts he'd worn laying under layers of Lynn's things.

He pulled them on, whipping them up his legs, zipping them as he ran back out of the closet, panicking, turning right for some reason and running to the bedroom window that looked down over the front of their home. There in the driveway, he saw Lynn's Cayenne pulled haphazardly at the front of the house, nosing into the driveway but not fully off the end of the crescent. Her driver door remained open. Parked in the driveway, behind the girls Hyundai, was a black AMG Mercedes SL with the top down. It must've been Lovelace's car. She knew someone was here.

He heard the footsteps now, mounting the steps. She was coming slowly, feet heavy, probably worried what she would find. If she had looked out in the backyard what would she say? Had she gone to the kitchen? It was a mess in there.

His heart was pounding, and he ran to the bed, thinking he would wake them, but there was nowhere to hustle them, nowhere to hide them. And he didn't imagine the three of them would be compliant in any way. All three of them probably getting off on the fact that Darren was about to lose the love of his life, was about to hurt the woman he loved and destroy his family.

He made his way down the passageway that led to the hall, slipping along the right side on his tip toes, trying to avoid the broken glass, and stepped over the smashed table lamp. The door to the bedroom was open, the sound of her footsteps in the hall now. He trotted to make it in time, slipping backward into the hallway and closing the door behind him.

Turning now, he saw his beautiful wife frozen midway from the stairs to the bedroom. She knew. She wasn't sure what was in the bedroom but she knew that their marriage was over. He could see it in her face, her mouth drawn in absolute horror. Her cheeks sunken, her eyes wide and watery, her mouth had fallen open as if she had no power in her jaw.

He stood shirtless, just a pair of shorts and bare feet, his shorts not even done up properly, the top button not closed. She was dressed for travel, a nice and light silky sleeveless blouse and a charcoal gray skirt that came above the knee, her horsebit Gucci loafers. Her thick, honey-blond hair was tied back, but a strand had fallen free and dangled from her hairline down along the side of her face to her collar.

He croaked, "Lynn ..."

"Darren ..." she whispered.

"Lynn, honey ..." He made to move toward her, anticipated that if he somehow managed the strength to make it the fifteen steps to his wife, he wouldn't be met with anything but a slap across his face or an attempted kick between his legs. So he approached her slowly, his hands held up, palms facing her, open and surrendering. "Baby ..."

SHE CRIED, "Who's here, Darren? Who's here?"

He went to her, her posture slumping, her face twisting up even tighter, her cheeks glowing red. He put his hands out and she made to move around him. "Please, Lynn, don't go in there. I can explain ..."

"Oh no," she gasped and covered her mouth.

"Just let me explain. It's not really how it looks, Lynn, baby ..."

"Oh, no, Darren. Who's in there. Just tell me. Is it a man? ... It's a man ...?"

A man? She thought he was with a man? His wife was upset, thinking her husband had been gay this whole time. It made sense, putting her recent coldness in perspective; he wasn't satisfying her, and she assumed he was gay. But it didn't even make sense—they'd been together so long, what signs would he have given her? "A man?" he said.

"Is he in there?"

"Who?" he said, and all that worry and fear washed away with sudden indignity, mad that she thought he had a male lover. But seeing her face, seeing the look of a woman who had her entire world ripped out from under her, seeing all that in her wide and spacious eyes he was instantly supplicant again. He dropped to his knees and held his hand out to her.

She put hers out, and he took it, looked up at her, said, "Lynn, please, honey it's not what it looks like. I don't know even know how to tell you ..."

She wasn't even looking at him, she was looking past him down the hall. He threw a look over his shoulder, saw the door closed, saw that she only looked to the possible horrors beyond. She cried, "Oh no." He squeezed her hand tight.

"Lynn, it's okay ... Please, come down to the kitchen," he said, and he went up on one knee, holding her hand to brace himself and pulled himself to stand. Still she looked around him, looked to the door. "Lynn," he said, pulling on her hands, yanking on her arms to get her attention. Her eyes slowly moved away from the door, tracking ever so slowly until they met his.

Her eyes welled, a spate of tears overflowing down her cheeks. "Jesus, oh, Darren ... I'm ... I'm so sorry ... Oh, no ..."

"I'm sorry, baby," he said, "I'm sorry." He crushed her in his arms, squeezed her tight, and she felt disconnected from the universe, standing with absolutely no strength in her body. If he let her go right now, she would collapse on the floor. “Baby, Lynn, it’s okay ... Come to the kitchen with me.”

Now she was shaking, her body taking on a tremor starting in her arms but quickly working its way through her back, and he felt it in her legs, too, with hers pressed against his. Then he heard it, the sound of the bedroom door open behind him. He went instantly cold, a frozen bolt shot through him, up through his anus into the center of his brain, his whole body clenched suddenly tight.

Then a soft familiar voice. Skyler’s, and she brightly sang: “There she is.”

Lynn gasped, “Oh, Jesus, oh, no ...”

“Lynn,” he whispered, and then stiffly turned to look over his shoulder. There was Skyler leaning against the door jamb, completely naked, her arms folded across her breasts, one leg crossed casually over the other, a bold scruff of hair at her crotch.

Her head turned to the right, and she said into the bedroom, “Lynn’s home now.”

LYNN’S VOICE, constricted with fear, whispered past Darren’s ear: “Oh, fuck, oh, no. Skyler ...”

Now Darren could hear from their bedroom the voice of Lovelace: “Bring her to me.”

He saw Skyler nod, then turned to regard both of them again. She grinned. She said to Lynn: “You’ve been naughty.”

Lynn darted a look to Darren and her mouth worked to say something to him but only a creak came from within her throat somewhere low, near her clavicle.

“Lynn ... What’s ...? ...”

Skyler said, “You’re going to keep him waiting?”

Lynn’s eyes dashed away to the young girl that used to be a friend of their daughter’s. “No, I ...”

Now Madison’s head came bouncing around the corner, peaking at them, buoyant, with an exuberant smile. She said, “You better get your ass in here,” her tone harsh and parental. Then Madison was gone, and it was only Skyler extending a hand to them now and curling her finger, drawing them to her.

“Lynn, what’s going on?”

“I’m so sorry, Darren. I’m so sorry ...” She let him go and left, walked away, and he watched her back as she went toward Skyler who continued to curl that finger.

Darren called after her, “Lynn? Lynn ...?”

But she ignored him, and now he watched her bare legs work, saw the flexing of her toned calves as she padded to the gap in the French doors, walking past Skyler and disappearing into the bedroom. Skyler made a funny face at him, shook her head and then she followed behind Lynn closing the door behind her.

“What the fuck?” he breathed.

He went to the door, turned the lever. It wasn’t locked, and he opened it. He saw Lynn walking around the broken pictures and the shattered glass. Lovelace sat naked on their bed, hands curled over the lip of the mattress, legs open, toes on the floor, his genitals draped down the side. He was looking at Lynn very sternly.

Darren followed down the hall and saw Lynn stop in front of the bed before Lovelace. Skyler was watching, her arms folded. She turned to regard Darren approaching her, and she snapped her fingers and pointed toward a Louis XIV chair in the corner. She nodded her chin toward it as well, her mouth firm and her eyes mean.

He said to her, “What the fuck is happening?”

She said, “Just sit over there,” jabbing her finger angrily. He looked and saw Madison in the walk-in closet again. She was rooting around through drawers, her breasts swaying.

“Lynn,” he said firmly. She didn’t turn. “Lynn,” he repeated, but still she stared at Lovelace.

Lovelace breathed deeply, a man of great patience though it was wearing thin now. He looked to Darren, and he said, “Darren. Sit in the corner as Skyler told you.” He said it slowly and purposely as if there were no other thing for Darren to do, and he was wasting everyone’s time.

“Just tell me what the fuck is happening here.”

Lovelace said, “I’m not going to ask you again.”

Skyler gripped him just above his elbow and her nails dug deeply into his flesh, hurting him.

“Hey,” he said, and pulled his arm away but she gripped him tighter.

She said, “Get in the fucking chair, Darren.”

“Lynn,” he said. “Should I call the police?”

Without looking at him, Lynn said very quietly, “Darren, just do what he tells you.”

Lovelace confirmed what she said. “Darren, if you call the police I want to remind you that the Sheriff was also playing golf with me yesterday. Do not make things complicated because any entanglement you cause will only tighten on you.”

“Lynn,” he said, not approaching her, for some reason keeping his distance. “Are you okay?”

Madison emerged from the open closet doors, standing tall in her heels near him. He saw that she held an alligator Gucci belt of Lynn’s, the brass buckle gripped in her fist. She twirled the dangling belt like a lasso, and she regarded him meanly. In a low voice she said to him, “For fuck’s sake, Darren, get in the fucking chair.”

Lynn said, “Darren, just do it.”

“O-okay,” he said finally, feeling a weakness through his back; like he had jumped out of a plane without a parachute, and all he saw around him was the enormity of what he didn’t know about his life. None of this made any sense.

He walked around Lynn in a circle, heading toward the foot of the bed, aiming for the chair in the corner. There was a whip crack next him, Madison snapping the belt in the air behind him as he walked.

CHAPTER TWELVE

HE PICKED up the pace and went to the foot of the bed, sat down in the chair and gripped the arms of it tightly in his clawed hands. Madison continued to twirl the belt now, strutting slowly toward Lynn, placing down the point of her heel and then letting the toe clomp on the hardwood. Then she was on the Persian rug standing behind his wife.

Darren faced her, watching from the foot of the bed seeing Lovelace's shoulder, seeing his wife standing before this man who was a stranger. Lynn knew this man though, didn't she? Her nemesis. A man she had faced in court many times, a man who had almost always bested her, she said. The few times she won, Darren remembered popping the cork on a bottle for her and they would drink champagne and toast her success.

He looked at his beautiful wife and she stood, feet almost together, arms at her sides, dangling loosely, though he saw her hands clenched in fists. There was a fear on her face, an expression of worry. And he was coming to grips with what he was seeing. This had nothing to do with him in the slightest. His infidelity meant nothing to her. At least not at the moment.

Right now she was under control of Lovelace just as he himself was last night. His wife had fallen victim to him. He began to clutch the armrests tighter; the chair squeaking underneath him as he grew more and more uncomfortable. Lovelace remained silent, just regarding Lynn from head to toe and saying nothing. He could see that his wife was trembling.

Madison leered around her shoulder, trying to intimidate her by looking closely at the side of her head. Skyler, however, leaned against a wall, arms folded, eyes narrow. She looked far more in-control than she did yesterday.

It was an intimidating factor to her, and he only caught glimpses of it yesterday.

Lovelace finally said, "Lynn, you've been a bad girl, haven't you?"

Her voice was a croak again, and she struggled to say, "What did I do?"

"What did you do?" he said, making it sound as though it was irritating to him even that she didn't know. "Well, Lynn. Where did you go?"

"Oh, no ..." she whispered.

Skyler said, "She went to New York City."

Lovelace repeated, "She went to New York City."

"Lovelace," Lynn said, struggling to phrase her defence. "Lovelace ... It was the NAGRI conference. You know I was going ... I deliver the symp—"

"You didn't tell me," he said calmly.

"You know it's every year. You know I go ... You used to go ..."

"My Lynn was in New York City and she didn't have my permission."

Madison folded the belt into thirds and lightly smacked Lynn's haunch and whispered, "She's a stray dog."

