

A close-up photograph of a woman lying down with her eyes closed. She is wearing a dark lace bra. A prosthetic mouth with bright red lips and white teeth is placed over her natural mouth. Two text overlays are present: a dark brown banner at the top left and a pink banner across the middle.

WHAT FLIRTING LEADS TO

Sean Geist

What Flirting Leads To

By

Sean Geist

Published by Sean Geist

Copyright 2015 Sean Geist

Cover Photo Voy / Bigstock.Com

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form without written consent of the author, except for brief quotes used in reviews.

All characters in this book are fictitious and any resemblance to any actual persons is entirely coincidental.

All characters in this story are over the age of 18 unless specified.

Acknowledgement

I would like to start by thanking my editor, who just happens to be my wife. I am lucky to have married a woman with almost unlimited patience and the ability to spot where a comma should go. She will always be my muse. I would also like to thank my friends for all the encouraging words, even after reading my rough drafts. And a final thanks to you, my reader. I write for myself, but it's nice to know other people enjoy what I do.

As always, any mistakes that remain in this text are entirely my fault.

Table of Contents

Chapter 1

Chapter 2

Chapter 3

Chapter 4

Chapter 5

About the Author

Other Stories by Sean Geist

Chapter 1

“You coming to the party, Keith?”

I was just starting to eat when my best friend came into the lunch room at work. In fact, it was the only place I seemed to run into him anymore. For the past six months our company's whole IT department, where Keith worked, had been working sixty plus hours a week, tasked with solving one of the computer world's most urgent problems – getting computers to recognize the upcoming date change.

It was near the end of December in 1999, and while my wife and I were hard at work planning an epic fin du siecle party, Keith was slaving over a computer keyboard making sure all the company's computer systems would be working smoothly at 12:00AM on January 1st.

The reason for this was pretty arcane and I'm not sure about the specific details, but Keith told me it had something to do with ancient computers and limited memory.

Back in the sixties, when businesses were just starting to computerize, programmers took a short cut and abbreviated the date from four digits (1965) to two (65). They figured they wouldn't be around when it became a real problem, thirty or so years in the future. And they were right.

As time passed, instead of rewriting the software, when memory stopped being an issue, so that computers could tell the difference between the 20th and 21st centuries, most businesses and governmental agencies took the cheaper route of just ignoring the problem, so we had large banks, the IRS, and even local traffic control systems running on obsolete software.

As the year 2000 approached, the fear was important computer systems around the globe would hit a glitch at midnight and freeze up. The news channels didn't help matters as they speculated about a massive stock market crash, ATM's that wouldn't dispense cash, Air Traffic control systems failing, and the nation's power grid shutting down. Fun times.

Long story short – Keith was not planning on attending our party.

“Gonna be a real blowout,” I said.

“I know.” Keith grabbed a banana and Coke from the fridge and started to head back to his office

“We're gonna party like it's nineteen ninety nine,” I sang in my best Prince impersonation. I dropped the falsetto and said, “because it is.”

Keith just rolled his eyes and left. I went back to eating my bologna sandwich and reading the New York Times.

When I got home, Jennifer, my wife, was sitting at the kitchen table staring down at a stack of papers. In her left hand she held a black ball point pen and was absent-mindedly tapping it against the table. She was playing with a strand of her hair with her right hand, her pink skin a stark contrast against her raven black locks. She looked so beautiful lost in her thoughts.

She was wearing a pair of head phones and hadn't heard me come in. I loved to catch her in these moments, when she didn't know she was being watched, when she was daydreaming, or concentrating on an especially tough crossword puzzle. The intensity of her steel grey eyes could be mesmerizing

I would have loved to just stand and stare at her forever, but then, this would be a very short story, and I didn't.

I walked over and tapped her on the shoulder. She was briefly startled and took off the head phones. I could hear Prince, of course, playing on her Sony Walkman.

“I didn't hear you come in,” she said, looking up at me.

“Of course you didn't. How can you concentrate with the music blaring in your ears?”

“Hey, lay off. I'm just getting in the mood.”

She was working on a multi-colored list of names, everyone invited to our New Year's Eve party.

My wife was very organized. As an officer in the National Guard, that skill was handy; for party planning, it was essential.

All the names, about thirty in total, were written in blue. Couples attending together were highlighted in pink, single guys in green, single ladies in yellow. A few of the names were crossed out in black; they weren't coming.

My wife and I were supplying the location, food, soft drinks and mixers. People bring beer had a little red B next to their name, W for wine, S for spirits. Our friend, Issac's name was underlined twice in blue. He was in charge of the music, since he had a portable boombox and about 50 or more CD's.

I bent down to give Jen a quick kiss on the neck, but she surprised me by turning and locking her lips to mine. She tasted sweet, like warm honey.

“Been snacking on the caramels again?” I said after reluctantly pulling away.

“Yeah, I can't help it. Blame your Mom for always sending them at Christmas.”

“Speaking of Christmas, we have any plans?”

Neither Jennifer nor I really much cared to celebrate Christmas. My wife's family were Jewish, I was raised in a mixed family – my mother was Catholic, my father, an atheist. I celebrated as a kid; I loved getting presents, but once I went off to college I just kind of gave it up. We don't have any kids of our own, so it just isn't important to us.

So every year, we buy a few gifts for family; Jen keeps the list of course, and ship them off in early December.

While we do attend a few Christmas parties, we concentrate on celebrating the New Year.

“I was thinking we could go see a movie,” Jennifer said. “Didn't you want to go see Galaxy Quest?”

“Yeah, the trailer looks awesome.”

“Okay, that's what we're doing on Christmas.

“Now that that's settled, “ I said, “I've got some bad news.”

“What?” The smile that had been playing in my wife's eyes dimmed a bit.

“Nothing really important,” I picked up the black marker and crossed Keith's name off the list.

“Crap,” Jennifer said with a look of real disappointment. “I guess that means Carmen's a no show as well.”

“Keith said they'll both be working late into New Year's morning. He has to nurse our computer network into the new millennium and his girlfriend pulled a late shift at the hospital.”

The look of disappointment lingered as I explained why my best friend wasn't going to make the party. I didn't understand why, since our house was going to be crowded enough with the throng of people who would be attending. I just hoped she'd be as upset if I wasn't able to attend.

Since Jennifer had spent all day working on the party planning, we decided to go out to our favorite steak restaurant to eat.

“You know,” I said, just before cutting into the juicy filet that sat in front of me, “I never got to ask you how reserve training went last week.”

As a member of the National Guard, Jennifer had to attend one two-day drill session a month and a two week training camp in the summer. She had just gotten back from December's drill the day before.

“Nothing unusual happened, really. P-T, some classroom stuff and – oh, we reorganized the camping gear, want to hear about that?”

P-T was short for physical training and that was how Jennifer was able to keep her amazingly trim body in shape, despite her love of fattening desserts. Low body fat also meant she had small breasts. I've never complained about it, and I never would. I loved my wife's lean, muscular body. She was always telling me she'd get implants if I wanted her to. I told her no, I thought she looked sexy just the way she was. Now if she wanted to do it for herself, well, that was different.

“Carl still hitting on you?” I asked. Carl was a fellow officer who, Jennifer had told me, was always making passes at her. She said he was sweet and very good looking, and he was a complete gentleman when she always begged off his invitation to go out after drilling.

She called him mostly harmless.

“Yeah. He asked me out to a New Year's Eve event downtown.”

I laughed and said, “Tell me more.” This talk of another man hitting on my wife always seemed to arouse me. I didn't know why, but it did.

“I told him no – he knows I'm married - but somehow he got me to invite him to the party.

“You did what?” My cock twitched. I moved to adjust myself, hoping Jennifer didn't notice. The thought of another guy who had the hots for my wife was one thing, it was hypothetical – a what if. Finding out this unknown factor was coming to the party sent my head spinning. “The man eager to get into your married pussy is coming to our house?”

“Yeah,” she said, a sheepish look on her face. “You're not mad, are you?”

I paused to think. Was I mad? I thought about delving into why she invited him, but I was afraid I might get too upset, so I let it slide for now. I loved Jennifer and I trusted her. I had to, because every month she went off to basically camp out with a bunch of fellow soldiers, most of them men. I decided I was not going to be mad.

“No. Just a little surprised,” I said. It was a true, if not totally complete, answer. “When were you going to tell me?”

My wife was silent for a moment, her fingers fidgeting with a lock of her hair. “I guess. I guess I was going to wait until the party.”

Jennifer's total attitude was shocking to me. She was usually upfront about her actions. Never doubting and never second guessing. This Carl was having a real disruptive effect on my wife. Maybe she needed to take it up with her commanding officer.

I thought about telling her to dis-invite him. To make up some excuse, or just come out and tell him he wasn't welcome in our house. But then I would be the bad guy, putting my wife, who was just trying to be nice, into an awkward situation. So I thought to myself, what the hell?

“I feel kinda weird about having this guy here, but if you vouch for him, fine. You're the one keeping the list.”

“Thanks,” Jennifer said, her face brightened when she realized I wasn't going to force her to rescind her invite. “Carl's a really nice guy, just overly flirtatious, and he has a hard time taking 'no' for an answer.”

And you seem to have a hard time saying no to him, I didn't say. On second thought I was wrong, she had to tell him no on several occasions. I guess saying yes to him coming to our party was better than her saying yes to any of his other requests.

Later, in bed, I was pleasantly surprised when Jennifer was receptive to my sexual advances. Usually the stress of party planning puts her off the mood and we don't actually have sex for the entire month of December. We make up for it in January.

Tonight, the thought that at least one other guy who had the hots for my wife was going to be at our party aroused me. I didn't understand it, but I didn't question it. I knew I didn't want her fucking another man, but flirting, that was harmless I thought.

The talk of Carl also seemed to arouse Jennifer. I moved my hand down her smooth taut stomach and under the waist band of her cotton panties. I found her pussy sopping wet.

My wife and I have a very healthy and active sex life, at least I think so, and I believe she would agree. We don't schedule a night for sex, but on average, other than December, we do it once or twice a week. Sometimes we'll go a few weeks without, those are hard weeks for me, but then on a weekend we'll end up fucking like rabbits – a healthy sex life.

On nights we do have sex, it takes a little work to get Jen up and running; we don't do quickies without lube of some kind. I'll kiss her neck, massage her back, slowly work my way to her more sensitive parts – her modest but oh so enticing breasts. I'll usually put in a good fifteen or twenty minutes of foreplay to get Jennifer to the point where she can easily take my cock. Don't get me wrong, I'm not complaining. Foreplay is great, I'm just giving you the facts.

Tonight, was different. Tonight, she was ready before her butt hit the bed.

Like I said, I was running my fingers across her mound and found her folds warm and moist. Before I had even touched her breasts, Jennifer was ready. Something, other than my manual manipulation had got her excited. The only thing I could think of that might put her in this state was our talk of Carl. No matter the reason, I would be the one benefiting from her arousal. No, strike that. We would both be benefiting from her arousal.

Even though she was ready, I still wanted to take time to play with my wife's breasts. They're small, well-formed mounds that suit her tall, trim body rather nicely, and they're very sensitive; I think I said that. I love to talk about her breasts. I love to pepper them with kisses and suckle on her jelly bean sized nipples.

I started with the left, touching my lips on the top edge, high on her chest and slowly worked my way down toward her core, nesting my face in the small valley of her cleavage. I nipped at one of her nipples and Jen let out a short sharp moan, like she was catching her breath. She continued to moan and sigh as I nipped and flicked my tongue against her little buttons, first the left, then the right. I started to suck on one and grope her other one with my free hand.

“Oh god, Michael, that feels wonderful.” she said between breaths. “I really want to feel you inside me now.”

“Not done yet,” I said and started inching my way down, pressing kisses on her tight abs, on my way to my destination.

Her pussy was beautiful. Her labia was engorged and moist, it's dark color contrasted with the bright pink of her slit – open and dripping dew. I saw a few drops pooling at the bottom of her lips, near her ass. It looked so delectable. I moved to lap it up, but before I could get there Jennifer grabbed my head and said, “Stop.” She tilted my head up til our gazes met. “I really, REALLY, need you to fuck me now. You can go down on me after.”

My cock was achingly hard and ready, so I didn't argue.

I crawled up the bed, over my wife's beautiful, sweaty body, and kissed her on the mouth. Passion over took us. Jennifer forced her tongue into my mouth, claiming it. While she held my head, I held her hips and started rubbing my dick back and forth across the warm folds of her lower lips.

“Stop teasing me,” my wife said. She reached down, grabbed my erection and guided it home. She was more than ready, with no effort at all I slid all the way in. When my pubic bone made contact with her clitoris we both let out a moan of pleasure.

I started moving in and out, Jennifer matched each thrust with one of her own. We were working our bodies in rhythm, one only a couple truly aware of each other's needs and desires could achieve.

“Fuck me, Michael,” she whispered into my ear, and I obliged.

“You are. Really wet. Tonight.” I said in cadence with my thrusting.

