

Matthew Lee

The Rise of House Mason

An Interracial
Hotwife Story

The Rise of House Mason

An Interracial Hotwife Story

By Matthew Lee

Part 1

Chapter 1

"I cannot fail this class, Professor Mason," Emily said, stomping her small foot. "There's no way I can hang around and retake it this summer. I'm off to university in New York. My mom will kill me if I don't have enough credits. There must be something I can do to raise my grade."

I cleared my throat and stared at the carpet. New York universities would eat Emily alive. Her basic English skills were shit. She had no study habits. I worried I was doing her no favors but then again, her parents had lots of money.

High school girls today are not like high school girls when I attended. Emily Patchett was social popular and physically breathtaking. No way should a man my age be looking at her but she was nearly perfect. She'd come to my office directly from tennis practice and wore a tight white sports bra with her white tennis skirt. My air-conditioned office had turned her nipples to pebbles and twin peaks sat high on each large breast. She caught me looking.

"I know you adjusted Tina Jacobson's grade," she said, her voice hinting at something. "Rhonda Allen's too. You can work out the same deal with me that you did with them. I can keep secrets."

Better than Tina and Rhonda, I hope.

I met her eyes, my career flashing through my mind. Guilt exploded inside me and I looked at the carpet again.

Emily did not wait for an answer. I heard the rustle of clothing and looked up to see she'd lifted her sports bra over her big perfect young tear-drop tits. I groaned before I could stop myself. I was a dead man if this ever got out. One mistake last year led to another mistake this year led to another mistake right now. I was chin deep in it. Emily lifted her bra over her head and dropped her arms to the side. Her milky tits were fantastic, topped with small, remarkably pink nipples.

"Take a long look," she said, "and give me a C. I'll show you my pussy for a B. What's the harm? In a month, I'll be gone from your life forever."

I slowly nodded. Emily reached under her tennis skirt and down came tight stretch shorts. She lifted the skirt and there it was: The gate to Heaven. At first I thought she'd shaved like so many girls nowadays but no, she had very little hair naturally. Her labia were smooth and pink, just a small slit running from front to back. I knew she'd taste like honey.

The moment struck me: I was gazing at Emily Patchett's young pussy. Emily Patchett. How many hours had she sat in my class the last four years and I'd wondered what she looked like naked? She was pretty and bubbly and in the last years had developed into a hot young woman. I met her eyes and saw excitement. She was nervous but clearly had never done anything like this. She felt safe with me, knowing I was happily married to a beautiful woman, knowing I'd never sacrifice my tenure or my reputation. She was free to show off the body all the boys wanted. Her body had blossomed and she was thrilled. Revealing it to me came with no repercussions. No stupid boy would gossip.

"All right, " I said after several long minutes. "Enough. You win. I'll raise your grade tonight from my home computer so there's no record at the school."

To my surprise she made no move to cover herself. I stared at her fresh cunt and firm tits another long moment before she slowly and reluctantly put them away.

"Too bad you're married, Professor Mason. A few months ago, I gave in and my boyfriend Danny showed me what sex is. I thought I knew but I didn't know. I do now. You're hot for an old man. I'd do you."

Terrific. I appreciated the compliment, truly I did. Emily knew about Tina and Rhonda but not all the other girls. I suspected her opinion of me would drop through the floor. I never intended any of this to happen but each year there'd be one or two or three asking for the same favor. I accepted them all. I'd seen dozens of the school hottest young women but in my defense, I've never touched any. I think that's what kept me safe.

The downside? Guilt ate me alive every day.

Annabelle, my lovely wife, is a bit younger than me and full of life and energy. She loves sex and can't get enough. I can't tell you how many times in our post coital glow she's murmured how much she loves my dick, how much she loves to feel me inside her. I have absolutely no excuse for my behavior. We've been trying to have kids for almost a year but I'm a full-time teacher and part time science fiction author. I'm busy and stressed. Annabelle and I don't have sex often which lowers our odds of conceiving. I use my extracurricular activities with the students to keep my libido running. I know that's a lame excuse. I recognize I'm rationalizing. I've tried to stop but can't. I swear to myself I won't but then one of them suggests they show me a little skin and I always cave. It always gets worse as graduation draws near. Too many girls discover all that socializing hurt their grades. I can look out over my classroom and guess with decent accuracy which set of panicked eyes will hang around after class. I've allowed no electronic messaging, no paper trail of any kind. The only way I'll get caught is if they somehow start talking to each other and that's no likely as students scatter after graduation. I think I've done a fantastic job of covering my ass.

So, you can imagine my pure terror when I got home yesterday and Annabelle hands me an envelope from a lawyer.

This is it, I thought, already hearing the crystalline shards of my perfect life shattering around me. One of the girls talked.

Wrong.

I opened the envelope and scanned the words quickly, then slowed and went over them again.

"What, Baby?" Annabelle asked. "What's going on?"

I read the letter a third time. I'd inherited an estate in Alabama. Some direct descendant had died and, after a long legal slalom of quit claims and expired options, the deed had come to me. At the bottom was the name and number of a lawyer.

"I think a distant relative left me some land," I said.

Her face lit up. "That's wonderful! Where? Is it beach-front property in Malibu? Is it a mansion in The Hamptons?"

I shrugged. "Alabama. I better make a call and find out."

She clapped her hands, excited. "This is perfect, Nathan. You're about to get a summer break and I can easily get time off from the library. Let's drive out to save money and see what the place looks like."

I tilted my head. "That's a great idea, Annabelle. Let me get more details."

What a relief. Get the hell out of town. I tugged my cell from my pocket and dialed the number.

Chapter 2

"I guess I should have checked the weather," I said.

"But then we would have dressed appropriately," Annabelle laughed.

She'd tied her shoulder-length blonde hair in a ponytail to keep it off her neck but the long-sleeve polyester top and heavy canvas jeans were a problem. She had crescents of sweat staining her shirt under each breast.

"On top of that," she continued. "We would have missed out learning, first hand, the true definition of sweltering."

It was my turn to laugh. Leave it to Anna to make a bad situation tolerable.

"Let's drive into town after we're finished here and buy lighter clothing," she said.

We'd arrived at the estate late last night, met by Jerome Barth, attorney at law. Without a moon, all we'd seen was the silhouette of a ruined mansion against the stars. A ghost village sat in the darkness nearby and the whole area was surrounded by dense forest. Jerome explained we now owned the house and surrounding lands from Little River to Cut Off Road. I had no idea what that actually meant and my many questions were either deflected or answered in a vague, lawyerly way. Frustrated, I stopped asking. Annabelle had wandered around in the dark until Jerome informed her of the catamounts, which we'd call mountain lions, and alligators, which he assured us usually don't come out at night.

Now we'd returned in the bright light of morning to air as thick as cotton and a drone of buzzing insects. We parked at the former gateway to the estate and walked under an arch of stately oaks trees, now grown wild, to the mansion. Even in this sorry state, the grandeur was evident. The house looked more like a Washington monument than a home. Two stories and ringed with columns, vines crawled over the façade and through broken windows. The front door stood open to the weather.

Inside, the wood features had suffered terribly, making the floors and stairs dangerous. Thieves had pilfered anything not nailed down. Additionally, many parts of the structure had been damaged by fire.

"What the hell happened here?" she asked.

"Maybe homeless squatters started a fire?"

Annabelle hugged herself, squeezing her breasts together.

"This place is creepy," she said. "I feel something in the air...like anguish...and anger. Maybe this house is haunted."

"With this much heat and humidity I expect those ghosts moved out long ago," I said, trying to lighten her sudden mood.

We wandered the first floor and exited the rear, widening our exploration to include the barn and stables and the abandoned village. Annabelle noticed a faint trail leading into the forest so we followed, thinking now would be better than risking a hike after dark. The path led us on a meandering route until Anna spotted a small clearing. We found five ancient stumps and a small ring of inner stones. Some of the older trees had weird insignia carved into them, the scars almost grown closed now.

"Voodoo magic," I joked.

Annabelle didn't smile. "This is old Deep South, Nathan," she said. "Those enslaved here had not yet accepted Christianity. They brought their religions with them and Voodoo wasn't one."

The joys of a librarian wife. Actually, to be honest, she's a part-time librarian and teaches yoga three times a week.

We continued until the trail emerged on the far side of the grounds.

"Return to the house?" she asked, eyes bright with excitement.

"Definitely. I'm hoping we find a way to explore the upper level."

We did, carefully, and discovered a huge bathtub covered with rust and in need of refurbishing.

"I love the style of this tub," Annabelle said. "Why is it still here?"

"Too heavy to move," I speculated. "I think it's cast iron."

We continued our investigations and I noticed a panel in the ceiling. I maneuvered some smashed furniture to stand on and tugged the ring. The panel creaked but swung down, revealing a heavy mahogany ladder that led to the attic. We climbed. The walls had crumbling holes that went all the way through and the floor was in worse shape, but we moved cautiously, picking our way forward. Around a corner we found an old wardrobe and several locked trunks.

"Should I force them open?" I asked.

"You own them," she said. "Do what you want."

A table leg lay nearby which I used to smash the old lock, opening the trunk the first try.

"My big strong man," Annabelle teased. She ran her eyes over my body and then glanced around the decrepit room. "If I could find a safe place to do it, I'd jump your bones."

"To hell with safe," I said, looking around.

I can't keep up with Anna's sex drive but I do my best. The mood strikes her every day, which is too much for me, especially with my intense work schedule, but is another reason we always look forward to summer. I had to admit, prowling around this exotic and storied place had me horny. I guess it had the same effect on her. She pulled off her top and kicked off her pants, stirring wafts of dust in the still attic air.

Her breasts are smallish, just filling my hands, but her ass and legs are fantastic. She knew exposing herself like this would get me hard fast and it did. She giggled, delighted just looking at her produced that effect in me. I sat on the lid of the trunk and Anna quickly knelt between my knees. She had me out and in her mouth in seconds.

I settled in for a lovely blowjob because Annabelle loves sucking dick as much as I love getting sucked, but she had other ideas, using her mouth to wet me and then climbing my body to ease her soaked pussy around my inches. She held herself up with a hand around my neck and another on my thigh. I provided the erect penis but she did all the work, sweating and grunting, riding me hard and fast until she had a lovely little orgasm. I'd been holding back so when she went off, I turned mine loose too.

After we caught our breath I opened the trunk while Annabelle searched the rest of the attic. We were both naked and it gave an intimate feel to that place.

We began finding scattered journals, diaries, personal letters and even scrawled notes tucked into hiding places. A lot of the paper was brittle, the text faded. Some had even crumbled to dust long ago. We collected everything in stacks but were running out of daylight.

"Let's come back tomorrow and read," Annabelle said, clearly excited. "We can sleep in town tonight, buy better clothing in the morning, and come back here and lay everything out. I'm dying to know what's written. Can you imagine?"

I agreed. We carefully placed our treasures inside the trunk and closed the lid, making our way downstairs and back to the car.

We'd rented a room in a small town called Tillmans Corner. We drove down the single main street until we saw a Salvation Army store. I found cargo shorts, a linen shirt, sandals, and a wide brimmed hat. Annabelle found some shorts too, as well as several light and slightly sheer house dresses. They were old and threadbare but she loved the patterns.

"You better not sweat in those," I teased. "I bet they turn see-through."

Annabelle held them up to the light. "I'll take that bet. Wishful thinking on your part, more likely."

We gathered our purchases and headed for the front. As we approached the register, a black man, tall and wide and wearing a tailored three-piece suit, exited the back area heading towards us. The girl at the register ignored him so I tried to as well but Annabelle, once she noticed, kind of gawked a little before catching herself. He stopped to inform the girl behind the register he'd be back after lunch.

"No problem, Mister Ato," she said, bored.

He gave us a courteous nod and left for the parking lot.

"Owner?" I asked.

The girl scoffed. "Mister Ato owns plenty," she said. "This store, the credit union down the street, the car lot on the other side of town. He's busy."

She threw our items in a bag and wished us a good day. We crossed the asphalt silently but once the car doors closed Annabelle started chirping. She's a smart, well-read, intelligent woman but sometimes she seems almost childlike.

"Did you see that man?" she gushed, not waiting for an answer. "Oh my goodness. If marble was black the Romans would have carved statues of him. What a god. Adonis had a black brother."

"You like that, hm?"

"Like? Baby, my panties melted. What a hunk. Hubba hubba."

I considered getting jealous, for half a second, but then young Emily flashing her tits popped into my brain. I had no grounds for jealousy. Ever. Besides, honestly, I didn't feel jealous.

"I had no idea you liked black guys," I said, trying to move things along.

"I don't much care what color they are. I just like men."

Annabelle was being politically correct, or at the very least trying to spare my feelings. She likes men well enough but that's only because we come with penises attached. Those things are her real fascination. She tries not to objectify us but I know the truth. She had few sexual encounters before we married but enough to reveal her favorite part of a man. There's been numerous times when we've been fooling around, in bed or on the couch, when she stopped everything else just to play with my dick. She'd study me like a Ming vase, lifting, turning, exploring, learning. We've watched porn together and she's done something similar, pausing the movie to scoot close to the screen and scrutinize this man or that man. She loves the dangling things, and that includes the balls too, which is rare for a woman.

"I've discussed the penis with my girlfriends," she once told me. "Paige feels the way I do. Leslie loves them too, and she doesn't even like men very much. Rochelle says soft dicks are kind of gross but a hard one turns her slutty."

"Have you ever been with a black man?" I asked.

She pursed her lips and squinted as if thumbing through pages and pages of past lovers. I waited, allowing her to contemplate until I finally got the joke.

"Oh, fuck you," I laughed.

She broke out giggling. "Took you long enough. No, I've never been with a black guy per se."

"Per se? What does that mean?"

"I kissed one in college. We'd gone on a date and parked after and I sucked his dick for a minute but we almost got caught. I don't remember why but we never went out again after that."

"He probably already had a steady girlfriend."

She looked surprised. "You might be right. Hadn't considered that."

A sleek black Mercedes backed out of a spot and cruised by. Tinted windows prevented us from seeing the driver but we knew who was in there. I watched Annabelle closely, noting her hard stare. Mister Ato had pushed her buttons. Several of them, I'd guess, and I felt something stir deep inside me. She always tells me when she thinks another man is handsome or sexy. I've seen that expression on her face before, many times, but I'd never seen this one. She watched the sedan leave the parking lot and I knew that Annabelle, if she wasn't already married, would have openly flirted with that man, and flirted hard.

Oddly, my balls tightened and my temperature rose, but not in anger. I was still staring out the driver's window and contemplating my own strange reaction when she cleared her throat.

"Are you thinking maybe we should eat breakfast first?" she asked.

"I am indeed," I lied. "What do you think?"

She shook her head. "No. I say skip breakfast. I'm way too excited to get back to the property and read through all that material. Some of that stuff might be two hundred years old. Who knows what we will learn?"

Chapter 3

We parked our car where the trees ended and the tall grasses began and walked to the house. The sun was only an hour above the horizon but the oppressive heat had my shorts clinging to my ass already. Annabelle wore the lightest of the dresses she'd purchased, an eggshell shift embroidered with tiny butterflies. The bodies of the butterflies were tiny holes open to her body beneath. When the dress pulled tight over her butt I saw the hint of panties but I knew by the independent wobble she wore no bra. I didn't blame her. Sweltering indeed. Somehow the ceaseless drone of buzzing insects made the air hotter.

We retraced our steps through the house, climbing along the ruined staircase to the second floor. I lowered the heavy ladder again and we shimmied into the attic. Annabelle found a three-legged footstool with only two legs so she broke off the remaining legs and sat on the cushion. I pulled a smaller trunk close and sat on that.

We opened the large trunk and began sorting. We'd read quietly, looking for names and dates and places, and we'd add that text to a growing arc of history around us. Stacks formed based on events, observations, and names. Over the next few hours, a chronicle of times gone by began to build. We discussed what we discovered and laid everything out chronologically. Slowly, piece by piece, life on my ancestor's plantation began to take shape and the deeper we dug, the uglier the picture became...

Part 2

Chapter 4

Colonel Eli Mason watched Miriam circle the room with her tray of drinks. She was new to the Estate so some allowances could be made, but she barely slowed at all passing Captain Jackson and Lord Marks, even after they complimented her lovely dark skin. That could not be tolerated. She was nude, like all his serving girls, and shame still had a grip on her, but Colonel Mason knew she must overcome those feelings. The men that came to visit Oak Hill had certain expectations.

"Miriam!" the Colonel barked. "You insult my guests."

Miriam's eyes went wide with fear. She'd seen what happens to girls that fail to please. Cold terror twisted her guts.