Lynn said, "No ..."

Lovelace said, "You are a stray dog, aren't you?"

Madison got close to Lynn's ear and sneered, "Stray bitch."

Darren saw Lynn flinch, feeling the breath so close to her ear. She raised her shoulders and closed her eyes.

Skyler said, "I thought you would know better. Smart woman like you." She eased herself off the wall and came behind Lynn, running her hands over her shoulders and then down her arms. Then they slipped underneath, came together at the front and began to undo the top button on Lynn's shirt. Lynn sucked her lips under her teeth and bit them.

Lovelace disregarded them for a moment, crossed his leg one over the other, reached to the bed stand and took the newspaper, folded it in half and began to read the top story.

Darren said again, "Lynn, are you okay?"

"Lovelace?" she said.

Darren saw Lovelace raise a hand, one index finger extended, granting her limited permission.

Lynn said to Darren, "I'm okay. I am."

MADISON WAS STARING Darren down again and he eased himself back in the seat. Skyler had Lynn's shirt open and was now pulling it down her shoulders, revealing her only in a bra. She worked the zipper on the back of her skirt. Then quickly she had the skirt on the floor and her bra unsnapped, the straps dangling down her arms and then falling to join the skirt.

Lynn stood only in her panties. The woman he met in university, the woman he'd shared his entire adult life with. She had birthed his babies; she had raised them wonderfully, they had created a home together. Built a family. Their daughter graduated Magna Cum Laude, Owen was going to Harvard. None of what he saw this morning made any sense.

Now Lovelace's attention returned, laying the newspaper down in his lap, uncrossing his legs and leaning forward. He regarded Lynn coolly, looking her up and down. He said to her, "Remove those panties."

Lynn didn't hesitate. With no protest, she thumbed the strings that crossed her hips and shoved them down, swaying her hips until they fell to the floor. Darren saw that his wife's sex had been completely shaved. Her regular grooming had been discarded. Her body, which he hadn't seen for quite some time, at least in the flat and open daylight, was startling. His wife had toned abs, a narrower waist.

He'd noticed that her shape had taken a nicer silhouette, knew how much time she'd been spending at the gym, too. But now seeing the tightness of her forty-five-year-old body shocked him. And she had groomed herself, something that she had never done. Never having shaved it completely, often even griping that she had to get a Brazilian when they went somewhere tropical.

Lovelace stood, towered over her; like a military commander inspecting a soldier, he walked around her, head tilting from left to right as he examined Darren's wife's body. Then he reached and pinched her middle, just to the right side of her belly button. He bunched little skin, and he seemed to like that. He ran a finger down the small of her back and though Darren couldn't see, he imagined that he was cupping her buttocks. Then he was back sitting down, picking up his newspaper again. He said, "Well, I have nothing to complain about there. You've been keeping up with your duties."

Lynn nodded.

"But still, you went astray."

And with that, Madison, who had looped the belt through the buckle, hooped it around Lynn's neck and pulled it tight. It formed a circle around her neck and Lynn hands dashed up to her neck to grip it. She looked to the ceiling, baring her teeth, trying to breathe. But Madison tightened it, gripped one hand at the back of her neck and pulled with the other.

Darren jumped up, but Lovelace snapped his fingers and regarded him, pointed back at the chair. He said, "Darren, we're just putting a collar on this dog."

Darren didn't sit down, he stared at Lynn and he said, "Please, baby ..."

Lynn nodded, her eyes narrow and watery, tears streaming to her ears, she whispered, "I'm okay," and bubbles formed in the corners of her mouth.

Loveless said, "Madison, Darling, would you take my dog for a walk."

Skyler laughed.

Madison said, "I'd love to." She pulled on the leash, making Lynn circle around behind her, and she guided the collar cinched around her neck lower and lower until Lynn went on all fours. Darren felt his eyes welling with tears seeing his wife degraded like this. She was on her hands and her knees, Skyler now kicking Lynn's loafers off of her feet. Loveless turned his head and regarded Darren over his shoulder and smiled with great satisfaction.

"DON'T BE ALARMED, Darren, it may seem harsh but Lynn needs discipline. We'll get through this," he said calmly, while slowly nodding. Darren nodded in simpatico, completely unsure why he would even do that.

Madison said, "Come," and she gave the leash a jerk, began walking, Lynn then following along behind on her hands and knees like a dog. Madison walked around in a circle, and Darren watched his beautiful wife being treated like dirt. She graduated near the top of her class, she flew through her undergrad, law school, the bar was a breeze. She worked her ass off for a living, she made money. She was smart, and she was a dedicated mother. How could she let them do this? He wiped at his eyes, pinched the bridge of his nose. When he blinked away the wet, he saw that Lovelace had rolled up the newspaper and now extended it toward Skyler who took it gladly. She patted it against her palm a few times, walking to where she anticipated Lynn would pass.

Madison was laughing. As Lynn stumbled along past Skyler's feet, she raised the newspaper and swatted her bottom hard with a hollow sounding whomp. Lynn made no sound, but he saw as she came around that she bit her lip.

Madison giggled, said, "Bad dog, bad," and she led her past Skyler once more who was waiting with the newspaper rolled up and held behind her. When Lynn passed she gave her another loud smack that made her thighs shake. As Madison led her around one more time, Darren saw his wife from behind. Two furry red marks almost on top of each other blazed across both her cheeks. In between her legs he saw her bare sex. But most surprising, most disheartening and hurtful, he saw that his wife was wet. Lynn was aroused by this treatment.

He reeled, actually put his hand over his heart. He was torn, a cyclone of love and fear and anger and emptiness coming up from somewhere inside and clearing his landscape, wiping away the trailer park of his whole life. This was Lynn. She wanted this. This wasn't punishment, this was what his wife liked.

"Oh, my God," he sighed and then he tried to grab the words, the hand over his heart coming up to clutch at his mouth. "Oh, my God, no ... Lynn ... No ..."

But there it was again, Skyler waiting and as Lynn passed on her reddening knees she let loose with another swat, smacking his wife right across the back of her thighs and hissing, "Bad dog."

LOVELACE STOOD NOW, and Darren saw that this bizarre and rough treatment of his wife had stiffened him. His cock hung low, but it angled away from his body, bobbing and swinging. And then more realization tumbling over top of him, crushing him like an avalanche: Lynn knew this man. This was the one with whom she cheated. Lynn had partaken of the pleasure of his enormous tool.

He choked and cried, fell out of the chair and onto his knees. Sat back, both his hands on his face, pulling at his cheeks drawing his eyes down, feeling the cold against his eyeballs. Lovelace stepped over Lynn, motioned for Madison to walk her in front of Darren and she did.

Now Lovelace walked to Darren and squatted down next to him. Lynn's bent over ass was pointed directly at them. He gripped him at his shoulder, pinching that muscle between the joint and his neck. Not mean, not hurtful, almost supportive. Lovelace said, “Darren, a woman like your wife wants a strong hand.”

“No,” he gasped.

Lovelace pointed with his chin to Lynn’s bare spread ass. “Take a look—you see what I see?”

Darren nodded, weakly attempted to say Yes, his mouth moving but no sound coming out.

Lovelace reached out, touched Lynn’s bare bottom, swooping each cheek in a circle then he came up the middle, slipping two middle fingers along the twisted rosy folds of his wife’s vagina. He stroked the tips up and down, Darren hearing the wet smacking noises they made. Then he slipped them up inside his wife and Lynn gasped, her back arching and her face pointing toward the ceiling.

Lovelace watched his fingers plunge in and out of Lynn. The wet suction sound was unavoidable. Lynn was dripping wet. Darren watched her back expanding and contracting, the ribs pressing out against the flesh as she breathed heavily and lustily.

Lovelace removed his fingers slowly, letting them drag up toward her anus and then away. Now he regarded Darren, looking him in the eye. He said, “There are things that Lynn needs that you can’t give her,” And he extended those two wet fingers towards Darren’s mouth, touching him then on his lower lip, running them in a slippery crescent tracing the curl.

“Your wife desperately needed a man who could give her the things she craved. Do you understand?” Lovelace said.

Incredibly, Darren did understand. Slowly he began to nod his head.

“Good,” Lovelace said, and he stood, left Darren on his knees on the floor in revelatory misery.

As he passed Madison, Lovelace whispered something in her ear and he returned to the bed and sat on the edge. Skyler tossed the newspaper back on to the nightstand and smiled at Darren. Madison led his wife by the leash so that she walked on her hands and knees until she was between Lovelace’s open thighs. She reached down, loosened the belt, ran it through and released Lynn’s neck. She tossed it aside and stepped back.

Lovelace said, “Lynn, you know you can’t leave without my permission.”

"I know," she whispered and sat straighter, blinking wetly, tears streaming down her cheeks, red lines around her neck from where the belt had been tight around her. Her hair had come out of the loose bun and it hung around her shoulders. Lynn said, "What did you do to Darren?"

"Do you worry about him?"

"I do," she said. "I'm so sorry. I can't help it."

"That's all right," he said. "Darren is fine."

"I'm so sorry," she blubbered, tears coming again, face turning red, and she repeated, "I'm so sorry. Forgive me." She began to sob, and fell between his legs, her hands on his thighs her face buried in his genitals.

Lovelace ran his hands through her hair, caressed the top of her skull and around down her neck. She cried in his lap.

Lovelace said, "It was a mistake, wasn't it?"

"It was," she cried wetly into his crotch.

"You weren't being defiant."

She shook her head rapidly, the scratching sound of her hair against his skin.

"Let me see your face," he said.

Lynn sniffed, sat straighter again, eyes pleading upward toward her master.

"Look at that face," he said. "My beautiful Lynn. Open your mouth for me, darling."

Lynn let her jaw fall, opened her mouth, a string of spittle between her top and lower lip. She sniffed again. Now Lovelace took his tool, lifted it and drew a line along the angle of her jaw then up alongside her mouth, touching along the curve of her nose.

"Open wider," he said.

Lynn did, and he put the head of his penis inside her mouth. "Aw, Jesus," Darren cried. "Oh, Lynn ..."

He saw that his words were affecting her, saw that her eyes tried to dart toward him but she controlled them from doing so. But the things that he cried had brought her more tears. Running now, swelling on the rim of her eyes, rolling down her jaw.

"That's it," Lovelace said calmly, "close your mouth around it."

Lynn formed a seal with her lips, holding just the big flared glans of Lovelace's cock in her mouth.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

LYNN SUCKED Lovelace's unwashed cock to hardness. Her pretty mouth slipping and slurping on another man. The jealousy boiled inside Darren but he was transfixed. Her pretty and familiar hands clenched another man's shaft and stroked him while she sucked. Her wedding ring winked in the mid-morning sun. The room was quiet now except for the wet sounds of his wife's mouth on another man's organ, and the soft breathy chuckling of the two girls watching over her shoulder. When Lynn had him completely hard, Madison knelt next to her, rubbing her hand over Lynn's bare back.

She whispered to her, "You want him to come in your mouth?"

"Mm-hmm," Lynn squeaked without stopping her oral.

"You want to taste him?"

She nodded her head while she continued to suck.

"I tasted your husband," she said with a grin and a twinkle in her eye, trying to get Lynn to look at her but she kept her eyes closed. "Yeah, Lynn, I sucked your husband's tiny dick, and he shot all his goo in my mouth ..."