“I know.” Jennifer gasped, extending the oh into Oh-God. “I can't explain it.

I could have guessed why, but I didn't. I just closed my eyes and kept on fucking her. I concentrated on the pleasure focused in my cock and spreading out from my groin into my hips and up my spine. I pictured my wife, her head thrown back, eyes closed, sweat dripping down the sides of her face. Her mouth was open, crying out in pleasure.

As I continued pounding away at my wife, I realized I wasn't really the one driving her pleasure. I imagined a different man, a faceless man – Carl – between her outstretched legs, thrusting his hips with a force I had never been able to apply. I imagined this other man, this stranger, this unknown, fucking my wife while I watched, and I swear my cock got harder.

“Oh, Michael, you're a real dynamo tonight.”

“Should I slow down, be more gentle?” I asked opening my eyes to look at my wife.

“Only if you want to die,” she said, wrapping her legs around me and squeezing. The smile in her eyes indicating she was joking, but I was pretty sure I wouldn't be able to pull out if I had wanted to, and I didn't. I closed my eyes and kept on pounding.

“Yes... Yes... Yes...” Jennifer's cries of satisfaction were in rhythm with each stroke. And again I was watching Carl, my faceless rival, fuck my wife and I could feel my climax approaching.

I didn't want to come before Jennifer so I tried to think of something else and let the pleasure fade. No matter what I did I still came back to Carl fucking my wife. I thought about baseball, but saw Carl and Jen going at it on the Jumbotron. I thought about my Dad dying (he wasn't dead) and all I saw was Jen bent over a headstone with Carl behind her pounding away at her pussy.

It was awful, but awfully arousing at the same time. I was really close to coming and I didn't think I could stop it.

At that moment I felt the walls of my wife's vagina contract. "mi-Chael" she screamed. And instead of my name I heard "my Carl" and I came so fucking hard. I cried out in joy and jealousy and painted my wife's womb with six or seven thick strings of semen.

Afterward, we lay cuddling, my arms wrapped around my wife, her back against my chest. I could feel her steady breathing.

"Michael, that was amazing sex," she said. "Don't take this wrong, but it's the best since we were dating."

"Better than Hawaii?" I asked, reminding her of our honeymoon.

"Sorry, but yes, better than Hawaii. You were intense. What got into you?"

"I don't know." I did know, but I was too embarrassed to say it. "I take it you liked it."

"Hell, yeah! I loved it." My wife turned around and grabbed my head to pull me into a passionate kiss. "I don't think my cunt could take a pounding like that every night," Jennifer was not bashful about using the C-word, "but every once in a while."

I promised her this wouldn't be her last hard fucking, but I wasn't confident that I would be able to top tonight's performance. I wasn't getting any younger.

I really couldn't get over the effect Carl – or more accurately, the idea of Carl – was having on me. It was a fiery mixture of pleasure and jealousy and guilt that fueled my passion. The pleasure of seeing my gorgeous wife lost in sexual bliss, jealous of seeing, or imagining, someone else creating that bliss, and guilt over my own arousal. It was an uncomfortable feeling and one I would have to think about later.

Despite the incredible sex we had, I still fell asleep with a raging hard on. I dreamt of my wife having sex with someone else. I woke up with a small pool of dried semen on my stomach, my first nocturnal emission since high school.

Chapter 2

After breakfast, I thought about bringing up the topic of our incredible love making, but I never got the nerve to actually do it. I couldn't help feeling weird about how the thought of a stranger like Carl – well a stranger to me – fucking my wife had turned me on. Would Jennifer think I was sick for feeling this way? Maybe she would conclude I didn't love her; that was the farthest from the truth. Or maybe – and this thought sent shivers down my spine – she might actual be intrigued by this fantasy and want to act on it.

Just to be safe I kept my pervy thoughts to myself and hoped they would pass, although I was fully aware I would have to deal with them again in ten days time.

To help suppress those thoughts, I threw all my effort into work. Each lunch time I ran into Keith and again asked him if he might show up at the party, and each time he said no.

In my mind I felt I could deal with the tension Carl represented if my best friend was around, but it seemed that wasn't going to happen.

Christmas Eve was on a Friday that year, and most everyone in the office took off early, everyone but me and the IT department. They were all on mandatory overtime making sure our computer systems would survive the date change. I was sticking around to finish up a few contracts that needed to be ready first thing Monday morning.

For my wife and I, the holiday weekend was the calm before the storm. On Christmas Saturday we went to an early afternoon showing of Galaxy Quest, a sci-fi comedy that we thought was the best thing since Ghostbusters. We had a leisurely dinner at our favorite Chinese restaurant, and then went home. On Sunday we slept in, getting up at around 10 o'clock. All day we lounged around the house in our pajamas and relaxed. We ordered pizza to be delivered, drank beer and watched cable all day. And because we would be busting our ass all week to get ready for our party on Friday, we purposefully took the time to make love – since we probably wouldn't get a chance to do it again until sometime in the new year – the new millennium.

It took some effort, but I was able to concentrate on my lovely wife and avoid any thoughts of Carl.

We did it twice, once in the afternoon just before ordering lunch and once at night. We took it slow. Jennifer came once both times, so did I. We were both satisfied.

“You ready for next week?” I said. I was returning to the bedroom with a glass of water for my wife. She was lying on her back, her arms tucked under her head, her naked body, glistened with sweat. She looked radiant, like a goddess, in her post-coital glow.

“As ready as I can be.” she said and leaned up to accept her water. She took a sip, gave me a quick kiss and said, “Thanks.”

“It's in the hands of fate now,” I took a drink and set my water glass down on the night stand before crawling into bed next to my wife. I turned out the light and snuggled up next to Jennifer. Her naked back pressed against my chest, my cock tucked comfortably between her butt cheeks.

The following week was a blur. Both of us worked full-time jobs, so all our party prep had to be done in the evenings. Monday night we re-organized our house to accommodate the twenty or thirty people we expected to show up. Jennifer's list showed twenty-four, but we knew from past years that some might change their minds at the last minute and not show up while others would bring additional friends we hadn't counted on.

As long as Issac made it there with the tunes, we'd make it work.

We cleared out all the furniture from the middle of the living room and moved it against the walls.

Wednesday night was cleaning night. We made sure both the master bathroom and guest bath were spotless. We dusted and vacuumed and made sure any fragile or valuable items were put away. We placed plenty of trash cans with plastic liners around the house, and a few ash trays on the back porch – our designated smoking area.

Thursday was shopping night. First we stopped at Costco; our list, a work of art only a quartermaster like my wife could dream up. We bought veggie platters and meat platters and cheese platters. We bought a case of Pepsi, a case of Diet Pepsi and a case of Dr. Pepper. We bought plenty of paper plates and napkins. We also bought two cases of bottled water.

On our way home, we stopped at the grocery store to get tonic water and soda water, bloody mary mix, sour mix, and olive juice.

Friday afternoon, after an exhausting week, I was the one to leave work early.

Instead of heading to the lunch room at noon, like I normally did, I stopped in to the IT department to make one more attempt at getting Keith to come to our party.

I found him holed up in his office, his glazed-over eyes staring intently at the computer monitor on his desk, his fingers flying over the keyboard. Several large manuals lay open on the desk next to him.

“Hey, Keith,” I said, “still working on that Y2K bug?”

“Yeah.” My friend didn't look up, his fingers kept dancing on the keys. “Can't talk now buddy, got a drop-deadline that's approaching like a fucking bullet train.”

“So, you seriously can't make the party.” I had to ask. I really wanted him there. He was my best friend and I needed someone by my side to deal with Carl.

“Ha.” was all he said.

I figured any further conversation would be totally one-sided, me talking to a brick wall, so I said bye and left. I don't think he noticed I had left; actually I wouldn't have been surprised if he didn't realize I had been there in the first place.

The invite said the party was starting at six, but we were ready by five when we knew Linda and Ted would show up. Linda was a close friend Jennifer had known since grade school, Ted was her husband of six years. They always showed up early to our parties claiming to want to help us set up, but instead of saving us time they really only slowed us down. So we had to make sure the critical stuff was done before they arrived.

I was just brining up the last of the folding chairs from the basement when the door bell rang.

“Jen, the helps here,” I called out.

“It's five already?” my wife said from down the hall in our master bedroom. Since she was still getting dressed it was up to me to let our guests in.

I opened the door just as Ted was reaching out to push the bell again.

“Ted, Linda,” I opened the screen door to them in. “You're a little early, but that's alright.”

“Sorry, dear,” Linda said as she moved purposefully into our home like she owned it. “We just wanted to help, you know – help you get set up.” As if I didn't know that already, as if we didn't schedule our parties with her in mind. Ted, her every patient husband followed. I extended my hand in welcome. We shook.

I accepted his wife's extremely forward behavior for two reasons. One, she was a long time friend of Jennifer's, she knew my wife long before I came on the scene. And two, she was too perky and cute to get mad at. Tonight she was dressed in very snug, ankle-length blue jeans that held her tight lean ass in a death grip. Her moderate-sized breasts were held in check by a black bra that was clearly visible through her red silk blouse, her nipples pert in the chill December air, and I was wondering why Ted had let her out of the house without a jacket. Her long blond hair was wrapped up in a braid that hung half-way down her back. Her usually pale skin was tanned a golden brown.

“So where is your wife, Michael,” she asked as she gave me a quick greeting peck on the cheek. I pointed to the bedroom.

Linda scurried off down the hall. I turned to Ted. “So you want a beer?” I took the case of Rolling Rock from him. It was still a little warm. “I think I might have something a bit colder in the fridge.”

“Sure,” Ted said. He was a quiet man, third-generation Japanese-American. His accent was pure middle America. It was nice to get to talk to him without his wife around. He barely got a word in when she was.

“Hope Buds okay,” I said, pulling my last cold can out of the fridge. “So, how are the kids?”

“They're great,” Ted said. The kids I was referring to were the ones he and his wife taught at Wilson Elementary. While we talked, I loaded up a cooler full of ice with the bottles he had brought. “We've got another week off, so I'm taking my dad up to Michigan to do a little ice-fishing.”

“That sounds like too much work for me,” I said. I wasn't really an outdoorsy person. “Jen loves camping, but I don't, so we compromise by renting a cabin whenever she feels the call of the wild.”

Ted started telling me some of the details of his trip when we heard excited screams coming from the bedroom.

“What the fuck?” I said. I was so startled I almost dropped a bottle. I rushed past Ted and down the hall.

“I guess she must have told her,” Ted said as I went by.

When I entered the room, I saw my wife, in a pair of ankle-length black pants and a red bra, and her best friend embracing and crying.

“What's wrong?” I said.

They turned to look at me. They looked at each other and then back at me. I was starting to get nervous.

Jennifer finally broke the silence. “Linda told me -”

“I'm pregnant,” the blond blurted out. They both smiled, then went back to hugging each other.

“Awesome,” I said as sincerely as I could. Jennifer smiled at me over Linda's shoulder. The look in her eyes saying isn't this nice, when's it our turn? We had talked about having kids, and we could definitely have afforded to start a family. I was making good money at my job and was looking at a promotion in the coming year.

Jennifer said she wanted kids, but I also knew she was wanting to go to law school. Having children now would put that on hold for several years. So I played the bad guy and kept putting it off, mostly for my wife's benefit.

I could see the news of Linda's pregnancy excited Jen and I figured we would be having the talk again soon. Maybe it was time to relent. It would sure get my mom off my back about supplying her with grand children.

Ted came up next to me and whispered into my ear, “you know it'll be your turn, soon.”

I gave him a nasty look and he just kept on smiling. I was about to say something snarky when the doorbell rang again.

“People,” I said to no one in particular. “The invitation said six o'clock.” I looked at my watch. It was only 5:17.

“Guess they just can't wait to start partying.” Linda said, wiping away the tears of joy that clung to her cheeks.

“Jen, you need to finish dressing,” I said. “I'll go start letting our guests in.” I pulled Ted with me. “You're coming too, mister. You've had enough time staring at my wife's boobs.”

Everyone laughed, even me. Our party was officially started.

Jennifer and Linda came out of the bedroom as I was greeting our early bird arrivals and taking their jackets and coats. She had put on a red and blue striped polo shirt. Her ears were decorated with a simple pair of sapphire stud earrings.

She looked stunning – a perfect party host. I walked over to her, put my arm around her waist and gave her a kiss. “You look wonderful,” I said.

“You do too, husband,” she said and returned the kiss, this time with passion. I was kinda startled, but pleasantly so. These kinds of PDA's usually only came later in the evening, after we'd had a few drinks.

“Get a room, guys,” Linda said, to the delight of our guests.

“Why? We've got the whole house.” I said and headed off to the bedroom with the coats and jackets I had acquired. My wife led everyone to the dining room where we had the food spread out. She said beer was the only alcoholic beverage available until our other guests with the wine and spirits arrived. Linda just sipped on a can of Dr. Pepper.