Please, she thought. Not Lumber Man.

Chapter 5

She'd been on the homestead only four days when all the girls were gathered in the shed. A narrow bench sat in the middle of the single room hut, and from that bench rose a beautifully carved erect wooden penis. The phallus was remarkably accurate in detail excepting that it was thicker than most men. The dark mahogany, polished and oiled and glistening from long use, sat in a beam of sunlight through the window. Miriam tried to swallow in a bone-dry throat. Lumber Man had been in the Mason family for decades, passed down from one head of household to the next, feared for generations.

Once all the girls were assembled, another girl, whose name Miriam did not yet know, was led into the hut by the Colonel and his men. She had been gagged. Her wrists were quickly tied to a rope running over the rafters and through a brass wheel.

The Colonel asked for everyone's attention and then explained to the congregation the importance of pleasing every guest on the Oak Hill grounds. All demands were to be met with quick compliance. They would now witness the punishment for failure.

"Naomi refused Captain Jackson," the Colonel explained. "I simply cannot allow such behavior to take root. Each of you must do your best. Your actions reflect directly on me. Do I have control? Is my house in order?"

The Colonel gave his men a curt nod and two grabbed the rope and pulled. Naomi rose into the air, biting hard on the rag in her mouth. Another man held her hips and aligned her bushy pussy over the girthy spear. The Colonel gave another nod and the men slowly fed rope through the wheel. Naomi descended until the oiled wooden cock penetrated, spreading her cunt wide, and then, with the girl's toes barely touching the ground, they tied the rope off.

Naomi groaned, impaled, stuffed and stretched by the mighty club. An insidious cog allowed an operator to raise and lower the bench so a victim's toes always just brushed the ground. Naomi could support her own weight and gain relief from the overwhelming penetration, but only until her leg muscles gave out. Miriam noticed bumps around the base stimulated Naomi's each time she moved, which in turn caused her to squirm, which only increased her stimulation. Naomi needed an iron will to remain perfectly still. Everyone knew she'd break and sooner or later begin working her hips.

Lumber Man broke every girl.

Miriam looked away. The punishment was sinister and humiliating. Naomi moaned, becoming aroused despite her predicament, her shamed expression plain. Her eyes pleaded for mercy.

"My rules are modest," the Colonel said, addressing the crowd once more. "You younger misses can speak to the ladies that've been here a while. They'll tell you I treat all my girls well. I put food on your table and a roof over your heads. I keep you safe from the soldiers on both sides and ask little in return. Hell, most of the men that come to Oak Hill are so excited to see my beauties they don't last but a few minutes. How hard can that be? If you just go along it's over so soon. Make the best of it."

Miriam lifted her eyes to Naomi. Pussy juice dribbled off the dark wooden phallus. Naomi tugged on the rope holding her wrists overhead but lacked the strength to pull herself off the long spear. She rose only an inch or two before sheathing the polished cock deep again. Her moan filled the small dusty room.

"All right," The Colonel said. "Let's get back to work. Naomi will spend a night pondering her mistakes and I'm sure, come morning, her head will be right."

At the Colonel's words Naomi's expression turned to panic. She begged around the cloth gag stuffed in her mouth. The women watched her struggles, unable to look away. Naomi's desperate cries became muffled screams. She pulled on the rope, unintentionally fucking herself. The club was slick with her juice. Wet sucking sounds echoed as the Colonel and his men led the gathered women from the room.

Chapter 6

"Yes sir, Colonel Mason, sir," Miriam said.

She turned and offered Captain Jackson, Lord Marks, and a handful of other men a drink from her tray. They ignored the offered beverages, staring instead at her perfect brown skin. Her exposed breasts were small cones of flesh topped by puffy nipples. Her ass, round and firm.

"You're new," Captain Jackson said.

"Yessir."

"You're quite lovely."

"Thank you, sir."

"I'd very much like to see my penis in your mouth," Jackson said, watching the girl closely.

Miriam hesitated, glancing about for a place to rest her tray.

"Give it to me, my dear," Lord Marks said, fine white teeth gleaming. "I'll hold it while you indulge my good friend. He's been talking about you since you entered the room."

Miriam handed the tray to Marks, taking care to spill nothing. Lord Marks grinned, encouraging Miriam to hurry to her knees. She did. Both men gazed at the ebony beauty.

"Sweet thing has no idea what to do," Marks chuckled. "You may well be her first. Is Jackson your first, Darling?"

Miriam nodded once. Marks tilted his head to speak to the girl.

"Open his fly and put his little grub in your mouth," the man said. "Then close your lips and suck, suck like you're a gorgeous brown mosquito."

The men laughed.

Miriam unbuttoned Jackson's heavy wool trousers and tugged his penis, her first, out of his pants. She drifted away from her mind and what she needed to do and opened her mouth, slipping the warm noodle in. He rested on her tongue and she sucked as she'd been told.

Jackson moaned softly.

She looked up his body to his face, hoping she pleased him.

"Marks, you simply must try this," Jackson said. "She's even more beautiful from up here. Her innocent touch is exquisite."

"I will," Lord Marks assured him. "But not tonight. Tonight, I have eyes for a lovely mother-daughter tandem I saw earlier. You enjoy yourself, my friend. I'm going to go commit something I'll need to confess later."

Lord Marks excused himself, taking Miriam's tray of drinks with him.

Chapter 7

Mrs. Mary Mason closed her bible and stepped to the bedroom window. In the yard below, a shirtless Samson swung the twenty-pound axe only he could wield. His name wasn't Samson, of course. That's the name Mary had given him when he first arrived at her husband's estate. His real name was a mouthful of consonants Mary had been unable to pronounce and frankly didn't have the patience to learn. Samson flowed off her tongue in a delightful way, and the right to rename the servants made her feel powerful. Because she was a good Christian woman, she chose only biblical names to honor God.

Samson set the log vertically and whipped the heavy axe in a smooth arc. The log exploded in two. Mary watched large muscles coiling and rolling beneath dark sweaty skin and held her breath. The next tallest free man on the estate, her husband, the Colonel, came only to Samson's shoulders.

Another log flew apart and then another. Mary watched the powerful black body work until she was forced from the window by the need to arrange dinner. She left reluctantly.

In the kitchen, she checked on all the various dishes to be served that night. She tested soups and breads, veal and venison, corn and potatoes. Lord Marks would once again be in attendance and Mary made a mental note to have Miriam bathed and perfumed. There was only a handful of girls Lord Marks had not yet sampled and Miriam was one. The man was easily their best client.

The Mason Estate was known from Nashville to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Mississippi. Normally, such a place would suffer public scorn. Not the Mason Estate. The Colonel bribed the right people and entertained the right guests and, because services like theirs were especially important in times of war, everyone turned a blind eye. Mrs. Mason was proud of that fact. She admired her husband's acumen.

Mary made a last inspection and returned upstairs to prepare for the evening's guests. She prepared her body carefully, soaking in the cast iron double slipper tub, touching perfume to her nape and behind the ears. She spent over an hour on her hair. She decided on the eggshell satin dress with the point-de-gaze lace and low neckline, strategically positioning her large breasts before drawing the bodice tight. Satisfied at last, she ventured downstairs.

The Colonel already entertained several rough-looking men in the library so Mary made herself available for introductions. She circled the room and then left for the den.

Lord Marks stood puffing a cigar and debating Lord Evers on the economic impact of the growing conflict, while Claudia, a lovely girl with small breasts and light skin, serviced the man's cock below. Mary discreetly watched as long as she dared. Marks was a handsome man, and well endowed, but her husband would be furious if he caught her looking. Claudia had drawn the lumbering member through the opening of the man's pants and suckled like a baby at her mother's tit. Marks and Evers continued their conversation undisturbed. Mary watched the plump head glide between and over the black girl's full lips. Claudia's soft pink tongue swirled around the ridge. Lord Evers, handsome in his own way and an impeccable dresser, glanced occasionally but otherwise the two wealthy men continued their conversation.

Mary began a discussion with Ruth, a downstairs maid, as this allowed her to gaze over the woman's shoulder and watch Claudia orally pleasure the large penis in her mouth.

Colonel Eli Mason had owned this mansion for decades and Mary had never gotten accustomed to sex out in the open. Her eye was drawn every time. She quizzed Ruth on her preparations for the night and then, once satisfied the woman was properly prepared, aimed to rejoin her husband in the library.

As she passed the kitchen, she saw Samson leaning against the massive stove, eating an apple. Shirtless, sweaty, dark skin covered with splinters, many of the kitchen women ogled him. Mary stopped and took a step back, sending the gathered women running with merely a glare. Samson turned to see why and his eyes fell on Mary. Before he could stop himself, his gaze moved from her pretty face to her throat to her exposed milky breasts, on display as was the style in Paris. Moses, the old black chef who ran the kitchen like it was his kingdom, caught Samson gawking.

"Ma'Chaka!" Moses shouted. "Mind your eyes! I'll have you whipped." He turned to Mary. "I apologize for this animal, Mistress. With your permission, I'll have the horse master peel a layer of skin. That will teach some respect."

"No, Moses," Mary said. "I'll handle this."

Samson lowered his apple.

"You'll make your bed in the barn," Mary said. "Two weeks. Miserable sleep while shivering in the stench of horse dung should impart an education."

Moses bowed and moved aside. Mary stepped in front of Samson and tilted her head to look up at him. She pointed at the kitchen door.

"Leave this house and never enter again without proper attire."

Unhurried, Samson sat his apple on the cutting board and headed for the kitchen door. If the others felt her punishment too lenient, they hid it well. Mary folded her hands across her stomach, hiding her own feelings too. She'd felt a slow drip of excitement to stand so close to the man. She'd felt panic at the idea of Samson whipped, damaging his dark smooth skin.

Why should I care? She wondered.

The big black man descended the steps to the yard. Mary watched him through the kitchen window.

Samson is my husband's best laborer, she reasoned. I'd hate to lose the production. My husband would be upset at the waste.

Her rationalization made her feel better immediately. She continued her examination of the kitchen and then moved on to the rest of the house. Guest were trickling in, anticipating another memorable night at the Mason Estate.

Chapter 8

"To friendship!" Colonel Mason said, raising his crystal goblet high.

His toast was echoed the length of the grand banquet table. Kitchen staff swirled around the room with new dishes and new drink, many imported from Europe, and Mary beamed to see the open pleasure on her guest's faces. She caught Ruth's eye and clapped her hand. From the kitchen poured a dozen dark-skinned youth. The guests looked pleased by their appearance but doubly so when the youths slipped smoothly under the table. Squeals of delight from the ladies and rumbles of laughter from the men proved the youngsters were skilled in oral pleasure.

"Fantastic," Lord Evers chuckled. "Wonderful. I believe I've the honor of two fine fillies plying my rod. I should peek under the table and see but I'm so enjoying the mystery."

Around the table men and women squirmed as the beautiful young servants orally serviced them. The conversation, which had dropped off at the beginning, resumed, and the guests returned to eating, drinking, and chatting.

One by one around the table each reached a climax, some mild, some powerful. Lord Evers had to grip his chair with both hands, grunting loudly as he shot his hot load down some unseen throat. When they finished the last patron, the servants gracefully eased from beneath, returning to the kitchen. From his place at the head of the table Colonel Mason suggested they retire to the den. The few ladies smoothed their dresses and men buttoned their flies. They took wine or coffee with them, leaving the mess behind for the kitchen staff to clean.

As the group entered the study, Mary was surprised to see one of the men from the fields seated in Eli's favorite reading chair. After a few steps her surprise turned to shock: the big black man was nude. Mary couldn't help but compare his body to Samson's, carefully veiling her scrutiny from her husband. Her path took her around the chair and her gaze ran from feet to face. She met the eyes of the enormous black and her smile faded. The man was mentally challenged. He stared with dull expression and roping lips. He had muscles but not like Samson. Samson was a towering pillar of chiseled black marble. This man had muscles like a bull; big, smooth, and rounded.

As Mary moved in front, she saw the man's penis resting on the seat cushion. She bit her lips to keep from gasping. Now she understood why Eli chose him. His cock lay sleeping, soft and bored, yet already remarkably thick. His length was enough to drape the plump head off the edge of the chair.

Fear mingled with excitement. The slumbering beast radiated male power. Mary knew she needed to look away. She'd already stared too long. The Colonel suggested everyone take a seat and make themselves comfortable and Mary took the chair to his right, composing herself quickly and refusing to look again at the man's genitalia.

Through the doorway came two servants Mary had seen together often; a young pretty girl she'd named Esther and a handsome young man she'd named John. They were nervous, frightened, wondering the reason they'd been called into the main house. When they saw the man in the chair, Esther panicked and turned to run. The Colonel's men grabbed them both.

"Again I must deal with disobedience," the Colonel began. "Again, I must enforce discipline. Without discipline, we are lost. Chaos and anarchy overwhelm. I treat all my servants like family. I am not just the man of the House, I am a father to them. But like my father before me; my house, my rules."

He pointed at Esther and John. All eyes turned. The pair struggled against their captors.

"These two asked for permission to marry. I said no. I have plans for them and I especially needed her virginity intact. They saw fit to usurp my will and substitute their own. Last night they shared a bed."

Eli Mason moved to stand behind the naked black man.

"This is Abraham," the Colonel continued. "Unlike my two young villains, he is a servant most faithful. What the Lord took from him in wits he compensated in other ways, blessing this fine man with a gift beyond measure. Stand up, Abraham, show the good people what God gave you."

Abraham rose to his feet, grinning like an idiot, his pendulous member swinging gently between his legs. A murmur swept the crowd and a few women giggled nervously. Lord Marks raised his wine in silent salute. Lord Evers wiped sweat from his forehead. Mary dared not look but could not resist the urge. She made certain Eli was looking elsewhere. She needn't have worried. Everyone watched Abraham except Abraham. Mary darted her gaze to the man's heavy, dangling, uncircumcised appendage, burning the image into her mind, wondering about her own breathless response, and then looked away to the portrait over the fire. From the corner of her eye she saw the Colonel check on her and smile, pleased his devoted wife had no interest in such an animal.

"My wife named this man John," Eli continued, standing before the young man. "I was pleased. A good strong biblical name, a trustworthy name, a name steeped in loyalty. Now, John has been revealed a thief, for last night John stole from me. After everything I've given him, everything I've given them both, John deflowered Esther, reducing her value greatly. Who will buy her now?" He passed his hand in a sweeping gesture. No one moved. "As I suspected," he said.

He waved to the men that held Esther. They brought her forward and forced her to kneel. Eli lifted her chin. Tears streaked the girl's face.

Abraham's cock began to rise.

Another murmur ran through the study. Several people moved to get a better view. Two ladies with Lord Evers held hands. Mary's mouth went dry.

"John will be sold tonight," Eli told Esther. "He'll be taken far from this place. You will be schooled for another purpose."

The girl opened her mouth to cry but a gesture from Eli set Abraham upon her. The large black man closed the gap and with a delighted grunt jammed his cock into her mouth. John threw himself at Abraham but his captors were too strong and too many. He could not tear his gaze away as sweet Esther was punished. Abraham held the girl's pretty face and roughly fucked her mouth, often plunging too deep, forcing her to gag. He was a beast, grunting and mumbling, chuckling to himself. His dark penis stiffened, forcing him to turn her head awkwardly to continue. Esther gasped for air, choking and crying. John watched in horror as his beloved was heartlessly used. Soon Abraham and Esther found a rhythm that worked. She calmed herself, no longer fighting for air, and allowed the massive black log to slip easily in and out. She closed her lips around the shaft to breathe through her nose, unintentionally increasing Abraham's pleasure. He humped her face with abandon.

John witnessed Esther's capitulation and misunderstood. To his young eyes, she welcomed that cock in her mouth, she accepted Abraham's battering. Spirit broken, he ceased his struggles. Esther stopped crying and Abraham's big cock slid smoothly in and out. She held her jaw wide open and braced her hands on the big man's thighs.

Everyone misunderstood. Mary felt the sexual tension skyrocket. Guests shifted uncomfortably, moving from one foot to the other, bodies tense. Abraham leaned over the poor girl, wrapping his arms around her head, thrusting hard and fast, racing towards climax.

"Enough," Eli commanded.

Abraham pumped several more times and then reluctantly stood, his chocolate spear, dripping saliva, inadvertently pointed at Mary in her chair.

Relief flooded John. Esther's harrowing punishment was over. His shoulders sagged and his eyes filled with tears. Thoughts of comforting his beloved filled his mind.

"Breed her, Abraham," Eli said. "She's yours as long as you put babies in her. I need workers with your kind of strength." Eli looked around at his guests. "And perhaps some of your male offspring will be blessed with another of your physical gifts."