Lynn's mouth, though stretched with Lovelace's manhood, turned down. Her brow furrowed with deep lines and she made sad whimpering noises. Lovelace stroked Madison's hair, and it made her beam.

"Yeah, Lynn, you know he put that little thing in Skyler, too? She fucked him good." Now she ran the tips of her nails up and down Lynn's back. Her breath snorted from her nostrils and it sounded a lot like crying.

Darren whimpered, "Lynn ..."

Madison said, "I put my finger up his ass, and he went off in my mouth like a super-soaker."

Lovelace moaned, "She's been denying him, haven't you, Lynn?"

Lynn nodded slowly.

"She's a good girl when she's not forgetful," he said, stroking Lynn's hair now with his other hand.

"Denying me?" Darren sighed.

"I didn't want to share her, Darren. Not so early. I needed her focus."

"Lynn, what did you do?" he exhaled, shaking his head.

Lovelace said, "Darren, remember I told you ..."

"What?"

"I am generous, and your wife was desperate for a great many things I could provide. I saw it in her even when we were in court. I saw it in her eyes ... ah, that's it," he smiled as Lynn took him deeper. "A man knows when a woman isn't satisfied." He looked to Darren now, Lynn's head still bobbing between his legs. "Some men," he clarified. "I took nothing from Lynn, nor did I take anything from you ..."

"You did ... you are," Darren said, feeling his eyes welling again.

"No, Darren. I gave Lynn what she needed and last night I did the same for you."

"Lynn," Darren called to her again, seeing her eyelids flutter but she wouldn't stop sucking his cock.

"Lynn had a happy home, but she craved something. She loves you, you know," he said, throwing another glance to him. Lynn nodded and whimpered. "But Lynn is far more than your wife and the mother of your children. Lynn is a powerful and beautiful woman. There's something dark and carnivorous in her but she tries to hide it. I feed your wife's darkness. I feed her animal."

"She's not an animal ... she's the mother of our kids ... she ... Lynn ..."

"She makes more money than you."

"What?" he said, knowing it was true but feeling violated somehow. Lynn was sucking his cock, and this was what hurt him? "So?"

"So, Darren, your beautiful Lynn ached for a man. One more powerful than her. One with a strong hand. One with a sense of discipline, one who could lead her on a physical and spiritual journey."

"So full of shit," Darren murmured.

"You sure about that?" Lovelace said, turning to him again, leaning back, pressing his thumb into Lynn's cheek, forcing her eye into a narrow slit, pushing her mouth off his cock which plopped free, shining with Lynn's spit, slapping wetly across his hip.

He addressed her. "Lynn, how has your journey been?"

Her lips trembled and her face went beet red, her eyes glistening wet again, she mumbled, "Wonderful ..."

"It has been, hasn't it? How would you describe the sex we've had?"

"In-incredible," she said, her lips sticking together. She cried, "I'm sorry, Darren," but her eyes never left Lovelace's.

He said, "I've shown Lynn the worst of herself. Things she'll never tell you. I've shown her the best of herself, too. Passion and beauty and darkness and pain. We've had an amazing time together, wouldn't you agree, Lynn?"

"Yes," she said clearly. Her eyes were open now, staring at the man she'd been cheating on her husband with, stroking his big cock while her husband watched.

"Skyler," he said now, getting the girl's attention as she stood just behind Lynn.

"Yeah?"

"Would you help Darren get back in the chair? Sit with him, please."

"Sure," she said. She pressed an open palm on the center of Lynn's back for a moment, then walked to the foot of the bed and held a hand out to Darren. He just looked at it.

"Don't be a baby, Darren."

"You're a fucking bitch."

"Oh, come on. We had fun last night."

"It was a lie, you—"

"None of it was a lie, Darren. Take my hand. Today is the beginning of something. Not the end. Sit with me and watch your wife."

DARREN WAVED HER HAND AWAY, but he struggled to his feet. Skyler smirked as she withdrew the offered hand, watching him slowly stand, then sat herself down in the Louis chair. When he was watching and her eyes were on his, she let her legs fall open wide. She lifted a knee then draped a leg over the arm of the chair. She exposed her mean and twisted little vagina with a silver spike run through it. She smiled at him, one elbow draping on the other chair arm now.

She said, "Come and sit with me, Darren," then she patted the cushion right between her legs.

He stood defiant for a moment, looked back over his shoulder and saw his wife still enthralled by this other man who had taken dominance over her life. They were going to show him something, and while common sense and a lifetime of happiness together told him now was the time to get out, just walk down that hall and step over the glass, slam the door behind him, get in his car, never come back, there was something telling him to stay. It was that same thing telling him to go: a lifetime together with the woman he loved. The first time he saw Lynn he was smitten. Back then she was young, she was innocent, and he had to show her so many things. She was a fast learner. At everything. This, today, was part of her. And if it was part of her he loved it, too.

“Okay,” he said quietly.

He chewed the inside of his lip with the points of his canines and reversed himself to sit between her legs.

“That’s it,” she whispered in his ear, “that’s a good boy now, Darren,” and she circled her arms around and hugged him. It was a strangely warm embrace. One that swelled his heart despite the painful spike that was already lanced through it.

Then she whispered, “We’re going to watch him fuck her.”

Madison, naked but for the leather boots and cape, squatted down in the heels behind Lynn and put her arms around her. Darren watched as her little hands squeezed and cuddled Lynn’s breasts. Lovelace gripped his cock in the middle and he ran the underside of his glans in circles over Lynn’s held out tongue.

“Okay, bitch, up and at em,” Madison groaned, her embrace turning to a squeeze and hoisting Lynn to stand. Lynn was a fitness beast these days and if she wanted to she could throw Madison down on the ground. She might be a lot younger but Lynn had fight in her. This was obviously something she was not resisting.

Lovelace was right saying that she was being given something. She was receiving these gifts though to Darren the display was horrid. Madison stood as tall as Lynn wearing her heels, her arms bear-hugged around her like she was performing the Heimlich, and Lynn sagged weakly in her grip.

Lovelace pivoted at the hip, slapped and then smoothed the bedding next to him, indicating to Madison where he wanted Lynn. Madison took a step and heaved Lynn forward onto the bed and she collapsed over it. Madison was climbing on her, getting over her on all fours, grabbing her shoulder and twisting her around roughly so she lay on her back.

Lynn kept her legs together but Madison's claws dug into the inside of her thighs and wrenched them open. She slipped down over top of his wife, wriggling herself so that her knees slipped off the edge of the mattress and Darren knew she was about to go down on his wife. He watched as this mean young girl ran her tongue between his wife's legs. Lynn's body flinched and jumped but she didn't writhe away. She moaned.

WHILE HE WATCHED THIS DISPLAY, Lovelace sitting on a hip, elbow draped over one raised knee, watching as well as Madison eagerly licked and jabbed her tongue into Lynn's vagina, Skyler's hands slipped down Darren's bare body. He tucked his chin down, watched her elegant and silver-ringed fingers as they found the pull of his zipper and tugged it down. Her hand searched under the fabric, found his intense hardness, parted his fly and pulled it out.

She whispered in his ear, "Darren likes what he sees."

His body did, and that he didn't understand. He was this woman's husband. He should be jumping up right now, marching into his walk-in closet, striding over the torn away clothing, pulling off the head cover on his Callaway driver and stomping back in here and clearing house. He could picture himself doing it, holding the grip tight, swinging wildly, watching these three sons of bitches put their hands up in defense. But he wouldn't stop. He would keep swinging until they were dead, or they had fled the house. That idea got his heart pumping with excitement, but his legs stayed where they were. He was content to remain and watch like a dirty voyeur.

There was something he was gaining from this. He didn't know what it was, but now Skyler's hands circled his hardness and lightly stroked him. All thoughts of defiance, all thoughts of murder washed away with two strokes, and all he wanted right now was to see Lovelace put his big penis inside his wife and do to her what he witnessed he did to these two beautiful girls. He wanted his wife to receive pleasure the way he had seen them receive it last night.

A moan escaped him, and it embarrassed him greatly. He turned his head a quarter, worried that Skyler had heard him.

She whispered, "Don't worry. Your secret's safe with me. I know how hot this is." Then she formed a ring over the flange of his cock head and flicked it up and down. He groaned again, his consciousness blinking white then black, a pleasure so incredible he could never have anticipated it.

LOVELACE WAS TAPPING the side of Madison's haunch and she looked to him. Without saying a word, she halted the work her tongue was at, lifting up and leaving his wife sopping wet. She said to Lynn, "Up, dog. Up, up, get on all fours, bitch."

Lynn rolled to her stomach, drew her knees up and got on her hands. She looked meekly toward Darren, then quickly averted her eyes. That tiny instant of eye contact was like a defibrillator on his heart. It burst him, just for a moment, reminded him of how much he loved her.

Madison, still on her knees behind Lynn, hauled back and slapped her hard across the ass making her thighs shake. Lynn yelped. Then Madison was backing away, making space for the judge. He stood at the side of the bed and Madison got to her knees in front of him. The judge disregarded her, his eyes going over Lynn's backside and exposed sex. He put a hand on her rump, then ran it between her cheeks, using the back of his knuckles to drag up and down over her sex. Meanwhile, between his legs, Madison bobbed, her mouth making wet suction sounds around his big cock.

Darren's heart began to beat faster and faster, Skyler's hand doing quicker things to him now, too. "Oh, God, oh, no," he whimpered knowing Lynn's penetration by another man was imminent. Knowing that in just one little moment he was going to watch Lovelace fuck his wife.

"Oh, shit, should I stop it?" he said, as though Skyler would give him good advice.

She gripped him and squeezed him tight and he felt pre-come surge over her knuckles. She said, "Let it happen. You know you want it."

"I do?"

"You do," she affirmed. Then she used the slipperiness that propelled from him to stroke him quickly up and down in hard pumps.

"How can ... I want this?"

“Because you know what it’s like ... watched us last night. You know she’s going to love it.”

“She will, won’t she?” he softly cried.

She reminded him, “Let it happen, Darren.”

Then Madison gripped the judge’s cock, holding it up at an angle, the thing protruding past his hipbone. She sucked on his balls for a moment then fell to her rump, laughing, putting her hands behind her to support herself while she watched.

Lovelace’s expression was like a man of focus, a professional athlete caught in a pensive moment before an important play. He licked his lips, his hand gently stroked himself two or three times and he put his knees up on the bed.

Darren marveled at the size of that thing, knew his wife was going to take it. His heart was misfiring, he was sure of it. Bouncing around in his chest like an overloaded washing machine.

Lovelace lay it over her rump, and Darren saw how deep it would go.

“Oh, fuck,” he moaned, “ah, fuck.”

Skyler softly shushed in his ear, her fingers slipping along the underside of his erection, into his pants and squeezing his scrotum. He groaned again and more pre-come flowed.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

LOVELACE SPANKED HER LIGHTLY, then told her, "Lynn, turn a bit, please. Let your husband see your face." Darren saw Lynn work her mouth around, embarrassed, worried that her husband would see her or that she might see him, but also knowing she wouldn't deny her master. She went walking on her hands and knees, rotating twenty degrees so that she almost faced Darren, but she couldn't look at him.

"Lynn," Darren called, trying to get her attention.

Skyler shook him, said, "Don't."

"I love you," he whispered anyway.