Issac was the next to arrive. I helped him set up his boombox in the living room.

Over the next hour most of the rest of our guests showed up in a steady flow. Many of them were old college friends, co-workers and a few close relatives. My sister was supposed to show up, but didn't. By seven, the house was packed, with people mingling, drinking, and dancing.

Playing the host, I didn't have much time to spend with Jennifer, but that was okay. I occasionally caught a glimpse of her, showing people around the house, getting drinks or pointing out the smoking area in the back yard. I also noticed a couple of times she would look up at the clock then at the door.

At first, I wondered why, but I soon figured it out. I recognized just about everyone at the party; that meant Carl hadn't shown up yet. It was funny how anxious she was, waiting for someone to arrive who had to practically invite himself. I think she was a little more interested in Carl than she was letting on. This brought up a quick tinge of jealousy. I knew my wife was gorgeous and other guys liked looking at her, but it was always at a distance, or so I thought. For most men, myself included, a wedding ring was a signal to look, but don't touch – be a friend, but don't think about taking her as a lover. Carl didn't seem to understand that, and what shocked me more, Jennifer didn't seem to make a big deal out of it.

She told me about his constant flirting and how she always rebuffed him, but she never seemed to do anything to make him stop. In fact, I'd say that telling him about the party and even making him welcome was almost condoning his behavior.

That pained me a little, but it also aroused me. I could feel my penis stirring in my pants at the thought of my wife waiting for her flirty friend.

“Hey you,” someone said tapping me on the shoulder. I turned to look. It was the brother of one of Jennifer's friends from work. “Michael. It's Michael right?”

“Yeah, Michael's right. So you enjoying the party - “ I paused to try and remember the kid's name. He looked to be around twenty-two, a several years younger than us, with pale skin and shaggy blond hair. I could just make out a tattoo of some kind, sticking out from the short sleeve of the pink Greg Norman designer T-shirt he wore.

“Jason,” he said when he realized I didn't remember his name. “Love the party. Music's kick-ass.”

“You came with Kristine, right? I haven't had a chance to say hi to her yet.”

“Yeah, last I saw, Sis was by the booze, refilling her Rum and Coke.”

It was Pepsi, but I didn't correct him.

“That's why I thought I should say something to you.” Jason said.

“What's wrong? We gonna run out of drinks?” I said. I meant it as a joke. Jason's face turned serious.

“Yeah, you might. People are over pouring their drinks. This keeps up, neither the booze or the quests will make it to midnight.”

“I thought Jen was the one manning the alcohol,” I said. “She must have gotten side-tracked.”

“Tell you what,” Jason said, slapping me on the back in an overly friend fashion. “I'll pour the drinks tonight. I do it for a living, you know. Let your wife enjoy herself.”

“That would be awesome. You want me to throw you a few bucks?”

“Nah. I'll just put out a tip cup.”

I escorted Jason to the make-shift bar we had set up in the spare bedroom we had converted into a workout room. We had moved our treadmill to the corner and folded up the exercise mats that usually sat on the floor.

A crowd of people were mingling around the table we had set out the booze, wine and mixers. A couple of coolers full of ice and beer sat behind the table. I pushed my way through and introduced Jason as the barkeep. A few people sighed under their breath when they realized the pours would be monitored, but for the most part no-one complained.

“Okay, who's next?” the sandy-haired kid said as he tried to create a little order midst the chaos of the crowd.

I was impressed by his speed and professionalism. He was not the slacker I first took him for. I was watching him pour a whiskey sour when the door bell rang.

It was hard to hear in the din of the party, the crowd buzzing, the music playing. By my guess, all the people we invited had already arrived, save one.

I was forced to move slowly through the crowd, politely stepping between groups of friends chatting away, some swaying to the beat. I wanted to get to the door before Jennifer. I wasn't sure why, just some base instinct to meet the man who had been making constant passes at my wife. I failed in my mission. I was on the other side of the living room when I saw my wife open the door. Her face lit up when she saw who it was. A sharp stab of jealousy hit my heart, causing my cock to twitch. I had to adjust myself.

The open door was blocking my view, so I still hadn't seen what he looked like. He was a soldier, so he wasn't going to be too scrawny or out-of-shape. I briefly lost sight of Jen when she moved through the threshold. When I finally made my way through the crowd, I was momentarily stunned.

There was my wife of six years, hugging a tall lean man, smartly dressed in a pair of black denim jeans and a green commando sweater. His eyes were steely blue, his head shaved bald and his skin the color of rich dark chocolate.

I cleared my throat, letting them know I was there. Jennifer broke her embrace and turned to me, “Michael, I'd like you to meet my fellow reservist, Carl. Carl, this is my husband.”

Chapter 3

I never even considered the man who had been hitting on my wife was black. It just, romantically, it never crossed my mind. Jennifer never said, I never thought to ask.

In my sexual fantasy, Carl was a big muscle bound white guy, nothing like the man Jennifer was introducing to me. Does it matter if the man who want's to fuck your wife is black, or brown or pale pink? I didn't see why it should.

I wordlessly extended my hand, my mind still trying to sort out the pieces of my fantasy that had just been shattered. We shook. His grip was firm, but not forceful. He was about my size, a little leaner, six foot tall. He looked fit, as most young National Guardsmen should, but not to bulky.

"It's nice to meet you, Michael," Carl's baritone voice broke me out of my daze.

"Same here," I said, "Jennifer has told me lots about you."

"Only good things, I hope."

It took every ounce of self-control to not say something snarky. "Yes, only good things."

"Come on in, Carl," Jennifer said, taking Carl's hand and drawing him into the house. "I want to introduce you to some of our other friends." I watched as my wife dragged Carl through the crowd, stopping every so often to say hi to people and introduce him.

I was feeling weird, slightly nauseous, but full of nervous energy, like a simple touch might make me explode. Very odd. I really didn't have anything to be jealous about. Besides the hug, there was nothing physical or even slightly sexual in how they had acted. On the other hand, this guy made a pass at Jennifer almost every month, and he had talked my wife into letting him come to the party.

My wife never kept any secrets about how she felt about Carl; he was a friend who was a little too forward sometimes. It was just harmless flirting she said, but still, there was some deep primal fear building within me, fear about this man. And I couldn't help but think she wasn't too upset about how Carl had wormed his way into an invitation. It was a troubling, yet oddly, arousing feeling.

It was now that I could really use Keith around. He was someone I could always count on, the only person, other than Jennifer I trusted to keep a secret. I thought about calling him on my cell phone, but I figured he'd still be wading through code and in no mood to hear about my mostly imaginary problems.

I decided the next best thing to friendly advice was to get a little drunk. Alcohol always soothes over the rough edges, or does it just sharpen and exaggerate them? I guess I was going to find out.

I headed back to the workout room to get a drink. Jason poured a shot of Jack Daniels into a red plastic cup and handed it to me. I gave it back and asked for a triple.

Our volunteer barkeep cocked his eyebrow at me skeptically and said, "Isn't controlling your guest's alcohol intake why you asked me to pour drinks?"

"Hey," I said, trying to not sound too defensive, "It's my party and I'm not driving anywhere, plus I've only had like one beer all night. We're celebrating the end of the century – fuck, the end of the millennium."

"Technically, that's next year," said a woman's voice behind me. I turned and found my cousin staring back at me.

"Anne-Marie, glad you made it." I brushed a lock of her curly black hair aside and gave her a quick kiss on the cheek. "But fuck your technicality, I need a drink."

Jason poured my triple Jack, but not before giving me an exasperated look. My cousin asked for a whiskey sour. I dropped a fiver in the Solo cup he was using for tips as we left Jason to his duties.

“So, why the need to get drunk?” Anne-Marie asked as we moved away from the bar.

“Nothing special,” I lied. “Just didn't want to get too far behind everyone else.”

“No one's going anywhere,” my cousin said. She was just a little too wise for her age, twenty-one and handing out a nickels worth of advice.

I decided to change the subject. I didn't really want to discuss my sexual hangups with her. We were close, but not that close. Besides, it wasn't as if I really had anything to be hung up about. So far, it was all in my head, my crazy, mixed-up head.

“So, how's school going?” I said.

“Not bad. I'll be graduating in May, assuming I can finish one simple project in the next three months.”

“Any jobs lined up?”

“My friend, Nicky's doing an internship at a small firm downtown, and she said they may be hiring soon. I'll get a resume to them, see what happens. Til then, I'm waiting tables at Luigi's.”

For the next half hour or so, my cousin and I sat on the folded up workout mats and caught up. Like my friend, Keith, she was also supposed to be working tonight; unlike him, though, her skipping out wouldn't cripple the restaurant.

She was really looking forward to graduating and kept gushing on about how much she appreciated her uncle, my father, lending her the couple grand she needed to finish.

From the living room, we heard the sounds of Issac putting on the Prince CD and just about everyone started cheering and dancing, and causing a general ruckus.

“I gotta go mingle some more,” I said to my cousin. “Don't leave without saying goodbye.”

“Night's still young, cuz. I'm not going anywhere soon.”

I left Anne-Marie sitting on the mat, sipping her drink, and headed out and down the hall to the living room.

It was a sea of humanity, or at least it felt that way. About fifteen or so people crowded together dancing to the beat of early 80's funk rock. I was scanning the crowd when my gaze fell on Jennifer. My wife is a good dancer. She has a nice, trim body, and she knows how to move it. I, on the other hand, am not, so I just enjoy watching her. When we're at a party or a bar and Jennifer wants to dance, I do my best swaying and stepping to the beat, like a clumsy white guy and just watch her. She has a natural way of letting the music take her over and moving with the rhythm. She is a beauty to watch, her long black hair flowing in counter to her lovely swaying hips, and that was what I was doing now, watching.

But my wife wasn't alone in the dancing area. I wasn't surprised to find she was dancing with Carl. He, too, was natural, smooth and in time. I didn't really think all black people were great dancers, but Carl was. His hips were moving, left and right, to the beat of the music. His hands, idly resting on Jennifer's waist.

For her part, my wife seemed to be off in her own world. Her eyes were closed, head bouncing up and down, her body writhing slowly and sinuously. Occasionally she would grind her ass against Carl's groin. I don't think she was doing it on purpose, but she seemed to be forgetting she wasn't dancing with her husband. Although, again, it was just a dance, it still felt oddly arousing to watch. The chemistry between them was visible and very disconcerting – sparking a green flame of jealousy in the pit of my stomach. It was just a dance, I told myself. They're not fucking. My body wasn't listening.

I should be the one dancing with my wife, even if I could hardly keep a beat. And therein lay the problem. I sucked at dancing and I know my wife would never say it, but I could tell she would prefer to, every once in a while, have a partner who could keep up. Why would I deny her that? Tonight, Carl was that partner. And for a third time, I told myself, it's only dancing, two handsome bodies moving in time to music. My wife was having a great time with a friend, so who was I to get upset.

I had just settled my over-active imagination down when Issac decided to give the crowd a break and slow things down with a little Edwin McCain.

The first notes of "I'll Be" started playing and the mood of the room changed from frantic to sensual. Some couples decided to take a break, three or four didn't, Carl and Jennifer among them.

Carl pulled her close and my wife instinctively put her arms around his neck. Her eyes remained closed and she let her partner lead, her body moving with his.

I couldn't help but feel a bit distraught. Was I the only one seeing this? My wife dancing so close, so erotically, with another man. These were my friends, our friends, relatives and co-workers. I was starting to get a little embarrassed.

I looked around and to my relief, no one else seemed to be paying them much attention. As I was scanning the room, my gaze was caught by José, my best bud from college. He waved and smiled. I was kinda worried he'd notice my wife, making time with someone other than me, and start to rib me about it.

I looked over at Jennifer and noticed she was leaning her head against his shoulder. As I watched, she opened her eyes and seemed to notice what she was doing. She stopped dancing and politely pulled herself away from Carl. She smiled and said something I couldn't hear over the music. Carl smiled back and turned to head for the kitchen. I wasn't sure where he was going. I thought about my wife following, and my mind started spinning with all the nasty possibilities of what they might do, a million jealous, painful, erotic thoughts pulsing through my brain. Instead of realizing she shouldn't be enjoying rubbing up against another man, she decided she wanted more. Maybe she was slipping away for a more private dance, maybe sneaking downstairs, or worse, to our bedroom. In my imagination, she was down on her knees before him, her bright red lips wrapped around his erect ebon cock – a monster cock, twelve inches long, stretching her mouth out obscenely.

My jealous descent into cuckoldry was stopped when Jennifer caught me looking at her and started heading my way. Her lips were mouthing the words to the music as she moved, her gaze locked on mine. I meekly smiled back, embarrassed at my stupidity. I really needed to get myself under control.

“Your wife's a real looker, dude,” a man's voice said from behind me. It was José.

“Hey, que pasa, mi amigo,” I said, reaching out to give my college buddy a big hug.

“Mismo viejo,” he said back.

“English. I've exhausted my non-food related Spanish vocabulary.”