The crowd laughed softly, appreciating the joke. Horror fell on the young lovers like a hammer. Abraham lifted the slight girl and ripped off her skirt, bending her over his arm like a towel. John again threw himself at his captors but they had known what was coming and were ready. Esther squirmed as Abraham maneuvered her body into position, fighting with all her meager strength. Abraham's face was lit with glee.

There was a moment where a curving, glittering black spear lay poised just outside the girl's pink slit, but then her labia flowered and the dark rod sank into her folds. Esther gasped at the intrusion and twisted in his iron grip but she was no match. Abraham held her where he wanted and pushed his cock deep, groaning from mind-boggling pleasure as he repeatedly rose on his toes to thrust upward into the girl's body.

"Noooooooo!" Esther wailed.

Abraham grunted like a pig. The young girl was tight and hot and wrapped herself around his inches like a steaming blanket. Impaled, she was even easier to control. Abraham's hips began a mindless thrusting and he smiled broadly, happy his penis felt so good again. Her weight was meaningless in his arms. He held her over the carpet and shoved powerfully.

"Watch," Eli ordered John, twisting the young man's head to force him. "You caused this, not me. I hate this must be done. She would have made such a prize."

John's face was pure rage and anguish. Mary felt his pain but understood the necessity of this punishment. John's eyes were glued to the spot where that big black cock disappeared into the woman he loved, only to reappear, shiny and wet. Against her will Esther's body responded to the invasion and the sight of her wetness coating that ebony rod crushed John. Abraham began a rhythmic groaning and several in the crowd chuckled.

"I wouldn't last long either," Lord Evers joked. "The girl is exquisite."

Lord Marks nodded agreement. "She is, but should I possess a cock like that I'd want to inseminate every woman I could too."

"N'Sila!" John cried out, his contorted face pure agony.

Then Abraham was grunting, moaning as his hips jerked wildly and he pumped hot sperm into the writhing girl. Esther threw all her might into escape but her struggles only added to Abraham's pleasure. He spent a long time emptying his balls inside her. Each animal grunt was another blast of hot sperm. Abraham slowed as his testicles emptied. A huge yawn shook him. Finished, his long cock slithered free as he dropped the girl to the floor.

"I should make you clean him with your tongue," Eli said to John, firmly holding the young man's chin. "But I won't. For now, your punishment is complete. Disobey me again and your punishment will be considerably more severe. I'll have Abraham ream your ass."

He turned to his assembled guests.

"If you will follow me to the billiards room, I have additional entertainment. My men will finish up here."

Mary rose on shaky legs to join her husband and they left the room hand in hand. She glanced at Abraham's softening meat as she passed, dark brown and still dripping semen. Behind his cock his heavy balls hung low in a wrinkled bag. He was repulsive and frightening yet alluring at the same time. Confused, Mary looked away.

In the billiards room the guests found refreshments and more servants waiting to attend to their needs. The Colonel stated if any needed release after the excitement in the study, the servants were there for their pleasure. A few ladies allowed some girls to service them orally.

"I understand you'll have Union soldiers here next week," Lord Evers said.

"That's right," Eli replied.

"Might that cause trouble?"

Eli waved the concern away. "The Mason Estate is known for hospitality, not just tobacco and cotton. We're a neutral place, a haven of truce. Everyone knows and abides by these rules. Otherwise we'd all do without."

"I worry some in town might take the opportunity to cause trouble."

"Trouble is always a concern," Eli said. "Do let me know if you hear something. I know a great many men come to you for advice."

Conversation flowed as easily as the wine and brandy. One by one the guests meandered off to bed, usually taking a lovely dark-skinned servant with them. Mary waited patiently for Eli and was thrilled to discover his desire matched her own. What they'd witnessed in the study left both ravenous.

An hour later they parted, falling to the bed sweaty and breathing hard. Mary snuggled against her husband's hairy chest.

"That was divine, husband," she said, almost purring.

He chuckled. "Indeed. We seemed inspired. Perhaps I should have Abraham perform for us more often."

Mary's heart skipped a beat but she said nothing.

"I caught you staring," Eli added.

Mary's heart stopped altogether.

Eli watched his wife's lovely face. He'd seen her gaze lingering on the dark man and his hefty cock and a familiar rush of excitement had stirred his loins. He'd never allow Mary to touch one of them but half the reason he staged such moments was to witness Mary in the presence of such rampant male power. His favorite moments, and he made sure they happened often, was his wife in the same room as a thick and intimidating black cock. He loved catching her staring. His imagination would leap to scenarios of Mary, naked and sweaty and at the mercy of a crowd of hung black men. He knew he could never allow such indiscretion but he was powerless against the idea.

"It's all right, Darling," he cooed. "I understand. The man is half beast. Every woman stared tonight. It's only natural. But I do require your discretion. Be sparse with your glances. Do not shame me before our guests."

He leaned on an elbow to meet her eyes.

"Of course," he said, his voice grown hard. "Touching is absolutely not permitted. That would carry consequences most grave."

"Of course," she answered. "I would never."

Eli's threat was obvious and menacing, frightening the woman. Eli searched her face, looked deep into her eyes.

"That's a stain no amount of scrubbing will remove, Mary."

Despite her fear, Mary imagined her fingers wrapping around that dark veiny shaft. She shivered, and Eli read her wrong.

"I see the idea repulses you," he said.

She allowed Eli to think so. She was unsure why at that moment her mind created such an image. The thought sent a jolt through her. She could feel the weight of that hefty black pipe, could feel the pulsing life of it. She saw the contrast of his coal skin next to her alabaster flesh.

She shivered again. Eli pulled her close.

"Fear not, my beloved," he said. "I'll never allow them to put their hands on you."

Chapter 9

Mary parted the curtain in the upstairs bedroom to watch the activities in the courtyard below. The Colonel was true to his word; John, along with a handful of others, were being sold to the Thompson Estate across the Mississippi. The faces of despair left her weak; children torn from their parents, siblings separated, husbands and wives forced to start a new life without each other. She decided to have the kitchen prepare a nice meal for the remaining servants.

Good food goes a long way towards feeling better, she reasoned. I'll go find Hannah and have her make dessert. Everyone loves Hannah's desserts. She's probably in her hut.

In the week following the incident in the study, John had been disruptive and disobedient. To punish him, Eli had John tied to an anvil and greased. Abraham did not care which hole he shoved his cock into if it felt good. Days later John struck one of the Colonel's men with a shovel while working in the field. The cruel and overbearing task master had deserved it and that was the only reason Eli spared John's life, electing to sell the man instead.

Mary cut through the servant's village, trying to find Hannah and get home before dark, when she happened by Abraham's hut. Sounds of passion caught her ear and she risked a quick peek through tattered curtains. In the flickering orange light of a lantern she saw Abraham's long cock slicing in and out of Esther's tight pussy. The young woman no longer fought the older man, accepting her horrible fate, welcoming the oblivion of his overwhelming penis.

They're such earthy people, Mary thought, so physical and sexual. I'd fight until I died. I could never accept such treatment.

Mary checked her surroundings and continued watching. Soon Esther began to grunt and then Mary saw the pretty girl climax, arms and legs wrapped tightly around the large man's body. Mary did not have orgasms and she stared in fascination, amazed by Esther's look of mind-shattering pleasure.

Proper women do not orgasm, she reminded herself. All the ladies say the same. Orgasms are for men and whores.

She focused her attention on Abraham.

Or these earthy folk, she realized.

She decided to stay a little longer. She felt safely hidden in the brush and the dim light from the setting sun. Inside the hut, Abraham pumped his hips faster, grunting and humming as his orgasm approached. Mary wanted to see it. The man's broad penis stretched the girl's tight tunnel and made Mary's pussy tingle. The bed shook. The entire hut shook. Abraham was a force of nature.

At last his back arched and his breath left in a hiss. His ass clenched and Mary knew at that moment he was furiously injecting hot blasts of semen. She wondered if Esther would conceive and how the young woman would react to carrying a child from a man she did not love. Mary watched until the syrup drained from his big, sagging black balls, then continued to the main house.

Her love-making with Eli that night was hard and fast.

From that day forward, Mary always cut through the servant's village on her way to the main house. She'd plan her trips home at twilight, veering near Abraham's hut each time.

She often observed the giant man-boy, dressed only in worn boots, masturbating by his potbelly stove. Hidden in shadows, face pressed to the window, Mary watched Abraham oil his flopping penis and then stroke until the taut skin glistened. His balls looked like black eggs from the coop.

His hard cock had a kind of majesty, she decided, and was pleased that for all the things life had denied this simple man, he'd been gifted with a magnificent monument to manhood. She watched until his faint grunts warned her he was about to cum and long ropes of milky cum spurted. Her breath caught in her throat to see such a fountain of potent sperm. She believed the he man could singlehandedly repopulate the world. White soup gushed and dripped, flowing down his shaft to pool on the wooden floor beneath his chair.

Most of her friends regarded the servants as little more than animals but not Mary. She saw powerful masculinity and femininity. She saw beauty.

Her body tingling, she'd hurried home.

I need to keep a diary, Mary thought, her feet pounding the dirt road as she ran. I have too many strange feelings flying around in my head. I need something to help make sense of all this. I know a place in the attic I could hide my journal where Eli would never look.

Mary was in the kitchen days later, overseeing breakfast preparations, when it occurred to her Samson's shack was close to Abraham's. She gasped and those close looked at her with concern.

"I'm fine," she said, flustered. "I just remembered something important."

Mary finished and hurried upstairs. From the bedroom window, she surveyed their vast estate, fixing in her mind the layout of the servant's village and the path from Abraham's window to Samson's. Few servants were allowed out after dark, and her husband's men were stationed to guard the perimeter, the main house, and the stables. They faced outward to repel any invader. Mary knew she could move about undetected.

By the time she finished her plan, her palms were sweaty.

If I'm caught, Eli will have me whipped, she thought.

That reality chilled her.

Why do I want to spy on them anyway? she wondered.

An older servant, Ruth, entered with freshly laundered sheets. When Mary turned to say hello, she noticed the stacked firewood near the hearth was almost empty. This task always fell to Samson and he was usually diligent.

"Ruth?" Mary said. "Why has the firewood run low?"

"The Colonel has Samson digging trenches in the west forty, Ma'am, along the Tombigbee river. He's got them all out there digging. Been out there for days. They'll be back at sunset, Ma'am, after they wash."

Mary remembered hearing her husband talk about building better irrigation to bring the Tombigbee to the Mason Estate. The creek which ran along their property was too small to handle their acreage.

"Where do your people bathe?" Mary asked. "I need to speak to my husband."

"The men use the creek where it bends," Ruth said. "The ladies use the pool under the willow."

Mary told Ruth she had an errand to run and to inform the kitchen to begin dinner preparations.

"I must speak to the blacksmith," she said, lying.

Mary left the house and aimed for the smith, but turned aside once out of sight. Soon she entered the forest. She knew where the creek bends and the thought of several dozen men washing at the same time drew her like a magnet. One man occupied her thoughts more than any other.

Samson, naked, washing sweat and grit from that magnificent body.

Mary stopped.

Unbidden, her hand flew to strike her face. The sting brought tears to her eyes. Seconds later she slapped herself again.

What are you doing? she wondered. Have you lost your mind?

Paralyzed, she stared at the forest floor. Forces battled within. At last her desire to see overcame her fear of being caught and she once again began moving towards the creek. After some time, she heard running water and deep male voices. She approached cautiously.

Through the branches she saw dozens of naked black males scrubbing in the water. Samson stood taller than the other men, rubbing fine sand over his rich skin, scouring exquisite muscles. Mary saw her husband's men standing watch, well-armed but bored and gathered in a group to talk and laugh.

Why in God's great name did I come here? she wondered. What twisted desire drove me to this spot?

Samson scooped more sand and rubbed his legs, thick muscles flexing, heavy black cock bouncing. His penis looked almost as big as Abraham's.

That's unusual, she thought. Two men of such stature.

Mary sent her eyes roaming over the bathing men and discovered every man looked well endowed. She'd help with injuries over the years and seen a number of naked white men, but they'd all looked very much like her husband. She'd heard rumors from girlfriends regarding the blacks but never believed any of them. Now, confronted with so much visual evidence, she realized the rumors may be true.

Perhaps Eli buys only the biggest and strongest men, she thought. Perhaps virility is a criterion for him. Perhaps there's a connection to the size of their penis and the strength of their backs.

The realization her husband had populated their estate with only well-hung black men sent a delightful shiver racing around her body. Her gaze moved from man to man, drinking in the awful badness she felt in that moment. A black forest of uncircumcised cocks bounced and wobbled and swung before her. Hefty testicles draped. Coiled muscles moved beneath ebony skin and a warmth spread from her pelvis. Even the shorter men had substantial clubs. Mary tried to turn away but couldn't. Everywhere she looked gorgeous male bodies bathed.

This must be my husband's doing, she concluded.

Her gaze drifted around the river. Bawdy comments followed by booming laughter echoed through the trees. She moved from man to man, seeing faces she'd known for years, now nude as the day they were born. She knew she'd never think of all these men the same after today. She took her time, examining each man. Samson was easily foremost among them.

Fine by me, she thought, grinning rakishly. I must remember this spot.

The sun was low and she knew she mustn't tarry, so with one last look of yearning, she returned to the main house.

Chapter 10

Colonel Eli Mason noticed the difference. He said nothing to his wife, but he noticed. As a test, he'd instructed Samson to chop the firewood in the yard below the bedroom window. Mary had appeared behind the glass not long after, hidden behind sheers and watching intently.

Eli had first spotted Mary gawking one night in the study. He'd heard from other husbands regarding the magnetic pull these black studs had on white wives but he'd laughed them off, promising Mary was no common woman. He soon realized he was right, she was something special, but even that did not make her immune. Clearly, she'd fallen under the same spell as the others.

At first Eli had flown into a rage. He'd taken his anger out on hapless servants, distributing punishments for every infraction. To confront her was to admit his fear and insecurity. Every estate for miles around would learn of his self-doubt. He'd look the fool. Better to speak to her indirectly, warn her away from her lusts, hint that he suspected her changing desires. Surely, for a woman of Mary's impeccable breeding, that would be enough.

To buy time and send a message, he gathered all the powerful men, all the bulls, as he thought of them, and carted them to the west forty for a week-long project digging trenches. That would give everyone a few days to cool off and come to their senses. He knew if he'd noticed Mary's increased interest then many of the black men had as well, and who knew what liberties they might attempt if they believed an overture would be welcomed.

A visual lesson will drive my warning home, he thought. But whom?

Eli stood in his wagon, surveying all the men working in the ditches. Gertie was carrying far less than anyone else, as usual. Eli remembered old Ruth complained that Gertie had returned to his habit of touching the young girls.

Gertie, then. Gertie will be my example.

Hours later the crews finished work and loaded the wagons to head for the main house. Everyone was eager to get back. Colonel Mason directed his men to stop at the creek as see to it the servants bathed. Cleaned and refreshed, the party set out for the Mansion.

After evening meals, Eli had a bonfire built in the courtyard and all the servants gathered, each afraid they were the cause of this meeting. Eli waited, allowing them to scan the crowd until one by one they realized who was missing. When all talking ceased, replaced by terrified silence, Eli gestured to one of his men and Gertie was brought forward, eyes huge with fear in the firelight. Another man carried a heavy oak chair and Gertie was strapped to it ankle, wrist, and neck. Eli waved away a gag.

"There's a line," Eli said, projecting his voice to the back of the crowd. "A line the Good Lord has drawn in the sand and that line, we do not cross. The Lord made it easy for us to understand. To make his wishes clear, He separated the races by color, and separated they must remain."

Eli let the tension build before pointing at Gertie shackled to the chair.

"This man not only ignores my rules, he ignores God's." Eli moved to stand in front of the terrified man. "I won't have it."

The Colonel gestured for the blacksmith to step from the crowd. The man wore a heavy leather apron and carried a small iron cage. In the loops at his waist were various tools including a hammer and pinchers. When Gertie saw what the man held, he struggled violently to escape the chair. One of Eli's men tore away Gertie's loin cloth. The blacksmith knelt between the captive's open legs and slipped the cage around penis and testicles. Gertie begged, pleading for Eli to stop, promising he'd never touch a girl again. Once the man's genitals were trapped, the smith drove a metal pin through the hinge. He struck the pin twice with the hammer and then bent and clipped the ends, imprisoning the man's cock and balls forever. Gertie howled like he was on fire, twisting and kicking as much as the thick straps allowed.

"We live in two worlds," Eli continued to the frightened crowd, turning slowly so his gaze fell at the last moment on Mary, watching from the porch. "We do not touch," he bellowed.