Then Lynn's eyes opened, wet with sadness, she said, "I love you, too," but that turned into a painful gasp as Lovelace entered her from behind. She arched her back, inhaled deeply, her chest filling up, her breasts thrusting forward, hanging between her outstretched arms. Her nipples had gone to rosy diamonds. Lovelace ran his hands in a circle on her back, he withdrew and plunged again. Lynn gasped once more. "Fuck," she breathed, "oh, my fucking God ... aw, fuck ..."

Lovelace said, "That's it, Lynn. Tell him. Tell him how you like it."

He withdrew and plunged. She moaned and cried, sucked her lips in her mouth. When they plopped out she blurted, "Oh, God, Darren, I fucking love it. Mm, I love it so much."

"That's it, tell him," Lovelace said, and he began stroking in and out.

"Oh, fuck, Darren, mm, I'm so sorry, ah-I love it ... I hate it ... I hate myself, but I love it."

"That's my girl," Lovelace said, and he slapped a big hand on her thigh. "Tell him how you beg for it."

“I beg ... I beg for it, Darren. I beg for it because I want it so bad.”

Lovelace said, “Darren, she does beg for it.”

“I love you,” he whimpered, no idea what to say during this worst and somehow most exciting moment in his entire life.

Skyler stroked him, matching the judge’s pace as he plunged his manhood in and out his wife. She whispered, “She loves it, Darren. She loves it every way he gives it. Look at her take it. Look at her face.”

Darren watched as that troubled expression left his beautiful wife’s face, watched as it was pushed away from her, her brows lifting, mimicking pain but he knew that it was absolutely pleasure that was twisting her this way. Her mouth fell open, she panted and groaned with her lover’s thrusts. He watched her mouth work around, open and close, saw her tongue going up and down, her chest heaving, her breath scoring in and out, the shake of her breasts when Lovelace went too deep and rocked her hips.

Skyler said, “Your wife is one dirty bitch, Darren. Did you know that?”

“No,” he whimpered. How could she be like that? How could his wife be this dirty woman and he didn’t even know? His eyes were welling with tears again though he wasn’t exactly sad. He felt an enormous disparity, a chasm between the most important person in his entire life. The person with whom he had created the greatest children in the world. And here she was, her rump turned up for a mean and aggressive and powerful man. Taking it, and wanting it, thrusting back now, meeting his drive, wanting him even deeper.

“I didn’t know,” he said.

Skyler’s hand flicked up and down, still matching the judge. She said, “She loves my tongue, too, Darren.”

“Oh, no,” he cried.

“Yes, she does, Darren. I’ve tasted her. I made your wife come with my mouth, made her squirm all over the judge’s bed.”

“Oh, Jesus,” he sighed, his head dropping forward as more pre-come spewed from him. Skyler’s hand on him made wet slick sounds now. He looked at her grip around his meager erection, her pretty hand, one that had probably fingered his wife without him ever knowing it until now.

Madison was climbing on the bed, getting on her knees, a big open smile on her face. She got next to Lynn and drew back a hand and slapped her ass. Lynn cried out.

“Take it dog,” Madison growled. “Take that cock.”

Skyler whispered, “Madison ate her out, too. A couple times. The judge even made them scissor once. Holy shit, Darren, that made Lynn come so hard, you should have seen it,” she whispered against his ear.

HE WANTED to tell her to stop, but he wanted to know everything. These insinuations of his wife’s base behavior were so fucking exciting. He never in a million years could have anticipated this. Yesterday he was forlorn, hurling himself in despair around the house at his wife’s infidelity. Now twenty-four hours later he was watching it and he was fucking aroused by it.

Madison began spanking her again, slapping her ass when the judge withdrew, landing it before he plunged again. Working in sexual syncopation. Now Madison got on all fours next to Lynn, they went shoulder to shoulder, Madison facing Darren like his wife did. She mocked Lynn. Imitating her, making high desperate cries as she did, though no one touched her, pretended to get fucked, her tits shaking and swinging, laughing while she tried to match Lynn’s voice, taunting her with her the mockery. She did it until the laughter became too much and she couldn’t continue.

She looked past Darren’s shoulder and winked at Skyler. Then she was watching Lynn’s face, softly cooing, “Take it, bitch, just take it, you love it,” and then smoothing the hair away from Lynn’s face, holding it exposed so Darren could watch her expression while another man fucked her.

Now his heart was hammering, and as much as he couldn’t take this he was enamored with it, too. His heart swelled with a weird and new love for his wife. Madison planted a big wet kiss on Lynn’s cheek then shoved her head away. Watched her for a moment idly, analyzing Lynn’s expression though her eyes were closed.

She gasped quicker and quicker, squeaking and yelping, her breasts slapping together, swinging around in circles as Lovelace fucked her even harder. Then Madison looked to Lovelace, said, “She’s ready,” lay on her back, her long blonde hair spilling over the foot of the bed. Her breasts shook and went in circles from the motion of the bed. She fingered herself.

The judge took Madison’s advice, and he drove himself deep. Held himself there. Lynn cried out, the shaking and bouncing stopping. She moaned and arched her back again, her eyes fluttered and Darren saw that her pupils saw nothing. Her eyes were gone. The judge went up on one knee, planted his foot in the bed. He leaned forward, his huge cock fully and impossibly deep inside Darren's wife. His big hands reached forward, and they wrapped around Lynn's neck. Her face went red in just a few heartbeats. A thick vein bulging in her neck below her ear, a wriggly one going up her temple and into her hairline. She blurted and coughed, bit her own lips, drool flopping over her chin. Then it began.

Lovelace compressed Lynn incredibly around her neck, the veins and blades of muscle bulged in his forearms. He fucked her at a quadruple pace. The headboard slapping and banging, Madison laughing now at the powerful pistoning and the judge gripping her so tight, and fingering herself as rapidly as Lynn was being fucked.

Lynn's breasts bounced and slapped again, drool swung from her chin. She made a low freight train sound. The judge relaxed, and she breathed in, and then he squeezed again, began fucking her even harder. Every bit of his wife's hard body jiggled and bounced, her face as red as a tomato.

WHILE HER HAND buzzed furiously between her own legs, Madison reached with the other and grabbed one of Lynn's shaking breasts. She clamped a nipple between thumb and first knuckle and Lynn cried out; the girl doing it very hard. Then she shook and snapped it, and Lynn choked through gritted teeth. Madison slapped at her chest, slapping her breasts as she was fucked hard, watching Lynn's expression the entire time. Then she hissed to Lovelace, "Coming, she's coming!" and she slapped faster.

The judge let Lynn's neck go, and she roared an intake of breath that sounded like a fog horn. He threw himself into her hard, pushing that thing he had as deep into her as it would go, hands gripping her shoulders now, forcing himself all the way inside and bracing her against it. While she roared and snorted, Darren saw that she swiveled her hips. And when she exhaled finally, it came out in a bright and joyous scream. Then her head was thrashing, her body bucking against her lover, a huge orgasm taking her over. She threw her hair around, yelled and gasped, and shouted profanities.

Madison laughed, clapping her hands now, still laying on her back. "Yay," she cheered.

The judge drove Lynn forward again until she was flat on her stomach, and he continued to fuck her from behind. He ran his thumb through her hair to pull it away from her face so he could see her. Lynn was expressionless, eyes rolled up, and her mouth hanging open. Then he withdrew himself, Darren seeing that thing shining wet from his wife's insides. He took one of her knees and rolled her over with Madison's help, Madison pushing her shoulder.

Lynn toppled over onto her back lifelessly. Breasts swayed back and forth came to a stop, her eyes fluttered, and her chest heaved for breath. The judge got between her legs, Madison pulling one knee far and wide, then leaning over her thigh and spitting on Lynn's patulous pussy. She smoothed her saliva through Lynn's folds with the pads of her fingers, smiling for the judge.

He tapped at her, taking his big tool and plopping the swollen glans up and down on her clitoral hood. It made Lynn moan, and she began to come back to reality. Twisting in the bed, her hands working around now, fingers moving. Lovelace plunged himself into her again, she arched her back and Darren saw her face, upside down, go wide with shock.

The judge pulled her close to him by her hips, hands hooking where they met her thigh and impaling her deeply on him. Her legs bobbed loosely over his hips. Madison ran her nails up and down the back of her thigh. She was watching Lynn, then looked to the judge and laughed, "I think she's going to come again."

Lovelace nodded, a confident look on his face, being told something he already knew. He arched his back, drove himself in and out of Lynn, a bulging knot slipping up and down on her belly. His cock so large and hard, at this angle it pushed against her outer wall. Madison noticed, then ran her hand in circles over Lynn's tummy, trying to pat at the knot like she was playing whack-a-mole.

Lovelace looked incredible, and Lynn's eyes fluttered open, her head tilting toward her lover. Darren was charged with jealousy again, knowing already the pleasure she received from him but somehow the pain renewed seeing what she was seeing. The judge was sweating, masculine and broad chested, lean, his veins bulging, his muscles jumping, his midsection tight and hard. He looked down his nose at Lynn with mastery. Knowing entirely what he was doing to her. Knowing that he would make her come again.

Darren was stabbed again as he watched Lynn's hands reach down and drape over the grip the judge had on her. Her hands small and weak compared to his. She caressed him while he fucked her.

Then Madison was leaning forward, her rump up in the air, her chin dipped low like a cat at a bowl. She began to kiss Lynn around her ears and her neck. Lynn moaned and put her head back again. Madison sucked on her nipples, Lynn's mouth fell open and she gasped, and gasped. The judge fucked her hard, pounding and driving, pace getting quicker, Madison's hand slipping down Lynn's belly, finding her clit, taking two fingers and mashing Lynn's button in circles, her hand buzzing as quickly as she had buzzed her own.

SKYLER MATCHED the judge's pace, her hand whipping up and down Darren's cock, the most intense pleasure he'd ever felt zipping through his body. Faster and faster she went, keeping speed with this man who was fucking his wife. Fucking her like she had never been fucked before. There was no way anyone had done this for his wife ever in her past. There was no one who could do this to her. And if he could she would never leave him, would she?

Darren watched Lynn's chest heave and buckle, head rocking from side to side, she was gasping, her brow furrowing; whatever was coming was dangerous and Lynn was afraid of it. She was whispering "No, no, no," but neither of her performers stopped. They got quicker instead.

And then she was crying out, "Oh, no, oh, no, God," her hands turned to claws and her nails dragged ragged lines down the judge's hands. Then her hips were bucking and thrusting, and she began wailing. Tossing her hair around, her face pinching up in a tight twist.

"Ah, fuck, oh, fuck, oh, no," she yelled, and then her body curved backward, rigid like she were in a seizure, spine twisted as though her frame were being wrenched by high-power torque.

She began to come. Literally sending arcing sprinkles up the judge's stomach, sprinkling backward over herself, pattering on her gym-toned belly. Madison cheered gleefully, rolling away and clapping her hands again, giving the judge and Lynn her greatest applause.

"She did it," Madison exclaimed, "she did it again!"

When Lynn came, when Darren saw that tinkling glitter in the sunlight, his bright morning neighborhood lighting up his wife's disgusting evidence, he ejaculated, too. Skyler's hand doing wonderful things to him, gripping him and circling around his head.

She whispered, “Look at her, Darren. Look at your wife take that cock ... she loves that cock ... he’s getting into parts of her that are still a virgin ...” and then they both watched a long white dash leap up in the air from the tip of his cock.

