CHAPTER 1

This wild escalation of the day was going to kill him. Why the hell wouldn't he put a stop to it? That was the question he kept asking himself. And he'd come up with some good reasons why. If he pulled Scarlet aside and told her to come to her senses and get some damn clothes on, he'd be the bad guy. The party pooper. That's what he told himself, but he was afraid it wasn't very near the truth. Because not once had he got close enough to Scarlet to lay a hand on her shoulder and ask her what was going on in her brain that she would do something so crazy. Instead, he was following her around at a distance, acting nonchalant, watching her like she wasn't his wife but some hottie at a bar instead. Like this was a party and he'd just spied a girl who really did it for him.

This wild display from his beloved wife dredged up something from his murky deep, down so low like the Marianas trench where those blind fish lived with the lights that hung in front of their faces and they lured dumber fishes close. This was the thing: Scarlet was a flight attendant working the first class lounge for American Air and sometimes took gigs on private jets on the weekends. This meant his wife was away for long stretches for work. Though he trusted her completely (hell, Scarlet didn't like most people to begin with, especially the entitled fucks she met on planes), absence did work away at you and he'd never once had a moment of unsureness where he believed maybe something bad happened between her and some millionaire playboy looking to bag a hot-ass flight attendant like Scarlet and join the Mile High Club. Something shimmered in his dark heart like a jewel in a dusty ruin; a treasure found amidst the worst apocalyptic reality you could imagine. He should never feel what he felt right now, but damn it he felt scared and aroused at the same time and the feeling was so profound he could barely make sense of it.

And that was the real reason he didn't do shit to put a stop to his wife's insane behavior.

The truth was Scarlet loved to tease him, and he wasn't dumb enough to miss that was exactly what she was doing right now. This wasn't flagrant flirting with another man, this was his wife being a malicious little prankster—look at her, pretending like she didn't know her Sully boy was watching her casually chatting with Philippe, both of them naked, Philippe with the biggest dangling dong he'd ever seen on a dude, the thing right out of a porno.

Right next to him, catching him off guard, Byron sidled close, saying, "How you doing, buddy?"

And when Sully looked over at Byron, though Byron feigned a nonchalant expression, he could read between Byron's sly and smirking lines that Byron was enjoying this, thinking it tormented him. It did torment him, but then again, it also didn't.

"Just fine, kiddo," he said, a sour tang of insubordination to Byron now—they used to be on equal footing, but now Byron wielded an undeserved and intangible superiority since he'd found out that Byron had sex with Carla and had even titty-fucked her. “Where we headed? I thought we were going swimming.”

Philippe and Scarlet turned to the right going down the steps to the lower deck instead of heading down one more flight to the swimming deck that would put them in the lake. Byron shrugged, mouth turning down in an I-don’t-know crescent. “I guess the swimming pool.”

Byron yowled suddenly and jumped into a striding escape a few steps ahead of him, dick and balls bouncing, both his hands rubbing his ass cheeks like he’d stepped on a wasp nest. Cheyenne chuckled, walking at Sully’s side in Byron’s former place, holding two frosty beer bottles—she had poked the icy bottle between Byron’s butt cheeks.

Cheyenne said, “Water’s kind of choppy today. Not the best for swimming,” like she hadn’t just ice-lanced her husband’s ass.

“Scarlet said you—” Then he looked down and over at Cheyenne and saw her fully naked. Her breasts swayed and slightly jiggled with her bare foot steps on the yacht’s deck.

Cheyenne knew exactly where he looked and only snuffled a little and smirked. She offered him the beer bottle.

“Yeah, no thanks, it was up Byron’s butt.”

Byron returned, one hand still scrubbing his chilled bottom and gave Chey a surly stare as he took the bottle from her. Chey offered Sully the other bottle.

“You’d prefer this one?”

“You’re not having one?”

“I’m full,” she said. “I brought them for the heavy drinkers.”

“That’s me and Byron,” he said, and twisted off the beer top. He looked over his shoulder to see Arlo—the third musketeer in their early morning drinker trifecta—but there was no sign of him. It was just the five of them, three men and two hot women. And one of those hot women was his wife.

“I guess Arlo’s hanging back,” he said, turned and swigged from his bottle—and caught Cheyenne doing what he had done only a moment ago. Gawking at the part of him that you were supposed to keep hidden from the public, and most especially your wife’s best friend. He’d never felt more naked in his entire life. And this was even though he’d gone streaking the night before.

His cock was hard and outright and Cheyenne looked at it unabashedly. He could practically feel his wife’s best friend’s eyes caressing his cock. It swelled his prostate like an over-inflated basketball, and his cock stiffened painfully, stretching longer, getting thicker and angling higher.

His throat tightened with anxiety, having no idea how to behave in a situation like this. Wanting it to end and wanting it to go on forever at the same time. Just his wife’s friend looking at his erection bobbing with his steps, flicking left and right in the bright sunshine, made him feel like he could come. He went light headed, and he chanced a look at Cheyenne.

She smiled, said, “Happy to see me?”

He chuckled and rubbed the cold bottle against his forehead as they rounded the corner to the yacht’s built-in swimming pool, an eight foot deep tank open to the deck below through glass viewing walls.

Byron chuckled too, taking another swig, and Chey looked to her husband, smiling wide, saying to him, “What?”

Byron shook his head and laughed, saying, “Nothing, nothing at all.”

“It was funny, no?”

“Very funny,” Byron said and hooked an arm over her shoulders.

Chey rolled her eyes and looked to Sully. “Sorry I noticed.”

As Philippe and Scarlet entered the lounge area ahead of them, still engaged in a lively conversation, Sully said to Chey, “Things are getting real loosy-goosy around here, huh? Just going to straight up acknowledge each other’s ding-dongs and hoo-hoos.”

Byron—mid-swig—spat out a mouthful of foamy beer in a blurting snort and Chey laughed at him. Byron backhanded beer from his mouth and chin and repeated, “Ding-dongs and hoo-hoos?”

Sully said, “Oh, sorry, what, is that too juvenile for you?”

“Probably for anybody,” Cheyenne said and laughed.

Byron chuckled and nodded his head toward the pool. “Not those two. They’re not juvenile,” he said, as Philippe and Scarlet sat quarter-facing each other at the corner of the pool, their legs in the water. Philippe’s legs were open and his big, brown, uncircumcised cock dangled below the pool’s lip.

“Nope,” Cheyenne said, “a couple of cool customers, and we’re a bunch of ___”

Sully said, “Nerds?”

“No, not that,” Chey said, frowning. “I can’t think of the word.”

Sully said, “I think it’s nerds.”

Byron said, “We’re not nerds”

Chey poked Byron, saying, “You two are, I’m not. Excuse me while I go hang out with the kids in the cool section.”

She abandoned the two of them by the deck railing, crossing the deck to join Scarlet and Philippe. Sully watched her taut butt cheeks lift and drop, lift and drop. Byron's wife had checked out his dick and mentioned it. His cock was still like a steel bar from having Cheyenne's eyes on it.

Byron said, "Pretty crazy, huh?"

Sully looked over again as Chey set her long naked body next to Scarlet, putting an arm behind her for support, her feet in the pool water, leaning forward to say hi to Philippe, Philippe's legs still parted way too wide, showing off a pound of sausage dangling toward the water. Sully shook his head and let out a long exhale from parted lips. "Yup."

"We've got together so many times, I never once saw us getting naked like this. Did you?"

He shook his head no, eyes glued now to his wife's naked back, her crimson hair hanging down between her shoulder blades. Never mind being naked—what about the things Byron and Chey did with Carla and Cody? This was nothing compared to what Byron and his wife had done last night, if you wanted to talk about crazy. Eyes still on his wife, he muttered, "Scarlet can dream about it all she wants, there's no way she's sleeping with Philippe. Look at that thing. . . . Or Cody, for that matter."

Byron was silent for a long while, processing the unprompted statement. Then he punched Sully's shoulder and whispered, "I think that leaves me, Sully, my man."

Sully shook his head vigorously. "Not on your life, hotshot."

All this time since he'd pinged Byron coming out of Carla's bedroom, all he'd ever fantasized about was Carla. Byron had fucked Carla. And why couldn't it be him? Byron put his dick between Carla's tits, for crying out loud.

His dumb brain got hung up on the first instance of swinging he was exposed to.

Cheyenne. Cheyenne's perfect ass, so tight and round. Cheyenne checking out his erection.

Holy shit, did she do that as a come on? Was Chey flirting with him? Was that her way of saying, "Nice rod, Sully, wouldn't mind taking a spin on it sometime."

Fuck, his cock ached, but now his balls ached ten times worse. He had a ripe and bursting set of high-school-grade blue-balls right now. He crossed his legs as he leaned on the railing and flexed his thighs. The hurt didn't go away. The only way to get rid of it was to . . .

Fuck. He was so dumb.

Of course he wanted to sleep with Carla—that was so obvious. Who wouldn't? The woman was hot and dirty sex personified. But it was so obvious it also eclipsed an easier-for-Scarlet-to-digest and also hot-as-fuck opportunity to get under the bed sheets with Cheyenne. That would be way easier to negotiate than sex with Carla. Scarlet was too wary of Carla. And, holy cow, Cheyenne was so fucking hot.

Byron put his naked ass back on the railing like he did, crossing his arms. He said, "You know, this morning when Scarlet took her swimsuit off, and I thought I knew how this whole yacht trip just took a turn for the strange and kinky better, I got excited about how I would have fun taunting you and sniping you with shots about Scarlet and Cody or something, Scarlet and Philippe."

“You’re a real swell guy, Byron.”

“You would do the same.”

“Yeah, I would.”

Byron sighed, a satisfied sort of sound. “But maybe you and I should have each other to commiserate with.”

“Commiserate? I thought you were okay with the whole”—he whispered now—“swinging thing.”

“Yeah, I am. Kind of. But, you know, Philippe doesn’t have a wife, and Cody is already a swinger . . . that leaves you and me the most similar.”

Byron’s tone had taken on a heavier weight, like there was something on his mind. At first he smiled at the thought of coercing the info out of Byron and then sniping him with it later, but then realized, yeah, maybe commiserate was too strong a word, but it was still apt.

He said, “What’s on your mind, bud?”

Byron sawed his lower teeth over his top lip, contemplating it. He took a breath, then said, “Chey wants me to, uh . . .”

“Uh what?”

Byron chuckled and raised his eyebrows, having trouble saying what it was. Still without looking over, his eyes glued to Chey’s bare back as she sat at the pool’s edge, Byron said, “She, uh, she really, uh, she really wants me to, uh, watch her. You know? Watch her have sex with another man.”

Now Sully’s own eyebrows raised higher and his heart began to gallop in his chest. His cock flexed and angled higher, and a tickling stream of silvery pre-come dribbled from his urethra and dangled from his cock tip, swaying toward Byron in the breeze, growing longer and thinner as it stretched to touch down on the deck.

Holy shit. This was it.

Cheyenne wanted him—Sullivan, good old Sully, her best friend's husband—to fuck her while Byron watched.

CHAPTER 2

Whether Scarlet would sleep with Philippe was as yet undetermined. Still debatable. Or more accurately: could she sleep with Philippe? She had a distinct attraction to the man's genitalia, but they may be incompatible. The thing was truly gargantuan. She'd watch it from her lower periphery, pretending to engage Philippe in conversation while they talked, laughing, smiling, nodding, her eyes flicking downward every once in a while to look at it dangling over the edge of the pool toward the water. But the way Philippe was sitting—with his legs out wide, his balls and cock hanging right before her eyes—it was like he more than welcomed her gaze, he encouraged it. He knew he had something to be proud of.

She'd never known this about Philippe. Of their gang he was the least likely to show up at a function unless Cody and Carla were there. He was Cody and Carla's friend. And his wife Paloma wasn't unfriendly, just not as tight as the rest of the girls were—plus English was Paloma's second language, and Paloma sometimes must have felt left out even when they did their best to enjoin her in their fun.

Maybe the breakup between Paloma and Philippe was a result of the guy's penis. Like it was just too big. She couldn't take the day-after suffering.

She'd had a boyfriend once who had nine inches. Vinnie. Sometimes if they got too acrobatic, she'd be sore the next day. And that didn't ease over time, it was almost all the time after lively lovemaking. But, yeah, when Vinnie took his time and they played around a little, she'd loved that thing he'd had between his legs. Philippe had more than nine inches. He looked eight inches sometimes even when he wasn't hard. Sometimes while they were talking it would shrink up a little, one ball would go up or down, his penis would shorten. Other times it sagged and lengthened. It had a mind of its own. Vinnie had a long cock, but it was a normal girth. Sully was pretty thick. Her husband had a pretty great dick, truth be told. But Philippe's was wider than her wrist, just sitting poolside with a lazy dick, not hard at all.

If she ever got the will to actually for real swing with Philippe, it would just be foreplay. She'd like to get between his hairy, muscular legs and play with his big floppy dick, get it hard, run her tongue on it, peel back his foreskin and—

Cheyenne's voice: "Don't you think?"

Scarlet said, "What?" Totally lost in her own world. No, the world of big penises.

"He'd kick us off," Cheyenne said.

Now Philippe laughed. "No way. We paid to be here. No one cares, Chey."

"Back me up, Scarlet," Chey said, brows knitting.

"About what? What are we talking about?" She laughed and shook off her reverie, totally embarrassed. Her nipples had hardened and she'd grown damp sitting here thinking about dick. A married woman. Thank goodness her legs were crossed.

Philippe smiled at her knowingly, and it unnerved her—like he knew her thoughts, knew he'd spellbound her with his big penis presented the way it was, swaying back and forth like a hypnotist's pendulous pocket watch. He said, "Chey thinks the captain will kick us off the yacht if he catches us all naked."

She laughed and shook her head.

Chey said, "He'll think we're shooting a porno."

"Where are the cameras, Chey? Back me up, Scarlet, we are definitely not the first people who've been naked on the ship this way."

She regarded Chey, her friend with anxiety, out of her shell and swinging, but now reverting to her old fretful ways, worried about getting in trouble by the authorities and how embarrassed she'd be.

She hooked an arm around Chey in support for this woman she cared about so much—a thing she had done a hundred times—only now that they were naked, the act that their breasts touching, her hard nipple batting against her sorority sister's hard nipple. They both realized it and laughed, reeling back from each other, scooting their butts apart on the pool edge. She could still feel the tickle on her nipple where Cheyenne's had touched it. They laughed and showed each other icky expressions.

They still chuckled but shared an awkward moment together, getting through it and shrugging it off, but at the same time, in this sexually charged morning, she couldn't help feeling like this was too strange, and too far. There were lines not to cross and that was one of them. This wasn't a free-for-all. Hell, really, it was nothing—it was just her setting off some firecrackers to make Sully jump, not her stepping foot into the world of swinging and bacchanalian orgies.

Breasts not touching, sitting now a foot's distance between hips, she held the back of Cheyenne's neck and caressed it. "Chey can get worked up. She doesn't like to do the wrong thing."

Philippe threw up his hands. "That's what I'm saying, Scarlet. There isn't a wrong thing. Not on this yacht. We can do whatever we want and the captain's not going to care. As long as we're not smashing the furniture up with axes or commandeering the yacht and steering it into icebergs, the guy won't care. He's not even going to come aboard, anyway. Not without a warning."

Scarlet continued to caress Cheyenne's tense neck, saying, "We do need a warning from the captain before he boards. I don't know if you know it, but back in the sorority, Chey and I used to worship Moloch. We would definitely get kicked off if the captain caught us naked and preparing a human sacrifice to our god."

Cheyenne at last relaxed and loosened, and put a hand on Scarlet's wrist, smiling. "We promised we would quit sacrificing," she said.

"It's kind of addictive," Scarlet said. "And promises are made to be broken."

Then she turned, smiling at Philippe, who also was chuckling. Only something had changed, and she couldn't help her eyes widening. That thing between his legs, dangling toward the pool water, had grown. It had gone through different iterations while they'd talked, shrinking and extending, but this new turgid growth was definitely from arousal. It had thickened as well as lengthened, and it had begun to levitate from where it emerged from his body, lifting up from his sack in a heavy arc, the coronal rim of his large cock head pressing out against the foreskin.

This time Philippe caught her looking at it and the moment was awkward for both of them. Her cheeks went hot and Philippe did a sort of sly but sheepish smirk, and right away she knew what had provoked it: when she'd hugged Cheyenne and their breasts had touched.

That strange and uncomfortable knowledge made her fingers tingle in an unexpected way and her heart raced faster. Now she smiled at Philippe, too, a sort of sympathetic expression, showing him she understood the troubles of a high-testosterone male witnessing two hot sorority sisters accidentally squash breasts together. It also charged her up with an unexpected feeling of power over Philippe, he of the massive weapon, who probably had girls jumping into his bed whenever he wanted.

Philippe lifted his butt off the pool edge, muscles in his shoulders bunching, and pushed off, slipping into the pool, feet first, giving her a wink on the way. Somehow the wink didn't come off as arrogant—she interpreted it as a tip of the hat, like he knew she'd been playing around with him, teasing her husband, and he didn't think she'd get the better of him. Maybe he even thought she'd squashed breasts with Chey for his benefit. But she had got the better of him. That also meant that the whole time he'd been sitting with his legs wide apart, he'd been doing it for her benefit, showing off to her the thing he suspected she liked.

Her icky expression returned, but with it also came a shiver of arousal. That had been a strangely intimate exchange between her and Philippe. She'd only been doing this to rile Sully, to see how he might react, to make him a little crazy—but there had been an odd connection she shared with Philippe in that moment, like the two of them were sizing each other up and enjoying this dance of flirtation, both of them thinking they were better than the other.

She chuckled and faced Chey, Philippe in the water under their feet, doing a breaststroke and crossing to the far side. His naked ass—a really nice one—visible under the sparkling water’s surface. She leaned close, their sun heated shoulders touching. “I won.”

Chey said, “Won what?”

“I don’t know,” Scarlet said. “But I know I won. Did you see the size of that thing?”

Chey nodded, her mouth squished to one side, her expression a little bewildered.

“You only saw it soft, huh? I wonder how big it gets.”

Chey’s eyes widened, turned down to the water but unseeing. Her mouth opened and she took a breath like she would say something, then changed her mind. She chewed her cheek nervously and looked around.

Scarlet asked her what she was thinking but Chey shook her head and said, “Nothing. I’m not thinking anything.” Her cheeks had blushed.

Scarlet whispered to her, “Okay, don’t make a big deal—I want you to kind of peek over my shoulder, take a look at Sully, tell me how he’s taking this. Do not let him see you.”

Chey chuckled and nodded, began untangling her hair and shaking it out. She leaned closer to Scarlet and let her eyes flick back to where their husbands stood behind them by the railing. Their sides pressed together and Chey whispered, “He looks pretty green. I don’t think it’s sea sickness. Did you talk to him about this at all?”

Scarlet whispered, “About what?”

“Swinging.”

Scarlet shook her head. “No. We’re not going to swing, baby. I just want to drive my man crazy. A jealous husband is easier to manage and isn’t going to stray. I want it so all he’s thinking about is me.”

Though—if they were to swing, if she did want to put her hands on Philippe and play with his huge penis, Sully would also get to play, and she sure didn’t want him going to Carla’s bedroom. Carla might break Sully in two. Or worse, give him things she couldn’t give him. Though she had no idea what those things might be.

Her eyes went up and down Cheyenne’s naked body. Her sweet friend, her beloved sorority sister. God, Chey was beautiful. The way her skin took color from the sun made Scarlet envious. And they looked quite the same, too. Similar height and build and features. Cheyenne wouldn’t rock Sully’s world. It would be much like Sully was sleeping with his own wife.

Cheyenne would be a back pocket play. If she decided to spend some time with Philippe, and, of course, if Sully allowed it, she could encourage Sully to go to Cheyenne instead of Carla and her vast repertoire of sexual tricks.

Cheyenne said, “Why are you making that face?”

“Oh,” she said, relaxing her features. The distaste she had for Sully being with any other woman showed on her features. “Just thinking.”

“You’re not going to do it? Swing, I mean.”

Chey was worried if her buddy Scarlet had the restraint not to indulge, it meant she thought Chey was weak or perhaps immoral. And she didn’t think that at all. “I want to,” she admitted, nudging her chin to the big, hairy, muscular man coming up for air on the far side of the pool, swiping his black hair away from his rugged, bearded face. “I’m just playing around for now. I’m trying to torture Sully.”

Chey smirked sideways, hiding it from their husbands. She said, “You’re so mean.”

Scarlet chuckled, fluttered her feet in the heated pool water. “Yeah, I’m so mean. Right. Tell me this: if I’m so mean why are you laughing?”

Chey hid a bigger laugh behind a graceful hand. “Because it’s pretty funny.”

Scarlet said, “You ain’t seen nothing yet,” slipped into the pool, buck naked, and swam toward Philippe.

CHAPTER 3

Sullivan watched his wife slip into the pool, in obvious pursuit of Philippe. He groaned and clenched a fist over his diaphragm.

Byron said, “She’s totally playing you.”

Sullivan tore his eyes away from the pool, turned and put his elbows on the railing, looking beyond the yacht’s stern, out at the turquoise sea and the hazy tropical horizon. His cock was as hard as an iron bar and the ache was as bad as when he first discovered that his little thing could get hard, all the way back fifteen years ago.

“Holy shit,” he said, wringing his hands together.

Byron didn’t turn, still watching what Cheyenne and Scarlet and Philippe were up to.

Though Sullivan had looked away, what was happening behind him never left his thoughts—he whipped around again, hand-heeling down his northward pointing erection. He tried to push it between his legs, but it wouldn’t go. It was too stiff and unforgiving. He gave up. “This is so freaking crazy,” he muttered.

“Now you know how I feel,” Byron murmured.

Sully said, “Yeah, but you got to titty-fuck Carla.”

Byron grumbled, shifted his hips. His little bean was hard as a rock, too—both their wives driving them wild like horny high-schoolers.

Byron said, “You should get her back.”

“Get who back—Scarlet?”

“She’s either messing with you or about to have an affair right under your nose.”

Sully grumbled again. “She thinks she’s so slick and smart.”

“She knows where all your buttons are.”

“I’m not a hard instrument to play.”

Byron looked down at his erection—not long enough to be weird—then returned his eyes to Sully’s again, saying, “Playing your piccolo.”

Sully said, “Scarlet knows how to play all my favorite songs,” his voice squeezed tight.

Byron sighed. “Pretty wild, isn’t it?”

Sully looked over at Byron, who, despite having endured all this torment himself already, seemed to be smiling. Didn’t seem at all bothered by Cheyenne’s behavior—though it paled currently compared to Scarlet’s behavior. But the previous night, Cheyenne had gone for the Full Monty with Cody. Then again, Byron got the Full Monty with Carla.

He said to Byron, “I should get her back?”

“Totally. Two can play that game. I can tell you one thing: she will not like it.”

“I’m going to make it so all she can think about is me. She’ll forget all about Philippe and that, that...” He motioned with his hands, showing how big Philippe's organ was.

"That's the spirit," Byron said.

Scarlet's head bobbed up at the far end of the pool, very close to Philippe. Both of them all smiles and white teeth. Talking low and laughing. Bodies naked and way too close together.

Why the fuck was he thinking like this? He wasn't supposed to like this. He was supposed to be angry—well, shit, he was fucking angry. What was unexpected was a very real bodily reaction. A positive one. His veins stood out on his arms, even down in his pelvis. His heart thundered in his ears. His dick was the hardest it could be. Nobody had touched it, nobody had said to him they were going to touch it, no one around here was about to dip into a bedroom with him . . .

But now his eyes settled on Cheyenne instead of Scarlet.

Exactly.

Two can play that game.

Byron said Cheyenne wanted him to watch her. He could show Cheyenne a thing or two. Maybe Scarlet should find out about that. He wondered if Chey had broached the subject with Scarlet yet. How would that go?

Shit—maybe that's why Scarlet was being such a tease. Flirting with Philippe right under his nose. Chey asked Scarlet if she could sleep with Sullivan so Byron could watch, and Scarlet took it a bad way. Didn't like it. Now Scarlet was pretending to be all over Philippe so she could manipulate her husband. Get control of him.

Or, shoot, how about this: maybe Scarlet was into it? This was her saying she wanted to sleep with Philippe if he could sleep with Cheyenne. But the answer was no on Philippe. No way. One night with that guy and his enormous dong, what empty shell of a woman would be returned to him? Could he look his wife in the face, knowing she'd been with that snorting, hairy, barnyard-hung bull of a man?

Scarlet had been with other men. He knew that . . .

No, Philippe was out of the question.

It was Byron or no one. Though he wasn't keen on that either.

Then again, they could do a nice and easy wife swap. Cheyenne and Byron, Scarlet and good old Sully. No offense to Byron, but he wasn't packing a python. It wasn't much longer than Sully's, but he knew he had some good girth. Byron could sleep with Scarlet and she wouldn't be returned to her husband with a sagging wizard's sleeve that he would never hope to fill again. And boy, he wasn't hung like Cody, but he bet he could rock Cheyenne's world.

Cheyenne was beautiful. Look at her now, sitting poolside, feet in the water, her sexy back to him, long arms down at her sides, her hands curled over the pool edge. She had long, glossy hair that went almost to her tailbone. And her skin was flawless and tanned. He'd just about popped his cork seeing Scarlet throw a pale, freckled arm around Chey and hug her.

Wow, think about that one, Sully old boy: all four of you in a room together. Cheyenne and Scarlet naked. He licked his lips, thinking about it, folding his arms, his iron cock throbbing with his heartbeat. Yeah, all four of them. Cheyenne and Scarlet touching each other, kissing maybe. Getting themselves horned up for a little husband swap. Byron could watch Sully put his fat bar inside Cheyenne. He'd link his fingers between hers, feel those long legs fold around his back as he drove inside—

He heaved for a sudden breath, bent over with his hands on his knees. A long, unending pulse of pre-come surged from him and fell to the deck. If he wasn't careful, he could end up slip-and-sliding all the way into the pool.

Byron said, "You all right? This shit getting to you?"

"A bad part of me," he said, panting, playing it up for comedic effect, "is trying to convince me this is a good thing."

Byron said, "I've been there. Only I had Carla whispering into that bad part of me. Whispering all the things she would do to me. I didn't stand a chance."

"I can't even take this anymore," Sully said, sudden anger riling him. The anger was undirected. Not aimed at Scarlet or Philippe or anyone. Just a surging testosterone wave that made him abrasive and disgruntled.

Yeah, get the upper hand. Give it back to Scarlet. Show her what's for. Two can play that game.

He left Byron at the railing, walked around the lounge chair toward Cheyenne's naked back. Pre-come still dribbled, and he didn't even care if Cheyenne saw. Cheyenne was a swinger now. She was all kinds of dirty. Sweet and innocent Cheyenne had been transformed, and Sully was going to partake.

But as he got closer, he could see into the pool now. Under the water his wife and Philippe were cavorting. Swimming circles around each other, having fun and playing.

Shee-it, did Philippe have a hard-on?

It was hard to tell with the ripples in the water's surface, but he swore that thing was at attention. It deflated his own balloon.

Cheyenne sensed him standing at her side and looked up. “They’re just playing around,” she said sheepishly, like she expected him to lose his shit and jump in the pool and start a fight with Philippe.

He took a breath, let it out. Took another breath and held it. Slowly, he exhaled out through his nose and calmed himself.

Two can play that game.

He looked back to make sure Byron was watching. Cheyenne wanted Byron to watch her with another man. He nodded to Byron, showing Byron that his friend Sullivan was that man. Sully could manage the responsibility. Like Byron said: commiseration.

Byron looked grim.

Sully set himself down right next to Cheyenne. The two of them naked, hips almost touching. A breath apart. He wondered what it would feel like if their hips were touching. His cock stood blazingly upright between his legs. A shiny trickle slipped from the slit. He wanted Cheyenne to see it. She’d seen it before and said he must be pleased to see her. He was pleased to see her. Cheyenne was pleased to see him.

He leaned his hands behind him and put his weight back, letting his erection sit upright in full view for Cheyenne.

God, and when she looked at it again, he felt his stomach flutter, and more pre-come dribbled. Cheyenne’s eyes flitted toward his, and there was an unreadable expression. She was enlivened somehow, definitely aware that her best friend’s husband was sitting next to her with a very thick hard-on dribbling sexual lubricant. Maybe tonight, they’d all get together and they— Cheyenne looked away, then looked back, past Sullivan and toward Byron.

That's it, exchange looks. Let Byron know this is a go. Let Byron know your next partner swap is going to be with me—who obviously has no performance problems. No, quite the opposite.

He would show Cheyenne the time of her—

Cheyenne heaved off the pool lip and slipped into the water, going straight down deep, her feet touching the pool bottom, her body coiling and springing up with the strength of her legs. She emerged on the opposite side of the pool. Scarlet spotted her and thought it was hilarious to have another partner in crime. She shoveled water at Cheyenne's face, Cheyenne's cheeks all blushed. Totally turned on, probably. He knew the feeling. In fact, he wasn't going to make it to tonight. No way, no how. He could feel it happening. Changes in his body. Chambers opening, vessels contracting, vesicles inflating.

He was going to come. Right in front of everybody.

Watching his wife play around and tease him, messing around with naked Philippe, seeing Byron naked and aroused, telling him Cheyenne wanted him to watch her have sex with another man, Cheyenne seeing his boner and saying how he was glad to see her, laughing it off, like she was okay seeing it. Shit, six months ago they had dinner together, all four of them, zipped up and wearing button-downs and nice dresses, meeting in the city for a delicious Michelin three-star meal. A little wine, a little whisky. They went for coffee and dessert at Sant Ambroeus later, down in SoHo. They parted ways after, and that was it. No mention of any possibilities of this nature. But look at them now. No clothes, and practically no rules.

He couldn't take it anymore.

He shook his head at Scarlet, who pretended to just notice he was there, giving him a surprised face, like, Oh, hey, honey, when did you get here? He smiled and nodded, showing his malicious, loving wife that, yes, she'd won. That would make Scarlet very happy. She beamed.

But he would have the last laugh.

He stood now, gave her another nod, got Scarlet to laugh again. Then he left. Didn't even look Byron's way.

Once he was out of their view, he was quick stepping into the yacht's air-conditioned interior, totally naked, cock bouncing.

Which fucking floor was he on?

Shit, he had to take the stairs.

He gripped the end of his dick, not wanting to leave a silvery trail of arousal from the pool to his suite—but the way he was pulsing got his grip slipping wild tickles on the end of his throbbing cock.

Then he was bounding down the hall, jerking himself, spilling his seed as he thought about what might happen tonight. Thought about getting naked with Cheyenne. Watching Cheyenne's face as he went inside her while Byron watched . . .

He wasn't even going to make it to the bathroom.

He shouldered open the bathroom door, kneed it shut behind him and twisted the lock. He bowed over the sink, hand shuffling quickly on his cock, picturing himself going inside Cheyenne.

His knees shook.

He thought of Scarlet, too. Scarlet with Byron.

Scarlet tricked into this so he could sleep with Cheyenne . . .

