CHAPTER 1

Lily stood in the corner like a scolded child, facing the door hinges in the small alcove beside the archway from bathroom into the bedroom, Byron and Cheyenne and Lily together in Cody and Carla's suite. They looked to Byron, and her husband looked as befuddled as she was. There was being funny and acting a part, and there was going too far with it to the point you were a weirdo. Lily was on the brink of the weirdo classification. Cheyenne wasn't so sure she should laugh anymore.

She said, "Lily, you don't even have to be here. If you're freaked out, go sit on Carla's bed."

"Yeah," Byron agreed, "we'll cover for you, say you helped."

Lily huffed, then turned in place, eyes rolled up and to the side. Her bottom lip pooched out. She said, "Arlo will be mad if I don't."

"Ugh," Cheyenne said. "Your husband can't make you do anything, Lily."

"No, not like that," Lily said, a flash of a smile at one corner of her mouth. She twisted her hands together like she was nervous, one bare foot was crossed over the other. "I can't lie to to him, so I can't sit on the bed."

“Yeah, you can,” Cheyenne said to her. “I’ll tell him you can and we’ll see if he wants to argue about it.”

Lily said, “It’s not like that, Cheyenne,” her voice soft and sweet.

As Lily stood twisting at the hips like she was reluctant but working up the nerve to do what she came in here for, Cheyenne looked to Byron again. Byron whispered something to her, but it was so quiet it might as well have been inaudible. She mouthed back to him, “What?”

He looked angry, like it was her fault, and got closer. “I swear,” he whispered, “Lily called Arlo her Daddy.”

“Oh, get out of here,” she said and clucked her tongue. Byron and his conspiracy theories. Then, “Come on, Lily. You want a blindfold or something?—Byron, hand me a towel, I’ll make one for her.”

“No, no, Cheyenne,” Lily sighed. “I’m a big girl.” She shook her hands out, even smiling a little. It lightened Chey up, Lily defusing the weirdness. “I have to be involved.”

“Not if you don’t want to be. Do you want to be?”

Lily showed the slightest sign of irritation, angling her head in a defiant way. “Yes, I want to be. Stop trying to talk me out of it.”

Byron said, “We just want to be sure you’re cool with all of this.”

“I am cool.”

Byron said, “Yeah, but the way you were in the corner...”

“Just forget that,” Lily said. “Let’s start over.”

Byron looked to Chey and she shrugged.

Why on earth would Carla have sent Lily along for this dared task? They were trying to leave Lily out of this, trying to preserve Lily and Arlo's sanctity by sneaking their depravity sessions behind their nicer friends' backs. One answer was obvious: Carla did it to dominate Cheyenne.

Carla sent Lily along so Chey wouldn't ruin Byron's surprise; Carla was dominating her by assigning to her the grooming of her own husband for another woman's sexual enjoyment. Putting her in her place and elevating Byron like he was the chosen one. And she kind of deserved it, too. The guy had been good to her when she'd been her worst to him. Sometimes the guilt over that realization came in nauseous waves, remembering what she'd done and how she must have looked at first to her own husband.

Chey said to Lily, "We can start over, if you'd like to."

Carla sending Lily along robbed Chey of an intimate moment with her husband. Though she was preparing Byron to be devoured by Carla, it would be fun to mitigate the act with compassion and honesty. How could she do that in front of Lily without revealing all they'd been up to behind Lily's back?

But what if she brought Lily in? What if she didn't let Carla spoil this moment with Byron?

Maybe she would go ahead and spill the beans, let Lily know what they were up to around here when Lily and Arlo weren't looking.

"Okay," Lily said.

"You know what we're doing here, right?"

Lily said yes again, looking tense, yet somehow, underneath it all, Chey detected amusement from their shy and proper friend. It wasn't impossible that Lily opposed this sort of behavior—it had only been considered unlikely. And the truth was, as much as this was Carla's idea for Lily to tag along, it was still at Arlo's behest. Arlo had accepted Lily's involvement. Maybe they even wanted to be drawn into the game played behind their backs.

Now Chey said, "And you're going to help me, right?"

Lily nodded.

Byron said, "You know what we're here for?"

"I do."

Chey said, "Doesn't it surprise you?"

Lily shrugged, looking aside, her expression uncomfortable.

"You're not surprised, are you? You know something's going on."

Byron looked at Chey, eyebrows tented, eyes narrowed in scrutiny; an expression she took to suggest he wasn't sure she should be divulging this to Lily.

But Lily said, "You guys are doing bad things, right?"

The way she'd whispered it, the way her chin dimpled, it reminded Chey of a child, like an innocent—not a woman who was in a bathroom on the instruction to shave a stranger's genitals.

There was something about Lily's timidity, her innocence, that lured corruption from her she hadn't anticipated. Lily's purity—when Lily was a grown up woman already, one who should be able to handle something like this as a big girl—almost angered her. Angered her to the point of domination, wanting to show this waif how big girls really acted.

Chey and Byron stood side by side facing Lily, and now Chey rested her hand on her husband's shoulder. He looked to her and she said, "You're going to have to take your clothes off."

A twitch of fear flexed in Byron's eyes, a slight flash of realization that this moment didn't have anything to do with Lily, Lily's timidity, Lily's involvement at all... It had everything to do with him getting his junk shaved. He scratched his chest, his mind gone blank, her husband looking to stall.

"We can't shave it with your shorts on."

"I know," he said, smirking. "You're sure you're okay with this, Lily?"

Lily whispered, "I saw it already," then showed a bashful smile. Chey patted Byron's shoulder, encouraging him to undress. Byron's hands went to his shorts button and paused there, ready to unhook it.

Chey said, "We're preparing Byron for ritual sacrifice, Lily."

Byron showed her a skeptical and unimpressed side-eye. "Oh, you are, are you?"

Lily said, "That sounds so scary."

"Scary?" Chey said, "I think it sounds kind of fun. Can you search Carla's cupboards for some shave cream?"

Lily trotted past, squatting and opening cupboards. Byron unzipped his shorts, but she put out a hand to slow him down, still watching Lily. They'd worked so hard at keeping what they were doing from Arlo and Lily and yet here Lily was, out of the blue, enjoined in their game, acting reluctant yet engaged anyhow.

Was it suspicious? Chey asked Lily, “You and Carla aren’t up to something, are you?”

Lily looked over her shoulder like a scolded kid. “No,” she said, shaking her head, looking puzzled. “What do you mean?”

“I mean, behind our backs—like, is something going on with you guys and Carla and Cody? If you know what I mean.”

Lily still remained puzzled. “What do you mean?”

Byron said, “Hanky panky.”

Lily giggled at the phrase, then covered her mouth.

Byron whispered, “I don’t think so, Chey.”

When she looked over at her husband, she could see the strong desire he had to get going on having her and another woman shave his penis and balls. It made her smile.

Chey was to Lily as Scarlet was to Chey, at least that’s how he saw it.

There were degrees of dominance, and when you congregated a population, those degrees could be ossified and seen in a cross slice. On this yacht, for example, Byron would place Carla at the top layer; Scarlet below Carla. And Chey, an otherwise good and obedient human, mimicked her good buddy Scarlet’s principles when a suitable subject presented itself. The subject being Lily. Chey would be drawn to Lily’s timidity, to perform the role Scarlet performed for Chey. The sight of his Cheyenne unshackled from her own bonds of obedience was arousing and erotic. Once unshackled Chey assumed the role the same way Scarlet did for her: one of understanding and nurturing, and instructive guidance.

The situation he'd been thrust into had prompted an iron-rod boner before he'd even made it to the bathroom with the two women who Carla instructed to shave his frank and beans. But now, in this revelation of his wife's character, a juicy turbo blast raced through his member and his hands shook while taking his shorts and underwear down, excited to reveal it to them. Excited to reveal it to Lily, a shy and innocent woman drawn into the rest of the groups' games, and showing timid reluctance.

When his shorts pooled around his ankles, he thrust his hips forward, shoving his glorious erection towards the women. Chey cooed and stroked a hand down his stomach. He shivered and flexed, and a silvery pulse of precum surged, a long shimmering strand emitting from his tip and drooling to the floor. Lily watched it. And Lily watching it produced more flexing, more precum. Chey cooed again and Lily's eyebrows raised.

Then Lily, without looking away, eyes still on his throbbing erection, spritzed a thick dollop of Cody's shave cream into the palm of one hand. Chey chuckled at the spritzing sound, and a wicked backsplash that sent a splatter of shave cream onto the waist of Lily's dress.

Chey said to Lily, "You're going to do the honors?"

Lily's eyes wandered up from Byron's dick to look at Chey. "Can I?"

Chey nodded.

The whole spectacle was unbelievable, and he was beginning to think he'd fallen asleep and this was all some perverted dream. Then he asked, "Maybe you guys should take your things off. . . . So you don't get messy."

Chey looked at him with a strange but warm gaze. “You’re not going to come all over us, are you?”

He said, “I meant messy with shaving c-cream.”

Lily shook her head no in quick adamant wags, her lips pursed to fine lines.

“You don’t have to take your things off, Lily,” Chey said. “Besides, I think it’s hotter if we stay clothed and our subject gets all the way naked.” She ran her nails down his chest. “How about losing the shirt, buddy?”

“Okay,” Byron said, not needing to be asked twice, pulling up his shirt and tossing it away, now standing stark naked before two beautiful women. His cock nodded with his pounding heartbeat, veins bulging out, his cock head swollen to its fullest flared proportion. A smile came to his face and for some strange reason he felt guilty about having so much fun right in front of his wife.

But there Chey was, showing him that affectionate look. Then Chey said to Lily, “Lather his cock and balls up. Careful, though, sometimes my man can go off without warning.” And if he thought he should be insulted, Chey’s eyes narrowed, and she ran those nails down his chest again, this time across his bare skin. His whole body tingled with electric current as she said, “He’s got one virile sex rocket. Always ready for action.”

Lily shuffled closer—again, the act of a younger girl—and sucked her lips between her teeth, her attention at his manhood.

He said, “Always ready for act—”

Then blubbered and went woozy as Lily’s foamy hand cupped his balls with the cool, ticklish dollop of shave cream. His knees went to jelly and his eyes rolled up with the most outrageous and exquisite pleasure. Lily’s hand stroked the slick, velvety cream up the underside of his shaft, and he wobbled where he stood, consciousness going hazy for a moment.

Chey said, “Don’t come. Not yet.”

Already his mind was rationalizing chasing down the orgasmic pleasure he craved. “But I can get hard right away again, Chey. You know that. Sex rocket, remember?”

Lily’s hand formed a soft grip on his rod and his toes curled, squeaking on Cody and Carla’s tiled bathroom floor. Chey chuckled, reminding Lily to be careful and go slow—and Lily was—saying then, “Sex rocket or not, Byron baby, I have plans for you tonight, and I’d rather you saved yourself up and not lose your juice on an appetizer.”

“Ap-appetizer, huh? Wh-what’ve you got in mind?”

Chey studied his face, eyes going up and down, surmising him. “Why are we shaving you?”

“Because Carla said so.”

“Right, and that means...?”

He shrugged, head lolling on his neck at the feel of Lily’s careful hand coating his equipment in lather.

Lily smiled, whispering, “That means...” still watching her hand work, preparing him for the blade, and seeming to have fun despite no one thinking Arlo and Lily would go for this sort of thing.

Then, right to Lily, who wasn’t supposed to know anything about what they were all up to, Chey said, “We’re going to shave his cock and balls down, Lily, and I’m going to throw my lucky husband into Carla’s tiger cage like a juicy piece of meat.”

CHAPTER 2

The first stroke of the razor began under his scrotum, drawing upwards, lifting his balls then separating them, gliding up his lathered shaft. His whole body trembled and he was sure he'd lose it and ejaculate. But he gritted his teeth, held his breath, and kept the orgasm at bay for a little longer. He didn't think he could keep the lava flow from breaking the mantle much longer. It just felt so fucking good. So fucking good, but so fucking wrong. Mount Byron was primed for a devastating, calamitous eruption.

Cheyenne held the end of his penis in her left hand, thumb and first finger forming a gentle pinscher just below the head of his cock; right where head met shaft. Her right hand held a disposable razor—soft pink, one of Carla's, probably for shaving her sexy legs—returning it now to that sensitive pleasure point between scrotum and anus. His breaths came hard and heavy as if from extreme exertion, though the effort was entirely mental rather than physical. His inner voice repeated the mantra : Do not come . . . do not come . . . do not come...

But how much longer could his dam walls hold back the insistent deluge?

He was buck naked and two beautiful women serviced him. All in preparation for a sexual encounter with a third. And the third woman was a bombshell, a voluptuous vixen built for high-horsepower sex.

His wife reminded him, sensing his proximity to spillover: “Don’t come, Byron.” The sternness of her voice in conjunction with the strange scenario of sexual fantasy only made matters worse.

Even shy and demure Lily saw his predicament, studying Chey’s shaving handiwork and Byron’s throbbing, swollen member, saying, “He’s about to ejaculate, Cheyenne.”

Saying it like a helpful assistant; two sexually sinister nurses assigned to his cock.

He wedged the narrow blade of one wrist into his mouth and bit it, clamping his teeth on flesh and bone and praying he could survive this crazy, impossible challenge.

Now Lily said, “See,” pointing a skinny finger to Chey’s left hand gingerly holding the end of his cock period. A steady pulsing stream of clear precut streamed an adamant line through the sudsy lather. Lily crinkled her nose. “Ew, look how much stuff is coming out.”

Byron just about lost it, tugging his arm out of his bite, batting his hand down to the curled porcelain lip of Carla’s hot tub, squeezing it with both hands using all his might. “Jesus, Lily,” he cursed.

Cheyenne stared at Lily’s profile, brows tented quizzically, probably pondering this formerly unwilling participant’s newfound playful debauchery.

Byron winced and grimaced, grunting with real agony as he fought back an orgasm, naked ass on the tub edge, two women watching and waiting to see if he could control himself or if his little water pistol would squirt up to the ceiling. He groaned, clenched his teeth, panted for a moment, then said,

“Maybe I should just come.” Cheyenne said no, and he further pleaded, his mind racing to rationalize the release his body craved, “But I won’t last two seconds with Carla.”

Cheyenne got his attention, getting him to meet her gaze. “I said no, Byron. Plus I have faith in your pecker to not make Carla wait for round two or three or more. Am I wrong?”

“No,” he said, and believed it, finding a new inner calm.

“Hey,” Lily said, tapping the inside of his knee, and when he regarded her, she said, “Go like this: hup-hup-hup,” with each hup drawing in a breath, rising higher on her toes, pulling her stomach in and expanding her chest. Byron followed suit, drawing breath in three times and expanding his lungs to their fullest.

They exhaled together, and a tingle shivered through his body.

Lily said to Cheyenne, “Shave him again. Not too slow, not too fast. I’ll watch him for you.”

Cheyenne drew the blade up and over his ballsack, swooping the right side of his shaft this time, and he groaned again, his stomach tightening, crossing an arm over his eyes to blot out the sight of Lily’s nipples hard and erect and pushing out the front of her top. It was too much to bear.

Lily’s voice: “Shoot, Cheyenne, he’s spewing again. And you barely started shaving him.”

Cheyenne’s voice: “I’m just doing his balls and his penis.”

Lily: “Not his pubic patch?”

Cheyenne said no, just cock and balls.

Byron dropped his arm, his face twisted in misery. “Carla said bald.”

Cheyenne raised an eyebrow. “Carla said bald, but I know what Carla wants.”

She drew the blade up his shaft again and he jumped and shivered and rocked, fighting ejaculation like David against Goliath.

He could feel his urethra swell, and a new thick stream of lubricating precum slithered down the belly of his cock and right over his smooth-shaved balls. “Oh my god,” he moaned, “I’m going to come. I don’t want to, but I’m going to.”

Cheyenne scolded him, irritated, disappointed, but Lily swished her hips, dancing on her toes a second, saying to Chey, “Can I try something?”

Cheyenne said sure, and Lily stepped between Byron’s open legs, Chey letting his cock go. It pointed upright, stiff as an iron rod, hard enough to cast concrete over and support passing transport trucks. Precum streamed in an endless supply and he had no idea where it was all coming from, but was convinced it wouldn’t stop.

Lily assumed a more serious expression, then dipped a hand between his parted legs, running her two middle fingers in a quarter sized circle under his balls. She bit her lower lip and turned her eyes up as if in concentration.

He said, “What are you doing?” He didn’t want to tell her this was making it worse.

She whispered, “Hold on,” then fine-tuned the circle to a smaller dime-sized perimeter. “Now close your eyes, tilt your chin up...”

He did so, wincing at some discomfort her terse digital administration delivered as she applied deeper pressure. More precum flowed—but then stopped, like his hose had been cinched. She said, “Breathe in, three seconds, okay? Then out three seconds. Slow your heart...”

In a minute his erection had mostly subsided, wagging to the left, puffy but not primed for immediate cannon fire. He opened his eyes to see Cheyenne staring with wild disbelief at the side of Lily's face. Lily saw his eyes open, and she smiled, stepping back, reaching for a towel and wiping her hand and wrist. She said to Chey, "You probably only have a minute or two."

Chey looked at him now and they both broke up in breathy chuckles.

Paloma's grip on his cock was firm and masterful, going up and down, and on the upstroke, forming a delightful 'OK' circle around his cock head, then twisting like she was popping the cap off a beer bottle. And, god, her mouth... Her lips were plump, soft, cool, slightly chapped yet greased with some cherry gloss. Across from him, Philippe and Scarlet snuggled, his wife doing the same thing to Philippe that Paloma did to him: jerking his cock. Only his wife's upstroke on that monster would be more like trying to shift gears on an eighteen-wheeler than popping off a bottle cap. Hoo, and they kissed too. He could see them from one squinted eye, Scarlet's porcelain cheek pressed to Philippe's dense black beard, her lips pressing his, definitely touching tongues. Fuck, though, it only made him harder. Even now, flexing his cock in her grip, Paloma appreciated it, emitting a subtle but approving moan into his mouth, liking how he could make his own cock swell.

His hand traveled, going across Paloma's smooth skin, gliding under the water so just his fingertips slid on her taut body. He touched her stomach, her hip. Paloma's posture shifted, her legs parting. Giving him access to that space between her thighs.