Skyler cooed in his ear, encouraging him, blowing air across his auricle. “That’s it,” she whispered, “that’s it, shoot your little load for me.” She stroked and squeezed, and it kept coming, leaping up from him, slapping over her knuckles, over the chair, his thighs, her spread legs. And when he shook with pleasure, when her touch was too much, she slowed, eased her stroking, gently caressing and cradling his penis.

Even the judge was smiling, his thrusts slowing. He scrubbed his hand over his belly getting himself good and wet from the product his wife had spewed all over her him. He gathered it up, leaned over Lynn and slipped his fingers in her mouth. She sucked on them, sucked off the sexual excitement she shot all over her well-endowed lover.

Lovelace said, “You’re a good girl, Lynn.”

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

LOVELACE CONTINUED SWIPING Lynn's wetness off him, then feeding her each of his fingers. Lynn's familiar hands caressing his wrist as she did, Darren looked at her thin wrist, the Cartier watch he bought her for Christmas almost a decade ago now, her wedding ring, her engagement ring; around her neck a thin gold chain. Probably the first jewelry he ever bought her. Back when they were poor and hopeful that was about the greatest symbol he could've managed. That simple gold chain was almost a week's pay for him when they were young. The sacrifice he made was parallel with the enormous love he had for her.

Now those loving lips of hers, the ones he pressed his against after saying 'I do' at the Trinity church in the city, standing up before friends and family amidst showers of thrown confetti, were locked around Lovelace's thick but graceful fingers. She sucked on them sensually like she would a penis.

Lovelace watched with great scrutiny, eyes twinkling, lips curled in a sneering smile denting a chiseled cheek. Sunlight winked off the tips of his early morning stubble. The look he gave Lynn somewhere between a lover and the menace of a budding young sociopath burning ants with a magnifying glass.

Then he ran the pad of his middle finger over his wife's lips, pressing down their plumpness, flattening them, going around them in a circle as though he were applying lipstick. He whispered to her, "Let's show Darren."

Lynn didn't answer, lay there listlessly as Lovelace got up off the end of the bed. He had his back to Darren.

“Great ass,” Skyler whispered in his ear. “Don’t you think?”

He supposed so, way better than his and they were around the same age. Lovelace showed his age yet he had the beauty and grace and suppleness of a much younger man. His ass cheeks were round and still well-formed, his hips and waist narrow, his back broad.

Madison sat facing the judge, trying to read him, anticipate his desires. He nodded to her, and she went into motion, grabbing Lynn’s closest ankle and pulling it. She got off to the foot of the bed as well, winding Lynn around like she were the hands of a clock, dragging her around in a rough tugging circle until Darren’s wife’s knees bent over the foot of his bed.

He saw that familiar and most intimate part of her after it had been gored by another man. Her familiar mound shone from sweat, from whatever she had expelled from within her when she came. Her mound was reddened, puffy. He’d never seen it shaved so cleanly. The lips that had yawned and brought forth the two greatest treasures in his life, a twenty-two-year-old named Tabitha and a twenty-year-old named Owen, looked as worn as they had when they had presented him with his progeny. Ruffled and stretched, one pulled out longer on the right side, parted in the center, a bright exposing of her hot pink insides.

Now Madison was running her hand up and down Lynn’s thigh, tugging at her knee. “Get those creaky old legs up, you bitch,” she whispered.

SHE GUIDED THE LEG UP, and Lovelace did the same on the other side. Her legs were lifeless. Madison on one side, Lovelace on the other, Lynn’s knees were brought high, and Lovelace stroked his prominent erection. He wasn’t done; he hadn’t come yet. His tool was raging. Reddened from the pounding he’d given Lynn, the veins wiggled and swirled on it, so hard now its back arched in a slight upward curve. That massive head was swollen, all the bumps and ridges inflated to full volume, a slippery running feed of the judge’s lubricant dripping from the tip.

When they made eye contact, when Darren fell under the gaze of this frightening predator, Lovelace smiled and it shot a coldness through Darren. Between his legs, Skyler fiddled with his slippery wet penis. It had been brought again to a throbbing hardness. He dipped a look between his legs, saw his pale offering compared to his wife’s lover, saw Skyler’s fingertips tracing all his thin veins and edges, handling it like it was a delicate thing. So much different from what the judge gripped in his big fist.

Then the man turned, showed Darren his back again, obscuring the view that he had of his wife's twisted and beaten sex. He knew what was coming, and once again his response was not what we would anticipate, not jumping up and throwing the man to the floor, instead he began to thrust his hips, trying to run his erection through Skyler's hand. She complied and chuckled directly in his ear and he felt the tip of her tongue lick on his earlobe giving him an instant and exciting chill.

She whispered, "Tell him to do it."

"No," he whispered back.

She froze her hand on him, stopped her light stroking. "Tell him, Darren. He needs to hear it. I think Lynn would like to hear it, too."

"Okay," he said shakily, and now he ran his open palm up the inside of Skyler's thigh and she purred. He gripped her knee.

"Do it," he said softly. Madison smiled, her eyes looking up to his now. He repeated, "Do it. Fuck her."

Lovelace made no acknowledgment of this woman's husband's request. He was going to do it, anyway. He lifted a foot and placed it up on the bed next to Lynn's rump. His balls swung between his open legs. But now Darren had an exposed view of his wife's eager and turned up sex. Then that penis came into view, the judge pushing it straight down, running it up Lynn's crack, the tip then swirling and mashing through her slippery pink folds.

Madison squeezed Lynn's knee, and she said to Lovelace, "Fuck her mom cunt." And with that the judge bent his knee, dipped his hips, and Darren watched his loving wife's opening spread wide to accommodate her lover's tremendous organ. She was loose, and she was primed, and despite that manhood's girth, it sunk completely inside her in one long steady stroke until his balls rested on her anus.

"Oh, fuck, holy Jesus," Darren said, his cock swelling to its largest proportion in Skyler's grip. She giggled again and resumed her stroking.

She whispered, "Your wife is so fucking hot."

"I know," he gasped, humping his cock through her hand.

"I love eating her out," she said.

He groaned, flexed again in her hand and she stroked him eagerly.

LYNN'S KNEES WERE UP, pressed against her earlobes, looking like she would attempt a somersault. Her rump turned straight up, her lover with both feet on the bed now thrusting up and down like a frog, his huge cock stabbing deep into her body. She began to moan; she began to cry out.

Her feet were visible over his shoulders, and they bobbed with his thrusts. Madison slapped her thighs. Lynn moaned again, she swore, and she encouraged him, saying, "Fuck me, Lovelace, fuck me," her voice weak yet somehow urgent.

He kept it going, kept up his deep pummeling, drawing up high enough that he and Skyler could see the slippery cloven underside of his big cock head, and then it was plunging deep inside Lynn again, making gushing wet noises as his wife's glistening sex spread wide for him. He pulled her insides out and then he shoved them back in, back-and-forth, the plate of membrane that ran between her anus and vagina rose and fell with his thrusts. Faster and faster he went, and Skyler whispered, "He's going to come inside her."

And though it was something that would drive a normal man into rage, he wanted to see it. He wanted this man to come inside his wife. "He is ... he's going to, isn't he?" he gasped and heaved, his chest going in and out as quickly as Lynn's.

Skyler's hand jerked faster and faster, and she whispered, "Tell him you want that ... he wants to hear it."

This time he didn't hesitate, he said, "Come ... come inside her, come inside my wife," and he felt himself trickling at the sound of his own words.

Then the judge went deep, his legs flexing and bulging, and they watched as his two big hanging testicles drew up high, one more than the other until they both disappeared inside his body. They sagged and dangled again, pulled high again. Lynn cried out in ecstasy at the feel of her big lover injecting his fluids deep inside her. And Darren was coming, too, spritzing over Skyler's knuckles as she just swirled the very tip of him. He babbled and groaned and exhaled and watched as the cables and tendons flexed in Lovelace's huge cock, his balls pulling and sagging, pulling and sagging, spewing every drop they held up and inside the woman Darren had been married to for twenty-five years. And it kept coming from himself, too; semen flopping over Skyler's hand, making her gasp affirmations in his ear, telling him he was a good boy.

THE JUDGE WITHDREW HIS WEAPON, unsheathing it from Darren's wife, then tapping it on her swollen mound. He put one foot down on the floor then the other.

Madison, no longer taunting, held Lynn's face, mushing her cheeks with a thumb and her fingers. She said to her, "You did good, Lynny-pooh-pooh," and she stuck out her tongue, ran it up Lynn's face then kissed the point of her nose. Lynn didn't even struggle or squirm, just let it happen. She was out of it again, her body languid and sapped, her muscles noncompliant.

Madison helped her legs down, let them drape over the edge of the bed. She turned, saw the limp wet little thing in Skyler's hand, and made a curious face. There was a shirt bundled up on the floor and she stooped, tossed it to cover up between Darren's legs. Skyler began to dry him.

Now Madison sat her rump right next to Lynn who was flat on the bed, legs bent over the edge. She crossed her feet over and clasped her hands in her lap while she waited for the judge to gather himself. He was still stroking and squeezing, getting all of his fluids out of his long shaft, letting them drip onto Lynn's thigh.

He stood, took a moment as if to collect himself, after a few deep breaths cast his gaze out the windows. What would he see there? It wasn't scorching hot, it was a Sunday, Darren could hear a lawnmower now. A regular life, a suburban dream being played out past those windows. A life he once knew but didn't imagine he could return to.

Skyler squeezed his testicles hard, rolled his penis out like a toothpaste tube until it was empty inside the T-shirt, gripped it and scrubbed up and down between his legs. He took a corner of the shirt and dabbed at the blots that he left on the seat cushion. The judge sat down, facing them, their knees close together. He held a hand out, wanting the T-shirt.

Skyler said, "This one is dirty."

Then Madison was bouncing off the bed, bubbling, "Wait, wait," running to the closet and snatching something off the floor, returning and handing it to the judge before she sat back down again. He fluffed it out, Darren's polo shirt, holding it between thumbs and forefingers, then began to clean his cock.

He said to Darren, "Do you think I've taken something here?"

Skyler whispered, "Don't say Yes," and she giggled.

Darren leaned back, felt her body press against him. He said, "No."

“I’ve given you something, haven’t I?”

He nodded.

“That’s right, Darren. This is a great gift, far greater than a rare bottle of single malt.”

“I know,” he said weakly.

“I do,” he said.

Lovelace turned to look down at Lynn who lay on the bed still, said, “It was time, Lynn,” and he reached over and squeezed her knee. “It was time, my dear. I think we’re entering a new stage. I think that there is still much for you to learn, and much for you to enjoy. Much for you to suffer. I think this may just be the start. And, Darren, I’m afraid you’re part of this now, too. What you’ve seen obviously can’t be unseen. And I know entirely that, while you may have resisted it, you enjoyed every bit of what I showed you this morning. Lynn needed to know that. But Lynn needed to be someone else before you and I could be introduced.” He stood now, scrubbed Darren’s Polo shirt up and down his crotch, his cock flopping and slapping, balls swinging, and then he threw the shirt on the floor. “I have your email. We’ll talk.”

Darren said, “All right. She ... Is she okay?” he said, nodding his chin toward his wife. She lay listlessly on the bed, her arms moving, looking at her own hands like she was in a trance, laying on her back, messy hair strewn about her.

Lovelace regarded her for a moment, said, “Sometimes she takes a little while to come back around.”