An enormous swirling ball of guilt poisoned his system, and he tried pushing it away. It persisted, and he felt his orgasmic swell abate.

Now he growled in anguish and rolled his sweaty forehead against his sweaty forearm. And he did what he didn't think he would do: he pictured Scarlet, not with Byron, but with Philippe. And just as he pictured Cheyenne's face as he entered her, now he pictured Scarlet's face as Philippe struggled to slide that oversized organ inside his beautiful wife. The discomfort showed on her face, mixed with awful ecstasy, and loving the dark, swirling pleasure of it all, scratching her nails on Philippe's hairy shoulders, biting his muscular chest, taking inch after monstrous inch, and, oh golly, the cries Scarlet would make as Philippe fucked her.

And that was that. His conscience was clear, and a tidal wave of illicit pleasure slammed through him. He jerked and bucked and leg-wobbled, almost collapsing, pelting the sink and the counter and the cupboards with ropes of his massive explosion.

CHAPTER 4

First thing Sully said to her when she finally found him was, “You are the most evil person I know,” and she broke out laughing. She’d thought maybe she’d gone too far when he’d disappeared from the poolside and stormed off into the yacht’s interior. They’d exchanged looks, and she’d thought he’d been okay with her devious fun, but then he’d high-tailed it away and it occurred to her the game may have been too much.

His expression changed her mind. Sully was wild-eyed and rattled, stooped on the bathroom floor and cleaning the cupboards with a hand towel. Her husband buck naked, his muscles moving under his skin and looking really hot right now. She folded her arms and leaned against the open doorway, watching him. “What are you doing?”

All angry, he said, “What does it look like I’m doing?”

“Little weird to be doing housekeeping right now, don’t you think? Middle of the day, sun shining . . . look at me, still naked, not doing a single chore.”

Sullivan paused his wax-on/wax-off motion to shoot her a dirty look, then his eyes roamed her naked body, and she liked the change that showed in his expression. But he resumed his cabinet wiping.

“Honestly, Sully, baby, what are you doing?”

“Cleaning up your mess,” he said, standing finally, dick at half mast, tossing the towel into a hamper.

She began to question him further but didn’t utter a word before Sully had stepped into her space, catching her off balance the way she leaned, one foot on top of the other, and taking her arms, pulling her into him and kissing her neck. His snuffling and nibbling got her skin to goose bumps, and she giggled and sighed, letting her husband take advantage of her. Her arms went around his neck and she told him to get her into their bedroom right away.

Sully dipped and grabbed her thighs, and she locked legs around his waist, kissing him as he carried her down the short hallway-walk to their bedroom suite.

Once in their room, he hip-checked the door closed and stepped close to the bed, tossed her on it, and followed, getting right over top of her. He said, “You have fun down there?” His stare was serious but lusty.

She said, “We’re on vacation, aren’t we? You don’t want me to have fun?”

Sully bit his lower lip and narrowed his eyes. “You are one little brat. You always think you’re one step ahead of me.”

“If I was a step ahead of you, wouldn’t it be me up here in the indoors, cleaning the bathroom?”

“See what I mean? You can’t quit playing games.”

“What game am I playing?” Her hands went up and down his sides and she wanted him inside her so bad right now.

He scowled. “I painted the bathroom white, and it’s all your fault.”

“What are you saying?” Then it hit her. “Oh!”

“Yeah, you and your dirty game. You happy now?”

“You didn’t . . .” Was he saying what she thought he was saying?

“You think it’s funny working me up?”

“I thought it was hysterical—now I like it even better,” she said and palmed his erection. The thing was like a fat iron rod. “Ooh, Sully.”

Sully groaned and hid his face a second, tucking his chin into his armpit and breathing heavy. Her hand stroked up and down and his cock went slippery against her palm. “Did I make my man come all by accident?”

Sully shook his head and looked at her again, smiling but wary. His hips lowered and she swept a new grip on his cock and guided his point to her canal, pushing the head into her eager pussy with the pads of her fingers. Her eyes rolled up feeling her husband sliding inside her, knowing she’d done this to him, drove him this wild.

Sully exhaled a breathy sigh of pleasure, like he’d just entered the gates of heaven. Then his eyes opened. “Why are you so fucking wet, Scarlet?”

She growled, “Why are you so fucking hard, Sully?”

“Oh my God, your pussy is so hot, but getting naked for another man’s what got you wet.”

She sneered and crinkled her nose. “Does that scare my big, strong husband?”

Sully chuckled but bared his teeth. “You’re such a fucking tease.”

She grabbed his ass cheeks and sunk her nails in them. “You don’t think it’s you who’s got me all hot and bothered?”

Sully grumbled with her torture, sliding his cock in and out at a slow and careful pace, enjoying how his wife felt gripping his cock. “You’re driving me crazy.”

“I love it.”

“I know you do. You’re a horny little tease, teasing me, teasing what’s-his-name.”

She laughed, then when Sully slammed her deep, she gasped. “You can’t say his name?”

Sully slowed his pace, the change swirling new pleasure in her stomach. Their connection was slick and slippery and so fucking good. Her husband was so big and hard right now. She rocked against him, studying his beautiful eyes. He said, “Say it. Say his name.”

She whispered slyly, “You want me to say his name?”

Sully’s cock twitched and flexed inside her, and she squeezed her thighs against his hips.

She looked into his eyes again. “His name’s . . . Philippe.”

Sully bucked and grunted, practically snarling at her, his cock cabling in her pussy, swelling harder, spewing pre-cum and making their union even wetter.

“I fucking hate that guy,” he growled.

“Why?” She smiled. “Philippe’s so nice.”

Sully snarled again and renewed a wild pace, thrusting himself deep, hips bashing against hers, rolling with her and fucking her so good. Fucking her like he had something to prove.

“I thought you . . . liked . . . Philippe,” she said, chuckling, gasping, her voice broken up by her husband’s passionate—and insanely jealous—thrusts.

“All right,” he said, “stop saying his name,” rolling his hips around, trying out some fantastic new angles.

She said it. “Philippe’s?”

Sully showed her his mean face. “You two were sure getting along,” he said through gritted teeth.

She arched her back, put a forearm over her forehead. “He’s, ah, mm, so easy to talk to.”

Sully grumbled with frustration, rose higher, grabbed behind her knees and put them up to her ears.

She hooted with pleasure as he pounded almost straight down, tip to base, the two of them getting the mattress complaining now. She locked her feet behind his neck, mewling with ecstasy.

“You sure liked talking to him.”

All this naughty banter reminded her of Cheyenne’s recounting of the dirty talk she and Cody had engaged in, how they’d role-played so Chey could get out of her own head.

She and Sully hadn’t had sex like the sex they’d had since this whole freaky endeavor had begun. Cheyenne’s dirty behavior had set off sparks in her own marriage, and she loved it.

She said, “Can’t I talk to him?” Now she pouted and put on her little-girl face. It drove Sully out of his mind. Hands on her knees again, he spread her folded legs out wide like butterfly wings, and buried himself deep inside her.

“God,” she gasped, “you’re so fucking good.”

Sully liked the compliment, sneering and smirking, his skin gone shiny from sweat. Her feet bobbed with his thrusts.

“Don’t you forget it,” he said, proud of himself.

Sweet and innocent, she said, “You mean when I’m talking to Philippe?”

Sully spanked her haunch, and she yelped and laughed. She grabbed his ass again, two hands, one cheek in each, guiding him to fuck her harder and faster.

He said, “Why do you like teasing me?”

“Because of this,” she said, without even having to think. Sully wouldn’t have ever had the confidence or drive to manhandle her like this when he was complacent and happy. “You’re a good fuck when you’re mad.”

Sully laughed, wounded, shaking his head at her in admonishment. “I’m not a good fuck otherwise?”

She laughed too, her nails dragging up his back, then grabbing his ticklish nipples. He bounced and grunted, batting her hands away, his cock making pleasure waves with all the unanticipated movement.

“I swear to God, Scarlet, when you try, you can turn me into an animal.”

“I, ah, didn’t do a thing, ba-baby.”

Sully paused, cock withdrawn, scowling at her. She grabbed his ass again and showed him the pouty face that drove him wild. He said, “You stripped in front of everyone, Scarlet. Byron saw your snatch”—he gave her a quick jab with his cock—“Cody, your buddy Philippe . . . you started this whole thing.”

“Don’t say that s-word, I hate that word.”

“Sorry. You showed everyone”—he jabbed her again, making her squeal—“that sexy vagina of mine.”

“Tell me I don’t own it.”

“You own it right now, baby,” she said, stroking his sides.

Sully took her wrists and put her hands above her head. She had turned him wild. “I own it for good, Scarlet,” he said in a low and grumbling tone she liked. “You think you’re like Cheyenne? Think you’re gonna sneak into Philippe’s room tonight?”

“Why is my big daddy so hung up on Philippe?” She showed him a sly, knowing smile and innocent eyes, totally aware of the one thing Sully would be thinking about. Hell, it was the one thing she was thinking about.

“You’re the one teasing me, Scarlet. Why’d you choose Philippe? Byron was right there.”

She swiveled her hips, reminding him this was dirty talk and not a conversation. “There’s just something about him.”

Sullivan’s cheeks went red. He didn’t even know what to say. She knew he was going to spank her before he even did it. She rolled a hip to let his hand crash against her haunch again.

“Something about him?”

“I don’t know what it is,” she whispered, rolling her eyes up like she was trying to figure it out herself.

Sully took one of her legs and flipped her over to her side. She yelped and laughed. He swatted her bottom, angled his hard cock against her opening and slid deep inside her canal. He gripped her waist, planted a hand on her upper thigh, and pounded her like he was angry. She laughed until the sheer overwhelming ecstasy of her husband’s sudden prowess sent her over the top. She shoved a hand down between her clamped thighs, and worked two middle fingers against her swollen clit, arched her neck, and went over the edge, crying out and gasping and winding her face under a pillow. Sully was right behind her, bucking and jerking, grunting then roaring, his cock swelling inside her as he ejaculated.

At last he collapsed beside her on the bed, both of them writhing weakly, gasping for breath. She pushed the pillow off her head, gripped it and tried batting Sully with it, but missed. He laughed and snatched it from her, tucking it under his head as she worked close to him, putting an arm over his sweaty chest and kissing his shoulder. He scooped an arm under her neck and hugged her close.

When she had her breath, she reached down between his legs and gave his deflating dick a wiggle. “Did you really pop your cork in the bathroom?”

“I hope you’re proud of yourself.”

“I am proud of myself,” she said. “Now I know how to get what I want out of you.”

“Don’t overplay it,” he said. “It’s a little intense.”

“See, though? We don’t need to swing.”

He said, “We don’t?”

She lifted her cheek off his sticky shoulder and frowned. “What, you wanted to?”

“You’re the one clinging to Philippe.”

She said in a softer tone, “You didn’t want to, did you?”

“No,” he said, but it wasn’t very convincing. She set her cheek down again, wondering who her stupid husband was thinking about. It better not be Carla. But then who? She shook her head, trying to get rid of the thought.

“You know I was just messing around,” she muttered.

“You sure looked interested in Philippe from where I was watching.”

“I wouldn’t swing with him,” she said.

Sully said, “With who then?” His tone was alarmed.

“No one, baby. I just have to make you jealous and I get everything I need.”

“You’re damn right,” he said, proud. Then, quiet and conspiratorial, he said,

“Chey wants Byron to watch her have sex with someone else.”

She chuckled. “I know. She’s all ashamed, like, Am I crazy, Scarlet? Cody really drives her wild.”

“Cody does?”

“Yeah. Why?”

He was quiet for a second, moving his head around. She looked up at him.

“Chey wants Byron to watch her have sex with Cody. What did you think?”

“That’s what I thought,” he said, but he looked like he was trying too hard to be convincing.

She said, “You look guilty.”

“Guilty about what?”

She narrowed her eyes. “Sully.”

His eyes widened, all pretend-innocent. “What?”

She shook her head, feeling sick over what she suspected her husband may have been thinking. She couldn’t even say it. Did her husband think Byron wanted him to sleep with Chey? Or . . .

She said, “Did Byron not say it was Cody?”

“He didn’t say anything about who.”

“Doesn’t he know who Chey wants him to watch her with?”

“I told you he didn’t say.”

She settled again, still bothered but pretending like she wasn’t. “I think Chey has a crush on Cody now.”

“What did she tell you?”

“I’m not telling you what she told me, Sully.”

“You’re my wife.”

She looked up again, showing him he wasn’t going to get her to spill with weak arguments like that. She said, “You’re worried he did things to her that you don’t want me to hear about?”

“What’s he going to do I don’t know about?”

Boy, now she had him. She couldn’t help smiling. She raised her eyebrows, said nonchalantly, “You might be surprised.”

Sully made a mean face, but was unsure if she was kidding. “What? It’s just his body. Guy has a nice body.”

“That’s all?”

Sully’s smile faded a little.

She was getting too close to angering him now, she could tell. Cody had a lot more than a great body. Chey said he had a great dick and a great dick game. He also had beautiful eyes, luscious lips, magnificent hair, a sense of humor, millions of dollars. Cody was too much to joke about.

She punched Sully’s upper arm. “I’m joking, you tool bag.”

“Ow,” he said and rubbed where she’d punched him.

She said, “Chey said she was weirded out by the whole swinging thing and Cody helped her through it. She liked that.”

“All those noises she made,” he lamented.

“Stop thinking about Cheyenne, please. You want me to talk about Philippe again?”

Now Sully’s eyes narrowed, pretending to be mean, like they were a couple of gunfighters ready to walk their paces before a showdown. He said, “You wouldn’t dare.”

His good mood had returned—and something told her this was his way of encouraging her to talk about Philippe again. She narrowed her own eyes, locked her gaze with his as she rolled over him, threw a leg over his hips and straddled his stomach. “You think I won’t?”

“You don’t have the guts,” he said.

Wow. Her husband, her good old Sully, had a jealousy kink.

She put her hands down on the bedding on either side of his neck, her hair spilling around his face. She said, “You ready for round two?”

“Show me what you got.” His breaths had deepened to a lusty sound.

She teased him, humping his stomach, lifting and dragging her sopping pussy against his skin. She still spilled his seed. It was all biding time, wondering how far she could take it. This was too much fun to make a mistake and spoil the whole thing. She went for it.

“You don’t have to worry about me swinging with Philippe.”

Sully looked for a punchline and didn’t see one, his eyes still narrow. “Why’s that?”

She got near his ear, let her voice get soft and sexy, slurring her S sounds, popping her P sounds in light puffs near his earlobe. “His penis is just way too big for me, baby. He’d hurt my little cookie.”

Sully groaned a sound of exquisite pain and she could hear him utter, “Oh my God,” underneath.

“Yeah, baby, he’s way too big for your wife’s little cookie.”

“Yeah?”

“Yeah. Bu-ut . . .”

Sully groaned again, writhing under her, delighted by her awful words. “But what?”

She bit her lower lip and waited for his eyes to open. When they did, she put a hand behind her and cupped her husband’s balls. She squeezed them and ran her palm over his growing dick. “I mean, I’m a little curious . . .”

He frowned. “About what?”

She bit his nipple, making him squirm. She looked up, whispering, “Maybe I could play around with his big, bad thing a little, daddy?”

Sully’s cock went from semi to rock-hard, like a rocket-ship blasting off. She squealed girlishly, pretending she was only joking, angled his cock where she wanted it and sat back until he was all the way inside her, her husband’s thighs trembling, his eyes wide and bewildered by her newfound power over him.

CHAPTER 5

One beneficial side-effect of being a yacht-vacation nudist was it curbed your appetite. When you were on full, uncovered display, those cravings for sugary alcoholic beverages and salty snack foods diminished. That being said, Chey found herself in the kitchen preparing herself a snack. Nothing but good choices: two carrots on the counter, one in her grip, her other hand shuffling the grater up and down its shaft, making a shredded carrot salad she would eat with some apple cider vinegar and organic raisins.

It was tremendously odd being alone in the kitchen without a stitch of clothing on, but she kind of liked it. If Penny from work had asked her what the wildest thing Chey would do on vacation, she probably would have come up with something lame, like jumping off the top deck into the sea. Something predictable and that made sense. Not that she ever intended to jump off the yacht. Though she hadn't intended to do this swinging and nude sunbathing thing, either. All the things she'd engaged in since the first night on the yacht had been wilder than she could ever have—

Behind her: "Our paths cross again, Miss Susan." The voice was a put-on cowboy drawl, confident and masculine. She froze. Now he said, "I'd recognize that pretty little behind anywhere."

She peeked over her shoulder to see Cody coming into the kitchen, wearing a loose tank top, and at first he thought he wore no pants at all. But no, Cody wore skimpy black bikini briefs, his package mostly hidden by the loose top. She couldn't help giggling, though she felt stupid doing it. She was standing with a vegetable peeler in one hand, a big carrot in the other, her naked butt against the yacht's marble countertop.

She brought her forearms up to cover her hardening nipples and crossed one leg over the other, protecting the view of her lady parts. But now her eyes were flitting as Cody continued his stroll toward her, dashing left and right, worried there were other eyes watching her. Watching them. But she saw no one.

Cody sauntered around the island, coming toe-to-toe with her. She bit her lower lip and said quietly—you never knew where someone was lurking within earshot—“Fancy meeting you here, cowboy.”

Cody smiled his dazzling smile, sunlight streaming through the kitchen windows and filling up the brilliant blue of his gorgeous eyes, turning them the same color as the turquoise waters around the shores of Waterlemon Cay. He touched above his forehead like he wore an imaginary cowboy hat, loomed closer, putting hands on either side of her hips, mouth close enough to kiss. He said, “Thought I'd never see you again.”

She bit her lower lip once more, eyes still darting left and right. “Looks like my group and I got snowed in. We're stranded in this one-horse town.”

“Looks like it,” Cody said.

“What's your excuse? Why didn't you ride your horse on out of here, trot off to wherever you're headed next?”

“Don’t you need help watching those school kids? Thought I might stick around, see who might need me.”

She said, “There are other parents here.”

Cody bounced his eyebrows. “Well, maybe you let them watch the kids, and I’ll show you the sights.”

She grinned and licked her lips. “What sights?”

He got close to her ear. “I wouldn’t mind starting where we left off, maybe take a tour around the Bozeman saddle,” he whispered, putting his weight onto one hand so he could use the other to trace along the curve of her breast with the knuckle of his index finger. She drew in a quick breath and held it. Her whole body shivered, and her nipple swelled hard.

“Don’t,” she whispered, smiling.

“We don’t have to stay there,” he said, “maybe I’ll take a tour down into the saddle.” He extended his long index finger to touch between her breasts. “Maybe you wouldn’t mind wandering down the valley”—now his finger dragged lower from her breastbone over her rib cage and touched the top of her tummy. She made an embarrassing peeping sound, went onto her tiptoes, shuddering enough to make the vegetable peeler rattle, and spun around.

Cody chuckled, said, “I heard your husband might be in town.”

She giggled and whispered, “Knock it off.”

Now in his own Cody-voice, he said, “What the hell’re you doing to that big carrot?”

“Making a salad,” she said.

“With no clothes on?” He moved away from her and gave her space, leaning his own butt on the counter and looking sideways at her, crossing those tanned muscular arms, his big well-formed fingers curving over his thick tricep, his own wedding finger glinting in the light.

She said, “Everybody’s going commando today,” and began shuffling the carrot with the peeler again, sending long skeins of orange carrot into her bowl.

Cody watched her work a moment, then said, “Gotta be better ways to make coleslaw.”

“I’m a little hungry, but I don’t want to eat. You know, nothing too substantial.”

“You should save some room.”

“Room for what?”

She expected one of his sly double entendres, something he wanted to stuff her with, but he said, “Carla’s got Arlo up on the grill deck. He’s brought out one of the coolers with the good food.”

“Oh, yeah?” Arlo was a chef in the city, worked at a three-star as a sous chef for Frankie Shellenberger, star celebrity chef and general New York City raconteur.

“Yeah, you know those coolers he brought? He’s got all sorts of stuff.”

“Why am I eating Froot Loops for breakfast?”

“Late nights, hangovers . . . the guy’s on vacation. Don’t worry, he did plan for some special dinners. Tonight: some wild yellowfish he cured and, like, marinated in pomegranates or some crazy shit.”

“Oh my God,” she said and lay a hand over her bare stomach. “Carla’s helping him?”

“My wife’s the sous chef today.”

“Aw, she left you all alone?”

He shrugged, whispered, “It’s driving me crazy watching your hand on that big thing.”

She looked down at her grip on the phallic carrot. “Will you knock it off?” she said, and faked a creeped-out shudder. She set the carrot down on the counter gingerly, like she didn’t enjoy seeing it in her hand with that thought in her head.

He said, “That’s better. That pretty hand is wasted on a boring old carrot.”

Dammit, he had ways of twisting her stomach around, turning her on when she wasn’t supposed to be turned on. But she couldn’t help herself. “What do you want me to put in it?” She held up her hand in front of his face and wiggled her fingers.

“Seems your grip has an affinity for a certain shape.”

“I don’t think I could grip anything much bigger than that carrot.”

“One way to find out,” he said, reverting to his sultry, cocky, cowboy drawl. Her eyes flitted around again, the two of them still alone. There were sounds of laughter somewhere beyond the window, but maybe the deck below. She said, “Thought you heard my husband was in town?”

He said, “There’s in town and there’s in the room. Just you and me right now.”

“He’d be so angry.”

“Angry about what?” He went to one hip, leaning it on the edge of the counter, arms still folded.

“Angry if I did this . . .” Her lower lip tucked under her front teeth, and she looked up into his dreamy eyes—her hand grazed down the draping front of his tank top and cupped the front of his swimming briefs. His package was too large for her hand. She brought her knees together and pressed them tight as a heat baked in her oven hot enough to set off the pre-heat chime. “Oh my gosh,” she gasped, disbelieving she actually did it, but not removing her hand. “You think you can get away with wearing this skimpy little thing?”

He cocked one eyebrow, comfortable with his genitals in her hand. “What are you saying?”

“You just don’t mind showing off what you got, do you?”

“Just a pair of swimming trunks, Miss Susan. What else am I going swimming in, long-johns?”

She gave a brief titter and covered her mouth with her unoccupied hand. She ran the pad of her thumb along the spandex material stretched over the sideways-curved shaft of his penis.

Cody looked down at her hand, then back up at her face. “You’re one to talk, standing there without a stitch on.”

She stuck out a hip, shocked at the boldness Cody encouraged from her. “You don’t like it?”

“It might make a problem with my skimpy little briefs, as you called them.”

“You worried you’re going to stretch them out?” She could feel his penis swelling. “You know, most of us around here aren’t wearing a thing at all.”

“Then what’re you complaining about my trunks for? Sounds like you don’t want them on at all.”

“What’s the point in wearing them, cowboy?”

He cocked his head. “I’m taking a little gal for a horseback ride.”

She frowned and tried not to pout. “What do you mean? Who?”

Back to his own voice now, Cody said, “I’m taking Lily on a jet ski ride. You want to come along?”

“I’m making a salad,” she said.

“Oh, come on now, honey-bunch,” he said, back in his cowboy drawl, grabbing her naked hip and pulling her close. “Miss Lily’s just an old friend. And she’s a married woman. I’m taking her out on the old Cherokee Trail and we’re gonna—”

“Have fun,” she said, and returned her attention to the salad.

Cody looked around, then swatted her bottom. She yelped, and almost dropped the carrot as she went on her tiptoes. She smiled and rolled her eyes, realizing she was being surly and petulant over a man who wasn’t her husband. “You can do what you want,” she said in an apologetic singsong.

Cody said, “I’d like it if you came along.”

She eyed him. “Is that you or the cowboy talking?”

He shrugged. “Both, I guess.”

She raised an eyebrow. “You collecting a harem now?”

He smiled and went back to his cowboy accent: “I like seeing you a little feisty, Miss Susan. There’s a fire in your eyes. I like a little—”

Cody lifted the draping front of his baggy tank top and shoved the fat, wet carrot down the front of his skimpy briefs.

Cody jumped back, stepping one knee high, laughing. “Dammit, Susan, that’s cold as shit.”

He pulled the carrot out of his swim trunks and stepped back into her space, his other hand cupping his big package and soothing it. She folded her arms and lifted her chin up, defiant. He wound the carrot in a circle, bringing it closer to her mouth, and she turned her face away.

He said, “Why don’t you slice up your salad with those little bunny choppers? Open that pretty mouth for mister carrot.”

She looked at him sideways, let him push the blunt carrot tip against her lips, strangely aroused that it had just been next to his penis. Her lips parted, and Cody guided the phallic carrot to push against her teeth. She accepted it in her mouth, looking him in his bright blue eyes. Cody smiled, and she saw that she was getting to him just as he was getting to her.

Then Lily walked in, and Chey just about screeched.

She chomped on the end of the carrot and snapped it off with her teeth, snatching the rest out of Cody’s hand and trying to look innocent. Her heart thundered in her ears and she felt her cheeks go hot and knew they would be red. But Lily bounced in, singing, “I’m all ready.”

Chey stepped sideways to put space between her and Cody, and Cody turned to face Lily on the other side of the island, tugging down the front of his tank top to cover his growing arousal. From her angle, she could see its beefy heft resting against the inside of his wrist.

Cody smiled wide and sly, but like he wasn’t hiding anything at all, just his usual charming self. He said to Lily, “You sure are ready, look at you.”

That jealous discomfort wormed through Cheyenne again, twisting up her expression and her stomach.

Shy Lily went all cute and bashful and rolled her eyes around, looking up at the ceiling and doing a cute little dance of tiny movements, showing off her sporty swimsuit.

Cheyenne covered her naked chest with folded arms, saying, “Yeah, yeah, that’s a good idea. Jet-skiing. I’m going to come along, Cody.”

CHAPTER 6

This trip got stranger and stranger, and the more things she saw like what she just saw, the more she was convinced there were things going on behind her and Arlo's back. When she walked into the kitchen, Cody held a big carrot and Cheyenne was sucking on it. Byron was nowhere around. When Cheyenne saw her coming in, she jerked so badly she almost hit the roof. She bit the carrot and stepped back like nothing was happening. Only, the way Chey did it told Lily something was definitely happening before she'd walked in. And given the oral nature of what she witnessed, it was obvious Cheyenne and Cody had something going. Cheyenne was cheating on Byron and Cody was cheating on Carla. It deflated her opinion of both of them.

Cheyenne was such a sweet girl. Lily would never have thought she would do something so terrible to Byron. And Cody and Carla were tight as a couple could be, at least she had thought so. Besides, Carla was such a flagrant vixen, such a sex-pot, how would Cody have the energy to seek something outside their marriage? Especially when Carla was right here on the yacht with him. Cody and Carla spent a lot of time apart because of their work, so if Cody got lonely, maybe he'd wander from their marriage when he was out in Texas or something—but not here with his insatiable wife an arm's length away.

It meant one thing: this was all Cheyenne. Lily could understand that. That made sense. Cody was a sex-pot in his own right. Tall, muscular, funny, crazy ice-blue eyes, charming, wealthy. Poor guy was probably playing along with Cheyenne so she wouldn't feel dejected. Look at her, sweet and innocent Cheyenne, standing naked in the kitchen, everyone else dressed. It was shameful. She felt sorry for her.

“Oh, good,” Lily said, cocking her head and appearing cheery, “the more the merrier.”

Cheyenne's mouth pursed, lips slimming, tugging to one side in a guilty, restricted smile. She'd covered her nakedness.

Lily said now, “Cody, are there two jet-skis?”

“You bet,” he said, all smiles, getting some distance between him and the naked woman who wasn't his wife. “Enough we could form our own hell-raising club. We could call ourselves the Waterlemon Angels, zip up and down the beaches, harassing the tourists.”

“You mean like bikers?”

Cody shot a finger pistol at her and winked. “Exactly what I mean, Miss Lily.”

She laughed and said to Chey, “What do you think?”

Chey's expression was less exuberant now. She said, “I think I need to get some clothes on.”

Lily said, “You'll need clothes if we hit the shore. I don't think there are any nudist shops on the Virgin Islands.”

Cody chuckled. “If there were, they’d probably have to change the name from the ‘Virgin’ Islands, you know what I’m saying?”

Lily said, “And who’d want to visit the ‘Hussy’ Islands, you know?”

The joke flopped. Cheyenne blushed. Lily said, “Oh, I didn’t mean you were like that. I just meant if the whole town was naked. I’m sorry, Chey.”

“No, I got it,” Chey said. “You guys don’t wait for me, I think I’m going to have a nap, anyway. The sun’s getting to me.”

“No, you should come along,” Cody said. “Go get a suit on.”

“Oh, no, no,” Chey said, backing away from them, sidestepping along the counter, covering up the parts that should already be covered. “It’s stupid taking two jet-skis. I . . . I need to find Byron, anyway. You guys go on and have fun, okay? Please?”

“If you insist,” Lily said.

The yellowfin was Australian, caught only days ago, cured in his own kitchen with a special mix of Caribbean sugar and French sea salt, then bagged and marinated in pomegranate juice and lime. He would definitely blow all his friends away with this one.

Carla said, “But what are we going to serve it with?”

He said, “What do you think of poached eggs and an aperol gel?”

Carla looked wowed. She said, “How do you come up with this stuff?”

“I don’t know,” he said. “I just have a passion.”

The two of them were working together in the outdoor grill area, under the cool blue shade of the expansive overhang of the deck above. The day beyond was beautiful and bright, and a perfect Caribbean breeze kept them cool.

Carla looked over her shoulder again. “You know, I was saying the other day to Cody how fucking proud I was of you. You really made it.”

“I don’t know about ‘made it,’ Carla. I’m still a sous chef.”

“Yeah, with Frankie fucking Shellenberger. And you’re only twenty-seven. Still? You say still? Man, I guess you don’t know it, but I name-drop the shit out of you.”

“You do not,” he said, chuckling.

“Of course I do.”

He admitted, “I might have name-dropped you and Cody once or twice.”

“Smoke ‘em if you got ‘em, right, buddy?” Carla crinkled her nose and squinted her eyes, screwing her face up close to his in warm camaraderie, and then laughing before returning her attention to the side table where he had her slicing his homemade brioche into cubes they could toast into croutons.

A quiet sputter from behind them, way down on the water, got him turning away from soaking his banana leaves in Scotch and honey. He turned, flicking the wet from his fingers, grabbing the pockets of his apron to dry his hands as he sauntered toward the back of the deck. He went around the bubbling hot tub and put his hands on the railing.

A jet-ski had emerged from the yacht’s built-in boat garage, geared low and wandering as the driver made sure everything was working the way he wanted it to. Arlo chuckled and smiled. Lily had chickened out of driving her own jet-ski, preferring instead to ride on Cody’s jet-ski, sitting behind him, her long blond hair spilling down her back and trailing sideways in the breeze. He was pleased to see she wore a life jacket.

He shouted, “Go, Lily!” She couldn’t hear him over the rumbling motor.

Now Carla sidled up next to him, saying, “What’s Lily doing— Oh, look at her. She’s going to have so much fun.”