No one spoke. A few dared not breathe. The only sounds were the logs crackling and popping in the huge fire, and Gertie's quiet sobs. All present knew the man would never mate again. He was barred even from touching himself. Eli's men freed Gertie and helped him stand. He gazed at the iron cage and then tugged a few times, trying to remove the device, but the base was anchored with a thick iron ring and did not budge. A dismissive nod from the Colonel and the men took Gertie to his hut.

Mary had seen Eli deliver this punishment before and her revulsion grew with each occurrence. True, Gertie was lazy and bothered the girls, and several times had been caught looking lustfully at Mary, but surely those behaviors did not merit this retribution. Mary knew this lesson was intended for her.

The Cage for the men and Lumber Man for the women, she reflected. Life on the Mason Estate can be harsh.

She watched the older black man disappear from the ring of firelight.

Still, life at other estates is worse.

Mary remembered the two servants to suffer this fate before Gertie. One had accidentally shattered his shin while swinging a sledgehammer and died from the infection and the other had been stabbed by a fellow servant and bled out. Eli had insisted both men be buried with their cages in place.

They need to fear me, he'd explained to Mary. Fear is best for controlling men.

Mary suspected her husband was right but God, what an awful fate.

Two nights later, Gertie ran, just as Eli knew he would.

The other servants had shunned him after the bonfire and the foremen had worked him harder than ever. The moon set after midnight and in the darkness Gertie had slipped away.

Eli gave him a head start and then sent men and dogs to bring him back.

Chapter 11

N'Baka Telos, the man Mary named John, crouched behind a silver maple tree and watched the wagons pass into the Mason Estate. The caravan traveled the back road, rolling between the twin pillars of stacked stones John had helped build. He'd given so much to this place. All he'd asked in return was Esther as his wife. Their wedding had been a secret ceremony but somehow the Colonel had found out and that meant one of his own people was a spy.

John had fled the Thompson Estate the same day he arrived. Before his new masters could shackle his ankles along with the others. He'd hit a guard with a shovel and run to the forest. The Thompson men were after him. He knew they'd look for him here at the Mason Estate. He hoped to steal Esther and escape before the Mason's heard he was on the loose.

Chapter 12

Mary had tried to find an excuse to explore the "pool under the willow," as Ruth had described it, but none came. Mary finally dumped a bucket of flour on her grandmother's rug and said she'd run to the creek to wash it rather than use the bathtub. Skeptical faces met her but she went unchallenged. It was a Sunday, warm and humid, and most of the servants had been given time off.

Mary cut through the forest. If too many servants were at the pool she'd retreat and come back another day. She was far less curious about the women bathing than the man but still, one wonders. She'd just stepped over a log when a soft, male moan caught her ear. She changed her angle through the trees and drew close.

Samson sat on a stump while three women did their utmost to please him. One fed him a fat dark nipple while the other two sucked and licked his gleaming cock. Mary's eyes grew large at the same speed her jaw dropped open. The sight rocked her. She leaned the rug against a tree and sank into the shrubs to watch.

She'd seen servants mate before but never in such a relaxed way. She was struck by how playful and intimate the participants were. The girls sucking cock were laughing as they teased big Samson. He nibbled the breast in his mouth and then kissed the woman. There was no jealousy, no ownership.

Mary studied the man's powerful body but her eyes were repeatedly drawn to his erection. He was dark brown and stiff, with raised squiggly veins. The head had flared into a huge chocolate mushroom. One of the ladies joked about Samson being too big to suck and the other laughed, assuring the girl such a feat could be accomplished.

Mary attempted to use her mouth on Eli once, long ago, after a girlfriend recently returned from Madrid had given her the idea, claiming it was all the rage in Paris. Eli had erupted in anger, telling Mary such behavior was for whores and women lower than animals. Mary never tried again after that.

Now she watched the two women use their mouths, lips, tongues, and fingers to please Samson and it made her jaw ache with yearning, her mouth water with desire. They all seemed to have such fun.

Lovemaking should be fun, Mary thought.

The woman plucked her nipple from his mouth and stepped over his body. She told the girls to watch out.

"Put him in," she ordered.

Samson speared the girl as she dropped her weight on him, forcing the thick beautiful cock deep.

Mary couldn't believe what she witnessed. It was all too much. Heart racing and breathe shallow, Mary carefully backed away, avoiding branches and snags, until she collected the rug again. She took one last look, then moved through the forest, aiming for the pool under the willow.

When she arrived only one girl, very young, bathed in the warm water. Mary enlisted her aid and washed the flour from her rug. She thanked the flustered child, angling deeper into the forest well away from Samson and his ladies. She would love to see them again but the fear of getting caught was too high.

She tried to gauge how long before dusk but the dense leaves shrouded her view. Her efforts to avoid Samson sent her through an area of the forest unfamiliar to her and she soon became disoriented. Worse, within minutes she walked in near darkness, as trees and dense underbrush tightly packed obscured the failing sunlight. Her progress slowed and she considered turning back but worried that path was unsure too. She became convinced any moment she'd step onto the road to the house.

She saw a slight clearing ahead and pushed through.

She was surprised to see the clearing was manmade. Trees had been cut to form a small ring of stumps and a circle had been drawn in the dirt with small stones, a five-pointed star inside that. Mary examined the first stump she passed, discovering hard droplets of purple wax. Someone had set candles on each stump.

In the center of the star she found a folded handkerchief in the dirt. Inside were fingernail clippings, a short lock of hair that looked very much like Eli's, and an old pair of wire reading glasses that definitely belonged to her husband. Several drops of dried blood marked the cracked lens.

Nameless dread filled her.

What is this place?

Mary studied the ground. The earth and plants were trampled but not since the rain a week ago. She spotted a symbol carved into a nearby trunk and moved closer but the strange glyph meant nothing to her. Around the clearing she noticed every tree had a symbol carved.

A sinister shiver crawled up her spine. She'd found something dark, something imported from the primordial jungles of Africa, something hateful and unchristian brought across the Atlantic. Chilled despite the humidity, Mary drew her clothing tighter and hurried through the forest.

At last she hit upon a trail. Unsure which direction was correct, she made her best guess and walked swiftly. She emerged from the crowded trees and discovered the sunlight almost gone. She was surprised to learn she was much farther from home than she thought. An old road ran left and right and she turned left at a slight jog. Eli would be furious she was out after dark. She fixed her eyes on the ground to avoid stumbling and quickened her pace.

At least an hour had passed when she heard the first throaty human howl.

Her head came up. Over the line of trees, she saw the red glow of a distant fire. She started to run. The old road merged into a new one and with better footing she ran faster. The glow was brighter now and she heard people yelling. Soon she saw huge tongues of flames through the trees. She couldn't be sure, but the fire seemed centered on the mansion. Dread turned to fear and Mary slowed, finally leaving the road to hurry through the tall grasses. Ahead in the darkness footsteps pounded the dirt. Moments later old Ruth hurried by with terrified children. Mary crept between the widely spaced trees until she rounded a curve in the road and saw her home.

The eastern wing of the mansion was in flames. Dark shapes ran in every direction, most carrying tools for weapons. White bodies littered the ground, Eli's men, splattered with blood turned black in the dark. Groups of servants brutally beat guards with shovels and rakes and Mary wanted to scream at the horror but clamped her jaw shut and sank into the high concealing grasses

I must find Eli, she thought. My husband will know what to do.

Chapter 13

Colonel Eli Mason lay bound and face down on the living room carpet listening to servants ransack the house. He thanked God Mary had gotten out in time. Ruth told him she'd gone to wash a rug in the river, which confused him, but before he could ask why all Hell had broken loose.

The Colonel had sensed rising tensions and just yesterday dispatched a hasty note to Captain Jackson. Too late. Moments ago, dark skinned demons had poured through the windows and doors, swinging any tool which served as a weapon, spreading terror, slaughtering those who stood against them. Eli had drawn his pistol but they were too fast and too many. Now he lay hog-tied, gagged, and awaiting his fate.

Unfamiliar men entered and slipped a sack over his head. He was lifted to his feet and marched out of the room and out of the house. Shouts and screams filled the courtyard and he listened for Mary's voice, relieved he never heard her. Smoke tickled his nostrils and the crackling of flames told him the mansion was on fire. Bitterness twisted his guts. He'd missed the signs of festering rebellion and now would pay the price.

A wagon was brought around led by a team of skittish horses. Eli was loaded in the back along with a few others but when he asked who was with him, a fist smashed his mouth.

"No talking," said a rough voice.

Eli opened his mouth to speak and someone jerked his head before another hard blow split his lip. He stayed quiet after that.

The ride was bumpy and fast and seemed to double-back as others were loaded into the wagon. Eli lost his sense of direction. After a long pause the cart moved again and when the temperature dropped and sounds became muted, he knew they'd entered the forest.

Before too long the wagon stopped and Eli and the others were placed on their feet and told to march. He tripped many times over the next few hours, tearing his breeches and scrapping his knees. Sometimes the party would stop and wait. On one occasion a skin of water was passed around.

He lost track of time. Eventually, a hand hit his chest and he was halted. The bag over his head was removed.

He was in a clearing in the forest. Trees had been cut to make room and candles and torches provided light. A sea of half-naked dark bodies and angry faces surrounded him, eyes filled with hatred. Here and there he saw a familiar servant, but these numbers told him several estates had banded together. Soldiers led by Captain Jackson would be needed to put things right. Eli began planning to regain control. He imagined the delicious pleasures he would enjoy administering punishments most severe.

I'll place a bucket in the courtyard and fill it with black cocks and balls.

A murmur swept the crowd and Eli struggled to see why. The mob parted and Samson led Mary into the circle. She'd been crying but her streaked face was dry now. Abraham was with her but he looked frightened and confused.

Eli instantly knew the first torture they planned for him. He tried to leap the distance and free Mary, but the men holding him expected his attempt and he was grabbed before he'd taken a step. Mary saw her husband for the first time.

"Eli!" she shouted. "What's happening? Why are they doing this to us?"

The Colonel shouted around his gag, fighting against the hands that held him.

Samson approached. "A bad day, eh, Colonel?" the big man said. "A very bad day for the esteemed Mason Estate."

Samson continued until he arrived at Mary. She was terrified and that cut Eli to the bone. He was utterly unable to protect his vulnerable wife. Samson lifted Mary to her feet and then turned her away, reaching for the buttons on her dress. She tried to face him but many hands grabbed her, holding her in place.

"My speech may surprise you," Samson told Mary. "I can read too. I've been sneaking books back and forth from your husband's library for years." He glanced at the Colonel. "Thank you for the education." He turned to look at Abraham. "Strip," he said. "I have a treat for you today."

Eli groaned as the retarded man moved to obey. Mary looked confused.

"You're going to fuck Mary," Samson told Abraham. "Did you know that?"

"No," the big man grunted. A huge grin split his face.

"Yes. Just like all those times in the main house, only today you get Mrs. Mason."

"Samson," Mary whimpered, understanding at last. "Please don't."

"Don't listen to Mary," Samson told Abraham. "She's playing a game. She's pretending she doesn't want it just like all those who were given to you over the years acted like they didn't want it. The Colonel's playing a game too. They say they don't but they do." Samson continued working the buttons of Mary's dress. "They love this game so much," he said. "They've decided to join in this time. Won't that be fun?"

"Yes."

Abraham stepped out of his overalls but left his old boots on. His meaty cock had already begun to fill. Samson finished with the buttons and pushed her dress forward, off her shoulders. She wore a corset and hoop skirt beneath. Samson told Mary to step out of the dress and she refused so Samson gave a nod to one of the men holding Eli. That man slapped her husband hard across the face.

"That," Samson said. "Is the mildest form of revenge your husband will suffer if you refuse me again. We have knives. We have fire."

Mary's face turned pale.

"I might choose to bury your husband alive," Samson said, leaning in.

She held her breath and lifted her feet one by one, her large milky breasts pushed obscenely up and out, displayed like prizes. Samson turned her to face Abraham and her gaze fell to his growing erection.

"No," she murmured, legs going weak. "No, no, no..."

Eli groaned, powerless.

Abraham took a step towards Mary but Samson stopped him.

"Not too fast, my friend. We've watched your forced performances for years but tonight is special."

Abraham scanned the crowd. Anticipation grew. Eli groaned in mental anguish and futility.

"Mistress Mason," Samson said. "Remove your expensive clothing."

Mary hesitated, staring at Abraham's heavy black club.

"Strip," Samson said. "Strip and prepare yourself. You are about to put that black beast in your mouth."

Mary staggered backwards. Abraham eagerly advanced, trying to remember what Samson had said but wildly impatient to get his hands on Mary.

"Why are you doing this?" Mary cried. "I've always treated you decent. I fed you. I had you looked after when you were sick."

"You owned me!" Samson roared. "You sold my wife! I have children back home and your husband tore me away from them!"

Samson's pain pummeled her. Abraham moved closer, his penis stiff and throbbing. She stared down the barrel of a black cannon. There was so much to say, so many protests to make. She thought of a hundred different arguments but said nothing, frozen like a bunny before a serpent. She heard Eli grunting in protest, no doubt begging her to stop. If she refused they'd hurt him. Badly. Maybe they would anyway but what choice did she have?

Abraham took a tentative step, unsure, remembering her as the Lady of the House. He stared at her exposed white body with a fierce burning lust. Samson stepped closer and began to untie her bodice.

"Samson," she murmured. "Please. I beg you. Leave me something. Spare me the humiliation of being naked before your people. I'm a Lady. I think of you as my children. Samson, please."

Samson leaned over her shoulder, close to her ear. His voice was deep, filled with barely suppressed rage. "My name," he said. "Is Ma'Chaka. I am Ma'Chaka To'lo Ato, as my beloved parents named me, before your husband's men ripped me from my family."

Her stiff corset fell to the ground, taking her skirt with it. Large pale breasts bounced and hung free, nipples stiffening in the night breeze. Eli groaned again, distraught to see his lovely wife exposed to everyone. Ma'Chaka moved Abraham closer.

"This is not Abraham, Mistress Mary. This is Cho'talla, from the G'angsaw tribe." Ma'Chaka pointed to women in the crowd. "She is not Esther. She is not Miriam. We had names already, beautiful names our mothers gave us. You stole them. You stole the gift of our parent's love."

Ma'Chaka looked down on Mary.

"Kneel, Lady Mason," Ma'Chaka commanded. "Kneel and open your mouth. Open your mouth and receive Cho'talla's manhood. Your husband has placed many girls on their knees before this man. Now, by his actions, we place another. Kneel."

With legs weak anyway, Mary dropped. Her entire body trembled. She swung between terror and tears, fighting to remain composed yet looking for escape. She knew she must be vigilant and aware if she were going to get her and Eli out of this. She wanted to weep but shoved those emotions deep and locked them away. She exhaled slowly and lifted her eyes.

Abraham had moved so close his stiff cock brushed the tip of her nose. She stared down the barrel of it, shocked by the round thickness. She wondered how many women and girls Eli had given to Abraham over the years. Each of them had suffered this view too. In her wildest nightmares Mary never thought she would ever experience their fate. She glanced at her husband, knowing she walked a fine line between delaying the inevitable and protecting him from pain. Someone in the crowd told her to hurry and she tried to swallow but her mouth was dry like chalk.

Abraham drooled.

Mary closed her eyes and parted her lips.

"No," Ma'Chaka stated flatly. "Open your eyes. You will not hide."

Mary opened her eyes to a black and massive pulsing cock. The foreskin had drawn back in his excitement and Mary saw clear fluid oozing from the eye. She remembered watching the man masturbate and the copious flood of ejaculate he produced. She fought the urge to gag.

Surely Samson will not expect me to drink it, she wondered.

Abraham leaned closer and the fat ebony tube bumped her lips. Mary opened her mouth a slit and the wide hose slipped between her lips to force her jaw open. She felt the belly of the snake slide along her tongue. He tasted salty, warm and tart, pulsing with life, pressing against her cheeks from the inside.

Abraham groaned. The sight below dazzled him. Mary was the first white face he'd ever seen down there and he stared, dumbfounded, amazed. He worked his dick in and out like he did with the other women but Mary didn't resist. He wondered if she liked it and that sent blood surging through his cock. "Ungh," he groaned again, smitten. He held her head and eased his big dick in and out.

Emotionally, Mary was battered from every direction. Humiliation had her face burning with shame, but the pulsating cock in her mouth affected her in ways she never expected. She felt the life in the thing, and that excited, but more powerful to her was the pleasure she caused. Above, Abraham sighed and moaned and she knew her mouth was the reason. Instinctively she felt every scintillating jolt of pleasure she sent racing through his nerves. She held Abraham, monstrous, terrifying, gigantic Abraham, in the palm of her hand. Power like she'd never known coursed through her. Her mind came alive. She felt his heartbeat against her tongue.