DARREN’S STOMACH clenched wondering how many times a session like this had happened. Wondered how many times his wife had snuck out and met this man in a hotel room. He imagined their awful lascivious acts being performed in the better hotels in the city. Not at the judge’s home, not where Lovelace kept his own family. Some den of iniquity perhaps that he managed in the city. Maybe even his own private apartment. He asked Lovelace, “How long has this been going on?”

Lovelace said with a shrug, “She’s always wanted me. I knew it the first time she put her eyes on me. But it wasn’t the time back then. Not when we faced each other in front of a judge. Too complicated. But I knew it would build, I knew there would be a time in our future that we would come together. And I have to say, Darren, your wife is so incredibly beautiful, so incredibly powerful, I couldn't wait to teach her a great many things. I saw that she wanted them without knowing they existed. I saw an emptiness there."

"But how long? How long have you been—"

"Fucking? Just a year now. I made her wait for it. I made her exercise for a year before I would put a hand on her. For such a powerful woman I found her very easy to control. Sometimes they're like that though, sometimes the more powerful they are the more they desire a man to press his thumb down on them."

Skyler rubbed his neck while the judge admired Lynn's prone body, reached down and stroked her knee. He chuckled. "You know, for a year," he said, now walking to the walk-in closet, "for a year I would only let your wife suck my cock. I would spank her, too. Tell her she needed to lose weight. She didn't of course, but I needed to see her compliance. And look how far she took it. She was so eager to get on her knees, Darren, but so desperate to be worthy of my cock inside her."

Skyler whispered, "I bet you're getting hard again."

He shrugged away her voice in his ear. She laughed, drew her knee up, climbed out from behind him, standing naked next to the chair. She ran a hand on his back said, "I can't jerk you off again, I've got to get going." She followed Lovelace into the closet.

Madison licked her lips, smiling at him knowingly. She said, "Thanks for dinner," a mean little smile on her face, knowing how absurd that was. Then she bounced off the bed as well, vampire cape fluttering behind her.

All three of them were in the closet now, the girls laughing; he saw the shadows on the floor outside the door moving around, heard the sounds of them getting dressed. When they emerged, they wore his and Lynn's clothing.

Lovelace cinched up Darren's belt, ran the prong through a hole and tugged it across the roller. He said, "It was a wonderful evening, Darren. I think we all had quite the time. Wouldn't you say so?"

Darren nodded again, looking away now and watching his wife.

All three of them walked into the suite's passageway, making a wide berth around the broken glass. They went to the doors and into the hall. At the door, Skyler stopped, turned and said, “Tell Tabitha I said Hey,” and she was gone with the other two.

Darren sat there in the chair for a long time. He listened to the front door close, giggling voices out his window, car doors chunking, opening and closing, motors starting, Mercedes V12 and an old Korean four-cylinder, parking brakes groaning, then the sound of them driving away. Someone double-honked.

When it was completely quiet, Lynn drew her knees up, rolled to her side and lay in a fetal position, naked on the bed. He hefted himself from the chair, hunched over, feet dragging a few steps until he collapsed on the bed behind her.

EPILOGUE

HE WATCHED her breathe for a long moment. His shadow, the Sunday morning light coming from the window behind him, rose and fell on the gentle movement of her back. That back was so familiar to him; had seen it in the shower, in bikinis on vacation, naked in bed. Familiar round freckle, the size of a dime, that he convinced her to get a dermatologist to look at (proving it benign) five years ago.

His wife's body had changed. This was the first time he had really seen it in broad daylight after all the work she had done at the gym. The muscles of her shoulder were shapely, rounded, her whole body toned and smooth. He slowly eased a finger out and let the pad rest on that familiar identifying freckle. She didn't flinch; she didn't recoil, and she let it press on her. She began to sob and his heart broke for her. She made soft whimpering sounds, her hands coming up to cover her face, and then the sound of her own cry brought it worse. Soon she was shaking. She whimpered, "I ... I hate myself."

"Don't," he said.

"I'm disgusting," she cried. "I'll leave. Just give me a few minutes ... and I'll leave."

"Where you going to go?"

She said, "I don't know, Darren. I'm so sorry ... I'm such a horrible piece of shit. I don't know how this happened. I don't know ... I'll go away. We'll figure it out ..."

He said, "I don't want you to go," and he let all his fingertips touch her now, tenting on her skin then flattening, slowly his palm lay near the center of her back, somewhere underneath that her strong heart beating.

“How can you even look at me, Darren? I’ve ruined everything.”

“Don’t say that,” he said.

“Oh, God,” she cried, flinched away from his hand, curled into a tighter ball. “I’m awful. So awful.”

“Let me touch you,” he said.

“How could you want to?” she said shakily.

“I love you,” he said. And it was true. What he witnessed, and how he’d practically been victimized, was a nightmare. A horror movie. His heart stabbed, his past degraded, his sexual life with the woman he loved completely devalued. Yet he didn’t hate Lovelace. There was truth to what he said. He’d given something to Lynn. And what Darren had watched this morning and what he partook in last night was a gift to him as well. Though it made no sense, he caressed her back again.

“How can you love me?” she whispered. Her sobbing had stopped.

“How can I love you? Are you crazy? I’ve always loved you. We have two children together. Did you know that? Did you forget?” he said softly joking and rocking her with his hand.

“No.” She sniffed.

“Lynn, I want you more than ever.”

Her back began to shake again, and he heard her crying. He pressed his chest to her back now, circling an arm over her shoulder and holding her tight. She gripped his wrist in both her hands and squeezed him hard. She cried. He felt the warm tears on the knuckle of his hand. Inexplicably, he turned to steel again. His cock poking behind her. Pressing its point into the back of her thigh. She squirmed on him and his heart began to race. Her tight muscular leg pushed down, recognizing his arousal. He couldn’t believe this was happening.

He brought his knees up, angled his hips, wiggled around the tip of his penis until he felt her very slippery opening. He pressed it into her, heard the wet crackle of another man’s semen inside her as it gushed around his slim hardness. He slid himself inside her, feeling barely any resistance at all. He whispered, “He left you so loose.”

“His cock is huge,” she sighed.

It drove him, pushing him into her even harder, feeling his own cock swell and flare. She hugged his arm tighter, held on as he pounded, his much smaller penis stabbing and poking into her, making all sorts of bubbly noises, his wife’s stretched out insides feeling loose around him. And there it was again, even grander than before, just like when he'd watched that other man fuck his wife into oblivion he was ejaculating. Blasting off inside the woman he got down on one knee and proposed to twenty-six years ago, the week after they had both finished university and before she went to law school. He pounded and held, pounded and held, over and over until he was empty. Still Lynn hugged his arm.

STANDING in the kitchen waiting for the milk to steam for their espressos, he watched his wife sitting on the deck of the pool with her back to him. She wore a robe and nothing else. Back hunched, face in her hands; even though he told her he loved her she was still crying.

The milk frothed, and he added it to their cups, saw her dabbing at her eyes with a balled up Kleenex. The backyard hadn't been cleaned, clothing scattered around the cedar deck that lined the hot tub, empty pitcher on the table, one by the tub next to the half empty bottle of Port Ellen, lid to the grill left open, dirty dishes on the patio table. But the sun shone on a new day, and the events of last night and this morning would be put behind them. He bumped the French door with a hip, stepped down to the concrete deck, the two cups of cappuccino clattering on their saucers. He sat down next to her, making sure his hip touched hers, and handed her a coffee. She sniffed, turned, averted her eyes, and took the saucer, said, "Thank you."

"You're welcome," he said.

Then they sat, neither of them drinking, neither of them saying anything, both looking across the pool, the pump still running, the surface rippling with the power of the jets. A tree frog buzzed and a seagull's shadow swooped across the yard. A turquoise bikini top hung over the edge of the diving board. A black one streamed across the hedge.

Lynn sighed, took a sip of the cappuccino and put the cup back on the saucer, laying it on her knees. Without looking at him, she said, "You had sex with those girls?"

"I'm sorry."

"It's okay," she said. "What could I say?"

"Doesn't change that I'm sorry."

She said, "Did you have sex with both of them?"

“No. Just Skyler. I couldn’t say no. I probably didn’t want to say no. But she—”

“It’s okay,” she said. “Madison?”

“She told you,” he said quietly.

She leaned forward as if she were in pain and he wanted to put his hand on her back, but kept it on his saucer. He said, “She’s ...”

“What?”

“She’s a little bitch,” he said.

Lynn’s shoulders slumped, and she said, “I know. Not all the time.”

“She was so mean to you.”

She set the cup and saucer in front of her feet on the deck and hugged her knees. She turned her head to face him, her cheek still pressing her thighs. She said, “I like it.”

“Okay,” he said, feeling again like he was standing very close to the edge of something too high. Knowing that when he tumbled forward he wouldn’t survive the fall.

She said, “Did you want to ask me why?”

He said, “No.”

“That’s good,” she said. “I don’t know why.”

“Where does this leave us?”

“That’s what I was going to ask you.”

Now he looked in her eyes, the first time since the aftermath of her vicious fucking on their marital bed by a man who controlled his wife. They were wet, blinking, big and brown and somehow innocent despite the travesty that she had made their marriage.

He said, “I was looking forward to the kids being out of the house. I thought we would spend time together.”

“I know,” she said, that innocence dissipating, becoming sadness.

“But what were we going to do?”

“Travel?”

He said, “Maybe. That’s not what I wanted necessarily. I wanted to spend the time with you. Like we had twenty-five years together and there were still parts of you that I wanted to get to know.”

She chewed her lower lip and listened.

“So I guess that’s what we’re going to do. If you’re willing. I’m going to get to know you.” Now he looked to her again and cocked his head to show her affection. “He was right, Lovelace; he did give me something. He gave me you. Seeing him take you ...? He gave you what you needed, and he showed me. Ugly or not I liked it because it was you.”

She said, “He’s an incredible man.”

He grimaced and held his stomach.

“Sorry,” she said, sitting up now and putting a hand on his knee, “I didn’t mean that.”

He set his cup down on the deck, still holding his stomach, his face twisted up. He said, “No, you did. I have to come to grips with it. I want to know. I want to know everything about you.”

She watched him for a moment, eyes quivering, her mouth open but still chewing the inside of her cheek. She said brightly, “Really?”

“We’re empty-nesters, got the house to ourselves. I don’t love you any less. Lovelace showed me in the right way. Maybe ... he’s good for you ...”

“Oh, he is, Darren,” she pleaded now, gripping his thigh with both hands. “You mean it?”

“Yes, I do. I think I really do.”

“You think?”

He chuckled, bizarre strangeness settling over both of them. “Yes,” he said, and he parted the front of his robe to show her the tip of his penis sticking straight up in the air.

She laughed, said, “That’s unbelievable.”

“It is. Why did I like what I watched?”

“I don’t know,” she said. “I thought I would be spending the afternoon on the phone with a good divorce attorney.”

“That’s a little harsh,” he said, picturing his wife in a motel, on the bed talking to her lawyer. “You wouldn’t fight to keep me?”

“I didn’t think there was any way you could accept what an ugly monster I am inside.”

“I don’t think you’re ugly inside at all, Lynn. I think that’s the scary part. I think what I watched today was actually pretty beautiful.”

She puffed out her cheeks, slowly exhaled. As her cheeks deflated, she began to smile. “Well, that’s certainly something,” she said, and she pressed herself closer to him, put her arms around him.