“It’s so weird to see her on a jet-ski,” he said.

“It’s weird seeing city kids do anything but being surly and cynical in a trendy café. I love how Lily is up for an adventure, you know?”

“She’s been looking forward to this vacation. She needed it bad.”

“Sometimes we need it bad. Work been tough for her?”

“Nothing Lily can’t handle,” he said. Though that wasn’t entirely true. Her flower shop had just gone through an audit, and poor Lily had spent an entire month with hardly any quality sleep. That poor girl was sweet and clean as a whistle, and the agent wasted his time and Lily’s. It was great to see her put all that behind her, great to see an unnecessary burden completely lifted off her back.

Carla said, “I totally love her shop so much.”

“She appreciates your business,” Arlo said. Carla always ordered ‘the works’ from Lily whenever a client moved into a residence she’d found for them. Lily went the extra mile, looking into Carla’s clients and figuring what would wow them most.

Carla smiled and shook her head, made a soft sound of appreciation as Cody and Lily giggled about something, and Lily batted Cody’s shoulder, straddling the wave-runner’s seat, snuggled up right behind him. She said, “Lily never lets me down.”

Now they both watched as Cody completed all the instrument checking and made sure one more time Lily was ready to go. Lily nodded to Cody and put her arms around his middle, her chest pressed to Cody's back. Cody throttled the jet-ski, and it took off quick, a brief yell of excitement from Lily fading as they shot away from the yacht with a white spraying rooster tail spraying a dozen feet up and behind the racy jet-ski.

He said, "Where are they headed?"

Carla walked back to their outdoor cooking space, and Arlo followed her. "I think Cody said they'd go to shore and poke around. He said Lily was up for it."

"Yeah, she'd love to go walk around and check out the flora, I'm sure. Maybe go hiking."

Carla laughed, swaying her hips, padding in bare feet to her worktable where she'd been cutting up the brioche. "They didn't look dressed for hiking."

"No, I guess not. She wouldn't like chafed ankles with those water sandals she's wearing."

"Her poor tootsies," Carla said. "They'll have a coffee or something, ice cream, check out the shops."

Arlo returned to his work area and got back to prepping dinner. Carla finished cutting up the brioche and arranged it on a steel pan like he'd asked her to. She came to watch him work as he began preparing to smoke the yellowfin.

"What's that?"

He held up the bright green leaf, dripping its marinade back into the stainless bowl filled with its leafy brethren. "These are banana leaves from Hawaii. I'm going to wrap the yellowfin with the leaves, then smoke it."

Carla got closer, and his eyes darted on their own to the cleavage she'd accidentally exposed. Carla had perfect breasts, large without going too far, and wonderfully full in their shape. She'd pushed them together the way she'd put an elbow down on the worktable, leaning in close to see what he was doing. He tugged his eyes away, saying, "I soaked the banana leaves in some raw honey Lily and I bought upstate, and thinned it with some blended scotch. I add some sea salt to the fillet . . ." He sprinkled a few pinches of salt over the yellowfin with theatrical flourish for entertainment purposes, and Carla chuckled.

She said, "I totally love watching you work."

"Maybe one day I'll get my own show."

"You're too nice, Arlo. And I mean that in a good way. Too many of these celebrity chefs are so arrogant and pretend to be perfectionists just for the appearance of it."

He smirked, patting out a criss-cross layer of banana leaves and laying the fillet over it. "You're saying I'm not a perfectionist?"

"You are perfect," she said softly. "Perfect in your own way."

"You mean I'm not an asshole?"

"That's exactly what I mean. I like how you're quiet and dedicated to your craft. There's nothing objectionable, just, I don't know, like you said: passion."

"Well, the good news, Carla, is I never want a cooking show."

"I'm glad to hear it." She patted his back, then her hand remained and went in slow circles, her eyes on his hands as he worked. He wrapped the leaves around the yellowfin, then retrieved his rough twine, soaking in a bowl of water. "The water makes sure the twine won't smoke. We want just the scotch and the honey and the banana leaves."

“It’s like a Christmas present,” she said as he tied the tight bundle in a bow. Her hand left his back, and she rested her chin on her two palms, her hip jutting out. There was that cleavage again.

Carla said, “You have such graceful hands.”

As he lay out the leaves for the next bundle, she gripped his left hand and ran her thumb over the backs of his fingers. “Such long fingers.” She let her hand drag away from his, the pads of her fingers tracing across his skin.

He looked at her quizzically and she smiled, her eyes dazzling but still half-lidded and unperturbed, a sharp angle to her delicate eyebrows. “You have the hands of an artist,” she said. Then, almost to herself, she added in a soft sigh: “I’ve always liked artists. They’re always so good in bed.”

Arlo looked over his shoulder, beyond the hot tub and the railing, to the sea where he’d last seen his wife heading off with Carla’s husband, her arms wrapped around Cody, heading to shore; Carla here with him, spending time helping him prepare a feast for tonight.

His eyes returned to Carla, who stared off dreamily to the side. Her breasts were squashed together, her head turned away, giving him the opportunity to ogle her most prominent physical asset. Inviting him to look. Her nipples had swelled slightly and pressed out against the fabric of her top.

Arlo smiled, getting back to work, tying another yellowfin bundle. He said, “Divide and conquer.”

Carla’s face turned up to his, all sweet, girlish innocence. “What’s that, sweetie?”

He smiled again, wider, eyes turned down to his work. “What are you up to, Carla?”

CHAPTER 7

Scarlet made fruit punch from frozen concentrate, crushed four cups of ice in the refrigerator's built-in ice machine, put it all in the blender, added half a bottle of vodka and turned it slushy. She sliced oranges and put them like pinwheels on the lips of the glasses. She texted Cheyenne, asking her where the heck she was.

While she waited for Chey to get back to her, she shimmied and danced on the slippery kitchen floor, winging open the fridge door, grabbing three tubes of rolled imported sausage slices from last night's leftover charcuterie tray, popped them into her mouth, shifting from hip to hip and fanning the refrigerator door open and closed, blasting some cold air on her still-sweaty chest. She'd put clothes on.

Her session with Sully had doused her fire. She couldn't even believe she was the same person who stripped in front of everyone this morning. She was in a swimsuit now, and a light, see-through caftan. Her phone dinged, and she moonwalked her way backwards to the counter. The text was from Cheyenne, saying she was sitting out back above the swimming deck.

"I was looking all over for you," she muttered, picked up the two frosty glasses and headed out of the kitchen, through the dining room, into the back of the yacht. She passed by the glass walls of the swimming pool where she'd cavorted with Philippe, taunting her husband. She snickered, looking up at the pool surface to see if her big-dick lover-boy was still hanging around poolside, waiting for her to come back. No sign of him.

Then she was outside, under the shade of the level above her, but in the fresh outdoors. Cheyenne sat at the top of the stairs with her elbows on her knees, chin in her palms, admiring the Caribbean Sea.

“Peekaboo,” Scarlet said and toe-poked Cheyenne’s side as she came up beside her and sat down.

Chey jumped and tucked back an elbow protectively. “Don’t,” she said.

Scarlet could tell from her face that anxious Cheyenne had returned. “Oh, come on, grumpy,” she said, and passed over the big 24-ounce tumbler of frozen vodka and fruit punch with an orange slice.

Cheyenne’s expression changed into one of relief and joy, and she took the offering with two hands, put the straw between her lips and sucked a long steady draw. She hummed the sound of exquisite satisfaction.

“That will fix whatever ails you,” Scarlet said, adjusting her caftan, putting her own straw in her mouth and taking a drink.

They sat saying nothing for a while, and Scarlet waited for Cheyenne to divulge what was bothering her this time. Chey had also put clothes on: jean shorts, Birkenstocks, and a T-shirt.

When Chey didn’t say anything and they were almost halfway down their tumblers of alcoholic fruit punch, Scarlet said, “All bundled up again?”

Cheyenne tugged at Scarlet’s caftan. “You’re dressed, too.”

“And I had a shower as well.”

When Chey looked over, Scarlet wriggled her eyebrows in a salacious manner. “All that labor, flirting with Philippe, paid off. Sully couldn’t keep his hands off me.”

Cheyenne scrunched her nose. “Oh. Okay. Good for you guys.”

Scarlet still wanted to cheer up her friend, wanted to tell her everything that had just happened, but it was kind of personal. She said, “I think Sully had ‘an accident.’”

Cheyenne frowned, not getting it. “Pooped?”

“What? No, not pooped. I wouldn’t tell you that.” Then she cocked her head.

“No, maybe I would. But no, not that. All my teasing drove Sully a little too crazy, if you know what I mean.”

“Oh,” Cheyenne said, “I got it. He was pretty horned up.”

“What do you mean?”

“He was walking around naked like it was no big deal, you know?” She made a fist and put up her forearm at the angle of an erection.

Scarlet chuckled. “I think he was too proud not to strip down when everyone else did—then, you know, things happened.”

“Things definitely happened,” Chey said, poked the straw into her drink and stirred it around, then slugged some more back, bypassing the straw and slurping right from the glass’s lip.

Scarlet stirred her drink around, too, wondering what Cheyenne was getting at. Sully was strutting around with an erection? And then she thought about her uncomfortable supposition about her husband’s nefarious thoughts after conversing with Byron. Sully thought he was a candidate to sleep with Chey while Byron watched. Without looking at Cheyenne, she said, “What, did he put it in your face or something?”

Chey shook her head, upended her tumbler, drinking until it was dry. Scarlet said, “You were thirsty.”

Cheyenne said, “Is there any more?”

She nodded. “Half a blender. He didn’t stick his dick in your face, did he?”

“No. He was just out and proud, walking around with that thing like he was dowsing for water. But it was pointing in the wrong direction, up instead of down.”

Scarlet nodded. “Is everything okay?”

Chey had been waiting for it. She instantly slumped against Scarlet’s side, and Scarlet hooped an arm around Chey’s shoulder. “What is it now?” she said with support, but also comical acknowledgment that Chey always added drama even when they were all full up with it.

Chey said, “It’s me. I almost let you-know-who fuck me over the kitchen counter.”

“Who, Cody?”

Chey pushed away. “Who else?”

“So what happened?”

“I’m standing there naked, making a salad, and he comes into the kitchen, he’s pretending to be”—she looked behind her to make sure no one was sneaking up on them, then got close, whispering, “you know, pretending he’s a cowboy again.”

“And you are Susan.”

“At first I was like playing along with it because I didn’t want him to feel rejected or something, and the next thing you know...”

“You’re really going along with it.”

Chey rubbed her brow, setting her empty glass down behind her. “That guy knows all my buttons.”

“But you didn’t do anything?”

“No,” she said adamantly, shaking her head, her chestnut hair glistening in the sun. She swept it back from her face, wound it behind her neck, and let it hang over her shoulder. “No, I wouldn’t do that. But I almost did.” She bit on her lower lip.

“But you didn’t, Chey.”

Cheyenne put a hand over her stomach like she ate too much and said, “Cody just really gets me going.”

“Are you guys going to do it again?”

Chey shook her head and tucked her mouth to one side, looking down at the swimming deck at the bottom of the stairs. “I think we are. But it’s like I don’t want to bring it up to Byron because I’m afraid he’s going to change his mind and say no, and I don’t want to be disappointed. But, at the same time, I want to get something happening. You know?”

“So, don’t sweat it. Just be cool about it. Try not to trip and fall onto his dick or anything until you guys work it out.”

Chey rubbed her brow like she had a headache. “He was wearing these little tiny swimming trunks.”

“He is hot,” Scarlet said, then looked over her own shoulder, knowing if Sully caught her saying that, there might be a blowup.

“I was making fun of him, making fun of the trunks, but then the next thing you know, I’m like grabbing his package.”

Scarlet stifled a laugh. “He really horns you up.”

“I really want it to happen again, Scarlet.”

“And you want Byron to watch.”

Chey nodded. “I think— I think Byron might be okay with it.”

Scarlet chewed her cheek a moment, then said, “Yeah, he tried to talk to Sully about it.”

Cheyenne’s eyes went wide as saucers like she couldn’t believe it. “He did? What did he say? What did Sully say? Did Byron say—”

Scarlet put up a hand to slow her down. “He didn’t really say much about it. Sully was off in his own world because I was doing you-know-what with you-know-who.” She made a big-penis gesture with both hands. “Driving Sully crazy. I don’t think he was really paying attention, but then again...”

Cheyenne grabbed her arm. “But then again what?”

“I don’t know. I think he got some idea in his head, but he was all mixed up.”

“Byron?”

“No. My dolt. Sully.” Her features pinched as she worried about it. She’d been quite pleased with herself thinking that her teasing had sent her husband running upstairs where he could ejaculate alone and no one would see him, but maybe there was more to it.

“What is it?” Cheyenne stroked her arm.

“Well, tell me what he said.”

Scarlet shrugged, finished her drink, and then set it down behind her. She paused a second and pressed a thumb to her eyebrow, trying to squish away a sudden head freeze. “That’s a damn good drink. We need to get more.”

“We’ll get more,” Chey said, and gripped her arm. “Just tell me what Sully said.”

“Byron told Sully you want him to watch you...”

“Watch me with Cody.”

“No, he just said you wanted him to watch you have sex with another guy.”

“And how did he sound?”

“I wasn’t there, Chey. You want to talk to Sully?”

Chey huffed. “This is so brutal.” She planted her elbows on her skinny knees and covered her face with her hands. Scarlet rubbed her back. Chey said, “I want to do it, but I’m so worried about Carla.”

“Carla doesn’t want it to happen?”

“No,” Chey said, thrusting her hands out and gesturing at the sea. “I’m worried about Carla with Byron.”

“Oh, this again.”

Chey shot her a funny look, lips thinned and squirmed into an indignant squiggle. “Don’t act like you don’t get it.”

“I do,” Scarlet admitted, eyes rolling up. “I know what you’re saying.”

“If only there was a way around that part, this would be so much easier.”

“Yeah,” Scarlet agreed. “If only there was a way.”

Chey kept her head facing Scarlet. “Like, if he could sleep with someone else or something. Not Carla.”

“Wow, you’re really getting into the scene, really passing Byron around now.”

Chey shook her head and looked away. “That’s not what I mean,” she said.

She’d known Chey a long time, and knew when Chey spoke with subtext. Knew when there was a time to read between the lines. If only there was a way. If only Byron could sleep with someone else.

She said, “Like who?”

“Not Carla,” Cheyenne said, laughing it off, but her laugh too high-pitched and nervous to be convincing.

“With who, Chey?”

“Nobody,” she said, and waved her hand away like it was all stupid.

“Wait a second,” Scarlet said. “Say it.”

Scarlet’s eyebrows rose high. “That’s how bad you want to sleep with Cody?”

Now Chey looked over, wounded. “What, do you think that’s bad?”

“Are you saying what I think you’re saying? That’s how bad you want to sleep with Cody, you’d ask somebody that?”

Chey’s eyes widened, defensive and looking to take the implication back.

“Somebody who?”

Scarlet stopped and rolled her eyes, but then broke out laughing. After all her terrible surmising this morning, saving Cheyenne as some dumb back-pocket play if she actually wanted to fool around with Philippe’s magical dong, and here was Cheyenne back-pocketing her buddy Scarlet the whole time. She laughed into her hands, then swept her hair back.

Chey said, “Are you mad at me?”

“No,” she said. “I’m laughing. We’re more alike than I remembered, even.”

“Why do you say that?”

“So how do you picture it, Chey? The four of us have a fancy bottle of champagne and get in the hot tub? Is Byron going to wear one of those Hugh Hefner robes, you know, velvet with a tasseled belt?”

“Who’s that?”

“You’re in design—what the heck? You have to know Playboy.”

Cheyenne’s head sagged on her neck. “Oh, yeah, that guy. I know Playboy.”

Scarlet said, “So, is that how you see it?”

“I don’t picture it at all, Scarlet.” Cheyenne’s mouth shifted around, going from side to side, her sad eyes turned down. “I hope you know that.”

Scarlet put her arm around her again and kissed her shoulder. “I’m not mad at all. It was something I wondered about, too.”

“About Byron?”

She laughed. “No, not Byron specifically. I just mean if I ever did want to, you know, swing, I wouldn’t want Sully inside Carla’s bedroom.”

“He could flub it,” Chey said hopefully.

“Nah, Sully wouldn’t,” she said.

“Yeah,” Cheyenne said, stroking her own forearm and looking off to the horizon.

“But I thought of the same thing.”

“What do you mean?”

“I didn’t want Sully going to Carla, and I couldn’t just get what I want...”
She waited for Cheyenne to catch on.

“So you wondered about me and Sully?”

Scarlet shrugged. She hadn’t really thought about it very much, but the sinuous path to get what she wanted revealed a few milestones along the way, and Sully being with Cheyenne had been one of those possible milestones—but only if it were her idea, not Sully’s.

Chey cocked her head. “Hey, did you tell Sully this?”

“Did I tell Sully this? No way. Why?”

“Because he was walking around with that thing. He sat down next to me at the pool and he leaned back, you know, like to give me a good look at it.”

“He is such an idiot. Did he really do that?”

“I wasn’t offended or anything. Shit, I was sitting there naked. Maybe I should be offended if he didn’t have it, you know...” Chey made the forearm-fist erection again.

Scarlet sighed. “I don’t know if I’m supposed to be mad at him or not.”

“Don’t be mad at him. He’s just not shy.”

“I gotta tell you something. I worked him over with that whole Philippe charade thing, and it set him on fire.”

“It set Byron on fire, too, me being with Cody. Me just talking about it. He was practically dancing out of his pants. Carla told me when he was in the bedroom with her he kept talking about me and Cody rather than doing what he was supposed to be doing.”

“Wow,” she muttered, feeling that heat down below again. Wondering where Sully was. Might have to go for round three pretty soon. “It’d be so weird, though. Could you do it? The four of us like that?”

“I know Sully. Like I see him, we go out for dinner. He’s your husband.”

“I’m fine with it. I always liked Byron.”

“He’s a little afraid of you.”

“Not as afraid of you as he is of Carla. Maybe he’d be more relaxed.”

“Well,” Scarlet sighed, “I don’t think Sully would have any problem with it if I said he could go ahead. And you wanted it, too, of course.”

Cheyenne grimaced. “Are we really talking about this? Like me and Sully?”

“This is like ‘Strangers On A Train.’”

Cheyenne slapped her thigh, proud of herself. “I know that one. Hitchcock. Two strangers get to talking on a train and arrange to murder each other’s wives so they can get away with it.”

“You think we’re a couple of murderers?”

Cheyenne’s expression slackened to timid. “We’re not really doing it, are we?”

Scarlet shrugged, thinking about it. “I don’t think I can be in the same room.”

“As Byron?”

“No, you and Sully. I have to be in the same room as Byron.”

“It’s so complicated,” Cheyenne said.

“All so we can get what we want, and they can’t.”

“Hey,” Cheyenne said, bothered. “We’re doing something for them, too.”

“You’re right,” Scarlet said. She hadn’t even thought of it that way.

“I think I could do it,” Chey said. “But how would I ever see you guys again?”

“I know,” Scarlet said.

But then she sat in silence, the two of them looking at the sunlight dance on the Caribbean Sea, and she thought instead of what would happen after her time with Byron. What would happen after she and Byron did whatever she and Byron might do?

She would be with Philippe.

And it started to work on her, started to get her thighs rubbing together, thinking about it. Wondering where it would happen. Wondering how far she might go. Sully sure had responded to it. But it was just play, just fantasy. What would he do if it was for real?

She looked over her shoulder, nudged Cheyenne with her elbow. “That’s where you should get Byron to watch you.”

“Where?” Chey said, looking back.

“The swimming pool. There are chairs there. He sits and watches you through the window wall as you two swim around and do stuff under the water.”

Cheyenne turned her nose up. “I hate underwater sex.”

Scarlet admitted it, too. “Feels too squeaky.”

They both laughed, and Scarlet hugged her again.

CHAPTER 8

Sully found Byron at last, sitting in the hot tub at the back of the fourth deck, all by himself. He slid the door closed behind him and held his hand high to show Byron he'd brought two frosty beer bottles. Byron clapped his hands, then held them out, like Sully should throw him the bottle.

"Last thing we need is a bottle breaking in the hot tub," he said, coming over, leaning on the edge, passing the bottle to Byron. "You still buck?"

Byron twisted off the cap, put it on the edge of the hot tub, and took a swig from the bottle. He shrugged. "Yeah, I came up here. Everyone bailed on me down at the pool. Carla and Arlo are in and out every once in awhile. I think they're in the kitchen now."

"Sorry for bailing," Sully said, hiking a leg into the tub—wearing his swim shorts now—then sinking down in the roiling water opposite Byron. Beyond Byron: the view of the sea and the sky. The hot water bubbled up around his neck and he got a jet on the small of his back. "Duty called," he said.

Byron scrunched his nose. "I don't think I need to know that."

Sully leaned his head back, looking down his nose at Byron through half-lidded eyes. "I mean sex, right? I didn't mean pooping."

“Oh, good,” Byron said. “Yeah, you took off. I guess Scarlet went to look for you later. Cheyenne went to make something to eat and didn’t come back. It was just me and Philippe standing around naked.”

“That would be awkward.”

Byron rolled his eyes. “Philippe went to go find Cody or something, but I think Cody went jet-skiing. I came up to the hot tub for some time alone.”

“Now here’s me intruding,” Sully said and laughed.

“I don’t mind,” Byron said. “I just thought we were going to do something fun.”

“I did something fun,” he said and smiled devilishly.

“Yeah, I should do that, too,” Byron muttered.

Of course Byron meant do it with Cheyenne, but Sully couldn’t help thinking right away at first he’d meant with Scarlet.

Scarlet had really worked him over. All that taunting had rewired his brain, and now he was horny as a teenager, every little comment having a sexual spin, his penis like a lightning rod, drawing all that worldly energy to its electric tip. He chuckled and drank some beer. “Maybe we could do something fun later.”

Byron nodded.

And now Sully was thinking again that what he’d just said could mean all four of them getting naked.

He decided the best thing would be honesty. He said, “You know earlier what you told me?”

Byron frowned and cocked his head.

“About Cheyenne?”

Byron’s shoulders slumped. “Yeah.”

“She say who with?”

Byron looked confused. Then he said, “Yeah—with Cody. Why, did she say something else to Scarlet?”

Sully shook his head. “No, it was me being stupid. It’s what happens when girls start taking their clothes off around me, my brain just totally stopped working.”

Byron said, “You and me both.”

“Cheers,” Sully said, and leaned forward so they could click the necks of their bottles together.

“No,” he said. “For a minute I thought you meant me.”

“You who?” Then Byron laughed. “You thought I meant Chey wanted me to watch her with you?”

“No, not me specifically. But I thought maybe I’d be in the mix.”

“Oh,” Byron said, then he frowned, contemplating it. “No, she said Cody. You guys weren’t supposed to know any of this.”

“I’m glad we found out. . . . Maybe I’m not,” he said and chuckled. Then:

“No, I am glad. Are you still good with it it?”

Byron said, “The truth? Yeah, sometimes good, sometimes bad. No, not bad. Weird. And the weirdest thing—I know that I want to do it again.”

“Get some more Carla?”

Byron said, “I think that makes Chey nervous.”

“Wait—it makes her nervous that you would be with Carla? That’s ridiculous. She’s with Cody, what’re you supposed to do?”

“Watch,” he said.

“That’s a bum deal.”

“She wants me to do it.”

“Don’t do it if you don’t want to.”

“I don’t want to,” Byron said, then looked up, craning his neck over the headrest and looking up at the sky beyond the shield of the fifth deck’s overhang. “Maybe I want to watch. I don’t know.” He sniffled, sat straighter and rubbed his nose.

Sully sat in long contemplation, both of them with their minds elsewhere, both running over different patterns of thought, trying to make sense of this. He said it point blank: “How is it with this possibility of swinging, it’s two guys, you and me, who are the ones who need the most convincing?”

“Wait—Scarlet wants to swing?”

Sully shook his head in slow, unconvincing wags. “I don’t think so. She’s saying no, but it’s one of those nos where I think there’s more going on than the word might say.”

Those awful things she whispered in his ear while she rode him cowgirl style—how she wanted to play with Philippe’s big penis, not have sex with him, just make it get hard—were things he would never forget. His wife said things to him so dirty it shocked him she had it in her.

“What do you think she wants to do?”

“I don’t know,” he sighed. “You and I married two messed up sorority sisters. I don’t think either of them is happy with us being with Carla, but they sure as shit have got their eyes on their own prize.”

“Scarlet wants to be with Cody?”

Sully closed his eyes and shook his head. “No offense, Byron, I don’t know if I’d like that.”

“Her with Cody?”

“Maybe there’s a line. Cody is just too good-looking. Too rich. You know?”

Byron looked down, lamenting, “You don’t think I should have let Chey go with him.”

He said, “Carla seduced you, Byron. I don’t think there was any way for you to think it through first.”

Byron looked up. “Do you think it was a mistake?”

“No,” he said, adamant, somehow worried if he scared Byron off the idea, he wouldn’t be able to . . . Able to what? “You said you had a great time and everything, and you’re thinking of doing it again.”

Byron frowned, and chewed the corner of his mouth.

“Nothing,” Byron said.

“No, tell me.”

Byron shrugged. “I don’t know what I’m thinking,” he said at last.

But Sully was intrigued. “What, Byron—you have an idea?”

“No,” he said, “it’s not an idea.” He took a drink of beer, put both hands wrapped around the bottle and stared into the hot tub water bubbling between them. “None of the girls want us to be with Carla”—he looked up at Sully —“You don’t want Scarlet with Cody, and now I’m thinking maybe Cody is too ideal a male specimen . . .”

“So . . . yeah.”

Sully stared at Byron, Byron’s eyes glassy, lips parted slightly. He waited for more but Byron said nothing. “So what? What are you saying?”

“I don’t know what I’m saying, but I do know if this were a Rubik’s cube I’d have a couple of solid rows lined up with the colors the way I wanted.”

“Click-click-click, Byron,” he said, anxious and expectant, making a Rubik’s cube motion with his hands and almost spilling his beer. “Fill in the blanks for me, I suck at puzzles.”

“You don’t see it? Never mind. It’s stupid anyway.”

Sully sat back, mad that he hadn’t figured out the puzzle. He worked it around in his own mind and then couldn’t believe what it could be. “You don’t mean . . .?”

Byron looked innocent. “Is that a problem?”

“I don’t know,” Sully said, unsure of himself. “I want to say it’s not a problem, but then I’m afraid I’m going to end up in a bedroom with Philippe because I’m not thinking what you’re thinking at all.”

Byron burst out laughing and almost choked on a mouthful of beer. Sully laughed too, and then kicked Byron’s leg under the water.

Byron said, “I’m not saying we should do it. I’m just saying . . .”

“The puzzle pieces line up.”

“What is it I’m saying, Sully?”

Sully leaned closer. “Keep it close. Keep it in the family. Is that what you’re saying?”

Byron frowned. “Not that close. Not family.”

Sully rolled his eyes. “You know what I mean, Byron.” He pointed a finger to Byron, to himself, to Byron, and back again. “Keep it close. Sorority sisters and sorority sisters’ husbands.”

Byron grimaced, worried. “Is that crazy?”

“I need you to say it for me.”

“I can’t even say it.”

“Byron, I need a confirmation code.”

“No, you say it.”

Sully gritted his teeth and started with the most favorable angle. “You and Scarlet”—talking slow, locking eyes with Byron, waiting for any mistakes—“me with Cheyenne. You watch Cheyenne.”

“With you,” Byron said, slow and deliberate.

Sully sat back. “Where’s Scarlet?”

Byron made a funny face and rolled his eyes around. “I guess she’s watching too.”

Sully said, “I don’t know about that. Two ways that could go wrong. She can get mad at me, or I can flub my game. You know, because she’s watching me.”

“We can take it slow. It’s not as crazy as Carla and Cody.”

“Baby steps,” Sully muttered to himself. “I don’t even know if Scarlet wants in on this. Besides . . .”

“Besides what?”

Sully flapped his hand around, trying to come up with a way to say what he wanted to say—wondering if he should say it. “If Scarlet was interested in this sort of thing, she expressed a keenness for a different person.”

“Oh,” Byron said. “Philippe.”

Scarlet had made it so obvious even Byron saw it despite the fog Cheyenne had him clouded in. Sully said, “I don’t know if she was serious or not. I think she was just doing it to make me mad, you know? Drive me crazy?”

“Cheyenne told me she couldn’t be with Philippe because of, you know.”

Byron made a sickly face and looked away.

The whole monster penis deal. “Scarlet said the same thing.”

Byron looked back. “So she doesn’t want to?”

“It’s complicated,” Sully said, waving it off. “I don’t know what the hell she wants to do with him. I hate to think about it.”

They sat in silence, two masterminds lost in thought, contemplating their futures. Sully said, “One thing’s for sure, if anything like that happened, we’d have to be honest with each other. And the girls. I wouldn’t want any bad blood between them. For you and me. For me and Chey, or you and Scarlet. So whatever we do, we communicate, okay?”

“All right,” Byron said, nodding, then drained the last of his beer. “Let’s see what happens.”

Sully groaned with pleasure and pushed back from the table, hamming theatrically, but not having to put it on too hard at all. “That was so incredible,” he said, head rocking back on the chair’s headrest as his face turned up to gaze at the sparkling stars arriving in the amaranth expanse of the Caribbean twilight. And everyone else agreed, nodding, some with their heads down, still eating; Byron wiped his brow with a napkin.

They were all gathered again under the fairy lights, at the same table where they’d played cards and Truth or Dare the other night. Arlo sat at the head of the table, the master of the evening, the Michelin-star sous chef who’d just delivered them a meal beyond belief. Arlo’s expression wasn’t smug, though if you didn’t know him you’d think it might be. Satisfied, that’s what it was. The kindest and most peaceful of their friends, the true artiste of the group. Sully met Arlo’s eye and saluted the man with two fingers. Arlo beamed.

Hands down the tenderest fish he’d ever eaten. The flesh had melted in his mouth like smoky butter. And there were poached eggs served on a cylinder cast in a kind of jelly with pomegranate seeds and blueberries suspended inside it. Plus greens with a sharp bite and a sweet dressing with Scotch and mustard seed. They’d started with a salad of capers and pickled watermelon and lemon zest and crème fraîche, the dressing a mix of fresh dill and Grey Goose vodka and honey. They'd finished with melon and peaches; the melon marinated in port and served brunoise—whatever that was—and the peaches grilled and laid over a lemon-verbena ice cream Arlo and Lily had made back at home.

“Fucking divine,” Scarlet muttered next to him, fork-swooping a quarter peach through the last of the slushy ice cream.

They'd eaten a few times at Bonaparte, the tony restaurant at Columbus Circle where Arlo worked as sous chef. But this was different. This was Arlo doing what he wanted, and doing it for his friends.

Across the table, Cheyenne set her spoon down on the plate with a satisfied clink. “And this isn't on the menu?”

Arlo just smiled and shook his head no.

Cheyenne couldn't believe it, flopping against the back of the chair. “Why the hell not? None of this is on the menu?”