It was all so sudden. It was a lot. One moment they're eating dinner, the next they're summoned for a secret meeting, and now he's supposed to what—perform?

Was this more auditioning?

Though it was Cheyenne's naughty behavior that had primed Scarlet's motor, it was this impressive column of meat in her hand that lured her into her own acts of extra-marital debauchery. Her newfound—or at least now acknowledged—love for penis, and a desire for control, for domination. At least over her man. Her Sully. Who was now definitely fingering another woman, just on the other side of the hot tub. Up till now, it had been Scarlet in charge. Even though she'd allowed him to play with Cheyenne, that had been done under her control. Seeing her Sully, a man who at one time she'd only dated, working his charms on another woman made her feel weird. She'd have to accept it, though. Because, oh golly, had he been accommodating with her. Hey, did you see Philippe's penis? What a monster, huh? You'd be cool if I took it for a spin, wouldn't you, baby? What a good man to work with her. Only Sully could see his way through such a debacle. See her way through it, too. He was her co-pilot, navigator, wingman, whatever. Her best friend. Her husband.

And now he broke the relative silence, his lips smacking as they popped away from his kiss with Paloma. Paloma watched him, waiting to see what he would do. He said, "Hey, can we take a pause for a minute?"

Paloma pouted then turned to Philippe with an unsure look. His kiss had been broken already, but they were still embracing, her body pressed to his, one leg hooked over a beefy, fur-covered thigh, his impossibly sized penis still challenging her feminine grip. Her hand slipped down his shaft and coddled his balls, reluctant to stop even though she had her own reservations. Once she began though, her sex drive seemed a powerful thing to contend with.

Paloma said to Philippe, “What’s wrong?”

Sully held her waist still, his shoulder muscles flexing as he rubbed her tummy, saying to her, “No, no, nothing’s wrong. A pause is all.”

Paloma said, “Bathroom?”

Sully chuckled. “Yeah, kinda like that. But with my wife. You know how girls go to the bathroom together?”

“We talk.”

“Exactly,” Sully said. “Un momento.” Which sounded Italian, not even Spanish, and Paloma spoke Portuguese. Holding up a finger for her to wait, Sully now rose out of the water, his cock protruding from between his thighs like a flexing forearm, her husband’s “pause” seeming to have nothing to do with not wanting to have sex. “Hey,” he said to her, offering a hand to help her up, “you coming?”

“Oh yeah,” she said, having had every intention to get up, but still curled on Philippe, her hand kneading his big balls.

Sully wagged his hand. “Don’t worry, your favorite dick will still be here when we get back, won’t it, buddy?”

Philippe chuckled, his laugh rumbling under his furry muscle as she began to rise.

Philippe held her wrist, whispered to her, “It’ll be here. Ready and waiting.”

She kissed him, stooping over him, Sully rubbing her back, and Paloma said, “Oh no, we come on too strong.” Her hand stroked Sully’s thigh, and his scrotum shrank. Paloma ran a hand over it and up the belly of Sully's cock, pressing it against his body, admiring it.

She felt a distinct lightheadedness now that she'd separated from the passion and stood upright. Her heart was absolutely racing. She said, "We'll get a... get a... a, uh, bottle of champagne or something." Paloma scooted to be next to her own husband, Philippe putting an arm around her.

Philippe said to Paloma, "Not too strong, baby. Too fast. We'll let them talk, and then after..."

CHAPTER 3

Byron grabbed his crotch through the towel he wore around his waist and shifted his hips side to side. She asked him, “Is it itchy?”

He shook his head no. “It’s fine.”

“I don’t want you to be uncomfortable.”

“No, I’m fine,” he said, then smirked and made a funny face. “It actually feels kind of good.”

She and Byron and Lily had moved from Carla’s bathroom into the bedroom now. Lily had put away the shave cream, the razor, and had wiped the edge of the tub where they’d left lather cream puffs flecked with Byron’s shorn pubic hairs.

Lily’s willingness to play along was startling. She stood off to the side, near the foot of Carla and Cody’s bed, hands tucked under her armpits, smiling and bouncing on her toes, like a little kid who couldn’t wait to see what they would do next.

She patted Byron’s freshly shaved cheek—another of Carla’s odd requests—saying, “I want you feeling good.”

He said, “This really is starting to sound like a sacrifice, Chey.”

Lily whispered what sounded like, “Kali Ma,” for some reason and giggled.

Chey said to Byron, “Are you ready for the next step?”

Her husband smiled and said sure, looked to Lily, like the two of them couldn’t believe this was happening. She went to the wardrobe, slid the door aside and began indexing through the clothes hanging there, looking for what Carla told her to find. Found it near the back, sealed inside a zippered garment bag. “Here it is,” she said.

Byron said, “Cody’s clothes aren’t going to fit me, Chey.”

“These are your clothes,” she said, turning and presenting him the garment bag.

“Oh, a costume party,” Lily whispered and clasped her hands together at her chest.

“My clothes?”

With the hanger on one hand, she drew down the bag’s zipper and revealed the outfit within.

Byron frowned. “What is it? A suit?”

Now she didn’t know what to say, what to reveal in front of Lily. The fact Lily had been with them had been so debilitating at first, but Lily had joined in, undeterred, not reluctant, interested. Interested and helpful. Maybe Carla knew there was more to Lily than she and Scarlet had suspected.

She opened the gap wider and showed Byron the jacket had a patch emblazoned on the left breast. “It’s a school... it’s a school uniform. Like a British school.”

Lily said, “Harry Potter?”

Byron made a face. “I can’t do an English accent. I don’t want to do that. I’ll feel silly.”

Lily whispered, “Good day, gov’nah,” and tipped an imaginary cap, smiling ear to ear.

“No, not stupid Harry Potter, Byron. Carla doesn’t read Harry Potter. You picture that, picture her reading a Harry Potter book?”

“No. So what is it?”

“She wants you to be a student at a private school.”

“Okay...”

“It’s an international school, Byron. Students come from all over the world. Does Carla have a British accent?”

Byron looked from Lily back to her. “No.”

“So you don’t have one either. You’re from the US or Canada or wherever you want.”

“Not Australian, that accent is impossible,” he said, feeling the blazer’s lapel.

“No, Byron,” she said. “Just be you. You’re way more than enough for her. Carla wants you. She brought this uniform for you. She was hoping she could get you in her bed. They plotted against us, Cody for me, Carla for you, but we’re in this together, and we’re having fun. Aren’t we having fun?”

“She brought the suit for me?”

“You’re looking at it. You see it.”

Byron rubbed his forehead, perplexed. “This is so fucking crazy.”

Chey stepped back from him now, lay the garment bag on the bed, the zipper mouth puckered open, showing off some embroidered crest on the blazer’s breast pocket. Then Chey said to Lily, “Thank you so much for helping, Lily.”

Lily snickered and showed a brief two-finger salute, then Chey said, “But I think I need a minute with my husband before, uh...”

“You send him off to battle?”

Chey looked over her shoulder to him, and made a funny face. They’d already admitted it, there was no hiding it, but he felt the same way as Chey’s expression conveyed: it was strange divulging it all to their innocent friend. And absolutely confounding the way it had turned out with Lily.

“Yeah,” she said then, returning her attention to Lily. “Send him off to battle.”

Lily said, “You guys are bad.” The tone wasn’t accusing, more of a childish assessment. He couldn’t tell if she was kidding or what. It seemed lighthearted, but none of them would have expected this from Lily. They would have anticipated disdain.

Chey nodded, looking back to him for a second then saying, “We’re bad, all right.”

Lily screwed her mouth up, then said, “You better tell Arlo I helped.”

Chey said that they would, and then Lily sidestepped toward the door, scrutinizing them with a scowl and a half-smirk, got to the door, pointed to them with an index finger, then stroked the other index finger over it in the international gesture for shame-shame-shame, then she wiggled her fingers in farewell and stepped out.

Right away, he said, “What the fuck was that?”

Chey spun around, “I have no fucking idea.”

“Do you think she’s okay?”

“Like in the head?”

He laughed, stepped closer and held Chey’s arms. “Uh... Well, that, but...”

“But what?”

He squinted and made a face, surprised she didn’t know what he was talking about. “Don’t you think she was wearing a diaper?”

Chey made a weirder face and shook her head like she’d misheard him. “What?”

“Didn’t you hear it crinkling?”

“No.”

“I hope she’s okay,” he said, then muttered aside, “Irritable Bowel Syndrome or something.”

“I think a diaper and whether she was wearing one is nowhere near what I thought you were going to say. She helped me shave you. And what the fuck was that magic trick, like the Vulcan touch she used down there?”

“I have no idea, but it worked.”

“That was hands-down the weirdest exchange I’ve had with anyone.”

“I think she’d say the same to her husband, you know, given she came in here to shave my genitals.”

“That’s a good point, but, like, she was so weird. Like, acting like... childish or something.”

“Maybe she didn’t know how to act, coming in here to do something crazy like that.”

They both sighed at the same time, big hearty chest-heaving ones, then looked in each other’s eyes and laughed about it. Then they just kept looking at each other some more.

Chey said, “You ready to put your suit on?”

“I guess.” He bit his lower lip, bounced his eyebrows, the whole ordeal so weird and yet exciting. Chey was putting no brakes on this runaway train.

She stood and watched as he removed his towel, stepped into a pair of tight-whitey y-fronts included in the bag, black socks, gray flannel pants, white dress shirt.

Chey said, “Looks like a great fit.”

He held out his arms, checking the cuffs, then did up the leather belt. “Perfect fit.”

Chey brought him the tie, helped loop it under his collar, tried to help him tie it but fucked it up.

“Let me.” He took over, both of them face to face and smiling. He said, “What are you going to be doing?”

“Nothing,” she said, then squinted. “Nothing with Cody, if that’s what you’re thinking.”

He nodded, turned to retrieve the navy blazer. “You can if you want,” he said, putting his arms into it, his back to her.

Her arms went around his waist, hugging him from behind, her hands lacing over his stomach. He put a hand over them. She said, “If I’m going to be honest, I do want to be with Cody again. But more than anything I want this to be right between us. I don’t want to be with Cody. I don’t want to be with him, if you know what I’m saying. I want to be with you. And when there’s an opportunity...”

He patted her hand and turned to face her. “You’ll fuck Cody.”

She winced—because it was true. “That’s all, though,” she said. “Do you even know what I’m saying? Can we even do this?”

He said, “It never occurred to me that you could possibly be with Cody, Chey. He’s married. Married to Carla. They’re happy, we’re happy. I didn’t think that.”

“I didn’t think it either, but I thought maybe you did.”

“I’m glad to know you’re not going to run off with a married man—who, by the way, has a wife who would chase you both down, or hire someone to do it, maybe some cartel men with chainsaws, chop you both up into pieces and film it for her later amusement.”

Chey’s eyes widened with shock. “Some imagination, buddy.”

He took a step back, taking a breath, preparing himself for an unexpected speech. “Look, what you revealed to me was so hard to take, so huge, and yet... You know, it means something to me, and—“

“What I did, Byron, honey, was not the right way to do it. I got something in my head—”

“Like a fever.”

Like a fever, yeah, and in getting what I wanted, maybe I made some mistakes. But now that it’s done and I find out what kind of man you really are, this is so important for me to do, to send you to Carla. I know the risk you took. Talked about it with Scarlet today and... I don’t know, I never thought of it before, but yeah, I insulted your masculinity—“

“No, you didn’t...”

“Oh yeah I did, but you’re man enough to take it. And I’m lucky for that because I didn’t deserve the understanding you offered me.”

He nodded and made a small satisfied sound in his throat that made her smile. She said, “I like this. I like what we’re doing. I want to do it more. But what is really important to me right now is you enjoy it as much as I do.”

“I get it.”

“I hope so. . . . I love you.”

He cocked his head and smiled. “I love you, too.”

“I know you do. You showed me you do.” She stopped closer, looking him up and down, touching the shoulders of his jacket. “It really is a perfect fit.”

“It is.”

“You look good. You look really good. Boyish. Handsome.”

“Like an innocent British schoolboy.”

Chey touched her lips to his, then committed to a deeper kiss, cupping his face and neck. Then she patted his cheek. “My British schoolboy.”

He nodded.

His heart started to race walking the hall on the lower level. Down where Carla had lured him for some dumb Shop-vac. He knew what he was in for. Carla was the headmistress and he was an errant charge, in trouble for something. Whatever misdeed he'd done to be called to Headmistress Bishop's office wouldn't matter, all that would matter is the punishment. Carla would spank him. Spank him for sure. She'd probably brought one of those paddles they used in private schools in the old movies. She'd rap his knuckles with a ruler. Maybe make him put his balls on her desk so she could smack them. Make him strip so she could humiliate him or something. Whatever. Whatever she wanted to do, he was all in. There was something about Carla that attracted him and it wasn't just her perfect rack, as Cheyenne and the others thought. She was tough, she was mean, she was a scheming princess, and yet...

He stopped at the door, adjusting his suit, amazed at how well it fit. Took a deep breath, held it, wasted a little more time adjusting his tie... And when he had the nerve he knocked on the door.

From inside, Carla's curious voice: "Come in." High and light and wondering who could be at her door at this hour.

"Oh boy," he whispered to himself, turned the knob and stepped inside.

Carla was on the bed, but this was not what he had expected at all.

CHAPTER 4

When they'd boarded the yacht, she could never have anticipated walking through it at some point on their vacation naked with Sully, the way they were doing now, Sully with an erection wagging side to side in the lamp light. And yet somehow, they were still the same people—it had only been days-worth of change—like the naked degenerates strutting through a luxury yacht without a stitch had always been there inside them, waiting for an opportunity to be asked if they'd like to come out and play. They hadn't been transformed, they'd been revealed.

She turned to share the funny observation with Sully, finding him a step behind, his brow furrowed, his right hand up by his mouth and nose.

She said, "Did you just smell your fingers?"

He looked her way, startled. "What?—no. Maybe. What?"

She scoffed, saying, "You're gross."

He trotted a few steps to catch up with her, his dick whipping up and down, out of control. He said, "It's a thing. An animal thing. I didn't even know I was doing it."

She said, “You’re right about that: an animal thing. You look like a fucking orangutan, smelling your own fingers like that.”

He waved his hands around, trying to find the words to explain himself. “It’s evolutionary. It’s ingrained.”

Now she rolled her eyes, the two of them crossing the mosaic tile floor, headed to the bar in the lounge. “How?

“You know... Checking for her...”

She turned to regard him. He broke up laughing, rolling his eyes up to the ceiling and shaking his head, knowing how stupid he sounded.

“Say it.”

“Health,” he said, trying to appear mirthful and innocent, shrugging a shoulder. “See if she’s healthy.”

She crossed her arms and stared at him, watching him begin to squirm. “So, Sully... Is she healthy? Is Paloma healthy?”

He shrugged a shoulder again. “She’s pretty healthy.”

“You like the smell?”

“Now you’re being gross.”

“Does she pass the sniff test?”

Now he laughed and waved her away, walking ahead under the glass archway and into the lounge, his perfect little butt flexing as he did. She snickered and went ahead, Sully going behind the bar and her going to the chair side, putting her elbows on it as Sully stooped and opened the under counter fridge, looking for champagne. He said, “I like how you think you could be a swinger.”

“What, ‘cause I think my husband’s a weirdo for smelling his fingers after he put them inside another woman?”

He stood up without champagne, showing her an aloof look, eyes lazy, eyebrows high. He stuck his hand toward her face, reaching over the ice bucket, saying, “It’s not gross. Smell.”

She jerked her head back. “Get your fucking fingers out of my face, Sully.”

“Would you smell them, please. You’re the best, but she’s not bad. Check her out.”

“If that hand doesn’t get out of my face I’ll pop out your eyeballs with those ice tongs.” She nodded to the stainless steel tongs in the ice bucket.

Sully retracted his hand and narrowed his sparkling eyes in challenge. “Good luck, with me shoving my fingers in your nose.”

They stared at each other for a long moment, smirking, pretending to stay heated and adversarial but a real funny warmth blooming behind her ribs for this man. She stood on one side of the bar, like a customer, him on the other, hands spread on the counter supporting his weight, like a naked bartender who was happy to see her. She said, “Come here. Come around to my side.”

Sully stood upright, looking cool, cocking his head, showing her his casual, sleepy eyes. He took a step to come around, went back and grabbed the ice tongs and tossed them into the sink where she wouldn’t be able to reach them, showed her a wary smile and a wink, then came around the bar to join her, putting out his arms in welcome. She moved into his embrace, and they stood together, naked under the chandelier, his erection pressing her stomach.

After a moment enjoying the affection, she said, “Don’t smell your fingers. It’s uncouth.”

“Fine.”

“You can put your fingers where you want. Put your face where you want. Put your dick where you want...”

“But you don’t want to see me smelling my fingers. Got it.”

She pulled her head back so she could see his face. “Where are we at?”

“You and me?”

“Me and you.”

He said, “Me, I’m holding onto the love of my life, having a good time.”

“Why’d you stop us?”

“We didn’t have a talk today. You know, after what we did last night.”

“We didn’t. Not really,” she said, her posture sagging, Sully letting her go.

He said, “And when we did, it was kind of weird. . . . Look, I’m not in this for sex with Paloma, I’m not in it for sex with any other person. I’m in it together with with you, the two of us trying something out.”

“That’s what I’m in it for, too.”

“But you get jealous.”

“I do?”

“Me and Carla.”

“What about you and Carla?” Her tone was more defensive than she’d intended, and she touched her chest like out of embarrassment.

Sully said “What is it about Carla that makes you and Cheyenne so jumpy?”

“I don’t like your superior tone, mister. You think you can wield my bad reactions against me, weaponize my own weaknesses?”

“I’m not weaponizing your weaknesses, Scar, baby. I’m curious about them. I like them.”

“What do you think it is?”

“I’m afraid to say. Every time me and Byron say anything about Carla it leads to trouble. Were your sororities rivals or something? Did Carla kill one of your sorority sisters in the Great Sorority War of 2012?”

“No, there are no grudges. No past grievances.”