“Same old, amigo. You really need to work on that.”

“José!” my wife said, joining us. She gave my friend a soft kiss on the cheek. “You enjoying yourself?”

“Yeah, you two can really throw a great party. Bueno fiesta. - learn it, Michael.”

“It's all Jen,” I said, wrapping my arms protectively around my wife. “She's the organizer.”

“Comes with the military training,” she said, giving me a more intimate kiss on the lips. “but thanks.”

It felt reassuring, this close, loving contact, after my jealousy fueled flight of erotic imagination. The three of us chatted a bit. José and I were inseparable during college, but no matter how he tried, I never picked up any of the Spanish he peppered his conversation with. We tried to keep in touch after graduation, but failed. He moved out west, so we only saw him once or twice a year, usually at our party.

He had gone into real estate and was doing quite well. Recently his commissions had taken a hit, but he figured that would turn around soon. He had just gotten back from spending Christmas with his mother's family in the Dominican Republic. He'd be in town a few days, then it was off to Spain to visit his grandmother, or abuela, on his father's side.

“So, you meet anyone special, yet?” my wife asked.

“Nah. I like playing around too much.”

“Who wants to be tied down to one woman,” I said. “Ouch.” Jennifer had given me a playful, yet firm, punch in the arm.

“So, you think I'm tying you down?” she said with a silly smile. “We wouldn't want that.”

I gave her a quick peck on the cheek before she could turn to go. “Love you dear,” I said to her back as she walked away. She just waved her hand at me.

We didn't say anything, my buddy and I, while we watched her go. Her nice taut ass looking so tempting in her tight jeans.

“You should be careful,” José said. “You don't want that to get away.”

As if she could hear what my friend said, she looked our way and blew a kiss. I wasn't sure if it was meant for me or him.

“See, she's fine. We love to play around.”

“Seguro?”

“Huh?”

“You sure?”

“Yeah,” I said slowly. I was thinking about my hangups, but quickly pushed them aside. “I love her, she loves me. I'm not worried.” I hope I said that with more conviction than I actually had. I wasn't absolutely sure, my recent dirty thoughts were testament to that, and she was heading in the direction that Carl had disappeared in. I downed my drink.

“I need a refill. You coming?”

José and I went back to the bar. After I got another whiskey, single shot this time, I introduced him to a few people he hadn't meet at previous parties.

“Crystal. You haven't met my friend José yet, have you?” I said to the short curvy red-head who had recently been hired at the law firm Jennifer worked at. She was almost, but not quite, five and a half feet tall, with shocking red – almost orange – colored hair.

“I'm sure I would have remembered if I had,” she said, looking my buddy up and down with her piercing green eyes registering her approval.

“Hola, mucho gusto,” José said as he took her hand and kissed it.

Crystal's freckles almost sparkled as a blush burst forth on her face, the red spreading from her round cheeks down between her bountiful bosom, visible through the V-neck sweater she wore.

“I don't know what that means,” Crystal said, “but keep talking.”

“The ladies are always putty in your hands when you break out the Spanish,” I said to José. “I'll just leave you two alone then.”

“Thanks.” “Gracias,” both Crystal and José spoke at the same time.

Knowing how to take a hint, specially when I was hit over the head with it, I left to see how the rest of our quests were doing.

For the most part, everyone seemed to be having a good time. The music and conversation was lively. The food was good; hard to mess up cold-cuts and chips. And no one seemed too drunk thanks to our impromptu bartender, Jason.

It was around 10:30 when I noticed I hadn't seen Jennifer in a while. I was in the dining room helping one of my wife's other co-workers fix a plate of food. I looked around and noticed Jennifer wasn't there. I glanced in the living room and saw several people dancing, a few sitting on the couch chatting. No wife in sight. I also notice no Carl.

I was determined to remain cool, if only on the outside. No one else at the party needed to know my fear. I didn't want to ruin anyone else's good time with my, so far, irrational hangups.

Inside, I was panicking. I kept telling myself that I trusted my wife, she had never given me a reason not to. At the same time, my wild imagination kept picturing them dancing - first apart, fast, frenzied and very erotic, then slow and sexy and sensual.

My nasty mind edited out the part where my wife broke off the dancing. Instead it cut straight to my wet dream, the once faceless and pale skinned Carl now with an identity. My wife was naked and laying out on our bed. Carl, also without clothing, was nestled between her open legs, his hips thrusting, his unseen, but obviously enormous cock giving my wife pleasure I just couldn't compete with. I was nervous and jealous. I knew I wasn't happy about it, but I could not deny the fact that I was getting hard thinking about it. I was glad everyone seemed to be having a good time and not noticing the erection that was forming in my pants.

I quickly made my way to the workout room slash bar. Jason was there merrily pouring drinks, his tip cup bursting with ones and fives. It was going to be a very lucrative party for him. I saw Linda and Ted, he had a beer while she had what I assumed was sprite or club soda. I asked if they had seen Jennifer recently. They both shook their heads, no. I didn't ask them about Carl.

I was hesitant to go to the Master Bedroom, but I did. It was empty, just the pile of jackets and coats on the bed, not my wife and her lover fucking. I was kinda relieved, but still worried about not finding them. The bathroom door was closed. I could have knocked or tried the handle to see if it was locked. To see if anyone was in there. I couldn't hear anything – no moans of pleasure. I was really afraid to check, afraid of what I might find. My darkest fears realized. I had one or two more options before I checked this room.

I went out back, to the smoking deck. There is where I found them. Well, I found Carl. He was standing with José and they both were chatting up Crystal. She was simply beaming with the attention. Her eyes darting back and forth between the two handsome dark skinned men.

If she was interested, I'm sure she could have had either one of them – or both. Either way it was a relief. Carl was José's problem now.

The need to find Jennifer lost its urgency and I noticed my need to pee badly. I went back to the bathroom attached to the master bedroom. The door was still closed so I knocked.

“Occupied,” came the sing song voice of my lovely wife. I was so glad I had waited to knock. I knew she was alone now. Carl was on the patio.

I was so ashamed of doubting her, so ashamed of thinking she would invite another man into our home and fuck him. I was an idiot, but my cock was still hard, whether from arousing thoughts or the need to relieve my bladder didn't matter.

“I'll use the guest bath, love,” I said.

Unfortunately it was also occupied. Fuck, I really, really had to pee. The alcohol and the tension needed to be released. I made an executive decision to do something I hadn't done since freshman year of college. I snuck out the side door and went to pee into the bushes by the front porch. There was no one around, all the activity was inside and it was a little nippy.

Our front porch light was on, but I was shield by the foliage. No one could see me unless they either walked past me up our driveway or were on the porch looking down with a flashlight. Both scenarios were unlikely.

And even if they did find me, it was my house, my bushes, I could pee on them if I wanted. So I pulled out my penis and started pissing. God, did it feel good, almost like cumming – long and steady. Steam started rising from the warm urine exposed to the chill December air. When I was done, I tucked myself back in my pants and turned to sneak back inside.

I heard the front door open. Instead of bolting, I froze in place. When I heard who had opened the door, any thought of leaving escaped me. It was my wife who walked out onto the front porch followed by – who else – Carl. Suddenly all the tension, the worry, the petty jealousy I thought I had rid myself of returned ten-fold.

“Are you sure you have to go, Carl,” my wife said. “It's a New Year's Eve party. You have to at least stay til midnight.”

Carl looked at her, like he wanted to say something, something important, but he couldn't. To my pleasant surprise she didn't beg him to stay.

“Look Jen, I've had a great time and I'm sorry I kinda invited myself.”

“That's no problem, Carl. I really should have asked you to come sooner. I would like to consider you a friend.” Jennifer was moving closer as she spoke. If I didn't know better I would assume she was moving in for a goodnight kiss, but that would have been weird. Right?

As if reading the same signals I saw, Carl grabbed my wife by the shoulders and pulled her in for a kiss, a quick kiss directly on the lips. The move caught her by surprise and her eyes flew open. When he pulled away she just stood there, her lips slightly parted. I figured that was it, and so did Carl. We were both stunned with what happened next. My beautiful, raven-haired wife moved closer and started a kiss of her own.

This one long, sensuous, one that was completely inappropriate between friends. I wanted to move, to charge up the steps to stop this spectacle, but my feet refused to move. I stood silently and watched from below as my wife made out with another man, a handsome man. I could tell their lips were open, their tongues exploring their partner's mouths.

I wanted to call out – to put a stop to it - but my tongue betrayed me. So I watched, silently as my wife embraced another man, unable to interfere. It hurt me to watch her hands holding his bald head, her pale fingers standing out against his ebon skin. It was also painfully erotic, my penis became fully engorged and stiffer than I ever remember it being.

It was funny, my own cock didn't care that I was watching Jennifer kinda cheat on me, although a kiss is far from fucking – far, but not out of the ballpark.

Time stood still for the three of us. It felt like forever, but I'm sure it was only twenty or thirty seconds – twenty or thirty seconds too many. My wife pulled away.

“No, no, this is wrong,” she said, “I'm sorry for doing that.”

I couldn't help but notice the sweat building up on my wife's forehead, despite the evening chill. I also couldn't help but see the erection forming in Carl's jeans. It was a pronounced erection, but hardly the monstrous cock from my worst fears.

“No need to apologize. It wasn't that bad.”

“No, in fact it was great,” my wife said, “but it's also so wrong.”

“What's wrong with two people kissing?”

“I'm married to someone else.”

“Does he own you?”

“Of course not, but I promised to be faithful.”

“You're the one who started this.”

“No, you kissed me first,” Jennifer insisted.

“Yeah, but you kissed me second, and better.”

“Again, I'm sorry. It was wrong. I got carried away.”

“But you enjoyed it, admit it.”

Jennifer paused, her eyes indicating she was searching for the proper answer. She could have lied, but there's no way Carl – or I – would believe it was anything less than pleasurable. Her passion put the lie to any denial.

“Okay, Yes. I enjoyed it,” she finally said.

“You've wanted to kiss me for a long time, haven't you? Although you've always rebuffed my flirting.”

“Flirting's fine. Kissing is – something else.”

“But you have wanted to, right?”

Again my wife took her time answering. “I have wondered what it would be like to kiss a black man.”

“So, is it everything you expected?” Carl said, his face lit up in charming smile. “Is it better than kissing your husband, Michael?”

I was stunned to hear him say my name and I really needed to hear Jennifer's answer. She didn't hesitate. “No. My husband's kisses are better. Because I love him.”

And with those words – those kind words – I knew the truth and all my jealous feelings evaporated. I knew she spoke the truth because those words weren't meant for me, they were meant for Carl. She could have said anything – fed his ego – whatever, but she didn't.

“I'm not saying you kiss bad, you don't. It was nice and, dare I say, a little arousing.”

“Yeah,” Carl said. He moved to adjust his stiffening cock. “Look what you did to me.”

“I'm sure you'll be able to take care of that yourself.”

“You mind if I think of you when I do?”

Jennifer just snickered and said, “I can't really stop you, can I? Okay, if you're gonna go then go. I gotta get back inside before Michael wonders where I got off to.”

“You think he'd be jealous if he knew we were out here, together?”

“No, he's got nothing to be jealous of; I love him.”

“How about if he knew about the kissing?”

“Please don't tell him,” Jennifer said, a slight look of panic on her face. “I'm not sure how he'd react. He might totally misunderstand the situation.”

“So, you don't think he trusts you,” Carl said. The statement caught my wife off guard. This was turning into a very long goodbye. I saw my wife stare out into the night pondering whether or not I trusted her. I wanted to shout out, yes I trust you, but the fact I was secretly listening in on their conversation said something different.

“I think he trusts me,” Jennifer said.

“You think or you know?”

“Hey, I told him about you - always hitting on me at drill – and he still let me invite you.”

She didn't tell Carl that she hadn't asked my opinion on his coming, but he didn't need to know that. “And speaking of that,” her face took on a more serious expression. "I would greatly appreciate it if you stopped asking me out."

"Only if you promise to tell me when you change your mind."

When? I thought. This man sure is cocky, but oddly charming.

The smile returned to Jennifer's face and she laughed, "Fair enough."

"How about flirting?" Carl asked.

Jennifer sighed, "Flirting is fine, just never expect anything to come of it."

"It's a deal." Carl extended his hand for a shake. My wife swatted it away and moved in for a hug.

"We're still friends, Carl. Don't forget that."

"I'm glad."

"So am I."

And oddly enough, I agreed with my wife.

They stood there and silently embraced. It was a friendly embrace, nothing sexual, although I'm sure if Carl was still hard Jennifer would have been able to feel his erection against her body.

The hug did seem to linger on a little longer than it should have, but I didn't mind. Listening to my wife explain her feelings totally trumped any misgivings I might have had about the invitation or the kiss. I loved my wife and she loved me and everything else was just noise.