Carla swirled her ice wine in the bowl of her wineglass, eyes turned down and saying, “I can't believe it either. But...” Now she looked over at Arlo and smiled. “Maybe someday.”

Arlo nodded, and Cheyenne muttered to herself, “Yeah, someday he ought to open his own restaurant. He'd be bigger than that hotshot Frankie Shellenberger.”

Cody raised his glass of ice wine, saying, “Here, here.”

They all leaned forward to gather their glasses of whatever they were imbibing so they could toast Arlo. Byron said, “Seriously, Arlo, hands down the best meal I've ever had. Not even close. I've eaten at Bonaparte a hundred times—you know that—and this was better than anything I had there.”

Lily giggled and said, “You know he prepares the food at Bonaparte?” She’d gotten sun on her cheeks, out for the day with Cody.

Byron said, “Oh, I know, I just mean these flavors... They’re incredible.”

Arlo leaned back in his chair and put an open hand across his chest. “I mean it sincerely, guys: It’s an absolute joy for me to cook for you. You can keep the praise coming, I don’t want to stop you, but just know I’m not trying to impress you, I just love to make you happy.”

Scarlet touched at her collar, affected. She said, “Aw,” and her lips pooched out. “We totally love you, Arlo.”

Byron said, “I don’t think there’s anything wrong with toasting the guy again.”

Arlo waved them off, getting shy and embarrassed.

They all toasted him again, and he gestured to Carla, saying, “How about Carla? She was by my side all day. This is her work, too.”

Carla shooed him as everyone now turned their fawning to her, doing it theatrically, making Cody laugh. Carla said, “I just did whatever Arlo told me. Trust me”—she wound her finger around, pointing at all their empty plates—“this was all Arlo. But I’ll tell you something, I sure learned a lot today.” She looked toward Arlo. “Learned a lot about our accomplished friend.”

Lily served port after dinner and brought out a wheel of cheese on a walnut board. It was the stinkiest, softest cheese Sully had ever had. By the time he finished his port, he heeled backward his chair to look behind Scarlet and toward Byron. Byron sensed him looking, sat back in his chair, too, pretending to yawn. They looked at each other, trying to communicate without words, seeing if they both wanted to get something going—as crazy as it was. He'd totally expected Byron to back out by now.

Byron's eyes were alert despite the meal, the wine, and the port. The guy was still into it. Sully got it. There was something about this salacious act they were planning—that would never ever fucking happen—that really got the heart pumping. They went through a series of expression changes, raising eyebrows, rolling heads, making quizzical faces, bouncing eyebrows. Who knew what the fuck they were saying to each other—all that mattered was this operation still had a green light. Sully returned his attention to the table and said, "Believe it or not, I might hit the hay."

Lily pouted. "I thought we were going to stay up late again."

Cheyenne said, "Tomorrow night for sure."

Byron said, "I might hit the hot tub."

Sully leaned back again, trying to meet Byron's eye. Byron looked over at Cheyenne. Cheyenne said, "I think I might join you." Then Cheyenne turned to Scarlet and said, "How about you?"

Scarlet shrugged, turned to face Sully. He felt caught, like a con trying to escape prison when the screws pinned the searchlight on him. "Oh," he said. "Yeah, whatever. I'm tired. Go to bed, or you know..."

Scarlet's brow lowered as she studied him. She said, "Hot tub?"

Sully said, "Anybody else?"... In trying to make it seem legitimate and honest and not something surreptitious that they were up to, it was the polite thing to do, but as soon as he asked, he regretted it, gritting his teeth. If anyone came along, nothing would happen.

Carla eyed all four of them, then spoke for the rest of the group, “You guys go along. I think we’re going to hang out and talk.”

Scarlet said, “How about you, Philippe?” Sully saw her smile in profile. Under the table, Sully batted her thigh.

Carla said, “No, Philippe’s staying with us. We’re not letting him go.” She reached over to Philippe, and he put his hand out. They grasped fingers together and laughed.

“You four have fun,” Carla said. “Tomorrow night the cards are coming out again.”

Cody was checking his phone, eyes down, chuckling, saying, “Or maybe we’ll play Twister.”

Philippe laughed.

“Yeah, okay,” Sully said, pushing his chair back. “The tub sounds good. The tub and then, you know, who knows? Like I said, I’m tired.”

“We get it, Sully,” Scarlet said, standing and knocking back the last of her wine. “Don’t worry, we’re not going to keep you up late.” She went to her toes and kissed him.

Byron lead the way, walking away from the table and turning to wait for Cheyenne. Cheyenne went around behind Arlo’s chair, hugging an arm around his neck. She kissed the top of his head and Arlo smiled wide. She said, “You’re totally the best, Arlo. I mean it.” Arlo patted her arm.

Cheyenne said to the table, “Leave the dishes. I want to do them first thing in the morning.”

Cody still checked his phone. He said, “Carla’s got me on dish duty, Chey. You go enjoy yourself. Carla helped cook, I help clean.”

Sully pushed his hand at the small of Scarlet’s back, encouraging her to keep moving. Now they were standing up, he couldn’t wait to get to the hot tub. Scarlet clucked her tongue and shot him a dirty look. She went to Arlo as well, patting his cheek and kissing the top of his head. “Best meal I ever had, buddy.”

Arlo patted her arm, too, and said, “My pleasure, Scarlet. Totally my pleasure.”

They entered the yacht, heading down the hall toward the bedroom suites, Chey and Byron ahead of them, holding hands. He took Scarlet’s hand as well, but kept staring holes in the back of Byron’s head, trying to get him to look around. But what for? Byron had already expressed an eager expression. What more did he want? He just didn’t want to be disappointed. He didn’t want to get excited about the possibilities, and then have this whole thing dashed. The threat of disappointment frightened him. But the chances anything would happen were next to none. Too many cooks in the kitchen. Too many voices of opposition. Just like how Arlo couldn’t make that delicious meal at the restaurant when he worked under Frankie Shellenberger, Sully couldn’t get to happen what he wanted. Scarlet would object. Cheyenne would object. I mean, come on. And as eager as Byron looked, the closer they got to the moment, the more likely Byron would change his mind. This was all exciting until someone else actually touched your partner.

“Meet you guys at the tub,” Byron said, waving two fingers and not even looking around. He opened their bedroom suite door, and he and Cheyenne disappeared inside.

Scarlet tugged Sully's hand, saying, "Come on, what are you waiting for?"

He realized he'd paused too long, Scarlet still holding his hand, their arms outstretched and Scarlet with the bedroom door open already.

"Coming," he said, "I'm coming."

It was in their bedroom, naked and pulling his swim trunks up, that Scarlet sprung it on him.

He said, "What are you talking about?"

Scarlet stood topless wearing only her bikini bottoms. She held the bra top in her hands, trying to sort out which part went over her head. She said, "What do you think?"

"What do I think? I think you're putting me on. I think you're teasing me again."

She hooped the string collar over her head and looked at him with the dangling triangle cups unsecured over her naked breasts. "What if I told you that I wasn't kidding this time?"

"I still wouldn't believe you," he said.

"I know you're thinking about it."

"No, I'm not," he said, indignant.

"You totally are. Chey told me."

"Chey told you what?" he said, voice rising, getting defensive.

Scarlet said, "Relax, Sully. I'm not mad. Well, not a hundred-percent mad. I get it."

"Get what?"

“Would you knock it off?” She nodded her chin between his legs. “They said you were showing that thing off.”

“No, I wasn’t,” he said, fanning her away and turning aside, jumping in place to snug his swim shorts up. He began to tie the drawstring waist, but his hands shook so he put them on his hips so Scarlet wouldn’t notice.

“I’m not kidding,” Scarlet said. She folded her arms behind her back, eyes rolled up as she tried to tie the knot.

He said, “Turn around.”

Scarlet turned in place, and he tied the knot for her bikini top. He admired his wife’s beautiful back, her narrow waist and her round bottom with her bikini swooping across the globes of her ass. He chewed his cheek. With her facing away, he put his hands on her shoulders, kissed the back of her head. “If you’re not kidding, you know what this means.”

“Tell me,” she said, crossing her arms over her chest and laying her hands over his.

“You’re going to mess around with Byron.”

“You can say no.”

“Byron Bishop.”

“I’m aware. We only know one Byron.”

“And what am I going to do?”

“Whatever you want.”

“In the hot tub?”

“Not in the hot tub,” she said.

He paused thinking what to say next, mouth hanging open. Someone knocked on their door, and he rolled his eyes. He called out, “Who is it?”

His heart beat faster. This was real, and it wasn’t even his and Byron’s idea.

Scarlet said, “Come on in.”

The door opened, and Cheyenne led the way, also wearing a bikini, showing off her flat stomach, long, silky chestnut hair swishing behind her. Byron came up behind Chey, all smiles, wearing shorts with sharks on them, a fluffy white towel over his shoulder. He paused at the door, leaning on the jamb. Cheyenne came to stand next to Scarlet, and they faced Byron.

Byron said, “I should probably go get the tub started. I don’t know if anybody — Wait, what’s going on?” His brow lowered as he sensed something wasn’t right, the rest of them staring at him.

Scarlet said, “Come into the room, Byron. Close the door behind you.”

CHAPTER 10

Scarlet didn't know how to begin. All four of them now sealed inside their bedroom suite. The bed made—she made sure of that before dinner—clothes tidied from the floor, lamps turned low. She gestured toward Cheyenne saying, “Chey and I were talking...”

She'd expected Chey to join in, but Chey stood there pigeon-toed, knees touching, her fingers interlocked at her crotch and squirming around. She had an expression on her face like What's this, Scarlet? What are you saying?

Scarlet scowled at her, then held out a hand. When Chey didn't come immediately she snapped her fingers and waved her closer. Chey rolled her head around on her neck like a teenager and came to stand at her side. She folded her arms and looked at the guys. Sully regarded her with wide-eyed anticipation; Byron looked perplexed. Maybe the guy had been really eager to get in the hot tub, and they were about to ruin his plans.

Byron said, “What were you talking about?”

Scarlet looked to Sully, then over to Chey. Then she faced the guys saying, “We were talking...”

Sully looked irritated when she didn't continue. “And...?”

“Well, Byron, you know,” Scarlet said, finding this harder to broach than she thought. “You know Chey told me about what happened. I know you talked to Sully...”

Byron looked uncomfortable. He looked to Sully and both of them made a strange face at each other. They’d both gone pale.

Scarlet looked to Chey, and Chey offered nothing, letting Scarlet do all the grunt work. “I guess what I mean to say is we were talking, and we wondered if what was happening on the ship might be better...” She gestured with her hands rolling in wide circles, trying to find the words.

Sully said, “Kept in the family?”

“Gross,” Scarlet said. “Ew. Not in the family. Us, the four of us.”

“That’s what I meant,” Sully said.

“We’re not family.”

Sully said, “You two are sorority sisters.”

“Whatever,” Scarlet said. “This was mostly Chey’s idea.” Chey batted her arm really fucking hard. “Ow,” she said, rubbing her shoulder. “Well, help me out here, Chey. You’re standing there like my ventriloquist dummy.”

Chey rolled her head around on her shoulders again, completely transported back to her petulant youth. She said, “Maybe all we need is right here in this room.”

Byron stared at his wife. She didn’t regard him. He said her name, getting her attention. When she looked at him, Byron said, “What is it you’re saying? What do you want to do?”

“I don’t know,” she said, “this was Scarlet’s idea,” and she smiled.

Scarlet motioned like she would backhand her but didn't do it. Chey broke out laughing, and then Scarlet did too. "Woo hoo," she croaked, looking up at the ceiling and shaking her hands out. "This is a hundred times weirder than I imagined."

Sully wasn't deterred, still staring at her with intent. "You guys were talking about this?"

Cheyenne spoke up now without provocation. She said, "Yeah, I confide everything in Scarlet. I told her."

Byron said, "You told her what you wanted?"

Cheyenne said she did, and Byron shook his head as if he didn't believe it. He said, "With Sully?"

Cheyenne shrugged. "Yeah," she said, "I mean only if that's okay," addressing Sully.

And Scarlet's stupid husband put on the cool act, giving Cheyenne a half-lidded and casual eyebrow raise saying in a chill tone, "If you guys talked about it..."

She leaned close to Cheyenne and whispered, "Look who's trying to be the cowboy now."

Cheyenne didn't get it at first, then when she did she burst out in giggles and covered her mouth with both hands. Sully got mad. "What did you say to her?"

"You're my laconic cowboy," she said.

Sully said, "What does that mean?"

"It's a compliment."

Sully looked at Byron then back to Scarlet. “Doesn’t seem like a compliment,” he muttered.

“Trust me,” she said, “it wasn’t an insult.”

Cheyenne tucked both hands under the opposite armpit and looked at Byron. “What do you think?”

Byron still couldn’t believe it. He looked to Sully, then to them both. He said, “I mean, I can’t say I didn’t see it coming. It’s just... I’m surprised you said it.”

“Why?”

Byron gestured to Sully. “We talked about it too.”

Sully shot him a look like Byron would ruin everything with this conversation’s direction.

Scarlet said, “You did?”

“Yeah,” he said, “that’s where the all in the family thing came in. Like the four of us know each other, maybe it would be easier to...”

“Right?” Cheyenne said, a brighter shine in her eyes now.

Sully said, “It’s a big step though, guys.”

Scarlet said, “Are you trying to ruin it?”

Sully rolled his eyes. “I’m being sensible. If we’re going to do this we have to be honest about everything going into it.”

“Okay,” Cheyenne said. “Shoot. What do you want to be honest with us about?”

Sully sneered. “You first, Cheyenne.”

Cheyenne shot back, “You first, Sully.”

“What’s there to be honest about?”

“You tell me.”

Byron said, “Well this is off to a good start.”

“I think the problem is,” Scarlet said, raising her palms to them, “we’re standing here like idiots, all awkward, like it’s a high school dance.” She walked to the bed and sat down, crossed one leg over the other, and patted the spot next to her and told Sully to come over. She pointed for Chey and Byron to take the opposite side of the bed.

All four of them sat on it, dressed for a hot tub but now facing a whole different direction. Byron still wore his beach towel cowled around his neck and shoulders. He chewed his cheek, staring at Scarlet. She didn’t hate it. No, she kind of liked it. Cheyenne said Byron was afraid of her and she liked that too. She liked that he felt intimidated—because from her eyes she surmised some of it was due to attraction. Cheyenne’s husband had never made any kind of untoward pass at her, but here they were with everything on the table, and Byron liked the idea. Wanted to hear more about what might happen.

Sully said, “Let’s start with rules. If we’re going to do this.”

Cheyenne said, “If we do it. But we could do it.”

Byron looked at Chey, then over to Scarlet. “What do you want to be honest about?”

Scarlet shrugged then said, “Okay. It would freak me out if Sully went to Carla’s bedroom.”

Sully clucked his tongue and looked at her. “You want to swap with Cody and Carla? I always knew you wanted Cody.”

She flicked his shoulder with the backs of her fingers. “Don’t be an idiot. That’s not what I’m saying.”

“Philippe,” Byron muttered then chuckled. Sully shot him a sidelong glance, a silent Shut the fuck up.

Byron pretended to button his lip.

“See, and Sully,”—she cupped his cheek—“my wonderful Sully, is a little touchy about this Philippe guy.”

“Philippe’s okay,” Sully muttered.

She shot Sully a sly look. “How okay?”

Sully smiled and rolled his eyes and pulled his face from her touch. “Not that okay.”

Byron said, “So what’s this about then?”

“Getting loose. I don’t know, I was thinking of Chey, too.”

Chey said, “What about me?”

“You know what about you, my exhibitionist friend.”

“Oh,” Chey said and rubbed her arms. “I do like that.”

Byron chuckled and said, “She didn’t like it earlier today when Cody and Lily were going out jet skiing.”

Sullivan said, “Why not?”

Byron said, “Because she was naked and they weren’t.”

Sullivan smiled and looked at Chey. “The exhibitionist gets self-conscious?”

Cheyenne’s features crumpled, and Scarlet reached across the bed for her hand. “I think, you malicious assholes, sometimes the self-consciousness is part of the fun.”

Cheyenne brightened and looked up, a glimmer of hope there, and Scarlet was convinced she'd just guessed right. Being an exhibitionist was no fun if all you wanted to do was strut around naked, force people to ogle your beautiful naked body and your flawless tanned skin. It was only fun for anxious Cheyenne because it scared the shit out of her too.

“What do you say?”

Cheyenne frowned. “Say about what?”

Scarlet folded her arms behind her back, tugged the knot of her bikini top that Sully had tied a few minutes before. The cups loosened then draped over her breasts. Both husbands went slack-jawed and wide-eyed like cartoon dogs looking at a soup bone. She unstrung the bikini from around her neck and exposed her breasts to them. Any objections, any quests for honesty and truth, any reservations, were quickly diminished by a multitude. Byron licked his lower lip, his eyes glued to her nipples.

Cheyenne saw that and right away sat straighter, pulled off her crop top T-shirt, revealing her bikini bra. And though she'd been buck naked in front of them all today, Sully's eyes were glued as if he were about to receive a grand revelation. Scarlet leaned closer, untied Chey's bikini, and watched Cheyenne's long arms pull it free and then show Sully and Byron her naked chest. Cheyenne's nipples were already hard and upright, the table lamp glinting off their swollen bulb edges.

Sully sighed, “Holy shit.”

“What do you think, guys? We've all seen each other naked. All of us did it earlier today. Let's keep talking... Let's work this out... Let's move forward. I like the idea. I like the idea of at least trying. Don't you?”

Both guys nodded, no longer able to meet their gazes, both of them looking at naked breasts.

“Yeah,” Sully said, eyes still locked on Cheyenne’s nipples, backing off the bed now, peeling off his T-shirt. Byron did the same. Sully pushed his swim trunks down to his knees and hiked his feet out of them, his half hard dick swinging around. He stood upright with his hips thrust forward, trying to give Cheyenne his dick’s best angle. Make it look as big as possible.

Scarlet reached over, gripped its warm and dangling length, eased it back and forth a few times, squeezed and gently milked downward, helping her husband out. Helping him look his best. When she let it go, he plumped further, her husband’s pretty-decent dick looking good swinging between his legs. Byron on the other hand was fully erect, his dick pointing upright. Scarlet thought of how Cheyenne said Byron had flubbed it with Carla. She didn’t see how that was possible. Byron always seemed eager. Always up for something. And every time she’d seen his dick, the thing was hard as a rock.

The guys sat down, Byron a little more aware of himself now, able to meet Scarlet’s gaze, only glancing down at her chest every once in a while. Now that he was sitting, he covered his arousal as if he was embarrassed by it. Sully stroked his, trying to get it fully hard. Cheyenne watched him. A flash of jealous anger snapped in front of Scarlet’s eyes like a hypnotist waking her out of the trance he’d put her in. That was her friend. That was her husband and her husband’s dick. Scarlet’s dick. But then again, Scarlet’s property. She’d loan out a lawnmower to Cheyenne if Cheyenne needed it. Of course, dick wasn’t a lawnmower.

She shook her head and pinched the bridge of her nose, trying to make sense of this. Every moral objection rose up before her, but there was a tug on her insides, a warmth growing below. A desire to actually see this crazy thing through. And another very strange part of her wanted to share Sully with Cheyenne. She loved Cheyenne, and she loved Sully. Sully would be good to Cheyenne. Probably. Unless he tried too hard to impress her and did something stupid. That could happen. Most likely, Sully would be good to Cheyenne.

And a deeper, stranger part of her kind of wanted to watch it happen.

CHAPTER 11

All four of them gathered on the bed now, walking on their knees and regarding each other warily. Both Sully and Byron cupped their balls in their palms and hid their erections behind the underside of their forearms. Byron's eyes were on Scarlet's chest, and Sully's eyes were on Cheyenne's. At the center of the bed, they sat on their haunches and Cheyenne said, "Is the bed going to support all of us?"

"It'll support us," Sully said. He gave a wry look at Scarlet, implying the vigorous session they'd had earlier today.

Cheyenne reached a hand out towards Sully, and Scarlet held her wrist and guided Cheyenne's hand back to her lap. The two men were naked, the two wives topless and wearing bikini bottoms. The room seemed strangely quiet now. Scarlet said, "Don't you think we need rules first?"

Cheyenne blushed and said, "Yes, we do," her voice rushed and making up for her admonishment. Cheyenne was eager to do this—eager to get it done so she could move on to the next stage. Being with Cody.

Scarlet said, "Well, what are they?"

Byron looked toward Cheyenne and said, "Condoms."

All of them agreed that they all needed condoms. Then Byron hung his head.
“We ran out of condoms.”

Cheyenne looked sheepish, but then said to him, “I got more.”

Byron’s head came up again. “You got more? When? How?”

“Cody got me some.”

Byron said, “For him or for me?”

Cheyenne noticed Byron’s grim expression. She shrugged, saying, “He just bought assorted condoms.”

“Did you tell him we wanted to do this?”

Cheyenne shook her head, and Sully said to Byron, “Easy, buddy.”

Byron said, “I just want to know how she got condoms from Cody and I’m only hearing about it now.”

“I didn’t ask him for the condoms, Byron,” Chey said, defensive. “He went to shore today, and he came back with condoms. He just gave me some. It was no big deal.”

“Okay,” Byron said, surrendering. “It sounded suspect.”

Sully said, “Bro,” his eyes still on Cheyenne’s chest.

Scarlet said, “How about you, tiger—what are your rules?”

Sully said, “Beyond condoms, what rules are there?”

Scarlet stared at him for a moment with a scolding expression, like her husband wasn’t taking this seriously. She said, “How about Cheyenne puts a dildo up your butt? Are you okay with that?”

Sully rolled his eyes. “I don’t think so.”

Now Scarlet smiled wide enough to show her teeth and almost giggled.
“Seriously?”

“No,” he said, “I don’t want that.”

“If you want that, Sully . . .”

Sully said, “I don’t want that.”

Scarlet said, “So that’s your rule?”

“How about asking for permission before you do anything like that?”

Byron said, “That doesn’t sound very sexy.”

Scarlet said, “Are you just going to have your way with me?”

Byron’s eyes darted to her, and he stuttered, “Oh n-no, I don’t mean... I just mean it’s, it’s—”

“Relax,” she said. “How about kissing? Are we okay with kissing, Sully?”

Sully said, “I don’t want Byron kissing me.”

Scarlet huffed with exasperation. “If you don’t want to take this seriously—”

“I am taking it seriously. You’re the one who just said something about putting a dildo—uh, well, where the sun doesn’t shine.”

“Okay, okay,” Scarlet said, squeezing the bridge of her nose. “This is weird.”

“Let’s keep going,” Cheyenne urged. Byron nodded.

Scarlet blinked away the stress and looked to Chey. “Kissing, Cheyenne?”

Cheyenne thought about it and Scarlet was glad to see somebody doing the right thing. Chey said, “I don’t think so. No offense, Sully.”

“None taken. No kissing, wear a condom... Anything else? How about you, Byron?”

“I think we’ll learn as we go along. We know each other pretty well.”

“We’re about to know each other a lot better,” Sully muttered.

Scarlet shot Sully another scolding look, but it had the opposite effect: Byron started laughing. Sully joined in, and then Cheyenne did, too. Cheyenne grabbed Scarlet’s arm and said, “It’s going to be okay, Scarlet.”

“Am I being too bossy?”

“Tensions are high,” Cheyenne said, still holding her hand.

Scarlet saw both guys looking at the two topless wives holding hands, and she let Cheyenne’s go. They both returned their hands to their laps. She said, “Who’s going to go first?”

Byron said, “I think Cheyenne should go first.”

“Really?” Cheyenne’s eyebrows raised.

“I think we have more experience. I think you might be more... Confident.”

Cheyenne and Sully looked to each other, the light dim, the room too quiet. All of them sat on their haunches with knees pointing toward the center. Cheyenne rose and Sully did as well, letting his hands fall to his sides and his full-size erection now fell down from the protection of his forearm and bobbed, pointing towards Cheyenne’s crotch. Scarlet put her hands on her cheeks and looked at Byron. Byron’s eyes were wide and his cheeks hollow. Byron looked at Sully’s erection, then up at his wife’s face. But then that was it. Sully made no further move, and neither did Cheyenne.

Scarlet got to her knees as well now, suggesting what she thought was a great idea. “Why don’t we start with what we know?” She took Sully’s hand and brought it to her waist, and Sully got it right away, kneeling his way so that they were touching. She took his mouth and scratched his neck, and he swept his hands over her back and then slipped them down her panties and held her ass. His cock pressed its hot belly flat against her stomach.

Byron and Cheyenne did the same now, too. Each couple would get themselves warmed up with their own partner—then they would swap. That's how they would do it.

They made out with their spouses, going with what was familiar, until their breaths were coming quicker and deeper.

Scarlet let her kiss part from Sully's, and kneed backward from him, still holding his hands. She waited, and Byron and Cheyenne followed suit. Now their eyes were all brighter and shinier and their cheeks reddened. Cheyenne sucked her lower lip under her teeth and knee-walked closer to Sully. Scarlet held her breath.

For a second it looked like they might kiss, but then Sully put his mouth under Cheyenne's ear and sucked on her neck. Scarlet's hands went to fists—not out of anger, but out of anxiousness. It was hard to watch, and yet her heart galloped in her chest. Byron watched as well.

Now Cheyenne let her fingers go to Sully's hips. Her palms touched Scarlet's husband in places only she touched. Scarlet gasped for a quick breath and then held it again.

Cheyenne's right hand went down toward Sully's thigh, then came up the middle. Scarlet watched Cheyenne's familiar hand close around her husband's hanging balls. It got her arms trembling and her teeth chattering. The feeling was tremendous—excitement but with a sense of bewildering wrongness, of being bad, of being naughty. It was a terrible feeling, and at the same time, it was wonderful.

She brought her hands together between her breasts, locked her fingers and squeezed.

Cheyenne now began to handle Sully's erection. Cupping it underhanded, stroking it awkwardly. Sully exhaled, rested his forehead in the cup of Cheyenne's collar because he liked it so much. A seismic jump hit her pulse and she couldn't deny that it was jealous anger. She didn't like seeing Sully enjoying himself at the hands of another woman. She liked watching Cheyenne explore—but not her husband receiving pleasure that way. Not so much at all.

Now her linked hands came higher to her chin, and she bit on her index fingers' knuckles as she watched.

Sully lifted his chin and looked at Cheyenne, saying to her quietly, "Do you like it?"

Cheyenne looked at Sully, still biting that lower lip, and nodded.

Sully said, "I like your hand on it."

"Do you want me to stroke it faster?"

Scarlet was squirming right out of her skin now. She looked around Cheyenne's back to get Byron's attention. Byron's eyes were glued to his wife's hand on Sully's cock. Scarlet knee-walked around behind Cheyenne's feet, and Byron turned his attention to her, his eyes going from hers and down to her chest and back up to her eyes again. They came together face-to-face and Byron hit her with an unexpected zinger: in a low and lusty and dumb-sounding imitation of her husband, Byron whispered, "Duh, do you like it?" and Scarlet burst out laughing and fell forward against him. The two of them hugged each other, laughing hysterically. Cheyenne clucked her tongue and spun around to look at them.

Sully said, “What are you guys doing?”

Byron said, “We’re just getting into it,” but could barely speak because he was still laughing.

Cheyenne said, “Seriously, what are you doing?”

“Nothing,” Byron said. “Sorry. We’re having fun over here.”

Scarlet tried to gather herself, wiping tears from her eyes, taking a few deep breaths and then shaking her shoulders out. She said, “Okay,” but her voice was shaky and when her eyes met Byron’s again, they both burst out laughing.

Sully said, “Seriously—what are you doing? Are you making fun of me?”

Byron said, “We’re not making fun of you. Everything’s fine.”

Cheyenne gave Byron a dirty look and then sat on her haunches. Sully did too, hand stroking his dick.

Cheyenne said, “What’s so funny?”

Byron shrugged and said, “It’s just a little awkward, Chey.”

“I know, but we’re doing it.” Her tone was hopeful, perseverant.

“Sorry,” Scarlet said. “I just got a case of the giggles, and then Byron started laughing at me.”

Sully said, “Is this too weird?”

Byron said, “What about oral sex? We didn’t talk about that.”

All their brows lowered. How had they not thought of that?

Scarlet said, “I’m okay with it.”

Cheyenne said, “Byron on you?”

That’s not what she’d been thinking. She shrugged and said, “I think so. I meant you and Sully.”

Cheyenne said, “Sully on me?”

Scarlet said, “No, you on Sully. . . . Actually,” she said, rolling her eyes up to the ceiling, “can I say no?”

Byron said, “No to what?”

“No to Sully on Cheyenne.”

Byron said, “You don’t want that?”

Cheyenne said, “Why not?” as if she was offended.

Scarlet shook her head, wincing. “No, sorry—I guess that is okay.”

Byron looked at Sully, asking him, “What about Scarlet on me?”

Sully made a face like he didn’t like the question, yet he answered, “I guess it’s okay.”

“Okay,” Cheyenne said, “can we start again?”

But Byron didn’t answer, just staring at Cheyenne. At last he said, “You could go down on him. Down on Sully.”

Scarlet saw Sully’s eyes widen and knew her husband had just got a jolt of excitement. The idea also aroused her for some strange reason. She said to Cheyenne, “Why don’t you do that?”

Cheyenne looked at both of them, biting at her lower lip. She said, “You guys want me to do that?”

Sully said, “I’d be okay with that.”

Byron shot his eyes toward Scarlet's and she felt that urge to giggle again, and she put a hand up so she wouldn't see Byron's face. No one thought you wouldn't be okay, Sully, darling. She said, "It might be sexy."

Sully made a what do you think of that? face at Byron. Then he widened his knees and put his weight back on his hands. Cheyenne took a deep breath, went higher on her knees, gathered her hair behind her neck, rolled it into a loose tail and let it hang over one shoulder. Then she began to kiss Sully's chest at his sternum. Scarlet watched her husband's muscles flinch and jitter as another woman put her lips against his body, right in front of his wife. Sully's cock was rock hard and upright between his legs. Cheyenne's kisses worked lower, going to one side, lower and lower, Sully's erection touching her cheek, her ear . . . Cheyenne's kisses moved toward the center. She hooked two fingers over the base of Sully's erection to angle it forward, and she kissed the head of Sully's cock. Scarlet winced and bit her knuckle again.

Byron touched her elbow, then rubbed her arm soothingly. She looked to Byron, and both of them grimaced enough to bare their teeth, but then returned their attention to Cheyenne and Sully.

Sully pushed his hips forward, and Cheyenne's lips parted. The head and first inch of his cock sunk inside Cheyenne's mouth. Sully bit his lower lip and watched Cheyenne take him. Scarlet wondered if he did that face when she went down on him. She'd never watched his face while she'd given him a blow job. Did he make the same expression? Not that there was a competition, but she was pretty sure if it came down to it, head-to-head, she would come out the winner in a blow job competition with Cheyenne.