She narrowed her eyes as if angry, caught herself doing it and then laughed. “How she looks and how she acts.”

“She’s like a female Cody.”

“I guess.”

He smiled, the smile warm and friendly and communicating something back to her, something friendly and yet difficult. Her husband had just held a mirror up to her, showing her what she looked like, making her sound out how unreasonable her argument was. Cody was male perfection: wealthy, served his country with extreme bravery, handsome—heck, gorgeous—well connected, good friends, funny, well hung, perfect body, great hair, those goddam swimmable eyes...

She said, “I don’t see your point,” rolling her eyes, stepping close again, looking for a hug. Sully’s arms went around her.

He said, “We’re good, you and me. I’m not asking you. I’m telling you.”

“Thank you,” she said. Then added, “We’re better than good.”

“We’re fucking awesome,” he said.

“That’s it.”

After a long embrace, Sully reinforced it: “We really are.”

Now she patted his bare backside, indicating family time was over and they needed to get back to business. “We have some people waiting on us.”

“We certainly do,” he said, stepping back, his erection undeterred by their brief, heartfelt duologue, pretending to tighten an imaginary tie at his neck.

She smiled, glad to see them united on the same team again—Team Hill—and ready to go to battle. And no word from him of how she felt about Paloma. Paloma, who was just as sexy as Carla, in a whole different way, and whose fortitude was untested and unexplored. The not yet known from Paloma had set her back on her heels, but her husband had just wound her up, turned her key and got her machinations in forward gear. She said, “You’ve just done more than you even know.”

He looked down, in a stupid but honest male sexual preoccupation, thinking maybe he’d ejaculated and not even known it. Then he looked up at her for more information. But she said, “Never mind. I don’t know if I can explain it.”

He looked insulted. “You could try.”

She said, “How about I show you instead?”

Now he was back on track, back to business, giving her curt and official nod, saying, “All right. What’s the plan?”

“First,” she said, “I’d like you to find the best bottle of champagne on board this boat—”

“Yacht.”

“Yacht. Then I’d like you to corral four clean champagne glasses and follow me back to the hot tub.”

“I can do that,” he said, confident, smiling. “Then what?”

“Then, my dear Sully,” she purred, taking his wrist, lifting his hand to her chin. “I want you to follow my lead.” She guided his two middle fingers into her mouth and sucked them, his Paloma vagina-fingers slippery on her tongue, her eyes locked on his, watching her lubricious act turn her husband’s boy brain into lusty lava, his eyes widening, his jaw slackening, his lips parting as he succumbed in complete surrender to his wife’s newfound and intense sexuality.

His Adam’s apple jumped up and down as he swallowed. He licked his lips.

He said, “Oh. Oh wow.”

Carla lay on the simple bed in the undecorated suite, the same place they’d all gathered to watch Scarlet and Philippe get locked in a closet completely naked. Carla wasn’t dressed as a headmistress, as he’d expected. Nor as a skintight leather-bound dominatrix, as maybe a small secret part of him kind of hoped for. No, Carla didn’t dress like authority. She dressed like him: a student at some pretend high-falutin’ British private school. She lay on her front side, up on elbows, her legs bent, sock feet crossed, reading a hardcover book—a text book—with a chewed pen in her mouth. The same blazer he wore was draped over a chair, the crest rail holding up the shoulders; instead of grey flannel pants, she wore a gray flannel skirt.

When she saw him step into her room her face took on a look of shock; she tugged a white cord that went from one of those old iPod Classics up under her short and shaggy blonde mane, and the ear buds tumbled onto the text book's pages. She gasped, "What are you doing here?"

Knowing not to stammer or misstep, he played along, trying his best to keep his cool and stay apace with this high-level sex demon, saying, "What, a guy can't drop by and say what's up?"

Carla's hand went to her mouth to hide a smile in a way that made him actually feel like a real private-school bad boy than a guy whose wife just dressed him for play and sent him off to the iniquitous den of another female. Carla backed off the bed, straightening her tight white Oxford button down that could barely contain her fifties-era chest torpedos, adjusting her appearance in a timid and unexpected way, one that suggested she was challenged by his presence. Her voice a breathless sort of whisper, she claimed now, "Boys from Clarke House are never-ever allowed in Pashley House. If the Matron saw you, you'd get kicked out of Shoreham for sure."

He shrugged a shoulder and put his hands in his pockets, an arrogant young man undeterred by authority. "She didn't see me."

"You're crazy," Carla said, trotted in socks to him, past him, holding on to the door handle, turning to say, "You have to get out of here, Byron. If... If the matron catches you, you'll be sent home. And what about me?"

He said, "If you send me out, I'll run into her for sure, Carla."

Carla put her back to the closed door, torn between sending him off and letting him stay. Her plump lips sucked into her mouth, and her cheeks showed red (how on earth did she fake that?). The lips plopped free from her nervous bite as she couldn't stop a devious smile. She said, "Okay, you can stay. But you have to be quiet. When it's dark"—she went breathless and scared again, scared of being caught—"when it's dark, I'll sneak you out my dorm room window."

CHAPTER 5

They twiddled her thumbs, hands interlocked on the outdoor table, Caribbean breeze tossing her hair. Cody's large hand covered over hers, stopping her nervous compulsion. She'd even been chewing her cheek.

Cody said, "You're going to get them tied in a knot if you keep doing that."

"My thumbs?"

"Or you'll start a fire."

She couldn't even smile. A heavy storm hung on her horizon; a gloomy dread. It'd been a long time since she'd felt that dark forewarning, and knew sometimes those churning clouds could bring the stinging rain of inexplicable panic.

She said, "How do you guys manage this?"

"Manage what?" He smiled, his handsome face resting in the palm of his other hand, elbow on the table, looking so cool and collected, unbothered. His eyes sparkled, and his hand holding hers somehow imbued an unexpected comfort. "You mean...?" He darted those turquoise eyes toward the yacht interior, where somewhere inside the anfractuous guts of this sea vessel, her loving husband shared private time with another woman. Cody's woman. But her husband had shared time with that same woman before. And she'd synchronously shared time with this man who comforted her. But that last time, she'd been preoccupied, charmed or hypnotized into some sex-programmed automaton, her robotics fueled by flammable lust. Tonight she was organic, desaturated, and her veins pulsed tepid and timid blood. What a difference a few days could make.

"Well, how do you do it?"

He shrugged a shoulder, watched his own hand as he played with one of her hanging locks. "I'm happy for my wife. What's there to overcome?"

"I'm happy for Byron."

Cody let her hair go and sat upright as Lily and Arlo returned with cocktails, the two of them gone to the kitchen to make frosty blender drinks for the lonely grumps left together at the dinner table, playing cards while all the others went about some kinky business. Although, given what she'd witnessed from Lily, maybe somehow, by midnight, the four of them would end up in a bed somewhere in the yacht.

Now they sat on the bed together, side by side but facing, like two legitimate teenagers at boarding school, tense and unsure, Carla biting her lower lip and driving him crazy doing it. He snuffled a small laugh, letting his head bow as a good feeling of fun washed up from his heart.

Carla ran hair behind an ear, saying, "What?" and laughing too.

He said, "I never thought I'd make it to your room, and I don't know what to say to you now I'm here."

“You thought the matron would catch you?”

“At the least, stop me, chase me out with a broom or something.”

Carla laughed again—not like the Carla laugh he knew, the superior almost sadistic one. No, her current laugh was timid and innocent. She’d been transformed before him from buxom bombshell to a waif away from home in a foreign country. He wondered if she did go to boarding school, and wondered where-oh-where did her roleplaying fantasy come from. She said, “Matron’s a swatter.”

“A swatter?”

She touched the top of his head, careful not to muss his hair, saying, “She’d have swatted you with the broom. She goes crazy when she sees Shoreham boys anywhere in the vicinity of Pashley House. Even if they’re just down by the dock getting a fish and chips.”

“Boys are always up to no good.”

“They certainly are,” she said, and started that weaponized lip-biting, making his heart hurt and his cock ache. Then she darted her mouth closer to him, whispering, “What made you so brave?”

“To come to Pashley? . . . I was bored, I was thinking of you, out for a stroll, the next thing you know...”

“You’re knocking at my door?”

“Pretty much.” He got bold, putting a hand up to touch a shaggy twirl of her blonde hair.

“You were thinking about me?” God, the lip-biting again.

“Maybe I think about you a lot,” he said, noncommittal, not wanting his private school bad boy character to be too gushing. Total turnoff.

“You do not,” she said, playful and alluring.

“Yeah, you’re right,” he said. “Maybe I don’t,” scratching his head and ruffling his own hair.

Carla snatched a pillow and batted him with it. “You’re so terrible.” Then she held the pillow in her lap, looking at him a moment, tossing the pillow aside, putting her weight on her hands spread out on the mattress behind her. A come-hither posture. Her eyes had gone sultry and narrow in a more familiar Carla fashion. She said, “And yet you’re here in the girls’ dorm. In my room.”

He looked around her room, saying, “I told some of the guys I could get in, take a look around, report back and say if you girls have better dorms than we do.”

“You just wanted to look at the dorms, huh?” The way she sat now pushed her huge breasts against the cotton fabric of her dress shirt. She knew it, he knew it, she knew he knew it.

“Maybe I wanted to see something else.”

“A lot of maybes from you today.”

“I’m an ambiguous guy.”

That made her smile wide. Then she looked mean at him. “You’re just a boy sneaking around the girls’ dorms, looking for any peeping tom opportunity, catch a girl changing her clothes.”

“You’re besmirching my honor,” he said.

She laughed, tossing her hair, moving in a way that got a gap opening in her shirt and revealing a white bra. Fuck, it had been over a decade since a teen girl’s bra had excited him; he’d graduated from his high school teen-sex years with flying colors and put it all behind him—but Carla Weber’s roleplaying was doing wild and erotic things to his brain. He felt that old time teenage excitement mixed with dread at the possibilities of the next moment and the next moment and the moment after that.

“You’re not here to catch me changing?”

“I wouldn’t have knocked on the door.”

She raised a slender eyebrow. “That’s a good point.”

“But if you wanted to get ready for bed, you go right ahead and find your flimsy nightie...”

She leaned forward and smacked his shoulder. “You’re terrible. That’s all you want, isn’t it?”

“If only it were that simple, sweet Carla,” he said, wondering where his fucking boldness was coming from, getting into the role of this confident young man.

“Oh, so what do you want? Did you need tutoring?”

He smiled a devil’s smile. “I’m a little behind on Sex Ed.”

Her mouth fell open and her playfulness evaporated. She looked legitimately offended, and he was sure he’d fucked up the roleplaying.

Then she whispered, “I can’t believe you said that.”

“I’m joking, Carla, and you know it.”

“How do I know it?”

“Everyone knows I aced Sex Ed.”

She laughed and looked away a second, bashful, kicking her legs, drumming her heels against the bed frame. “I didn’t,” she said and bit her lip again.

“Look who’s the one who needs tutoring,” he said, touching that twist of hair again, Carla pulling her head away, but smiling, flirting with him, encouraging him to come even closer.

Scarlet’s ass danced side to side in a confident way he’d never seen before. Not like she was ever a timid or demure woman, but good lord, right now her ass swayed and bounced and rolled like she was doing burlesque. Scar was slender, kind of skinny, not a pancake ass by any means, but he’d had no idea it could put on a show like the one he was watching right now.

She walked three paces ahead, and he trotted to keep up—but still maintaining a distance that would allow him enjoy the rump-show she was putting on—his cock swinging around, champagne glasses clinking, bottle of Pol Roger icy cold in the grip of three fingers. They passed the dim amber light threshold of the yacht’s muted nighttime interior, out into the cool blue Caribbean night, their shadows casting long out ahead of them, touching the hot tub before they even got there, two hot as fuck sex participants smiling and glad to see their return.

Paloma pouted and said, “What took you?”

And fucking Scarlet said, “We were as fast as we could be, honey bun, but sometimes when hubby and I get to talking we lose track of the time.”

He chuckled and shrugged, caught Philippe’s eye. Philippe nodded, winking, smiling in that thick black beard, happy to see proud Scarlet return from her sojourn in the land of the meek. Sully raised the bottle and the glasses to show them even more of a good time had returned. Philippe shot a happy finger-pistol in his direction.

Scarlet didn't slow her roll, hip-swaying strut all the way to the tub, hiking a leg over the edge and stepping in, standing proud and naked in the tub's center, towering over the two seated occupants, looking up at her now. Looking down on them, a hand on one hip, Scarlet held out the other hand to the side, not even facing him, but saying, "Sully, honey, can you pour me a cold one?"

He chuckled, stopping at the edge of the tub, putting down all the glasses, hustling to peel the foil off the top of the champagne bottle and not keep his outstanding wife standing too long with an expectant hand held out. He placed a champagne glass in Scarlet's hand, then locked the cold bottle under an arm and twisted at the cork. Philippe watched them both, smirking, enjoying the show, knowing what they were like as a couple, while Paloma huddled into him, not sure what the heck was going on. The poor beautiful woman had probably never met two people as odd as they were, and as difficult to get in the sack. But, fuck, this was fun to play it this way, and he couldn't wait to hear what plan his wife had ready for them.

The cork came off with a resounding pop, and he held the foaming bottle aloft in celebration, then filled Scarlet's glass near to the top.

While he splashed champagne in the remaining glasses, Scarlet said, "I want to toast our evening," raising her glass.

Paloma and Philippe smiled, bobbed closer to Sully so he could pass them all their own champagne. Sully stepped into the tub and took hold of Scarlet's free hand. They all raised their glasses and waited for their strong-willed toastmaster to speak.

But all Scarlet said was, “To us,” raising her glass higher, then putting it to her lips and draining the glass dry. They all looked around, then followed suit.

Scarlet placed her empty glass on the tub’s edge, swallowed, clapped her hands together and addressed them all like an executive at a corporate team-building retreat, saying, “Now, let me tell you all how this is going to go.”

Carla's soft, glistening lips twitched a quick smile in the agonizing moment before their mouths came together in a timid and hesitant kiss. Just like two high-schoolers sitting on a bed. They were two full-grown adults, but Carla had lured him into an authentic headspace that spurred the stark emotions of a more fraught—yet exciting—time. It was hard to picture Carla Weber (what the heck was her maiden name?) as an innocent. Yet here she was on full display, right before his very eyes, showing a peekaboo of what she might have been like when her flower began to open, maybe fifteen years ago, and all the slyness and scheming hadn't yet flavored her psyche.

Her mouth was soft and wet, and the slick, velvety feel of her lips time-transported him to a lost date in his past, where if he were sitting on the edge of a bed with Carla Whatever-her-maiden-name was, he wouldn't even believe it. All his buddies would say how Carla was out of his league; yet his time with her was real and true, and he would regale his friends with naughty tales of the bodily things he and Carla had done to each other—all while shielding from those kyoodling schoolboy coyotes the secret and amazing things his time with her had done to his heart and his emotions.

Their postures were erect, though he leaned into her. His angle inclined toward her in a show of who really had the power right now in this room. And that was fine by him, because of the delight this power imbalance brought him. Even if he were this roguish young prep-school boy in England, sneaking into the girls' dorm, right up to the room of who he was sure would have been the hottest girl in that school, that young rake he portrayed would also acknowledge that it was sexy Carla who directed the play, and that his bold move proved the oft-quoted point that fortune favored the brave. In fact, that axiom would be how he introduced his recounting of this grand sexual tale to his school chums.

Carla's erect posture wasn't just good upbringing and manners, was it? No, it was semiotic; instructional. A presentation of the feminine feature that cemented Carla's status as alpha female wolf of the Shoreham Academy's fairer population. In schoolboy parlance: her great big titties.

There was a boy somewhere who had been the first to touch Carla's breasts, had been the first to be with her, to lay with her, to put his male hardness inside her body and give her pleasure. Right now, he was that boy; that lucky, lucky boy.

When his brave hand touched Carla's waist, she moaned into his mouth, turned toward him, exposing more of her front, her back arching, begging him to touch her chest. He felt the excitement of that long ago schoolboy even though he'd touched Carla's breasts before. What if she stopped him? What if she called the matron? And just like his private school bad boy would do, he let his hand stroke up the cotton of her shirt, waiting to see how Carla would react, hoping upon hope she wouldn't reject him or smack him.

And of course she didn't.

Carla's wet kiss pulled back as she emitted the softest gasp. A boy had touched her breast for the first time and it overwhelmed her. God, this silly game had his cock aching, ready to burst, his heart pumping and thumping and jumping around inside his rib cage. His pump had already been primed: Chey and Lily shaving his privates had him close to erupting. Lily had squelched his orgasm with a pressure point under his scrotum. But now, in the mindset of a teen touching his first breast, and that breast attached to the hottest girl in school, and the breast soft and pliable, large under his palm, he felt the tingle of imminent orgasm.

Carla's hand covered his, held it in place over her breast in case he got intimidated and removed it, her eyes closed, eyebrows raised in youthful ecstasy. Her lashes fluttered and she opened her eyes, steadying her gaze on his. She whispered, "I've never done this before."

"I'll tutor you," he said.

Carla bit the plump curl of her bottom lip, her eyes scanning his face, settling on his mouth. She kissed him again, and this time she put her hands on his body. She touched his shoulders, slipped a hand under his blazer and swept his chest and stomach. When her hand got below his ribs, he could feel a stream of precum, flexed from his tortured erection. Her hand settled at his hip and formed a weak grip on his belt, the whole while her mouth worked with his, the two of them now beginning to explore with their tongues, breaths coming quicker.

He stopped, licked his lips. "Shouldn't we lock the door?"

She sucked her own lips, nodding. Her nipples bulged through the fabric of her shirt. The sight made him ache all over. Then he was off the bed, crossing to the door, locking it, leaning against it and listening as if there were a chance he might overhear the lurking matron who could ruin all this dirty fun they were having. He grabbed his tie's knot and yanked it loose, returning to the bed and removing his blazer, tossing it to the nearby chair. Carla scooted up the bed, adjusting her hair, going up to the pillows and waiting for his return. He got on the bed and her eyes dropped to between his legs where he knew she would see his erection pressing out his pants. She made a face like a teen girl would: a this-is-really-happening expression that riled him up like he was out of control. His tricked brain sent off all the signals as if this weren't roleplaying, as if it were real—a veritable klaxon's whoop, screaming at him that this wasn't a drill, that he was going to have sex with this bomb shell, that his sneaky entree to the girls' dorm was going to pay off.