Carl left, my wife watched him go, and I snuck back inside through the side door. I wondered if I was man enough to tell her everything I had seen and heard. I was kinda afraid how she would react to finding out I had spied on her, that I might not have trusted her as much as she thought. She already proved how much she loved and trusted me. I just hoped I hadn't gone and fucked that all up.

The whole conversation she had with Carl filled me with a renewed sense of trust for Jennifer, not that I ever really doubted her. I think I mostly doubted myself.

As I mingled, making small talk I didn't pay any attention to, I thought about what I saw. My beautiful, sexy, and just a bit tipsy wife kissed another man, and it wasn't just any kiss. It was the kind of kiss you only give to your husband or lover. Despite that kiss and despite the obvious pleasure she took from it, my wife still chose to stay faithful to me. She confessed her love for me, even though I wasn't there, and she didn't hedge. I imagine if she wasn't married to me, she'd have no reservations about sleeping with Carl. She'd probably love to see if his prowess on the dance floor could be equaled in the bedroom. She could admit the attraction she felt, but she still loved me, and that made all the difference.

I just hoped I'd be as faithful if the opportunity to stray ever came my way.

I was in the dining room munching on some warm veggies when Issac stopped the music and my wife called for quiet.

"Okay, everyone, gather round," she said. It's five minutes to midnight." She asked a couple of people to go gather up anyone who was still lingering in the booze room and out on the patio. "Where's my husband?"

"Right here, sweetie," I said.

"Could you grab the remote and turn on Dick Clark.?"

No New Year's Eve would feel right without Dick Clark. Jennifer and I grew up watching his New Year's Rockin Eve broadcasts from Time

Square. It was a tradition, one I hoped would never end.

I turned on ABC and everyone watched the world's oldest teenager fuel the build up to the new year. I thought of all the mundane crap we'd shortly have to deal with, again, assuming the Y2K bug didn't shut everything down. We'd have to get new checks, ones that didn't have 19__ pre-printed on them. And how would we refer to the year? Was it two thousand, or twenty ought-ought.? Easy for this year, what about next? I guessed we'd have to wait and see.

The din of about twenty-six people packed in two rooms started to die down as the minute hand ticked closer to zero. The countdown started on television as the ball at the top of One Time Square started to fall.

“In thirty seconds we'll be in a new year, love,” I said.

“Hell, we'll be in a whole new century.” she added.

“Don't say that too loud, Anne-Marie might argue with you.”

Jennifer looked at me with a quizzical gleam in her eye.

“Never mind,” I said.

The crowd on the television started chanting the countdown, “Twenty... Nineteen”

I looked around at the crowd we had gathered. It was a great feeling, to be surround by some of our best friends – people we've known for a long time, like Linda and José and those who were more recent, like Jason and Crystal.

I only wished Keith could have been here, and I bet Jennifer would have been more than pleased if Carl could have stayed.

When the countdown got to ten, we all joined in, “Nine... Eight.”

I put my arm around Jennifer's waist.

“Six... Five”

She moved her's lower, to palm my butt.

“Three... Two... One.”

I turned and kissed my wife.

Everyone but us yelled, “Happy New Year!” and that's when the power went out.

Chapter 4

“What the fuck?” more that one person said.

“Calm down, everyone,” Jennifer said, her military training kicking in.

The moment of darkness only lasted a split second; our emergency lights kicked on. In several outlets, strategically placed throughout the house, we had re-chargeable emergency lights, really just small flashlights that plugged in and came on when the power went out. Just another way my wife liked to be prepared. That's why I love her.

“Is this the Y2K thingy?” someone said.

“Nah, that's just an urban legend.”

“Not according to the news.”

“Yeah, and they never lie.”

We soon had over twenty people in various stages of intoxication talking simultaneously and nobody could make out what anyone was saying. I was going to ask Jennifer what she wanted me to do, when a blaring whistle nearly blew my left ear drum out.

It was Jennifer's whistle, and where she had that thing tucked away, I didn't want to know. Everyone quickly quieted down. The only sound I heard was the reverberation in my head.

My wife broke the silence, “I said, calm down.” Several people started up again, talking all at once, just not everyone.

“What's going on?”

“Did your power go out?”

“Was it the computers?”

“Or maybe the Soviets.”

“There are no more Soviets, idiot.”

“Hey!” Jennifer said in a voice I'm sure brings chills to the spines of cadets at training camp. “Do NOT make me use this whistle again.”

The room was quiet.

“That's better,” she said. “Obviously the power is out, but we've got lights.” That was an exaggeration. What we had were four or five pools of light that clung low against the wall. “Michael, go get the candles out of the basement.” Remember, my wife's prepared.

I grabbed one of the lights from the wall and headed out on my quest. I knew the layout of the house, so it wasn't hard maneuvering in the dark. I just had to avoid tripping over anyone.

The door to the basement was in the kitchen. Out the window, I saw our neighbors power was also out, as were the street lights. We weren't the only ones. I started thinking maybe the Y2K thing was more of a threat than anyone imagined. Maybe this was the end of civilization.

“I guess Keith didn't finish his project in time,” I said to myself.

I made my way downstairs and easily found a box of a dozen plain white candles and a pack of safety matches. In our house, everything was in its place.

By the time I got back upstairs, most everyone was gone. Linda, Ted and Jennifer were sitting on the couch and chatting. My cousin Anne-Marie was laying, face down on the floor while José knelt next to her and massaged her neck. Jason was helping Issac carry his gear out to the car.

“This all that's left?” I asked as I began setting out and lighting the candles.

“Crystal's in the john,” José said.

“So, just the seven of us then?”

“I think Jason said he's coming back,” my wife said. “Not like we have anywhere else to go.”

“Maybe no one has anywhere else to go if this is the end.” Linda said.

“It's not the end.”

“I don't want to raise my child in a Mad Max hell-scape.”

Ted just sighed. Jennifer laughed. My wife could tell her friend was joking, even if her husband didn't.

“Hey, I'm next,” Crystal said to José as she emerged from the hallway, an emergency light in her hand.

“Take a number,” Jennifer said.

The red-head grunted and slid down the wall to sit on the floor. She was obviously not happy to have to wait for a back rub.

“I should charge you girls for this.” José said.

“If you're gonna charge, I want one, too,” Jason said. He did come back.

“Never mind,” José said.

“What do we do now?” I asked.

“Guess we could call it a night,” my wife said. “Anyone tired?”

No one said anything.

“Me, neither. But I am hungry and we've got plenty of food left.” Jennifer got up and headed to the dining room. “Anyone want anything while I'm up?”

Everyone said yes.

“Great,” she said to herself and started filling plates with food. I went to help her.

I told her it looked like the whole neighborhood was in the dark.

“The phone still has a dial tone, so I don't think we're in the End of Days if Ma Bell still has power.”

I offered to go down and get the battery powered radio; yes, we had one of those.

“Nah.”

“Don't you want to know what's going on?”

“I'm sticking with power company FUBAR until there's a reason not to.”

“And if we wake up to rioting in the streets?”

“Don't worry, Michael,” my wife said, in her sweetest, most motherly voice. She held my cheek in her hand and added, “I'll protect you.” She was joking, but only slightly. Candles and batteries were not the only things we had stored in the basement.

For the next hour the eight of us sat and chatted, ate and drank.

“Let's play a game,” Linda said. Everyone agreed.

“Nothing that forces me move” Crystal said, not wanting to give up her turn under José's skilled hands.

“How about Truth or Dare,” someone said, I think Anne-Marie.

“What, are we in high school?” Jason said.

“Ok, how about just Truth,” Linda said. “We all get to ask each other personal questions with embarrassing answers.”

“Uhm – sure,” I said. “Who goes first?”

“You do, honey,” Jennifer said, the candle on the end table next to her illuminating the wicked grin on her face. She was looking to have some fun and she was forcing me to set the tone for our little game. Oh, joy.

“Okay, since you're making me go first I get to make a new rule.”

“Why?” Ted said.

“Because, it's my house.”

“Fair enough.” Ted was always pretty easy to get along with. He was going to make a great dad.

“Okay. The rule is everyone has to answer the questions. And the person with the most interesting answer gets the next turn.”

“Who decides the best answer?” Jason said.

“The questioner. That okay?”

No one had any problems.

“Great, first question. Have you ever kissed a woman?”

“That's easy. Yes,” Jason said. An affirmative answer came from Ted and José as well. I didn't really care about them, I wanted to hear from the ladies.

Linda said, “Yes.” Ted looked at her funny. She just stared at him and grinned. I could tell in the dim candle light that she was just barely controlling herself, like she wanted to burst out laughing.

“Really?” Jason said. “We need details.”

“You guys really want to know?”

“Yes,” was the unanimous answer.

“My Mom,” she said and burst out in giggles. All the other girls did, too, and started to answer yes.

“Hah, Hah!” I said, my words dripping with sarcasm. “I meant, kissed romantically, like you would your husband or boyfriend.”

“That's not what you asked, honey,” my wife said. I love her to death, but I wasn't conceding the point.

“So, you really want to play that way?” I said. No one did. We all agreed to allow clarifications to the answer, and details, otherwise it wasn't going to be any fun, and that is what was important. The fun.

Linda quickly changed her answer to no, followed by my wife and cousin. We all turned to Crystal who hadn't answered. She looked so at peace, lying on the floor enjoying José's back rub, her red-hair appeared to be on fire in the flickering light.

“Yes, I have,” she said in a quiet voice, her eyes closed as if remembering that moment.

“Details,” José said.

“Do I have to?”

“If you want me to keep rubbing your back, yes.”

“Okay, I've kissed lots of girls, plenty of girls. I like it. I also like kissing guys. I like them both.”

“You win the question, hands down,” I said. “You're turn to ask.”

Crystal turned her head toward the couch and started to think out loud. “Let's see. I don't really care if any of you guys ever kissed a dude. But actually, I have an question that we all might have fun with. Was there anyone at the party tonight that - “ she paused for effect, “you wanted to fuck -”

“Yes,” Linda, Ted, Jennifer and myself said, almost at the same time.

“Hey, you didn't let me finish. Anyone you wanted to fuck, besides your spouse.”

That was an intriguing question. Ted and Linda both said no again. Soon to be parents probably aren't looking to sleep around. I'd like to know what his answer would be seven or eight months from now.

I looked at my wife. “You go first, darling,” she said. Her long hair black hair shimmered in the candle light, her normally soft grey eyes were gunmetal in the flickering glow. She was the perfect woman to me. Strong and beautiful, smart and sexy.

“At the party, right?” I said, to Crystal.

“Ha, ha,” my wife said.

“Yes, at the party,”

“Okay, my answer is, no.”

“At the party, funny man.” my wife said. “My answer is -” she paused and looked at me. Her eyes piercing me. I swore she was going to say yes. I was only joking, there were no other women I seriously wanted to fuck. I knew at least one other man my wife would be interested in, if I wasn't in the picture. Would she reveal that to our friends?

“No, no one at the party I want to fuck.”

“Besides me, right?” I said.

“Besides you,” Jen added more as an after thought. I could tell by the crooked smile that formed on her face she was just busting my balls. If your spouse can't tease you – then you're just sad.

José answer no, as did Anne-Marie. But, looking at the way she had been looking at Jason earlier in the evening, I'd say she was lying.

So far this question was turing out to be a dud. Maybe it was too direct.

But then, Jason said yes and everyone perked up.

“Who?” Crystal said, asking the question we all wanted answered.

“Do I have to answer?”

“Yes.”

“I’ll only say, it’s someone in this room.”

“Now, you really have to answer,” Anne-Marie said. I was not positive my cousin had lied earlier.

Jason wouldn’t give any more details, and I didn’t blame him. Of course the two unattached girls wanted to know. In the end we let him slide, even as he was getting to ask the next question.

“How many lovers have you had, present company included?”

“Ten,” Linda said first. She seemed to like this game, blaring out quick answers. From what my wife told me about their early college years, I wasn’t too shocked by the answer, and from the look on Ted’s face, neither was he.

“Five,” Ted said. His wife, on the other hand, did look surprised, but she didn’t say anything. I figured she’d be asking some follow-up questions of her own in private.

My cousin said, “six.”

José said, “Fifteen or twenty, I’m not sure.” We all had a little laugh.

“Three,” I said. Everyone but my wife and José seemed shocked at how low it was. I wasn’t much of a player in my younger days.

Jennifer said “I’ve also had six sex partners.” I did some quick math in my head and the answer agreed with what she’d told me before. At least we both were honest on this question.

It was finally Crystal's turn to answer. "Let's just say, more than twenty."

"Wow," I couldn't help but say.

My wife said, "Impressive."

"Well, I dig boys and girls so I have more options."

We all agreed.

"Crystal's answer was the most interesting, no doubt," Jason said, "but I'm giving the next question to Jennifer."

Six was not an interesting answer, especially when it came with no details. I would have gone with José, but I didn't say anything. It was just a game.

Jennifer asked the reverse of my question. If we'd ever romantically kissed a guy. All the women said yes, the men said no. A dud of a question. My wife picked José to go next.