But once Cheyenne started, Scarlet thought maybe it wouldn't be so easy. Cheyenne really seemed to move her head around a lot. Her neck would arc and her head would bob. She varied her movements. She stroked sometimes, just a little, and sometimes she would give Sully's hanging balls a gentle squeeze.

Scarlet shook her head then and found herself surprised that she was fully aroused watching Cheyenne pleasure her husband. Her mood had lightened.

She looked to Byron and shot him her own what do you think of that? face.

CHAPTER 12

B yron faced her, and Scarlet went to him. She kissed his chest, kind of liking how Byron wasn't as hairy as Sully—but then wondered what she made of Philippe. Philippe was hairy like a jungle animal. But somehow it worked on Philippe.

She stroked Byron's smooth chest, squeezed his shoulders, let her nails run down his torso. He had a good body. Not as muscular as Sully, but slender and boyish and smooth-skinned. Next, she did the same thing Cheyenne did with Sully. Kissing Byron's chest, kissing lower. When her hand came up between Byron's legs and touched his balls he jolted like she'd electrocuted him. She snuffled laughter against his tight stomach and then bit the flesh around his navel. Byron's hand cupped the back of her head, his nails parting the hair and scratching at her scalp. It tightened her nipples.

Her kisses worked closer to the throbbing iron rod between Byron's legs. He was smaller than Sully, shorter and thinner, and her mouth went over it and sunk right to the base in a long, slow gulp. Byron's whole body trembled and shook. She slowly drew her lips up to the point of his erection and then kissed it. She kissed his chest again, his collar, then whispered in his ear, "I really do like it."

They both chuckled, and shared a moment where they tried to hide their laughter from their spouses so they wouldn't get in trouble again.

But then the weirdness settled in and a sudden regret came over her for putting Chey's husband's penis in her mouth. She'd been at their wedding; had been in the bridal party. She wasn't attracted to Byron, not in this way. Though he was good-looking and funny, he didn't belong to her, he belonged to Cheyenne.

When their eyes met, she could see in Byron's expression an equal discomfort. Here he was looking at his wife's college friend, naked except for bikini bottoms. It made her more uncomfortable. It was easier when she thought of Byron as an eager male participant—as evidenced by his completely upright and fully hard member—a brainless male entity turgid with simple lust. But Byron wasn't simple. He was smart, and he loved Cheyenne. And in a way, while what they were doing was fun, it wasn't exactly the path any of them wanted to be on.

Her eyes drifted to the right, at Sully on his knees sitting on his heels, his arms planted out behind him. His back was arched, showing off some stomach muscle, her husband disproving her point: apparently Sully and Chey had no similar qualms. The veins stood out like cables from Sully's shoulders down to his wrists. Cheyenne was making him crazy. Instead of it provoking that jealous spike again, Scarlet was aroused. They looked good together. Even Cheyenne looked good, hunched over the way she was. Not necessarily an attractive position for your average person, Cheyenne was all long girl limbs, rib cage pressing against her skin as she breathed through her nose, her mouth fully stuffed with Sully's meaty cock.

The sight aroused her further, and she got to her knees as Byron did, the two of them clashing chests together, running hands over each other's bodies and kissing necks and shoulders. This was more like it. She grabbed Byron's cock and stroked it, squashed between their bodies, her hand going up and down in clumsy but urgent strokes. He went slippery. He was into it. It was uncomfortable and awkward, but what would she expect?

She whispered, "Yeah?"

"Oh yeah," Byron muttered.

His response made her think of the way he'd jibed Sully and made her break out with laughter. Byron must've sensed it too, because he tried to remove humor from the moment, getting dominant with her. He put his hands on her shoulders and pushed her back, getting her to lay on the bed, over top of her now on hands and knees and suckling on her nipples. She breathed heavy, her hands going through his thick hair, smelling shampoo. Meanwhile, in her periphery, Cheyenne's head bobbed on her husband's cock. It was hot. It was weird but hot. She liked it.

She shifted side to side so she could straighten her legs and lay out flat. Byron teased at her nipples, plucking them, doing it gently with his teeth. He brought them to pulse-pounding buds that ached with pleasure. She got on her elbows, watching as Byron kissed lower—but when his kisses touched her navel, she collapsed back on the bed, looking up at the ceiling. Byron began to kiss at her hipbone, in the seam where thigh met hip. His tongue swiped along that crease, from hipbone to crotch. She tightened and stiffened, both hands running fingers through her hair.

When Byron's tongue began to sweep across the hot flesh between her thighs she accidentally giggled. She held her breath, clapped both hands over her mouth and nose, trying not to think about it. But fucking Byron was also chuckling. Chuckling right against her pussy, but trying not to do it. She squirmed, pushed her wetness to his mouth. His tongue teased along her opening—not her husband's tongue!—and she brought her hands up to cover her mouth again. Byron snorted. She giggled. She brought her knees up, tried running her hands over Byron's head again, guiding his mouth between her legs. But when he kissed her right in that magic spot again, she snorted, and clapped her thighs around Byron's ears. She covered her mouth. Byron snorted too. A big blubbery laughing snort from his wet lips that sent a wild shiver of excitement from her pussy, going off like white fireworks behind her eyes. She guffawed and bucked, squeezed Byron's head between her legs and scratched fingernails on his scalp. But then the laughter came again, and she bit her forearm. Byron laughed too, then bit the inside of her thigh, and she yelped.

Cheyenne was pissed. "What are you guys doing?"

"Sorry," she said through laughter. "Sorry." She made up a lame excuse: "It tickles."

Sully palm-walked more upright, shooting her a dirty look. "Are you okay?"

She said, "Yeah," showing a mean face. "Are you okay?"

Then Sully looked guilty for enjoying Chey's blow-job and tried to look apologetic. She laughed again, and covered her mouth.

Chey said, "What's so funny?"

Scarlet looked at Byron. His mouth was all wet from between her thighs and it made her laugh harder. Byron laughed too, and wiped his face on her stomach. They were the only ones laughing. The only ones who thought this was funny.

When Byron sat up, his face was reddened. He wiped his cheeks, and brushed hands over his hair. He looked good, and she would like to get down with him, but there was just something so weird about the whole thing that made it explosively funny. She couldn't even put her finger on it.

Now she saw something else that wanted to make her laugh. Sully's full arousal had gone to about three-quarters. Instead of a full and angry erection, he had an enlarged but floppy hard-on. Cheyenne stroked it, trying to bring it to life. Scarlet felt guilty and showed a grimace-like apology—tossing a wondering look to Cheyenne like Am I ruining this?

But she didn't want to leave Cheyenne and Sully together. Not because it was her husband, but because the whole point of this was for Cheyenne to be watched. Though, truly, Cheyenne wanted Byron to watch her with Cody.

She looked at Byron, and saw that he was also worried that they were the two people ruining this thing. She said to him, "Where are the condoms?"

He shrugged and look to Chey. Chey's head was bobbing on Sully's erection again. He said, "Chey, condoms?"

"Right," she said, pulling her head away and wiping her mouth. Sully's cock, still large and inflated but not quite erect, fell to rest against his leg. Cheyenne worked her body backward, laying down and twisting to pull open their bedside drawer.

Scarlet laughed, saying, "You snuck in here and hid them already?"

"I wouldn't be carrying my purse," Cheyenne said, sitting crosslegged now in just her bikini bottoms, nipples hard, her nails plucking a condom packet off the roll.

Byron said, "She's really into this."

Scarlet looked at him, worried that it was a lamentation rather than excitement. But Byron was into it. He nodded when he saw her looking his way. He was into it, but it scared him. What a fucking trooper. Willing to endure something that may or may not please him just because his wife wanted it so bad. Carla was nowhere to be seen and Byron was still engaged. Byron was doing this for Chey.

Cheyenne passed Scarlet a condom, Scarlet tore the packet open and pulled out the greasy rubber. Cheyenne kept hers intact, seeing Sully wasn't ready yet.

Sully was into this but she knew her husband's demeanor. He was disgruntled. And she knew how it was going in his head. He wasn't hard, and he was looking to blame everyone else. Not wanting his masculinity offended. She would take the blame.

So she rose, walked on knees and hands to him and kissed his chest. Sully softened, and she ran her palm in a circle over his stomach. She gripped the base of his cock between thumb and first finger, and squeezed, plumping as much juice into it as she could. She wagged it toward Cheyenne, showing her sorority sister what they would do. If two girls on Sully couldn't get him hard, good luck blaming her. She smiled at him.

"You're so fucking hot," he said, his eyes a little lost in hers, disbelieving they were doing this together. She liked the way he looked at her, and it made her feel connected to him again.

"It's you who's fucking hot," she said, and stroked a hand through his hair.

Cheyenne got between his legs again, curled two fingers on the middle of his cock—their hands touched and sent a weird electric pulse that raced her heart. This must be Sully's dream.

Chey put his thickening cock head past her lips again and began to suck. Scarlet kissed her husband's neck and then his mouth. Sully groaned, and his hands went to her, but she drifted away from him, smiling, their eyes staying connected as she returned to Byron. She sat back like Byron did, the two of them willing but inactive participants for some reason. He'd put the condom on though.

When she looked at his face that urge to laugh returned. Byron's urge returned too, because he shot her a warning stare. She said, "You're doing it," and he whispered back, "You're doing it."

She batted his thigh with the back of her hand. "Do not make me laugh, Byron."

Byron snickered and she elbowed him, then got close, enjoying being with him. Just being naked and friendly was fun. Byron was a decent guy, a good husband to Chey. Her hand went between his legs and stroked him with the condom on. His hand went between her thighs. Cheyenne got Sully hard again, scooted back and looked for the condom. "Where did it go?"

"You just had it," Scarlet said.

"Where is it?" Cheyenne's voice was high and thin as she looked around, patting her hands on the bedding.

Byron said, "Check your pockets," and Scarlet snorted again and then elbowed him to make sure Cheyenne saw she was just as mad as she was.

Cheyenne said, "Shit," leaning over the side of the bed. "There it is." She leaned over to retrieve it and Byron shot forward and slapped her bikini bottom ass. Sully chuckled.

Scarlet said, "By-ron," in a chastising tone and pulled him back by the arm.

“I can’t help it,” he said, returning to sit next to her. Byron’s cock was at 100%, needle-north, 12 o’clock. Sully’s had faded again, sagging to rest against his leg. Dammit, her husband looked so fucking good. If Cheyenne couldn’t get this thing going, maybe they would just have married-couple sex in the same room. She wanted to jump her husband’s bones right now.

Cheyenne sat up, ready to tear the packet open, but saw that Sully had faded again. Sully didn’t like her looking at his dick with disappointment, grabbed it and squeezed it. He said in a defensive tone, “What?”

“Nothing,” Cheyenne said, shoulders slumping.

Byron said, “Keep going.”

Chey wiped at her forehead—her motor was still running, the other three of them were sputtering. No, not true. Byron was still eager to go. But at this point, about the only thing left besides same-couple sex was for all three of them to watch Cheyenne masturbate. Cheyenne was probably into that, but good luck bringing it up. Scarlet said, “Let’s take a breath.”

Cheyenne ran fingers through her hair, irritated. She said, “You guys…” And let it hang.

It bothered Scarlet, and she said, “Us guys what, Chey?”

“Nothing,” Cheyenne said.

Byron said, “We’re doing it wrong? We’re supposed to watch and we’re doing it wrong?”

“That’s not what I’m saying,” Chey said, eyes down and disappointed.

Byron sat up, still stroking his dick. He got close to Cheyenne, and embraced her. “We’ll figure it out,” he said. “Don’t pout. This is fun. We’ll get the hang of it.”

“You guys were laughing.”

Byron held Cheyenne back so he could see her face and told her honestly: “Scarlet and I were having a good time. We weren’t laughing at you guys, we were just laughing. We were having fun, I swear. I swear we’re having fun, Chey, okay?”

Cheyenne wasn’t convinced, and sniffled. Scarlet got it. It was starting to all weigh on Cheyenne’s shoulders. She was the star of the show, and while she wanted to be watched, she also hated being star of the show. Byron sat back, his face level with Cheyenne’s bare breasts. He leaned forward and kissed her stomach. He said, “Where’s your phone?”

“Why?”

“Give me your phone.” Byron calmly held out his hand.

Cheyenne sidestepped off the bed, crouched and picked up her phone from where it lay on the floor. She passed it to Byron and he said, “Okay if I open it?”

Cheyenne looked insulted. “I don’t have any secrets, Byron. You can go through all my stuff.”

“I’m being polite,” he said, leaned forward and kissed her collar. She sat down and hugged him.

Scarlet looked to Sully, despondent. Who was he going to call?

Byron eased Cheyenne back and showed her phone screen to her face. Her phone opened and Byron lay back on the bed, drawing his knees up, the top of his head on a pillow and looking at the ceiling. Scarlet could hear the phone ringing and then a voice answered.

Byron said, “Hey, how you doing? . . . Good, good . . . No, we’re good . . . You know, I was wondering . . . Yeah, what I was wondering was are you still doing dishes? . . . Uh-huh. How long you going to be? . . . I don’t know. What kind of— Yeah, kind of, that’s why . . . Yeah? You sure? . . . No, I know, of course . . . I’m not being silly . . . Okay, okay. Five minutes . . . All right, we’ll see you in five.”

Byron hung up, passed the phone back to Cheyenne, and said, “That was Cody. You’re on in five.”

All four of them huddled inside the bedroom door, the girls back in their bikinis, the guys back in their swim trunks. Just four people who were going to go to the hot tub, nothing to see here. Byron held his hand on the door with his shoulder braced against it. Sully said, “Just open it, Byron.”

Byron said, “It hasn’t been five minutes.”

“Jesus, it’s been like four and a half minutes already.”

In a rushed hoarse whisper, Byron spat back, “Four and a half minutes isn’t five minutes, Sully.”

Cheyenne shushed them all.

Byron slowly pulled the lever, opened the door a crack, and slipped just his head outside. Sully asked him what he saw. Byron pulled his head back in and closed the door again. “All clear.”

Cheyenne said, “It’s been five minutes, Byron. I think we should go.”

“All right, already,” Byron said, opening the door and then slipping his head back out into the hall. Cheyenne loomed close to him, up on her tiptoes, two hands cupped over his shoulder. Byron’s wife was eager to dart across the hall.

Sully looked at Scarlet, showing her a perplexed expression. The evening wasn't going at all like how he thought it would. Cheyenne had done an incredible job. It was all turning out so good—for a little while. It was wild to feel his wife's friend's mouth on him. Even with his eyes open, he could tell it wasn't Scarlet. Cheyenne did different things. Her mouth felt different. Her tongue felt different. She concentrated on different parts of his dick. The way her head moved... Everything. It had all been going so well.

Scarlet shrugged, and nodded her head for them to go. Byron opened the door wider and slowly stepped out. Cheyenne waited and Sully heard Byron urging her to follow.

Sully said, "I don't know what's with all the cloak and dagger—" Scarlet shushed him. They stepped out into the cool hallway that connected all the bedroom suites.

Only Arlo and Lily didn't know what was happening. And Arlo and Lily were upstairs. Who were they going to run into? But he guessed Cheyenne did have her privacy. Her dignity.

So he ended up practically tiptoeing along behind Cheyenne, putting a hand out behind him to get Scarlet's. He even hugged the wall like the rest of them—four burglars planning a heist—but all they were really doing was stepping across to visit Cody and Carla's bedroom.

Byron led the way—Byron had all the experience of visiting bedrooms in sneaky darkness—and then waited at the door, waving for them to hurry up. Their ringleader. Byron tested the handle and found it was unlocked. He levered the door open and poked his head inside. He waved them again, whispering, "All clear."

All four of them gathered in the Weber's master suite. The room was bigger than theirs. And he marveled at it for a moment, rolling his eyes around and taking it all in. Bigger bed, bigger space, even had a sliding glass door that led out to a balcony at the side of the yacht. There was a couch and a sitting table and two doorways that led into a big private bathroom. Cody and Carla didn't have to get up in the middle of the night and get decent so they could go down the hallway to the shared bathroom. Of course, if Sully had his own private bathroom, none of this wild debauchery would've been discovered. And besides, he suspected that though they'd all chipped in for the vacation, it was Cody's connection that got them the yacht, and he also thought that Cody and Carla had paid a bigger share.

Scarlet squeezed his elbow, and he turned to look at her. He said, "It's a nice room, huh?"

"What are you, jealous?"

He whispered, "Aren't you?"

"About the room?"

"What else?"

Scarlet's mouth twisted to one side and dimpled at the corner as she studied him with a furrowed brow.

He said, "I'm not jealous."

She said, "I'm not jealous either."

"About the room?"

Scarlet narrowed her eyes. "About anything."

"You sure?"

Scarlet's expression softened, and she got really close to him. She whispered in his ear, "It turned me on. You looked so fucking hot."

She lowered to her heels and turned to look around the room, leaving him in the wake of one of the most salacious things his wife had ever said to him. She'd left him reeling. It was exciting and complimentary and he felt like a million bucks. He couldn't help smiling, beaming at the back of her head. He took her by the elbow and brought her back and kissed her on the mouth. Scarlet melted against him, her hands exploring.

He said, "I'm nowhere near as hot as you are."

She returned to her same old masterful Scarlet, saying, "Don't you forget it," and patting his cheek, giving him a confident smile.

He held her hand, and said to Byron, "What are we supposed to do?"

Cody and Carla weren't in the room, but someone was in the bathroom. There were no doors to the bathroom. It was open on both sides with two archways, and steam billowed and the shower ran. Just as he'd said it, the shower turned off. Then Cody's voice: "You guys there?"

Cheyenne bristled, twisting her hands together and wriggling her toes. Byron stepped near the doorway and said, "We're here."

Cody said, "Get comfortable. I'll be right out."

Byron gave them a thumbs up and returned to the group. Sully noticed Byron was still packing a 100% hard-on in his swim trunks. He couldn't believe Byron was actually going to do this. He couldn't believe Cheyenne was going to do it. But he'd seen how it was with her with his own eyes. She liked to be watched. She liked sucking his cock while he watched her, and he thought she also liked knowing Scarlet and her own husband watched. If only that thing had worked out—it had been going so well. But he wasn't the best performer under pressure. He'd known it could happen, and couldn't believe it when it did. Scarlet watching him. Scarlet and Byron laughing. What the hell were they laughing about? What could be so fucking funny? It bugged the shit out of him, and the more he tried not to think about it, the more he thought about it. And that was the end of that. His erection had faded.

Byron got close to Cheyenne, and Sully and Scarlet watched as Byron kissed her lovingly, tenderly, doing it for real. He was soft and caring and loving, his hands barely touching her. Cheyenne had gone tight with anxiousness, but when Byron kissed her, she softened, her shoulders lowered, and her breaths returned. He cupped both her cheeks and looked into her eyes. "I love you, Chey," he said.

"I love you, too," Cheyenne said to him, her voice almost a squeak—tightened by emotion. It was touching, and Sully had no idea how something like that could be touching. Byron was going to watch her with Cody, and this was how they talk to each other? It was fucking wild. It was so fucking wild his erection had returned. If Cody didn't get out here soon, he would be the one stepping in.

Then Cody's voice: "That you, Miss Susan?"

Sully looked to Scarlet with a puzzled expression, mouthing, What the fuck?

Scarlet got close to him and whispered, "Cheyenne is Susan."

He didn't ask any more questions. Whatever. He said back to Scarlet, "Are we supposed to be here?"

"She said to come."

"Was she being polite?"

“No, she wants us here.”

“You’re sure?”

“I’m sure. Where do you want to sit?”

He said, “You’re going to stay?”

“What, you’re going to stay and I’m not going to stay?”

“That’s not what I mean. I just mean...”

“Let’s take a seat on the couch,” she said.

He narrowed his eyes, but let it go. “Okay,” he said, and still holding hands, they stepped to the side of the room and sat on the couch.

Byron guided Cheyenne to sit on the bed. He moved to the side table and took a chair there, across from Scarlet and Sully. Sully looked at the bed. So that was Carla’s bed. So that was where Byron was lucky enough to have sex with Carla. Byron put his pecker between those perfect breasts. He wondered if Byron came in her face. God, and now this boner was aching.

Scarlet’s eyes darted from Cheyenne to a figure emerging in the steamy bathroom doorway. At first she giggled, then covered her mouth. There sure was a lot of laughing on her part tonight. All of this was fun, all of it seemed light and enjoyable. Like now: the reason she laughed. It was Cody in the doorway, like some male superstar from a movie in the 80s. The steamy backlit bathroom behind him, he’d come from the shower wearing only a towel. A white towel tied at his waist. His body gleamed, hot shower water trickling down the ridged muscles of his perfect male body. He had glistening abs, thick pecs, bulging shoulders—all wet-shining with bright white light zipping across the curved edges. Under the towel was a rod that ran from his crotch all the way to the outer edge of his leg, just below his hipbone. If that was his cock, she would have to see it to believe it. But none of that was what was funny. What was funny was the straw cowboy hat he wore, one of those with a bowed profile like you might see at a rodeo, the brim curled and coming to a point. She laughed into her hand, but at the same time all the comedy was extinguished by the sheer audacious sexuality. She'd never seen such prominent male sexuality. How would she ever watch Magic Mike again? It would have no effect.

"Holy shit," she sighed, looking at Sully, meaning it more as a representation of her attitude toward the ridiculous spectacle she was witnessing. But of course, Sully looked wounded, thinking his wife meant the enormous bulge under the towel. Though she thought that was a spectacle all on its own, that's not what she meant. She cuddled next to him and whispered in his ear, "Can you believe this?"

Sully softened, easing back into the couch seat with her and putting an arm around her shoulders. "I feel like we shouldn't be here."

"We're definitely not leaving," she said, and laughed into Sully's chest.

CHAPTER 14

This was what she wanted. This was everything Cheyenne had wanted her husband to watch. It all had tumbled into place somehow, Byron sitting in her periphery where she could still see him, taking this crazy, dirty spectacle in. And Cody, her now sometime lover, totally knowing how to set the scene, disarming her, but more: disarming Byron. Nothing here would intimidate Byron. Her husband had mustered everything he needed to get his butt into that chair and she could tell Cody would do what was necessary to stop him from running away.

Cody was gorgeous. The white towel was made whiter by the tan on his skin; his lean waist flared wide to his hard chest; the prominent hump of his perfect cock evident under the terry fabric. She held her breath and admired him in awe, then bit her lower lip, meeting Cody's gaze. He smiled—looking like absolute male perfection—his narrowed eyes blazing at her, with his icy cool blues hidden under the brim of his straw cowboy hat. When she spoke, her voice was a soft, girlish sound she hadn't heard since high school. "Where did you get the hat?"

"This hat?" he said, putting on the drawl, running a finger along one edge of the curled brim. "Rode into town today, thought I'd treat myself. You like it?"

Cody emerged from the bathroom, sauntering into the bedroom, about ten feet of space between her knees and his naked body hidden behind that towel.

She said, "I like it."

"I thought you might," he said, coming closer, pausing an arm's length away. He tipped up the brim of the hat with a knuckle and said, "See you brought some friends."

She bit her lower lip again and shrugged, her eyes stuck on his beautiful body. "They were just on the stagecoach with me."

Cody laughed in his own voice, then corrected himself. "Well, I'm sure glad I ran into you again. Been thinking about you all day."

Though he'd mentioned "her friends," he'd only glanced toward Scarlet and Sully, and she guessed he figured Byron would want to be excluded, compartmentalized away from their act. A man watching a movie where his wife was the star and everything he watched her do happened on a screen. Her husband's eyes were wide, soaking it all in. She said, "I was thinking about you, too."

"Sure like to hear it," Cody said, lowering the hat brim, then folding his arms. "Thought you might. Hoped you might."

"I was," she said.

"Seems you caught me coming out of my bath."

Cheyenne said, "It gets dusty on those trails."

"Sure does," Cody said, "and I wouldn't want that horse smell on me, case I ran into a pretty lady like you."

"Just like me?"

“There’s only you,” Cody said, leaning close to touch her chin with the point of his index finger. Cheyenne shivered, then giggled.

Holy shit. The excitement was about to burst his capillaries. Byron could barely hear what they were saying over the thunderous boom-boom-boom in his eardrums. Cheyenne was the hands-down hottest thing he had ever seen. This was his wife playacting. This was his wife being a silly little girl, being coy and coquettish, sexy and sultry, and yet innocent, all at the same time. It was something he would never see in his life if he wasn’t sitting here watching her with Cody.

He could barely find a comfortable position. Every muscle in his body had the jimmies, that jumpy feeling like when he was trying to fall asleep and his legs wanted to start running around the room. He shifted and flexed, curling his toes, arching his back. His whole body was alive under the skin’s surface, like a billion ants doing a billion things. And he loved it. Yeah, he hated it, but dammit, he loved it twice as much. It was a gift to see Cheyenne this way. It was a gift to see his wife induced to a behavior he would never have provoked. The love they had, and the sex-life they shared, was entirely different than what Chey got from Cody. It wasn’t something she would even want from him. This was totally something else. She loved it, and he definitely loved her having it. About that he was adamant. He might suffer a little, under all the pleasure he felt, all the excitement, but it was worth it.

Now he watched as Cheyenne’s eyes lowered from Cody’s, down his shower-wet body, over the bunched-up muscles, the tanned skin, going to the bright white towel and settling on the ridiculous hump thereunder. Byron cupped a hand over his mouth and chin, his sweaty upper lip slipping along the inside of his index finger. He could feel his hot, wet breaths against his palm as he waited to see what his beautiful Cheyenne would do next.

Was that really Cody's cock under there? With the fake cowboy hat, like a costume, Sully couldn't help wondering if Cody had put like a pepper mill or something under the towel for comedic effect. The Texas drawl, the straw hat he'd bought at some Caribbean gift shop, the ridiculous length of his supposed cock under the towel... Sully had never anticipated a show like this.

Cheyenne was regarding the bulge now, and Sully watched as his wife's best friend—a woman he knew very well—put her palms on the towel, one on each of Cody's thighs. Her wedding ring and diamond winked in the low light coming from the table lamps. If the thing under the towel was real, now he got why Cheyenne had made all those noises for hours and hours the other night. And he and Scarlet had wondered what the heck Byron was doing to her.

Cheyenne rubbed two fingers below the penis-bulge and looked up to Cody. "What were you doing in the bath?"

"I was thinking about you," Cody said.

The guy was smooth. Sully figured he should be taking notes here. But then again, Cody had a lot more going for him, too, and Sully was smooth in his own way.

He shifted where he sat, and Scarlet cuddled closer to him. A resentful part of his brain said, "She's doing that so you won't stop her from watching—your wife wants to take a peek under Cody's towel." But so what if she did? Of course she did. If it was Carla here, he wouldn't mind taking a peek, either. And it didn't change a single thing about how he felt for Scarlet. And here was the thing: he was sitting here cuddled up with his wife, two people separate from this debacle, both of them watching this like it was a porno. Scarlet wasn't into porno, but she watched a couple things with him and didn't object. But this was a real live sex show. "Jesus," he said, squirming around again.

Scarlet chuckled and whispered to him, "Are you going to be able to handle this?"

"I feel like I want to jump out of my skin. Are you going to be able to watch this?"

"I know where the exit is," she said, then settled in again.

Sully became acutely aware of his wife's respiration. She was breathing heavy. The show was turning her on. His wife was getting turned on by something so lubricious. It threw his pulse into overdrive. His heart began galloping, his palms went sweaty. This was the wildest thing they had ever done. They were doing it together. It was a gift. For sure.

Sully watched now as Cheyenne's hand got bolder, the one running along just underneath the bulge cupping mid-shaft over the hump.

Cody said, "I couldn't stop thinking about you."

"Good thing we ran into each other. You all alone in that bath."

"We're together now," Cody said, reached down, first knocking back his cowboy hat again then kissing Cheyenne's forehead.

Chey said, "Thank goodness for that snowstorm."

Sully whispered, "What snowstorm?"

Scarlet couldn't take her eyes away, just whispering out the side of her mouth, "I have no idea."

Cheyenne ran her hand down to the towel-skirt's hem, just above Cody's knee. She slipped it underneath, and Scarlet's eyebrows rose high, watching the hump of Cheyenne's little hand crawl up Cody's leg then wrap around his cock. They were quiet, Cheyenne and Cody, looking at each other, smiling, eyes glistening. Scarlet's heart thundered. Cheyenne was putting on a show. Cody was putting on a show. Two top-notch performers, Cheyenne feeding off of Cody. They couldn't do it on her own. She needed to be a subject. Cody was the kind of man who took the lead.

Cheyenne levered Cody's cock downward, aimed for the opening in the towel wrap. Scarlet braced herself, thinking this might be where her husband told her it was time to get going, hustle her out of the room just when things were getting really good. But Sully said nothing as Cheyenne brought Cody's cock out into the light, the stiff, fleshy meat-pole sticking out like a crane arm. It was real. It was real and it was glorious—she'd seen it before, but never like this, not erect—a perfectly balanced, perfectly shaped hard cock. The flared head in full, swollen proportion with the girth of the shaft, the coloration even, the skin smooth, only the trace of thick veins underneath the unblemished skin. She bit her lips to stop herself from exclaiming something that would bother Sully, but watched now as her best friend and sorority sister—a married woman—ran her tongue underneath their friend's cock and slipped it into her mouth, the thing stretching Cheyenne's lips to a thin wet ring, all while her husband watched.

Beyond Cheyenne, Scarlet could see Byron now, Byron watching his own wife suck another man's big cock. Byron undeterred, his mouth not hanging open, but his jaw slack and his cheeks hollow. His eyes were wide, the pupils large, his gaze fixated on the thing his wife was doing. Cheyenne got what she wanted, and Byron looked pleased despite the mild horror that drew his features long.

It was unbelievable. Scarlet fidgeted in her chair, snuggling up to Sully. Meanwhile, Cheyenne sucked Cody's cock, her head rocking back-and-forth, her chin drawn down, her head like a piston, rolling in a circular motion, going up and down, the sounds of wet suction. Cheyenne stroked Cody's shaft; her other hand cupped his large balls. Cody's stomach muscles moved in and out, and he began to untie the towel, letting it fall to the floor around his ankles, feet placed shoulders-width apart. Buck naked, the man was an Adonis. All long legs with straps of swooping thigh muscles, a hard, round ass, muscles at his hip and up his belly, thick arms and powerful hands.

And he lay those hands now on Cheyenne's head, not guiding or forcing her to do anything, just riding along in her circular locomotion. Cheyenne had told her how much she wanted to do this, and it was evident in the effort she showed. She wanted to suck his cock, and Scarlet got it: she'd become fixated on Philippe's oversized organ. Wanted to play with it. Had teased her husband with dirty talk of doing the exact same thing. And here was Sully next to her right now, getting into what they were watching, playing along, not running for the hills or starting a jealous fight.

She gasped from sudden, pure ecstasy. Her left hand touched her husband's chest, rode down his trim stomach and slipped underneath the front of his swim trunks. Sully was rock hard. And when she gave his thing a squeeze, he jolted and spewed a stream of slippery lubricant that she used to stroke his shaft. He shuddered, and she bit his chest.