They got to kissing again, laying on their sides on the bed, fully clothed, fondling each other, both of them building the nerve to touch the other's sex parts. His hand found its way to her bosom again, and now he fumbled with her buttons. Carla's hands had lowered, touching fingertips to his stomach, playing with his belt buckle, teasing him with the notion she may undo it, unzip him, reveal that magical part of him that tingled and throbbed, that got hard sometimes just from jouncing on the bus ride from the academy into London or fucking wherever.

But now all his attention focused on the delta of exposed skin his unbuttoning had revealed. From a point just above Carla's navel to where her clavicle met her shoulder her white dress shirt opened, and he saw the tanned skin of her chest and the lacy edge of her bra. The heft of her creamy bosom sagged against the support of the bra, displaying her flesh in a plump and sexual manner. The sight stunned him, and his hands fumbled with the next button. He'd been transformed into a lusty teenager seeing his first real-life breast.

And only a few days ago he'd been naked with Carla, touching and kissing them. Only that was a different Carla, wasn't it? That Carla had expected a wild night from him. Invited him into her suite with plans for all-night crazy sex. Had used a freaking vibrator on him, for crying out loud. It was like that first night she had pushed and he had pulled. Tonight Carla was pulling and he was drawing close to her. The dynamic was so different. The dynamic was exciting and wild, and so amazing he couldn't even believe it.

His hands went back into action, speeding through the two remaining buttons and flipping her shirt open. She gasped and moaned and writhed on the bed, like she was in heat. And he touched her bare shoulder, scooting her shirt away.

“Hold on,” she whispered, not a deterrent, but requesting a pause so she could aid him. She folded an arm behind her back and he watched the bra jump as it was unclasped and the heft of her breasts slumped. Then she worked an arm out of her shirt, touching his neck and pulling him in for another kiss. Their bodies pressed and he could feel her bosom against his chest. Could feel her eagerness, the way she writhed against his body.

She said, “I swear I’ve never done this before.”

“It’s okay,” he said, touching her cheek. “We’re going to take our time.”

His scoundrelly tenderness made Carla smile, and he smiled, too. She bit her lip again and said, “I’ve never even shown anyone my body.”

“You’re going to show it to me?”

“Do you wanna see it?”

He chuckled and then she chuckled and he touched her naked waist, his last two fingers resting on the waistband of her woollen skirt. He said, “I didn’t risk getting kicked out of Shoreham to look at your school uniform.”

Carla showed an expression of exhilaration, her eyes widening, her pupils dilating—a thing she could not fake, and a sign she had succumbed to the role-play as much as him—her lips slimming as her fingertips dragged a bra strap over a shoulder, down to her elbow, freeing the arm from the strap. Her hand moved fast to cover her bared breast.

He touched the hand she covered up with, running fingertips over her wrist and up her forearm. Her skin went to goosebumps and her breaths deepened. “Why don’t you show me.”

“I’m shy,” she said.

“You’re not shy at all.”

“I’m not?” She bit her lower lip in an adorable way, her head tilting at a coquettish angle.

“I don’t think you’re shy at all. I think you want to show me.”

“No, I don’t,” she said a light laugh trailing afterward.

He stroked her forearm and kissed her mouth one more time, then said, “You know every single boy in school wants to be right where I am right now. And you love it.”

“Why does every boy want to be here right now?”

“Because you’re the hottest girl in school.”

“I am? No, I’m not.”

“You’re gonna move that hand and show me what every boy in school thinks about at night.”

She rolled her eyes around, thinking about it and chewing the inside of her cheek, the whole while the hint of a smile pulling at the corner of her mouth. Then her hand began to retract, revealing the bulb of an erect nipple popping between the knuckles of her two middle fingers. His whole body tightened with excitement, loving to see this part of her revealed in such a small and secret manner. He'd seen Carla naked—fully naked—many times but this game they were playing made her nakedness an extravagant and powerful thing.

His hand touched her ribs, coming up to her breasts, brushing the backs of his fingers over her knuckles and teasing the swollen tip of her nipple.

She whimpered, and his body buckled as a sudden thrill shivered through him from his prostate to his frontal lobe, blotting his consciousness with floating phosphorescent orbs. His stomach heaved in and out and his heart thundered.

Carla patted her own nipple, eyeing him, then saying, “Now it’s your turn.”

“My, hoo, my turn for what?”

“I showed you mine...”

“You want to see...”

“Yup,” she said, popping her “P.” Then her hands went to his belt buckle and tugged it, getting the lever unhitched.

A slippery whirlwind swirled through his core, up from the base of his rock hard member and his acorn tight scrotum. His body bucked and his cock flexed. A pool of precum spread through his briefs and stained his pants.

Excuses flooded his brain, wanting to break from character and tell Carla—Carla Weber, not Carla the prep school girl—that he had to bow out, that he had unsurvivable heartburn. What else could explain away the twisted look of torment on his face right now?

He bit his knuckle and furrowed his brow, every iota of his being fighting against a freight train of an orgasm, a real thousand-mile an hour runaway freight train, out of control and looking to spill its juicy payload over an unsuspecting village.

Cheyenne wouldn't let him come in the bathroom. Wanted him primed. He was going to go off before he pulled his pistol out. Fucking Chey did this on purpose.

CHAPTER 7

Philippe set down his champagne glass on the edge of the tub. “I can’t wait to hear it.” He showed a playful expression of disinterest, knowing Scarlet a little better now (given all the dirty things the three of them had done together), and suspecting Scarlet had a ploy.

Scarlet cocked her head, showing Philippe a defiant posture and about the same unaffected expression, knowing Philippe was resisting her charm and her power, and she was unafraid of any challenge he might offer. She put a hand on her hip, the hip shot out to the side in a steadfast gunfighter pose. Philippe and Scarlet were fun to watch together, and that might have been the craziest thing a husband could realize about his wife and another man. Maybe it was because he was usually on the receiving end of his wife’s manipulations and so it was a real commiserating kick to watch her put another man in one of her scheming and performative headlocks.

Scarlet said, “Did you like that champagne?”

Philippe said, “One of the best.”

“You know your champagnes?”

“I know good champagne.”

They were testing each other, looking for weaknesses in each other's armor. Sully couldn't help smiling. The whole while, Paloma, snuggled into her hairy and muscular husband, looked from her husband to Scarlet as each spoke, unsure of all that was happening but amused by it, knowing while this might sound like bickering and that she couldn't tell if Scarlet was a good person or not but it seemed all right since Philippe was smiling. Fuck, Scarlet had never looked sexier to him.

Now Scarlet said, "The royal family enjoys it."

Philippe said, "Which royal family?"

"When one refers to 'the royal family,' there is an expectation of understanding."

"I'm just making sure."

"If it were another royal family, I would have specified."

Paloma said, "Which royal family?"

Philippe's eyes stayed on Scarlet, smiling big, pulling his wife even closer to him, his arm sliding right around her bare, tanned shoulders. Paloma's hand went across her husband's thick chest, her fingers weaving through his chest hair.

Scarlet wound a finger around, indicating the group of them together in the hot tub, saying, "Well, this royal family certainly seems to have enjoyed it, and it was perfect for the toast." Philippe nodded and Scarlet continued, "We just toasted the night I'm going to spend with my husband."

Philippe continued to nod, then stopped and cocked his head, eyes narrowing to scrutinizing slits.

"Just my husband," Scarlet said, enjoying herself. "Me and my husband."

Philippe pretended to be unbothered by Scarlet's statement, raising one aloof eyebrow, saying, "You're not staying?"

Scarlet sighed and looked around the tub, the deck in general, both hands on her hips. She said, "Hot tub, cold champagne, a suave man with a beard, his potent Brazilian wife—it's like an SNL sketch about swingers. I want something more, I don't know... sophisticated. I deserve something more sophisticated. And here's the thing: I know you guys are capable of better. You know it, too. . . . I'm not easy." Now she wagged a thumb in his direction. "Sully is. He's really easy. But we're a package deal. I need to be goddamned serenaded. I need to be swept off my feet. I want to swoon."

Paloma seemed to get Scarlet's temperament now, growing accustomed to Scarlet's quest for control, but still needing clarification on something and looking to Philippe, asking, "Potent?"

Philippe looked up and to the right, seeking the right translation. "Uh... inflamável." Paloma liked it, making a cute, satisfied face.

"Yes, flammable," Scarlet said in a low and sudden sultry voice. "Highly flammable. Combustible." She stooped, naked in the hot tub, cupped both of Paloma's cheeks, her hair falling forward and shielding the two women's faces from Sully's view. But it was clear what happened: his wife had just kissed Paloma on the lips. Not a peck, not a bit of a smooch; no, a real barn-burner, wet mouth, lingering and seductive kiss. Paloma's posture melted.

Each new event in this swinging extravaganza they were embarking on provided stunning revelations. He thought he'd seen the hottest and sexiest his wife could be, but nope, apparently that wasn't the case. Because, damn it, Paloma intimidated him—and his wife, too, or so he'd thought—but Scarlet had just stared down a gorgeous exemplar of feminine beauty, and not balked or stammered, instead had taken the controls in her grip, and like a young-buck showoff, dazzled them all with her mastery. Paloma and Philippe were the experienced ones, the ones who should serve as ambassadors for their lifestyle, sagacious partakers with tenure. But, as usual, Scarlet was a student assuming the role of teacher. The sight of his wife naked with another woman, taking that woman's face and kissing her in a clear act of domination, did wild things inside him, sending off a Fourth of July fireworks spectacle behind his eyes and inside his chest. The smile he showed grew wider; so did his eyes. Philippe didn't even cast a sidelong glance Sully's way, too enamored and mesmerized by the sight of the two beautiful women engaged in an interplay of complex pack dynamics, an attempt at reshuffling the hierarchical deck. Instability created chaos, and this was divine and thrilling chaos.

When at last his wife pulled her kiss from Paloma, Sully could see Paloma's expression transformed. She was engaged, enlivened, challenged. And she loved it. Paloma sunk back against Philippe again as Scarlet stood naked before them all, water sloughing off her wet, steaming body. Her eyes sparkled as she regarded this fine redheaded specimen before her. She said, "You are something."

Scarlet said, "I am."

In the long, pregnant silence that followed, Sully wanted to joke, to say something like What am I going to do with this erection? It was clear, though, what he was going to do with his erection—put it in his wife—but most importantly: he didn't want to step on his wife's game. Scar had just pulled off the heist of the century by toeing up to Paloma, and she didn't need her dopy husband trying to claim some meager glory.

Now Scarlet leaned to touch Paloma's face once more, taking her chin and stroking a thumb over the plump curl of the Brazilian woman's perfect mouth. "I can't wait to see what you come up with."

With that, she rose, looked at him and nodded her head to the side in a we-should-get-out-of-here gesture, turned and stepped out of the tub. Philippe chuckled, and Sully scrambled out of the hot tub to keep up with his wife.

No, Byron thought, the word coming to him in urgent demand. No! Chey didn't set him up on purpose. That was scapegoating. And scapegoating relieved himself of duty, of responsibility. He was a big boy. He could have orgasmed if he wanted to. Said with authority, "Sorry, Chey, this orgasm is going to happen."

No, Chey didn't want bad things for him.

He was in charge; he was in control. His brain had fucked up his last experience with Carla, and he wouldn't allow it to interfere tonight. No way, no how. He pushed thoughts of his wife aside—not out of his heart, only out of his mind where they would linger and do damage.

He cupped the back of Carla's neck, loving the silky feel of her screwy blonde bob against his skin, loving the warmth of her inflamed flesh. She worked his zipper down and yanked open the fly. His hips shimmied to accommodate her pushing his open pants down, thrusting forward to her the pronounced curved hump of his white cotton shrouded boner, trying to burst out of his tighty-whities. Carla sucked her lips into her mouth as if in startled awe; a young woman in her first sexual experience, staggered each time she took a step further down the thrilling but forbidden path.

He couldn't reach down and jab two fingers against that shut-off point Lily had taught him—what kind of weirdo would do that in front of the hottest girl at the boarding school?—but he could set the pace for the encounter, and he could still his mind and control the excitement of his breathing. His hips humped his cock belly toward Carla in autonomous and eager rolling, but he took her chin and got her looking up to his face. He kissed her again, slowing the freight train, enjoying the feel of her tightened lips curling to their natural plumper shape against his own. The whole time, he placed pinpoint focus on their working mouths, pushed away the locomotive drive his orgasm had embarked on, putting on the brakes, practically hearing the squeal of metal on metal at the new sparking friction fighting against his ejaculatory momentum.

Carla's damp lips plopped from his, and her pupils darted over his own as she put her fingertips on the underpants' waistband, slowing, hesitating, like an inexperienced girl not knowing if she was moving too fast. Her eyes trembled as she showed him a face that said so much. It said, I hope you don't think I'm too bad—I'm just a sweet young girl who is so darn horny I can't even stop my little old self from doing these naughty, naughty things. Please, accept me for who I am, don't judge me, don't think I'm a girl without virtue, I just wanna share this moment with you, and if you want to get dirtier with me, I'll get dirtier. In fact, make me get dirtier, I won't mind...

How did Carla assume such theatrical greatness? The act was so convincing he felt transported to an actual dorm room in a faraway land.

That look on her face intensified as she drew down the front of his underpants, and then her eyes left his to witness the thing she'd revealed. His cock went free and outward, upright and proud, like a flexing forearm. A silvery thread of precum connected from the tip of his cock to his stomach. His shaft glimmered with the bath he'd already produced from the most intense sexual excitement of his life.

Carla emitted a souging gasp, a sound of mild shock and arousal, like this was the first penis she'd seen in real life. His hand went to her bare shoulder, cuddled the smooth surface, touched her arm. Her eyes went back to his, pleading, without saying a word, seeming to look for his permission to touch it. In way of granting that permission, he touched her instead, the heel of his thumb crossing over her bare bosom flesh, the point of her erect nipple dragging across. Then Carla grasped him, tentative and timid, but surrendering to her teen curiosity. The gentle squeeze she placed on his shaft gushed forth a river of more precum and she made a small sound of delight now that set his mind reeling.

Then she became that devilish girl again, looking up at him, daring him to stop her, warning him that while she was a sweet innocent, she wanted to do bad things with him, and why not, they were in a locked room far from their homes.

She shimmied lower, eyes connected to his, watching to see what he might do if she pushed one breast forward and tapped the slippery head of his cock against that rubbery nipple. Now it was him gasping. Now it was him in serious trouble.

Gates opened up in his internal mechanisms, and tubes and vessels expanded, flexing with the pumping of seminal fluid as all he'd erected as barricades against premature ejaculation crumbled. The torrential power of imminent orgasm thrashed against his ramparts, pounded his break walls, spilled over the sides like rising hurricane waters. He pulsed endless clear lubrication over Carla's throbbing nipple, encoating it like a Jurassic mosquito in amber.

Carla mewled at the erotic sight, this super-dirty teen private school girl thrilled by the basest earthly pleasures, swirling his penis against her nipple faster and faster.

"Oh boy, oh no," he grunted through clenched teeth and grabbed twisting handfuls of her bedding.

CHAPTER 8

Scarlet's lips were cold and soft and tasted like expensive champagne. He had her pinned on their bed, both of them naked and tingling all over, him with a wild feeling of awesome love for this woman who he knew so well showing him layers to her personality that, while they made total sense, were still so lubriciously revealing. He loved her—loved her so much he'd married her—but now somehow he felt closer to her than he had ever before. This yacht vacay had been more uniting than their marriage day.

He humped his fully-primed, ramrod straight pole into the perfect-fit space where her thigh met her pelvis—already slippery from her juices, now made slipperier from his own excitement. Their fingers interdigitated in a tight but loving squeeze, and he held Scarlet's hands against the bedding above her head, her crimson hair fanned out around them.

He bit her lips and she sucked his tongue, and when she broke their kiss for a gasp of air, he chided her. "You're a fucking cock blocker."

She threw her head back on the bed and laughed, showing off her perfect white teeth, all the way to the molars. He suckled her creamy throat, then said, "You can laugh, but I'm telling you, I was going to get laid tonight."

She tucked her chin to her chest so their eyes would meet. She said, “I’ll fuck you if you’re so hard up.”

“You’ll throw me a bone?”

“That’s your job,” she said.

“That’s all I am to you, a bone thrower?”

Scarlet shimmied her hips and tilted her pelvis seeking to situate the tip of his spear into her entrance. “How about a bone sinker?” Then she warned him, “Careful.”

Yes, she’d been treated to a spectacular flesh weapon of war that had pounded her most of last night. But look at this: she wasn’t too injured to reject her husband tonight. Quite the contrary: she was primed hot for him, enough she would overlook any discomfort.

He listened to the lovely sound of his wife intaking air through her parted lips as he—with great care—sunk his erection inside her half the way. She was hot and wet, and wanted this as bad as he did. As he withdrew, she said, “You think she would have slept with you?”

“Who, that Brazilian chick?”

She laughed. “That’s the one.”

“Think she was hot to trot, babe.”

She cupped his face in her warm hands, pouting. “Did I wreck your night?”

He said, “Cock blocker.”

She kissed him, long and lasting, until they both broke up with snuffling laughter. She bumped her forehead against his. “Whatever they come up with now, I’m sure you’ll appreciate my resistance.”

“Vive la résistance,” he said.

“Now fuck me,” she said.

They were slow and loving at first and as Scarlet warmed up to his penetrating action and showed no complaint, their pace quickened. She liked it on her back with her knees up, her hands on his waist. They kissed a lot. This first one was going to be a quickie, that was for sure. It didn’t take long before he could feel her pointed toes touch the backs of his thighs—a sign his wife was on a clear path to orgasm.

So he stopped, made her mewl complaint because she’d been close, but he wanted to come inside his wife from behind, kissing her cheek and biting her ear lobe. He withdrew, guided her to roll on to her tummy and swatted her round behind. When she tried to lift her bottom up, getting on her knees so he could get in, he pushed her into the bed.