“We are empty-nesters,” she said.

“We got the house ... all to ourselves,” he slowly said as his mouth opened and he kissed the woman he loved.

Her hand circled his cock, began to stroke him lightly, and she broke her kiss and whispered in his ear: "Can I text Lovelace? I want to know if I can fuck you."

"We already did ..."

"I know ... You ... you call him, but ... if you mention that ... he might punish us."

A PREVIEW OF THE OBSESSED SERIES

Blocks.

That was his thing since last winter. Blocks of thick wet oil in shades of steel, post-industrial landscape, and the colours of dead soldiers in Posen-West Prussia. The colour would drip and run, and if it worked it stayed, if it didn't—linseed oil and heavy, titanium white paste would stamp it out. Then more blocks pressed over top would erase its memory. Maybe the blocks made up a larger picture or maybe they didn't. Fuck, was it the ocean? It sometimes felt like the ocean. Right now he was waiting for it all to come into focus. Maybe make some sense. Blocks.

He was using a metal stamp, some sort of industrial form he'd found here when he rented the building. It was a sheet metal square with a sheet metal form that became a frame to cradle a handle; a spindle, made of wood, worn powdery smooth from use. He'd fashioned a leather pad that fit in the sheet metal square, and then different textures could be attached to the stamp, applied to the surface of the canvas. That was just the start, then that square need to be finessed, it's big important message coaxed from it using more texture, more paint, just more...

Blocks within blocks, making up patterns, trying desperately to communicate a complex, ill-formed idea with crude texture and colour. It was like a message was being transmitted to him and it was impossible for it to be conveyed in words. It was a sobbing, grief-stricken, disjointed Civil War quilt. Block edges like torn propaganda posters on the artillery-peppered walls of a dying, black and white Europe. Frayed like old denim; greyed, time-worn fabric. Yet somehow wet, forever wet. It meant something. It felt tangible. Like an emotion you could hold in your hand.

You could peel up the corner of one of those blocks and discover a secret about yourself.

Atticus Hawke, twenty-eight years of age on the last sixth of June, had a gallery name now. Powerful representation. Bronk-Kaufmann Gallery on East 3rd sold eight of his works in the last seven months. One million and one hundred and twelve thousand dollars before the gallery's take. He was on to something with this series. Sometimes it could feel like he was gaining on it—whatever it was—getting closer, ready to pounce, clamp on its neck and drag it down for the kill. When he did, it would be over. He'd wash himself of the blood, stand sated and look for new prey.

The name Atticus Hawke came with cache now. Each painting sold slightly higher than the last. This was the pattern over the last eighteen months. People were getting hot for him. Janet Kirshenbaum from the L.A. Weekly started her article for the weekend Culture section with: Drop-dead gorgeous son of a quiet and reclusive music legend. Six-one, tanned and fit, long silky blonde hair cut one length, hanging to touch his broad shoulders. He has soulful blue eyes, a rugged jaw and a dimpled chin. Ever since the article he'd become more important than the work. His enigma sold the art as well as, or more than, his talent. Such was fucking art.

The canvas had been prepared by his own hand. Raw linen from Italy stretched and nailed over a spruce frame. Fourteen feet by seventeen. Painted blocks about ten inches by ten. Each block a separate idea, but contextual of the whole. One work made up of two-hundred and eighty-five ideas. Two-hundred and eighty-five blocks, each laid with careful decision.

There was a rolling platform that he worked from, adjustable by hydraulics, that allowed him to work on any one part of the canvas he felt like. He could spend an entire day on one four foot square idea, working and reworking each block until it made his heart content. He didn't need to step away and examine. His work was always about the smaller pictures. He knew if the small pictures were true the big picture would be as well. He didn't have to keep checking.

He was losing his afternoon light. The bright sky was getting dim and orange as the sun wound its way down towards the horizon. He had lots of electric fill light that would brighten up his workspace but he preferred natural daylight. When the sun began to set it was time for other pursuits. Creativity he could pursue in the dark.

He stepped down off the scaffolding and unzipped his coveralls. He had worked up a sweat. His long blonde hair clung to him wetly, his hands and his coveralls were stained with grey tinted oils. He stretched, avoided turning to take a look at the day's progress. He'd be too inclined to get back to work if he heard it call him back. He had other things to do tonight.

He walked across the big empty factory space and headed for his things arranged neatly on a long bench that came from an abandoned railway station they were taking apart on the other side of the District. He checked his phone.

There was a cold text there, forty-five minutes old.

MissProust: Is everything still on for Sat night?

He brushed the hair out of his eyes, blinked the sweat away. He typed.

Finch: It is.

She responded immediately.

MissProust: Are you for real?

Finch: I am for real

MissProust: Can we trust you?

Finch: You can. You will have the best night of your lives.

He tossed his phone into his leather hold-all and headed through the partitioned area at the side of his workspace. A long, low, half wall in brick. The area beyond was a wet area with drains in the floor and only two feet of glass blocks running along the top of the wall where it met the ceiling that let in the light from the outside. He stripped down naked and threw his coveralls into a bin with yesterday's dirtied pair.

He stood under a wide, white-painted, circular shower head that hung straight down from a water supply pipe, also painted white. Everything in his space was given frequent fresh coats of white. The shower head was a remnant of the building's industrial past. Some previous use where dangerous chemicals were handled and this now-battered shower head, the size of a manhole cover, was necessary to save someone's skin from caustic burns. It made for a comfortable experience once he'd put in a water heater.

He dried off and tied his hair back, put on some clean clothes. Stiff denim, button-fly Levi's from the 1950s, plain white t-shirt and Air Jordan Retro 1s, black toes with the engraved signature.

He went back to his phone, texted Gretch.

Atticus: See you at 10

He was done for the day. He grabbed his things and shut the lights down headed for the battered old door that led out to the parking. He looked back at his work in progress spread out on the far wall behind his hydraulic platform. Low, orange light from the windows cast across it, lit it up in colours never meant to touch its surface.

He saw it differently. It wasn't the ocean. It was more than that. A storm coming. Moving across a nameless water in the sliver-moment before the sun came up.

He locked the door behind him, made sure the battered shutter door was also secured. The building was a long, low bungalow in the Arts District. It had been a warehouse, a factory, at one point they made children's toys here. Now it was a quiet, chipped and fading Industrial remnant in the heart of a rapidly changing city. Paint peeled from its brick walls, wires were cabled across its surface in unplanned patterns. It felt like it was from another time. But there was something solid and indifferent about it.

He turned to the lone car in the small parking plot that held ten. Murdered Lamborghini Huracán. Sleek and low, painted a flat black. Nondescript, colourless, revealing only form and deadly intention. Black aluminum wheels with legs like spiders, peach-painted calipers peeking from behind. Total asshole car. He liked it that way.

He fired up the ten cylinders, revved it until he felt the car want to twist. He roared down the narrow alley that snaked through the old re-purposed factories, chirped on to a side street and made a right on to Alameda as the sun started to set.

Squatting was important. Built a chassis that he could perform from. Girls liked the abs but that was just diet. He needed muscle underneath it all so when he was lean there was something for them to see. Something for another man's wife to run her hands over and make herself wet from. He liked the power that the squats, cleans, and deadlifts gave him. He did a lot of high rep stuff too, four days a week, just a fine tuning, pump up the muscle that was there, give it form and volume that reflected light and cast shadows well.

Hybrid Athletics was a brick walled gym that catered to hard chargers and toned housewives. A new kind of Crossfit for people who hated Crossfit. But it was still just Crossfit. It was in an old firehouse and if he got here late enough he could avoid most of the clientele.

Today's protocol: Deadlift, four hundred and five pounds, three sets of three. Then high rep barbell rows, shrugs, some work on the neck harness. Play that by ear. Whatever felt good, whatever felt like a stretch and rushed blood into the muscle. Don't overdo it. Then conditioning; tire flips. Four hundred and fifty pound tire, one flip on the minute adding a flip every minute. Seventh minute was seven reps, having already done six in the minute before, leaving no time for rest. Made it to eight minutes the first round, seven minutes on the second round. Sixty-four flips in total.

He was done in an hour and a half. His phone had been dinging.

He had messages from Suzie Kauffmann at the gallery, another from Gretch, a response from MissProust, and an unsolicited random inquiry coming in from his public listing.

He went to college with Gretch. Two rich L.A. Kids out east together, hating the weather and the people. She was a fan of his father's music. Didn't know he was Ricky Hawke's son until they'd known each other for two months. He added a reminder to his calendar to: Call dad.

He left Gretch hanging. He'd see her tonight. She'd had a strange request. She probably had been anxious before asking, not realizing how in line it was with his newest passion.

Suzie Kauffmann wanted to know if he was free to come by the gallery on Monday night. Wanted to work out his installation for next month. He texted her he would be there.

MissProust was the wife of a new couple who he'd referred to his private website. They showed promise. She'd sent another picture of her body. It was toned and muscular. She said she loved his pictures. She'd flicked through a library he had of good photos of his body that he had on the private site. She'd clicked 'like' on a favourite. Bare chested, abs very cut up and well lit. Jeans unbuttoned and peeled down. His cock was half hard, plumped up and looking very thick. He had a nice cock. It was big. Not the biggest one out there but it was nice. Too thick for some. Six and a half by almost six when he was soft, and eight and a bit by almost seven when he was erect. Uncircumcised, rare on a rich, white kid from Beverly Hills. His mom, Silke, was a model from Norway, married to his dad back in 1986 to 1990. She had a lot of holistic ideas and hated doctors. She wouldn't let them cut the tip off her little baby's penis. Good for her.

He assessed the new inquiry. If they passed an initial meeting he would give them a password to the private website where they could share more freely. Most inquiries came off his twitter page and his forum profile on a site for men with big penises. Most of the requests were junk. Weirdo guys trolling for pictures of his dick for whatever reason. A lot of men who were wondering if he wanted to jerk off with them in a Skype session. But, quite frequently, at least once a week he would get something interesting. A real couple looking for a third party.

There were things he'd picked up along the way. Like the more pictures they wanted to see of your cock and your body the less they were really interested and the more this was just some sort of play fantasy for them. The more they felt you out and tried to find out if you were an asshole or if they could get along with you the more likely they were to be genuine.

He went through the pictures the new couple had sent him. He scrolled, growing disheartened. They lacked something. They were a little too old, a little too red-tanned. Hair was bleach blonde and frizzy. On both of them. He didn't like the man's arm hair. Too light against the reddened skin. It was garish. There was a certain high-class yet somehow Bakersfield Wal-Mart feel to it. They were artless. He deleted them.

There were subtle cues he looked for in photos couples send. He needed evidence of class or style, wealth—or something else. People can hide a lot in a photo but he had a telepath's sense; a flaying tentacle awareness of the intangible. Sometimes it was what they showed, sometimes it was what they didn't show. The quality of the material, the drape of fabric in the clothes they wore. Expensive lilt or a cheap stiff hang. If it was cheap it could be done ironically so, made exciting in context with another item. Or a sign of health. It wasn't always money. Sometimes if a man's wife displayed a particular vigour, that would arouse him. If she had something to claim: youth, vitality, a winning, white-tooth smile...one time it was just a man's wife's nipples. They were plump and delicate, raspberry, soft. He knew by sight that the husband loved them. Loved them in an exquisite way that taking them for his own would damage that man's soul. Deliver a hurtful knife deep inside his existence. But it wasn't always to hurt another man. Every couple was a new canvas, something blank which he could make something from. He didn't know what it would be until it was under way.