Abraham fucks my mouth. My mouth!

She knew she should be crying, wailing at her utter disgrace, fighting and kicking like all the other women had, but the weight of his massive manhood made her jaw ache and she liked it.

A murmur swept the crowd. Too late she understood the absence of a reaction is a reaction.

Should I have fought harder? she wondered. Will Eli have me whipped?

Overhead, Abraham exhaled with deep satisfaction as he pushed several more inches deep. Mary breathed through her nose and relaxed her jaw, allowing the behemoth to fill her. Intuitively, she sucked, her cheeks denting for all those assembled to see. Eli groaned in abject frustration and Mary hoped he realized she was doing this to keep him safe. Her eyes closed. That forced her attention inward, making her acutely aware of the spongy throbbing snake she sucked. She imagined how she must look to others and her pussy tingled.

Voices grew louder and she opened her eyes. Several members of the crowd had gathered around a new arrival, leaving her momentarily forgotten. With Eli's view blocked and everyone distracted, Mary sucked hard and bobbed her head. Abraham almost collapsed from intense pleasure. She popped his massive cock out long enough to speak.

"Do you like that?" she mumbled, surprisingly nervous as she awaited his answer. "Do I make you feel good?"

"Yuh," he moaned. "Yuh, Miss Mary."

Strangely proud, Mary slipped the big piece of meat into her mouth again, certain no one had noticed their exchange.

"Men approach," Ma'Chaka announced. "White men. Men with guns. We should move to the safety of the main house. We can defend that until everyone is gathered and ready to go."

He barked additional orders and the crowd began to move. When Abraham was whisked away his cock left Mary's mouth with a pop. She saw a sack slipped over Eli's head and then the same was done to her and she was loaded into a wagon. After a moment, she realized she could still feel Abraham's fat cock stretching her mouth. She rubbed her cheek

My girlfriend was right, she mused. The French do know more about sex.

For a long time, all she knew was bumpy roads and strained whispers.

Chapter 14

Colonel Eli Mason stumbled over a rock in the road. The wagon carrying Mary rolled away almost an hour ago but he'd been kept waiting for something or someone. At last he was hauled to his feet, hooded, and told to march. Deep muffled voices behind meant at least two men followed but the canvas sack prevented him from determining who. He'd turned his head to listen and a hard slap on the ear made him see stars.

"You want to see who has you?" a voice asked. "You keep your eyes down and walk. You'll see soon enough. You'll see more than you ever wanted."

Both men laughed. Eli winced, suspecting he knew what they meant. They'd been interrupted in the forest and Mary whisked away, but Eli knew Mary was not out of danger yet. He knew they would make her the object of their revenge. Years of abuse at his hands meant Mary would suffer.

I'm sure they have a terrible fate in store for me too, he thought. But I'm ready for them. They won't break me.

Chapter 15

Mary was dumped on the ground and her hood removed. Abraham was gone but Samson and a handful of others, men and women, stood around inside a small shed. Mary quickly realized exactly which hut and turned sharply, gazing at the polished wooden cock rising from the bench. Fear filled her belly.

"No, Samson," she pleaded. "Not that."

"Be silent," he hissed.

The door opened and Eli, gagged, naked, with wrists bound, was led into the room. One of the slaves smeared the thick mahogany cock with butter. Eli was shoved to the ground at Mary's feet. He struggled to rise but a servant kicked him and he crumpled. The rope which ran through the brass wheel was tied to the rope which held his wrists and the Colonel was hoisted to his feet. Understanding blossomed. He began to fight but two strong men pulled the rope and Colonel Mason rose into the air.

"How many times?" Ma'Chaka asked, holding the man's swaying ankles.

Eyes bulging, Eli looked down at the gleaming phallus.

"How many times have you used this device?" Ma'Chaka asked.

"Your father used it too, as did your grandfather. For decades Mason men have bestowed power like a crown, one generation to the next. How many lives fell victim to your vanity?"

The chiseled black man gave a nod and Colonel Mason began to descend. He twisted in vain, struggling to alter his path, but nothing he did mattered. Ma'Chaka held his ankles in a vise grip behind him.

An old black woman cranked the cog, raising the wooden penis. Several women stepped from the group, eager to steer Master Mason to his fate. Mary felt a wave of relief to learn the stout post was not for her, followed instantly by heartbreaking guilt.

I think only of myself at a time like this?

Eli wriggled and thrashed to no avail. Ma'Chaka kept one ankle and passed the other to a man and together they guided the Colonel lower. A woman spread the white man's cheeks, aiming the artfully crafted phallus at his puckered sphincter. More slack was fed and for a moment Eli hung suspended over Lumber Man, the smooth wooden tip nudging his rosebud opening. Eli groaned, powerless, squeezing his valve tightly closed. The brass wheel squeaked and more rope slipped and then Colonel Mason howled into his gag as his asshole flowered. Oil and butter combined to make resistance impossible and Eli felt himself penetrated with stiff cock like a cheap whore. His howl became a groan and then a moan as the majestic wooden penis filled his ass. Ma'Chaka and the man released his ankles and Eli tried to lift himself free but the bench was too high. The woman had done her job well. The Colonel managed only an inch or two. Men tied off the rope and the woman gave the cog one last turn, sliding the firm cock deep. Eli groaned, stuffed, toes just touching the ground.

Mary was so engrossed in her husband's fate she hardly noticed when two boys spread a blanket on the hard earth floor. Ma'Chaka began to untie the short rope belt which held his pants. The movement drew her eyes and at last Mary realized what was coming. She looked up at the massive black man standing over her.

"Such a long time," Ma'Chaka said. "For so many years I've dreamed of touching the beautiful Mary Mason, Lady of the House."

Mary sobered instantly.

"I have seen your eyes on me, Mistress Mason. I know you have desires you fight, urges you ignore."

The rope belt opened and Ma'Chaka hurried through his button fly. He shimmied his pants to the ground, revealing his thick and imposing black cock. Eli howled through his gag again but Mary did not look away. His words rang in her ears.

Samson dreams of touching me? Despite her terrible situation, Mary felt a distant spark of eagerness, a faint echo of arousal. Samson called me beautiful? Samson called me beautiful.

The ebony giant stepped clear of his tattered pants. His heavy cock and balls swung lazily between his legs, flopping against his strong thigh. Mary was riveted. Ma'Chaka let her gawk, relishing his power.

"I give you credit," he chuckled. "Most white women look away. Not you. Not Mary Mason, Lady of the House."

He chuckled again, then spoke barking words in a language Mary did not understand. All around the room black men lowered their pants, revealing themselves. Eli cursed mightily and threw himself against the bench, but all he did was drive the impassive cock deeper. Powerful tingling turned his legs weak. He sank another inch, unable to keep himself elevated.

"Why does your husband buy only big black men?" Ma'Chaka asked. "Have you never wondered? He says they have more strength and vigor but that's a lie. He hides his true desires."

Mary's eyes darted around the group, remembering that day at the creek. She knew every black man in that room carried something special.

"We know why he does it," Ma'Chaka continued. "We laugh. The slave traders and ship's captains know too. Your husband says he's buying stamina. He says big men work hardest." Ma'Chaka shook his head gravely, lowering his voice. "Not a word of truth."

He stepped close enough to bump Mary's cheek with his cock. Mary turned to look at the hanging black organ, so close she felt the heat from it. Veins just under the skin turned the shaft lumpy and ridged. Her instinct was to reach for the heavy tube but she didn't. She looked up into Ma'Chaka's eyes.

"What is the truth?" she murmured.

"Mister Mason," Ma'Chaka said, "buys big black men to surround his lovely bride with temptation. He has urges, wild and reckless desires he dare not act upon. We all know it. We have worked other estates. We've seen many husbands do the same. Your husband secretly enjoys bringing us and you together. We've all seen the way he watches."

Several in the crowd laughed. Eli squeezed his eyes shut. They'd known all along, his mind whispered. Did Mary know too? Did she suspect? She must have noticed.

"Let's show him what he wants to see," Ma'Chaka told Mary. "Open your mouth."

She did not hesitate. His words became her deeds. A murmur moved through the room and Eli made a sound like someone had punched him. Ma'Chaka lifted his formidable black shaft, pulled the loose foreskin back until the lighter head emerged, and aimed his dick to the back of Mary's mouth.

"Close your lips," he ordered.

Again, Mary did as she was told. His thick rubbery cock filled her petite mouth and she felt the strong life coursing through it. Pinpricks of electric pleasure rose from her hips to spread through her body. She maneuvered the shaft with her tongue, instinctively lining him up to take him deeper, and then the room heard her soft moan. Some men laughed. Some women sighed, understanding what Mary felt.

Eli groaned. The former Master of the House could not look away. Beloved Mary was connected to the beast by a long, thick, black bridge of flesh. The familiar stirrings in his testicles sent blood flowing and Eli was mortified. He tried to stop his impending erection by clenching his ass but that only squeezed the mahogany cock and caused an explosion of pleasure. He coughed to hide his moan. His penis was rising and he could do nothing to stop it.

Mary's lack of skill was obvious, merely bobbing her hot mouth back and forth and sucking, but Ma'Chaka had never felt anything so divine. He gazed at Mary's pretty face and touched her cheek tenderly. Mary leaned into his hand, hungry for any affection from the man. He let her work on the few inches she could take while he searched her eyes. Desire was obvious but so was fear, and raging conflict.

"Ma'Chaka," someone said. "Look."

The big man turned. Eli's penis had risen to half-staff watching his lovely bride suck black cock. Ma'Chaka laughed and turned Mary's head to see.

"You think you know your husband," Ma'Chaka said. "But you don't. See how he savors the whorish version of you."

The big man positioned his feet to give Eli the best view. Mary was taking three and four inches now, leaving the dark shaft gleaming with saliva. Eli groaned and then mewled like he wanted to cry but his penis continued to rise until he throbbed. He occasionally closed his eyes as if the sight was too much to bear but always opened them again.

Guilt would swallow Mary the minute she stopped but for now she was a world away. Touching Ma'Chaka gave her feelings she'd never known. Hearing his deep voice, feeling his gentle hand caress her, holding his pulsing cock in her mouth, feeling the heat and power, all combined to send her someplace she'd never been before. Her pussy radiated heat. Her breasts ached. She had no understanding what these sensations were but she knew she loved them. She knew she loved this cock in her mouth. She had no desire to stop.

As if in a dream, her eyes drifted across the small shed. Eli's penis was harder than she'd ever seen it, bouncing with his heartbeat. He was utterly humiliated, anally stuffed and forced to watch his wife with another, but his pink penis did not lie. Confused, she could only stare at it, wondering what produced such a reaction. She continued her oral worship and Ma'Chaka helped guiding her head, teaching what felt best. Her world had ended only hours earlier. Her future had seemed bleak and probably brief. The shock had sent her adrift, devastated her grip on reality. The natural order had flipped in an instant.

But Ma'Chaka's gentle presence calmed her. The big man, far more intelligent than she'd ever realized, seized control and set things right. Mostly right. Eli's pulsing erection puzzled her but wasn't it also a sign all was well? How else could her husband be hard at a time like this? Surely, things were not as bad as she'd first believed.

She fixed her gaze on her husband's penis and waited until their eyes met. She relaxed her throat as best she could and slid another dark inch deep, almost gagging. Eli spurt semen all over the bench. His deep groans told her she was doing the right thing. That made her happy. She very much wanted to continue pleasing Ma'Chaka and was delighted her husband seemed to agree. She lifted her eyes to the man towering over her and then dropped them to the slick shaft gliding in and out just below her nose.

Dear God, she thought. Am I truly doing this? Do I dream?

Ma'Chaka was a slow piston sliding over her tongue. She savored every bump and ridge as he moved in and out. His gasps and moans thrilled her. She felt his speed building so she steadied herself with a hand on each of his thighs and Colonel Mason groaned yet again. Mary risked a quick sideways glance at her husband and was startled to discover he'd remained hard after his climax. Above, she heard Ma'Chaka suck air.

Scorching liquid erupted over her teeth and tongue. Ma'Chaka held her head in his huge strong hands and his convulsing cock spurt again. Mary guzzled hot fluid, gulping fast as the big man pumped her mouth full. For a full heartbeat, she had no idea what was happening and then the truth hit her.

I'm swallowing Ma'Chaka's seed!

She felt dizzy and euphoric. She sucked harder, buckling Ma'Chaka's knees and getting rewarded by a deluge of spewing semen. The watery emission was slippery and faintly salty but not unpleasant. She sucked harder still, teasing and coaxing his sensitive head to spit more. The idea was overwhelmingly exciting. She was drinking the essence of a fine black man. The terrible scandal electrified her beyond anything she'd known. Her mind reeled.

Good Christian women do not do such a thing!

She sent her tongue to test the eye of his cock and discovered he was still shooting. She sucked even harder, ripping the hot sperm from his big horse balls. Ma'Chaka choked and leaned heavily on her shoulders, emptying his massive testicles down her throat. Mary continued to suckle like a newborn.

Finally, Ma'Chaka gently pushed her away, his spent cock flopping free. She swirled her tongue in her mouth, oddly proud, savoring the male extract.

Chapter 16

The door flew open and men poured through. Mary recognized none of them. Several spoke a strange rapid-fire language and Ma'Chaka listened intently. Mary was pleased her man seemed to be one of the main leaders. After a brief conversation, everyone began to rapidly gather their belongings. Ma'Chaka gave orders and people moved to carry them out. His naked cock, soft now, still hung before her face and she absentmindedly opened her mouth to slip him in. Several nearby women laughed. Mary followed the turn of his hips, struggling to keep him in her mouth, and even crawled a short distance with him, reluctant to release the softly pulsing member.

"Time for more of that later," he said. "Now we must move. Go with Mia."

Mary saw a pretty woman extending a hand holding a thin white slip. Mary took the garment and slipped it over her head, then followed the woman from the room. She looked at Eli, noting his penis was still erect. The splatter of semen on the hard earth floor told her he must have climaxed again while she was drinking what Ma'Chaka gave her. His eyes seemed to beg for forgiveness.

Everyone filed out of the shack except Eli, who they left bound and penetrated. Mary let them escort her to the big house, whimpering when she saw the fire damage, fighting back tears over Eli's men face down in the dirt. She shuffled along like a puppy until they led her inside and bolted the door. She saw her furniture stacked against windows, paintings slashed with knives. Sorrow welled up.

Ma'Chaka entered the room through an archway, ducking his head and engaging in heated conversation with other men. Mary felt joy at the sight of him. He'd donned his tattered pants again but remained shirtless and his muscular ebony body gave her reassurance. The world had gone insane but Ma'Chaka stood like a redwood in the storm, resolute and unyielding. Mary was strangely drawn to him and moved to kneel at his feet again, fumbling at the knot of his rope belt, hungry again for the beast within. Ma'Chaka stopped her and helped her stand, barking orders to a woman nearby. Mary was led away, down the hall to the kitchen. Entering that vast room, she saw her staff loading baskets and crates with food.

Gertie sat on the meat table, eating an apple. Their eyes meet and Gertie rose in anger, throwing the apple at the wall and advancing on Mary. The woman Ma'Chaka and sent along stepped in front and shoved Gertie in the chest. They exchanged hard words but Mary didn't understand them. All she knew was Gertie backed down. He glared at Mary and then pulled the cage from a pocket, showing it to Mary.

"This is for the Colonel," he sneered. "I'll lock him up myself."

Mary recoiled from the man's hatred. Fear soured her stomach.

Eli must be warned, she thought.

More people flooded her house. The rebellion was in full swing. Food and water were organized and barricades erected. Sleeping arrangements were made and Mary was appalled to learn someone else would get her bed. She was given a spot on the floor in the center of the house.

Gradually, things calmed down. Minutes ticked by, growing into hours, and the magnitude of Mary's situation began to settle on her.

Now, at last, the tears came, even after a woman kicked her and hissed for silence. Mary covered her head with her arms and wept. Hours later, Ma'Chaka entered the area, searching. Mary watched him closely and when their eyes met he strode towards her. He lifted her to her feet.

"Come," he growled.

They climbed the stairs and Mary was relieved to see the double doors to the master bedroom were open. Ma'Chaka stepped inside and ordered three people out of the bed. He began untying his belt.

"Remove that slip," he told her. "Get in bed."

Mary waited for the rush of fear that never came. Ma'Chaka dropped his pants to the floor and Mary slipped the straps off her shoulders. Her airy garment floated down, forming a pale ring in the darkness. She wondered if some survival instinct had taken over and her desire was merely the need to stay alive.