"This is fucking crazy," she whispered to him.

“I can’t even believe it,” he said.

CHAPTER 15

It wasn't a joke. It wasn't a pepper mill. No prank at all. It was just the vision of pure female fantasy: Cody with his jacked-up masculine body, naked now except for the cowboy hat. The cowboy hat didn't even look comical anymore. Not when he was naked, and Cheyenne had her mouth wrapped around his giant cock.

A not particularly unwelcome—yet still uncomfortable—feeling wormed through Sully. The right thing to do at this moment was to take Scarlet and lead her back to their room. A man should not let his wife witness such debauchery. And, more specifically, a man shouldn't let his wife witness the sexual prowess and endowment of a guy like Cody Weber. Yet, something kept Sully glued to the spot. As uncomfortable as the feeling was, his Scarlet was curled right up against him with her hand down his swim trunks and stroking his erection. She had pushed out the waistband just above his balls and he couldn't stop pulsing pre-come. She stroked him with it, and it still kept flowing. It was exhibitionism in its own right. Even though he'd already been semi-intimate with Cheyenne, this was a new, ingratiating scene. Cody would be able to see his dick, and Scarlet's hand on it. Cheyenne could see it, too—if she could pull her attention away from the Greek God in front of her, finally stop sucking that thing. And Byron could see it as well. That was a weird aspect. Byron's wife was with Cody. And Byron watched all alone. But Sully didn't think of Byron or Byron's feelings, only how wild and strangely powerful it made him feel. Which was a feeling he didn't want to have over his buddy Byron, yet it was like Byron was offering up this feeling to him. So he wasn't fighting it. He hoped Byron—if Byron could take his eyes away from his own wife sucking another man's magnificent erect penis—would look over and see Sully's own masculine prowess, see Scarlet huddled against him, biting his chest and pleasuring his cock while she watched Cheyenne with Cheyenne's fantasy cowboy. He shuddered, and that must have made Scarlet think he was going to come. She slowed, eased her mouth near his ear. "Let's make this last," she whispered.

"Yeah," he said, putting his hand over hers, both of them gripping his cock. He could feel his pulse pounding up his meaty shaft under his wife's grip. His breaths were deep—as deep as Scarlet's.

Cody's hands rode along with the motion of Cheyenne's head, cupped on her glossy hair, and around her delicate skull. And he seemed now to slow her movements. He eased his hips back and raised her face to look up. His big, turgid cock plopped from her mouth and rested on her cheek, shining with her spit. Cheyenne waited to see what he would say.

"Let's not be selfish now, it's not just you and me. There're others to consider."

Cheyenne nodded in slow wags, Cody's wet cock head going up and down from her cheekbone to the corner of her mouth. She put a hand on it and stroked it.

"Now, listen," he said, "I'm not one to gripe"—he lifted his hands from her head and showed her his palms—"but I been out on the trail a while, and I got no gloves. Palms are all well-burned.”

Cheyenne’s eyes moved from palm to palm. There were no marks at all.

He said, “There’s so much I want to do, I want to take my time, preserve my hands. Wouldn’t mind a little help. You wouldn’t think less of me as a man if I wanted some assistance?”

Cheyenne didn’t answer, her eyes flitting on his face, unsure but listening.

Cody looked their way, and Sully thrust his hips forward, pushing his rock hard erection through Scarlet’s grip.

Cody said to Cheyenne, “Your friend there, what’s her name—Miss Scarlet?”

Scarlet twitched next to Sully, her body stiffening.

Cody said, “Scarlet, maybe you could come on over, sit with your friend here for a minute.” Then Cody looked to Sully, addressing the woman’s husband. Cody showed his palms again, completely unmarked, and said, “Don’t worry none, just need a little of your woman’s handiwork is all.”

Sully glanced down at his wife’s face, and Scarlet looked back at him saucer-eyed. He’d been holding his breath this whole time. He shrugged, knowing he should say no, and yet he said, “Yeah, okay, go on, baby, help him out.”

Even though she shouldn’t, Scarlet let go of her husband’s hand, eased off the seat from next to him and stood up, adjusting her bikini. And she couldn’t help but notice her posture changing, her shoulders going back, thrusting forward her chest, standing tall and sexy and wanting to look her best.

Cody was naked right in front of her, her husband behind her. Everything about how she thought this might go was crumbling away, new doorways opening left and right, opportunities popping up that she had never thought she would see. She wasn't even sure if she wanted to take them. But her body's response was undeniably positive. Everything in her jumped and jazzed with high-voltage electric life. She padded toward Cody and Cheyenne, hands behind her, fingertips tucking underneath the swoop-curve of her bikini bottoms, getting her cheeks sitting in them right, coming to stand at the bedside.

Cody looked her up and down, then over to Cheyenne, saying, "You sure you two ain't sisters?"

Cheyenne shook her head no, Cody's long, thick penis still in her hand.

"All right, Miss Scarlet, maybe you could take a seat next to Miss Susan here, scoot a little behind her, like."

When she pivoted to sit next to Cheyenne, Cody said, "No, not this side. Why don't you come on around me, sit on her other side. Make sure you can see your fella over there."

Cody was some kind of sexual chess master, arranging the board in the ways he wanted. He'd done it to Cheyenne the other night, and when Cheyenne had related the story to her, Scarlet couldn't believe it. Couldn't believe that Cheyenne—though she was at times naïve—would be subdued by such obvious charm. But here she was, Scarlet, playing along right into Cody's hands. But then again, she wasn't going to do anything she didn't want to do. So was she playing into Cody's hands, or was Cody drawing from her what she already wanted drawn, taking responsibility for her own badness, bearing that burden and putting up cushions so Scarlet could enjoy what was offered yet be blameless? It was crazy to think. Crazy to think she could be arranged in this way by someone else. She'd always thought of herself as strong, as independent. Very headstrong, outspoken. Some would say a ball buster. But not now. Not in this room. Somehow Cody—and, yes, Carla, too—pulled strings in a way that had even Scarlet’s brassy confidence tarnished. What she felt now was hubris. And she was surrendering to it willfully. Blameless was all she could think, and with that, she cast a look over her shoulder to see Sully with his cock out, not stroking but just gripping it, hard as a rock. For her. Not for anyone else but her.

As she walked around Cody she let her eyes drop to look at his bare ass; round humps of tight flesh. The urge to put her body against his back and cup both cheeks in her palms was strong. By the time she got around to sit on the foot of the bed next to Cheyenne, her cheeks were burning. The two girls—two successful sorority sisters—looking up at their other friend’s gorgeous husband watching them under the brim of his cowboy hat.

Cody smiled at them both, all masculine confidence. He said, “Scoot a bit back, hon.”

Scarlet complied without saying anything, putting her weight on her hands, shifting behind Cheyenne, her feet off the floor and the back of her calves on the lip of the mattress. She snuggled her face under Cheyenne’s hair, looking out at Cody so Sully couldn’t see where she looked. Cody’s big penis was perfect. Even up close, the thing was a work of art. She’d always been a fan of dick, but this one had to be the most attractive she’d seen. The grayish color of his cock head was even, the inset at his urethra shallow and the cloven underside flare smooth and flawless.

Cheyenne shivered, and Scarlet bit her lower lip and eased back, looking over to Sully now to see what he thought so far. Sully’s eyes were glued to her. She grimaced and widened her eyes, shrugged a shoulder like, What’s going to happen?

Sully only stared back, somber, but eager and lustful too.

Cody showed Scarlet his palms up close now, saying, “Trying to save my hands. Maybe you’d help this cowboy out?”

“Sure,” she said, wondering what he intended.

Sully wouldn’t like it if she touched Cody, and she wasn’t sure she would like it if he wanted her to touch Cheyenne.

But wait—not sure? Maybe?

Yeah, the truth was maybe. Under the right circumstances. Then it hit her: All the maneuvering was clear, her own sometimes masterful mind seeing a few moves ahead, and again admiring Cody’s strategy. It made her smile.

Cody said, “Look at that smile. And you say you two ain’t sisters? Both a you smile for me.”

Scarlet couldn’t see Cheyenne’s face, but could tell by Cody’s reaction that she had also smiled. Two girls smiling before a naked man, angling their heads and playing coquettes. This kind of thing was never going to happen when it was just the four of them in the room. Every orchestra needed a conductor.

Cody said, “Would you untie Miss Susan’s top for me, Miss Scarlet?”

She tried not to laugh, a whole new uncomfortable humor working through her. It wasn’t Byron-related this time—she could look over at Byron if she wanted to and not burst out into laughing—but just the same, an awkwardness inflated inside her, almost bursting her seams.

“I could do that,” she said, positive and helpful, then shook her head and wondered why she’d used a Texas drawl.

She plucked a dangling bikini tie hanging down Cheyenne's narrow back. As she pulled the knot free, she couldn't help a funny feeling again. She'd untied the knot before—did it for her husband and for Byron—but she'd been in charge then, and she wasn't in charge now. There was a strange, dark sexuality twisting at her. The same act repeated only about twenty minutes later and suddenly assuming grander, wilder proportion. Now she saw Cheyenne as a sexual being, not as a fun co-conspirator.

As her knuckles grazed Cheyenne's hot, tanned skin, she couldn't help a funny roller-coaster upheaval, low in her tummy. And something else: a strong and stark feminine knowledge swelling up inside, a power, knowing Cody provoked from her a behavior that controlled men. She and Cheyenne working together could control almost any dick in the world the way they were acting. Only, Cody rose above that. Rose above it and lured their power closer to the surface. Was she crazy, or was Cody giving power to them? It was a crazy thing to think. There were power plays every day, and she usually saw herself as an outsider to them all. And yet, she wasn't. She was a player after all. She had her part to play in this crazy drama.

She untied and flung away the loose ties, tossing them forward over Cheyenne's naked shoulders. The bikini cups fell forward, and Cody smiled again. "She sure is a pretty one, isn't she?"

Scarlet nodded, even eased forward a little and peeked over Cheyenne's shoulder. Cheyenne had a generous bosom, pert, and sloping outward. Her nipples were hard.

That crazy swirling feeling whirled below Scarlet's belly again.

Cody said, "How much would you get for her at your brothel?"

Scarlet chuckled and raised her eyebrows, looking up to Cody, seeing a fun and devious sparkle in his bright turquoise eyes. She bit her lip and said, “Top dollar for this one. I could set all my working ladies loose, use this one up, put myself in one of those mansions all the way out in Manhattan.”

Cody loved it. Loved having her drawn in, and loved seeing her playing along so well. She leaned forward, and kissed the back of Cheyenne’s shoulder, smiling at Cody through narrowed eyes. Cody said, “You know what gets top dollar?”

She said, “What’s that?”

Cody said, “You know what men like.”

“Sure do,” she said, assuming a Texas drawl again, picturing herself like one of those madams in an old Western, lots of makeup and a velvet gown with a balcony bustier.

Cody raised one mischievous eyebrow. “So, then why don’t we find out.”

“All right,” Scarlet said, smiling wider.

Cody said, “Slip your pretty hand down the front of Miss Susan’s panties, tell me, how wet is her sweet little cunny.”

CHAPTER 16

Cheyenne sucked in her stomach and her lips, her teeth clamping down. Her hands went behind her, onto the mattress, her eyes on Cody's. The brightest fire burning inside her mind now was the one rising to Cody's challenge: she wanted Cody to know how wet she was. Wanted him to be pleased with the flux he provoked. And it wasn't just him. It was Byron watching; it was Sully watching; it was Scarlet at her side. This wasn't about her being in charge or her running the show. She wanted to be the star of the movie, but the production required an astounding director to bring out the best performance she could muster. She needed an idea man, someone who would write her scenes for her.

The idea Scarlet would touch between her legs was not something Cheyenne would ever ask for or ever want. But Cody was her idea man, and she would do what he requested. Whatever it was. It would be up to Scarlet to object. Cheyenne would submit to Cody's dirty, dominant mind. She would lie spread-eagle for him and let him do whatever he wanted to her defenseless body. And it was so much better with Byron watching. She was blameless: none of this was her idea, and besides, she wasn't who she was. She was Miss Susan; once a chaperone parent, now apparently a prospective 1800s brothel woman. Ultimately, a play actor in Cody's imaginative show.

And with that, chewing lips and sucking in her tummy, she parted her legs wider for Cody, tilting down her chin and looking up at him from under her brows, daring him to do whatever he wanted.

Even from Scarlet's profile Sully could detect the sudden look of horror on his wife's face. And that look excited him. Scarlet was a tough cookie, and to see her arranged and organized by a man he was sure his wife never thought she'd obey was crazy erotic.

Touch Cheyenne's pussy? Check to see how wet she was?

The sheer audacity—the wild, masculine arrogance—to even ask such a thing of Scarlet. It was astounding.

And Sully, more than anything, wanted Scarlet to check Cheyenne's pussy. The pleasure it would bring him had so many facets: There was the crude thrill he figured most dudes got when watching two women mess around; there was a strong sense that Cheyenne wanted all of this and was getting off on it; it fascinated him to watch Cody make the girls dance for him; Byron's stare showed that Cheyenne's husband enjoyed the terrifying act she performed; but most surprising was Cody's chiseling away of Scarlet's stony ramparts, his ability to pull down her barbed wire, crumble her barbicans, show Sully a side of his own wife that surprised the shit out of him. And he liked the surprise. Scarlet inspired confidence in him. She was strong and smart, and the stark exposure of the wife he knew against the wife he watched right now powered a fast-moving hurricane of desire for her.

Scarlet's face turned in a slow, hypnotized arc toward him until their eyes met. She looked to her husband for counsel. He blinked stunned, rapid winks, the simple act of his wife regarding him during this wild show, seeking his guidance or permission—or even just to share a look of comical reproach—tickled a dancing feather up the inside of his ribcage, sending his heart fluttering with bright love for his wife.

The thing Scarlet wanted most from Sully was a decisive opposition to Cody's request. She wanted her husband to forbid the act, to decide for her, to remove her agency in a bold, masculine swoop. Then Cody couldn't blame her for wrecking the scene.

But was Cody's perception of her what was important? Why would she care at all? If she didn't want to do it, she didn't have to do it. No man was going to make her do something she didn't want to do.

And, damn it, that was why she was putting this on Cody and on Sully. She didn't want to face the fact that she was okay with it—okay with putting her hand down Cheyenne's bikini bottoms. It was an uncomfortable realization. She didn't want to touch Cheyenne down there. She wanted to pursue the scene, see where it might go. Cheyenne was a beautiful actress in this live sex-show on a multi-million dollar yacht in the Caribbean. When else would something like this be okay?

So she stared at Sully—now hoping he didn't change his mind and put his stupid foot down and forbid her from having fun tormenting her friend. And Sully just stared in return, eyes wide and amused, his gaze like static crackling between them. He wanted her to do it.

When Scarlet's hand touched Cheyenne's bare hipbone, Chey gasped and jolted, and sucked her tummy in even tighter, her rib cage pushing taut against her flawless, tanned skin. Scarlet watched Cheyenne's profile as her jaw slackened and fell, her lips parting in anticipation of what would be the most libertine act that could occur between two girlfriends. They'd been close at school, had seen each other naked—one time even skinny-dipping with some football players on spring break, but that was in the total dark and no one saw a thing—and were comfortable with each other, even being close and hugging and snuggling, too, watching late-night movies together. But this was miles removed from any schoolgirl closeness. Neither of them had ever had a same-sex experience (none that Chey had ever admitted to, and Scarlet could only vouch for herself here), and for it to happen now, in their late twenties, and for it to be this unexpected way, was explosive.

Chey's skin was hot and smooth under the pads of her fingers. As her fingertips stroked across Chey's skin, skirting Chey's bikini waistband, Cheyenne's stomach fluttered. She could feel her friend's tummy trembling under her touch. It got her snuffling laughter. There was a fun cruelty in tormenting Cheyenne this way, knowing Chey was submitting to them, offering her sexuality for them to feast on. No, not them, only Cody. But Scarlet would partake. She would play along with this game for Cheyenne's benefit—and also the bug-eyed psycho she married, sitting a dozen feet away with his rock-hard cock in his hand, going out of his mind watching his wife doing something so unbelievable. There were a lot of benefits to this, and it made her feel powerful. She liked it. Liked the sexual authority burbling inside her.

Now her fingertips slipped beneath the edge of Cheyenne's bikini waist, left of center, easing down where Cheyenne's skin was even hotter. Chey's breaths came in stertorous gasps, her wet lips parted.

Scarlet leaned her head to the side, making eye contact with Sully. She licked her lower lip, saying to Cody, "I bet she's trickling like a mountain stream."

Sully looked faint for a moment, like his wife was so hot he might pass out. She smiled wide for him, narrowing her eyes and still biting her lower lip.

Cody touched Cheyenne's chin and said in his cowboy drawl, "I think this pretty one gets a real fever. She suffers. You can see it in her eyes. She goes in heat, I bet she rides the bed post." He rose to stand tall before Chey and then held his cock and teased Cheyenne's lips with the meaty end, the swollen head flared and ready for action. Cheyenne ran her tongue out and Cody eased the supple head back and forth across the wet velvet of Chey's pink tongue. And Scarlet was almost side by side with Chey, Cody's beautiful cock pointing at her as much as at Chey, his long, lean and muscular body towering above them both.

It distracted Scarlet, and when her fingertips parted through Cheyenne's pubic scruff and sunk into the soft slick of her sexual aperture, she gasped. Chey gasped, too, her chin jutting forward, her eyes closing, lost in wanton lust as her best friend touched her pussy. The feel was familiar, yet different. Chey's pussy felt unlike her own. Her fingers were only used to her own folds. Chey's were different, leaner, but still succulent. And, god, Chey overflowed. Her pussy felt like a microwaved peach, hot and ruined and soggy.

"Oh my god, Chey," Scarlet said, out of character, and an honest and shocked appraisal of her best friend's sopping pussy.

Sully had his hand clamped over his mouth, and his eyes were seconds away from popping right out of his head. Cody regarded her with speculation, waiting for the verdict.

Scarlet said, "She's so well-greased I bet we could slide anything inside her." While she said it, she watched Cheyenne, enjoying helping her friend live out some crazy fantasy she'd trusted her enough to reveal. It made her feel connected to Chey, and it also somehow removed the sexuality from what she did. While it was a new revelation to feel what another vagina felt like, the feeling wasn't sexual to Scarlet. She wasn't getting off on touching Chey. No, the act delivered to her a whole different level of sexual satisfaction, one that had nothing to do with physical pleasure, but one that had to do with dominance.

Cody said, "Take those undies off her and let's get a look at what she's got down there."

Scarlet withdrew her fingers from teasing Cheyenne's pussy and brought her shining fingers to work the knot out of the side-ties on Chey's bikini bottoms. Chey's breaths came quicker now, and her nipples looked like they might burst; they were like succulent cherry pits, stretched out, the areoles tight and dimpled. When she got the ties undone, she tossed the dangling cords over Chey's shoulders, the front flap of Cheyenne's bikini bottoms falling forward. Cheyenne was on fire; she trembled, her eyes locked on Cody, breaths coming quick and short.

Cody said, "Lay back, Miss Susan, let us get a look at your heat."

"Jeez Louise," Scarlet whispered, rubbing the back of her neck. Cody was an excellent dirty-talker. He said everything Cheyenne wanted to hear, his words so dirty the ricochets were pinging Scarlet, and even though her kink looked nothing like Chey's, the pinpoint accuracy she figured Cody was tapping Chey's targets with was smoking hot. It got her motor running, and she did not want to be inspected. But Chey leaned back on her elbows, her breasts falling to the sides, drawing her feet up onto the mattress, then letting her legs open so Cody could get a good look at her pussy. Cody cocked his head one way, then the other, admiring what Chey had between her thighs. Scarlet looked almost directly down now on her good sorority buddy, naked, legs open. Scarlet refrained from looking between Cheyenne's legs—even though this was Chey's kink, it felt like a violation somehow.

But something occurred to Scarlet, and she acted on it, looking up to Sully and saying, “Come, take a look, tell us if you like what you see.”

Her husband looked stunned and disbelieving. Like this was a trap. After all, what kind of wife asks her husband to come and look at her friend's pussy? But Chey wasn't Chey, and Scarlet wasn't Scarlet. Not at this moment. So, her Sully was just some lucky cattleman riding the right stagecoach.

Sully sat up, still unsure, pulling up the front of his swim trunks and covering his erection. But he was hard as steel, the tip of his cock poking up the waistband at one side. She bit her lips against laughter and waved him to come closer.

Cody made way, shifting to the side, enjoining Sully, saying, “Come on, pardner, shuffle in for a look-see.”

Sully side-stepped to the foot of the bed, wild-eyed and electric, breathing fast and cheek-blushed. He looked first to the side, over toward Byron—Scarlet didn't follow his gaze, only watched Sully. And her husband's eyes returned to Cheyenne, who lay on the bed with her knees up, feet on the mattress, naked like the day she was born, all tanned skin and toned tomboy arms and legs. The thatch of sparse pubic hair that covered Chey's pussy sparkled with droplets of her copious dew.

Scarlet nodded her chin to Sully's swim trunks. “Don't be shy, cowboy. Take that pecker out. We're going to try putting things inside this horny little lady, see what she likes. The more cocks, the better—let's see what you got.”

Cheyenne parted her legs wider, a roaring cold cavalcade of shame and humiliation whipping through her like a door held open too long in a snowstorm. Awful pleasure pooled in her belly and crackled in her brain pan. Her pussy drenched and eager, a strong feminine ache that had seized her lower back and tailbone, and had pulled taut a stretch of muscle between her anus and her pussy. It was the urge to be fucked, times a thousand. Heat blasted now in a sudden rebellion to the cold shame, blazing her cheeks, the back of her neck, the backs of her arms, and her earlobes.

She lay like an unceremonious science class frog, spread out for a pack of high-schoolers learning anatomy. She was on display; an impersonal sexual object opened up for study—and she loved the leering and jeering, the sadistic smiles, and even the taunting of the woman from the brothel, whose real name she didn't want to think of one bit. Three faces were turned between her open legs, eyes cast down to look at the most secret and sacred part of her. She began to tremble harder, and could feel the honey-trickle of her overflowing pussy slipping down her ass crack.

Her head rolled now on the bedding, looking past the bikini-bottom butt of the brothel woman, to Byron sitting watch off to the side and near the foot of the bed. She'd avoided his gaze—worried about what she might see—but Byron wasn't disappointed or ashamed or rueful. Byron was enlivened. His cheeks looked to burn as hot as her own; his eyes sparkled, and while he watched between her legs as the others did, now his eyes traveled to meet hers. When their gazes connected, a wild and crazy hijacker took over the controls of her sexuality. Her eyes rolled upward, unseeing and hazy, and her mouth slackened. Her spine twisted like a drag car taking off, all that motor-torque too much for its light and slender frame.

"Touch it, please," she gasped, eyes squeezed shut, one foot planted in the bedding, thrusting her pussy up to her inspectors, hips moiling. "Please, please." Her voice was a puffing, desperate whisper.

The need was deep and urgent and had transformed her from innocent sex subject to a frenzied nympho, leaking and hungry and writhing before her tormentors. The brothel woman ran her fingernails up the inside of her thigh, from past the midpoint to her knee. It tightened her core and made her pulse lubrication again, a gargantuan desire for an erotic touch seizing her nervous system. A buzzing sound got her eyes flickering open, looking between her thighs, her hips twisted at an awkward angle, her pussy thrust up to their faces. Cody had transferred his cowboy hat to the brothel woman. His blonde shaggy hair framed his hard and chiseled face. Sully loomed at Cody's side, hands on knees, his cock thrust out and throbbing. But between her pussy and Cody's face, Cody's large, muscular hand held pointed upright the source of the buzz: a slender chrome vibrator. Cheyenne gasped, and flopped a forearm over her eyes, humping her hips higher in the air, on a total cliff's edge of what could be the biggest orgasm of her life.

Cody had slid a box of sexual goodies out from under the bed. It had got Sully laughing, thinking how Cody planned ahead, buying the cowboy hat and even prearranging his sex toys exactly where he would need them, keeping them hidden until just the right moment.

But when Cody held a silver dildo upright and turned on, the thing buzzing away, Sully felt a strange sense of wrongness or compunction, knowing what would transpire next—and knowing he would watch. It was remorse or embarrassment and he couldn't believe he was the one feeling it. Cheyenne was a more than willing participant and on top of that, Scarlet was running her nails along the inside of Cheyenne's tanned thigh again, leaving long red lines.

It was Scarlet's lustiness that made this okay and absolved him of any guilt he could feel. His wife was turned on right now, as turned on as Chey, getting into this roleplaying and using a Western accent and playing along like she owned a brothel. It was Scarlet that kept his feet glued in place. Because this scene was too much for a straight-laced guy like him to come up with on his own. This was a brand new world of sexuality and play, a swimming pool that was kind of deep, even for someone who was a pretty good swimmer. Swinging when it was the four of them would have been the craziest thing he'd done sexually in his whole life, if it had worked out. But now, in Cody and Carla's room, he was about to watch Cody make his wife's friend come, and Cody was a cowboy and his wife owned a brothel and he was a lucky cattleman on a stagecoach and Cheyenne was Miss Susan. Byron was Byron, and he sat and watched them all do bad things to his wife because his wife wanted that. Sully's pants were off and his cock was hard, and Cody was naked too, standing a moment ago with his huge dick right in Scarlet's face. And he thought there was a good chance that he and Cody would—

Cody ran the nose-point down the inside of Cheyenne's thigh, starting at her knee, getting Cheyenne moaning and writhing some more. She heeled down on the mattress and raised her pelvis, putting her pussy up higher into the light. Chey had a really pretty pussy. And it was crazy wet. Fucking Scarlet had touched Chey's pussy. It was almost too much for Sully to handle.

"We're going to watch it go in her," Cody said, low and drawling, his eyes watching Cheyenne's face, still hidden under a forearm as she closed herself off from them.

The nose slipped into the crease where her inner thigh met her crotch, Cheyenne writhing, but holding her pussy still so Cody could penetrate her with his dildo.

Sully's eyes widened as he watched Cody tease Cheyenne's opening, running the dildo's point in up-and-down lines through the slippery gush coming from Cheyenne's swollen and eager sex. Cheyenne let loose a cry of sheer ecstasy, only her mouth visible, open and wet-lipped, showing her teeth.

Cody dropped the dildo to a flatter angle, running it so the whole length of the belly lay flat on Chey's pussy, pressing its vibrating hull into her. Chey cried out again in pleasure and torment, and her thighs shook and trembled. Sully watched her toes curl, take a tight grip on the bedding. Then Cody brought the dildo down so the nose almost touched her anus, then up again, bringing his hand out now and easing the point inside her pussy.

Sully's eyebrows rose high, watching the most insanely dirty thing he could watch. He and his wife were watching another man fuck his wife's best friend with a dildo. Fuck, his own legs were shaking.

The length of the dildo began to sink inside Cheyenne and Cheyenne stilled, getting quiet as she accommodated the modest-sized dildo. But slowly she began to rock and moan, her mouth going to an O shape under the shield of her forearm. Her stomach heaved in and out, and Cody drew the dildo out and then pushed it back inside her again.

Sully went light headed, watching Cheyenne's pussy clamp on the vibrator's shining shaft. Cheyenne emitted a ghostly moaning sound, a sound that quavered as her body seized with tremors.

"Golly, she's in heat," Cody said. "Look at her orgasm, and we barely started."

Cody worked Cheyenne over while Scarlet and Sully watched. Fucking Cheyenne first with the silver dildo, then moving onto a purple one that was a little larger. Cheyenne came at least three times and the room grew hot and dank, and a dark lusty swell began to fill up Scarlet from her toes, splashing in and around all her insides, making her sexual hunger grow to fantastic proportions. She wanted to get crazy. Wanted to do crazy things. Wanted to watch crazy things. All bets were off, and she and Sully had somehow entered a world of complete abandon and amoral anomie.

Sully's cock was throbbing and upright, curved up to almost touch his stomach. He looked thick and aching, the veins pressing out his cock skin like she hadn't seen in a very long time. Pre-cum slithered from his tip. And Cody's cock, that perfect meaty pole, out and wagging stiffly; when he would go to one knee to do something new and terrible to Chey's glistening pussy, the tip would touch the floor. She hadn't checked on Byron in a while but could see Cheyenne look his way every so often, their eyes seeming to connect, Cheyenne pouting and panting and showing her husband how turned on she was, chest heaving, glistening with a velvety sheen of sweat.

“Push up that knee for me, cowpoke,” Cody said to Sully, and Sully was quick to respond, leaning forward and resting a hand on the curve of Chey’s bent knee. A long, silvery thread of pre-come dangled from the tip of his penis and swayed a moment before attaching to the bedding. He eased Chey’s knee up and back, exposing her naughty bits further. Now, with the purple dildo sunk inside her pussy, Cody nosed the vibrating point of the chrome dildo against her anus. Cheyenne squeaked and moaned, her body tightening for a moment before relaxing and allowing Cody to push it inside her back hole. When he had her double-impaled, Cheyenne came again. Scarlet watched her friend’s tummy flutter, her arms gone to gooseflesh, panting like she was exhausted from all the pleasure and all the coming, over and over again—and Scarlet couldn’t help feeling envy.

As Cheyenne shook and trembled her way out of a double-penetration orgasm, Cody smiled, proud of his handiwork. He said to Sully, “You’re a good farm hand.”

Sully smiled, the overhead lights making him look malevolent. The three of them were like a sex cult torturing a new initiate.

Cody said, “But I’m going to ask the lady for a hand next.” His eyes went to Scarlet.

Coquettish, she said, “Who me?”

Cody showed her his palms again—not a mark on them, but supposedly rope burned. “Wouldn’t mind a little guidance, getting in there”—he wagged his chin toward Cheyenne’s pussy—“if you don’t mind.” Now his eyes went down.

Scarlet's eyes followed, going down his broad, muscular chest, the sharp ridges of muscle on his abdomen, down to his huge cock, pointing out and down. She would help. She would love to help. She would love to put her hands on his manhood and see what it felt like.

Her eyes roamed to Sully, who looked unsure if he was understanding the request, brows knit in the middle, looking from her, over to Cody, and down to Cody's fleshy weapon. When Sully's gaze returned to hers, his eyes were alert and scared, but there was no message from him in the negative. She took the absence of his denial as permission, and her hand moved forward—but greater sense prevailed and her hand snatched back. She looked from her husband's equipment to Cody's, then up to her husband. Now instead of unsureness, she saw in Sully's eyes a burning furnace look, like some roaring fire raged within him, flooding his system with fiery octane. It was excitement, it was lust, it was fear and wicked bedevilment. His eyes glowered like hot coals.

Cody slipped the buzzing vibrator from Cheyenne's quivering bottom and Cheyenne panted, muzzy and cottony, still reeling from the orgasm they'd all just witnessed. He wiggled the dildo in her pussy and got Chey squawking. She kicked her legs in light arcs as he slipped that away, too. Then with his Miss Susan unplugged, he hooked his large hands at the bend of her thighs, and yanked her downward, bringing her pussy closer to the foot of the bed, and nearer to his cock.