“I want you flat, baby,” he whispered as she traced hair behind an ear, giving him access to nibble her neck and auricle. “Tilt that tushy up.”

Pinned under him, Scarlet bowed out her belly and pushed that perfect rump up and into his hips. He angled his cock right and sunk it in nice and slow, going bit by bit and feeling his wife tremble. Her hands grabbed bedding and her body writhed in ecstasy. He fucked her nice and slow, feeding off every minute feedback she showed him, from posture to breath, he played his wife like a fine handcrafted instrument one would handle with white cotton gloves, playing her strings with mastery, producing music he loved to hear. His favorite fucking song of all time.

Scarlet was panting and crying, on the cusp of a delicious well-earned orgasm, when someone knocked on their door, timid at first, as if not to startle them, but louder with each rap. An urgent, demanding sound—meant not to be ignored or disregarded.

Carla's breasts were the two softest, silkiest pillows in the world. Large and round and pliable, they made him think of his skeevy uncle's waterbed the time him and his cousin had to empty the man's apartment with his dad Byron Sr. When dad wasn't looking, both of them pre-teens, they'd patted that mattress over and over, watching the waves, and though neither of them said a thing he was sure they were both thinking of breasts.

Even that bizarre orthogonal thought couldn't squelch the rising tide, couldn't hold at bay the locomotive rush of his orgasm. It was the feel of Carla's perfect breasts against his cock, the look on her face, the way she would look from the head of his cock poking up and down in her cleavage up to his face to see if he was enjoying it (how could he not!) that was going to send him over the top. His frazzled brain scrambled for a hold, like some cowboy falling down a cliff, thrashing for a bit of sagebrush to grab onto like a lone excuse, a reason why he could go ahead and ejaculate. The reason screamed at him: just do it and be done so we can get to the good stuff. The good stuff located between her soft, tanned thighs. That, and knowing his recovery would be quick.

He bit his knuckle again, practically stuffing his whole fist into his mouth, looking to bite down against the suffering, bite down against the rising tide and the demands of biology.

She'd pushed down the cups of the bra; her arms had squashed those creamy pillows together into quaggy teardrops that felt like satin on his throbbing member. Her nipples were hard. She was aroused. Her cheeks were flushed. Her eyes said fuck me, which in Latin, he was pretty sure meant Go ahead and come.

And that was fucking it. One more look in those alluring fuck-me eyes and he couldn't stop it anymore. The release was enormous and seemed to build somewhere deep inside him, rushing to shore with the ominous power of a tidal wave. The pleasure went off like an underwater explosion, a veritable ignited caisson; like the CIA had detonated deep sea explosives and blown up the Nordstream pipeline. Instead of methane gas hurtling to the surface, his eruption was hot liquid. The release was gargantuan and he couldn't help vocalizing it. The sheer pressure-induced velocity of his discharge hurt his urethra, like he'd put too big a bullet in too small a bore. The first stream went past her startled face and splatted the headboard. What followed was an endless spasming, jets and pulses and sprays and spritzes. It wouldn't stop. Carla cooed and gasped and helped him along with two hands clamping her breasts on his discharging pistol. When it kept coming she laughed, having to squint and turn away as stream after stream began now to plop on her cheeks and chin. She acted surprised and dazzled, like she was seeing a man ejaculate for the first time, not knowing until now that this show would be what it's like. None of her private school friends could have prepared her for what he'd just unleashed.

And now she lay there in her schoolgirl uniform, her face painted in the lines and puddles of the largest load in the history of the word, with it in her hair, running down her neck, flooding the cups of her eyes. Even running into her mouth over the curl of her plump pink lips. It coated her breasts, her collar, filled her cleavage. A rising shame swirled up from his core and ghosts of regret whipped around his attic. Why had he done that, why didn't he resist harder? Why didn't he just fucking reach down and do that two-finger trick Lily had showed him? Why, oh, why...

And yet, the regret dissipated, like blinds thrown open and dispelling the shadow on the closet door you thought was a hulking, spectral ghoul snuck into your room to disembowel you with long crypt-clacking claws, showing you the shadow was only cast by a coat tossed onto a rocking chair.

Because what he'd believed to be a personal horror, revealed itself to be way more than that. The regret was a figment of his own imagination, just like the ghoul. Carla didn't show disdain at his lack of self-control. Didn't show him one cum-frosted eyebrow raised in opprobrium. Carla wasn't scornful or disappointed...

He watched in awe as she writhed on the bed like possessed by spirits, like sick with fever. Her face contorted underneath the frosty masque; pure lust. Her knees pressed tightly together and she rolled her hips as if being ravaged by an accomplished but invisible lover. Her heels dug into the mattress, her toes flexed forward and back. She made sounds of soft, airy delight, hands clenched into little fists with the thumbs tucked in.

Carla was orgasming.

Sully said, "What if it's them?"

"Of course it's them," Scarlet said, back muscles rippling in the Caribbean moonlight. "Who else is coming to our door in the middle of the night?"

From outside now, Cody's voice: "Guys, you awake?"

Sully said, "Is that Cody?"

Cody: "Sorry, guys, sorry. It's an emergency."

"Fuck," Scarlet hissed. Sully withdrew his ramrod from her sleeve and she kicked her feet.

“I was so fucking close,” he said through gritted teeth, fighting every urge not to put it back in and finish.

“I was so fucking close,” Scarlet said, just as mad, thrashing her arms around and gathering bed sheets to swoop them around her nudity.

Cody again from out in the hall: “Guys?”

“Yeah-yeah, hold on,” Scarlet said, raising her voice, not hiding her irritation.

Sully stepped off the bed, looking for something to cover up with, taking the closest pillow. “Get the door.”

Scarlet said, “The woman doesn’t get the door in the middle of the night, Sully.”

He shrugged. “I don’t have pants.”

Scarlet grumbled and got off the bed. “We’ve all seen each other naked, Sully, he’s not going to be offended if you answer the door with your thing sticking out.”

“But it’s hard.”

“Never mind,” she said, waving him away, tidying her hair and reaching for the door.

“You’re wearing that sheet and everything,” Sully muttered. “I don’t know why you have to be difficult.”

And as she opened the door he trotted to get behind her, to back her up. Maybe she was right and it was the guy’s thing to answer the door while you were interrupted having absolutely amazing sex.

Cody stood a few paces from the threshold, out in the light of the hallway, hands in his shorts' pockets, looking sheepish. He'd been pacing.

Scarlet said, "What is it?"

Cody pivoted, eyes going up like he wasn't sure how to phrase what he wanted to say.

"Yeah?"

Cody said, "Uh, um... you guys got room for one more?"

CHAPTER 9

Her first inkling was to say to Cody, “Hell-no.” But then the sight of Cody’s muscular forearms, that handsome face with those sparkling blue eyes, made her wonder what it would be like to be in bed with her Sully and this man, his tanned skin all hot and putting his large hands on her. She looked over her shoulder to find Sully close, eyes narrowed in scrutiny, naked but for the pillow clutched over his crotch. It didn’t shake the urge to open the door wider and tell Cody to come on in and make himself comfortable. Two men were more fun than one.

She said, “Uh... Sully?”

Sully, unsure, said to Cody, “You want... what, you want to come in?”

Cody shook his head, blonde locks shaking. “No, not me. It’s uh...” He waved a hand down the hall. “It’s Chey.”

Scarlet shook her head, bewildered. “What are you saying?”

“Uh, Chey sent me to find you. Sent me to ask if she could come to your room when you guys go to bed. She’s kind of, um... freaking out.”

Scarlet stepped forward. “What did you do to her?”

Cody put a hand over his heart, looking wounded and innocent. “I didn’t do anything. She asked me to ask you if she can come stay with you.”

Scarlet poked her head further into the hall and looked to the right. “Where is she?”

“She’s in her room. Like, hyperventilating.”

“Oh no,” she whispered. “A panic attack?”

Cody shrugged. “Yeah, probably. Talking like a million miles an hour, eyes wide like she’s got stare. We were playing cards with Lily and Arlo, we weren’t up to anything, and she just...”

“Went quiet?”

“Yeah. Went to her room. I went to check on her, see if she was okay, and it looked like something was wrong.”

“Oh, baby,” Scarlet sighed. “Okay, I’ll go get her.”

“I can get her,” Cody said, taking a step aside. “She made me ask for permission first.”

“I’ll go. Thanks, Cody.” She turned to Sully. “You okay with this?”

“You’re bringing her here?”

“We’ll catch up with what we were doing in the morning.”

“Yeah, no, go,” he said without any sign of disgruntlement—another reminder of how well she’d done in her mate selection. “I gotta find my pants,” he said, turning away, ruffling his own hair.

Now she said to Cody, “Take me to her.”

A huge and joyous feeling swelled in Byron's chest, like being at school and finding out the test you hadn't studied for was canceled. He was light and bubbly, hopping off the bed and headed for Carla's bathroom, or to find where she stored her towels.

He stopped in the middle of the room, putting a hand over his forehead. This wasn't a dorm room. He was on a yacht in the Caribbean, in an unused room. This roleplaying ruse had been so convincing.

When he turned, he witnessed Carla coming out of her orgasmic stupor, chuckling to himself at the amazing sight, and removing his shirt. As she lifted her head, features contorting under his pearly mask, he sat on the side of the bed. The lack of shame filled him with pride. His cock was still stuck upright out of the fly of his private school dress pants, ready for action.

"I couldn't find any towels, but I've got my shirt here."

Carla's head plopped back down on the pillow. "There're towels in the drawer. The nightstand here," she said, thumbing to the side, her eyes closed, features scrunched.

He pulled open the drawer to find laundered and folded towels at the ready for just such an ejaculatory occasion. Of course she'd been prepared. He unfolded one and lay it over her head, gathering up his mess until she took over for him, her warm hands pushing his away to do a better job. She flipped the towel over and over finding clean spots, then tossed the towel onto the floor. Now she lay looking at him, her hair spiked and messy, her face restraining bursting mirth, biting her lips to prevent laughter.

He kept all apologies at bay, offered no explanation. His private school character was pretty fucking proud of that masculine show. He stared back at her, aloof, smirking.

"That was pretty hot," she whispered.

He nodded, letting his eyes roam her face, then her exposed chest, big breasts spilling over the “V” of her unbuttoned shirt. He thumbed a nipple, Carla tucking her chin down to watch him do it. She put her hand over his.

“I think I’m ready,” she said.

He nodded again. “I know I am,” he said.

“I know I am, too,” she said, her expression loosening to something more serious. Then quieter: “It’s my first time.”

“I know,” he said.

Carla uncovered his hand and touched his chest. She wore no wedding ring. Cheyenne had removed his. Carla and Byron were two young lovers ready to do the deed for the first time. He stood and let his pants fall, Carla admiring his renewed hardness, him proud to show her he was young and virile and she was so hot nothing could slow him down. He stepped out of his pants and got a knee on the bed, Carla lifting the covers, shimmying underneath as he joined her. She made funny, nervous faces at him as, under the covers, she unzipped her skirt and pushed it down, her panties and leggings going along. The way her face pressed close to his while she did it, the way she smiled and moved her eyes around, convinced him of the scenario they were playing out. He couldn’t thank her enough for it.

Once she was naked she bolted closer to him and looped arms around his neck, her mouth sealing against his. They made out, their naked fronts pressed together, and when Carla was ready for him, she rolled and pulled him along, guiding him to get over top of her and between her open legs. His cock brushed against her slick labia and he jolted with a renewed urge to orgasm.

Carla said, “We don’t have any condoms.”

“Is that okay?”

“It should be,” she said, brow lowering, her mouth scrunching, unsure.

“Are you worried?”

She waited a beat, then said, “Don’t come inside me, all right?”

“I won’t.”

Her brow lowered even more. “Promise me you won’t.”

“I promise,” he said.

He bit his lower lip and rolled his hips, feeling their hipbones touching, feeling his hanging sack touching her skin. Then felt the heat of her sex, the wetness there, watching her face as she grew more and more comfortable with the idea that they were about to have sex for the first time in their lives.

Carla’s plump lips parted, and she emitted a small gasp as the head of his cock stroked against her entry. Her legs went around his waist and that first-time sex excitement pounded in his heart, his temples, and in his neck. He eased it in, and Carla moaned. Then gasped, “Slow.”

“Are you okay?”

She nodded, and he said, “You feel so amazing.” And it was true. She was hot and wet and tight.

Carla said, “It feels... it feels so good,” brow wrinkling like how good it felt troubled her innocent mind. They were doing a bad thing. A thing that could get them both kicked out of school.

Her eyes were closed, and she smelled like sweet candy perfume. And as he entered her body—a thing he’d done before—something else happened that was unexpected. He felt for her. His heart opened in his chest like a flower to sunlight. In that instant, their bodies combined, he felt a wave of overwhelming emotion for this mean-girl, this too-hot-for-her-own-good vixen. In this moment Carla was vulnerable and innocent. She cared about him, wanted him to be happy, wanted for them both to experience something wonderful...

It felt a lot like fucking love, that's what it felt like.

With Sully back in their room looking for pants, Scarlet strode the bright hall with Cody, her naked under the bedsheets swaddled around her like an evening gown, the train dragging on the carpet behind her.

Cody's long legs kept the pace. He said, "You two all alone in your room, huh, no Philippe, no Paloma? So you guys cut bait?"

She scoffed. "What do you mean cut bait? Aren't we the bait? We got off their hook."

"If you say so," Cody said, slowing, pretending to check out her backside as she walked. "The way you've been strutting around," he said with sly amusement, "looks more like you want someone on your hook, not the other way around."

She swished the bedsheets tighter around and stopped so he'd get ahead again. "Yeah, sure, right—but I don't believe for a second Philippe and Paloma weren't the ones trawling the waters. And what about you, handsome?"

Cody walked backwards now, hands in his pockets. "What about me? What did I do?"

“What did you do? Just about everything, bringing us all out onto this magical yacht vacation, an opportunity none of us could refuse.”

“Yeah, I know, I’m such a jerk.”

She side-eyed him, smirking. “You know what I’m saying, Cody, so don’t try to deflect now that it’s obvious.”

Cody was also smiling, knowing there was no sense in denying the accusation. “It’s been a blast, I gotta tell you, Scar. I mean, even better than I imagined.”

“You didn’t know we were all freaks, that all of us, deep down, had a bunch of stuff we wanted to try out, we just never got the chance?”

“Nah, me and Carla figured you were all freaks. I just didn’t think you were this freaky.” He stopped at Byron and Cheyenne’s room door and put his hand on the lever. “I think it’s because of Byron and Carla.”

“What do you mean?”

He nodded his head aside to the door. “Why she’s freaking out. She seemed like she was so into it, like it didn’t bother her, but we were all playing cards and she just...”

“She’s had panic attacks before. I should have seen this coming. She’ll be fine, Cody. She just needs a hug.”

“I could’ve hugged her.”

Scarlet pushed him back from the door with mock scorn, and turned the lever herself, saying to him, “Just let me do the hugging, okay?—you start hugging Chey, that big dick’s bound to come out and she’s on all fours, you yelling yee haw or giddy up and waving a cowboy hat over your head.”

Cody chuckled like he knew she was right and that could happen, and she went in the dark room ahead of him, calling Cheyenne's name.

CHAPTER 10

Arlo riffled the cards again, looking at her from under his brows with a small measure of malevolence. He said, “Looks like it’s just you and me, kid.”

Lily sighed, then lamented theatrically, “A-gain,”

“It keeps happening to us.”

Still lamenting, Lily said, “Always a bridesmaid, never a bride.”

“Why do you think that is?”

She shrugged one delicate shoulder and bit her lower lip. He told her to come and sit on his lap, patting his thighs. Lily smiled, looked around to make sure Cody and Cheyenne weren’t returning, got out of her chair, and came around to his side of the table. He swiveled his chair to allow ample access to his lap. She set herself down, hunching her shoulders forward and looking at him to see what he would ask of her next. His hand went to the middle of her back and rubbed up and down, getting her to smile.

He said, “Is your diaper dry?”

She nodded, pleased with herself that she could provide a happy answer. But now his expression shrank to one of duty and responsibility, and Lily’s smile faltered.

He said, “Did everything go okay?”

Unsure, stalling for time, she said, “Okay where?”

“You know what I’m asking, Lily.”

Lily said, “I did what you asked me.”

“And did it go okay?”

Her lips pooched, and she looked down, like she struggled with something.

“I don’t... I don’t know what you mean by okay. I did what you asked.”

He asked her, “Were they good to you?”

She nodded convincingly, eyes wide.

“Did you help Cheyenne?”

She nodded again. Then took a breath like she would say something else, but chickened out, lips coming together again.

“What is it?”

“I did. I helped her.”

“But...?”

“Uh, um, I, uh... I touched Byron’s penis.”

He grumbled. “You what?”

She whispered, “I touched his penis.”

“Lily, you were supposed to hold the shave cream, or aim a light or something. How on earth did this happen?”

“Was I not supposed to?”

Arlo scoffed in disbelief, shaking his head. “I’m shocked.”

She looked at him, eyes filled with worry, lips almost blubbering. “Am I... Am I in trouble?”

“I think you should go to your room.”

Lily whined, “But I did what you told me.”

He warned her. “Lily...”

She made a small grunt of rebellion, a teen amazed at how unfair the world was. “I did what you told me,” she whispered again in a futile, petulant disclaimer.

He said no more, just fixed his wife with a stern gaze. Lily slumped, slid off his lap and stood facing away from him. She wiggled her butt, then with one hand adjust her crinkly diaper. She turned her head over a shoulder, saying to him, “Are you coming to my room with me?” The peaked corner of a smile showed.

With his shorts and a T-shirt on, Sully met Cody and Scarlet in the hall, returning to his room. They had Cheyenne with them, Cheyenne looking frazzled but putting on a brave face when she saw him in the brighter light of the hall, saying, “Hi, Sully,” smiling ear to ear. Her eyes were like cartoon eyes, like Marge Simpson or something.

“Hey, Chey,” he said, putting up a hand in greeting.

Chey walked supported between Cody and Scarlet, a thin blanket cowed around her shoulders, still wearing what she wore to dinner underneath.