Shouldn't I be afraid?

She ran her eyes over his imposing frame. To her sheltered mind he was the strongest man on Earth. He looked carved from onyx by the ancient Greek masters. She obediently knelt and reached for his cock, unable to resist her fascination. Eli had so many rules in the bedroom, pitch darkness, first and foremost. Ma'Chaka allowed her to lift the heavy serpent and examine him closely. Her fingertip tapped a bulging vein and followed the ridge along the shaft until it disappeared under the foreskin. She lifted the hefty shank and held him against his lower abdomen, turning her attention to his large testicles.

"They're hot," she said, startled.

She held one large sphere in her palm, studying the loose bumpy skin.

Ma'Chaka gazed on the woman he'd craved for years. The moment was so satisfying. She belonged to him now, body and soul. He could do as he pleased. Days ago, one of the women suggested that after the rebellion, when the estate belonged to them, Ma'Chaka should make his victory complete by putting a baby in Mistress Mason's belly. He'd liked that idea.

Now Mary knelt before him, clearly enthralled. He'd expected fear and revulsion. Horror at her husband's fate. Wild desperation to save herself. Instead she toyed with his cock.

Mary scooted her knees closer. She drew back the foreskin and slipped the smooth head into her mouth, practicing her newfound skills, acting on overpowering desire.

Ma'Chaka sighed and rested a hand on her hair.

Mary started slow but lost herself almost instantly, carried away by scandalous lust. She sucked hard, pulling the soft dark flesh like taffy, swirling her tongue around the crown and giggling when Ma'Chaka staggered, clutching the bedpost for support. Pride arose. Pride, and a sense of power. She doubled her efforts and Ma'Chaka groaned. He was growing, swelling in her mouth, temperature rising in step with an increase in size.

He let her play for a minute as his cock engorged, then he lifted Mary under the armpits and backed her towards the bed.

At last, alarm bells in her head sounded.

He intends to lay with me, Mary thought.

Images of Eli locked in the shed, Lumber Man lodged solidly up his ass, flitted through her mind. She dimly knew her behavior tonight was unseemly and inappropriate. She suspected she should be wailing in terror. She felt a wave of guilt for not feeling a wave of guilt.

The bed bumped her behind the knees and she crawled backward onto it. Ma'Chaka followed, stalking his prey, slinking between her legs. The drapes were open and downstairs lanterns burned. She had enough light to see the man coming for her, his stiff member pointing at her like an accusing finger. Her body tingled with anticipation and excitement.

Ma'Chaka had wondered if he'd need to force this moment. He was pleased he did not. Mary stared at the shiny spear still covered with her spit. The weapon looked imposing, dangerous, threatening. Big.

I can always tell them he forced me, she thought. They'd expect that.

"Don't hurt me," she whimpered.

Ma'Chaka brought his large lips to hers. His strong hands pinned her arms to the bed. With the ease of a patient and experienced lover, the tip found her slit buried in her dense bush. Mary gasped to feel the wide, blunt end of his cock.

God help me, she prayed.

Ma'Chaka sank into her, pushing her walls apart and the air from her lungs. She felt her hips expand, her pelvis tighten. He buried more cock and Mary heard herself moan from deep in her throat. She clawed his forearms, water filling her eyes. More cock invaded and Mary struggled for breath. Devastating physical sensations joined with the knowledge that Ma'Chaka was inside her, a black man, inside her as only her husband had ever been. Ma'Chaka buried even more cock and Mary's mind was sent tumbling off a cliff.

"Oooooohh God!" she exclaimed, lifting her hips to meet his.

Ma'Chaka held her to the bed and plunged black dick into this married white woman. Only when he pressed firmly against her cervix did he slow, keeping himself solidly buried, pushing against her inner barrier. Mary's legs had risen to point at the vaulted ceiling. She gasped for air, penetrated and impaled. Ma'Chaka gave her only a moment to adjust and then withdrew almost everything, only to drive his cock deep once more. Mary's back came off the bed, arching like a cat as she cried out in a powerful mixture of pleasure laced with pain.

She'd never felt anything like this. Never knew anything could feel like this. The man began a strong in and out and the pain evaporated. She felt her opening gush wetness, welcoming the large stranger. Pleasure washed over her from the soles of her feet to the follicles on her head. She wanted to laugh. She wanted to babble in his ear, ranting about how good he felt inside, telling him to never stop. She tried, but words wouldn't form. Ma'Chaka kept a smooth and steady rhythm and Mary found it increasingly hard to concentrate. Something was happening to her body, something strange. A tickle, but on the inside, had begun in her hips and now spread. The sensation rapidly grew into pleasure. Over her Ma'Chaka was relentless, driving his hips again and again, propelling his steely meat through drenched tunnel.

"Oh!" she yelped, hit by a sudden spike in the pleasure. "Unngh!" she cried when It happened again, lasting several heartbeats.

A wave of sensations washed over her and then every muscle on her body clenched. She opened her mouth to scream, terrified by what was happening to her, and then her orgasm slammed her small frame like a runaway horse, arms and legs flying as she thrashed on the bed, pinned in place, sobbing and cumming all over the black cock impaling her. At last she threw her head back and screamed. Ma'Chaka chuckled. Feminine laughter drifted up from the first floor. Mary screamed again. Her body was in utter revolt, convulsing and jerking wildly. She panicked like a trapped animal but the big man held her down. His fat cock was a piston, pumping her spasming hole. She screamed yet again, pummeled by mind-bending pleasure, rocked by body-wide seizures of glee. The first climax of her life released decades of want and need and Ma'Chaka fucked her hard, drawing out everything she held trapped. She sobbed, clinging to his broad shoulders, legs wrapped whorishly around his waist.

"Don't stop," she heard herself say. "Please."

Her cries of pleasure had gotten to him and his seed had begun to rise. His original plan had been for this moment to happen with the Colonel as witness but that was not to be. He let it go. There would be many such times. Ma'Chaka could give up the first. Master Mason would behold Mary's complete surrender.

Ma'Chaka dug his knees in and began to thrust in and up, bumping her cervix with each thrust, rubbing and sliding over every nerve she had. Mary climaxed again, her walls flutter along the length of him, coaxing his sperm. She felt his massive shaft swell and then he was a roaring lion over her, pumping gallons of hot semen directly into her womb, filling and flooding her tight narrow passage. She urged him deeper, hungry for his taboo seed.

At last he collapsed and Mary did not move. The horrors of the day drifted around her bedroom like fog, mingling with the echoes of her pleasure. She'd orgasmed and her world was obliterated. She was angry at Eli and her so-called lady friends. She was heartbroken she'd gone through life unaware such pleasure was hers for the taking. She was sad for all the women still unaware. But mostly, and she refused to feel shame about hits, she wanted more.

Her breathing became still. Ma'Chaka rolled off but Mary remained staring at the ceiling, mind racing.

Chapter 17

In the morning, the Colonel was brought to the master bedroom. He was tied to a chair and forced to watch as Ma'Chaka repeated his actions of the night before. Eli noted all the familiarities, all the tandem movements of experienced lovers. This was not their first coupling and Mary clearly welcomed the black bastard's touch. To his utter humiliation, Eli once again grew erect.

When Mary climaxed, screaming her pure joy, the Colonel, untouched, spurt onto the carpet.

After that, the house became a beehive. The place was stripped of all valuables and Mary and Eli bound, hooded, and loaded into a wagon. The Colonel was dismayed to see Captain Jackson, Lord Marks, and Lord Evers tied up in the flatbed, Evers and Marks wives beside them.

"We leave this place forever," Ma'Chaka announced to cheers. "There is a small atoll in the gulf, just off the coast. Gaillard Island. If we become separated, make your way there. There is dense forest to hide us, game to feed us, and fresh water enough for all."

He surveyed the sea of hopeful faces before him.

"Today," he bellowed. "We start new lives!"

Part 3

Chapter 18

"The story ends here," Annabelle said, closing an old dairy. "Your ancestors owned slaves and ran a whorehouse, using torture to keep everyone in line. No wonder your relatives avoided the deed."

I slid off the trunk to the floor and hung my head. "Dear God."

Annabelle placed a comforting hand on my shoulder. "It's not you. Nothing that happened is your fault."

"Yes," I nodded. "Except for inheriting this place and all this land. I've benefitted. How much pain and suffering went into building this place?"

"Refuse the deed, like the others."

I shook my head. "No. That's merely avoiding the truth. I need to do something with it. Something good. Dedicate it to the town as a children's park or maybe a bunch of Little League baseball fields."

Annabelle was thumbing through sheaves of paper, loose pages from diaries and personal letters. I looked out the broken window at the fading sunlight. My hands trembled. The stories left me weak. Annabelle had fire in her eyes which I did not understand. I searched inward and discovered beneath my emotional exhaustion slept a strange glow. Not exactly titillation, but something deeper. My body carried a tightness, a tension like excitement but buried way down in my foundation. I couldn't put a word to it so I ignored it. I noticed Annabelle staring at me.

"What?" I asked.

"I want to walk the grounds," she said. "I want to see how much matches. If we find the ruins of Lumber Man, we have evidence. We'll know what we read was true."

I sighed from the depths of my belly. "All right."

We left the attic and hurried across the grounds. The barn sagged and the stables stank. We began searching the few sheds that still had walls and then there it was. A polished mahogany cock poking through a narrow bench. The weather had ruined the thing, leaving the wood dried and cracked. If we'd not known what to look for, we'd have missed its true purpose.

"Shit," we said together.

We stared at that inhumane contraption for a long time. My mind had gone numb but Annabelle is smarter than me. Her brain kept churning.

"I have another idea," she said.

"Terrific."

"Yeah, you're not going to like it."

"That's kind of today's theme," I said. "Out with it."

She leaned closer. "I think we should drive to the south coast. I think we should visit Gaillard Island. We need to know what happened."

"What?"

"Did they make it? Is there a settlement still there? Did their descendants build a town? Were they hunted and wiped out? What became of Mary and Eli? You're directly related to the Colonel. Aren't you curious what became of him?"

I was, I admit that, but God I needed a hot shower. Food was a good idea too. I told Annabelle what I wanted first and she agreed. An hour or so later we sat in a burger joint chomping down fries. Annabelle had taken notes while we were in the attic and now sat pouring over them, papers spread across our table, writing in the margins.

"What did that girl at the thrift store call that big black dude?" she asked. "Do you remember?"

"No. I remember his car though. Nice car."

She pursed her lips. "Let's stop by there after we eat. I want to talk to her."

I said no problem between bites. We finished our meal, paid the bill, and climbed in the car.

The store was slow so while Annabelle and the girl had a lengthy conversation, I found two more pairs of shorts and a shirt. I asked no questions as we paid for my items. I was afraid what Annabelle might have learned.

From there we drove south to the bay, then caught a ferry to Gaillard Island. Annabelle had already made reservations at the only hotel. A small community lived there, supported by fishing and some tourism.

After we landed we searched for a library but there was none so we tracked down a courthouse and the hall of records upstairs. The old woman thought we were a bit crazy to spend time in that musty place but she left us to it. Annabelle was a scholastic demon, moving through microfiche and old newspapers like the wind. I found some land records registered in the name of Mason so I followed those and stayed out of her way. We spent a long afternoon in that room, then crashed at our hotel that night. The next day was another long one, working on the puzzle. By nightfall we had an outline of what became of the rebellion and Eli and Mary.

"Captain Jackson and Lords Evers and Marks were imprisoned," Annabelle said, reading from her notes. "They died behind bars. Their wives were used as whores for years. Colonel Eli and Mary became servants to Ma'Chaka Ato. As the rebels settled in, they used their skills to create businesses and make money. The soldiers that came looking for them marched too far east and never discovered the colony. After many years, a large faction broke away and returned to the mainland, adding greatly to the black population of Tillmans Corner."

"That seems fair," I added, relieved.

"There's more," Annabelle said. She leaned over the table and lowered her voice. "Mary became Ma'Chaka's lover. Not openly. Openly Eli and Mary put on a show. But privately Ma'Chaka and Mary shared a bed. I found stories of Eli waiting on the new interracial couple, serving them food and wine, watching from a chair while Ma'Chaka had Mary night after night. One former slave commented in a letter how Eli would sprout an erection that refused to go down. Everyone teased him about it. The former servants thought it was hilarious that the once feared and mighty Colonel now enjoyed watching his pretty wife get fucked."

I listened as my wife told the story and imagined how awful that must have been. At least, that's what I tried to feel. That's what I expected to feel. But, and I'm just being honest, that's not precisely what I felt. Yes, how awful to be imprisoned, held against your will and forced to do things. My mind handled that just fine. But as Annabelle had read, my penis had turned puffy. My wife's tale tickled some subconscious fetish.

"It says here," she continued. "Mary gave birth to two kids, both lovely white boys, Matthew and Mark. But when I checked that against civic birth records used for taxation, I see Mary giving birth four times. Two babies aren't listed anywhere else. Their names are recorded as T'chani and M'baka, a boy and a girl."

"Holy shit."

"Indeed."

"The scandal."

"Exactly. No wonder they never left the township."

I pictured Mary pregnant, not from her husband, but from mating with Ma'Chaka, the man who stirred her passions. My penis twitched. Eli must have lived in emotional agony, his wife a willing partner to another man. His beloved Mary, belly swollen with child, breasts large, skin aglow. How could Eli stand it? For a brief instant, I imagined Annabelle pregnant, but with another man's child. A rush of anxiety and heat cooked my stomach. I shook my head.

"Is it just me?" Annabelle asked. "Or is all this kind of hot?"

I said nothing.

"Not the killing and the raping and the owning of other humans, but the story behind the story. The lust. The passion."

It was but I felt dirty admitting it.

"We caught a slow ferry across Grand Bay," Annabelle continued.

"It's not a hard or dangerous swim. If Eli truly wanted to escape, he could have, but he didn't. In fact, I read in later years Gertie arrived on the island and finally attached his cage to the once feared and powerful Colonel Mason. No more white babies for Mary after that."

I sent my eyes roaming the mass of papers, books, and other documents we had scattered across three tables.

"Funny how after all this work so much remains unknown. All we've learned, really, is what they did. What were they thinking? How did they feel?"

Annabelle nodded along with me.

"There's no way to know," she said. "The human side will always remain hidden. Unless we find some way to time-travel and ask what was in their hearts, I'm afraid the true story, the human story, is lost."

We sat a long time in silence. Our original quest was complete and not totally satisfying. Life is just like that. I chalked it up to fate and felt better that at least we knew a great deal more than when we started. I made a decision.

"Let's ferry back to the mainland tomorrow and return to Tillmans Corner. I'd like to visit a bank to figure the estate's worth and then discuss our options."

"Perfect," Annabelle said. "After we clean up this mess we can find some good Cajun for dinner."

Less than an hour later we thanked the old woman and headed into the street.

Chapter 19

In our hotel room that night we made love but everything felt different. Maybe we'd acquired a new appreciation for life and liberty and how blessed we were, how lucky, but mixed in all that were our days spent reading about raw sexual debauchery. The Mason Estate had been a destination point for the south-eastern United States, serving up juicy sex for all. It would have been impossible to learn what we did and remain unaffected. Annabelle sucked my dick that night with a slow burning passion. My wife savored every inch. She took all of me until her lips sealed around the base and held me until I was writhing. Did she channel Mary? Was she imagining black cock? She pushed a finger up my ass, a rare occurrence, and my first climax of the night was a euphoric explosion.

I returned the favor, tasting every inch of her body, nibbling and kissing, sending my wriggling tongue into every hole. She came several times before I got hard again and then I pounded her into the mattress. We were a sweaty mess when we finished.

Two hours later she woke me to do it again.

Mid-afternoon the next day found us once again on the mainland and seated before a loan officer at Regions Credit Union, speaking with Sally Elizabeth, loan officer. I was still unsure what I wanted with the property and hoped Sally could help. We'd discussed options about twenty minutes when she reached for her desk phone.

"I'm afraid our true expert is out of the office right now. Let me see if I can get him to come in. Do you mind a short wait?"

"Not at all," I said, checking with Annabelle. "That sound's great."

Sally moved us to a waiting area with folding tables and chairs and coffee that smelled old and offered us some sugar cookies from a round tin. Annabelle took one.

"Won't be long," she assured us.

I watched her return to her desk.

"I'm not against getting something for the land," I said. "But I already carry a lot of guilt. I don't want to add to it."

"I'm with you, Honey," Annabelle said.

We chatted about work and yoga until Sally approached to say the president was on his way. She ushered us to his office to wait, closing the door as she left.