It was funny, watching my old buddy try to think up a question that would get a provocative response. He stared off into the middle distance, the gears in his head grinding away, while he kept working his hands roughly into Crystal's lower back, causing her to audibly sigh.

Then, in the flickering light I saw his eyes grow big and he immediately looked at me. Oh crap, I thought.

"Okay, gang," he said, "here's another simple one with a simple yes or no. Who here has ever sucked a guys dick?"

"I have," Jennifer said, beating her friend as the first one to answer. "And Michael loves it."

Both Linda and Anne-Marie gave a simple yes answer. It was really getting weird listening to my cousin talk about her sex life. I was learning a lot of new things this evening.

“No, obviously,” Jason said, “not that I haven't been asked a few times.”

Ted also said no.

“How about you Crystal?” José said to the woman purring under his touch.

“Oh, yeah, I've given head. To men and women. It's all good.”

Now everyone looked at me. I immediately said, “no.”

“Well that was another boring question,” Jennifer said.

“I really thought this game was going to be fun,” Linda said.

José kept staring at me, more like glaring. He mouthed the word, 'liar' at me. I knew what he was referring to, why he asked the question. It was something I had never told anyone, not even Jennifer. I guess I would have told her, if she knew to ask.

“Okay, who gets to ask the next question?” Jason said.

“I'm not satisfied with the answers,” José said. He was addressing the group, but looking right at me.

“What the fuck dude,” Jason said, “you're the one who asked the damn question.”

Ted was the one who first noticed José was staring at me. He elbowed his wife, cluing her in on the situation.

I guess I had to confess. I just hoped Jennifer would forgive me, not for what I did, but for not telling her about it sooner.

“For the record,” I said, “I have never sucked a dick.”

Everyone was looking at me now, even Crystal had sat up to pay attention. José just scoffed.

“But I did once. Open my mouth.” It was really hard to spit this out. (all puns intended) “And wrapped my lips. Around. Another guy's penis.”

José chuckled. Crystal just smiled, she didn't really think it was that weird, having faced her own questions about liking to lick pussy. Jennifer stared at me, her eyes wide, her mouth open.

“Uhm, man. You gotta tell us that story,” Jason said.

“It was no big thing,” Everyone laughed like a fourteen year old. I kept right on talking. “It was my freshman year at college.”

“Everyone experiments freshman year,” Anne-Marie said.

“Thank's cuz, but let me finish. Freshman year, early spring. Last big snowstorm of the year, so we were stuck inside the dorms. Me, José, and William, a couple of girls from the floor below us, and a bottle of Jack Daniels that William's older brother bought us.”

“This sounds like the start of a Penthouse letter,” my wife said with a snicker. I was glad she didn't seem too mad, but then I hadn't got to the scandalous part yet.

“So, we were playing Truth or Dare - “

“Yup, just like a Penthouse letter,” Linda said. My wife gave her a high five.

“Will you guy's let me finish?”

“Eventually,” my wife said. “You have to admit, this is turning out to be the best answer of the night.”

“Yeah, blows everything else out of the water,” Anne-Marie said.

“Et, tu, cuz?” I waited until the giggling and laughing stopped. “Anyway, we were about three fourths of the way through the bottle when I had the bright idea of daring one of the girls to kiss the other one.”

“They did it. We guys whooped it up like the horny teens we mostly were. After we had our show the girl – I think her name was Jane – points at me and says 'Truth or Dare?' I could blame the booze or just a general feeling of invincibility, but instead of picking Truth, like you should after making a particularly embarrassing dare, I chose the opposite. 'Give William head,' she said. I was dumb struck.”

“I really didn't want to let William cum in my mouth, 'I won't do it,' I said. I felt guilty about breaking the rules of the game. José over there saved the day. He came up with a compromise. I just had to let William stick his dick in my mouth for ten seconds.”

“And you did?” Jason said. “Dude, that's -” I thought he was going to say 'gay,' but he didn't. “pretty radical.”

“At the time, it was just embarrassing. There you have it, the one time I've had a dick in my mouth. You all happy?”

“Did you like it?” my cousin asked.

“Like it? No. But it wasn't disgusting. It was just warm and spongy. I don't think William was fully erect. I don't think he liked having his cock in my mouth any more than I did.”

“Anyway. I had the tip and maybe an inch or so of dick. In my mouth. Resting on my tongue. The girls counted down to ten. It was a long fucking count, too. I pulled away and we all had a good laugh. I haven't really talked about it since then, until tonight.”

Now it was my turn to glare at José. “Come on, amigo,” he said to me. “Doesn't it feel good to confess your deep dark secret?”

I looked at Jennifer. She didn't look mad.

“You end up sleeping with this Jane girl?” Crystal asked.

Jennifer smiled and shook her head; she knew.

“No, but I think she was the one who ended up sucking William's dick that night,” José said.

“But it wasn't on a dare,” I said. “She just must have liked the way it looked, when he pulled it out.”

We spent a few more minutes just gabbing. No questions. Just a group of eight people, sitting around the candle light getting to know each other a little bit better. It was a surprisingly fun way to start the new year, or new century, millennium, even if it did turn out to be the beginning of the end.

A little after two o'clock we ran out of things to say. José decided to call it a night and drive home. He wanted to make sure his apartment was still in one piece.

Linda was too tired to drive and Ted was a little too drunk, so we offered to let them stay over. Jennifer insisted the pregnant woman slept in our bed. We'd rough it in the workout room.

Jason, Anne-Marie, and Crystal asked if they could stay, too. We didn't have anymore beds, but we told them they could crash in our living room. We got them some clean linens and extra pillows and left them to it.

Before turning in ourselves, Jennifer and I went around the house and made sure all the light switches had been turned off to avoid any nasty surprises when, or if, the power came back on.

We then pulled out the exercise mats and spread them in the corner opposite the treadmill.

“Not the most comfortable sleeping arraignment,” I said. I laid out two large fluffy pillows along the baseboard.

My wife spread out our double sleeping bag and said, “It's better than the crap I have to deal with during summer camp.”

I didn't whine anymore. I'd never win that battle. Sleeping on two firm but pliant mats with pillows was a five star hotel compared to crawling around in the mud all day, then laying your sleeping gear out over the bare ground, with sticks, grass and small rocks digging into your back all night.

We got undressed – stripped down naked – and got into our make-shift bed. I was sitting up, my back against the wall, my feet spread out before me. Jennifer sat between my legs, her head resting against my chest. My arms were wrapped around her midsection, just below her breasts.

We just sat. Enjoying the quiet of the night in each other's company. I would occasionally grope my wife's breasts or pinch her nipples and elicit a soft moan or sigh.

“You have a good time tonight?” she said.

“Yeah. It was fun. If a little embarrassing.”

“Surprised you never told me that story.”

“You didn't ask.”

“When does a wife ask her husband if he's ever sucked a man's dick before?”

“Can't help you with that one,” I said.

“Would you ever do it again?”

“Only if I met the right man,” I joked and started tickling her. She playfully struggled in my arms.

We rolled around on the mat pretending to wrestle. Sometimes with me on top, sometimes Jennifer. If we weren't just playing, it would mostly be her. While I weigh more, I know she's stronger. She works out more than I do, and she has to keep fit to pass her yearly inspections. I sit in a cubical all day and eat burgers and fries for lunch. I do run occasionally, but I am no match for my wife. Some men would have a problem with that, I don't.

I love her, she loves me. That's how it works.

Our wrestling soon turned to kissing and a little heavy petting. Jennifer's tongue danced across my lips; she smelled of whiskey, our favored drink, and breath mints.

“You've been smoking tonight, haven't you?” I said when Jennifer finally let me up for air.

“Maybe one or two.”

My wife only smoked when we were out drinking. She never bought her own packs, she just bummed smokes off friends.

“So, who did you hit up tonight?”

“Issac let me have one of his earlier and Carl shared one with me a little later, just before he left.”

“I'm sure you needed a smoke after that dirty dancing you were doing.” I felt more comfortable teasing her now that I knew how she really felt about me.

“So you saw that?” she said, sheepishly. “Sorry, I just got a little out of control.”

I pulled her close and looked her in the eyes. “You don't have to be sorry. I'm not mad. And it's not like you were doing anything behind my back.”

Jennifer turned her head away. She couldn't look me in the eyes and I could guess why. She knew she had done something behind my back. She had shared a passionate kiss with another man.

I could see the wheels spinning in her head. Her face took on a slightly anguished look. I didn't want that. I wanted to make love to my wife, not see her hurting, remembering some arbitrary line she crossed earlier in the evening. I decided to come clean myself, take some of the pressure off her.

“I have a confession to make,” she said. Fuck, she beat me to the punch.

“Wait, don't say anything,” I said. “I have a confession of my own.”

She looked at me funny, wondering what the hell it could be. I had her at a disadvantage.

She insisted I let her go first. I told her we could arm wrestle for it. She just laughed.

“No, I really have something to tell you, and it's not that I kissed a girl once.”

I decided to let her go first, since I knew what she was going to say. I told her she had to promise not to get mad at me for what I was going to tell her. She had to think about that for a moment, wondering how bad it could be, but in the end she trusted me enough to know it wasn't going to be the end of the world, even if outside it was – the end of the world.

We both promised not to get mad at each other. It was a new year, time to let old secrets go.

“Okay,” Jennifer said, “You ready?”

“Yeah, I'm ready.” I was waiting for her to tell me about her kiss with Carl, so I could tell her I already knew about it because I saw it happen. Then we could forgive each other and get on to some serious twenty-first century fucking.

“Stay calm...” Jennifer paused, trying to find the right words. “Remember Crystal's question about wanting to fuck someone at the party?”

“Yes. You said no.” I wasn't really sure what she was saying. Was she going to tell me she actually did want to fuck Carl. I wouldn't be surprised.

“Yeah. Well.” she paused again, stalling. “If Keith had been here. The answer would have been different.”

To say I was shocked would be an understatement. I was totally blown away. Here I was worried about Carl when it was Keith she really had the hots for. I just looked at her with wide eyes and a closed mouth.

“Come on, say something,” she said. I couldn't think of anything off the top of my head. “Please tell me you're not mad. You promised.”

I did promise and the more surprising thing to me was that I wasn't mad. I was surprised and confused and just a bit aroused by her confession.

“Say something, dammit,” she said, slapping me on the chest. “You're seriously scaring me.”

I finally opened my mouth and said, “Don't know what to say.”

“Telling me you're not mad would be a really great place to start.”

“I'm not mad.”

“Then what are you?”

“I think I'm horny.”

“Fuck, you say?” Now it was Jennifer's turn to be confused.

“Guess now I have two confessions to make to you.”

After a short silence my wife said, “Go on.”

“First off, I saw you kiss Carl.”

Jennifer started to say something and stopped. The thought processes playing on her face were sublime. Fear of my reaction to her confession becoming confusion as to how I knew about the kiss, moving into a little anger over being spied on.

“Don't say anything,” I said. “Let me finish.”

Jennifer closed her mouth and looked away. She was dealing with her emotions internally and I hoped what I had to say could help.

“I wasn't spying on you, well, not on purpose. Both bathrooms were full and I really needed to pee so I decided to use our bushes out front.” This caused my wife to snicker – a good sign. She might be been remembering the last time I did that when I had locked myself out of the house.

“How much did you see?”

“All of it. Him kissing you, you kissing him. Then telling him how much you love me and trust me and don't want to hurt me. I know you find him attractive. I just didn't know you felt the same about Keith.”

“I'm a red-blooded woman, of course I find hot guys attractive. Why do you think I married you?”

I pulled her in for another kiss, adrenaline flooding my body. My beautiful wife could have just about any man she wanted, and she chose me above all others. The compliment went straight to my head – well, my cock. I was already hard, but maybe got a little harder, if that's possible.

“So, you're aroused by the thought of me thinking about those other guys?” she said as she slowly slithered down my naked body. The friction caused by her warm taut stomach sliding over my erection sent tingles down my spine.

“I guess that leads me to my second confess-ion!” the last syllable tripped off my tongue as Jennifer took my cock into her warm wet mouth.

“Go on,” she mumbled around my erection.

I brushed her hair to the side so I could see her eyes, looking straight at me, as she bobbed her head up and down, leaving trails of saliva and pre-cum over my cock.

“The other day. When we were making love. The day you told me. About inviting Carl.” It was difficult talking while my wife continued to suck my dick, but that just made it hotter and sexier to say what I had to say.

“Uhm, hm,” my wife mumbled. I think it was a yes.

“You remember. I had a powerful orgasm. You did. Too.”

“Uhm, hm.”

“I was fantasizing. About you doing Carl. The whole time.”

That must have trip some trigger in my wife because her eyes rolled back and she upped the pace of her blow job. One hand continued stroking my cock in rhythm with her mouth. Her other moved down her body and between her legs. She was playing with herself, something she never did with me present. It was so damn hot. These fantasies and taboo thoughts we were dealing with. The fucking was hot, but it was our love for each other that made it special.