He took an Uber to the club. Kobra Khan on Sunset. Stylish, gritty place. He stepped out onto the walk into a throng of young people, kids really. Backpacks and bright clothes disguising an underlying menace. Crowd seemed a little juvenile for Gretch but you never knew what the current thing was that caught her fancy. One time she took him to a Beanie Baby convention. She just wanted to steal things, though.

Printed posters plastered the black-painted, faceless, stucco front of the club. Colourful print-outs with a cartoon drawing of vampire teeth. They were disembodied and gold, studded with diamonds, like a gangster grill. They dripped bright red, oxygenated, comic book blood. In a chilling, melting font underneath it said, Blood, Sweat, and Smears Event. There was a list of bands. Dead G, WolfFang, HevvyHidderz, LeMont Cranston.

Horrorcore. Sixteen-year-old suburban Hollywood black kids who liked to rap about raping and murdering. Harmless themselves. Thug pretenders who'd never see the inside of a prison, probably end up at Google, but the crowd was questionable. There was a bubbling energy, surfaced with high-testosterone tension, something waiting to pop.

He was on the guest list. Gretch had pull at the club. A bouncer waved him through, didn't check his list, seemed to know him by description. Atticus didn't look like anyone else here. He nodded back and passed through the black-painted double doors and went into the club.

The music was loud, omnipresent. Chopped and screwed. Polyphonic buzzing, like a hive thrum, stuck inside the slowed-down dying heart beat of a metallic insect. Heavy metal sunken battleship doors opening and closing underwater, infinite suction. There was a kid onstage, mic in hand, convulsing, eyes rolled back so there were only whites under the brim of an oversized 50/50. All part of the act. Demonic possession.

Gretch was ahead, standing at the back of the crowd. The room was blue-hazy, stale remnants of theatrical fog swirling around the first person he ever believed in. She was looking out over the tops of the heads of the drugged-out kids, her hand clasped her boyfriend's. Mike was with her, side by side, watching the show together. He seemed disinterested.

Gretch was thin like a model. Long and leggy. She was wearing a ripped and faded Metallica t-shirt with the sleeves rolled up to her delicate shoulders. Long, heavy honey-blond hair piled up on her head and spilling down her slender back. She had loose black parachute pants that came to a cuff over a pair of old Kanye x Louis Vuitton high tops; hot-cherry pink soles, brass clamped tassels and thick wide velcro straps.

Mike had skinny jeans and a denim jacket, all in black, checkered Vans and a ball cap. He was slight and stood artfully hunched, with piercing, dark intelligent eyes. He had a heavy Cowboy moustache and an otherwise short and unkempt beard. It made his chin look short.

Atticus put his hand on the small of her back. Warm contact, her firm body, images of a better present where they were a couple and tonight wouldn't be the way it was.

She turned, the wet flash of her eyes killed his heart, she smiled wide, her eyes went sly and she said his name. He pulled her to him with his hand on her waist. He could feel her reluctance but her long arms went around him just the same and she hugged herself into his neck, kissed a cheek and broke away.

“Atticus, this is Mike,” she said, forgetting they’d met at a house party in Bel-Air in the spring.

“Hey, Mike,” he said and they shook hands.

He met Gretch at Farmingham. They dated off and on for two years. Lots of fights and bed-breaking make up sex. A lot of crying and smashing of lamps. On his part. He might have loved her too much at one point. She never loved him, though she said it once or twice. It was all a long time ago.

Gretch was smart and cynical. She wanted to be a novelist. When she got back to L.A. she wrote for two years for an MTV series before she was fired. She’d bounced around. Now she was on a writing staff. Token white female writer on a black comedy show for Fox. Someday she’d probably make that novel.

Mike was a Canadian. Gretch was a good land for him. He wasn’t bad looking but he didn’t command a room. He wrote at Fox too, primetime cartoon. Maybe Family Guy. Atticus couldn’t remember.

She yelled into his ear, “He wants me to fuck you now.”

“Now?”

“He wants me next to him knowing you came inside me.”

“Okay,” he said into her ear.

She took his hand.

She closed the stall door behind them and they were face to face. Gretch was tall, probably five-eight. She didn’t like heels. She looked up into his eyes.

Looking into them was like looking into his past. A window with a view over two painful emotional years of his life. Classes, learning to paint, learning he already knew how, youthful condescension, his first heroin, his first heartbreak; standing at the foot of something like a grey obelisk on a foggy morning, feeling its static hum, wondering if it was love.

He kissed her.

She turned her head, let his lips brush her cheek. She said, “Don’t kiss me. You can kiss me when he’s watching. Not now.”

She smelled like lemon twist and mint leaves and faint purple indica. His thumb ran over the tattoo on the inside of her right forearm. A stylized, one-colour medieval warrior standing at attention, his sword point in the ground between his chain-mail legs. His face was grim. He had a broad moustache. Very much like Mike's.

She asked him, "Like the band?"

"Very twenty-ten. Thought this was done. People still listen to this?"

"Ha ha, you don't like it?"

"I like it fine. I thought you were cool."

She showed him cynical. "What do you listen to?"

He ignored her, watched his thumb blot out the warrior's face.

She said, "I like people who refuse to give up on something. There's a tragic sort of sadness in their perseverance. That's what I'm here for."

The horde on the other side of the door was noisy. Music pounded under their yelling, inane voices, streaming in through the open bathroom door. They'd snaked their way through the crowd, Gretch leading the way holding his hand. She'd worked them through the crush, got them in the stall and closed them out. He felt alone with her despite the crowd.

She said, "Take your cock out."

He stared at her, put a palm against the dirty, graffiti-scratched, metal door, one on either side of her head. He wanted to kiss her so bad his heart thumped in his chest.

Her hands went to his jeans. She unbuttoned them roughly, starting at the top and working down the worn brass buttons that had been handled by who knows who over the last sixty-five years. Her knuckles brushed his hardening flesh under the rough denim. He ached to feel her pretty hands caress him. She pulled the fly apart and his manhood tumbled out. No underwear. When her hand touched it, gripped it, his breath caught. He showed no expression. Wouldn't give it to her. Inside his eyes had rolled right back. Demonic possession.

She smiled. Her teeth bit at her lip, tried to stop it from happening. Hated for Atticus to see any emotion from her. She turned it into a wry thought. "You do have the best cock I've ever had."

He moved like he would kiss her, but he didn't. He respected her wishes, let his breath tickle that long neck of hers, let his lips brush her soft earlobe.

"I told Mike about it. He likes the idea of me with other men. I told him your cock is so big I cried our first time."

She did cry that night. He'd held her. Gretch told him she wasn't a virgin their first time but he always thought she was. She bled a little on the duvet she brought from home laid over her dormitory single. It seemed special to her too. Emotional. As emotional as something like that could be to a sociopath like Gretch.

"I'm just a cock to you?"

"You're just a big cock and a fantastic fuck tonight, Atticus. I don't want to talk about what might have been."

He kissed her neck. Closed his eyes and let his lips brush along the long beautiful tendon that dove into her slender clavicle. He kissed her under her ear where he knew she was sensitive. She moaned.

"Stop," she whispered.

"Just because you enjoy it doesn't mean it's not for Mike."

"I'm going to enjoy it. Don't try and analyze me. My fucking shrink can't even figure me out."

His hands went under her shirt and then slid into the wide soft elastic waistband of her pants. He felt tremors in her tight tanned belly, she quivered at his touch. She would hate that he felt it.

Her hand stuffed into a pocket in her soft silky pants, pulled something out. She slid down, her back pressed against the door of the stall. His cock hung in her face as she squat between his legs. Her hands worked on something. The thing from her pocket was a small dark amber glass vial with an airtight lid. She popped it and sprinkled a small hillock of white powder across the top of his cock held out with her other hand. He watched her snort it. She pulled back, her eyes shut tight, her index finger stabbed into the side of her nose at the bridge in the corner of her eye. Her face twisted up. He touched the residue on his cock, rubbed his gum. It burned like bitter copper.

"That's not fucking coke, Gretch."

She laughed, tucked the vial back into her pocket.

He wouldn't ask her for some even when he thought it was coke. That was Gretch's way of controlling you. Getting you to ask for something so she could say no. He wouldn't ask. Wouldn't ask what it was either. Probably oxy.

Then her soft wet mouth was on him and he leaned forward until his head pressed to the metal. His fingers wound through her silky hair and he felt her lips gently work on him. He was getting hard in her mouth.

“Ah, Gretch,” he whispered.

Her silver-ringed hand gently stroked and squeezed his shaft where it emerged from his old denim. Her lips gently tugged and pulled on his thick foreskin, then plunged over him, sucked his large glans into her mouth. She worked him like that, stroking and plunging. It felt wonderful but oddly detached. Her movements were all an effort to produce just enough sensation to arouse him to hardness. She wasn't using her skills to thrill or impress or to please. It was a means to an end. A dictionary definition of a good blowjob but one that lacked passion.

It was working. As much as he ached to feel her own excitement in her touch or to sense a desire in her he was stiffening. He knew she would have him hard as could be. Just the thought now of what it was going to feel like to slide himself inside her tiny, pink pussy had him on his way. She felt amazing to be inside. She was tight and smooth and her body was magic under your fingers while you fucked her.

She was stroking him now, he'd caught her admiring his cock. She always did love his cock. Her eyes were on his glans watching it peek at her as she rolled his foreskin open and closed in her loose grip. He leaned back and watched her. She let her mouth go over him one more time for good measure, diving down and taking him as comfortably deep as she could from that position. Then backing off, holding his thick cock upright and letting her tongue slide along his underside, wide and flat, coming to a point at his glans. The tip of her tongue pressing then forcefully into his urethra. He moaned.

She raised up to him again, sliding up to meet him, her eyes locked on his. Both her hands gently stroked him.

“I've missed you, Gretch.”

“I know.” That and a smile were all she had for him.

He said, “You're cruel”

“You don't have to fuck me. I won't make you.”

“You know I want to.”

“You really want to fuck me, don't you?” She held his eyes and hooked her thumbs into the waistband of her pants, shimmied them down her hips slowly.

“Turn around,” he said.

Going A Little Too Far

You couldn't picture a sweeter couple than Troy and Emma.

Troy's a former Division One college wrestler. A walking water park at two-sixty-five, with shoulders no woman could get her arms around and a set of abs you could scrub laundry on.

Emma's a sweet little Georgia Peach. Pretty as can be in her proper dresses; she's a good girl from a good family that raised her right.

You couldn't tell by looking at them that they were two straight-up freaks that loved to push each other's kinky buttons.

Emma, with all her book club shyness, loves to be man-handled, loves to be lifted off her feet and dominated. Troy is a monster with a six-hundred-fifty pound deadlift and she's like a feather in his arms.

Troy likes to be humiliated. He knows he doesn't have much 'down there' and he likes his virginal wife to tell him he's no good and she'd have to get what she wanted elsewhere.

Couple of closet freaks.

A summer housewarming party on a scorching hot West Texas day puts a gift in their lap. A big, larger-than-life playtoy for Emma to tease her husband with. He wants her to. She wants to do it. But once it starts, where do you stop? What's going too far?