Sully walked backward, opened the door to his suite and shoved it wide. Scarlet gave him a funny but comforting look as she passed into the room. Cody stayed in the hall.

“You’re not coming in?”

Cody put his hands in his pockets, shrugging. “Seems like a lot of people.”

“What’s going on with Chey?”

“Scar said panic attack. Chey seemed fine when we were setting this thing up tonight with Carla and Byron—most of it was Chey’s idea—but now...”

“Now she’s not so sure?”

Cody shook his head. “No, I think she’s okay with it, but she can’t stop thinking about it and, I don’t know, worrying or something.”

“Panic attack,” Sully said, nodding.

“Bingo,” Cody said, scratching an eyebrow. “You want to go watch a movie or something?”

Sully looked back into the dark of his room and could see Scarlet helping Chey into their bed. He had unfinished business with his wife, but that wasn’t looking good now. He and Cody could go watch a movie or see if there was a game on somewhere. But still, he said, “Nah, I better get in with Scar. If she kicks me out, I’ll come find you. You’re all on your own?”

“Arlo and Lily probably packed it in, yeah. I’ll find something to do.”

They parted ways and Sully went back into the bedroom and closed the door quietly behind him. Chey and Scarlet lay in the middle of the bed, but he heard Scarlet say to Chey, “Scoot over, make room for Sully, baby.” And Chey did. It made him feel welcome.

But now Chey would be in the middle, lying between him and Scarlet. And that was a problem. Or at least could be. He'd had to find the baggiest T-shirt he'd packed because his throbbing erection would not go away even though the circumstances around here had grown serious.

He got into bed and lay on his side, drawing his knees up, his cock poking himself in the belly trapped in the fly of his shorts. Chey lay on her back, looking up at the ceiling, eyes open and blinking, hands laced on her tummy, one thumb drumming on her stomach at a hundred miles an hour.

He asked, "How you doing, Chey?"

"Good-good-good," she said, then licked the tight ring of her lips. "I'm so sorry, Sully, I-I didn't want to disturb you guys, I didn't want to—"

"It's fine, Chey," he soothed her. "I'm glad you're here."

He wanted to pat her arm, maybe rub an elbow, but it felt a little weird since he was hard as a rock and ready for action—still in the throes of pre-orgasm with Scarlet from about five minutes ago. Scarlet stared at him from the other side of Chey, a happy sort of warm look in her eyes. She mouthed, "Thank you."

He shrugged a shoulder. What else would he do but this?

Cheyenne twiddled both her thumbs now, jaw muscles flexing. Scarlet stroked Chey's arm, making soft shushing noises. "It's going to be okay, baby. We're all here for you."

Chey spoke to the ceiling. "She-she-she made a, made a suit, suit for him.

He said, "Who?"

"C-Carla."

"No, a suit for who?"

Chey's head rotated on the pillow like that little girl from the Exorcist, her eyes in disbelief like she couldn't believe he was so unseeing. She said, "You kn-know what that means, Sully? You know what that means?"

Carla emitted a high feminine moan every time he entered her, a breathy sort of sound. His rhythm was slow and passionate, and their rocking bodies rustled the bedsheets. Her legs didn't clamp him too hard. She didn't demand more than he wanted or was prepared to give. The experience was magical. It was close and intimate. It was like they were sharing their first time together.

Carla's head rolled on the pillow, still with her eyes closed like this first time having sex was overwhelming her. She panted things like, "It feels so good," or, "I can't believe it." The urge to orgasm was gone. It was replaced with the urge to keep this going all night. Her soft breasts squashed on his chest, making him feel masculine, in turn making him feel in control. He took Carla's hands and guided them over her head, rolling his hips into her, stirring his rod inside her, watching her face as the new movement produced a different thrill. Then he kissed her. Carla's mouth moved to meet his before he got close. They made out and made love. Her nails dragged his back. They got hot. They got sweaty.

She cupped his cheeks one time and looked into his eyes and said, "I can't believe we're doing this." It made him so hard. It made him so happy. It was more than playacting. At least he wanted so much to believe it. Yeah, they weren't experiencing their first time in some dorm room, but they were sharing something. Something pretty amazing. This wasn't a ruse, this wasn't a manipulation. A Carla-style manipulation. Carla really wanted this. This was her desire. She'd brought an outfit for him. A private school uniform, but it might as well have been an all-leather gimp suit. She'd brought it for the purpose of having sex with him. She wanted him. And being desired was the biggest Mt. Kilimanjaro turn-on.

Soon Carla's features twisted with confusion, looking like she was troubled. Like something was wrong. But she didn't stop, she did the opposite. She quickened her pace, encouraging him to go faster without saying anything. Her panting breaths and her squeaky feminine sounds came faster. Her head rolled around like she was seeing pale transparent spirits flitting above his head. Then the oh my gods began. Gasping, panting, breaths chugging in soft whisks. He met her pace, gave her the syncopation she craved. Their hips bashed together. Her perfect breasts bounced and jostled. Their flesh slapped.

Carla cried out, "What's happening?"

"We're going to come together," he growled.

Her eyes stared through him, lips pouted. "I'm gonna, I'm gonna come again?"

"Come with me," he said. "Look in my eyes."

Carla's gaze met his, and she grabbed both of his ass cheeks, her nails sinking in for good purchase. They watched each other, fucking, humping, rolling, moiling. Sometimes the pleasure and the connection were too much, and his eyes would narrow to blurry slits.

Their breaths rose and fell in unison; their orgasms swelled in synchronicity. Carla's mouth fell open, and she began to mewl and cry and wail. He grunted and growled, and just when he thought he should pull out, Carla's nails sunk deeper into his rump, and her legs locked him in place. "Oh not yet, oh not yet, oh don't pull out yet, oh, oh, mm, you feel so, so good."

He allowed Carla a few more thrusts, her tight pussy like a liquid grip on his cock, squeezing and milking and begging for his seed.

His cock twitched at the thought of Carla wanting his come inside her, and even though he'd said he'd pull out, he exploded inside her, roaring and gasping as his brain went off like a concussion grenade inside a submarine. He collapsed on her while she wailed out in her own erupting orgasm, crying out at full explosive volume the pleasure she also felt. He filled her pussy up with what felt like another might load, another impressive deluge of pearly masculinity. Their connection went slick like oil and the thrill blotted his consciousness in white.

It left them both anting, both heaving for breath after the marathon of sexual pleasure.

Carla's hand swept over his back. Her other hand brushed tangled wet hair from her eyes. He lifted off her, their faces a foot apart, both of them smiling. She put a hand down to their slick union and that happy expression changed.

With horror, she said, "You didn't come inside me, did you?"

CHAPTER 11

He watched Lily in the bathroom mirror, him standing behind her looking over her shoulder as he slid down her diaper. “Do I need to check if it’s dry?”

“No, Daddy,” she said, hands on the counter, sucking her own lips and giving him a cute face.

“You’re a good girl, Lily,” he told her, slinging away the diaper without checking to see if she was truthful. He tugged a baby wipe from the container on the counter and Lily stepped her legs out a little wider, going up on her toes. He reached under the light skirt of her cottony dress and wiped her creases, then dried her vagina with a face towel.

She scrunched her brow, and he said to her reflection, “What’s wrong, love bug?”

In a chiding, playful tone, she said, “Them leaving us all alone like that.”

He said, “They’re so rude.”

Her eyes went slyer, and she said to his reflection, “They’re afraid of me.”

He smiled. “They should be, my dirty little angel.”

She swished around to come face to face with him, rubbing her hands on his chest, eyes turned down like she was shy. “Daddy, They made me touch that man’s penis. It was all stiff and weird.”

He chuckled, lifting her chin. “Oh, sugar plum, I’d have never sent you with them if I knew they’d mistreat you.”

She still looked down, but nodded in his grip, almost talking to herself, but addressing him. “Stuff kept coming out of it.” She looked up and regarded him with questioning eyes. “What is that? Is it supposed to be like that?”

He said, “It makes the man’s penis slippery, sugar plum.”

She looked disbelieving. “Who wants a slippery penis? That sounds stupid.”

“So it goes in nice and easy.”

“Goes in where?”

He opened his mouth but no words came out, not knowing what to say next, and he started to laugh. Lily started to laugh, too, then slapped her hands on his chest to get back to business.

He cleared his throat and looked in her eyes. Lily nibbled on her lower lip. The back of his hand brushed the top of her thigh where the skirt’s hem met her skin. He slipped his hand under her skirt and eased his hand between her thighs. Lily put on a shocked expression but didn’t move away. He grazed his knuckles against her labia, turned the hand over and slipped his middle finger along her entrance, finding his wife slippery wet. His finger dipped inside her pussy and Lily gasped and went higher on her toes, eyes widening with shock. The tip of his finger applied pressure, a come-hither gesture, rolling with purpose over her swollen clitoris. Lily’s eyes went hazy.

He brought his hand up between their faces and showed her his shining finger. “See, see how you’re all slippery, too?” Lily nodded and he rubbed his thumb on his slippery finger as demonstration. Then he touched the finger to her lower lip and slipped it across her swollen flesh. His finger went into her mouth and his wife’s mouth formed a pouting ring around the intrusion, her tongue gliding against the pad. He withdrew his finger with a quiet pop. Lily’s head fell back, her eyes sleepy and sultry.

She said, “A man’s thing is supposed to go in down... down there?”

“It is, baby.”

“I’ve seen your thing, Daddy.”

He warned her, knowing where she would go with this. “Lily...”

“Daddy, your thing is way too big for that.”

“Lily, come on, no Daddy sex stuff, you know that.”

She pooched out her lips and made a childish grunt, scowling at him and wiggling her hips.

He remained stoic, adamant on this one issue.

She eased her childish expression, now looking away like she was unbothered by his unwillingness to play. Then she had a new idea, turning to face him again, showing her babygirl expression again. “Why does yours have to be so big?”

“Lily...”

“Can I see it?”

He booped the end of her nose. “You’re too young, missy.”

The smooth and childish look on his wife's face dissipated, became neutral, natural, and she smiled now, raising one eyebrow like she had a secret he didn't know.

He said, "What? What is it?"

She sucked her lower lip, rolling her eyes up, considering whether she would tell him. Then: "I had to teach Byron the trick."

"What trick?"

Lily's placid, sweet neutral face transformed, and it gave him the chills to see her eyes gleam with sudden dominant malevolence. "Mistress's trick," she said. Even her voice had changed. From breathy and innocent to cruel and all-knowing.

"I don't like the Mistress," he said, his mouth going dry. The Mistress liked to lock his penis up in a tight silicone chastity cage when he had to travel outside of Manhattan without her. The Mistress liked other mean things, too. The Mistress liked to tie his penis up on her special plank so tight it went the color of an overcooked hot dog. The Mistress thought it was funny to spank his balls. One time the Mistress had worn sexy high heels and stepped on his scrotum. The Mistress only came out when Lily felt threatened. The "Trick" was something she would do to him before he would leave the city for work. She would pleasure him for hours in their apartment, bringing him to the edge—the very last-second brink—of orgasm, then cruelly deny him. When he was close to ejaculating, she would shut off his valves by putting pressure near his prostate. Then, when his hardness softened, she'd lock his penis in his chastity cage, return to being sweet Lily, kiss him on the cheek and send him off to the airport with nothing on his mind but absolute hyper-focus on his return home to her. The Mistress was cruel, yes, but while one fist was leather, the other held a sweet rose. When he came home, she gave him the release he'd craved. And then some. She'd made him black out one time the orgasm had been so tremendous.

She said, "You may not like the Mistress, but the Mistress gets what she wants."

"Good thing she's in Manhattan, then. I'm happy with my sweet Lily here in the Caribbean."

"Good thing," she said, putting her arms over his shoulders. "Hey, sailor," she said.

"Yeah?"

"You want to get lucky?"

"I sure do."

"You want to have sex with your wife tonight?"

"Definitely."

"You know what I'm saying, right?"

"I do. You want to do it like the normies."

"Totally vanilla," she said. "You think you can handle that?"

"I'm hard as a rock right now. Can we do it missionary?"

"If that's what you want," Lily said, smiling.

He hesitated, and she cocked her head, saying then, "What is it?"

"Can we film it?"

Lily's eyes brightened. "Get the camera."

Byron said, "I couldn't help it." He was going to blame her for holding on to his ass and practically cock-locking him with her pussy, but he figured his schoolboy character wouldn't be such a dick, so he followed up with, "You said it was probably okay. Isn't it?"

Carla's face contorted into a mask of fright. "If I get pregnant, they'll kick me out, I'll, I'll get sent back home, I'll, I'll..."

"Maybe you should get up and do some jumping jacks."

Carla froze, looking for her next line then couldn't find it, realized how ridiculous his suggestion was and broke into beautiful hysterics, throwing her head back in the pillow and laughing so hard no sound came out.

"Come on," he said, staying in character, "it's not too late. It's still warm. Just get up and bounce around. Gravity is our friend." He took her wrists and tried to help her sit up but she'd lost it.

"It's too late," she said. "You came inside me. I told you not to." She put on the worried face again.

He said the only thing he could think of now. "I'm here for you."

Her chin dimpled like she was touched by his comment, then she smiled and tried to force it away, wanting to laugh again enough her cheeks had gone redder.

"Hey, it's okay," he said. "Look at me—it's going to be okay."

Carla lost the battle with laughter and looked away from him, covering her mouth with the back of her hand. He stroked her arm, waiting her out.

At last, she turned to face him, eyes bright and happy. “I can’t do it,” she said and chuckled, rubbing her cheeks like she was exhausted. Then she laughed again and wiped her wet eyes. “You fucked the character right out of me, buddy.”

“Aw no,” he said. “I kind of liked her.”

“I totally lost her there.”

“We can keep going. Get her back. What happens if she gets pregnant?”

Carla touched his cheek. “I think I want something else now.”

“I’m game.”

“I knew you would be. Give me a minute to come down from that one.”

He went up on one elbow, rising above her. “Was I any good?” He put on the expression of his unsure schoolboy rogue and made her laugh with his breaking pubertal voice.

She put both hands under her cheek and looked in his eyes. “That was really fucking great, Byron. Just what I wanted. And then some.”

“It was just what I needed,” he said, looking more serious. He wasn’t sure if her boarding school ruse had been truly for her or if it had been for his sake, a way for him to gain his confidence with her, knowing how she intimidated him when she was the real Carla Weber.

He said, “What was your name back then?”

She frowned. “Still Carla.”

“Last name.”

“Oh,” she said and chuckled. “Carla Malone.”

“From the Connecticut Malones?”

“Wisconsin, buddy.”

“Makes sense,” he said, nodding.

“Was that a great big milkers joke? You think no one’s said anything like that before, you know what they said when I—”

“No,” he said, cutting her off. “You think I’m still some dumb high school boy? I did not mean your great big Wisconsin cheese-making tits”—Carla howled in silent hilarity—“I meant it made sense you were a Midwesterner.” He cupped a hand on her slender neck.

She said, “Why?”

“This is going to sound crazy, but there’s something wholesome about you. I mean it’s buried under the cynicism and general malevolence and manipulation, but it’s there. I didn’t see it before, but when you said Wisconsin I didn’t fall out of bed laughing thinking you were making a joke.”

Like she understood him, she said, “Yeah, Swedish immigrant farmers if you go back far enough, but I didn’t grow up on a homestead, just the regular old suburbs.”

“And did you really go all the way across the pond, to some fancy British boarding school?”

She smiled, then avoided the question, saying, “It’s been a minute already, Byron.”

“You’re ready for round two?”

“Uh-huh,” she said, nodding, eyes sultry, rolling to her back, opening her arms and letting him see her bare breasts, big pillows with erect nipples, jostling on her thin frame.

He thumbed one of her nipples, let his hand drift to the other breast, cuddled it now.

She said, “What are you waiting for?”

“I’m kind of thinking about those jumping jacks.”

She nodded, assessing his proposal, considering it. She rolled her face toward his. “I’m thinking about having a boarding school baby.”

They both smiled at each other. Her hand went down between them, eyes still on his, her hand finding his erection fully returned and harder than ever. She said, “I was going to give you some head, but...”

Byron rolled between her open legs, saying, “I think we can get straight to the baby making.”

CHAPTER 12

Scarlet said, “It doesn’t mean anything, Chey. What do you think it means?”

Chey, in angry disbelief, said, “That she had a suit made for my husband?”

Chey had a point, but she was attributing too much to it. Scarlet said, “I mean, for him, but, at the same time—”

“It means,” Chey said, adamant, “she wanted Byron before we even came on the boat . It means this was all pre-planned, it means—”

“We already thought that, Chey, we talked about that.”

Chey blinked at the ceiling, eyes wide and staring. Scarlet stroked her arm. On Chey’s other side, Sully watched Scarlet, and she showed him a supportive smile, glad he was here with her. She’d spent time before with Cheyenne when she flew off the handle and treated big things way bigger than they even were. But Sully stared back with his own measure of wide-eyed panic. She mouthed to him: “What?”

Sully’s eyebrows darted high, looking caught. He shook his head rapidly and mouthed back: “Nothing.” A sure thing something was up. But for now, she put it out of her head.

A little calmer, which was a good sign, Chey spoke again. “Carla wanted my husband before we got here.”

“It’s alarming, but I don’t think you should worry, baby.”

Chey faced her, rolling her head on the pillow. “Am I a second place trophy?”

“What does that mean?”

“Did Cody just want me because Carla wanted my Byron?”

“Oh.” She saw it now. “We’d thought that before, but about Byron. Like Byron was second place. Byron had trouble with it, too, baby. Let’s talk it out.”

Sully spoke up, his deep male voice surprising in this otherwise supportive and feminine space. “I wouldn’t doubt for a second, Chey, that it wasn’t one over the other. It wasn’t you, it wasn’t Byron. It was both of you. Look how Philippe and Paloma came after us. I thought it was only Scarlet at first—”

“Oh my gosh,” Scarlet said, “you just can’t stop talking about Paloma wanting you.”

He laughed and rolled his eyes. “Chey. You and Byron are a package deal. They want you as a couple.”

Chey rolled her head back and looked at the ceiling again. The panic wasn’t gone, but she couldn’t argue her point with them anymore. The way her eyes darted, even looking at nothing, she knew Chey was still in the throes.