I was leaning back against the wall. Jennifer was on her knees between my legs, blowing me, and I was real close to coming when Keith walked into the room.

Chapter 5

The shock of seeing my best man, the man my wife would like fuck, standing in the doorway set me off. I erupted, filling Jennifer's mouth with several spurts of my seed. And she swallowed it all. She continued to pump and lick my cock, making sure she got all my cum. I waited until she was finished before I pointed out Keith at the threshold. I didn't want to startle her when my manhood was between her teeth.

All told she took the fact that we had an audience in stride. Not much could faze my wife. That's why I love her. That, and the great sex.

"Don't mind me," Keith said as he walked in, carrying his own flickering candle with him. He sat down on the weight bench in the corner across from us. He set the candle down on the floor. "Hope it's okay, your cousin let me in."

"You could have knocked," Jennifer said. She was back snuggling between my legs, her back to me. I started massaging her shoulders. She moaned her approval.

"And miss the live sex show, no way."

It was weird sitting here, my wife and I naked talking to my friend. But we were still buzzed, and we were all pretty close, so I didn't make a big deal out of it, and neither did Jennifer. In fact, she took it very well, considering what she had just confessed to.

"Michael's been telling me you've been working on the Y2K thing," my wife said. "Is this blackout your fault?"

"Ha. You're funny. No. From what I heard on the radio, the power company was ready for this thing last year. The outage is just a wild coincidence. And it only hit a quarter of the city.

"Lucky us." I said.

I was surprised my wife still hadn't made a move toward our clothing. At least I thought she'd put on her bra and panties.

“You picked a great time to show up,” I said. I was pissed about him interrupting our sexy time.

“Yes, I did,” Keith said, either not seeing or ignoring my attempt at sarcasm. “I would have been here sooner, but the power outage screwed up the traffic lights and every cop and their sister are out directing traffic.”

“I don't think it's fair,” Jennifer said to Keith. “Us being naked and you fully clothed.” If her statement didn't surprise me, her reaching between our bodies and grabbing my cock sure did. She was trying to be surreptitious as she stroked my erection, but I could tell Keith could see what she was doing.

Under normal circumstances I might have stopped her, but nothing that happened tonight was normal. Not surprisingly, the more she stroked, the more blood that left my brain to fill my cock and the less likely I was to do so.

“You guys could put something on,” Keith said.

“That's no fun,” I said. I wasn't sure where that came from, but Jennifer rewarded my statement, by sliding her other hand back to play with my balls.

“You could join us,” my wife said, “in taking your clothes off, that is.”

I was pretty sure where this was going and I wasn't entirely sure I wanted to go there, but despite my misgivings I did nothing to change our course.

When a pretty woman asks a man to take off his clothes, he does it.

“I think I'll just sit over here and watch,” Keith said as he started undressing. This evening was just getting stranger and stranger.

It was us, my wife and I, who were doing the watching right now. As we did, I started kneading Jennifer's breasts with my left hand and ran my right down her lean body to the dark patch of well groomed hair around her mound.

I found her exceedingly wet and I wasn't surprised. After all, we had had about a half hour of foreplay, with all the wrestling and fantasy talk. I believed my wife was ready for a really good fucking and I was more than eager to give it to her.

Keith had already taken off his button down shirt, revealing his pale pink skin. He had a well defined set of six-pack abs covered with a dusting of fine red hair. I was just a little bit jealous of his physique, but not jealous enough to do the actual work that was needed to acquire it. My wife's muscles are more defined than mine. Not that I'm out of shape or heavy. We both eat healthy and I do the treadmill or walk around the neighborhood every other day. My body is in decent shape, I don't feel the need to be some Adonis.

Jennifer blew a wolf whistle at Keith. I gave her a slap on the thigh.

"Jealous?" she said, not taking her eyes off Keith's body as he lowered his khakis and stepped out of them. He now stood there naked, save for a pair of white briefs that struggled to contain his rapidly growing erection.

"Should I be?" I answered her question with a question. Actually, I was a little, but, like I said, bodies like that are not god-given; they're man-made and I wasn't willing to put in the work.

My wife whistled again, and I thought maybe it might be the time to start putting in the work. I'm sure she'd be my personal trainer.

Keith sat down on the weight bench, still in his undies.

"Aren't you taking them off?" Jennifer said with just a touch more enthusiasm than was needed.

"Maybe later."

“Suit yourself,” my wife said as she leaned back to enjoy the pleasure I was giving her.

I love listening to my wife moan, it's a very sexy sound, full of depth and passion. She is not a quiet lover, by any means. Since we'd been married, I was pretty sure I was the only one who got to hear her make that sound, her oh-god-I'm-gonna-cum sound. I never really thought about sharing the experience. One thing I was sure of, I was proud to be the cause of those cries of pleasure, although I wasn't 100 percent sure I was the person she was thinking about at the moment.

She was probably thinking about the sizable penis Keith had tucked in his shorts, and what it might look like out in the open and fully engorged. Hell, even I was interested in seeing what it looked like.

I continued to work my fingers around and through my wife's labia, occasionally lightly touching her clit. Her lower lips were warm and moist with arousal, and her little button was becoming engorged itself, a little nub of pure sexual passion.

I looked down across her body. I watched her chest rise and fall with each breath she took, the rhythm increasing as her climax approached. While one hand played with her pussy, my other roamed the rest of her body. My fingers danced across her shapely abs, my hand molding around her perfect breast. I tweaked one nipple, then the other, and Jennifer arched her back and let out a long alto moan as her first orgasm of the new year swept through her body.

I watched Keith as he stared intently between Jennifer's thighs. He was absent-mindedly fondling himself through the fabric of his shorts. I could make out a small dark spot – a pre-cum stain.

“Looks like you have an admirer,” I whispered into my wife's ear.

She opened her eyes and said out loud, “Oh my, someone's enjoying themselves.”

“I think we all are.”

Keith remained silent. Jennifer turned her head and looked up at me. I could see she wanted to say something but was afraid. I was pretty sure this time that I knew what it was, but I wasn't going to assume and I wasn't going to make it easy for her. If she wanted something, something naughty or taboo, she was going to have to ask for it.

"I want to ask you something," she finally said.

"I know."

She twisted her body so her lips were almost touching my left ear. "Remember what I said about Crystal's question?"

"Of course I do." I was right. I did know what she wanted to ask.

"Do you mind if -" she stopped, unsure of my reaction. My cock twitched between us, so she knew my body was aroused – it was my mind she wasn't sure about.

"Do I mind what?" God, I was being such a bastard. But I was also taking this time to formulate my answer. How did I want this night to end?

"Do you mind, if I go over." she paused again. I watched Keith while my wife whispered her desires into my ear. If he heard what she was saying, just ten feet away from him, he didn't let on. He just continued to slowly rub his cock and watch Jennifer's pussy. It was all kinds of dirty.

"Do you mind if I go over – go over and – play with him?"

Did I mind? That was a great question, and one I had been avoiding.

Before what happened with Carl on our front porch, I was nervous, and jealous, and worried about her cheating on me. I would have said no then, even if the idea made me iron hard.

But now, I know she loves me, I have no doubts. She isn't going behind my back, she's asking my permission. She accepts her desires and wishes to act on them, but only if I'm cool with it. In my mind, only an ass would say no to that. In my mind. Others might feel differently, but that's okay. It's not about them, it's about me – about us. Other men would probably not be finger-fucking their spouse in front of their friends, either.

“I trust you, Jen,” I whispered. “I love you, and I always will. Go over to him. Have fun.”

She smiled the happiest, sexiest damn smile I had ever seen. I'd given her the golden ticket and she squealed with delight, although that might have been me touching her clit.

“God, Michael, I love you so much,” she said out loud.

She got on her haunches and bent over on all fours, facing my friend, her ass toward me. And what a lovely work of art it was – her ass. She was proud of it, and she worked hard to keep it tight, yet gracefully curved in perfect proportion to her six foot frame.

Jennifer started moving across the floor, still on all fours, she was a panther on the prowl, her hips swaying seductively, her modest breasts hung proud from her chest. Her eyes were locked on Keith, whether his face or his cock, I couldn't tell.

As my wife approached him, Keith stopped playing with himself and leaned back on the bench, his strong arms supporting his body. My wife stopped, her head level with his crotch, a mere foot away. She placed her hands on the waistband of his undies and said, “Do you mind?”

Keith looked up at me, wondering if I was really into this or if I was getting ready to launch myself across the room and beat him senseless. I didn't keep him guessing. I nodded my approval.

“Fuck no, I don't mind.” he said to my wife as she knelt between his knees. With his go ahead, Jennifer hooked her fingers under the elastic and pulled. Keith lifted his butt off the bench to help. His cock sprang out, thick and long and fully engorged.

Jennifer said something; I think it was 'yummy.' She turned and looked at me, her eyes asking, one more time, if I was sure about this. I was really enjoying the show, safe in the knowledge that she loved me, even if she wanted to play with someone else. I smiled at her.

“I really do love you, darling,” she said to me before turning back to face Keith's cock.

“You love me, too?” he asked with a big shit-eating grin. The bastard.

Jennifer simply said, “no,” then added, “but this dick, well, maybe.”

I have a normal sized cock, maybe seven inches, I'm not ashamed of it. Looking across the room, using my wife's head as a reference, I say Keith was about the same size, maybe a little longer, but definitely thicker. I wasn't able to study it too long before my wife's head moved in the way and she started licking it, starting at the tip, dipping her tongue in a little bead of pre-cum and pulling back. The thin sticky strand of fluid sparked in the candle light. It was awesome, watching a live porn show with my wife and best friend as the star performers.

For the past six years we'd known each other, my wife has given me head plenty of times, lots of times, too many to count, but she's usually in a hurry – either a quick blow job before she's off to a weekend drill, or as foreplay. She gets my dick wet, then bobs up and down, jerking me with her hands until I come. I ain't complaining, she's never denied me. Sometimes, if she's in a real hurry, she'll swallow to avoid the messy clean up – other times she'll let me cum on her tits. Then we'll both rub it in, like it's some special skin cream.

Tonight, with Keith, she was taking her time, savoring his taste, his texture, enjoying this new sensation of a strange dick in her mouth. She licked up and down his shaft, while she tickled his balls with her fingers.

I was imagining what he was feeling and couldn't help but reach for my own bare cock. It felt so transgressive, stroking myself while my wife went down on another man. For some reason, I found it so damn erotic. I just decided to go with it and worry about any emotional consequences later.

Keith was polite enough to warn my wife when he was about to cum. She just hummed something and kept on sucking. I watched my friends face as his orgasm approached. His eyes rolled back and he started grunting and thrusting his hips up into my wife's inviting mouth, spewing his semen down her throat.

Jennifer caught it all.

“That was The. Best. Blow job. Ever. You're a very lucky man Michael.”

“That, I am.” I was very proud of Jennifer's talented mouth, among other things.

“Thanks, for sharing her.” Keith said to me.

“Oh, no,” I said, “you need to thank her.”

Keith quickly apologized and thanked her for the very pleasurable blow job.

“I'll accept your apology,” she said, “after you reciprocate.”

Keith again looked at me, not sure what my wife meant. I just threw up my hands and said, “Don't look at me, Keith, this is Jen's night.”

My wife crawled back to me and gave me a full, passionate and very salty kiss. I could taste Keith on her tongue and feel the mildly slimy texture that is male ejaculate. It tasted a bit different than when I kiss Jennifer after she's gone down on me, maybe a bit more pungent. Never the less, I enjoyed the kiss. It was so decadent, making out with my wife, sharing a little bit of another man who had just cum in her mouth. Plus she was pulling on my cock, so I had that going.

“Don't worry,” my wife said, “I'm going to take care of you too.”

“I've cum already tonight, I'm good.”

“You'll come again, but first it's my turn.”

Jennifer lay back between my thighs again and spread her own legs wantonly, revealing her dripping wet sex to our guest.

“Come and get it,” she said. I laughed. My wife had become a real -. I don't have a proper word to describe her. There is no word to describe a woman who loves and craves sex that isn't derogatory in some way. Men can be studs and players, Lotharios and playboys. Women are sluts or whores. We need a word.

All I can say is, my wife had become a woman who loved sex, and I could not have been happier.

Without fanfare, Keith came over and knelt before my wife. “You look so fucking delicious, Jennifer.”

“Go ahead and taste,” she said.

I could only imagine how sexy my wife must have looked to Keith. Her legs spread wide, asking him to eat her out. Without another word my friend went down on her. As soon as his tongue touched her sensitive flesh, she arched her back and let out an intense moan.

“Did you come?” I asked.

Jennifer had to catch her breath before she could answer. “A little.”

Keith continued to eat her out. From what I could see, looking down on him, he was working his tongue all around her labia, flicking her clitoris and delving deep into her hot wet pussy. She was going to cum many more times tonight.