Scarlet reached out again, her eyes staying on Sully. Her husband didn't interrupt, his eyes watching her hand move to Cody's penis.

Sure, she'd touched Byron tonight and Sully had been okay, but Cody was rich and masculine and muscular, and so well hung.

Then Cody rose, his cock levitating above Cheyenne's pussy. Cody looked to her like he was in character still, like he was waiting for her help. She tipped up the brim of the too-big cowboy hat he'd transplanted to her head, then down to his cock, right out in the light and before her, extending out in a nine-inch trunk between her and her husband.

Her hand was still extended, and now it moved to its target. She gripped his cock just a finger's width from the thick coronal flare of his handsome cock head. She squeezed her grip, felt the firmness, the girth, the feel of blood-rushing sexual life beneath the surface. A bead of pre-come formed in the cup of his urethra, swelled to a dangling ball, then dropped into the matted patch of Cheyenne's pubic pelt.

Her hand slipped forward, curled the swollen knot of his cock head, polished it a moment like the end of a gear shift, then her now slippery grip stroked his length, from cock head to near the base. She cupped his hanging scrotum, felt the weight of his balls, also larger than normal, and the way the fat egg shapes squirmed in her grip.

Her palm cradled the underside of his penis, a true masculine work of art, a real blessing for Cody, easing along to near the tip, her thumb curling to clasp over the topside, bracing his cock head as Cody eased forward his hips. As the tip drew near to Cheyenne's aperture, Scarlet began to move the cock head up and down, guiding the big fleshy nose-point through her sorority sister's glistening folds. Cheyenne moaned; Sully groaned, baleful eyes on her hand holding Cody's cock; Cody smiled, and Scarlet did, too. She eased the head of his cock to nestle in her friend's pussy, and Cheyenne purred as Cody began to push inside her.

CHAPTER 18

B yron watched in pale-faced horror as Cheyenne's best friend guided Cody's huge cock into Cheyenne's pussy. The blood had drained from his face, his heartbeat a hollow and distant sound in his emptied head.

But it was magnificent. A magnificent torture that brought to stark, vivid life every fear and worry and insecurity, and beamed million-watt halogen spotlights on it. He was stripped more naked than his wife.

The monumental unveiling of those most vulnerable parts of him in juxtaposition with his wife's unrivaled pleasure gave him unexpected power. Instead of shame, instead of shrinking from his fear, here Cheyenne had provided him a venue to explore those vulnerabilities, to maybe even mock them. The place they were in right now was a safe one. He was with his wife, who he loved, and he was with friends. And he was witnessing the unadulterated sexual gratification of a lifetime. The worst thing a husband could imagine happened before his very eyes, but it was done with care and camaraderie and, damn it, fun. The cowboy hat, the stupid cowboy talk, the theater of it all. Sully getting in there, acting tough but still showing vulnerability. And surprising Scarlet. It was shocking how quickly Scarlet put her motor in gear and got the show on the road. Cody may be the conductor, but the genuine star of the show was the woman Byron loved. Cheyenne wanted this, but only truly wanted it if her husband watched. In no sense did he think she leveraged humiliation his way. She was an exhibitionist with a particular viewpoint on the kink. It was Chey who liked to be humiliated and evaluated and made into a show for an audience. He was the best audience. He loved the show. He sat with the hardest erection he could muster, his cock trembling and flexing and leaking pre-come like a worn-out faucet. All he could think of was how much he loved her. And this was despite the terrible acts of depravity committed against her at her own will. The wanton pleasure delivered to his wife was an impossible gift they all offered her. Everyone here cared about her. Some of them loved her. Scarlet did, and no one could love Cheyenne the way her husband did. This was all for her, granted by his ability, his strength and resolve to see this through, no matter how difficult it might be for him. He'd never anticipated how much he would love it. Yeah, it tore at his seams, tried to render him in two or three pieces, but through it all, he couldn't deny his sex drive rocketed up and down and around in circles on the world's fastest rollercoaster. The thrills came a mile a second. Fucking his wife with a vibrator. The sounds of her orgasm. Teasing her. Using the vibrator and a dildo, a double penetration that made his wife make noises he couldn't believe, but that rang in his ears like lubricious music.

But now, the grandest of sexual acts began. He almost came in his swim trunks, watching Scarlet hold Cody's huge penis and rub its nose in Cheyenne's labia. Poor Sully also looked like a smelling-salts candidate. Neither of them could have anticipated how sexual and free-spirited their wives were. Husbands everywhere were the ones feeling guilt over their high horsepower sex drives and maybe none of them had any idea at all the nefarious and salacious scenarios that played out in the minds of the women they married, and how with just the right prompting, those wives would engage in sexual play like a couple of seasoned burlesque pros in Amsterdam's red-light district.

The sight of Cody's substantial cock, raised hard and huge and straight, sinking inside Cheyenne's shimmering pussy curled Byron's toes, had him leaning further forward. His consciousness had gone hazy and rough-edged, his mouth bone dry, heart hammering, his cock aching and begging for release. Just the movement of the trunks' liner scraping over his knob-end threatened to set him off like a rocket. His cock was a pleasure beacon, like a lightning rod on a roof demanding it be struck.

Despite that, it was his wife right now exclaiming the sounds of overwhelming sexual pleasure. Chey let loose an airy keening note, one of shock and surprise and feminine desire. Cody's big cock sinking into her produced the kind of sensual spellbinding she didn't receive from her husband—a mere mortal. Chey's cries of ecstasy brought Byron to the brink of orgasm again, his stomach muscles tight as a drum, his hamstrings and calf muscles trembling. He squeezed his thighs together and brought his combined hands together to his mouth, biting his knuckles and fighting this biological urge to loose his seed into his swimwear.

As Cody's cock pushed into her best friend's pussy, Scarlet stroked the pads of her two middle fingers in zig-zags over its topside. It wasn't a smooth entry at first; Cody was very big, and though Cheyenne's pussy was well-lubricated, it took a moment for him to enter her in a way that wouldn't give discomfort. Halfway in, Cody stalled and withdrew a few inches, Scarlet's fingers going slick with Cheyenne's wet on Cody's shaft. Chey's labia clung to Cody's girth. Then Cody sunk it in Chey again, going deeper. Chey almost howled with otherworldly delight, and she grabbed Scarlet's thigh, her nails digging in. Scarlet laughed and bit her lip, looking up at Sully. Sully was hypnotized by the sight of Cody skewering Cheyenne's pussy.

Scarlet spread her two middle fingers, forming a wide V, and ran them down the slippery slopes of Cheyenne's vulva, stroking the sides of Cody's shaft where he entered Chey. The feel of Cody and Cheyenne's connection was wildly erotic, and it supercharged her own racing motor. She'd been iffy on interacting with Cheyenne during any swinging activity and touching parts of Chey's body that friends didn't usually touch, but once they'd started, all that stiffness melted out of her. Hell, she'd seen Chey throw up on herself one college hangover morning, then helped clean Chey up; at least this was fun.

Now she ran her fingers up and down, massaging, pleasuring, then bringing the pads of her fingers up higher, her middle finger seeking out Cheyenne's clitoris. The bulb was full and engorged, sitting in the nest of her wet folds, and Scarlet worked it over, sending Chey into overdrive, making her friend cry out in frenzied passion. She said to Cody, "I think this little lady likes the big ones."

Cody chuckled. "She sure is a tight little thing."

"I think she'll bring me top dollar," Scarlet said, finger-patting wet splats on Chey's clit. "She's going to make me a lot of money. Mr. Henley will have to build an awning out front of the saloon, stop all the men from fainting in the heat and the sunshine, waiting in a very long line-up for their turn to stick their big peckers in our pretty little slut."

She'd been wary of using that terrible word, but when she said it, Chey gasped, giving a sign like the terrible insult gave her a pulse of excitement.

She continued: "I bet my little slut here could work a twelve-hour shift on her back with her legs up. I bet she could take a hundred cocks a day."

"I think she likes it. I think she hates she likes it, but look how wet she is," Cody said.

Scarlet's hand slipped down to where his cock was moving in and out of her, and was surprised to feel that Chey was even wetter than before.

"She's gushing," Scarlet said to Cody.

Hands were on her, startling her, Sully clambering into her space. His hands went to her shoulders, her neck, stroking her all over. His skin was hot, and his cock almost poked her in the chin, its lone eye still seeping his liquid excitement. He was taking her top off, and she went with it, lifting her arms and letting him strip her bare. With Chey's wet still on her fingers, she clutched her husband's erection while he kissed her with frantic hunger. At her touch Sully gasped into their kiss and jolted. She'd never seen him so turned on, so crazy for sex. His cock twitched in her grip and he almost collapsed on her, using his weight to pin her on her back on the bed. He loomed over top of her on knees and elbows, cock in her hand and leaking onto her stomach. She didn't want to stroke it even once, fearing he'd blast off, come back to reality with post-orgasm regret and want to flee the room.

But her husband was stiff and determined and possessed by his male drive for copulation. As his dutiful wife, she had to override his lust and make the grander decision. As he kneed her thighs open, intending to fuck her while Cody fucked Cheyenne on the same bed, she resisted him, making eye contact and trying to beam her thoughts to him through her eyeballs, hoping she could cut through his strong sexual intent. Sully rolled his hips back, angling his cock with her pussy, her hand still clutching his throbbing member. When he tried to put it inside her, she made it difficult, dipping her hips back in the bedding, letting his cock go and covering her entrance— And discovered she might be as wet as Cheyenne. She bonked her forehead into Sully's, eye-locking him, and urged him in gentle whispers, "Slow, slow, baby. Slow for me, okay?"

Sully gritted his teeth, jaw muscles flexing, but began to smile in a way that made her think her husband appreciated her voice of reason.

She whispered, "We're going to make this last, baby," and uncovered her sex and cupped his cheek, her palm warm and slick with her own excitement. Sully understood. He didn't try to take advantage of her unshielded pussy and plunge himself balls-deep. He chuckled and groaned and smirked, rolling his head on his flexing neck, working very hard to be her partner in a night of devious entertainment.

When he squinted and hid his face away as if in torment, she patted his cheek again and made him look at her. "We're in Chey's turn right now, baby. It's not our turn. We're still playing." She raised her eyebrows, as if awaiting his acknowledgement. Sully nodded, smiled, lips pursed thin, fighting his own inner male turmoil, but coming around to seeing her way of thinking—and appreciating it.

He kissed her forehead. "I never knew you were so evil," he whispered near her ear.

She whispered into his in return, "Do you like this?"

He moved his head back to look into her eyes. "I love seeing you in your glory. You're a fucking wild woman."

"I didn't even know," she said in whispered shock, and they both laughed and giggled. Her arms went around his neck and they kissed for a long moment while the bed rocked with Cody's thrusts and Chey gasped and cried and wailed right next to them. Chey's knees were up to her shoulders, her feet rocking loosely as Cody fucked her hard and deep now.

She broke off their kiss, getting back in character, and looking to enjoin her over-eager husband. "Come on," she said, sly-smiling, luring him into having some malicious fun with her. Sully's expression showed her he was game.

She got upright on her knees, naked now—and very aware of it, very aware of being so naked in front of Cody, and knowing he would be looking her over while he fucked her friend. There was a nice spike of sexual adrenalin, a renewed sense of naughtiness and abandon. She took Chey's closest knee and guided it out and down. Chey panted and opened her eyes to wet bewildered slits, wondering what they were all going to do to her helpless little slut body next. She helped Chey fold her leg behind the small of Cody's back, then waved Sully closer, showing him where he should lie.

She said to Cody now, "Just got myself a new idea—I'm bringing in this gentleman from New York City, was on the stagecoach."

Cody slowed his thrusts and bit his lower lip. He snatched her knocked-off cowboy hat from where it lay at Chey's side and plopped it back on Scarlet's head. Their eyes connected for a second and she saw in him a true appreciation and admiration for her dedicated performance. She also saw something else there, too. Desire. Cody wanted his turn with her. He said, "What are you thinking, Miss Scarlet?"

She adjusted her cowboy hat and looked to Cheyenne, practically comatose; her best friend shone with sweat, her beautiful chestnut hair clung to her cheeks and her chest in damp tangles. Her cheeks were red, her eyes lost and hazy. Scarlet said, “We’ll get that line moving a lot quicker if she can take ‘em two at a time.”

CHAPTER 19

Scarlet had arranged him the way she wanted: On his back, midway up the bed, his hipbone touching Cheyenne's cheek, then taking his right leg and bending it behind him to angle him forward. It put his aching penis in Cheyenne's face.

Cheyenne had traveled to some otherworldly plane. Totally transported by vigorous fucking to a whole different dimension. It was like she saw him, but saw through him. When their eyes met, he wasn't sure what to say, but Scarlet was there, taking over. "That's it, little lady," Scarlet said, bent over him, naked, breasts swaying. She held Cheyenne's face with a knuckle under her chin and her thumb below Cheyenne's bottom lip. "You're a beautiful one. We'll get them coming in two at a time, and you're going to make me rich."

Cody said, "Unless we wear a hole in her."

Scarlet said, "You said yourself she can't stop gushing. We'll be all right if we keep her hydrated," patting Chey's cheek and getting her eyelashes to flutter.

Scarlet had never done theater in her life. Yeah, they watched a lot of movies together, but he had no idea where his wife was scrounging up this brothel character from. What worked in his wife's mind that would provoke such delight in sexual torment?

Now Scarlet said—still using that ridiculous cowboy twang, “You best keep fucking her, cowboy. I think she's coming out of her spell.”

Cody said, “We wouldn't want that,” hooked a forearm under Cheyenne's left knee, climbing up on the bed so he was off the floor now and on his knees on the mattress. Sully didn't think the guy's long dick came out of Cheyenne once during his movement.

Cheyenne jostled and sighed and grunted, her breath puffing on Sully's scrotum. Given his wife's demeanor, he was worried now he would become a subject in Scarlet's wild sexual theater. Like the woman she was showing him now might someday turn the tables on him, get a bunch of people pushing all his buttons and making him go out of his mind.

Though that didn't sound like a bad thing at all.

Even though it was obvious Cheyenne received extreme delight and satisfaction from this, it was also apparent that Scarlet took great delight in it as well. But he wasn't sure what his role would be, or what way he could keep up with Cody and Scarlet. Like, he didn't think he could do that cowboy voice at all. Not that he was self-conscious, he just didn't have confidence in his theatrical abilities. What would a— Oh shit, that was right: He was some 1870s businessman traveling the West in a stagecoach all the way from New York City.

Cody lifted Cheyenne's leg up over his shoulder, Cheyenne's foot with the toes spread out up by his ear. He began to stroke that thing in and out of her again, and Scarlet couldn't help herself: Sully watched his wife run her hand down the plated slab of Cody's muscular midsection, running her fingertips down the guy's stomach muscles. But it was brief, over in a second, Scarlet—his wife—returning to him, practically purring. She smiled at him, and he showed her one back, like he was afraid she would be mad if he didn't. She ran her fingernails across his hipbone, circled with thumb and forefinger around the base of his erection. He hissed with pleasure at her touch. Then his wife began to bat the sensitive swollen head of his cock against Cheyenne's blubbery lips.

Cheyenne's eyes fluttered, trying to focus on what was presented to her. Scarlet tapped her on the lips again with his cock, and said, "Open up a little, lady. You got another customer."

Cheyenne complied with no hesitation. Her lips parted, and her cool wet mouth slipped over the head of his cock, her slick velvet tongue rubbing heavenly pleasure down his frenulum and onto his shaft. She closed her mouth and sucked, and once Scarlet had his cock deposited in Cheyenne's mouth, she cupped her hand around Cheyenne's neck, thumb and fingers curling the base Cheyenne's cranium. She guided her friend to suck on him.

He groaned and his eyes fluttered—much like Cheyenne's did. The intense feeling on the engorged and super-sensitive tip of his hardest erection enveloped and overwhelmed him, taking control of him like swimming into an undertow. And as Cody fucked her faster, Cheyenne now found herself in a better position, bringing up a hand, gripping the base of Sully's cock, and sucking him earnestly. The things Cody did to her would sometimes consume Cheyenne's attention, and she would stop to gasp and pant, her eyes closed. She really was transported somewhere else.

What Scarlet did for Chey and what Cody did—and most of all, what fucking Byron did—was the greatest gift of pleasure you could offer someone. Total abandonment. Sexual free fall. Every weird and dirty little kink that folded in your secret creases like a pearl in an oyster was exposed, brought out to the sunlight for kisses and touches and caresses. This was the kind of sexual pleasure no one ever achieved in their life. This truly was a gift from Byron to his wife. He felt happy to participate. Felt happy that Cheyenne was getting what she wanted. Happy that she had such a good friend in Scarlet. Like, there was no way he would touch Byron's dick in some scenario like this—but Scarlet rolled her sleeves up and was doing everything it took to send her friend in a launch pattern for the orbit. So while Cheyenne sucked on his cock, doing it hungrily, sometimes messily, her saliva rolling down his shaft and onto the bedding, he took Scarlet's hand, her wedding-finger hand, slipped her skinny fingers between his and kissed the back of it. She looked down and gave him a warm smile.

He frowned and showed her an expression of sudden discomfort and anguish. He mouthed to her, "I think I'm going to come."

Scarlet only nodded. He would like a little more direction than that. It seemed like no holds were barred in this free-for-all match, but at the same time, he would hate to just ejaculate and then feel bad about it later.

He scissored his fingers against hers, getting her attention again. More urgently, he mouthed once more, "I think I'm going to come," and then gave her an emphatic scowl as an exclamation point.

Scarlet looked at him for a moment like he was stupid, then fanned a hand toward Cheyenne. "So? Tell her."

He furrowed his brow and pursed his lips. Confounded and unsure. Well, he'd given her a chance to object...

Cheyenne was in one of those orgasmic pauses where her weak features formed the shape of a silent howling wolf, her brow pinched, eyes shut tight, as Cody fucked her in a way that got her—

There was a percussive bumping on Chey's flat stomach.

A steady bump-bump-bump like something was inside her tummy and looking for a way out. Cody was so long and hard the head of his cock was pushing against Cheyenne's frontmost wall enough he could see it.

It was so fucking crazy hot seeing that. Seeing that, and then hearing the squeals and panting of delight from Cheyenne as she rode out the first seizure of her orgasm. Cheyenne loved it. Loved what Cody was doing. Getting fucked hard and deep, her breasts rolling around in wild circles on her chest, her hand loosely gripping his cock, her mouth hanging open.

As Cody pummeled her pussy, those stomach muscles flexing, Chey's leg—the one extended high, with the foot up by Cody's ear—shook and trembled. She was still coming. He wasn't sure what were orgasms and what were almost-orgasms, but Cody delivered a lot of them.

Cody slowed his thrusting, stroking Cheyenne's thigh, squeezing her knee, then lightly batting at her haunch, light spanks that roused her out of her orgasmic stupor. Chey was breathless, softly exclaiming, "Oh my God, oh my God."

Scarlet reached down again, took Cheyenne's head, and said, "Time is money," and guided her mouth back on to Sully's cock, poking out one cheek.

It was too much for him. Though he'd restrained himself, all those lashings broke loose at once. His balls rolled over; his stomach tightened and his eyes went to a narrow, pinpoint focus. He did what Scarlet told him, hissing.

“Shoot, I’m going to come. Fuck, I’m going to come,” then bit his lower lip, realizing he’d done the cowboy voice after all. Or at least a reasonable New York facsimile. He guessed once you were in it, things just came naturally.

Cheyenne’s reaction was the most surprising. When he told her he was going to come, she didn’t abandon him. She became passionate, working furiously to facilitate the easing of his burden. Her hand stroked quick and hard on the base of his shaft, the heel bashing into his balls. Her head bobbed, her tongue stroked. The pleasure swirled through him like a dynamo, and his head lolled on his shoulders. Scarlet’s face was near his, and he smiled dreamily at his amazing wife. This woman he married just opened a door in her house into a room he didn’t know existed. It was a big room. Spacious. Like a man cave with a big screen TV and all kinds of benches and whips and fancy colorful dildos...

Scarlet kissed him as he began to come. He groaned and grabbed his wife’s neck, grunting, “I’m coming.”

Scarlet hugged her cheek to his, and they both watched as his cock swelled and jumped in Cheyenne’s mouth. Semen overflowed from her lip, then she came up for air, eyes closed, hand stroking clumsily on the end of his cock as it continued to send ropes of his seed across her neck, cheek, and chin. Cheyenne gasped in ecstasy, as if she loved the feel of his hot semen on her skin. He groaned again, the slippery feel of her fingers on his cock and the wild explosive relief juxtaposed with the company of his wife and the unfamiliarity of his sexual partner, had his eyes rolling up in his head. He collapsed next to Cheyenne, curling around the top of her head, stroking her neck and humping his wet cock against her face, chin, and jaw. Cheyenne moaned and ran out her tongue, trying to suck on him again, sometimes just tongue-bathing. The whole time, Scarlet ran circles on his stomach with her fingernails, making strange and low sounds of her own satisfaction, at last, looming over him as Cheyenne rocked against him with Cody's thrusts, cupping his neck, and kissing his mouth.

There were times she wanted to tell them to stop. Not from a sudden moral objection—all the rules had already been tossed away—but the pleasure became too much. Too all-consuming. Smothering her. There were times when they would say the dirtiest of things to her, or when Cody would get the angle just right, the head of his cock pushing against her frontmost wall, so deep it spread open inner pockets that had never been touched before, that the orgasms came on top of each other. Sometimes she couldn't catch her breath, and in the hazy overwhelm came waking dreams that she was drowning. Drowning in warm saltwater, hands all over her, touching her like cunning sea creatures. But she never stopped them. The words to stop never came from her.

Of course, she didn't stop them because the pleasure was incredible—she didn't want to resist pleasure—she didn't say to stop because it would poison everything for Byron. In order for her husband to accept what they were all doing, she would have to be sure of herself, sure of what they did, and show it to Byron. If she babbled for them to stop, how would her husband not get defensive? How would he not begin to think this was all too crazy and he never should have done it in the first place? Maybe he already thought that, and seeing her resist would confirm all his rejection and hesitation. So she thrashed on the bed, accepted it all, took all the pleasure they gave her even when she thought it was way too much. Calling her dirty names, saying how they would work her out, make money off her pussy; Cody's sexual mastery. Sully's manly hands. Scarlet's hands! And all while Byron watched.

It was about her, yes, but it was about him, too. It made her feel petty; how she'd positioned herself and positioned Byron, all in an effort to reduce his pleasure, amplify her own, and deflate her jealousy. She was jealous of Carla. Jealous of another woman, and yet look how much Byron loved her and was willing to endure for her. Byron was possessive and jealous, and yet he was willing to explore, willing to support her.

After Sully ejaculated, his penis flopping against her face, she guided him to roll back, pushing with a forearm on his stomach, guiding him out of the way so she could see her husband and he could see her.

Byron was aghast, but also enamored with what he saw. His eyes went right to hers. He'd been watching Cody fuck her, but the second her face was no longer eclipsed, his eyes dashed to hers. But she was groggy and muzzy, lost in a fog of pleasure. The orgasms had cascaded against each other, some of them long and thin and attenuating, some of them bright, rolling clouds that did things to her insides that reminded her of the sound a tuning fork made when struck properly. High, resonating notes of pure liquid pleasure. She sucked on her lower lip a second, eyes fluttering, another orgasm coming, a long, thin one that she felt like she'd been surfing on for minutes.

She rocked on the bed with Cody's thrusting, her breasts rolling around on her chest, and forced her sluggish mouth to form a smile. And when Byron saw it, she let it go, threw her head back in the sheets to gasp as Cody went hard again, touching her in that strange deep spot. Her hands slapped onto Cody's muscular thighs, his knees out on either side of her like outriggers, dragging her nails on the taut, tanned skin. His muscles bulged and flexed as he fucked her, his skin taking on a bright sheen from the exertion. Veins stood out on his forearms, his thick biceps, and into his shoulder muscles.

She moaned, head lolling, made eye contact with Cody, and whispered to him, "Are you close?"

Cody adjusted himself, saying nothing, sensing she didn't want Byron to hear. He brought her leg off his shoulder, cupped the soles of her feet in his two large warm hands and eased her legs higher, bringing her knees up to her ears. He planted a hand down on one side of her face, the other hand pulling out his cock a moment, then drumming it lightly against her clitoris, each wet slap sending off sparkling phosphorescent bulbs behind her vision. She squeaked with each one.

His face loomed over hers, confident, masculine, and so fucking handsome. The light that pooled in his eyes filled up the turquoise like sunlight on the sea. He had such control over her, such sexual mastery. Cody did everything right. As Cody eased his cock back inside, her eyes fluttered again, and she welcomed the thick, deep intrusion and the flood of pleasure that pooled around her grip on his shaft. The flared edge of his cock head rippled against her, and she said to him, loud enough for Byron to hear, "You need to come inside me."

Cody stroked in and out, smirking, studying her, then working with her. His strokes came quicker, and she began to pant again, the two of them with their faces very close, her knees up on her collar, her well-hung masculine lover showing her husband all the tricks his wife could do.

As if he'd summoned his eruption, he whispered to her, "I'm going to come. You ready?"

She nodded in eager wags. He smelled like a hot shower and sandalwood soap. He worked magic to every part of her body and wanted to do it for her husband's sake as well as hers. Cody's command of his own sexuality and hers and her husband's existed high on some forbidden plane. She grasped his hips and sunk her nails into his muscle, arms wrapped around her own thighs. As he fucked her, she panted, "Come inside me, oh, mm, please, come inside me, don't you fucking dare pull it out."

Elements of her statement became a chanted mantra, and as Cody's breaths came quicker and quicker, becoming animal snorts, her mantra became a growled anthem. "Don't you dare pull out! Don't you dare pull out!"

And as Cody finally roared and stabbed deep, ejaculating in her pussy, his big cock flexing and jumping, her head lolled to the side to watch her husband.

Byron couldn't take it anymore, had stretched himself out in the chair, one leg thrust out, the other bent awkwardly. His eyes were narrow slits, his face twisted. His cock poked the front of his swim trunks into a nylon tent. Then he bucked, and his legs shook. His hand slapped into his lap, and he gripped the bulge over the fabric. A wet spot appeared in the gray fabric, growing darker and larger, spreading to encompass the printed sharks. Byron had come watching her with her lover, watching what her lover did to her, and watching as he came inside her. She gasped at the incredible erotic sight of her husband overwhelmed by his wife's sexuality. A nonparticipant, yet the biggest, most important participant in her life. The facilitator.

It was of Byron she was thinking when her orgasm became too much and she finally rolled her eyes up and went gray.

It was the hottest fucking thing Scarlet had seen in her entire life. Her skin had tightened and her scalp bristled. Her nipples ached. She had never been wetter. The way Cheyenne had demanded for Cody to come inside her. He hadn't even worn a condom! It was so fucking dirty she couldn't believe it.

Now Cody withdrew, let his big dick flop onto Cheyenne's flat stomach. It spurted the last watery vestiges of his load. Cheyenne's head rolled around, her eyes half open, but unseeing.

"Holy shit," Scarlet said to Sully, reaching over him to pat her friend's cheek.

Cheyenne's eyes barely moved, but her little pink tongue stuck out and ran a ring around her pouted lips. She was really and truly well out of it.

Cody raised up, stretching out his muscular torso, raising his hands to his face and scooping back his sweat-tangled hair. He admired his work. He'd fucked Cheyenne Bishop into oblivion, laying there with her knees up to her ears, a load of semen in her belly, a pearl forming in her ravaged seams, and a trickling rivulet that ran into the shallow cup of her tight navel. Her ass had been spanked pink, her cheeks burned red, her chest had flushed.

Cody looked to Scarlet now. The two of them had become the emcees of the show. But she had no idea what to think or what to do next. Were they going to keep going? Did Cheyenne need smelling salts? Byron looked as exhausted as Cheyenne, but at least his eyes were open. He was spread out like an X on the chair, one leg stuck out straight, his hand gripping his erection through his swim trunks. It looked like he'd ejaculated in them.

Now Scarlet imitated Cody, running her hair back from her face. Sully went up on an elbow, but he looked as sleepy-eyed as Byron. She said to Cody, "What's next?"

Cody said, “Best we skedaddle, Miss Scarlet.”

She said, “What about Miss Susan?” Then, realizing Cheyenne wouldn’t hear them using their accents, corrected herself: “What about Chey?”

Cody stayed in his character, saying now, “We leave her with her man.”

Byron watched as Cody stood at the foot of the bed, his dick sticking out straight and glistening with his wife’s insides. Cody helped Scarlet off the bed, Sully helping with two hands on her hips, then getting up with her. Scarlet took Sully’s hand—Sully had an erection again—and led him out of the room, both of them wobbling past Byron’s feet and snatching up their clothing as they went. Neither of them said anything to him. He lay still spread out on the chair, exhausted, tormented, and filled with brimming love for Cheyenne. She’d shown him. She had shown him something so secret she would’ve had to keep it hidden for the rest of her life. But he’d let it come to the surface. Even though it was an unmoored World War II era battleship mine, he let that potential for destruction come to the surface for Cheyenne’s sake.

Cody paused a second, looking like he wanted to say something but couldn’t find the right words. Like he suspected there might be anger. Anger roiling up in Chey’s husband from shame and regret. But there was none. Byron let Cody off the hook and nodded to him once. Cody was relieved, picking up his towel and holding it to his waist. He snuck into the bathroom, showing Byron his perfect boy ass for a second before pulling on a pair of shorts. Then, when he came out on the other side of the bathroom, stretching a clean shirt over his muscular torso, he said in a quiet voice to Byron, “You guys stay in our room tonight. Okay?”

Byron said nothing again, but nodded. Then, as Cody put his hand on the door, Byron said thanks.

Then he was alone with Cheyenne. He rose from the chair in stiff increments, wincing at the back pain from being stretched out the way he was. In the bathroom he ran a hot faucet, took one of the Webers' clean towels, stripped off his trunks and dried himself, then wetted a face cloth in the hot water. He went naked to the foot of the bed, his wife completely out of it, but awake in some respect. Her arm was bent at the elbow, her hand up in the air and her two first two fingers moving.

A pearly slug emerged from his wife's pussy, and he cleaned her with the warm wet facecloth. At the touch of the cloth to her most sensitive place, Cheyenne jumped and snorted, but still didn't rise. She settled, then moaned as he turned the cloth over and over and continued to restore his wife's womanhood to its pristine stature. Her lips parted, and she moaned a small sound of pleasure. Right away, his depleted erection returned to full throbbing force, rising from his lap with each beat of his heart.

When the cloth was folded into its smallest form, he tossed it to the corner of the bed. The bed where he'd slept with Carla. Where they'd mostly watched Friends on a laptop while he lamented for his wife alone with Cody in his room. But now he'd seen it. Been in the room when it happened. All the fear had been removed. The fear was the unknown. The unknown was an unkind devil when you were jealous and self-conscious. Your mind painted pictures that hurt your heart and satisfied every secret fear you hid. But the witnessed truth was far different. There was undeniable beauty in seeing the one you loved so well-satisfied.