The room was huge and well-appointed, with heavy oak and leather chairs and a large mahogany desk. Bookcases lined the walls and Annabelle went straight for them, perusing the titles with a sideways head. I sat in one of the two high-back chairs facing the desk. My wife joined me after a while. She'd been seated only a moment when her face went pale and she turned a nameplate towards me: Lucas Ato, President.

"So?" I asked.

She rolled her eyes. "His last name is Ato. Ma'Chaka told Mary his name was Ma'Chaka To'lo Ato. Given the small population of this region, there's a fantastic chance Lucas is directly related to Ma'Chaka and your family owned his family. Old names stay concentrated in areas like this."

"Holy shit."

"Yes," she agreed. "Awkward."

We waited another minute but Annabelle could no longer sit still. The tension in the air was thick. She moved to the bookcases again, picking up where she left off, and slowly worked around the room. I'd hear the occasional "Hm," or "Wow."

She'd reached a glass display case when the office door opened and Lucas Ato walked in. He was the man from the thrift store days ago and looked even bigger coming right at me.

"Welcome," he said, dark face split by a brilliant grin. He leaned in.

I took his offered hand and we shook. Annabelle turned at his voice and stumbled just a bit. She recognized him too, of course. Lucas noticed her and fixed his eyes on hers. He stood tall, squaring his shoulders.

She'd let her hair down on the drive in but still wore a thin housedress we'd picked up at the thrift store. The neckline was modest but the dress was slightly too small, showing off her petite body nicely. Lucas took a heartbeat or two to admire my lovely wife and then spoke again.

"I got your names and the reason for your visit from Sally. Are you interested in old books, Annabelle?"

"Very much," she said quickly. "You have some remarkable volumes here. Some of these are quite rare." She jerked her thumb at the book in the display case.

Lucas chuckled softly, gesturing to a chair. "A hobby of mine, I'm afraid. Some would say obsession. I spend far too much on it."

Annabelle joined us, turning her chair slightly so she faced Lucas directly. We began our discussion about the fate of Mason Estate.

Sally was correct: Lucas was an expert. He named historical programs and dedication statutes that would keep the land in my name but allow for public use. He understood intuitively the discomfort Annabelle and I felt, discovering our ugly past, and offered an array of solutions, including some that came with federal money to build a park or playground. Lucas said he would make some calls, provided I used his credit union to handle the transaction, and would have more details for us tomorrow.

The conversation had moved swiftly and I was shocked to see the time. We'd been talking for almost three hours and I suddenly realized how hungry I was. Annabelle placed a hand over her stomach and I knew she felt the same. Lucas saw the gesture as well.

"I'm a terrible host," he said, rising. "I've kept you here so long. Please let me take you to dinner to christen our new business relationship."

Before I could politely refuse, Annabelle accepted for us both. Lucas laughed.

"But now I have a better idea," he said. "I've a private library at home. Few have seen it. Fellow bibliophiles are hard to find. Isn't that right, Annabelle?"

"Yes."

My wife was smitten. She'd have agreed to anything he said.

"I'll call ahead and have my kitchen staff start preparing dinner now so it will be ready when we arrive. After, I'll let you inspect my home library. Would you like that Mrs. Mason? My collection includes an original Civil War daguerreotype plate."

Annabelle's jaw dropped. "I'd...I'd love that."

"Excellent."

Lucas dialed his desk phone and spoke briefly and then cradled the receiver.

"I'll drive," he stated. "We can continue discussing the Estate. I have a few additional ideas you need to hear."

I was watching Annabelle. I remembered her reaction to the man at the thrift store and now, in his office and hearing him speak, all that came rushing back. She clung to his every word. She studied his high cheekbones and expressive eyes. She watched his big lips as he spoke and sent her eyes roaming his large muscular body. Jealousy tickled my brain for maybe the second time in our marriage but this time it carried a strong electrical charge.

Annabelle was discreet. My wife was careful. All her glimpses came when she thought my attention was elsewhere, but I knew that look on her face. I knew when she found another man attractive. She'd liked him after a glance at the thrift store and now, after discovering so much more about him, she wanted the man even more.

Perhaps all the lurid tales of life in Mason Manor had planted seeds of thought, but for the first time ever I watched my wife scrutinize another man and I pictured them touching and kissing. I'd never imagined such a thing but now the notion came easily. To add fuel to the fire, Lucas was clearly as interested in her. I had no illusions about the invitation to dinner. He was not ready to part company with my wife.

Lucas opened a drawer and removed his car keys and Annabelle slung her purse over her shoulder. We left the building after he gave his secretary a few instructions.

"I'll sit up front with Mister Ato," Annabelle blurted.

My mouth was parched. My tongue swollen. I tried to say okay but my lips stuck together. I forced them open and croaked: "All right."

Annabelle moved in slow motion. The breeze caught her shiny blonde hair and flipped it across her face and she laughed as she hooked it behind an ear. We'd stepped from air conditioning to the muggy Alabama heat but her nipples stretched her thin dress anyway. Her sexy ass bounced beneath the fabric. I knew Lucas saw everything I did. His carnivore eyes were hungry. Our trip across the parking lot to the car took forever and I watched him devouring her, especially when he opened her door and Annabelle dropped into the passenger seat. Her knees parted slightly, her eyes locked to his. She'd flashed him a glimpse of lace panties, I was sure.

He circled around the car, leaving me to handle my own door, and then we were driving. I sat in back listening to them first discuss favorite authors and rare manuscripts they'd seen, then move on to personal information, family, school, hopes and dreams.

My wife was enthralled.

"My family did terrible things to your family," I confessed.

Annabelle fell silent.

"Our families did terrible things to each other," he answered.

And that was that.

But not in equal measure, I thought, which was true, but if he was comfortable dismissing everything with a single sentence, then I was comfortable too.

Ato's estate looked now like Mason's did back in its heyday. Huge oak trees framed the long drive to the pillared and Colonial style house. Expansive rose gardens circled the far wall and horses roamed freely beyond a white fence. I heard Annabelle gasp at the beauty of the place. Lucas jogged the steps to the door and I fell in trailing Annabelle.

"I'm so fucking turned on," she innocently admitted, too low for Lucas to hear. "What a man. I'm going to need my husband to fuck my brains out when we get back to the hotel. Promise."

I was tongue-tied. She meant no disrespect, she was simply stating a fact, wanting to hide nothing from me. I know she felt the same way about Jake Gyllenhaal, but there's a huge difference between a movie star and a man walking up the stairs ahead of you. I couldn't speak so I just nodded. She took my arm, holding my hand.

Lucas steered us into a vast library and then excused himself to change out of his suit. He invited us to serve ourselves at the liquor cabinet and then headed for the massive ballroom style staircase. We watched him climb.

"His body is amazing," Anna belle murmured.

Lucas moved around a corner and was lost from sight. An idea popped into my head. I turned to pour us drinks, waiting for the idea to leave my head. I gurgled in my throat as I forced the damn thing down but it was insistent. I gulped some fine whiskey, tried again to rid myself of this terrible idea, and finally gave in. Honestly, I felt I had little choice in the matter.

I'd awakened a sleeping monster and the creature was ready to roar.

"We should have asked Lucas what he wanted," I muttered, hearing the words leave my mouth and float through the air. "Will you run up and ask him?"

I knew what I was doing, but Annabelle didn't know what I was doing. She thought I was being kind. Her face lit up at my thoughtful gesture but then realized she'd be following Lucas into his bedroom. Her expression turned serious but she still assumed I'd made the suggestion out of consideration and didn't realize what I was sending her into, like I'd forgotten he was changing clothes. That I'd forgotten didn't matter to her. I watched her face. She wrestled briefly with her conscience, then made a choice.

"Okay," she said, fighting nervous excitement. "Wait here. I'll be right back."

The moment was heartbreaking and exhilarating. My sweet wife had just chosen to climb those stairs, deliberately leaving me in the dark, utterly failing to mention or remind me Lucas went upstairs to change. She was hoping to walk in on him. We both played a game now, pretending to be innocent.

I watched her dress swoosh as she took the stairs and vanished through the same archway Lucas had so recently gone. I lifted the tumbler of whiskey to my lips but my hand shook badly. What had I done? Why had I done it? I used both hands to steady the glass and finished my drink. My throat burned.

One minute became two.

I tried to estimate how much time needed to pass before Annabelle was officially late returning, then added three minutes, just to be safe. All that time passed and more. I stared at the empty mocking staircase, partly trying to force Annabelle to reappear and partly savoring the burning sensation of erotic angst.

I poured another drink.

I finished that one too and still I waited, hoping my lovely wife would emerge but also, in a twisted absurdity of tormented arousal, hoping she would not. She didn't.

My penis unfurled inside my shorts. My mind was blank but I was engorging as my subconscious mind imagined various scenarios. I had no idea what I might be thinking. Denial is powerful and I was doing a lot of it.

Perhaps it was the strong drink, but I felt feverish and weak.

Still, I waited.

When enough time passed that it would be strange of me not to seek out my missing wife, I emptied my glass, poured a fourth, and headed up the stairs.

Chapter 20

Thick carpet squished beneath my shoes as I turned the corner and faced the long hallway. All the doors were closed except the second to the last on the right. I moved slowly, simultaneously elated and terrified.

She wouldn't, would she?

The ice cubes shifted in my drink, clinking against the glass. I put one foot in front of the other and slowly drew closer to that damn door. At last I reached the jamb and slipped an eye around. If they were just standing there talking, I'd look weird.

They weren't.

They were kissing.

Lucas had his arm circling behind her neck, pulling her mouth to his. Annabelle looked limp, arms at her sides, forgotten drink dripping onto the carpet. The huge man seemed to hold her weight with that one arm. He wore loose blue boxers and a tight white T-shirt. Linen pants rested on the bed.

My wife was a picture of total womanly surrender.

My heart shattered. My drink nearly slipped from my dead hands. She worked her tongue in his mouth, kissing the man with everything she had.

Her free hand drifted to the front of his boxers and explored what lay beneath. After a moment, her dainty fingers enveloped a thick tube, the outline visible through his underwear. My wife tugged a few times then let go to find the opening. She fumbled for an instant and then pulled his dark meat through, her slender white fingers hauling a monster into plain view. Lucas had inherited that family trait too. Annabelle wrapped her graceful fingers and pumped. We all heard her deep groan of desire. My wife held another man's cock in her hand and I couldn't look away. I voiced no protest. I just stared, heart hammering, mouth dry, a trickle of sweat crawling between my shoulder blades.

I'd inherited more than just the Estate from Colonel Mason. Like Lucas, my ancestors had passed something onto me, too. I'd never contemplated or imagined such a thing but now, with the inevitable rushing towards me, a titanic surge of adrenaline and dread raced through my body. Excitement like I had never known, excitement that stole my breath and swelled my heart, blazed from deep within. My penis engorged, filling with heat and blood.

Lucas moved his lips to her neck and gently nudged a strap from her shoulder. Her dress hung precariously. He trailed hot kisses across lovely clavicles and then nudged the other strap free. Her shift fell to her feet, revealing bare breasts and lacy panties. Annabelle was breathing fast and shallow, her skin flush. Her nipples were bright pink against her pale skin and Lucas engulfed almost half a tit in his mouth.

Her legs gave out. She looked so small and powerless against this mountainous man. If not for the iron strength of the arm behind her head, she would have fallen.

Lucas quit that breast, kissing a path over her sensitive skin to the next. The nipple he left behind stood tall, straining for contact, gleaming with saliva. His free hand traveled her smooth stomach until it found her lacy panties. He hooked a thumb and coiled the thin strap around it, then pulled hard, shredding the flimsy material, ripping away her last defense. She gasped, body quivering.

"Wait," she whimpered. "My husband. Nathan. I just left him alone."

Lucas said nothing. Instead, gently turning her face towards the door.

I was found out.

Annabelle met my gaze, her eyes pleading. I couldn't tell if she wanted me to intervene where she was powerless or if her gaze begged me to understand. Regardless, I did nothing. Lucas roughly tongued her breast and her eyes fluttered.

Then she noticed the tent in my shorts, my straining penis, full and rock hard. Confusion briefly clouded her eyes. I casually sipped my whiskey, telling her all she needed to know.

Lucas tugged the tattered remains of her panties from between her legs and she did not resist. The big man paused only long enough to whip off his T-shirt and kick away his boxers and then there he was, naked, black, formidable, intimidating. He caressed my bride with intimate touches and Annabelle melted. She held his jaw, kissing him passionately. He pulled her close, crushing her lithe body, wrapping her milky form in dark arms of steel. Annabelle burrowed her face into his chest, hiding. He kissed the top of her head and then moved down her cheekbone until their lips met again. A massive black paw came up to caress her petite tits and another slipped low, running over her round ass before swinging around to the front and disappearing between their bodies. Her loud gasp told me when he'd found her treasure. Her hips began to work his finger. He was feeling her from the inside, a place only I was allowed. Annabelle clung to his broad shoulders for support, breathing ragged, nipples bouncing in time to his pumping, penetrating digit.

She turned her body and a wide, uncircumcised pipe of black meat, covered with many veins, swung free. I realized she'd moved so I could see it. She wanted to be sure I understood what was happening, what was at stake. She stepped close to him again and caught his cock against their thighs, bending the shaft twice, like an S. His organ was mere inches from her swollen labia and my mind stumbled into freefall. I heard a distant voice in my head ask if this was truly happening, but I didn't recognize it. The voice wasn't mine.

Annabelle moved her leg just enough to allow the fat spear to swing between her thighs. He began kissing her again and his dark pole began to rise, gliding smoothly up her inner thigh, rising half-inch by half-inch, advancing like a prowler in a sleeping home. Annabelle's pussy lay naked, unprotected, exposed. It belonged to me and Lucas was coming to steal it.

I polished off the rest of my drink. No amount of alcohol could douse this fire. I was burning with lust. I stood mute, watching them kiss and that terrifying cock rise. Soon it pointed directly at her small pink slit. His girth was frightening, far bigger than her opening. I worried he'd hurt her.

I never considered telling them to stop. I never questioned whether this should be happening at all. I wanted it. He wanted it. Most of all, Annabelle wanted it. The desire on my wife's face for another man had my dick straining at the clothing that held me trapped. I'd never been harder and it wasn't for anticipation of what I was about to experience. I wasn't looking forward to my turn with Annabelle. I wanted Lucas to fuck her. I wanted him to fuck her to death. I wanted to see that big black cock spread her open and hammer her cunt. I'd never imagined Annabelle with another man and I had no idea what to do with thoughts like this.

Lucas moved and his testicles entered my view. They were large and dense, hanging heavy in their dark leather pouch. He hugged her sweetly, capturing his cock between their bellies, and Annabelle groaned. She squirmed briefly.

"Let me see it," she said. "I want a good look."

Lucas chuckled. "You sure? Don't be frightened."

She smiled and he took a step back, exposing his impressive spear. My wife openly stared. She gently cupped his scrotum, filling her palm, then gripped his shaft, tugging and staring, investigating all that loose skin. Her eyes were big with wonder.

"You like that?" he asked.

"I love it," she murmured. "I love how heavy it is. I love that's it's black. I've never seen a black one." She stroked him several more times. "I love how big it is."

It was my turn to gasp. Her comment shocked me. She's never said anything about the size of a man and to hear those words from her lips thrilled me. A jolt of pure adrenaline blasted my veins and I followed with a barely contained moan. Jesus. Those may have been the sexiest words I'd ever heard.

Annabelle and Lucas heard me and turned, wondering what must be going through my head. I felt suddenly awkward under their hard stare, realizing I was the only one still clothed. A heartbeat passed, then another, and they still stared. Unsure what to do, I began to strip, keeping one eye on my wife.

"I'd love to see it in your mouth," he told her, grinning.

"I bet," she said.

"Getting it slippery is a good idea, trust me."

Annabelle shook her head. "No," she said. "No need and no time. I'm soaked. I'll be fine. Just lay me down and put it in. I'm dying to feel you in there."

It was too much. I had to sit. Right there on the carpet. Every word out of her mouth was a thunderbolt. With no discussion, no consideration for my feelings, no establishment of rules, Annabelle was pursuing what she wanted, desperately wanted, knowing the strength of my love for her would allow it. It was an act of trust beyond my imagination and I'd never felt closer or more in love with her. My heart felt like bursting. My jumbled head began maniacal laughter.

Lucas swept her into his arms and dropped a knee onto his bed. He lifted her to the center and placed her carefully, lamb on the altar, ready for sacrifice. I gripped my penis because I had to. I was dying. Annabelle placed one pedicured foot on his muscular chest and hooked the other behind his back, pulling him forward. He walked his knees up the bed, lining himself up, until his cock aimed like a black missile at her swollen cunt. I groaned again, crushed by certainty. This black man was going to penetrate my wife. Nothing on Earth could stop it.