While my friend concentrated down below, I decided to enjoy my wife's other treasures. I slipped my arms under hers and mauled her breasts. I brought my fingers to her mouth and she licked them. After they were nice and wet, I went to work on her nipples, running circles round her tight areolas and over her hard nipples. I pinched them, hard. The quick flash of pain set my wife off again, her third orgasm of the night. One, I'm sure they heard in the living room.

“God damn, you guys are good,” my wife said, after she came down.
“You two can really make a woman cum.”

“Thanks,” I said.

Keith looked up from between my wife's thighs and said, “Maybe, we'll have to team up on Carmen next.”

“I'm game.”

Jennifer elbowed me in the ribs, 'lovingly.' “You're a riot,” she said to me before looking down at Keith. “I'll loan Michael out on one condition.”

“Really?” Keith said.

“Really!?” I said.

“Yeah. If I get to watch.” Before Keith could answer, my wife pushed his head back down, encouraging him to continue. He did and a short time later, she grabbed my thighs and came again. Not as loud as the last time, but she obviously enjoyed it.

“I've gotta stop and rest my tongue,” Keith said, pulling away and laying back. He looked kinda funny, prone on the floor, his cock sticking straight up in the air.

“That looks too inviting.” my wife said, and she moved to kneel beside my friend and started sucking him off again. Her ass was pointed back at me, not by accident I'm sure. Her labia was exposed, dark and engorged, her pink slit was wet with her arousal. I needed to have her, to take her.

I knelt behind my wife and rubbed my erection along her folds, teasing her with the tip, tapping it up against her clit.

“Please fuck me, Michael. I need a cock in me. Right now.”

She didn't have to ask twice. I lined myself up and easily slid all the way in, bumping my balls against her mound. I started thrusting and Jennifer reached between her legs and lightly ran her fingers across my sensitive scrotum. I got goosebumps on my balls when she did that.

Jennifer was a talented multi-tasker. She was able to keep on blowing Keith, rocking her head up and down his shaft, while she played with me at the same time. I didn't doubt she was trying to manage us all coming together. That wasn't to be.

I felt a tingle in my groin, a raw lust took hold of me as my climax approached. I picked up my pace and started pounding my wife with a force similar to last week when I was imagining it was Carl fucking her.

This time, it was all me. I knew my wife loved me, even as I watched her suck another man's dick. I knew she would never cheat on me.

Right as I was about to cum my wife's finger slipped back a little farther and she rubbed my asshole. She caught me by surprise, the sensation so intense, I started coming in bursts, my semen shooting so far up inside my wife's body I wouldn't have been surprised if she tasted it. Although, with Keith's cock in her mouth, she wouldn't have noticed.

She paused her blow job when she felt me erupt inside her and concentrated on her own pleasure as she pushed her ass back to meet my thrusts, milking my cock for every drop of cum.

When I was done and she was done, my wife collapsed forward onto Keith's body, her face just a few inches from his. The closeness caught them both by surprise. Keith moved first, lifting his head and grabbing my wife's shoulders to pull her in for a kiss. The kiss was passionate and full of desire. Their tongues dueling for supremacy, saliva, semen and my wife's juices mingling into a cocktail of pure lust.

Despite seeing Keith almost face fuck my wife, this kiss is what sparked renewed jealousy. It was the first time their lips touched this evening. And it was more intimate than anything else we had done. He held her close, lips mashed together, tongues exploring. For the first time that evening, I felt left out.

That feeling only intensified when Keith rolled over and it was Jennifer on the floor and our friend on top. His hard body pressed against hers. Their chests squished together, still kissing with a wicked passion. This was obviously something they had both wanted to do for a very long time. There would be lots of questions later.

Keith's penis, fully engorged, slick with pre-cum and my wife's saliva dangled perilously close to her pussy. Jennifer was open, lubricated with my semen, ready for another cock to fill her.

It was so damn hot, I was getting hard again. I wasn't really sure I wanted to see my wife fuck someone else, specially after that kiss. Even though the thought of it was erotic, I wasn't sure I could handle the actual act.

Regardless, I did nothing as Keith lined his cock up and prepared to enter Jennifer. It was my wife who paused the action, finally remembering it wasn't her husband between her legs.

“Wait,” she said. Surprisingly, I felt a little disappointed that I wasn't going to watch them fuck. That didn't last long.

“Do you have a condom?” she asked him.

The first thing I thought was, she's on the pill why does he need a condom. Then I thought, she just wants to play it safe. Then, a darker thought invade, what if she stopped taking the pill. What if she wanted to have a kid, but didn't tell me

That thought scared me the most. Not that I didn't want kids, I did, eventually, I just thought she and I would talk about it first. Then I came to my senses. Jennifer would not make a big decision like that without telling me, without my input. I was just letting my jealous fears run away with with.

She just wanted a condom to be safe. Unfortunately, condoms were about the only thing we didn't stock up on, and it turned out Keith didn't have any on him either.

Jennifer looked over at me, pleading. She so wanted to feel my best friend's thicker, and to be honest, longer cock inside her. She had the cutest, saddest, puppy dog eyes, I just couldn't say no to anything she asked, even if that anything was to let another man fuck her.

We had gone this far.

I nodded my head and she smiled again, a sweet and loving smile meant only for me.

“You're the best husband,” she said to me before turning her attention to the man on top of her. “Ok, forget the condom, but you can't come inside me. Only my husband gets to sow his seed in my womb.”

Jennifer could say the sweetest things. It was corny, but that made me feel much better about what we were doing.

Keith, obviously, agreed and Jennifer eagerly helped guide his erection inside her. It was more than weird, watching my wife take another man's cock into her pussy. He was only halfway in when my wife started moaning. Even though she was well lubricated with both my semen and her own fluids, his girth was stretching her out in a way I hadn't been able to.

I felt jealous about that, about Keith being able to give my Jennifer a kind of pleasure I just couldn't.

My friend started moving back and forth, working his way in.

“Oh. God. Keith, that feels. Immense,” my wife said, her words broken up with his forceful thrusts. “I don't think. I can. Take it. All.” I don't know if she really meant it, or she was just pushing my buttons. All I did know was that it was fucking hot.

“Yes, you can.” Keith said, rubbing his pelvic bone against her clit. “You already have.”

Jennifer let out a soft moan as he did. Keith paused to let her pussy adjust to the new, thicker dick that was inside her. He wasn't thrusting but he kept rocking his hips, sending waves of pleasure through her body.

They kissed again, slow and tender, sharing the moment.

“You ready?” Keith said, his voice so low I could barely hear it.

“Oh, God, yes,” Jennifer said, a bit louder.

And with slow, long, steady strokes, my best friend started fucking my wife.

“Oh, yes, please don't stop,” my wife said.

“That feel good?” Keith asked, picking up the pace.

“Yes, yes, yes.” my wife said, every time he slammed into her.

“You enjoying it?”

“Yes, yes, yes.”

“Better than your husband?”

“No! No! No!” Jennifer was enjoying the fucking she was getting, but she wouldn't give Keith the satisfaction of humiliating me. I couldn't be absolutely sure what the answer would have been if I wasn't there, but I trusted my wife enough to know she believed it was true. Besides, she wouldn't be fucking him if I wasn't there.

Keith was fucking Jennifer at a ferocious pace, his taut butt clenching with each thrust.

“Oh shit, I'm cumming.” my wife screamed as she arched her back and let out a long, loud moan. It was a sound I had never heard before, one that came from being touch in places I couldn't reach. She looked so fucking beautiful, her chest pushed out, her strong legs wrapped around her lover, her eye's closed tight, a few tear drops slowly tracing lines down her beet red cheeks.

In that instant, while Jennifer was still coming, Keith pulled out.

“FUCK, NO!” she said, the void left by his vacating cock was almost unbearable. If he had asked, in that moment, I'm sure my wife would have insisted he come inside her, as it was he didn't, so he settled for coming on her.

Just seconds after he pulled out, long pearly ropes of semen were shooting from his dick. Most landed in a puddle on Jennifer's tight stomach, a few hit her breasts and I saw a drop or two actually drip down onto my wife's labia.

She looked like a goddamn porn star. A beautiful porn star who just happened to be my wife.

When he was finished, Keith rolled over and collapsed on the floor next to my wife. I grabbed his underwear and threw them at him, then got some napkins from our make-shift bar and went over to clean up the pools of cum on Jennifer's body.

“You don't have to do that?” she said, sitting up to help.

“Isn't that what a good cuckold is suppose to do?” I didn't mean it to sound nasty but it did. I regretted the words as soon as they left my mouth.

“You aren't a cuckold, dear,” my wife said. “No one but you is ever going to put a baby inside me.”

I leaned over and kissed her hard. I could always count on my wife to say just the right thing. Not always what I wanted to hear, but what I needed to hear. That's why I loved her.

Keith got dressed. He asked if he could crash out in the living room. We said of course. He gave Jennifer another kiss, this time on the cheek.

“Thank you both for a wonderful time.”

“I think we all enjoyed it,” I said. And I mostly believed it. I had mixed feelings about the actual fucking, but I could deal with those as long as Jennifer was happy.

After Keith wandered off to the living room, we cuddled on the mat, like we were before he showed up.

“We okay?” my wife asked.

“Yeah, pretty much.”

“Were you jealous? Watching us?”

“Oh, absolutely.”

“I'm sorry. You should have said something. I would have stopped.”

I thought she might have resented me if I asked her to stop. And I really wasn't sure I even wanted that.

“I didn't want you to stop,” I said.

“But the jealousy?”

“I can't explain it, Jen. I loved watching you and Keith fuck. It was like a holographic porno tape. Yes, I was jealous and hurt, but in a weird way that made it better. I'm sure a writer could put it in better terms, make it sound poetic, but I can't. All I know is, you have nothing to be sorry about.”

“So, no regrets?”

“Well, I do have one.”

“What?”

“That my cock isn't as big as Keith's. I can't make you feel as full as he can.”

“Michael, don't be stupid. My cunt is a very elastic muscle. You fill me up just fine.”

“Yeah, fine.” I wasn't fine but I wasn't going to argue.

“Besides, if you want we'll go buy a nice big dildo you can use on me.”

I smiled. Like I said, Jennifer always knew just what to say. I got up and blew out the candles.

Darkness filled the room and I started replaying everything that had happened. The wonderful blow job, watching my wife suck my friend's dick, holding her while he made her come on his tongue. Fuck her and watch her be fucked.

All told, it was good.

“We gonna do this again?” I asked my wife as I lay back beside her.

“Why? You wanna do it again?”

“Maybe.”

“If it feels right.”

“So, we're not gonna become swingers?”

“Uhm. No,” Jennifer said. “We'll just play it by ear.”

“Maybe invite Carl over for dinner and drinks sometime?”

My wife elbowed me in the ribs. “Don't even joke. You're playing with fire there.”

I let the comment slide. “What about letting Keith and me do his girlfriend?”

Jennifer grabbed my face and kissed me. “Like I said earlier, only if I get to watch. Now, no more questions. Get some sleep.”

That was all my wife said to me that night. She just rolled over and fell asleep.

I didn't know what the future would bring. Lots of questions from our friends out in the living room, I was sure. Some we'd answer, others we wouldn't.

One thing I was pretty sure about. This wasn't our last time inviting another player into our bed. We both enjoyed it, and neither of us seemed to have any major hang-ups.

We both loved each other and, in the end, that's all that matters.

About the Author

Sean Geist lives in Northeast Texas with his wife, three cats, and one bird. He's been writing on and off for about 35 years. A few of his works have been published – under other names.

He can be reached by e-mail at seangeist@outlook.com

You can follow him on twitter @SeanGeist

Also by Sean Geist

Things We Do For Lust: To The Edge

A seminar in Las Vegas created a perfect opportunity for Peter and Robin to mix business and pleasure. Peter would spend a few days in meetings, while Robin relaxed at the pool - then at night they'd kick back and enjoy all that Sin City had to offer. Ending the week celebrating their anniversary was just a bonus.

But, an unexpected stroke of good fortune interrupts the happy couple's plans. They win a nice little jackpot, and the attention of a handsome stranger. Suddenly they find themselves celebrating with a man they hardly know - someone both Robin and Peter find intriguing.

A night of flirting and a day of seduction later finds the married couple at a crossroads. Will Robin be lured away by another man? Or will she be able to control her desires for a man other than Peter? Or maybe - something else.

Going Down To Get Up \(The Things We Do For Lust Bk 2\)

A week in the fantasy playground of Las Vegas left a permanent mark on Peter and Robin's marriage. She has a new job, a new boss and a new lover. He has to learn to deal with the situation, with a little help from some very sexy friends.

Can love survive when shared three ways? Or will one heart have to give?

Sometimes the only way to get up is to go down.

Zahara

Frank Thompson, a successful author of erotic literature, has hit a wall. The words that used to spring forth from his pen – words that made women sworn and men hard - are no longer flowing. Now, his publisher is demanding a new story, one that will return Frank to the top of best-seller lists. Frank promises himself he'll get the book written, but first, he has to deal with his lovely new neighbor.