But it would change their relationship. There was no way for them to remain the way they were.

He took Chey's weak hand in his and patted the back until her eyes fluttered open and showed him some level of consciousness. When their eyes met, her brow knit with worry.

He pulled on the hand, heaving her languorous body up to sit.

"Come on," he said, and tried to pull her to stand.

Chey resisted, pulling her hand back, but too weak to get it free. "What? Why..."

"Stand up," he said, pulling again and getting her off the bed and onto her unsteady feet.

CHAPTER 21

She woke to Byron pulling her off the bed—now still pulling, guiding her to one of the archways that led to the bathroom. She'd never felt more vulnerable in her life. Stark naked and exposed. Exposed down to her deepest, hardest fears. She had shown Byron and her friends more than just her naked body. She'd shown them the places where light never shone. Try as her brain might, her body would not cooperate. Sluggish and slow, leaving her defenseless. But her verbalized complaints were just babbled nonsense.

Byron pulled her to the archway, and she braced her hand on it, coming conscious enough to say, "What are you doing?"

Byron finally looked at her—or at least she finally registered him looking at her—and his expression was not one of anger but one of soft perplexity. "Come with me," he said.

She pleaded: "Where are you taking me?"

Byron's perplexed expression deepened further to one of complete bafflement. "Hey," he said, his voice soft and reassuring. He patted her cheek, then took her jawline in both hands and cupped her face, thumb-smoothing circles under her eyes, and she could read in his gaze nothing but care. She softened, wondering what on earth would make her think her husband intended something nefarious. But that was stupid: she knew exactly what would make her think her husband intended something nefarious. Guilt. Shame. Humiliation. Byron didn't show her that.

He began to smile as his eyes studied hers, then he guided her face closer, and kissed her on the mouth. She let her body melt into his and he supported her weight with his arms wrapped against the small of her back. They stood in place like they were slow dancing, but there was no music. "Come on," he said, stepping back and taking her hand. She put a foot forward, shaky and undetermined like a newborn foal. He walked her to the large glass-walled shower, opened the door and, walking backwards, guided her to follow him in.

When they were closed in the shower, Byron turned on the hot water, made sure the temperature was okay before he brought her under the spray. She stood and watched him, marveling. Her boyish young husband, all water-sleek muscle and tanned skin. He removed the shower wand from its overhead cradle and wetted her body. Even though she hated getting her hair wet when she didn't need to, she dipped her chin forward and let him douse her from above, watching from the curtains of her hanging hair as Byron's erection wagged back and forth. Only, this wasn't sex or lust they were sharing right now. This was something else totally. Togetherness. Care.

Her heart bloomed in her chest, and as her pulse thundered with warm love for Byron, that dark part of her opened behind her eyes like a night flower facing sunshine. She was seen. Truly seen. Seen and not thrown away like trash, not disregarded or deemed unworthy of love. Instead, Byron loved her further. Cared for her.

He soaped his hands into a sudsy lather, and she lifted her hands overhead. When that made her feel woozy, she wrapped her grip around the shower-head stem, then let Byron soap her all over. He got all her dirty bits. Her underarms, the creases of her neck, her ears even. Sully's semen had gone in her ear. He soaped her tummy, finger-rinsed out her navel. He spent a lot of time between her legs. The cleaning he did where that naughty cowboy had ravaged her had her knees shaking and her body sagging. She worried she would pull the shower stem right out of the wall. But Byron hugged her, took her body's weight, and she fell against him, wrapping her arms around his shoulders. Byron soaped her backside, his soft hands stroking down her lower back, getting suds between her butt cheeks, making sure the evidence of those other men had been removed from her skin.

What surprised her most was that Byron's reaction became to her more erotic and heart racing than the things Cody did to her. Cody was all high-horsepower sex engine, driving his big dick in and out of her like the pistons on a drag car's motor. Pounding and pounding, twisting her frame and squealing her rubber. He'd made her come too many times to count. Sometimes it was like two orgasms at once. But it wasn't just Cody. She knew that. Because what she'd done in front of her husband was the same thing she'd done with Cody the other night. And while the night before when she'd been with Cody, she'd received incredible pleasure, it was nothing like what had just happened. And that wasn't Cody. That wasn't Cody at all. No offense to that crazy cowboy, but he was a tool in a toolbox. Maybe Byron's toolbox. Not even hers—or if it was hers, it was Byron who held the key. What Byron did for her now, the loving care he showed, was not something she could share with any other man on this earth but the one who had his sudsy hand in her butt crack. Who else would she let do that? No one.

She whispered in his ear, her voice quieter than expected and she hoped he could hear her over the water's hiss: "I love you so much, baby."

Byron stepped back, a small smile tilted to one side. His eyes flickered over hers and down her body. He cupped her face again like he would kiss her, but he said, "You were so beautiful."

She smiled, then the smile faltered as coldness gripped her heart. "I'm not beautiful anymore?"

Byron showed that confounded look again and smiled. "You're more beautiful now. I just want you to know that I saw you."

Part of her brain felt so much guilt she thought she deserved his scorn. In many ways couldn't believe he had no scorn for her, or at least didn't appear to. Scorn made far more sense than Byron's reaction.

She said, "I like you watching me."

"It showed," he said, circling thumbs under her cheekbones again.

It was her kissing him this time, glycogen reserves popping up and flooding her muscles well enough she could use them to do that one simple act that her heart demanded. Then the shower was off, and Byron guided her out of the stall, got her to sit on a leather padded stool in front of Carla's makeup mirror. He took clean towels off the rack, put one over her head like a nun's cowl, then dried her body, getting all her creases. She lifted her arms, wound the towel to bind up her hair and soak up the wet. When Byron was done, she showed him she could stand.

Now both of them assumed tentative high-schooler expressions. Two unsure lovers wondering what the other thought and what they might do next. Which was crazy, because after all they'd done, what was there left to be timid about? But, she supposed, what they shared with imaginary teen lovers was an excitement for what the future might hold. It was the first time she'd thought of it. What would their future hold? What would it look like? And while the first thing she thought of was being with Cody again while Byron watched—wondering if they would ever do it again outside of this yacht, wondering if they could find someone in the city near where they live—she realized then they'd become swingers for real. Cheyenne and Byron. But what twisted at her most was an unseemly residue underneath the glowing aftermath of the act they'd just committed. All her own sins. All the switches and buttons on the dashboard of her spy car that she'd flicked and pressed, racing along the road and spritzing out oil slicks behind her, tumbling little spiky traps that would burst Byron's tires and send him off the road. Why the hell would she have been so mean?

Byron guided her to the bed, stopping for a moment to snap away the bed cover where Cody had fucked her and Sully had shoved—no, Scarlet had done that—his cock into her mouth. The bedding where all that bad had happened was tossed into the corner like it wasn't going to be mentioned again. He folded back the sheets and held out a hand. She put a knee onto the bed sheet and collapsed on the bed. Byron scurried in next to her and pulled the sheets over, covering them. They were face-to-face on the pillows. It was her cupping his cheek now and running a thumb-circle under his eye. She said, "I mistreated you."

He frowned again, but showing only a fraction of that former perplexity.

She said, "I did you wrong, but I think I know why."

"What did you do to me?" he said, like he was thinking he had missed something, and she was about to reveal some new tragic event she'd performed behind his back. But she continued to stroke him with tender care, saying, “You know what I did. I made it hard for you to be with Carla.”

“You did?”

“Carla said all you did was talk about me.”

“It wasn’t your fault,” he said.

“It’s a sample of how jealous I am. I made you afraid to enjoy it.”

“I really was thinking about you. You didn’t make that happen. I did that on my own.”

She sighed, closing her eyes and looking back to earlier in the evening with a measure of regret. “That thing we did—”

“Who’s we?” Byron’s voice was firm and concerned.

She opened her eyes again. “All four of us. You, me, Sully, Scarlet. That was dumb.”

Byron shrugged a shoulder. “It was all right. It was fun to try.”

“It wasn’t going to work because it was forced. I forced it.”

“You forced it?”

She kissed the tip of his nose, thumbed away the creases between his brows, then ran her fingers through the hair above his ear. “I’m super jealous, baby. I’m super jealous and I was afraid of you with Carla, and that sounds really stupid now.”

“A little stupid,” he said, smiling in agreement.

“I don’t know why I did that. I guess I did it because I could. Maybe it’s because I was prepared to reveal something so hidden to you that it was too much for me to handle all at once.”

“Or maybe...”

She looked at him, wondering what he would say, then realized what it would be from his sly smile. “Or maybe what?”

“Maybe you’re just kind of mean and selfish.”

If he wasn’t smiling, she would’ve been hurt. She patted his cheek lightly, but with enough strength to show the threat of a full-on slap. Byron laughed, then bit her hand.

“Ow,” she said, pulling it away.

He showed an exaggerated and fake sad face. “Oh, did I hurt you?”

“Ow,” she said again, “look what you did,” and showed him where he’d left no mark on her at all. He kissed the heel of her thumb. She said, “I don’t know why I was so devious. That’s me. That was all me. What you were willing to do is something I’m not. Or wasn’t.”

“I didn’t ask you to. I didn’t even—”

She plugged his words with an index finger pressed to his lips. “I don’t want to be there.”

“Be where?” he said around her fingertip.

And still unsteady accepting what she was suggesting, she joked: “Beware of what?”

Byron smacked her hand away from his mouth and tsk-ed. “Come on. Be where?”

“I want you to get what you’re looking for, Byron.”

“You’re what I’m looking for, Cheyenne. I found you.”

“When you say that, you make me feel bad—like you’re not what I’m looking for.”

“Tell me I’m what you’re looking for,” he said, eyeing her with undeterred amusement.

She steadied herself so he would take her seriously. “You’re everything I could want. And I mean that so much. I knew it before, but I never could dream of how I feel about you right now.”

Byron smiled, his warm eyes on hers. He said, “I like to hear that.”

“I thought you might,” she said. “But I really do mean it.”

He heard her, his features softening. Then, as if there were too much seriousness, he lifted his brows and assumed a faraway look. “Wow, so I get all that and I can sleep with Carla?” He lay back and pretended to think dreamily of Carla. She pinched his nipple, and he squashed his arm down like a chicken wing so fast his elbow brushed her nose.

“Holy cow,” she said, grabbing it.

He laughed and rolled toward her, hugging her head to his chest. “Well, don’t pinch my nipple,” he said.

“Don’t break my nose,” she said.

“I would never. Not that pretty little nose.”

He held her head to his chest for a while, brushing the backs of his fingers on her bare shoulder. When they were quiet for too long, she stirred. “Whatever you want to do, I want you to do it,” she said, putting both palms on Byron’s bare chest and pushing him back so she could look into his eyes.

“Anything I want?” One of his eyebrows cocked high and sly.

“You’re being funny, Byron, but I mean it. And it’s not like a freebie—I’m not saying hey you get this one shot, and I won’t give you any shit for it. What I mean is you can do whatever you want. I don’t imagine— I can’t imagine another way for a person to show love for another than what you just did. And I know that sounds crazy because what you did was share me and logic would dictate that sharing somebody was showing that you don’t love them and yet—”

Byron gripped both her wrists and shushed her. She had been getting quite talkative.

He said, “Anything I want?”

“Anything,” she said.

“Anytime I want?”

She nodded.

“I’ll tell you what I want,” he said, and rolled her onto her back with her wrists folded across her chest, getting on top of her. “I want what’s mine.”

“And what’s yours?”

He opened the X of her folded arms and pinned her hands above her head. The move was funny and surprising, yet wildly exciting at the same time. Her nipples hardened, and she looked into his eyes, knowing exactly what it was her husband wanted.

“I’m taking back what’s mine. You get it?”

“I get it,” she said, beginning to shimmy her hips underneath him, trying to get him further down her body. His dick pointed straight up between them.

What Byron wanted made sense. He’d just watched her with other men. A sexual subject. In some ways, to Byron, it must be a violation and he wanted surety of his position in their relationship, to resume his masculine role.

She ran the fingertips of one hand from his neck down his chest to his tight stomach. She whispered, “You watched me. But did you like it?”

“I loved it,” he growled, easing his hips back and bringing the point of his erection between her thighs, his cock head ruffling through her pubic hair.

Her hand dropped to her own stomach, but her brow furrowed. She slipped the hand down to cover her pussy, saying to him, “Wait, Byron, I can't.”

CHAPTER 22

B yron said, “Why not?” He humped the belly of his cock against his wife’s knuckles and diamond ring. “What’s wrong?”

Cheyenne crinkled her nose, looked away for a second, but then returned her gaze. “It’s sensitive.”

“You can tell me.”

She looked up then back at him, almost smiling. “No, baby—I’m sensitive here,” she said, patting her pussy.

“But I need it,” he said, not with any needling or whining, but a simple statement. “You said anytime, anything I wanted.”

Cheyenne contemplated it for a moment and he watched her eyes flicker over his as her expression went through an elastic range of emotions. But then she slid her hand away. “Will you be gentle?”

“Very gentle,” he said, and brushed the back of his fingers across her cheek. “I’m going to take care of you. We’ve got this room for the night. This is our room and our bed. You’re my wife again.”

Without having to use his hands to guide his entry, he nuzzled the head of his cock into her slick aperture. When she moaned, he teased the head in and out and then up over the nest of furrowed membranes that cushioned her clitoris.

It got Cheyenne's hips driving. "I'm going to be so gentle," he reminded her, easing himself in. She gasped and winced. He said, "I'm not Cody. I'm your husband."

She nodded, her brow lowering, and he asked her if she was okay. "It's good," she said, relaxing.

The idea that his husband-sized dick didn't expand her pussy the way her wild cowboy lover did aroused him for some strange reason. And, again, he wasn't jealous. It excited him. Excited him because there was no fear anymore. His ego and his machismo weren't challenged.

He slid deeper inside her, studying her face, whispering to her, "I just want to come inside you. When you sleep, it's my come that sits in your belly." Cheyenne's lips parted and she emitted a tremulous warble of erotic excitement. He said, "I'm going to make love to you. Going to make love to you with Cody's sperm inside you. But you're going to fall asleep in my arms with my load in your tummy, you hear me?"

She nodded in agreement, her expression showing him everything he said made total sense. "Nice and slow," she said. "Nice and slow, and come inside me."

"Bring your knees up," he said, and she did. "I'm not going to go deep." That figured: he wouldn't be able to go as deep as Cody—but he wanted Chey to know he had a simple task to perform and he would do it in a way to minimize her discomfort. "Close your eyes and let me watch your face. It's only going to take a minute." Even that forewarning of premature ejaculation excited Cheyenne. He let his grip fall off her wrists, and she brought her hands onto his back and began to smooth over the muscles. She panted as he eased himself in and out of her, just an inch or two at a time, going at a turtle's pace. His wife's soft sounds of pleasure drove him wild, and even though he'd come in his swim trunks about ten minutes ago, it didn't take long before his balls were pulling up tight, and every muscle in his body seized. "I'm going to come," he said.

"Yes, baby," she said, fully soothing and supportive, hugging her arms around him, lifting her feet to rest them on his ass. "All the way inside me," she said reminding him, guiding him by cinching the clutch her legs had around his waist, urging him to give her all he had.

And that feeling of sliding all the way inside her sent his mind into the atmosphere. He snorted and grunted, his whole body seizing as his cock turned to a steel rod and his balls shot their contents deep—as deep as he would go—inside Cheyenne.

She whispered, "I feel you—I feel you coming."

That was all he wanted. Acknowledgment. Satisfaction. A return to the status quo. Any time they would do this crazy thing, there was one rule: before they slept, she would be clean, and he would come inside her.

The orgasm lasted more than a minute and left him gasping. He slipped his cock out of her, watching her face twist.

She grimaced and said, "I'm so sensitive right now."

He thanked her for letting him make the relationship complete, then eased to the side and dropped in a heavy heap next to her. But he was quick to get an arm around her, spooning behind her, nuzzling his face into her towel-wrapped hair.

Nothing more was said, and even though there were lights still on, they both fell fast into a deep sleep.

Lily drank wine and watched Carla playing around with Arlo. The four of them were in the kitchen—Lily, Arlo, Carla, and Philippe—everyone else gone off to the hot tub or somewhere. Cody had been washing dishes but got a phone call and left. Arlo took Cody's place, but Carla would hear nothing of it. She and Philippe would do the dishes, and Arlo and Lily would watch. Arlo lingered, offering to stack away dishes that Carla had dried. Carla wouldn't hand them over, telling Arlo to "Sit, go on, sit. You'll cook dinner and we'll clean."

Lily sipped her wine, frowning, trying to surmise the playful banter. She said, "Too bad Cody had to disappear. Perfect timing for him." She smirked so Carla could see she was joking. Philippe laughed, loading the dishwasher.

Carla said, "Cody had important business. He'll be back when he's done."

"Is everything okay?"

"Just yacht business," Carla said, scrubbing a dish with a soapy sponge, her breasts swaying side to side under her cotton top. She wore bright yellow latex gloves that went up to her elbows.

Lily said, "I hope we're not getting kicked out." She cocked her head, swirling the wine in the wineglass's bowl. "Maybe somebody saw you guys skinny-dipping today."

Carla didn't stop scrubbing, but there was a momentary pause. Lily watched Carla's brows move around as she figured what to say about that. Carla said, "No one can see us out here, and I can't believe we would be the first people not wearing clothes on this yacht."

Arlo snatched the wet plate from Carla and began drying it with his own towel.

“Hey,” Carla said, “give me back my plate,” pursuing Arlo.

Arlo turned away and Carla hugged her arms around his body, those big breasts squashed on his back. And Lily didn’t like the way they were both laughing.

Scarlet and Sully tumbled through the doorway and fell to the floor. Sully donkey-kicked the door closed behind him as he scrambled overtop of her on his hands and knees.

“Get this off,” he said, trying to remove the top Scarlet had thrown on before they crossed the hallway. She tried helping him, but somehow they both got her arms tangled up in her hair and she squawked.

He said, “Fucking stay like that,” rolled her over to face the ground, scooted back and brought her to her knees, ass up, while she tried to untangle her hair from her wrists.

In one quick motion he pushed down his shorts, and with a fingertip, pushed aside the crotch of her swimsuit. Scarlet mewled and kicked her feet as he slid his cock into her hot, wet interior. It stilled the movement of her arms, and he loved her soft sounds of pleasure, muffled by the top wrapped around her face. He palmed the center of her back and pounded her bottom with his hips, getting himself deep inside—and with no shame thought of Cody fucking his wife. Thought of himself laying prostrate on a chair with his swim trunks tented out by his mighty boner as he watched Cody pound Scarlet into sexual oblivion. The sounds Cheyenne made echoed in his ears, and he twisted them into Scarlet’s sounds.

“Fuck,” he said, growling, pulling himself out before he ejaculated too soon and ruined the fun.

He rolled Scarlet over to her back, then thumbed her top up over her nose so he could kiss her mouth. At last, Scarlet’s arms were untangled, and while they still made out and he tried to find her pussy with the tip of his cock, she pulled the top away. Her arms went around him and she gasped for air. “Get me on the bed,” she panted. “I don’t want any rug burns.”

They both clambered to their feet, him with his dick pressed to his stomach by his trunks’ waistband and his wife with an askew swimming-suit bottom. She pulled off her swimwear before she crashed onto the bed. They were both panting and desperate by the time their heads met the pillows. She went to her back right away and opened her legs, only one thing on her mind: Sully fucking her. Her husband.

“I never knew you were such a wild woman,” he said, thumbing his cock head into her hot nest, sliding deep inside her. Scarlet writhed underneath him, stretching her hands overhead, her nipples like two hard bolts on her creamy bosom, gently rocking with his easy thrusts now. He said, “No fucking idea, Scarlet—you are insane.”

“I’m so crazy,” she agreed in a feathery and breathless tone.

“Oh my God,” he said, “just look at you,” seeing her in a whole new way, seeing her beautiful features as sharp angles, sly painted lines drawing the picture of a complicated woman with devious sexuality and a penchant for torment. “One thing’s for sure,” he said, thrusting deep and holding, watching his wife’s mouth open as her back arched. He stroked his hand up the center of her chest and caressed her neck, thumbing her jaw and chin and admiring her.

She collapsed to the bed again and he was pretty darn sure she just had an orgasm. Maybe the first of many to come. With her body loosened, she gasped “What is it?”

“I want you to do what you want.”

“What do I want?” she whispered, and there came that sly-angled smile.

It thrilled his heart in a frightening way. “I’m gonna get you into a bathroom with Philippe. You’re going to try to stuff that enormous flesh burrito he’s got in to a toilet paper roll, and you’re going to tell me all about it.”

CHAPTER 23

Scarlet shivered with excitement at her husband's dirty request. "You want me to do it?"

"I know you want to, you fucking minx." Sully's expression was one of sly confidence, and his arousal was turning her on like crazy.

"Fucking minx? Where did you get that one?"

"Never mind where I got it from," he said, "just tell—"

"Somebody's been watching old movies."

She loved to see him smile when he was horny. It showed off all the charm she fell in love with. He wasn't just her husband. In so many ways, Sully was her best friend. A great partner in crime. "Tell me what you want," she said.

"Look at you trying to make me say I want it when it's you who wants it."

She sneered and said, "What if it's both of us?"

Sully chuckled menacingly, then began beating his hips against hers, his perfect cock filling her up and making liquid pleasure flood her pussy like honey.

Sully held her hands above her head. "What are you going to do to him?"

She said, "I told you already."

“All that dirty talk?”

She nodded

Sully eyed her suspiciously. “I thought it was just dirty talk.”

“It was so, so dirty,” she said, smiling and laughing with him.

“You just want to play with his dick?”

Sully growled. “You are so dirty.”

“Look who’s talking,” she said.

“What does that mean?”

“You came in my best friend’s face tonight.”

Sully showed her a shocked and offended face that made her laugh, and she knew what he was going to say before he said it.

“You did that!”

They both laughed then embraced each other and rolled around, kissing and fucking.

In a break, Sully over top of her again, she looked into his eyes. “How is this happening—how can we be doing this?”

“I don’t know. But I like it. I like it a lot,” he said, his eyes narrowing to slits as he studied her. She felt exposed and examined and didn’t mind it at all. It wasn’t like she had deep-seated kinks. She probably wouldn’t do this thing at all if it weren’t with Sully.

She said, “What’s your verdict? Am I a bad person?”

Sully pondered it, eyes on hers, drawing his cock out in slow increments, then easing himself back inside her again, getting her gasping.

“If you are,” he said, “then I’m insanely in love with a bad person.”

She said, “That makes you bad, too.”

“Uh-huh,” he said.

“We’re a couple of rotten eggs, you and me.”

“I’ve got myself a wife who loves dicks.”

“I do love them,” she said, and it made Sully groan with painful delight.

He lowered his mouth to hers, kissed her, bit at her neck and collar. He said,

“I saw you put your hand on Cody’s.”

“He’s got an amazing dick.” No point in being shy anymore.

“You’re driving me crazy. You fucking held Cody’s dick and helped guide it inside Chey.”

“You saw that thing. You can’t tell me that’s not a gold-medal dick.”

“You’re so fucking hot,” he groaned. “So dirty hot.”

“Am I wrong?”

“About Cody’s dick?”

“Yeah.”

Sully rolled his eyes. “Yeah. Whatever. The guy has a big dick.”

“Balanced?”

Sully’s mouth fell open, shocked. His cock throbbed inside her; she swore he was getting even harder. He said, “You really love dicks, baby.”

She winced in acknowledgment of how crazy it was to admit it. She whispered, "I even like Byron's."

Sully chuckled. "What do you mean, even?"

"You know what I mean." Now she rolled her eyes around. Byron wasn't hung. "But he's got a sexy dick."

"Holy shit," he said, like he was honestly amazed. "You really are something. You really love dick."

"That's right," Scarlet said, nonchalant, shrugging like now the truth was out, it was no big deal.

Sully stilled, admiring her, licking his lower lip. He said, "I think it's hot. I think you're sexy."

"Thank you," she said, and showed him her proudest look.

"Oh my God," he said, laughing. "I'm going to fuck you all night."

"I might be into that."

"All right then," he said. "This is some exciting new territory. Start from the beginning."

She said, "What beginning?"

"Tell me what you want to do with Philippe."

"First," she said, smiling, eyes narrowed and devious, "I'm going to need a ruler..."

Lily walked ahead of Arlo into their suite, his wife's light cotton dress swishing around her hips. He closed the door behind them and watched his wife as she entered their room, went straight to the bed and drew back the top sheet for them. He followed her into the bathroom.

It was love at first sight when he met Lily. She said it was the same. He was in culinary school, she was in art school at NYU. Stage design at Tisch. The prettiest and purest thing he had ever seen. Pale blonde hair and big blue eyes. Her hair was the lightest hair he'd ever felt go through his fingers. It was like fine silk. She'd been a prim and proper and shy girl, and when they fell in love, she showed him with those big puppy dog eyes she would do anything he wanted, and follow him to the ends of the earth.

In the bathroom, he stood behind her at the sink, both of them ready for bed. He rubbed her shoulders, and she smiled for him in the mirror's reflection. He put his mouth and nose into her ponytail and breathed her in. He said, "I thought about you all day."

Lily's light body fell back against his, and he put his arms around her shoulders, his hands clasping his own forearms at her collar. He admired her beauty with her eyes closed.

Lily said, "I thought about you, too."

He smiled with sly knowledge. "I'm sure you did."

She brushed her fingernails across his forearm. "What did you think about?"

"I thought about you. I thought about you with Cody. Did you have fun?"

She nodded like a little girl with a happy little smile.

He said, "What did you guys do?"

"We went to shore. We went shopping."

"Where did you eat?"

She shook her head no. "We didn't eat. But Cody bought me a milkshake."

“What flavor?” He eased back from her, let his hands drift across her collar to her shoulders, his fingers hooking in the shoulder straps of her light dress.

“Mint, Daddy,” she said.

“My baby loves mint.”

“I do,” she said emphatically, nodding, still with her eyes closed.

He let the dress fall to the floor. Her skin was creamy and pale. She wore nothing under her dress. Her soft blushing-pink nipples hardened before his eyes. “How was the jet ski?”

“Fun,” she said, her voice soft now, like she knew what he would want to ask her next.

“Uncomfortable?”

Lily’s face transformed in the mirror, that soft, happy look slackening to something more fretful. Her brows knit together and her eyes opened. Her cute pink mouth narrowed to a plump point, and she nodded.

“Good,” he said. “I wanted you thinking of me the whole time.”

“I was,” she said with a small measure of petulance.

More sternly now, he said, “And you were a good girl?”

“You know I was,” she said and swayed her hips, then pushed her rump against his crotch.

His hands drifted down to the narrow of her slim waist, moving to the swell of her perfect little bottom. He patted it lightly, and Lily made a small squealing sound. He put a hand in the center of her back and guided her to bend forward. Lily placed her palms on the marble counter on either side of the sink, her engagement diamond winking in the overhead halogen. He smoothed a palm over both her butt cheeks, then his two middle fingers entered her slender butt crack. The pads of his two middle fingers tapped like a metronome on the small circular base of the butt plug he'd placed inside her bottom this morning. "You were a good girl," he said.

"I told you, Daddy," Lily purred.

"You ready for bed now?"

She nodded again, and with two fingers and a thumb, Arlo pinched the end of the butt plug and eased it from inside his wife's bottom. Lily munched her lips and made a scowling expression in the mirror. He said, "That must've been some JetSki ride."

"I thought of you the whole time," she said.

"That's my good girl." He reached around her and put the heavy plug in the sink where it rattled and spun until it came to a rest. Her bottom must have been pounded by his plug during the ride to shore, Cody bouncing on all the waves he could find. "Is that better?"

"Thank you, Daddy," she said.

"Are you going to brush your teeth?"

Lily nodded, picked up her toothbrush and squeezed out a half-inch of her strawberry burst toothpaste. While she scrubbed her teeth, he undid her ponytail, took the large paddle brush off the counter, and began to stroke it through her long, silky hair. When she spat out the last of her toothpaste and rinsed her mouth with a cup of water, he told her to go put on her PJs. Lily darted off, skipping to the dresser, pulling open the bottom drawer and retrieving her long-sleeve two-piece pajama set. The ones with the unicorns. He watched her happily dress, humming a bouncy song to herself, and he squeezed his growing erection through his shorts. Then he did his own teeth, scrubbing quickly, hurrying to join his wife in bed. He didn't need to ask if she wanted to make love tonight. Lily was showing him what she wanted. She was little. She was little, and he was her Daddy, and that was fine with him. All he ever wanted was to make his Lily happy.

He slipped in next to her, Lily laying in bed already, on her back with her head on the pillow, arms on top of the covers. He went to an elbow and cupped her cool cheek. "You want me to read you a story?"

Lily thought about it, her cute mouth swishing from side to side, and then she shook her head no. She said, "I'm tired."

"You ready to close your eyes?"

"Uh-huh," she said and nodded.

"Me too," he said.

She asked, "Can we snuggle?"

"Big spoon or little spoon?"

Lily smiled and said, "Little spoon," flipped to her side and pushed her back against him. He settled the covers over both of them and hugged her, kissing the back of her ear.

"You had a big day, little girl."

"I did," she said.

"I hope you had fun."

Lily nodded and snuggled her back harder against him. "I really loved your dinner," she said. "You're so amazing."

"I knew you would. And they all loved your ice cream."

"That's good," she sighed, huffed in a few breaths, then yawned.

“Night-night, little Lily,” he said, then moved to turn out the lamp.

But as he reached back to pull the chain, Lily said, “Daddy?”

“Yes, baby?”

Then she said no more, her smooth brow furrowed and contemplative, her mouth working around.

“You can say it, Lily.”

“Are they...”

When she said no more again, too timid, he said, “Are they what, baby?”

Lily’s head turned toward him on the pillow, her beautiful face tightened with worry. “Are they... Are they doing bad things?”

“Who’s they, baby?” He brushed his knuckles on her soft cheek.

She swallowed, then whispered, “Everybody.”

He said, “What makes you say that?”

She shrugged and rolled her head back to look up at the ceiling. “Everybody’s being weird.” Her voice was small and quiet.

He watched her a moment, then said, “They are.”

Lily looked back, eyes wide with shock. “You think they’re doing bad things?”

He tapped the pad of his index finger on his wife’s plump lower lip, and she giggled and squirmed away. He said, “I think that’s grown up talk, Lily.”

Lily pouted. “Okay,” she said, a little surly.

He pulled the lamp’s chain and put the room dark, then folded against his wife’s back again. He whispered to her, “It’s grown-up stuff, baby. I’ll tell you sometime when you’re bigger.”

“Will you tell me tomorrow?”

“I promise I’ll tell you when you’re ready.”

A little fearful, Lily said, “Is it bad?”

He thought about what to say, then thought he shouldn’t hide the truth from his little girl. “It’s terrible,” he said.

Lily shivered, and he hugged her protectively. She whispered, “Keep me safe, okay?”

“I promise,” he said, and kissed her ear one more time before they fell asleep together.