Chey whispered, “She wanted him to come on her, like, like...”

“What are you talking about, baby?”

“Carla. Carla wanted him, wanted Byron to, to...”

“To do what?”

“Like prematurely.”

“Ejaculate?”

“Yeah. Yeah.”

“Who wants that?”

“C-Carla wanted it. Wanted him to do that to her, wanted Byron to not last, b-because...”

Sully said, “Who would want that?”

Chey said, “She knows Byron’s a r-rabbit.”

Scarlet said, “What does that mean?”

“He just keeps going and going. He’s really horny. I told her that. I was the one who told her that.”

Sully rubbed his brow. “I don’t think I needed to know that.”

“He does, he does. And she wanted him to come on her and I let him go do it and I shaved him and dressed him up.”

“Chey we talked about that. Not all of that, but I mean, we talked how it was important for you to rise above, to show loving generosity. Remember I said—”

“I know, I know, I am, I’m happy, but, but she, but he...”

“It’s okay, Chey. Byron’s going to be okay. Everything’s going to be okay. Just lie with us here, he’ll be back soon and everything will be fine. You wanted this. You wanted it for him and you wanted it for you. You're strong. Remember that: you're strong."

Chey continued. "Byron's going to want more. He won't want acrobatic sex or to motorboat her, her, huh, t-titties, he's going to want a connection." She grimaced and grabbed her shirt over her heart. "It hurts so much. She's going to connect with him."

It could be true. It wasn't impossible. And she could see how that would upset her. Even Scarlet was squeezing the bridge of her nose now, as challenged by this problem as Sully seemed. She looked over at him now, seeing his expression the same, only... It seemed more like guilt.

Sully saw her looking at him. He mouthed, "I'm going to go to the bathroom."

It occurred to her now what was happening. Her horny husband was lying in bed, post coitus interrupts, and he still had an erection. And, instead of connecting with emotion to Cheyenne's plight, all this talk of ejaculating on Carla, and probably laying in bed with a woman whose mouth his wife had shoved his cock into, had made matters worse. He was hard and aroused and he was going down the hall to the bathroom to masturbate.

Aloud, she said, "No, you're not."

He mouthed, "I have to go."

She said, "I know what you're going to do."

He stared at her. Then, busted, he mouthed, "So?"

"So?"

He said, "Yeah, so?"

She lifted her head, said over Cheyenne, “So, I can’t. I can’t so you can’t. How’s that?”

Sully went up on an elbow. “How’s that? That’s really unfucking fair, that’s how that is.”

“Look it up, Sully, it’s the definition of fair.”

They glowered at each other over their suffering friend long enough they couldn’t help smiling. Then she had a great idea. One that would help Cheyenne. She smiled at Sully, then nodded her head to the side. She said to Chey, “I’ll be back in a sec.”

Both she and Sully got off the bed and met near the foot of the bed, far enough they probably wouldn’t be overheard. Right away, Sully said, “So, what, you want to masturbate, too?”

“Knock it off,” she said, getting close to whisper in his ear. She told him he was going on a mission and he asked what’s the mission and she said, “Mission Find Cody And Bring Him Here.”

He darted his face back and looked at her, confused. “First,” he said, “you need to think of better call signs. Second: why?”

She cupped a hand near his ear and whispered again. “Please, go find him. We can solve this in a good way and neither of us have to masturbate—we can get our bed back and finish what we had going.”

Sully stood upright, nodding, mobilized for his own benefit.

She smacked his bottom, urging him to, “Go, get going!”

The headboard rattled with his steady rhythm. Carla was on her knees, her elbows on the mattress, her head tucked down, making her shoulder blades stick out. It was a sexy sight. Her skin was smooth and tanned, her waist tiny, her bottom-swell large and womanly. She panted and made soft squeaky gasps as he fucked her.

They'd been going non-stop for forty-five minutes. Missionary, doggy, rump-up, sidecar. She'd trembled her way through at least three more minor orgasms, and right now she was on her way to another one. He was getting used to her body, her responses, her breathing. He liked learning what made her tick. The first time he'd been with her, he'd been intimidated as all get out. All it took was confirmation of the fact that she actually really wanted him in her bed—desired it—to change everything. Yeah, Carla was hot as shit and who wouldn't want to get her in bed, but this swinging thing may not be for him if it was just wham-bam-thank-you-ma'am. He needed more. And now Carla provided more. He hadn't felt this sexually confident in a long time. Carla brought something good and masculine and creative from deep inside him.

She kicked her feet and lolled her hanging head side to side as another orgasm shivered through her. He slowed, still thrusting with purpose, but giving it to her the way that made her body melt, made her make the best sounds. She collapsed on the bed, laying flat, and he scooted to her side, wanting to roll her away, hug her back, lift a leg, and get his dick inside her heavenly pussy again.

The way Carla lay, allowed her to access her own equipment, and as he stroked the head of his cock along her soaking seam, teasing her, Carla rolled two finger pads on her clit. He kissed her neck and bit her collar; she played with his hair.

Then she had an idea so sudden, she raked her nails on his neck, twisting her face toward his. “Take me outside,” she said.

He eased his cock inside her, watching the way her eyes went unfocused when he did. “You want some fresh air?”

“I want to be in the breeze.”

“Naked.”

She nodded and kissed him. “Fully naked.”

They got off the bed, trying to be quick since their sex drive had high demand, but both of them wobbly on their legs from the furious fucking. Carla stumbled to a tall seven-drawer dresser and clung to it, and he staggered behind her, dipping his knees and going all the way inside her from behind. Her cry of passion basted fog on the dresser’s polish. Her breasts squashed out on either side of her thin back, and he fucked her slow and deep, biting her shoulder. She came again.

He withdrew and stepped back and Carla—sex-demon Carla—stuck to the dresser like a bug on a windshield, her arms hooked onto the top to support her weight, her feet awkward and pigeon-toed. He helped her to stand and she turned to hug him, whispering in his ear, “Take me to the prow.”

“You want to do it on the prow?”

She nodded. Then whispered into his collar, “Titanic style.”

He said, “Like I’m the king of the world.”

Sully returned with Cody, both of them coming in quietly and not saying anything. Scarlet had her arms around Cheyenne, looking over her shoulder at the two guys stumbling around in the dark after having been out in the bright of the hall, Cody with his hands out in front of him trying to find some unseen something he didn't want to walk face first into. Sully took Cody's thick forearm and guided him to the bedside, right behind her. She shifted closer to Chey, hugging her tighter, and Cody got onto the bed behind her, his body big and warm. Sully crossed back to the bed's other side and got in next to Chey, all of them on top of the covers of the bed that not long ago she and Sully had been fucking on.

"Hey, Scar," Cody whispered behind her, a hint of mint and whisky on his breath. It gave her the goosebumps. Why didn't Sully come in behind her?

She said, "Hold on a sec," getting up on all fours to climb over Cheyenne and join her husband. Her bedsheet toga slipped open and her breasts jostled, hanging straight down where Cody could see them—if his eyes had adjusted to the dark yet. She snapped the sheet taut and covered up but felt a breeze below like she'd been uncovered there, her undercarriage revealed. She stopped, holding an awkward pose on all fours over her good buddy Cheyenne, totally naked with her sheet covering sliding off her. "Cody, Cody," she said, a little panicked herself, "you're on my sheet."

"Huh?"

"Lift your leg, you're on my sheet, it's coming off."

Chey said, "What are you doing?"

Scarlet said, "I'm trying to get over to Sully, but this damned sheet's slipping off me."

Sully wolf-whistled and she swatted his knee.

Cody shifted and freed her, and she gathered up the bedding as best she could and fell between Sully and Chey, her back to her husband. At least

Chey was laughing now.

“I’m glad you think it’s funny.”

Chey stared up, saying to the ceiling in a heavy but amused sigh, “I’m a pain in the ass, aren’t I?”

“Not at all, baby,” Scarlet said, rolling to face her.

Cody said, “We’re here to cheer you up. That sounds like a good time to me.”

Chey’s wide eyes widened further. “Not like that,” she said.

“No, not like that, Chey, that’s not what I meant,” Cody said then chuckled.

Sully rolled behind Scarlet and put an arm around her. She stiffened and quarter-faced him. The shorts-shrouded hump of his hard cock had snuck between her butt cheeks.

B yron brought the blanket with him from the bed because he wanted to hide in it if they got caught sneaking around the yacht without their clothes on. Carla had no problem showing off what she had, was walking with him with everything on display. Once they were outside, he was glad he brought the blanket and so was Carla. They walked together around the deck that passed by the command station or the bridge or whatever a yacht captain would call it, their reflections warbling in the black glass. The nighttime breeze was chillier than he'd expected, but it was later now, the night truly black. Sparkling stars scattered above them, and though they couldn't see the water, they could hear its rushing and sense its power. Over his shoulder and behind him, off in the distance, they could see lights along the shore where Annaberg Beach would be, and off to the right a light up on the hill at the higher point of the shoreline. It was all very distant from home, all so far away and secluded. Somewhere on the boat was his wife, who knew what he was doing and accepted it, had worked to arrange it from what he could gather. But at this spot, in this moment, it was just him and Carla, alone in the world. It felt might fine. Mighty fine and mighty fun.

“Brr,” she sounded, laughing, scooting back to join him under his enormous, quilted Superman cape. She slipped an arm around his waist.

“Your skin is so cold now,” he said.

“Yours isn’t. You’re going to have to warm me back up.”

“I’ll do what I can.”

Carla said, “I know you will.”

They stepped down the two stairs to the bow-end dining area, a table set with six chairs, the surfaces lit up in the starlight. At the bow, there was a step up, guarded by a stainless steel handrail, and Byron got ahead and pulled himself up and over, doing it naked in the dark while Carla waited inside the blanket. He held a hand out to her, and she stepped up with his help, telling him what a gentleman he was.

“My lady,” he said, and spread a hand out in theatrical introduction, as if he were offering her the stars, the sky, the ocean, and the horizon; all that she saw.

“It is beautiful,” she said.

“What we can see of it.”

“That’s what I like best,” she said. “What I can’t see, I make up in my own mind.”

“Fill in the blanks.”

She enjoined him in the blanket’s protection, the two of them standing together in an embrace—Carla slightly shivering—and admiring the view they could barely see. But it wasn’t so much the view as the sensation of being. Of existing in something huge, of being small, small but powerful, small but mighty in their ability to reflect and appreciate.

He said, “This night was nothing like I thought it would be.”

“Aw, you like a little romance, don’t you? Our first time was so... what? Mechanical?”

“Something like that. Whatever was missing the first time, it’s here now.”

“It was you, Byron, my friend. You were missing.”

He chuckled, thinking at first the statement was Carla’s purposeful attempt at clumsy philosophical bromide, making fun of the woo-woos. But then realized she wasn’t kidding. Then realized she was right.

“I’m here now,” he said, turning to face her, the blanket falling to their feet. They both went right away to shivering as the breeze whispered over and around their naked bodies. “I’m here with you.”

“Corny,” she said, going to her tip-toes and kissing his neck.

“You started it,” he said, his hands smoothing over the perfect small of her back. They made out, shivering and jittering until the blood started pumping again. Soon they were down on their knees, mouths connected, laying down on the blanket in the comfortable delta-space beyond the handrail, between it and the raised edge of the prow’s fiberglass shape, safer from the breeze, protected from fucking so hard they rolled right off the ship and plunged into whatever lay in the black below them. She wriggled around, her back to his front, kissing him over her shoulder, and he pulled the blanket over them. Her rump tilted, her tailbone pressing into his navel, and they worked together to center the point of his hardness in her slippery aperture. She gasped as he entered her again. Then his arm went around her like he wanted to warm her—and he did—but holding her in place so he could ease his rock hard cock in and out of her soft wet space. Both her hands gripped his enclosing forearm, and she panted with his thrusts.

“You’re exactly what I wanted, Byron,” she whispered.

“I am?”

“You’re everything I wanted you to be.”

Why couldn’t they see it like she could see it? It spread out around her like a starry night, pinpoints of distant suns winking at her, itemized dots of her transgression’s output. Guilt. All the things that could happen, would happen, all because of karma. All the bad things that could happen, would happen—because she deserved it. She deserved punishment.

Cody asked her what had her so stressed, and she shook her head in quick jitters, eyes wide and looking at the stupid ceiling. Then he said, “We worked all of this out already, Chey. You were so stoked for Byron.”

“I know, I know, I know,” she said on an exhale.

Scarlet said it didn’t have to make sense, rubbing her arm.

“This is more than swinging,” she whispered.

Scarlet didn’t know what to say, but Cody said, “Well, sure, it can be. What makes you say that?”

“Carla wanted Byron before we even got here.”

Cody chuckled a little through his nose. “I wanted you before we came here, too. Am I in trouble for that?”

She turned to face him, surprised to see his handsome face so close. “You did, didn’t you?” Her voice sounded too whiny, too pleading.

Cody looked puzzled by her question. Sully said, “Chey’s worried she was an after thought.”

Her scalp prickled, and if Cody wasn't here and Scarlet wasn't in the way, she'd let Sully have it. She hissed, "I didn't say that."

But Cody thought it was amusing, laughing next to her and shaking the bed. "You gotta be kidding me, Chey."

"I never said that," she said, scowling, mad at Sully but looking at Cody still.

Cody had rolled away to laugh, but now when he rolled back, he came closer to her, his body pressing hers, his arm going over her waist. It wasn't sexual, though. She pursed her lips and watched him.

Cody said, "I've had it bad for you for a long time, Cheyenne."

She stared back, blinking, mind blank, but some of the machinery hard at work in the basement trying to crunch the numbers and determine if he was deceptive or not.

Then she said what the worst thing was bugging her. "Carla has specific things she wants from my husband."

Cody didn't understand, and fucking Sully took the beat of silence to mean he should interject with a clarification. "The premature ejaculation thing?"

Cody smiled, unbothered, saying to her, "You told them?"

"Why does she have, like, kinks for Byron?"

Cody took his time thinking her question over. "I mean, I guess that's kind of her business, but... would it be bad if I had specific kinks for you?"

"You didn't though, we just played around, and, like—"

Cody said, "Maybe I just didn't get the courage yet to ask you what I want."

It stopped her roll, and her mouth closed. Then she said, “I don’t mean I’m jealous that you didn’t.”

“You’re worried Carla has real feelings for Byron.”

She chewed her cheek and stared deep into Cody’s eyes. That was it exactly. “Yeah,” she said, then sniffled, embarrassed. But there was more. “And I’m afraid Byron has real feelings for her.”

Cheyenne’s plight put Scarlet’s position with Sully into harsh perspective. And showed how lucky she was. She smoothed Chey’s shoulder, for the first time really jibing with Chey’s upset.

It was Cheyenne who’d kicked off this whole escapade—of course, Cheyenne was put into place by some CIA-level manipulation—and though she and Byron had stepped foot into the pool together, they’d failed to hold hands while doing so. And now look at them.

On cue, Sully put his arm tighter around her and nuzzled his face near her neck. She reached up and stroked his stubbly jaw.

Cody nodded, respecting Chey’s words. He touched her arm with just the point of his index finger. “I kinda hope he does.”

Chey’s head jittered with disbelief. “How can you say that?”

“I think that would be beautiful,” he said. “I’m not scared of that.”

Chey just stared at him, wondering how he could say something so outrageous. But Scarlet could see the point. It would be beautiful. Cody might have an easy time of it because he was wealthy and handsome and accomplished, but maybe someone like Chey or Byron would be more frightened.

Chey challenged Cody. “What if Carla fell in love with Byron, you’d be okay with that?”

“I didn’t mean to say I would, and I’m not talking about love—though love doesn’t have to be a zero-sum game.”

“It is how I play it,” Chey muttered.

“Well, let’s not talk about the game of love then, let’s... hey, let’s maybe talk about you and me.”

“You and me what?”

Cody’s eyes moved up like he was trying to find the best way to put how he felt. At last, he said, “What would you say if I had feelings for you?”

“I’d say what the heck are you talking about?” But the erratic pattern of Chey’s panic speech had smoothed out. This line of conversation had given her something less fright-inducing, and she was fully engaged. Scarlet couldn’t help chuckling, wondering if Cody had done it on purpose.

“I had feelings for you, Cheyenne, and that was before we got on the yacht. I’ve thought about you for a long time.” Cheyenne said a quiet Oh. Cody continued, his eyes turning to meet her eyes now. “And since we’ve spent time together now, I don’t think it would be crazy to say those feelings I have for you are stronger.”

Cheyenne’s body quarter-turned toward Cody, showing Scarlet a sliver more of her back, like maybe Scarlet wasn’t even here. Sully pulled on her sheet, finding a loose end and pulling it over himself as well, as if he were chilly. She thought to say to him maybe they were going to get kicked out of their own bed so Cody and Chey could talk a little more, but then thought she should stay to make sure Chey didn't get naked with Cody and ruin the virtue of her gesture with Byron, sending him to Carla. Sully wriggled closer to her, his hand slipping up and down her naked side.

Chey whispered, "They are?"

"Sure," Cody said.

Sully's hand settled on Scarlet's haunch while this soap opera captivated her. But then Sully pushed a thumb into her butt cheek and pushed. She curled, and turned her head to scold him, ask him what the fuck he thought he was doing—but it became obvious.

The blunt hand of her husband's erection pushed between her legs and her body responded, arching her back to give him access to the space his big hard dick sought. She was still wet, it turned out, but it took some work for him to get his cock inside her. Once he'd worked it in a few inches, her interior sweat flooded and made their connection like slippery heaven.

Sully whispered in her ear, "We can't make a single sound. You understand?"

She dug her nails into his hip and nodded.

CHAPTER 14

Cheyenne wondered if she had feelings for Cody, too. Of course she had feelings; obsessive feelings, lusty feelings... But was there more? If there was, she had hidden it from herself pretty well. The things Cody said right now weren't crazy, though at first she thought they were. She rubbed an eyebrow, said, "What kind of feelings are they?"

"It's not love, if that's what you're worried about," he said, smiling, eyes sympathetic.