He held himself over her and they kissed again and I expected he'd guide his cock home but she did not give him time, searching until she wrapped her fingers and pulled him closer. Annabelle was finished waiting. She tugged the shaft closer, rubbing the head until he was aligned to her hole.

I began stroking, barely able to breathe, keenly aware of our size difference. I'd never felt inadequate. I was a good lover and I knew it. This was not about my insecurities or poor abilities. I was excited he was bigger than me. I was thrilled a large hard cock was about to enter my wife. Annabelle loved that he was big and so did I.

I stepped closer. I had to see it. I wanted the moment seared into my brain for all time. He curled his hips and her delicate fingers steered him in and then, one by one, peeled away as his inches sank deep.

The moan that poured from her throat was like no sound I'd ever heard. She may have climaxed right then. It sounded like she did. It sounded like a mule being slaughtered. My wife arched her back and curled her toes, eyes rolling to the back of her head. I almost spurt cum. Nothing in my life came close to the intensity of that crystalline moment. Annabelle had another man inside. Enveloped, swaddled, encased in her steaming pussy. My mind screamed like a gibbering chimpanzee and primal surges of jealousy and ownership made me dizzy.

Lucas soothed her with soft kisses on her face and his black ass began to rise and fall. Annabelle clawed at his arms, his legs, his butt, trying to get him deeper. Every move she made told me how much she loved his cock. Her face was pure bliss. Her lips moved but it took me a moment realize she kept whispering the same word over and over, urging him on.

"Deeper...deeper..."

I took her hand and that snapped back to the moment. She suddenly remembered me and her eyes flashed to mine, filling with water. Her body shook each time he thrust and we gazed lovingly at each other.

"Kiss her," he said, lifting himself over her body to give me room.

Our lips met as Lucas drove his fat cock deep again and again. I almost drowned in passion. I was kissing her but he was fucking her. I was bewildered by overwhelming arousal but one thing remained clear: neither Annabelle or I wanted him to stop. I kissed her one last time and moved back, keeping my hand in hers as he slowly took possession of my wife.

He suckled one breast and then the other. I listened to her moans and gasps, heard his grunts, felt her squeeze my hand as she orgasmed again. At the first sign, I turned my attention to the place where their bodies merged and stared in erotic fascination. Her swollen lips clung to him tightly, creating a seal of stretched flesh. His ebony cock gleamed like marble from her juices and I witnessed his rod plunging repeatedly into the depths of her.

I let go of her hand. She was all his now. I sat back as she curled her arms around his neck and they kissed deeply, tongues dancing in the open. Her legs spread across the bed, a sign she offered herself completely. He lifted his hips and began a fierce pounding and my lovely wife came again. She had no defenses against his meat, no protections from his masculine onslaught. She threw her head back and wailed until her screams of pleasure bounced around his huge bedroom.

At that moment, I knew what I wanted. The thought made me dizzy.

"Cum in her, Lucas," I rasped.

Annabelle's head snapped to look at me.

"Cum in her. Shoot your load deep. Don't worry about anything."

Unwise? You bet. Foolish, even. I didn't care. I wanted Annabelle full of Lucas sperm. I wanted my wife filled with his seed.

It was too much for me. I coughed and stroked faster and shot a dripping load down my leg and over my stomach. Annabelle saw what I'd done and groaned with abandon, curling her legs around his waist.

We knew the danger. We welcomed the risk.

Lucas growled like a wolf and fucked her harder and faster, big black balls smashing her asshole. After an invitation like that, he lasted only a little longer. Annabelle held his face and kissed him as his body jerked for the first time. He pulled his lips away, arching his back and bellowing his pleasure as the first gush of white-hot sperm shot into her married pussy. I loved it. He pumped faster, blasting away like a huge black shotgun, painting her womb with potent baby sap. Annabelle babbled insanely, clawing at him, begging him to give her everything, pleading with him to empty his balls.

His hips worked like a locomotive. His muscular body, glistening with sweat, moved like a gorgeous stallion. I was mesmerized watching him inseminate my wife. My mind and my heart were far more excited than my simple body could stand. I wanted to cum again and again and again, spraying semen everywhere. Frustrated, I could only watch, locking memories away for later use. Sperm dripped from her pink hole despite the tight seal her pussy had on him so I could only imagine how much cum those big balls produced. Far beyond the time I would have finished, he finally slowed and collapsed to an elbow, breathing hard. He rolled to his back, scooping my wife up and taking her with him. I got a pointblank shot of his thick veiny cock half-buried in her stretched cunt. His balls sagged in their bag. Cum trickled down his chocolate shaft. Annabelle kissed him softly, tenderly, then rested her head on his chest. I could not look away from his cock gripped by her pussy. Annabelle held on tight, unwilling to let him slip free. I played with my soft dick and stared. I'd remember this moment forever.

An uncomfortable awkwardness crept into my brain. What happens now? They seemed content to lie with each other, lost in a euphoric afterglow. What does the husband do at a time like this?

After a while and they started speaking, too low for me to hear. They gazed into each other's eyes and I saw a smile dancing on her lips. Annabelle brought her knees beside his body and lifted herself over him. He'd stayed inside her the whole time. Her breasts were red from whiskers and his vacuuming mouth, her nipples stiff. She lifted her hips to pull off his cock but when she reached the head she sank her pussy to the base again. He was still swollen. Annabelle moaned and then chuckled with delight. She lifted her hips and dropped them once more.

"It's like an elephant's tusk," she said. "A big black bull tusk."

He grinned and moved his hands to her hips. She hugged herself and pumped her hips up and down his length. Then did it again. She braced her hands on his chest and began to fuck him seriously. Soon she was grunting and groaning, using his massive cock, pleasing herself and trying to coax another huge load from his fat balls. Without breaking stride, she turned to me.

"Kiss me, Nathan," she teased. "Kiss your dirty wife while she fucks a black god."

I climbed onto the bed and leaned down to kiss her. The sight sent my mind tumbling. I cupped her tit and teased a nipple and she just kept riding him, like we did this every weekend. My penis twitched, threatening to return to life. She must have noticed because she lifted my dick and slipped me into her mouth. I brushed her hair back. I had to see. My wife worked two cocks simultaneously. I laced my fingers through her blonde hair and began slowly fucking her mouth while, I knew, Lucas filled her cunt.

Yeah, my penis came back to life.

I used her mouth until I felt another load stir and then I backed away to watch, unwilling to cum just yet. I knew this night would be long and wanted to be there for all of it. Colonel Eli Mason had given me brown hair and white skin and a powerful desire to see my beloved wife filled with dick. I was going to enjoy every second.

Chapter 21

Lucas fucked Annabelle all night. He couldn't get enough of her, she couldn't get enough of him, and I couldn't get enough of anything. I lost myself in hot voyeuristic bliss. She looked stunning, astonishing, radiant, sexy. His big cock opened her pussy from every position. She stayed wet all night.

She woke him once with a blowjob. I'd awakened at the first sound and watched as she crawled over his dark leg and eased his soft serpent into her mouth. He stayed spongy a long time and she played with him, licking and sucking and fondling. She mashed her lips against his shaft and ran her mouth up and down the length of him. Sometimes she'd stop and hold his cock vertical just to admire the damn thing. She'd done the same to me on many occasions and watching her treat him the same made me hard. When he finally woke, he hardened fast, eager for more. He tried to roll her over but she wanted his sperm in her mouth.

"Feed me," she laughed. "I want to drink you. I want your cum in my belly, too. I need to learn your flavor."

He leaned against the headboard, arms behind his head, and let her have her way. Annabelle took her time, playfully savoring every black inch of his dick. My balls were aching by the time he finally thundered his pleasure and exploded down her throat. She masturbated to climax as she swallowed him.

We'd skipped dinner so breakfast was huge. His kitchen staff brought waffles and fresh fruit and bacon by the plateful. We ate like savages under the watchful eyes of his employees. They knew what had happened the night before. They knew Lucas was fucking my wife. I burned with embarrassment. I burned with embarrassment but beneath the table I grew hard again, delighting in the knowledge they were aware of my circumstances. I especially enjoyed the two pretty brunette maids and their knowing smiles. Mister Ato fucked your wife, their eyes seemed to say. Your wife betrayed you and loved it. He's going to fuck her again. We've seen him do this to lots of husbands.

His driver took us back to our car and from there we returned to our hotel. We attacked each other. I literally ripped her dress off and pulled her to the floor. I spread her legs to see her sopping cunt and my mind reeled at the sight. She looked so thoroughly fucked I wanted to scream. Her pussy was gorgeous. I forced her legs apart and wedged my mouth to her slit and licked until she came howling. She burst into tears, overwhelmed by everything we'd done, but I had no time for that now. I licked and sucked and teased until she was smacking my head, begging me to fuck her. I didn't. Not yet. I needed to hear her cum. I was desperate for her pleasure. Her used cunt was proof of her unfaithful deeds, and I loved it. I savored his fluid in her. I tasted the mix of them, Lucas mingled with Annabelle and I couldn't get enough.

Not until I ripped another orgasm from her did I finally flip her over and fuck her like a dog. I pulled her hair and pounded her loose pussy, finally adding my hot load to all those he'd put in her. I'll never forget the sensation of his sperm lubricating my dick. I've never climaxed so hard in my life.

We napped for hours. I awoke to Annabelle playing with my penis like a toy. One look at her face told me she was comparing me to Lucas but I welcomed it. I said nothing, letting her have her way, secretly enjoying that she cared enough about size to contrast us. I was glad I lost.

"He's so big," she finally said.

"That matters?"

"I never thought so, but there was something about it, something a woman can't know until she experiences one. I'm not saying that's all a man needs to be a good lover but if I have my choice, yeah, I'll pick the good lover with the big dick now. That black beast tickled my brain, too. Parts of me awoke for the first time. You know I love penises anyway, but the size of his, the hefty weight in my hand. He was more than just a man. It was overpowering, intoxicating."

She rested her head on my stomach, gazing up my body at me.

"I was thrilled he picked me," she continued. "He wanted me as badly as I wanted him, and that turned me on even more. If a woman is going to cheat on her husband, let it be with a hot and hung lover. His cock was like viewing a forty-karat diamond. There was no way not to be impressed."

"You were gorgeous last night, Baby. I've never imagined such things for us. I'm still in shock that happened."

"I knew you'd love it," she said.

"How could you know?"

She gave a little shrug. "A hunch. Your reaction to my reaction at the thrift store. I kind of poured it on but you were fine. Then I openly flirted with him at his office and you drank it in, again, saying nothing. When you sent me up those stairs after him, I knew. You're a Mason. It's in your blood, just like Eli."

She slipped my penis into her warm mouth, rolling the head around, leisurely teasing the underside.

"That was still a big risk," I insisted. "What if he'd rejected you? What happened when you got to his bedroom?"

She closed her eyes, remembering. "We both just knew. I walked in and he was standing there in boxers and a T. Our eyes met and I floated to him and we kissed. We both just knew."

I pictured the scene too. My penis was exhausted but my mind was ready for more.

"Do you think we'll do it again?" she asked, hopeful. "Now that we've learned these things about ourselves? I'd love to but you're the husband. Sharing me is up to you."

That sent some electricity through me. I hadn't gone there yet and I loved that she did before me. I turned the notion around, examining it from all angles.

"Probably," I said. "But you'll need protection."

She gave me an impish smile. "The risk adds so much though, doesn't it?"

She had a point. I met her joyful gaze and realized she was leaving something unsaid.

"What?" I asked. "Spit it out."

"We're meeting a lawyer, realtor, and Lucas later today to finalize plans regarding the property, right?"

"So?"

"So, what if we carve out a little square footage from all that acreage for ourselves? We could build a small house for ourselves. We could find new jobs. We could move out here and start a new life."

Heat spread from my stomach. I understood what she was truly saying: Let's arrange things so I can do this all the time. Lucas would be close, constantly available. She could have the man whenever she wanted. I admit that felt appealing but it also felt dangerous. Could I lose Annabelle to him? Would Lucas fuck my wife away from me?

I was studying her pretty face when a realization struck me. Thanks to Eli's purchasing strategies, a large portion of the black male population would be well-endowed. Annabelle had probably already realized that. She'd be surrounded by a forest of big black cocks. Would she resist the temptation? Did I want her to?

"All right," I said, softly. "Let's talk to the experts and see what we need to do to make that happen."

She gently closed her lips around my penis and began to suck. My heart hammered in my chest but not because of the attention she gave me.

Chapter 22

"Professor?" Elizabeth Warrington asked, holding her school books in front with both hands so her arms squished her plentiful tits together. "Is there some way I can raise my grade?"

I looked up from her stretched crop top. My classroom was empty. The bell had rung and the school day was over but here was young Elizabeth standing before me. I tried to meet her big blue eyes but my rebellious gaze forced me to start at her bare midriff. She wore low-waisted jeans and a way-too-small T-shirt, standard fare for this Alabama high school, but she filled those clothes like few high school girls could. I enjoyed her flat stomach and the firm curve of her big tits. Every young male at this school dreamed of sweet Beth Warrington.

"I'll do whatever you ask," she added, already a master of innuendo and double-meanings. I debated my response. I'd left all this behind. Did I truly wish to start it all again? I'd enjoyed the freedom from guilt immensely.

Guilt. Ha. At that moment Annabelle held a large black cock with both hands, working the head towards the back of her throat. Lucas had called last night and mentioned he wanted to come by this morning. Annabelle had the day off from her job at the new library, and since she does not tell Lucas no, I knew exactly what was happening in my home at that moment.

I've never been able to keep up with Annabelle's sex drive, but now I don't need to. Our new arrangement has me thinking about sex all the time and my penis twitches a thousand times a day, but that's not the same as getting hard and fucking. I don't worry about it anymore. Annabelle is getting all the sex she can handle. We still haven't done anything about that risk we take, and we know we need to, but like Russian Roulette, it gets more exciting each time we pull the trigger and doesn't get pregnant.

We'd gained a little fame from the dedication of Tillmans Corner Park for Children. The new Mason Foundation, seeded with some money from the sale of our Vegas home and organized and run by Lucas Ato, had begun collecting funds for lights at the high school football stadium. Night games are the only way to beat the heat.

Annabelle started yoga classes and all the bored housewives signed up. I knew my wife would teach them all sorts of new things. Lucas and some of his black stud friends are counting on that too.

My eyes darted to the twin swells of Elizabeth's firm breasts. She was a gorgeous girl with full lips and big eyes, long curly blonde hair spilling around her pretty face. Her body was all curves; big tits, round ass, flat tummy.

"You want to see them?" she asked. "They're awesome."

I knew she spoke the truth. I'd visited her Instagram and seen all the bikini pictures. Her friends were hot too. Here was my chance to see them in the flesh. Of course, it meant I'd start down that same path I'd left behind in Vegas.

"Not today," I said. "Tomorrow wear that black skirt and white top combination from weeks ago. You know which outfit I mean?"

She smiled. "I do."

"Perfect." I turned serious. "Before my class you'll visit the girl's restroom and remove your panties. You sit in the front row so I expect to be teased."

I swear a shiver ran up her body.

"Do you own a sheer bra?"

She swallowed hard. "Yes. I don't wear it to school because my nipples poke through my clothes."

"Wear it anyway. Just one day won't hurt. During class, you'll visit my desk and lean over, showing me your textbook. Last time you wore that top I got a great look at your tits. A see-through bra will show me everything. We'll make conversation but my eyes will be eating you alive. Do you understand?"

Clearly, the young men at this school did not talk to Elizabeth Warrington this way. She nodded weakly, already aroused for tomorrow. I wouldn't touch her. I'll never touch any of them. But between the babes at school and my slut wife at home my libido has never been so active.

"Good," I said. "Tell no one. Send me no texts or pictures. Don't like anything I post. Ignore me completely. Beyond this classroom, you don't know me at all. Say it."

Her eyes were dancing now: the older man had taken charge. "I don't know you outside this classroom," she said.

I smiled. "Excellent. We have a long semester ahead of us, Beth. You'll earn that letter grade. Possibly even two."

She stood tall, enjoying my gaze crawling over her body again. There was a big black cock balls-deep inside my wife by now, and I'd hurry home to join them in a minute. I stood so Elizabeth could see the bulge she'd caused and her eyes went right to it. I let her take a long look.

"Too bad you're married, Professor Mason," she said. "You know how to handle a girl. Your wife's a lucky woman."

"You have no idea," I agreed.

End.

Join My Mailing List
Get a FREE Hotwife Story!

Visit My New Website!
<https://authormatthewlee.com>

Follow My Twitter here

Find me on: GoodReads