Scarlet and Sully had gone quiet, not offering anymore conjecture. But what Cody implied was daunting. "Okay, not love, then... what? Caring? I mean, I care about everyone on this boat."

Sully's voice, quiet but seized, his chest tight: "Yacht."

"You don't care more about me than say Sully?"

"Caring isn't a zero-sum game."

"It's not. But your feelings of care are different. Could you see yourself being intimate with Sully?"

"No, definitely not."

“Hey,” Sully said, trying to sound offended, but his voice still strangely constricted. Scarlet grunted an airy sound and her knee pressed into the back of Cheyenne’s leg.

Cody said, “No offense, Sully. I know all of us played around already, and I know you four guys tried a thing out but didn’t feel it.” Now Cody’s turquoise eyes settled on hers again. “But we felt something. We were fantastic together, even when Byron wasn’t around. You and I had fun and I feel like we connected. You don’t have to say yes or no. I’m not putting pressure on you to state your feelings for me, I just want you to see there are possibilities, lots of them. Just because you’re married to and in love with Byron doesn’t mean you and I are nothing. We’re not nothing together. But, and here’s what’s really important, Chey, I mean it: I’m going to love Carla till the day I die and no one’s going to stop me. She’s my soulmate and I’m so lucky to have found her.”

Crazy as it was, that statement made her feel a green tinge of jealousy. Like maybe she’d want Cody to express that enduring love for her. And that right there was proof of Cody’s meaning. Yeah, there was something between her and Cody, but it didn’t change a thing about her and Byron. She knew that already; how she felt about Byron was unchanged. Shit, in many ways, it had been amplified. This fear of losing him, if warranted, was teaching many lessons.

Cody said, “You get it, don’t you? Carla’s my wife and she’s my ride-or-die forever. But I have feelings for you that are different from what I have for Lily or say Scarlet. I love them like friends. I love you like a friend too, but there’s more. You know there’s more. You know there’s more and you know you and I aren’t going to run off and leave our spouses, or betray them in any other way. We’re safe. There’s no harm. There’s only...” He trailed off, then smiled like a little devil. “I was gonna say love, but I’d freak you out—so let me say deep care and a quest for understanding, a quest for more. Just more.”

“You make it sound less crazy,” she said, then sighed.

“Thank you.”

“But it’s still crazy,” she said.

“You’re not hyperventilating anymore.”

She chuckled. “No, I guess I’m not.”

He raised his arm to the side and flexed his impressive bicep, a bulging baseball-hunk and straps of supporting muscle gloved in tanned skin. “Scarlet had to call in the big guns, didn’t you, Scar?”

Chey put her hand on his muscle—couldn’t help it—and squeezed. Cody flexed harder, and then Chey turned to Scarlet, looking at her friend over her shoulder. “Big guns,” she said. Scarlet’s eyes were narrowed, and her brow looked damp. She said nothing in return.

Chey let Cody’s muscle go and put her hands under her cheek, facing Cody on her side, like they were two teen girls on a sleepover. “Byron’s not going to fall in love with Carla.”

Cody shook his head no. “I hope he has a good time. I hope they have the best time in the world and they laugh together and play around and get from the other whatever it is they’re looking for. And I can’t wait till my pretty little lady comes back to me and tells me what she wants about it.”

“You make it sound so easy.”

“It is easy. It’s just your own brain that makes it hard. All of us can be our own worst enemies at times, you know?”

“You too?”

“Not me,” he said and laughed. “I’m squared away, I’m top bunk.” He stared at her, his eyes filled with emotion. “Me, too, Chey. Don’t worry. All of us are human.” Then he said over her shoulder, “Ain’t that right, Scar?”

Scarlet said, “Huh?”

“Human,” Cody said. “All of us are human.”

Scarlet said, “Uh-huh.”

Cody’s eyes narrowed, and he lifted his head off the pillow, looking past her shoulder at Sully and Scarlet. “Are you guys having sex?”

Cheyenne squirmed away from Scarlet, getting close with Cody’s warm and muscular body, looking over her shoulder. “They are not,” she said.

Cody put his arm around her. “They’re definitely having sex. Look at Scarlet’s face.”

Sully was right up behind Scarlet, the two of them like stuck-together spoons, dipped in honey and put back in the drawer. Scarlet’s cheeks were red, her hair tangled, her mouth agape.

Still, Scarlet was defiant. “No, we’re not.” Sully hid his face behind Scarlet’s head.

Cheyenne said, “Oh, come on, guys.”

Cody said, “You’re not? Then roll over.”

Scarlet rubbed her eyes and sniffled. “You two are so silly.” Her voice was breathy and strained. Like she’d been having sex.

And with this sudden realization, something low in Chey’s belly dropped away like a trapdoor and with it went all her upright morality. What was left in its place was a lubricious slimy swamp monster, sick with dripping lust, putrid with its hunger for bottomless fornication. She was in Cody's muscular arms; his body felt so fucking good. There were four of them, all attractive, all of them good friends... They had all the ingredients for a mattress-melting orgy. That lust monster wanted to suck Cody's big, perfect dick, wanted to get naked, wanted to have her hot, hot, hot lover fuck her senseless with his big hard tool while her friends watched from front row seats. Her friends could watch her slut herself out, watch her while they fucked as well, and...

Chey bolted upright, right out of Cody's arms.

Cody laughed, his arm still out from where she'd busted through his bond. She was up on her knees on the bed, looking down at them all. Sully snatched Scarlet's bedsheet toga to cover himself—proof he was having sex with Scarlet while she and Cody were having a heart to heart.

Scarlet said, "You okay?"

She laughed and put a hand over her racing heart, then began shaking her head back and forth, defiant, as if the three of them were sex demons luring her to her own demise. "No, no, no," she chided them. "You guys are bad."

Scarlet smiled at her, looking guilty.

"No, no, no," Chey said again, fighting against the powerful urge to stay and take part in some wonderful sensual pleasure, backing off the bed, putting a foot down on the floor. "I can't be here." She walked backward toward the door.

Cody chuckled, his head tracking her, staying on the bed and twisting at the waist. He said, "You think about what I said, Chey. And give your man your love and your understanding."

“I’ll think about it,” she said, and slipped into the hall.

Cody said, “And then there were three.”

Sully bucked against her, just a tiny, stiff movement, his cock head flexing, buried deep in her canal, his throbbing glans like a pulse point of pure pleasure. Butterflies stormed her tummy, and her breaths could come only in quick puffs. She said, “Uh-huh.”

“Chey sure left the room a lot better than when she came in, so that’s real good.”

She nodded, holding her breath, face to face with Cody but on the verge of what was supposed to be a secret orgasm. Sully’s body trembled against hers, like her husband was also in the throes of ravaging pleasure reaching its highest peak.

Cody smirked, hanging around, knowing what they were doing, trying to be funny. He plucked at the sheet, then smoothed his hand over it, wiping away all the wrinkles left by Chey’s body. He said, “Whelp... Guess I should get going.”

But he stayed, his eyes moving up to watch her and Sully. Sully’s cock was twitching inside her and she was right on the edge of turning to orgasmic goo. Sully’s breath was hot on her collar. Her coward husband had hidden behind her, pretending like he wasn’t even in the room, just his hard dick inside her. But his hand squeezed her waist, caressed her, and his arm movement made his cock squirm in bright and beautiful ways. Their connection was tight, but like pure liquid.

Cody raised an eyebrow. “Don’t you think?”

An offer to stay. An offer to stay and watch them fuck. An offer to stay and watch her come. And it was going to be huge, too. An offer to stay and watch, and what else? Participate?

She craned her neck, angling her head away, trying to look at Sully.

She couldn't see him, her husband still nuzzled in her crimson locks. But he freed his hand from under their covering and worked to find the edge of her toga. She held her breath. Sully unwrapped her, pulling away sheets and revealing her naked flesh. First her stomach, then her breasts. And at last, whisking away the last remaining skirt covering where their two bodies were joined. She was naked before Cody. His eyes went over her sexualized body with great enjoyment. Looking at her tits, her erect nipples, her navel, and down lower. Sully's hand swept her haunch, cupped around the inside of her thigh, and guided her topmost leg to spread. She put her knee up toward the ceiling, her foot on the mattress, showing Cody where her husband entered her body.

The impending orgasm changed gears, shifting down so it would climb even higher rather than tumble over the current peak. Having a man as handsome as Cody seeing your most sacred connection with your husband astounded her in unexpected ways. The room was quiet, the connection between her and Sully and Cody intense.

Sully couldn't move and she knew it was because if he did, he would ejaculate and pop all the sexual inflation from the moment. And her Sully boy, pervert as he was (just like her, it turned out), wanted to see where this moment would go.

CHAPTER 15

They woke together to the sound of gulls and the dawning light. Wind ruffled his hair, and it tossed Carla's silky tangled locks to tickle his lips and neck. He brushed away her hair and breathed deep the morning dew. His shoulders, neck, and face were chilled, but underneath the bedding his body was warm, up close and toasty with the yacht's spiciest tamale.

He'd somehow survived the night. Survived it and come out on top.

Fears vanquished, quests achieved, mission accomplished.

First thing he said to Carla the night after amazing sex on the prow of a multi-million dollar yacht in the Caribbean was, "How did you get such a good fit?"

Carla blinked for a moment, then rolled toward him, coming face to face, her expression blank. "I don't get it."

"My schoolboy uniform."

She chuckled, smiling wide and narrowing her eyes. She was beautiful even in the gray light of morning. "I kept your measurements from Scarlet and Sully's wedding. You guys went to get your tuxes."

“You did?”

Carla shrugged a shoulder. “You never know when something like that’s going to come in handy.”

If she had said this to him yesterday, before their wild night together, he wouldn’t have believed it—though he, of course, would have wanted to. It would have been Carla obviously fucking with him, using her sly powers to manipulate or toying for sport. But somehow he didn’t think this was a joke or a charade. He thought she was telling the truth.

So now he was playful. “Did you frame the numbers, put them under a glass frame and hang them on your office wall, or maybe secret them away in the pages of your favorite book?” Some part of him was the roguish schoolboy still, knowing Carla was too cool to appreciate a man who fawned over her attention the way he wanted to.

She palmed his cheek. “No, they were in my phone, you hopeless romantic, and I never deleted the file.”

“My version’s better.”

“We’ll go with yours then,” she said.

“Okay. What is your favorite book?”

“That seems very personal.”

He raised an eyebrow. “Am I coming on too strong?”

She lay back and stretched, flat on the fiberglass, pushing her arms straight overhead toward the point of the prow. The bedding fell away to reveal her naked breasts, so large and perfect, a breath away. Her nipples were hard from the chill, and the sight was the best way to start a day. Voice constrained by her intense stretching, she said, “I may share my body with you, Byron, but my favorite book?” Then she slumped and exhaled, satisfied by her brief morning calisthenic, turning to face him again. Now she said, “Last night was better than our first night, wouldn’t you say?”

“Pretty obvious,” he said. Then: “Did you go away to boarding school?”

She hesitated and in that moment he realized she considered not answering him, like it was none of his business—so when at last she replied, he felt fortunate, and closer to her. “I did. Only for a while.”

He nodded, not wanting to pry, wondering if she got pregnant and the matron sent her back home to cheese land.

Carla said, “Back when my parents had more money,” nodding, reminiscing. “Before they divorced. Then I had to come home and go to regular school.”

“That’s too bad,” he said.

“It left an impression.”

“And when you were there... There was a boy?...”

“There were many boys.” She winked.

“I’m sure there were. But there was one who was special?”

This line of questioning she didn’t like as much, and she turned up her nose. But she answered him, nonetheless. “Yeah, there was.”

“He was your first?”

She looked wowed by the boldness of his questioning. “Yes and no.”

“How does that work?”

She said, “How do you think it works?”

“You just messed around.”

“We did. And we tried, but...”

“You got caught?”

She scoffed at his dumbness. “No. He... was too eager.”

“Oh,” Byron said, nodding and smiling, seeing now how he was selected for a specific component in the replay. He didn’t know if he should be insulted.

“We were too young, anyway. . . . But even that was hot.”

“That you were young?”

“Ew, no. The premature part.”

“Oh, because you’re just so smoking hot this guy couldn’t last?”

“Last? I’m so hot he didn’t even get it in.”

Byron scowled, grimaced, saying, “Wait, your first sexual contact was titty-fucking?”

Carla laughed a bright sound and swatted him with the back of her hand. “No, Byron, that I did for you. This guy came all over my stomach trying to get it in.”

They both smiled at each other, eyes darting over the others face, surveying their expressions. He inhaled deeply, thinking about it, picturing it. “That is hot.”

“See? I liked it. I liked it a lot. It felt really nice. But he, on the other hand...”

“Didn’t think it was so hot?”

“No, sir,” she said. “Too bad. We were awkward, we were virgins, none of us knew what to say, and in the end he just begged off, pretend like he didn’t come at all, had just changed his mind, and I played along, and he left my room.”

“He didn’t have to.”

“He could have stayed. Look at you last night.”

He laughed, seeing how he’d been played. “I got set up.”

“I told your wife what I wanted.”

“Wow,” he said, staring into her eyes. “I’m glad your schoolboy took off on you then. No offense.”

“Yeah,” she said, “it worked out well for you, fifteen years later.”

“It certainly did. I might send him a Christmas card this year.”

“He’d like that, I’m sure.”

Now he kissed her forehead, not passionate, not horny or sexual, but as a friend. A very close friend. He sat up, the blanket pooling at his hips, and looked out to the view beyond the prow. It was hard to believe this was where he was. Hard to believe there had been so many changes. There was a fundamental shift in his he saw himself right now, and it wasn’t his own doing. Others had worked together to put this in play. Gulls squawked and fluttered, and along the razor line of the horizon, the sky soaked in the rosy-gold glow of the approaching sun. He looked down at Carla, napping again, face placid, eyes closed. He said, “You ever run that scenario with Cody?”

Eyes still closed, she said, “Yeah.”

“Oh.”

Carla's eyes opened, and she scrunched her features into a mask of mock sympathy. "What, you're wounded now?"

"I'm so jealous of your husband," he said and put a hand to his chest as if hit by an arrow, turning at the hips and falling away.

Carla laughed and hugged him from behind, her pillowy breasts squashing on his back, the milk-flesh surprisingly cold. She said, "Don't tell Cody, but you were way better at it."

"Whoah, whoah, whoah," he said, putting up a hand at his shoulder, where her face loomed. "I don't want any secrets. I don't want to worry about saying the wrong thing in front of him."

Her eyes narrowed, scrutinizing him. "It's just a saying. I didn't mean you can't tell him. Tell him if you want. . . . You're very sensitive."

He went to his back and hooked an arm around her, Carla's chest now eclipsing his own. "To be honest," he told her, "I think all you guys suck at swinging and I might be the best at it. I could teach you a thing or two."

Her mouth went to a shocked O shape. "Oh ho, really. And how's that?"

"You need scruples."

Her expression went mean. "We're unscrupulous? "

"I didn't say that. I just said you need them."

"Scruples, huh?"

"Codes of honor."

Carla rolled her eyes around, pretending to consider his provocative statement. "I like it," she said then, playing with his hair. "Did we do you wrong, Byron? Did we do Chey wrong?"

“I hold no grudges. But mistakes were made.”

“Huh, I feel insulted.”

“Don’t be. Like I said, I hold no grudges. But here’s the thing: last night was amazing. Totally amazing. If I want to do that again, I have to be on my best behavior. I want to be on my best behavior.”

“Good guy, Byron,” she said, pushing herself off his chest and sitting up now, no blanket around her shoulders, comfortable bare-chested, her big breasts to her navel, the way she hunched. She turned her face to him.

“You’re better than Cody in my private school scenario because you’re slim and boyish and handsome.”

“Cody doesn’t fit the role?”

She said, “Too tall—”

“Too broad shouldered, too manly, too big in the pants.”

“You’re hung up on dicks.”

“Coming from the toilet roll girl.”

“I told you that was sorority shit. Immature. We were kids practically, just out of high school. It was funny, but I don’t think any of us really cared.”

“Really?”

“Really. I mean, maybe some of them did, but most of us were in it for the laughs. What do you really know at seventeen, eighteen?”

“We all pretended we knew it all.”

“You got that right,” she said, facing forward now, looking toward the yacht’s bridge, the black glass concealing the command center. Her expression changed to solemn.

He sat up now, too, hands out on the fiberglass behind him, supporting his weight. He saw what had changed Carla's demeanor. His heart jumped in his chest.

Cheyenne sat at the dining room table, a dozen feet away, face turned their way. The expression on his wife's face alarmed him and he felt a crushing and immediate guilt. She'd watched him wake up with another woman, watched them talk up-close and personal, heard the things they'd said. She'd seen her husband softly kiss another woman on the forehead. A beautiful, sexy woman who intimidated her. Had seen them playful and naked, Carla hugging his back, ruffling his hair.

Chey looked grim, sitting at the table, fully dressed, sweatshirt and sweatpants, eyes bleary.

Byron scooted to rise, looking to stoop, then realized they had only one blanket. Either he and Carla could go to Chey together, naked and huddled under a blanket, or he could leave Carla naked, or he could go to Chey wearing nothing. He froze.

Carla stripped the blanket from around her and pushed the gathered material into his arms. She whispered, "Take it. You need it more than I do."

"Are you sure?"

"Go," she urged him.

He cowered the blanket around his naked body, taking one last second to drink in Carla's exquisite nudity, posed in an ultra-feminine seated position, like a classic Greek sculpture, the rising sun beginning to paint her luscious flesh-for-marble curves with the first light of day. Then he turned and headed to his wife.

Cheyenne chewed her lower lip, wiping at her cheek, and each step sunk his heart lower, like adding stones to press a Salem witch.

She forced a wan smile as he reached the edge of the table, standing across from her. She sat with her feet on the seat, the points of her two skinny knees up at her chest, shins pushing on the table's edge. He did not know what to say, only wanted her not to hurt. He could see her fist clutched at her chest, right over her heart.

She said, "Would you come inside with me, Byron? I think we need to have a talk."

He nodded quick little jabs, cowed inside the blanket that smelled like all-night sex, and Chey rose to stand. He followed behind his wife, her arms wrapped around herself like she was frail or cold, never once looking back to see Carla.
